Carter nomination set tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter reaches a crucial milestone on his long, once lonely journey from Georgia toward the White House when tonight he receives the Democratic presidential nomination. Not until he has that prize in hand does Carter intend to name his running mate.

After morning meetings with Latin-American delegates, labor leaders and nine governors, all anxious to have his ear, Carter told reporters he would not notify his choice until Thursday morning, just before he plans to make it public. He said he would tell the others only that they had not been chosen.

As for speculation that he has narrowed his list of potential candidates or has made his final decision, Carter said, "No one can speak for me and I've told no one. I've begun to narrow it. Yes, that's true."

Carter also spent part of this day of fulfillment working on his acceptance speech.

There are six names, all senators, on Carter's list of vice presidential possibilities.

Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, one of the Democratic governors who met with Carter, said he gave them no hint who his choice might be.

Carter's decision to wait until Thursday to notify his choice instead of Wednesday night was a change of plans apparently designed to prevent leaks.

The third session of the Democratic National Convention is to open at 8 p.m., EDT, and sometime before midnight, during the call of the roll of delegations, Carter's vote total will top the 1,505 needed for the nomination.

With that accomplished, the convention will await his decision on a running mate to complete the Democratic ticket.

Considered at the top of his list of six were Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota and John Glenn of Ohio.

Also in the running were Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai E. Stevenson III of Illinois.

Carter's choice will be ratified by the convention Thursday night just before the former Georgia governor delivers his acceptance speech.

The convention approached its climax in an atmosphere of unity with party leaders and delegates determined to do nothing to upset Carter's careful plans to win the White House, held by Republicans for nearly eight years.

Among the meetings on Carter's schedule was one with Democratic governors. Gov. Reuben Askew of Florida, chairman of the group, said the purpose was "to try to help him in any way he feels he needs assistance rather than trying to lobby him on any particular candidate."

They look, talk like Texans

Shaws grab headline in New York Times

Special to The Herald

NEW YORK — Convention fever has hit New York City and the hippies, the hookers, the hawkers and about 200 Texas politicians have entered into the fun.

Signs all around Manhattan Island proclaim that "New York City is having a party — The Democratic Party."

And who grabs the front page headline in the New York Times today?

Delano Shaw, national Carter delegate from Big Spring and his brother Larry Shaw, Howard County farmer, that's who.

THE HEADLINE: "Texans, New Yorkers hitting it off at last."

Near the top of the story written by James Sterba it stated that "New Yorkers discover Texans sound like Texans, but they don't look like Texans. About the only cowboy hats and boots noticed at the convention were worn by delegates from Wisconsin and Nebraska."

delegate Joe Pate, Lubbock cotton farmer, who also happened to be wearing cowboy boots, as saying, New Yorkers are great hosts and "extremely friendly."

"A native of Abilene called Delano this morning after reading the New York Times. She explained she had been away from Abilene about 15 years and just wanted to talk with someone from West Texas," Larry Shaw said.

WITH JIMMY CARTER ready to receive the Democratic presidential nomination, with virtually no opposition, the usual chaotic Democratic convention process has become a love-in.

No one is angry at anyone, unbelievable to the convention veterans who were present at Miami Beach four years ago, when George McGovern's legions were battling the Democratic establishment, or eight years ago at Chicago, when blood flowed in the streets.

THE ONLY THINGS flowing in Manhattan are booze and brotherly love, perhaps a bad sign for the Republicans, who will have to face a united Democratic party in November.

In this kind of atmosphere, the Shaws plan more sight-seeing this afternoon. They will attend a state delegation reception at the Essex House, Texas headquarters, 30 blocks from the convention site across the street from Central Park.

The brothers visited the Cotton Exchange yesterday afternoon.

"Things seemed kind of hectic," Larry observed. "I noticed the cotton prices were down."

Citizens can collect damages for proven libel, court says

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court today ruled that private citizens may collect damages for libel if they are able to prove in court that newspapers or other communications media were negligent in publishing defamatory falsehoods.

The milestone ruling in Texas libel law followed a recent U. S. Supreme Court decision leaving to the states the right to set standards for recovery by private citizens in libel suits.

"We hold that a private individual may recover damages from a publisher or broadcaster of a defamatory falsehood as compensation for actual injury upon a showing that the publisher or broadcaster knew or should have known that the defamatory statement was false," the Texas court ruled.

"In addition, the liability of a publisher or broadcaster of a defamatory falsehood about a private individual may not be predicated upon 'a factual misstatement whose content would not warn a reasonably prudent editor or broadcaster of its defamatory potential,'" the court said.

Under the U. S. Supreme Court's rulings, the state court could have adopted a different guideline, including extension to private citizens of the far more restrictive standard applicable to public officials and public figures. That standard allows money damages only upon proof that a falsehood was published or broadcast with reckless disregard for whether it was true.

The Texas court also rejected a standard requiring proof of gross negligence.

Choate takes place on credit union board

Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate was sworn in as a member of the National Credit Union Administration Board this morning in ceremonies at the Webb Air Force Base Officers Club.

Choate was appointed to the office by President Gerald Ford and the oath was administered by Paul Trylko of Austin, regional director of the National Credit Union Administration.

Choate was presented a proclamation of appointment signed by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Choate gave a brief response, stating, "During my six-year tenure on the board, I will strive to expand the credit union movement and improve the services and benefits that can be provided to credit union members around the globe."

Choate's nomination was unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

Cousteau finds treasure

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Jacques Cousteau, international underwater explorer, said today he has recovered scores of valuable gold, bronze and clay antiquities in a three-month search of the Aegean seabed.

"The Greek seas are a paradise of ancient treasures and history. But time, nature, as well as plundering pirate divers have already destroyed much," he told a news conference.

Shipwrecks dating from as early as the first century B.C. to the gigantic Titanic passenger ship sunk during World War I were also discovered by the Greek government-financed expedition.

Cousteau had 126 items from the search carried out by the research vessel Calypso, mainly around the island of Antikithira and off Crete. Many of the finds dated from a first century B.C. shipwreck off Antikithira, believed to have been sunk while heading for ancient Rome loaded with Greek treasures.

Most valuable were three gold bars, a gold ring, and a finely engraved jewel-studded necklace. Other items included clay vases and containers of various sizes, columns of clay-embedded coins, tear collectors which in ancient times were filled by relatives and buried with their beloved ones, and a life-size marble hand from a statue. The only remnants of the ship were some pieces of wood, lead and large nails.

Around the now uninhabited island of Dias, off Iraklion, Crete, Cousteau said his crew discovered "an entire sunken harbor with incredible remains."

Off the small island of Kea the research team came across the Britannic, a 918-foot vessel sunk during World War I with 950 crew and 2,500 passengers aboard. The ship is on its side and its interior was successfully filmed, Cousteau said.

Action / reaction: Gun sales increase

Q. Are more people buying guns nowadays to protect themselves against the increasing crime, burglaries and the like?

A. Aubrey Weaver, owner of the City Pawn Shop reported an increase in the sale of guns, but nothing spectacular. His wife Ann, said that "guns come and go, and right now the rattlesnakes are out, and when the rattlesnakes are out, people buy more guns." She also indicated that if a proposed law about restricting guns is discussed, there is usually some increase in the influx of guns, but the overall situation remains about the same year in and year out.

Offbeat: Jaws on vacation

ARLINGTON, TEX. (AP) — Clear the prairie, there's a shark in the creek.

Authorities were puzzled Wednesday after two 10-year-old boys caught a 3 1/2-foot sand shark in a creek in this North Central Texas city which is about 300 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

Barry Stagner and Cliff Piper said they thought they had hooked a large catfish with their cane pole and artificial worm rig Tuesday. "It bit the worm in two, but we got it up on the bank," young Stagner said.

The youths then loaded the mini-Jaws onto a lawn mower grass catcher and dragged it to Stagner's nearby home.

"I thought it was a prank when I first got a call on it," said Animal Warden Steve Smith. City Health Officer Curtis Compton said most area creeks are connected one way or another with coastal waters and it's possible the lone shark could have made its way here.

Some neighbors thought the shark was placed in the creek by a joker.

Neighborhood cats approached the shark, but witnesses said the felines would have nothing to do with it.

"Now I'll have to contact the city manager's office and they'll be worrying if they will have to put up a sign warning against sharks in the creek," moaned Compton.

The unnamed creek is a tributary of Lake Arlington.

Police beat Quiet day for cops

Local police spent a relatively quiet Tuesday. A large rock was thrown through a plate glass door at the Westside Variety Store, 611 Lamesa Highway, at 2:13 a.m. Tuesday. Damage was estimated at $75.

Victoria Cantu, 206 N.E. 10th, reported the theft of cash from her residence around 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The money was taken from a cigarette case lying on top of her refrigerator. Stolen were two $50 one $20, two $10, and two $5 bills. The cigarette case was left behind.

Mrs. T.A. Cuddeback, 634 Manor, reported the theft of three boxes full of "Miscellaneous what-nots, knick-knacks, hand-carved, wooden dishes and a child's phonograph" from her carport. Value of the items is unknown.

Sadler's try rejected

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—State District Court Judge Herman Jones has rejected Jerry Sadler's attempt to block a rival's place on the November general election ballot for railroad commissioner.

Sadler had contended that Jon Newton, who won the Democratic nomination in a runoff against Sadler, was ineligible because he voted in the 1975 legislature to raise the pay of commissioners by $7,200 a year.

Funny money discovered

DALLAS (AP)—The head of the Dallas Secret Service office says that $2 million in confiscated counterfeit bills "would have played havoc with the local economy" had they gotten out.

Agents searching the offices of a man arrested on a parole violation Monday night said they found $2 million in counterfeit $10 and $100 bills of "fairly sophisticated" quality.

"As far as we know, none of the bills has been passed," J. Walter Coughlin, head of the Dallas Secret Service office, said Tuesday. "But if all of this $2 million had gotten out it would have played havoc with the local economy."

James Merrill Brockman, 36, a Dallas resident who moved here from Grand Junction, Colo., was arrested by FBI agents Monday on a parole violation warrant issued by a federal judge in Colorado. Brockman was convicted in 1971 of counterfeiting and mail fraud.

Brockman gave his permission for the search which yielded the bogus cash, said Coughlin.

Coughlin explained that the bills were packaged to be resold. Two shoe boxes full of $100 bills, wrapped in $10,000 bundles, were found along with other loose $100 and $10 bills.

High Court orders Carrillo removal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court today ordered the removal of O. P. Carrillo of Benavides as judge of the 229th Judicial District — repeating a step already taken by the legislature through impeachment.

It was the first time the court had removed a judge upon the advice of the Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission.

Carrillo is appealing his removal by the Texas Senate to other state district courts. Today's supreme court action provides a backup if those courts — whose findings are appealable to the high court — should rule that Carrillo was wrongly removed by the Senate.

The Senate convicted Carrillo on Jan. 23, removed him and ruled that he may never hold public office again in Texas.

Carrillo's attorneys contended that he could not be removed because all of the acts of misconduct alleged by the judicial qualifications commission occurred before he was re-elected on Nov. 5, 1974.

Re-election, in effect, wiped the record clean, Carrillo contended.

He also said the judicial qualifications commission proceeding was moot because of the impeachment action.

Insurance companies ask for 27.9 per cent raise

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Insurance companies, claiming that they too have suffered from inflation, will ask for a 27.9 per cent reduction — called "deviations" — from standard rates.

The State Insurance Board will hear their request at its annual car insurance hearing, then come back on Aug. 4 to receive rate recommendations from its staff.

In the past, staff recommendations have been the big feature of the hearing, with the industry laying out its similar — but usually higher — request the same morning.

The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office (TAISO) said Tuesday it will ask the board for these average statewide increases in private passenger automobile rates:

- Bodily injury liability, 18.7 per cent.
 - Property damage liability, 40.9 per cent.
 - Full comprehensive, 15.5 per cent.
 - $100-deductible collision, 36.2 per cent.
 - One rate decrease was recommended—a 4.2 per cent drop for uninsured motorist coverage.
- Actual premiums are not set statewide and will vary according to the rating territory in which a driver lives, his or her age, driving record, make and model of car and the use to which it is put.
- Some companies offer reductions—called "deviations"—from standard rates.
- "The inflation steamroller continues to do its damage. As it is affecting others, it is also hitting us—and the squeeze is becoming unbearable."

TAISO spokesman David Irons of Dallas said in a statement.

"Our rates are now only 7.3 per cent higher than they were in 1971. This certainly lags far behind every relevant indicator, far behind percentage increases in medical care and automobile repair costs—the costs paid by auto insurance."

The board's reasons for delaying the presentation of its own actuary's rate proposals were obscure Tuesday. The figures were ready, but staffers claimed they had legal advice that they were not subject to mandatory disclosure under the open records act.

The Associated Press asked Commissioner Joe Hawkins to seek an attorney general's opinion.

Asst. Deputy Commissioner Doug Barnett said the reasons for not laying out the staff figures at Thursday's hearing are bound up in the state's new Administrative Procedures Act.

Board decisions, he said, can be made only on evidence brought out in public hearing. This necessitates seeing the industry figures first, then bringing out those of the staff as a response.

Some insurance men, however, viewed the delay as a means of directing public criticism away from the board and toward the industry.

The board also has called a Friday meeting with insurance men concerning the growing unavailability of auto and other property insurance.

The Southwest Insurance Information Service issued a statement relating availability of coverage to higher rates.

Jerry Johns, president of the service, said 1976 is the worst year in the industry's 225-year history in America.

Willard resigns from First National Bank

Larry Willard, senior vice president at First National Bank, resigned to accept a position as president of the First National Bank in Post, effective August 1.

The community leader has been associated with the bank here since 1971. He has also been extremely active in civic affairs and is currently vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

The board of directors of the bank Tuesday promoted M.A. Snell, vice president, to the position of senior vice president.

Snell joined the bank in 1970 when he came from Brownfield. He has been extremely active in agriculture-related events in the community and serves as secretary of the Howard County Fair Association. He is also on the Howard County Junior Livestock Association board of directors and was recognized last year by county 4-H Clubs.

Three local residents complete CPR course

Three local residents this week completed a two-day intensive training course qualifying them to teach instructors in cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

David Spilman, assistant identification and records officer at the local police department, Ms. Marianne Simpson, R.N., head nurse for the intensive care unit at the Veterans Administration Hospital and Ms. Nadine Lambright, certified operating room technician at Malone and Hogan Hospital took the course.

To qualify for the course, which was taught in Odessa, the trio already had taken the CPR basic course four hours and an eight hour instructor course.

Instructors for this course were Jim Petra and Joel Franks R.N., both of Brownfield General Hospital.

Reason for the courses are that each year, more than 650,000 Americans die suddenly. There are many causes, including poisoning, drowning, suffocation, choking, electrocution and smoke inhalation.

A course will be offered to instructors by this team in the early fall with a date to be announced.

Grand jury indicts printers for rioting during strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted seven pressmen on charges of rioting and destroying property during a strike at the Washington Post last October.

The defendants are members of Local 6 of the Newspaper and Graphic Communications Union, the Justice Department said as it announced the indictment.

The seven defendants "wilfully engaged in a riot" and "maliciously caused and attempted to cause injury and destruction to portions of the pressroom and machinery" at the newspaper plant, the indictment said.

The defendants are Eugene E. O'Sullivan of Vienna, Va., Cecil E. Rust of Arlington, Va., Gil W. Fowler of Washington, Lawrence H. Boyd of Hyattsville, Md., Fred F. Tweedie of Sterling, Va., Michael Tenorio of Alexandria, Va., and Walter

J. Stahl of Burke, Va. O'Sullivan and Rust also were charged with inciting a riot.

O'Sullivan, Rust, Tweedie, Tenorio and Stahl were charged with stealing mechanical devices that are part of the press apparatus that folds newspapers.

O'Sullivan, Rust, Fowler and Boyd were charged with assaulting James H. Hover, who was not further identified, during the course of the strike.

The indictment was returned in U.S. District court here.

The federal prosecutor's office has been investigating the violence and destruction in the Post pressroom since it erupted at the beginning of the pressmen's strike Oct. 1.

The department said 115 witnesses were presented to the grand jury during the probe.

On the destruction of property charge each defendant faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine. The riot charge carries a maximum of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

These are the maximum penalties for the other charges: Inciting a riot, 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine; assault with a dangerous weapon, 10 years in prison; simple assault, one year in prison and a $500 fine, and grand larceny, 10 years in prison.

Sterling doctor honored

Doctor S.S. Evans, of McAllen, was elected president of the Texas Division, American Cancer Society at the July 8-9 annual meeting held in Dallas.

Also elected were: Russell H. Perry of Dallas, chairman of the board; Doctor F. Lamont Jennings of Galveston, president-elect; Larry Kl Fuller of Borger, vice chairman of the board; Mrs. Alton Zamzow of Three Rivers, secretary and Glen Soderstrom of Amarillo, treasurer.

One of six persons in Texas honored for 25 years work with the American Cancer Society was W. J. Swann, M.D. of Sterling City. There were also seven persons honored for 30 years service.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, MR. PRESIDENT — As a staff member lights the candles on a birthday cake, President Ford jokes with reporters and staff members about his 63rd birthday as he returned to Washington late Tuesday night aboard his presidential jet after attending the All-Star baseball game in Philadelphia. Inscribed on the cake is: "Give em Hell Jerry." Ford turned 63 Wednesday.

'Give 'em Hell,' says Ford's birthday cake

WASHINGTON (AP)—The President began his 64th year today as an underdog, slicing a birthday cake that urged him to "Give 'em Hell, Jerry."

The unnamed 'em on President Ford's cake could be Ronald Reagan or Jimmy Carter or both. Carter becomes the Democratic presidential nominee tonight and polls show he leads Ford in surveys gauging their relative popularity with voters.

Ford also took his semiannual physical today, with electrocardiogram and standard lab tests by his personal physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash, and that crimped an early birthday celebration.

The physical examination began at 8 a.m. in the White House residential quarters. It was expected to last an hour or so. Announcement of the results was expected later in the day.

Ford was the pre-game star at Tuesday night's baseball All-Star game and the celebration of his birthday began on the flight home from Philadelphia. Ford's staff brought out a birthday cake with five candles and the legend suggesting the presidential campaign of Harry Truman, an incumbent underdog who won.

Ford, confronted with the birthday cake, was reminded that he should not be eating prior to a physical exam. Turning to Lukash, Ford asked, "Couldn't it be postponed for 24 hours?" Lukash firmly shook his head in the negative.

So Ford cut the cake and passed pieces out to people on the plane. He did not eat a slice himself.

As the Democratic convention ground on in New York Tuesday night, Ford tossed out the first pitch at the All-Star game — twice, first with his left hand, then his right.

Ford strode onto the diamond, arms around managers Sparky Anderson of the National League and Darrell Johnson of the American League as a band played "Hail to the Chief."

Red, white and blue balloons by the hundreds were released from beyond the center field wall. Fireworks lit the sky and water fountains sprayed into the air over a replica of Independence Hall.

Before the game, the President visited both dressing rooms, autographed baseballs and jawboned with Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers. Fidrych, starting pitcher for the American League, handed the President a ball and Ford said: "I hope he throws better than I do."

"Oh, I'm sure I will," Fidrych replied. He was the losing pitcher as the National League prevailed, 7-1.

Local agriculture teacher will be honored by group

Truett Vines, Vocational Agriculture teacher, Big Spring High School, will be honored by the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association of Texas in Ft. Worth, Aug. 3, according to Guy Finstad, Vocational agriculture teacher at Cal. Farley's Boys Ranch, and president of the organization.

Vines is being recognized for his 30 years of service to the Vocational Agriculture program in Texas. After graduation from Comanche High School and 3 years of military service he attended Texas A&M University and Sul Ross earning his B.S. and M.A. degrees.

The award will be presented during the Association Awards Program which is held during the statewide in-service education workshop for Vocational Agriculture Teachers, August 2-6.

TRUETT VINES

Leaders in Agriculture Education from throughout the state and nation will participate in the four-day in-service meeting. Education features of the meeting will be under the direction of Mr. J.A. Marshall, director of Agriculture Education, Texas Education Agency, Austin. Vines has led and directed the Big Spring Future Farmers of America in participating in many leadership contests, judging contest, livestock shows and fairs and other agriculture events where they have earned and received their share of the banners and awards presented. Six members have earned their State Farmer Degree in the Texas FFA and one member has progress in the program by receiving the American Farmer Degree from the National FFA in Kansas City. Mr. Vines was presented the Honorary State Farmer Degree in the Texas FFA for his many hours of work and encouragement to the members.

Approximately 1,600 Vocational Agriculture Teachers and friends are expected to attend the Ft. Worth meeting.

Farmers need grain receipt

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White today urged Texas grain farmers to request an official Texas grain warehouse receipt when depositing their crops for storage this year.

"Don't depend on a mere weight ticket as proof of deposit in a warehouse," White warned. "Weight tickets should be exchanged for official receipts as soon as possible. This is a recommended business practice which offers maximum protection under the law."

Commissioner White noted that Texas Department of Agriculture fieldmen make frequent inspections of storage facilities and release the warehousemen annually. However, ownership of grain in storage is sometimes difficult to determine unless an official warehouse receipt has been issued on request of the farmer.

Reagan heads for World Ford strongholds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for two of President Ford's strongest states today in his hunt for delegates to the Republican National Convention.

The former California governor hoped to trim Ford's lopsided majorities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania with a series of speeches and private meetings with uncommitted delegates and delegates who might switch from Ford to Reagan.

An Associated Press delegate count shows Ford ahead of Reagan by 33 delegates nationwide, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination for president next month in Kansas City.

Reagan, in a statement issued Tuesday by his campaign headquarters in Washington, said that once the convention begins he will not challenge the credentials of any delegate. He urged Ford to pledge the same in the name of party unity.

"The manner in which we conduct our national con-American people confidence that the Republican party can govern honestly, decently and effectively over the next four years," the statement said.

In a separate development, reports on file with the Federal Elections Commission showed that Reagan's campaign has taken more money and spent more than the President's.

Reagan's forces, for the six months ending June 30, collected almost $13.2 million, mostly in contributions and federal matching funds, the reports showed. The campaign spent about $13.1 million for the six-month period.

Ford's campaign for the same period attracted slightly more than $11 million, again mostly in contributions and federal matching funds. The President's committee has spent $10.9 million.

More troops to Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria sent more troops into Lebanon Tuesday night to reinforce the Syria attacks on the Moslem towns of Baalbek and Sidon, the joint Palestinian-leftist Lebanese command claimed today. A leftist communique said two motorized battalions totaling 1,000 men rolled across the eastern border during the night to join the attack on Baalbek, 42 miles northeast of Beirut. The communique today said the Syrian tanks bludgeoned their way into the town, overpowering grenade-throwing leftist defenders, "while troops conducted a house-to-house search to disarm Baalbek."

Another government for Italy

ROME (AP) — Giulio Andreotti, a two-time premier and fixture in Christian Democratic cabinets, began trying to form Italy's 36th postwar government today. It will probably be weeks before he knows if he can succeed. President Giovanni Leone gave Andreotti the assignment Tuesday night. The 57-year-old premier-designate called on all parties for "political, economic and social solidarity" to help bail Italy out of its grave economic and social crisis.

Texas horses still need protection against VEE

"It's a good feeling to know that we have no VEE in our Texas horse herds now, but if we don't keep them protected, we may have a serious problem in the future." This statement was made by Dr. Dennis McIntosh, member of the Texas Veterinary Medical Association Public Information Committee.

Dr. H. Q. Sibley, executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission, told Dr. McIntosh in a personal interview, that we never know about the VEE problem just south of our border in Mexico. The mosquitoes that carry this dread disease could move north at any time, like they did in the summer of 1971. At that time, these were some cases in the Howard County area.

That year, over 2,000 horses died from VEE in the Rio Grande Valley. This would not have happened if the horse population had been protected by vaccination. If VEE moves north again, those horses that are unprotected will be susceptible to this dread disease.

Farm operators are reminded Farm operators are reminded that Thursday, July 15, is the final date to certify cotton with ASCS office. This must be done to comply with the current cotton program. Failure to certify the 1976 crop could cause a large reduction in the farm's established yield.

Farmers are also reminded that an appraisal and measurement should be made before destruction of poor cotton. The operator should notify the ASCS office before any plow ups are made on cotton or grain sorghum.

Gingham dog, calico cat negotiate?

Negotiate?
The gingham dog and the calico cat negotiate?
Possible, but that's what Howard County Commissioners Court came up with in Monday morning's meeting.
The commissioners, who wish more than anything else that the Howard County Airport squabble would magically go away, urged Big Spring Aircraft and Trans Regional Airlines to try and work out their differences.
But the gingham dog and the calico cat, side by side in the Howard County airport terminal they sat. It looks like they are going to eat each other up, and maybe damage the entire community while they fight.
CLYDE McMAHON, chairman of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce's Transportation Committee, has noted that the two aircraft companies seem destined to quarrel, no matter what. As long as they sit on the same shelf, there will be trouble.
The problem is that no one can figure out how to get either the gingham dog nor the calico cat off that same shelf. Big Spring Aircraft has a lease from the county which appears to entitle it to play dictator at the public's airport. Trans Regional could operate its charter service from a place other than the terminal building, and it has been offered facilities to do so, but it will not budge from its end of the shelf.

After a year of foot-dragging by the commissioners court, Louis Rosenbaum of El Paso (president of Trans Regional) finally got his fixed base operator's license Monday afternoon, but that didn't stop the match, it only shifted to other courts, probably Justice of the Peace court for the eviction and district court for the resulting law suits.
THE QUESTION appears headed for a cat and dog court fight. With all the barking and hissing that has already been done, it would be amazing if the two parties could even exchange "good mornings," much less negotiate.
Big Spring Aircraft's letters to Trans Regional threatening eviction could hardly be interpreted as an attempt to reason matters out, nor has Rosenbaum worn down the city's sidewalk looking for a compromise.
Monday's debate of the airport question came after a dozen representatives of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, with Vice President Al Stephens as spokesman, presented the commissioners with chamber resolution which urged that the court work to keep the existing Trans Regional Airlines service.

THE CHAMBER resolution was carefully worded to be broad support for the present airlines, and spokesman Stephens avoided becoming involved in the biting and scratching that followed between attorney Bob Miller, who represents Trans Regional, and attorney and Big Spring Aircraft official Guilford Jones, who acted like he had just finished reading "Winning Through Intimidation."
Apart from the gingham dog and the calico cat, the only party that could break up this fight at the county's airport is the commissioners court, and the commissioners don't seem so inclined.
SO UNLESS a negotiating miracle greater than one that would bring peace to the Mideast occurs, the district court may end up being called upon to resolve the county airport question.

But it's a terrible shame because of the potential damage that this fight could have to our community. This is a delicate and important time for Big Spring in terms of both the Webb Air Force Base question and the attempt to attract major new industry to our town.
AS ADOLPH SWARTZ told the commissioners, the computer airlines service is important in attracting industry by helping overcome this area's first impression of isolation. Swartz was frustrated because months of negotiation with the commissioners had failed to bring an end to the problem, and he should be.
The efforts of this community on both the future of Webb and in finding major industry could be hampered by this clash of personalities and self-interest at Howard County Airport.
If it were only a case of the gingham dog and the calico cat consuming themselves and that's all, it would be different. But it's not.

College vs. work

Around the rim

Candy Smith

You know, I was sitting around on my duff last evening wishing I could come up with a great column that would reflect the extensive work and research I put into it. Unfortunately, I wouldn't be too popular here if I ran this particular area blank.
So, with much ado about nothing, I kept on sitting and thinking of some subject of colossal reader interest that would hold you all spellbound. Religion? Politics? Sex?
NOOOOO...? How about college days? I'm glad you like that one because I do, too. I did a running research on it for about five years and as many places, so who could be more qualified?
Inane as this statement may sound, there is a big difference between the life of a college coed and the life of a (dare I say it) a month and a half working woman.
For one thing, I used to be adept at scheduling my classes around what I considered necessary free time. Never arrive on campus before 11 a.m. or remain after 3 p.m., that was the rule. A new phenomena synonymous with working life is that the old rule no longer applies.
Now, I no longer arrive before 8 a.m. or remain after 5 p.m. Another is that if you want free time, stay up all night.
I'VE ALSO found it's a little more difficult to cope with bosses than with professors. After all, missing class won't normally injure the economic security of a professor. Not that my absence in the newsroom would stop the presses but they do have a way of flattering us with threats if we ever get curious enough to find out.

Then there's the matter of looking the part. It's not too hard to look like a college student — anything from semi-nakedness to fashion modeling is appropriate. I never had to go through the what-to-wear routine as a student. Jeans and a T-shirt were the usual disguise. As a striking example, I got a round of applause in the student center when, on the last day of school, I came attired in a dress.
Well, it's nothing new these days, friends. But the applause has somewhat slackened.
THERE ARE advantages though. A paycheck probably heads the list. Second is no homework. I can now collapse on the couch guiltlessly, where I've been known to wake up from fully-clothed the next morning. Saves getting dressed again I suppose.
One could go on forever, but, thank God, this column has its limits, which no doubt coincide with reader's patience. Suffice to say that being out of college and employed has its ups and downs. But it beats being out of college and unemployed.

Carter: An enigma

Jack Anderson

NEW YORK — To the Democratic delegates who came here to acclaim Jimmy Carter, he remains an enigma. Most of them will leave the Democratic convention still a bit chary about their nominee. What makes Carter run? They will go home wondering.
The key to his behavior, according to sources close to Carter, can be found in the example of his former commanding officer, Adm. Hyman Rickover. The salty, old curmudgeon battled the bureaucracy, slashed red tape, overcame obstacles, refused to be deterred.
AND HE ABHORRED any waste of the taxpayers' money.
Those who know Carter say his view of Washington was first shaped in the reconverted ladies' washroom where Rickover was banished to develop the nuclear submarine—the naval bureaucracy pooh-pooed. The Democratic candidate, if he should become President, can be expected to pursue his goals with the same single-mindedness.
"It will be, 'Damn the bureaucrats and full steam ahead!'" predicted one intimate. Yet, like Rickover, the source said, Carter will operate within the system.
The admiral also demanded total dedication from his subordinates. Carter will expect the same commitment from the men around him. They will have to put on the crusader's armor, our sources anticipate.
BEFORE CARTER became an active candidate, he sought out Rickover and spent an evening with him. Our sources say the presidential aspirant went to Rickover more to draw inspiration than to solicit advice.
These sources say Rickover influenced Carter's "attitude toward achievement" but not necessarily his attitude toward the Pentagon. The man who tonight becomes the Democratic standard-bearer admires Rickover tremendously, they say, but may not agree with his military views.
It would be hard to find two more disparate men than the smiling, engaging Carter and the abrasive, washish Rickover. Carter was brought up in Georgia, a scion of the upper class. Rickover came to this country at age five, an immigrant mite tossed into Chicago's slum land, the son of a Polish pants presser.
Both men made it to Annapolis, Rickover in the 1920s, Carter two decades later. The youth from Georgia was a model midshipman, polished, poised, popular. The immigrant from Chicago was always out of step. He was out of step on the drill field, out of step on the dance floor.
YET CARTER was later to say: "Adm. Rickover had a profound effect on my life, perhaps more than anyone except my own parents."
Carter has never forgotten their first meeting. He applied to Rickover for a job in the nuclear submarine program. "How did you stand in your class at the Naval Academy?" asked the admiral.
"Sir, I stood 59th in a class of 820," snapped back Carter, pleased with himself.
Carter paused. "No, sir," he admitted, "I didn't always do my best."
"Why not?" demanded Rickover. It was a question that has challenged Carter ever since, his friends say.

Arthritis-sciatica link common one

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We read your column and find it helpful in many ways. But you have not written on my wife's problem — a combination of sciatica and arthritis.
Cortisone and aspirin compounds have been used along with heat. The doctor seems at a loss as to what to do. The only rheumatologist in town is too busy to take on any new patients. Any suggestions? — C.G.J.
Sciatica (sy-AT-i-ca) is pain in the long sciatic nerve of the leg. The nerve root originates in the lower back.
Your letter doesn't provide any clues as to what type of arthritis your wife has, so I can only speculate.
Pain in sciatica is caused often by arthritic bone changes where the nerve root emerges from the spine. Also, a tumor in the pelvis may put pressure on the nerve, as can any injury.
An example of the bone change I'm speaking of is a thickening of the edges of the spinal vertebra. This can be found with osteoarthritis. Or there can be a narrowing of a disc between vertebrae or a displacement of one of them. Diabetes, gout, alcohol or blood poisoning can also be involved. Even pelvic disorders such as an ovarian cyst or a large fibroid of the uterus can cause sciatica-like pain.
Your wife should get (if she hasn't already) X rays of the lower spine to determine bone changes, as well as a general pelvic examination.
If the spine is involved, conservative treatment — rest, good mattress support, possibly use of what is called a "lumbo-sacral" brace — can help, as can heat. Traction during bedrest can be effective, too. If these measures don't help, surgery may be needed.
A rheumatologist is skilled in dealing with any arthritis, but most general practitioners can also handle these problems. A neurologist is another possibility.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a daughter who cannot tolerate juices like orange or grapefruit because of the acid content of them. She is taking cod liver oil tablets for the vitamin C she is missing. Is this right? — Mrs. L.W.
Cod liver oil is rich in vitamins A and D, but it is not a source of vitamin C. It is vitamin C your daughter is missing in oranges or grapefruit. And she can get that elsewhere. Most vegetables are especially rich in it. Vitamin C comes in tablet form, and 100 mg. a day would be an adequate supplement, if one is needed.
The tablets she is taking might include vitamin C (along with the A and D) but she doesn't have to take all three just to get the one. Looks like she's wasting her money. Check the label for "vitamin C" or "ascorbic acid."
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am embarrassed to bring this problem up with my doctor.
I am 53. The past year I have been treated for high blood pressure and am on medication. My problem is I find my urge for sex getting less and less. I have difficulty sustaining an erection, and, of course, this takes away the pleasure for both of us. Can you help? — G.J.D.
High blood pressure itself can cause a decrease in sex drive. Ironically, the pressure-reducing medications can have the same effect. Once pressure is brought under control the drive usually returns. The effect of the medicine tends to subside with time and use.

There is no way to boost the sex drive at your age under the circumstances. Bide your time and try not to be overly aggressive about sex.
Your doctor is aware of the possible side effects of the medicines he is prescribing, and he may even inquire about that the next time you go in. Be frank about the matter. It is one way he has of evaluating the medicine and the dosage levels.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have just read of a medical breakthrough in arthritis which will cure 95 per cent of the victims. It has something to do with estrogen. We would very much like your opinion as my wife suffers from a severe case of rheumatoid arthritis and has much pain. — E.R.
All I can tell you is that I very recently attended a meeting of the nation's top arthritis authorities in Cleveland and there was no hint of any such "breakthrough." If such a cure were to be discovered, the news would be on the front page of every newspaper in the country.
To falsely raise hopes of sufferers (such as your wife) seems to me particularly cruel. Estrogen, so far as I know, won't help in rheumatoid arthritis. It might in osteoporosis, an allied disease having to do with lack of bone density. Even then it won't correct the problem, just check it somewhat in some cases.

Tragic confrontation

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A Turkish government vessel equipped with new seismic devices for underwater oil exploration is about to leave its berth near Istanbul for "research" in northern Aegean waters claimed by Greece — a disaster-prone voyage that dramatizes the tragic decline of the Western alliance.
Passage of this ship, recently rechristened Sismic, will add another bitter chapter in the hostility between Athens and Ankara, once the unified center of NATO's eastern flank. Far worse, precautionary measures being taken by both sides against possible Greek interference with the ship point to a real threat of shooting inside the disputed waters.
Thus, the Sismic's scheduled sailing — delayed several weeks partly because of Washington's ardent persuasion — is now to coincide with Aegean Sea naval exercises planned by both Greece and Turkey. The Aegean Sea, with massed Greek islands stretching close alongside the Turkish coast, will then be a lethal cockpit.

THIS DANGEROUS confrontation poses further risks to the diminished integrity of Western defenses against the Soviet Union, the new power in the Eastern Mediterranean. Nevertheless, the U.S. is virtually powerless to do anything but counsel delay in the ship's sailing. The remote possibility that the Sismic could indeed trigger a shooting war between Greece and Turkey finds Washington fully as impotent as it has been for 15 months of Lebanon's tragic civil war.
Furthermore, as we have reported, U.S. powerlessness to influence events anywhere in the Eastern Mediterranean basin raises other difficult questions, such as home-porting facilities for the U.S. 6th Fleet.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor:
Bless your hearts: Mrs. Craddock Mrs. Benier and Scott
I've lived here 30 years and been everywhere and this is still the best place in the United States.
I don't want to leave out Mrs. Justice either, your message makes me swell with pride for Big Spring.

Dear Editor:
I know this letter will not be printed because the requirements are for them to be typed, but I was home from college for the weekend without my typewriter. I have a major complaint — only a few times has your paper printed the name of my college the correct way. It's the one in Lubbock — and what has the Herald called it? "Texas Technical University," "Texas Tech College," "Texas Technological College" — the list is endless.
I have shared this with the Tech newspaper, The University Daily, and they were quite disappointed. May I kindly inform you that since 1965 my college's official name is "Texas Tech University."
The Tech used to stand for "technological" but now the official name is "Texas Tech University" and nothing else. The women's section, when listing academic credentials of local brides and grooms, always calls Tech grads "graduates of Texas Technological University" or other erroneous names. When Tech was started in 1925 its name was "Texas Technological College."
Since it gained university standing about 30 or so years ago, and since it had expanded its courses and curriculum to cover much more than technological areas, they shortened the name to "Texas Tech University" and it is that way today. You see, "Texas A&M University" used to be Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College" but certainly you know that A&M graduates veterinarians, psychologists, and nuclear physicists alike.
But its name was officially shortened to "Texas A&M University." However, the Herald certainly never misquotes A&M's name.
I hope that you will send interdepartmental memos that Tech's name is officially "Texas Tech University" and I hope that I will not see it misprinted again. I appreciate the time you have taken to read this letter.
Sincerely,
Mrs. Ellen Phillips

I read in the Herald where there are having several old-fashioned revivals and meetings around Big Spring.
Those looking for fireworks might try some of these meetings.
I knew a man that tried to raise a or make a garden and it went like this: While the good man was working out the weeds from his patch, one of the deacons of the church came along and stopped to chat. The deacon commented "you have a wonderful looking garden there, that is you and the Lord." And the gardener replied, "yes, but you should of seen it last year, when the Lord had it by Himself."
I read in the Herald where there are having several old-fashioned revivals and meetings around Big Spring.
Those looking for fireworks might try some of these meetings.
Newspaper stories are interesting. I read most of them. I like the chuckles some give, and of course the real news, like a publisher several years ago in a small town who didn't believe in printing long stories about things that happened, that he didn't go into details about them.
I can't remember all the stories this publisher would write about, and perhaps I shouldn't. But I do remember an advertising item about a store building for rent. He just put in his paper, "Store building for rent by lady with broad front."
Speaking of heavy people, reminds me of the talking scales in front of the dime store. You would put in your penny and step on the platform, and it would speak out your weight. One lady stepped on the scales and the scales spoke, "110, step down please."
Along came a very heavy person. She deposited her coin and stepped on the scales and immediately the scales replied, "One at a time please, one at a time."
I guess my funny box is getting tickled so better quit, eh?

Dear Editor:
In Friday's mailbox there were four letters criticizing Mrs. Springstead. I would like to say that she did go a little overboard, but she did bring up some good points. Among those points is the fact that Big Springers do show more interest in a rodeo which comes every year than an American Bicentennial which only happens once.
If it rains on the night of the rodeo it is not delayed, but goes on as planned. We should try to give events in our town an equal amount of attention as possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Will you explain the verse in the Bible that says "Many will be called, but few will be chosen." I can't seem to understand it. — J.A.
DEAR J.A.: Evidently you refer to Matthew 10:16. The setting was the last phase of Christ's ministry, just before the triumphal entry into Jerusalem. For many weeks, He had been telling His disciples about the radical nature of His kingdom. It was to reverse many of the accepted arrangements in the human order. Twice Jesus revealed that those who were last in the material world, would perhaps be first in His spiritual world (Matthew 10:30 and 20:16). The whole parable of the householder and the vineyard suggested this (20:1-16).
In figurative language, this was an explanation of the equal treatment all believers enjoy in following Christ. No early disciple was to have special benefit denied the latecomer. In saying that "many are called," Jesus was reiterating the open invitation of God to forgive man's sins. The invitation was first hinted at in Genesis 6, and Jesus declared it also in Matthew 11:28. Even today, the Gospel message is simply "Whosoever will may come."

But realistically, Jesus knew that not all would respond. Relatively few, as a matter of fact, seem to heed the call to repentance. But all who do, have the confirmation of being "chosen" by Him, as part of His family (John 15:16).
This statement by Christ is not intended as a discouraging revelation of God's selectivity, but rather it is heartening evidence of man's acceptability when he has faith.

HAIL AND FAREWELL — Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey shakes hands with Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis as she prepares to leave the Democratic National Convention Tuesday night. Man in background is unidentified.

Hubert loses gracefully, gets ovation

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who has wanted to be president since the Articles of Confederation, maintained a stiff upper lip although the lower one may have suffered a slight quiver.

His reward was the longest, loudest ovation of Tuesday night's session of the Democratic National Convention, from a party that once more had passed him by.

By now the old warrior must be weary of trying not to be a sore loser. He tried four times to get his party's nomination for president and got it but once, in the worst of times, at the worst of conventions.

"I have good news for you tonight: we will have a Democrat in the White House Jan. 20," shouted the man who won't be that Democrat, and the crowd shouted back its approval.

"They say go slow, not now, no, no, veto. We've had enough of that defeatism... If America ceases to be great, America ceases to be great."

At the end, Muriel Humphrey took the hand of her twinkling husband and led him off the platform and he was gone, reluctant but smiling, a vivid memory in a baby blue suit.

He came and he went in a long procession of the party's familiar faces and last hurrahs, the former heroes and the forgiven villains, the widows, the passing symbols of profound change.

The delegates also cheered George McGovern in apparent forgiveness for the disaster four years ago. He issued a strenuous call for the defeat of those other fellows and then he, too, was gone, with less than 24 hours to wear a title nobody remembered, titular head of the Democratic party.

Ed Muskie appeared, attempted a casualness, tried a few jokes and then, with great effort, sounded the bugle for a cavalry charge that fell somewhat short of Light Brigade. In oratory, John Glenn and Muskie, two out of the three men believed to be Jimmy Carter's top choices for vice president, have now failed to light up the sky.

The chairman introduced a "very special person, for whom all Democrats have a special affection," and there she was, rising demurely from the VIP box, waving and smiling in her tentative way, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. The convention came to its feet, turned to its right and cheered.

George Wallace's appearance Tuesday night was framed in irony. He was preceded on the platform by the black mayor of Detroit, in whose office there now works one Rosa Parks. It was Rosa Parks, the Alabama seamstress, who began the Montgomery bus boycott, which ignited the civil rights movement in the South and the emergence of Martin Luther King.

Tuesday night, they cheered George Corley Wallace, who once stood in the school house door and now sat in a wheel chair, a gaunt face behind the microphones.

"Some of you need to laugh at me," he said. "but many of you are now saying the same thing: those bureaucrats in Washington ought to have their briefcases thrown into the Potomac."

Unseen hands pulled back George Wallace's wheel chair and he sank from the view of delegates. On the way out, he shook hands heartily with Coretta King, the widow of the civil rights leader.

Will Carter stand on platform?

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Jimmy Carter has a platform applauded by Democrats as diverse as Coretta Scott King and George Wallace, there are some party figures who wonder how long he'll stand on it.

A PLATFORM TO STAND ON — Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson, chairman of the Platform Committee, holds copy of the Democratic National Convention platform which was approved by voice vote late Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden in New York.

The platform, approved by Democratic National Convention delegates early today with hardly a murmur of dissent, performs the political near miracle of being all things to all people.

Carter said his supporters helped prepare the exact wording of the platform, labor leaders said they were successful in almost every item of the charter and a spokesman for the party's left said, "It's a platform which progressives in the party happily support."

Carter's supporters made sure that some platform planks contain qualifying language that falls short of an absolute commitment to proposed goals. But that didn't deter praise for the document.

Wallace, himself an unsuccessful candidate for the party's nomination, hailed the platform as a Democratic commitment to "cut the government to its proper size," even though Carter has said his pledge to reorganize government is not a promise to reduce the size of the federal bureaucracy.

The convention made only one change in the document that was drafted by the party's platform committee in Washington in May. The change proposes legislation to ease restrictions of the Hatch Act and to allow federal workers to engage in some political activity.

Otherwise, the platform was approved as proposed, without opposition on the floor. Delegates seeking discussion of some sections, such as the platform's neutral stance on the abortion issue, were unable to win enough votes to allow debate.

Carter has said the platform should be "a contract with the people." But some Democrats said they question whether a Carter administration would deliver on the platform's promises.

A qualifying passage written in the employment plank by Carter supporters pledges the party to make "every reasonable effort" to reduce adult unemployment to 3 per cent in four years.

Pledges for federally financed national health insurance and guaranteed minimum incomes for the poor and elderly note that "accomplishing our goals in the areas of human needs will require time and resources." The platform does not carry an estimate of the cost of any program.

Some economists, including some Democrats, question whether unemployment can be slashed to the full employment level without setting off a new round of serious inflation.

AFL-CIO prepares Carter endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO, which sat out the 1972 presidential campaign, is preparing an endorsement of Jimmy Carter and plans to marshal its huge political force immediately after the Democratic National Convention.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council may endorse Carter next Monday, United Steel Workers President I. W. Abel said Tuesday night.

One AFL-CIO source said state and local federation units will make contact with Carter's campaign staff as soon as the convention ends this week to begin an effort that will focus initially on campaign strategy and the beginning of a nationwide voter registration drive.

Even if the official AFL-CIO endorsement is delayed until after the Republican convention in August, as favored by some union officials, federation political workers will start their Carter efforts this week.

"We're going all out," an AFL-CIO staff official said Tuesday. "It's going to be an efficient, clean political operation without, I doubt, much emotion. Of course, if (former California Gov. Ronald) Reagan is on the Republican ticket, it'll be a holy crusade."

Meany's absence from the Democratic convention this week was interpreted by some political observers as a lack of enthusiasm for Carter. But Meany aides said personal reasons kept him home.

The question has never been whether the AFL-CIO would endorse Carter, but how enthusiastically its endorsement would be.

If the federation is four-square behind Carter, it could call on an army of political workers from among 14-million unionists. That alone would represent millions of dollars worth of support for the candidate.

Wallace denounces giant bureaucracy

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. George Wallace of Alabama denounced to cheers and applause Tuesday night the "overgrown monstrous bureaucracy... that controls every aspect" of people's lives.

It was a typical Wallace speech, one he would have preferred to make as the party's candidate for president. Instead, that honor will go to Jimmy Carter — and Wallace indicated he will support his fellow southerner.

Wallace, who sought the nomination for the third and probably last time, was greeted by 40 seconds of loud applause and a placard held high in the Florida delegation that said, "Canal Point, Florida wants George Wallace President."

After delivering a sometimes inaudible five-minute speech from his wheelchair, Wallace shook hands with Coretta King, wife of the late Martin Luther King Jr., whose civil rights efforts on behalf of blacks had made Wallace an implacable foe.

Wallace's wife, Cornelia, appeared with him at the end of the speech and waved with him to the applauding delegates, some of whom stood and cheered.

Wallace, crippled by an assassin's bullet in 1972, told reporters he was in good health. He also said he was pleased "that the geographical bias against the South that existed in 1972 no longer exists."

Wallace said he feels several people are well-qualified to be Carter's running-mate.

Addison man charged with wife's murder

ADDISON, Tex. (AP) — An Addison man is in custody today, charged with the slaying Tuesday of his wife and the attempted murder of his two sons.

John Leeroy Beiderwell, 42, was arrested for the murder of his 33-year-old wife, Dorothy, the stabbing of his 10-year-old son Mark, and the attempted killing of his five-year-old son Noel at their apartment here Tuesday morning, officers said.

Justice of the Peace Robert Cole issued the warrants and set bonds totalling $300,000.

Beiderwell, a comptroller for Southwestern Steel Container Co. in Dallas, was in Parkland Hospital Tuesday night, apparently suffering from an overdose of barbiturates, authorities said.

His son, Mark, suffering from a stab wound in the chest, was also in Parkland and reported in serious but stable condition Tuesday night.

The youngest son was taken to Parkland suffering from red marks on his throat and a swollen jaw, authorities said. He was released to relatives.

Addison Police Chief Rick Sullivan said the attacks took place over a 5-hour period and were apparently the result of a family argument.

Sullivan said Mrs. Beiderwell was apparently stabbed once in the chest and died in her sleep about 4:30 a.m. Tuesday. He said the eldest son was apparently stabbed about 7:30 a.m.

Beiderwell's employer became alarmed Tuesday morning when he did not show for work and the telephone line was constantly busy, Sullivan said.

Two of his co-workers went to the family's apartment and discovered the grisly scene.

Addison Sgt. Jim Goold and officer William Beaty, summoned by the co-workers, said they found Mrs. Beiderwell stabbed to death in a bed, blood-soaked Mark Beiderwell gasping for breath in another bedroom and five-year-old Noel Beiderwell screaming.

Sullivan said the eldest son "was apparently left to die in the bedroom."

Oven fork mine reopening set, 11 bodies inside

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — Maybe now, Kathy Hackworth will be able to go to bed at night without feeling a cold shiver.

Three mine rescue teams were prepared to begin today efforts to retrieve the body of her late husband, Johnny, and the 10 other men buried in a Scotia Coal Co. shaft beneath Big Black Mountain.

The bodies have been there since last March 11 and, for the widows and relatives, the waiting has been hell.

"Lord, yes, it will be easier once they get him out," said Mrs. Hackworth, who lives at nearby Cumberland, Va. "It's pretty tough when you crawl into bed at night and you know he's lying at the bottom of that mine. You're safe and he's down there."

While Mrs. Hackworth awaits the outcome with her 9-month-old son, Danny II, David McKnight will be starting a tortuous trip through the darkness to a sad reunion.

He'll be looking for two cousins who were among the eight Scotia miners and three federal safety officials trapped last March when methane gas ignited in the mine for the second time in 60 hours.

The first blast claimed 15 miners, whose bodies were recovered before the second crew went into the mine.

McKnight is leader of one of the specially trained seven-man teams which will attempt to make the mine safe for the three-mile trip back to the shaft where the bodies are entombed.

McKnight said some of the widows don't like the laborious rescue plan which involves taking down the bricks at the mine entrance and a slow process of repairing roof falls, restoring a safe atmosphere and removing standing water.

Mrs. Hackworth said she and the other widows were especially distressed with H.N. Kirkpatrick, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals. "A lot of us women wouldn't have suffered near as much if it hadn't been for him. He said two months ago the air was alright to go into that mine. H's just a big chicken."

The recovery plan was approved by Blue Diamond Coal Co., which owns Scotia, the Scotia Employees' Association, the state Department of Mines and Minerals and the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA).

Robert Barrett, top MESA official, said the rescue effort had not begun earlier because time was needed to train the men who will go into the mine.

Military

B52s watching Soviet ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aging Air Force B52 bombers are being assigned to help the Navy keep watch on Soviet warships in the far reaches of the Atlantic Ocean.

The Pentagon announced Tuesday that the giant eight-engine, long-range jet bombers have started flying sea reconnaissance surveillance missions from U.S. bases.

"Only a few aircraft will be involved in the flights, which will occur from time to time over various Atlantic Ocean areas of operation," the Pentagon said in a brief announcement.

Indications are that the heavy bombers will conduct high altitude surveillance missions with their standard cameras, radar and other electronic equipment, while Navy P3 patrol planes cover the ocean lanes at lower altitudes.

The Pentagon says budget limitations and cutbacks over the past seven years have reduced the Navy's over-ocean reconnaissance capability "to minimum peacetime levels."

The new mission for B52 bombers appears to be the first step in a "maritime strategy," which has been under secret study by the National Security Council for some time.

Eventually, officials have said, land-based Air Force bombers and fighter planes could be used to bottle up Soviet warships in their home bases and to block

Russia's Backfire bombers from striking American naval units at sea.

The Air Force has assigned older B52 bombers to sea surveillance. The Air Force said B52s assigned to ocean reconnaissance will retain their primary mission of delivering nuclear bombs and air-launched missiles at strategic targets in the Soviet Union.

TRAIN CHECK — Kathrine Marie Martinez of Aurora, Colo., stands at attention for a check by upper classmen before beginning plebe summer training at West Point. She was among the 118 women who were the first ever admitted to the United States Military Academy.

Police seek driver which crushed baby

HOUSTON (AP) — Police sought today the driver of a car which crushed a baby girl to death as she and other children lay on a blanket at a drive-in movie.

Anita Alanie Garcia, eight months old, died Tuesday. Juvenile Officer V.H. Kerckhoff said he was told by relatives that two families had placed a blanket between their cars where the children could play Monday night.

He said relatives informed him the car with three persons in it came over a hump and the front wheel passed over the baby.

The driver stopped, they said, with a rear wheel resting on the baby, and when relatives screamed he backed up and drove toward the back of the theater and disappeared.

The child's mother, Guadalupe Garcia of Pearland, had left the play area at the time to put another child in one of the cars.

Delay granted in hearing

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A three-week delay has been granted in the hearing for Marine Capt. Cecil V. Taylor, who is charged with dereliction of duty in the training death of a recruit.

The Corps acted favorably Tuesday on a request by Taylor's counsel, Marine Maj. John Grant Jr., that he be given more time to interview witnesses, including a trio of Marine generals.

Charges against Taylor, former director of the Special Training Branch at the Marine Corps Training Depot in San Diego, stem from the death of Lynn McClure, 20, of Lufkin, Tex.

McClure was fatally injured Dec. 6 during a close-combat drill in which 12-pound pugil sticks were being used. He was transferred to a Houston veterans administration hospital where he remained in a coma until his death March 13.

S. Sgt. Harold Bronson, the drill instructor conducting the pugil-stick bout, recently was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter and assault in the death. McClure had been attached to the motivation platoon, sometimes considered a punishment detail, which had been under Taylor's supervision. The platoon has since been abandoned, although the Special Training Branch continues to operate.

First death sentence since ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Joe Woods, 29, a high school dropout, is the first person from Houston to be sentenced to die in the electric chair since the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the death penalty some two weeks ago.

Woods was assessed the death penalty Tuesday by a state district court jury which earlier had found him guilty of capital murder in the robbery-slaying of a 62-year-old woman.

He was convicted of slaying Mabel Ehatt Oct. 11, 1975. Her partially clothed, beaten and strangled body was found in her apartment. The victim was ill with cancer. She was crippled and used a walker.

Police testified at the trial they found Woods in the apartment.

Man accused of murder gets new trial date

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Joe Bird, accused in the 1974 shooting death of a Harlingen area gun collector, is to go on trial for the second time Nov. 8.

State District Court Judge T. Gilbert Sharpe set the trial date Monday, also refusing a defense motion for a change of venue. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed Bird's earlier conviction and death sentence because of what it said was an improper comment during the trial by a prosecuting attorney.

The state contended Bird, 38, and Emmett Leroy Corges entered the home of Victor Trammel in January 1974 under the pretenses of selling Trammel a gun.

The two men allegedly shot and killed Trammel, tied up his wife and set fire to their house after stealing guns and coins. Mrs. Trammel escaped.

Bird was arrested weeks later in Corpus Christi.

California attempts Texas gas raids?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Railroad commissioner Mack Wallace has urged the Federal Power Commission to stop what he calls an attempt by California to raid Texas' natural gas supply to fire its boilers. Wallace asked the FPC on Tuesday to dismiss a petition which, he said, seeks to authorize the transmission of Texas' intrastate gas through interstate pipelines to use as boiler fuel in generating electricity in southern California.

Oil panel sets boiler fuel hearing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has scheduled an Aug. 19 hearing on Houston Pipeline Co.'s request for an exemption from the commission's order phasing out the use of natural gas as boiler fuel. Houston Pipeline said it needs the exemption to deliver natural gas to Gulf Oil Corp.

Wallace said it is believed that the gas California hopes to buy would not be gas now committed to the interstate market. The petition, he said in a letter, was filed by the people of California, the California State Air Resources Board and the Public Utilities Commission of California.

Wallace said California's attempt to use intrastate gas to generate electricity in that state "is in complete derogation of the national interest" and is "a clear and blatant disregard" of the policy of the FPC and the state of Texas.

He noted that Texas was phasing out the use of gas to fire boilers.

Fewer bits are turning

HOUSTON (AP) — A survey shows 1,572 rotary rigs were drilling for oil and gas in the United States last week.

Hughes Tool Co. reported Tuesday the count is five fewer than were drilling the previous week and 60 below the count of the corresponding week a year ago.

"historically and successfully" sought low wellhead prices for interstate gas, which has brought on declining production.

"The situation in California is but an example of their ill-guided policy," Wallace said. "California now seeks by this petition to disregard their own mistakes by raiding the intrastate market with a contradictory viewpoint that they will pay whatever it takes to obtain natural gas."

Wallace said he would "personally devote my energies to muster the entire resources of the state of Texas" to oppose the California petition to the FPC.

If the FPC refuses to dismiss the petition, Wallace said, he wants it set for public hearing.

Gas well completed with high potential

Coquina Oil Corporation has announced an indicated natural gas discovery through its Coquina 75-A Exploration Program, at the Coquina Oil Corporation — State of Oklahoma No. 1-29, Harper County, Oklahoma wildcat.

The well, which is located on a 5,202 acre drilling block, has now been completed for the highest Calculated Absolute Open Flow of any well drilled by Coquina. The CAOF for this well was 75,272,000 cubic feet of gas per day with flowing surface pressures from 2,710 psi to 2,281 psi on choke sizes from 11-64 inches to 25-64 inches.

Additional drilling on this acreage block is anticipated. Intrastate gas prices in the area are in the range of $1.60 to $1.65 per MCF. The firm owns approximately a 31 percent working interest in the property and the Coquina 75-A Exploration Program Limited Partners own approximately 33 percent working interest.

4-H "Clothing Reflections" winners named

Although fall is still months away, 4-H girls, like Boy Scouts, are getting prepared. Modeled at the 4-H club fashion revue titled "Clothing Reflections: 1776-1976" were fall clothes the girls are making to wear when school starts in September.

something we could wear in fall, not summer clothes," said Jana Wegner, a member of the Gayhill club. The girls winning were: senior division, Dana Westbrook; junior division, Jana Wegner; 11-year-old division, Tammy Peugh, 12-year-old division, D'Ann Hall; 9-year-old division, hand mirror with the words "Clothing Reflections-1776-1976, imprinted on it. The Gayhill girls served cookies and punch and the programs were made by the Lucky Acres group. The script and narrative was done by Coahoma. Mrs. LaVern Gaskin supervised and directed the revue in the absence of a regular home demonstration agent. The girls who won in their divisions will go to the district clothes show in El Paso July 19-20.

Blue ribbons were also given in the craft projects. Scott and Dawn Underwood and Jana Wegner won ribbons for their decorative shirts. Tanya Hollis was given a ribbon for her ceramic cat. Cathy Harold won a ribbon for a macrame hanger. Jana Wegner and Carol Earls won ribbons for their macrame and heishi necklaces.

There were nine girls competing in the show. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Robinson of Decatur, Ill. Maternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ray, 1010 Sycamore, and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Bradshaw. Paternal great-grandmothers are Mrs. Marion David and Mrs. B. R. Robinson. Mrs. Don Larson is the former Deborah Jo Ray.

4-H Club gets new officers

The Gay Hill 4-H Club met Monday evening in the Gay Hill School. The 4-H motto was led by Paul Kay. Brent Rhoton led the pledge of allegiance. Tony Lane led the prayer.

Officers for the coming year are Dana Westbrook, president; Paul Ray, vice president; Linda Bassham, second vice president; Tommy Wegner, secretary; Bobbie Wegner, treasurer; Brent Rhoton, reporter. Council delegates will be Dana Westbrook and Paul Ray. Devin Hamlin was introduced as a new member.

Plans were also made for a picnic and skating party for 6 p.m. July 13 at the Comanche Trail Park. Refreshments were served to thirteen members and adult leaders by Dana Westbrook.

Busy Bee's start work

The Busy Bee Club will begin fall projects Thursday July 15 at the Hobby Center with Roberta Ross as hostess.

Members will need to bring scraps of gingham or felt, a 12x16 piece of striped denim or other material. Also, they will need to bring crewel thread, needles, pins and work will begin on Christmas wreaths.

Trudy Unger was winner of the door prize last week.

Mrs. Jordan honored on 80th birthday

Mrs. S. V. (Merritt) Jordan was honored on the occasion of her 80th birthday with a surprise party on Sunday, July 11.

Guests were served by Mrs. Jordan's granddaughters, from a table decorated in yellow and white and centered with a floral arrangement and birthday cake. The honoree was presented a yellow orchid corsage.

After opening her many gifts, Mrs. Jordan was surprised again with a money tree. Family members present for the reunion and birthday party were her son, Robert Hatcher, of Memphis, Tennessee; her three daughters, Mrs. W. P. Martin and Mrs. J. R. Mitchell of Shreveport, Louisiana and Mrs. D. M. Gilliland of Big Spring. Also attending were 13 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren from Big Spring, Odessa, Dallas and Houston, Texas; Kansas, Maryland, Oklahoma and Singapore.

Second child born to Larsons July 6

A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Don Larson, 1805 Grafa, July 6 in the Medical Arts Clinic. Ginny Rachel Larson, weighing eight pounds and three ounces, is the second child for the Larsons, who have a two and one-half year old son, Joseph David.

The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray, 1404 Johnson.

A recipe-ingredient shower was given for Mischa Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Read. The shower was given Friday night in the home of Mrs. Johnny Justiss.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Rex Swann, Mrs. Tim Tindle, Mrs. Audine Powell, Mrs. J. D. Fortenberry, Mrs. Wayne Nail, Mrs. Tiny Bayes, Mrs. Stanley Phillips and Mrs. Lanelle Witt. The shower table was laid with a lace cloth and centered with bottle dolls of pink and blue farmers. The corsage was made of dish cloths, a measuring spoon and a chore girl. The hostesses gift was a recipe book, file book and note pad.

Old India's decorations commercial

AUSTIN, Texas — For centuries the women of a northeastern Indian district have decorated the walls and floors of dwellings with intricate, symbolic paintings. The paintings, of scenes from Hindu mythology and local tantric traditions, play significant roles in ancient life cycle ceremonies.

Since 1969, however, the paintings have been developed into a commercial product which brings much-needed income to the area and status to the artists.

Dr. Raymond Owens, assistant professor of anthropology at The University of Texas, notes that unlike handicrafts from other underdeveloped countries which have become "airport art," the paintings have retained a high level of quality.

Some of the women artists have moved to larger cities and become part of the art scene, he reports, describing them as "a bunch of Grandma Moses."

Dr. Owens will be going to India later this summer on a Fulbright-Hays grant to examine the new handicraft industry of Madhubani painting.

Too many boyfriends, not enough honesty

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two very pretty and popular daughters. One is 16 and the other is 17. The older girl is stringing three boys along at once. She wears a friendship ring from one, an I.D. bracelet from another and an Indian necklace from a third. None of these boys knows about the others, and when one calls here and she is out with another, I have to lie to keep from hurting the caller's feelings.

The younger one is going with two boys. Each thinks he is the only one. One is so jealous he has threatened to do bodily harm to any other boy who comes near "his" girl. She is getting tired of them both, but doesn't want to hurt either one, so I have to lie to them when they call.

I have always taught the girls to be kind and avoid hurting feelings, so I suppose it's my fault that they're involved with so many boys.

How does a mother get uninvolved? If I were to tell these boys the truth, they'd be terribly hurt.

MOM IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MOM: It's commendable to teach your daughters to be kind, but you should also teach them to be honest. Stringing boys along is dishonest. You're setting a bad example. Start telling it like it is, Mom, and encourage your daughters to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old girl with a very complicated problem. The "Mom" and "Pop" who raised me are really my grandparents. My real mother, whom I was taught to call "Sis," wasn't married when I was born so her parents raised me as their child.

When I was three, "Sis" (my real mother) married my real father who was 26 years older than "Sis" and a family man. (I called him "Bruz.") Sis had gone to work for him right out of secretarial school. It took Bruz three years to get a divorce and marry Sis.

Soon after they were married, they adopted a new-born baby girl because Sis wasn't able to have children. They told everybody this child was their own. She is nearly 18 now and doesn't know she's adopted. Me, their very own blood child, they don't even claim!

That's not all. Two months ago Bruz dropped dead of a heart attack. He was worth a lot of money. I got nothing, but his adopted daughter is sitting pretty with a big trust fund. This is all true. My aunt told me.

Don't you think I'm entitled to something? And how can I get it? Both my grandparents are in a rest home now, completely off their rockers.

FEELS CHEATED

DEAR FEELS: I am not qualified to give legal advice, which is what you need. Engage a lawyer. You could have a good case.

DEAR ABBY: With your wide audience, perhaps you can appeal to towns and cities to rechristen the names of some of their streets.

My cousin had a bad fire in his house, and the firemen went to three addresses before they got to his. In his town, which already has a Lake Street, Lake Court, Lake Avenue and Lake Terrace, they are building an old age complex to be called "Lake Side."

In another town near here, the Rescue Squad had a most difficult time finding the right place because there are four streets with similar names that are constantly mistaken for one another.

I hope you think this is worth printing.

Expert offers tips on buying new fur coat this winter

Planning to buy a fur coat in the August fur sales? Or perhaps you'll wait until the winter clearances, the other popular fur buying period. No matter — fur coats are expensive. Pelt prices are up and you should plan your purchase carefully if you'd get your money's worth.

That advice comes from fur expert Carol Ware. She and her husband, Irwin, who has been in the fur business 40 years, operate the fur salon at a Chicago specialty store, Bonwit Teller.

"There is a whole new generation of fur owners. Women have become important wage earners. First they get an apartment, then a wardrobe of clothes, then the frosting, a fur coat," says Mrs. Ware in explaining the increased volume buying in the entire industry.

"And there is the girl who begins wearing a remodeled coat of her mother's. If it is long, she is hooked. There are still some girls who fear people will criticize them for wearing mink, but they don't mind wearing nutria, raccoon or Swakara, a South American lamb-like caracul. In fact, natural raccoon with let-out stripes can be as elegant as any mink," she maintains.

Mrs. Ware attends the fur auctions with her husband. A petite ash blonde who has been working with him for 10 years, she has earned a reputation as a superb fitter and stylist, attracting many well-known personalities. Budget and lifestyle should help determine the kind of coat you buy, she explained. Style and not price may be the clue to a fashionable appearance.

New fur coats are patterned like shredded wheat, basket weaves, woven ribbon and plaid effects.

They are dyed amber, green, red, rust, orange and even violet. The new look is soft, straight away from the body, but not hugging it, a trend away from flared and fitted.

Here are some of her tips for fur coat shoppers:

—Petite girls have many style choices provided the coat is not too long and they "think tall." A small woman with a large chest should not try to wear the narrow tube look, now popular, which is more successfully worn by a woman of thin build. She should stick with a flared coat, good for a person of any age.

—Heavy women should not wear belts on furs, unless the belt comes through slits on the side. A large interesting buckle can make the waist seem smaller. A loose, full, easy coat with a shawl or notched coat collar will help add length and flatter the face of a woman with a matronly figure. Sizes 18 and 20 should avoid bulky furs.

—Women with a large bust should not wear mandarin collars or collarless coats . . . hippy women should not wear a pea coat length . . . a shirt jacket style is good for all ages.

—There is more security in buying a longer length coat which can be turned up by the furrier if you want to wear it short. Later it can be lengthened.

—A good mink should feel mushy, sort of silky in the hand.

—Silver-haired women can wear blue fox, Blue Iris Lutetia mink, grey Swakara lamb, lynx, beige mink, nutria with light colored fox or lynx collar. Black or navy blue mole or violet-colored furs are other good choices.

—A brisk business is done in balding furs — fox-pieced coats and rabbit — the fast shedding furs that are popular with young people. Mrs. Ware always tickets them "guaranteed to shed."

Old fur coats can be lived up in these ways, she suggests.

Put a worn mink into a shell and use it as a raincoat. Remove its worn sleeves, shorten it and wear it as a vest. New knitted sleeves may be added.

Or shorten a fur coat, add new buttons, brass maybe, which will cost less than a big remodeling job. Furs can be bleached and dyed. Old fur collars can decorate cloth coats. Fox and lynx are great on suede if it is the same color — the furs shed. A fur border can lengthen a short coat.

Pat Nixon begins therapy in Long Beach hospital

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon has begun physical therapy as she continues recovery from a stroke suffered last week. Workers at Long Beach Memorial Hospital converted a lounge area adjacent to Mrs. Nixon's sixth floor room into a therapy area Tuesday. A hospital spokesman said this was done to avoid disruption of care for other patients in the rehabilitation center.

The former first lady's treatments consist primarily of exercises to rebuild muscle strength and short walks once or twice daily.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Mrs. Nixon is still listed in serious condition "because of the nature of the stroke."

But he added that she was "much improved."

Lungren said Mrs. Nixon's speech has improved and her blood pressure is under control. The partial paralysis she suffered on her left side should be cleared up in a few months, he said.

Doctors said she should be released from the hospital in a week to 10 days.

District 4-H plans set

LUBBOCK — The new Lubbock Regional Airport is the setting for this year's District 2 4-H Dress Revue which gets underway Thursday, July 15.

"Flight Into Fashion" is the theme, according to Catherine B. Crawford, district Extension agent for home economics, and Wynon Mayes, Hale County Extension agent and dress revue chairman.

Young 4-H ladies from each of the 20 counties in Texas Agricultural Extension Service District 2 will model their own creations as they compete for honors and the right to represent the district in state competition.

Winners of county competition are judged on their sewing and construction skills, overall appearance, modeling abilities, and their 4-H record books.

First Weights and Measures Conference now in session

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Democrats are debating in New York, the real weighty issues are being discussed this week in Washington.

For instance, how much pig should be in a can of pork and beans? And how much turkey in a frozen dinner? And how many servings does a jar of instant coffee make?

It's the 61st annual Weights and Measures Conference, a gathering of some 500 state and local metrologists from around the country, whose main concern is to make sure consumers aren't ripped off when the country switches to the metric system.

"The primary function of the meeting is to adopt model laws that have been agreed on by those weights and measures officials," said Fred McGehan, spokesman for the group. McGehan said that after the four-day conference, the officials return to their states' weights and measures departments and recommend that such legislation be passed.

If the measurement officials have their way, shoppers will no longer have to guess what they're eating when they buy mystery meat cuts like "patio chops," "breakfast steak" and "paradise roast."

They're recommending that meat cuts have standard identities, such as roast, shoulder, bone-in and boneless.

In considering another model law, the officials are discussing whether the percentage of meat should be listed in frozen dinners.

Another recommendation would require companies to list the number of servings in such products as a jar of instant coffee. Other problems being discussed are softwood lumber. After all, a 2-by-4 is really 1½ inches by 3½ inches. The officials also are pondering uniform labeling of antifreeze and the method of sale for sod and turf.

McGehan said most of those at the conference feel the United States will have converted to the metric system by the mid-1980s.

McGehan said the officials expect that by early next year, a U.S. Metric Board will have been appointed by the president. "Its job will be to coordinate the voluntary changeover from the present measuring system to metric," McGehan said. "This will include a public education system."

Asked what a shopper will do when he is faced with kilograms when what he wishes to purchase is a pound of salami, McGehan said, "Take a kid along. They're now teaching metric in the schools."

Storms killed four, damage in millions

By The Associated Press

Violent storms which spawned hail, high winds and tornadoes, caused from $30 million to $40 million in damage in North Texas alone the first six months of 1976, the National Weather Service says.

But luckily there were only four deaths, the weather service said, partly attributed to the fact that more destructive tornadoes did not strike any major metropolitan area.

On the average, 78 tornadoes strike in the whole of Texas between January and June.

But this year 79 struck just in North Texas. The weather service defines North Texas as that area bounded by Hardeman, Concho, Sabine and Bowie Counties, or practically the northeast quadrant of the state.

The breakdown by month is January, 1; February, 0; March, 2; April 32; May 40, and June 4.

Some notable events chronicled by the Forth Worth office of the NWS included:

—April 17: Early skywarn spotter sighted twin tornadoes southwest of Crowell and quick alert by Wichita Falls weather service and city officials prevented possible death as one funnel cloud ripped through the town.

—April 19-20: Fourteen tornadoes roamed North Texas starting shortly after noon of the 19th and ending the morning of the 20th. The most severe of North Texas tornadoes was tracked across mostly open country just north of Brownwood.

There were no fatalities when the storm hit a housing area and the airport.

—May 25: A tornado causes $1 million as it moved 18 miles across Jones, Taylor and Callahan Counties, heavily damaging Hamby area and missing Abilene by five miles.

—May 26: Fourteen tornadoes struck in the afternoon. Two people were killed when one tore through a trailer park at Lake Belton, causing $1 million damage. Another tore through North Dallas, causing $1.3 million in damage, but early sightings and warnings prevented possible deaths.

A single thunderstorm produced six tornadoes on a line from northwest of Cleburne in Johnson County to west of Italy in Ellis County. A possible tragedy was avoided when Hill County Sheriff's office telephoned warning to Presbyterian Children's Home northeast of Itasca.

—April 28: The smallest tornado of the spring, three yards wide and 75 yards long, was witnessed by David Butts in a field near Ballinger.

—May 23: Several hailstorms caused $4 million in damage to northeast Tarrant (Fort Worth) County and several million dollars in damage in Dallas County.

—May 25: Possibly the most intense hail and wind storm in modern Texas history developed in the Panhandle and moved southeastward in Central Texas near Waco. Affected counties included Foard, Baylor, Archer, Young, Palo Pinto, Parker, Hood, Somerville, Bosque, Hill and McLennan. Extreme crop destruction and heavy auto and residential damage of more than $1 million each resulted in most of these counties. In Young County, $5.5 million in damage was caused in Graham. Baseball-size hail and 110 mile-per-hour winds straight winds accompanied the storm as it swept through Graham. Most of the counties had trees stripped bare of leaves and bark with hail drifts of several feet.

The other two deaths occurred when lightning struck one person and a windstorm overturned a boat on another.

The NWS said the lessons learned from these storms are the fact that no community is immune to tornadoes and thunderstorms and that the only way to minimize tragedy is to have a county or community plan of preparedness.

Museum damaged

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., has announced an emergency grant of $17,500 from the National Endowment for the Arts to the Contemporary Arts Museum here.

The museum was damaged by flooding during heavy rains last month.

"This is only the first step in a massive amount of aid needed to fully restore this cultural landmark for Houston," Miss Jordan said Wednesday in announcing the grant.

The funds were expected to be available in a few days.

A MAILMAN'S NIGHTMARE? — No, it's not a six-foot German Shepherd waiting for a postman to bury in the back yard, despite appearances. The house is only ten feet tall at its highest point. Built in 1892 as a playhouse, the structure is located on the grounds of the Ellwood Mansion in Dekalb, Ill. The house is furnished inside, and an adult standing within can look out the second floor windows. The dog with delusions of grandeur is "Chuck," a Dekalb resident.

Yarbrough accused of not paying back note

HOUSTON (AP) — Donald B. Yarbrough, unopposed Democratic nominee to the Texas Supreme Court, has been accused by a Houston bank of failing to pay off a $10,000 promissory note.

The East End State Bank alleged in a state district court suit filed Tuesday that Yarbrough signed the note last Sept. 25 and that the principal and interest was due Dec. 24.

So far, the petition said, Yarbrough has "failed and refused to pay" the debt.

The bank asks for the $10,000 plus interest and $2,500 in attorney fees.

It was the 16th suit filed against Yarbrough in recent months, most of them involving payment of bank loans and other debts.

Yarbrough told newsmen that his inability to pay the note stems from the sale of his controlling interest in a bank that was blocked.

"I had contracted to sell my controlling interest in the Bank of Victoria August 1975, for $500,000 profit.

"Mr. (Rex L.) Cooper and Mr. (Douglas W.) Ford and their attorneys deliberately blocked that sale. I lost everything, including my ability to pay these obligations which have subsequently become due.

"It may be many years before I can again pay, but some day I hope to pay them all in full."

Last month a state district court awarded Cooper and Ford, Houston businessmen, $98,966 in a suit filed against Yarbrough. The two had contended Yarbrough defrauded them in a 1974 bank purchase deal. They had sought about $539,000 in actual and exemplary damages.

Ridin' fence

Slaughter Ranch brooch

with Marj Carpenter

A dignified lady with a long white dress, representing the turn of the century, was standing under the trees at the function at the Renderbrook-Spade Ranch to raise funds for the ranching heritage center at Texas Tech.

She wore a most unusual brooch. It was a miniature painting of three children of days gone by. This fence rider could not stand not to know about the brooch.

I stood waiting while a friend chatted away about happenings in Lubbock. Finally, her eyes turned toward me. I introduced myself and said, "I simply have to ask about that brooch. It's so unusual."

"Oh," she answered and pointed to the brooch. "That's my mother, Uncle Jay and Uncle Louie when they were children."

I thought to myself, "So much for that," and then she added as an afterthought, "They were John Slaughter's children."

I had been about to say a few polite words and walk away. I stopped still. I could not believe my luck. Time after time in the history of the area, the Slaughter Ranch is mentioned over and over.

"John Slaughter?" I asked in surprise. "Is that Col. C. Slaughter?"

"John's brother," Mrs. Mary Belle Macy answered. "Mamie Slaughter was my mother. John was my Grandfather. Mother used to tell about the five times Grandpa was shot by the Indians. She would especially recall the time he was shot at Palo Pinto when she helped pull out the arrow."

That Slaughter ranch used to wander all over West Texas. In those days, occupation of ranch lands depended on a prior right to the water holes.

H. W. Caylor, renowned Big Spring western artist, wrote an article back in 1899 for the Texas Stock and Farm Journal about the ranch. He was commissioned to paint a picture of Sir Bredwell, a famous Hereford steer, for $5,000.

The ranch extended north from the Texas and Pacific Railroad for 200 miles. The camp called Rattlesnake was in Martin County at the southern end. Other headquarters included the Buffalo Ranch, the Tahoka Lake Ranch, and others.

One of the things Caylor said was, "I availed myself of the opportunity to make drawings and sketches of the old ox-freight teams, typical of by-gone days, but still used by Col. Slaughter for heavy freighting. There are two of these outfits, each consisting of eight yoke of oxen and two wagons. They were used for the cowboy band wagon at the Midland, carnival last year (1898)."

A lot of the heritage museum at Texas Tech is dedicated to preservation of information about the Slaughter Ranch. After all, it took up almost all of the miles in between Big Spring and Lubbock.

"I'm the only descendant helping work on the thing, Mary Belle laughed. "And there's 200 volunteers," she added.

She's enthused about the preservation of the ranch's history as the original Slaughters were about the ranch's growth.

She's one of many West Texans who are dedicated to the preservation of early history. And her family was plenty active in it — back in the days when people had to ride fence for miles and miles and miles and miles to get around the Slaughter Ranch.

Victors' cauldron bubbles over

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National League players bring more than just the thrill of being named to the All-Star team with them when they take the field in this mid-summer festival. They come with fire in their eyes and base hits in their bats. "Everytime they get in the clubhouse," said Manager Sparky Anderson, "it's more than just being honored. They say, 'Hey, let's go.'"

"Maybe that sounds like high school or college," the white-haired Cincinnati manager said. "But to me, that's what it's all about." The Nationals, powered by a pair of two-run homers by Cincinnati's George Foster and Houston's Cesar Cedeno, put together a 10-hit attack that produced a 7-1 victory over the AL. The Nationals have won 13 of the last 14 games, including the last five.

"I think it goes back to Warren Giles (former National League president)," Anderson said in trying to explain the streak. "He wanted the National League to start winning. Soft-throwing Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, who worked three scoreless innings and got the victory, agreed with Anderson that the NL stars bubble at the thought of winning the game."

The 26-year-old left-hander, baseball's winningest pitcher with a 16-3 mark, said he noticed the gut feeling last year when he earned a save. "When I came to the park, I was nervous about the game," said Jones. "But I could see the excitement they had. This calmed me down. I wanted to win just like the rest of the guys."

Foster, the game's Most Valuable Player with his homer and three RBI overall agreed. "You try to get up a little more because you know you're not going to be in there the whole game. You want to show what you can do," added the Reds' slugger. "There's a whole lot of pride involved."

Foster and Anderson both pointed to the fact that seven of the 10 NL hits were struck by Cincinnati players. Seven Reds played in the game. Foster went further by evaluating the talent in the two leagues. "I think there are better caliber ballplayers in the National League than in the American League," the game's top run-producer said. "But the American League is progressing."

Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who piloted the AL squad, was at a loss to explain the NL's streak. "They've had great success in the last couple of years, but it's the reverse of the 13 years before that when the American League dominated the game," the stone-faced Johnson said. "I can't tell you the answer," he added. "I don't know what it is."

Johnson also pointed out the American League had only five hits, with Lynn's blast into the right field seats the only extra base blow. "If you want to talk about the game today, I think it was the National League pitchers," said Johnson.

Owners consider latest contract

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Representatives of the major league baseball owners were to meet today and consider a new contract with the union that would recognize players' freedom of movement for the first time.

After more than 13 months of bargaining, which at times was bitter, the baseball owners and the players reached the agreement on the four-year contract Monday, the eve of the All-Star Game.

In calling the meeting of the 24 club owners, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said its purpose "is to receive and act upon a report of the Player Relations Committee recommending ratification of collective bargaining agreements with the Players Association."

Kuhn said he would recommend approval of the contract although he declined to give details of what it contained.

It was understood, however, that the contract would enable a player to become a free agent after six years of major league service.

The agreement would replace the so-called reserve system under which a player was bound to one club until he was traded, sold or released.

NL Stars win again

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ho Hum, the National League beat the American League again in the All-Star Game.

So what's new? Just for the record, the score in the National's fifth straight triumph and 13th in the last 14 years was 7-1. San Diego's Randy Jones, the starting pitcher, threw three scoreless innings and was the winning pitcher.

And George Foster, the Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who leads the majors with 72 RBI, drove in three runs, two with a third-inning homer and was selected the game's Most Valuable Player. The loser was Mark Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' rookie sensation who pitched two innings and left trailing 2-0.

The National League now leads the All-Star series 28-18-1. And no relief is in sight for the beleaguered American Leaguers.

Perhaps John Montefusco, the outspoken San Francisco Giants' pitcher, put the dull game in its proper perspective.

"I didn't have my good fastball, but I didn't need it against the American

RANDY JONES Nervous at the start

League." It would seem that all the National League needs in this annual American League summer nightmare is gloves, bats and balls.

"It's a little bit embarrassing," said Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, whose fourthinning home run accounted for the loser's only run against five National League pitchers.

Lynn said the big difference was the National League bats. "They hit," he said. "And they hit the long ball too. They have a bit more power than we do."

Lynn's boss, manager Darrell Johnson, who directed the American League, had a different view.

"It was National League pitching," said Johnson. "Their pitchers did a damn good job."

MVP AWARD — George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds, left, playing for the National League in the All-Star Baseball Game in Philadelphia Tuesday night, accepts a trophy for the Most Valuable Player from Monte Irvin, right, a baseball Hall of Famer and representative of the baseball commissioner's office.

There you have it, good hitting, good pitching and throw in those three snappy double plays the National League turned and you have another American League defeat.

The 27-year-old Foster outwardly took his MVP accolade almost with a yawn.

"I was quite honored to be selected," he said, his face and voice devoid of emotion. "But I didn't come out here to play to win any honors. I just wanted to play the best I could to help us win. Whatever came my way in honors, fine."

Foster drove in the National League's second run in the first inning after Pete Rose had singled and scored on a Steve Garvey triple.

What about the home run? Foster showed he had a little humor behind that poker face.

"It was a fastball. If you want to know was it up or down or in or out, I'd say it was in reach of my bat."

Foster said he wasn't sure the ball was going out. "I thought maybe that cross wind out there might be holding up the ball. The main thing is I was trying to be aggressive at the plate."

The Cincinnati Reds produced seven of the National League's 10 hits. That didn't surprise Pete Rose, the wisecracking Reds' third baseman.

"We got more bats than anybody, so we're supposed to get more hits," said Rose, who singled, tripled and scored a run. "Foster did what he's been doing all year. The only difference is he got only one hit. He usually gets two or three."

The 21-year-old Fidrych, a free spirit who says what's on his mind, took the loss in stride. The rookie, 9-2 in the first half of the American League season, gave up four hits and two runs in two innings.

"No one should smile after a loss," said the curly-haired Tigers' pitcher. "But this is a different game. I can go home proud because I was on an All-Star team. You can't forget anything like this."

There's this ball with everyone's name on it, a trophy and the ring... I never even had a high school ring."

Winning manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds said he believed the dominance over the American League stemmed from the office of former NL President Warren Giles.

"He believed the National League had to win," Anderson recalled. "And there is an enthusiasm in the National League to win."

San Diego's Jones, as always, kept a low profile. He said the only thing wrong was that he gave up a walk. He said he was nervous at the start, but settled down after a two-out first-inning walk to Kansas City's George Brett.

As for the game itself, before a sellout crowd of 63,974, including President Ford, the Nationals built a 4-0 lead with their two in the first and Foster's home run after a one-out single in the third. Lynn's homer made it 4-1. The NL put it away in the ninth on an RBI single by Ken Griffey, and Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer, all off California's Frank Tanana.

'Bum' sets deadline

Oilers seeking signatures

HOUSTON (AP) — Offensive consistency and selection the right combination in the defensive secondary will be on-the-field problems facing the Houston Oilers when they begin Houston State University.

Off the field, Assistant General Manager Tom Williams is trying to sign second round draft choice Mike Barber, a talented tight end from Louisiana Tech, and two unnamed veterans.

Phillips has set a 6 p.m. CDT deadline for all rookies and veterans to be at the team's training site in Huntsville.

Physical exams are scheduled Thursday, press day is Friday and two-a-days begin Saturday.

Williams had hoped the Oilers could start Saturday's drills with all Oilers under contract. He started his year with 19 veterans to sign in addition to rookies and free agents.

Williams said Tuesday he's still working on Barber and the two veterans. He said defensive end Bubba Smith, although unsigned, had agreed to terms and would bring his contract to camp.

Barber was taken by the Oilers in the second round of the college draft but he actually was Houston's first pick. The Oilers traded away their first round selection.

Williams says he thinks Barber will sign after he reports to training camp from Chicago, where he currently is preparing for the July 23 College All-Star game.

"I think Mike has reached the point where he's checked around with some of the other all-stars," Williams said. "He's beginning to realize that we have made him a pretty good offer."

The Oilers got big-play performances from return specialist Billy Johnson and the Dan Pastorini-Ken Burrough passing combination last season but Phillips hopes to develop more consistency this season as the Oilers try to improve on their 10-4 record.

The Oilers, fronted by defensive ends Elvin Bethea and Tody Smith and middle guard Curley Culp, led the National Football League in defense against the rush last season but new faces may bring changes in the defensive secondary.

The Oilers acquired cornerback Ken Ellis from Green Bay and signed safety Mike Weger after the eight-year veteran played out his option with Detroit.

Linebacker Duane Benson, who missed last season with a broken collarbone, is fully recovered for this season but tight end John Sawyer, who earned a backup job as a rookie last season, still is recovering from a knee injury that shortened his season.

The Oilers open exhibition play Aug. 2 at Kansas City.

'Too Tall' moves mostest, fastest

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Third-year running back Charles Young proved he was the fastest Dallas Cowboy in speed, endurance and strength tests at preseason camp here Tuesday.

But massive defensive ends Ed "Too Tall" Jones and Harvey Martin probably moved the most the fastest. Young was timed in the 40-yard dash in 4.61 and 4.63. But Jones, 6-foot-9, 265 pounds, and Martin, 6-foot-5, 250 pounds, turned in consistent 4.8s and 4.9s.

A pair of defensive backs, Mark Washington and Benny Barnes, also were registered by one timer in 4.63s, while wide receiver Percy Howard had a 4.64.

Linebacker Randy White, the heir apparent to Lee Roy Jordan's middle linebacker position, stole the show in the strength tests. The 6-foot-4, 250-pound White chinned himself 18 times, bench pressed 175 pounds 36 times and topped it all off with 40 chest pulls.

Veteran defensive back Charlie Waters turned seven 440-yard laps plus 200 yards in the 12-minute endurance test. Randy Hughes, a second-year defender with eyes on Waters' position, finished only 55 yards behind.

Defensive tackle Bill Gregory was the top lineman in the endurance run, covering six laps plus 245 yards in 12 minutes.

White warmed up for his weight-lifting performance by turning in six laps and 360 yards in the morning endurance run. White and fellow sophomore Bob Bruenig were the fastest linebackers among those participating in the 40-yard timing session.

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — The Washington Redskins' top draft pick of 1976 packed up and left training camp Tuesday.

Mike Hughes told his parents in Denton, Tex., "The Lord is more important to me than playing football."

"He felt like he and God had come to a conclusion, that football wasn't the way he meant to spend his life," said his mother, Norma Hughes, of the 6-foot-4, 251-pound offensive guard from Baylor University.

The Redskins drafted Hughes as a fifth-round pick. Coach George Allen had figured on Hughes helping strengthen a position weakened by the retirement of Ray Schoenke and with regulars Paul Laavag and Walt Sweeney coming off surgery.

Hughes' departure came a day after Curtis Akins, another rookie guard, left camp because of what Allen described as "a personal problem I'd rather not talk about."

Mrs. Hughes said her son had been active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and was a devout Baptist who might enter the ministry.

"We respect his opinion," she said, "and we didn't try to talk him out of it. It was his decision and his life."

She said that her son had praise for the Redskins, saying he was happy with the team.

"He told me the Lord is going to control his life, and you can't try and convince someone otherwise," said Allen, who had tried repeatedly to get Hughes to change his mind.

"He had a good chance to make our team," Allen said.

Local youths attend Trinity tennis camp

Craig S. McMahon and Jay C. McMahon of 702 Marcy, Big Spring, attended Trinity University's third annual Tennis Camp I in San Antonio.

The tennis camp offered boys and girls ages 8-17 an exposure to Trinity's champion-building tennis program. The camps were directed by Trinity head tennis coach, four-time NCAA all-American Bob McKinley. Campers played on the same courts where Trinity's champion players perfect their games.

The week-long camps offered six hours of professional instruction daily. Fundamentals, stroke production, strategy, competitive play, and conditioning were emphasized. Classes were gauged at beginning, intermediate, and advanced levels.

Campers enjoyed evening recreation in the form of swimming, miniature golf, and bowling.

In the past decade, the Trinity tennis program has produced six national champion teams, 12 NCAA all-Americans, two Wimbledon champions, and four U.S. Davis Cuppers.

Judge says player can sue Tech for damages

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled today that former Texas Tech football player Andy Lowe is entitled to a trial on his $955,625 damage suit against the school.

Lowe's lawyers contend that Tech should not be protected by the doctrine of governmental immunity.

Lowe alleged that he reinjured his knee and lost a possible lucrative pro contract with the Pittsburgh Steelers after a Tech coach told him to take off a brace so he could move faster.

Lowe, 6 feet 2 and 209 pounds, was a defensive end from Wellington, Tex.

Justice Zollie Steakley said in the court's opinion that "standard and specially designed protective devices are integral parts of the football uniform" such as "special taping or knee braces furnished a player with an injured knee are as much a part of his uniform as his helmet, or shoulder pads, or whatever."

Drug checking program set up

MONTREAL (AP) — A sophisticated drug checking program to discourage Olympic athletes from using outlawed stimulants and to catch those who break the rules will be put into effect later this week.

About 2,300 urine samples taken from participants will be analyzed for drugs during the Games, according to Dr. Robert Dugal, head of the doping control program. All medal winners, fourth-place finishers in most events and others selected at random will be tested.

Drug use has been a problem at recent Olympics and other world sports events. Two medal winners from the 1976 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and seven from the 1972 Games at Munich were disqualified and stripped of their medals for using drugs banned by the International Olympic Committee.

Dugal said some of the random sampling would be aimed at determining whether athletes were using anabolic steroids, added to the list of forbidden drugs this year. Some athletes take the steroids to give them greater strength. An official said a survey made in Sweden two years ago showed that 75 per cent of athletes checked were using anabolic steroids.

The results of most of the tests will be known within eight to 10 hours. However, tests to determine the use of steroids requires four days.

American blacks put in squeeze

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Black American Olympic entrants are to be asked today to follow various black African countries in withdrawing from the games, says The Sacramento Bee.

The Bee quoted an anonymous source Tuesday as saying black Africans would approach the American blacks "individually in an attempt to promote the pullout."

"A traumatic political experience" could result, the source said.

The Bee said the requests, in Montreal, would come from representatives of about 30 countries in the "Supreme Council For Sports."

The request would be "to follow Tanzania's lead and follow the black African countries in pulling out."

The reference to Tanzania meant that country's protest against the New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa just after 170 Africans were killed in Soweto race riots.

The Bee said the countries protesting against segregation are "such places as Algeria, Cameroon, Chad, Andorra, People's Republic of Congo, Antigua, Ethiopia and the Ivory Coast."

IOC firm on condemnation but cringe at strong action

MONTREAL (AP) — Lord Killanin is a puckish Irish nobleman who constantly puffs on a pipe, delights in making jokes and sends his jowls into a dance when he laughs — which is often.

He is a sharp contrast to the stern, prudish and dictatorial Avery Brundage, the man he succeeded as president of the International Olympic Committee. Brundage died a little over a year ago.

Killanin heads one of the most exclusive, most powerful and — perhaps next to the United Nations — one of the most indecisive deliberative bodies in the universe.

These are the men currently wrestling with the problems that destroyed the original Olympic Games in Greece centuries ago — politics, commercialism, national aggrandizement and inflexible pride.

They are magnificent in the art of condemnation, as in the official chastisement of Canada in its refusal to let Taiwan compete under its official name and colors. They cringe at strong, firm action. They have been letting member nations get away with abuses for years.

One has to look over the makeup of the club to understand these contradictions.

The IOC is a collection of more than 70 lords, princes, barons, maharajahs and industrial tycoons with a Midas touch.

THEY DISAGREE WITH CANADIAN GOVERNMENT — Among Canadians who say they favor allowing the Taiwanese athletes to compete in the Olympic Games as representatives of the Republic of China, are, left to right, Jacques de Niverville, Katy Whitehead, and Dave Carriere. The Canadian government insists the Taiwanese may not use the ROC designation.

They all are well-heeled, as if wealth were a prerequisite for membership. You don't find any plumbers, bricklayers or truck drivers sitting in the august councils. There are no women, and the few blacks are from the African nations.

"We are beholden to no government and no earthly power," Brundage used to say. If you listened to Brundage, you would know IOC members are neither elected nor chosen. They are ordained.

"We are more like a board of trustees," says Killanin. The pleasant Irishman has brought a touch of humanity to the order, if no more clout. Whereas Brundage was a dictator, held in awe and fear by fellow IOC members, Killanin is a diplomat. He even accepts expenses, which Brundage shunned.

"The IOC presidency should never give the impression that it can be bought," he said. If it could be bought, many in its ranks could write the check.

Taiwan withdraws, rebuffs IOC's backdoor acceptance

US AND CANADIAN TEAMS IN EXHIBITION — Bill Robinson, guard on the Canadian Olympic Basketball Team, drives past the United States' Phil Hubbard, from the University of Michigan, Tuesday night in an exhibition game in Plattsburgh, N. Y. Robinson, from Chemainus, B.C. goes to Simon Fraser University.

TAIPEI (AP) — The Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee reiterated today its decision to withdraw from the Montreal Olympic Games "because of Canada's discrimination."

The pullout decision was reached in a closed door meeting here by the Republic of China Olympic Committee and ranking sports officials. It came after reports indicated that the full session of the International Olympic Committee Tuesday night approved its executive board's proposal.

The IOC executive board suggested the Taiwanese athletes march behind the IOC emblem and insignia without using the name Republic of China at the opening of the Montreal Games. Nationalist China rejected the idea Saturday.

The Canadian government had said it would not permit athletes from Taiwan to enter that country if they used the name Republic of China. Canada recognizes mainland China.

Allison injured

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — NASCAR driver Bobby Allison, injured last week in a race at Elko, Minn., may be replaced by his brother Donnie for Saturday night's Nashville 420 Grand National race.

A spokesman for the Nashville Speedway said Tuesday it's doubtful that Bobby Allison will race and that negotiations with Donnie were under way to replace him.

Allison suffered broken ribs, several broken toes and facial lacerations Saturday when his car hit a retaining wall.

Harris trial Government witness re-enacts struggle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A government witness saluted the defense with a clenched fist, then re-enacted a struggle by sitting on a prosecuting attorney during an eventful first day of testimony at the trial of William and Emily Harris.

Anthony Shepard, a clerk at a sporting goods store, staged the re-enactment — with the help of Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard Harbinger — after an alternate juror expressed confusion about Shepard's alleged scuffle with Harris.

Earlier, the owner of the store, Carroll Huett, testified that the struggle ended when a pale woman wearing sunglasses and an Afro hairdo opened fire on the store. Patricia Hearst has acknowledged she did the shooting.

The Harrises are charged with kidnaping, assault and robbery in an episode that began with Shepard accused them of shoplifting.

Miss Hearst faces charges in the same case, but is undergoing psychiatric examination in connection with her earlier conviction for bank robbery.

Shepard, who had testified for the government at Miss Hearst's trial in San Francisco and is a key witness against the Harrises, started the courtroom by raising a clenched fist salute to Harris as he took the stand.

Chief defense attorney Leonard Weinglas said outside court that this surprised the defense because Shepard "has refused to speak to us."

Shepard, a police science student, said, "I noticed Mr. Harris walking suspiciously around the store... I saw him shoving something down the right sleeve of his shirt. At first, I thought it was socks."

He said that when the Harrises paid $30 for heavy clothes — but not the socks — "I followed them out and I proceeded to ask him to come back in the store." A scuffle began, with Mrs. Harris and several store employees joining in.

Shepard said he jumped onto Harris and managed to slap one handcuff on him before Miss Hearst started firing.

When the juror asked for a better explanation, Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler permitted the re-enactment in the heavily-guarded, bullet-proof courtroom.

As judge and jurors stood to watch, Harbinger sprawled on the floor and Shepard straddled him.

Huett, who had joined the melee, described the scene on the busy Ingewood street.

"There were shots being fired at us," he said. "Mr. Harris said, 'You'd better get out of here. She's shooting at you.' We started running in the store and there was another burst of fire. I saw pieces of brick and cement flying."

He said he turned and saw the pale-faced figure firing from a van across the street.

Scientists choose soft spot for Viking

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After what Viking I officials called a "Long March" in search of a safe landing site on Mars, a smooth moon-like plain has finally been chosen for America's unmanned landing attempt July 20.

This time there will be no turning back, unless there are problems with the robot spacecraft itself, officials said Tuesday.

Viking will touch down in a region that one scientist said looks much like the Arizona desert where a meteorite punched a huge crater that still exists.

The decision to land at the so-called Western Slope of Mars' Chryse Basin came after scientists had pored over pictures for two weeks in order to find a safe touchdown area. Two other landing sites were rejected and a Bicentennial July 4 landing was postponed because of rough terrain.

Another series of pictures of the landing site is still to be taken, but there is only an outside chance something might turn up in them to give scientists pause.

The new site — still officially unnamed — is about 460 miles northwest of the original site, which turned out to have features hazardous to a landing.

TRAINS COLLIDE — Firemen work in the wreckage of two commuter trains that collided at the New Canaan train station Tuesday night. Authorities said that there were more than 20 injured in connection with the crash and at least one known dead.

Vietnam still interested in dominating SE Asia?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though Vietnam is normalizing relations with its neighbors, State Department officials believe the Communist state may still be interested in military domination of Southeast Asia.

The skepticism about Vietnam's intentions is based partly on a recent statement by the Vietnamese foreign minister, whose rhetoric suggested Hanoi's traditional support for insurgents will continue in the area.

When South Vietnam fell in April 1975, there was general agreement among U.S. officials that Hanoi would step up support of rebel movements. The ultimate goal, officials said at the time, was an all-Communist Southeast Asia under Hanoi's leadership.

"The only question in our minds was whether Hanoi would move quickly or slowly," one official said Tuesday. "Obviously, they haven't moved quickly, but it's still too early to tell what their long-range intentions are."

In a statement two weeks ago, Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said Vietnam "fully supports the Southeast Asian people's just cause of national independence, peace, democracy and social progress."

U.S. officials said that is Hanoi's standard line for opposition to U.S. influence in Southeast Asia and support for insurgent groups.

A major source of U.S. concern is the eventual use of American military equipment captured by the Communists at the end of the war.

It was announced Monday that the newly reunified Vietnam has agreed to establish ties with the Philippines and plans to receive a delegation from Thailand next month to discuss diplomatic relations.

Since the end of the war, the Philippines and Thailand have asserted a greater independence from the United States. Officials believe Hanoi took this into account in deciding to normalize ties with the two countries.

The Philippines has established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, China and other Communist countries over the past year and now is demanding sovereignty over U.S. military bases on the islands.

In Thailand, where 50,000 U.S. servicemen were based in 1965 supporting the Vietnam war, all U.S. troops will have left the country by next week except for a 270-man adviser group.

Amtrak takes over 722 miles of track

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak is taking command of an additional 722 miles of track, along with hundreds of railway stations, and officials say ownership should improve services and facilitate renovation of depots.

A massive series of property transfers which began April 1 under the Federal Rail Reorganization Act are still continuing. Amtrak has been leasing much of the property from financially ailing rail lines.

The purchases total nearly $90 million and include a dozen major repair facilities, 722 miles of track and hundreds of passenger stations, rail cars and locomotives.

The purchases will improve service and should ease small problems throughout the passenger rail system in the Northeast and Midwest, Amtrak officials said Tuesday. Some changes will be small, but important.

For instance, because it did not own the Newark, N.J., station, an Amtrak official said Tuesday, the system had not been able to post a sign telling customers that Amtrak trains stopped there. Now, the sign is going up.

Another official added that in many communities Amtrak ownership will facilitate renovation of stations while preventing others from being torn down.

In Pittsburgh, highway planners wanted to tear down a railroad station for highway construction and move the service outside the city, but this can now be prevented.

"As far as we're concerned, the last passenger station and the last passenger has been inconvenienced because of the bulldozers of the highway departments," an Amtrak official said.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1976
GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to get rid of whatever accumulated chores are present so you will be free to proceed with plans that appeal to you. Take steps to build a more successful life for yourself.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This is a good day to handle private duties that you have to perform. Listen to what a good adviser has to suggest regarding a money matter.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good friends are now in a position to help you get ahead faster. Plan how to gain a desired aim that has been difficult in the past.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your interests and know what to do to have a more enviable position in your community. Don't neglect a credit matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A new project needs more study before putting it in operation. Check your surroundings and make plans for improvement.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you handle every responsibility you have in a most conscientious way. Take steps to improve relationship with mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know better what is expected of you by your associates and then be more cooperative. Express your talents.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you cooperate more with co-workers you can accomplish more. Take time for relaxation and pleasure in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan your activities early in the day and then carry through in a sure and careful manner so you have success in both business and pleasure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans to improve conditions at home. Not the right time to engage in a new business project. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle regular routines early in the day so you will have time for more important matters later in the day. Take health treatments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend to important financial affairs and make sure your bookkeeping is accurate. Consult business expert for advice.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Taking those health treatments that are needed will restore you to peak physical fitness. Show more devotion to loved one.

The Devil Gun
A Novel
About the Confederate Invasion of the West

—by the author of the all-time Texas best-seller, OFF THE BEATEN TRAIL $8.95

The Texas book you've been waiting for! A sweeping novel about the Texans who nearly conquered the West during the Civil War. Confederate strategy envisioned a nation stretching from ocean to ocean, including northern Mexico—one with gold-backed currency, blockade-proof Pacific ports, quick European recognition. Richmond approved but designated only one brigade of Texas dragoons to undertake the enormous adventure. This is their story, five years in preparation.
