Buckley 'not a candidate'

Ford, Reagan pursue delegates

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan personally pursued the last, scattered handful of uncommitted delegates today while the Republican Party opened its most divided national convention in a generation. Mary Louise Smith, Republican national chairman, called the 31st GOP National Convention to order in Kemper Arena at 10:30 a.m., CDT. The opening session was underway less than two hours when Sen. James L. Buckley, a conservative Republican from New York, told a news conference across town from the hall that he would not enter the presidential race.

"I have not been a candidate," Buckley told reporters. "I am not a candidate and I am here to state that I shall not become a candidate for anything other than re-election."

Buckley's decision not to enter the race removed a threat to all the careful plans and calculations by strategists for Ford and Reagan.

The convention's opening session brought to its final phase the long, sometimes bitter struggle between the incumbent President never tested in a national election and brash opponent whose challenge defied conventional political wisdom.

Time was running out and the two candidates were meeting outside the hall with delegations and trying to pry loose the few remaining votes they each needed for the presidential nomination.

Many of the Republicans gathered here for the Ford-Reagan showdown feared the outcome would leave the party too divided to withstand the Democratic challenge in the fall campaign.

Few in Kansas City expected the Republicans to duplicate the show of unity and party harmony the Democrats staged last month in New York City when they nominated Jimmy Carter for president.

Buckley said last week that some people had approached him and asked him to consider entering the presidential race.

He was asked at his news conference why he waited so long to make up his mind.

"For the simple reason that I had told people...that I would not close the door. They asked me to give them an opportunity to sample the waters," he said.

Then he added, "I will support the candidate of the party no matter who he is."

Throughout the preconvention week, strategists for Ford and Reagan probed and tested and sought signs of softness in the delegate totals each was claiming.

Both sides have claimed to have more than the 1,130 delegate votes needed for the nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count, based on legal commitments and publicly stated preferences, gave Ford 1,118 and Reagan 1,035, with 106 uncommitted.

Ford got back a New York delegate whom he had lost to Buckley. The President also picked the support of a formerly uncommitted delegate from Wyoming.

CONVENTION IN SESSION — This is a general view of the opening session of the 1976 Republican National Convention in Kansas City's Kemper Arena Monday.

No turncoats here

Texas delegates stand for Ron

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas stood up for Ronald Reagan at a caucus meeting before the Republican National Convention began today.

That is, the delegates, apparently all 100 strong, literally stood up.

The incident came when delegate chairman Ray Barnhart asked the group, which is tied by law to Reagan through three ballots, if it wanted to be polled about how it felt about Reagan.

Then a roomful of people stood and sat down quickly. Barnhart, a Houston businessman, then asked anyone who had switched support away from the former California governor to stand.

As a television camera panned the meeting hall behind the delegation's hotel, no one stood.

Earlier in the evening Sunday Barnhart had told the delegates that there were reports that one-fifth of their number had switched their allegiance to President Ford.

Barnhart himself quickly dismissed the rumor he reported on as "garbage." He added "none will waiver."

Barbara Culver, a Midland judge who was a delegate on the GOP platform committee, seconded Barnhart's estimation in an interview.

"They are so solid you can't believe it. ... I don't think you could move them with dynamite," Mrs. Culver said.

In another development, Barnhart let the delegates know in very plain language that he was quite "hacked off"—as he put it—with the Ford camp's handling of convention arrangements.

He asked the delegation, which complied, to nominate a grievance committee to hear all delegates' complaints on convention seating assignments, guest passes and room assignments.

Contending the Ford forces did not "play fair ball" with plums such as prime convention seating, Barnhart said the Texas delegation was seated way to the side at Kemper Arena.

On another issue, Ruth McGuckin, a Texas delegate member of the GOP rules committee, lectured the group that rule "16 C" was crucial to Reagan's bid for the presidential nomination.

That rule, scheduled to come up for a floor fight Tuesday night, would state a candidate should name his vice presidential choice before he is nominated.

One delegate, Richard Reynolds, a state representative from Dallas, complained that he had opposed Reagan's move to name Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania ahead of time and he didn't favor making a rule out of that maneuver.

The delegation, following the request of its leaders who said it was Reagan's wish, voted overwhelmingly to support the proposed rule, which failed on a 45-56 rules committee test, if it comes to a floor vote.

Nonaligned nations blast Israel at fifth summit

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike opened the fifth nonaligned summit conference today with a blast at Israel and a demand that the United States and the Soviet Union keep their military forces out of the Indian Ocean.

"We must remain ever vigilant against Israel's attempts to defy world opinion through the exploitation of differences among ourselves," Sri Lanka's woman leader told her Third World audience.

The loudest cheers and most prolonged applause greeted Mrs. Bandaranaike's salute to the Vietnamese, whose "struggle against the might of the greatest powers to ultimate and final victory is a shining inspiration to all nations fighting for national liberation against foreign intervention, domination and oppression."

She mentioned the United States by name only once, in connection with her proposal to have the Indian Ocean declared a zone of peace. She said the proposal "today assumes a new urgency" because of the expansion of U.S. military and naval facilities on the island of Diego Garcia and "the intensified military and naval presence of the great powers in the Indian Ocean.

"We must therefore stand together and demand the dismantling of the Diego Garcia base, and we must also demand that the great powers which have no littoral interests withdraw their navies and military presences from the Indian Ocean region, for detente and international security are not concepts that can have one meaning at all to the rest of humanity."

Mrs. Bandaranaike proposed a rival currency backed by Third World resources and a new nonaligned bank "of Asia, Africa and Latin America."

The four-day meeting opened with traditional Asian drumming, the blowing of conch shells and the ceremonial lighting of an oil lamp. It represented the return of the nonaligned movement to the continent where it was born 21 years ago, at the 1955 Bandung Conference, in Indonesia. There were 29 nations represented then. Today there were 85, with a third of the world's population, plus the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Carter won't comment on GOP convention

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — As Republicans fight over who will be their presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter plays the statesman, saying he won't comment on the GOP convention until it's over.

The posture seems to fit the low profile Carter has kept since winning the Democratic nomination last month. He has given some private interviews, brought in experts for briefings on defense, economics and foreign policy, played some softball and taken few trips outside Georgia.

Carter did manage to get in some digs at the Republicans during a speech at a weekend Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Charleston, W.Va. Carter told the 3,000 persons at the Democratic dinner that the Ford administration "governs by veto." He criticized vetoes against bills for public service jobs, a school lunch program and Vietnam veterans education.

"These vetoes don't help our nation's economy. They don't save money. They cause human suffering," he said.

In his speech, he also stressed safety in the Appalachian coal mines and one or two other issues that have appeal in West Virginia.

Today, as the GOP convention got under way, Carter's schedule in Plains included sessions with experts on Social Security, welfare reform, health, urban and rural life and education.

On Sunday, Carter sat in his usual pew at the town's Baptist church, spent time with his family and, through an aide, persuaded his pastor to let some women journalists into the all-male Bible class he sometimes teaches.

The new rule is that women assigned to the small "pool" that covers Carter's activities will be admitted to Sunday school. Other women will not.

Another major quake hits China mainland

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — U.S. government seismographs recorded a major earthquake today on the Chinese mainland, but geophysicists said it was almost 950 miles away from the great earthquake there last month.

Waverly Person, geophysicist with the National Earthquake Information Service, said the latest tremor measured 6.9 on the Richter scale of earthquake magnitude. It occurred at 10:07 a.m. EDT.

Person said the quake was 250 miles north of Chunking near the Kansu-Szechwan province boundary. On July 27, an earthquake of 8.2 magnitude occurred near China's eastern coast, 937 1/2 miles northeast of today's tremor.

After the July quake and a following strong after-shock, Chinese officials warned residents to expect more large quakes soon. Person said there are no reports of damage or casualties from today's earthquake.

In the Richter scale, every increase of one number, say from magnitude 5.5 to magnitude 6.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater. Some experts say the actual amount of energy released may be 30 times greater.

In populated areas, an earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 can cause moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 can be severe. A 7 reading is a "major earthquake, capable of heavy damage; 8 is a "great" earthquake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3 on the Richter scale.

The seismological institution in Uppsala, Sweden, also reported a "relatively powerful" new quake in China measuring 7.2 on the Richter scale.

Prof. Marcus Baath placed the epicenter at 625 miles southwest of Peking.

Action/reaction: Junk cars

Q. There is an abandoned vehicle on the corner of Calvin and Laurie that has been there for two months. We've called the police on three different occasions, and they did come out once, but the car is still there. The car is a junker, and small children in the neighborhood could be seriously injured playing in it. Is there anything that can be done?

A. According to Officer Jimmy Wallace, the owner of the vehicle, an airman at Webb AFB, has been out of town for some time. Wallace, however, was able to contact the airman Saturday, and the auto has been moved.

Board recommends 10-per-cent cut

State agency funds cut back?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Legislative Budget Board told its staff today to try to write a proposed 1978-79 budget that would hold spending of state agencies to 10 per cent below current funding.

"I think we need to look at this money situation in a hard-nosed way and let the agencies know we mean business," said Speaker Bill Clayton who proposed the motion.

The motion calls for below-current funding only if there would be "no significant loss of services" because of the cut. It would not apply to salaries. If there would be any loss in services, then the staff was directed to write a budget based on current spending levels.

The board began today the first of a series of meetings by the joint Senate-House group to prepare the 1978-79 budget to be presented to the 1977 Legislature when it meets in January.

Board members were told by the staff that Texas' so-called big surplus was not really as big as some thought.

"In fact, when you consider the rate of increase (in state operating expenses) the high surplus just ain't so," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, chairman of the Senate-House group that makes budget recommendations to the legislature.

Jim Oliver of the Budget Board staff showed board members that the comptroller's estimate of a $2.57 billion "surplus" at the end of the 1978-79 business years has now become $2.42 billion. He stressed the figures are based on state expenses at the current level.

Oliver said three recent developments affected the estimate for the next biennium. The comptroller increased his estimate of natural gas revenue upward $66 million, school officials decided they needed $103 million more than planned for school operation, and the Teachers Retirement System will need an extra $64 million to match contributions made by teachers.

County democrats open plans for convention

While the Republican Party was grabbing national headlines in its hotly contested National Convention, the Howard County Democrats began making plans for their fall state convention and the general election.

One of the goals of the local party is to see that the Democratic nominee, Jimmy Carter, gets as many votes as possible in Howard County.

County Democratic Chairman Rafor Dunagan said that the local Democrats plan to open a local party headquarters sometime in the near future to provide a central location for the distribution of campaign materials and information about the Democratic nominees.

The headquarters will also be used to accept donations to help finance the local campaign.

Dunagan said that he will soon call a meeting of the county delegates to map plans for the state convention in Fort Worth in September.

At that convention, Democrats will take care of state business, including the election of committeemen and committeewomen and

Mortgage restructure needed urgently

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is an urgent need for legislation that would restructure traditional mortgages to make home ownership a part of the American dream again, according to testimony before a Senate panel.

At a hearing on the new mortgage concept Wednesday, a Senate subcommittee on housing and urban affairs was told that the mortgage proposal could help millions of Americans now priced out of the housing market to buy their own homes.

The panel was told the plan, contained in a bill sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Brooke, R-Mass., could nearly double the number of citizens who own their own homes.

Basically, the bill would allow mortgages to be arranged so that monthly

Welfare agencies study is completed at Dawson

LAMESA — The Health and Wealth Committee of the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce this week completed its 9-month study of welfare agencies in Dawson County and presented its report to the board of directors. The study was a result of a membership survey in which 95 per cent of the Chamber membership cited welfare programs as the biggest problem facing the nation and state.

The committee, chaired by Philip White, interviewed 11 agencies that provided welfare services in Dawson County. They were: Texas Employment Commission, County Welfare, Free Lunch Program, Adult Nursing, Supplemental Security Income (Social Security), Aid for Dependent Children (AFDC), Protective Services, Food Stamps, West Texas Opportunities Inc., Senior Citizens and the Day Care Center. Total tax dollars spent in Dawson County for welfare by the agencies is approximately $2,450,000 annually. The population of Dawson County is 17,500.

The investigation drew interest from state, federal and local officials who all cited with pleasure the unique idea of a non-governmental, tax payers group investigating government welfare operations. The committee also commended the local agency representatives for their cooperation in the investigation.

A complete report is available upon request from the Chamber office in Lamesa.

The committee proposed the five following recommendations:

1. That there be set up a public forum within the next few months for the general public. Selected agencies will be invited to give a short program and have a questions-and-answers period.
2. Set up a system to educate the public and provide a vehicle to report welfare and fraud suspects.
3. That a committee, either the present Health & Wealth Committee, or a separate group be organized to consist of representatives of all the welfare agencies to help facilitate better coordination between the groups.
4. Recommend to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and the United States Chamber of Commerce, as well as area Chambers of Commerce, that they conduct similar programs of welfare investigation and conduct coordinated efforts in lobbying.
5. Make the following recommendations to the state and federal representatives:

Welfare agencies study is completed at Dawson

1. There are simply too many agencies doing too many things. One group has little idea of what the other is doing. A tremendous waste of money and manpower. Recommend one or two agencies handle the entire spectrum of welfare instead of having so many groups. Too little of the dollars spent on welfare actually reach the needy. Too much spent on bureaucracy.

2. Welfare should be the responsibility of the State and not the Federal Government. Each state should have its own programs geared to their particular needs. The more local the operation, the more efficient it is.

3. All agencies need to beef up programs to detect fraud and prosecute for maximum sentences. More publicity to let the public know how to report violators. All programs need more public relations since most tax payers are not really familiar with how the programs operate. Too many opinions are based simply on rumors.

4. Schools should teach "pride in working for a living."

Guadeloupe eruption several days away

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The predicted big eruption of the Soufriere volcano may not occur for several days, a French scientist monitoring the volcano reported early today after thousands were evacuated from the danger zone.

The scientist, Charles Brousse of the University of Paris, said the warning Sunday that the blow-off was expected in 10 to 12 hours was given to insure that all 72,000 persons left the area around the 4,813-foot peak.

Broadcasting from a ship off the coast, Brousse warned that the eruption was "now an inexorable process; we have gone past the point of no return."

He predicted that it would have at least the force of the 1902 eruption of Mt. Pelee, on Martinique, which killed more than 30,000 people and destroyed the town of St. Pierre.

"However, we have cleared an area of sufficient size so that the eruption could be completely without loss of life," he said.

La Soufriere, French for the sulphur mine, last erupted in 1956, but there was no lava flow and no one was injured.

Five weeks ago, on July 8, a crack opened 1,500 feet below the cone and began belching foul gas, steam, ash, stones and mud. The activity intensified Thursday, and 30,000 persons living nearest were ordered to leave. Then on Sunday the team of about 12 volcanologists keeping a close watch on the situation reported the presence in the vapor of ash from much deeper in the earth indicated an eruption was imminent.

Evacuation of the rest of the danger zone was ordered.

An observer who flew over the volcano Sunday reported: "I could see white smoke coming up from at least five different places, and even from the plane the smell of sulphur was very strong."

The narrow, two-lane highway running north to Pointe-a-Pitre, the island's biggest city, was jammed with cars and buses loaded with fleeing families and as much of their possessions as they could pile on.

Three ships took 6,000 persons from the town of Basse-Terre, which is six miles from the peak of La Soufriere, to Pointe-A-Pitre.

Schools were opened in the city to house the evacuees.

Traffic claims young families

By The Associated Press

A pair of triple fatality auto accidents claimed two young Texas families this weekend and sent the state's violent death toll soaring.

According to an Associated Press count, 23 persons died violently across Texas in the 54-hour period from 6 p.m. to midnight Sunday.

Traffic mishaps caused 15 of those deaths, while five persons drowned, two were shot to death and another was killed at a car

Three persons, including a teenage couple, died Sunday night in a three-car accident near the Southeast Texas community of Hilljje.

The Department of Public Safety identified the victims as Oran Dan Parker, 19, and his 18-year-old wife Delinda Kaye Hamilton Parker, both of Bloomington and Tanya Shiree Terry, 12, of Victoria. The victims were in the same car.

A grinding collision near the East Texas town of New London claimed three members of a Lufkin family. Killed were Robert Earl Marshall 19; his wife Mary Nichols Marshall, 16, and their five-week old son, Grady Glenn.

In San Antonio, a spectator at a drag car race was killed when he was struck by a flying piece of metal from a car engine.

Police identified the dead man as Ignacio Martinez, 41. He was watching the races when a small metal piece flew off an engine and struck him on the head.

A four-year-old Crowell boy died Sunday night in an auto-pedestrian accident in Ford County. Police identified the dead boy as Brad Stephen Fielding.

A 70-year-old Pampa man was charged with negligent homicide in the auto-

Nursing home quarantine lifted

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla. — The quarantine has been lifted at a nursing home where, according to a county health official, a malfunctioning air conditioner contributed to the deaths of five elderly residents.

In addition to the five who died, 19 elderly persons at the Boulevard Manor Nursing Home became ill, suffering from high fever, coughing and lethargy.

"Everything is fairly back to normal," said the home's administrator, Earl Kimble, after the quarantine was lifted when officials decided there was no anger to the community.

Dr. James Howell, assistant health director for Palm Beach County, said the home's balky central air conditioner, which quit Monday and was fixed Friday, "was at least a contributing factor." Kimble, however, has denied it.

The five deaths occurred last Thursday and Friday, a day after the first of the affected residents began showing symptoms of the still unidentified illness. Early today, three patients were still hospitalized, but there were no reports of new illnesses and a spokesman for Bethesda Hospital reported that "their temperature has subsided and their condition is satisfactory."

Appeals court hears cadet cheating case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals is being asked to decide whether it has authority to block the expulsion of cadets involved in the West Point cheating scandals.

Oral arguments in the case were scheduled for today, with the Army saying the court lacks jurisdiction to intervene and lawyers for 37 cadets claiming that the military court can act.

Attorneys for Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffman contended in prepared briefs that the court is limited by law to hearing cases involving court-martial convictions for criminal offenses.

They argued that the secretary is within his authority to administratively separate cadets for violating the academy honor code, just as he may separate active duty personnel without courts-martial. The Army said Congress has rejected efforts to give the court authority to review such actions.

The Army briefs said the proper forums for such appeals are the civilian federal district courts.

Three captains and a civilian attorney for the 37 cadets said in their briefs that the only statutory basis for dismissal from the academy for violating the cadet honor code is by court-martial sentence.

Dismissal from the academy is "a criminal sanction" by its "deprivation of liberty, property and reputation," preventing the cadets from gaining admission to other colleges, the lawyers said. They claimed that the involuntary transfer of expelled cadets to the Army Reserves is "a deprivation of liberty" particularly onerous in an otherwise all-volunteer Army.

Million widows of vets are getting pensions

Almost a million widows and 797,000 children of veterans are receiving pensions from Veterans Administration despite the fact that the death of their husband or parent was not directly related to military service. And even more may be eligible, according to Jack Coker, Veterans Administration Regional Director.

Children's eligibility is sometimes overlooked by the family, Coker believes, when the mother is not eligible because of income, remarriage or divorce prior to the veteran's death.

Eligible for VA pension based on need are widows, widowers and minor children of war veterans who died of nonservice-connected causes. The amount of pension is determined by annual income with no payments to surviving spouses, with children, whose annual income is in excess of $4,500.

Children's eligibility, however, is independent of the mother when she is not entitled to pension. Application should be made in their behalf to any VA office, veterans county service officer, or to service officers of major veterans organizations.

The possible eligibility of all survivors is reviewed by VA when notification of death is received, but sometimes circumstances surrounding the veteran's death do not always provide information to identify all possible survivors.

There are no income limits on eligibility for survivor benefits for spouses and children when a veteran's death was the result of military service.

Accord on Hughes wealth reported

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A secret agreement to distribute the estate of the late Howard Hughes between opposing factions of the Hughes family has been put together by attorneys, according to a newspaper report.

The Philadelphia Inquirer said Sunday the estate would be distributed on a fixed percentage to 19 heirs, including 16 first cousins on Hughes' mother's side and three first cousins on his father's side.

"Well, I can tell you that an agreement has been reached," said Keith A. Fursel, a Los Angeles lawyer representing three heirs on Hughes' father's side. "But I don't think I should go into any details at this time."

The article said that the agreement would distribute about 75 per cent of Hughes' estate to the 16 maternal heirs and the remainder to the paternal heirs, assuming that no valid will is found.

So far, more than three dozen purported Hughes' wills have turned up.

The Inquirer also reported that attorneys are trying to keep law enforcement authorities from seeing the autopsy report on Hughes, who died aboard an airplane en route from Acapulco to Houston on April 5. He was 70.

It said the autopsy report was important to determine whether there was any criminal neglect involved in Hughes' death and to determine whether Hughes had been mentally incompetent for any length of time.

A court order would be necessary before the Hughes' estate, which the Inquirer estimated at from $600 million to $1 billion, could be distributed, the newspaper said.

Hot weather influenced Austin's atomic vote

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman for an Austin group opposed to the South

Texas Nuclear Project says blazing hot summer weather here influenced voters' decision to keep Austin in the project.

Less than 20 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots as the proposition to authorize the city council to pull out of the project failed by more than a 3-1 majority Saturday.

The vote was 21,730 for and 7,092 against.

Peck Young, who campaigned to sell the city's 16 per cent interest in the project, said the absence of most students, away from the University of Texas campus for the summer, and the timing of the election caused the lopsided vote.

A later election, with the pressure of summer bills off, would have had voters "thinking a lot more rationally," he said.

Only a few predominantly student boxes favored pulling out.

It was the third vote in four years on the project. In 1972 voters rejected it by a narrow margin, and the next year they elected to join by only 722 votes.

"The people have said that three times is enough," said city manager Dan Davidson. "People have uppermost in their minds reducing their electric bills," said councilman Lowell Lebermann. "If we have any opportunity to do that, this is it."

Young said he will now try to get the city to withdraw from a second coal generating plant in Fayette County.

River Authority in the first plant, which should begin production in 1979. The council also voted to join the second plant, which is expected to begin production in 1980.

Young said he did not think the city would need the combined output of the nuclear and coal plants.

Pro-nuclear spokesman Steve Matthews of the Homeowners for Lower Electric Rates said the vote showed "people are concerned about utility rates."

However, councilwoman Margaret Hofmann said "we now have a false sense of security as far as cheaper energy" as a result of the Saturday election.

She added, "Conservation is going to be put on the back burner. In five years, I may form an 'I told you so' committee."

Texas voters to decide on water projects

By JIM DAVIS
 Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Several dozen persons attending a water utility workshop here this week know in detail about a constitutional amendment on water funding on the Nov. 2 election ballot, but they are worried that few other people are aware of it.

The proposed amendment would authorize an additional $400 million for water development bonds handed through the Texas Water Development Board. About $235 million in bonds for 88 water development projects already have been funded under the current $400 million authorization. The biggest criticism of the current project is that it has drained $9.6 million from general taxes for debt payment.

A SECOND amendment would authorize $100 million in water quality endowment bonds. But it was the water development issue drawing the attention at the joint workshop of the Texas section, American Water Works Association and the Texas Water Conservation Association.

Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton said in an address Thursday he knew everyone at the workshop is aware of the amendments.

"But there are a lot of people in this state who are not aware as to why they are being asked to authorize an additional $400 million for water development bonds," he said.

CLAYTON, WHO was described in an introduction as "one of the great water leaders of all time," claimed the additional bonds would permit construction of additional reservoirs, water treatment plants, transmission lines and water storage badly needed in the state.

Clayton said about 500 municipal water systems in Texas are going to have problems meeting new federal Safe Drinking Water Act standards. "It is going to take financial assistance to ease the financial burden involved in meeting these standards," he said.

James M. Rose, executive director of the Texas Water Development Board, said Texans now use 23 million acre-feet of water a year for municipal, industrial and agricultural purposes. Routine anticipated growth will require a total of 30 million acre-feet by the year 2020.

"THE DEVELOPMENT Fund is the only place many of the small towns and communities can go to get their water supply and improvement projects financed at this time," Rose said.

Critics of the water development bond amendment maintain there would be a tremendous drain on the state general revenue fund to meet debt retirement of the additional bonds.

Clayton said this charge amounts to $2.50 per person in Texas over the 10-year period of the bonds, or about 25 cents a year. And, he said, the funds will be returned to the general revenue fund with interest when the bonds mature.

"WHAT WILL we have gotten for our money? In many instances water provided by the projects has meant the difference between life and death for some of the small towns and cities," he said.

Clayton said one water-related issue likely to come up during the Legislative

Administration blamed for farmers' woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Iowa Congressman says that President Ford's veto of a major farm bill in the spring of 1975 cost soybean farmers $400 million and is responsible for the doubling of soybean-meal prices in a season's time.

Democrat Neal Smith's state has estimated that soybean production this fall will be off last year's harvest by 8.7 per cent, with acreage down almost 6 per cent.

In a recent statement, Smith said that farmers should blame the Republican administration for "failure ... to provide a soybean loan program last fall."

The farm bill in question would have increased the production loan rates for the major grains and mandated one for soybeans, which the Agriculture Department opposed as unnecessarily inflationary.

"It was the first time since the days of the Great Depression that there was no USDA soybean loan program at harvest time," Smith said.

The 1975 crop, the marketing year for which ends Sept. 30, reached 1.52 billion bushels, second in size only to the 1973 harvest. Indications as of Aug. 1 for the 1976 crop are for production of 1.34 billion, 12 per cent less.

The number of acres planted is down 8 per cent from last year, but USDA surveys in July showed significant double cropping going on behind small grains and on abandoned cotton fields.

Smith indicated that the disrupted, loan-less market is behind this. He said that, if it had been possible last fall at harvest time, growers would have probably put 150 to 200 million bushels in storage as collateral under the government loan program.

"Farmers who could afford to do so resisted selling at less than the cost of production (in the swollen market), but they finally had to sell," he said.

That resulted in "an excessively heavy crush of soybeans and relatively cheap soybean meal," said Smith, drawing on economic evaluations he had done for him.

That could not be sustained and, after April, the price "has been bid up sharply in order to slow down the use of soybeans.

There simply are not enough beans available to maintain the early rate of disappearance," he said.

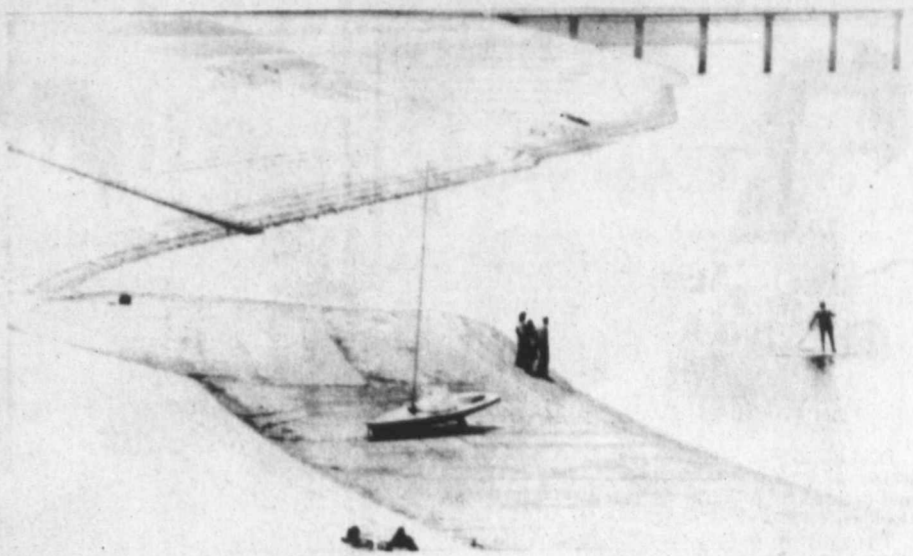

Consequently, Smith continued, the soybean meal price is almost double early-season levels.

College board meets Tuesday

Howard College trustees will conduct a public hearing on the proposed annual operating budget of the college for 1976-77 and set an ad valorem tax rate to provide an interest-sinking fund and a local maintenance fund when they convene in regular session at 12:30 p.m., in the board room of the Dora Roberts Student Union Building Tuesday.

The board will also consider bids on seating and flooring for the coliseum now under construction on the college campus.

DROUGHT STREAM — It's down to the bottom as this craft is left high and dry by receding waters of drought-stricken reservoir at Datchet, England. The reservoir was almost full to its capacity of 83,000 million gallons when Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, opened it last July 9. Sunday, when this picture was taken, the level was down to 5,000 million gallons.

Dear Abby

Count blessings while sons count vitamins

DEAR ABBY: We have two sons, both in college, for which we're very thankful because they both dropped out and decided to go back. Both are working part-time, but they prefer to live at home.

The problem is that they are on a "health" kick, and they look like they are ready to drop dead from malnutrition. They won't touch meat or fat of any kind. And no dairy products unless they are positively fat-free. The boys live on fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, nuts, rice and wheat germ.

They meditate twice a day like a pair of zombies, and I'm afraid one day they'll put themselves into a trance and won't be able to come out of it.

I suppose we should thank God they're not into drugs, (they won't even touch cigarettes), but how we would love to see them eating like normal human beings again to get a little meat on their bones.

Can you help us?

DISTRAUGHT PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Maybe you need help to understand that your sons don't need the kind of "help" you'd like to give them. Count your blessings while they count their vitamins. Considering what some parents have gone through in recent years, you're among the lucky ones.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who would start having an affair with her former son-in-law? And immediately after her daughter's divorce?

Well, that's what my mother did. And she's the one who kept telling me that he was no good and that I should leave him.

Abby, I divorced my husband because he abused our children and beat me up so brutally that I had to be hospitalized. My mother knew all this, yet she couldn't wait until he was out of our house before she started dating him.

My mother is 42 and divorced, and my husband is 32. I can't imagine these two together but I've heard it from about a dozen people already. I just can't accept it, and I have told her so. She insists they are just "friends," but people have seen his car in front of her apartment all night and on weekends.

What do you think about a setup like this?
HURT AND ANGRY

DEAR HURT: They could deserve each other.

DEAR ABBY: I was 11 years old when my parents decided to get a divorce. I felt terrible about it and cried and begged them not to, but they wouldn't listen.

Then my dad moved out and my mom and I stayed alone in the house. I got used to the idea, and it really wasn't so bad because Mom and I got closer. Then one night my dad came over and they talked nearly all night long and he stayed over night. My Mom even let him kiss her!

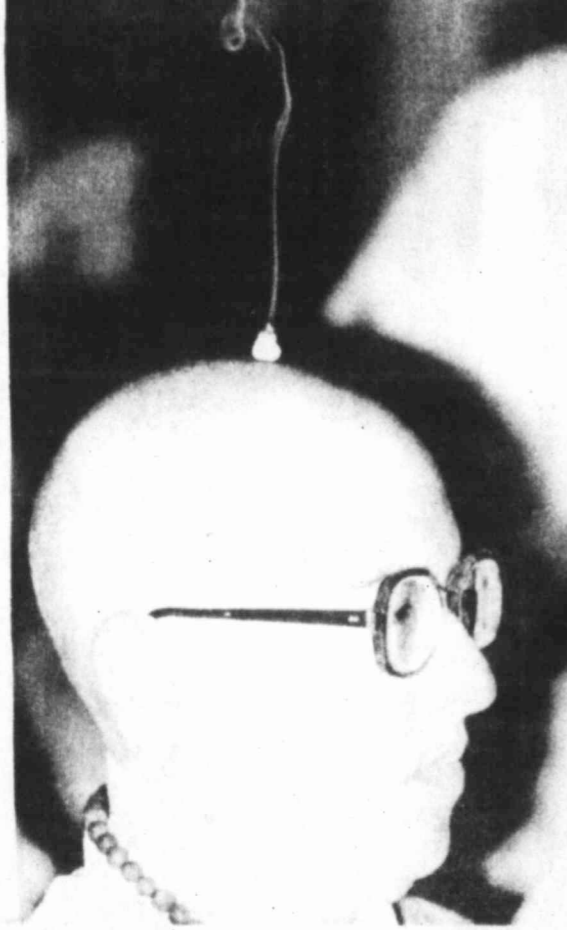

Now they say they are going to try to make a go of their marriage. I'm jealous. How come?

I should be glad they aren't splitting up, but I'm not. I'm upset. What is wrong with me?
JEALOUS AND UPSET

DEAR JEALOUS AND UPSET: Nothing. You enjoyed having your mom all to yourself, and now that you have to share her with your dad again, you're jealous and upset.

These reactions are normal, so don't feel badly. Look at it this way: If they do make a go of their marriage, it could be better for everybody.

Estrogen pill linked to cancer by study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 12-year study of women who have taken estrogen pills has concluded that the hormone does not prevent breast cancer in menopausal women and may even cause the disease.

The results of the study "do not by themselves" prove a cause-and-effect relationship between the drug and cancer, but they do suggest "a definite possibility."

The study was done by the Harvard School of Public Health, the National Cancer Institute and the University of Louisville (Ky.) School of Medicine.

A report on its results is to be published by the New England Journal of Medicine on Thursday, but the Washington Post obtained a copy and published the findings in its Monday edition.

The report is based on followups of 1,891 women for an average of 12 years after they began taking estrogen.

American doctors have been prescribing estrogen for about 5 to 6 million middle-aged women to ease the pains of menopause. About 10 million younger women take estrogen in the form of birth-control pills.

Breast cancer will be detected in 89,000 American women and will cause 33,000 others to die this year, the American Cancer Society estimates.

The study turned up no reliable correlation between the length of time estrogen was used and the risk of breast cancer.

For about the first 12 years after a woman began taking estrogen pills the likelihood that breast cancer would be detected if it was present was about the same for users and nonusers of estrogen, the study said.

But after 15 or more years of estrogen use, the study found that the chances of breast cancer detection were two times normal, no matter how long during the period a woman had taken the drug.

There was no conclusive evidence of how much of a risk was involved for those women who used estrogen for a very short length of time, the study said.

Buddist vows made

Sister Sarika Dharma of Los Angeles sits with lighted incense burning on her head as she takes the vows in the Bodhisatva ceremony at the Vietnamese Buddhist Church Sunday. Formerly holding the rank of Sramanerika, the now-Reverend Sarika Dharma has advanced to the next stage on the way to Bhikshuni, or highest order of priesthood in the Buddhist religion. This is reportedly only the second time that an ordination of Buddhist clergy has ever taken place in the United States.

Bhikshuni is the female form of Bhikshu, title given to male clergy.

Focus on family living

Life is learning experience

JANET SARGENT
County Home Demonstration Agent

Daily routines for an adult can be exciting experiences for a young child.

In a young child's eyes, every activity, situation, pleasure and disappointment represents a new opportunity for growth and learning.

Far too often, families and teachers become too caught up with their own problems and responsibilities to take advantage of all the opportunities they have to broaden their child's experiences.

Children derive untold pleasures when allowed to "help" adults, especially their parents. Each experience they participate in helps build a strong self-concept — it tells them, "Yes, I can do that." It also enables the child to develop independence and a sense of accomplishment. Parents would also notice a decline in disciplinary problems, for a child who is occupied and not bored is less likely to be disruptive.

Parents need not be educated in child development to implement these concepts. The keys to success are imagination and creativity. Here are some possibilities.

—Let your child help with meals, setting the table, cracking eggs, turning pancakes, putting dishes away.

—At the post office, children can lick stamps, seal letters and put them in the mailbox.

—At the grocery store, children can lead the cart, pick out items, pay the cashier, and collect the stamps.

—Children also like to push elevator buttons, dial telephones, clean bathrooms and run simple errands.

—An old stump or piece of wood can be used to hammer, saw, and drill holes. They may be handy with a broom or rake (though they may not be up to your standards, it is the experience that counts).

Clubhouse BS clubs may join alliance

Guests were Mrs. Judith Jarnis and Mrs. Cathy Prindible, coordinators for the Town Meeting 1976. They explained its meaning to the club members.

The group also discussed plans for a family picnic to be held at 4:30 p.m. Saturday August 28. The location has not yet been announced, although they remind members to bring a salad to the picnic.

The next meeting will be held 8 p.m. September 8 in the home of Gudrun Burton, 245 A Langley.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
 from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1976
 GENERAL TENDENCIES: Much confusion exists today and tonight unless you make a point to listen carefully to whatever anyone has to suggest. Study carefully any reports or information that comes your way.
 ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to organize your activities for more efficiency. Take care you do not over-spend, or invest too heavily. Be philosophical about some delay that may occur. Show more affection for kin.
 TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Delay tactics on the part of others will give you time to make better arrangements that bring you more success. Plan time for good friends.
 GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although you may feel limited, you can get little annoyances taken care of. Keeping promises to loved one is most important now. Take no chances where your reputation is concerned.
 MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) There may be some delay where amusements are concerned, but perseverance turns everything in your favor. Try to help a friend in need. Make the evening a happy one.
 LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day for handling public matters and adding to your prestige, esteem. A credit affair needs immediate attention. Be wary of strangers.
 VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You seem stalemated in a current activity so use your spare time for handling other affairs. Make sure you plan any trip you are contemplating carefully. Be most thoughtful of loved one this evening.
 LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle responsibilities with greater care and efficiency than usual. Forget your irritation with a loved one. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.
 SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to understand what is expected of you by your partners and come to a better understanding with them. A civic matter could upset you at first, but later is helpful to you.
 SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Putting off necessary chores could lead to trouble later. Arguing with fellow workers is unwise. Attend a social function today.
 CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in recreational activities suggested by others and have a good time today. Plan creative activities for days ahead early and wisely.
 AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show more consideration for those who dwell with you and be happier. Study all facets of a new venture you have in mind or you have little success with it. Be clever.
 PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Making necessary appointments today brings the right results. Allies could buck you where some plan is concerned if you do not explain it carefully to them. Avoid one who is jealous of you.
 IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be practical and material-minded, but limited in scope. Teach early to expand. Give a good education, but do not neglect spiritual training that will help bring more success in life, as well as happiness.
