Carter cites economic 'mismanagement' by Ford

President Ford is wrapping up a Southern campaign swing today, stressing conservative themes, while Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter continues to carry his attack on Republican policies to the Far West.

Carter, starting his campaigning today in Portland, Ore., said in remarks prepared for a group of Northwest labor leaders that new figures on poverty in America underscore an "indictment of economic mismanagement" by the Ford Administration.

The U.S. Census Bureau released statistics Saturday which showed there are 2.5 million Americans below the official poverty line of $5,500 in annual income. The 10.7 per cent increase over last year is the largest jump in the 17 years the bureau has kept records.

Philip Buchen, special counsel to Ford, said the FBI had thoroughly examined in 1973 the same records now under study by Watergate special prosecutor Charles Ruff.

There are reports, unconfirmed by Ruff, that he is looking into the possibility that Ford, while a congressman, diverted political campaign money from two maritime unions for his own personal use after it was "laundered" by passing it through Republican committees in his home congressional district.

Buchen, who called timing of Ruff's investigation "deplorable," said that 350 FBI agents examined the Michigan records three years ago before Ford was picked by then-President Richard M. Nixon to be his vice president.

Willie Nelson due to testify for Hicks

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for Joe Dee Hicks, former Big Spring car dealer, and two others charged with being a part of an international narcotics ring were to pen their defense in a federal court here today.

Hicks, his wife, Janet, and Charles Lidge Bolts are charged with conspiracy to import and distribute heroin and cocaine.

Progressive country music star Willie Nelson is among those subpoenaed to testify for the defense.

Witnesses testified last week that Hicks hired men to travel to Vietnam and South America to buy drugs for sale in the United States.

Another country music star, Ray Price, testified Friday that he refused a request to launder money through his ranch operation for Hicks.

Price and his 17-year-old son Clifton were called as government witnesses. The singer testified Hicks asked him to take money, make it appear that it came from Price's sale of horses in Mexico, pay taxes on it and return the balance to Hicks.

"I took it to mean to wash some money," Price said.

Price added, "I told him I just couldn't do it because all my record-

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Dangerous

Q. Why doesn't the City Council do something about the dangerous uncontrolled intersections on the city's north side? When the streets were paved last year, drivers used to having the right-of-way suddenly had to yield to the right. In particular, the streets of North Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Tenth at Runnels, North Six, Seventh and Tenth at Goliad, North Tenth and Eleventh at Gregg, and North Eighth at Lancaster are hazardous.

A. "At the end of August, there were 74 uncontrolled intersections where 165 accidents, 43 of them injury accidents, had occurred since January of 1973," said Susan Thomas, traffic safety coordinator. "It costs about $50 to put up a sign at an intersection, while one fender-bender costs the citizen an average of $450. An injury accident costs about $3,000 if medical costs are taken into account.

"The intersections named have had 16 accidents, five of which involved injuries. These 74 intersections should be looked at by the Traffic Commission at once, and an intensive effort made to remedy the situation," said Thomas.

Harry Nagel, city manager, replied, "If signs were always effective in stopping accidents, we would have signs at every intersection. But there is no evidence that signs prevent accidents. If the need for a sign is presented we (the city council) are willing to approve it."

SHICKSHINNY, Pa. (AP) — A New York land owner wants state troopers to find his 150-foot stone wall, which he claims was stolen from his property in Luzerne County near here.

But police said Monday they don't have much to go on.

The 50 tons of field stone from the property of John Levayak of Long Island had no identifying marks.

He said in the first 100 days of his next administration he would give top priority to federal anticrime legislation. Ford charged that "Congress has done nothing" about a series of anticrime proposals he has submitted.

Carter told audiences in California Sunday that the GOP was to blame for spiraling property taxes burdening homeowners. He proposed to "bring property tax relief through revenue sharing and federal assumption of local welfare costs.

Ford campaigned Sunday along the Mississippi Gulf Coast and, in effect, told voters he was closer to the South ideologically than Carter, its native son.

The President, who was greeted by some conservative Democratic officials along the way, accused Carter of favoring excessive spending for domestic social programs while advocating "disastrous" cuts in defense spending.

Meanwhile, vice presidential candidate Bob Dole, who is doing most of the legwork for the GOP ticket, is in Illinois, attempting to shore up support in farm areas where it has reportedly been wavering.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, his Democratic rival, said he understood the seriousness of unemployment when he spoke to those who were out of work. In a Baptist church in Baltimore, he told the black congregation that children of families who are deprived of a decent livelihood will go looking for a way "to make it... in the streets."

Off the campaign's center stage, attention focused on an investigation into fund raising in Ford's home state of Michigan.

Conference called for

Blacks reject plan

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Presidents of five black African nations have rejected the plan of Rhodesia's white minority rulers to transfer power to the black majority but agreed to confer on establishment of an interim government.

They called Sunday for a British-sponsored conference to decide the rules under which Rhodesia's whites will yield power to the blacks. Britain replied that it would begin talks within 48 hours to set up such a meeting.

The presidents of Zambia, Tanzania, Mozambique, Angola, and Botswana turned down the American-British transition plan agreed to last Friday by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and "reaffirmed their commitment to the cause of liberation in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) and the armed struggle" against Smith's white regime.

All five leaders, whose approval is considered vital to a successful settlement in Rhodesia, said that Smith's proposal for an interim government divided between blacks and whites would be "tantamount to legalizing colonialist and racist structures of power."

The presidents, at their summit meeting here, said the interim government must be dominated by blacks.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Crosland said in Blackpool, England, that Minister of State Edward Rowlands would fly to Botswana Tuesday and confer with the five presidents. He said that "the parties concerned" must say where the talks will be held and who will attend.

The statement from Lusaka brought no immediate reaction from the Rhodesian government. South African Prime Minister John Vorster, who played a major role in persuading Smith to accept the plan put forward by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, called it "difficult to understand."

"The Rhodesian government has fully executed the agreement" reached during talks he and Smith had with Kissinger last week, Vorster said in a statement. "It is of cardinal importance that if a peaceful solution is to be found, the United States and British governments must as soon as possible clear up the confusion which now exists."

In Washington, the U.S. State Department said "we have seen the statement of the African presidents in Lusaka and welcome it," and "the United States is now consulting with the United Kingdom" on the conference demand.

Presidents Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Agostinho Neto of Angola, Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Samora Machel of Mozambique and Seretse Khama of Botswana met for 4 1/2 hours to discuss the Rhodesian situation. Also attending was Joshua Nkomo,

South African blacks continue race riot

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rock-throwing blacks battered nine buses in a black township today while three other black youths were arrested in a white suburb for stoning passing cars, police and news reports said.

The three were seized in the white Johannesburg suburb of Lombardy East, the South African Press Association said. Their arrest was the first incident in a white neighborhood since police seized 400 youths in the city center last Thursday.

Lombardy East is adjacent to Alexandra, a black township where nine buses were extensively damaged today by stone-throwing youths.

quickly into Alexandra and dispersed groups of blacks gathering on street corners.

In downtown Johannesburg riot police in camouflage uniforms were gathered on some street intersections during the morning, but no trouble was reported. No explanation was given for their presence.

In another development, police confirmed today that they had arrested Terence Tyrone, secretary-general of the black South African Students Organization — SASO — over the weekend in the coastal city of Durban.

His detention brings to 319 the number of persons being held under detention-without-trial security laws in South Africa.

SHE'LL TESTIFY BEFORE GRAND JURY — Patricia Hearst arrives at the Alameda County Court House in Oakland, Calif. This morning, where she is scheduled to testify before the grand jury. Patty was brought to Oakland from her cell at the Federal Youth Correctional Facility at Pleasanton.

Before grand jury

Patty Hearst testifies

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst — kidnap victim, fugitive, and convicted bank robber — arrived at the courthouse here today to assume a new role, as a grand jury witness testifying against her former Symbionese Liberation Army companions.

Miss Hearst was handcuffed and heavily guarded as she entered the building.

She was scheduled to appear before the grand jury investigating her Feb. 4, 1974 kidnapping. Her attorney, Albert Johnson, was with her when she arrived and said he expected her testimony would last for three hours.

A Berkeley police officer was scheduled as the leadoff witness and Miss Hearst was to be second, authorities said. Steve Weed, the man she was living with at the time of her kidnapping, was to go before the grand jury later in the day.

Miss Hearst's other defense attorney, F. Lee Bailey, had revealed earlier her plans to testify against SLA members William and Emily Harris before the Alameda County Grand Jury investigating her kidnaping.

The 22-year-old publishing heiress was sentenced Friday to seven years in prison on a bank robbery conviction.

Miss Hearst's lawyers said in their appeal "imprisonment of the defendant would result in a substantial loss of effectiveness of the defendant in providing testimony in ancillary criminal proceedings."

During her bank robbery trial earlier this year, she accused the Harrises of her abduction and denied that she willingly joined them during a 19-month journey through the terrorist underground.

The Harrises pleaded innocent after they were arraigned in Berkeley last Thursday on a 10-count complaint charging them with the kidnapping.

The state is seeking a formal indictment from the grand jury.

On the night Miss Hearst was kidnaped, a woman appeared at the door of the Berkeley apartment the heiress shared with her then-fiance, Steven Weed, and asked to use the telephone. Police say two men then burst into the apartment with rifles, beat up Weed, then dragged the kicking and screaming Miss Hearst out to a getaway car.

Bailey and U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. both have said Miss Hearst has been cooperating with federal and local investigators looking into crimes which she may have witnessed while underground.

Another shipment is expected this week, the spokesman said.

The regional offices are in Canyon, Lubbock, El Paso, Abilene, Arlington, Temple, Tyler, Richmond-Rosenberg, Uvalde and Harlingen.

Shots given at the regional office clinics and at other public health clinics will be free, the spokesman said. Some doses will be given to private physicians, who may charge for them, the spokesman said.

Doctors, lawyers hope so Does money influence lawmakers' votes?

By MARK BROWNING
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Last May, during the closing days of the 1975 Legislature, 71 red lights and 69 green lights flashed on the electronic voting system in the House of Representatives. What that meant was that Senate bill 635, which would have limited awards in malpractice judgments, had been narrowly defeated. What the red and green lights didn't show was the story behind the vote, which was a head-to-head fight between two powerful special interest groups. This particular fight was more clear cut than most, with the doctors favoring SB 635 and the trial lawyers opposing it, and it affords an opportunity to compare legislators' record vote with campaign contributions they were to receive in 1976 spring primaries. Since unopposed candidates in the spring have not had to report campaign contributions yet, comparisons can be made for only 30 legislators involved in the SB 635 vote. Of those 30, 25 votes corresponded with the political action committee (doctors or trial lawyers) which was to give the candidate the most money the following year. Though the sides were not so clearly divided, another test case can be made involving the realtors' political action committee, the state's third largest spenders ranking just behind the doctors and trial lawyers. The realtors contributed to 19 legislators who voted on HB 836, a bill listed by realtors lobbyists as one they supported. Of the 19, 15 voted with the realtors position and four voted the other way. Even when most legislators vote contrary to the wishes of an interest group, comparisons between votes and political action committee contributions can be revealing. Such a case was SB 734, which realtor lobbyists opposed. It passed easily in both houses — 16-11 in the senate and 126-20 in the House. Among the 31 legislators voting no, there were only eight who have had to report contributions. And all eight got money from the realtors. Future votes based on campaign contributions can't be predicted, of course, but the past performance of an officeholder is one of the things special interest groups say they look at when determining who they give money to in a race. Special interest money finds its way into campaigns through groups known as political action committees — "pacs" as they are commonly called. This spring, counting only contributions given to winners of contested races, pacs in Texas shelled out $550,285 to candidates. Of that total, more than a third came from the "Big Three" groups — $86,050 from the trial lawyers, $71,600 from the doctors and $48,750 from the realtors. As administrators of the pacs see it, they aren't buying votes, but are exercising a right to participate in elections. "At least the doctors are out there trying to do something," said Robert Mickey, head of the doctors' Texas Medical Pac. "What is it they say, that less than half the voters in the country will vote in a presidential election this year? Somebody has got to be doing it."

"If all the interest groups, from the special interest groups down to even the local church groups, were to become involved to the extent we are, I think you'd have a very much stronger Legislature and Congress, whether or not they were in agreement with us." Mark Manna, administrator of the realtors fund, agreed, saying his group represents "private property rights" and the "free enterprise system." Phillip Gauss Jr., who runs the trial lawyers' political fund, was unavailable for comment. Despite repeated attempts over more than a week's time, Gauss could not be contacted and never returned a phone call. In general, single contributions to legislators from the big three pacs average $500 to $1,000 for a House race and $2,000 for a senate race. Amounts go up dramatically, however, when an occasional shootout occurs and two of the big groups find themselves in direct opposition to each other. One such race was the battle for a senate seat between incumbent Mike McKinnon and Rep. Carlos Truan, both of Corpus Christi. McKinnon got $10,000 from the doctors, which was the largest contribution they made besides a similar $10,000 gift to Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene. Like a high stakes poker game, the trial lawyers matched the doctors' money and then some. They gave Truan $22,000, including one check for $12,000, the largest given to any legislator. Lawyers provided over one-third of the contributions Truan received.

Farm Boll Weevil damage is heavy in West Texas

LUBBOCK — Despite an extensive and costly control effort, cotton as much as five miles west of the Caprock is suffering boll weevil damage on the High Plains in 1976. In addition, a few weevils are being found as far west as Andrews County. That's the word from officials of the High Plains Boll Weevil Control Program which has protected cotton above the Caprock since 1964. "It has been impossible, within the bounds of our resources, to keep all weevils out of all cotton above the Cap," states Ed Dean, Field Service Director for Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. PCG initiated the control program in 1964 on behalf of its members in 25 High Plains counties and has maintained the continuing responsibility for its operation. A mild 1975-76 winter permitted a survival rate among weevils from 15 to 20 times as great as normal, leading to a huge buildup of weevil populations east of the program "control zone." "The migration of these weevils into the area we are treating below the Caprock was so magnified this year that a spill-over to the area immediately above the Caprock was inevitable," Dean says. "What we are trying to do now is to prevent any additional spread of weevils and at the same time kill as many as possible before they go into winter hibernation, and then we will start spraying for a severe winter to reduce the magnitude and cost of our job next year." Officials note that there are now more acres of weevil-infested cotton threatening the High Plains than at any time since the beginning of the control program. This year's records show that the first aerial application of insecticide, which began Sept. 6, covered 230,000 acres of infested cotton. The second application, which began September 21 and was hearing completion Sept. 24, will cover an estimated 270,000 acres.

Lost merchandise and damages totaled $178. Hungry burglars broke into the home of Annette Minter, 308 N.W. 8th, sometime between 4:10 and 6:15 p.m. Sunday. According to reports, the burglars, appropriately used a shopping cart to stand on while they broke into the home through the east living room window. Once inside, they ate or stole a number of oranges, apples, Popsicles, canned goods and a ham. Value of the produce has not been estimated. Officials at the Municipal Golf Course at Comanche Trail Park reported that two small children dug holes and gouged the surface of the green Sunday morning. The youths used a baseball bat to rough up the course, and caused $50 to $75 damage, according to reports. Two local men, Allen Stech and Jimmy Reynolds, were hospitalized after they fought with knives early Sunday morning, according to police. Both were residents of the Halfway House, 704 E. 3rd, and had been drinking and arguing before the fight, according to reports. Stech was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital, where he was treated and released. Reynolds was apprehended by Sheriff's deputies four miles east of Big Spring on the north service road of IS 20. ## Investigators probe crashes, 35 dead

By The Associated Press
Air Force investigators examined the wreckage of a jet tanker today, trying to find the cause of a fiery crash that left 15 airmen dead and five injured. It was the worst of four plane crashes within six hours that killed a total of 35. The tanker, used by the Strategic Air Command for air to air refueling, crashed in a rugged marshy area in an isolated section of northern Lower Michigan, 12 miles southwest of Alpena. An eyewitness, Elmer Liske of Hubbard Lake, said the tanker went down suddenly. "It blew up, and I saw a big ball of fire," Liske said. "And then it exploded several more times." The crashes Sunday in four states left at least 15 children orphaned — children of the four Johnson & Johnson subsidiaries' officials who died with their wives in a crash at Hot Springs, Va. Three crew members aboard the company-owned jet also were killed. In Colorado, a lawyer and his wife returning to Denver from a meeting at a summer and ski resort in Steamboat Springs were among six persons killed in the crash of a twin-engine Aztec Piper

Commissioners negotiate for Beal's Creek land

County Commissioners Court negotiated for 5.27 acres of land needed for a bridge over Beal's Creek and heard about plans for the structure this morning. Horace Reagan mentioned $50 per acre with fencing and a concrete low-water crossing as consideration for the land. To be located on the road to Moss Creek Lake, the bridge would allow an eight-foot clearance from the creek bank, Joe Smoot, resident engineer with the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, said. The structure will be 240 feet long, Smoot said. In other business, the court considered repair of a burned house and alter-

County Engineer Neel Barnaby presented an offer to buy a nearby house and mentioned the possibilities of purchasing a mobile home or prefab house. The lowest of two bids for repairing the burned house was $6,670. But Commissioner Simon (Cy) Terrazas favored the road department repairing the existing house. This could be done during slack periods for less than $2,000, he said.

Relatives wait for release of prisoners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tension is mounting for friends and relatives of Americans jailed in Mexico for drug violations as they anxiously await word whether the government will begin releasing them on parole.

About 40 relatives of Americans behind bars in Mexico and several former Mexican prisoners gathered in Los Angeles over the weekend to talk to two State Department representatives who flew from Washington, D.C., to hear their complaints and answer questions.

But the tenor of the talks was much different from that of the outrage vocalized in such meetings in recent years. While fear and anxiety still were evident, the friends and relatives advocated a "walk easy" policy, fearing that renewed complaints aimed at the Mexican government might jeopardize chances that some Americans may soon be sent home for the first time in six years.

"Anything that makes waves now is out of the question," said a retired U.S. Navy commander, whose 27-year-old daughter has spent the last three years in a Mexico prison for cocaine possession, and since has become pregnant.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's two years too late to do any good with stories about the torture in Mexico jails or everything that goes with it. Things are changing fast now and we have to be quiet and wait.

"If we can do that, my daughter could be home in February. But if the Mexican government doesn't go ahead with granting parole, I'll tell you (the press) everything you want to know."

Comments of the Navy commander, who wished that his name not be used were representative of many of the Americans who gathered to discuss the fate of their loved ones behind bars in Mexico.

Many of them said they were certain that the Mexican government has signed into law a parole program for drug offenders, but said an announcement will not be made until the government is prepared to put the law into immediate effect.

The State Department said it had not heard of such a law being signed in Mexico. However, one high-ranking State Department official said announcement and enactment of such a law is imminent and could be implemented to bring some of the 600 American prisoners in Mexican jails home early next year.

James E. Kiley, acting director of the State Department special consular services, which communicates with Americans in foreign prisons, said both American and Mexican officials have been perplexed over how to deal with foreign prisoners who are unable to speak the country's language and are alien to the country's laws and customs.

"A lot of the prisoners in Mexico don't really even know what the charges are against them, because they can't read or speak Spanish," Kiley said.

"And it's a bit tough on foreigners who find themselves in jail in this country sometimes. The United States often has problems getting smaller, more remote law enforcement agencies to cooperate in notifying us whenever foreign nationals are arrested. And of course the same thing happens in other countries, including Mexico."

Kiley said some prisoners groups attempting to persuade the Mexican government to go easier on Americans in Mexico jails forget they are in jail for violations that require punishment.

"A prison is a prison," said Kiley. "It's not supposed to be fun."

While optimistic that Mexico may soon reinstate parole for drug violators, which was suspended in 1971 Kiley said the likelihood of a prisoner exchange between the United States and Mexico is not certain.

Kiley said that such a treaty proposed recently by the Mexican government, would probably require a great deal of negotiating and legal research to allow Mexico to bring its citizens in American prisons back to Mexico to serve their terms, with Americans in Mexican jails doing the same.

Complex would help older people here

One has to admire the membership of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. Through their own initiative and that of their rector, Rev. Harland Birdwell, they have lined up a $1.8 million grant to build a subsidized apartment complex for the elderly.

THE GRANT comes from the Housing and Urban Development Department, and these days they are very, very hard to come by. Only three are to be awarded in the entire U.S. this year.

The project is not yet out of the planning stages and into construction, but it looks likely to be soon.

What this will do for Big Spring is give our community at least 80 apartments, and maybe more, for persons 62 years or older.

REV. HARLAND BIRDWELL

The elderly will pay rent according to their ability to pay, and the government will subsidize the remainder to retire the debt on the complex.

The apartments can be built with older persons in mind, and they can create an atmosphere where the elderly both maintain their freedom and yet have someone helping and checking up on them.

The project will allow some of our old people living on meager pensions to move out of poverty and have a decent life again.

These projects have been most successful in other areas. They not only enrich the lives of the poorer elderly, but they extend them as well. People live longer if they can be independent and self-sufficient to whatever degree possible.

IT WILL MEAN more headaches for St. Mary's Church, which already operates a kindergarten and primary school reputed to be one of the best. First, the church will have to document the need for the rent-subsidy project in Big Spring. With 4,500 retired persons in Howard County alone, that should not be difficult.

Then a non-profit corporation will be formed to oversee the project. The complex, when completed, will be an asset to our community.

And most of all, it will help our financially hard-pressed pensioners. For who among them could have known as they were saving their money in their prime working years of the 1910s, the 1920s and the 1930s that $5,000 (then an impossibly large amount) wouldn't last a year in 1976?

The real dialogue

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

Lucky for you my secret source in Philadelphia, "Deep Debate" had hidden himself and his tape recorder inside the Walnut Street Theater, site of the "debate" between Jimmy Carter and President Ford last Thursday night.

FOR ALL OF you who tuned in to see Carter's teeth or Ford's faux pas, or just merely something new, I'm sure you were disappointed by the 27-minute delay due to a supposedly electronic failure that cut off the sound to the millions of "interested" television observers.

But thanks to the efforts of "Deep Debate," I am able to give you a transcript of what went on during those "silent" 27 minutes. Here it is:

CARTER: "... and if the CIA continues to... (pause)... What!? The sounds off? What do you mean? Well, I'll be..."

FORD: "I didn't touch anything or trip over anything, I swear. I've been standing here all night. Nessen glued my shoes to the podium."

CARTER: "Jerry, I find that hard to believe. You know my hair won't stand up too much longer under these lights, and Betty's probably out there right now cutting some wires. You don't have to worry about your hair. It's painted on."

FORD: "That's a pretty low blow Jimmy, you know I kept dropping it the other way. And another thing, that was a pretty nasty thing you said about me not knowing the difference between amnesty and pardon. Amnesty is what you get when you hit your head, and pardon is what you get when you hit it on someone else's."

CARTER: "Oh I know that. You know that's what everyone was waiting for and I think we handled it pretty good. But I really did think you were going to walk over and hit me."

FORD: "My shoes, remember?"

CARTER: "Oh yes."

FORD: "WHY don't we cut out all this put-down talk. Nobody wants to hear it anyway. Let's talk about something nice like football or television or Betty's hairdo."

CARTER: "I don't promise anything, but I won't mention your tendency to fall down a lot."

FORD: "Hey, do you want to sit down, or go have a beer or something? It looks like these clowns won't get the problem fixed for a while. What do you say?"

CARTER: "I don't know, they keep panning the camera around to see what we're doing. What if they show us and we're not here?"

FORD: "Who'll notice? Ha-ha!"

CARTER: "Yeah, ha-ha!"

FORD: "Ha-ha-ha!"

CARTER: "Ha-ha-ha-ha!"

ANOTHER VOICE: "Say, I'm the cleaning person and I did what the note told me to do. I crossed the wires to my vacuum cleaner and plugged it in. Which one of you turkeys is Ronald Reagan? You owe me $300."

Question struck

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Over the strong protests of his own enforcement officials, Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald Alexander last year struck a key question off the income tax forms. The question, which simply asked the taxpayers whether they maintained a foreign account, was intended to catch tax evaders.

Big-time criminals, from corporate embezzlers to mobsters, use secret foreign bank accounts to escape paying U.S. taxes. The taxes they avoid, of course, must be made up by the honest taxpayers.

THE QUESTION about foreign bank accounts has been used by the IRS to trap tax cheaters. In the biggest tax haven case in history, for example, Ohio businessman Jack Payner has been indicted for falsely answering "no" to the question.

Yet Alexander began maneuvering to remove the foreign bank account question from the tax form even before he was sworn in as Internal Revenue commissioner. It is an interesting coincidence that his former Cincinnati law firm has been linked to a tax haven bank in the Bahamas.

An IRS informant in the Bahamas swiped a Rolodex off the desk of Michael Wolstengroft, director of the Chase Bank and Trust, three cards on the Rolodex contained names of lawyers in Alexander's old firm. We were able to reach only one of the attorneys, who said he had no idea how his name got on the Rolodex.

On May 22, 1973, exactly one week before Alexander took his oath of office, he began a behind-the-scenes campaign to eliminate the foreign bank account question from the tax forms. He forwarded a letter, dealing with an unrelated subject, from a South Carolina lawyer to the IRS committee that deals with tax forms. In an accompanying memo, intended for official eyes only, Alexander brought up the foreign bank account question.

He followed the memo with pressure to remove the troublesome question from the tax forms. This was opposed by his enforcement people. John Olaszewski, then the IRS intelligence chief, wrote in a confidential memo: "The loss of this (question) would seriously restrict our efforts to identify those who would use foreign banking facilities in avoidance and evasion schemes."

A similar memo from Edward Morgan, then the assistant treasury secretary in charge of enforcement, also advised Alexander that the question "is a factor in the Treasury Department's efforts to combat the use of foreign bank accounts to facilitate illegal activities." Morgan added sternly that "dropping it from the tax returns at this time would be counter-productive."

YET ALEXANDER ignored the advice of the law enforcement experts and finally succeeded in removing the question in June, 1975. The notes of the confidential IRS meeting indicate that he didn't even consult the Treasury and Justice Departments before finally striking the question off the tax forms. Alexander's attitude was betrayed by his remarks to a group of public accountants: "We have knocked out the foreign bank account question at long last," he told them.

Footnote: An IRS spokesman admitted there had been disagreement over the question's removal but insisted Alexander's actions were beyond reproach. Meanwhile, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, has introduced legislation that would force the IRS to reinstate the foreign bank account question.

SUSPICIOUS THAIS: The Thai government is quietly investigating a questionable deal between a Thai airline and a U.S. aircraft manufacturer.

The Thais want to find out why the airline, Thai International, paid McDonnell Douglas Corp. $2 million more per plane than we charged to the airways. Thai investigators are also suspicious, say our sources, because the government-owned airline made a down payment before the transaction was approved by the Thai cabinet. This violated government regulations.

As part of the investigation, the Thai government has sent its communications secretary, Dr. Gun Nagamati, to the United States to do a little probing. He has met privately with Securities and Exchange officials and Senate investigators.

A McDONNELL SPOKESMAN told us it was against company policy to discuss the terms of the Thai transaction. We have obtained a confidential cable, however, in which the corporation's president, Sanford N. McDonnell, denies any impropriety. Corporation officials have also assured the Thais privately that the company did not "bribe or promise to pay money to any airline or government official." A spokesman for the Thai embassy confirmed the details of the investigation.

Footnote: In an unrelated investigation in Alexander's old firm, the Securities and Exchange Commission has been looking into payments by McDonnell to foreign officials. The company has already admitted that approximately $2.5 million was paid to officials of foreign governments or government-owned airlines between January, 1970 and June, 1975.

PRAISE FOR NAZI: After weeks of shilly-shallying, the United States Information Agency has admitted it erred in broadcasting a eulogy over the Voice of America about a dead Nazi. We revealed that the VOA praised the late Joseph Pado as a great patriot, although he had edited an anti-semitic, pro-Nazi paper during World War II in his native Slovakia.

Dear Editor: "WE THE PEOPLE," each of us, can provide quality leadership. By registering to vote (ratifying) and actively supporting our Constitution and the laws of our Republic as interpreted by our Supreme Court, each of us responsible Americans demonstrate our self respect and set an example.

Though the roots of corruption are buried deep, we can permanently break them by electing those of us with the most integrity and ability to slowly and continuously adjust our tax structure to respect the personal sovereignty of each of us, provide for our common defense and general welfare, and encourage those of us with the most integrity and ability to lead spaceship earth to more light.

Who would have dreamed that stonewall Jerry would allow our national debt to be used to support dictatorships abroad and similar pick-pockets at home? By taking these criminals off the dole, we can significantly reduce our budget.

Won't help

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Daniel Patrick Moynihan opened his campaign against Senator James L. Buckley of New York with an appeal to Republican "moderates." His "strategy," — to quote his aides as paraphrased by the New York Times — is "to preempt the middle of the political spectrum." Accordingly, Mr. Moynihan has gambled about the state invoking the hallowed name of Dwight Eisenhower, as a "mainstream Republican," to be distinguished from his opponent. "I would welcome Republicans who want to save the party from its extremes," Mr. Moynihan said.

AND, WHAT DO you know, the very next day Senator Jacob Javits, who is a Republican, announced that he would not campaign for Senator Buckley Senator Javits, hoisting his conscience up high and competing with the rays of the midday sun, appeared with "face grim," his "voice stern" as a mortician's. He was there not to praise the sainted junior senator from New York, but to bury him.

Senator Javits once referred to himself as the voice of the Republican Party which if it is true, perhaps suggests the difficulties the Party has. His long-time resentment of his colleague is probably the most dogged devotion to any principle, not counting Israel, ever practiced by Senator Javits, who six years ago, alone declined to vote to admit the freshly-arrived senator as a member of the Republican caucus.

It was a wonderful week for politics in New York, the culmination of primary races watched carefully throughout the country. Mr. Moynihan was lecturing to New York State Republicans about the inappropriateness of Senator Buckley as their representative exactly two days after Senator Buckley, running against a primary opponent, crushed his moderate opponent by winning 70 per cent of the Republican vote.

Who is the most popular Democrat in the United States? The polls inform us it is Senator Edward Kennedy. Well, on the very same day Senator Kennedy running in a primary contest against unknown opponents, got 70 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts. Perhaps Mr. Moynihan will intuit that Senator Kennedy is not a representative Democrat? I would welcome any such demonstration.

And then on the very same day Patrick Moynihan, engaged in a primary contest among Democrats, managed to get 36 per cent of the vote. Having gotten half as many of the Democrats who turned out to vote to designate him as their representative, he informs the Republicans, twice as many of whom voted for Buckley, that their candidate is unrepresentative of the party. Mr. Moynihan once wrote a book called "Maximum Feasible Misunderstanding." He shows he has mastered the art.

AND THEN when you take into account that Mr. Moynihan is a student of history, he manages to get terribly mixed up. He goes about the state saying that Senator Buckley should be a middle-of-the-roader while denouncing Senator Buckley for refusing to worship at the altar of Franklin Delano Roosevelt — who did not make his mark by being a middle-of-the-road Democrat, ask Arthur Schlesinger.

"SURE, YOU CAN TAKE A STROLL ALONE IN THE EVENING... JUST AS SOON AS ELIZABETH RAY RETIRES, TOO!"

Exercises suggested for asthmatics

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is your feeling about exercise for youngsters who have asthma? My little boy seems to be able to take some, then gets tired and has symptoms.

I hate to deprive him of some good exercise, yet I worry continually. — Mrs. T. F.

The key word in your letter is "some."

A recent Allergy Foundation of America report indicates that "some" exercise may not only be permissible but actually helpful for the asthmatic youngster.

It has been shown that short periods of exercise (of only one to two minutes' duration) actually decrease airway obstruction, a fact verified by lung function tests on asthmatics.

According to the AFA report, the more severe the airway obstruction before exercise the greater the improvement afterwards. However, exercise continued for from four to 12 minutes increased obstruction.

So the AFA guidelines suggest allowing the untreated asthmatic to exercise to his tolerance, then rest until symptoms have subsided.

Exercise-induced asthma is more common among children than adults, occurring in 85 per cent of severe asthmatics.

So the answer to your question would depend on the severity of your youngster's asthma.

And did you know that in the 1972 Olympics in Munich no less than five of the gold medal winners in swimming were asthmatic?

In youngsters it's important to learn just when tolerance is reached. Once this has been ascertained, then a well-supervised exercise program can be helpful in most cases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Two days in a row I had black stool, and I was so worried I was about to go to see the doctor, but the third day it was normal again. What causes this, and is it serious? I am in my 60s. — Mrs. E. G.

You should not have changed your mind about going to the doctor. It's true that not every symptom we experience requires attention, but in such cases one should not hesitate.

Black stool can be an ominous sign of bleeding high up in the intestinal tract. Or it can merely mean that you had eaten a lot of foods rich in iron — for instance, spinach. That can cause such a symptom. Best to find out which.

It could result from a peptic ulcer in the stomach or an ulcer in the small or large intestine, diverticulosis (pocket formation) of the bowel, or something more serious, such as a malignancy.

Even though the blackness has ceased you should get chemical tests of your stool now as well as X-rays of your entire intestinal tract. Tests might show if there is any subtle (occult) bleeding, which would show as blood cells in the stool.

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

September, 1776:

In a lengthy letter from New York to John Hancock, president of the Continental Congress, George Washington writes: "We are now... upon the eve of another dissolution of our Army... unless some speedy and effectual measures are adopted by Congress, our cause will be lost... Experience, which is the best criterion to work by... fully, clearly, and decisively reprobates the practice of trusting to militia... The evils to be apprehended from a standing army are remote, and situated as we are, not at all to be dreaded, but the consequence of wanting one is certain and inevitable ruin... You must establish your army upon a permanent footing." His plea is referred to a committee, where it produces no perceptible result. The army continues to consist essentially of militiamen provided by the states.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM—I have committed fornication and may be pregnant. What do you advise me to do? — N. L. C.

DEAR N. L. C.: Your use of the term "fornication" suggests to me that you are unmarried; however, this does not lessen the seriousness of the immorality in which you have engaged. The Bible teaches that before there can be forgiveness, there must be repentance. Under the law of Moses, punishment was severe (Leviticus 20:10). However, as serious as this sin may be, God will forgive (John 8:3-11), if there is a willingness to turn from such sin.

You need a power greater than yourself in your life. I urge that if you are not already committed to Jesus Christ, you should seek a personal relationship with God through repentance of sin and commitment by faith to Jesus Christ. Thereafter, seek the help of a Christian counselor or dedicated pastor who can assist you in consideration of God's Work and prayer.

It is also vital that you visit your doctor to learn if you are actually pregnant.

Our God is a forgiving God, and if you seek Him and make the right decision now, God will see you through this troubled time.

Commit your life to Jesus Christ. If you have never done so before, you can find that sense of joy, peace and purpose that will make life worth living for you.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1976

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact persons whose ideas and background are different from yours and you can make your life richer and more rewarding. Go to right places for the information you need, but study it carefully.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You know intuitively how to get along better with your friends and have more rapport in the future. Be sure you keep promises you have made to others. Avoid one whom you know to be deceitful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact good friends and plan the future more wisely with them so that you all gain. A civic matter arises that can bring you fine benefits.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do not delay any longer, but tackle all that work ahead of you and finish it efficiently. A fellow worker may present a problem, but you are able to handle it capably.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get out to amusements that really appeal to you and have a good time. Don't neglect some important duties first, though. A loved one is depressed, so be more encouraging than usual.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to give more thought than usual to conditions at home before you can see fine results there. Study a new project and be sure to get all pertinent data. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put the information you have acquired to work for you. Plan a trip that will improve your interests. Avoid a troublemaker in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some added financial interest can work to your advantage provided you get your facts and figures straight. Show that you are a sensible person. Listen to what an expert in business has to say.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you first improve health and appearance, you can then get much done, both where business and pleasure are concerned. Get out to some group meeting where you can make a good impression.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to analyze your position in life and how you can better it now by making the right decisions, moves. Show devotion to one who likes you very much. Make the evening a delightful one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get together with others at social affairs... and have a good time... and further your personal aims. Avoid one who could make trouble for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Bring your finest talents to the attention of bigwigs who can help you to commercialize on them. If you contact the right people, you can set up a whole new set of conditions that are most favorable.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those blunt young persons who could get into trouble with others if tact is not taught early in life. Give good spiritual training early that will prove most helpful in all ways. Slant education along lines of exports and imports.

Episcopal church accepts women

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Episcopal Church has ended a centuries-old policy of males only in the priesthood, but the controversy over ordination of women is far from finished.

Like Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy, the Episcopal Church traces its line of priestly ordination back to the time of Jesus and his Apostles.

When the Church decided last week to admit women, it was a major change, with far-reaching impact on the current climate of collaboration among denominations.

Several Roman Catholic groups, pressing for women priests in their church, hailed the action at the 13-day convention here. But the decision also troubled some Roman Catholic and Orthodox leaders about its effect on unity efforts. It also keenly dismayed many Episcopalians, including nearly half the lay and clergy delegates who argued and voted against it.

"No surrender," some of them vowed afterward, but also "no desertion."

Decisions both for women in the priesthood and for a revised version of the Church's time-honored Book of Common Prayer left a backwash of anxiety and strain among the country's 3 million Episcopalians but without indications of major schism.

"Many ... are frustrated by uncertainty and fear," said a House of Bishops' pastoral letter issued at the end of the convention Thursday.

Amid the strong differences, the bishops urged members to stick together in love, trust and faith, to do nothing "to breach our oneness in Christ" and to follow "his steps to a new unity in diversity."

That diversity undoubtedly will exist, with some saying they will not accept women priests or the new book of worship.

But the Church, which combines both Protestant and Catholic elements, always has included wide differences in interpretation and practice, as has the worldwide Anglican Communion of 65 million. The Episcopal Church is one of 22 independent national branches.

"We've arrived at a greater and clearer recognition of the breadth of this church," presiding Bishop John M. Allin said, insisting there is ample room for varying views and practices.

Yet there were deep worries about resistance to the changed church practices. "I'm filled with foreboding about the future," said Bishop Stanley Atkins of Eau Claire, Wis., one of 37 bishops who said they would not allow women priests in their dioceses.

But he, like the others, discounted fears of schism. "The church has been spiritually enriched and now has the resources to move ahead with its mission," said the Rev. Dr. John B. Coburn, outgoing president of the House of Deputies, soon to be consecrated bishop of Boston.

One coalition of 15 unofficial Episcopal groups, the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, charged the church had gone into heresy by admitting women priests. The group planned a meeting early in 1977 to decide what to do about it.

But that faction also advised against departure from the church.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, F. Donald Coggan, spiritual leader of the worldwide Anglican Communion, said that out of the tensions over the decision made here to ordain women, "music can come and good can come."

Some other Anglican bodies, including the Anglican Church of Canada, also have authorized women priests.

In the U.S. church, it will become lawful Jan. 1.

As for the 15 women whose irregular ordinations in 1974 and 1975 brought the issue to a head, the bishops approved a simple public ceremonies to affirm the women's priesthood.

The new version of the church's Book of Common Prayer is the most extensive revision in 427 years of the book's history. It makes worship more flexible and puts various rites in contemporary language.

While the new book is authorized for use beginning the first Sunday in Advent, Nov. 28, final ratification of it under the church's constitution must await the next convention in 1979.

Mastectomies have strengthened love

DEAR ABBY: A woman who had had a mastectomy asked if she should tell her gentlemen friends about it. And if so, when.

My wife had a mastectomy after we were married for 28 years. When I brought her home from the hospital she was the same beautiful woman I had taken there before her surgery. It made no difference to me, except that it brought us closer together and strengthened our love.

The woman should tell her suitors early. If he is a mature man, it won't matter. But if he runs, he would have run sometime during their marriage—even without the surgery.

ONE MAN IN ALASKA

DEAR ABBY: With reference to revealing a mastectomy: I am a 21-year-old male and I'd advise a woman to tell the man about it as soon as the relationship became serious. Personally, I wouldn't bat an eyelid. Only a fool would be more concerned with how much flesh covers his lover's heart than the feeling she holds in it for him.

PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY: When I was 34 I had a breast removed. Until that time I had a fabulous figure. In fact, I modeled brassieres. When faced with death or mutilation, I had no choice. (My dearest friend is now a terminal cancer patient because she waited too long to have the operation.) I wore full baby-doll gowns to bed, and a prosthesis during the daytime, allowing me to wear sweaters, swimsuits, etc. No problems.

My husband was terrific. It made no difference in our love life, except to improve it. His sensitivity and consideration for me made me love him even more.

When I was 47 my husband died. A year later I started dating, and if I felt the man was getting serious, I told him about my mastectomy. His reaction told me immediately if he was repelled or not.

At 49 I married a terrific man. (I had had three proposals and took my choice.) Had I felt deformed, inferior, or sorry for myself, I'd have missed the best part of my life.

I am now 65 and ...

NEVER BEEN HAPPIER

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 50-year-old man who married a 48-year-old woman who had had a mastectomy. She said, "Not every woman is lucky enough to be sure that her husband didn't marry her only for her body." I assured her that she meant far more to me than just a bosom buddy.

MORRIS THE TAURUS

DEAR ABBY: I can't pass up this opportunity to share the most beautiful moment of my life: I had had a double mastectomy at age 44. I had never been married and thought my life was over. Then I met a wonderful widower and it was love at first sight, but I fought my feelings because I didn't know how to tell him that the lovely figure he admired was not all "me."

I finally told him the whole story, to which he replied, "So what? You see these lovely teeth that you admire so much? Well, they aren't mine either!"

We'll be married 10 years in December and life is beautiful!

BLESSED IN ARLINGTON

Coffee kicks off local concert group drive

"Renewal Week" for membership in the Big Spring Community Concert Association begins Monday with a kick-off coffee at 7:30 p.m. in the parlor of First Presbyterian Church, 8th and Runnels. At that time, informative materials and work kits will be distributed to the team captains and their workers.

The campaign for new memberships will begin Oct. 4 when a dinner for board members and association workers is slated for 6:30 p.m. in the Big Spring High School cafeteria, under the direction of Craig Fischer.

Charles Parham, president, said an outstanding group of artists have signed contracts to appear here during the 1976-77 concert season. Dates and descriptive materials about the programs will be released next week.

Also assuming duties this year as officers of the association are Mrs. J.W. Kuykendall, first vice president; Mrs. Guilford L. Jones III, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Knight, assistant second vice president; Mrs. Jo Bright, third president; Mrs. C.R. Robinson, secretary; and Lowell Jones, treasurer.

New board members, not previously announced, are J. Tom Graham, J. Clifford Chapman, Mrs. J.W. Cowan, Mrs. Felix Jarratt, Mrs. Wallace Hunter, Mrs. Charles Murphy, Mrs. Jerry S. Grimes and Mrs. C.H. Rainwater.

Additional chairmanships include Mrs. Knight courtesy; Mrs. Bright, publicity; and Mrs. P.W. Malone, telephone.

LEFT — This snug knitted cap and long fringed muffer not only are great looking but they'll certainly keep you cozy when the temperature drops. Another captivating warmer you might consider is a big, bulky hand-knit sweater to team with skirts or pants.

RIGHT — The jewelry here is brass — its subtle gleam looks sensational against this menswear patterned shirt in a marvelous muted plaid, cuff bracelets and choker. The gloves are cashmere — a fabulous "rich-girl" touch that really adds luxury to anything you own.

Pack lunches early

Working homemakers can make packed lunches easier with frozen sandwiches. Make enough for a week on the weekend. Wrap individually, but make up a loaf of bread at a time into sandwiches — then stuff them in the bread wrapper for extra protection and ease of storage. Pack them in the lunch frozen and this will help keep them safe from bacterial spoilage. By noon, they will be ready to eat, advises Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Pork prices lower now

Consumers should find lower pork prices, as reports indicate more pork supplies for the rest of the year, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist.

Lower pork prices are likely because of increased supplies — and because of competition with beef and poultry products, she explained.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The pork spotlight is mostly on smoked cuts — namely, semi-boneless hams, picnics and some brands of bacon.

"A few 'kind-to-your-budget' buys will appear also on Boston butt roasts, end chops and quarter-loins cut into chops," she added.

At beef counters, Mrs. Clyatt termed the following cuts "economical": chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks, ground beef and liver.

At poultry sections, she reported some "specials" on fryer chickens — along with many features on turkey.

Also, "fish continues to offer an excellent protein value on a cost-per-serving basis," she said.

Egg prices are about the same as in previous weeks — and probably they will remain stable until time for Christmas baking, when prices usually trend upward, she predicted.

"Grade A, large-size eggs generally offer the best combination of economy and quality."

At vegetable counters, economical buys include carrots, cabbage, snap beans, soft and hard shell squash — along with eggplant, sweet green peppers, dry onions and potatoes.

Fruit economy centers currently on bananas, grapes, oranges, pears and pears.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: New-crop sweet potatoes are available — but they are not good "keepers," so buy only enough to last a week or 10 days.

Rangers scare Royals stiff

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog should be happy and brimming with confidence with his team owning a 4 1/2 game lead with a week to play in the season, but he's not.

'We're in the driver's seat, but we've still got to win sometimes. It's been that way since the All-Star break when we were 12 games ahead.'

'It was a little wobbly but it got there,' said Pearson. 'Anytime he (Pearson) gets his body in front of the defender on that sideline call he's going to get it.'

That just set the stage for the fireworks ahead. Don McCauley high jumped two yards for a touchdown but Staubach struck back on a 38-yard scoring left to tight end Billy Joe Dupree with less than four minutes remaining to put Dallas ahead 27-24.

A tornado-proof bathroom?

First, it was a ladder you throw out a window. Next, it was a five-finger clock hand. Then this summer, Almer Silen, a retired newspaper ad salesman, applied for a patent on a tornado-proof bathroom.

"Like my wife says, 'He can't even put in a light bulb, but he can think up a lot of things,'" Silen said.

In 1958, the Big Spring resident applied for his first patent, one for the ladder, which may be stored in a corner or closet of a second-floor room. You attach it to the window sill and throw the extensions to use it.

Civil Defense endorsed the ladder, 1,000 copies were manufactured in Minnesota and a firm in the Netherlands stole the idea, Silen said.

"It takes seven countries to get a patent and make it world-wide, and I've never bothered with that," Silen explained.

The clock hand looks like the extended fingers of a man's hand. Each finger points at a different hour for a different time zone. Simple, but no one had thought of it.

If you have no need to monitor times across the United States or if you live in a one-story house, consider the tornado-proof bathroom. It has quarter-inch steel walls bolted together with angle iron and secured to I-beams sunk in concrete. In the ceiling, plans show three vents to equalize pressure when the eye of the tornado passes.

It cost about $2,000 as compared to $1,500 for a normal bathroom, Silen said.

VA allowance checks mailed

A once-a-year Veterans Administration payment totaling more than $9 million was mailed recently to disabled veterans who wear prostheses.

Annual clothing allowance checks for $175 have been mailed to almost 52,000 service-disabled veterans, the VA Regional Director, Jack Coker, reported today.

Veterans compensated by the VA for service-connected disabilities, requiring use of prosthetic or orthopedic appliances, receive the allowance to offset expenses incurred in wear and tear on clothing. Appliances considered include artificial limbs, braces and wheelchairs.

One is being constructed in Lubbock.

Silen's pre-fab bathroom is designed for installation before construction of the house. The rest of the house is built around the bathroom.

"You pay $500 (in principal) for protection over a period of 30 years," Silen reasoned.

But why a bathroom? "If they have to stay there an hour, they need facilities. This can be used as a room," Silen explained.

By the Associated Press

Tornadoes and blustery thunderstorms inflicted damage in two widely separated areas of Texas during the night, and a southbound cold front stirred up more turbulence today.

Several witnesses told of spotting a funnel cloud just before violent winds collapsed two big show tents Sunday evening during windblown rain at the El Paso County Fair in far West Texas. Four persons among about 150 under the canvas suffered minor injuries. One tent housed livestock on exhibit and the other displays from merchants.

At Bay City on the coast near Galveston two twisters struck a little before midnight in the well-to-do McDonald Meadows subdivision on the southeast side of town. Some windows were blown out and fences were toppled but damage was surprisingly light, sheriff's dispatcher Charlie Davis reported.

"One man stepped out his door to find a big awning dumped in his front yard and he's still trying to find out where it came from," said Davis.

"There's about $5,000 to $6,000 damage. We're lucky nobody was hurt and the damage wasn't worse."

There was no word of damage from still other tornadoes which the National Weather service reported near Alvin, also in the Galveston vicinity; near Gatesville in Central Texas and near McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

About the same time a twister was sighted close to Gatesville, official observers clocked winds gusting up to 60 miles per hour at Waco and 66 m.p.h. at Bergstrom Air Force Base outside Austin.

Grim reaper has slow weekend

Shootings took almost as many lives in Texas during the past weekend, but there were far fewer violent deaths than during comparable periods earlier this year.

During the first weekend of fall, 12 persons died violently, including seven in traffic crashes and five from shooting incidents. The count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

These were among the victims:

Roy A. Keys, 41, of Dallas died Sunday when his car hit a light pole in Dallas.

Two men who were shot to death Saturday night about five miles east of the Dallas suburb of Plano. They were identified as Kenneth Avery, 38, of Garland and Lynn Studd, 20, of Lake Jackson.

John M. Buccigrossi, 22, of Houston was killed Saturday when his motorcycle flipped over a median on a Houston parkway and slammed into an oncoming car.

Ralph L. Young, 20, of Dallas was shot to death Friday night during what police said was a dispute over a card game.

Sherman L. Davis, 53, of Dallas was shot to death on a Dallas sidewalk Saturday following an argument.

Mary C. Jones, 38, of Robert Lee died in a one-car accident Saturday night near Robert Lee in Coke County. Officers said her automobile ran off a highway and overturned three times.

Two Houston men died in a two-vehicle accident there early Saturday. They were Richard, E. Anderson, 25, and Jones Ridgely James, 25.

Timothy Joe Bradley, 26, of Texas City died Saturday when the car he was driving struck an embankment near Alta Loma in Galveston County.

Frederick Amie, 7, of Marshall died when she was struck by a car as she rode her bicycle on Texas 43 near Marshall.

Two Kilgore residents died late Friday in a four-vehicle accident near Tatum. They were Vernon A. Mitchell, 38, and his son Mark, 14. Officers said the family was returning to Kilgore from Center after watching their son play in a high school football game.

Joe Carter, 41, of Fort Worth was shot to death Saturday.

'Pop' keeps in shape by bicycling at 82

HOUSTON (AP) — B. M. "Pop" Shirar says anyone who rides a bicycle "won't have any trouble with his health."

Shirar, 82, claims he has lost only 30 working days to illness since 1912.

Shirar credits his long years of biking and his willingness to follow a strict fitness program for keeping him lean and lively for so long.

In fact, he's in such good health he's scheduled to lead an upcoming cyclethon over a three-mile course through Houston's Memorial Park to raise funds for the American Heart Association.

Shirar, who opened one of Houston's first bicycle businesses in 1912, says he will have no problem getting in shape for the cyclethon's early morning start.

"I open my shop at 6:30 A.M. every day so I can get ready for the day's business and ride a bike around the block about 15 times before the traffic gets heavy," he said. "But my doctor insists that I leave at 3:30 P.M. to get my rest."

Shirar said his wife, who's 76, has a home bicycle exerciser she uses every day.

"Doctors are advocating bike riding more now, inside or outside," he said. "They send patients to me with prescriptions for bikes."

"Jogging is hard on you from here up," he said, passing his hand across his waist. "That impact of your foot shakes you up inside. But with a plain bike, you can get exercise anywhere you go."

Shirar said an area college student paralyzed below the waist uses a two-seater tandem bike with her brother to get needed exercise.

"An invalid can use straps to hold his feet on the pedals," Shirar said. "The other person does the work, but the handicapped person also gets the exercise."

He feels riders who are more than 60 years old should avoid the more sporty 10-speed bikes with the turned-down handlebars.

"These are built for racing," he said, "so that when you grip the handlebars, your head is down and you have to look up to see. If they want a 10-speed they should get one that has the handlebars turned up."

He said a person who hasn't ridden in 20 years or so should take it easy at first. Start by riding around the block the first day and steadily increase the distance each day for 10 days.

"Your seat will be sore at first but after 10 days, you'll be in good shape," he said.

A little lower
Called to be Saints

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
 Director Howard County Family Service Center

Suzette, eight-year-old darling of her family came home from "trick or treat" excited about her loot. She bit into an apple, yelped, and fifteen minutes later was receiving care in an emergency room.

Eleven-year-old Reggie came home beaming from his trick or treat and laid out his prizes. He ate a piece of candy and within three quarters of an hour was dead.

Sam G., grandfather of six, stopped at the grocery store on his way home and bought dollars worth of sweets. He smiled as he came home to Sadie, his wife. They hurried through dinner in expectation of a large invasion of children. Only three children came. Sam and Sadie were living in the past, not aware that few children go trick or treating any more because of the hazards. They had not caught the full impact of Halloween Carnivals the schools were holding.

There is something inefably sad about the fading of trick or treat. Something pessimistic, almost cynical.

For trick or treat celebrated one of the high holidays of our civilization.

It embraced the noblest concept of man, that each of us has the innate capacity to be and do good to the point of saintliness. It spoke to the intrinsic value of the human being, created out of love and blessed as lovable.

Centuries ago the church authorities took note of the extraordinary phenomenon characterized by the ability of men, often against great odds, to achieve a life nearing perfection. They called these people saints and set aside one day each year to celebrate their greatness. In this action they affirmed the capacity of frail men to achieve a high order of goodness.

What happened that we lost this vision? Who knows? Perhaps it would be a waste of time to investigate what happened. Better that in the now we make a change to pursue the pristine goodness of man as part of a good creation. Surely, the schools should continue to promote Halloween Carnivals and to perfect them, helping both students and parents to know the goodness of life. Neighborhoods, in block fashion, could band together to promote the festival of the saints. Some civic group could present to the merchants the idea of selling coupons that would be safe gifts to our little ones visiting homes to inspire the goodness that all people possess.

In 1976 Halloween will occur on Sunday. Is it too much to expect that our churches would band together to accentuate the grace with which each person is endowed, to celebrate the things that are good about Creation?

I have an ideal vision that might be greeted by guffaws. But I have the courage to suggest it. Could not community organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce, The Ministerial Fellowship, the School Systems, our local governments, our police departments and our sheriff's office combine efforts in pursuit of a "crimeless weekend."

Too long, we have gone along feeling guilty, and doing bad things to support our feelings of guilt. Isn't it time to remember that we are "called to be saints"?

KNOW YOUR FOOD

GOOD NUTRITION AT LOWER COST
Foods that abound in high quality protein... beef, veal, lamb, pork, poultry, fish, eggs and cheese always make welcome main dishes. Thrifty main dishes often combine these protein-rich foods with vegetables or the bread-cereal group of the basic four food groups... for example, beef stew with vegetables or dumplings, chicken with rice, fish with stuffing, cheese with macaroni. Dry beans and peas are also thrifty choices... with a little meat added they produce high quality protein meals. If a main dish is not high in protein, it's possible to supply additional protein with the other foods in the meal.
If, for instance, a pound of meat is to serve six or eight persons, you might combine it with vegetables in a casserole or stew. Add milk to the menu as a beverage and serve cheese-topped apple pie for dessert.
If you are making hamburgers, the meat can be extended for extra servings by adding bread crumbs, dry milk, eggs and fine-cut onions along with your favorite seasonings, of course. The dry milk and eggs also extend the amount of protein in the hamburgers.
The same thing holds true when you are making meat loaf. Adding eggs and dry milk provides extra protein as well as more servings.
Serving homemade noodles with chicken also pays protein dividends through the eggs used in preparing them. Homemade noodles aren't difficult to make. Check a good cookbook for directions and you're on your way to pleasing your family with something really tasty. Homemade bread, noodles, cakes, pies, rolls, etc., seem to be a popular way of saving money today. Besides, there is something so satisfying about "doing it yourself."

Folks were laughing at me the other day because I had out the magnifying glass looking at a travel ad in The Texas Monthly.

But for two months in a row, my number two daughter has been a postage-stamp-size picture in an advertisement about going to Mexico on your next vacation.

The picture was made way down in the bottom of Mexico two summers back when Carolyn was going to Central America. The fellow who took pictures of Carolyn on the beach and surfing through the waves told her he was putting together an article for National Geographic.

As it turned out, he must have sold one of these pictures for the travel ad. She has the original picture and we have laughed about the whole thing. The only thing — if you're going down to Mexico to find Carolyn on the beach, don't pack your bag. She's been back in Texas for two years.

She kidded me about it, saying, "You had better luck with your National Geographic reporter, because yours turned out to be real."

Back in 1966, I went on the Ladybird raft drifting down the Rio Grande. One of the persons on our raft was Andy Brown from National Geographic.

He was a great guy — a fantastic photographer and a good sport. One of the guys on the raft was Martin Dreyer of the Houston Chronicle. He was an art editor, the last of the aristocrats and hated to get wet. The rest of us on the raft simply could not figure out why Martin ever came on the trip.

Now the Rio Grande is a treacherous river. One minute, you're roaring across the rapids, banging against the rocks. The next minute, you are into deep placid water where you can fall out and drown.

And a little bit later, you hit the shallows where you can get out and walk. There was no way to keep from getting wet. Martin would prop his feet up where his shoes couldn't get wet. He refused to help row. He sat in horror in the middle of the raft.

We plotted against Dreyer. We decided Dreyer was too dry. So in the next rapids, it just so happens that our raft spilled over a little bit. Somehow, we had an inkling that it might happen, so our particular cameras were wrapped in plastic and kept high and dry. But Mr. Dreyer got wet. He even got his shoes wet. A terrible tragedy.

To this good day, Andy Brown and I share a Christmas card and always remember Martin. When I finally got around to looking at the masthead of the magazine in an issue he sent me about Big Bend, I was in for a surprise.

I thought Andy was a reporter. He's a senior editor. And a wonderful guy to be caught on a raft with. If you happen to be floating down the Rio Grande. When you're out ridin' fence.

Kidnaped woman found alive

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — After four days of helplessness — bound, gagged and blindfolded in dense woodland — Sheri Linda Jaffa, the kidnaped wife of a wealthy land developer, wasn't sure she could trust her rescuers.

Even as Jacksonville Police Chief Matt Touchton worked with knife and scissors to cut her bound wrists early Sunday, Mrs. Jaffa demanded to see his badge. The men who abducted her last Wednesday had been dressed as policemen.

Industry at the crossroads

Explosion in spending

by Tom E. Roy
Industrial Manager, BS Ch. of Commerce

It's been raining for eight days straight and everything is drenched, including your spirits, and then the sun comes out. You bask in the sunshine, but you don't expect it to last; you tell your wife that you've been wet so long you feel like a frog. A second day of sunshine. You feel a little bit better now, but you tell your partner it's still too good to be true. Somewhere around the fourth sunny day when the ground is finally dry and the dampness is out of your bones and the newspapers report how it was the wettest August for years, then you believe it. Yes, we're in for good weather.

JUNE? That was a direct quote from Forbes Magazine as they opened an article entitled "The Coming Explosion in Capital Spending." They do on to relate how for businessmen, it has been wet weather for years — except businessmen are more concerned about the human climate and how they talk and act. Now the sun seems to be breaking through as evidenced by the following signs:

1. Government spending is losing its allure for most people.
2. Corporate profits are up 35 per cent in real terms over the first quarter of 1975.
3. The public is beginning to understand that consumerism and environmentalism have a price — and that the public must pay that price.
4. Campus recruiters are extremely popular today — much more so than a few years ago.
5. Inflation is present, but no longer the ogre it was a year ago.
6. The United States is becoming an island of stability in a troubled world.
7. Politicians (some anyway) are beginning to understand that they cannot tax and redistribute income unless somebody produces it first.

Communal farm target of suit

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — A South Texas communal farm, described by Mexican-American activist Jose Angel Guterrez "as American as apple pie," has become the target of a suit by Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Hill filed suit last week to rescind a $1.5 million grant from the federal Community Services Administration to the Zavala Economic Development Corp., headed by Guterrez.

BUT WHAT DOES THIS MEAN for Big Spring? Well, we can benefit from business expansion in terms of providing a location for business to expand, thus creating new and better jobs for our workers. The key to business expansion is capital availability. The article further points out that two of the three elements required for capital expansion are present: The demand for products, and the ability to finance the expansion. The third element is confidence, and that is rapidly growing.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has said the project would result in a "little Cuba" that was both "un-Texas and un-American." Guterrez said over the weekend that Briscoe opposes the federal grant because the farm's operation would compete with the governor's large land holdings in South Texas.

With the return of confidence, more and more companies will expand and relocate. It is up to us to take advantage of this expansion, for it is cyclical and will not be a permanent condition. We can if we want to badly enough. And the desire has probably never been stronger than now at the crossroads of West Texas.
