Voiced obscene racial slur

Butz calls it quits

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, embattled over voicing an obscene racial slur, resigned today.

Butz himself announced his departure after meeting with President Ford in the Oval Office at the White House.

"I have just submitted my letter of resignation to the President, and he has accepted," Butz told reporters in the press room.

"This was completely my own decision," he said. "It is what I and Mrs. Butz felt would be in the best interests of the President and his election campaign."

Butz declared that this was "the price I pay for a statement... used in a private conversation."

EARL L. BUTZ

Butz emphasized that at no time was pressure put on him by the White House to resign.

He then released a statement in which he said "this is the price I pay for a gross indiscretion in a private conversation. The use of a bad racial commentary in no way reflects my real attitude."

The explosive remarks were made on an airplane after the Republican National Convention in August. Their subsequent publication landed Butz in hot water last Friday, when he was officially reprimanded by Ford, and triggered numerous calls for his ouster.

Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter charged that Ford's failure to fire Butz on the spot displayed a lack of leadership.

In his statement today, Butz said that "by taking this action, I hope to remove even the appearance of racism as an issue in the Ford campaign."

"President Ford is a decent man with high moral values, who insists that every American be treated equally and with dignity," Butz said.

In his brief, four-paragraph letter of resignation, Butz told the President:

"I sincerely apologize for any offense that may have been caused by the unfortunate choice of language used in a recent conversation and reported publicly."

Asked what he would do now, Butz replied, "Campaign for President Ford."

He said the resignation should not be taken as a sign that the administration's farm policies could change.

"That is why farmers should support Gerald Ford in the election," he said. "That is why I will continue to work tirelessly for his election."

Butz declined to answer any other questions.

Before going to see Ford, Butz canceled a speaking engagement at Camp Hill, Pa., scheduled later in the day, according to Ford campaign aides in Pennsylvania. The speech was to be made instead by Assistant Secretary John Knebel, who would become acting secretary if Butz resigned.

An Agriculture Department source told The Associated Press today that the President had left it solely up to Butz himself as to whether the secretary stays on the job. According to the source, Butz was asked to make up his own mind, then let the President know.

Ford, meanwhile, was quoted as telling some black plant workers today that Butz was "merely telling a story" with the offensive language but had been punished "very severely" with Friday's reprimand.

White House spokesmen declined to confirm that the choice had been left entirely in Butz' hands. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters he had nothing new to tell them about the Butz affair, which has heated up into a new campaign issue.

Ford's comments were reported by Mrs. Regis Cupples, wife of the president of a Washington, D.C., printing company where Ford went this morning to make a film for a campaign advertisement to be shown on television.

Lt. Col. Gadd reminds group Webb closure not decided

Statements emanating from members of Congress to the effect that decisions relating to closure of Webb and Craig Air Force Bases had already been made were challenged by an Air Training Command (ATC) Team, which met with local delegation at Webb this morning.

This was a hearing preliminary to the Nov. 3 public hearing of the Environmental Impact Statement.

Lt. Col. Robert Gadd led the ATC team, which met with the local group, and moderated the meeting.

Other ATC representatives here included Lt. Col. James Nugent, Lt. Col. Gerald Dantzer, Capt. Larry Ingalls, Albert Huber and James Lawson.

The ATC delegation and members of the Legislative Action Committee of the Chamber of Commerce were due to go to Odessa this afternoon for a Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission meeting and a review of the Impact Statement.

Gadd planned to remain here through Tuesday, after which he will go to Reese AFB in Lubbock and Laughlin AFB in Del Rio for similar meetings.

Gadd prefaced his remarks by saying the ATC team came "to meet on common ground about the impact statements, to be updated" with information gathered, which would be inputted into a report to be forwarded to Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Reed.

Various aspects of the Environmental Impact Statement were challenged by Will Ball, a representative of Sen. John Tower's office, and members of the local delegation.

Gadd said that the decision to close Webb and Craig (of Selma, Ala.) was made, because, in effect, the Air Force had a capability of training more pilots than it needs.

Is there a possibility Webb will be salvaged for a change in missions?

Gadd conceded he had heard such rumors but had never seen anything in writing to that effect. These decisions, he pointed out, are made on a higher level of command than ATC.

Ball told the ATC delegation:

"We tend to draw down in peace time. We should fully address ourselves to expansion capabilities. What would be the cost of reopening the bases (in event they are needed)?"

Ball noted errors in projections made to the Air Force, one of them the number of pilots needed during the next five years.

Gadd reminded the group:

"No decision has been made on the closing of Webb and Craig — only proposals."

Why close Webb, with its record for efficiency?

Among factors cited were lack of a third runway and urban encroachment.

The mission flexibility of Columbus, Miss. — regarded as "good" by the Air Force as compared to Webb, listed as "poor," kept Columbus off the list, it was indicated by the ATC team.

The comment period for all the ATC bases mentioned in the Environmental Impact Statement is due to be completed no later than Nov. 23 and a final Environmental Impact Statement will be made available by Feb. 8 next year.

Among legislative Action Committee members posing questions for the ATC delegation were Mayor Wade Choate, Ralph Brooks, Jimmy Taylor, Winston Wrinkle and Ben Bancroft.

At the end of the meeting, Choate read from a prepared statement which said:

"I would like to go on record as saying that I feel the announcement of Webb Air Force Base and Craig Air Force Base as candidates for possible closure is in direct violation of the National Environmental Impact Act since these bases were selected as prime candidates for closure before an in-depth Environmental Impact Study had been completed on all of the six ATC bases being considered for closure.

"I feel all six bases should be reviewed in detail before any announcements were made concerning base closure.

"As a result of the Air Force's announcement, this city has suffered unnecessary losses in retail sales, business expansion, the housing and job markets, advertising in local media and other areas for the past six months.

"If these studies had been completed with the Air Force's announcement, and the bases had been ranked according to viable operational statistics, I do not feel Webb Air Force Base would have been considered as a candidate for closure in the first place."

AFTER 'GRAVEYARD TURN' — One aviation expert at the scene of this fatal aircraft crash believed Jack Lee Wagner had attempted a down-wind or "graveyard turn" when he apparently lost control Sunday afternoon. The accident did not cause a fire. The lower photo shows the inside of the open cockpit.

Sand Springs man perishes in plane crash near airport

By JOHN EDWARDS

Jack Lee Wagner, 35, died at 2 p.m. Sunday when his home-built, experimental aircraft crashed near Howard County Airport.

Daryl Anderson, 13, Gail Route Box 258, watched Wagner's plane take off and reach about 100 or 200 feet above the ground.

It appeared the wind "flipped him over and he started his spin," the youth said.

The aircraft disappeared behind a small hill several hundred yards from the runway.

Anderson could hear the engine running and then a "pop" when the aircraft crashed.

Wagner, the president of the Experimental Airplane Association, purchased the open-cockpit, single-seat plane about three months ago, West said.

Justice of the Peace Bob West ruled the death accidental. Dr. P. W. Malone, aviation medical accident investigator for the Federal Aviation Administration, was among those dispatched to the wreck.

Services will be held 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Nailey-Pickle Rosewood Chapel. Dr. Weldon Butler, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park.

Wagner was a resident of Sand Springs.

He was born December 11, 1940 in Kansas City, Mo. He came to Howard County in 1969 and was maintenance superintendent at Cosden Oil and Chemical Co.

He married Gail Broussard July 21, 1972 at Lovington, N.M.

Survivors include his wife; his mother, Mrs. Ann Wagner, Rio Hondo; two sons, Jack Lee Wagner, Jr. and James Wagner, Axtell, two brothers, Jim Wagner, Arlington, and John Wagner, Mission; and a sister, Miss Jeannie Wagner, Cleveland, Texas.

The family suggests memorials to the Heart Fund.

Assassination staged in Spain

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — A lone gunman assassinated a member of King Juan Carlos' advisory council and three other persons today as the official was being driven home to lunch in this Basque city, police said.

Police said a young man stepped from a doorway on San Sebastian's main street and opened up with machine gun fire as the automobile of council member Juan Maria de Araluce Villar and a trailing police car passed by. The other three killed were Araluce's chauffeur and two policemen.

Araluce, who was president of the surrounding province of Guipuzcoa, as well as a member of the ultra-conservative Council of the Realm, died almost instantly, police said. The assassin jumped into a white car and sped off.

King Juan Carlos was in Madrid at the time of the attack, the most serious political assassination since Basque separatists killed Premier Luis Carrero Blanco in 1973.

Police sources later confirmed Araluce had received death threats from Basque separatists.

McNamara says world can wipe out poverty

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — World Bank President Robert S. McNamara said today the world has the means to wipe out poverty, but that the industrialized countries have failed to keep promises to provide the money to do it.

McNamara, former U.S. defense secretary, spoke at the opening of the joint annual meeting of the bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

At the same time, the World Bank issued a report showing the United States and Japan at the bottom of a list of economic aid donors and likely to provide even less help to poor countries by 1980.

McNamara appealed for a "global compact" among all governments to wipe out poverty by the end of the century. He said nearly one billion people were living in "human degradation ... absolute poverty."

"We cannot turn our backs on one billion individuals trapped in it. Absolute poverty is a needless global tragedy ... because there are on hand economic and technological means to end it."

McNamara said the developed countries had failed to keep their 1970 promise to give at least .7 per cent of their gross national product in official development aid.

"The target has not been met, nor is there any present indication that it will ever be met," he said.

He appealed to the industrialized world to provide more money, for even the poorest countries to spend more of their own resources for development and for middle-income developing countries — those with annual per capita incomes of more than $200 — to distribute that income to narrow the widening gap between the poor and the elite in their populations.

McNamara also appealed for quick action to keep the International Development Association (IDA) from running out of money by next June.

The IDA provides loans to the world's poorest countries at cheap interest rates for development projects.

McNamara said he wanted the authority to commit $9 billion through IDA over the three years starting in June.

"If we are to prevent a complete hiatus of IDA operations nine months from now, immediate action is required," he said.

McNamara also proposed the dismantling of tariff and nontariff barriers to trade to let poor countries earn more, despite the fears of industrial countries that the policy would create unemployment.

Police beat

Bleacher battles blossom

Students from both Big Spring and Abilene, who apparently had no taste for going out for the football team, were causing plenty of commotion in the bleachers, the restrooms and across the street in the baseball park Friday night.

The police officers assigned to the game, more than had their hands full as students from both towns fought with fists, knives, and at least one gun and even bottle openers.

Air was let out of some of the Abilene fans tires and at least one windshield was broken during the course of the evening. The Abilene principal requested the police to escort two of his students from the game.

Weather

Cold front shoves into Panhandle

By the Associated Press

A new cold front shoved into the Texas Panhandle today with a promise of wet and stormy weather as it proceeds downstate.

Before the norther drove deep enough to make itself widely felt, occasional showers already were falling from West Central into North Central Texas. Another patch of showers mixed with sometimes heavy thunderstorms spread eastward from the West Texas mountains. Skies were clear to partly cloudy elsewhere.

North winds gusting up to 30 miles per hour signalled the arrival of cooler air behind the front's forward edge in the north part of the Panhandle.

There was no sharp drop in temperatures, however. Readings near dawn sagged to 51 degrees at Amarillo and 52 at Perryton in the Panhandle. At the same hour it was 78 at Galveston on the coast.

Chances were seen for more showers and thunderstorms in most sections along and ahead of the new front, which was expected to turn thermometers down over all of West and North Texas tonight and across the rest of the state by Tuesday. Overnight readings in the 40s were promised in the Panhandle-Plains sector and the West Texas mountains.

WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy and cooler tonight and Tuesday. Scattered thunderstorms south portion early tonight. Low tonight 40s north and mountains to upper 50s south. High Tuesday mid 60s north to mid 80s extreme south-west.

EXTENDED FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Fair and cool Wednesday through Friday. Lows near 40 north to lower 50s south. Highs 60s north and 70s south.

WEATHER FORECAST — Mild temperatures are forecast today for the Atlantic coast but most of the nation is expected to be cool. Showers are forecast from eastern Texas to the Great Lakes.

Local rainfall listed as less than normal

September 1976 brought more than the usual amount of rain for the month, but the local total this year to date remained less than normal.

The U.S. Big Spring Experiment Station measured a trace or more on 13 days for a total of 2.86 inches during September. The average amount for 77 years has been 2.28 inches.

The total for the year to date was 14.49 inches on Sept. 30. The normal total for this date is 15.04 inches.

With the moisture came cooler than usual weather. Daily highs averaged 82 degrees, as compared to the normal average of 87 degrees. The low point daily averaged 60 degrees, two notches below the normal average.

The thermometer hit the month's hottest at 92 degrees on Sept. 4 and 5 and dropped to its lowest, 45 degrees, Sept. 28. Neither was a record.

Less than 7.44 inches usually evaporated from an open pan was lost.

Evaporation claimed 5.74 inches. Wind velocity was significantly slower than normal, the average wind speed was 3.0 miles per hour. The 58-year average for September is 3.6 m.p.h.

Turning point in balance of legislative, executive power?

Scandals, confrontations marred 94th Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two years of the 94th Congress saw headlines inspired more by scandals among its members, confrontations with a veto-wielding President and investigations than by legislative accomplishments.

But as time provides a longer perspective, the period that ended with adjournment last Friday may be seen as a turning point when the legislative branch began to turn against a century-long drift of power to the executive branch.

Using for the first time the budget procedures enacted by its previous Congress, the 94th took hold of the national budget as a whole, set spending and taxing goals and held to them, and asserted against the President its own views of national priorities.

Previously, the executive branch had the initiative in setting over-all goals, while the legislative branch merely approved individual pieces of legislation.

One Congress doesn't set a trend. But the next occupants of Capitol Hill and the White House will be watched to see whether a real shift of power within the federal government is under way.

The heavily Democratic Congress elected in 1974, after Watergate had disgraced a Republican administration, was itself wracked by scandals and allegations of scandals among its own members.

The fall of Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, was the major case. Hays had made a major power base out of his post as chairman of the House Administration Committee, with wide authority over members' perquisites.

He was also a force in the Democratic Caucus, chairman of the party committee that channeled campaign funds to congressional candidates and of a major international relations subcommittee.

Then, a $14,000-a-year secretary, Elizabeth Ray, accused Hays of putting her on the payroll only to provide him with sexual favors.

Hays, after initial assertions that he was being blackmailed, admitted a "personal relationship" but insisted Miss Ray was paid only for legitimate work.

Under pressure from colleagues and under investigation by the Justice Department and the House Ethics Committee, Hays resigned first his committee chairmanships, then the renomination he won after the scandals broke, and finally his seat.

A rash of allegations against other members ensued, but none produced such results.

However, the House, already nervous over polls giving Congress a low rating in public opinion, instituted some reforms in its handling of official accounts, payrolls and travel expenses and set up a commission to study and recommend more.

In an unrelated matter, on recommendation of the Ethics Committee, the House reprimanded one of its senior members, Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., for alleged financial impropriety.

It was the first time that the low-profile ethics panel had recommended disciplining a member.

The Ethics Committee investigated allegations of improper release of secret materials. The major case involved the leaking of a House Intelligence Committee report to CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr.

The committee never determined officially who leaked the information. Subpoenaed to testify, Schorr refused to name his source, and no action was taken against him.

Committees of both chambers investigated intelligence agencies. Wrongdoing on the part of the CIA and FBI was reported.

Tax changes enacted in two stages probably had more direct impact on more Americans than any of the other actions by the 94th Congress.

Individual and corporate income tax reductions amounting to about $19 billion a year were put on the books. Ford's proposals for deeper cuts — to be balanced by equal cuts in spending — were rejected.

A tax revision package enacted in the last days of the Congress fell short of the hopes of many would-be reformers. But it did trim some tax preferences and increase revenue estimates by $1.6 billion — not far below the goal set under the new budget procedures.

The 94th Congress' worst performance — in the opinion of many of its members — was its failure to enact an over-all energy program to increase domestic supplies, encourage or enforce conservation and reduce dependence on oil from foreign countries that could both boost prices and play international politics with the vital commodity.

Philosophical differences with President Ford's administration played a part in the failure, but so did deep divisions in Congress and within the Democratic majority.

Congress did enact a variety of energy bills, such as one encouraging long-range research on new energy sources and means of propulsion.

What was to have been the over-all energy bill kept the House, Senate and White House busy during most of 1975, with compromises repeatedly sapping its provisions. What became law allowed partial decontrol of oil prices, set mileage standards for automobiles, gradually tightening over nine years, and encouraged mining and use of coal.

Congress also wrestled with the problems of the Postal Service, plagued by deficits and accused of inefficiency. No substantial changes were made, but an additional $1 billion in subsidies was voted.

Revenue-sharing, the program of returning federal tax money to states and cities, was extended through 1980 at an increased level.

The Voting Rights Act, credited with increasing blacks' opportunities to vote, was extended for seven years with provisions designed to help other minorities.

The copyright law, unchanged since 1909, was rewritten to take into account problems raised by such innovations as office copying machines and jukeboxes.

Federal proclamations of states of emergency, some decades old, were officially terminated, thus limiting presidential powers and wiping out some 470 obsolete enactments.

Moving into foreign affairs, an area that presidents consider their own, Congress ended U.S. activity in the Angolan internal troubles by cutting off funds.

But the 94th Congress also eased the ban on arms sales to Turkey imposed by its predecessor as a result of Turkish occupation of part of Cyprus.

Key cases crammed into session

Court opens new term

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is opening its new term with arguments on an unusual number of important cases crammed into its first two-week session.

The court scheduled arguments for today on a case in which 23 states are asking the justices to overrule their 10-year-old Miranda rule restricting police interrogation of suspects.

Other cases to be heard later this week and next week deal with charges of sex, race and religious discrimination in housing, the treatment of employees and the sale of beer.

Although not unprecedented, it is rare for the court to hear so high a proportion of its major cases in the opening days of the term.

At any rate, the court's announced schedule should decrease the chance that virtually all of the major decisions will be put off until the closing days, as they were last term.

The case on the Miranda rule arises from a federal court decision overturning the murder conviction of Robert A. Williams in the death of 10-year-old Pamela Powers of Des Moines, Iowa.

The girl was slain on Dec. 24, 1972, at the Des Moines YMCA, where she had come with her family to see her 14-year-old brother compete in a wrestling match.

Williams surrendered to police in Davenport, Iowa, two days later. A federal judge ruled that, on the way back to Des Moines, a police detective had tricked Williams into leading police to the girl's body, although Williams had asserted his right to answer no questions until he saw a lawyer.

Under the Miranda rule, a suspect in custody must be told of his right to a lawyer and his right to remain silent. If he chooses not to talk, police may not question him. If they do, the evidence they obtain cannot be used against him.

Twenty-two states have filed briefs supporting Iowa's argument that this rule should be overturned and the suspect's statements should be allowed as evidence as long as they were given voluntarily.

Arguments are scheduled Tuesday on a challenge to an Oklahoma law permitting women to buy 3.2 per cent beer at age 18, although men may not buy it until 21.

Opponents of the law seek a declaration from the court that laws relating to the sexes must meet the same strict constitutional test as racial laws.

On Wednesday, the court will hear arguments on behalf of Hasidic Jews in Brooklyn that a legislative reapportionment designed to favor blacks and Puerto Ricans is reverse discrimination. The reapportionment split the Hasidic community between two districts.

Arguments are scheduled for Oct. 12 on the appeal of the Parker Seal Co. of Berea, Ky., from a ruling that it violated a federal law against religious discrimination in employment when it fired a supervisor who refused for religious reasons to work on Saturdays.

On Oct. 14, the justices will hear arguments on the issues of public housing in the suburbs and whether pregnant women are entitled to disability pay.

Kelli Bilberry is recording

LAMESA — Kelli Bilberry of Lamesa has recorded her first songs, entitled "Remember the Good Times" and "I'm Sorry, Baby," at Woodland Studios in Nashville under the direction of producer Richie Johnson (Little Richie).

The wife of Ronnie Bilberry, Kelli is recording under the name of "Kelly Warren." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren of Lamesa.

Her music, recorded in June, has now reached the music stores. She plans to push the records on a personal appearance tour later this year. Kelli is 18.

Constant controversy

'Hair-pulling fights'

Harte Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The House State Affairs Committee Thursday recommended merging state barber and cosmetologist agencies — a move the members said they hoped would keep barbers and cosmetologists out of their hair.

Rep. Ben Munson of Denison said keeping the State Board of Barber Examiners and the Cosmetology Commission separate led to extra state cost and proliferation of seemingly unneeded regulations. But representatives of both groups oppose any merger, he said.

Rep. Tom Uher of Bay City, committee chairman, said he has served four two-year terms on the committee and during that time the legislators "have never gone through a session without a big fight" on barber-cosmetologist regulations.

"We need to get the barbers and cosmetologists out of State Affairs' hair so we can concentrate on other more important affairs," he added.

The barbers vs. cosmetologists feud is a constant controversy for the Legislature, with each side trying to protect certain professional areas. Lobbying is strong and leads to legislative puns about "hair-pulling fights."

"It's just an internal fever over who can cut hair," said Rep. John Wilson of La Grange.

Munson said he believed most of the blame lies with the barbers, who are worried about losing business to the cosmetologists because the latter "can cut current hair styles better." He described the cosmetologists as "more congenial."

He said currently if a husband and wife want to have a barber shop and beauty shop together they have to operate under different regulations and pay for separate inspections.

And if there is a joint shop the barbers have regulations requiring separate rest rooms, waiting rooms and cash registers, Munson said. He claimed the regulations were designed more to cut down competition than to protect the public.

"The barbers said you don't have to have a rest room but if you have one the cosmetologists can't use it," he told the committee.

The committee voted 12-1 in favor of the recommendation for consolidation. Rep. Robert D. Simpson of Amarillo cast the only negative vote.

Farm West Texas pearl?

LUBBOCK — Pearl millet, a genetically drought-tolerant crop, could some day cover millions of West Texas acres that are often too dry for cotton and sorghum production.

But there are more than 7,000 genetic varieties of millet, and a major problem lies in isolating and developing those that are suitable for West Texas.

The latter is a major project as Texas Tech University. Researchers in the plant and soil science department are presently observing about 200 pearl millet types selected for their grain-producing ability under environments comparable to that of West Texas.

"There are several million acres of land in West Texas almost every year that are nonproductive because the soil moisture was not sufficient for cotton or sorghum, or because the rains came too late for these crops to complete their life cycle. If we can develop the right millet type — and we think pearl millet has good potential — we could easily use these dry areas for grain production," said Dr. Daniel R. Krieg, associate professor of crop physiology at Texas Tech.

Pearl millet is a major world food grain in Asia and Africa and also a major forage species in the United States.

The Texas Tech professor is currently evaluating the various millet types for maturity dates, height, tiller capacity and other desirable agronomic characteristics. Other studies are concerned with determining the drought tolerance mechanism in millet and comparing millet and sorghum under drought stress conditions.

The International Center for Research in Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT), a research institution in India, has furnished the seeds to Texas Tech. ICRISAT houses the world collection of pearl millet, Krieg said.

The 190 genotypes from India were planted on May 9, 1976. Some of them bloomed as early as 42 days after emergence and matured a grain crop in 65 days, Krieg added.

"Pearl millet," he said, "has better food value than current sorghum varieties. The protein content is higher, and so is that of lysine, an essential amino acid in proteins."

The crop heights vary from three to 12 feet. The weight of the seed is about 20 to 50 per cent of the weight of the sorghum seed. Colors range from pearl white to yellow to grey.

Krieg said that it will be several years before farmers can make use of his research.

"We have to prove the worth of a particular genotype and then produce enough seed for distribution."

The Agency for International Development (AID) and Texas Tech University are supporting Krieg's project. AID gave $25,000 during 1975 and '76, while the university matched with $10,000 for each year.

Krieg expects that millet research will be a continuous program at Texas Tech "because of the potential use of that crop in West Texas."

S.R. Boye-Goni, a graduate student from Ghana, and John Wilkey, a senior in plant and soil sciences, are working with Krieg.

Big Springer wins bronc riding contest

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The 45th annual Texas Prison Rodeo started here Sunday before a crowd of more than 12,000.

Competitors, ranging from thieves to murderers, pitted themselves against a variety of stock in a variety of events. The rodeo is held each Sunday in October, with proceeds going to inmates.

Willie Craig, doing 30 years from Greenville, Ky., placed first in bareback bronc riding.

Winner of the saddle bronc riding was Johnny White, doing six years from Big Spring.

No. 1 bull rider was Wayne

Fifer of Houston, serving eight years.

Lucille Thomas, of Ville Platt, La., and Irma Hickman of Bryan teamed up to win the greased pig sacking event. Deborah Davis and Rosie Lee Robertson were winners in the calf tussle contest. Both are from Houston.

The big attention-getter was the hard money event, which features 40 cons trying to take a tobacco sack from a bull's horns within five minutes. Cleo McGrew of Edna got the first sack and earned $25.

The second bull, worth $75, kept its sack.

'Moonbeams' might predict earthquakes

ALPINE, Tex. (AP) — Scientists in Texas are firing spurts of laser beam light at reflectors on the moon, hoping the resulting measurements will provide information that could be used to predict earthquakes.

Astronomers at the McDonald Observatory in Southwest Texas say the light beams can be used to measure the distance from the earth to the moon. Those measurements can then determine the movement of large land masses on earth and pinpoint stress areas where earthquakes are likely.

Observatory director Dr. Harlan J. Smith said the laser beams are about four feet long and nine feet in diameter, and are fired through a telescope. The beams are aimed at reflectors left on the moon by U.S. astronauts. The distance is 240,000 miles, and Smith says it requires accuracy "about equal to that needed to hit a dime with a rifle at a distance of one mile."

By the time the billion-watt beams reach the moon, they spread to cover about four square miles. Much of the light does not return to earth, but that which does is measured by delicate instruments at McDonald that astronomers say can determine earth-to-moon distances within three inches.

The UT astronomers say that by 1978 they will be able to use a mobile laser station to test moon-to-earth distances in different locations and at one-and two-year intervals that will allow them to measure continental drift.

The mobile station, to be built on a $1.3 million contract with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will have a 30-inch telescope that can shoot 10 pulses of light per second into space.

Smith said continental drift puts tremendous pressure on rock formations beneath the earth's crust, pressures that eventually "explode" as earthquakes.

He said data from the laser beams also will allow scientists to determine the exact rates at which the earth and the moon are varying their rotations — a clue to changes in the earth's inner core.

Food stamp program publication available

WASHINGTON — House Agriculture Committee Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., today announced publication of the most comprehensive study ever undertaken of the nation's Food Stamp program.

The publication is now being made available to all Members of Congress and other interested in the program. Copies can be obtained from the Government Printing Office for $4.75.

The study indicated that a fourth of the non-public assistance households were headed by someone 65 or older. The average household gross income was found to be $305 per month, based on last year's figures, and this included Social Security payments.

About six per cent of the families receiving food stamps had no income at all. Two-tenths of one per cent of all families had gross income of $1,000 or more monthly — but were eligible because of the number of dependents or other circumstances.

About 5.6 per cent of the households had a college student present. Two-tenths of one per cent of the households included a worker on strike, according to a sample survey in the study.

ABILENE — Steven Carl Sigmon, 23, Friday heard U.S. District Judge Leo Brewster revoke probation he was serving for theft.

In May 1975, Sigmon got probation for theft of federal property worth more than $100.

On Aug. 23, he pleaded guilty in Howard County's 118th District Court to delivery of marijuana and LSD. He was sentenced to two, eight-year concurrent terms.

The one-day and one-year for federal sentence will run concurrently with the state prison sentences. Wayne Basden represented Sigmon.

Community loser in many ways

The draft environmental impact statement on Webb Air Force Base makes a number of references to impact which I should deal with in greater length.

However, space and time do not allow me to comment fully. I think many additional points will be written about and testified to as the public hearing in Big Spring approaches.

THERE ARE A number of Air Force projected impacts that the proposed closure of Webb would have on the community which I think should be called to the attention of our readers.

Among them are:
—The impact statement says there will be 886 homes for sale at closure, or 12 per cent of all those in Howard County. This is without detailed secondary effect consideration or that of the base homes.
—There will be 1,209 housing units for rent, or 25 per cent of all those in Howard County (again without adequate secondary effect consideration).

—The impact statement says, "Fire and crime related statistics confirm that there are higher fire and vandalism probabilities associated with vacant housing."
—An estimated 598 black and 439 Spanish-American military and civilian employees including their dependents would be directly affected by the closure of Webb.

—Regional banking and savings deposits of personal income could be reduced by 16.9 per cent in Howard County.

County.

—LOCAL MEDICAL services may lose as much as $472,510 in expected incomes. This also assumes the 830 military retirees in the area move, but many of them would stay, the impact statement says.

Tuesday, the economic impact at Webb will be compared to what the impact statement says about the five other bases being considered.

Hard-line Jimmy

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Before he lurch- ed into that notorious monologue on sex and Lyndon Johnson in his interview with Playboy magazine, Jimmy Carter delivered an unusually tough denunciation of detente as practiced by Henry Kissinger — a stand which raises the possibility of an unexpected course for debate No. 2.

"I feel the policy of detente has given up too much to the Russians and gotten too little in return," Carter said in the interview that will appear in November's Playboy. When the interviewer (extreme left journalist Robert Scheer) demanded an example, Carter replied: "I never saw any reason we should be involved in the Helsinki meetings at all. We added the stature of our presence and signature to an agreement that, in effect, ratified the takeover of Eastern Europe by the Soviet Union."

SUCH RHETORIC, in the style of Scoop Jackson rather than George McGovern, delights moderate Democrats discomfited by Carter's leftward drift. Worried about Carter's bumbling decline since Labor Day, old guard Democrats have feared the foreign policy debate in San Francisco Oct. 6 will prove his undoing if President Ford preempts the hard line.

Accordingly, several attempts have been made to penetrate Carter's hideaway in Plains, Ga., with this advice: wrap Secretary of State Kissinger around the President's neck and follow John F. Kennedy's example 16 years ago in preempting the anti-Communist position. While delighted by the Playboy quotes, moderate Democrats hope Carter will go further than detente and Helsinki and disregard his advisers by criticizing SALT (strategic arms limitation talks).

This would demolish the smug conventional wisdom at the White House regarding debate No. 2. Assuming the President can overpower an opponent who has only limited knowledge about national security, Ford operatives have looked to certain victory at San Francisco after surviving Debate No. 1 on the economy, the Democrats' home turf.

SPECIFICALLY, THE White House looks forward to a stumbling justification by Carter of his $5 to $7 billion in defense cuts no more convincing than his muddled economic arguments in Philadelphia. Soft-line advisers around Carter (including Richard Holbrooke, editor of Foreign Policy magazine, who is in charge of strategy for debate No.2) precludes any hardening of his position, in the opinion of the White House.

Amidst the Ford camp's euphoria, however, there are a few private misgivings. One senior official, who has been correct far more often than the consistently fallible palace guard, believes rhetoric is more important than statistics in any foreign policy debate. Ideology aside, he fear Mr. Ford — better at memorizing a briefing book than inspirational homilies 8 will be at a disadvantage.

Nor does the Ford team seem aware of the selective hard line taken by Carter. In his Sept. 8 speech to the B'nai B'rith convention (largely written by soft-liner Holbrooke), Carter attacked the Helsinki pact and raised the "organic" relationship between the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe called for by Dr. Kissinger's right hand man, State Department counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt. "The Republican administration," said Carter, "with the Sonnenfeldt statement, has shown a lack of sensitivity to the craving of the Eastern European people for greater independence. That is unacceptable."

"IT'S CRYING... FOR MERCY!"

Heart murmurs vary in meaning

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 25 years old. Six years ago I was told I had a heart murmur. Tests recently showed a heart murmur. What causes such a thing, and what will happen? — Miss S.S.

The normally beating heart makes a very distinctive pattern of sounds. A murmur is, as the word implies, a little extra mutter that can be heard through the doctor's stethoscope. Heart murmurs are not even noticed by the patient.

Just being told six years ago you had a murmur is not in itself significant. Murmurs can be either congenital (obvious in infancy), acquired (as from damage caused by rheumatic fever) or functional (those that occur as a result of exercise or illness). It's important to know which.

Murmurs can come and go. Many children have murmurs that represent nothing more than a temporary anemia.

Also, it is important to know whether your murmur was heard during the pumping phase of beating or in the resting phase. The former is called "systolic murmur" and the latter "diastolic murmur."

Systolic murmurs can be quite innocent, often of the functional variety. They usually do not cause any real disturbance of heart function. The diastolic (resting phase) murmurs are more significant because they may indicate weakening of a valve, and a leakage of blood at that point.

Usually murmurs are not as significant to the doctor as other symptoms — blood pressure readings, how a patient reacts to activity, whether there are episodes of fainting, etc. In your case you may be brooding over it unnecessarily. Ask your doctor for a reevaluation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am writing about a two-month-old baby whose eyes have been swollen since about two weeks after he came home from the hospital. Could he be allergic to some food? The parents keep a long-haired dog in the house and both smoke a lot.

His doctor can find nothing wrong and he says the child is too young to test. There is a lot of food allergy on one side of the family. — E.E.B.

Food allergy is usually a prime suspect when it exists in the family because these things tend to be inherited. Finding the offending food would be relatively easy at this age because the variety of foods is limited. An allergy can be suspected if the baby has sniffles or a running nose. The dog should be kept out of the house and the house should be thoroughly vacuumed and scrubbed to eliminate dander. The youngster has no defense against the smoke-filled room unless his parents are willing to kick the habit. They might avoid smoking in the child's presence to see if the condition improves.

I agree that two months is too young for any extensive allergy testing except in severe reactions.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have an itching in the ear. I don't know the technical term for it. It is not the outer part, but the entrance to the inner channel. It drives me bananas.

I wake up in the night from it and have tried vaselines, baby oil, and mineral oil. But nothing helps. Hope you have a good solution. I'm 72. — Mrs. C.C.

This sounds very much like a fungus infection of the ear canal. Otomycosis is the name for it.

The fungus flourishes in the moisture of the ear canal and the itching can be intense. The bland remedies you have tried will not subdue the infection. A smear of the moisture should be taken so that an appropriate anti-fungus ear drop can be used. This will require a visit to your doctor.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

Living with canal

William F. Buckley, Jr.

PANAMA CITY — Although the world doesn't work that way, Panamanian diplomats, lawyers, and politicians have been studying the treaty of 1903, ceding to the United States in perpetuity authority over the Canal Zone, with an X-ray machine, hoping to discover that the document is flawed, and that therefore the Canal belongs to Them not Us.

I AM reminded of the packet of information that circulates every few years absolutely documenting that the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States was not legally adopted. A cursory examination of the history of that Amendment persuades me that its adoption was defective, but a less than cursory examination of history also persuades me that deconstitutionalization of amendments and the abrogation of treaties, aren't accomplished by discovering split infinitives or ambiguous referents in the text. As well declare that all the laws passed by the Kennedy Administration are null and void because recent research reveals that it was actually Nixon who won the election. As recently as a few weeks ago, late research on the New Hampshire returns appears to establish that Reagan, not Ford, won the primary. If that had been announced back in February, there is no doubt that Reagan would be the Republican standard bearer. But it wasn't. And all the lawyers in Christendom, practicing industriously the eristic arts, aren't going to persuade a lot of people that the United States did not in fact acquire the Panama Zone in 1903.

They have got themselves here in Panama a very moving twenty-minute documentary called: "The Panama Treaty Which Was Not Signed By A Single Panamanian." It turns out that the relevant signature on the treaty, that of Mr. Varilla, was that of a Frenchman, not a Panamanian. The fact of the matter is that the laborious construction of the Panama Canal proceeded in the full sight of the Panamanian people and diverse Panamanian governments, that the settled opinion of the international community accepted United States sovereignty in the matter; and the ethnicity of Mr. Varilla becomes a matter of interest only to historians, not to title-searchers.

THE GIFTED Panamanian team of negotiators will then point out to you that as early as in August of 1904, the government of Panama sent up a protest to the Secretary of State. What happened was that when the Americans launched the great enterprise, they took over the two ends of the Canal Zone, including the deep water ports where, and eliminated the protective tariff. This had the effect of permitting an influx of goods and commodities which competed with Panamanian production.

The Panamanian government protested that this was a misuse of the powers taken by the United States under the treaty: that the treaty specified only that the United States should exercise such authority as was necessary in order to construct (and thereafter maintain, and defend) the Canal. Well, the Secretary of State wrote back and said, in effect, cool it, we're running the show in the Canal Zone and if we want to let in sugar to feed to our workers at five cents per pound, we're going to bring in sugar at five cents per pound, and you people go ahead and protect your ten cents sugar as you like.

SUBSEQUENT GOVERNMENTS reproached the United States on extensions of the same principle. Although the treaty declares that the United States has the right to defend the Canal, in fact the Americans set up fortifications in time of peace. Question: if you intend to defend the Canal in time of war, don't you have to take measures to effect that defense in time of peace? Even the Maginot Line was constructed during peace time, since it would have been difficult to contrive after the war started, never mind that it wouldn't have done much good.

During the Second World War, the United States did desire fortifications in the Canal area that concededly went beyond the requirements of the Canal's defense. These were negotiated, and it was agreed not only that rental payments should be paid to Panama, but that the installations should be vacated one year after the end of the war; and they were.

Sick, man, sick

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

This is going to be short and sweet. Not because I take pity on you the reader, but because I am sick as a dog and don't know if my fingers can last too long, flu-infected as they are.

So as I sit here on a bleak Saturday night, in a darkened Herald building, waiting for the last three SWC games to come over the wire so I can take my sickened body home to bed, this rim may not make much sense to me because my mind has gone, (as many people have long suspected), but because out of the five senses God gave me, only one is left.

MY NOSE FELL off two hours ago. It ballooned up like a big ripe tomato, knocked over two copy baskets in the process, and then just fell off.

The hearing went long before that. Somehow the nose and ears are connected by some sort of emergency flu-passage, which only mutually clogs up in times of sickness. I don't know the technical term, but I'm sure it has something to do with not getting enough potatoes in my diet.

And taste? That was gone a couple of days ago. Everything I eat "tastes" like hardened rubber cement. Touch? Ha! The fever is so high all the treads have melted off my fingerprints.

ALL THAT'S LEFT is my sight, and that blurs from time to time and the keys to my typewriter get all blurry sm! epnn; ru, you know?

I just can't believe there is anything to top this type of flu. But it's just plain of vanilla flu. But it's reputation, probably none of the senses will be safe.

AND NOW BEFORE I faint, I would like to give this bit of advice to anyone who is suffering with the flu:

Get plenty of rest, drink a lot of liquids, gobble up a great quantity of vitamin C (wife's tale or no, it's good for your attitude), take antibiotics, and most important of all — prepare your mind and body for three or four days of sheer misery, because none of those other things help at all.

Next time: "The Amazing Recovery" (I hope).

Son gets his, too

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — President Ford isn't the only member of the family who has accepted small favors from the special interests. During his congressional years, Ford accepted golfing vacations from U.S. Steel and personalized guide books from the Carpenters Union. The giant Thiokol chemical firm also flew his son Jack between Vail, Colo. and Logan, Utah, where Jack was attending Utah State University.

THIOKOL A MAJOR government contractor, put its luxury plane at the disposal of corporate executive James Brown, who is a friend of the Ford family. Like the Fords, Brown also vacations at Vail and had a son attending school in Utah.

The White House told us that the plane was making the flights anyway and that young Ford was invited along on only two occasions. His father was the House Republican leader at the time.

Last month, we reported that Ford had golfed at U.S. Steel's Pine Valley, N.J., resort. His expenses for these golfing weekends, we reported, were paid by the company.

This has now been admitted by the White House, after a preliminary press report was put out that corporate executive William Whyte paid the bills out of his personal pocket. The White House has also acknowledged that Ford was the golfing guest of Bethlehem Steel, Aluminum Company of America and Firestone Tire and Rubber.

Now we have learned that the Carpenters Union gave Ford 200 handsome, personalized guides to Congress each year during his last years on Capitol Hill. These sold at $4 each, although the union was able to buy them wholesale for $1.35 apiece.

The annual gift, therefore, added up to hundreds of dollars. The guide book, titled "Know Your Congress," usually carries a simple cover. But the Carpenters Union arranged with the publisher, Dr. Diosadado Yap, to print Ford's picture on the cover.

SIMILAR PERSONALIZED copies of the guide, it should be noted, were also distributed by the union to Speaker Carl Albert, Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., House Clerk Edmund Henshaw and Sergeant-at-Arms Ken Harding.

We have also learned that Ford was ferried around in a $600,000 Lear Jet, owned by Potlatch Forest, Inc., when he was House Republican leader. He was flown from a political speech in Spokane, Wash. to Salt Lake City for another political appearance. The flight occurred while the timber lobby was fighting some big battles in the House. Ford has said he was unaware who owned the jet. The man who provided it, Potlatch president Benton Cancell, attended the University of Michigan about the same time as Ford.

The House code carries penalties ranging up to expulsion for members who "accept (a) gift of substantial value, directly or indirectly, from any person, organization or corporation having a direct interest in legislation before the Congress."

The President has said that he didn't consider the golfing outings to be substantial. The White House hasn't yet told us whether the guide books, worth hundreds of dollars, would be a substantial gift.

Footnote: We were unable to get responses from Thiokol about any other trips in the company plane by members of the Ford family. Indeed, the secretary to Thiokol's president slammed the phone in our face when we tried to inquire.

SPY BASES: Fifteen months ago, an angry Turkish government evicted U.S. intelligence forces from over 20 bases, which were producing some of the most valuable intelligence in the history of espionage. The loss was regarded by U.S. officials as catastrophic.

Now the United States has quietly recovered "most" of the intelligence capability lost when the bases were closed, according to sources familiar with the supersecret intelligence operations.

"As long as the Turks merely threatened to close the bases," a senior Pentagon official told us, "they had a viable weapon. By actually closing them down, they forced a nation with great resources to find some alternatives."

ACTUALLY, OUR SOURCES say the bases can never be totally replaced. From Turkey, U.S. intelligence installations could monitor Russian missile tests and military maneuvers. The sophisticated equipment could even pick up a pilot in the heart of Russia requesting landing instructions from the control tower.

A listening post at Sinop on the Black Sea was particularly important, because it contained radar devices that could zoom directly on Soviet missile launch sites.

American technology and ingenuity, however, have produced some substitutes. This has been accomplished, according to inside sources, by adjustments at electronic listening posts in West Germany, Iran and on the Greek island of Crete. At least one observation satellite has also been launched.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I need help to live as a Christian. I seem bound by certain sins I just can't break. I try so hard, but just fall back into the same old sins again. — R.J.

DEAR R.J.: First, let me commend you for calling sin by its biblical name. Many people try to excuse themselves by calling sin a bad habit or weakness or flaw due to their human nature. Jesus commanded us to forsake our sins and follow Him. He never said that it would be easy for us to say no to the world's charms.

Paul wrote in detail of his own struggle: "I know that nothing good lives in me, that is, in my sinful nature. For I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out. For what I do not the good I want to do; no, the evil I do not want to do — this I keep on doing" (Romans 7:18, 19, New Intl. Version). I believe that every follower of Jesus Christ has to face a constant pull between his old sinful nature and the new nature of redemption. There is an old story of an Indian who said that he had two dogs living within his heart — an evil dog and a good dog — and they were constantly fighting. When asked which was the winner, he said that the one he fed always won! As Christians, we are to "feed" our new nature. "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true... honest... just... pure... lovely... and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4:8).

And another aid is Bible study and memorization: "Thy word have I had in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee" (Psalms 119:11).

Remember that you don't have to live a holy life by yourself. You have the Holy Spirit within you and you can share the Psalmist's prayer: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit" (Psalms 51:10, 12).

KNOW YOUR FOOD

Q. I'm reading a lot about the key nutrients such as proteins, carbohydrates, fats, calcium, vitamins A and C. But how about nutrients such as thiamine? What does thiamine do for me and what are its sources?

A. Thiamine helps body cells obtain energy from food and helps keep nerves in healthy condition. It also promotes good appetite and digestion. Some important sources are lean pork, heart, kidney, liver, dry beans and peas; whole grain and enriched cereals and breads, and some nuts.

Q. What can you tell me about the function of riboflavin?

A. Riboflavin helps cells use oxygen to release energy from food and helps keep eyes healthy. It also keeps skin around mouth and nose smooth. Important sources are milk, liver, kidney, heart, lean meat, eggs, and dark leafy greens.

Q. How about the importance of niacin?

A. Niacin helps maintain health of skin, tongue, digestive tract and nervous system. It also helps body cells use oxygen to produce energy. Important sources are liver, yeast, lean meat, poultry, fish, leafy greens, peanuts and peanut butter, beans and peas, and whole grain and enriched breads and cereals.

Q. How important is iron?

A. Iron combines with a specific body protein to make hemoglobin. Hemoglobin is the red substance of blood that carries oxygen from the lungs to muscles, brain and other parts of the body. Iron also helps cells use oxygen. Some important sources of iron are liver, kidney, heart, oysters, lean meat, egg yolk, dry beans; dark-green leafy vegetables; dried fruit; whole grain and enriched breads and cereals, and molasses.

Dear Abby

Fire fighting tips well worth repeating

DEAR READERS: Today begins Fire Prevention Week. I've had so much response to the column I published last year on the same occasion that I thought I'd reprint it.

In 1974 approximately 12,000 Americans perished in nearly three million fires. And in Canada, there were nearly 900 deaths caused by approximately 79,000 fires.

A large percentage of those who died were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone "for just a few minutes."

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lightning
10. Spontaneous ignition.

The total loss due to fire in 1973 was an estimated $3,001,000,000 in the U.S.A. and $254 million in Canada.

Now for some tips that could save your life:

—Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. And never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

—Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. And replace a cord if it is frayed.

—Never leave small children alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

—Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

—Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

—Never use flammable liquids for dry-cleaning indoors.

—Never smoke in bed.

—Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 per cent of all fires on which they are sprayed, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher and keep it handy in your kitchen, or be a sport and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

More recently, some excellent fire-detection systems have become available to homeowners. Ask your local fire marshal about them.

NOW, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window. But first alert the rest of the household.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure—not even the family pet—is worth risking a human life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so. God bless. Have a good day!

ABBY

No reaction from Robb

HOUSTON (AH) — Lynda Bird Robb refuses to answer questions about her reaction to Jimmy Carter's interview with Playboy magazine.

But the daughter of the late President Lyndon Johnson says she will vote for Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee.

"I plan to support the Democratic ticket," she said. "I always have."

Mrs. Robb turned aside questions from newsmen about the Playboy interview Tuesday while she was in Houston to attend a desegregation workshop.

The magazine quoted Carter as saying "I don't think I would ever take on the same frame of mind that Nixon or Johnson did—lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

Carter later apologized to Lady Bird Johnson, the president's widow, saying his remarks had been misinterpreted.

Mrs. Robb said she hopes her father will be remembered as "someone who cared about people."

"He made some mistakes, but his heart was in the right place," she said.

She said some mistakes had been made in some of Johnson's "Great Society" social welfare programs.

"Time was a problem," she said. "There were some errors, but the programs might not have gotten through Congress."

About the Vietnam War, she said, "I support my father and what he believed."

"The war was a very critical time for the United States and it will take some time to judge it," she said.

Mrs. Robb said she has not been active in politics since 1964.

"I had 20 years of politics and there are other things I'm interested in now," she said. "At this time I'm not planning on running for office. I'm not going to say that I never will because 'never' is a very dangerous word. It's like a woman who gave away her maternity clothes only to find out later she was pregnant."

Mrs. Robb said her husband, Charles, has been rumored to be interested in running for lieutenant governor of Virginia.

"I'm not encouraging him to go into politics but I'm not laying down any rules against it," she said.

The Robbs reside in McLean, Va.

Fear short-lived Cowboys still unbeaten...

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle Coach Jack Patera says any fear the Seahawks struck in the hearts of the unbeaten Dallas Cowboys in Sunday's National Football League game probably was short-lived.

"I think Dallas has been down by two touchdowns before and they didn't get excited. There is no reason why they should be trembling," Patera said following the Cowboys' 28-13 comeback victory over the winless Seahawks before an upset-hungry crowd of 62,027 in the Kingdome.

"Dallas knew they had the capability to play well, and they probably didn't feel they had to make as much effort as usual," said Patera. Dallas, 4-0 found itself behind 13-0 early in the second period before settling down under the direction of quarterback Roger Staubach.

Staubach, the National Football Conference's leading passer, threw eight yards to Drew Pearson and 25 yards to Charles Young for second period touchdowns that put Dallas ahead to stay, 14-3.

Robert Newhouse, who carried 19 times for 120 yards, scored on a 24-yard run that gave the Cowboys a 21-13 lead and Doug Dennison's one-yard run capped the scoring.

"Any time you get on the field with the pros you can expect a good game," said Staubach, who completed 14 of 20 passes for 200 yards and had one interception—only his second in 98 attempts this season. "If we had to throw the ball we felt we could do some good things. Seattle didn't put a lot of pressure on me."

Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn, the last player cut by Dallas in 1975, passed nine yards to Don Testerman in the first period, and four yards to Steve Largent in the second quarter for the lead that had the partisan crowd roaring. It was the first time the expansion Seahawks had led in a regular season game.

"We weren't happy with our play in the first half," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who picked up his 130th victory to tie Weeb Ewbank as the sixth winningest coach in the NFL. "We played better defense in the second half and made an adjustment in our pass defense," Landry continued. "We came off an emotional game with Baltimore last week and motivation is always a problem."

"This was a typical game for us in that we played well in spots. This time we played well early," said Patera, now 0-4 in his first season as a head coach.

"We tackled the same as we have been—not very good," he added. "I think we have the nucleus of a pretty good team. Offensively we moved the ball and gained some yards on the ground, but the game is four quarters long."

ON THE WAY TO SCORE — Dallas' Robert Newhouse 44, breaks through the line on the way to a score Sunday in their NFL game against the Seattle Seahawks, Dallas' Ralph Neely, on ground, knocked Bob Lurtsema, 70, out of the play. Dallas won the game 28-13.

Disappointing season ends But it's over for Rangers...

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—The end of the final game of the long baseball season usually is marked by players packing and saying good-bye for the winter, but Texas Ranger pitcher Len Barker stayed around to savor his first major league victory.

"What I want to be is one of the five starters next year," said the giant righthander after shutting out the Chicago White Sox 3-0 on three hits Sunday. "I'm going down to Florida next spring and do the best I can. I think what I did today proved I can pitch up here."

The 6-4, 225-pound fireballer walked only two and struck out six and never allowed more than one baserunner in any inning. Only one Chicago runner got past first base.

"This is the first afternoon game I've pitched in a long time," said Barker. "I got a good night's sleep last night and I felt strong all day today."

Texas gave Barker all the support he needed with solo homer by Roy Howell in the fourth and run-scoring hits by Jim Sundberg and Dave Moates in the seventh.

California Angels ace Nolan Ryan shut out Oakland Sunday 1-0 to pull the Angels into a fourth-place tie with the Rangers, each of the teams finishing with 76-86 records.

Despite three victories in a row and eight triumphs in the last 10 games, the season was a disappointment for Texas and Manager Frank Lucchesi. The Rangers were in contention during the first half of the season before going into a bad tailspin.

Lucchesi, looking at a sign that reads "Think! Hustle! Win!" on his dressing room wall, said, "I've had that sign for 19 years—even when I was managing the Class D league. I'm going to change it next season to say 'Win! Hustle! Think!'"

Chicago Manager Paul Richards, who returned to the field for the first time in over a decade this season at the request of White Sox owner Bill Veeck, said he will meet with Veeck next week to discuss his future.

"I'll tell him how I feel and he'll tell me how he feels and we'll see if we can work something out to the best interest of the team," Richards said. "What I say will depend on what Mr. Veech says."

Richards lives in Waxahachie, Tex., only about 30 miles from Arlington, and he was looking forward to a long winter of golf.

"I ought to be home in about an hour," he said.

May have acted hastily And for Muhammad Ali?

CHICAGO (AP)—Muhammad Ali's spiritual leader has questioned the heavyweight boxing champion's retirement plans and says Ali may have acted hastily.

"I'm wondering if Muhammad Ali is really retiring or if he is just making another empty statement," Wallace D. Muhammad, chief minister of the Nation of Islam religious faith, told reporters and followers Sunday.

The religious leader appeared at a South Side Muslim mosque where a spokesman said Ali would also speak. But the champion failed to make an appearance.

"Obviously he had rushed into something before considering many other things," said Wallace Muhammad, who was with the 34-year-old boxer when he announced his retirement Friday in Istanbul, Turkey.

All manager Herbert Muhammad was also at the mosque, but escaped reporters following the chief minister's sermon.

"When I came back to Chicago, I was told that Muhammad Ali had used up his purse from the Norton fight before he even got it, and that he always began spending the moment a contract is signed," Wallace Muhammad said.

Muslim officials insisted they had expected Ali to appear, and Wallace Muhammad told his audience at several points the world champion boxer was late but still coming.

He described Ali as an average donor to the faith, not a financial fairy godfather.

"The Nation of Islam has never pressured Muhammad Ali to give it one dime," the spiritual leader said. "In comparison with the amount of money he has, he is a below average donor in the Nation of Islam — far below average."

The chief minister said he and Ali got on a telephone call while still in Turkey saying that the boxer's financial advisers were shocked by the announcement and asking him to make no more statements until returning to Chicago.

"Because they had gone over his bills and the announcement brought shock to many people — business people, bankers, others, and they asked him to keep quiet until he returns to the states," he continued.

In Turkey, where many of the world's estimated 500 million Moslems live, Ali had said, "I have defeated everyone in the world in my time. I have a record I challenge any boxer after myself to match, and I have decided... I should retire."

Twice before, Ali has said he would hang up his gloves. The first time was in January, 1970 and the second last year, when he said he would quit after his bout with Joe Bugner.

'Rinky-dink officiating' Oilers in brawl

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—New Orleans Saints Coach Hank Stram said he would ask the National Football League to investigate incidents that led to a free-for-all in a 31-26 Houston Oilers victory over his Saints Sunday.

The Saints' owner, John Mecom, said the brawl originated from "unprofessional, rinky-dink officiating" and dared NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to fine him. "If he does, I'll go to court," Mecom declared.

Saints receiver Tinker Owens wound up with scratched eyeballs from what Houston defensive back Zeke Moore called a "shove" and Stram called a "cheap shot."

"I'm calling the league office Monday and asking for an investigation," Stram said.

The flareup ended with Owens injured, Moore ejected from the game on Houston's side, quarterback Archie Manning and tight end Paul Seal banished from the Saints' bench, one fan arrested for kicking Moore in the rear as he left the field, and a free-lance photographer claiming he was knocked to the ground and injured by Houston players after the game.

"The officials came close to losing control," Stram said. "There will be repercussions, particularly with so many people involved."

Mecom said that the officials "were not doing their job and the game got out of hand. You can quote me, I dare Rozelle to fine me," Mecom added.

"It was a heated game, and it only took the littlest thing to tick it off," said Houston linebacker Ted Washington, whose midfield wrestling match with Saints running back Tony Galbreath opened the free-for-all.

Washington said Galbreath began swinging elbows at him, "and I put him down hard."

Moore and Owens were involved in a separate incident at the same time. Both squads spilled onto the field and many of the players from both benches were fighting before the brawl ended.

The free-for-all occurred after Houston had virtually iced the game with a 21-point explosion led by defensive back C.L. Whittington.

With the Oilers leading 10-9, Billy Johnson set up his own touchdown with a 46-yard punt return, then scored on a nine-yard pass from Dan Pastorini.

Whittington intercepted a Bobby Scott pass on the Saints' next play from scrimmage, and Ronnie Coleman scored his second touchdown of the afternoon on a 22-yard run four plays later.

Aaron gets standing ovation

Tempers fly in AL batting race

The hit separating George Brett and Hal McRae in the final American League batting race didn't make much of a hit with either Kansas City player.

After 1,170 combined rips to the plate for Brett and McRae, the AL batting title teetered on their final at bats in the Royals' game.

Only he wasn't finished hitting. He gestured at the Twins' dugout, shouting that Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch had ordered Brett's misplay. Both McRae and Mauch then had to be restrained.

McRae, who is black, indicated that he thought racial motivations were behind the play, but he refused to elaborate. Brett and Brye are both white.

"This is America," McRae said. "Not that much has changed."

After the game, won by Minnesota 5-3, Mauch was visibly upset by McRae's run.

Brett agreed with McRae, saying: "I thought he let it drop."

McRae, following Brett in the Royals' batting order, needed a hit to win the batting title. He grounded out, and finished with a .3321 average.

Brye said he misplayed the ball.

"I just messed up," he said. "I played the ball too cautiously. I didn't want it to get by me. If I had gone for a shoestring catch and missed, the same thing would have happened."

The rest of the AL ended the 1976 regular season with the fireworks. Hank Aaron quietly ended one of the best careers in baseball history with a sixth-inning single in his final major league at bat, but his Milwaukee Brewers lost to Detroit 5-2.

After 23 years, Aaron's line reads: 755 home runs, 3,771 hits and 2,297 runs batted in. But he gave more to baseball than cold statistics. He provided the sport with dignity and class.

Angels 1, A's 0

Seven players made, probably, their final appearances in Oakland uniforms as the A's were beaten by Nolan Ryan's two-hit, 14-strikeout performance.

Joe Rudi, Sal Bando, Gene Tenace, Don Baylor, Bert Campaneris, Rollie Fingers and Willie McCovey are free agents today, free to leave the kingdom of owner Charles O. Finley.

"Finley is the reason this club is splitting up," said Tenace. "He didn't show any interest in signing the guys, just some weak offers. But the guys played hard and came close to (winning). He doesn't realize the type of guys he has."

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2

The 1976 season was disappointing for both Boston and Baltimore but the teams extended their seasons with a 15-inning finale, won by Rick Burleson's two-out single.

The victory lifted the Red Sox, last year's AL champions, into third place in the AL East, one-half game ahead of Cleveland. The Orioles, who never seriously challenged the Yankees, finished second.

accusations.

"I told Steve Brye before the game to play Brett behind the shortstop," said Mauch. "He was just too far back."

"I trust Steve Brye implicitly. If I didn't, I'd do all I could to have him thrown out of baseball."

Brye said he misplayed the ball.

"I just messed up," he said. "I played the ball too cautiously. I didn't want it to get by me. If I had gone for a shoestring catch and missed, the same thing would have happened."

Kansas City Saturday, did not play Sunday, their scheduled doubleheader with Cleveland knocked out by rain.

Tigers 5, Brewers 2

Hank Aaron, baseball's most prolific home run hitter, stroked a single in his final at bat. "I wasn't thinking anything in particular," he said. "I was thinking about what I thought the first time I came up. I just wanted to get a hit."

Aaron was replaced by a pinch runner, and the 6,858 paid tribute to a certain future Hall of Famer with a standing ovation.

"It's a sad occasion for me," said Aaron. "But I think about retirement and I could think about some of the bright spots in my career. I'm just glad it's over."

After 23 years, Aaron's line reads: 755 home runs, 3,771 hits and 2,297 runs batted in. But he gave more to baseball than cold statistics. He provided the sport with dignity and class.

Angels 1, A's 0

Seven players made, probably, their final appearances in Oakland uniforms as the A's were beaten by Nolan Ryan's two-hit, 14-strikeout performance.

Joe Rudi, Sal Bando, Gene Tenace, Don Baylor, Bert Campaneris, Rollie Fingers and Willie McCovey are free agents today, free to leave the kingdom of owner Charles O. Finley.

"Finley is the reason this club is splitting up," said Tenace. "He didn't show any interest in signing the guys, just some weak offers. But the guys played hard and came close to (winning). He doesn't realize the type of guys he has."

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2

The 1976 season was disappointing for both Boston and Baltimore but the teams extended their seasons with a 15-inning finale, won by Rick Burleson's two-out single.

The victory lifted the Red Sox, last year's AL champions, into third place in the AL East, one-half game ahead of Cleveland. The Orioles, who never seriously challenged the Yankees, finished second.

OOPS! JUST MISSED — Steer flanker (80) Del Poss just barely lets a pass slip through his fingertips during Friday's game against Abilene. The game also slipped through the Steers' fingers when the Eagles came from behind in the fourth quarter to win 43-22.

HOME RUN KING TAKES FINAL SWING — All-time major league home run king Hank Aaron takes a swing Sunday in his final game as a player. Aaron, who has announced his retirement, ended up with 755 home runs in 23 years. He had his 3,771st hit in the game, and drove in his 2,297th run.

Robinson still QB Club plans weekend events

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Robinson, major league baseball's first black manager when hired by the Cleveland Indians two years ago, was signed today for a third season, General Manager Phil Seghi announced.

But this time he wasn't being called upon to play as he was in his first two seasons with the club.

Seghi said he and Robinson "discussed the team in general and its overall improvement" in a morning meeting finalizing the contract.

Details of the pact weren't announced.

Reports circulating earlier indicated the agreement provided an annual salary of $80,000 plus a bonus.

One of the year's most important meetings of the Big Spring Quarterback Club will take place 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the high school cafeteria.

Fans are urged to turn out to hear a scouting report on the Midland Bulldogs who will meet the Steers in this Friday's Homecoming game. Previews of a variety of special activities for the weekend will also be given.

Also, an exciting game film of Friday's hard-fought battle between the Steers and the Abilene Eagles will be shown. As an added attraction, QBers will present a game film of the freshman team in action against Lamesa. The frosh took Lamesa 34-7 in Thursday's game.

QB Club plans weekend events

In other Steer news, Coach Robbins reports that senior linebacker Jesse Doss is in good condition following a knee operation in Midland this morning. Doss was injured in Friday's game, and will be out for the rest of the season.

Will real Texas please stand up?

By the Associated Press

Did the real Arkansas and Texas stand up Saturday? Texas finds out this week. Arkansas gets another week off to think about it.

Texas ripped Rice 42-15 and Arkansas mauled Texas Christian 46-14 in two Southwest Conference football runaways that resembled track meets from the Longhorn and Razorback viewpoints, respectively.

Of course, Texas had an Olympian, Johnny (Lam) Jones during its running. Jones zipped 45 and 13 yards for touchdowns and the world's sixth fastest human, notched 182 yards on 15 carries for the night.

"We don't have the speed to match that," said Rice Coach Homer Rice. "We might put three of ours together in a relay and match it."

Texas will need every weapon in its arsenal Saturday in the Cotton Bowl when mean ole Oklahoma, seeking its third consecutive national time comes callin'. Texas hasn't beaten Oklahoma in five years.

Arkansas is idle this week but Razorback Coach Frank Broyles, who got so disgusted he left the dressing room earlier this year without talking about his club, said "We looked like a complete team out there. We didn't turn the ball over but once."

TCU only had three yards offense before Broyles called off his first team defense.

Here's how the SWC race stands: Houston is 2-0 and Arkansas, Texas and SMU are 1-0.

Poor TCU is 0-4 and has yielded 175 points in the four losses.

"I told our team to hang in there," said TCU Coach Jim Sofner. "There will come a day when they won't make mistakes and things will go their way."

It was TCU's 18th consecutive loss to Arkansas.

In other games involving SWC teams Saturday, Baylor unleashed an 18-point fourth quarter explosion to clip South Carolina 18-17, Southern Methodist fell to Memphis State 27-13 and the Texas Aggie defense clamped Illinois 14-7.

The SWC is a fat 13-8 against outside competition.

In Baylor's comeback victory over South Carolina, heavily booed Bear quarterback Mark Jackson rallied his team to victory after all appeared lost.

Jackson completed a touchdown pass, ran over a two point conversion, setup a field goal, and directed the team on the game-winning drive with 76 seconds left.

About the boos, Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said, "The ones that booed can lineup single file at the back of the stands and jump off. The fans who booed are not championship fans. They are quitter fans just like there are some quitter players. I'll tell you Mark Jackson never quit."

In other games this week, SMU is at Baylor, Rice is at TCU, Texas Tech is at Texas A&M and Houston hosts West Texas in non conference action.

Victory for East-West detente? Schmidt survives surge

ARRAIGNED — This is a 1974 file photo of Socialist leader, George Fernandes. Fernandes, a prominent trade unionist considered the leader of the Indian underground, and 21 other persons were arraigned Monday on charges of conspiring to overthrow Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government.

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has barely survived a conservative surge in national elections that cut his socialist-liberal government's ruling margin in parliament from 46 seats to eight. But the Soviet press hailed it as a victory for East-West detente.

The conservative Christian Democrats are now the strongest party in parliament and their leaders met today to consider possible new overtures to Schmidt's liberal Free Democrat allies for a conservative-liberal majority coalition.

But the Free Democrats have renewed their pledge to stand by Schmidt's Social Democrats and maintain the majority.

Final returns in Sunday's election, with 91 per cent of those registered voting, gave the Social Democrats and Free Democrats a combined total of 50.5 per cent, a drop from the 54.2 per cent they won in the 1972 election.

Christian Democrat challenger Helmut Kohl, who campaigned on the slogan "Freedom Instead of Socialism," led his party to a popular vote of 48.6 per cent — up from 44.9 per cent in 1972. It was their best showing since West Germany's first chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, won an absolute majority in 1957.

The official Soviet news agency Tass interpreted Schmidt's narrow victory as a victory for East-West detente, saying West German voters gave their leaders "a mandate" to carry on the policy of rapprochement with the socialist bloc.

In his two years as chancellor, Schmidt has stepped up West German efforts to improve relations with East Germany and the rest of the Soviet bloc.

The Social Democrats, who won 230 of the 496 seats in the Bundestag in the 1972 election, dropped to 213 on Sunday, and the Free Democrats lost two of their 41 seats.

The Christian Democrats, with their Bavarian wing, the Christian Socialists, rose from 225 to 244 — only eight behind the coalition's new 252-seat total.

The 57-year-old Schmidt said in a television broadcast that President Ford telephoned to congratulate him well before the final results were announced. Ford "expressed the opinion that we deserved it," he said.

ELECTIONS OVER — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt looks down after making a statement Sunday claiming victory in West Germany's parliamentary election, despite sizeable losses to conservatives led by challenger Helmut Kohl.

Ford to sign new tax bill today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every American taxpayer and corporation will be affected by a tax bill being signed by President Ford.

The President arranged a White House ceremony today to put his signature on the measure, which continues present individual and business tax cuts through 1977 and makes hundreds of changes in the tax laws. The individual cuts total more than $18 billion.

The Ford administration has expressed fears that Middle East peace efforts could be harmed by a section denying certain tax breaks to U.S. companies that participate in international boycotts such as the Arab action against Israel.

The bill, more than 1,000 pages long, was two years in the making and is acknowledged to be the most important tax legislation since 1969.

A major section extends for 18 months the package of antirecession tax cuts enacted last year. Without the extension, a typical family of four earning $6,000 a year would have faced a tax hike of $445 a year. For a family of four earning $15,000, taxes would have risen $180 a year. A single person earning $8,000 would have paid $182 more, and a couple earning $10,000 would have faced a $204 tax increase.

Under the law, taxes of wealthy individuals will rise, largely because of an increase in the minimum income tax and new restrictions on the use of "tax shelters."

But taxes of airlines, railroads, shipping, insurance and some other companies, including those with high pollution control costs, will be reduced by other provisions.

The bill liberalizes the existing system of tax writeoffs for child care costs, while restricting deductions for such things as vacation homes and the business use of a home.

It almost eliminates the present partial exemption from taxation of sick pay, limiting such exclusions to disabled persons in the lower-and middle-income ranges.

Parents who have to hire a babysitter so they can hold their jobs can have their tax bills cut by as much as $800 a year.

Many housewives can qualify for the first time for tax-deferred pension plans.

The complex retirement-income credit will be replaced by a more generous, simpler credit that allows elderly persons to cut their taxes up to $375 a year.

The law also cuts and restructures the federal estate and gift taxes. It reduces from the present 5 per cent to about 2 per cent the number of estates each year that pay any estate tax at all.

Top winners are listed

Winners in the prize drawing at the Bob Brock Ford Showroom were announced 5 p.m. Saturday. The dealership was displaying new cars for the 1977 line.

E. M. Newton, Route 2, took first prize, receiving a deer rifle.

Second prize, an eight-piece cutlery set, went to Sandra Hodnett, 1012 Howell.

Taking third was Mrs. Loy Anderson, 1308 Tucson, with a four-piece cutlery set.

Winning an electronic calculator was fourth place finisher, Murlene Williams, Ackerly. Also receiving a calculator were fifth and sixth place winners James M. Temple, 133B Dow and Samuel R. Munoz, 901 N.W. 3rd.

INSPECTING THE TROOPS — Gen. Bernard Rogers, new Army Chief of Staff, is followed by Martin Hoffmann, secretary of the Army, as he inspects the troops during ceremonies today at the Pentagon. Rogers succeeds Gen. Frederick Weyand who retired.

'Lunch with Sol'

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
DIRECTOR HOWARD COUNTY
FAMILY SERVICE CENTER

At five minutes to twelve on Friday, as usual, Sol and I met at the Criss Cross Restaurant. Jeanette, as always smiled, and said, "Your table is ready." As she preceded us, I thought again of the importance of this meeting. Sol would be preparing for the Sabbath. Like him, I would be seeking peace of mind as I looked forward to Saturday as my day of recuperation and then Sunday, with worship as my source of renewal.

Jeanette had scarcely seated us when Sol began to talk. "I'm worried about Sarah. Remember? She's my fourteen year old. She's wanting 'to go.' I think that Judith and I have been indulgent of her." In an effort to reassure him, I responded, "Sol, in 1976 we have to recognize the needs of our adolescent children. I'm sure that you and Judith are doing your best." Sol raised his eyebrows and said, "No, I don't think you are right. You need to understand the Jewish concept of the family." I encourage Sol to go on. I had the feeling that I was going to learn something valuable.

What Sol then explained to me will always be precious as I serve families and their children. He began by citing the Fourth Commandment, "Honor thy Father and Mother, that thy days may be long in the land that the Lord has given thee." Sol, in his precise, logical way then stated that you cannot expect children to honor parents unless parents are confident, believe in themselves, indeed, honor themselves. Indeed, love themselves as creatures of a loving Creator.

"I know that the Torah somehow puzzles you Christians," Sol states, "But it has wisdom. Let me cite three points that it makes about family relationships." I looked up from my salad and winked, "Tel me Sol." Sol proceeded. The Torah declares "Each person should stand in awe of his mother and father and observe my Sabbaths. I am the Lord Your God." "The Hebrew concepts," he continued, "embrace three aspects of family life." "Kavod," he explained, "connotes love between child and parent. The simple illustration of this principle is that the child helps his parent put on his coat."

"Kirah, is the second word," Sol explained. "This means awe or restraint. The child ought not to sit in the chair of his parents. He should not contradict them." "The last concept is 'Shabbat,'" Sol explained. "By this we mean, that even if parents were to instruct the child directly to breach Divine Law, the child would stand with the obligation of giving priority to the Divine Will, not the command of the parents."

Time had gone on and when Jeanette approached us, we said simply, "We must be going. We don't have time for dessert today."

On the way back to the office, contemplating my conference with the rebellious child and his parents, I thought of Sol's explanation. It really meant something. My youngster, 3-year-old Leo, who refused to use the toilet for his bowel movements was indeed sitting in the chair of his parents. I needed to help them honor themselves that Leo would honor them as his parents. Sol certainly had helped me.

Industry at the crossroads

Pressures beat bill

by Tom E. Roy

Industrial Manager, BS Ch. of Commerce

Not being in the habit of writing obituaries, this week's column may be somewhat of a problem. The obituary concerns the Nuclear Fuel Assurance Act. A piece of legislation written primarily to deal with future energy shortages and rising electric rates, the act (NFAA) met its demise Wednesday, September 29, at 8:30 p.m. in the hall's of our Nation's Senate.

energy everyday. It is evident in talking to them that we can count on several things:

1. We will run out of oil — possibly by the year 2000.
2. Solar energy will come into large scale use — around 2025.
3. We cannot close the gap with coal.
4. To avoid outrageous electricity costs — nuclear power is the only inexpensive stop-gap solution.

I suppose that all these predictions do not bother a lot of folks and won't — until the lights start blinking. But, by that time who will be around to take the blame. Surely not all those who think that electricity generated by nuclear power will make your hair fall out.

ALL I KNOW IS that we have had nuclear powered ships for years, and that the accident occurrence rate at nuclear power plants now operating are far below conventional power producing plants. NFAA would have provided a method for producing low cost energy, lessened the likelihood of nuclear proliferation, and saved Uncle Sam about 8 billion dollars (in addition to providing about 1,000 jobs in West Texas alone).

But alas, it's death is attributable basically to three causes. First, it contained the word "nuclear" and that distresses people like our friend Ralph Nader. Secondly, it had the audacity to assume free enterprise can be more efficient than direct government action. Thirdly, it just made too much sense. That alone befuddles a lot of "great thinkers."

So, we lay NFAA to rest and move on, gobbling up more and more energy. The field of energy is at the crossroads, and decisions made in the next five years will seriously affect future generations.

As for Big Spring, there is still hope that some type of uranium enrichment facility will be built, and you can rest assured that we will do everything we can to locate it at the Crossroads of West Texas.

TEA work sessions announced

AUSTIN — A series of 20 regional meetings designed to sharpen the focus of professional and citizen reaction to proposed revision of public school accreditation principles and standards will be held throughout the state beginning Oct. 12. For this region, the meeting will be in Midland Oct. 21.

Sponsored by the Texas Education Agency, the one-day workshops will be held at each of the state's 20 regional education service centers.

Teams of Texas Education Agency staff members will join service center representatives and other interested persons in the work sessions, according to Charles Nix, associate commissioner for planning and evaluation.

School board members, parents, students, private school and university faculty members, and public school teachers and administrators are being invited to participate in the meetings, Nix said.

The 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon work sessions will be limited to about 30 representatives of the different groups. However, afternoon discussion meetings will be open to all interested persons, Nix added.

Suggestions from the regional meetings will be incorporated into the second draft revision of the Principles and Standards for Elementary and Secondary Schools. This draft will be presented to school district executives and board members at the School Administrators Advisory Conference on Education to be held January 5-7, 1977, in
