

'No decision,' ATC repeats

By TOMMY HART
United Press International reported this morning that the Air Force has received a recommendation to close Webb AFB of Big Spring, Tex., Sept. 30 of this year and will take formal action later this month.

Upon hearing the wire service's report, Joe McAnally of the Public Relations office of the Air Training Command, San Antonio, said he felt sure UPI was feeding on the report issued originally by the Texas State Network (a radio news service) and added:

"NO DECISION has been made concerning Webb, I can assure you." When told that Joe Fowler of the Texas State Network had quoted a high source in the Pentagon that the new Secretary of the Air Force, who has yet to be named, would not be empowered to alter such a decision McAnally refuted the claim.

"The new man, whoever he might be, will be a decision maker." After analyzing the UPI's report, Mayor Wade Choate of Big Spring, issued the following statement:

"THE REPORT that we are receiving keeps referring to the draft environmental impact statement whereby it is a public record that Webb and Craig AFB were recommended for closure.

"The question at hand is whether or not this information is in the final environmental impact statement or only a repeat of information that is already public knowledge.

"We are currently working with UPI to determine the source of this information, if it is actually part of the final environmental statement. The Air Force continues to deny the validity of the story." Webb is one of a number of bases offering pilot candidates flight training which has been put on the block for closing as the result of a decreased demand for pilots in recent years, the UPI said.

Defense officials said a draft environmental impact statement recommended the closing, according to the wire service.

FOLLOWING COMPLETION of the final statement later this month, the matter goes to the Secretary of the Air Force for a decision and is then subject to review by the Congress, with no final decision possible before mid-May.

Local civic leaders, among them Mayor Choate, theorize that the "unnamed Pentagon source" quoted by Texas State Network Joe Fowler to the effect that Webb AFB would be closed was actually using the Environmental Impact Statement prepared by the Air Force as a source of his information.

THE STATEMENT has been in the public domain for months.

In short, since the original announcement came out last March that Webb and Craig AFB, Selma, Ala., were prime candidates for closure, the Air Force's stance on the matter has not deviated. As far as local civic leaders and members of the congress can determine, nothing has been added or deleted from the EIS.

The Air Force, which hastened to deny the rumors being circulated by the Texas State Network, reiterated that no decision on the matter of closures will be forthcoming until after the final Environmental Impact Statement is made public and a new Secretary of the Air Force is named by President Carter.

A story emanating from Washington says that Carter likely will name a successor to Thomas Reed as Secretary of the Air Force within a matter of days. Reed has already resigned.

Fowler maintains he was told the decision on Webb will be made public around March 1, in which case Webb would be shuttered by July 1.

Fowler, who, in reality, is a "stringer" for TSN in Washington, refused to identify his informant within the Pentagon but taped the conversation. Fowler's informant, if his identity should be made known, could be in hot water with the generals making the decisions for the Air Force in Washington. They have been closed-mouth about the decision to cut back operations within the Air Training Command, if indeed one has been made.

A delegation of Big Spring citizens will again go to Washington to consult with Congressmen and Pentagon officials next Tuesday.

Natural gas crisis may be easing

By The Associated Press
Conservation measures appeared to be easing the drain on natural gas in the cold-plagued Midwest and East today, but there were warnings that the factory closings and layoffs designed to save the fuel could last until April.

The Senate approved a compromise version of the emergency natural gas bill today and House passage was hoped for before President Carter's televized appearance tonight.

The bill is not designed to increase natural gas supplies, but to give the President the power to shift some gas from low-priority users — such as industry — to high-priority users such as schools, homes, hospitals and small businesses.

Over thousands of miles of American countryside, the misery of the harsh winter was evident. But there were some hopeful signs.

The first contingent of a 200-member Army Engineers battalion from North Carolina and more than two dozen pieces of snow-fighting equipment arrived in Buffalo, N.Y., to help National Guardsmen clear the city after a blizzard that so far has cost the area an estimated $60 million.

On the Chesapeake Bay and the Ohio River, fuel barges which were idled for up to two weeks were moving again. But their progress was tedious through floes of ice.

In West Virginia and Kentucky, more than 30,000 coal miners were off the job, their mines shut down because of the cold.

Thousands of schools and factories also were shut and about a dozen states had declared energy emergencies.

On Tuesday, North Carolina joined the ranks of states declaring such emergencies, and the auto industry alone announced that 80,000 workers in the United States and Canada would join some 1.5 million persons estimated to be laid off around the nation. In the auto industry, parts shortages were a factor as well as gas shortages.

The harsh weather has centered in the East, Midwest and South, but the problem was national in effect and both the federal government and some distant areas were acting to help.

Warm California, meanwhile, imposed emergency restrictions on the use of natural gas so state utilities could ship some of the fuel east. And a spokesman for the Southwest Gas

Corp. said two utilities in Nevada had agreed to convert from natural gas to oil in a shared power plant, allowing their natural gas to be diverted also.

But the outlook for immediate relief was not good.

Even if President Carter immediately ordered pipeline companies to begin sending fuel into the frigid East, gas moves only about 15 miles per hour and could take several days to pass through the interstate pipeline network to Ohio and other states.

And Federal Power Commission spokesman William Webb said today that factories forced to close by the natural gas shortage may have serious difficulty finding enough fuel to reopen before April.

Today's forecast promised little relief for the hardest-hit areas: Continued cold in the East, with snow flurries near the Great Lakes.

MORE WINTER WEATHER — Punxsutawney, Phil, the weather-forecasting groundhog who is wrapped in a towel, is held by James Mean, member of the inner circle of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, after he saw his shadow early Wednesday morning, which means six more weeks of winter. Charles Erhard, Jr., left, president of the Groundhog Club, looks on.

According to groundhog, spring still far away

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Jimmy the Greek said the odds were good that Phil, the groundhog, would see his shadow today and forecast an additional six weeks of winter.

"I'm going to lay 2-1 odds that he'll see his shadow," the other well-known prognosticator said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Las Vegas, Nev., where the temperature was 55 degrees.

Phil makes his annual prediction at sunrise today, 7:27 a.m. EST, when Charles M. Erhard, new president of Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, knocks on Phil's burrow door atop Gobbler's Knob with a wood cane.

"That's a pretty educated guess, too," said Jimmy, "because I've been traveling a lot and I know how bad the weather's been back East.

"It's almost certain that the weather will stay cold in the same regions where it's been cold."

Phil's predictions are always right. That is, you can always find some place, at some time, where they fit.

If Phil sees his shadow as he has every year except two since 1887, legend has it there will be six more weeks of winter. If he doesn't, spring is just around the corner.

"I hope it's a gloomy day," said Erhard's wife, Nancy. "I'm ready for spring."

The last time Phil predicted an early spring was in 1975, and according to the National Weather Service, "the nation ended February with well-above-normal temperatures in most areas."

Erhard became president of the club this year after a long reign by retired President Sam Light.

Though Phil is a well-known forecaster, there are skeptics who contend that he is stuffed, that he is carried to the knob about an hour before the crowd arrives on Groundhog Day, that his real home is a comfortable $10,000 museum in this western Pennsylvania town.

Actually, there is a stuffed version of Phil, and there is a museum, but a live groundhog somehow does make it to the burrow on the knob at the same time each year.

But no one seems to care what is fact and what is fantasy.

"The hoopla is good for the town, good for our spirit," said one local observer. "What does it matter whether it's fact or fiction?"

Feds offer to replace traffic lights here

The Federal Government has offered to replace a number of traffic signal lights in the city.

City Manager Harry Nagel has received a letter of intent from the State Highway Department to use an estimated $210,000 in federal funds to replace all the traffic signals on Third and Fourth Streets between Bell and State Streets.

"This proposal will come before the city council on Tuesday, and I can't see any reason why they wouldn't approve it. Under the 1977 Urban Systems Program the federal government would provide 100 per cent funding for the project," said Nagel.

The council will be required to adopt a minute order to maintain the signals according to federal standards. Specifications and plans would be prepared and the project would then be bid out to construction companies. Work is expected to begin as soon as this summer, according to Nagel.

The signals would meet federal standards which will be required by 1980. These standards include the use of dual lights for both green and red signals.

The new lights would also employ overhanging poles for support, and a single, central controller for stop and go signals.

"With a central controller we will have no problem with synchronization," said Nagel.

The Urban System Program has provided funding for a number of projects in the city. In applying for funds, the city listed five projects in order of priority.

Work on the Eleventh Place Extension, the repaving of Scurry Street, and now the repaving of signals in the city have been partially or fully funded through the program. The repaving on Lancaster Street, and the widening and repaving of Birdwell Lane have yet to be funded.

Truck crash kills two

COLORADO CITY — An 18-wheel truck-trailer went out of control and crashed three miles west of here early Tuesday morning. Two truckers were burned beyond recognition in the three-hour fire which resulted.

The westbound truck, which belonged to ICX Trucking Co., was westbound on IS 20 with a load of book matches, air conditioner compressors and miscellaneous items when it edged off into the median on the upgrade of an overpass, turned over and caught fire.

The two dead men were identified as William T. Thompson, 52 of Fort Worth and Loran Charles Hancock, 35 of Dallas. The truck destroyed about 260 feet of railing along the median and knocked down one of the concrete end posts on the overpass before plunging across the roadway below. It came to rest on the concrete embankment on the west side of the overpass.

The accident was about 60 feet from a spot where two women were fatally injured in an accident in mid-January.

Both fatal wrecks involved a single vehicle with no known cause, unless drivers either fell asleep or suffered a heart attack. Both vehicles were headed west at the time of the accident.

In the truck accident, the vehicle was so badly burned that it could not be determined if there had been a blow-out.

The Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department fought the blaze until 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. State Trooper James Granato was investigating officer at the accident.

Martin grand jury to meet after 4 years

STANTON — A grand jury has been called in Martin County for the first time in four years. The jury will meet on Feb. 10.

One of the newest cases to be considered will be the recent murder charge in the county, along with many other cases, some of which are several years old, according to Sheriff Dan Saunders.

"We're more than ready to have one and certainly need it at this time," the Martin County sheriff added. Martin, Glasscock and Howard Counties are all under the jurisdiction of 118th District Court.

Burleson votes 'no' on bill

WASHINGTON — Rep. Omar Burleson, who represents the 17th Congressional District in Texas, including Howard County, was the only Texas Democrat to vote "no" on a bill providing for emergency purchase and allocation of natural gas. The bill passed 367 to 42.

The only two Republican representatives from Texas, Rep. Bill Archer and Rep. Jim Collins, joined Burleson's "no" vote.

Rep. Olin Teague, Democrat, did not vote.

Right climate for fuel policy?

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is cold comfort at best, but this energy crisis may be the one that finally creates the political climate for government action to manage problems that won't go away.

President Carter has promised to create a permanent energy policy, calling it a crime that there isn't one now. He acknowledges that it will have to include compulsory measures that will not be popular. And he has said he is prepared to take them.

In Congress, there are companion calls for action to chart a long-term energy course. Those have been heard before, but this time they may mean something.

At this point, the natural gas shortage, Carter's bill to cope with it and disaster relief measures to ease the impact of scarcity and winter weather are atop the White House agenda. The emergency natural gas bill probably will be ready for Carter's signature by Thursday.

Then, by April 20, he has promised to send Congress a permanent, comprehensive energy policy. "The crisis may be over in a few days or a couple of weeks," the President said. "But the energy shortage is going to be with us. It's going to get worse instead of better." This is hardly new business. "The oil embargo of 1973-74 brought home to us the vulnerability of the United States," the General Accounting Office said in a report to Congress — just as natural gas became the new crisis. "Our memories are short, however, because we rely far more heavily on imported energy today, in 1977, than we did at the time of the embargo."

Richard Nixon had his Project Independence, and said that by 1980, the United States should not be dependent on any foreign nation for its energy needs. Gerald R. Ford sought energy independence by 1985.

But the United States has moved in the opposite direction and now imports about 42 per cent of its oil at a price that will total some $40 billion this year. The General Accounting Office estimates that by 1985 the nation could be importing 60 per cent of its oil and 10 per cent of its natural gas.

While Carter's proposal to Congress has yet to be developed, with energy adviser James R. Schlesinger as the chief draftsman, his policies were outlined during the presidential campaign.

For one thing, it is clear there will be no call for total energy independence, now or soon. Carter once called Project Independence a joke. He has said the United States is unlikely to be totally independent of oil imports in this century.

But Carter has said imports should not be permitted to increase as they have in the past. He has advocated a ceiling at or below current import levels. Since domestic oil production has been declining while demand has increased, that would have the effect of limiting consumption by limiting the supply of imported oil. It is a step that ultimately could lead to self-imposed shortages that would require rationing.

During the campaign, Carter said the government should deregulate the price of newly produced natural gas for five years. The effect would be to remove the price ceiling so as to promote new production, while restraining by regulation or through existing contracts, the price of gas already being produced. After five years, he said, the whole program would be evaluated so new action could be taken.

Carter has not said whether the package he proposes in the spring will include gas deregulation. But it will have to deal with the issue somehow.

In broad terms, Carter has advocated a shift to coal as a major energy source, with a heavy investment in the development of solar energy.

He also has said a president should have authority to impose taxes to enforce energy conservation. "If patriotic appeals and strict conservation measures prove to be inadequate to control consumption, standby excise taxes should be available to the President for selective imposition on petroleum products," he said.

FROZEN FALLS — The American Falls at Niagara Falls, N.Y., are all but frozen over as huge mounds of ice form at the base of the cataract. The picturesque scene is a striking contrast to neighboring Buffalo's blizzard's aftermath. The Buffalo area is still trying to dig itself out of an intense blizzard which struck last weekend.

Hospitals push energy saving

In response to the national gas and energy shortage, the Veterans Administration Hospital and the Big Spring State Hospital are in the process of eliminating all unnecessary seepage of our dwindling resources.

During the last two years, the VA Hospital has cut temperatures in non-patient and non-clinical offices to 68 degrees during the winter, and have raised their thermostats to 80 degrees during the summer.

According to Mrs. Dene Sheppard, Chief of Volunteer Services, all the employees of the hospital have been encouraged to observe these thermostat regulations, and to dress accordingly.

The hospital has also attempted to cut down on unnecessary lighting in hallways and offices.

George Colvin, head of the Energy Conservation Committee formed recently at the State Hospital, said that in the patient care areas of the hospital, temperatures have been recommended by the doctors, and vary accordingly.

The food service area has been kept at a temperature of 65 degrees and the administration building has Rebate quickest way?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan to put $50 in the pockets of nearly all Americans is the quickest way to boost the nation's sagging economy, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal told Congress today.

Blumenthal appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee as the tax-writing group started actual work on the tax aspects of Carter's two-year, $31.2 billion economic package.

The program is facing some attempts at change, with Republicans pressing for more permanent tax relief and stimulation to business, and some Democrats calling for a larger emphasis on tax incentives to create jobs.

Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said he would favor a tax break for businesses tied to their hiring of additional workers, rather than the choice offered by Carter. The President's plan offers a tax rebate on Social Security taxes paid by employers or an additional tax credit for buying equipment.

"The tax rebate will almost immediately put funds into the hands of consumers, increase their spending and thus encourage higher levels of overall economic activity," Blumenthal testified.

He said the rebate, which the administration hopes to have rolling as early as late March, is the only way for a quick boost in the economy.

"Public service employment or accelerated public works cannot be expanded fast enough to achieve this objective in the few remaining months of fiscal year 1977 (ending Sept. 30)," Blumenthal said.

He said the other portions of Carter's package, mainly spending for jobs, would take over in the following fiscal year and "strike heavily at unemployment, particularly among construction workers, veterans and minorities."

Blumenthal said it is still too early to predict exactly the deficit for the fiscal year that would result from enactment of Carter's program, but that it would probably be in the range of $67 billion to $69 billion, which would be up about $16 billion to $18 billion over the estimates made last fall.

"We do not expect the stimulus program to cause any significant increase in the rate of inflation," Blumenthal said.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman added his voice Tuesday to those calling for changes in the Carter program. He proposed a major change in Carter's proposal for $2.5 billion in business tax breaks.

Ullman said businesses, instead of getting a higher investment tax credit or a reduction in social security taxes, should get an "employment tax credit" for hiring new workers.

Other members have made similar proposals and Ullman said he thinks the idea would have wide support in Congress.

Ullman, however, said he is ready to push for enactment of the $11.4 billion worth of payments to in-

Stanton water rates boosted

STANTON — Water rates were increased for Stanton citizens by the city council in action Tuesday night, following an increase in rates for the water purchased by the city from Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The rates were increased $1 for minimum residential rates making the water portion of the monthly bill $6 for the first 3,000 gallons. Each additional 1,000 gallons also saw the rate boosted to an additional 90 cents per 1,000.

The council members felt like they had no choice in the increase due to the increase in cost of water for the city.

The council also called the city election for April 2. Councilmembers whose terms expire are Danny Fryar and Johnny Lowder. Fryar has already indicated that he plans to seek re-election.

The council set up workmen's compensation for city employees through the Texas

C-D to dispose of supplies

The National Department of Civil Defense has requested that Big Spring get rid of fallout shelter supplies that have been lying dormant since 1963.

"Many of these supplies have a shelter life of five to ten years, and are now obsolete," said W.D. Berry, local director of civil defense.

The order to dispose of the obsolete supplies originated in Washington, D.C. and were passed on to Berry through the State Disaster Preparedness Agency. The supplies were paid for by federal funds in 1963 at a cost of between $75,000 and $100,000, according to Berry.

Among the shelter supplies were 7,050 pounds of food, mostly biscuits and crackers. The food was deemed unfit for human consumption, but was picked

Lamesa crime rate declines

LAMESA — A 60 per cent crime decrease in Lamesa during the past year will be the subject of a talk Thursday at the Lions Club by Chief Lee Bartlett.

Chief Bartlett said that even though 1976 had four murders in Lamesa, the overall crime rate was down.

This has continued thus far into 1977 with the month of January showing a total of seven burglaries, including one residence, three commercial and three auto burglaries. Total loss has been around $200 which is really low for a month, the chief pointed out.

The department during the past year has emphasized both crime prevention and stiffer punishment in its attempt to lower the crime rate in Lamesa.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The senior member of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's cabinet, Food Minister Jagjivan Ram, resigned today and with four other leading members of the ruling Congress party formed a new party to oppose Mrs. Gandhi in March parliamentary elections. NEW YORK (AP) — The first month of the new year brought higher grocery prices and consumers were warned to expect more of the same in the future due to the cold wave. An Associated Press marketbasket survey showed prices increased during January for a wide variety of items, including pork chops, orange juice, coffee and eggs.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked them on or about the start of each succeeding month.

City manager of Cisco quits?

CISCO — City Manager James E. Swain apparently has quit a job he has held less than three months, although he hasn't yet formally notified the city council of his decision.

Lewis Burns was named acting city manager after Swain indicated he would leave the post. A successor may not be named until after the municipal elections in early April.

Swain, a native of Graham, formerly served as city manager at Breckenridge and Sweetwater.

Nixon's campaign fund lingers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is long gone from the White House, but his 1972 campaign fund lingers on. All $12 million of it.

More than four years after Nixon's re-election and 2½ years after his resignation, the successor organization to the Committee to Re-Elect the President still is in business.

Reports required by the Federal Election Commission show the 1972

Campaign Liquidation Trust, the successor to the campaign committee, still is taking in money and paying debts—slowly.

Three Washington banks paid the fund $83,000 last year in interest. Other income of $77,310 also was listed in the report to the FEC.

Some persons who contributed to the 1972 Nixon campaign have tried to get their money back, but without success. "During this reporting period the trust has not honored any such request," the report said, "and it probably will not do so at anytime in the future."

Much of the money paid out by the fund went for legal fees.

For example, former Commerce Secretary

Maurice Stans and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell were acquitted in April 1974 of charges that they intervened in a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of Robert Vesco in exchange for the promise of a campaign contribution.

The report also showed former Nixon counsel John Dean has repaid $15,200 he took from a White House safe to finance his honeymoon.

Energy — Gas hearing triggers jeers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A sometimes noisy and jeering crowd heard San Antonio officials explain Tuesday night why the city should opt for a settlement in its multi-million-dollar law suit against Coastal states Gas Corp. and Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

The city and its utility, City Public Service, have pending a $487 million breach of contract suit against the firms and Coast States Board Chairman Oscar Wyatt, claiming they were charged more for natural gas than prescribed in a long-term contract.

"There is no settlement that could reduce the price of gas," CPS lawyer Fred Meyer Jr. said. "The days of 25-cent gas are over."

He said CPS lawyers and the city can give an unqualified "yes" when asked if they got the best deal for the citizens and rate payers of San Antonio.

Another CPS lawyer, William Miller, told the crowd bankrupting the firms would result in a 20 per cent loss compared to what the city expects to gain under settlement terms. Miller also pointed out that bankruptcy will allow Wyatt to participate in the reorganization of the companies.

One condition San Antonio residents are concerned with involves the creation of a new gas company to serve the city before the settlement is final. San Antonio is demanding the company be inside the city limits.

Mayor Lila Cockrell said, "COPS wants the governor, the Railroad Commission and the congressmen to come before the citizens and say specifically to us what they are going to do to stabilize the price of gas. If we don't have a ceiling on the price of gas as soon as the settlement is signed, we, the people here tonight, and the public, are going to have a very large increase."

Other states should pay Texas-size prices

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — If the snowbound Northeastern states want Texas' natural gas, they ought to be willing to pay Texas-size prices, says a Laredo-based gas producer.

Antonio R. Sanchez Jr., president of Sanchez-O'Brien Petroleum Corp., said Tuesday that Texas has enough natural gas to supply its homes and industries because "the people... have suffered through high prices in order to attain adequate supplies."

"Why should we be asked to turn this gas over to the people of the East Coast, people who were unwilling to permit construction of refineries and drilling offshore?"

Sanchez said Texans pay more than East Coast consumers but have more gas available because a free market exists in the state.

Texas natural gas generally sells in the state for $2 per thousand cubic feet.

Temperatures remained relatively mild, ranging upward near dawn from 27 at Marfa in the West Texas mountains and 32 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle and Texarkana in Northeast Texas. The warmest spot at 53 was Brownsville in the extreme south. Tuesday's high marks were topped by 73 at Presidio in far West Texas.

Boll Weevil tough little insect

Whipping the boll weevil will not be easy.

Howard County extension entomologist James Lee says that three-year plans to eradicate the weevil haven't worked.

"There is no one answer," he says. The plan of attack decided upon in Howard County will probably have to contain a combination of offensive and defensive elements.

THE EARLY DEVELOPING strains of cotton have helped, he said, but they are only a tool and not the total answer.

In-season control spraying programs can also help, but these must be done by farmers in concert. Another possible approach is a diapause program, or spraying at the end of the season when the insect is getting ready to hibernate.

The farmers also can attack by finding out in what places the boll weevil is able to survive the winter and removing them.

Howard County has more weevils than Martin County, Lee says, because the insects can find places to winter in the eastern part of the county. There are fewer places in the western Howard County and Martin County.

To find out where the insect is wintering, Lee borrowed the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's "trash" machine from Vernon. A yard square portion of dirt in a brush area near the cotton fields where weevils are suspected of wintering is dug up and run through the machine. Then the contents are allowed to warm in the sun and the weevils will begin to move and can be counted.

Lee had the "trash" machine for two days and was able to take 11 samples from around the county. Weevils were found to be wintering in nine of them.

In the Coahoma-Sand Springs area where the shinnery oak provides a damp litter of leaves one to six inches deep, four or five weevils to the square yard were found. This would be 16,000 per acre.

In the cedar area where the cover is less, one weevil per yard (or 4,000 per acre) were found.

One site north of Coahoma with plenty of leaves had 19 per square yard, or 90,000 per acre.

FORTUNATELY, THIS area is having a cold winter, and this may help with the problem in the coming year.

Lee can take more samples of this kind in the spring to get some idea how many weevils survived the winter. Then when they begin coming out, the number captured in boll weevil lure traps can help give Big Spring area farmers a picture of how bad the 1977 problem will be.

Soon area farmers will have a "pretty good handle" on where the weevils are. Then they will have to come up with a plan to combat them.

The Howard County Cotton Producers Assn. is gearing up for the fight. It has asked farmers to contribute voluntarily 20 cents per bale of cotton.

It's a most important battle to the Big Spring area, and it won't be an easy one, but the boll weevil must be beaten before he claims West Texas as his home.

—J. TOM GRAHAM

With higher hopes

Around the rim

Merry Jo Bright

Parents are never prepared for the doctor's verdict, "Your child is retarded." But today they can face it with higher hopes.

Having recently had the privilege of being associated with a number of retarded children and being woefully ignorant of medical facts or social complexities in regard to these youngsters, I was glad to receive some information from Dorothy Taylor, a family life specialist who is considered an expert in her field.

"ONLY A parent who has heard those words can understand the cold fear that numbs the heart," said Ms. Taylor. "The mind immediately reacts. The cruel words crash down all aspirations for the future; they destroy carefully made dreams for happiness. Most parents of retarded children know that their special child is not like other children, yet they keep hoping — until the doctor finally confirms their fears."

Yes. Parents torture themselves with questions such as "Whose fault was it?" "Will my family be embarrassed with a retarded child?" "Of all children in the neighborhood, why ours?"

Most parents immediately consider running from the issue, such as moving to another neighborhood, or maybe even moving out of town. Their next consideration may be whether to put the child in an institution or to keep the child at home. Then come feelings of guilt because they are trying to remove the child from the family setting.

According to Ms. Taylor, even 20 years ago, parents of retarded children often were isolated by their misfortune. But today these parents find tremendous comfort in the knowledge that they are not alone, that many other parents must cope with the same problems, and that in many areas they can work with other parents to make a better world for their handicapped youngsters. It is often a relief to be able to talk about one's frustrations and worries with those who have had similar experiences and thoroughly understand one's reaction.

This is not to say that the serious problems accompanying mental retardation have been solved — or that one can shrug it away — or rely on some kind of magic to erase the heartbreak.

BUT IT is certain that no parent needs to be tortured by feelings of guilt. Research has found many causes of retardation over which parents have no control whatsoever. There is no shame in having produced a mentally retarded child, for studies indicate that these children may be products of families rich and poor, socially prominent or obscure, families highly educated or with little education, families of all races, religion and color.

We know that today for every 1,000 persons, there are approximately 30 who have some degree of mental handicap.

There are some facts about mentally retarded children that should be emphasized again and again:

1. Most mentally retarded need not be confined to institutions. Home is a growing place for the retarded, as well as for "normal" child.

2. Mentally handicapped persons do not have more criminal tendencies than any other group. Instead, they probably have less.

3. Mentally retarded children are not predetermined sex delinquents.

4. Mentally handicapped can be trained and educated to some extent. Many public schools today are offering courses for mentally and emotionally handicapped youngsters.

And in the end, adjustment of such a special individual depends much on his parents accepting him as he is, his neighbors' understanding, and his community counting him among their own.

After fortnight

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The general feeling, a week or two having gone by, is that, with a little luck, the republic will survive a term in office by President Carter. In one respect he is entirely pleasing; he appears to be competent. To be sure, he has not been tried by any international crisis. And his only domestic crisis was handling a "Playboy" interview with himself, but that was before taking office. There is no real training for the exercise of the powers of the Presidency. So that one is never quite certain. Richard Reeves, the talented political journalist, has said that the one thing the American people will not forgive a presidential aspirant is the air of incompetence. This Jimmy Carter does not have. He moved into the White House as calmly as if he had been given a scheduled promotion.

WE ARE BLESSED, also, that he has not struck out on an ideological expedition, determined to scale Nirvana even if he, and his native bearers, die in the process. Most of the unreachable goals he has paid only the necessary rhetorical homage to: like the Pope talking every now and again about the unification of the flock. We are not going to see the end of atomic weapons, at least not until someone with powers more miraculous than Mr. Carter's burrows his way into the hearts and minds of the Communists.

Nor are we going to see the evanescence of color. When they chase the last white man out of Rhodesia, the white men will still patronize the fancy restaurants in Salisbury, even as they continue to do in Nairobi. General Amin's war against Asiaties will be unaffected by the strictures of Ambassador Andrew Young, and the tribes of Africa will notice a change in Rhodesia only insofar as it makes instantly relevant which of them will prevail. When one of them does, instituting one man or one tribe rule, some at the U.N. will be chattering with satisfaction that "majority rule" has at last come to Rhodesia.

In respect of the economy, Mr. Carter is doing the routine things. It is not widely remembered that during the mid-thirties John Maynard Keynes wrote a letter to President Roosevelt suggesting Keynesian remedies to cure the depression. Roosevelt, whose academic interests were limited to naval history, either did not understand, or did not pay any attention to, the letter from Britain's dazzling young economist — who got a "thank you so much" letter in reply. Later, Keynes criticized Roosevelt on the grounds that his deficit spending had not been done on a grand enough scale to put the American economy back to work.

Mr. Carter is subject to the same criticism today, and indeed the superannuated labor union ideologues, who have not learned about the deficiencies of Keynesianism that most of the younger economists have learned, look at Mr. Carter's projected economic program as, like Roosevelt's, insufficient. In fact, Mr. Carter isn't an ideologue, and doesn't believe such witchcraft has got itself anointed into the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill, which the boys in Congress devised as a Valentine to Senator Humphrey when he got sick.

Strep throat victim?

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I get the flu and strep throat every winter. I take all the flu shots available. Is there anything I can do to avoid the strep throat? I guess I am allergic to cold weather, for any little exposure can bring it on. — Mrs. V.H.

"Strep throat" is sore throat caused by the streptococcus germ. It's not understood just why some folks seem more prone to this bacterial infection than others.

Many so-called "strep throats" are never actually diagnosed as such. This requires a throat culture, and that takes about two days to verify the germ. The classic signs are enlarged neck glands and a fever. The glands enlarge as blood rushes to the area to fight off the strep. Most sore throats are from virus infection or from irritation, as in heavy smoking, marathon talking or post-nasal drip.

Because true strep throat can be a precursor of rheumatic fever, especially in youngsters, some doctors treat early symptoms with penicillin to be on the safe side. Prompt treatment is essential to lessen after-effects such as rheumatic fever. In most cases antibiotic use is a prudent precaution, especially where the other two key symptoms (enlarged glands and fever) are present.

The soreness could be a part of your annual virus (flu) infections, which can make invasion by other organisms that much easier. Post-nasal drip can be a factor in this, too. It can cause soreness that will linger until the situation returns to normal.

Your nutrition must be considered. Are you getting adequate protein? Are you on a weight-reduction diet, skipping meals, getting adequate vitamins? Also, be wary of persons with "colds." It's questionable to me that cold weather, as such, is a cause.

Parents of children who complain of sore throat and have the gland enlargement and fever should seek prompt attention for them. Even though rheumatic fever follows in only about 3 per cent of strep throat cases, the precaution is well worth taking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been told I must be on a low-residue diet the rest of my life. I have diverticulosis. Is this true? Can it get better and allow one to return to a normal diet? — U.R.

There has been some difference of opinion in the past regarding diet and diverticulosis. For the benefit of other readers, diverticulosis is development of outpouchings in the lining of the intestinal tract. Low residue (low stool-producing) diet was once thought essential. More recently, reports have indicated that some residue is desirable.

Please note that I have been speaking only of diverticulosis, which refers merely to the existence of such pouches. If they become inflamed (diverticulitis) then the picture changes. Here low-residue foods are desirable until the inflammation subsides. It is discussed more fully in the booklet you request. I should mention that not all doctors agree on this residue matter. You had better check with your own.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am so concerned I hardly know what to do. I work for a large company, and my immediate supervisor has turned very nasty toward me. I find he is doing the same to some others. It is making it very unpleasant for me. — J.V.

DEAR J.V.: The first thing you must do is commit this whole matter to God in prayer, and seek His wisdom. I do not know all the circumstances of your problem, but God does, and He can be trusted to direct you.

The Bible gives us some definite guidelines. During the first century, labor conditions were very bad for most people, for most laborers were actually slaves with no legal rights. Paul said to them, "Serve wholeheartedly, as if you were serving the Lord, not men, because you know that the Lord will reward everyone for whatever good he does, whether he is slave or free" (Ephesians 6:7-8. New International Version). In other words, the laborers were to be sure that they did their jobs as faithfully and thoroughly as possible. If they were mistreated, it was not to be for anything they had done, but simply the evilness of the master.

So you will want to look carefully at your job and any criticisms of it that your supervisor may have, and be sure you are doing it well.

Know also that the Bible teaches we are all accountable to God, and He will some day judge your supervisor for any wrong he is doing. Ultimately you must leave him in God's hands, and not be tempted to be vengeful on him yourself. "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord" (Romans 12:19).

However, it may also be important for you to share your problem with someone higher up in your company. If your immediate supervisor is hurting many people, he is also hurting the company and his bosses should be made aware of it.

Audit blocked

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The story can now be told how the White House, even after the Watergate coverup had been fully exposed, continued to use Watergate tactics in an attempt to block a 1974 audit of Richard Nixon's tax returns.

Despite the White House intervention, the Internal Revenue Service went ahead with the audit. But the charges against Nixon were strangely limited to simple negligence. A fraud penalty not only would have forced him out of office months earlier but would have cost him an extra $148,000.97 in back taxes.

OUTGOING INTERNAL Revenue Commissioner Donald Alexander acknowledged that the White House pressured him in 1974 to quash the Nixon tax audit. He was joined by then-Treasury Secy. George Shultz in resisting the White House pressure, Alexander told us.

We checked with Shultz, who confirmed Alexander's account. "We all wanted to do the right thing," Shultz recalled. Neither would discuss the details of the White House intervention. Alexander said only that he expected to be fired for refusing to stop the audit. Both agreed that the political pressure ended when Gerald Ford became president.

A year earlier, the Internal Revenue Service delicately audited Nixon's tax returns and found them to be in perfect order. But press exposes and a congressional investigation persuaded the IRS to conduct a second audit in 1974.

This revealed that Nixon had deduced one-third of his vice presidential papers, developed at the taxpayers' expense, back to the taxpayers. In return for this gift, he claimed a $76,000 tax deduction.

There was one hitch; the law permitting tax deductions for personal papers had expired. But White House aide Edward Morgan got around this obstacle by illegally backdating the gift.

It was a clear case of fraud, which normally would have been brought against the errant taxpayer. But Taxpayer Nixon claimed he was unaware of the backdating.

THE TWO ATTORNEYS who prepared the fraudulent returns, Herbert Kalmbach and Frank DeMarco, swore they explained the tax figures carefully to Nixon. They spent about 30 minutes on April 10, 1970, going over the returns with him. Nixon carefully checked each page before signing the forms, they testified. For that matter, he had started out his law career as a tax attorney.

Nixon's tax documents also show that he took a personal interest in claiming every possible deduction. He contended, according to the documents, that "a public man does very little of a personal nature." Therefore, he instructed his aides to count all entertainment and gifts as "business" deductions.

But the fraud charges were brought against the unfortunate Morgan, who pleaded guilty. Nixon was merely nailed for negligence. He paid an assessment of $284,706.16 for back taxes for the years 1970 to '71 and 1971 to '72. The IRS informed him that he also owed another $148,000.97 in back taxes for 1969. But the 1969 assessment didn't really have to be paid because the statute of limitations had run out.

On April 3, 1974, Nixon solemnly promised to pay up all his back taxes, including the 1969 bill. Yet he still hasn't paid the $148,000.97. If he had been found guilty of fraud, the statute of limitations would no longer apply, and he couldn't avoid paying the full $148,000.97.

Inside sources tell us that the former president should have been charged with fraud. They suspect the White House pressure, though it failed to block the tax audit, may have led to downgrading the fraud charge. Both Alexander and Shultz insisted, however, that they resisted all White House political pressure.

THEY CONCEDED THAT the Nixon audit was only one of many cases in which the White House tried to meddle. In 1973, for example, the White House quietly protested an IRS decision to examine political committees. There was a similar howl from the White House when the IRS decided to tax political parties.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

During my brief visit to Big Spring for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Monday night, I was more than impressed with the spirit of the people and the obvious enthusiasm manifest in so many to "get things done."

You have a "can do" organization. During the dinner, you cited wonderful honorees who are at the top of the list in working zealously for the Big Spring area. I salute these honorees, along with the legions of others who are working, side by side, realizing all along the way that the beneficiaries of their hard and sometimes thankless work are the people — the people who make up your vibrant community.

This spirit and enthusiasm cannot be bought. It can, however, be harnessed, nourished and utilized magnificently. It is my judgment that President Roger Brown and your dynamic new Executive Vice President and General Manager, Bill Albright, will do much to add to the good which already has been done, and for the future, will provide the inspiration, foresight and zeal that goals yet undreamed of will be reached.

My congratulations to outgoing President J.D. Nelson, and to the wonderful people of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for letting me come their way.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The future of the cotton industry depends on finding solutions to a lung disease caused by cotton dust, a number of industry leaders say.

The disease, known as byssinosis or "brown lung," may cost the industry millions of dollars or result in a massive shutdown of ginning operations and textile mills, Phillip Burnett of the National Cotton Council told some of the council's 1,500 delegates meeting here.

Rep. David R. Bowen, D-Miss., chairman of the House Cotton subcommittee, urged industry leaders to greatly expand their research on the disease, which has afflicted a number of workers in England and other countries.

J. Ritchie Smith, director of the technical research division of the council, said no known deaths from the disease have been recorded in this country but there have been a number of suspected cases.

Dr. Phillip J. Wakelyn, the council's environmental-safety technology manager, described proposed federal standards for worker exposure to cotton dust as threatening "the very future" of cotton as an important U.S. commodity.

The new proposal would apply to ginning, warehousing, compressing and a number of other processes where the cotton dust is in the air.

He said the industry was not opposed to standards "where they are necessary and reasonable" but that he believed evidence would show that a single industrywide standard was inappropriate.

He said estimated costs for installation of equipment to comply with the proposed standard in ginning, yarn

Hello, Opera House

with Marj Carpenter

In the song, "Hello Dolly", there's a phrase, "It's nice to have you back where you belong."

This also applies to the Colorado City Opera House. It was originally constructed around 1899. It was the second opera house in the city, a thriving metropolis that was the center of culture between Fort Worth and El Paso.

The first opera house was a place called the Frankel House and it was a three-story brick building constructed during the 1880s by a Cincinnati.

The Frankel House was eventually partially destroyed by a "tornado" and later the rest of it was torn down. Then came the current Opera House.

Lee Jones said he played the part of the infant in Othello there at the ripe old age of six months.

The Opera House gradually ran out of productions and became instead a silent movie house with the pianist playing merrily in the pit while productions with Rudolph Valentino, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, and the Keystone Cops flashed across the screen.

Many a present resident of Colorado City can remember attending silent movies there. A lot more remember attending silent movies than remember the early operas and Shakespearean productions.

When another movie house was opened over near the railroad, the opera house closed as a movie house and became a restaurant.

RESTORED OPERA HOUSE
... local culture center

There are still folks around who remember eating there, but in those days, nearly everybody ate at home unless they were simply passing through town.

So the cafe changed gradually to a rooming house. Then in 1974, some Colorado City citizens interested in drama got the idea of restoring the facility and putting it back to its original use.

People such as George Womack, Bobbie Steakley, Jolyn Mikow, Joe Ernest, Porter Richardson, Tandy Curlee, Midge Ledbetter and Sue Womack have worked hard along with many others for this project.

Three or more productions a year are held at the facility and they draw big crowds from across West Texas.

It's a case of concerned citizens that did not want to see their heritage slip away and decided to band together and hold on to it.

In the process, they have also revived an interest in drama among Colorado City citizens and really had a lot of fun putting on some excellent productions.

So "Hello, Opera House. We're glad you're back where you belong." Thanks to a lot of good Colorado citizens — some of whom I have met when out ridin' fence.

Terrific ripoff of U.S. taxpayers?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is getting a chance to approve or turn down hefty pay raises for members of Congress and other government executives. One lawmaker says the raises would be a "terrific ripoff" of the American taxpayers.

It was Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who used the term "ripoff" for the congressional raises of close to 30 per cent. Allen paved the way for a possible vote on the raises at today's session by tacking an amendment to a measure restructuring the Senate's committee system.

The Allen amendment would block pay raises scheduled not only for members of the House and Senate, but for high-level executive branch officials and federal judges. The raises were proposed by President Gerald R. Ford in the last days of his administration and subsequently were supported by President Carter.

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., indicated he probably would move to table Allen's amendment, offered shortly before the Senate recessed Tuesday night.

Disapproval by either the Senate or the House would kill the raises, which are automatic unless action to stop them is taken by Feb. 20.

Unless lawmakers block their own raises, their pay will increase to $57,500 a year, from the current $44,600.

Random selection of grand juries asked

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A person being investigated by a grand jury should have the right to be present when the grand jury hears evidence against him, says Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston.

Washington testified Tuesday before the House Criminal Jurisprudence committee in support of his bill which would allow a suspect to be present. If the jury chooses, the suspect may make a statement and be questioned under oath.

This bill would allow the defendant as well as the prosecutor to be present during presentation of the state's evidence, Washington said.

"One of the things wrong with our system is that everybody is hiding evidence, playing lawyer," Washington said. "We need to put it out on the table and say, 'Here's what I have against you.'"

The bill also would provide for random selection of grand juries.

"I know how the grand jury works," Washington said. "The judge calls a few friends and says, 'Hey, I got to have a grand jury by tomorrow.'"

It is only human nature for the judge to choose people like himself, people about the same age and from the same neighborhood, Washington said.

Another bill by Washington would cut the number of peremptory challenges in jury selection from 10 for each side to three for the state and six for the defense. In misdemeanor cases, it would be one by the state and two for the defense.

Rep. Sam Hudson, D-Dallas, argued for the bill. "I've seen jury panels with 10 minorities, and the state uses all its peremptory challenges on those 10, and you end up without any minorities. That is grossly unfair. That happens on every case in Dallas."

Washington and Hudson, both black, were the only committee members who voted to send the bills immediately to the House floor rather than to subcommittee, where, Washington said, they would be killed.

The six white legislators present voted to table that motion.

Carter to make 'fireside chat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 33 years another President who doesn't like the name "Fireside Chat" is going to make one.

When President Carter goes on television tonight (9 p.m. Big Spring time) a lot of people who used to gather around their Atwater-Kents to listen to Franklin Delano Roosevelt will be trying to explain to the TV generation what a fireside chat is. Or was.

Consider this a primer. Other presidents have gone on the air to address the American people directly. But the fireside chat belonged to Roosevelt.

He didn't like the name, which was foisted on his "radio reports to the nation" by newspapers of the time. Biographer Robert Sherwood says Roosevelt thought it was corny. And FDR himself once declared that the press would call his talk a fireside chat, even if it was delivered on the hottest day of July.

During the 1976 campaign, Carter often said he planned to resurrect the fireside chat. But once in office, press secretary Jody Powell said a search was on for another phrase.

Roosevelt delivered 26 fireside chats in 12 years. Each time, the talk dealt with a single subject, an issue of the moment he felt needed explanation. And it was a way to get people behind him when he wanted to pressure Congress.

Eight days after he was inaugurated President, on March 12, 1933, Roosevelt went on the two national radio networks and told the American people he was closing the banks in order to save them.

He didn't say "the only thing we have to fear is fear itself." That was in his inaugural speech.

Carter waited 12 days before his first chat, but he too has a matter that demands immediate action and some sacrifice — the energy crisis. He will be speaking from a White House library chilled by his decree to lower thermostats to 65 degrees, a good place for a fireside chat.

The two presidents, taking office 44 years apart, have comparable situations. Roosevelt admitted his bank holiday was only a stop-gap measure. Carter can only say the same about his emergency actions to get fuel to hard-hit areas while broader legislation is enacted.

When Roosevelt made his first speech, the head of the CBS bureau in Washington, Harry C. Butcher, went to a hardware store and bought a wooden table for $15. He drilled holes for a microphone stand and Roosevelt used that table for his talks ever after.

FDR would sit in the Diplomatic Reception Room with a few invited friends and relatives, looking across the people to the mantelplace. He liked to think he was in his home addressing individuals as radio carried INSTITUTION REVIVED — When President Carter goes on television tonight to talk to the nation about the energy crisis he will be reviving something that hasn't been around for 33 years — the "fireside chat" that was so closely associated with President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Here Roosevelt speaks from the White House, Dec. 9, 1941 to tell the nation "we are now in this war".

his voice across the nation. "This feeling of intimacy between the president and the people made the term fireside chat obvious," Butcher wrote later. He said he edited a CBS press release for the second broadcast to insert "fireside chat." The name stuck. The speeches ran from 15 to 45 minutes.

'Roots' fetching $1.25 million week

NEW YORK (AP) — If you want to make money, you should be selling oil, coffee, or Alex Haley's book, "Roots."

Sales of the book have now hit 100,000 a week and at $12.50 the copy, that is a very cool $1.25 million.

Bookstores agree that ABC's nationally televised serialization of the book has increased its popularity.

The publishers, Doubleday & Co., said total sales should reach 1 million by March and plans are under way for a 14th printing of the book, which is Haley's account of his search for his family's beginnings in Africa.

The company said it had no exact figures on the impact of the TV series which ran Jan. 23 through 30 because a research team's analysis has not yet been completed. The week-long program was the most-watched show in American television history, according to A.C. Nielsen figures released Tuesday.

Bookstores throughout New York City were unanimous in their opinion that the series boosted sales of an already popular book.

A spokesman for Brentano's said the book "had been doing quite well but has done slightly better since the television series."

The spokesman said the main store sold 136 copies during the past two weeks, with other stores in the chain reporting similar turnovers.

McGraw-Hill, a publisher which also operates a huge bookstore in Rockefeller Center, reported 100 sales in the past two weeks. A spokesman called it "fantastic, a very strong book."

At Barnes & Noble, a major bookseller, order executive Abraham Fiss said sales tripled with the advent of the series, and now average 100 a day.

Steers fall to MHS, Mojo upset in 5-4A

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Steer roundballers played even ball with the Midland High Bulldogs for two quarters Tuesday night, but a fired-up homecourt-fed MHS quiet proved too much for the visitors in the second half.

After knotting the score at 28-28 at intermission, the Bovines went down to defeat 62-54, their second consecutive setback in second half 5-4A play. Midland evened its second round slate at 1-1.

Casey Wilder led the Steers in scoring with 14, while teammates Bubba Stripling and Kenneth Perry hit for 12 and 10 respectively.

The powerful Steer sub teams prevailed against their opposition, however, as the JV's took an 84-75 win, and the Sophomores edged Midland 69-64.

The next game for the Steers will be Friday night in Steer gym against Permian.

In other District 5-4A action last night, Abilene upset Permian 76-74, Cooper bombed Odessa 60-37, and Midland Lee beat San Angelo 69-48.

THROUGH the fieldglasses

By Danny Reagan

Going into home stretch

Going into the home stretch for the top spots in Western Junior College Athletic Conference slate-making, Howard College and Midland College look to have the easier going of the half dozen or so teams scrapping it out to be one of the top four teams with the best league record.

The top three teams in the WJAC automatically go to the Region V tournament, and depending on the other conference that will be represented, and what marks its teams compile, either one of the two additional teams to be chosen will come from the Hawks' conference. It's a fairly safe bet that the top four teams in the WJAC will see action in the Region V.

Seven more games are on tap in the league, and out of those, Midland College has five of them at home. The Preybirds have three of their last seven on the home hardwoods, including toughies Amarillo and Western Texas.

Amarillo, on the other hand, has most of their games in the second half on the road. They are currently on a five-game road trip, having lost to Frank Phillips and Midland and beating NMJC. They still have Western Texas and South Plains before they go home again. Then they have to come right back to Hawk gym.

It'll be a dogfight to the very end. Look for the Hawks to be in it all the way.

Still a chance for 20

The Hawks are currently 14-10 on the season. That's a .583 per cent winning mark — not that good in relation to past Hawk performances, but there's still a chance for the locals to have a 20-game winning season, a feat Harold Wilder's teams have performed since he's been here. If the Preybirds win six of their last seven games, they'll have a record of 20-11, for a .645 winning performance... identical to the 1974-75 Hawks' record — commendable considering the class of competition they've been facing all year.

FYI: The best record ever compiled by the locals was the 1969-70 Buddy Travis-led Hawks, who won 34 of 38 games for a .894 percentage. Wilder's best season was 1973-74 when his team went 35-6 for a .854 reading.

The worst season for the Preybirds was their first... 1946-47, under Leon Bush they went 1-10 for a .091 percentage. Another note: Only five times in the 31-year history of the Hawks have more than four players made the 300 point club in one season (scoring more than 300 points). With the fine team effort that the locals have put on this year, they have already assured four players in the club. Mike Little, Reggie Lefall, Paul Cathey and Eugene Williams, and two others, Joe Cooper and Lowell Walker have shots at it.

LaBaron wants to excite and win

ATLANTA (AP) — Eddie LeBaron wanted no time. The former Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys quarterback interviewed a prospective coach Tuesday several hours before he officially was hired as general manager of the Atlanta Falcons—a struggling National Football League organization that has produced only 50 victories in 11 years.

Cool Coogs wreck Tech

Houston inflicted its revenge on Texas Tech Tuesday night in a South-west Conference basketball game that resembled a cross between the Golden Gloves and a rugby scrum.

The victory kept Houston hot on the trail of league-leading Arkansas which must travel to The Summit Saturday night. Texas Tech will testify there are calmer places to spend an evening.

Arkansas hosts Southern Methodist tonight and a victory would make the 14th ranked Razorbacks 10-0 with a two game lead over the Cougars.

But back to the Bayou City where mysterious things were happening Tuesday night, including Rice's shocking 73-60 upset of the suddenly demoralized Baylor Bears.

Houston followed Otis Birdsong's 31 points to a 94-87 victory and sweet retribution for an overtime loss in Lubbock to Tech last week. However, the game was marred by a fist fight between Tech's Mike Edwards and Houston's Kenneth Williams that got ugly with both benches charging each other like the Light Brigade.

Edwards claimed Williams "came up behind me when I was about to shoot a free throw and flicked my ear with his finger...so I said something to him. And he said something to me."

"I hit him a couple of times and then he tackled me and that's when Mike Schultz came in."

Houston's Schultz joined the punch out which emptied both benches into a giant pile at midcourt. Referees Paul Galvan and Dan Watson quickly went to work eventually evicting Edwards and Williams.

"Everybody is always yelling at the officials but give them credit for tonight...they did a good job of getting everybody under control," praised Tech Coach Gerald Myers.

Williams claimed the fight started because of a wild Edwards elbow.

Frank Thomas and Elbert Darden scored 22 and 20 points respectively as Rice won its second SWC game of the year.

In other action, the Texas Aggies extended their league record to 6-4 with a 76-69 victory over winless Texas Christian and Texas bounced Centenary 105-81 in a bizarre non-conference game.

Texas made a S-E-V-E-N point play in the second half as Centenary Coach Riley Wallace was ejected after receiving three technical fouls.

Sands cover Wellman 5's

ACKERLY — The Sands High School varsity team continued in their strong quest for the District 9-B titles, with a pair of wins over Wellman Tuesday night.

The boys upped their record to 30-3 and 3-0 with a 84-37 win. Leading scorers were Gary Webb with 19, Ronnie Kennemer with 18, Stan Feaster with 17 and Martin Nichols with 12.

Jill Floyd's 29 points eased the girls past Wellman 74-53. Rene Roman also contributed 21, and Susan Martin bucketed 17. The girls now sport 30-1 and 4-0 slates.

The next contest for both teams will be at home Friday against number one contender Dawson County. The Sands boys, rated seventh in state Class B, only beat Dawson by two points in their previous meeting this season.

Forsan falls to Greenwood

FORSAN — The Forsan varsity teams fell to Greenwood Tuesday night, the boys losing 56-48, and the girls suffering a 57-41 setback.

Randy Cregar's 16 points led the Forsan boys, while Beverly Strickland paced the girls with 28 points. The loss was the first for both teams, and each sport a 2-1 district record.

Forsan did win the JV game, however, 54-46.

Stanton Jrs. finish season

STANTON — The Stanton Jr. High quintets finished their 1976-77 season Monday night with two wins and one loss. The 7th grade boys handed Garden City a 35-21 defeat, as Arthur Ruiz' 15 markers led the home team to a 7-4 final slate. Despite Dana Pinkerton's 10 points, the SJH girls fell to GCJH 23-19 to end their season with a 1-16 mark.

The 8th grade boys, finished with an exceptional 16-4 season record by virtue of a 53-6 drubbing of G.C. Alonzo Padron scored 10 to lead Stanton.

During the weekend, the 8th grade boys, led by Craig Eiland's 52 points in three games, took top prize in the Roscoe tournament. The 8th graders also finished second in the Stanton tourney and third in the Grady tourney earlier in the season.

Track season for SJH begins in a week and a half.

partnership to return to pro football after a 13-year absence. He said his primary aim was to bring Atlanta "an exciting and winning football team."

He acknowledged that his immediate goal was to find a new coach as soon as possible so that he could begin hiring a staff and prepare for the NFL collegiate draft, assuming one is held even though a federal court has declared the draft illegal.

The two leading candidates for the job, LeBaron said, were assistant coaches Dan Reeves of Dallas and Leeman Bennett of the Los Angeles Rams.

"Both are from highly successful organizations," LeBaron said, adding that he had interviewed Reeves earlier in the day and would meet with Bennett at a later date.

"I think he can run the show," said club owner Rankin Smith, who announced the hiring of LeBaron at a news conference.

"LeBaron is in charge of hiring and firing," said Smith. "I don't know any football, but I think I know a man who does, and he does."

LeBaron, who was a 5-foot-7, 175-pound quarterback for the Redskins and Cowboys, has not been directly involved in pro football since ending his career 13 years ago—two years before the Falcons came into existence.

But, he has been used by Smith in the past—as a "babysitter" to linebacker Tommy Nobis when the Falcons signed him away from the old American Football League during the team's first year and later as an aide during preseason camp.

Reeves refuses job

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys assistant coach Danny Reeves said Wednesday he has turned down the head coaching job of the Atlanta Falcons in the National Football League.

The announcement came after Reeves had met earlier this week with Falcon owner Rankin Smith and new general manager Eddie LeBaron in Atlanta.

Reeves told newsmen Wednesday he was unable to reach an agreement with the Falcons that he considered attractive enough to leave the Cowboys, a perennial power of the league.

NBC delighting is crass

MOSCOW (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co., culminating lengthy negotiations which went down to the final hours, has won the United States television rights for the 1980 Summer Olympics.

The network purchased the rights for an estimated $80 million—a figure which includes $35 million for the rights and the rest for technical facilities.

The contract was signed Tuesday and approved by the International Olympic Committee.

"We are delighted to have been successful in arranging to bring to American audiences the 1980 Olympics in Moscow and the American participation in this international event of the first magnitude," said NBC President Herb Schlosser in a statement issued in New York.

"NBC will mount a production effort which in terms of people, facilities and air time will reflect this importance to the viewing public."

Schlosser said details of the contract and production plans will be disclosed at a news conference in the near future.

The awarding of the rights climaxed lengthy negotiations which, at one point, involved four entries—the three major networks and the Satra Corp. CBS dropped out of the bidding last week, saying the venture appeared risky. And Satra, a New York-based international trading company,

Shipp sails on to slick Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Ken Shipp has seen it happen before. A pro football team starts going bad offensively and the fans take out all their frustrations on the quarterback.

"They ran Fran Tarkenton out of town," Shipp said, referring to the Minnesota quarterback's tenure with the New York Giants. "I also saw it happen to (New York Jets quarterback Joe) Namath. 'But you can't operate without a running game or an offensive line.'"

Shipp, a veteran pro assistant coach, has signed on as offensive coordinator of the Houston Oilers in hopes of rebuilding the Oilers' sagging offense, one of the worst in the National Football League last year in a disappointing 5-9 campaign.

Shipp, who guided the Detroit Lions' offense last season, hopes the Houston fans haven't made quarterback Dan Pastorini the whipping boy for the Oilers' anemic offensive showing.

"I think Dan has a chance to become a fine young quarterback," Shipp said. "We just have to get him some help. We'll change the running game a little and we'll change practically all of the passing game."

UNHAPPY OVER CALL — Chris Evert shows her displeasure over a line judge's call at the $100,000 professional women's tennis tournament during second-day action Tuesday. However, she and Rosie Casals won their doubles match.

apparently was excluded by the IOC. IOC financial secretary Monique Berlioux, who was present for the signing, said the Committee "thought it was better to have a real television organization."

Satra, in a statement issued in New York, by company chairman Ara Oztemel, said it had signed a "letter of intent" with the Russians and threatened legal action against NBC and its parent organization, RCA, if the agreement went through. After NBC officially signed the contract, Satra officials said their lawyers planned to take the network to court and seek damages.

NBC announced it had won the rights Sunday night, but an ABC delegation, headed by Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, kept up negotiations through Tuesday.

When NBC finally had signed a binding agreement with the Russians, Arledge said: "It is an awesome undertaking, and I wish them the best of luck."

Coahoma 5's take 3 wins

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs swept three games from the icy cold Winters Blizzards Tuesday night, capturing the varsity boys game 77-63, the varsity girls' game 51-27, and the JV game 50-48.

Ken "Killer" Kelso led the boys in scoring with 19 points while Rodney Lee had 15, Edwin Dickson marked down 13 and Tim Greenfield and Darryl Witt each had 12. The varsity record now stands at 14-8 and 2-1.

Melissa Brown's 16 points led the girls' varsity, as Micki Schaffer and Angela Dykes had 12 and 10 respectively. Dusty Douglas with 15 and Jay Shaw with 10 led the JV's in scoring.

CAN'T LOOK — Midland College Chaparral Coach Delnor Ross reacts unfavorably to a call during Monday night's 89-80 loss to the Howard College Hawks. Hawk Coach Harold Wilder can be seen in the background either doing bird calls or shouting instructions to his players.

Won't Perform Wedding No. 4

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 29 and was looking forward so happily to her fourth marriage. But she's terribly upset because our rabbi has suggested that she go to another rabbi for this ceremony.

Actually, this rabbi (who confirmed her) performed only two of her marriages. She married a Catholic last time for whom she turned Catholic, but in less than a year their marriage was annulled, and she returned to the Jewish faith. So now she is as Jewish as she was before she became a Catholic.

Now, our rabbi doesn't want to marry her. Does he have the right to turn her away?

What would you do in our place? There are other rabbis handy, but our daughter felt so close to this one. (He is not an orthodox rabbi, he's reformed.)

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: A rabbi who has suggested that she go to another rabbi for this ceremony. Refuse to perform a marriage ceremony for reasons of his own. Inasmuch as there are other rabbis handy, ask one.

DEAR ABBY: Joel and I had gone steady for two years and things were going great until six months ago. Then he suggested that we both start dating others.

I really didn't want to date anyone else, so I asked Joel what went wrong in our relationship, and he told me:

I had cut my hair above my ears without asking him first, and it seems that short hair on girls turns him off.

Then because Joel complained about my cigarette breath, I quit smoking and gained 20 pounds in five months. Well, it seems fat girls turn him off.

He told me that after I had my hair grown out and lost the weight I gained, I should give him a call.

My question: Do you think I should let my hair grow and try to lose weight just to please Joel? Or should I tell him that I am not going to make myself over for him?

I WANT TO BE ME

DEAR WANT: Only you can make that decision. Now that you know what it will take to get Joel back, it's up to you to decide whether he's worth the effort, is he?

DEAR ABBY: My mother (a widow) is coming to town for a family wedding. She lives a great distance from here. Mom has always stayed with me, and she wants to stay this time, but there are complications.

She has a live-in boyfriend, and she won't come without him. Furthermore, she wants me to put them up together in my home.

Abby, I have children at home, and I don't want them to say, "If Nana can do it, why can't we?"

I explained this to my mother and she said, "Well, tell the kids we're married!"

Abby, I don't want to lie to my children, and although I don't approve of my mother's lifestyle, I still love her. My husband disapproves, too. What should I do?

STUMPED OUT WEST

DEAR STUMPED: Tell your Mom you refuse to lie, but you'll be glad to make hotel or motel reservations for her and her friend. And don't apologize for your decision. Houseguests should expect to conform to the house rules.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Art dealer discusses own work

The owner of a local art gallery, Mrs. Hugh Merworth, displayed several of her paintings and pencil drawings when she spoke Tuesday to Spring City Chapter, American Business Women's Association.

Mrs. Merworth, who specializes in West Texas scenes, said she enjoys going out on location but also does some copy work from photographs.

The vocational talk was by Ms. Margaret McDonald, a teacher at St. Mary's Episcopal School. Explaining that she is an 'open' teacher in that she teaches grades one through three there, Ms. McDonald said she is teaching math this year and "having trouble with the Metric System."

Mrs. Terry Wegman, president, presided for the business session, and attendance cards were distributed for a three-month contest. Members were asked to write their nominating letters for Woman of the Year and Boss of the Year.

Ms. Ruth Edmondson was welcomed as a guest.

Corsages of pink carnations were presented to Miss Bradley, her mother, Mrs. Theron Bradley, and Mrs. Willard Turner, the prospective bridegroom's mother.

An out-of-town guest was Mrs. Kay Conant of Midland. Other guests were from Forsan and Big Spring.

The couple plans to marry Feb. 11 at Forsan Baptist Church.

Hostesses were Mrs. Doyle Whetsel, Mrs. J. L. Barron, Mrs. Jack Clinkscates, Mrs. W. B. Crear, Mrs. Oscar Boeker, Mrs. Derrell Baggett and Mrs. George White.

Views of gerontology, religious cults aired

Past Matrons have service

A two-part program, the first dealing with gerontology and the second with religious cults, held the attention of the Modern Woman's Forum during a meeting Friday in the home of Mrs. C. A. Holcomb.

Mrs. Bert Affleck's program was entitled "Gerontology — How to Have a Longer Life and Enjoy it More."

"A happy, fulfilled life is a continuation of a satisfying life already lived," said Mrs. Affleck. "Faith in God, yourself and in others is an antidote for loneliness and depression. A willingness to give ones' self in love and service, good health and a moderate amount of exercise are important. These combine to make a longer and enjoyable life."

The second speaker was Mrs. B. M. Keese who noted that many new religious cults such as the 'Moon' cult or Unification Church, Children of God, The Divine Light of Mission and others have had a tremendous appeal, especially to youth. She noted that Martin E. Marty, a professor and religious historian of the University of Chicago Divinity School, sees signs that they have peaked in popularity.

Prof. Marty said, "Campus leaders tell me the number of new recruits is leveling off, and most members leave after a few years in the cults."

Also, he predicts that none of today's cults will show the staying power of such faiths as the Jehovah's Witnesses and the Mormons.

As he sees it, "Those two groups were able to survive persecution and grow because they offered a structure of belief that would support people all through life and would encourage them to raise their children in the church. They are unlike the cults of today who are antagonistic toward family life and don't give their young members room to grow up."

Mrs. Hugh Duncan presided for the business, and Mrs. C. R. Moad conducted a memorial service for Mrs. C. E. Howard and Mrs. W. E. Moren.

The club will meet again Feb. 11 in the home of Mrs. W. E. Singleton.

Mrs. Lloyd Duncan, president of the Past Matrons' Gavel Club, Laura B. Hart Chapter 1019, Order of Eastern Star, presided at a dinner meeting held for the group at Coker's Restaurant.

Mrs. Oza Green gave the devotion, dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Ollie McDaniel. Mrs. Chuck Boland gave a reading entitled "The Quiet Night."

Reports on recent activities were given, as well as information concerning cards sent out by the club and visits made to the sick and bereaved.

Hostesses for February will be Mrs. Dick Mitchell and Mrs. Oza Green.

Texas bingo bill looks like winner

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, goes for the big pot today in the Texas Senate bingo game.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

SLEEP WHERE YOU CAN — An employee of Buffalo General Hospital sleeps on the floor of a classroom of the School of Nursing Tuesday night. By the middle of the night most of the beds will be filled with people who work at the hospital and cannot get home. The School of Nursing housed 150 people the past two nights. The school had to cancel classes this week. It is the first time in 100 years that it had to do so.

profit charitable organizations by a 22-9 vote. He must have a two-thirds final Senate vote today to send the measure to the House.

If approved by two-thirds of the legislature the proposition will be on the general election ballot in November, 1978—along with the governor's race and other voter-attractive hot contests.

"This is just a bill to let the people of Texas decide whether they want bingo games," Lombardino argued. "It will let them decide whether these games can be used to raise money for religious organizations, for the VFW and the American Legion, for the Little League, and for cerebral palsy."

"This measure would let the Mafia come down here from Chicago or New York and organize a non-profit organization to gather in millions of dollars and only pay out a few dollars to charities," said Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper, who led the protesters.

"In South Texas we have had bingo for generations and generations," said Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg.

"All churches have schools and bingo helps support these schools."

Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, successfully added amendments that would require bingo games to be conducted only by persons in the organization to benefit from the proceeds and to be held only in buildings owned or leased by the organizations. Lombardino agreed to the changes.

An effort to add another amendment that would have legalized bingo but prohibited pari-mutuel betting on horse racing brought loud protests and was tabled 17-14. "Under the Y 17 and under the N 14," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in announcing the result.

In other action Tuesday the Senate passed to the House: —A bill that would redefine the duties of a public surveyor. —Remove the question on a birth certificate about the legitimacy of a child. —Allow the state to pay damages involved in any suit filed against a state employee, in addition to furnishing attorneys for the employee's defense.

Sheriff asks for tools to regulate parlors

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard Tuesday asked the House Intergovernmental Affairs Committee to "give me the tools" to regulate massage parlors in the county.

JACK HEARD

Heard's testimony came during consideration of a bill by Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, that would authorize counties to regulate massage parlors, which Heard said housed "open prostitution."

The committee members later referred the measure to the House Subcommittee on Urban Affairs for further study.

"Give me the tools and I'll enforce them," said Heard, who charged that the parlors in Harris County were part of an organized, interstate network. "As it stands now, we can't legally put these people out of business."

Heard also distributed explicit advertising leaflets taken in raids on Harris County massage parlors.

Counties presently have no authority to pass and enforce ordinances regulating the massage parlors, as do cities.

Harris County Deputy Sheriff John J. Kiljan testified, "We can't get our undercover people in there any more. They (massage parlor owners) know who they are."

Kiljan, who said most of the parlors in Harris County harbored prostitution, added, "The massage parlors are...if you'll excuse the term...either masturbation or oral sex."

Austin attorney Larry Palmer, representing owners and operators of six Austin area massage parlors, agreed that massage parlors should be regulated and open to inspection.

FCC plans to crack down on some CBers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission says it plans to crack down on citizens band radio operators who transmit on single sidebands on frequencies not assigned to CBs.

Sideband, which requires a specially equipped radio, uses only one side of a channel, which is legal when CB channels are used.

But some CBers, the FCC said Tuesday, are using equipment intended for amateur radio and using false call signs.

Some signals by single sideband CBers are in the 27.40 to 28.00 megahertz range and above, which the FCC and international treaty allocate to the public safety and industrial services, the federal government and the amateur radio service, the commission notice said.

In addition, the FCC said, many of these operators cause interference to television and other home entertainment equipment.

The commission said it gives major enforcement priority to out-of-band operations. Violations are punishable to a fine up to $10,000, up to one year of imprisonment or both.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
 from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 2, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New beginnings are possible today by which you can gain advancement in the days ahead. Make sure that family members are aware of your desire and let them be part of it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get the approval of higher-ups where new arrangements are concerned before you go ahead with them. Avoid one who is talkative.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your money position and know how to better it in the future. The evening can be enjoyable from a social standpoint.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Consider every angle of any talk you have with a higher-up so that you come up with the right answers. Study new outlets.

MOON CHILDREN (July 22 to July 21) You have been wanting to make some changes for a long time and this is a good day to do just that.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try not to harm others in your pursuit to get ahead. Show increased affection for mate and you get a fine response.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An older friend could be belligerent today, so steer clear of this person and avoid an argument. Handle accumulated duties early in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care you don't irk higher-ups today, otherwise trouble could ensue. Show others that you are an excellent citizen.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Making some new acquaintance could prove very fine for you later on. Use wisdom in all your undertakings today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use good judgment in handling an important business matter early in the day. Be sure to keep promises you've made.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Many situations arise today that give you true facts and figures to advance in your line of endeavor. Be poised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Schedule your work well so it is done efficiently and on time. Eradicate an error made and be more successful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Engage in a new form of recreation that will lift your spirit and makes you feel happier. Show more devotion for mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she many want to do more than is humanly possible, so teach to first complete one project before tackling another, otherwise you will have a jack-of-all trades and master of none on your hands instead of a successful person.

Bill would let retired officers carry guns

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Retired peace officers should be allowed to carry guns in order to protect themselves from the criminals they sent to prison, Sen. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, testified Tuesday night.

Lombardino, himself a retired cop, spoke in support of his bill before the Senate Jurisprudence Subcommittee on Criminal Matters.

One of Lombardino's witnesses, San Antonio policeman Al Peeler, said he would be eligible to retire this month after 20 years.

"I've incarcerated hundreds of people. Some of them are out. Senate bill 70 would allow me to carry a gun and provide me and my family some degree of protection," Peeler said.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, asked if Mauzy should be entitled to carry a gun, too, because an ex-convict might come looking for him for voting to allow Peeler to carry a gun.

Peeler said that was logical. Mauzy asked about the 12 jurors who sent the man to prison. And then about the prosecutor, the judge, the bailiff and the court reporter. Each time, Peeler said he couldn't argue with Mauzy's logic.

"All I'm trying to say is, where do we stop? How many people are we going to allow walking the streets of Texas carrying guns?"

Gene Young, a Buffalo appliance dealer, repeatedly told her about the gangland-style killing of a man who had dealings with the Mendozas, the Corpus Christi woman said.

Mrs. Mendoza named Young as the man who threatened her and her family and forced them to participate in heroin sales.

The Mendozas are being held in the Bexar County jail here in lieu of $1.5 million each.

Fantus tops in industry moves

CHICAGO (AP) - For more than half a century, Fantus Co. has been moving industry across the face of the nation like pins on a map.

The firm has shifted industries worth billions of dollars from urban areas to suburbs, the Sunbelt states and smalltown America.

Sometimes the moves are made to avoid labor problems. Other changes in site location bring an industry closer to energy sources. The climate might be a reason. Occasionally, it's merely fashionable to follow a competitor.

Fantus, which has engineered moves for more than 4,000 companies ranging in size from 200 to 35,000 employees, says it is asked to study new locations because it can steer a business around the pitfalls of settling into a new community.

The movement and expansion of businesses into new areas has brought growth to much of the South and Southwest, but has been at the heart of the financial problems of such traditional manufacturing areas as Detroit.

In the 55 years since its founding, Fantus has stressed moves away from the Northeast and Great Lakes regions. Now, says Maurice Fulton, Fantus chairman, that trend may be a deterrent.

Peeler said it would. Mengden added, "I believe in a well-armed citizenry." The bill was held in subcommittee.

'Momma June' like a bridesmaid tells about death threats

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - A Corpus Christi halfway house operator has testified she and her husband and his brother were forced to participate in undercover drug dealings by a government informant.

Mrs. Mendoza, her husband Arturo and his brother Oscar are being tried on charges of conspiring to sell 26 pounds of heroin for distribution. They were arrested last September in an Austin motel shortly after officers said the heroin sale was concluded.

Gene Young, a Buffalo appliance dealer, repeatedly told her about the gangland-style killing of a man who had dealings with the Mendozas, the Corpus Christi woman said.

Mrs. Mendoza named Young as the man who threatened her and her family and forced them to participate in heroin sales.

The Mendozas are being held in the Bexar County jail here in lieu of $1.5 million each.

The $1.5 million hospital is equipped with an emergency room, delivery room, intensive care unit, and a nursery with three bassinets.

Lubbock Amtrak route revived

LUBBOCK - Lubbock business leaders are hopeful interest can be revived in a proposed Amtrak route through Lubbock to the West Coast.

Furthermore, they reason the fact that a Southerner is now in the White House will not damage their chances for getting the rail service a bit.

Amtrak, the federal rail system which some critics regard as a boondoggle, has been approached for the past two years about the possibility of passenger service from Savannah, Ga., to Los Angeles.

Amtrak rejected all overtures for such a plan both in 1975 and 1976, despite vocal support for such an undertaking in major cities along the route.

Bill Rusk, chairman of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's Transportation and Affairs Committee, was quoted as saying:

"The proposal is still alive, it's still in the hopper. We hope to put new life into it this year."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.) is supporting a proposal to extend Amtrak service through Lubbock.

The Bentsen-backed plan would head west through these metropolitan areas: Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; Monroe and Shreveport, La.; Dallas, Fort Worth, Abilene, Sweetwater and Lubbock, Tex.; Clovis, Belen and Gallup, N.M.; Flagstaff and Kingman, Ariz.; and Barstow, Calif. The terminal point would be Los Angeles.

Amtrak reportedly turned down the proposal due to low projections on revenues from the southern trans-continental run. The board simply felt the proposed route would not attract enough passengers.

One man linked to six capers

MIDLAND - Midland police reason they could clear up at least six robbery cases here with the arrest of one man. That continues to pose a problem, however.

The modus operandi used by the individual who held up the La Bodega Restaurant here Saturday night, escaping with $1,000, is similar to that used in the holdup of two motels, a bus station and two taxi drivers.

In each robbery, the bandit has indicated he had a gun in his pocket, but none of the victims has reported seeing a weapon.

In the robbery of the restaurant Saturday night, customers in the place at the time told police they were not even aware a robbery was taking place. The incident occurred shortly after 10 p.m.

The bandit has been described as a black man, weighing about 145 pounds, 5-7 in height, about 20 years of age and wearing a light-colored jacket and work trousers.

Senator kidnaped? 'Seeking sex' claim denied

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A man and woman charged in connection with the alleged robbery and kidnaping of an Oklahoma state senator were expected to be returned here late today by Oklahoma officers.

The two were identified by Oklahoma authorities as John Gary III, 32, and Judith Marie Owen, 21. But authorities in Amarillo, Tex., where the two were being held, said the woman's real name is Judy Rogers. They said she uses Owen as an alias.

The Tulsa Tribune said Tuesday that the Owen-Rogers woman has told authorities that Sen. Bob Shatwell came to her apartment "seeking sex" and was not abducted, as he claims.

Shatwell denied the allegation, saying, "Of course, it's a lie." Police in Tulsa, Amarillo and Osage County, Okla., told other news organizations they were not the source of the statements attributed to the accused woman in the Tribune story. The newspaper did not specifically identify the source of its information.

Shatwell claims he was kidnaped from his car in West Tulsa Friday and driven blindfolded and bound to an apartment complex in North Tulsa where he was attacked and robbed.

The woman accused in connection with the alleged incident "reportedly admitted that Shatwell was beaten by her boyfriend, robbed and slashed, but claimed it was only after Shatwell said 'obscene' things to her," the Tribune said.

Meanwhile, two residents of the apartment complex where Shatwell was found have told authorities that a man matching Shatwell's appearance made two visits on the afternoon of the alleged kidnaping to the apartment where he was found.

John Cooper and Debbie Butler, residents of the Osage Hill Apartments, said they saw a man whose physical appearance, dress and car matched that of the state senator visiting the apartment during the same time span he told authorities he was being abducted.

Shatwell has denied he was ever at the apartment, however, before being taken there at gunpoint and left bound and beaten inside a locked closet by his abductors.

Shatwell said he had made eight or 10 business calls that afternoon that he was prepared to document.

"No way that it would be possible that I could have been at the complex earlier in the day," Shatwell said.

In a police report discovered Tuesday, a Tulsa policeman said he saw Shatwell on two occasions in January enter the apartment building where he was found after the alleged abduction.

The Owen-Rogers woman and Gary were charged Tuesday by Osage County, Okla. authorities with robbery by force in connection with the alleged robbery and abduction of Shatwell.

The two were arrested Sunday in Amarillo. They were arraigned in Amarillo Tuesday before Justice of the Peace Cliff Roberts on fugitive charges.

Ex-socialite

is arraigned on theft count

DALLAS (AP) — Margaret Medders, who once parlayed rumors she was a Spindletop oil heiress into a lavish social life, was in the Dallas County Jail's hospital ward today after being arraigned on theft charges.

The charges stemmed from an unpaid $14,485 bill at a Dallas hotel last May and June.

Mrs. Medders was arrested in Los Angeles six days ago and she waived extradition from California Monday. Three Dallas County sheriff's deputies brought her back here Tuesday although it was initially reported that it would be a week before she returned to Texas.

Justice of the Peace Tom Naylor arraigned Mrs. Medders, 58, on charges of theft of services over $200 and theft over $10,000 and set bond of $20,000.

She was taken Tuesday night to the hospital ward of the county Jail and she was to be examined to determine whether she should remain there or be transferred to a regular section of the jail.

She was believed to be taking medication for a heart ailment.

Mrs. Medders and her late husband, Ernest Medders, bought their way into Texas society in the 1960s on a fortune in credit not backed by cash.

The couple had convinced their Muenster, Tex., neighbors, friends and bankers that they were heirs to the Spindletop oil fortune and were lent millions of dollars on that assumption.

The paper empire collapsed under millions of dollars in debts in 1967 when a relative filed suit demanding to know their source of income.
