

APPLE BLOSSOM SPECIAL — Though the weather has turned nasty again, Big Springers had a hint of springs to come near the end of last week. The sunshiney weather and the early spring blossoms brought a smile to the face of Janet Coffman, 200 E. 24th, and maybe thoughts of the season when a young man's fancy turns to love.

Hundreds strangled, clubbed to death?

Slaughter in Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A Ugandan refugee was quoted Saturday saying hundreds of Langi tribesmen suspected of plotting against Uganda's President Idi Amin were strangled and clubbed to death Feb. 18 at Kampala's military police headquarters.

Geoffrey Mugabi said in an interview with the independent Daily Nation newspaper that he was in the prison the night of the slaughter, and the next day he and other prisoners spent six hours loading the mangled and crushed bodies into trucks.

"All the heads had been smashed in, and the floor was littered with eyes and teeth," Mugabi was quoted saying. "During the previous night we did not hear any shots, only some thudding noises from the adjoining rooms."

"We heard short cries and then sudden silence. I think the victims were strangled and then had their heads smashed."

Mugabi, a craftsman who said he had been living in the Kampala suburb of Kisenyi, said he was seized by Amin's security forces Feb. 17 and thrown in a cell at the Makindye military police headquarters because he once had been a supporter of the party led by former President Milton Obote, the man Amin overthrew in January 1971.

He said he was freed three days later.

Mugabi's story was the latest in a swelling flow of unconfirmed reports from Uganda that thousands of people, primarily members of the northern Langi and Acholi tribes, have been slaughtered since Amin claimed he uncovered and crushed a plot to overthrow him two weeks ago.

According to the Ugandan strongman, the plot was masterminded by Obote and centered among the predominantly Christian Langis and Acholis.

The reports, and particularly the death of Anglican Archbishop Janani Lurum in what the government said was an auto accident, have drawn howls of outrage from around the world.

Amid the mounting tension, Amin on Friday ordered all the Americans in Uganda — about 240 persons, many of them missionaries — not to leave the country and to meet with him Monday at 11 a.m.

Despite official Ugandan assurances that the Americans were in no danger, a White House spokesman said the United States would do "whatever is necessary" to save them if their lives are threatened.

1,000 Cuban troops arrive?

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A high-level Cuban military team and up to 1,000 Cuban troops have arrived in Uganda, whose President Idi Amin has ordered an estimated 240 Americans not to leave the country, two Kenyan newspapers reported Saturday.

But usually reliable diplomatic sources in Uganda discounted the reports of Cuban troops in Uganda, and other sources said it would be difficult for such troops to enter Uganda in any numbers.

The reports appeared in the Standard and the Sunday Nation, two independently owned circulation rivals in Nairobi. Both papers support the Kenyan government, which has been involved in a series of disputes with Amin, and are not regarded as totally accurate on reports concerning Uganda.

OPERATION "HIGHROLLER" — A fencing operation run by police and the FBI for 14 months has recovered $2 million in stolen jewelry, securities, luxury cars and antiques, authorities announced Saturday. One of the items purchased was an irreplaceable antique mirror, top, that had been stolen from the U.S. Capitol. Other items included statues, paintings, weapons, watches and securities, bottom.

Alice students may strike it rich again

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — Percy Garcia, 16, and Dean Bridges, 15, who found half a million dollars in the ground, did not know how to handle it and finally had it taken by police, may strike it rich again.

"What the Internal Revenue has taken, Hollywood will return," says Antonio Santillan, a Los Angeles movie producer who has the two youths under contract for rights to a movie. It will be based on the bizarre events that followed the day in January when the two boys dug the money out of the ground on a farm run by Bridges' father.

Garcia and Bridges, two Alice High School sophomores, took off on a spending spree that ended two days later when police stopped them in Waco, 200 miles from Alice, for a traffic violation.

Santillan, who says he produced "Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry," hopes to make a 20th Century Huckleberry Finn version.

Authorities are still trying to determine the origin of the money. Bridges' father, James Hiroms, (Bridges lives with his stepfather) has chosen to go to jail rather than answer questions about it and investigators speculate that it could be "drug money." The IRS has placed a $300,000 on the money which now rests in a Waco bank.

Bridges said he got into a fight with his father, decided to run away, went to Garcia's home and asked him to go with him. The two went to the ranch where Bridges had "seen someone bury something months earlier" and dug up an ice chest with the money.

Then, they tried to get as far away from Alice as they could. They were stopped driving a brand new car, carrying a pistol and a small amount of marijuana and $486,000 in two suitcases.

Hearts 'n flowers — Good therapy

It is not surprising that some of us rally to the principle of putting thought into print. By defining to the world how we can coax order out of chaos or by offering counsel to star-crossed people, we probably spare ourselves regular sessions with those unique doctors who specialize in rearranging and tranquilizing their clients' minds.

Writing can be a most effective therapy, even though most of us are prone to stumble over our own syntax and are totally ineffective at making our rationale flow through our fingers onto parchment. What we think we mean and what we offer as social currency, lamentably and all too often, are oceans removed.

The crime rate probably wouldn't diminish much even if some of the hardened artery opted for working in the literary vineyards. On the other hand, the incidence of mischief would most certainly rise dramatically if some of the wordsmiths were deprived of the opportunity to write down what inspiration dictates, be it about the price of cabbage or the declining regard for America in Mozambique.

For some of us, there are times when a typewriter or a pencil seemingly is the only friend we have.

One often comes to think that he is writing solely for an audience of one, yet the exercise is soul food because it restores a balance to things that might otherwise be impossible to achieve.

It appears now that Big Spring, more properly the St. Mary's Episcopal Retirement Home board, will get its $2,760,000 apartment complex, but there was a time a few weeks ago that agents for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (influenced almost wholly by stories concerning the future of Webb AFB) had just about decided to withdraw an endorsement of the complex.

Members of the St. Mary's Retirement Home board were informed of that possibility when they sat down with HUD representatives.

It became the trustees' job to resell HUD on the fact that such an undertaking would stimulate rather than depress the economy here. Obviously, they did their job well. Guilford Jones III, the Rev. Harland Birdwell and Ralph Mahoney deserve kudos for keeping the idea of a retirement complex alive.

Farmers union backs Texas refinery tax

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Farmers Union endorsed on Saturday a proposal to substitute a refinery tax for property taxes to pay the operating expenses — including teacher salaries — of public schools.

Influential conservative House and Senate members made the two-pronged proposal earlier in the week.

It consists of a constitutional amendment to prohibit the use of property taxes for school operations and a bill imposing a five per cent tax on crude oil bought by refineries.

Jay Naman, president of the farmers organization, issued a statement estimating the tax would amount to 1.5 cents per gallon and calling it "a positive step in the direction of tax and educational equity."

Sen. Bill Moore of Bryan failed Thursday to get the votes needed to bring up the constitutional amendment in the Senate but is expected to try again after mid-March. Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he is studying the proposal and has not yet decided whether it amounts to a new tax — something he has sworn to veto.

"All property owners, particularly farmers and ranchers, can no longer bear the total responsibility of public education. Our present ad valorem tax system is unfair to both landowners and the children in public schools," Naman said.

"The refinery tax is a superior source of taxation to support public education. Most of the load will fall on out-of-state consumers of Texas energy who are now escaping taxation. It will give overburdened ad valorem tax payers a considerable relief."

Oil companies have opposed the plan, however, saying it might drive refineries and petrochemical plants out of Texas.

Fed arrest warrants out for 16 persons

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fencing operation run by police and the FBI for 14 months has recovered $2 million in stolen jewelry, securities, luxury cars and antiques, authorities announced Saturday. Federal arrest warrants were issued for 16 persons in five East Coast states.

The operation was conducted over 14 months from a $1,500-a-month hotel room in the plush Shoreham Americana hotel. Among the 64 expensive items purchased were such items as an irreplaceable antique mirror that had been stolen from the U.S. Capitol, $220,000 in municipal and corporate securities and a tractor-trailer with a load of over 1,000 cases of liquor.

The bogus fencing operation was the third conducted by law enforcement agencies in Washington in the last year. The others have resulted in 330 arrest warrants and 200 convictions.

The first operation was known as "The Sting" and the second as "GYA" for "Got You Again." The operation disclosed Saturday, which ran concurrently with the others, was called "Highroller."

The completion of Highroller was announced by Nick F. Stames, agent in charge of the Washington FBI office; Maurice Cullinane, Washington's police chief; and Earl J. Silbert, U.S. attorney.

"Some of the information we gathered will be invaluable to the Federal Bureau of Investigation because we have been able to penetrate organized crime," said Cullinane.

"The hotel suite was used for the entire 14 months, but some of the transactions were in other jurisdictions. We went from North Carolina to New York and all the states in between," he said.

Cullinane said three men were arrested in Washington Saturday after they had made appointments to sell stolen goods to undercover police.

All 16 warrants charge interstate transportation of stolen goods, which is punishable by a maximum 10 years in prison.

The entire operation cost $169,000, including the $21,000 for the hotel suite. Silbert said informers told the police and FBI when an expensive item was for sale and the subsequent deals in the hotel room were recorded by television, audio tapes or both.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: It's the law

Q. Who decides how someone is sentenced? It seems that some criminals get long sentences for lesser crimes while dangerous criminals such as child abusers, violent criminals, and people who commit crimes against children in their homes receive light sentences.

A. District Court Judge Ralph Caton replied, "In major crimes, such as first degree felonies, the jury is almost always asked to set the sentence. They are informed of the parameters of the law, and must arrive at a unanimous verdict. The parameters for a first-degree felony are from 5 years to 99 or life." In other words, the people set the sentence.

Offbeat: Man with 'Feetish' stomped

ATLANTA (AP) — A man who police say used to "get his kicks" from stepping on women's toes in Nashville, Tenn., has been arrested on charges of doing the same thing in downtown Atlanta.

A spokesman for the Nashville-Davidson County Metro Police said George Mitchell, 28, of Nashville — arrested Thursday in Atlanta — used to be the "foot stomper" of Nashville.

Mitchell was sentenced several times to the county workhouse for offenses similar to those for which he was arrested in Atlanta, the spokesman said.

Atlanta police officer G.K. Tyler arrested Mitchell after he said he saw Mitchell stare into a woman's eyes, then crash the heel of his platform shoe onto her foot as she stood on a downtown street.

Atlanta police said at least 20 women have reported similar attacks.

"The only reason he ever told us (for stomping on women's feet) is that he just got his kicks that way," said Paul Uselton, assistant chief of the Nashville police.

Atlanta police filed 12 charges of simple battery against Mitchell on Friday. A spokesman said aggravated assault charges also will be brought because some victims suffered severe injuries, including broken toes and deep cuts.

Honest man found

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An unemployed man admitted he was tempted to keep the wallet he found containing $900, but he turned it in saying, "there are just too few honest people left."
If anybody needed the money, James J. Quinn, 25, did. Quinn has been laid off since Dec. 27, and his wife is expecting a baby in May.
For the past week and a half, Quinn has been working as a ditch cleaner for the Ohio Department of Transportation. But he'll be out of work again Monday when the federally funded program ends.
Quinn and a fellow worker Mark Gossard, 19, of Spencerville, were cleaning a ditch on U.S. 30 near Beaver Dam when they found the wallet Thursday.
The owner's name was inside the billfold.
"I wouldn't feel right about spending it," said Quinn. "The guy might be in financial trouble like I am."
The state highway patrol is holding the wallet while efforts are made to locate its owner.

11 die in Moscow fire

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officials identified at least 11 people who died in a Friday night fire at Moscow's mammoth Hotel Rossia and some 20 other bodies were unofficially reported as still unidentified, Western diplomatic sources said Saturday.
Officials at the 3,200-room hotel showed diplomats a list of 11 dead Soviet and East European citizens. There were no Americans or West Europeans on the list and reports in diplomatic circles said no Westerners were believed to have been killed in the fire.
About 100 people, mostly non-Westerners, were listed as injured in the fire, which ravaged the giant hotel's north wing and damaged a central tower.
Repair crews using six crane trucks worked through a sleet storm Saturday to replace exploded windows in the fire-blackened wing, still draped with sheets and ropes some guests used in attempts to get to lower balconies.

Congressional travel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Clement J. Zablocki Saturday issued guidelines for foreign travel by members of his House International Relations Committee to "promote public confidence in the integrity of those missions."
The Wisconsin Democrat said the purpose of his guidelines is to insure that they are businesslike and "according to high ethical standards."
Zablocki said it is necessary for members of his committee to travel for, among other reasons, checking how foreign aid is spent in many countries.
He said he would encourage Democrats and Republicans to travel together and in numbers instead of alone and he said costs of all overseas trips in the future will be made public along with their purpose.
Zablocki said he or ranking Republican Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan would have to approve in advance all the travel for committee business.
Members will have to make a report to the chairman about each trip and, where appropriate, this will be made public.

Profit-making nursing homes

Mistreatment of aged?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Charging that older Americans living in nursing homes face widespread "patterns of abuse," the AFL-CIO called on Saturday for an end to profitmaking nursing homes.
"Profit must be eliminated from the industry if its problems are to be corrected," the labor organization said in a report on a year-long study. The AFL-CIO suggested the gradual replacement of profit-making homes with non-profit or government-run homes.
"The facts are that non-profit nursing homes spend more on patient care and more on staffing than profit-making institutions and the results are evidenced in better care for nursing home residents," the report said.
The 14 million-member federation said inspections of nursing homes by its state affiliates, along with official government reports, showed negligence leading to death and injury, unsanitary conditions, improper medical care, inadequate control of drugs, reprisals against those who complain and widescale profiteering.

The study said that most of the problems were found in profit-making institutions.
The findings, in a 39-page report to the AFL-CIO executive council meeting here, also "revealed much that should be commended in terms of humane, compassionate treatment found throughout the industry."
But the study declared that "the case for broad-scale governmental action is compelling."
While federal standards exist for nursing homes, the report said enforcement is left almost entirely to the states, which have varying degrees of commitment.
In Michigan, for example, the report said "standards for pet stores are more stringently enforced than those for nursing homes."

"Although statutes provide that nursing homes failing to comply with standards are subject to non-renewal, suspension or revocation of licenses, this is rarely the outcome," the report said.
"Repeated citations for violations gather dust, and facilities are allowed to remain in business because of timid law enforcement, a complicated and unnecessarily cumbersome revocation process, and an unwarranted emphasis on the 'rights' of nursing home operators to the detriment of the rights of patients."
The report recommended:

—Comprehensive revision of federal standards that emphasize patient care. The answer is not in more regulations, but in making existing regulations clear and enforcing them swiftly, it said.
—Federal inspections for Medicaid certification, a procedure now left to the states.
—Legislation making abuse, neglect or mistreatment of a Medicare or Medicaid patient resulting in injury or death a federal criminal offense.
—Legislation barring nursing home operators from receiving federal funds if convicted of neglect, mistreatment or abuse of a Medicare or Medicaid patient.

By their parents

Children being shot, stabbed, bitten

DENVER (AP) — For more than 5 million American children, punishment at home has meant being shot, stabbed, kicked, beaten and bitten by their parents, a new nationwide survey shows.
Richard J. Gelles of the University of Rhode Island told a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science on Friday that the study showed three of every 100 parents, an estimated 1.2 million parents nationwide, have used knives and guns on their youngsters.

Another 1.2 million have threatened to harm their children with the weapons, he added.
And more than 80 per cent of the 1,146 parents surveyed said they sometimes spank or slap their children, said Gelles, leader of the team that took the survey.
The survey was designed to find out what leads to violence in the family and how it can be stopped, Gelles said. It included families of differing social and economic background and was among the first on a national level on violence toward children in the home.
Gelles said he drew no formal conclusions from the survey but plans to use information gathered in it to help determine causes and cures for family violence. He did not say over what period the survey was conducted or how recently it was made.

He said there is no accurate count of the number of children who die as a result of home violence each year, but he estimated there are about 700 such deaths nationwide. The U.S. Census Bureau's latest figures show 48.3 million Americans under age 14.
The survey indicated that from 3.2 million to 3.9 million children between 3 and 17 have been kicked, bitten or punched by their parents, Gelles said. An additional 1.6 million to 2.2 million have been "beaten up" during childhood, he said.
While parents often express concern about violence on television, Gelles said many of them might better be worried about how violence in the home affects their youngsters.
"While television may reinforce some of this behavior, what the child experiences in the home is much more important," he said.

Arthritis quackery pointed out

MIDLAND — "Victims of arthritis spend an estimated $485,000 a year on worthless remedies, treatments, devices and gimmicks," reports Darold Barnum, President of the El Paso Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation. "This makes these unfortunate people the most exploited of all victims of disease in the United States today."
Arthritis is "made-to-order" for the quacks because of the chronic pain and crippling it causes. Mr. Barnum related that victims often say: "I'd be better off dead than in this agonizing pain, so I'm going to try it."
Many of the arthritis quackery products and treatments are harmless, except that they waste the victim's money that would be better spent on bonafide arthritis care from a qualified physician.
Barnum urged all arthritis victims to contact the West Texas Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation or check with their doctor before trying any advertised arthritis "cure." The cure for arthritis will come from the research laboratories, he emphasized, "and your support of the Foundation's 1977 fund drive will help continue this vital research."

Local TCTA members attend meet

Five voting members of the Big Spring delegation attended the 50th annual convention of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, Feb. 17 through 19 in El Paso.
Local delegates included Jo Gresham, Gene Gresham, president-elect, Shirley Tate, secretary; Essie Person, treasurer; and Nan Howard, president.
Those who attended claimed that this was the best organized convention ever held. During the convention, voting members elected four new officers at the state level. They were: John W. King, Kermit, vice president; James S. Leeper, Midland, governmental relations; Tony Willike, Odessa, service corporation; and Roy L. Barnes, Seminole, District 18 director.
Local offices of president-elect, first vice president, secretary and treasurer have yet to be filled. Any teacher who is a member of the TCTA is urged to submit his name to Nan Howard, local president, for consideration. Candidates names will be submitted to the Executive Committee for preparation of the ballot.
Voting will take place at the last general meeting on May 9. A "Campaign Night" allowing candidates to be heard by other members is being planned. More information will be given as soon as interested candidates submit for balloting.
All TCTA members and prospective members are also urged to attend the second general meeting: 3:45 p.m. March 7, in the Big Spring High School cafeteria.

British, Irish, 'frosty'

LONDON (AP) — Relations between Britain and the Irish Republic are sinking toward their lowest ebb in years, according to officials here and in Dublin.
The two governments are locked in a string of legal, security and economic quarrels on which neither has shown much inclination to compromise.
The disputes are particularly irksome because Britain and Ireland are cooperating to crush the Irish Republican Army's "Provisional" wing, the Dublin-based guerrilla movement fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland.
"It is time for a little diplomatic balm," The Times of London urged in a recent editorial. "Cohesion in the face of the Provisional IRA's insurrectionary violence is too important an achievement to be put needlessly at risk."
Relations between the two countries have been frosty since the Irish won independence from Britain in 1921 after years of fighting.
"I'd say relations now are the worst they've been since IRA supporters burned down the British embassy five years ago," a Dublin official commented.
The embassy was set ablaze by a mob Jan. 31, 1972, amid nationwide protests over the "Bloody Sunday" killing two days earlier of 14 Roman Catholic civil rights marchers by British paratroopers in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city.
The most acrimonious dispute now is the Irish

 Going on 42 years now, Big Spring's J.T. Grantham has been a jeweler. He says most watches we're buying are now being mass-produced. We are expected to use them for a while, then replace them. Furthermore, the parts being made for them are not always reliable, says Grantham.

In other words, if your timepiece quits performing before you think it should, blame not the jeweler but the manufacturer whose income would diminish if there was not a big turnover in his product.

Grantham says that today's clocks and watches perhaps look more sophisticated than they did 30 years ago but the old ones were far more durable and reliable.

cluttering up your television programs more than ever before, but do you realize to what extent?

A recent analysis of Broadcast Advertising Reports shows a sampling of 262 TV stations ran an average of six more hours of spot commercials per week in 1976 than in 1969.

One of the longest pauses in broadcasting comes after this bit of discourse:
 "We'll be right back after this announcement."
 A headline in your family newspaper not long ago read "Dead body sits on couch 17 months." I'll make book that, by now, someone is trying for 18.

 Have you got a cigarette lighter that doesn't work? Wouldn't it make an ideal gift for someone who quit smoking?
 ***
 Does the fact that 5-9½ Jimmy Carter defeated 6-1 Gerald Ford in the last presidential election signifying the end of the 'heightism' theory?

I would propose that everyone here start a garden this spring. That prolonged drought in California, according to knowledgeable people, is going to affect that state more than any other circumstance since the Gold Rush.

And anything that affects California is going to concern the rest of the country. Keep in mind that California produces 25 per cent of all the food consumed in the United States and 40 per cent of the nation's fresh fruit and vegetables.

Nine million acres of California's farm land are irrigated. It is estimated that as much as 30 per cent of the state's farm production could be cut back if irrigation water from largely depleted federal and state reservoirs is reduced by 50 per cent.

Droughts in California have always occurred just as they have in other parts of the world. This one, though, is more ominous because far more people live in the state than ever before.

One gloomy observer believes the weather which produced California's sustained dry spell is part of a world pattern that could bring drought and famine to parts of India, China and the Soviet Union.

'Heightism' is a word coined by Saul Feldman, a sociologist at Case Western Reserve University to describe the prejudicial attitude toward short people.

Richard Nixon, shorter by 1½ inches than his Democratic opponent, George McGovern, in the presidential race five years ago, broke the trend.

Even though the shorter people are on a winning streak, the streak might not endure, according to Robert Half, who runs employment agencies around the country. Half says there is hard evidence to substantiate the claim that lack of physical stature is, far too often, interpreted to mean that he or she is also lacking in such meaningful qualities as character, personality and skill.

"Because of heightism," Half says, "people are often rewarded just because they're tall." Half used a study made at the University of Pittsburgh to back his claim.

Male graduates there who were 6-2 or taller received starting salaries 12.4 per cent higher than equally talented men who were under six feet in height. Tall men entering the education field averaged ten per cent higher salaries than their shorter fellow graduates.

Women, too, can be victims of 'heightism,' according to Half. Females under 5-3 who used Pittsburgh's educational offered starting salaries considerably less than their taller sisters.

Critics of Benjamin Disraeli invariably found themselves outmatched in their verbal fencing with the late, great English statesman. When he was taunted over his religious stance by a colleague, one Daniel O'Connell, Disraeli rose to offer this rejoinder:
 "Yes, I am a Jew; and when the ancestors of the right honorable gentleman were brutal savages in an unknown island, mine were priests in the temple of Solomon."

When John F. Kennedy fulfilled a political commitment in Dallas and was summarily dispatched by an assassin's bullets, his brother, Robert F. Kennedy, sought refuge in this eloquent passage from William Shakespeare:

*When he shall die,
 Take him and cut him out in little stars,
 That he will make the face of heaven so fine,
 That all the world will be in love with night,
 And pay no worship to the garish sun.*

Mrs. Rice accepts post

Mrs. Deanie Rice of Forsan has accepted the chairmanship of the annual Spring Special Event on behalf of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

She will be recruiting volunteers within the community to plan an entertaining activity to take place this spring.

Purpose of this special event will be to provide the community with information about cystic fibrosis and to raise funds to support research, education and care programs for children affected by cystic fibrosis, and other lung-damaging diseases like severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, and bronchiectasis.

Cystic fibrosis is the number one genetic killer of children. Approximately one in every twenty Americans is a symptomless carrier of the recessive C-F gene. Cystic fibrosis is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene. At the present time, no cure for cystic fibrosis is known.

MERKEL — Walls Industries, a clothing manufacturer, has taken over a plant formerly managed by Wilkerson, offering employment to about 85 persons.

Wilkerson had previously been closed on orders by the Small Business Administration. The government accused Wyman T. Wilkerson, owner, of failing to meet his schedule of payments on a loan he received from the SBA.

A Wilkerson plant in Anson employing 55 persons remains closed.

Walls maintains plants in Big Spring, Snyder and several other Texas communities.

Settlement hopes voiced by Clifford

LONDON (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Clark Clifford flew in from Cyprus on Saturday and said his talks with Cypriot, Greek and Turkish leaders gave him "a very real hope" for a settlement on the divided island by the end of 1977.

The 70-year-old lawyer told an airport news conference that Greek and Turkish Cypriots both said they were "prepared to get down to constructive negotiating" in talks scheduled for March 31 in Vienna.

"Each has agreed that important principles will be laid on the table and we have the very real hope that serious negotiating will begin."

Clifford is expected to stay in London until Tuesday to brief British officials before returning to Washington to report to President Carter.

Sen. Aiken: Power in Paris

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Tucked away on the east side of the Plaza in Paris, Tex., Aikin's Men's Wear has seen just about every Texas governor since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson stroll through its doors.

They come to visit the store's soft-spoken, friendly, slight co-owner. He's Sen. A.M. Aikin Jr., considered by many to be the most influential man in the Texas Senate.

Aikin, 71, has been a senator since 1937, longer than anyone else. Much of that time — "I don't know exactly how many years," says Aikin — he has been chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

When Aikin speaks, senators must strain to hear. But at least one senator says Aikin can kill or pass a bill just by voicing his views.

"When Sen. Aikin gets up in the Senate to speak against a bill, he, more than any other senator, could lead enough of us away behind him to prevent a bill from being considered," said Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz.

"The rest of us might get up and hack away at a bill, but we're not going to lead enough votes off just by speaking," added Schwartz.

"If Sen. Aikin speaks, the respect of the Senate is such that everybody strains to listen."

The son of a Lamar County storekeeper, Aikin has believed in the low-key approach since he came to the legislature as a 27-year-old state representative in 1933.

"It's not always the fellows down there making all the racket that are running the show," said Aikin, who hasn't had an opponent since 1948. "Some of the quietest people are doing most of the work."

Virtually everyone speaks in awe of Aikin's reputation for thrift, honesty, integrity and hard work. His portrait hangs in the Senate chamber.

A longtime supporter of Texas education, Aikin sponsored the 1949 Gilmer-Aikin Act and the Hale-Aikin Act 10 years later. Countless East Texas school buildings are named for him.

If anyone criticizes Aikin, they grumble about his being too thrifty or too quick to help his friends. They might accuse him of being behind the times because he votes the sentiments of his conservative, largely-rural East Texas district.

But they do it in private. "He's so respected, it's hard to find someone who'll criticize Sen. Aikin in public," said Schwartz, a liberal. "My harshest criticism of him is that sometimes he votes along with that conservative East Texas district of his when I want him to back some of my bills."

"There's not a punitive bone in his body. I wish sometimes there was. I'd like to get him after somebody sometime."

Aikin pays his own filing fees, regularly returns expense money to the state treasury and closes his office between sessions.

"Nobody wants to come down here and just visit my secretary," Aikin said. "People know they can find me at the store in Paris."

Senators marvel at Aikin's love of hard work. He's missed only two half-day sessions in 44 years — one when he went to see his youngest brother off to World War II and another to serve as a pallbearer at a friend's funeral.

After another bout with heart trouble last November, Aikin said he is trying to work shorter hours. He has his blood pressure checked daily at the Capitol first aid station, but shows no signs of weakening.

The biggest disappointment of his career, Aikin said, was his ill-fated race for lieutenant governor in 1956. He finished second to then Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey and dropped out of the runoff due to illness.

It was the first and last time he ever took political contributions.

RULED IN CONTEMPT — Riassa Nemikin, left, secretary to the Episcopal Church's National Commission on Hispanic Affairs, talks with newsmen Saturday outside U.S. District Court where she was earlier ruled in contempt for refusing to answer grand jury questions about a Puerto Rican terrorist group. But U.S. District Judge Marvin Frankel stayed his ruling until Monday to give Ms. Nemikin time to reconsider. Ms. Nemikin contends that she is a "lay minister" and that her work with persons should be considered privileged.

Meek named executive veep of Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH (AP) — Phillip J. Meek, president and publisher of the Oakland Press at Pontiac, Mich., has been named executive vice president and general manager of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Meek, 39, who will assume his duties Tuesday, succeeds James H. Hale, who recently was named chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Kansas City Star Co.

The Kansas City Star Co. was acquired Feb. 15 by Capital Cities Communications, Inc., which also owns the Star-Telegram and the Oakland Press.

"Fort Worth is a dynamic area, and I am pleased to have the opportunity to become part of this community," Meek said.

Meek said he looked forward to association with Amon Carter Jr., publisher; B. N. Honea, chairman; and Jack W. Campbell, senior vice president, all of whom will remain in their present roles.

Luther Adkins, vice president and assistant general manager, will have expanded duties and increased responsibilities with the newspaper, Meek said.

Meek, who was strongly involved in civic endeavors in Pontiac, Mich., joined Capital Cities as top executive of the 75,000-circulation Oakland Press in 1970 after a nine-year career with Ford Motor Co.

A native of Los Angeles, he grew up in Akron, Ohio, except for two years during high school when he lived in Memphis, Tenn.

He graduated magna cum laude from Ohio Wesleyan University and received master of business administration degree from Harvard Business School.

Meek began his career with Ford in 1961 as a member of the central finance staff and held various finance and marketing positions being named controller of marketing services in 1966.

There is nothing more discouraging than wood rot, which is caused by a plant-life organism similar to the fungus which causes mildew and food spoilage. Like all other plants, this organism can thrive only when moisture is present. That is why it is especially important that wood which is in contact with dampness be properly protected. In order to do this, ideally, each piece of wood should be dipped or soaked in wood preservative. When this is impractical, the preservative should be brushed or sprayed directly onto the wood. Flood the liquid on, taking special care to work it into crevices and exposed grains. You'll find that the ounce of protection is really more than worth a pound of cure.

'Are they living beyond means?'

Cong. George Mahon opposed the plan to give a tax rebate of $50 per person. Mahon of Lubbock said that he agrees that many families faced with skyrocketing utility bills could use this money, but he considers indefensible the proposal to give 95 percent of the American people a $50 tax rebate, especially since the money for this would have to be borrowed by the government.

WHEN THE TAX rebate is put in that light, it sounds kind of funny, doesn't it.

Can you imagine a high government official walking into a West Texas bank with a plan like that: "The U.S. government would like to borrow $8 billion," he might say.

Knowing West Texas bankers, I would imagine this question would come up right away: "What you-all wantin' to do with that $8 billion?"

"We plan to send 60 million American family members a tax rebate of $50," the official might answer with a straight face.

The West Texas banker might say, "Aren't you fellas up there in Washington sorta livin' in a bit beyond yore means? I see wheres yore $400 billion in the hole, and it's gettin' worse ever year."

"We have sufficient collateral," the official might counter. "We will sign over first lien to revenues from the increased gasoline tax which we will propose in April."

"NO DEAL, FELLA," the banker would most certainly respond, "why a loan like that-un would be riskier than tryin' to start a coffee plantation over there on Rotan's Double Mountain."

"You, sir, do not understand the nuances of Keynesian economics," the official would bristle in his Ivy League suit. "The $50 rebates will make 60 million American families feel suddenly richer when they go to their mailbox and discover the check. So they will dash to purchase something, and how much can one buy these days for $50? They'll spend $85. The resultant spending spree will stimulate business to produce more, invest more, hire more, and soon the economy of the nation will be so good that the government will be rolling in increased tax revenues. We shall repay you, sir, with interest."

"Get yore fancy pants outa this here bank, young fella. I done got stuck on one of the government's spend yoreself rich schemes. I ain't buyin' that ole nagagin."

"Sir, it is a no-risk proposition. If all else fails, the government can simply print the money to repay your loan, providing, o. f course, that the emergency crisis is not too acute to operate the presses."

"NOPE, I AINT gonna lend you four-bit dollars and get paid back in two. This here bank's gonna keep its money tied up in sumthin' less risky than government tax rebates," and the West Texas banker leans over to his vice president and says, "Tell old Sam that I reckon we'll make that loan on them cows after all."

Henry goes to NBC

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — NBC just signed on Henry Kissinger as a "news consultant," a performer on news specials, an occasional guest on the Today show, and an adviser to John Chancellor and David Brinkley on foreign affairs. I haven't seen the contract so I'm not certain what other matters Mr. Kissinger will handle with the network.

I SUPPOSE my biggest concern is using Henry as a foreign affairs advisor to Chancellor and Brinkley.

Since he has a vested interest in American policy that he initiated he can't be considered an unbiased observer.

I take you now to the NBC Evening News studio a few months from today. "Hello, Henry, this is John Chancellor. Brinkley is on the other extension. A dispatch just came over the wires that Dick Helms, the former director of the CIA, said you instructed him to lie to Congress about our role in Chile."

"I don't consider that a valid news story, I wouldn't use it."

"But CBS and ABC will use it."

"That's because they don't have all the facts. When my book comes out I will explain exactly what I said to Helms."

"Henry, this is Brinkley. Sen. Henry Jackson says that the Soviets are not living up to the Helsinki accords and your policy of détente was a disaster."

"I would be very wary of putting Jackson on the show. He hates me."

"But it's a legitimate news story."

"I BELIEVE I've had more experience in foreign affairs than you gentlemen have had, and I say it's not a news story. What facts does he have for backing it up?"

"The Russians are violating the human rights agreement."

"That's all?"

"Henry, this is Chancellor. Secretary of State Vance held a press conference in which he said shuttle diplomacy had lost its value, and he intends to use his ambassadors to negotiate agreements with foreign governments and the United States. We thought we'd use three minutes of it."

"Did he attack me personally?"

"No, but David and I consider that this is a criticism of your method of operating when you were at State."

"This is serious. What do you have on Vance?"

"We don't have anything on Vance."

"Well, get something on him. What kind of news organization do you have over there?"

"HENRY, THIS is Brinkley. We're only half an hour from air time and you've just knocked down three of our stories. All we have left in foreign affairs is that the President of Pakistan intends to visit the United States this summer."

"That's good. I think you should lead with it."

"It's not much of a story."

"That's because you've never been to Pakistan. Pakistan is the gateway to China. China is an enemy of the Soviets. The Soviets will wonder why we have invited the President of Pakistan to visit Washington."

"If we can keep them guessing from doing something that could wreck NATO. It will also strengthen our position in the Middle East and Africa."

"Chancellor's writing all this down, Henry. There's one more thing, AP says that Mort Halperin, who is suing you for tapping his phone, says you've been stalling on giving a deposition to his lawyers."

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

PAINTED BARN SIGNS

I don't know much about the history of barn signs but I do know there used to be quite a few dotting the country side. While most were simple in both wording and detail, some were very elaborate scenes or murals. Close inspection would reveal that paintings of lesser quality have found their way into museums of fine art.

Advertisers saw advantages to putting signs on barns instead of regular billboards mainly because the barn was already there but also because the advertiser wouldn't have to worry with the upkeep of the structure. The advantage to the owner of the barn was that he would get a few dollars lease money from the advertiser and a free coat of paint for that side of his barn.

Some advertisers, particularly during hard times, paid the leases with quantities of their product. The farmer was usually very particular as to whether the product itself met with his approval. If a man didn't hold with smoking or dipping he certainly wouldn't permit a tobacco advertisement to be placed on his barn since friends and neighbors naturally would associate the product with the barn's owner.

Some of the brand names we used to see have faded away into history but others are still around, popular as ever. One I remember was the earth with paint covering it, dripping down the sides.

"Good to the last drop" and "When it rains, it pours" were slogans well known then and now. There were names like Light Crust, Clabber Girl, Tinsleys, Bull Durham, Black Draught, Mrs. Tuckers — the list is endless.

Many of the old barn signs have just weathered away completely to bare wood, some have long since collapsed with their barns as age took its toll. Still others were covered over with paint as progress changed our way of life.

Faded, weathered boards that were touched with the brush of some itinerant sign painter artist half a century ago have become collector's items today, adorning the walls of dens, museums and places of business. Why?

Maybe because the signs represent a part of our past that is slipping away. They represent the work of unknown individuals, persons who, possibly without realizing it, touched the lives of countless individuals. Passersby were influenced as to what they wore, ate, drank, drove, smoked and did. We look at the work of the sign painter and remember a little of how life was. Possibly future generations will look at our work the same way and it may be that they will collect and preserve that part which seems worthwhile.

Dry eyes: Nagging problem of age

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told the reason my eyes are so dry is that my tear ducts are stopped up. I have been using artificial tears, but have heard that this can be corrected by surgery. Is this so? — J.E.

Not from what you have written. If the tear duct is plugged, tears continue to form but are spilled over the lids. Surgery can correct a plugged duct. However, the dry eye could result from a decrease in actual tear production, which can occur in older persons.

Or you may have Sjogren's syndrome, in which there is a drying of other mucous membranes, including those of the eyes. There is also an abnormality that develops in the lids themselves which prevents proper blinking to keep the eyeball moist.

Artificial tears help in the latter two conditions. They won't correct any of the correctible conditions (as plugged ducts) I mention above. An eye specialist would be able to pinpoint your problem and begin treatment, which may or may not include surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm enclosing 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your gout booklet. I hope it covers various medications. I have heard you must not take aspirin with gout drugs. True or false? — Mrs. U.I.

The gout booklet contains a length section on drugs. As to aspirin, it should not be taken if you are taking probenecid, one of the control drugs. Any salicylate will interfere with its action. Incidentally, citrates should be avoided with sulfinpyrazone, another gout medication.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had surgery for fissures and anal stenosis five months ago. The area is easily irritated. Two questions: Is this a permanent after-effect of the surgery? What limits should I put on the use of cortisone ointments? — Mrs. F.B.

Anal fissure is a painful split in the membrane at the outer margin of the anal passage. Stenosis means there is narrowing of the passage, which can be produced by fissure scars.

The main after-effects of surgery to correct this would be scar formation with some narrowing. Periodic dilation may be in order, as well as an increase of bulk in your diet to help keep the muscles active. The condition need not be permanent. That is why you had the surgery to begin with, to take care of the narrowing.

Continued prolonged use of the ointment would be determined by your own doctor, based on effects and your needs. Prolonged use may have the same effects as would cortisone in any form. From the sound of your letter, I'd say you need some follow-up attention.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Several years ago I had a throat infection and later my hearing was affected. Could it be from that trouble? Also, does it require treatment? I had a hearing test made also. — Mrs. K.N.

It is possible that the throat infection affected the Eustachian tubes. Plugged tubes can be treated.

However, the hearing tests should have given you some clue as to this, and it is strange you were not advised at the time. There are numerous possible causes of hearing loss unrelated to the Eustachian tubes. That sort of trouble could be easily determined.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Silly question. Does the water in the soda pop serve the same purpose as water from the tap? — Mrs. S.H.

The only silly questions are those that go unasked. Water is water and the body doesn't mind in what form it gets it. It's what's added to the water that counts — sugar, colorings, etc.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Someone has told me that anyone who has a liver condition should never eat liver. Is there any truth in this? — Mrs. R.G.

Only if the blood cholesterol is elevated. Liver is high in cholesterol. I presume that by the term "liver condition" you mean hepatitis or cirrhosis.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our problem is one of the ministers in our church. He has recently become very interested in the work of the Holy Spirit, and now virtually every sermon and every Bible study deals only with the Holy Spirit. Do you think this is right? — Mrs. R.E.

DEAR MRS. E.: For many years, it seemed the work of the Holy Spirit was almost neglected by many Christians. This was not only unfortunate, it was wrong, because Scripture frequently tells us about the power and comfort that are ours through the Spirit.

However, it sounds like the pendulum has gone to the opposite extreme in your situation. The Bible tells us to avoid concentrating on one aspect of God's truth to the virtual neglect of other equally important truths.

When Paul reviewed his ministry in Ephesus he could say, "For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God" (Acts 20:27). Paul also urged the young preacher Timothy to declare every truth God has given us (II Timothy 4:1-2).

In addition, we should remember that Jesus told His disciples that the Holy Spirit would not call attention to Himself, but would instead point people to Christ: "But when the Comforter is come... he shall testify of me" (John 15:26).

Since you indicate there are other ministers on your church's staff, you may want to bring this to their attention, as they may not be aware of it. In the meantime, try to look on the positive side. It may be that God will challenge you and others in the church to yield your lives more completely to the Spirit's control.

Charge denied

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Jerry McAfee is an affable, avuncular fellow, with a benign face, who looks more like a minister than an oil tycoon. As chairman of the mighty Gulf Oil Corporation, he took offense at our recent charge that Gulf had withheld natural gas from its lower-paying customers.

We wrote in the February 14 column that Gulf in 1971 began cutting back the flow to Texas Eastern, a giant pipeline serving 16 states. Yet the oil company, we suggested naughtily, "seemed to have plenty of gas to sell other customers at higher prices."

THE ABC TELEVISION network invited McAfee to confront me on the "Good Morning America show." "By golly," said the friendly oilman, "we have been producing every cubic foot of gas that we've been able to. Our people have been working overtime day and night."

I noted that Gulf had contracted to pump 625 million cubic feet of gas into the pipeline every day but that the actual deliveries had been closer to 400 million cubic feet.

"The temporary shortfall that has been involved has been the result of circumstances beyond our control," he explained.

I read to him the verdict of an administrative law judge, suggesting that Gulf withheld "gas from the interstate market until the price has been driven up in violation of federal anti-trust laws."

"We thoroughly, emphatically, completely dispute it," said McAfee. "Isn't it true...?" I asked, "that at the same time you've been withholding this gas from Texas Eastern — gas that you would have been required under the contract to sell at a very cheap rate — you had been selling gas at far more expensive rates to other consumers?"

"The gas that we've been selling intrastate Texas," McAfee said, "has been gas that's completely outside the Texas Eastern supply area."

I pointed out that Gulf had an "unconditional contract" with Texas Eastern, not limited to any specific supply area. "In other words," I suggested, "you have plenty of gas as long as the price is right."

"No, that's wrong," protested McAfee. He repeated that the "contract calls for us to deliver gas to the Texas Eastern Company from a particular area. We are doing that."

THE BRIEF DEBATE goes to the heart of the natural gas controversy — that is, the nagging public suspicion that the oil companies have been holding back gas for higher prices.

Now the House Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., has added its voice to the controversy. In a detailed report today on the Gulf Oil case, the subcommittee has totally confirmed our findings.

The report charges that "Gulf has failed to meet its contractual... obligation to deliver full contract volumes to Texas Eastern," yet at the same time, "Gulf has made other natural gas sales at higher prices during the time it has been underdelivering to Texas Eastern."

Adds the document sternly: "Gulf and Texas Eastern may have engaged in a conspiracy in violation of federal law to withhold gas from the interstate market until the price is right."

The reason the company failed to deliver all the gas it has promised, according to the report, was "a failure to develop the many leases it already had."

The subcommittee points out that the company "expended only an average of $15 million annually in Texas and Southern Louisiana on gas exploration." The congressman considered this to be petty change compared to the $140 million that Gulf rakes in from interstate gas sales each year.

Concludes the report: "Gulf has violated the Natural Gas Act by failing to meet its commitment to deliver 625 million cubic feet per day to Texas Eastern."

SHOT IN STOMACH — Monty Gene Dodson, 2105 Carl, is placed onto a stretcher by Alert Ambulance officials after his .22-caliber pistol discharged hitting him in the stomach, 12:35 p.m. Friday. Two empty shells were found by police in the chamber of Dodson's gun. The other shot had been fired into a wooden box on the floor of Dodson's apartment.

Police beat Bandit suspect jailed

Terry Wayne Harris, 22, 1410 Robin, was returned to Big Spring Saturday on a warrant issued for aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon.

Harris is suspected of pulling the armed heist of the Seven-Eleven Store, Birdwell and FM 700, on the night of Jan. 19. At 11:18 p.m. that day, a man matching Harris' description held a small caliber pistol on the clerk of the store while he made off with $47 from the cash register.

A copy of the warrant for Harris' arrest was sent to Memphis, Texas where the suspect is known to have relatives. He was picked up by police there Friday. The suspect is now in custody in municipal jail. Bond had not been set as of late Saturday afternoon.

Burglars broke into the home of Dorothy D. Mackie, 1010 S. Goliad, between 6 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday and made off with $3,205 worth of cash and jewelry.

According to reports, the intruders entered the home through the back door and made their way to the bedroom. Once inside, they loaded up $500 in cash, all twenties, a $750 watch, an $800 topaz ring, a $200 gold band, a gold necklace and another small ring. Burglars also hit the Ebony Club, 311 NW 4th, and stole a banquet's worth of merchandise between midnight Friday and 1:15 a.m. Saturday.

Stolen were eight cases of beer, a case of hot sausages, a case of Beef Stix, a case of pig's feet, a case of peanuts and four quarts of wine. Total loss was estimated at $1,495.00.

Birdie I. Westbrook, 801 Marcy, reported the burglary of a CB radio, a pair of gloves and two cartons of cigarettes from his car between 5:25 and 8 p.m. Friday. The car was parked in front of his apartment. Loss was estimated at $165.

Another CB was ripped off from a company vehicle parked at the Quality Truck Tire Store, 2114 W. 3rd, sometime Friday night. The radio was valued at $150.

A CB antenna was stolen from a car belonging to Gary Lee Cole 3311 11th, while it was parked in front of the Big Spring Bowlarama Friday night. The antenna was valued at $30.

Pay opener indicated, re-entry scheduled

A pay opener has been indicated in Howard County and a re-entry scheduled in Andrews County in this area of the oil patch.

An unidentified discovery, probably Spraberry, was indicated in Howard County, with the pumping of 33.12 barrels of oil in 24 hours at Great Western Drilling Co., Midland, No. 1 Granttham, in 8-33-2n-T&P, re-entered opener one location east of the recent re-opener of the Knott, West (Pennsylvanian reef oil) field of Dawson County, two miles northeast of Knott.

Recovery was through perforations at 6,827-7,031 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 52,000 gallons and 79,000 pounds of sand. Testing continued. Drilled to 9,120 feet it was finished March 14, 1974 for 75 barrels of 42.6 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 1,773-1 through a 13-64-inch choke and perforations at 9,086-106 feet. It topped the Spraberry at 6,532 feet and the Dean at 7,800 feet.

IN ANDREWS COUNTY, Amoco Production Co. filed application to plug back to 11,000 feet for recompletion attempt as a sixth Devonian gas producer in the Midland Farms multiphase field at its No. 202-AKL Midland Farms, presently an Ellenburger oil producer in the Inez multiphase field of Andrews County, 16 mile south of Andrews.

Location is 1,911 feet from the south and 530 feet from the east lines of 41-41 in G&MMB&A. The project shows to be completed as a gas producer on the new maps.

Workshop is designed to provide business tips

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), the Odessa Chapter of SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives), Howard College, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, and the County Agricultural Extension Service will co-sponsor a one-day workshop for small business owners-manager, Philip J. O'Jibway, Lubbock district director of SBA, has announced. The workshop will be held in Room 100 of the Science Building at Howard College Tuesday, March 8.

The workshop is designed to provide business advice and counseling by businessmen with many years of successful experience. Its purpose is to help avoid business losses by strengthening management.

The workshop will begin at 8:30 a.m., following registration at 8:00. Topics to be discussed include "Opportunities in the Big Spring Area," "Financial Planning," "Sources of Capital," "Recordkeeping," and "Business Regulations, Taxes and Insurance."

There will be a fee of $3.50 for the workshop, to cover lunch ($1.50) and all materials ($2.00). Anyone interested in attending must pre-register, and may do so by calling or writing Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery at Howard College, 1001 Birdwell Lane, Big Spring, Texas, 79720; phone 267-6311, extension 31. Military personnel in uniform may attend for a fee of $1.50 for the lunch.

Farm Wet fields delaying spring planting

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Warm, open weather over Texas enabled farmers in most sections to get at land preparation with a frenzy, particularly in southern sections where field work is far behind schedule. However, wet fields are still delaying spring planting in South Texas and the Coastal Bend.

Watermelon planting has been active in southern counties and pepper and cantaloupe planting is in full swing. However, planting of cotton and sorghum has not yet started, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Potatoes, onions and watermelons are also being planted in the San Antonio-Winter Garden area, and planting of potatoes and other spring vegetables is under way in some eastern counties.

The recent favorable weather has boosted small grain growth throughout Texas, and many producers are now applying a nitrogen topdressing. Supplemental feeding is still heavy in all sections of the state. Feeder cattle prices improved in the Panhandle as wheat fields began to grow.

The open weather has allowed livestock conditions to improve although many are still suffering weight loss. Calving and lambing are active, with predators causing losses in western sections, noted Pfannstiel. Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Wheat is greening up but needs moisture. Some wheat fields are providing grazing, but supplemental feeding continues. High winds kicked up sand. Feeder cattle prices advanced one to three dollars last week. Farmers are busy getting land in shape for spring planting; this includes preplant irrigation.

SOUTH PLAINS: Wheat is providing some grazing; however, more moisture is needed for long-term growth. Some wheat is being irrigated. High winds are causing blowing sand. Land preparation continues active as farmers prepare for the spring planting season. Pasture and range conditions remain below average in most counties, with supplemental feeding of cattle active.

ROLLING PLAINS: Warmer temperatures have caused wheat to progress, with some grazing available. Some farmers are topdressing wheat with nitrogen to boost growth. Range cattle are still receiving feed. Land preparation is in full swing, with preplant herbicides being applied. Terraces are also being renovated.

NORTH CENTRAL: Small grains are improving due to warmer weather; some fields are being top-dressed with nitrogen. Farmers are preparing land for the coming planting season; this includes putting down fertilizer. Cattle are in fair condition with supplemental feeding remaining active.

NORTHEAST: Small grains are making good growth with warmer weather and good moisture conditions. Land preparation is active for spring vegetables, with some planting already in progress. Livestock feeding continues heavy. Calving is in full swing.

Others participating were J.D. Sheffield, Joe Dunn, Dwayne Smith and Thresa Smith.

Mahon urges increase in support loan rates

Cong. George Mahon was the lead-off witness at hearings on the new farm program held by the House Agriculture Committee Feb. 17. In his testimony Mahon stressed the need for improved disaster provisions and an increase in support loan rates. He also advocated an expansion of the Farmers Home Administration loan programs.

"With costs of production in modern farming operations as high as they are today there is nothing more important to farmers in West Texas than a continuation and improvement of the present disaster program," Mahon said. He expressed strong opposition to proposals whereby a Federal Crop Insurance scheme would replace the disaster program.

"The high costs of production also make it imperative that we take steps to expand the credit programs of the Farmers Home Administration," continued the congressman. "Without big agriculture there is no way to produce the volume of farm crops which have made it possible for agriculture not only to meet domestic requirements but to export farm commodities at the rate of about 20 billion dollars a year."

Mahon in his testimony insisted that any new legislation should contain an ironclad prohibition against embargoes on farm exports, citing the havoc created in the market by grain embargoes of recent years and the fact that grain prices have not yet recovered. The congressman conceded that the Committee might have insufficient time to overhaul the farm program in this session and indicated that he would not have strong objection to a one-year extension of the present program provided that it contained necessary modifications, including an increase in loan rates on farm commodities, particularly feed grains. The Agriculture Committee hearings are scheduled to continue until March 17.

Dog catcher calls it quits

ELYSIAN, Minn. (AP) — Elysian's part-time dog catcher has quit, suggesting the bark of people is worse than the threat of being bitten by dogs.

Wayne Cowdin, dog catcher at nearby Janesville, was engaged by the Elysian City Council to pick up unfettered dogs one-half day a week for three weeks.

Members thought if a few dogs were picked up, the community problem of dogs running loose might be eased.

Cowdin gave it a try. But on his second professional visit to Elysian, he had picked up two dogs when a woman resident told him off in language that would have made a sailor blush.

This past week concluded the second quarter of the 1976-77 school year. All test in high school were given on Thursday. All students of C.H.S. enjoyed a day of Friday.

Juniors, sophomores, and freshmen that were exempt from test pre-registered for next year on Thursday. All students who pre-registered are reminded to bring their registration forms by Mr. Tindol's office the first part of this week.

Thursday was the last day for Coach Copeland and Mrs. Theford to be teaching at C.H.S. Some of their classes gave them going away parties. We would like to wish both teachers good luck in their future endeavors.

Cee City is first study

ODESSA — To provide Texas with a continuing view of its changing profile, two Odessa College instructors and two Lubbock men have teamed to produce the first in a planned series of photographic studies documenting Texas county seats and their surrounding communities.

The initial volume, "Colorado City, Texas," published by Guynes Printing Company of El Paso, is now in distribution, and two of its producers, Bill Worrell, art instructor at Odessa College, and W. R. Murchison, assistant professor of journalism and photography at OC, will be available to personally autograph copies of the book at Book Haven, 203 W. 7th St., Thursday from 2-4 p.m.

Worrell and Murchison, with Jim Eppler, a Lubbock artist and musician, and Jay Johnson of Lubbock, now press agent for a state senator in Austin, worked for a year to produce the volume of photographs, which reflects varied aspects of Colorado City and its immediate areas.

Garden City Sophomores to discuss festival

By LINDA SCHWARTZ
The FTA members couldn't wait for Friday to come! At 6 a.m. on Friday morning nine members loaded the bus to travel to San Antonio for the State Convention. Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon went with the members as sponsors. At the convention the members attended sessions and workshops. The members met also in a District meeting to gather the voting delegates from our district. The Garden City chapter will also help their District to campaign for their nominee for State Financial Secretary.

The quarter final tests were taken on Thursday and Friday. On Thursday the classes ran by 5, 1, 3 period tests. Fridays schedule consisted of 2, 4, and 6 period tests.

The Sophomores met on Monday to discuss the Spring Festival. They will decide definitely on their booths at a later meeting.

The Student Council gathered to talk about attending the West Texas Forum meeting in Colorado City on March 21st.

There will be no school on Monday because of a teacher's workday. Enjoy the time off!

Westbrook Coaches attend meeting in Ira

By DANA DORN
Monday the one-act play cast had practice after school. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were test days.

Wednesday at 7 p.m. Mr. Dawson, the girls coach, Charles Parnell and boys coach Ronald Beal went to Ira for a district basketball meeting.

The one-act play cast also had practice Thursday after school.

Friday was a holiday which the students had been looking forward to. School will resume March 1 at regular time.

Bank to grow

MIDLAND — A six-story addition to West State Bank here has been approved by the Midland city council. The structure will connect to the building now being used by the bank.

Mr. South Texas tabbed

LAREDO (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill will be recognized as Mr. South Texas during the 80th annual George Washington's birthday celebration here Feb. 25.

COMIN' BACK!

Hill and his wife will be honor guests at different functions throughout the weekend. He is the 26th person selected for the honor by a celebration committee.

The attorney general was chosen in recognition of "unprecedented and distinguished public service as attorney general and for unselfish dedicated performance as the state's chief legal officer."

Hill was first elected to the post in 1972 and was re-elected in 1974 for a four-year term, polling more than 1.1 million votes. He is credited with drafting legislation that led to the passage of the 1973 Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act.

Hill was named by a Washington, D.C., magazine as the most outstanding attorney general in 1974.

Up with People!

TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 7:30 P.M.
HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

That's right! Up With People, the exhilarating group of young performers who have warmed hearts throughout the world, will be returning to Big Spring next month.

Under the sponsorship of the Big Spring Herald, a Up With People cast of more than 80 young people from every state in the nation and eight foreign countries will perform at the High School Auditorium March 8.

Last year alone, Up With People performed at the Kentucky Derby, Indianapolis 500 and as the featured halftime entertainment at Super Bowl X.

They have brought their message — "People are what matter in this world" — to nearly 600 communities throughout the world in the past year. And they have left their happy audiences numbering more than four million, believing that message is one worth celebrating.

Up With People is a non-profit, educational organization made up of some of the most dedicated and sincere young people in the world.

Besides all that, Up With People is darn good entertainment — inspirational in a way none other can be. You owe it to yourself to experience Up With People.

Tickets will be sold and seating will be limited for the performance. Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for students.

Tickets will go on sale Feb. 17, and if any tickets remain unsold on the night of the performance, they will be sold at the regular price.

Blocks of reserved seats are available for businesses, clubs or other organizations and can be reserved before the general ticket sales open. Persons interested in purchasing blocks of tickets should contact the Herald.

Coahoma girl heads group

SAN ANTONIO — Patricia Ferguson, president of the Pan American Student Forum at Coahoma High School, will head a group of chapter members to the PASF 50th anniversary state convention in San Antonio on March 10, 11 and 12.

This will be the largest convention PASF has ever had, with much emphasis being placed on the fact the organization is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

More than 5,000 students — about half of the PASF membership — from 200 Texas chapters are expected to attend.

Speaker of the Texas House Bill Clayton of Springlake, will be the featured speaker, on Friday, March 11.

Energy Planning could triple reserves

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — J. Hugh Liedtke says proper planning could triple the natural gas reserves available for priority human needs.

"Natural gas supplies can be made to last a very long time, depending on what you do," said the chairman of Pennzoil Co.

Liedtke said natural gas now furnishes about 30 percent of the nation's energy and that about 25 to 30 percent of the gas is consumed in homes, hospitals, and schools. Another 5 percent or so, he said, is "process gas" used as a raw material for such products as fertilizers.

"The balance is pretty well used as boiler fuel," he said. "So if you were to foster the elimination of the boiler fuel use and go to fuel oil temporarily and ultimately to coal, you would triple your reserves automatically for the highest uses. They could last until the turn of the century."

Liedtke said the Federal Power Commission has the expertise to resolve the current controversies over the true extent of the nation's natural gas reserves and whether reserves are being withheld for higher prices.

"And the FPC certainly is not dominated by the oil industry by any stretch of the imagination," he said.

"I think really that all these accusations emanate from a desire by a group of people who were the instigators of the present pricing policy which this country has had for something like 23 years. It is a policy which has failed. It has been a national disaster."

Liedtke said these same people still are convinced the price control system is proper policy.

"But rather than let the debate center on true policy considerations we have all these diversionary rabbit curls which really keep the public's mind focused on something rather than the real issue," he said.

Liedtke said he has "a lot of friends who think that all we do is go around rat-holing gas and not telling the facts about reserves."

"It is a whole of a problem but one thing that impresses me is there has never been a real forum where you can discuss the problem," he said.

"You can't really, on three or four minutes, of television get into a debate with Mr. (Ralph) Nader or someone similar. They'll ask you a question and there will be three questions and five accusations and by the time you've handled that, the issue hasn't a chance and your time is up."

should be permitted to go to its true economic level on a BTU value, he said, industry would switch to the cheapest, coal, and people would turn down their thermostats because it would be economically attractive to conserve.

"You will really get three things," he said. "You will get conservation through proper price mechanism, you will get more supplies because you could produce gas that currently is not economically feasible, and you will get coal development because it will be cheaper than gas."

Cosden, Goodrich contract finalized

A joint venture to manufacture and market Apon ABS thermoplastics has been finalized in an agreement signed by M.D. McClusky, president of the B.F. Goodrich Company's Chemical Division, and Ken W. Perry, president of Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. Cosden is a wholly owned subsidiary of American Petrofina, Inc. The agreement calls for formation of Abtec Chemical Co. to be owned equally by the venture partners. It will begin operations March 1 from temporary headquarters in Independence, Ohio.

Officers of the new company were announced as A.L. Hatfield, president;

Roy E. Hughes, executive vice-president; David S. Devendorf, treasurer and Calvin L. Daniels, secretary. Hatfield had been with the international department of Goodrich Chemical while Devendorf is treasurer of the Goodrich Co. Hughes, manager, project engineering, and Daniels, vice-president, chemical supply, trading and special projects, are on Cosden's management staff.

Re-entry slated in Dawson County

A re-entry is scheduled in Dawson County and an outpost in Mitchell County in this area of the oil patch this week.

Texaco Inc., filed application to re-enter and test as a wildcat at 10,900 feet its No. 1 United Presbyterian Church, triple Spraberry, Mississippi and Fasselman opener of the gin field of Dawson County, five miles west of Lamesa.

Drilled to 12,300 feet it was finished Sept. 26, 1965 from the Spraberry for 648 barrels of 35.5 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 523-1, through a 24-64-inch choke and perforations at 8,018-68 feet; to pump 231 barrels of 39 gravity oil, plus three barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 429-1 through Mississippi perforations at 11,393-403 feet and to pump 85.03 barrels of 37.1 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 250-1, through Fasselman perforations at 11,790-796 feet.

It is still producing from the Spraberry and Mississippi. Location is 1,980 feet from the south and east lines of 8-36-3n-T&P.

IN MITCHELL COUNTY, Barron Kidd, Dallas, will drill the No. 1-A everet Heirs as a 1/4 mile north outpost to a northwest extension area of the Westbrook, East (Clearfork oil) field one mile northeast of Cuthbert.

Location is 990 feet from the south and 330 feet from the west lines of 79-97-H&TC. Contract depth is 3,550 feet.

The Dixon (Strawn oil) field was re-opened for a second time with completion of Texas International Petroleum Co. Inc., Oklahoma City, No. 1 Edwin Parks, 1/4 mile southeast of the original opener and the same distance northwest of the re-opener and five miles north of Silver, for a daily pumping potential of 243 barrels of 40.2 gravity oil, plus 86 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,877-1.

Production was through perforations at 6,188-204 feet, which had been acidized with 500 gallons. Top pay was picked at 6,180 feet on ground elevation of 2,134 feet.

Drilled to 6,412 feet, 5 1/2 inch casing was set at that depth.

Location is 1,980 feet from the north and 660 feet from the east lines of 2-1A-h&TC.

The discovery, Robert Wood No. 1 Ross Dixon, was finished April 21, 1963 for 45 barrels of 44.3 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 516-1, through a 1/2 inch choke and perforations at 6,234-54 feet.

The re-opener, General Crude Oil Co., Abilene, (originally Orbon H. Tice and B.L. Coulson), No. 1 V.T. McCabe, was finished Oct. 21, 1963 for 92 barrels of oil through a 14 64-inch choke and perforations at 6,120-29 feet.

IN BORDEN COUNTY, an unidentified discovery, probably Spraberry, has been indicated in Borden County, with the swabbing of ten barrels of oil, along with 23 barrels of load water, in 11 hours at Amoco Production Co. No. 1-B T.J. Good, re-entered failure, three miles northwest of Vealmoore, approximately four miles southeast of Spraberry production in the Jo Mill multiphase field, separated by a 7,346-foot failure, two miles south-southwest of the good field and surrounded by deep failures.

An 8,605-foot wildcat failure, it was abandoned in July 1964.

Carter must fight hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders are promising early action on President Carter's plan for a new Department of Energy but jurisdictional jealousies in the House may threaten it with delay.

And while there appears to be wide support in both chambers for the concept of a Cabinet-level energy agency, the measure's chief Senate backer, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., says Carter must fight hard to get it through Congress.

"That's because the bill is so sweeping and far-reaching. Unquestionably it will shake a lot of the bureaucracy and special interests," Ribicoff said in an interview, adding:

"But I'm for the President's program and I'll fight with him."

One of the more controversial parts of the administration plan is likely to be the proposal to place under a single roof programs that regulate energy and ones that promote its development, Ribicoff acknowledged.

He said he plans to introduce the bill for Carter on Tuesday. And he said his Government Affairs Committee, whose staff members assisted the White House in drafting the legislation, will begin hearings on March 7.

A committee aide said the legislation may be on the Senate floor by early April.

House leaders reportedly have not decided yet when to schedule hearings or even what committee or committees will get the bill. Three committees with rival jurisdiction over energy matters apparently each want a crack at it.

Carter said he will submit the legislation early this week, to be followed by a more comprehensive energy policy proposal around April 20. The White House delivered drafts of the reorganization bill to key members of Congress late last week.

The proposed new Cabinet agency would replace the present Federal Energy Administration, the Energy Research and Development Administration, the Federal Power Commission, parts of the Interior Department and about a dozen other energy programs now scattered throughout the government.

Carter plans to nominate his energy adviser, James R. Schlesinger, to head the new department once Congress gets around to creating it.

In the House, the counterpart to Ribicoff's committee is the Government Operations Committee chaired by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas. Although most House sources feel his panel will have prime responsibility for the bill, the committee is currently embroiled over Carter's request for powers to reorganize other parts of the government — a proposal Brooks has vigorously opposed.

It is doubtful the committee can take up the energy reorganization bill until it resolves this other reorganizational dispute, said a committee aide. Brooks himself claims he doesn't know if his panel will even get the measure although said if it does, "we will move ahead as quickly as we can."

Chairman Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., of the House Interior Committee is also seeking jurisdiction over the legislation. Udall has voiced opposition to any effort to diminish the Interior Department's responsibility for coal, oil and gas leasing on federal lands and on the Outer Continental Shelf. The proposed Carter bill would give both the Interior Department and the new Energy Department a say on leasing.

And, finally, the House Commerce Committee, which oversees interstate transportation of oil and natural gas, may stake a claim on the bill. Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a Commerce energy subcommittee, has stated reservations about transferring the regulatory powers of the Federal Power Commission into the new department.

House leaders earlier in the year talked about forming an ad hoc energy committee to avert such jurisdictional disputes. But to date no such panel has been established.

In the Senate, jurisdictional disputes between committees have already been ironed out so that only Ribicoff's panel will get the bill. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and the most influential member of the Senate on energy matters, has waived hearings.

However, Jackson is also a member of Ribicoff's panel and says he expects to play a major role in pushing the administration program.

Senate aides say it is doubtful Carter's plan will get through unscathed. The area of most concern, they say, involves the administration's recommendation to put pricing and allocation responsibilities — including those exercised by the Federal Power Commission — into the same agency that promotes energy development.

The proposed Carter plan would attempt to isolate this regulatory function by establishing an energy regulatory administration within the department and a board of appeals that would conduct hearings on individual cases.

But aides said this might not be enough to satisfy some committee members. They said amendments may be offered to prohibit the new Secretary of Energy from having any say over purely regulatory matters. Major efforts can also be expected to remove the FPC entirely from the proposed new department and to leave leasing programs intact in the Interior Department where they are presently housed, Senate sources said.

Ribicoff said it will be up to administration witnesses to make a good case that the FPC should be included in the new energy department. "I don't have any objection to it unless testimony proves it just won't work," he said.

Salazar flees from jail in Arizona

Gilbert Salazar, 24, escaped from the Navajo County Complex jail in Holbrook, Ariz. Thursday.

Salazar had been arrested by Big Spring police December 12 on a fugitive warrant out of Winslow, Ariz. He was charged with assault with intent to rape, and was released from Howard County jail into the custody of Arizona authorities Jan. 25.

Salazar apparently escaped with two other men by breaking out a window with a faulty security spring.

The two men were arrested Thursday night in Oklahoma, but Salazar remains at large.

Salazar is considered armed and dangerous by Arizona authorities. Police and sheriff's deputies in Howard County are on the lookout for the escaped man.

Local vandals destroy tables, lights in parks

Extensive vandalism has become almost routine in Big Spring's city parks, according to Jerry Foresyth, assistant city manager.

"We can almost count on some vandalism every week," said Foresyth. "Just recently, somebody broke a bunch of bottles in the bottom of the septic tank in Comanche Trail Park. We had to send men (city employees) to lift out the tank and clean out the glass."

An even more serious incident occurred within the last two weeks at Birdwell Lane Park. Vandals used heavy objects, possibly sledge hammers, to totally destroy concrete benches and tables at the park. In addition, a number of garbage racks there were destroyed, and several park lights were shot out by the vandals.

"Replacement cost for those benches and tables would be about $2,000. At this point, I'm not sure whether we will bother to replace them," said the assistant city manager. "I really don't know what to do about this vandalism. It would take two full-time policemen to patrol the parks, and even then I don't know if we could stop it," he added.

Foresyth hopes that community pride and peer group pressure may help combat the rise in vandalism. He cited the example of the new observation deck near the Big Spring as an example.

"That deck is being built by trades classes at the high school. We hope that when it's finished, the kids will say, 'Look, we put a lot of work into this, please don't destroy it!'" he said.

Appointments jam agenda

STANTON — The Stanton City Council will consider appointments to the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Airport Board when it meets in formal session at 7:30 p.m., here Tuesday.

The councilmen will also discuss maintenance of the water plant and explore the idea of appointing James Gregg of Big Spring as tax attorney for the city.

A right-of-way problem at the intersection of Third and St. Joseph's Streets will also be discussed and consideration will also be given to the problem of writing off personal property taxes for the years 1965 to 1972.

Graduation ceremonies slated Tuesday at Webb

Graduation ceremonies for Class 77-04 of the Security Assistance Program training at Webb AFB will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Chapel. Guest speaker is Col. H. W. Miller, commander of the 14th Flying Training Wing, Columbus AFB, Miss. Although special invitations have gone out to friends and local dignitaries, the event is open to all interested members of the base or community. A reception will follow in the officers' club for class members and an incoming class, 78-01.

Col. Miller was deputy commander for operations at Webb prior to going to Columbus. His first job there was base commander.

The majority of Miller's career has been spent as a

fighter pilot, instructor pilot and air operations officer. He flew 165 combat missions in F-4 Phantoms over Southeast Asia. He has more than 5,200 flying hours, including 225 combat hours.

The Mississippi native received a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and a master's degree from George Washington University. Professional schools include Squadron Officers School, Air Command and Staff College and the Air War College.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, with one oak leaf cluster, Air Medal with 14 oak leaf clusters, Purple Heart, Meritorious Service Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters.

SSGT. GEORGE PAPPAS

Pappas risked his life

Just six hours before the surrender of South Vietnam, SSGT. George L. Pappas got into one of the last evacuating helicopters to leave Tan Son Nhut AB in Saigon.

He left behind seven hectic days of communications work for which he was recently awarded the Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device.

The citation, accompanying the medal, specifically commended the sergeant's work from April 23 to 30, 1975.

"During this period, while operating the communications system in support of the final evacuation, Sergeant Pappas continuously exposed himself to hostile small arms and mortar and bombing attacks to provide totally effective communications with evacuation aircraft and forces," read the citation.

Pappas, who now works with the 2050th Communications Squadron at Webb AFB, volunteered for the Vietnam assignment while stationed at Clark AB, Philippines.

"Three other Air Force men and I had been there for 30 days when things started getting hectic," said the Tarpon Springs, Fla., native. "We were due to leave when they asked us to stay on. We were working with Marines that were at the air field and telling helicopters where to land. We also coordinated communications with fighter escorts, waiting ships, ground forces and evacuation personnel at the U.S. Embassy."

"It started getting rougher as final day approached," he recalled. "We had our main equipment in a bomb shelter. But we also had to work in a mobile unit outside. Mortars were landing 30 to 40 feet from the mobile unit."

Pappas is an 11-year Air Force veteran and arrived here in September.

Awards banquet

The Permian Chapter of the Non Commissioned Officers Association (NCOA) is sponsoring its annual awards banquet on March 7. The event will begin at 7 p.m. in the NCO Open Mess and all NCOA members are invited to attend.

Those planning to attend are requested to contact MSGT. Curtis Cross at 263-6755 or Eddie Elmadolar at 263-2110 for reservations, but not later than Monday. Dress is semi-formal.

Draws duty in Maine

LIMESTONE, Maine — U.S. Air Force Technical Sergeant George L. Collins, son of Mrs. Bernice Collins of 3000 Lummi Road, Suffolk, Va., has arrived for duty at Loring AFB, Maine.

Sgt. Collins, an aircraft electrical technician with a unit of the Strategic Air Command, previously served at Griffiss AFB, N.Y.

The sergeant is a 1952 graduate of Nansemond County High School, Holland, Va. His wife, Deborah, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Evans of 810 N.W. Third St., Big Spring.

Colonel will deliver sermon

Col. Harry A. Spannaus, wing commander at Webb Air Force Base, will deliver the sermon at the Base Chapel's Protestant Workshop Service at 11 a.m., today.

In the absence of both Protestant chaplains, Spannaus offered to fill in. SMSgt. Gordon Jackson, a lay leader of the Base Chapel activities, will assist in the service.

He found out after dessert

HONOLULU (AP) — When Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunbar invited Lewis Benjamin for dinner the other night, they neglected to tell him about one of the hazards of living on a hillside.

He found out after dessert, when an eight-foot boulder crashed through the uphill side of the house.

The boulder rolled down a hill and crashed through a wall, demolishing a washing machine, cabinets, a dinette set and most of the plumbing.

No injuries were reported. "We were sitting at that table that got demolished just 15 minutes earlier," said Benjamin.

Dunbar said the sound of the boulder hitting the house was "like an explosion."

Variety could have added spice to Morel's music

A small but appreciative crowd sat in the municipal auditorium here Friday night to listen to famed guitarist Jorge Morel.

The program was the third of four to be offered by the Community Concert Association. The Ronnie Kole Trio plays a return engagement here the evening of Monday, March 7.

An Argentine, Morel speaks English with some clarity but he did not always feel it necessary to announce his music — and it varied widely, from Heitor Villalobos to Mozart and from Rossini to George Gershwin. Morel came to the United States in 1961 to appear in Carnegie Hall and has since toured much of the world. His playing is appealing, although the audience

Haley, ABC talk 'Roots' sequel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Author Alex Haley says he and the ABC television network are discussing a sequel to the "Roots" series that would trace black history after the Civil War.

Haley told a National Press Club luncheon Friday he was happy with the television version of his book, tracing his ancestry back to Africa. The television series took his ancestors up to the Civil War.

perhaps would have liked a little more variety on a show that extended about 90 minutes.

"I am ecstatic over it," he said in reply to a question. "Any time you get a show together that 130 million people look at, you have to be satisfied."

He said ABC officials were delighted as the "Roots" series built up audiences, passing the number who watched the Superbowl. "Then that last Sunday night we topped 'Gone With the Wind,' and I felt that was kind of symbolic," he said.

Weather forecaster earns certificate

MSGT. John H. Martin, chief weather forecaster at Webb AFB, has earned the Career Education Certificate (CEC) through Community College of the Air Force.

Presentation of the certificate — in Weather Forecasting, AFSC 25190 — was made late in January by Verl I. Green, chief of Education Services.

The CEC for Weather Forecasting is a 66 semester hour curriculum requiring 35 semester hours of technical education, 21 semester hours of related general education, six semester hours of management education, and four semester hours of physical education. The CEC is the equivalent of the Associate in Applied Science degree, the degree CCAF is now issuing those currently enrolled.

Sergeant Martin, a veteran of 15 years of Air Force service, has been at Webb two years. It was less than six months ago that he became interested in documenting and verifying his school work to obtain a degree. At that time, he had only 19 semester hours of transcriptable work from Idaho State University and the University of Idaho.

Applying for the CEC program through Education Services, Sergeant Martin learned that he already had many more technical hours than were required. He had completed at Chanutte AFB, ILL, the school for observers, for forecasters, and another for tropical forecasters. He completed four CLEP tests locally and found that he was completely qualified to receive the two-year degree.

"As a matter of fact, Sergeant Martin has, in less than a year, gone from fewer than 20 semester hours to his credit to 128, almost enough to complete a four year degree," according to 1st Lt. Ruthie A. Wheeler, information officer for the Weather Squadron. "Sergeant Martin deserves commendation for his work, and should serve as an example for other senior non-commissioned officers to obtain the associate degree."

Completes training

Navy Seaman Recruit James R. Bair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Bair of 1308 Manmouth, Big Spring, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1976 graduate of Big Spring High School, he joined the Navy in December 1976.

Submarine loses anchor

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — America's newest attack submarine dropped its anchor — and lost it.

Crew members of the U.S.S. Philadelphia said the sleek 360-foot sub had completed its second sea trial when it decided to anchor outside New London harbor Thursday night because the Thames River near the Navy's submarine base was foggy.

The anchor was dropped, its chain slid free and followed the anchor to the bottom of Long Island Sound, crew members said. They said the Philadelphia circled in the Sound until Friday morning.

Craig AFB delegation may meet with Carter

(Special to the Herald) SELMA, Ala. — Alabama Gov. George Wallace has indicated he, members of the Alabama delegation in Washington and Selma officials will meet with President Carter before a final decision on Craig AFB of Selma is made, although the time is not now ripe for such a confrontation.

Craig, along with Webb AFB of Big Spring, is nominated for closure by the Department of Defense.

Wallace said that Carter had indicated an interest in meeting with him last year over the Craig issue but that the President first wants to get background on the whole base closure proposal by the Air Training Command.

Now serving in Germany

SEMBACH, Germany — Now serving at Sembach AB, Germany, with a U.S. Air Force in Europe unit is Lt. Col. William P. Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Stewart of 1120 Carteret, Pueblo, Colo.

Col. Stewart, an operations officer, was previously assigned at Randolph AFB. The colonel, a 1954 graduate of Pueblo Catholic High School, received his B.S. degree in 1958 from Regis College, Denver, Colo. He was commissioned in 1960 through the aviation cadet program and holds the aeronautical rating of command pilot. His wife, Virginia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Johnson of 611 George St., Big Spring.

Most appealing plane crashes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 13-foot B-52 was named Most Appealing Plane at UCLA's eighth annual paper airplane contest, but it nosedived to the ground shortly after its launch from atop the five-story engineering building.

"It was sort of like the Air Force," a contest spokesman said. "Some of the most expensive models go down the tubes."

As a result, the paper bomber was out of Friday's running for top honors, which went to engineering student Douglas Doyle. His plane flew 171 feet before gently touching down.

The Most Outrageous Plane award was won by the Triangle Fraternity, which launched a blimp filled with helium balloons. The blimp was airborne until it ran into a tree and split open and the balloons floated out.

The award for longest time in the air went to meteorology student Everett Nickolin, whose plane flew for 31.7 seconds.

Brilliant lawyers, publicity agent, press party

Davis on trial for his life

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — It's not as if Joe the Ragman were on trial for his life.

Most likely, old Joe would try to wing it without a publicity agent, and he would hardly be expected to throw a party for the press.

Brilliant, expensive lawyers would be unlikely. But then Joe is not a Texas millionaire; Cullen Davis most definitely is.

Davis, 43, stoic and darkly handsome, went on trial last week accused of capital murder and surrounded by a defense team sporting unusual credentials.

In fact, almost every aspect of the case is somewhat unusual:

—Davis is accused of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter Andrea while burglarizing the $6 million mansion he built for his now estranged wife Priscilla.

—He is also charged with capital murder in the death of Stan Farr, 30, with whom Priscilla shared the mansion and her affections.

—Both Priscilla and a chance midnight visitor to the mansion, Gus Gavrel, 21, were critically wounded but survived.

After the first week of legal maneuvering and questioning prospective jurors, opposing attorneys failed to select a single juror. They resume their efforts Monday.

In what must be a legal nightmare for the defense, two magazine articles appeared on the eve of the trial and neither could help Davis' case.

Perhaps to offset that publicity, the defense hired a press agent who says he is not a press agent and threw a press party which it said was not a press party.

Pierce Allman, a Dallas public relations figure, said he is "media consultant" or a "communications coordinator," not a defense press agent.

The only "media consultant" of recent memory was hired by Dallas millionaires Bunker and Herbert Hunt during their Lubbock trial on federal wiretapping charges. They were acquitted.

Reporters sipping exotic beverages in a hotel suite Thursday night learned that the party was not a party, but a defense briefing session designed to establish media guidelines.

"Call it what you want," said Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, the flamboyant Houston attorney who, with Phil Burleson of Dallas, heads the defense.

"But all this is not going to overcome those magazine articles."

Haynes is no stranger to publicity or controversy. He was a recurring figure in the recent best-seller "Blood and Money," based on another sensational murder case in Houston.

Haynes says he may not be the best trial lawyer in America. It's just that he knows none better.

District Court Judge Walter Jordan of Fort Worth, a strict and respected jurist, says of Haynes.

"...There is probably a lot of things about that man I wouldn't like. But in my courtroom he was the picture of decorum. I've never seen a lawyer more confident and proper at the same time."

"He is a charming little jerk."

Burleson is only slightly less colorful and may be best remembered outside Dallas as a member of a team that defended Jack Ruby.

Burleson is now president of the Dallas Bar Association.

Dist. Atty. Tim Curry personally is heading the prosecution team that includes several of his top aides, including Joe Shannon, Rufus Adecock, and Marvin Collins.

In obtaining the capital murder indictments, Curry alleged that Davis entered his mansion in defiance of a divorce court restraining order and technically could be charged with burglary.

Under Texas' death penalty law a defendant can be accused of capital murder if the crime is committed while another felony is in progress.

Curry was quoted in a recent magazine article as saying:

"If this had happened on White Settlement Road, if it had been other people, and other places, things might be different. Obviously we don't routinely spend hundreds of man hours on a murder case ... We obviously can't afford it. We wouldn't have five lawyers working on it full time, but then neither would the other side."

It is not as if old Joe were on trial.

Aggie Muster taking shape

Plans are shaping up for this year's annual Aggie Muster to be held 7:30 p.m., April 20, at the Big Spring Country Club.

Marvin Tate, 43-year-old former Aggie football player, has been chosen as this year's guest speaker.

Tate is presently the Associate Athletic Director at Texas A&M University, after being named to the post in February of 1967.

He was graduated from Texas A&M University with a degree in business in the summer of 1965. He then became a sales representative for office products for IBM Corporation in Houston until January, 1966, when he joined Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis Investment Company in Houston as a registered representative.

A native of Abilene, Tate was a standout in both football and baseball at Abilene High. He was a two-time, all-state football guard under Coach Pete Shotwell and was a catcher on Abilene's 1950 baseball team which lost in the state finals to Odessa High, 2-1.

Tate was a starting guard for four years at Texas A&M.

Freshman Keese is not your typical rural legislator

By SCOTT PARKS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The 38 freshmen in the Texas House of Representatives have been here nearly two months now. They are a little less cocky than in early January when they packed up their visions of reinventing the wheel in 140 days and came to Austin.

One of those freshmen is 27-year-old Bill Keese of Somerville, a town of about 1,300 people nestled deep in the central Texas county of Burleson.

Keese, sandy-haired and soft-spoken, is not your typical rural legislator. He was neither born nor reared in Somerville, but instead claims Chicago, Dallas and Houston as the places where he spent his formative years.

He came to Somerville two years ago to join his father as the owner of City Cafe, a central meeting place for coffee and gossip. The move signified a kind of back to nature trip for Keese.

Unlike many of his freshmen colleagues, Keese did not cut his political teeth as a city councilman or as a local precinct chairman or party activist. His only previous foray into politics came in 1972 when he took off for the northeast to work for George McGovern in the crucial New Hampshire primary.

"I had never seen the legislature in action before I came up here," Keese said. "This is even more amazing when one considers that Keese majored in government right here at the University of Texas."

It was quite a feat for Keese to defeat Latham Boone, the incumbent representative, after living in the district only two years.

"I think being at the cafe helped me a lot. It was a meeting place for the sheriff and the county commissioners. I met a lot of people there," he said during a recent interview in his basement office at the Capitol. Also, he says, "The stars just kind of lined up right."

It is not really fair to say that Keese was one of those freshmen who came to town with the idea of taking the Capitol by storm. He is more than traditional in his thinking about what the role of a freshman should be in the House.

"The entire session will mainly be a learning experience. What I'm paying particular attention to is power; concentrating on the interactions of power; who has it, who doesn't and trying to find out why someone loses power."

Keese, like most of his freshmen brothers, went to the Legislature expecting to encounter hordes of stereotypical lobbyists with big diamond rings, big cigars and bags of full money. He says he is still waiting for the high pressure that hasn't come yet.

"I'm still waiting for the strongarm tactics. I find the lobbyists exert a very subtle pressure instead," Keese said. "Just about every day someone wants to take me to lunch."

Although it is not one of the burning issues this year, one of Keese's passionate interests in the development of solar energy as an alternative source of cheap energy. Some of his constituents — paying the skyrocketing bills sent out by Bluebonnet Electric Cooperative might be interested to know about Keese's research in this area.

"I still think solar energy has great potential," he says. "The technology for solar energy has existed since the 1890's, but was suppressed," he said.

More important than anything else, however, is the fact that Keese is one legislator who has the opportunity to help bridge the gap between rural and urban legislators. He represents a rural constituency, but has the mind of a cosmopolitan urbanite.

He may be able to help rural legislators understand why poor inner city blacks need more social services while at the same time helping the urban representatives understand why farmers need their land taxed on its productive value rather than its speculative value.

Keese realizes it is going to be hard sometimes to vote his conscious on social issues and explain it to the folks back home. "It's going to tax my abilities, but I believe people should go as far as they can to test themselves to come up with meaningful solutions."

Dr. Elton Berkman and Rick Perkin are retiring from the council. Deadline for filing is Wednesday.

Columnist fined $100

CHICAGO (AP) — Assault charges against syndicated columnist Mike Royko have been dropped after he apologized to five persons for smashing a catsup bottle over a table when a 26-year-old actress turned down his offer to buy her a steak dinner.

Judge Ben Edelstein of Circuit Court fined the Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist of the Chicago Daily News $100 on Friday after he pleaded no contest to a charge of disorderly conduct.

"I can assume that any anger you felt, and I would have been outraged, cannot equal the anger and acute disgust I experienced when I realized what an ass I'd made of myself," Royko, 44, said in a written apology to five members of the play "Knock, Knock."

Actress Suzanne Quinlan had testified that after she spurned Royko's offer of a steak dinner, he broke a catsup bottle against the table.

Grain swindle

TULSA (AP) — Two former members of a ring that the government has accused of bilking grain dealers in five states out of $150,000 have identified most of the eight Oklahoma men on trial here as participants in the ring.

The government contends the men used counterfeit checks, drawn on a Tulsa bank, to make grain purchases in Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi and Missouri.

The checks were counterfeit cashier's checks and the grain was resold so the ring could make its money.

Ralph J. Teener Jr., 30, the bodyguard for the leader of the ring, and Lloyd Lee Jenkins, 29, both of Tulsa, testified Friday they saw many of the eight men on trial here in the early stages of the operation.

Teener was hired as a driver and companion by Jimmy Ray Culver, 35, also of Tulsa. All three have pleaded guilty to the charges.

Nicklaus leads Gleason by one

DISGUST — Inverrary leader Jack Nicklaus closes his eyes and wears an expression of utter disgust as he bogeyed the first hole Saturday in third round play. Nicklaus was ahead at eight-under-par when the first green got to him.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shot a three-under-par 69 Saturday but saw his lead in the $250,000 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic drop to one stroke over streaking Gil Morgan.

Morgan shot a seven-under-par 65 to go 10 under par for the tournament. Nicklaus, who had a four-shot advantage over defending Masters champion Ray Floyd, Jerry McGee and Don Pooley entering the round, stood at 11-under 205 after 54 holes on the 7,127-yard Inverrary Golf and Country Club course.

Two shots behind him was first-round leader Gary Player, who had a six-under 66. The next nearest challenger for the $50,000 top prize was Fuzzy Zoeller at seven-under 209 after a round on 68. Tom Weiskopf and Bob Murphy were at 211.

Nicklaus started out his round with a bogey five and playing partner Floyd scored a birdie on the first hole to move within two shots of the lead. But Nicklaus had no more bogeys and Floyd had three of them to come in at 73 and drop to 213.

"Today I played better and more poised than the other two days. I just didn't make as many putts," said Nicklaus, who had earlier rounds of 70 and 66. "I made a six foot putt today and that was it."

His bogey on No. 1 came after he caught a bunker with his drive.

Morgan, 29, who has never won since joining the tour in 1973 but ranked 42nd in earnings last year with $61,372, had seven birdies in an errorless round.

"I kept the ball in play. That always makes it a little easier," said Morgan, admitting he had his work cut out Sunday.

Diamondback roundup

Notice the picture of fine athletes at the bottom of this page? Those 15 players make up the 1977 edition of the Steer diamond men, shorter haircuts and all, and they will open their regular season here Tuesday at 4 p.m. against Lamesa.

The new coach for the Steers this year is Tom Collins, and he is a strict disciplinarian that has gained the respect of his crew. That fact can be easily discerned at the typical afternoon practice. Collins and his coaching staff, Rex Scofield and Mike Scarborough, have established a rapport with the players that is sometimes difficult for a strong coach, especially when that coach is new to the players.

The Steers have looked competent in practice meetings thus far, but Collins admits it will be a couple of weeks before the bulk of the crew will be in top condition. What the locals lack in finesse right now they make up for in attitude. Collins has nothing but praise for that very important factor of the game.

Four of the 15 baseballers are basketball players and if any of the top-flight attitude that the roundballers had as a team rubs off on the mound men, then that phase of the game need not worry anyone.

The "Red Heads" game with the coaches last week gave me confidence. Despite a few old soreheads who have given up on Big Spring doing anything in sports ever again, the support that the local citizens gave the athletes by attending the "Red Head" contest may be a good omen of things to come. If the athletes know the townspeople support them like that, they can't help but make an effort to do better.

Try to make it out Tuesday at 4 p.m. and show them you are behind them.

How about a Big Mac attack

After three months of waiting, I can now officially announce that Leroy "Mac" McClendon will be taking the new head coaching job at Tulsa University in Oklahoma. And he is chomping at the bit to begin play in the Region V tournament in Abilene next weekend.

"There are two coaches and three players here who have been waiting a year to get back there," said Mac. "We should have beat McLennan last year, you know."

"Mac" also had some thoughts on the team this year:

"In the four years that I've been here, this is the best overall team I've seen," said the coach. "And that includes the time we were ranked ninth in the nation. I'd put our nine guys up against any nine guys in the conference."

"Mac" also brought up a point that is very unusual for WJAC basketball. In the last two games, the Hawks have started five Texans. "No other team's gonna match that," he said.

McClendon was putting the Preybirds through their paces Friday afternoon because Head Coach Harold Wilder was home sick. The bus broke down on the way back from Levelland Thursday night, and the locals didn't get in town until 4 a.m. Wilder caught a bit of the bug during the meantime.

Speaking of Wilder, McClendon had strong words of praise for his soon-to-be ex-associate. "He (Wilder) prepares the team better than any coach I've ever seen," said McClendon. "Nothing's gonna come up in the game that he hasn't first briefed the guys about. There's not a better coach."

Maybe they'll be saying the same thing about "Mac" next year up in Tulsa. With a teacher like Wilder, the chances are good.

Sands, Forsan meet here Tuesday

By DANNY REAGAN

The Sands Mustangs, basketball champions of district 9-B with a 34-3 season record, will be taking on the Forsan Buffaloes, title holders of district 10-B with a 15-11 season mark this Tuesday night at 7:30 in Steer Gym in one of the eight Class B bi-district games that will be on tap that night.

The two teams have not met on the hardwoods this year, but have had four common opponents: Borden County, Stanton, Jayton and Roby.

Forsan nipped Borden County 54-53 in their second game of the season, while Sands has beaten the BC team three times this year, with the closest margin of victory being 16 points.

The very strong Stanton Buffaloes in district 5-A have beaten Forsan twice this year, 66-49 and 68-51, and have also beaten the Mustangs by eight points in one of their only three losses.

In a comparing of results that should in no way be considered indicative of the outcome of the game Tuesday night, Jayton defeated Forsan 63-51 in a practice game just last week, while earlier in the year, the Sands Mustangs defeated the same Jayton Jaybirds by 35 points.

Another common opponent, Roby, defeated Forsan Friday night, while the same Roby team beat the Sands JV squad by 10 points earlier in the season.

An important factor in Tuesday night's match-up will be the addition of Ralph Miranda to the Buff squad. He has been missing from the lineup all season because of a knee operation. Ralph has been a starter since his freshman year and is a two-time all-district player.

Coach Bob Evans hopes to be able to play Miranda for most of the game. Other probable starters for the contest will be Darrin Crooks, Gary Tidwell, Randy Cregar and John Medlin.

Sands Coach Stan Pulliam will be starting five players who have had the opening nod for most of the season: Stan Feaster, Larry Feaster, Ronnie Kennemer, Gary Webb and Martin Nichols. The Mustangs are given the favorite role in Tuesday night's game, but as in post-season play in all sports, nothing can be taken for granted.

The winner of Tuesday night's game will advance to the two-day Region I boys basketball tournament to be held at South Plains College March 4-5.

Either Forsan or Sands will be meeting the winner of the District 5-6B game between Silverton and Spade at 2:30 p.m. Friday. The championship finals, with the winner getting a berth in the state meet, will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Union, the defending champion, did not make it out of district, losing to Sands.

The bi-district pairings are: Channing (18-12) vs. Darrouzett (24-3) Tuesday, 8 p.m., Spearman; Wheeler (25-4) vs. the 4-B tournament champion (with Hedley, 29-4, the favorite), Silverton (18-10) vs. Spade (22-7), Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., Plainview (Wayland gym); Anton (26-8) vs. Ropes (30-5), Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., Levelland (South Plains College's Texas Dome); Sands (32-3) vs. Forsan (15-8), Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., Big Spring; Roby (23-8) vs. Jayton (24-5), Tuesday, 8 p.m., Snyder (Scurry County Coliseum); Eden (25-7) vs. Buena Vista (24-9), Tuesday, 8 p.m., Big Lake; Fort Davis (10-11) vs. San Elizario (19-9), Tuesday, 8 p.m., Van Horn.

Steer thinclads do well in meet

BROWNFIELD — There was snow on the ground and the high winds made for tough times for all the teams involved, but the Big Spring Steer track squad improved vastly over a year ago in meet competition. In the last meet of the 1976 season the Steers didn't garner a single point. Saturday in Brownfield, they captured 63.

"Considering the weather conditions, and the fact that we had quite a few freshmen, we turned in quite a good performance," said Coach Garland Bruan. "I feel like the kids have really improved and are working hard. We have it going now, and know what we have to do. This meant a lot to us."

Lubbock Monterey finished in top position in the meet with 1976 points, followed by Midland Lee with 128 and Lubbock Coronado with 101. Finishing fourth with 95 points was Midland High School; fifth was Lubbock High with 78; the Steers in sixth with 63; and Hereford bringing up the rear with no points.

Highlights for the locals was capturing third through fifth spots in the long jump. Kenneth Coffey had a 19'2" leap for third, followed by teammates Ricky Cluck with 18'7", and Eddie Puga with 18'6" for fourth and fifth respectively.

Big Spring's Bobby Huff and Bruce Ludecke finished fourth and fifth in the 100-yard dash, while Coffey took third place in the high jump. In a pleasant surprise, the Steer 440-yard relay team took second place with a 45.5.

Big Spring finished fifth in both the Distance Medley relay and the sprint medley, and Coffey had a time of 16.3 to finish sixth in the 120-yard high hurdles. The Steers also finished fourth in the 880-yard relay and fifth in the mile relay.

No points were taken in the shot put, discus throw, pole vault, 330-yard intermediate hurdles and mile run.

Next competition for the thinclads will be in the Pecos Relays next Saturday.

Rankin zooms to tie

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Judy Rankin, who shot a career-best 63 Friday, zoomed to a five-over-par 77 Saturday to fall back into a tie with Beth Stone after two rounds of the $100,000 Bent Tree Ladies Classic.

Miss Stone, from Miami, recorded a 71 to tie with Mrs. Rankin, the 32-year-old 1976 Player of the Year from Midland, Tex., at four-under-par 140 on the demanding 6,124-yard, par-72 Bent Tree Golf Club course.

That put them a stroke ahead of Pam Higgins and Sandra Palmer, both of Palm Springs, Calif.

Miss Higgins carded the day's best round, a 67, and Miss Palmer shot a 70.

Olympians featured in cinder

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Montreal Olympians Johnny Jones and Paul Craig of Texas and Texas Tech's Jim McAndrew will be the featured performers next weekend in the 45th annual Border Olympics track and field meet.

The meet, billed as the first major outdoor track meet of the year, is divided into university, college, junior college and high school divisions.

points to win last year's university division and both teams return for the 1977 meet, along with Rice, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, TCU, SMU, Rice, North Texas and Lamar.

Texas Coach Cleburne Price said Jones, on the winning U.S. 400 meter relay team at Montreal, probably will run the 440-yard dash and relays at Laredo. Craig, a 1,500-meter man on the Canadian Olympic team, is a miler for the Longhorns.

Just target practicin' mam

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A burst of gunfire, at first feared to be from a sniper, scattered players and fans and interrupted play for about 30 minutes Saturday at a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Officials, who first feared the possibility of a sniper, later determined that the shots were from an area resident taking target practice.

No one was injured. But several bullets whistled past veteran pro Marilyn Smith of Dallas and hit the ground next to a spectator and a scorekeeper at the Bent Tree Golf Club.

Officials said the man had been shooting at a wooden target in his backyard, not realizing that the bullets were carrying to the golf course, about a third of a mile away.

Witnesses estimated that 10 or 12 shots were fired.

No charges were filed and tournament officials would not release the man's name.

Steer duo loses semi's

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring doubles team of Danny Olesen and Nick Williams advanced to the semi-finals in the West Texas Tennis Championships here Friday before losing to the Midland High team of Kevin Hopson and Joe Love Saturday. Olesen and Williams defeated Zellers and Ashley of Odessa Permian 6-4, 7-5, to qualify for the semi-final event. The Midland team went on to win the doubles title.

Jones, Ricky Myers, Frankie Rubio, Charlie Vernon, Mike Harris, Tony Mann, Larry Smith and Arthur Olague. Beginning Tuesday, a "Meet the Steers" feature will run daily in the sports pages, spotlighting individual players.

Dallas South Oak Cliff takes girls 4-A finals

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Dallas South Oak Cliff rode a 26-point second quarter blitz Saturday to a 79-65 championship victory over Schertz Clemens in Class 4A girls' basketball. Clemens' 34-0 record crumbled under the dazzling first half performance by South Oak Cliff, which rolled to a 48-23 lead at the end of two periods.

Clemens rallied with the shooting of Susan Rouse and Rose Penkulis but could never get closer than 12 points.

Sandra Lee used her 5-10 height to throw in 30 points and Lorretta Lister, a smooth ball handler, scored 25 for South Oak Cliff, which pushed its record to 36-2 in winning its first state girls' basketball championship.

South Oak Cliff was a semifinalist last year and finished this season with a 26-game winning streak.

Its 79 points were the most ever scored in a 4A girls title game, and its two-game total of 158 also is a 4A tournament record. The 144 points tallied by South Oak Cliff and Clemens also were the most points ever scored by two teams in a single 4A tournament game.

Miss Rouse scored 27 points and Miss Penkulis had 26 for Clemens, a San Antonio-area team which gained a state tournament berth for the first time.

Two Panhandle teams—Canyon and Spearman—spoiled Waco's bid to take home two conference titles.

Canyon broke a two-game conference scoring record in beating its nemesis, Waco Midway, 58-54, for the Class 3A championship.

BSGA holds tourney 1:30

The first tournament of the season presented by the Big Spring Golf Association, a Louisiana Draw, will get underway at the Municipal Golf Course beginning at 1:30 today.

All entries must be in by noon, and entry fees must be paid by 12:30. Committee members for this tourney are Tom Mills, Robert Caffey, Bailey and Hall.

A&M advances in SWC toumey

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Sophomore Wally Swanson went inside for a career-high 26 points and Steve Jones added 24 from outside to lead Texas A&M to a 89-79 victory over Southern Methodist in the first round of the Southwest Conference postseason basketball tournament.

The Aggies will play the winner of Saturday night's first round game between Texas Christian and Houston next Thursday in Houston.

Behind Swanson's hot shooting, A&M stretched a 15-11 lead to 27-11 with 12 straight points in the first half before taking a 50-39 lead at intermission. Swanson had 15 of A&M's first 23 points.

SMU, despite its 11-point halftime deficit, outscored the Aggies 19-8 at the free throw line in the first half.

The Mustangs, which got a career-high 26 points from junior forward Jeff Swanson, got as close as seven points in the second half but the Aggies pulled away to a 17-point lead at 82-65.

A&M is now 14-13 for the season and 9-8 in conference games while SMU closed the year at 8-19 and 7-10 in SWC play.

Local baseball Cardinals meet today

The Big Spring Cardinals, now new members of the National League of West Texas, will hold their first meeting of the season today at 2 p.m. at 621 NW 4th, the residence of Frank Rubio.

The Cards will start practicing Monday, and all members of the team are urged to attend the meeting today to outline practicing schedules.

Manager Frank Rubio will travel to Odessa Monday for a meeting with the other 12 managers of the league to determine the regular season schedule.

Men's slowpitch Monday

The Men's Slow-pitch softball league will hold its first meeting of the season Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the choir room of the high school, off the west parking lot.

All managers are urged to attend.

Any team that was not in the league last year, but would like to join this season should send a representative. All dates for the league games will be finalized and rules will be adopted at the meeting.

It is hoped that the league will have enough players to expand from 12 to 16 teams.

Church leagues Tuesday

Charles Townsend announced today that an organizational meeting of Church League Softball will be held Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the Western Sizzler.

All persons interested in fast and slow pitch church league softball are urged to attend the meeting.

Midland Cubs sign more

MIDLAND — With major league spring training underway and the minor league opening not far behind, the Midland Cubs have now signed 18 of their 24 roster players.

Among the latest signees are four players who played at Midland last season. They are lefthander Larry Groover, catcher Duane Gustavson, second baseman Keith Drumright and outfielder Joe Hernandez. The latter two figure strongly in manager Jim Saul's plans for 1977.

Other recent signees include pitchers Ron Davis and Davis Wood, catcher Greg Keasley and infielder Keven Drury.

The Midland Cubs begin workouts in Scottsdale on March 17, with the first exhibition game scheduled for March 24.

Jackson outspoken, hockey jury out

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson, the baseball millionaire who moonlights as an ABC sports commentator, hasn't been in the television business very long, but he's got some definite ideas on the subject.

Jackson says being an athlete gives him an insight into athletic events that a professional broadcaster cannot have.

"If you have not experienced a pressure situation, you cannot know what is going on inside an athlete's head," he says. "I know about things like that. I'm one of them. I can understand what's going on in a guy's head when he has to make a 40-foot putt."

Jackson says he can relate particularly well to black athletes.

"There are no blacks in the media and that is a problem when you're trying to relate to black athletes," he says. "When someone interviews Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who is very cognizant of his blackness and his size and has been used all his life, you get superficial answers."

"I feel I can do a service to athletes and the public. I want to show athletes as people, the way they are. I want the public to understand athletes and I think I can help."

The National Hockey League is heading into the ninth week of its Monday night "Game of the Week" telecasts and the jury is still out.

The NHL, off the air last season after being dropped by NBC for poor ratings, launched its own TV package this season, offering the Monday night games to independent stations across the country. Thus far 47 stations have signed on, giving the NHL exposure in 55 per cent of the country. Minneapolis is the only market in a league city that does not carry the games.

"It has been a very, very enlightening project," says NHL vice president Don Ruck. "One little indicator of our success has been that we are getting special coverage of our Monday night games in newspapers in cities not involved in the games."

The productions have been well done and the league has been fortunate in getting exciting games. Up until last Monday night, the games have been averaging about 10 goals each.

But what about the ratings, those all-important numbers that determine the success or failure of any television project?

Ruck says the NHL has commissioned assorted studies but won't have any results for a while. However, cumulative ratings for New York, Los Angeles and Chicago have been obtained and, while they are not indicative of national figures, they are not encouraging.

"We're not shocked," says Ruck. "We wish they would be higher, but those are tough markets. This is the kind of thing we have to build. We will, but it will take time."

'HOLD IT FELLA!' — BYU's Verne Thompson finds his way blocked by University of New Mexico's Marvin Johnson (21) during Friday night's Western Athletic Conference game. Marvin was the second-leading junior college player in the nation last year while playing for the Howard College Hawks, and is currently leading the UNM Lobos in that category. BYU won the game 88-80.

Where's everybody, Bowie?

By The Associated Press

The umpires aren't the only people missing from spring training these days.

Power hitter Dave Kingman hasn't appeared at the training site of the New York Mets, reliever Sparky Lyle hasn't found the New York Yankees' training base yet, and Luis Tiant may not be showing up while the Boston Red Sox prepare for the 1977 baseball season.

Negotiations aren't exactly speeding along, either.

Mets General Manager Joe McDonald said he hasn't even heard from Kingman since Feb. 1 when the outfielder made a reported demand for a multi-million dollar contract. He has been listed as an "unofficial absentee," with that designation to change to "official absentee" if Kingman doesn't show by March 1.

Lyle also isn't required in camp until March 1, nor are the other 14 unsigned Yankees.

They don't have contracts, but Tiant does, and his insistence on an extension of his pact through 1979 provides a stickier problem. The 36-year-old righthander who smokes cigars in the shower is "exceedingly disturbed" over the Red Sox's apparent unwillingness to give him what he wants. He refuses to go to camp.

The Red Sox say Tiant is bound by the terms of the reported $180,000 per year contract which runs through the coming season. Tiant's counterclaim is that Tom Yawkey, Boston's late owner, promised him that he would be given a no-cut, no-trade, multi-year contract similar to those offered a number of other Red Sox players in an attempt to keep them from becoming free agents.

Last season, Tiant pitched 279 innings, won 21 of 33 decisions and compiled an earned run average of 3.06. But he reported to the team last year only after the American League club

Howard linksters finish in fifth

The Howard College golf team, coached by Jerry Dudley, finished fifth in a field of nine Western Junior College Athletic Conference teams Friday in a tournament held here Friday.

The Odessa College team carded a score of 300 to take top honors. However, only 16 strokes separated all nine of the conference teams.

Western Texas was second with 301, with NLMJC carded a 302. Midland College tied with Clarendon for fourth with 307, and Howard fired a 310.

Other finishers were Frank Phillips with 315, and Amarillo College and NMMI each with a 316 total.

The third place finish helped NMJC hold onto the conference lead for the year with 40 points, while WTC is second with 38½ points, and Odessa third with 32 points.

The nine teams were also involved in a loop tournament Saturday at the Snyder Country Club.

Runnels cinderfems practice GJH,CJH

The Runnels Jr. High girls track team participated in a practice meet Friday with Goliad and Coahoma in Memorial Stadium.

Coach Naomi Graham was pleased with the girls performance, but admitted that much work needs to be done this next week before the regular season opens.

Bonnett talks to himself

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — "I just sat down last week and had a little pep talk with myself," driver Neil Bonnett confided, "and I'd say I'm pretty satisfied with the results."

Bonnett, tabbed as the brightest new stock car star, has his Harry Hyde-prepared Dodge firmly in the pole position for Sunday's Richmond 400 Grand National race with a record qualifying speed of 93.632 miles per hour.

Bonnett said he was feeling low and had lost his sponsor after two personally dissatisfying performances earlier this season.

"I was a fool because I kept thinking the job could be done overnight," explained the 30-year-old Bonnett, who switched this season from his own independent operation to the Hyde Dodge.

Bonnett didn't seem to be feeling any pressure as he upstaged six-time Grand National champion Richard Petty for the pole. Petty, also in a Dodge, was second at 93.100 m.p.h.

Janet Guthrie, making her short track debut, was 20th at 88.210 m.p.h. in a Chevrolet and had to wait to make the field until today, when qualifying continued for the remainder of the 30-car field.

Veteran Dick Brooks escaped injury when he lost control of his Ford and rammed into the wall on the first lap of his qualifying run. The car was extensively damaged but will apparently be repaired in time for Sunday's $75,000 event.

Buffs lose to Roby

COLORADO CITY — The Forsan Buffaloes, champions of district 10-B this year in basketball, fell to 11-B district title holder Roby Friday night 56-48, in their final preparatory game before Tuesday night's bi-district meeting with the Sands Mustangs.

Darrin Crooks led the Buffs with 17 points, while teammate Randy Cregar was close with 16. Ralph Miranda, starting for the first time since knee surgery early this season, canned eight points.

Rounding out the scoring were Dennis Baggett with three, and John Medlin and Craig Clark with two each. King led Roby with 29 markers.

Yes Virginia, there is a draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League will have a college draft...on or around May 1 and reduced from 17 rounds to 12.

The controversial Rozelle Rule has been modified to make draft choices the only compensation for signing a free agent who played out his option...but Commissioner Pete Rozelle no longer has anything to do with it.

And some 43 players who played out their options last season and were to become free agents May 1 probably will be free to shop around for a new club sometime next week.

Those were the major developments Friday as labor peace came to the NFL—finally. After three often-bitter years without a contract—they included two strikes and three major lawsuits against the owners—the NFL Players Association and the 28 club owners approved a new five-year basic agreement which the NFL Management Council says will cost the owners $107 million.

The new collective bargaining agreement must still be ratified by the 785 members of the union, but little opposition is expected now that the player representatives have approved it.

The agreement also must be approved by U.S. District Court Judge Earl Lawson, who has before him two class action suits by the players. The pact would settle those suits for some $16 million.

Besides modifying the draft and free agent compensation, the new contract, which replaces one that expired Jan. 31, 1974, also contains a no-strike, no-suit clause, establishes a 43-man player roster plus two more on the inactive list, reduces pension vesting to four years and provides for increases in minimum salaries and pre-season and post-season play along with improved insurance and medical and dental benefits. It also continues the pension plan—including the non-contract years of 1975-54—with the owners contributing more than $55 million.

The college draft, which is now guaranteed at least through 1986, will be held on or about May 1 each year, beginning this spring.

In addition, the expiration date of all player contracts is changed from May 1 to Feb. 1. Free agents must reach agreement with another club by April 15 and their old club then has the right to keep the player by matching his new offer.

If a free agent signs with a new team, his old club will be compensated by predetermined choices in that year's college draft ranging from a third-round choice to two consecutive first-round choices on a sliding scale depending on the free agent's salary terms with his new club.

Under terms of the new college draft, a drafted player must be offered a contract, or series of contracts, meeting minimum figures ranging from $20,000 for one year to a total of $200,000 for four years on or before June 15 in the year he is drafted.

If he does not sign, he is eligible to be drafted again the next year. If he is drafted again and still does not sign, he becomes a free agent after the ensuing season and may sign with any NFL club.

NOT HELPING HANDS — Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers has trouble controlling the ball as hands of Los Angeles Laker Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (with white wrist bands) and another Laker tries to knock ball away. Erving's efforts were not enough as the Lakers won 104-102 Friday night.

Tickets on sale for fem Region V

ABILENE — Tickets for the upcoming Region V women's junior college basketball tournament are now available at two Abilene locations: Athletic Supply and the Chamber of Commerce office.

The $7.50 tournament passes can be purchased at the Chamber's 325 Hickory site and at the Athletic Supply, 925 Butternut. The

All games will be at Hunt Center on the McMurry College campus.

Passes for the Region V men's juno tournament, which opens Thursday for a three-day run at McMurry, are also available for the same price at the same outlets. Women's team entered are McLennan, South Plains, Western Texas at Snyder, Clarendon, Weatherford, Howard College and Grayson.

The Howard College Hawk Queens will open play Monday night at 7 o'clock against Weatherford.

Webb vs HC Tuesday at 7

The top players in the Webb and Howard College intramural leagues will square off Tuesday night at 7:30 in the base gym.

Representing the Webb Allstars are 15 cagers chosen by the base gym staff and coaches John Reckle and Elmo Gladden of Student Squadron and Supply Squadron A, the top two teams in base intramural circuit.

Grant Teaff in Lamesa

LAMESA — Baylor Head Coach Grant Teaff will be the featured speaker for the annual Booster Club All Sports Banquet for Lamesa High School, March 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the event are available from members of the Booster Club, according to club president Hank Myers.

Poliwogs at YMCA

A new session of Poliwog Swim Classes will begin at the YMCA on March 1. These are for children aged 3 - 6. Lessons are at 1:00, 1:30, 6:00, and 6:30 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday for four weeks.

Janice Danford, YMCA instructor, will teach, assisted by Cindy Richardson. The YMCA National Progressive Swim Lesson plan will be followed.

Call the YMCA for further information, 267-8234. Adult Swim Classes will begin a new session of 8 lessons on March 8, 1977, Tuesday and Thursday through March 31, 7:00 until 7:45 p.m.

Spence fishing escalates

If you have the urge to go fishing and have a boat, you really ought to give Spence a try. Here are a few examples why:

H.M. Nichols and Jerry Sim from Winters brought in 43 nice-sized crappie. Curtis Shaw and party from Colorado City did almost as well with 38 crappie to two pounds. Robert DeWoody from Odessa brought in three black bass to five pounds, while Jerry Shaw of Wolforth hauled in 65 crappie up to 2 1/2 pounds.

Again this week, up the river seems to be the best place to fish. Depending on what you're fishing with and what for, you are liable to catch anything from striper to turtles up the river. (Turtles like all sorts of baits, including raw hooks on occasion).

But remember something if you are using trotlines. In Coke County the regulations on trotlines are as follows: There is a limit of 100 hooks on all devices combined. There is also a limit to two trotlines with neither exceeding 50 hooks each. This might come in handy to remember at times. Another thing is that you should label your trotline. This is to avoid mishaps more than anything else.

The crappie are biting very well on crappie minnows. Most of the crappie were caught from Pecan Creek, which runs into Lake Spence. Others were caught up the river in shallow water.

The striper this week seem to favor the Hellbender which is being trolled. Again up the river is where some of the striper are being caught mostly, although there have been reports that some have been caught near the rocks or dam, using nothing but solid white jigs. You might want to check this out.

Good Luck!
Konny

P.S. For those of you concerned about conservation, have no fear. Butterflies are finally going to be conserved. That's right! Butterflies have now joined the ranks of the U.S. endangered species list. The Department of the Interior has put 41 different kinds on its list of threatened and endangered species list. Just a word for those of you who have been worried about butterflies.

Optimist Relays coming March 5

The Big Spring Optimist Club is finalizing preparations for their March 5 "Bigger and Better" relays, featuring 64 teams of over 1,200 local and junior high track athletes.

The all-day event is to be held in Memorial Stadium and will for the first time include girls' teams and 7th grade teams. Squads from San Angelo, Midland, Abilene, Snyder, Pecos, Sweetwater, and of course, Big Spring will be involved in the gargantuan production, that will last from 9:30 a.m. until 5:15 p.m. next Saturday.

The Optimist Club will serve a meal of ham, beans, potatoes, fruit and iced tea at the meet and the cost will be $1.75 per plate.

There will be 40 boys' teams and 24 girls' teams in attendance, and Optimist Paschal Odum indicated that there would be 22 100-yard dash heats alone. Big Spring Athletic Director Don Robbins will be the meet referee and Harold Bentley will be the starter.

There is no admission charge for the public, and Odum indicated that this would be a good opportunity for the citizens of Big Spring to see how the future high school track teams of West Texas will probably look.

Soccer clinic begins at YMCA

Soccer at the YMCA will begin with a clinic and exhibition scrimmage on March 12 at 9:00 a.m. on the field across from the Y. Everyone is invited. Knack Coor will coordinate the soccer program for the Y, and the clinic will be conducted by Capt. Jim Young of WAFB.

Capt. Young's Iranian students will participate in the scrimmage game which will be after the clinic, around 10:30 a.m.

Soccer is an international game becoming popular in our country. The YMCA hopes to further this popularity by teaching it in the Gra-Y Program, grades 1 through 6. The youngsters will be taught fundamentals and will practice drills.

They will later be divided into teams to play games under modified rules and on a smaller-size field to fit the stature of grade school players.

The Y encourages everyone to participate including adults who are interested in soccer and who would like to coach or officiate at the games.

Registration for the soccer program will begin on March 5. There is no charge to Y members, $5.00 fee for non-Y members. No uniform is necessary, but tennis shoes or rubber-cleated football shoes are required, along with shin protectors.

For further information, call the YMCA at 267-8234.

LeDoux's blessings hide

NEW YORK (AP) — Losing a controversial decision on national television may become a blessing in disguise for heavyweight boxer Scott LeDoux.

At Annapolis, Md., on Feb. 13, Johnny Boudreaux was awarded a decision over LeDoux in a fight promoted by Don King as part of the U.S. Boxing Championships.

LeDoux was so upset at the decision by the officials that he made kicking gestures in Boudreaux' direction while the controversial winner was interviewed on television.

"I was so disappointed," LeDoux said recently at a press conference for his bout against Pedro Soto at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. "I thought I had won the fight."

"I was so low when I got home that I felt like I was at the bottom of the barrel. But the phones then started ringing and everyone told me that they thought I had won. I haven't found anyone yet who said I had lost."

Teddy Brenner, the Garden's matchmaker, then signed LeDoux to oppose Soto in a fight billed as the Madison Square Garden version of the American heavyweight championship. For LeDoux, it will be his first appearance at the Garden.

"Every fighter thinks of fighting in Madison Square Garden," he said. "I'll come to fight, you can be sure of that."

LeDoux, of Minneapolis, says he expects to weigh about 220. His record is 19-5-1 with 12 knockouts since he turned pro in February 1974. Soto, a Puerto Rican who now lives in Newark, N.J., is 16-3-1.

When he's not fighting, LeDoux works for a legal firm and also for a car dealership. "I go around collecting the fees," he said.

LeDoux started boxing in college after his freshman year and then entered the Golden Gloves. He did not box in service and began proper training after his discharge, working out with Duane Bobick.

As for a ring idol, he said he always admired former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott. "I was always impressed how relaxed he was. He never tensed up. I try and copy his style."

Joe Ely-worldly balladeer

His name is Joe Ely. He comes from Lubbock, Texas. His boots are old and beaten. They'd look mighty lonesome without him standing in them. He brings them to life.

He always carries a deck of playing cards in his hip pocket, not for gambling, but for performing card tricks. He does one card trick in particular which brings puzzled looks to the faces of even the most avid practitioners of legerdemain. "A musician I met in a bar one night told me he paid a hundred dollars for that trick," Joe says. "I got him drunk and got it for nothin'."

Also, in Joe's hip pocket is a small green notebook. The book contains odds and ends; bits and pieces of conversations overheard, graffiti copied from various men's room walls, Joe's observations, thoughts, and vivid descriptions of a night's worth of Joe Ely dreams. Joe has a habit of capturing his imaginary world on paper as soon as he wakes up, before it escapes, but then, for someone like Joe, the world of imagination is very much alive.

He calls "anyplace" his home (from all outward appearances, this is true) and admits to never paying more than seventy-five cents for a shirt. He has a keen interest in old films and he is very knowledgeable about them. He describes the old films so vividly that they literally come to life in your mind without your having ever seen them. In fact, Joe has an intense attraction to the world of theatrics. Yet, Joe never puts on an "act." When he stands before you, you know he's real.

He dropped out of high school before graduating, because, as he says, "I just needed to go." The boundaries of a classroom could teach him nothing. He needed to be out in the streets. "I spent most of my time in high school thinkin' up ways to get out," Joe says. "I'd play hookie and hit the music stores. I'd try out every guitar and amp in town. The store clerks got wise to me after a while, but it was something to do. It was a lot more interesting than who fought what battle in the Civil War. The pool halls always had more color to me, where the halls of the high school didn't have any."

Early in his life, Joe's interests led him to the freedom of music. Although he has wandered across the country many times, his course has always been aimed at music. "Music is something I've always done," Joe says. "I don't consider it my livin', it's part of my livin'." but then, to Joe life itself is the essence of song.

"Lubbock is a musically creative area," he says. "I don't know why," (pause for thought) "Maybe it's because there's nothin' better to do there." (Waylon Jennings, Mac Davis, Gary Nunn and Bob Livingston of the Lost Gonzo Band, Sonny Curtis, and the late and legendary Buddy Holly were originally all from the Lubbock area.)

Joe Ely and his music are as western as the great high plains where he grew up, where individuality and grit are still the mark of a man.

The so-called "progressive" tag does not fit Joe or his music — not that any tag could fit someone like him. His music is country — perhaps more western than just country. It's the kind of music which can make the cowboys whoop it up, or bring tears to their eyes. Joe evokes those kind of responses from even the most outwardly tough of individuals.

Joe has a way of cutting through the facades people try to hide within. He sees clearly through it all, clean down to the very bones of human existence.

Pugliese filling 'void'

DISC-ounts Big Business

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) — The next time you're in a record shop browsing through discount albums, think of Dan Pugliese.

Pugliese is the mastermind behind the Springboard Record family, an independent label that buys the rights to old albums by major artists and repackages and markets them for $1.99 or less.

He releases 200 titles a year on a dozen labels, including such artists as Eric Clapton and Jimi Hendrix on the rock-oriented Springboard label, Herbie Mann and John Coltrane on the Trip and Catalyst jazz labels, and Charlie Rich and Johnny Cash on the Buckboard country label.

Pugliese has expanded into other areas of the record industry, but annual sales of six million records and 2.5 million tapes account for most of his gross profits, which reached $5 million in December alone.

"I say a gap, a void, in the record industry," Pugliese said. "Prices for albums continued to skyrocket, and I was sure people would be willing to pay two dollars or less to hear music by known artists."

In his eight years of repackaging albums, Pugliese has received numerous complaints that his releases were of inferior sound quality and that the packaging was not up to expectations.

"But we also get lots of letters from people who are glad that we've re-released albums that may be hard to get or are out of print," he says.

The key to success, he says, is knowing which artists are hot and can stand on their names — even if they were playing in obscure bands at the time of an early album release.

Once he decides an album

LUBBOCK WANDERING MINSTREL — Joe Ely, whose life story reads like a combination of Johnny B. Goode, Hobo Bill, and Gene Autrey, is on his way to becoming another Texas legend. Ely, born and raised in Lubbock, is a member of the "seen it all" school of country music. He is under contract with MCA records.

Exploding sketches, delicate beauty, thorough non-fiction

Pen and Ink from Master

By JOHN W. DEATS

County Librarian David Macaulay has become known internationally as one of the foremost artists currently in the field of the pen and ink drawing. This medium lends itself quite well to Macaulay's principal subjects, the architectural marvels of man. His studies at Rhode Island School of Design have added to an innate ability to capture the essence of three dimensional objects using only the "colors" of black and white.

Beginning with his 1973 Caldecott award-winner, "Cathedral", the artist has maintained his momentum with the publication of "City," "Pyramid," and "Underground." Each is a highly graphic, thorough treatment of the methods, tools, and laborers which have produced marvels such as the Roman aqueducts, roads and temples, the monumental tombs of the Pharaohs, and the intricate web of pipes, cables, and building foundations which lie unseen, beneath the surface of the typical modern city street.

"Cathedral" won five awards, including the 1975 German Jugendbuchpreis for best non-fiction of that year, and Holland's Silver Slate Pencil award for 1974. The Boston Globe's endorsement is typical of its reception: "Page after page of monumental overviews in extraordinary, exploding perspective..." Macaulay illustrates Gothic architecture in all its utility as well as its beauty, characterized by the flying buttresses, gargoyles, stained glass, and enormous vaulting of that era. The modern reader should pause at the thought that the typical cost of a cathedral's construction was the resources and labors of an entire region for an average of 100 years.

Turning from the austerity of pen and ink, one of the most colorful books published in 1976 is Richard Adams' and Nicola Bayley's "The Tyger Voyage."

COME TO THE FAIR!

The annual arts and crafts fair sponsored by the Officers Wives Club of Webb Air Force Base will be held Thursday with judging to take place prior to the regular business luncheon.

Always a popular event, the exhibit features many different crafts made by club members, and prizes are awarded to first, second and third place winners.

This year's categories for entries include easel art, crocheting and knitting, macrame and weaving, pottery and ceramics, needlework and "miscellaneous", the latter designation for any craft which doesn't fit into the other categories.

However, one does not have to be "crafty" to go home a winner, for members and guests attending the luncheon will have a chance at winning door prizes.

The host group for the luncheon will be the Resource Management and Maintenance wives, headed by Mrs. Mary Hanson and Mrs. Maxine Brown. Decorations will carry out the St. Patrick's Day theme.

CREWEL WORK worthy of a professional is displayed by Mrs. Judy Aufderheide who made the framed pictures she will enter in the OWC Arts and Crafts Show.

MACRAME ART is both pretty and practical. Here, Mrs. Jerry Grimes, wife of the base commander, examines one of the entries in this year's exhibit.

CERAMIC BIRDS and a delicately painted vase will be the entries of Mrs. Mary Hanson, right, here showing the decorator items to Mrs. Harry Spannaus, wife of the wing commander at Webb Air Force Base.

A Commander's Tribute

By JOBRIGHT

Year after year, the Officers Wives Club, along with other organizations affiliated with Webb Air Force Base, has contributed much to the social, cultural and economic well-being of Big Spring.

By the same token, the local community has welcomed its military neighbors, opening its heart, hands and homes as a supportive ally.

The fact that an unusual rapport exists between Big Spring and the base is attested to by the following remarks made to the Officers Wives Club Jan. 20, 1977 by Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander.

"When I was first asked to speak to you on the community's influence on the lives of our military and Webb AFB, I must admit that I was hesitant as I remember some strong advice I once received: 'Harry, my senior ranking friend said, you can get away with murder when briefing general officers, but don't EVER say anything to the Officers Wives Club unless it's fact, undisputed, unchallenged, and qualified.' Well, I intend to do just that as I desire to survive. Why am I relating to you about Big Spring's contributions to Webb AFB and the employees and dependents? Mainly, because you and other wing organizations do so much for the health of the community, and I want to insure that you do not feel your efforts are unnoticed and that you know that your good turns have been countered by many great things from the community.

"Fact: Base community relations between Webb and Big Spring are known as the finest Air Force-wide. The community has accepted our military and dependents as an integral part of Big Spring, as evidenced by the number of Webb people who support, participate, and hold key positions in civic organizations, church groups, PTA's, Boy Scouts and hospitals. In fact, the Jaycees have just asked me to nominate Webb candidates for the outstanding young man of Big Spring of 1976. Our Foreign Training office was recently honored for one of the Air Force's finest informational programs of cultural exchanges with our allied students — a program which is greatly dependent upon local citizens in opening their homes to our foreign students. Big Spring was also a national leader in opening the community as a safe haven for Vietnam refugees following the termination of the Vietnam war — Big Spring having the highest per capita in the nation of Vietnamese becoming city residents. As this was an Air Force-supported project, the city went all out to insure that the program was a great success and as such, it made national headlines.

"In the fall of 1974 the Big Spring Century Club was formed as a function of the Chamber of Commerce — its purpose, solely in support of Webb and its people. The Century Club is made up of 100 members who contribute $100 each per year. Their current budget for base hospitality projects alone, exceeds $7,500 per year.

"What have they done for us in 1976? $2,250 went to a mini-rodeo and bar-b-q for over 1,300 enlisted men and their families last spring; $750 plus $2,000 in gifts went toward the company grade officers and wives Christmas bingo party in December; $500 went into a social bust for our enlisted last fall and several hundred dollars were spent when Webb hosted the Sheppard, Laughlin foreign students in rotational soccer tournament.

"Quarterly, the club provides theater tickets and dinners for two of our IP's and supervisors of the quarter, the support officer of the Quarter, and our Airman-NCO and Senior NCO of the Quarter. Additionally, our Airman, NCO and Senior NCO of the Year will be honored by the city during the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet — $650 has been budgeted for this program to award our people.

"The Century Club also honors our visiting and departing dignitaries such as during the recent departures of our Kuwait and Iran country liaison officers. $250 has been budgeted for mementos and special gifts to these type of people.

"The Chamber also threw a big party and picked up the total tab when General Roberts visited us last spring. For the last two years they have rented the high school auditorium to provide a larger and more modern facility than our on-base theater, for the 'Tops in Blue' show. This gesture enabled more of our people to see the show and many townspeople as well, thereby further promoting our Air Force story throughout the community.

"On the political scene, the Century Club's efforts to keep Webb alive through legislative contacts and visits have been superb. Speaking of legislative efforts, it was the Century Club and civic leaders who obtained our new dining hall and cold storage facility. Our new Sunrise and Sunset bachelor enlisted quarters were cancelled until our local friends arranged for a congressional supplemental appropriation to meet raising contracting costs.

"Until the base was identified as a candidate for closure, local political influence persuaded Congress to appropriate the necessary funds for a new 200-man BOQ, a fuel maintenance hangar and a movie theater and if we are identified to remain open, you can bet that Big Spring will see that these and more facilities will be built.

"Well, I could go on and on in telling you about how the various foreign war associations and clubs provided a dinner honoring our POW returnees, how Howard College has granted us special considerations, how community leaders and wives promote our many UPT graduations, how the radio stations and newspapers support every endeavor we undertake, how they will contribute to our academy cadet squadron visit in March, how the auto dealers provide us with courtesy vehicles when needed — and what seems like 100 other things they do to promote our efforts in military life improvement and enrichment for both the base and community.

MRS. J. BARBER

Ceremony performed on Feb. 22

Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Barber are residing at 1307 Mulberry following their wedding Tuesday evening in Paint Rock. Barber is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barber, 2506 Seminole. A graduate of Big Spring High School, he attended Dallas Engineering School for a year and is now assistant manager of Barber Glass and Mirror. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Atkinson, 510 Sunset, is a graduate of Big Spring High School. The couple took a short wedding trip to San Antonio.

Officer says: Public paying cost of crime

The cost of crime to taxpayers was emphasized by Sgt. Ed Kissinger of the Crime Prevention Unit, Big Spring Police Department, when he spoke Tuesday evening to Spring City Chapter, American Business Women's Association.

Sgt. Kissinger said neighborhoods should cooperate in crime preventions, and that neighbors should notify police if they notice something unusual occurring on nearby property. Big Spring has 28 patrolmen on duty at present.

Suggesting safety tips, Sgt. Kissinger said cars should be locked when unoccupied as well as when driving. Lights should be left on when residents are not at home. Drivers should have their house key ready when they leave their car. He also advised members to engrave their valuables in case of theft.

Mrs. Debbie Wegman presided at the meeting which was held in the Texas Electric Reddy Room. Mrs. Alyce Butler gave the invocation.

Miss Ramona Molina gave the vocational talk. She has been employed by Montgomery Ward's for 22 years and is currently working in the CAC department. Her duties include notarizing papers, cashing checks, selling money orders, acting as supervisor in the accounting department and, occasionally, handling the switchboard.

Mrs. Wegman reminded members to prepare their "Boss of the Year" and "Woman of the Year" letters. It was agreed to give two scholarships in May for the fall semester.

An enrollment event and salad supper is slated March 22.

Mrs. Louise Fletcher gave the benediction.

For each tree harvested by one major paper company, five seedlings are planted. Many of these new trees are specially bred to grow 75 per cent more fiber per acre per year than ordinary southern pines.

Rush events scheduled by sorority

Upcoming "rush" events were discussed by Alpha Kappa Omicron, Beta Sigma Phi, Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Johnny Bedell, 1306 Lamar.

A "Rainbow Road Party" will be held for rushees in the home of Mrs. John Stancil, 1819 Benton, at 7 p.m., March 1. Mrs. Terry Sims announced plans for an Italian dinner to be held March 12 for members, rushees and their husbands.

Mrs. Stancil, president, read correspondence from sorority headquarters concerning the Beta Sigma Phi Loan Fund and the International Endowment Fund. The loan fund, supplied for members in an immediate financial emergency, is financed by donations from Beta Sigma Phi chapters for fellow members. The endowment fund is part of a general fund diverted to research or scholarships. Various projects which Beta Sigma Phi has supported are cancer, polio and cystic fibrosis research.

Names for the "Howard County Woman of the Year" and "Beta Sigma Phi of the Year" were submitted. Winners will be announced at the annual Founders Day banquet in April.

An Easter egg hunt is slated April 8 for members' children. Refreshments will be served.

A baby shower was held for Mrs. Keith Hamilton following the meeting. The chapter presented Mrs. Hamilton with a set of silver pins engraved with her daughter's name and birthday. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., March 8 in the home of Mrs. Douglas Allen, 3606 Parkway. This will be a model meeting with all prospective members invited to attend.

Travel to Houston

FORSAN (SC) — Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wash, who manage the College Beauty Center shop, went to Houston this weekend to take their beauty operators and their manager to attend a short course in hair styling.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brasher and children were in Robert Lee last weekend to visit Mrs. Brasher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Service.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. A.J. McCall were Mrs. McCall's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. A.O. Jones, Sand Springs.

J.M. Craig and Jack Lamb are patients in Malone-Hogan hospital. Mrs. Vera Harris is in Hall-Bennett.

Bringing up young lawns

Here's how to improve the soil for new lawns. Prepare a mixture of one part peat moss and one part horticultural perlite, a white, sterile lightweight volcanic material readily available at nursery centers in large packages for lawn application. Spread this mixture over the soil to a thickness of two to three inches. Rototill or spade the mixture into the soil, rake level and plant your seed. Water the soil area well to settle soil evenly.

One of Jane Austen's novels has the heroine dining on soup and negus. Negus was a beverage named after a Colonel Francis Negus, who died in 1732, and is the person credited with having first made it. The ingredients consisted of hot water, wine, and lemon juice, sweetened and spiced. Today, we have replaced the word negus with the name Hot Mullied Wine, though in recipe books the name of the drink sometimes appears: Negus or Hot Mullied Wine. The peculiarity of Jane Austen's heroine dining on soup and negus is not the drink itself, but that, given the sweetness of the drink, the two would be taken together. New tastes have changed since the 18th century. Dine on tasty food and in our family style surroundings at COKER'S RESTAURANT, 309 Benton, 267-2218. We are a family style restaurant where you can afford to take the whole family out to eat and we assure you, you won't go home hungry. Our mouth watering home made pies and rolls are just worth coming in for and our menu has something for everyone. Next time your family wants to eat out come to COKER'S and enjoy your night out. Open: 4 p.m.-10 p.m., 7 days. GOURMET TIP: Party Times! Plan the menu so that serving will be easy. A fancy casserole is fine if there is no one to help you.

'Our greatest waste is human potential'

The Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday evening at Coker's Restaurant for a dinner and program, with Miss Edith Gay, president, presiding. One guest, Miss Pauline Sullivan, was introduced.

The personal development committee of Mrs. Dora Ruth Carter, Mrs. Helen Cobean and Mrs. Mamie Roberts were hostesses and used George Washington decorations on the tables.

Mrs. Carter introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ron (Saundia) Killough, home economist, for Texas Electric Service Company.

Mrs. Killough spoke on the subject of personal development, using a chart showing areas of personal development.

"Personal development is not just a success in life, rather, it is successful living," she said. "There are several areas in life in which we can strive to grow: physical, social, mental, spiritual, emotional, financial or family living. Growth in any or all of these areas is an on-going process.

The rate in which we grow involves belief in ourselves and motivation, with a good self image. We think much about the waste of natural resources, but seldom think of our greatest waste: the potential talents and abilities we call human resources.

Each person is an inexhaustible reservoir of human potential, but one can develop his hidden talents only if he recognizes them and determines to use them through individual effort.

"It is necessary to create a positive self image and wholesome self-respect, and when we become creative in personal and professional life we begin to elevate ourselves and contribute to society's standard of living.

"A personal goal at the expense of someone else is not a worthwhile goal, but we should establish a priority of values and specific goals and set them high enough to sufficiently test the best within us. No achievement is possible without desire, and mistakes and failures can be used sometimes to motivate us in a greater desire for achievement. If we achieve some goal then we can encourage someone else with a similar goal.

"As we cultivate our own personal growth we are often surprised at the positive things we find within our own potential. If we can catch a glimpse of that affirming faith God has in each of us, then we have grown to the point where we are free to reach out and appreciate and accept the wealth of human potential within us, overcome our frustrations, challenge our potential and make our on-going process."

The next meeting of the club will be a business session March 8.

Chrome tip

Some sound advice if you're in the market for a radio receiver is not get swayed by chrome rather than chromatics. A receiver that looks like the control panel of a 747 may be pretty to look at, but one with a simple exterior and accurate music reproduction is what you should look for.

Convention is discussed Thursday

The upcoming international convention for members of Altrusa clubs was discussed at the Thursday noon meeting of the local Altrusans.

It was announced that the international convention will be in England in June. Several members of the club who have visited England told what they liked about the country. Mrs. Jessie Nalley and Mrs. Helen Cobean both described the people and the scenery.

Mrs. Todd Sullivan will show a filmstrip she made while in England at the club's next meeting at 7 p.m., March 10 at Coker's Restaurant. This meeting will replace the regular noon meeting.

Miss Kay McDaniel presided at the meeting. It was announced that the club had received a notice from International concerning the recruiting of new members.

Dear Abby

Refuses to Consent To Shotgun Wedding

DEAR ABBY: Our son is 13 years old and a freshman in high school. A 12-year-old junior high girl will have a baby next June, and our son will be that baby's father.

Thank God he had the courage to bring the little girl to us and tell us. The girl's parents both work, drink and run around while the child stays home days (and many nights) alone, with no supervision whatsoever.

We went to the girl's parents, and they told us they would have our boy jailed for statutory rape if we didn't give them $1,000 in cash. My husband said he wouldn't get involved with blackmail. Then they suggested the kids get married in a state that allows kids their age to marry with parental consent. We refused.

We think it would be better for all concerned if the girl had her baby and gave it up for adoption. Are we doing right in refusing to consent to this marriage?

OHIO PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: In my opinion, yes. The baby will be much better off in an adoptive home with parents who really want a child. You need a lawyer to acquaint you with your son's rights and obligations.

It may be a bit late to tell you that your son's education on "the birds and bees" must have been sadly neglected. But perhaps this will serve to warn other parents that this CAN and DOES occur.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 32-year-old man who is self-supporting, and although I didn't graduate from college, I did go for two years. I know that my spelling and grammar is far from perfect, but I'm not exactly illiterate.

My problem is my mother. She taught school before she was married, and now lives in a distant state. When I write to her, she returns my letters with all the errors in spelling and grammar "corrected" with a red pencil!

At first I just ignored it, but I have had enough. Should I write to her and ask her to please quit correcting my letters? Or should I just quit writing?

My wife says, "Skip it. Your mother is probably getting senile."

Senile at 58?

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: It's doubtful. Why not look at it this way: Your mother is really doing you a favor by pointing out your mistakes. But if you're all that bugged, level with her. (Old school teachers never die, they just lose their class.)

DEAR ABBY: My grandmother is the sweetest woman who ever lived. She had a stroke a couple of years ago and is quite old now. She is always talking about dying. When I am with her she tells me to be sure that Aunt G gets this and that Uncle B doesn't get anything. And she has told me repeatedly that she wants me to have her diamond brooch, her good dishes and her silver, and she wants my husband to have Grandpa's gold watch. I know I am her favorite granddaughter, and she has told me repeatedly what she wants me to have.

Since her dying is inevitable, do I continue to tell her not to talk about it? Or should I be realistic and say, "Gram, I think you ought to write that down"? I don't want to appear grabby.

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: There's nothing "grabby" in suggesting that she "write it down." That's the only way she can be sure that her wishes will be carried out after she is.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

steps to a planned research program, effective genealogical correspondence, note-keeping systems, advertising for lost ancestors, reading early handwriting styles and finding the place of origin of immigrant ancestors.

Open to the public, the workshop will be of interest to people who are involved in what has been called "America's fastest growing hobby." Admission is $2.50 which will include a packet of genealogical material which will be distributed at the meeting. The packet will include various family information recording sheets and other valuable information.

Mrs. Kowallis has had over 25 years of genealogical research experience. She was librarian for the Cache Genealogical Library in Logan for six years and assisted in the preparation of the "Handbook for Genealogical Correspondence" compiled in 1963 by the Cache Genealogical Library. She has ancestral research certificates from Brigham Young University in basic genealogy, American, English, Welch, Danish and Swedish research. She has been an instructor for 12 years and was co-editor of two publications related to genealogy. She received a BS degree from Utah State University.

'Boss of Year' title goes to Capt. Sharer

Capt. Bruce W. Sharer, supplies management officer, 78th Supply Squadron, Webb Air Force Base, was chosen "Boss of the Year" for Cactus Chapter, American Business Women's Association, during a banquet for members and guests Tuesday at Big Spring Country Club.

The announcement and presentation was made by Bill E. Read of Coahoma, last year's title holder.

The winning nomination, submitted by Mrs. Gloria McCombs, read, in part, "Capt. Sharer has made significant contributions to the effectiveness of the supply mission. He was recognized as Support Junior Officer of the Quarter and has been nominated for Outstanding USAF Supply Junior Manager of the Year award. His professional qualities are exemplary. Capt. Sharer is completely dedicated to equal opportunity. He displays fair and impartial treatment and shows sincere interest in all his personnel. Capt. Sharer is a strong leader who promotes enthusiasm and inspires others to exceptional accomplishments."

Capt. Sharer earned a BS degree at the USAF Academy and MS degree in Logistics Management at the Air Force Institute of Technology. His awards and decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with 10 Oak Leaf Clusters and the Air Force Commendation Medal. He is among the top 5 per cent of officers selected to attend the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. His wife, Linda, is a computer programmer at Cosden Oil and Chemical Co.

Guest speaker for the evening was J. Tom Graham, publisher of the Big Spring Herald, whose experience in journalism has ranged from editing the Gonzales Inquirer to being a staff member of the military publication, Stars and Stripes, and handling advertising sales for newspapers in Australia. He earned a BA degree in journalism from North Texas State University and was editor of the Huntsville Daily Item prior to coming to Big Spring.

Graham injected a good deal of humor into his presentation as he questioned modern man's faith in technology.

"We have developed a tendency, which I hope is temporary, to trust technology and forget the human element," said Graham. "However, at the Herald, our business is almost completely people-oriented. Ninety-nine per cent of our business is people."

Graham concluded by paying tribute to working women, noting that surveys show they make better managers than men, partly because of their empathy, communication skills and sensitivity to human needs. The vocational talk was by Mrs. Frances Swann, the chapter's Woman of the Year for 1976. Mrs. Vonna Lee Cedarberg extended the welcome to bosses and other guests, and special recognitions were by Mrs. Ruth Manuel. The Pledge of Allegiance and prayers were led by Mrs. Lucille Brown, chapter president.

The Bosses Night Banquet committee, headed by Mrs. Helen McDonald, used a red and pink color scheme in decorations. Tables featured candles circled with pink and red paper flowers, and a tall pink candle accented the head table.

The Cactus Chapter, ABWA, which has 66 members, has awarded three scholarships during the past year.

Guests visit in Westbrook

Reception today will fete Whites

A 25th anniversary reception will be held today from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Troy White. The affair will be at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Thompson, 421 Hillside, with cohorts being their other son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Brooks of Van Horn.

Refreshments will be served from a table covered with a lavender cloth overlaid with white lace and centered with an arrangement of blue and lavender flowers flanked by tapers in silver candlesticks. Silver punch and coffee services will be used. The silver and lavender theme will also be used on the guest registry.

Miss Carla Clanton and Miss Christi Clanton will assist in serving the guests.

White, who was born in Jonesboro, La., moved to Texas in 1947, meeting his future wife when she lived in Monahans. They were married Feb. 29, 1952 in the First Baptist Church of Monahans and moved to Big Spring in 1960. Mrs. White was born in El Paso. He is employed by Mid-America Pipeline Co., and works for Gamco Industries Inc. Holding membership in the Scenic Chapter, American Business Women's Association, she has served that organization in several capacities.

The Whites have one grandchild, Jessica Thompson, 18 months.

The couple's leisure time activities include camping, fishing, hunting and bowling.

MRS. BRUCE RAY MYERS

Miss Martha Morris weds Bruce Myers

Miss Martha Morris and Bruce Ray Myers were married in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in the Baptist Temple Church with the Rev. William H. Hatler officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Morris 2400 Alamesa, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Myers, 2409 Cheyenne.

The altar was centered with an archway entwined with greenery and topped with white doves, flanked by two baskets of yellow and white gladiolus and daisies. Branched candelabra accented each side of the altar.

The bride wore a traditional gown of white silk organza with accents of Cluney lace. The moulded bodice featured a high neckline of lace and a sheer set-in yoke framed by the lace and highlighted in seed pearls. Long bishop sleeves were shirred to lace cuffs with ruffles falling over the hands. The bouffant skirt was accented in an apron design formed with the lace; the hemline and chapel-length train encircled in a double flounce of lace-edged ruffling. Her elbow-length veil of organza was caught to a matching lace capulet.

The bride carried a nosegay of white and yellow daisies and gypsophylla tied with matching streamers.

Mrs. John Gustin, Truth or Consequences, N.M., was matron of honor. She wore a yellow floor-length gown and carried a nosegay of yellow, orange and white daisies.

Bud Bland was best man. Ushers were Tommy Myers, Elk City, Okla.; David Myers, Chicago, Ill.; and Chuck Myers, Big Spring, all brothers of the bridegroom.

The bride, a graduate of Big Spring High School, attended Howard College and is employed at the Veteran's Administration Hospital. The bridegroom, a graduate of Forsan High School, also attended Howard College and is employed at the Veteran's Administration Hospital.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Big Spring.

A reception honored the couple following the ceremony. The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth overlaid with net. Serving were Mrs. Darrell Horn, Miss Shanna Farmer and Miss Lajuan Crow, all of Midland. Miss Gaylene Greenfield registered guests.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morris, all of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Crow, Midland; Hugh Slagle, Lubbock; and Mr. and Mrs. K.L. Brady, Bedford.

Furnishings, color reveal personality

Mrs. Gayle Wagner presented a program, "Decorating and Color Trends," at the Tuesday meeting of Center Point Home Demonstration Club held at the Kentwood Center.

Mrs. Wagner said colors used in decorating tend to denote personalities. She explained that blue is supposed to show an outgoing personality; pink, dignity; orange, good nature; yellow, "high minded"; green, "normal" personality; and red and yellow, happy and cheerful. She said brown seems to be men's favorite color in decorating.

While giving tips on decorating, Mrs. Wagner said colors should be mixed to make interesting color patterns. Green and white often denote cheerfulness, she said. A variety of colors bring out beauty and comfort. She said that with an unobtrusive background, yellow and blue bring out highlights of furnishings. To lower height of a ceiling, use a dark color. To give height, use a light or pastel color.

durable as well as bright looking. The tight loop rug are easier to clean.

Mrs. Kenneth Orr, president, reminded members of the home repair programs shown at 2 p.m., Saturdays over Channel 9. The programs are sponsored by the Texas A&M University extension service.

Contributions to the Texas Home Demonstration Association were received from members. It was announced that the club will furnish cookies for a workshop sponsored by Area 6 agents March 1 in the Flame Room. All officers are urged to attend the event, which will be conducted by Mrs. Jean Cline.

Miss Janet Sargent, assistant county extension agent, will give a program on the nutrition value of meals at the next meeting, March 8, in Kentwood Center.

The door prize was won by Mrs. N.R. Garrett. Hostesses were Mrs. James Petty and Mrs. Orr. Hostesses for the next meeting will be Mrs. Florence Rhoton and Mrs. J.R. Petty.

A survey of 2,545 Americans in August, 1971 found many persons were not eating foods from the fruit-vegetable group. This group included dark green and deep yellow vegetables needed in the diet for vitamin A which is necessary for growth, prevention of infection by keeping the linings of the mouth and digestive system in good condition, and for prevention of night blindness. Only five per cent of the respondents said they served deep yellow vegetables daily and 21 per cent said they served dark green vegetables daily. However, only 12 per cent of the household members had food intakes that included foods from either of these categories.

Dinner planned for dignitary

Mrs. Ora Jenkins presided at the Feb. 15 meeting of the Benevolent Patriotic Order of the Does, Drove 61. The group met in the Elks Lodge Hall.

Basic plans were made for the next meeting, when Mrs. Betty Ann Cheek, supreme president of the grand lodge, will be guest.

Elks and their wives have been invited to join members of the Drove and their husbands to host a salad supper in the lodge hall at 7 p.m., March 1 to honor Mrs. Cheek as well as Mrs. Irene Cook and Mrs. Myrtle Looney, past supreme presidents of the Grand Lodge of the B.P.O. Does.

Pageant date announced

On June 7-8, a group of talented young ladies will compete for the title of Texas first All American Girl. The pageant is scheduled to be held in Waco at the Holiday Inn.

The All American Girl Pageant is said to be unique in that it is one of the few pageants in existence that covers such a wide range of age groups.

Categories are the All American Tot, ages 3-6; All American Little Miss, ages 7-9; All American Miss, ages 10-12; All American Teen, ages 13-17; and the All American Girl, ages 18-26.

members did not eat a dark green or deep yellow vegetable, there is the high probability that many family members are not consuming sufficient amounts of the important nutrient-vitamin A.

A survey of families with and without gardens showed that a higher percentage of families with gardens consumed foods from the fruit-vegetable group than those without gardens.

Dark green and deep yellow vegetables and the amount of vitamin A in International Units they contain in one-half cup of the cooked vegetables are: green beans, 340; broccoli, 3,250; carrots, 7,610; collards, 5,130; kale, 4,070; mustard greens, 4,060; spinach, 7,390; winter squash, 4,305; sweet potatoes, 8,500; and turnip greens, 4,135. The average adult male needs 5,000 IUs daily and the average female needs 4,000 IUs.

NEEDED FIBER
These vegetables are also important in the diet for fiber needed for prevention of constipation and for other minerals and vitamins. This is reason for eating foods to obtain needed nutrients rather than taking vitamin pills. Also, vitamin A taken in large doses over a period of time is dangerous to health.

Here are some ways of getting dark green and deep yellow vegetables into meals as a main dish try acorn squash stuffed with sausage, or turnip greens with ham hock, or spinach souffle. As a vegetable dish served candied or panned sweet potatoes or carrots or to add crispness to the meal, serve a spinach salad or a tossed salad with a combination of such vegetables as spinach, carrots and green pepper. For a hot dish on a cold day, serve spinach soup. Add pumpkin or carrots to quick breads for variety. Desserts such as pumpkin or sweet potato pie or carrot cake are always favorites.

MR. AND MRS. E. L. SANDELL

Reception will mark wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Sandell will be honored next Sunday afternoon in the fellowship hall of Midway Baptist Church on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The event will be hosted by the couple's children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Decker, Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Sandell, Pecos; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meek, Sacramento, Calif.; and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bailey, Higginson, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandell (she is the former Nancy Davis) were married March 8, 1927 in Anaoco, La. Their first child, Alger, died at the age of 10 months. They have 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Sandell farmed in Louisiana until 1943 when the family moved west due to his health. He and Mrs. Sandell began working together in the service station business operating at various times, stations in Ajo, Ariz.; Pyote, Pecos, Big Spring and Midway until retirement in 1970.

The Sandells are charter members of Midway Baptist Church where he is a deacon. Sandell is also a Mason, and Mrs. Sandell is a member of Order of the Eastern Star. Since retirement, they have spent much of their time traveling.

For the reception, Mrs. Sandell will wear a full-length, beige dress with gold accessories and corsage of yellow carnations. Sandell will have a yellow carnation boutonniere.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School, and attended Tarleton State University. She was employed at Ward's Western Wear. The bridegroom, a graduate of Keller High School and Tarleton State University, is owner of the Keller Feed and Supply in Keller, where the couple will reside.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the Patio Room at the Holiday Inn, Big Spring, following the ceremony. The bridegroom's table was covered with a candlelight organdy cloth and accented with an arrangement of bronze pompon mums in a brass container. Copper appointments were used.

The bride's table was covered with a white organdy floor-length cloth. A mixed sunburst arrangement using all white flowers was held in a branched silver candelabrum. Appointments were silver and crystal.

The floral centerpiece on the serving table carried out a patriotic theme in red, white and blue. Presiding at the silver punch service and crystal punch service were Mrs. Douglas Newman, Mrs. G.C. Barnett, Mrs. Bob Wren and Mrs. Bill Early. Assisting with other hostess duties were Miss Helen Ewing, Mrs. Barbara Martin, Mrs. Philip Parker and Mrs. C. William Overhusler Jr., the latter of Snyder.

Guests were received by Mrs. Riley, regent, and Mrs. John Cobean, past regent, and were registered by Miss Sherri Alexander and Mrs. John Damron.

Coahoma church site of wedding service

Miss Linda Read and Glenn (Ace) Berry were married Saturday afternoon in the Coahoma Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Charlie Murphy officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Willis Berry, Keller, and Mr. and Mrs. Hezzie Noble Read Jr., Coahoma.

The couple exchanged vows before an arch entwined with greenery and topped with white doves. Baskets of white gladiolus accented each side of the arch.

The bride was attired in a gown of white eyelet cotton reflecting the antebellum period. The molded bodice featured a Sabrina neckline encircled in ruffled edging. Long, slender sleeves which tapered to the wrist, were cuffed in tiers of Swedish eyelet edging. The crescent waistline, encircled with a lace sash, topped a bell-shaped skirt. Three tiers of Swedish eyelet formed deep flounces at the hemline. A row of lace, white roses and gypsophila adorned her hair. She carried a cascade of white rosebuds tied with white satin ribbon.

ATTENDANTS
Mrs. Mike Carter, Stephenville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a periwinkle blue floor-length dress with aqua blue and apple-green trim at the top. She carried a bouquet of white snow shoe mums and white roses.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School, and attended Tarleton State University. She was employed at Ward's Western Wear. ## Legislator says politics for women

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A woman legislator told her colleagues today that women's participation in politics extends beyond voting and holding office.

It includes, said Rep. Wilhelmina Delco of Austin, "making those who hold those offices accountable to the people that elected them."

Mrs. Delco presided over a brief ceremony in the House commemorating the birth of Susan B. Anthony, an early leader in the women's suffrage movement.

Most of the 10 women House members were on the podium with Mrs. Delco and other speakers. Angie Flores, a University of Texas law student, said she looked toward the time when women would be not only legislators but also statewide officeholders, including governor.

"Being First Lady is a great honor, but being governor would be even greater," she said.

Waco school board member Dr. Emma Harrison said women have been an influence in great public decisions.

"When a job is to be done, God always finds a good woman to place beside the man," she said.

Local tea attended by area residents

Residents of four area towns were among guests registering at the George Washington Tea held Sunday in the home of Dr. and Mrs. W.A. Riley. The tea has become an annual event sponsored by the Captain Elisha Mack Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Belcher, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Denham, Midland; Mrs. Genevieve Rogers, Snyder; and Dr. Sue Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Graves, Mrs. Bobby Kelly and Mrs. Hughlyn Todd, all of Stanton.

During the tea, Mrs. Stanley Reid, chapter librarian, presented awards to winners of an American history contest sponsored by the DAR. The recipients, all from Stanton, were Greg Graves, first; Michelle Fisher, second; Georgan Herzog, third; and D'awn Kelly, fourth. The DAR initiated the designation of February as American History Month.

Guests were received by Mrs. Riley, regent, and Mrs. John Cobean, past regent, and were registered by Miss Sherri Alexander and Mrs. John Damron.

Times have changed

COY NALLEY

Coy Nalley, like many other longtime morticians, has had to take a lot of kidding and be called by nicknames such as "Digger". But he is also kind of a Big Spring institution. There's something about a person who is around at the time that you lose loved ones that makes you recall them as special.

Nalley, who retired from the business on July, 1972 says that times have changed so much in the funeral business. He went to work for a mortician in February 1922 and stayed for over 50 years.

"Coy recalls that first job. When he was 16 1/2 years old he went to Fort Worth hunting work. He was in a barber shop and heard a man there say he was going to hire a young man. Nalley asked the barber who he was and they told him the "undertaker." Coy walked to his establishment and walked around the block three times thinking it over.

Finally, he got up the nerve to go inside. He went to work the following Friday and on Saturday, an old man died in a nearby "poor house." He had a long beard. The undertaker and his crew went to supper and left Coy to shave off the beard. "That's the hardest thing I ever did in my life. But I needed that job," he recalls.

Nalley says that times have changed so much in the funeral home business, and contrary to what people might say, "the unethical undertakers lived years ago and today it is a very professional, above-board operation conducted almost entirely by high class people."

Nalley recalls the old days when you went to the homes and out to the ranches and farms and embalmed the bodies on the spot.

"The family would lay coins on the eyes to close them until you could get there and close them properly, because they didn't like their loved ones staring at them."

Nalley recalls that funeral homes used to be connected with furniture and hardware stores and that people would pick out one casket, another lining and another set of hardware and "we would put it all together to suit them."

He said that in the early days, persons considered the metal casket as cold and "we only sold one out of ten. They preferred wooden caskets. This has changed. Nowadays, most people buy metal ones."

Nalley was born in Itasca and came out to Big Spring when he was three years old on an immigrant train with his father, T.O. Nalley, who had farmed in Runnels and Coleman Counties. He rode with his Dad looking after two cars of livestock and implements. His mother and sister rode in a passenger car.

Nalley recalled that back in the days when he would go out to the homes of the deceased, it would take about five hours to prepare the body — often by the light of an oil lamp.

Nalley worked at Fort Worth and then Rising Star and then Dallas. He began to court Jessie Gregory in Talpa in 1926 and married her in 1932. "That was a bad year to get married. There weren't any jobs. She had a good one and then I got one working for Elliott's Funeral Home in Abilene. Times began to get rough and I had a chance to sell caskets from the factory for Homer Radford of Stanford.

"I did pretty good. I used to travel a lot. I would stay about ever three weeks with A.D. Kiker there in Colorado City, I recall. Embalmers were asking $100 a month or less and I had some months I made as much as $500 and once even made $800."

Coy thought a moment and then said, "Then Janice was born in 1936 and I decided to quit traveling. I'd go home and that little thing wouldn't know who I was. That's when we came to Big Spring and began the Nalley Funeral Home in about 1938."

Later, Nalley persuaded J.C. Pickle to help them out and he added up a partner. Coy laughed, "It's almost like he came to help one day and stayed 35 years but it wasn't quite like that. But I have always been so thankful that he did become the partner in the business."

The Nalleys have been a real part of Big Spring —

They are proud of their daughter and husband who live in California and their two college granddaughters, Rene and Sandy.

Nalley has been a deacon in the First Baptist Church since 1939 and is the oldest active member of the American Businessmen's Club, having held every office. He's also a member of the impromptu coffee club of old-timers who meet at the Settles.

But most of all, Coy and Jessie are, as I already said, an important part of Big Spring and important to those who have known them along the way.

Or that's the way I found them — when I was out ridin' fence.

Conservative Union rates lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Conservative Union gave 100 per cent ratings to two senators and 14 representatives in its annual ratings that were released here.

The ratings were based on the conservative organization's assessment of votes on 30 issues.

The organization said that overall the ratings for the second session of the 94th Congress in 1976 were not substantially different from those of the first session in 1975.

In its ratings, the organization said House Democrats improved themselves slightly, while Republicans decreased their ratings slightly in 1976 from 1975.

Given 100 per cent ratings were Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Reps. Sam Steiger and John Conlan, R-Ariz., John Roussettel and Del Clawson, R-Calif., Steve Symms and George Hansen, R-Idaho, Philip Crane, R-Ill., Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., Gene Taylor, R-Mo., Delbert Latta, Samuel Devine and John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, and James Collins and Bill Archer, R-Texas.

Money is name of game

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — If your total income and spending level has tripled the past 10 years and you still have a surplus to spend in the future, you're doing as well as Texas state government. If not, you're falling behind.

At a time when many state and local governments are facing dire problems in making income meet outgo without service reductions, Texas is in an enviable fiscal position.

Revenue will exceed spending by about $950 million by the end of the present fiscal year on Aug. 31, and Comptroller Bob Bullock estimates there will be about $2 billion in revenue above the current level of spending for the biennium beginning Sept. 1.

That makes about $3 billion for what commonly is called a surplus for the 1977-78 biennium — and that's almost as much as the entire state budget for the 1964-65 biennium.

The total budget for the coming two years is expected to be somewhere around the $15.3 billion figure suggested by the Legislative Budget Board.

An exact total will depend upon how many pet proposals are approved by the Legislature this spring.

There already are sufficient proposals for either increasing spending or reducing certain taxes to put the state almost $800 million in the hole if all were adopted without a tax increase somewhere.

There will be a lot of dust stirred up by legislative infighting before the final budget is adopted next May, but two things are as certain as anything can be: The state will not go into a financial hole because it is prohibited by the Texas Constitution from doing so; and spending will continue to go up as it has each two years in recent history.

Just 14 years ago the legislature adopted a total budget of just over $3 billion for fiscal years 1964 and 1965. Today the budget of just the health, welfare and rehabilitation agencies tops that amount.

Many things have changed over those 14 years. Inflation has cut purchasing power about in half and the federal government is sending a lot more money from Washington.

The latest report from the comptroller's office shows Texas gets about $1.8 billion a year in federal grants-in-aid and revenue sharing. This still leaves the state's citizens at a disadvantage in terms of federal distributions.

Texans get back only 82 cents out of every $1 they pay in federal income taxes. Only eight states get less.

Even this smaller-than-average contributes about 27 per cent of all state revenues. Federal dollars definitely have become an important factor in state finances.

But it is what's happened within the state boundaries that has allowed the state to hike spending dramatically without a major tax increase in the past five years.

The total state budget increases the past 14 years have varied from 19 per cent for fiscal 1974-75 to 36 per cent for fiscal 1976-77.

In terms of what is called "key funds" — basically everything but highways and transportation that is paid by taxes — the increase between 1974-75 and 1976-77 was 34 per cent.

Information from the House Ways and Means Committee indicates the "key funds" could be increased by another 34 per cent for the coming biennium without a tax increase. The House has approved 2 drop in utility and inheritance taxes which would cut that spending increase to about 30 per cent.

What allows all this talk about increasing spending and lowering some taxes at the same time is a revenue boon financed primarily by Texas consumers.

Oil and gas production taxes based on price, have jumped dramatically the last three years as the cost of oil and gas has likewise moved upward for consumers.

In 1974 there was almost a 55 per cent hike in oil and gas production tax revenue over 1973. The next two years the revenue kept rolling in with jumps with 28 and 20 per cent.

There also have been notable increases in motor vehicle sales tax, corporation franchise and sales tax incomes the last two years. The sales tax jump has been particularly significant because that income makes up more than a third of total state tax collections.

But the question is: How long can the tax revenue boon continue? The oil and gas taxes face a particularly limited life as our energy supplies dwindle.

Like mothers worried that their spoiled children might wolf down too many sweets, state leaders are warning that less profitable times are coming.

Speaker Bill Clayton has told the 149 members of his House that the "transfusion of more and more taxpayer money into building a bigger and bigger government has got to be halted."

He has warned in his rural-folkish way that unless protected the projected surplus is likely to be soaked up "like a pet of soft butter being spread across hot bread."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has tried to sober up any light thoughts about putting all the money into new state services by stating flatly he will not allow new or additional taxes "so long as I am governor."

Since most people think Briscoe is planning on another four-year term, a no-tax decree could have long-range effects on state spending.

But Briscoe and Clayton both put their full weight behind a proposal to greatly increase expenditures for highways. That measure got top priority and approval in the House before being slowed for a closer look by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in the Senate.

Other major proposals with popular legislative appeal involve public school financing, teacher pay raises and reductions in the utility and inheritance taxes. A few legislators still may hope to save some of the surplus for less affluent times for Texas.

Five thefts reversed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Court of Criminal Appeals reversed five Harris County theft convictions today because the indictments alleged the property was taken "without the owner's consent."

The court denied a state motion for rehearing in a sixth Harris County theft case on the same ground, then referred to it in the other five cases.

The state argued that alleging the property was taken "unlawfully" satisfied the requirement in the new penal code.

But the appeals court said the "unlawfully" allegation pleads only a conclusion of law and omits the facts necessary to that conclusion.

Kelly Gene Reynolds was convicted of stealing a billfold and cash from George Searce. The high court overruled the state's motion for rehearing in Reynolds' case, then cited Reynolds in the reversals of theft convictions of Aubrey Allen Daniel, Richard Rudolph Herrin, Eda Mae Auzeene, Robert Lewis Sanders and Robert Alexander Johnson Jr.

'Executive Forum 77' to be held at Dyess AFB

DAVID C. RUSSELL JONES DOUGHERTY

Abilene Chamber of Commerce President, L.A. Anderson, Mayor Fred Lee Hughes, and 12th Air Division Commander, B. Gen. Christopher S. Adams, Jr., have announced plans for a symposium entitled, "Executive Forum 77," that will be held at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene April 5-6.

"The United States in World Transition" is the general theme of the Forum that is being jointly sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and Dyess Air Force Base.

Approximately 100 participants (75 civilians and 25 military) are expected to attend the one and one-half day Forum. Civic leaders representing a variety of viewpoints and a cross-section of vocations from Abilene and the surrounding communities, plus military leaders from installations in the Big Country region are being invited to the presentations and to discuss the many facets of change affecting the United States in the World Today.

Dr. Thomas K. Kim, be at the Abilene Civic Center for a luncheon address at noon Tuesday, April 5. General Dougherty's remarks will center around the Forum theme: "The United States in World Transition."

Tuesday's activities will conclude with a dinner at the Abilene Civic Center featuring an address by the U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff, General Jones. He will speak on "The Role of the U.S. Military Today."

Reservations for the luncheon and the dinner Tuesday, April 5, at the Civic Center are being handled by the Abilene Chamber of Commerce. Tickets which will be sold on a first come, first serve basis, are limited and can be purchased through the Chamber of Commerce by calling 677-7241.

president, McMurry College, will deliver the keynote address Tuesday morning, April 5 entitled "Freedom: Worthy of Your Effort and Mine." He will be followed by Dr. John C. Stevens, President, Abilene Christian University, who will address "The Role of U.S. Democracy 1776-1976."

Highlighting the two-day Forum will be the attendance of General David C. Jones, Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, and General Russell E. Dougherty, Commander in Chief, Strategic Air Command. Each will make presentations which will be open to the public.

Gen. Dougherty, Commander in Chief, SAC, will

Coin of marriage

By WILFRID M. CALNAN,
Director Howard Co.
Family Service Center

"How is it today?" Helen asked as Mandy and Jason took their places at the beginning of their weekly session. Jason smiled. Mandy spoke: "It worked! It worked! Jason told me how he felt on Tuesday night. He came home looking awful and flatly stated, 'I've had a terrible day. And I don't want to talk about it.' I just looked at him and went to the kitchen and got supper ready. But I was so glad that he told me." "I appreciated Mandy that night," Jason recounted. "She didn't bug me. Just let me be. I didn't want to talk about it."

"The important thing, Jason," Helen observed warmly, "is that you let Mandy know where you were. That's all she needed. You didn't keep her wondering."

"At least, I knew, he wasn't angry with me," Mandy interjected. "Then, I could go about my business. And you know Helen, I felt warmly toward Jason. I did want to help him. I felt warmly for him." "You did help him," Helen responded. "You proceeded to take care of him by preparing supper."

"Another thing happened this week, Helen," Mandy recalled. "Remember we told you about the real estate agent? Well — I shouldn't have done it, but I got on to Jason again. You know what happened? Well, we both ended up talking with the guy. It was a compromise. I learned something. I didn't know that Jason and I could team up so well." "My, poor, poor real estate agent!" Helen smiled.

You know, Jason and Mandy, you're finding something out. You are talking with each other. I couldn't tell you how to do this. All I could do was make suggestions. Each couple has to find their own way of communicating. That's what's so beautiful. There's no set way. It's a creative act. Marriage is a creative act, or a series of creative acts. No two couples will do things the same way. It has to be their way. And language — communication is a creative act.

Words aren't for combat; they're for telling where we are and where you're coming from. Marriage is an exchange of selves, of husband and wife, with one another. Communication, the words, the way we say them, these are the medium of exchange, the coin of marriage.

Suddenly, Mandy was impish again. "Jason, we don't need a marriage counselor. We need a banker. Let's go, Honey."

Too many jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — Why didn't you get that job you applied for?

The No. 1 reason why job applicants are turned down is having had too many previous jobs, according to a survey of the member employment agencies of National Personnel Associates, a management-level recruiting network.

Sheriff not worried by jail inspection

Sheriff A.N. Standard said that he is not worried by today's jail inspection by state inspectors. Joe Slater and Eugene Martin from Austin will represent the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

"In the past," said Standard, "we've been above average to excellent in our rating for a jail this size. The only problem we had in the last inspection was the percentage of our jail given over to single cells. We have remedied that."

Standard explained that the inspection was being done under new legislation, and that although he was confident of the jail's condition, "you never know."

The only remodeling done on the fourth floor court-house facility since the last inspection has been painting, which according to Standard is done on an average of one each year.

The inspection will deal with the facilities, capacity, sanitary facilities, and security of the system.
