Soviet fishing vessels seized

By the Associated Press

A Soviet trawler was brought to dock at Boston today while a second Soviet ship was under Coast Guard control, the first two Soviet ships taken for violations of the United States' 200-mile fishing zone.

The gray and white trawler Taras Shevchenko docked at the Boston Coast Guard base shortly after 9 a.m., as its crew stood at the rails listening to rock music on transistor radios, Coast Guard lawyers and representatives of the U.S. Attorney's office immediately boarded the ship.

The 275-foot ship, with a crew of 93, was seized late Saturday after the Coast Guard said it discovered the craft was carrying more than her allowed quota of river herring.

The Coast Guard announced Monday that a second Soviet ship, the Antanas Smechkus, had been ordered into Boston from 160 miles east-southeast of Nantucket. The action took place on Sunday, the Coast Guard said, and the vessel was being escorted to Boston.

"Isn't that beautiful," said U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, who was at the dock to watch the Taras Shevchenko tie up.

"Look at those flags," he said in reference to the trawler sailing with the American flag flying from her foremast and the Soviet flag waving at her stern. This is routine: the flag of the host nation is flown on a forward mast.

The Coast Guard said the second vessel, a processing ship measuring 503 feet, was discovered carrying contraband fish. The Coast Guard did not name the species.

The Coast Guard said the cargo of the second vessel was seized, not the ship itself. But to seize the cargo, the vessel had to be taken into custody.

The crew of the Taras Shevchenko will remain on board, with the gangway guarded and small craft prevented from approaching it.

The Antanas Smechkus, a transport refrigerator ship, acts as a support ship to fishing ships, a Coast Guard spokesman in New York said.

He said it was the first time that the Coast Guard had taken control of a nonfishing Soviet ship. "We've never had one like this when we just seized the cargo. This is new ground for the Coast Guard," he said.

The Antanas Smechkus has a crew of 63 persons. It was built in 1974 and is home-ported in Klaipeda, Russia.

The Coast Guard has issued more than 60 citations and warnings to Soviet fishing vessels since the 200-mile limit went into effect March 1.

"We've released several of them," President Carter said of the Soviet ships as he left Easter services in Georgia on Sunday. "But we just had to draw the line somewhere. We informed the Soviet Embassy this past week we couldn't continue to release them, that we had to enforce the law."

Authority over impounded ships passes to the U.S. Attorney in Boston after the ship reaches the docks and is searched by customs officials.

Council to hear tax plan during Tuesday meeting

The agenda for Tuesday's regular 9 a.m. meeting of the Big Spring City Council is "a mile long," according to Harry Nagel, city manager.

Included in the activities will be the swearing-in of two council members. Polly Mays will return to the place three seat she had occupied, and newly-elected Ralph Brooks will take over for two-term councilman Charles Tompkins who stepped down this year.

The council will also give formal approval of its joint meeting with the Howard County Commissioner's Court held on March 31. At the meeting the city was given jurisdiction in dealing with the Webb AFB changeover.

In other business, the council will:

—Listen to the presentation of a combined tax plan by Zirah Bednar, Howard County tax assessor-collector.

—Consider an amendment to the 1976 Housing Assistance Plan.

—Consider the second and final reading of an ordinance authorizing placement of a traffic signal at the intersection of the IS 20 North Frontage Road and Highway 87.

—Look over the minutes of meetings of the Tourist Development Council, Detox Steering Committee, Traffic Commission and Parks and Recreation Board.

—Consider the resignation and appointment of a health officer.

—Consider appointments to the Board of Equalization and the Tourist Development Council.

Streets of Laredo offer keys to local industrial growth

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles about two cities that have survived base closure and some of the things which happened in the process.

By MARJ CARPENTER

"As I Walked Out in the Streets of Laredo" is an old cowboy ballad that dates back to the days of the Texas Ranger and cowboy activities around the border.

Although the twin city has a population of 75,000 and is the nation's biggest inland port due to the heavy traffic of imports across the Rio Grande, it is often referred to simply as a sleepy little border village.

"It woke up with a start the day they said they were closing the Air Base," Bill Baker, publisher of the Laredo Times and vice-president of the Airport Steering Committee, recalled.

"We had to learn and learn fast what to do next to help recover," Baker recalled. "One of the most difficult things is that you are so disgusted with the government for closing the facility and then you have to turn around and deal with the government for help with grants.

"But you have to have their help and you have to trust them. We got a lot of help from the Texas Industrial Commission, the Office of Economic Adjustment, the under-secretaries with the regional offices in Dallas, and many other groups."

Baker thought a moment, "You know, there were some people who were critical of the committee we set up. They said I helped appoint all big shots. And I said hell yes. I had to have men who could make their own decisions and make them fast. I didn't want a bunch of people that had to contact their boss across town or in some other state, or go home and ask their wife. The battle to keep Laredo alive was important. We set up a Laredo Opportunity Committee which in turn named the steering committee. We have worked hard and we have accomplished a lot."

Baker thought a moment and added, "Big Spring has some things going for them that we didn't have. You have a better location. We're definitely off the beaten track. You have a forceful West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and you have a better labor market. Ours is all Spanish speaking-oriented and a lot of companies don't speak Spanish."

Mayor Joe Martin Jr. said, "Frankly I think we are now better off

IT'S PLENTY BUSY

says Virginia Munoz

with diversified businesses. We don't have all of our eggs in one basket and we don't have to sit around and wait for somebody to drop the basket.

"Our success has been in attracting small industries such as a surgical supply manufacturer, and several other small manufacturers as well as import groups," he added.

The base houses 99 different groups including several small manufacturers and also has offices for such things as a drug enforcement agency, a fish and wildlife office, alcoholic beverage commission and others.

There is a dental office on the base and a restaurant and a Little Theatre. There's a Rent-a-Car facility and many oilfield supply offices as well as warehouses filled with imports from Mexico.

Col. (ret.) Gail Peck, a former wing commander at Laredo AFB, sits at his same desk and his former secretary sits at her's. "That's ironic, but that's the way it worked out since I'm airport manager."

The Air Force officially closed the base in September 1973. Ninety days later the Air Force permitted the City of Laredo interim use of certain facilities on the property. At about the same time, the Economic Development Administration provided $22,650 to pay for a full-time executive director and secretary and also provided the Texas Industrial Commission $39,689 to prepare a base-use plan.

About a year after the final news of the closing, EDA granted $79,000 to the city for a study dealing with industrial site development, tourism and recreation.

Shortly thereafter, the Federal Aviation Authority funded an airport master plan for $27,131. More recently EDA made another $23,875 available for a study to enhance economic and business development.

The city acquired the air field and other aviation related property in April 1975 when the base officially became the municipal airport. It was later made into an international airport.

FAA has strict requirements about all of the activity along the flight line, according to Col. Peck. Other things are left to the discretion of the committee. The city is also supposed to put back funds to keep the runways in shape for the qualification of an international airport. "We use the middle of three runways," Peck added.

To do this, they would need to take in around $90,000 per month in rental at the base. At the present time, they are taking in around $45,000 and the base is nearly full. This is why they are considering putting out feelers for somebody who might want to build a shopping center across the front.

Only the barracks remain empty. Over 240 units of the base housing were sold to Flynn Realtors who sold the houses one at a time and have almost all of them sold at local market prices.

The city reserved 140 of the homes for persons who will be displaced by Highway 35 running through a section of the town to the big new international bridge. Those persons will be moved to the air base.

The steering committee soon learned that they could not be responsible for keeping the entire base looking pretty, as the federal government did when it was a military base.

Each person who leases a building or a part of a building is assigned a lawn space around their location.

"Some of them keep it nice. Some don't. We don't worry about it. It's just like other places in town," the airport manager added.

It was in June 1975 that the EDA gave them the big grant of $1.3 million for industrial development of the base. This allowed them a lot of needed improvements including the new terminal, separating everybody's utility meters and other needs.

Today, 106 organizations employ 1,305 people at Laredo International Airport where the annual payroll exceeds $4 million. Of this aggregate, 506 civil jobs are brand new ones—not previously existing in Laredo. The complex includes 21 manufacturing companies, one aircraft company, four fixed base operators, 21 government entities, and 59 others.

There are more civilian jobs on base than there were in the year preceding the closing.

James Johnston of Laredo said, "You won't find anybody in town who is not glad the base is gone." He was wrong. There are people in town who regret the base leaving, but not so much for the economic impact as they first believed.

At least four persons voiced the same concern, "We miss them culturally. Laredo is an ingrown community that needed their input and vitality."

Virginia Munoz, who works at the Greater Laredo Industrial Development Office said, "Never in our wildest dreams did we think we would be back where we are this quickly."

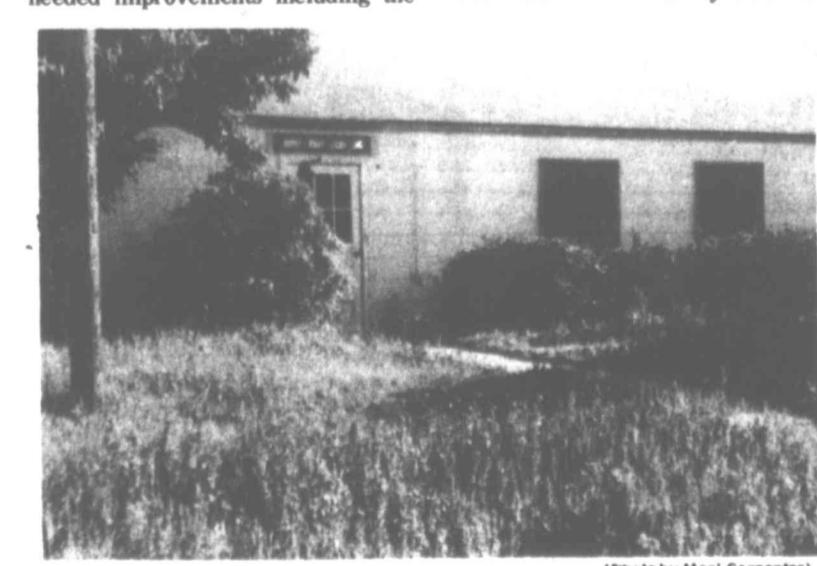

"Our office is busy every day. The payroll is back up at the base. They are planning a new industrial park. A new highway will go through to the bridge. There is something happening all the time. I couldn't stand any more."

One committee member, who preferred to remain unnamed said, "There were a few individuals unhappy. They had some old warehouses that people vacated to use the better warehouses at the base.

"People left shoddy rent houses to buy homes at the base. But for the few individuals who were hurt, the community as a whole benefited and progressed."

Bob Ervin of Knight Trucking said, "We hired a lot of the civilian employees in the oilfields. Some of them now have to work 80 hours instead of 40-hour government jobs, but they work."

And as I walked out on the streets of Laredo, it looked as though anybody, who really wanted to work very badly, could work. It appears that leaders working together gained this busy market for the bi-lingual city of Laredo. And in a relatively short time.

Action/reaction: Catching up

Q. What's with this city practice of sending out water bills every three weeks? I've been getting mine that way and other people I've talked to are being billed the same way. It appears to me that it's a silly way for the city to get more money. Should billing not be on a once-a-month basis?

A. Tom Ferguson, city secretary and finance director, admitted that some of the water bills have gone out within three weeks lately. He said the city got behind on billing earlier when several meter readers quit. He also stated that the matter will be completely investigated and that no person should receive more than 12 water bills during a year. Nobody owes more than 12 basic water rates per year although the average water would be the same regardless of when it is read. Anyone who has a record of five billings during the first four months of this year might check with the water department or city hall.

Offbeat: Power (ful) robin

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A robin bent on using Christmas tree tinsel in her nest has sent Oklahoma Gas & Electric Company crews scouring a neighborhood for discarded tinsel.

"Anyone who has tried to get Christmas tree icicles out of a shag rug knows what that must have been like," said utility spokesman Dave Rayburn.

Rayburn said the trouble started last Friday when tinsel in the nest touched part of a substation switching system, triggering a circuit breaker that cut power to part of Edmond.

Workmen dismissed the incident as a freak occurrence.

But on Tuesday the same thing happened again, so OG&E crews began scouring the area, policing up the tinsel," Rayburn said.

In addition, the crews stopped up all likely nooks and crannies the bird might get in — all but one, that is. They planned to come back Wednesday morning and stop up that one.

The robin beat them, though, and once again the power went out.

Rayburn said all the nooks have been covered now and the area once again has been searched for Christmas tinsel.

They're waiting for the robin's next move.

Rosa Carrasco feared death

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Rosa Carrasco says she never went to the Huntsville prison where her husband held 12 persons hostage in 1974 because she was afraid he would kill her.

Her husband, Fred Gomez Carrasco, died along with three other persons, including two women hostages, in a shootout that ended a 12-day prison siege.

By the time her husband was dead, Mrs. Carrasco said she was already in Mexico where she spent most of the last two and half years as authorities searched for her on charges that she smuggled guns into prison to her husband.

In an interview here last week, she said, "All I want is time and a little peace."

She said she was driving on a San Antonio street July 24, 1974, when she learned by a radio newscast that her husband had taken some hostages and was holed up in the prison library.

Gomez Carrasco's widow recalled that her lawyers asked her to go to Huntsville the first day of the siege to attempt to "reason" with her husband to surrender.

She told interviewers after her surrender to authorities that she didn't go to the prison because her husband might kill her.

Mrs. Carrasco, 29, said she doesn't believe her husband is dead and plans to have the body exhumed from Roselawn Cemetery at San Antonio in an attempt to determine if the body is that of her husband.

Coors boycott fizzles

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A union striking the Adolph Coors Co., the nation's fifth largest brewery, started a nationwide boycott of Coors today, but it appeared to have no immediate impact.

Meanwhile, the company began hiring permanent replacements for workers who went on strike last Tuesday in a dispute over seniority rights and other language in a new contract Coors put into effect despite union rejection.

Spokesmen for local 366 of the Brewery, Bottling, Can and Allied Industrial Union said letters urging the boycott went out to taverns and liquor stores in Colorado over the weekend, and said the AFL-CIO would try to carry the boycott nationwide.

A Coors spokesman said this morning that the firm is monitoring the situation through its 207 distributors but has received no reports of boycott activity. Several of the distributors and merchants handling Coors had similar reports.

"Our sales are holding up," said A.S. Mark, the president of M&M Distributing in Salt Lake City.

Anti-inflation program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is putting finishing touches on his anti-inflation program after a weekend of fishing, tennis and Easter services in Calabou, Ga. Carter got back to work today with staff and Cabinet meetings and lunch with Vice President Walter Mondale. Aides said Carter will reveal his anti-inflation program later this week, probably at a news conference. They said he will outline Latin American policy in a Washington speech to the Organization of American States, also later in the week.

'A man's home is his hassle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Such old sayings as "A man's home is his castle" and "Home is where the heart is" may need updating in an era of steadily rising housing costs. How about "A man's home is his hassle" and "Home is where the money is"? That message can be drawn from a report released Sunday on a 1975 housing survey by the Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. During the first half of the 1970s, it said, family incomes of both homeowners and renters failed to keep pace with the spiraling costs of housing.

White collar thugs look out

WASHINGTON (AP) — White collar criminals look out: Treasury Department sleuths have developed a new method to detect false bookkeeping. They can tell from the ink whether documents have been backdated. The program, called ink tagging, was launched in 1973 and is about 70 per cent complete, according to spokesmen for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF).

'Hawk' takes command

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Shimon Peres took command of Israel's embattled Labor party today as a last-minute candidate for prime minister, dogged by a reputation of being a hawk and the threatened defection of Labor's leftist ally, the Mapam party. The Labor party's central committee chose Peres, 53, to lead the party in the general election May 17 following Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's resignation after admitting he and his wife tried to cover up $16,000 in an illegal bank account in Washington, D.C.

Anarchists interrupt

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI wished the world "a happy Easter" in 14 languages, anarchists interrupted Mass in Paris' Notre Dame Cathedral, the Carters held a sunrise service on a Georgia back porch and millions watched the re-enactment of the Easter story on television. In Jerusalem, the crush of pilgrims was unusually heavy because Easter came on the same day this year for the Eastern and Western Christian churches.

'Roots' smear unjust

LONDON (AP) — Author Alex Haley says a British reporter's challenge to the factual basis of his book "Roots" was an "unwarranted, unfair and unjust" smear attack. "I stand by and defend my work," Haley said Sunday as he arrived from New York for a four-day stay en route to Africa. "I took over nine years to write my book, but I think that this reporter took less than nine days."

Planes sent Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — France has sent 11 cargo planes to transport supplies for Moroccan troops aiding the Zaire government's war against invaders in the southern part of the country, French officials say. Officials in Paris said the 11 cargo planes would carry "exclusively" Moroccan materiel and no troops whatsoever. The French government said the governments of Zaire and Morocco asked for the assistance. Meanwhile, Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko told Newsweek magazine he was "bitterly disappointed" because the United States had not sent him arms and ammunition he requested.

Governor's anti-crime bills greased for action

By SCOTT PARKS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Two of the more controversial anti-crime bills of this legislative session have finally emerged from a Senate subcommittee, but not without amendments designed to appease criminal defense attorneys.

The measures — known loosely as "oral confessions" and "evidentiary searches" — are two of several bills comprising Gov. Dolph Briscoe's anti-crime package.

Evidentiary searches creates a new category of items for which the police may issue search warrants. They can now search for drugs, gambling devices, pornography, implements used in the commission of a crime, prohibited weapons, arms which could be used for riot or rebellion, stolen property or items specifically made for crime.

The new section says police may search for "property or items, except the personal writings of the accused, constituting evidence of an offense or constituting evidence tending to show that a person committed an offense."

When it went up before the subcommittee, it was unclear whether the new law would require police to specify the exact item for which they wanted to search. It now requires the items to be specifically described.

The original bill also would have allowed police to search for property that shows a person is about to commit an offense. This section was also taken out of the bill.

The original bill also would have allowed police to confiscate personal papers, such as diaries. This was the most objectionable feature of the original proposal, Frank Maloney of Austin, chairman of the Texas Criminal Defense Attorneys Association, said.

"The way we have it now, the defendant will be afforded his Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination," Maloney said.

Maloney also insisted upon, and received, a prohibition in the bill against more than one search by police under the new category. Police will only be able to go to a residence or home one time, he said.

This bill has a good number of protections in it now," Maloney said.

When the oral confessions bill went up subcommittee, it allowed such statements to be placed into evidence during a trial under most circumstances.

The new version allows such a statement to be placed before a jury only if the defendant takes the witness stand and makes a statement contrary to what is contained in his statement.

State law now forbids oral statements made during interrogation to be used in court. Such statements must be written and signed by the defendant unless they are made during the excitement of the arrest or unless they lead to discovery of evidence.

Law enforcement officers claim defendants often make incriminating statements during custodial interrogation at the police station, but often refuse to sign them.

The bill originally would have allowed no fewer than two officers to hear a statement, reduce it to writing as soon as possible and swear before a judge that it is correct.

The new compromise version which came out of the Senate subcommittee requires the police to electronically record the statement, and to inform the accused that the statement is being recorded.

This provision was inserted to make it harder for a police officer to misinterpret what he heard the defendant say during custodial questioning.

Two police officers must still swear before a magistrate in a written memorandum that the statement accurately reflects what was said.

Another provision insisted on by the criminal defense lawyers makes it a third degree felony for an officer to falsely swear about what the statement contained. The maximum penalty would be 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine. No probation could be given to an officer convicted under the provision.

Maloney was not as enthusiastic about the oral confession bill.

"I think it has messed up confession law, and if I were in the Senate I would vote it down," Maloney said. "It's not near what the police had in mind. They won't ever use it."

The members of the subcommittee who voted for both bills were Tati Santiesteban of El Paso, Bill Meier of Euless and Walter Mengden and Gene Jones, both of Houston.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas was absent for the votes.

Both bills will now be considered by the Senate Jurisprudence Committee.

Janet Marie Coffman weds David Higgins

Miss Janet Marie Coffman and David William Higgins were married Saturday evening in the Church of Christ, 1401 Main. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Coffman, 200 E. 24th, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Higgins, Coahoma.

The ceremony was performed by Hollie Talley of Abilene, uncle of the bridegroom, before an altar decorated with greenery and columns of gladiolas and blue carnations.

The bride wore a petal white knitted chiffon wedding dress of a Victorian design. The moulded bodice featured a duchess neckline edged in Paint-de-Paris, Venise and Alencon lace appliqued flowerettes with pearl enrichments. Full camelot sleeves were styled with deep cuffs edged in Venice lace. From the natural waistline drifted a full circular skirt that swept to form a chapel-length train. Paint-de-Paris lace edging encircled the full sweeping skirt. She wore a Camelot capulet veil covered in Alencon lace from which drifted a veil of silk illusion enriched with scalloped edging.

She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Dan Nelson served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Cowley of Pearsall and Miss Julie Higgins of Coahoma. They were attired in floor-length blue print chiffon dresses with gathered bodice and cape of matching fabric. Each carried a bouquet of blue carnations.

James McCutchan served as best man. Groomsmen were Tim Higgins and Billy Higgins, brothers of the bridegroom. Ronald Coffman, brother of the bride,

A bridal shower honoring Miss Judy King was held recently in the home of Mrs. Susan King, sister-in-law of the prospective bride.

Miss King is the bride-elect of Lt. Darren Thomas of Laughlin AFB, Del Rio, formerly of Webb AFB. The couple plans to be married April 23 in Big Spring.

The honoree's colors of yellow and orange were carried out at the serving table. A centerpiece of orange carnations and yellow and white daisies decorated the table.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. King, Mrs. Barbara Langham and Miss Eileen Chambers.

Hoods called

In the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries, women frequently wore small hoods called chaperones. In time the older woman who accompanied a young woman in society came to be known as a chaperone since, metaphorically, the experienced married woman sheltered the youthful debutante as a hood sheltered the face. ## The Other Side Of Other Woman's Man

DEAR ABBY: After two years, upon learning that my husband would not leave his family, the "other woman" broke it off, even though they were sure they were meant for each other.

I want her to know the other side of my husband, so she won't sit home eating her heart out.

The man she knows is charming and immaculately groomed. He's well-liked at the office, where he jokes with people although he's basically quiet. He's very romantic and understanding. He writes poetry and talks of things that might have been.

She'd never believe the other side of this smooth talker. He has no friends outside the office. The neighbors don't even know his first name. His modest home is falling apart for lack of repairs. Although he is always well-dressed, his children don't even have a pair of decent shoes, and the bills keep mounting up. He never laughs or talks at home. He rarely plays with his children. He never picks up after himself or helps in any way.

He parks in front of the TV night after night and all weekend, just waiting to go back to work where he can escape from reality, turn on his charm, and live in that other world.

I am sure the other woman would never believe this of her Prince Charming. Well, in a few years, when the kids are grown, I'll be glad to let her find out for herself.

JUST HIS WIFE

DEAR JUST: To some men, a wife, children and home are status symbols that are left neglected on the shelf to gather dust like a tarnished bowing trophy. The breed is not uncommon—in either sex.

DEAR ABBY: Our children, 4 and 6, wreck everything they own. When I buy toys I make sure they are meant for children of their age group and are not hard for them to play with. They're sweet children but so destructive! Any advice on how to deal with this problem?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Consistent discipline, involving both rewards and punishment for good or bad conduct, plus a clear explanation of what is expected of them is the only winning formula I know.

DEAR OPERATOR: Glad to oblige. It's time someone gave a little recognition to that vast faceless army of unthanked heroes and heroines.

DEAR PUZZLED: Let those who are attending your son's second wedding do as they wish about a gift. To request "no gift" would be unfair to the bride.

Watson wins Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tom Watson felt his throat tightening up.

This was not, however, the breath-quenching, muscle-deadening sensation that is commonly referred to as "choking."

This was simply the wave of emotion that swept Watson after winning the Masters golf tournament Sunday in a shoot-the-lights-out showdown with Jack Nicklaus.

Watson fired a five-under-par 67 for a 276 total that held off Nicklaus and six other players who all moved within two shots of the lead at some time during the decisive round.

Nicklaus, starting three shots back, closed with a 66 — best round of the tournament — for 278. He appeared on the verge of muscling the title away from the others, but bogey on No. 18 while Watson snaked in a 20-foot birdie putt on 17 settled that.

"I hadn't planned on somebody making a birdie," a dejected Nicklaus said later.

"I felt like it was one of those days where no matter how much you did right, somebody else was doing better. The only thing was, I started with a head-start."

Others who challenged but fell back were Rik Massengale, 70-280; Tom Kite, 67-280; Hale Irwin, 68-282; Ben Crenshaw, 76-285; Jim Colbert, 74-286; and Rod Funseth, 73-286.

It is significant that Watson's victory came in the world's most prestigious golf tournament and in a duel with a man considered the world's finest golfer.

Fairly or not, Watson had been labeled a choker. The label doesn't fit anymore. He proved himself under the most stifling pressure that professional golf has to offer.

First, he had to survive a bad drive and poor second shot on the first hole to sink a testing five-foot putt for par. Then he had to keep pace with his playing partner, Massengale, with a 32 on the front side that included four birdies. Finally, after he carded his only bogey on No. 14 and fell into a tie with Nicklaus, he had to go one-on-one with the five-time Masters winner down the stretch. He came out on top.

"I feel euphoric, very up," the 27-year-old told reporters afterward, the emotion still showing on his freckled face.

Steers to take all the marbles?

The Big Spring Steer diamond men are only one win away from at least a tie for the first half jewels in the District 5-A baseball sprint.

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Steer Park, the locals will challenge the authority of the San Angelo Bobcats to keep them out of the race.

Tom Collins' charges are currently 5-1 in the loop wars and tied with Abilene Cooper. San Angelo is 2-4 and just mainly interested in getting in some good practice.

Nasty stomps rival-friend

By the Associated Press Ilie Nastase had something to prove — to himself, to tennis fans and to Jimmy Connors.

"I wanted to prove that I could play with him," the fiery Romanian said. "I was working for this match."

There were seven service breaks in the final set, but the 30-year-old Nastase finally held his service in the 12th game, closing out the 3 1/2-hour, nationally televised match.

The loss snapped a 13-game winning streak at Caesar's Palace for Connors, who refused to talk with newsmen after the match. Connors has won $760,000 in Las Vegas since the streak began in 1975.

Meanwhile, Bjorn Borg of Sweden beat Italy's Corrado Barazzutti 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 and won the $30,000 first prize in the $100,000 Monte Carlo international tennis tournament.

"I am playing very well," said the 20-year-old Borg, "better than at any time since I won Wimbledon last year."

He had no trouble with Barazzutti, racing to a 5-0 lead in taking command at the start.

Randle burns Rangers twice

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Texas Rangers have been blocked from placing suspended infielder Lenny Randle on the disqualified list, and officials of the American League club are steaming.

"They're treating us like the culprits," Manager Frank Lucchesi said Sunday. "Why should the ball club be penalized because of the actions of Lenny Randle?"

Randle was fined $10,000 by the Rangers and suspended 30 days after his attack on Lucchesi last month in Orlando, Fla., hospitalized the 48-year-old manager with a triple fracture of the cheekbone and back injuries.

Eddie Robinson, vice president of the Rangers, said Texas had approved of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to place Randle on the disqualified list, but the move was blocked by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

With Randle on the disqualified list, the Rangers could add another player who could be used in games, but they would remain one short with him merely suspended.

"His suspension hurts us in two ways," Lucchesi said. "It restricts us to a roster of 24 men, one less than is legal, until the suspension ends April 27. And the players' association is depriving another individual, now in the minors, of being in the big leagues."

This is the association that is supposed to be working for all the players." Robinson, who vowed Randle would not play for Texas again, said of the action which bars placing him on the disqualified list: "Of course, this means no difference to anyone involved, except the ball

NBA playoffs are here

By the Associated Press

The National Basketball Association playoffs are here, finally, and not even a referees' strike is going to head them off.

It will be Chicago at Portland, Detroit at Golden State and San Antonio at Boston Tuesday night and Cleveland at Washington Wednesday night as the best-of-three first-round series begin.

Who will be refereeing is far less certain. The 24 members of the National Association of Basketball Referees went on strike on the final day of the regular season Sunday, leaving the officiating chores to non-union members Richie Powers and Earl Strom, referees from the semipro Eastern Basketball League and other local officials.

Bullets 131, 76ers 121. Phil Chenier led the Bullets with 29 points, including 14 in the third period when Washington took the lead for good. Mitch Kup-

Here's how the NBA playoff system works:

The four division winners receive byes through the first round. Then the remaining teams are listed by conference in order of winning percentage. No. 1 plays No. 4 and No. 2 plays No. 3 in best-of-three first-round series.

chak had 23 points and hit 10 for 17 from the field, finishing with a field goal percentage of .572 — best ever by an NBA rookie.

Bulls 120, Braves 99. Chicago dominated its game at Buffalo, taking the lead in the opening minute and building it to 31 points with 8 1/2 minutes to play. Wilbur Holland and Artis Gilmore led a balanced Bulls attack with 16 points apiece.

Knicks 144, Pistons 126. The Knicks came up with their biggest output of the season and posted their 10th victory in the last 13 games as Bob McAdoo scored 28 and Lonnie Shelton and Walt Frazier had 27 each. It was the final game for Knicks Coach Red Holzman and forward Bill Bradley, who are retiring at the end of the fourth quarter.

Lakers 113, Sonics 104. Los Angeles finished with a 53-29 record, best in the NBA, putting the Sonics away with a 15-4 burst midway through the final period. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 points for Denver.

Jazz 139, Nuggets 125. Pete Maravich of the Jazz poured in 45 points, finishing the season with a 31.1 average, tops in the league. Teammate Nate Williams had 41 points, while David Thompson tallied 40 for Denver.

Texas sweeps opening three

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Frank Lucchesi of the Texas Rangers might apply for a job as a headline writer when his baseball days are over.

At least his cryptic personal notations, a postgame ritual, provide a capsule summary of what he considers the highlight of the day.

"Sundberg great play," he scribbled on a piece of paper Sunday. "Did not panic."

The reference was to the game-ending play by Texas catcher Jim Sundberg, when he pounced on Al Bumbry's dribbler and barely nipped the speedy runner as Baltimore's Rick Dempsey raced home with the potential tying run.

That saved a 3-2 victory for the Rangers, giving them a three-game sweep over the Orioles — Baltimore's longest losing streak at the start of a season in 18 years.

"Sundberg played that ball like an old pro," Lucchesi said of the 25-year-old catcher. "Maybe only 50 percent of the catchers could have made that play."

Coach Billy Hunter of the Orioles went even further in his praise, saying perhaps only Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees and Baltimore's Dempsey would have been as successful on the tapper.

"I had to get to the ball quickly, snag it cleanly and make a good, accurate throw," Sundberg said. "If I bobbled it, he's safe."

Sundberg's alert play, plus 2-3 innings of hitless pitching by reliever Paul Lindblad, enabled the Rangers to hold off Baltimore's late rally.

"I don't want to take money from a young fellow like that," Manager Earl Weaver said. "He wants to play.

Texas made it 3-0 in the second when Tom Grieve hit a high fly homer into the first row of the right field bleachers, just inside the foul pole at the 309-foot mark.

Baltimore, which had scored once in each of its first two games, finally across a run in the fifth on a double by DeCinces and a two out single by Billy Smith.

Smith had entered the game in the fourth inning, replacing Rich Dauer after the rookie second baseman missed a 2-0 take sign and flew out to lead off the Baltimore third.

"I don't want to take money from a young fellow like that," Manager Earl Weaver said. "He wants to play.

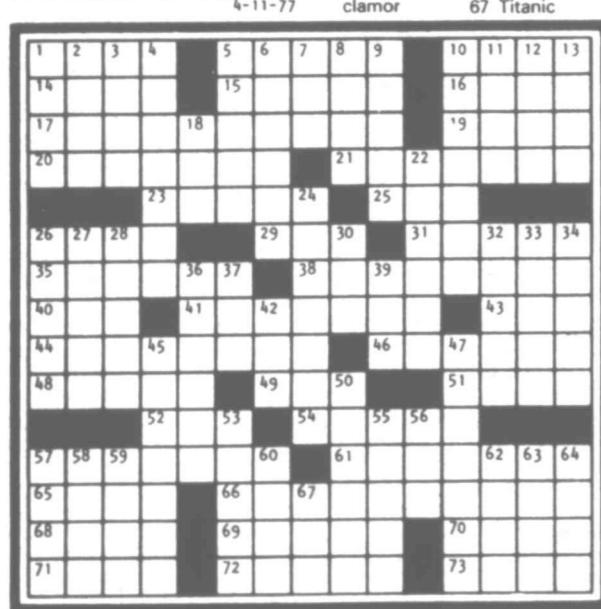

Texas had a 1-0 lead when Grieve homered in the eighth, but the Orioles scored three runs in the ninth.

New concept in horn fly control

MoorMan's IGR Minerals® for grazing beef cattle contains an insect growth regulator that zeroes in on costly horn flies, but doesn't harm cattle or beneficial insects.

It stops their growth in the harmless pupal stage.

They never develop into mature flies that can harass your cattle, suck their blood, cut your cows' milk flow, reduce your calves' or yearlings' growth and gains.

Your cattle also get the benefits of a complex combination of performance promoting minerals. Plus vitamin D and 200,000 units per pound of vitamin A.

Find out more about IGR Minerals and other MoorMan Fly-Control Products from your MoorMan Man when he brings his feed-counseling service to you.
