WASHINGTON (AP) — Our cars will be smaller, lighter and probably too sluggish for the speed jockeys. That's the future of the automobile under President Carter's plan to solve America's energy dilemma.

In unveiling his comprehensive energy program Wednesday night, Carter asked Congress for stringent legislation intended to curtail gasoline consumption.

Under his plan, if Americans don't cut back, gas prices would go up as much as 57 cents a gallon — nearly double — by 1985. Purchasers of 1978 cars that get less than 13 miles per gallon would pay a federal excise tax of $449; that tax would rise to $2,488 by 1985.

Those who buy small cars that get good mileage would be rewarded with cash rebates up to $499.

The plan also has a provision for gas rationing, a step that would be taken in an emergency such as the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

Carter said the penalties can be avoided if conservation is achieved. His solution is to use smaller autos, car and van pools, buses, subways and other public transportation, and drive fewer miles.

Even if Congress approves the controversial legislation, Americans will need a lot of convincing to curb use of their automobiles.

Americans currently make 86 per cent of their trips between cities by car. Only 11 per cent of their trips are by air, and buses, trains and ships account for less than 3 per cent.

Some 53 per cent of commuters in metropolitan areas drive to work alone in their cars; 21 per cent are passengers, and only about 8 per cent use buses, streetcars or subways.

Carter's plan could change these figures.

At the very least, it would boost the price of gasoline seven cents over the next three years because of higher domestic crude oil prices.

REFINERY WORKER LISTENS — Ed and Mary Cashat of Pasadena, Texas Wednesday night listening to the address on energy by President Jimmy Carter before the joint session of Congress. Cashat is a foreman of the operations department, which handles the machinery and equipment, at a Shell Oil Company Refinery. Cashat thought the President's conservation measures were generally all right and believed he would rather have a gas tax rather than some sort of gasoline rationing plan.

Gas tax beats rationing?

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Ed Cashat took a sip from his can of Texas Pride lager beer, leaned back on the couch and said President Carter "made some good points about conserving energy, something maybe a lot of people in this country don't take seriously enough."

Cashat, who for 29 of his 49 years has been an oil company worker, said there was nothing wrong with the President's approach, "as far as I can see. I realize that maybe a gasoline tax increase is necessary because it sure beats the hell out of gasoline rationing."

If the nation doesn't conserve its oil and natural gas, Cashat said, "we could end up without any supplies."

"That's the time to be concerned about my job and those who work with me. If we can conserve, and develop new sources of oil and natural gas, none of us in our lifetime, and maybe our children's lifetime, will have to go out on the streets looking for something else to do to earn a dollar."

Cashat is a foreman in the operations department at the Shell Oil Co. refinery in Pasadena, Tex., a petrochemical city on the outskirts of Houston.

He started as an oil field worker, drawing a salary of $1.40 an hour, and waited two years until his pay increased to $1.70 an hour before proposing to his wife, Mary.

He now makes close to $20,000 a year, counting in some overtime now and then.

Watching the president's speech on television in the three-bedroom home where the Cashats raised two daughters, the couple agreed that "we should cut down on the use of energy, whether it's the air conditioning system, or driving the cars on a long vacation trip."

The Cashats own a car, a pickup truck, and a small pleasure boat.

"It took us a lot of years and a lot of hard work," Cashat said, "to get all of those things, but we won't complain about cutting down on using the boat, or driving up to the lake on the days off, or anything like that. We just have to realize there is a shortage and what must be done, must be done."

The couple didn't talk much during the President's address to Congress.

Once, when the cameras turned to the congressmen, Mary said, "Look, there is one of them sound asleep. If he's going to be there, why can't he listen."

When the President suggested a special loan for homeowners to improve insulation of houses, Ed looked at Mary, and Mary looked at Ed and both agreed it would be a good idea.

"I think this old place is in good shape," Cashat said, "but it wouldn't hurt to have it checked. Better insulation, lower bills at the end of the month, simply as that."

Cashat, relaxing after his day of work in a pair of worn slippers and a brown and white jump suit, twisted and turned and mumbled when the President questioned whether there is enough competition among the energy producing companies.

Cashat muttered, "Now I don't know about that, I don't know."

Ed and Mary are quite spoken, easy-going native Texans, the kind of folks you think of as good neighbors.

There's a large Bible on the coffee table in the small living room along with the TV, an easy chair and a rocker.

Ed enjoys a can of beer after work and Mary likes a touch of gin in a glass of tonic.

Recovery meetings scheduled

Three important meetings have been scheduled in connection with the Big Spring recovery effort, according to City Manager Harry Nagel.

At noon on Wednesday, representatives of the Big Spring Independent School District, Howard College and the Big Spring State Hospital will accompany the Webb Steering Committee on a tour of base facilities.

Steering panel asking help

The Webb Steering Committee Wednesday resolved to send three letters to federal agencies, asking for specific action to help the community.

The first letter approved by the committee would go to the regional director of the Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) asking that Air Force housing be held off the Big Spring market until the private housing industry has had a chance to recover.

The second letter would be sent from committee chairman Mayor Wade Choate calling for the base to be used as a cross-country refueling stop for the armed services. Such approval would allow the air facility here to sell gas to military planes and according to City Manager Harry Nagel would be "quite a revenue-producer." At the suggestion of County Judge Bill Tune, the letter will be sent to the Department of Defense and all Armed Services.

The third letter would be directed to the General Services Administration (GSA), asking them to appraise the selling price of Webb AFB. The committee agreed that it should "explore every avenue" which includes the prospect of outright purchase of part or all of the base. Tune told the committee he wanted to

According to Nagel, each agency will attempt to determine which facilities it may be interested in using in the future.

At 9 a.m. on May 3, members of the Steering Committee will meet with representatives of the Federal Office of Economic Adjustment, Jerry Peering and Eldon Erickson, and a consultant hired by the OEA men to seriously consider the price offered on the base. State National president John Currie said he found, after informal discussion with Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Joe Meis that the interest and terms on the property might well be "negotiable."

In other action, Choate announced that the committee would be meeting at Whitcomb Hall at Webb AFB, building 350, shortly, and that other more permanent facilities would be available by June 20. Nagel announced approval by the Permian Basin Council of one-year funding of six slots under him to help deal with the Webb re-use plan. Nagel said the new employees must conform to Council requirements.

Choate and Nagel reported to the committee about a meeting with Frank Pace of the Air Training Command Tuesday. Nagel said he had requested an inventory of personal property, but had again received the stone wall reply that no such inventory of Webb facilities was available, or would be till Sept. 1.

The committee discussed the fact that ATC claims to have a computer at McClellan AFB which can deliver such an inventory at the push of a button. Nagel also said he had asked Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander at Webb, for such an inventory. Spannaus said he didn't have one either.

map out plans for the preparation of a base reuse study. This will be the first of several meetings in regard to formation of a reuse plan, according to Nagel.

On the morning of May 4, the Steering Committee will sponsor a seminar with officials connected with previous base closings to gather advice on what paths Big Spring should follow in the near future.

Those attending the seminar will include: Bill Rivers, city manager of Mineral Wells at the time the base there closed; Col. Gail Peck, ret., former wing commander and presently manager of the closed base in Laredo; Bill Baker, publisher of The Laredo Times; Gail Harris, mayor of Roswell, N.M. when the base closed there; and Gen. Bill Bacon, ret., who was base officer in Roswell at the time of the base closure.

The location of the meetings has not been finally determined at this time, but will probably be at a building on Webb, according to Nagel.

Alert citizen may have solved murder

By JAMES WERRELL

An alert local citizen may have played a part in solving a murder case in Orlando, Fla.

On April 7, the local man noticed three suspicious people, two men and a woman, lingering at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, asking for a hand-out. According to police reports, the three vagrants were directed to the Salvation Army, where their request for aid was refused, and they returned to the church.

Noticing this, the concerned citizen alerted local police to be on the lookout for the three travellers. Later that day, a patrolman arrested the three in the woman's car for driving without a license and giving false information about their identities to a police officer.

After a routine check through the computer, it was found that all three were wanted on warrants from other states.

Jeffrey Nolder, and Betty Elaine Hill, both 18 and both from Kittimang, Pa., were wanted by Pennsylvania authorities. Nolder was wanted for bail jumping and receiving stolen property, and was extradited to Pennsylvania. Hill was wanted for petty theft, but the offense was a minor one, and she wasn't extradited.

The third passenger in the car was involved in something far more complex. According to Lt. Avery Falkner, Fred Worthy, 20, of Orlando, Fla., was initially listed on a warrant for aggravated assault in Florida.

Florida officials flew to Big Spring to interview Worthy, and discuss extradition. During the interview, authorities gained information from the suspect involving a contract homicide in Orlando.

According to Falkner, the murder victim had been involved in a lawsuit, claiming to have been injured in an Orlando hotel. The hotel owner offered to settle the suit out of court, but the victim refused.

So, Florida officials believe, a $500 contract was put out on the man, and his head was crushed with a bedpost.

Falkner stated that Worthy had admitted to being present at both the murder and the $500 payoff afterwards. Worthy also claimed to know the hit man, who is thought to be at large somewhere in California.

At first, Worthy refused to waive extradition and return to Florida with authorities. But since then, the state discovered that the suspect is also wanted on a narcotics charge, and may be named as a codefendant in the contract murder.

When this was learned, Worthy agreed to waive extradition and is now in custody in Orlando.

"Thanks to our alert citizen, we may have helped solve a murder," said Falkner.

Howard ranks 20th in tourism

Tourists visiting Howard County spent more than $40.8 million during 1975, making the county rank 20th among the state's 254 counties.

According to the Texas Tourist Development Agency, $40,876,000 of the state's $5,306,118,000 in travel receipts were received by Howard County.

Highways were the most popular arteries into the county, a 1974 highway survey disclosed that 7,980 vehicles per day passed the checkpoint on West 120; 13,700 vehicles per day passed the checkpoint on East 120; 6,620 vehicles per day passed the checkpoint on North U.S. Highway 87; and 9,960 vehicles per day passed the checkpoint on South Hwy. 87.

In addition to gross receipts, the study found that Howard County had 1,704 of the state's 207,676 travel-related jobs, with an annual payroll of $8,130,000.

It also estimated $1,591,000 in State and $427,000 in local taxes were paid by county visitors in 1975.

The study was done by the U.S. Travel Data Center in Washington, D.C., an independent travel research organization funded jointly by public and private sectors.

It was based on the Center's Travel Economic Impact Model which, for the first time, breaks out a state's share of the national travel market on a county-by-county basis.

The model measures the economic impact of all travel involving overnight trips away from home, and day trips at least 100 miles or more from home. Thus it includes travel by Texans as well as out-of-state visitors, for all purposes.

It includes estimates of the traveler's spending at home in preparation for the trip, his spending en route, and that at his destination.

Basic data for the model comes from the National Travel Survey, conducted every five years by the U.S. Census Bureau, and from the Center's own National Travel Expenditure Model.

It was the latter which, last year, estimated that Texas had dislodged New York for third place in the nation's $75 billion travel industry. Only California and Florida now outrank Texas, the Center said.

Special state funds sought for college

House Bill 2021 in the Texas Legislative, which will help most junior colleges in Texas, will actually hinder Howard College at this time.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, told members of the board of trustees here Tuesday that it was an accident that the bill had come up when it did in relation to Howard College.

The bill, which junior college administrators have been trying to obtain for many years, will fund the colleges on an annual basis based on current enrollment, instead of every two years.

When a junior college is showing normal growth, this gives them more funds annually. It just happens to have reached the floor of the House at a time when Howard College is facing a drop in enrollment, due to the closing of Webb AFB.

Sen. A.M. Aikin of Paris, well-known for educational bills, has already taken it through the State Senate as Bill 709. It was to go to the floor of the House today, but erroneous procedure sent it back to committee and it will come back up on Wednesday.

Dr. Hays is in Austin today, not to attempt to combat a bill which will benefit the majority of the community colleges in Texas, but to ask for a special appropriation to help Howard College during its time of emergency.

He was to talk to Sen. Ray Farabee and State Rep. Mike Ezzell today in relation to the possible special appropriation for the college.

The local Chamber of Commerce board of directors unanimously passed a resolution supporting Howard College in its effort to get additional funds for next year when they met Wednesday afternoon.

Full-time tourism developer proposed

Big Spring could soon have a person assigned specifically to developing tourism, if a recommendation by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is adopted.

The chamber's Board of Directors, in its April meeting Wednesday, voted to ask the Tourist Development Council to consider funding a tourist developer.

Under the chamber's suggestion, the tourism specialist would work at the chamber office and be supervised by Executive Director Bill Albright.

The tourism specialist's job would be to do work which will help bring conventions and tourism to Big Spring, especially after the Howard College coliseum is completed this fall.

on all hotel and motel rooms in the city. State law requires that the money be spent only on tourism development.

The chamber is suggesting that it contract with the city to provide tourism development services for a period of one year. Albright noted that either the city or the chamber could stop the project at the end of the year if they felt it was not working.

Albright said that the budget for the program would need to be about $15,000 or $16,000, including $3,000 or $4,000 expenses for the tourist developer to attend travel shows and make convention bids.

The idea will be presented at a meeting of the Tourist Development Council tonight. It was proposed by chamber Vice President Ray Don Williams.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Plan's origin

Q. Where did the school closing plan introduced to the Board of Trustees by Superintendent Emmett McKenzie originate? Does it contain input from the Board of Trustees, faculty, and concerned citizens? Where can I address my concerns?

A. According to Superintendent Emmett McKenzie, the plan was based on the April, 1975 recommendations of the Staff and Facilities Utilization Committee, which was a study by 21 citizens and 14 faculty members. McKenzie said the final plan was the result of discussion between himself and school faculty and employees, and accounted for the Webb closing, which the original plan did not address. Alternate proposals can be taken to the School Board, to the Administration Building, or can be aired at the public hearing pledged by Board President Roy Watkins before any final action is taken by the Board.

Offbeat: Officer checked it

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Officer Harley Godberson, on a routine cruise of his section of the city, radioed for any available police unit to help him stop a runaway vehicle.

The help came in time and Godberson and a colleague halted a portable toilet-on-wheels — the type used at construction sites — which rolled down a street, apparently pushed by the gusty winds.

After the toilet was stopped, an anonymous officer radioed to ask if it was occupied. "The object is now secured. And I checked. No one was in it," Godberson replied.

FIGHTING FOR DISABILITY PAY — Mrs. Iris Rivera is interviewed at her desk in a Chicago lawyers office in early February after she had been given notice her job would be terminated for refusing to prepare coffee for the office. Mrs. Rivera fought and regained her job but not before she was stricken with illness. She says she is now close to starving. Iris has not received a check from the state since she was hospitalized Feb. 3 and does not qualify for welfare because she is on the state payroll.

Ocean nuclear dumps?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is discussing with foreign allies the idea of establishing burial grounds on the bottom of the ocean where all nations could store their nuclear wastes. Diplomats here say the proposal for an ocean-bed dumping site is one of several options under discussion. The talks are part of a larger plan the administration is pressing in hopes of halting the spread of nuclear weapons.

No Cubans in Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Two rebels captured by President Mobutu Sese Seko's forces say Cuban advisers accompanied them to the border of southern Zaire six weeks ago and then returned to Angola. "There are no Cubans now," Yava Pierre Kapenda, 28, told a news conference Wednesday night.

Osmonds break ground

OREM, Utah (AP) — Hundreds of purple socks rained down on the fruit trees outside town when a publicity stunt for the singing Osmond family went awry.

The Osmonds broke ground Wednesday for a $2.5 million entertainment center they are building to record music, film movies and tape the "Donny and Marie" television show.

An airplane was supposed to drop purple socks — Donny's trademark — on the crowd, but the socks landed in nearby orchards instead.

Despite that setback, Donny took the controls of a bulldozer, and Marie drove a team of Clydesdale horses at the ceremony.

The Osmonds are Mormons, and Donny and Marie are attending Brigham Young University in nearby Provo, a school owned and operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

Nixon interview ends

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The taping of Richard M. Nixon has ended.

British television commentator David Frost concluded his series of 12 interviews with the former president on Wednesday in a private home here, not far from the San Clemente estate where Nixon has been in self-imposed isolation since resigning the presidency.

Nixon, wearing his usual dark suit and tie, arrived at the home of businessman Harold Smith just after 10 a.m. He made no comment as he entered the gates, but he has been described as enthusiastic about the tapings, eager to give his views on his career and the Watergate scandal that ended it.

The tapings, which began March 23, will be edited into four 90-minute shows to be aired beginning May 4.

Tunney getting married

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former U.S. Senator John Tunney is getting married this weekend, to a one-time Olympic skier from Sweden, his brother has announced.

Gene Tunney Jr. said his brother, 42, will marry Anne Kathinka Frisk Osborne, 35, on Saturday. It will be the second marriage for both.

Mrs. Osborne was a member of the Swedish Olympic team in 1964.

Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy, a longtime friend, is expected to attend the private ceremony in Los Angeles Superior Court chambers.

Tunney, a Democrat, was defeated by S.I. Hayakawa last November in his attempt for a second term in office.

Rape case 'a trifle'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A lawyer for film director Roman Polanski says the defense will try to show that the 13-year-old girl Polanski is accused of raping "engaged in sexual activities" before the alleged assault.

"We want to know when, where and with whom and why those people were not prosecuted," Douglas Delton said Wednesday.

Dalton said he also would ask the court to order a psychiatric examination of the girl.

Polanski, 43, is charged with six counts of rape, sex perversion and drug violations.

Asked by reporters what impact the case has had on his life, Polanski muttered: "I'm used to grief. This is a trifle."

Polanski's wife, actress Sharon Tate, was murdered by Charles Manson cult members in 1969.

Strike hits Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A curfew was clamped on Karachi today after a general strike paralyzed Pakistan's largest city and supporters and opponents of Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto battled in the streets with sticks, daggers and firearms. At least 11 deaths were reported Wednesday, bringing to 162 the number killed since the March 7 elections, in which the opposition Pakistan National Alliance claims Bhutto's party used massive fraud to win.

Carter's gas tax plan criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is passing the job of formulating a tough new energy policy to a Congress that clearly is reluctant to accept the assignment.

Carter laid out his comprehensive energy program to a joint House-Senate session Wednesday night, acknowledging that it would be painful and declaring, "I don't expect much applause."

He didn't get much applause, either. Yet, Democratic congressional leaders vowed to fight hard for the bulk of the program, which calls for conserving energy through higher automobile and fuel prices and taxes. But they conceded the plan faces major opposition.

Death by needle gaining support

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas House has tentatively approved a bill replacing the electric chair with injection of a deadly substance as the state's mode of execution.

With some opponents chanting, "Kill! Kill!" the bill advanced on a non-record vote. A final vote still is needed to send it to the Senate.

Rep. Ben Z. Grant, D-Marshall, described an electrocution in graphic detail. A condemned man is masked, he said, "because his eyeballs pop out" when 1,800 volts flow through his body.

He told the House the voltage is raised and lowered, down to 500 volts, before the current is turned off.

"I asked why it was cut up and down, and the people said, 'to keep him from catching fire,'" Grant said.

Injection, he said, "cannot be said to be as cruel and unusual as the method I have just described to you."

Rep. T.H. McDonald, D-Mesquite, said he had a hard time accepting "slapping him (a criminal) on the hand" for a gruesome crime.

"The death penalty is not a slap on the hand, in my humble opinion," Grant replied.

"As long as the penalty is swift and sure, you get the same deterrent effect without the violence," he said.

He acknowledged that passage of the bill probably would delay the more than 50 executions now pending because someone surely would test the constitutionality of a new method of execution by going to court.

Grant said 361 men have died in the electric chair since Texas began using it instead of hanging in 1923. No one has been executed in this state since 1964.

The bill would provide death by injection of a lethal quantity of a substance selected by the director of the Texas Department of Corrections. He also would determine the procedure and appoint an executioner.

Under present law, he is the executioner and must pull the switch.

Rep. Ernest Byrd, D-West Virginia, said "the problem of supply was not addressed at all" by the President. But noting that Congress still hasn't seen details of Carter's specific legislation, which will be submitted on Monday, Byrd cautioned, "We shouldn't shoot from the hip... Much will depend on acceptance by the American people."

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona said Carter talked too much about conservation and not enough about encouraging more energy production. "It was a message addressed to no growth and I don't think that will satisfy the country at all," he said.

Carter told Congress he wants to conserve energy by making gas-guzzling automobiles, gasoline, oil and natural gas more expensive.

He asked for authority to impose a "standby" gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon that would begin in 1979 in yearly five cent increments if consumption rises above specified targets. The taxes he asked on automobiles that get poor gas mileage would range from $450 for fuel-inefficient automobiles built in 1978 to $2,500 by 1985.

"We simply must save gasoline and I believe that the American people can meet this challenge. It is a matter of patriotism and possible to put together his program," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which will handle most of the President's proposals.

But Jackson added that he sees little likelihood of Carter's gas tax proposal passing Congress. And he predicted major modifications would be made in the President's oil pricing recommendations.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill also expressed reservations about the gasoline tax but vowed full support for the President's program, adding that Carter knows "this is his first major fight... This is a battle."

And Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia claimed "the problem of supply was not addressed at all" by the President. But noting that Congress still hasn't seen details of Carter's specific legislation, which will be submitted on Monday, Byrd cautioned, "We shouldn't shoot from the hip... Much will depend on acceptance by the American people."

"We simply must save gasoline and I believe that the American people can meet this challenge. It is a matter of patriotism and commitment," Carter said. He also proposed new taxes on crude oil that would add about seven cents a gallon to the price of gasoline by 1980 and lead to equivalent increases for other petroleum products; an increase in the federal price ceiling for natural gas, and taxes on industrial and utility use of natural gas and oil.

The program would return some of the taxes to Americans, possibly through income tax rebates, and give tax breaks to homeowners who add insulation to their homes or take other energy-saving measures.

"Voluntary compliance will not be enough," Carter told Congress. "The problem is too large and the time is too short."

Carter had one prominent Republican ally, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois. "We're a nation of energy-hogs. We've just got to change our habits, even if just to reduce criticism of this country from abroad," Percy said, urging Republicans not to take a "partisan approach. There is no reason why we should not support those parts of the program that make sense."

Carter said his program would "reward those who conserve and penalize those who waste." And he said it strives to spread the sacrifice over all segments of society. Carter called his proposed standby gasoline tax "one of the most controversial and misunderstood" parts of his program.

The tax would be triggered at a rate of five cents a year, beginning in January 1979, if gasoline consumption rose above specified levels.

Criticized as inflationary, ineffective as a means of curbing consumption and as penalizing low-income Americans most, the gas tax proposal was widely attacked by lawmakers — despite Carter assurances that it would only be levied if conservation goals are not met.

Carter's oil pricing proposals also generated controversy.

His plan would put new taxes on domestic crude oil in two stages that would hike its average cost over a three-year period to the 1977 world-market price of $13.50 a barrel charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. This is more than twice the price of some existing domestic oil.

The proposed domestic crude oil tax is expected to add another seven cents a gallon to the pump price of gasoline by 1980.

Carter said there would be "dollar for dollar" rebates to those who use oil to heat their homes to cover the added costs of this tax.

Firemen resume search

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Firemen resumed their gruesome search today through tons of debris for the charred remains of those who perished in a devastating fire at the Central Hotel here Tuesday.

Rain and high winds flooded streets and delayed the grim chore Wednesday afternoon, Asst. Fire Chief Paul Stanford said. Eight bodies had been found, including five children ranging from several months to 12 years old. Twenty persons were still missing.

Stanford said he expects to discover more bodies in the area of the rear fire escape. He said one of the firemen "saw some 'people' in a window" by the fire escape during the fire. A hose was hooked up by the fire escape, Stanford said, but firemen had to pull away from it "because of the intense heat." He said he resumes the people went down with the building.

Fire Marshal A.D. Carroll contends the fire was the work of an arsonist. "It happened too fast and it was too furious to be anything else," he said, adding that when firemen first arrived, the stairwells between floors 2 and 3 were ablaze. Carroll said the stairwell fires are a prime indicator of arson.

'Cool' items okayed by HC trustees

Howard College board of trustees, in addition to several large items of business, also approved several smaller matters in their meeting Tuesday.

Mike Bruner, business manager, told the board of needs for an air blower for the cooling system of the science-library complex and needs for an additional ice machine in the cafeteria. The board approved purchase of the items.

The board met in the new banquet room since the board meeting area is being remodeled into a small club meeting room. Dr. Hays told the board that an individual has donated a fireplace to be placed in the student lounge.

John T. Ferguson of the firm, Weaver and Ferguson was reappointed as college attorney.

Dr. Hays also reported to the board on the requests he made to the Big Spring Steering Committee for possible use of property and items at Webb Air Force Base.

Board members present included K.H. McGibbon, Jimmy Taylor, James Barr, Harold Davis, Don McKinney and Dr. Warren. Staff members also attended the meeting.

Police Chief Ernest Galvan said his detectives had interviewed several people in the last 24 hours. However, by Wednesday afternoon, no one had been arrested.

The fire broke out early Tuesday. Several who were trapped were seen leaping from windows. Others, especially the very young and the very old, were caught inside the inferno.

Three of the dead children belonged to Lucy Moore of Houston. She said the other two were her sister's.

Mrs. Moore said she and the children arrived in this island resort city by bus late Monday night. They were met by her boyfriend, Willy Cokerham, who took them to the rundown complex near the wharves. He said he had just rented one of the apartments for $35 a week.

About midnight, the couple left the third floor walkup to get some barbeque. The children stayed behind.

Cokerham said he and Mrs. Moore returned about 1 a.m. and were greeted by a ghastly sight.

"We went out to get the kids some food to eat," he said sobbing. "And when we came back the whole place was on fire."

Lucy Moore did not talk. She simply clung to Cokerham, all emotion drained from her. The screaming, the roar of the fire as she watched it sweep through third floor and the sight of people jumping for their lives were still fresh in her mind.

Police beat Freedom bid fizzles

A fleet-footed 16-year-old led local police on a merry chase Wednesday afternoon.

According to reports, the local youth was arrested Tuesday night after he hit his mother in the head with a bottle of cologne, and fought with other members of his family. Following the arrest, officers learned that the assailant was an escapee from state juvenile authorities in Brownwood, and officials were called in to pick the youth up and return him.

But that wasn't the end of the story. While the state authorities filled out forms at the front of the police station to take charge of the young offender, he pulled away from them, leaped the booking counter and bolted through the front door.

Detective Robert Cantwell followed him on foot, and all patrol cars were called to be on the lookout for the freedom-lover. According to Lt. Avery Falkner, Cantwell chased the youth into the downtown area, along Main, through the front door of the Inland Port Shop and out the back, and finally collared him under a car in the city parking lot.

The entire incident lasted five minutes.

Barbara Martinez, resident of the Ramada Inn, reported to police that she left two diamond rings in the bathroom while she went to work in another room of the inn. When she returned around 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, the rings were gone. Loss was estimated at $1,000.

Burglars entered the home of H.L. Atkinson, 1311 Madison, sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The intruders lifted three BB guns from the bedroom, and two stereo speakers and a transistor radio from the living room. Value of the merchandise was estimated at $120.

Vandals threw an unidentified object through the back windshield of a car driven by Roxie Edwards, 1321 Elm, on West Highway 80. Damage was estimated at $100.

A CB radio was stolen from a pickup belonging to Arthur Watson, 1002 Runnels, while the truck was parked at the Big Spring Bowlarama. The incident occurred sometime between 8 and 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. The CB was valued at $200.

Another CB was stolen from a car belonging to Doloris Albert, Gail Route, while the auto was parked at 308 Aylford, 8:15 p.m. Wednesday. No value has been estimated for the radio at this time.

Three mishaps were reported Wednesday.

A car driven by Don M. Curry, 4000 W. Highway 80, collided with a light pole in the parking lot of the Foodway Store, 7:04 p.m.

A parked car belonging to Frank C. Perry Jr., 1207 E. 18th, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene on the 300 block of Nolan, 3:52 p.m.

Vehicles driven by John Hood, 2303 Alabama, and Sonia Solomon, 1802 Wallace, collided at Seventeenth and Gregg, 10:43 a.m.

Citizens fixing-up Monahans

By MARJ CARPENTER
MONAHANS — "I don't think they ever went to bed," a state trooper in the heavily damaged area of Monahans said Wednesday afternoon.

It was true that many of the citizens of that tornado-torn city stayed up most of the night tacking tarpaper back on their roofs, nailing boards over broken out windows and carrying furniture across town to friend's homes in areas where the town was not even damaged.

Glenn Bishop, who weathered the storm under the bed at his home on 3rd

Street Tuesday, said, "I was one of three people left in this block. I found out later that Steve Greenhall, Joe Trahaw and I were the only ones in these houses when it hit."

Bishop had rushed home to see about his wife and children and they were gone. Just about the time, the tornado hit, and "Everything began to fly apart," he said. "I got under a bed that was too low for me to get under. But I lifted it up — I think."

Douglas and Penny Sherman were there helping him clean up debris and nail up windows.

"I thought I was going to have a heart attack and die yesterday," Penny stated. "My husband and I were in Lubbock on business and our three children were here in school. We stopped to eat lunch."

"When we were paying our bill, the cashier said, 'Isn't it too bad? Monahans was just wiped off the map by a tornado.'"

"I started screaming. Did it hit the schools? Did it hit the schools? The poor cashier freaked out. She was almost as upset as I was. I'm afraid we exceeded the speed limit going home."

"Ironically, we found out when we got here that our son Tony and another boy were the first ones to spot the tornado when it was headed toward Tatum School. They went screaming into the principal. They were outside putting up their bicycles."

"They had all the children there get under the desk. Then, at the last minute, the twister kind of veered over that school and went on toward Edwards School where it took off a find corner — but didn't hurt anybody."

State troopers were amazed at the spirit of the citizens in helping each other out. Harold Cox, local bank president, said, "I had just cleaned my garage out Saturday. And one of my friends now has everything they own in that garage."

"I've never seen people around here cooperate as well or help each other out as quickly," Cox added. "We stood outside the bank downtown and watched the twisters coming. I've watched many a West Texas twister come right up to the edge of town and veer off. Only this one didn't veer. It hit. But God was looking after us."

"I don't know how they kept from having people hurt in the hospital and the rest home," Cox added.

Meanwhile, in the section of the town which was demolished, citizens worked diligently helping pick up the mess.

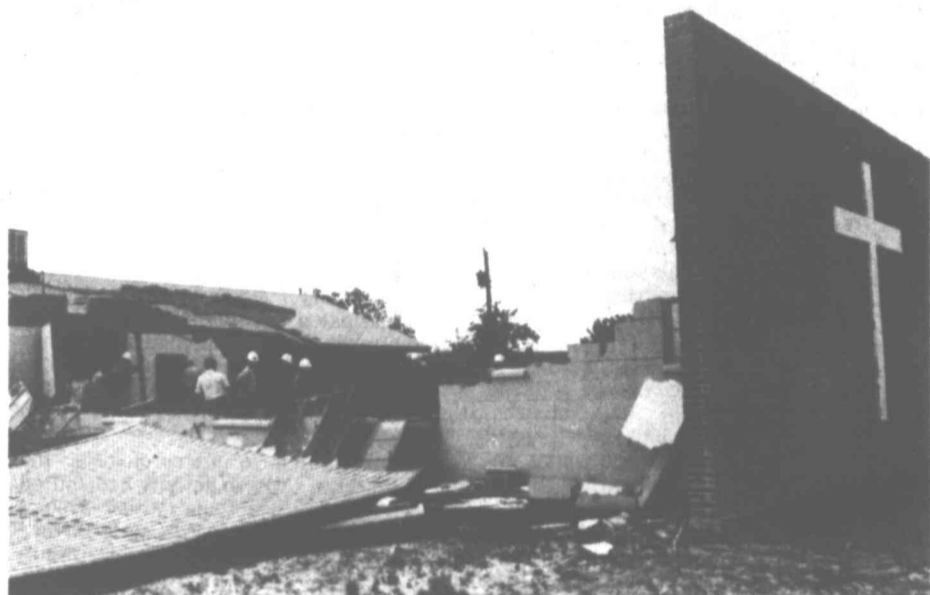

In one corner yard, a "Living Proof" sign still stood untouched while the home behind it was heavily damaged.

The owner was out front sawing up a big tree that had fallen in his yard. Across the street, the neighbors had to drag a demolished trailer home away from the front door to get into their home.

Two houses down, the house was demolished and to add insult to injury, their new car out front had caught on fire and burned. But there was "living proof" of a miracle all over Monahans.

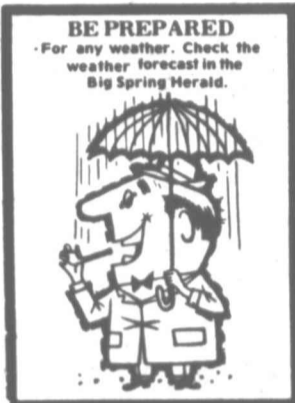

Going down the middle of the street, stepping over pieces of tin and boards, was a tired man with a clipboard and a camera. "What a day to be an insurance adjuster," Allen Sealinght muttered.

LUTHERAN CHURCH — Workers eye the ruins of the Lutheran Church in Monahans during clean-up. The front brick wall holding the cross stood while the rest of the church was wiped out. The Ward Memorial Hospital which was heavily damaged will have to be completely rebuilt, according to Tommy Huckabee, Andrews architect.

BULLDOZERS — Some of the homes in Monahans are past repair and bulldozers were cleaning up the debris. R.M. Oliver of Big Spring was in Monahans helping salvage bolts of materials and other items at his sister's Fabric Shop.

Officers praised

MONAHANS — "The cooperation of law enforcement personnel in West Texas is really something," Jack Forga, civil defense director, said here the day after the storm.

Department of Public Safety troopers from Odessa, Midland and Lamesa worked all night and had a new group there during the day carefully screening all persons who went into the damaged area of the city.

They were there to direct traffic and prevent looting. Sheriff's offices from Reeves, Winkler, Andrews, Ector, Midland, Dawson and Martin County sent representatives over Tuesday night to help relieve the troopers wherever possible.

Sheriff Dan Saunders of Stanton said, "Smaller towns like us — and even those the size of Monahans have to depend on help when an emergency arises. And it's wonderful to see when it comes."

The DPS officers in counties as far away as Stanton and Big Spring were on call but not needed since there were more in the immediate area.

As the clean-up progressed Wednesday afternoon, carefully guarded by watchful state troopers and a hovering law enforcement helicopter, Police Chief Joe Drea said, "We may have the quickest cleanup of any tornado of this magnitude in history."

An emergency generator rushed to the scene by the city of Odessa was a big help. One mix-up occurred when gas was cut off to avoid fires and then the emergency generator at the damaged hospital proved to be gas-operated. But this problem was quickly corrected.

The local gas company was announcing on the radio Wednesday, "If your gas has not been turned back on, please call our office. We will not turn on gas until we have checked to be sure of each location."

The radio was also making a weather announcement. An announcer intoned, "The big black clouds southwest of here are reported to be about 60 miles away. They are reported to hold only rain. You will be happy to hear — only rain."

Never too much rain out here

In the spring of every year in West Texas, we go through the same cycle. Somewhere an expert predicts the beginning of a five-year drought, only to have his logical data drowned in a thunder of rain.

SO THIS YEAR, when a dry spell is hurting the West Coast, the Big Spring area remains in excellent shape for both soil, soil moisture and drinking water.

The rain so far has been heavier than last year, which was a very good year for moisture. The area lakes hold abundant water.

JACK BUCHANAN

The recent rains put enough moisture into the prepared soils to launch this year's cotton crop, and it could be another top one like last year.

The rain fell slowly, and much of it was taken into the earth. This should really help the grasses this spring, and perhaps there is some chance the ranching industry can get back on its feet by the autumn.

Attending the monthly agriculture breakfast is more fun on a rainy day than a dry one. As the farmers gathered at Coker's Restaurant early Tuesday morning, they were between last weekend's heavy rain and Tuesday evening's soaking.

Spirits, needless to say, were high. I asked Jack Buchanan, commissioner of Precinct 4, if he would like to have another inch of rainfall.

"I'VE NEVER seen it rain too much out here in West Texas," he replied. "I've seen it rain too fast, but never too much. Course, I've only been here a short while."

How long is that, Jack? Fifty years, he allowed with a smile. He got his additional rain, and again the soothsayers proved all wet. It only goes to show that we know less about predicting the weather than we do about producing peanuts on the planet Pluto.

First-hand savvy

Around the rim

James Werrell

Despite our ignorance of a great many West Texas customs, we Cincinnatians have some first-hand savvy of a big favorite down here; tornadoes.

We had a beauty in 1974, that left the city with its collective mouth hanging open. The only tornado most of us had ever paid any attention to was in "The Wizard of Oz."

THE TWISTERS DIPPED their tails down throughout the Queen City and completely obliterated the town of Xenia about 20 miles to the north. The Xenia disaster was called one of the worst in history.

In Cincinnati, the storm was preceded by a deathly, black calm that broke with a barrage of hail that pelted everyone. The hailstones were the size of softballs, and could be spotted hundreds of feet in the air on their descent to the tops of cars and through people's windows.

A neighbor's greenhouse was turned into glass confetti. My car looked as if it had been used by a troupe of flamenco dancers. Insurance agents all over the city were growing new ulcers.

The twisters hit soon afterwards. Parts of the office where my wife worked exploded when a tornado touched down there ten minutes after work had ended. Large sheets of glass travelled intact across the room and shattered on the opposite wall.

A friend told of watching a tornado follow exactly the path of least resistance down the Ohio River, sucking up water all the way. To his surprise, it turned inland a block from his house and plucked the roofs off of homes across the street only yards away.

ANOTHER FRIEND AT work told of how her mobile home was there one minute and gone the next. One of the largest twisters to hit the city had made the trailer park she was staying in look like an explosion in a single factory.

My boss at the time was supposed to have taken a flight out of the Cincinnati Airport on the night of the storm. While there a funnel cloud lifted a huge, terminal-to-plane, passenger transporter and toyed with it as if it were a malicious child growing tired of a model truck. My boss turned around and headed home.

TO MAKE MATTERS worse, looters struck the businesses that weren't completely destroyed by the storm, and police had their hands full keeping order in parts of the city. A midnight curfew was called.

Finally, though, the winds dissipated and the sun shone again. One had the impression that things were back to normal until forced to detour off of familiar highways because of twisted metal and refuse ahead.

According to meteorologists, the center of tornado activity had shifted from the traditional areas around Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas to farther east near the Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania region. In other words, we Ohioans were in for more of the same, and that presented another fine reason to move to Texas.

Texas already had Pecos Bill as a qualified tornado-tamer. No telling how long it would take Pete Rose to learn the trick.

Lust in the spring

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I have decided to write a column today that probably no one is interested in. It is on the subject of lust! After what many people have called the worst winter in years, spring has finally come, people have discarded their heavy coats and boots and the voice of lust can be heard throughout the land.

I WAS WALKING through Lafayette Park with Bradley just the other day, and I said to him as our eyes darted from one breathless vision to another, "Let me ask you something, Bradley. Do you have lust in your heart at this time of the year?"

Bradley said, "That's a dumb question. Of course I do. What else would you have in your heart in the spring?"

"I do, too," I admitted. "I think I have more lust in my heart at this very moment than I had during the months of November, December and January combined."

"Do you think they know we have lust in our hearts?" I asked Bradley.

"Who is they?" he asked. "All of them," I said, sweeping my hand out to indicate everyone who was wearing a miniskirt, a tight sweater or a see-through blouse. "The question is are they provoking our lust on purpose?"

"I think so," Bradley said. I believe that when they get up in the morning and select their outfits for the day they say to themselves, I hope this will make someone lust after me."

"I DON'T THINK it's that planned," I said. "I believe it's a subconscious thing, having to do with the mating instinct. They automatically pick out an item that they believe will cause lust in our hearts."

"But if this is true," Bradley said, "why do they call us male chauvinist pigs when we talk about lust?" "They have to call us something," I told Bradley. "By calling us pigs it gives them a reason to wear anything they damn well please."

"I don't think that's nice," he said. "They stir up all these repressed feelings and then when we react to them they call us names."

"It's true. Look at that lovely bird walking toward us. She isn't wearing a bra. We know she isn't wearing a bra and she knows she isn't wearing a bra. But if we stare at her she'll think we're dirty old men."

"Or worse," said Bradley, "she'll pretend she thinks we're dirty old men, but in her heart she'll feel very pleased that we would bother to notice."

"They're more devious in the springtime, aren't they?" I said.

"SPRING IS THE most cruel time of all," Bradley said. "There are days when I don't even want to leave the house because I know I'm going to lust all day."

"I'm like that, too," I admitted. "I don't want to get out of bed in the morning because I know it's going to be tough on my heart."

"Do you think women lust after men in their hearts the way we lust after women?" I asked my friend.

"I'm sure of it," he said. "The only difference is we don't provoke them by wearing skimpy clothes. It's a different kind of lust — but it's still lust."

That cheered me up. "Do you think at this very moment while we're walking through the park someone is lust after us?" I asked him.

"I'm sure of it," he told me. "I'll bet they are lust after us as much as we are. I think the whole park is full of lust. You can feel it everywhere."

For muscles massage is 'message'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Settle an argument. I have been challenged when I say that the heat from rubbing in liniments does not help get rid of muscle aches. Am I right? — S.L.

Such "heat" is usually limited to the skin. But the process of rubbing the substance in, helps increase circulation in muscles of the aching joint. The liquid also makes the massaging job easier. I'm sure that thousands of athletes will vouch for the effectiveness of massages either in limbering up prior to a contest or in relieving muscle ache afterwards. The sensation of heat and the aroma of the liniments may well provide a subtle psychological lift as well, and is not to be entirely dismissed. But essentially the muscles get the "message" from the massage. True, deep heat can be delivered down to the muscles, however, through diathermy in which electric current is applied.

If there is an infection involved in the joint symptoms, no amount of massage or "heat" will help.

But for ordinary muscle ache from either strenuous activity (or inactivity) rubbing in liniments is perfectly acceptable. No matter what you say, your friends who believe in their products will continue to use them. I would be the last to belittle their beliefs or successes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can thyroid medicine cause a person to develop diabetes? I have been taking it for nine years and am now told I am a mild diabetic. I also have slightly high blood pressure. I am 51, with no history of diabetes in my family. — Mrs. M.S.

Thyroid is not ordinarily considered a cause of diabetes mellitus, but prolonged use of thyroid medicine can raise blood sugar. Elevated blood pressure can be caused by overactive thyroid or the thyroid medicine.

You may need a reevaluation of your thyroid medicine dosage if you're taking any. The present one may be a bit high for you. There's a more complete discussion of diabetes in my booklet, "Diabetes: The Sneaky Disease." Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if it's true that charcoal grilles give you cancer. My son lived in a warm climate and they eat most of their meals outside cooked on a charcoal grill. — Mrs. B.L.

Certain chemicals such as benzyprone and benzothracene have been found on the surface of charcoal-broiled meat, carried upward by flames as the drippings of fat hit the hot coals. The amount is very small. One estimate is 8 micrograms per two pounds of steak.

Although these chemicals are considered carcinogenic (cancer producing), it has not been shown that actual cancer develops in humans or animals from eating meat cooked on grills.

The FDA and the National Livestock and Meat Board recommend slow cooking over coals. The meat should be high enough to avoid the flames. Flames should be squelched.

These are prudent precautions, but I would not be overly concerned about cancer from charcoal grilling. We consume enough other noxious substances without foregoing a delicious charcoal-broiled steak.

As summer approaches the grilling season does also. One warning: have adequate ventilation. The carbon monoxide from smoldering coals can be deadly. I say this because I have seen outdoor barbecues moved into enclosed areas because of inclement weather.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking Estimil for high blood pressure. I am losing a lot of my hair. I have heard the medication can cause this. Is this true? — Mrs. C.D.

Yes. This is potent combination of drugs used for a stubborn high blood pressure. Suggest you report these symptoms to your doctor.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Seek help

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Congress has called for military equipment, including planes, radar, sensors and satellites, to bolster the faltering battle against drug abuse.

This unusual request has been forwarded to the Pentagon by the Senate Permanent Investigation subcommittee. In a private letter to Defense Secretary Harold Brown, the senators pleaded:

"This country is fighting a self-proclaimed war on drugs. When fighting a war, you use the best resources available and make every effort to win. This is not being done."

THE LETTER, signed by Sens. Sam

Nunn, D-Ga., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., contends that drug abuse costs the United States a staggering $17 billion annually. More than 5,000 Americans die each year from the improper use of drugs; thousands more are killed and injured in drug-related crimes.

The sheer magnitude of the drug problem has led the subcommittee to seek drastic countermeasures.

"Within the federal government," declare the senators, "the Department of Defense alone possesses the air and land vehicles needed to pursue and overtake the drug traffickers."

They point out that the Customs Service "lacks sufficient planes, radar, sensors and other equipment to adequately protect our borders; the equipment it does have largely consists of second generation or ill-equipped models."

To curb the deadly drug traffic, the senators insist, will take "resources comparable to sophistication to those used by the smugglers themselves."

Footnote: A spokesman said the Pentagon has received the proposal and is preparing a response to it.

LETELIER MYSTERY: Cuban officials have tipped off visiting Americans that the Cuban terrorist, Orlando Bosch, is the man behind the dynamite death of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier in Washington last September.

This conclusion is based upon Fidel Castro's own investigation of the assassination. His agents reported that the Chilean military junta enlisted Bosch to bankroll the plot. He was chosen, according to the Cubans, because he was fanatical and honest enough not to steal the murder money.

House members get $5,000 a year for their newsletters. Senators average $1,500 a year for stamps. They all get allowances for their back-home offices, and they all get yearly travel allowances. A Representative is permitted 32 round trips per session, a Senator from 40 to 44 round trips per year. They are also free to do considerable foreign traveling.

Members are entitled to use both military hospitals in Washington, Walter Reed and Bethesda Naval at a daily, all-inclusive, private room rate of $167 — half what it would cost at a private hospital. In addition, members can get free — some might call it "socialized" — medical treatment, checkups, ambulance service, X rays and EKG's from capitol physicians.

Members have their own dining rooms which operate at a deficit because the prices are low. And they have their own barber and beauty shops run by Congressional employees, and the rates for a haircut and for a wash and set are half that on the outside.

Each member also gets a Congressional license tag which permits virtually unrestricted parking in the city. Each House member gets five underground parking spaces. There are House and Senate gyms, Congressional recording studios where a member can go and videotape a TV report for his hometown for $35 (compared to $500 on the outside), and there is the botanic gardens nursery, which supplies the members with their house plants.

The grand total of Congressional benefits, visible and otherwise, is about $400,000 per year per member. For a Representative, this sum averages out to one dollar per year per citizen. What does seem outlandish is the reluctance, even the refusal, of Congress to put it all on the record.

The closing of this base is not only a shock to the citizens of Big Spring but to every citizen of Texas, and the only way to fight this bureaucracy in Washington is to shout from the house top. The voters are still the elective and the voices will sound like a clap of thunder never heard before our National Capitol.

Wally Akin, P.O. Box 1758, Abilene, Texas 79604

Dear Editor: We want to thank you for the recent coverage of the Howard College 'doe'.

To have Danny Valdes so faithfully attend our first annual rodeo performances and take pictures is deeply appreciated. We couldn't believe how many pictures he took and what good action shots he got. That these pictures were scattered throughout the paper each day certainly added interest and created support for our efforts to put on a first-class rodeo.

Danny, you went above and beyond your duty in helping to promote this event and we can't express adequately our appreciation.

Marj Carpenter is super! To think that a woman of her wide range of talents and interests would also know about and be interested in rodeos is amazing. Thanks for her continuing support as we strive to have the best rodeo teams in the nation.

The recent HC Rodeo will hopefully become an annual event and if it does, Danny and Marj and the Herald will have had a part in making it a tradition.

Thank you for all your promotion, but we especially want to thank Marj for the "Ridin' the Fence" column. All of us will treasure our copies of this article.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am at a loss to know how I can help a dear friend whose son was killed in an auto accident. Apart from prayer, what can I do to help her overcome her grief? — B.M.

DEAR B.M.: Recognize that you cannot lessen the sorrow or sense of loss that your friend is experiencing. This will last a long time and efforts to cheer her up will not help. As someone who had experienced a similar tragedy said to me, "You go through it, but you don't get over it."

So pray earnestly for your friend, love her, and stand ready to help in any way possible. Let her know that you are available, and will be a good listener if she should want someone to talk to.

And as you pray for her and listen, the Lord will lay on your heart things that you may do to help. When the right time comes, point out to your friend that "in the sovereignty of God, her son's life was not cut short, it was completed."

McClure suit doomed?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A $14 million suit brought by the parents of a Texas Marine recruit fatally injured in pugil stick training may not make it to the courtroom.

The U.S. Attorney's office in San Diego is moving for dismissal of the suit. Asst. U.S. Atty. Donald Shanahan says the government's position is based on a doctrine established by the U.S. Supreme Court 27 years ago that precludes suits for injuries or deaths of military personnel "incidental to their service obligations."

Pvt. Lynn E. McClure, 20, of Lufkin, Tex., was being forced to fight a series of consecutive bouts with the padded staves as punishment when he received head injuries Dec. 6, 1975.

McClure died three months later in a government hospital in Houston, Tex.

The suit by his parents claims he never should have been permitted to join the Marine Corps because of his record of mental difficulties and should not have been forced to participate in pugil stick fighting for which he was not properly trained.

The motion filed Tuesday by Shanahan also seeks removal of former President Gerald Ford and other high government figures as defendants, contending they had no knowledge of events surrounding the injury of McClure.

The Lufkin (Tex.) News was awarded a Pulitzer Prize earlier this week for its investigation of the recruit's injury.

STANTON — School board members met in special session and approved the new school administration building for occupancy.

There was some misunderstanding between the board and the contractor on date for occupancy. ## Weather Cool air kicking up turbulence

By The Associated Press

Cool air coursing deeper into Texas kicked up a new round of nasty weather today.

A tornado warning went up for Frio County in South Texas at 7 a.m. after radar spotted a possible twister 5 miles west of Pearsall on the Frio River and moving toward the east.

About the same time, as heavy thunderstorms swept across a broad stretch of South Texas, the National Weather Service posted a flash flood warning for Kinney, Uvalde, Medina, Kerr, Banderas, Frio and Zavala counties. Threats of flooding were reported along the Frio, Nueces and Medina Rivers and their tributaries.

Severe storms thundered through much of Central Texas earlier, continuing for several hours.

Lufkin newsman's dream becomes reality

Pulitzer winner keeps pinching himself

LUFKIN, Tex. (AP) — Lufkin News Editor Joe Murray says his back is getting sore from taking bows but he forgot to mention those red welts on his arm where he keeps pinching himself to make sure he's not dreaming.

Murray's dream, indeed the dream of all journalists, came true Monday when he found out the East Texas newspaper received the coveted Pulitzer Prize for its stories on a young Marine who died in boot camp during a mock bayonet drill. "I keep thinking somebody is going to call back any moment to explain that it was all a mistake," said a grinning Murray. "Our award wasn't the Pulitzer Prize after all, but something called the Pleurisy Prize for our stories on the City-County Health Unit." Murray said from his tiny office.

Murray and reporter Ken Herman wrote some 36 stories on Pvt. Lynn McClure's death, which led to a presidential inquiry, a congressional investigation and eventually modifications in some Marine Corps recruit training.

And it all started, Murray said, when J.A. Bryan, a Lufkin builder, walked into his office one morning and asked the paper to look into his nephew's death.

Murray, 36, and Herman, who has since quit his job to join The Associated Press in Dallas, discovered McClure, a high school dropout and a slow learner with a police record, had died of head injuries received during a mock bayonet fight conducted with heavy padded poles.

Herman, a Brooklyn

refugee who still has trouble understanding Texanese, was 21 when he began working on the story. Now, with a Pulitzer safely tucked under his belt, he's a bit worried about getting "caught up in that spiral."

"There are a lot of 40-and 50-year-old people around who are damned good and have never gotten any recognition," he said. "Listen, I'm going to AP to learn how to write...I don't want a desk job. I want to learn to write."

The paper received an invitation from the Pulitzer board to enter the series. Murray framed the letter and figured that's about as close as he would ever get to the dream.

His office and ripped the citation to shreds. The disappointment was replaced by disbelief when Dallas AP Bureau Chief Jim Mangan notified Murray of the Pulitzer. But fate has a way of humbling even the mighty.

Mangan's call came after Murray's paper had already gone to press. Every news sheet, radio and television station in the country was going to beat him on the announcement.

Murray and Herman were taking the award in stride. Herman said his mother bought "6,000 copies of the New York Times" edition that announced the award. He is a graduate of Florida Atlantic, "which sounds like a railroad, but is actually a state university."

Banker found shot to death

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — Fred Holland, president of the Merchants and Planters National Bank of Sherman, was found shot to death at his home here Tuesday. He was 61.

Officers said Holland had a .32 caliber pistol in his right hand. Justice of the Peace Robert Bean withheld a formal ruling in the death, but said a preliminary investigation indicated that the gunshot wound was self-inflicted.

Holland, a native of St. Jo, became sixth president of the Sherman bank in 1961 after serving as president of the First National Bank of Longview for three years. He began his banking career in 1949 with the Moody National Bank at Galveston and replaced by disbelief when Dallas AP Bureau Chief Jim Mangan notified Murray of the Pulitzer. But fate has a way of humbling even the mighty.

Mangan's call came after Murray's paper had already gone to press. Every news sheet, radio and television station in the country was going to beat him on the announcement.

Murray and Herman were taking the award in stride. Herman said his mother bought "6,000 copies of the New York Times" edition that announced the award. He is a graduate of Florida Atlantic, "which sounds like a railroad, but is actually a state university."

He came to Lufkin after writing letters to 125 newspapers.

"Ah, Brooklyn, Miami and Lufkin," Murray said. "A natural progression."

He submitted to interviews with newspapers and radio and television stations saying, "I am obliging the press because I remember all the nights I've gotten people out of bed with some dumb question."

On the serious side, Murray said, "We didn't do anything gutsy. We simply met our responsibility as a newspaper to folks who have no power or influence of their own. We do the same thing week in and week out."

Wiretaps shot down

By SCOTT PARKS
Harte-Hank Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A bill giving local police the right to conduct wiretaps on suspected organized crime figures has no chance of passage this session, according to several sources in the House and Senate.

David Dean, a lawyer in Gov. Dolph Briscoe's office who has been charged with pushing the bill in the Senate, had this response when asked if it would be accurate to say the bill is dead: "I would say so. I would say so. I guess the time just hasn't come yet."

Sen. Bill Meier of Euless, sponsor of the wiretap bill in the Senate, says, "It is dead for this session."

Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood, chairman of the House Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence, refuses to write a eulogy for wiretapping legislation, but he admits, "I would say the chances of its passing are slim. I'm not for it. It's possible there could be a compromise, but I would have to be shown."

Gov. Briscoe made wiretapping legislation one of his top priorities in his State of the State speech on the opening day of the legislative session. If predictions are correct, it will be the third straight session that Briscoe has failed to convince the Legislature that law enforcement needs wiretapping as a tool to combat organized crime.

Briscoe apparently is one of the few people not yet admitting wiretapping is dead for now.

"You bet I'm still trying to get it passed this session," the governor said Monday.

Briscoe's proposal began the session as a two-pronged piece of legislation.

In the first part the bill defined organized crime as five or more persons who engage in criminal activities such as murder, kidnaping, gambling, usury, manufacture or sales of prohibited weapons, drug distribution, bribery of public officials, prostitution or commercial obscenity.

The five or more persons would not have to know one another in order to constitute an organized crime ring.

The first section also allows a prosecutor to charge two or more defendants in the same indictment. It also allows a defendant to be charged for more than one crime in the same indictment.

These provisions are designed to allow a jury to see the interconnected nature of organized criminal activities, according to the legislation's proponents.

The second, and most crucial, section of the bill explains when and how a local district attorney could secure a wiretap order from a district judge to secure evidence against a suspected organized criminal.

Sen. Meier deleted the wiretap section from his bill in the Senate, leaving only the definition of organized crime to be either approved or rejected by the Senate Jurisprudence Committee's criminal matters subcommittee. It was, he says, a fallback position he did not want to take.

"I think eventually electronic surveillance is a tool that will have to be recognized in this state, but I could count votes. It would have been 3-2 against in the subcommittee and, perhaps, 9-4 against in the full committee," Meier said. "What we have left now is a definition of organized crime that will give prosecutors the leeway to deal with a group of criminals."

Meanwhile, the organized crime-wiretapping bill has not been set for a hearing in Rep. Nabers' House committee.

Dean, the governor's assistant, says the House probably will wait on Meier's watered-down version to come over from the Senate rather than trying to deal with the wiretapping provision.

The bill would make participation in organized crime a first degree felony punishable by a maximum life prison sentence.

When the series placed second in the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors (APME) contest, Murray quietly walked into his office and ripped the citation to shreds. The disappointment was replaced by disbelief when Dallas AP Bureau Chief Jim Mangan notified Murray of the Pulitzer. But fate has a way of humbling even the mighty.

Mangan's call came after Murray's paper had already gone to press. Every news sheet, radio and television station in the country was going to beat him on the announcement.

Spankings used as 'last resort'

By The Associated Press
School officials in Texas generally say they are pleased with this week's U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding corporal punishment in schools although they expressed "last resort" feelings about student spanking.

"I think it's a great decision," said Gordon Cotton, deputy superintendent of administration for Houston schools. "I think the federal courts have finally realized they need to leave the discipline to the individual school administrators."

Cotton said he doubts if the Supreme Court ruling that school spankings are not "cruel and unusual punishment" will cause a massive return to the days when teachers carried a paddle as part of their standard equipment.

"We've always used a paddle in Houston, but only as a last resort," he said. "I don't think the ruling is going to change anything here, but it should relieve some of the administrators from worrying about getting sued if they use the paddle."

Dallas School Supt. Nolan Estes said he sees no effect on Dallas' policy on using corporal punishment as a last resort, with teachers paddling their students only with permission from a principal.

But Doyle Weaver, a spokesman for Citizens Against Physical Punishment (CAPP), said corporal punishment is "unbelievably widespread" in the Dallas school district, and school policy is violated frequently.

Asst. School Supt. James Bailey of Fort Worth, "I've found very little objection to corporal punishment if used properly," he said. Corporal punishment is used in Fort Worth schools only in cases of extreme or persistent violation of a school rule.

Fort Worth Supt. Gerald Ward added, "I think it has a place. It must be used judiciously and with judgment and as a last resort."

'Shimmy Shaker' suit filed

MIDLAND — A $3.6 million lawsuit has been filed in 127th District Court in Harris County against three West Texas business firms, alleging theft of trade secrets in connection with the manufacturing and marketing of a machine developed for oil field use.

The trade name "Shimmy Shaker" is involved in the suit. Other defendants in the suit include Roger Crocker, Wickett, E.L. Kent, Monahan, administrator of the estate of Ernest L. Gage and Sarah L. Gage; Arthur Park, Mark Telliaferro and Harland Blau, all of Odessa, Amoco Oil Co., Houston, and Hart Publications, publishers of Drill Bit Magazine.

Hruza and VSA will maintain in the suit they actually developed a prototype of the "Shimmy Shaker," a pneumatically-operated machine capable of operating a solids control system, specifically used in the oil fields to clean drilling muds. Machines so used are commonly called shale shakers.

Prices continue to increase for the full year at the March rate, it would translate into a 7.2 per cent rise in prices. That is still higher than what the administration believes to be the underlying inflation rate of 5 to 6 per cent.

Lions mark event with ladies day

Wednesday was the first day for Downtown Lions at their new meeting place — Howard College — and they marked it with a ladies day.

It also was the occasion for a community sales pitch by Bill Albright, Chamber of Commerce manager. He projected the special slide show which gave examples of historical background, business, medical, church, living, educational transportation, industrial climatic, and financial advantages of the area.

The Chamber, he reminded, is privately financed by membership investments, although it does contract with the city for certain promotional activities in the field of industrial and tourist development.

Wayne Henry, chairman of the Lions Lightbulb Sale May 2-4, announced captains for the event — Ken Dawson, Doug Allen M.A. Barger, John Latham, Jim Holmes, and the downtown sales chief, Bet Andries. Andries, who also is chairman of the crippled and diabetic children's camp, said still more applications are needed.

Consumer prices jump slows down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose six-tenths of a per cent in March, a slower pace than in the previous two months, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said smaller price increases for food and other commodities helped to hold down the rate of inflation last month.

Park named IBM manager

RALEIGH, N.C. — John W. Park, a native of Big Spring, has been named a service planning manager in the facility here of the International Business Machines Corporation's Field Engineering Division.

The division provides maintenance and related services for IBM information handling systems, equipment and programming systems. He was a field manager in the division's Houston branch office.

Park attended the University of Texas, and joined IBM as a customer engineer in Dallas in 1957.

He is married to the former Pepita Otero of Santa Fe, N.M. They live at 4604 Hiddenbrook, Raleigh.

Shivers to give up bank post

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Gov. Allan Shivers, chairman of Austin National Bank, said Wednesday he will resign from the directorships of Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc. and Texas Commerce Bank in Houston.

Shivers told the Austin National shareholders that he will sever his relationship with the Houston bank group before the merger of Capital National Bank of Austin into Texas Commerce becomes official.

Jet burn victim dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An elderly patient critically burned in the jumbo jet collision in the Canary Islands last month died at the Institute of Surgical Research's burn center here early Thursday.

A spokesman from Brooke Army Medical Center where the institute is located identified the victim as Mrs. Alta M. Libert, 72, of Hemet, Calif.

The spokesman said another patient, Maurice Magante, of Sacramento, Calif., was released Thursday morning.

There are now seven patients in the burn center. Four are in very serious condition and three are in serious condition.

Mrs. Libert was the third patient to die here. Mrs. Dorothea Kershaw and Charles Miller died Monday.

Fourteen victims were brought to Brooke originally. Twelve were hospitalized in the burn center and two were receiving treatment for other injuries. One of them was discharged.

Dope smugglers caught in 'wishbone'

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP) — A task force of federal and state authorities continued to serve federal indictments today in sparsely populated Starr County on the Rio Grande in the largest single crackdown on marijuana and heroin smuggling from Mexico into the United States.

As of Wednesday night, 38 arrests had been made, and Asst. U.S. Atty. John Smith of McAllen said 22 of those were major violators. Bonds set in a total of 62 indictments totaled $22 million and ranged from $50,000 to $1.5 million.

Drug Enforcement Administration officials said the arrests were the results of a four-month investigation by DEA, the U.S. attorney's office, the Texas Department of Public Safety. The U.S. agencies also received the cooperation of the Mexican federal police.

The investigation was part of a combined effort named "Operation Wishbone," officers said.

Don Smith, a special agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration, was quick to note that area drug busts since January 1, 1977, have yielded 35 tons of marijuana, three kilos of heroin, a kilo of cocaine — 6,500 doses of dangerous drugs — worth a total of $100 million on the street.

The arrests began early Wednesday morning after officers unsealed 16 indictments returned Tuesday afternoon by a federal grand jury in Brownsville.

John Smith said that while the arrests were being made in the Valley, Mexican police were arresting seven other suspects and confiscating three tons of marijuana in the Camargo area, just across the river from Starr County. Some of those arrested were reported to be U.S. citizens.

Most of those arrested were picked up in Starr County, but some arrests were made in McAllen, in the Mid Valley; San Antonio, Galveston and in California and Tennessee.

Edward A. Heath, deputy regional director of DEA, said the arrests broke up a "number of major drug trafficking organizations dealing in multi-ton quantities of marijuana and large amounts of heroin and other drugs."

Most of the population of the county is Mexican-American. DEA officials have said in the past that large families with members on both sides of the border are involved in the smuggling operations.

"A great number of these individuals have a kinship," Heath said. "Consequently, their organizations are interlocking. Some of the traffickers living on the U.S. side of the border have vast landholdings in Mexico which are used as storage point for large quantities of narcotics brought up from the interior of Mexico prior to being smuggled into the United States."

When asked why the Starr County sheriff's office was not involved in the crackdown, Don Smith said, "Security is the key to a successful operation."

John Smith said each of the organizations involved in the arrests "was capable of supplying multi-ton quantities of marijuana plus large amounts of heroin on short notice."

Ridin' fence

They call it Stanton

with Marj Carpenter

During the next few weeks, this fence rider plans to try to catch a little bit of the spirit and color of various small cities and even rural communities in our reading area.

I may not always hit it right, but once a week — near the end of the week, I'm going to try. At least you'll know those were my impressions and rumbles I heard as I wandered through town.

All's well in Stanton. Bank deposits are up. The school, which was supposed to fall off in enrollment after Grady opened a high school three years ago, instead has grown. And it wins its share of everything as well as managing to squeeze in something called education.

The latest new building in the school system is the administration office, located in the same area as the old building. Only Russell McMeans and crew are now facing west instead of south.

Things are greening up all over town. All of the shrubs planted during the courthouse landscaping are alive, except one, and believe you me that is an accomplishment. The courthouse still looks beautiful. And the fountain bubbles merrily I guess.

People still discuss and wonder about what is going to eventually become of the mysterious convent which was purchased by a person who often develops historical sites into supper clubs. However, progress on the project was definitely slowed down by failure of a liquor by the drink vote in that precinct last year.

THE MYSTERIOUS CONVENT ... and people wonder

The old Milhollon home, historically marked and often referred to instead as the Midnight Cowboy house, recently sold again and looks great.

The First National Bank in the center of town now has drive-in windows and a big parking lot. Out at the cotton compress, everything looks like it's waiting for another cotton season. A few spring weeds have grown up but they will all be whacked away before the compress season begins.

If there's any rattlesnakes left out there, it's not for lack of trying to exterminate them. One big den of rattlers was killed out there recently (shut your ears, Audubon Society).

Speaking of exterminators, the exterminator and the eliminator, which is what the CBers have dubbed the two state troopers in Martin County are alive and well. And they're nice guys. Really they are. As long as you go through their county at 55 miles per hour.

Such firms as Caprock Electric, West Texas Telephone Co-op and West Texas Production Credit seem to be busy as cranberry merchants at Thanksgiving. The drug store is always busy.

Farmers in the coffee shops are absolutely delighted over the rain. Most of them are out in the fields a little more nowadays trying to determine which day to plant.

They've quit discussing

Alien policy input lacking

Marta Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says his office has made no attempt to have input into a federal study of the problems of illegal aliens who hold jobs in the United States.

During a press conference last week, President Jimmy Carter said a proposal on how to deal with the illegal aliens would be forthcoming — probably within the next two weeks.

Briscoe at a press conference, however, said his office was exerting all its energies on the President's energy policy for the United States.

He said his office had not attempted to have input into the illegal alien policy statement and would not until he was satisfied that they could do no more on the energy question.

what kind of seed to use this year and are talking about what day to put it in the ground.

The judge (Jimmy Mathis), the sheriff (Dan Saunders), the mayor (Don Tollison), the publisher (Terry Neill) sure won't tell you if there's anything wrong over there. It must be going well.

All the soreheads appear to have gone underground. There wasn't even any competition in the political races.

The ranchers that live over near the Glasscock County line are also smiling about the rain. There haven't been too many sandstorms this spring.

The kids are glad that it's time for school to be out and so are the teachers — and everything's normal around Stanton — out where I was ridin' fence.

DA guilty of public lewdness

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Palestine Dist. Atty. Billy Ray Green says he will appeal and win reversal of his conviction for public lewdness.

A three-man, three-woman jury found Green guilty after deliberating an hour and 45 minutes Wednesday.

County Court at Law Judge Brock Jones said he would sentence Green on May 25.

The state charged Green committed an act of oral sex on a University of Texas graduate student in an adult book store booth Jan. 18.

"I'm very shocked and very disappointed," Green told reporters. "I think the chances on appeal are excellent."

"I anticipate a great deal of difficulty with the bar association. I intend to remain in office and serve out my term," he said. Leaving the courtroom, Green encountered Josie Derry, a 76-year-old black woman from Palestine who testified for him as a character witness. They embraced.

"I'm going to be all right," he assured her with a pat. "We're going to win on appeal."

Travis County Atty. Jim McMurtry argued to the jury that Green and the man arrested with him in a curtained peep-show booth never asked why the officers arrested them.

"I submit to you they knew what they were being arrested for," McMurtry said.

"Did they protest their innocence? No. I submit to you (it was) because they knew that they had been caught," he said.

Green's lawyer, Bob Smith, had argued that the jury might "take the easy way out" and say to themselves, "Bill Green's ruined. It doesn't make any difference. Find him guilty. Support your local police. And go on your way."

McMurtry answered that argument by saying Smith talked of how much Green had lost, but "You know where he lost it. In booth 18. Who placed him in that position? Can he blame the police for that? Can he blame me? Can he blame you?"

McMurtry's assistant, Phil Lerway, told the jury to look at pictures of the area toward which Green ran when escaped outside the book store.

Energy Fuels research funds sidelined

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A bill for state funding of energy research got sidelined by political concerns Monday but apparently may be revived after some tinkering.
Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale is sponsoring legislation that would allocate $5 million for the next two years for researching alternative energy methods.

The research primarily would be done by state colleges and universities, with the majority of that at Texas A&M University and the University of Texas at Austin.
House Energy Resources Committee members gave the bill a fairly friendly reception Monday but didn't like the provision giving supervision of the research to the Governor's Energy Advisory Council.

Kubiak got the bill sent to subcommittee so those concerns could be worked out. He said he would recommend giving control of research funding to a special committee made up of presidents of universities involved, the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker, or their representatives.
The principal aim of the legislation is to provide funds to seek alternatives to fossil fuel energy. Research would center around things as energy from the sun, wind, geothermal sources and gasification of lignite deposits under ground.
State funds would be used to obtain higher federal funding.

Dr. Richard Wainerdi, director of the energy center at Texas A&M, told the committee about 90 per cent of present energy research in Texas is conducted at A&M and UT-Austin. Texas Tech University and the University of Houston do most of the rest, he said.

This type of research could be extremely important to Texas as the more traditional energy sources — oil and gas — run out.
Committee members expressed worries that the funding would not be properly coordinated under the Governor's Energy Advisory Council and there would be some duplication of work.

Wainerdi said those involved in energy research keep close contact with one another and duplication would not be a problem.
Kubiak said he is certain the supervision problem can be worked out by next Monday's committee meeting.

Seven of 13 Cisco city employes back on jobs

CISCO — Seven of the 13 Cisco city employes who walked off the job Friday have returned to work and three others have petitioned the city to be rehired.
Positions of three other men who quit have already been filled, according to acting City Manager Joyce Tyson.
The 13 men, representing most of the water, sewer and sanitation departments, apparently left their jobs last week because of dissatisfaction with Mrs. Tyson.

Texas narc slain, chief suspended

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Mayor John Snyder has suspended Police Chief A.J. Rodgers following the slaying of a narcotics agent in Texas.
Snyder said it appeared that members of a narcotics squad were attempting an unauthorized drug purchase in Texas.
The body of Benton D. Bordelon Jr., 25, was found Saturday on a rural road near Richmond, Tex. He had been shot six times.
Bordelon was a member of a narcotics squad sponsored jointly by the Alexandria Police Department and the Rapides Parish Sheriff's Department.
Snyder ordered city police pulled off the team earlier this week, and told the policeman to cut their beards and their hair.
The mayor said Wednesday that Chief Rodgers had not carried out his orders.

Cotton allotments discussed by ASCS

In its April newsletter the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced the transferring of cotton allotments (including lease or purchase acres), and requests for reapportioned or extra cotton allotments, would continue through May 2.
The committee also stated that for farmers who are not going to plant any cotton allotment, and would be willing to release it to the county committee for 1977 only, there would be some farms in the county that could use it.
The lowering of the interest rate on crop loans had been announced by the USDA. As of April 1, loans made on all crops will be 6 per cent per annum, compared to 7.5 per cent previously.
With the better loan programs through the USDA, (ASCS) storing grain through your own farm storage and drying equipment is now a lot easier. The new program will give loans up to 85 per cent of cost at 7 per cent interest, and the facility volume can be figured on a two-year production capability, instead of the one-year capability previously.
Spraying of Mesquite requests are now being taken. In order to be eligible for cost sharing, spraying must be done not earlier than 40 days or later than 90 days after Mesquite leaves appear in spring.

Farmers Union members invited to conclave

LAMESA — Dawson County members of Texas Farmers Union and their guests are being urged by County President Randy Cline to attend a full program on involvement for family farmers when the group meets Monday night, April 25 at 8 p.m. The meeting is scheduled for the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Company located at 510 N. Second.
Featured on the evening's program will be Linda Siderius, assistant director of youth and young adults who comes from the Denver office of the National Farmers Union. She will be discussing the beginnings of the Farmers Union youth program in Texas and a special camp being planned in Palo Duro Canyon this summer.
Joining her will be Mrs. Nita Gibson, president of Gaines County Farmers Union to discuss the role of women in agriculture. Her presentation is timely in that farm women in the area will have just completed a women's conference in Lubbock the previous weekend.
Ron Butler, administrative assistant from the state office of Texas Farmers Union in Waco, will address the group on legislative activities in Austin which have had direct impact on farmers and the role that farm families can take in organizational work to assure their voice in the political process.
Cline urges everyone interested in agricultural involvement to attend and "bring a friend."

Stanton sports scene one of success

Bufs dominate field, win 5-A track title

STANTON — It really wasn't much of a race. Seagraves made a late bid, but the Stanton High School track team rolled over its competition last Saturday in the District 5-A track meet and won going away, with 162 points.

The "flying Bufs" almost qualified the entire team to compete in the regionals in Odessa April 29 and 30. First and second place finishers advance to the prestigious meet, and Stanton had its share.

Marvin "Lemon Juice" Jones and Doug McCalister qualified for regional in four events, while Ken McCalister will make the trip on his efforts in three events.

Jones won the 100-yard dash, with a meet tying record time of 10.1. He was also second in the high jump with a 5-10 showing, and was a member of the winning SHS 440 and mile relay squads.

Doug McCalister took second in the long jump, 120-yard hurdles, 330-yard intermediate hurdles and the mile relay team. Ken McCalister won the 440-yard dash with a 51.3 time and was also on both relay teams.

The mile relay team of Doug and Ken McCalister, Jones and Todd Smith ran a 3:20.8 time, while the sprint relay team clocked a 43.7.

Other team members placing high in the events, but barely missing regional were Wayne Pinkerton, George McCalister, Mike Swinson, Miles Tollison, Herbert Moore, Freddie Silva, Ernest Byrd and Rocky Blutworth.

Girls excel as well

In somewhat of a surprise, the Stanton girls track team did not win the district meet. It was the first time in three years that the fens failed to do so.

However, junior Loretta Young qualified for regional in three events in the triple jump, the discus and the 80-yard hurdles. She won first place in all three.

The mile relay team of Terry Heidelberg, LeAnn Biggs, Tamala Allred and Loretta Young took second place and also qualified for regional to be held this Friday and Saturday.

Marcie Young also qualified for regionals by placing second in the 80-yard low hurdles. Other team members finishing third and fourth were Lesa Bess Angel, Tamala Allred, Terry Heidelberg, Cindy Herzog, Christi Christon, Leigh Ann Biggs, Mary Lynn Wheller and Renee Roper.

Junior High stampedes, Lewis Henry traildriver

The Stanton Junior High track team also won the District 5-A championship, unbelievably taking 10 first place finishes out of the 14 events.

Lewis Henry set the pace for the 8th graders as he won all five events in which he was entered. Stanton tallied 169 points, 42 better than second place Plains.

Henry won the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard dash, the long jump, high jump and ran the anchor leg of the winning 440 relay team. Other members of the relay team were Curtis Williams, Alonzo Padron and Cruz Holguin.

Craig Eiland won the 70-yard hurdles while Victor Gonzales captured the 660-yard dash. Eiland also won the 220-yard hurdles. Daniel Ramos won the 130-yard run, and the 1320 relay team of Williams, Holguin, Padron and Tracy Irvin took the other first place honors.

The team won four of the five meets it was entered in this past season in route to their district championship.

The eighth grade girls finished second in their district meet, with Mandy Swinson capturing 26 points for the team.

Rich McKinney had to make a choice between driving a truck and driving a baseball. It was no choice.

"Mr. Finley called me and told me it would be the best chance I had since I came to Oakland and I would be foolish not to report," said McKinney.

Expos can't blame Carter

By the Associated Press

The Montreal Expos' latest loss cannot be blamed on Gary Carter.

Carter slammed three home runs, but they weren't enough to prevent the Pittsburgh Pirates from snapping their three-game losing streak with an 8-6 triumph over the Expos Wednesday.

"Unfortunately we lost and that doesn't make it a good day," Carter said.

But after thinking about his feat, he added: "I'm very thrilled about my effort and thankful for a lot of things. It's a good day and it's probably not going to come back for a long time, so I'm going to dwell on it for a while."

Two-run homers by Phil Garner and Dave Parker led the Pirates' attack.

In other National League games Wednesday, Los Angeles edged Cincinnati 3-1, St. Louis downed New York 4-2, Atlanta blanked San Diego 2-0 and San Francisco nipped Houston 1-0.

The game between the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs was rained out after 4½ innings with the Phils leading 2-1.

Dodgers 3, Reds 1

For pitcher Don Sutton, beating Cincinnati was like being an overmatched boxer. "I felt like Carmen Basilio waltzing my way past Muhammad Ali," said Sutton after scattering seven hits and defeating the Reds for the first time since July, 1975.

Home runs by Dave Lopes and Ron Cey provided all of the runs needed by Sutton, who weathered several Cincinnati threats in pitching the Dodgers to their seventh straight victory. It was the Reds' eighth loss in their last 10 games.

Cardinals 4, Mets 2

Ted Simmons drove in all four St. Louis' runs as the Cards defeated New York behind Eric Rasmussen.

NBA and referees still split apart

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association shows no signs of backing off from its position against collective bargaining with its striking referees despite a 48-hour halt to picketing by the 24 members of the National Association of Basketball Referees.

Richie Phillips, attorney for the striking referees, had said earlier this week he was "somewhat optimistic" that a settlement to the 12-day walkout could be reached this week. And Wednesday, the referees suspended picketing for 48 hours in an attempt "to foster good relations" with the NBA, according to Phillips.

Good relations are one thing, but a change in the NBA's position is another matter.

NBA Deputy Commissioner Simon Gourdine issued a statement Wednesday night indicating the league had received inquiries "concerning possible movement towards settlement of the strike," but reiterated the league's position against collective bargaining with its referees.

Stanton was challenged strongly by Plains. The Bufs won with a 346, and Plains carded a 355. The win will send the team to the boys regional tournament at Golden Acres Country Club in Odessa, April 28 and 29.

Tommy Haislip and Kelly Hedstrom were the big irons for Stanton. They tied for third place medalist honors with 82 totals, while team member Tommy Morrow carded a 92 and Kenneth Houston had a 90. Dean Christian shot a 92.

All Sports Banquet set for Tuesday

By TERRY NEILL

Mike Pope, recruiting coordinator for Texas Tech University, will be featured speaker at the Stanton High School All-Sports Banquet next Tuesday night.

The banquet will begin at 7 p.m. in the Martin County Community Center, with a large crowd expected. "We're having it in the community center so we'll be able to seat more people this year," Don Tollison, president of the Buffalo Booster Club said.

Sponsored annually by the local booster club, the banquet is highlighted by the presentation of awards to the school's outstanding athletes. Each athlete who participated in a sport will also be recognized.

Tickets for the fete are now on sale for $4 each. They can be attained from any booster club member.

Tollison will serve as master of ceremonies for the event, with Paiga Lou Eiland presenting the invocation. The banquet will be catered by Connor's of Midland.

"We encourage everyone to attend the banquet and help us honor our school's outstanding athletes. It has been another very successful year for Stanton High School and we need a full house Tuesday night," Tollison concluded.

Elementary track meet scheduled for Saturday

The second annual Elementary Track and Field Meet will be held at Memorial Stadium on Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. This event, which is sponsored by the Optimists Club, will involve 4th, 5th, and 6th grade students from each elementary school campus in the Big Spring School District.

The elementary physical education teachers, Bill Crall, Sharon Hamby, Marsha Schroyer, and Debbie Scofield, have conducted preliminary try-outs on each elementary campus they serve.

The first-place winners in each event, on each campus, at each grade level, in both boys' and girls' divisions, will be participating at the meet Saturday.

Events will be the 50-yard dash, 75-yard dash, 220-yard run, 440-yard run, standing broad jump, running long jump, softball throw and chin-ups. Ribbons will be awarded for first, second and third places in each event for each grade level, both girls' and boys' divisions.

A plaque, which was awarded to the College Heights campus last year, will be awarded to whichever campus team amasses the most points.

Preliminary events will begin at 9 a.m. There will be a break for lunch and the finals will be held in the afternoon.

Along with members of the Optimists Club and the elementary P.E. teachers, principals and teachers from the elementary campuses will also help organize the event.

Concessions will be available by the sponsoring Optimists Club.

Hanae Mori designs full, fragile collection

NEW YORK (AP) — Full, flowing, fragile designs in tender fabrics and ice cream fantasy colors were presented by Japanese designer Hanae Mori in a showing of her fall collection.

She calls her styles "the full effect," perhaps because yards of material are used for billowing skirts and bubble-like tops.

"There are times, daytime or evening, when a woman just won't wear sportswear. She tires of it," says Hanae Mori. "Or, she wants to look particularly beautiful on a particular occasion. That's when she's ready for the full effect."

Tuesday's show opened with unstructured cashmere coats worn with knit dresses and coordinates in lavender and beige. These wrap coats sported wide, jutting cowls and were sashed at the waist.

Jackets, also big and geometrically shaped, are meant to be worn unbuttoned over layers. The Mori collection featured these outerwear jackets with turtleneck tops, knit chemise vests and ultra-long scarves, wrapped several times about the neck and shoulders.

Where the Japanese designer has always excelled is with her exquisitely intricate prints. Colors are vivid or soft. Designs are splashy — like her huge roses — or subtle, like her tiny mountain flowers. They also are direct and brash, as shown by the arrow print.

There was one big, bubble top in the show, sporty with lots of room.

Evening wear was quiet and feminine. Even the Mori shimmering metallic gowns and tops in dark gold and silver. Another fabric not ordinarily used for evening wear or matched with lame was ultrasuede. Here, the designer showed a bold, floral pattern on ultrasuede skirts and jackets worn over lame tops.

Girlish chemise dresses, flattering with the dropped waist, were shown in crepe de chine and challis.

Chairman of committee

Miss Bernice Cason was named chairman of a nominating committee during last week's meeting of the Genealogical Society of the Big Spring. Serving with her will be Miss Frances Kelly, Mrs. Helen Early and Mrs. Glynora Wall.

The membership agreed to purchase a book and have it placed in the library in memory of Mrs. Billie Smith. Mrs. Sue Ann Damron was asked to make the selection.

The next meeting will be at 7:15 p.m., May 12 in the library conference room.

Dad-daughter banquet held

Girl Scout service units 34 and 35 held their annual father-daughter banquet at 7 p.m., Monday with members of Senior Troop 360 as hostesses.

The banquet's theme focused on the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. Each troop donated money to the fund which promotes Girl Scouting around the world, with a total of $30.23 being collected.

As entertainment, troop members presented skits, songs and dances from other countries.

Mrs. Arlene Stephenson and Mrs. Lupe Ortiz are the service unit chairmen.

In-Laws Interfere With Needed Sleep

DEAR ABBY: We have been married seven months and our only quarrels have been over my husband's refusal to take my part against his parents when they are in the wrong.

We live in a one-room apartment with a pull-down bed. The church we attend is on the corner of our block. My husband's parents attend the early morning Mass there every Sunday. We attend a later Mass, but his parents have started coming to our apartment right after early morning Mass.

I work six days a week and Sunday morning is the only morning I can sleep a little later, but with my in-laws calling on us before 7:30 a.m., it is impossible. Also I look terrible when I first get up, and I'm embarrassed to receive guests that way.

Last Sunday my in-laws woke me up again. I ran into the bathroom and locked the door. My mother-in-law demanded that I come out and apologize for my "childish" behavior. My husband didn't take my part against his mother, and I think he should have.

Another time his father opened some mail, addressed to me, and my husband didn't say a word. When I complain about his folks, he says, "Remember Exodus XX, 12, the Fifth Commandment: Honor thy father and thy mother."

IN-LAW TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Your in-laws are rude and inconsiderate, and your husband should set them straight. And since your husband quotes Scriptures, ask him to read Genesis II, 24: "And therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife."

DEAR ABBY: "X" and I were secretly married by a justice of the peace in a neighboring state during our freshman year at college two years ago. Afterward, we never really lived together except for one weekend and a night now and then. Our marriage was very disappointing; and we soon realized it was a big mistake, so we just broke off.

Now I have met someone else and I am serious about him. I've asked "X" for a divorce, but he doesn't want to give me one because he's afraid his parents will find out that he was married, and there will be trouble. He needs their financial help to finish college, and he doesn't want to anger them.

How can this be handled without publicity? We mean nothing to each other now. The marriage was a dumb impulsive idea.

SHORT MARRIAGE

DEAR SHORT: You need legal advice. See a lawyer. There is even a possibility that an annulment, instead of a divorce, is in order.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

OBTAINED THROUGH TRAVELS — Mrs. Ramond (Mary Louise) Heitz sits surrounded by items she has obtained through her family's travels with the Air Force. The family was stationed in Okinawa prior to being moved to Big Spring, which gave her the chance to collect several pieces of rosewood furniture.

Opportunity to learn crafts through travels

By CAROL HART
Through travels associated with the Air Force, Mrs. Mary Louise Heitz has seen a number of different places and people, and has also learned a number of crafts.

Mrs. Heitz, her husband, Master Sgt. Raymond Heitz, and daughters Tia, 14, and Vicki, 11, are now living at 136A Dow. Heitz is stationed here with Webb Air Force Base. The family came to Big Spring from Okinawa. They have also lived in Germany, Kansas, California and New Mexico.

Mrs. Heitz said she learned to make ribbon flowers from a Japanese instructor while in Okinawa, as well as Bunka embroidery and other forms of Japanese handicraft. Also during the family's stay in Okinawa, she took courses in cake decorating, and stretch and sew sewing, from the USO and Recreation Center.

Mrs. Heitz is interested in learning new crafts, and has continued lessons in various activities while in Big Spring. She is learning to paint here, and eventually wants to decorate some of her furniture.

In addition to her work with crafts, Mrs. Heitz serves as recording secretary for the NCO Wives Club, and president of the Newcomer's Handicraft Club.

The Heitz's stay in Okinawa added to a desire on the part of M.Sgt. and Mrs. Heitz to collect oriental furniture. The couple had discovered that they both admired the rosewood furniture, and the trip to the island gave them a chance to collect pieces to decorate their home.

"The highlight of my whole life," said Mrs. Heitz, "was a trip to Hong Kong." While there, she picked up several rosewood pieces that are in the family's home today. "It's funny to see people returning from a trip like that," she said. She explained that airplane passengers try to crowd lots of items onto the planes, and it is not uncommon to see people carrying lampshades and tables on board.

"My husband says we will have to go back to Okinawa to complete our furniture," she said. "We went crazy over furniture while we were in Okinawa."

The Heitz family has several activities they enjoy doing together, such as ceramics, bowling, and tennis, a sport which they are just beginning. They all like to travel. Mrs. Heitz added that her children were usually ready for a movie. "They are always ready to see new things."

M.Sgt. and Mrs. Heitz are originally from Louisville, Ky. While there, Mrs. Heitz obtained a registered nursing degree. She has not worked at this profession while in Big Spring, but plans to pursue it when the family locates at a new base.

The family faces a move soon, but Mrs. Heitz said, "We like the west. We are going to retire out here."

She continued by saying "we like the big skies, and especially the warm weather." Recipes Mrs. Heitz has collected appear here. Several are those dealing with oriental background, and several are from her native Kentucky.

Flavor of land captured in book

The problem with East Texas is that lakes are everywhere. You can hardly cross a county without falling into some big, blue spring-fed lake.

And the people along the Gulf Coast country mostly seem to spend their time turning brown under the sun — and thinking whether their dinner will be shrimp, crab, red snapper or flounder.

There's something very exciting about the high, rolling plains in the Panhandle where the country rolls on and on and on.

And they say the mountain ranges in the Big Bend country go away at night — because lights are few and far between after the sun sets and you can't see them after dark. That's the flavor of the Big Bend, and for some, it's exactly right.

But for others, it's the flavor of the piney woods or the Brazos valley or the Hill Country of the Lower Valley that's best for them. Wherever you are in Texas, that's where life tastes the sweetest to you. And it is this flavor of the land that forms the background for Imperial Sugar's newest free recipe booklet, "Texas Recipes from Texas Places."

The booklet has thirteen of Imperial's newest recipes — including hearty main dishes, interesting side dishes, salad, sherbert, sandwich, sauce — even a mud cake.

All of the recipes were perfected and kitchen-tested by Imperial's Texas-born home economist, June Towers. Her West Texas Steak with Wahoo Sauce is a recipe handed down from relatives in her hometown on the West Texas high plains. And the rest are recipes collected during her frequent travels across Texas.

WEST TEXAS STEAK WITH WAHOO SAUCE

6 tenderized steaks, about 1 1/2 lbs.
1 (15-oz.) can tamales, drained (reserve sauce)
1 egg, beaten and mixed with 1 tps. water
Flour and bread or cracker crumbs for breading
Salt and pepper
1/2 tsp. chili powder
Oil for frying
1/2 c. tomato juice or sauce
1 tsp. chili powder

Wrap each steak around a tamale and secure with tooth picks. Dip steak rolls in beaten egg, then in flour seasoned with salt, pepper and chili powder. Dip again in egg, then in bread or cracker crumbs. Brown steak rolls on all sides in hot fat; reduce heat and drain off excess fat. Cook steaks until tender, about ten minutes. Remove steaks to platter and keep hot. Add tamale sauce to tomato sauce and chili powder. Bring to boil and pour over hot steaks. Serves 6.

Variation: For louder Wahoos from your family and friends, add a few drops (more if desired) of hot sauce, finely minced jalapenos, or other hot seasonings.

Serving Suggestion: Mash two ripe avocados with salt and pepper; combine with diced chopped onion and fresh tomatoes, chopped. Serve on bed of chopped lettuce with crisp corn chips and steaks.

RIO GRANDE DANDY GREEN SALAD

1 c. celery, finely chopped
1/2 c. onion, finely chopped
1 green pepper, finely chopped
1 (2-oz.) jar pimiento, finely minced
1 (1-lb.) can French style green beans, drained
1 (1-lb.) can small green peas
1 tsp. salt
Dressing:
1 c. Imperial Granulated Sugar
1/2 c. salad oil
3/4 c. cider vinegar
2 tps. water
Combine salad ingredients and gently toss with dressing ingredients. Let stand overnight, covered, in refrigerator. Drain well before serving. Makes about 6 cups.

Variation: If desired, add finely minced fresh or canned hot peppers for real South-of-the-Border zip.

BRAZOS RIVER STEAMBOAT PIE

3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 c. white corn syrup

1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 c. pecan halves

Mix all ingredients, except pecans, then add pecans. Pour into 9" unbaked pastry shell. Bake at 400 Degrees F. for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 325 Degrees F. and bake 30 to 35 minutes longer. Serve with whipped cream made by whipping 1 cup heavy cream with 1 tablespoon Imperial 10X Powdered Sugar and 1 tablespoon light rum.

For Pastry Shell:
1 1-3rd cup all-purpose

flour
1/2 tsp. salt
2-3rd c. shortening

Start favorite plants under Fluorescent energy lamp

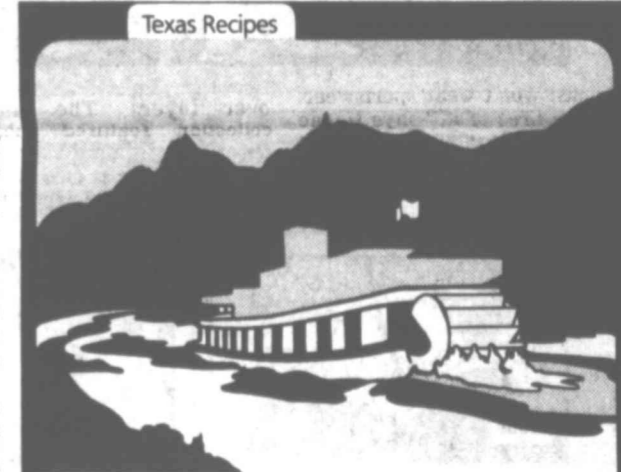

Planning your flower or vegetable garden now? If so, you might consider starting your favorite plant under a plant growth fluorescent lamp for transplanting outside after all danger of frost has passed.

Growing plants in flats indoors can be fun and will insure that your floral or food crops will mature far more swiftly than any in the neighborhood which have been conventionally grown.

A Gro-Lux plant growth fluorescent lamp, produced by GTE Sylvania Incorporated, will give your plants all the radiant energy they need to grow swiftly and well indoors before the frost season ends. Once frost danger has passed, the plants can be placed outdoors for an increasing amount of time daily to harden them, and placed in the garden in about five days.

To raise plants indoors, the soil should be insect-free. If insect-free soil cannot be purchased, garden soil can be sterilized by baking it for about 1 1/2 hours in a 400-degree oven. When ready to use, the organic material burned out of it can be replaced by tossing a couple of handfuls of peat moss into it.

Once the plants are growing, you must remember that they will require the same amount of food to reach a particular size as they would over a longer period of time, if raised by conventional methods. A plant maturing in six weeks in the sun, for instance, might mature in four weeks under the Gro-Lux and in those four weeks use the same food and water the others did in six weeks.

Brazil halts hunt for Nazi criminal

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Brazilian government announced this week that it was giving up the search for the most hunted Nazi war criminal, Martin Bormann. But West Germany closed the books on Hitler's phantom deputy four years ago.

Brazil's attorney general said the Supreme Court shelved West Germany's 1967 request for Bormann's extradition because there was no evidence he was in the country.

"I didn't even know we had a request out for his extradition," said a spokesman for the West German Foreign Ministry.

Another spokesman couldn't remember who Bormann was.

Bormann in the days of the Third Reich was the least known of Hitler's men and the most powerful. He stayed out of the limelight that Goering, Goebbels and Himmler courted. But he ran the Nazi party and through it the country, managed Hitler's private life and his fortune and was the Fuehrer's closest aide, adviser and associate.

He emerged from Hitler's shadow to become the target of a worldwide search for nearly three decades, the only one of the major war criminals arraigned at Nuernberg who could not be found. Over the years there were thousands of reports that he had been seen. They all proved false or inconclusive. An Italian monk, a Guatemalan farmer and a German emigrant to Colombia were among those mistaken for the missing man.

The most recent Bormann stir was caused by Ladislav Farago, a best-selling author and former U.S. intelligence agent. In November, 1972, in a series of newspaper articles he reported that the missing man was living in South America and had been photographed as he crossed into Argentina from Chile. An Argentine school teacher, Rudolfo Nicholas Siri, later identified himself as the man in the photograph. Siri was 54 at the time; Bormann would have been 72.

The West German government declared Bormann officially dead in 1973 after two skeletons were found during excavation of a construction site in Berlin.

MIRACLE CHILD'S FAMILY — Frank Speck holds his 2-year-old daughter Francine, who was born despite his vasectomy and an abortion. The Speck's, Dorothy is at left, decided three years ago that they would have no more children because a crippling disease already afflicted daughters Lee Ann, 9, center, and Valerie, 13, right.

Love cannot hide heartbreak

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Neither a vasectomy nor an attempted abortion prevented the birth of Francine Speck, and now her parents are heartbroken because their fears that she would be a sickly child have come true.

The parents have sued the doctors who performed the operations, seeking damages for themselves and their child.

"She is a beautiful baby," her mother Dorothy Speck said in an interview Wednesday. "But as time goes on she will suffer."

The baby's steel-blue eyes were crossed at birth. She has cerebral palsy and has inherited a rare, crippling disease that her father and two sisters share.

"She can't sit up or walk yet and she's nearly two years old," said Frank Speck, a retail grocer. "Don't you think that's heartbreaking?"

Francine attends a local school for crippled children, and therapists there say she is a year behind others her age.

Mrs. Speck added, "I have a 2-year-old daughter who doesn't say Momma or Dadda yet. She knows us, but she can't say 'Hi.'"

The Specks decided three years ago that they didn't want another child because both their daughters had inherited neurofibromatosis, a disease that causes tumors to grow on nerves and makes bones brittle and slow to heal.

Valerie, 13, has birth marks over much of her body, one of the symptoms of the illness. She's a dark-haired beauty, but her mother says she will never be able to wear a bikini or a low-cut dress.

Lee Ann, 9, broke her ankle when she was five months old. A tumor snapped the bone. She's undergone four operations to repair her leg, left crooked by the fracture.

Dr. Richard A. Feingold performed the vasectomy in April 1974, but Mrs. Speck became pregnant in October.

"It was our first thought that the baby would be deformed or malformed," said Mrs. Speck, explaining their decision to seek an abortion despite religious

Karachi curfew called

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A curfew was clamped on Karachi today after a general strike paralyzed Pakistan's largest city and supporters and opponents of Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto battled in the streets with sticks, daggers and firearms.

At least 11 deaths were reported Wednesday, bringing to 162 the number killed since the March 7 elections, in which the opposition Pakistan National Alliance claims Bhutto's party used massive fraud to win 155 of the 200 National Assembly seats.

In Washington, State Department officials said the U.S. government blocked a shipment of $68,000 worth of tear gas to the Pakistani government because of the escalating unrest. "It's just a question of prudence," said one official.

Karachi, a city of 4.5 million, was virtually paralyzed by a strike called by the United Labor Front, a federation of 26 local unions. Leaders said the strike would continue until Bhutto resigned.

The strike shut down the country's only major port, public and private transport and most businesses.

Eight persons were killed in street fighting between the opposition and supporters of Bhutto's Pakistan People's party. Two persons were crushed by a train before demonstrators halted it and set three cars afire. Police opened fire and killed one person in a crowd that tried to burn a bank.

Rumors of six other deaths could not be confirmed. Authorities said 70 persons were injured.

A dozen shops were burned and looted, bank buildings were damaged and two offices of Bhutto's party were put to the torch. The strikers used street barricades to stop traffic, and rival gangs set parked cars afire.

Reynosa cop hit with robbery rap

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — Continuing their effort to crack down on border town police corruption, police in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas have arrested a Reynosa policeman in connection with the robbery of $5,000 from a U.S. citizen.

Antonio Chavez was arrested Wednesday after being accused of robbing $5,000 from Avelardo Tijerina, an Edinburg, Tex., truck driver. Asst. Tamaulipas Atty. Gen. Leopoldo Vello said. An unnamed Reynosa police supervisor is also implicated in the case, he said.

Tijerina went to Reynosa Dec. 30, 1976, to deposit $5,000 in a Mexican bank, but he arrived too late to make the deposit. While returning to the United States, he and his wife were stopped by police and taken to a spot outside Reynosa, where the robbery occurred, Vello said.

Tijerina told officials he was threatened with a carbine by Chavez and a higher-ranking officer. Although he was warned not to report the crime, Tijerina immediately told his story to authorities.

Vello said fear of reprisal from police kept Tijerina from returning to the border town to formally complain, until Vello offered state protection.

"It will be difficult to recover the money since so much time has passed, but justice will be done," Vello said.

He also said the unnamed supervisor implicated in the case has not yet been arrested, but "soon will be."

Vello was appointed as special prosecutor in connection with the case of Kentuckian Perry Greer, who paid 4,000 ransom to police in Matamoros last month for the release of his son.
