Terrorists seize school, hijack train

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Two groups of heavily armed South Moluccan extremists, striking two days before the Dutch general election, seized an elementary school and hijacked a train in the northern Netherlands today, authorities reported.

Police said six gunmen were believed holding 105 children and six teachers in the school and seven terrorists had about 50 hostages aboard the train.

It was the second double terrorist action by members of the Asian immigrant group in the Netherlands in 18 months.

South Moluccan activists demand that the Dutch intervene to help them win independence from Indonesia for their homeland, part of the former Dutch East Indies. The Dutch have called the demand unrealistic.

The Moluccan Islands, the former Spice Islands, are situated between the Celebes and New Guinea.

There was no report of casualties in today's twin strikes, which came at about the same time and about 10 miles apart. The attackers made no immediate demands.

The train was halted near the village of Onnen, just north of this city, and the school is in the village of Boven-Smidde, just south of here.

Assen is about 130 miles northeast of Amsterdam.

A government official said the gunmen forced their way into the school, situated near a housing complex where some 500 South Moluccans reside, at the start of morning lessons. They quickly released about 15 South Moluccan children.

The gunmen covered the inside of windows in two rooms with paper, police said. When local South Moluccans tried to talk to them, the terrorists opened a window and fired a few shots, police said.

Shortly after noon, a group of anxious parents tried to rush the school but were held back by police.

Hans Uffing, a spokesman for the Dutch railway system, said the engineer and conductor of the commandeered four-car train reported that about 50 of its 100 passengers escaped after the gunmen hijacked it during the morning rush-hour.

Police said the submachine gun-armed hijackers, who fired shots through the roof of one car as they climbed aboard, later released some elderly persons.

The two crewmen either were forced to leave the train or escaped when it was stopped, Uffing told a reporter in a telephone interview.

Rail officials said some of the hijackers boarded the train at Assen, 20 miles south of Groningen, and pulled the emergency cord, bringing the train to a halt, near the village of Onnen, where masked men armed with submachine guns climbed on board.

"We have the impression this whole action was very carefully planned," a railway official said.

Meanwhile, a security net thrown up around Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport and other possible terrorist targets around the country.

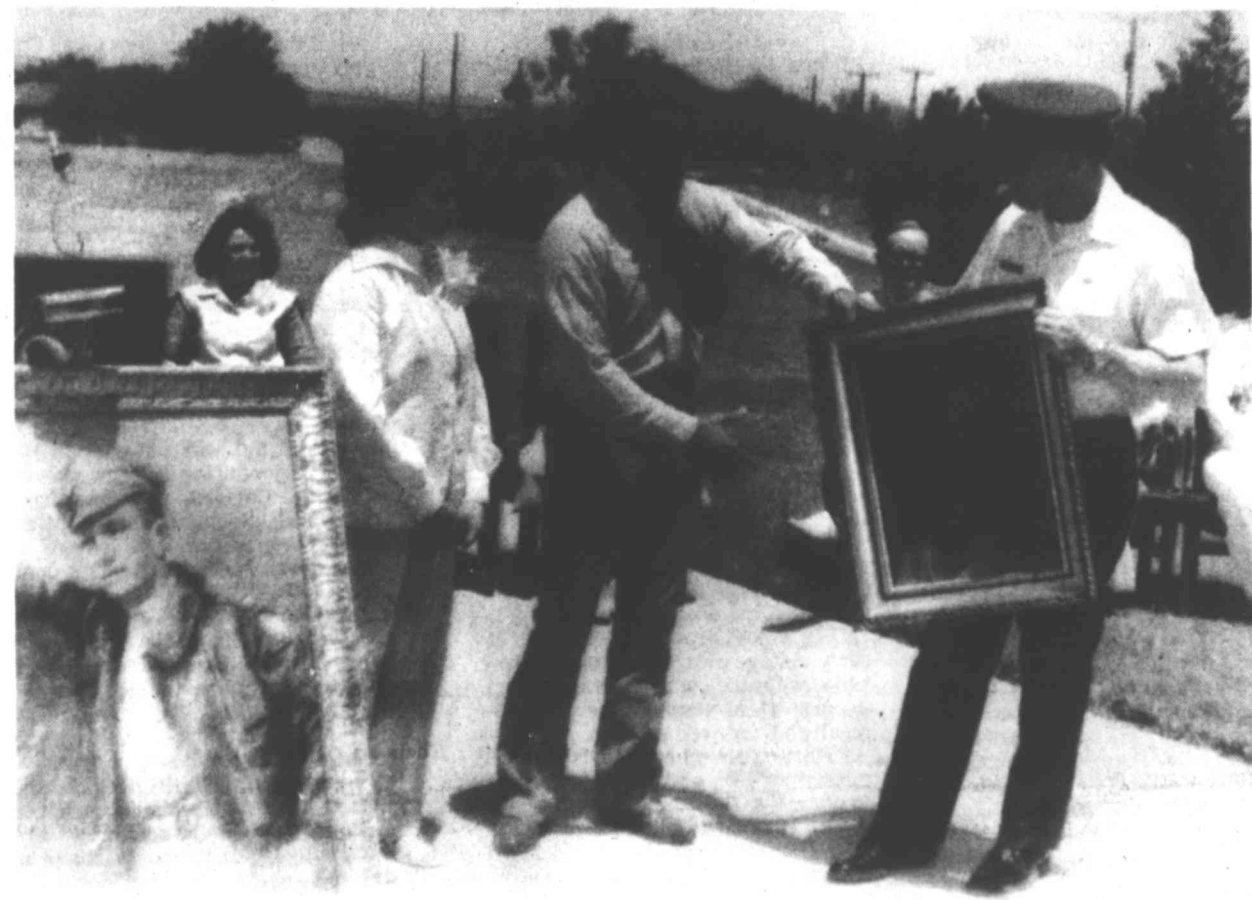

In December 1975, South Moluccan militants seized a train near Beilen, on the same stretch of track as today's hijacking, and also took over the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam.

Four persons died in the 1975 actions. Gunmen held 24 hostages for 12 days on the train and 25 hostages for 15 days at the consulate.

Extremists in the 40,000-strong Moluccan community in The Netherlands have used violence in recent years to press demands for an independent homeland in Indonesia. The South Moluccan Islands were merged into the Indonesian Republic in 1949 after centuries of Dutch rule.

Both 1975 sieges ended peacefully when the gunmen surrendered. The 13 terrorists involved are serving 14-year prison terms.

FULFILLING REQUEST — The two children of the late Lt. James L. Webb, for whom Webb AFB was named, stand by to receive a painting and a photograph of their father from Col. Harry Spannaus in a ritual conducted during Open House ceremonies at Webb Sunday. Mrs.

Karen Webb Frieson of Freehold Township, N.J., and Taylor Webb of McKinney, Tex., accept the gifts from the Webb wing commander. The Webb family had requested the portraits after it was announced the air base would be closed later this year.

Now coaches wrestling

Webb son never knew dad

A moving ceremony at 1 p.m. Sunday saw the family of the Webb AFB namesake receive the portraits of Lt. James Louis Webb Jr.

Both Taylor Webb, a wrestling coach at Plano High School and Mrs. Karen Webb Frieson of Freehold Township, N.J. were on hand for the event, along with Webb's sister, Mrs. William L. (Nina Rose Webb) Walker of Levelland.

Karen was almost six at the time that Big Spring Bombardier School was officially named for her father, on May 18, 1952, and could remember being brought to the front for pictures on that occasion.

Taylor Webb, three years old at that time, could remember nothing about that occasion. Both the sister and brother had been back to Webb AFB about ten to 15 years ago when visiting relatives.

Their aunt, Mrs. Walker, who was raised in Big Spring has been here on several occasions and initiated the request for the portraits when she first learned that Webb might close.

Capt. Dick Risk of the Webb information office said this morning that members of families of almost all of the dedicated portraits on the base have now requested obtaining the portraits of their particular loved ones.

At the ceremonies Sunday afternoon, Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander, commented on the close relationship of Webb AFB and Big Spring and recalled the strong fight the community put up to retain the base.

The family, when talking later admitted that they were disappointed when they learned the base would close.

Mrs. Walker said, "Well the Webb name was honored for 25 years and I'm happy about that. We were thrilled when we obtained the honor and won't complain."

The son, Taylor, said he was only nine months old when his father died and has no memories of him. "I've had some things happen that have surprised me."

"I'm real active in rodeos and was in the International Rodeo Association finals, but I also like wrestling and switched from football coaching to wrestling. It was only after I had made the change that I learned that my father was on the wrestling team at New Mexico Military Institute years ago. It gave me a strange feeling," he added.

Taylor looks a lot like the portrait of his father which were presented to him and his sister Sunday. He has a son to carry on the name of Webb, Jarrett, who is three months old.

Karen, who has traveled a lot and who attended school in Europe a year through influence of a general on one side of the family and a colonel on the other, said "Through the years, I have met so many people in so many places that have been associated with Webb. It has really been astounding."

She has early memories of getting the measles on the way to Japan where her father was stationed and a few early memories of her father.

"It's just kind of special to all of us to be here today," she summed it up.

The Big Spring High School band, which had been up late for their annual banquet and dance, nevertheless turned out on Sunday and played the haunting "America the Beautiful" as the flags whipped in the wind and the Rev. Harland Birdwell gave the benediction to the Webb portion of Webb Air Force Base.

Watergate cover-up convictions upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld the Watergate cover-up convictions of former Atty. Gen. John D. Mitchell and one-time White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Mitchell and Haldeman have remained free pending the outcome of this appeal. Ehrlichman already is in prison. The court's action today means Mitchell and Haldeman likely will be imprisoned soon.

The justices rejected the claims by the three powerful officials of former President Richard M. Nixon's administration that the three-month trial that ended in their convictions Jan. 1, 1975 was unfair.

The justices made no comment in refusing to review the case. There were no recorded dissents, but Justice William H. Rehnquist noted that he took no part in deciding the case.

Normally it takes about 10 days for a Supreme Court refusal to review a conviction to go back down to district court, which then tells a defendant the date when he must begin serving his sentence.

All three men were convicted in the court of U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who will set the imprisonment date for Mitchell and Haldeman.

John J. Wilson, attorney for Haldeman, said he will ask the high court again to hear the case.

"We are going to move to reconsider," he said, "But I can't tell you yet on what grounds."

A request for reconsideration would delay the imprisonment date.

Attorneys for Mitchell were out of their office and not reachable immediately.

Meanwhile, Newsweek magazine reported that Nixon considered granting pardons to everybody involved in Watergate, but decided not to because it would "inflammatory the situation," Newsweek magazine reported.

"If my last act (as President) was to pardon everybody who was in Watergate...that would inflame the situation and also would obviously look like the ultimate cover-up," Nixon was quoted as saying.

Nixon reportedly made his comments in an interview with television personality David Frost. The interview is scheduled for airing later this week.

On April 21, National Public Radio reported that the court had voted 5-3 at its private conference April 15 to turn down the appeals but that Chief Justice Warren E. Burger held up announcing the decision in an attempt to muster enough votes to grant review. The votes of four justices are needed to grant review of such cases.

Lawyers for the cover-up defendants asked the court for permission to argue that the justices should reverse the convictions because of the news leak.

After sacking Army major general

Carter sending two top aides to Seoul

WASHINGTON (AP) — After sacking an Army major general for questioning his Korea policy, President Carter is sending two top aides to Seoul for talks on his controversial troop withdrawal plan.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. George Brown, and the State Department's top political officer, Philip C. Habib, left Andrews Air Force Base near here this morning on a flight to the Korean capital to begin intensive consultations.

There are 33,000 ground troops in South Korea, about the same as the number of Americans who died in the Korean war a quarter-century ago.

Carter's plan is to withdraw ground troops over four to five years. But it is understood Habib and Brown will inform the Koreans about the withdrawal strategy for only the first two or three years.

Some Americans share Korean concern about the withdrawal. The most conspicuous example is Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, who was fired by Carter on Saturday from his post as U.S. chief of staff in South Korea.

Singlaub angered Carter by saying publicly that the withdrawal plan is an invitation to a renewed attack on the south by North Korea.

But the feeling here is that the strategy of gradual withdrawal will be more politically acceptable to South Korea than a specific withdrawal timetable covering all U.S. ground troops. Carter's plan represents the most fundamental change in the U.S. security commitment since the Korean armistice was signed 24 years ago.

Meanwhile, the Korean National Council of Churches, no friend to the regime of President Park Chung-hee, held a prayer rally in Seoul on Sunday to protest the proposed pullout.

Speakers urged Carter to keep the U.S. troops in Korea to protect the religious freedom of 37 million South Koreans.

And the Korea Times, in a comment on Carter's pledge to stand by Korea after ground forces have been pulled out, said: "The North Korean communist group is well aware of the fact that the U.S. administration's defense commitment on paper to now-defunct South Vietnam resulted in naught."

The Seoul government has declined comment on the Singlaub matter, however, saying it is an internal U.S. problem.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Sunday that Singlaub would be reassigned and was removed from Korea because "having expressed views in contradiction to policy, (he) can't serve there effectively."

Officials say Carter thinks South Korea, with 100,000 more men under arms than North Korea, is capable of defending itself on the ground.

In light of U.S. experience in Vietnam and continued concern in the United States about the human rights situation in South Korea, some officials say there is doubt whether American public opinion would support a prolonged U.S. combat involvement in a new Korean War.

Kindergarten location may be protested

A citizen who plans to object to a kindergarten and school being near his apartment complex is expected to appear before the City Council Tuesday at their regular meeting.

City Manager Harry Nagel said this morning that he had been notified that some citizen planned to object to the newly proposed location of the Jack and Jill School at 18th and Nolan.

In other action, the city will consider an ordinance calling for a public hearing for annexation of Webb Air Force Base.

The City Fathers will also consider an emergency reading of an ordinance closing the alleyway between Sub section C&D, block 2, Amended Fairview Heights Addition.

They plan to consider an emergency reading of an ordinance amending the code of Ordinances concerning land use and control measures of flood prone areas of the city.

Also on the agenda are a review of the minutes of the Parks and Recreation Board, the Traffic Commission and the Webb Air Force Base Steering Committee.

The steering committee also plans to meet out at Webb following the meeting of the council at City Hall. The council meeting is scheduled at 9 a.m. and the steering committee at 10:30 a.m.

The city council will also consider awarding a bid for a tractor.

Aliens trapped, but not for long

Six men, apparently illegal aliens, caught the nearest freight train headed east around 11 a.m. today.

Officials from T&P opened the box car this morning and were amazed to find what they believed to be six "wetbacks" inside the car. They shut them in and notified police.

The only trouble was the group had apparently gained entry to the car from a hole in the bottom. They went out the same way and reportedly caught the next freight headed east.

The police arrived and opened the box car, it was empty.

Offbeat: Jumping Frog Jubilee

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Green Eyes, a female frog owned by Doug Offenheiser of San Diego, cleared 19 feet, eight and three-sixteenths inches to claim the championship in the 49th annual Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee.

The leap fell short of the record 20 feet 3 inches set last year.

Placing second among the 86 frogs in Sunday's finals was Boundless Bliss, entered by Leonard Hall and Bill Proctor of Walnut Creek and winning with a leap of 17 feet, six and five-sixteenths inches.

The finals ended three days of frog jumping in a number of categories. One was the governors' jump, won by Arkansas Gov. David Pryor's frog Arkie which covered 16 feet 8 inches.

The foreign event was won by Rosarito of Rosarito, Mexico, with 18 feet. Six frogs arrived from Ireland, but the best placed only fifth.

Frog jumping is said to have originated with 19th century gold miners as a Sunday pastime. It was popularized by a Mark Twain story, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

The winners were presented trophies and cash grants Sunday from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences at a Beverly Hills ceremony.

Carol Dysinger of the School of Film and Television of New York University won the Dramatic Achievement Award for "Sixteen Down," a 24-minute film about a girl turning 16 in a suburban broken home.

The Documentary Achievement Award went to Frank Binney of the University of Texas at Austin for "The Last of the Little Breweries," a 20-minute film of the adventures of a German brewmaster who starts a brewery in the Czech-German town of Shiner, Texas.

The Animation Achievement Award went to Paul Demeyer of California Institute of Arts at Valencia for "The Muse," three minutes of animation about the struggle of a creative artist with his inspiration.

Achievement Award winners received trophies and $1,000 cash grants. The Merit Award carried a $500 grant.

Special election issues

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas senators cleared two issues today for voters to decide this November in a special election.

One proposed constitutional amendment would permit local governments and school districts to grant property tax exemptions for cultural and historical property.

"I'm against this," protested Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, "this just puts more of a tax burden on people who are having a hard time paying their taxes now, like you and me."

House amendments to the measure were approved 25-2, sending the amendment to the voters.

Also approved, 29-2, was a proposed constitutional amendment that would abolish the State Building Commission and give all its duties to the State Board of Control.

A bill sent to the governor for signature would exempt lands of the Audubon Society from property taxes. The House attached an amendment that would limit the exemption to 1,000 acres in any one county.

There's good news today

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — With a week to go in the regular legislative session, the lawmakers got good news today: there is $171 million more revenue anticipated for 1978-79 than previously estimated.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said some legislators may be disappointed because they expected even more.

"I know that a number of legislators expected me to come up with $400-$500 million more so they could satisfy all of the requests for appropriations," Bullock said. "The truth is, this is all the money there will be to the best of our knowledge. I'm no magician. I can't pull it out of a hat."

Briscoe talking oil

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe says his role as a leading advocate of nationwide price deregulation of oil and natural gas is not crippled by his status as one of Texas' largest individual petroleum producers.

Briscoe, in Amarillo for a ribbon cutting ceremony at a bank, told a news conference "I have shown in the past that I put aside personal business in doing what is best for this state."

"My policy is not to determine actions (as governor) by personal things at all, but by what is in the best interest of the people of the state and the nation," Briscoe continued.

"I will continue to speak out (on energy related matters) because I think President Carter's energy proposals are disastrous, defeatist, share-the-shortage things that go in the wrong direction," the governor said.

Commenting of President Carter's energy proposals, Briscoe said "The people want less government regulation. The President is calling for greater government regulation and government interference."

Briscoe said he is working out plans to meet sometime next month with Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards and Oklahoma Gov. David Boren to discuss alternate energy proposals to those advanced by Carter. The initial request for such a meeting came from Edwards.

The country should "work towards importation of larger amounts of both oil and natural gas from Mexico," the governor added.

The stepped up imports from Mexico could be handled by the proposed super port on the gulf coast, he noted.

Human rights hassle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is gathering evidence designed to show the Russians have violated the Helsinki accord's human rights provisions, but the Soviets are planning similar charges against the United States and its allies. The rights issue is central to a meeting to be held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia to examine workings of the 1975 Helsinki accords. Both the United States and the Soviet Union apparently are building evidence against each other.

Survivors include eight children.

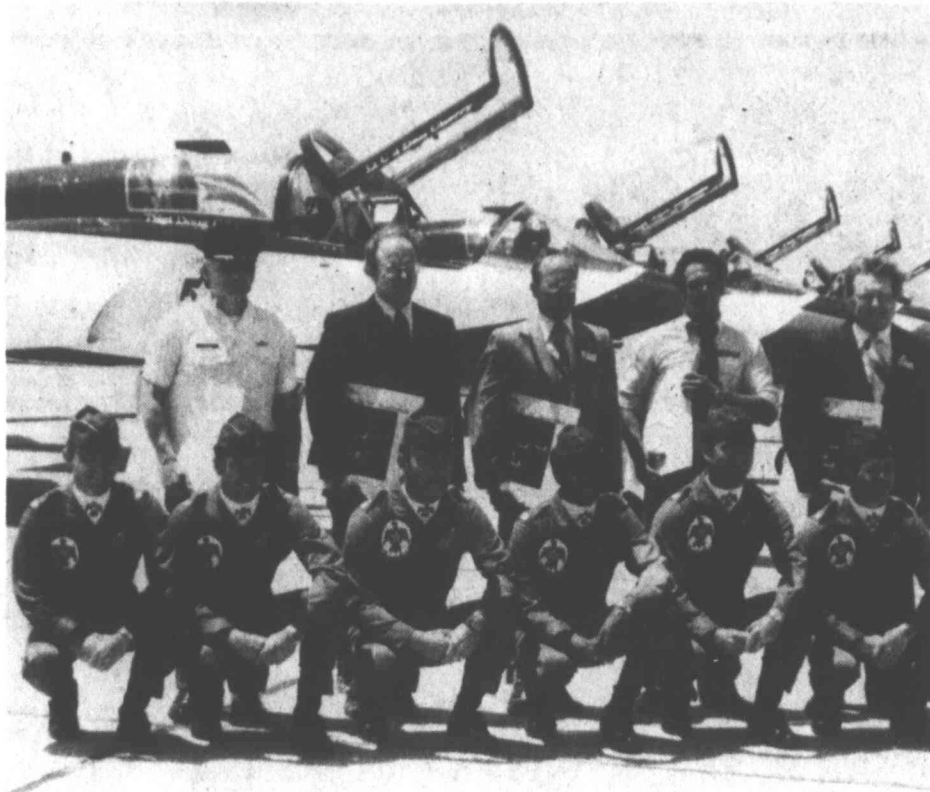

Services will be at 10 a.m., Wednesday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel, with Dr. Weldon Butler, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will follow in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Speaker says at AFA banquet 'America vulnerable'

A new law in Wyoming allows wild turkeys to be hunted with bow and arrow, but it prohibits the feathers on the arrow to be those of a turkey.

Vic Kregel, director of customer relations for Vought Corp. in Grand Prairie, used the Wyoming law as the point of a talk he titled "Once An Eagle" at the annual Big Spring Chapter Air Force Assn. banquet Sunday night.

Kregel, who has been active in state and national AFA offices for a number of years, said that America, like the turkey is vulnerable to the arrows being shot at her.

But the important thing is, he emphasized, but this nation must not provide the feathers for the arrow that might bring the country down.

Kregel said his title "Once An Eagle" came from the book which contained the story of a proud eagle felled by an arrow. The last thing the eagle saw before he died was the arrow in his chest, and on its tip were the feathers of another eagle.

Kregel mentioned a number of areas where he felt the nation might be weakening itself and thus provide feathers for the arrows of the enemy. One was the "arrow of hate."

Other officers for the coming year are Dr. John Key, operations vice president; Dr. Clarence Peters, manpower vice president; Mel Prather, secretary; Jack Alexander, treasurer; and J. Tom Graham, publicity.

Brooks also presented awards to four persons he said had helped the Air Force Assn. tremendously during the past year. These went to Alexander who served as treasurer; Capt. Dave Klatt, who served as military membership chairman; and to Sherry such as the ones that felled the Kennedys or have caused racial violence.

Another he mentioned was the media arrow, which he said sometimes allows the press to weaken the nation's defense by publishing secrets under the "guise" of free speech.

The illegal alien problem, he said, was another arrow aimed at America's heart, as is the "shiny, slick arrow of oil."

Kregel said the "drug arrow" could also destroy the nation, or the "yellow arrow of the service shirker" (draft dodger) whom he said had become "the new national hero."

Kregel urged AFA members to grab their pens or a microphone and sound off about these dangers to the country.

"The American eagle is a beautiful, proud bird," he said, "but it is a vulnerable bird. When you're vulnerable, the arrows will come."

"But arrows without feathers are not stable. Without the American eagle feathers guiding them, the arrows will miss," Kregel concluded, "and the stalkers of America will wipe each other out instead."

Gen. Ed White named AFA chapter leader

Gen. Ed J. White Jr. of Midland was elected president Sunday of the Big Spring Chapter of Air Force Association.

Gen. White (retired) succeeds Col. Ralph Brooks (retired) in the organization's top spot. His election came at the association's annual membership banquet at the Webb Air Force Base Officer's Club.

IN PERFECT ALIGNMENT — The five Thunderbird fliers which took to the air here Sunday gave the huge crowd attending Open House ceremonies at Webb AFB Sunday afternoon a succession of thrills with their intricate maneuvers. This is one of the easier things they tried during their 30-minute performance. Crisscrossing, slow rolls, loops — the Thunderbirds proved their planes were capable of doing it all.

Sunday ceremony attracts 20,000

A final salute to Webb

By MARJ CARPENTER

It was the 2105th performance of the Thunderbirds in their 24 years of Air Shows. It also was the final Air show for Webb AFB, which will be inactivated by September.

The day was perfect for the occasion and the phrase, "Flying high into the sun" out of the Air Force Anthem was appropriate on Sunday afternoon as upwards to 20,000 persons from all over West Texas craned their necks to watch the five precision planes go through their paces.

Into the clouds and down, rolling out 75 feet above the ground across the runway and back they came. At one point, four of the planes suddenly roared right over the top of the temporary bleachers and every head suddenly jerked straight up.

The crowd began to pour onto the base at noon and soon exceeded the largest crowd anyone could remember at a Webb Air Show.

They milled around the exhibits of early vintage aircraft, purchased red balloons for the children and assumed a carnival atmosphere as they officially bid farewell to Webb.

Fathers carried small children on their shoulders and mothers pushed strollers as the crowd continued to come. One or two groups wore T-shirts that showed Thunderbird aircraft on the back and the words, "100 Flying Hours from the Extinct Webb AFB" across the front.

Foreign students seeing their first Air Show looked astounded as the people continued to come and fill every possible parking place on the base.

The Webb family for whom the base was named, took part in a special ceremony at the flag pole near the headquarters building and then came to the reviewing stand to watch its namesake (Webb AFB) in the celebration.

Other special guests on the reviewing stand included the official review team for this Thunderbird performance.

They were Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander; J. Tom Graham, publisher of the Big Spring Herald; Jimmy Taylor, president of First National Bank; Taylor Webb, son of the late Lt. James Webb for whom the base was named; and Winston Wrinkle, owner of KBST Radio.

Other platform guests included all of the members of the Webb family, as well as Mayor and Mrs. Wade Choate and Col. Ralph Brooks, a member of the Thunderbird team in 1962, along with Mrs. Brooks.

Police beat School heist aborted

One juvenile and one youth old enough to be charged as an adult were caught inside the Cedar Crest School at 1:33 a.m. today attempting to steal a television set.

The two youths had broken in the door and carried the set to the doorway when they were arrested by City Patrolman Troy Hogue and Lt. Robert Dugan.

Charges were expected to be filed today on the adult involved in the burglary.

In other action over the weekend, somebody broke into the Pearl Beer Distributorship who evidently didn't want beer but just needed to cool it.

The culprits took two small ice chests and paper cups.

At the Carl Rihard home at 1604 Kentucky Way, a burglary was reported.

Whoever broke into the Rihard home left with five pairs of jeans, five shirts and a suitcase to put them in. Entry was gained through a bedroom window.

Annie Flanagan Fox at 904 Abrams reported a missing motorcycle taken from the carport at that residence.

Carlos Marquez, 610 NW 8th, told officers that some unknown person shot him in

All of these persons, as well as Col. Jerry Grimes, base commander, were presented special signed commemorative photographs of the Thunderbird team.

Lt. Col. Dan Cherry of Marietta, Ga., a veteran combat pilot commanded the performance and flew the solo plane in the demonstration.

Captains Parker, Newton and Veach have been selected for promotion and will advance to the rank of major during the show season.

Charlie Carter, narrator from Luling in South Texas, said that they perform around 90 shows a season.

The fleet of Thunderbirds is comprised of Northrop T-38 Talon jet trainers.

Prior to their performance, the entire crew is introduced to the crowd and as each plane taxis down the runway, they give the traditional thumbs-up to their crewman in a particularly showmanship manner.

One small mongrel dog gave the crowd an extra show as he wandered up under the planes as they were brought to ear-shattering level and he took off in a jetlike run down the runway.

There was more than one solemn face in the crowd as civic leaders who had battled to keep the base and civic leaders from the years in which the base was obtained looked skyward and thought their own thoughts about Webb.

The final salute of the Thunderbirds as they came down low over the runways had a special farewell moment as the quiet crowd looked skyward.

A community that really loved its air base looked skyward for the last time at a special Air show joined by spectators from many West Texas towns that also considered Webb a part of West Texas.

The feeling which has enveloped the community of "Nothing can stop the Army Air Corp" except the Pentagon was gone for a moment and only memories and sadness hung in the air at the end of a perfect performance.

Webb AFB has been around as long as the official Air Force itself, which replaced the earlier Army Air Corps and many Big Spring citizens felt like they'd had a part in it all.

The Thunderbirds' trail of smoke in the clear West Texas skies wafted away into memory, along with Webb.

Farm-Send

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is beginning work on a huge farm bill that would continue the controversial food program and establish price support payments to help determine how shoppers have to pay for food.

The farm bill, as it is called, would cost an average of $4 billion per year through 1982 in support of wheat, feed grains, rice and soybeans. Senate is expected to complete work on the bill today.

Carter has warned that the measure contains more than $2 billion for crop supports, guarantee prices to farmers and therefore can inflate supermarket prices.

"We have to decide whether we want to support a presidential veto of the bill," Sen. H. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said when the completed work on the bill was reported.

Committee approval would set the support for the five crops at $2.3 billion per year through Oct. 1. The House is expected to come up with a bill next month.

The Senate's farm bill would extend the controversial food program for two years through September 1979, a major modification to allow low income people to obtain food stamps.

Currently, recipients purchase the food stamps. Under the measure, the Food program would be extended for five years with an emphasis on agriculture.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is beginning work on a huge farm bill that would continue the controversial food stamp program and establish farm price support payments that help determine how much shoppers have to pay for food.

The farm bill, as sent to the floor by the Senate Agriculture Committee, would cost an average of about $4 billion per year through 1982 in supports for wheat, feed grains, cotton, rice and soybeans. The Senate is expected to begin work on the bill today.

Carter has warned that he will veto the measure if it contains more than $2 billion for crop supports, which guarantee prices to farmers and therefore can influence supermarket prices.

"We have to decide whether we want to risk a presidential veto on this bill," Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said when the panel completed work on the bill.

Committee-approved legislation in the House would set the support level for the five crops at about $2.3 billion per year beginning Oct. 1. The House bill is expected to come up for floor debate next month.

The Senate's farm bill also would extend the controversial food stamp program for two years, through September 1979. But a major modification would allow low income persons to obtain food stamps free. Currently, recipients must purchase the food stamps.

Under the Senate measure, the Food for Peace program would be extended for five years with increased emphasis on agriculture development. The bill also contains a five-year average cost of $427 million for disaster relief, $52 million in peanut supports and $2 million in payments to dairy farmers whose herds are contaminated by chemicals or radioactive fallout.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Consumers will feel the squeeze as the federal government tightens its grip on chemicals allowed for use on crops, according to industry specialists.

They predict that vegetable prices will increase, quality will decline, some specialty foods may become scarce and gardeners and specialty crop growers will be hard hit.

At issue is an Environmental Protection Agency regulation that requires registration of pesticides and labels that carry a list of specific crops on which a pesticide may be used.

Extensive testing is a part of the requirement. Companies would rather leave a minor crop off the label than spend thousands of dollars testing the effects of a pesticide that has limited sales.

"I've talked to some chemical companies that said if it's not one of the major crops like cotton, corn, soybean or small grains, they won't touch it with a 10-foot pole," said Dr. Winand Hock, a pesticides specialist at Pennsylvania State University.

"The effect will be on the homeowner and the small specialty-crop farmer, not the corn grower." He also said mushrooms, strawberries, blueberries and some varieties of apricots and nectarines could become expensive or scarce.

"We definitely have fewer choices of pesticides," said Ed Hopkins, a Pennsylvania vegetable grower. "Some companies just discontinued their products altogether."

"In the future, certain minor crops, things like basil, herbs, horse radishes, parsnips or leek, won't be grown. There won't be a No. 1 (quality) crop. The consumer will either take the cabbage with a hole in the leaf or go without," he said.

After EPA banned the use of the pesticide DDT, Boyd Mertz, a greenhouse tomato grower in north-central Pennsylvania, turned to a more expensive alternative.

"We're using a gas, an extremely dangerous material, on the white fly," he said.

"The fly lays its eggs for 21 days, and DDT had a residual effect of 30 days and took care of the problem," Mertz said.

"Now we have to spray every three weeks. The material costs $200 a gallon and we use a gallon everytime we spray."

The consumer foots the bill, he said.

"We can only absorb so much. If the consumer wants to pay the cost, he can have any environmental regulations he wants," Mertz said.

EPA staffer Bob Kuykendall conceded that, "Some crops have slipped through the cracks" when pesticides are registered for certain limited uses. But he said EPA is trying to develop a system that would permit the use of a single pesticide on a group of related crops, such as leafy green vegetables.

Memorial Day weekend travelers will find unleaded and premium gasoline selling for 3.7 cents more per gallon than it was during the Thanksgiving holiday of 1976. Regular gasoline has jumped 2.9 cents per gallon.

A survey of 231 service stations conducted by the American Automobile Association, Texas Division, revealed average gasoline prices per gallon of 59.8 for regular, 62.7 for unleaded and 64.4 for premium. Corresponding prices in late November of 1976, were 56.9 for regular, 59.0 for unleaded and 60.7 for premium.

Motorists should have few problems finding an open station during the three-day long Memorial weekend. An insignificant number of operators said they would close down to go fishing.

Average prices for regular gasoline in Texas ranged from 56.6 in McAllen to 67.2 in Fort Stockton. The lowest-priced gas in Texas, according to the survey, was found in Houston where a self-service station priced regular at 50.9 cents a gallon. A service station in Pecos had the highest-priced

Appeal of condemned murderer rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today rejected the appeal of a condemned Texas murderer convicted in a 1974 grocery store robbery that left three persons dead.

The justices refused to hear claims by death row inmate James Livingston that he was denied a fair trial and sentencing.

Last month, the high court turned down the appeal of another Texas man convicted in the same robbery — Robert Excell White, who also was sentenced to death.

Livingston said he was excluded for voicing general opposition to the death penalty. He also said his rights were violated when the trial court allowed a psychiatric report to be used as evidence of Livingston's competency to stand trial.

The defendant said he had never been informed of the legal effects of such a psychiatric test and that he had not been allowed to have an attorney present when the test was administered.

Livingston was convicted, specifically, for the killing of Billy St. John, a teenaged customer at the rural store outside McKinney, Tex., who was shot to death during the hold-up. The store's elderly proprietor and another teenage customer also were killed during the May 11, 1974 robbery that netted about $200.

Livingston's brother, Gary, pleaded guilty to a murder charge stemming from the grocery store robbery and received a 22-year prison sentence.

The Supreme Court upheld Texas' death penalty laws as constitutional last July.

Howling winds rake Laredo airport

By the Associated Press. Howling winds reaching more than 100 miles per hour lashed the Laredo area Sunday night causing considerable material damage, but no injuries.

But just across the Rio Grande in Nuevo Laredo, the electrical storms and thunderstorms were blamed for three deaths and apparently caused a bus to overturn just south of the Mexican city resulting in an undetermined number of deaths.

The violent weather was part of a front that moved across portions of South and Southwest Texas. The National Weather Service said the thunderstorms were expected to reappear later today in portions of Northwest Texas.

Laredo was placed under a tornado watch early Sunday evening as the thunderstorms moved in. More than five inches of rain were fell in the downtown section. Winds of 104 miles were clocked just north of the city.

The thunderstorms caused considerable damages to many homes in Laredo.

There was no estimate of the material damage early today.

Reports from Nuevo Laredo indicated several homes were destroyed and telephone communications between Laredo and other cities to the south were interrupted. Mexican authorities said a passenger bus coming from Monterrey to Nuevo Laredo overturned in the Mamulique pass south of Laredo and first reports said there were many dead and injured.

Large hail pelted several sections of Texas Sunday. Some was reported at Belton and some in small communities near the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex.

The National Weather Service issued a flood warning for the Rio Grande for the area between Eagle Pass to just below Laredo. Early today, the river was about 15 feet above normal level as it passed by Laredo.

At Eagle Pass, winds were clocked at 45 miles per hour, two mobile homes were damaged, electricity was knocked out in a section of the city and almost four inches of rain fell in an hour.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 40s and 50s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the 60s and 70s in South Texas. Some early morning readings included 67 at Amarillo, 71 at Wichita Falls and Texarkana, 69 at Waco, 70 at San Antonio.

A safety reason for air patriotism

When you ride in a commercial jet airliner, do you wonder how safe it is? There is a feeling projected on the part of the industry that airline safety records for major national and international carriers is about the same.

HOWEVER A BOOK recently condensed in the London Sunday Times contends that this is not true. The book, called "Distinction Disaster," compiled a comparison of all the fatal crashes on major scheduled flights from 1950 to 1974.

I saw a chart of the results, and I found it so interesting that Big Spring readers might want to see it.

The approach used was this: An average was compiled of 44 airlines which flew 3.144 billion passengers, had 350 fatal crashes, killing 13,233 people. Then the airlines were compared as better or worse than the average. The airline that most Big Spring residents might fly often out of Midland was Continental, and it had one of the better records. Only five airlines had better records, and Continental had not had a crash since January 1966. It is one of only three airlines whose safety records date back that far.

Continental has flown 57 million passengers and has had two fatal crashes that killed 42 people.

If the airlines had been doing only as well as the world "average," Continental would have had seven crashes. So its safety record is three times better than the world average.

(The chart did not contain information on either Southwest or Texas International).

What is the safest airlines? It is Delta, which has flown 194 million passengers and has had two fatal crashes. If it had been only as good as the average, it would have had 18 crashes, so the book says Delta's safety record is nine times better than the world's average.

THE OTHER FOUR airlines whose records are better than Continental are Quantas, the Australian line; JAL, the Japanese line; American, which has many Dallas flights; and British Caldeonian.

One thing that is quite noticeable about the charts is that United States-based carriers generally rank very good.

United, Eastern, TWA and Pan Am are all above the world average. Close to the average were National, Braniff and Northwest.

Only one U.S. airline was on the chart as being worse than the world average. This was Allegheny, which has flown 67 million passengers and had five fatal crashes killing 152 people, or 1 1/2 times worse than average.

What is the worst airline? The rank went to Tarom, a Romanian airline which has flown seven million passengers, had eight fatal crashes which killed 173 for a record 20 times worse than the average.

STATISTICS FOR THE Soviet Union and other Eastern Block nations were not available, but the communist countries that were ranked fell close to the bottom. Cuba, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia ranked eight or nine times worse than the world average.

I'm not sure what all this means, but I suppose it may suggest that if one is in Romania, drink the water if you must, but don't fly the airlines.

Takes a while

Around the rim

For some time now, I have been trying to find a certain book. It had eluded me at every turn. But a couple of weeks ago, while visiting Austin, spook city extraordinaire, I found it.

"The Encyclopedia of Ancient and Forbidden Knowledge" by Zolar.

THE BOOK IS one of the handful considered the granddaddy of the psychic and occult. The plethora of paperback that have flooded the market recently on subjects that the majority of people refuse to consider are nothing but fifth-rate secondary pulp magazines compared to this book.

The only problem is that it is difficult to comprehend without at least a half dozen readings. Perhaps the more enlightened spook has little trouble, but the words definitely take a while to sink in on me.

Zolar is one of America's foremost authorities in the field of astrology. He has been called "The Dean of Astrologers" and has spent much of his life advancing the science.

He began his studies in 1932 after a successful career as a securities salesman. With an extensive background in business, psychology and sociology, he soon learned to cast charts and to make horoscopes. He sought to bring astrology out of the realm of darkness and to revive this ancient science.

He is seldom seen, because he feels that reality is a disillusionment. He prefers to be simply "Zolar," the name everyone knows — the person never seen.

THE MAN SPENT years going through old and rare manuscripts in researching this book, and whether you believe in the unseen or not, the book is worthwhile reading. He is a man of terrific insight. Just read this excerpt from the preface:

"Most people spent 90 per cent of their time doing what other people want them to do instead of what they want to do themselves. Most people, perhaps you, are haunted by self-destructive feelings they don't understand.

"These are feelings which may frighten or depress you, for example: the constant fear that the other people are somehow better; the fear that you are now, and will always remain, a second-class citizen in life; or the crushing realization that you always feel poor no matter how much money you earn, and always feel inadequate no matter how great your accomplishments.

"Because of two crippling pressures — the constant attempts of other people to exploit you and your self-destructive feelings of inferiority — you spend your life in an emotional prison instead of a palace.

"You allow yourself to be surrounded by enemies instead of friends. You accomplish only a fraction of what you are really able to accomplish. You find yourself constantly driven away from the real enjoyments, the real achievements, the real meaning of your life.

"Learn to control your destiny. Study the ancient sciences, for this knowledge will guide you through the present age of anxiety and depression."

I'm not saying this book is going to cure you of some hang-ups or turn your life around. Zolar can say that because it's his book. But the book will definitely make you think, if you have an open mind, that is. Because, as Zolar says:

"If you hold by anything in this world more than reason, truth, and justice; if you will be uncertain and vacillating; if logic alarms you; if the naked truth makes you blush; if you are hurt when your errors are found, do not read this. At the same time, do not claim it as a pack of dangerous lies."

The uses of Nixon

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Add one more recommendation: People engaged in the extended conversation about Nixon ought to read Victor Lasky's "It Didn't Start With Watergate." This is not a review of that book, which has been discussed and solidly recommended by William Safire and Patrick Buchanan; and, in the book pages of the Washington Post no less, by Nick Thimesch — all syndicated columnists, all three agreed that Victor Lasky puts Nixon's offenses in perspective. Buchanan's conclusion is eloquently given in the earthy language he uses so effectively. "If the first five kids caught smoking pot in the dorm were given a stern lecture, you do not expect, prosecute and mark for life, the sixth."

I MUST DEMUR. For one thing, the Lasky book, as Meg Greenfield of Newsweek puts it, "overloads the circuit" in that Mr. Lasky is unwilling to discard any speck of evidence, any itching powder against his enemies.

Take itching powder. Lasky reports that a staffer attached to LBJ's campaign came up with the idea of using it against the hecklers who so annoyed Johnson. "Our advance men could carry a can with them. If they saw a heckler shouting or carrying a Goldwater sign, the advance men could throw some powder on the heckler, who'd have to stop what he was doing." Lasky punctiliously reports that the idea of using itching powder was rejected, but also reports that the man who rejected it heard that in Houston "somebody did use it on some unfriendly people."

Such reporting does not contribute very much to the case against LBJ.

But of course there is plenty of reporting in the Lasky book that does; and that makes a case against the excesses of Kennedy, and other presidents.

Buchanan and others have a point, but they neglect to focus properly on what it was that actually brought Nixon down. It wasn't that the crimes committed under his general auspices were more egregious than others committed under the auspices, and in some cases at the direct instructions of, his predecessors. They fail to take into account the critical point, which I have elsewhere labeled the Profumo Factor, in memory of the British gentleman of recent memory who looked his peers square in the eyes and gave his word that he was not guilty. It was for this, not for his whoring about, that John Profumo was disgraced. It is so with Nixon, who might easily have survived Watergate if he had declined to flourish his innocence on so many occasions, before the whole world.

Nixon's stubborn refusal, even now, to concede that he was guilty of a specific crime — conspiring to obstruct justice — continues to galling; and, like Spiro Agnew's professions of innocence, continues to irritate his friends. But on the other hand, how badly do we need this confession? It is indispensable to — what? Perhaps to our reestimation of Nixon, but those most irritated by Nixon's insistence on his technical innocence, are secretly pleased because they fear most anything Nixon might do that is genuinely endearing. Besides, Nixon's severest critics are not only patient with the equally preposterous claims of innocence by Alger Hiss, — in many cases they side with Alger Hiss, whose guilt is at least as well documented as Agnew's.

Her baby has non-baby odor

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem I've never heard of until now. My baby is five months old, and since her birth she has had an odor problem. I have determined that it is caused by her perspiration. When she perspires her head and face smell bad. Her hair is very oily also.

What causes this and what can I do to solve it? I wash her hair every night. — Mrs. P.B.C.

Body odor is usually the result of normal skin bacteria reacting to sweat. Babies are not immune, although odor problems don't usually appear until later in life.

The first thing you should do is have the doctor sniff the baby to determine whether there is a true odor problem. That may give a clue as to the source. Phenylketonuria (PKU) is a disorder of infants that produces a peculiar sweat odor. However, it is usually accompanied by other symptoms quite early (irritability, vomiting). Tests are done for PKU shortly after birth, so I hardly think that is the cause.

Your next move should be to change your laundry soap and the soap used to wash her hair. Some brands can react with perspiration to cause an odor. Rinse well. While diet is not usually a cause of odor, milk can be, as can vitamin B, which you may be using in excess as a supplement.

If the odor persists after eliminating these factors, you may have to use a germicidal soap for her baths. Also, make sure clothing and bedclothes are rinsed thoroughly after washing. But begin, as I urged above, with the doctor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what is meant by "vervical erosion." Is it an infection? What causes it? If it is cleared up, will it come back again? Thank you. I find your column very interesting and helpful. — Mrs. F.W.

This is a rawness at the opening of the cervix. In appearance it resembles a child's skinned knee. It is common in women of childbearing age, and 90 per cent of such women will have the condition at some time. It can be related to childbirth itself, as when the tissue is torn slightly.

Often, the exact cause is not found. It is thought certain cell changes related to estrogen production lead to a general softening. Erosion is not an infection, but it can be an invitation to infection.

Unless there is a discharge, there need be no symptoms. Erosion is usually discovered during routine pelvic examination. Since it can resemble cancer, a Pap test or biopsy is usually taken to be on the safe side. This quite naturally causes women great concern.

The treatment for erosion is cauterizing (burning) of the tissue. It may recur.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a swelling on the back of the knee. I have been told it is a Baker's cyst. It has caused me quite a bit of pain in the knee and the calf of my leg. I also have a pronounced limp now. I have a bit of arthritis, but it's never really troubled me.

What is the cause of this and what is the cure? Does it disappear with the rest and heat, or is surgical removal the only way? — I.E.

Baker's cyst is a common form of bursitis in the knee joint. A bursa, as you may know, is the fluid-filled cushion against which joint bones move. If one becomes inflamed, some of its fluid may escape into the knee joint cavity, thus become enclosed in a sac — a cyst.

Arthritis appears to contribute to the process. Pain is not usually part of such cysts, so you might suspect arthritis as a cause of the pain. Also, you may be walking differently, favoring the leg and creating muscular problems.

Heat and rest won't change the cyst or make it disappear. Surgery of one kind or another is usually necessary, either to draw out the yellowish, jelly-like substance from the cyst, membrane and all. The latter is done if the conservative needle procedure (aspiration) is not effective. The cyst may recur unless entirely removed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would taking vitamin D ward off osteoporosis of the way estrogen does? — Mrs. G.S.

It can be part of the treatment, but is not always needed. You either lack the vitamin or you don't.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Has anyone ever tried to do a film version of the book of Revelation? It seems to me that it would be an exciting subject. — H.M.

DEAR H.M.: To my knowledge this has never been successfully done. Certainly there are parts of Revelation that would have dramatic appeal, such as John's vision of the four horsemen who bring great judgments on the earth (Revelation 6:1-8).

However, there is much in Revelation that would be impossible to put on film accurately. I am sure, for instance, that John's visions of heaven are far beyond our comprehension or imagination. By trying to be too literal about some parts of it, we might miss the wonder and awe of what God is going to do some day. Frankly, I would be skeptical about a project like this, and would be especially wary if it were attempted by men who did not believe the tremendous truths of the gospel. I know the book of Revelation is a mystery to many people, and there are parts that sincere Christians may disagree about. However, there are some rich teachings in it if we will but understand them and not get bogged down in details. The book was not given to us just to satisfy our curiosity. God gave it to us to encourage us about the future. It tells us that God is sovereign, and He will eventually triumph completely over all evil. It tells us Christ will come again. It tells us of the hope of heaven, and the terror of hell for those who do not believe. It tells us that the only hope for our lives and our world is Jesus Christ, the risen Son of God.

Whether or not someone will attempt a film version I do not know. But God has given the book to us, and we should read and reread it for the truth and encouragement it has for every believer.

CIA is essential

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency deals in operations so secret that its waste paper is classified. Yet it receives more publicity than government agencies that advertise. The publicity has been so horrendous that many Americans are ready to abolish the CIA. They would like to forget the whole CIA saga as if it were a bad dream.

But in the nuclear age, the CIA has become our first line of defense. The tangled espionage web it has spun is probably essential to our national survival. For the safety of all of us, the nerve center in Washington needs to be kept informed about military moves and terrorist activities around the world.

President Carter, therefore, has assigned Admiral Stansfield Turner to salvage the CIA. The Admiral has instituted reforms that are designed to bring his unruly agency into line. He will concentrate on intelligence gathering and restrict the covert operations that have given the CIA a bad international reputation.

TURNER WON'T GO so far as to abolish the Mission Impossible capability. He might want to use unorthodox methods, he said privately, to meet some future emergency. He raised the possibility, for example, that terrorists might get hold of nuclear weapons. The CIA might want to do more about it, he suggested, than spy on the terrorists.

But for all his good intentions, Turner may not be able to control the octopus he is supposed to head. It has more weaving, twisting arms than he can watch.

The CIA agents throughout the world are expected to obey orders from Turner. But they have recruited local operatives, who have their own undercover contacts. At these lower, subterranean levels, the CIA cannot always control how its instructions are implemented.

The CIA's worldwide network involves people at all levels of life. CIA agents have ties, for example, with criminal elements around the world. Local crime rings have provided services and information to the CIA. Yet the CIA neither created nor controls these underworld outfits.

Admiral Turner, who has a reputation for integrity, believes the CIA is not only an efficient but an essential organization. Some agents have gone beyond moral bounds; some have been fools. But others have been unsung heroes whose deeds surpass the most valorous in our history yet must remain unrecorded.

Footnote: During the Nixon era, the CIA joined other government agencies in a massive police action against us. The project was called "Operation Mudhen." At one point, the CIA used 18 radio cars to trail us. Agents set up a command post near our office and photographed everyone who entered it. Other agents used sophisticated electronic equipment to monitor our conversations.

This illegal harrassment upset White House press secretary Jody Powell who has checked with Turner to make sure nothing of this sort is going on under President Carter. The CIA chief assured Powell that "Operation Mudhen" has been suspended and that we are no longer under CIA surveillance.

MISSING WITNESS — Primitivo Mijares is missing.

Two years ago, Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos tried to bribe Mijares to keep him from testifying before the U.S. Congress. We produced bank records on July 2, 1975, tracing the $50,000 bribe to Trinidad Alconcel, the Philippines consul in San Francisco, who placed the money in a bank for Mijares. The $50,000 was withdrawn, however, after Mijares went ahead with his testimony. As a former journalistic hatchman for Marcos, the witness told about tyranny in the Philippines. Then he asked for asylum in the United States, he would be killed, he said, if he were forced to return to Manila.

YET ASTONISHINGLY, the State Department never acted on his asylum request. The Justice Department also stalled on the bribe investigation. The last we heard from Mijares was a mysterious letter, postmarked last January from Honolulu. He wrote that he was about to take off on "a daring sortie to the Philippines."

Persistence pays off

Key Lime Pie: Down in the Florida Keys, real estate man Peter Elias was alerted the other day that Miss Lillian Carter wanted to tour the Key West showplace owned by designer Angelo Donghia. Since Angelo was in Manhattan putting the finishing touches on the spectacular discotheque to be called New York, New York, Peter had to get his act together and clean and spiff up the Donghia house from top to bottom. He worked personally all night on the project, only to be told the next a.m. that Miss Lillian was tired and had changed her mind about the tour.

Furious and undaunted, Peter ran over to where the President's mother was staying and saw her entering a big black limousine. As he rushed toward the car, he was intercepted by the Secret Service who demanded to know his business. "I've got to talk to Miss Lillian!" he screamed. "Make her roll down the window." When Miss Lillian did, Peter said, "You can't do this to me, Lil. I've been up all night getting Angelo Donghia's house ready for you." When Miss Lillian tried to beg off, Peter wasn't having any.

Whether it was Peter's insistent manner or his calling her Lil that did it, Miss Carter finally agreed to take the tour. Once inside the white Victorian Donghia house, she gasped, "Oh, I'm so glad you insisted I stay and see this." The President's mother and Peter ended up very palmy and as he handed her into her limo at last, she said, "Now, I don't want you to think this is a rented car, because somebody gave it to me!"

ANTI-CONCORDE MOTORCADE — Youngsters from the Howard Beach area, a community at the end of one runway that would be used by the Concorde if the supersonic jet were permitted to land at New York's Kennedy Airport, lean out of the window of their car during a protest against the plane at the airport Sunday. An estimated 1,800 cars jammed the airport with their motorcade as opponents of the British-French plane turned out for the second Sunday in a row.

New car buyers think big

DETROIT (AP) — Energy crisis or not, Americans are not about to give up their cars and the lifestyles their auto-mobility has created. The tremendous demand this year for new cars — primarily big ones — is evidence of that.

Slowly, though, the motoring public and the industry which put the nation on wheels are changing course. Cars are getting smaller. So are engines. And, if President Carter's controversial gasoline tax is approved by Congress, people may drive fewer miles.

The trend toward smaller, lighter, less powerful and more fuel efficient vehicles has been a major industry goal for a decade. It was spurred by the Mideast oil embargo in 1973, and is being accelerated again by federal fuel economy laws.

Carter's proposed tax on gasguzzlers and rebates for fuel-efficient models will provide new incentives to think small.

By 1985, according to industry forecasters, the average new car will be about the size of today's compact — 16 to 17 feet long, a little over 1½ tons in weight, able to seat four or five adults comfortably and with a lightweight four- or six-cylinder engine electronically controlled to deliver more than 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Compare that with today's biggest landcruisers — 2½ tons of sculptured steel, iron, chrome and plastic stretching 19 to 20 feet from nose to rear with room for six and powered by a huge, fuel-slurping eight-cylinder engine that provides 12 m.p.g.

There still will be some "big" family size cars in 1985. They won't be as large as today's road-hogs, though, and they'll be powered by efficient diesels or other newly designed engines. Their bodies may be composed of exotic lightweight materials.

Beyond 1985, the possibilities are mind-boggling. Electric cars may be the principle mode of transportation in the 1990s if a lightweight battery able to hold a long charge can be developed. Electronics certainly will play a greater role in tomorrow's automobile — replacing heavy, space-wasting mechanical components with small, lightweight and precise minicomputers and microprocessors controlling steering, braking, acceleration and other functions.

New fuels may replace gasoline as petroleum becomes scarce. Among those now being tested are water, propane, hydrogen, alcohol and, yes, even peanut oil.

While Detroit's futurists differ in some regards, they all agree the automobile will remain the dominant form of transportation in this country for at least the remainder of the century.

Some forecasters say Carter's energy program will dampen new-car sales by about 300,000 units a year between 1978 and 1980 to 11 million. The record of 11.4 million was set in 1973.

Industry optimists say even with increased government regulation, car sales could approach 14 million by 1985, and the number of vehicles on the road will rise 20 per cent from today's levels to 120 million.

Small-car sales have been on the rise in this country since the 1950s. By 1960, European imports and domestic compacts such as the Valiant, Falcon and Corvair accounted for a quarter of the market.

Americans were becoming more affluent. Those who owned one car, bought a second one, often a small model. Younger people who couldn't afford a car before found they could afford a little one.

The small-car market remained at about a 25 per cent share through the 1960s. By 1970, inflation had priced the big car out of many Americans' reach. So they turned to low-priced imports, many now from Japan. Detroit countered with its subcompact Gremlin, Vega and Pinto.

Before the oil embargo in the fall of 1973, small cars — held more than a third of the new car market.

Dear Abby

Let Grandma Help With Grandchild

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our first child in August, and my mother has already notified me that she is coming to "help me" with the baby. This will be her first grandchild, so we can appreciate her eagerness to "help," but I hope you will publish this letter. It may save our happy relationship with Mom.

We want Mom to know that we have taken a course in how to handle a new baby, so if she really wants to help, she can pitch in and do the laundry, cleaning and cooking. But when it comes to handling the baby, that will be OUR responsibility.

All too often "Grandma" moves in to "help" and she takes charge of the baby completely, making the new mother feel as though she is not yet capable of being a mother.

I'd like Mom to know that I love her, but I'm fully prepared for motherhood, so if she's traveling 2,000 miles to "help" me, I hope she sticks to the housekeeping duties.

HER LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If your mom doesn't see this, and makes the trip anyway, please let her hold her grandchild once in a while, dear.

She's not traveling 2,000 miles to do your laundry.

DEAR ABBY: We don't know whether we have a problem or not, but many of our friends have suggested that we might have.

Our son (I'll call him "Buddy") has asked if he could take ballet lessons. He is nearly 10, and is a perfectly normal boy in all respects, but this request of his has us worried.

His father is afraid this might be a sign that his son isn't going to be "all man," and I'm afraid we might not have any grandchildren. (He is our only child, and I've had a hysterectomy.)

Buddy is graceful and well-coordinated, having taken figure skating for two years, but his father had hoped he'd get interested in contact sports.

What is your thinking on this?

BUDDY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It takes a great deal of "manly discipline" for a boy to excel at ballet. If your 10-year-old son wants to take ballet lessons, don't discourage him.

DEAR ABBY: If the husband is all dressed up in a pale blue jacket and light slacks and looks like he's going to Hawaii, shouldn't the wife dress accordingly, instead of wearing a black gabardine suit like she's going to New York?

How can I tell these friends of ours that they look like they don't belong together? It's odd, and people talk.

Should I mention this to the wife? Or should my husband mention this to the husband?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I don't recommend talking to either one about it. More important than whether people "look" like they belong together is whether they FEEL like they belong together.

DEAR ABBY: I am tall, handsome, intelligent, sincere, divorced, 43 and broke.

I would like to remarry. The woman's age, shape or looks are of no consequence...as long as she's rich. I hope you'll agree to play matchmaker. And you may publish my real name and address because I am on the level.

HONOLULU

DEAR HON: Sorry but you'll have to find another way to find a rich woman who would marry a man with your qualifications and desire to sell himself to the highest bidder.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

HER HUSBAND HONORED — As plaudits were made for famed aviator Charles A. Battle launched to gain women veteran's benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "forgotten women" of World Wars I and II are launching a new battle in Congress in an effort to gain veterans benefits the government has refused to give them.

Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Tex., chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, also plans hearings later for those groups and for others seeking similar recognition from the government.

Others trying to win benefits include women who served in the Merchant Marine, Red Cross and the Women's Auxiliary Corps, the original WACs.

GI educational benefits have expired, but the women could claim government pensions and receive care at Veterans Administration hospitals. They also could apply for low-interest GI home loans.

Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Calif., who backs the cause of the World War I women, estimates that between 40 and 60 of them are still alive.

There were more than 1,000 WASPs during World War II and an estimated 850 are still alive.

The WASPs ferried fighter and bomber planes to points of embarkation, towed targets for combat pilots to fire at and helped train other pilots.

Thirty-eight of the women were killed while on active duty.

As in the case of the World War I women, the WASPs were subject to military discipline and lived in military barracks, but got smaller allowances than men doing the same job.

They had been promised military commissions, but were abruptly disbanded after the war so they wouldn't take jobs away from men.

Past efforts by the two women's groups were opposed by the Veterans Administration and some members of Congress who fear similar privileges would have to be given to members of the other groups.

Hustle 3

Tourism helps economy

Your action agency is working today for a better tomorrow!

The main emphasis continues to be on economic advancement. A lot of people are starting to use the word "economic recovery" but I feel like there has to be an ailment before there's a recovery. And I also feel like if we all "Hustle" together we won't have that ailment to recover from.

That may not be exactly how my English teacher would have said it, but you get the meaning. Means of course I'm speaking of jobs and taxes and goods and services, are all around us.

I think the best example is noted in the recent study performed by the Texas Tourist Development Agency which ranked Howard County 20th of the 254 Texas counties in tourism revenue.

The 40 million dollars that visitors spent in the Big Spring area provided jobs for 1704 of our citizens with a payroll of $8,130,000. In addition, they paid state and local taxes totaling more than two million dollars and they provided more than $4,000,000 in motel tax which we are using to promote and advertise our community.

The surprising thing is that these dollars are from visitors - travelers and tourists and they represent only a portion of the potential. The untapped source of revenue is in the form of conventions.

The convention "industry" is extremely strong in Texas and we stand to profit greatly if we go after the convention business - of course we will need to court

By Bill Albright

Executive Vice President, Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce

There's one other source of increased revenue - that's from our neighbors - all of them within 50 to 60 miles or more. That territory that forms our "trade area" has lots of potential to attract folks from outlying towns and rural communities. And we have the shopping facilities and businesses to satisfy their needs. Let's get everyone to "SHOP BIG SPRING FIRST."

Well, does the future look promising? You bet it does and it all adds up to an improved quality of life for you and me. But it won't just happen - it takes "people power" and "financial ideas" and "imaginative drive" to do all these good things for us!

What's the key to accomplishing these tasks? Why, it's your Chamber of Commerce of course! And 1977 will continue to be a banner year of progress for all of us. It will take only YOU - YOUR "ACTION AGENCY" and lots of good ole' HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE.

King Hassan says war in Zaire nearly over

RABAT, Morocco (AP) - King Hassan II says the 2 1/2-month rebellion in Zaire's Shaba province is nearly over, and his foreign minister says the role of 1,200 Moroccan soldiers at the side of the Zairean army is "terminated."

Foreign Minister Ahmed Laraki said Sunday the mission of the Moroccan infantrymen ended with the capture of Dilolo, a key rail head on the Angolan border and the first major rebel town that invaded Zaire from bases in Angola on March 8.

Laraki, who was quoted by the Moroccan news agency in Kinshasa,

Suspected aliens jailed

FOREST, Miss. (AP) — The Highway Patrol stopped a van early today on I-20 that was carrying 15 persons believed to be illegal aliens from Mexico, the patrol said. The 15 and their Mexican driver were being held in the Scott County Jail until federal immigration officials can determine whether they entered the country illegally. A spokesman for the Highway Patrol said a patrolman stopped the van for a routine traffic matter. The spokesman said the patrolman then discovered the back of the van was filled with the people.

The driver had identification papers and was being held for questioning, the spokesman said. The patrol said it believed the suspected aliens were on their way to Florida.

Young calls for black boycott

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young, who ended a two-day visit to South Africa with a call for a black boycott, defended the non-violent approach to solving southern Africa's racial problems before a sometimes hostile audience of 1,500 students.

The black U.S. ambassador to the United Nations arrived from Johannesburg Sunday and went straight to the University of Zambia where he addressed nearly the entire student body assembled in a gymnasium. "Coming to free Zambia is a breather after our trip to South Africa," Young said. His entrance drew cheers and his opening line brought even louder ones. But the highly politicized, Marxist-oriented students were soon shouting comments, groaning and jeering some of Young's remarks.

Students accused Young and the United States of doing nothing for southern Africa. "I'm doing what I can," Young began. "Talking," shouted a student, whose remark brought laughter from the audience. "The brother said talking and that's true," Young said. "Zambia would not be free if President (Kenneth) Kaunda had not done a lot of talking. Don't ever put down talking."

"Most of the problems of the world are solved by talking and when talk is backed by economic and political power, talk can be quite effective," Young told.

Vets' group plan program

The United Council of Veterans will offer Memorial Day services at 9 a.m., Monday, May 30, on the east side of the courthouse.

Webb AFB will provide the color guard and the speaker for the occasion, as yet not identified.

Chaplain G.A. Dreher will offer the invocation and the Rev. William H. Smythe, pastor of the First Christian Church, the benediction.

C.B. O'Neal is in charge of the program. Co-chairpersons will be Mrs. Margaret Barnett and Mrs. Gladys Miller.

Commanders from all veterans' posts and members of their organizations will be present, as will local Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Buglar for the occasion will be Scott Shortes of Big Spring High School.

the students.

Young is to meet Kaunda today and then leave for Sudan, the last stop on his second African tour since becoming ambassador.

Western policy in southern Africa also stirred student comment.

"France and West Germany supply atomic weapons to South Africa, and the U.S. is the head of these gangsters," shouted one student. "Why did you come to people who are helping suppress us?"

"What I said to the South Africans is that they will be the first black nation with atomic weapons," Young said. There were more groans.

"We are attempting to help the process of liberation in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia)," Young said. He was drowned out by more loud moans.

Young met with mostly white groups of businessmen, students and newspaper editors in South Africa and embraced a black nationalist leader. On Sunday, he accused Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime of "systematic oppression and death-dealing" and said the same applied to South Africa with "minor exceptions."

Asked at a news conference in Johannesburg whether he would like to see South African blacks pressure the government with economic boycotts to end racial segregation, Young said, "I sure would."

Ridin' fence

The other day I wandered into the office of David Kattes, entomologist over in Mitchell County. His secretary, Lynn Carpenter, had traps stacked around the office and I began to ask questions, being the nosy type.

She said that the entomologist had a number of the traps already placed around Scurry and Mitchell

DROWNING AFTERMATH — Two friends as well as two onlookers react after a 16-year-old boy, identified as Richard Annis, drowned while swimming in Aero Lake in the Buffalo, N.Y., suburb of Cheektowaga Saturday. The group is shown after placing a call to police to report the incident. The body of the drowned youth was subsequently recovered from the lake.

Counties, but there were still more to put out. I picked up one of those bright lime green objects and looked it over.

At the top is a little glass bulb. I couldn't see how that would catch a boll weevil, so I asked.

"Well," said Mrs. Carpenter, "there's a little packet that is placed in each one." Then she showed me a box of the packets. "Still not satisfied I said, 'What's in the packet?' And the efficient secretary answered, 'Phermone.'"

"Oh good," I said, "What in the world is that?" She smiled and said, "Well, it's a secretion of weevil hormone."

"Do you mean," I asked, "that the boll weevil thinks he has a girlfriend up in that glass bulb?"

"That's about it," she grinned. Well, I thought, those folks that wrote the old boll weevil song may not know. It may all be over yet.

What's the old son, "The farmer said to the boll weevil, I'll put you in a cake of ice. The boll weevil said to the farmer, 'Theightly what's the old son, this'll be my home. This'll be my home.'"

"So the farmer said to the boll weevil, I'll put you in the red hot fire. The boll weevil says to the farmer, 'Here I are, here I are. This'll be my home.'"

"The first time he saw the boll weevil, he was sitting on the downtown square. The next time he saw the boll weevil, he had all of his family there, this'll be my home."

But that old folk song writer didn't know about Phermone. These trips are just for a count, but who knows what they'll think up next. After all, they drop testse flies to make the screwworms sterile.

What I'm waiting for is an Environmental Protection Group of Occupational Safety and Health Association to come out for the boll weevil.

Fourteen persons die violently in Texas

By The Associated Press

At least 14 persons died violently in Texas during the past weekend with traffic deaths accounting for half of the toll of violent deaths.

Four of the other deaths involved water-sports related accidents, including three drownings and an accident at a speed boat race in Southeast Texas.

Other deaths included two in shootings, one in a fire at El Paso and two who died in a single shooting at Dallas.

The Associated Press count of weekend violent deaths began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The deaths included: An as yet unidentified man who fell from a boat and presumably drowned late Saturday in Oyster Lake. He was believed to be one of two Wharton men who fell overboard. The other man was treated at a hospital and released.

Dragging operations began Saturday night and resumed early Sunday in an attempt to locate the man's body.

Sherry Gaskins, about 13, died Sunday when a speed boat driven by Houston Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini lost its engine power and plowed into a crowd of spectators at a speed boat race near Liberty. Seven other persons were injured.

Joe Lewis Thomas, 35, of Waco, drowned Friday night when he fell from a boat on Lake Brazos near Waco.

Donny Ray Hubbard, 25, of Dallas, drowned Sunday while swimming at North Lake on the northern outskirts of Dallas. Witnesses said the man apparently became tangled up in some weeds while swimming.

Hubert James Palmer Jr., 25, of Dallas, died Sunday when his automobile struck a utility pole on a Dallas street.

John Henry Johnson, 45, of Dallas, died when his automobile hit a utility pole on a Dallas street.

Arnold Brooks Keene Jr., 44, of Overton, died late Saturday night when his pickup truck slammed into the rear of a tractor-trailer rig on U.S. 79 about four miles west of Jacksonville.
