Senate nixes Viet loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States would automatically oppose international lending institution loans to Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos under legislation passed by the Senate.

"We left enough of our blood in Southeast Asia. Let's not send our money after our blood," Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Tuesday in successfully arguing for his amendment to a $5.225 billion funding bill for the lending institutions.

The legislation now goes to a conference with representatives of the House, which earlier voted to require U.S. representatives on international lending institutions to oppose funding for any nation deemed to be in violation of fundamental human rights.

The $5.225 billion in the bill is for the World Bank and other institutions that loan money to less developed nations. The United States is the major supporter of the institutions, but because they receive a majority of their funds from other nations, the United States could be outvoted in the international groups.

The Senate bill was passed by a 59-30 vote after the Dole amendment was added on a vote of 56 to 32.

Dole's amendment would require U.S. representatives to vote against any loans by international financial institutions to the three Southeast Asian nations. If loans are voted over the U.S. objection, then the United States would reduce its contribution to the organization by the same amount.

"These are repressive governments and they refuse to recognize human rights for their own people," Dole said. "In addition, they refuse to turn over information on our missing in action."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., led opposition to the amendments in a 10½-hour debate and defeated all major amendments other than the Dole proposal. He said the bill already contained language requiring U.S. representatives to use their voices in the international organizations to enhance the cause of human rights.

Requiring them to vote a certain way would put the U.S. representatives "in chains," Humphrey said.

BROKEN MAIN — The pavement was floating when a 12-inch water main broke, spilling over 100,000 gallons of water beneath Goliad, according to D.W. Overman, water district supervisor. The leak was repaired Tuesday night, but work still lies ahead for street repairs. About half a block of pavement was ruined and will have to be replaced, according to Overman.

Oil tax to raise gas prices by seven cents

WASHINGTON — A key House committee, approving President Carter's plan for higher oil taxes, now must decide where the money should go.

The vote Tuesday by the Ways and Means Committee on higher oil prices is expected to increase the cost of gasoline by seven cents a gallon by 1981.

Carter, seeking the increase in price to cut U.S. consumption of oil, also is calling for steps to make certain that oil companies don't receive windfall profits from the higher tax.

In three key votes, the committee made it clear Tuesday it does not want part of the proceeds to go to the oil industry as a production incentive.

The committee was expected to debate today where the proceeds from the multi-billion-dollar levy should go. The President wants revenues from the tax to be refunded to consumers under a system including annual rebates up to $45 a person.

The vote for the higher tax was Carter's first legislative victory for his energy program. House committees last week voted tentatively against administration requests for a standby tax on gasoline, a tax on low-mileage cars and continued price controls on natural gas.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said after the vote on higher oil taxes that the President was "extremely pleased by what he termed the 'courageous action' taken by the House Ways and Means Committee in the face of an intense lobbying campaign by the oil industry."

Powell said Carter hoped the committee action "will be maintained in future consideration by the Congress."

Green to file another libel suit

ODESSA — Ector County District Attorney John Green told The San Angelo Standard late Tuesday he will file a $4.5 million libel and slander suit against the Odessa American this morning.

The suit would be the second one Green has filed. The first, for $3.5 million, was filed May 12.

Green said this suit is the result of a story run by the Odessa American Tuesday in only part of that paper's "Permian Edition", the early issue of the paper sent to out-of-town subscribers.

The story was deleted from later copies of that same edition and did not run in the "Home Edition" of Tuesday's publication.

The story reported details of a federal court petition filed by LeRoy Lafoon, a prisoner serving a life sentence in Texas Department of Corrections for murder. The petition was filed in federal court in Midland.

The petition, Green said, "accuses me of conspiracy to commit murder." Green said he had been contacted by several persons saying that the story had run. He did not know about the petition or the story until being contacted, he said.

But, several people brought him information on the plea and copies of the paper since the early edition "hit the street," he said.

"I have not been served with any pleading," Green reported. The Odessa American reported that court records in Midland indicated that the service in the suit, filed last week, had not been completed by the U.S. marshal's office.

"I did not know what they (people contacting him concerning the story) were taking about since I had received no pleas," Green said. "I read about it in the paper."

The plea was filed in the federal court last week. Green indicated the possibility of a connection between Lafoon and Johnny Meadows, also serving a life sentence for murder.

"I don't know the man who made the plea," Green said. "I have never spoken to him, seen him, or met him. I haven't even visited the jail and I don't even talk to prisoners here."

Green said he had found out about Lafoon after the story ran and "a man who is convicted of beating a girl to death is accusing me of conspiracy to commit murder."

"I get sued like this every day," Green said. "Meadows has filed a number of suits and most have been found to be frivolous and kicked out (of court)."

Meadows, charged with the deaths of a series of young women in the Odessa area some five years ago, has a civil rights suit pending against Green, former sheriff A.M. "Slim"

Special session dates set today by Briscoe?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The date of the special legislative session on school finance might be firmed up today.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Tuesday he would try to announce his plans so legislators and government officials can make theirs.

He had said he would call a session only if senators and representatives could agree in advance on a bill reducing "local fund assignments" to pay for the Foundation School Program.

"I think we are getting very close to it," Briscoe told a news conference.

Briscoe also said he hoped to clear his desk of 600 bills awaiting signature or veto by Friday. They are left over from the regular session that adjourned May 30.

He planned to sign this afternoon a bill changing the state cost of highway right-of-way from 50 to 90 per cent. Counties and cities pay the rest.

He said he does not expect to line veto a "substantial amount" of items in the general appropriation bill and would not use that route to get more money for school finance and possible tax relief in the special session.

Briscoe said he hoped the school finance bill passed by the special session will be "a better bill" than the $900 million conference report that died May 30. But he had no specifics in mind, he said.

John Poerner, his school finance director, has distributed a plan that would provide some room for compromise between rural and urban school districts.

County asks for extension for TAC answer

Although the 20-day time limit has expired, Howard County officials still expect to file an answer to Trans Regional Airlines' request for a suspension of service to Howard County.

Howard County Attorney Harvey Hooser contacted the Texas Aeronautics Commission (TAC) Tuesday and informed them that he had not received a complete copy of the information Trans Regional had submitted to justify their request. Hooser followed the call with a letter asking for the extension until 15 days after the county receives a copy of the Trans Regional letter.

A TAC spokesman said today that, unless Trans Regional can show hardship, he could see no reason the request for an extension would not be granted.

Trans Regional suspended their services May 1 under a temporary order granted by the TAC. The Trans Regional letter requesting the suspension cited financial hardship from dropping passenger lists and lack of cooperation from the county as reasons for the requested suspension.

HC girl leads nation in breakaway roping

BOZEMAN, MONT. — In the women's division of the first go-round in the 1977 College National Finals Rodeo, Howard College is tied for first place with Utah State and Colorado State.

Howard College has only three women competing in the national finals, but they are formidable competition and Terry Himes was leading the first go-round of the breakaway roping with a 2.6.

This is a tough time to beat and she may end up the leader in the entire rodeo in this event. She reported by telephone that her horse stumbled in the barrel racing to keep her from placing high in that event.

Lisa Jo Mann and Margo Powell are also competing in the women's division National Finals.

In the men's division, Jack Himes is fifth in the bareback and seventh in calf roping in the first go-round and could come up in either event in the second round which begins today.

Other Big Spring competitors who might garnish points in the second go-round are Charlie Burns, Mack Altizer, Olin Smith and John Hutto. Walla Walla College of College Place, Wash. is in the lead in the men's division.

Other Texas riders who were sitting high in the standings were Kody Kothman and John Anderson of Texas A&M who were out front in the team roping with a time of 7.17 seconds.

Action/reaction: Club honors

Q. We would like to know why private clubs here in Big Spring can not stay open until 2 a.m.?

A. According to Dan Hutchinson, Alcoholic Beverage Control agent here, they can — as soon as the city council (for the incorporated area) and the commissioner's court (for the unincorporated area) authorize the extension of the hours of consumption. When that happens, the ABC can issue a late-hours permit — but not before.

Offbeat: Why Romans fell

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Even Hollywood couldn't overstate the drinking problems of ancient Rome, says an article by the late E.M. Jellinek in the current Journal of Studies on Alcohol.

Jellinek, founder of Rutgers University's Center of Alcohol Studies, said wine drinking was playing a major role in Roman life by 200 B.C. when alarmed senators tried without much success to impose government controls over drinking rituals.

By the first century B.C., he said, Roman literature included Antony's autobiography, believed the first by an alcoholic, and Horace's writings on addiction and withdrawal.

Jellinek said Roman problem drinking and alcoholism took four centuries to develop and did not begin to decline until 100 A.D. But ultimately, he said, it was class pride and selfishness, not drinking, that brought Rome's fall in about 400 A.D.

With legislative term

Farabee, Ezzell basically satisfied

By JIM DAVIS

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — For the two legislators who represent Big Spring the recently completed 1977 session was marked by big successes and big disappointments.

Sen. Ray Farabee and Rep. Mike Ezzell joined everyone in disappointment that school finance legislation got hung up and will require a special session. And they suffered some personal setbacks in their particular legislative programs, too.

But basically they expressed a satisfaction with the way things went for them during the past five months.

"Overall I think it has been a good session," Farabee said a few days before the session ended. His view darkened a bit by the time final adjustment came, however.

The final hours saw a medical malpractice bill that he didn't like approved, the tax relief on utilities he supported die and education financing left hanging.

Farabee played a major role in the medical malpractice fight throughout the session. He had success in his own chamber but was unhappy with provisions demanded by the House of Representatives — provisions he thinks weaken the bill.

"I'm disappointed we didn't make more substantial progress on the medical malpractice question," Farabee said.

Another disappointment was rejection of his proposal for appointment of appellate court judges instead of election.

He can point with pride, however, to legislative approval of his "living will" proposal. That bill will allow a person to legally provide that he or she not be kept alive by artificial means when there is no hope for recovery.

He also got through legislation tightening regulation of public grain warehouses. He said this will give additional protection to farmers and help prevent scandals such as the disappearing grain scam that captured headlines earlier this year.

Ezzell, who lives in Snyder, maintains he is pleased with his legislative record for his second session.

He thinks his biggest accomplishment was passage of the Mentally Retarded Persons Act, which he sponsored in the House. It has been referred to as the "mentally retarded person's bill of rights."

Ezzell said the bill allows the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to write rules to protect the mentally retarded from exploitation and abuse in state facilities. The new law also makes it illegal for a landlord to turn down a person looking for an abode simply because he or she is retarded.

"What it means is that these are rights that belong to every citizen and should not be denied to these people simply because they are retarded," Ezzell said.

His biggest disappointment of the session was his failure to pass a bill providing protective services for the elderly. The bill would have allowed the Department of Public Welfare to inspect living conditions of elderly citizens in response to reports of physical and mental abuse or neglect.

Ezzell thinks on the whole the legislature — and in particular the House — handled a number of controversial subjects in a creditable manner. He blames the Senate for delaying passage of medical malpractice and school finance legislation.

In a pre-session poll by the Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau, Ezzell listed school finance as the number one item for legislative action, with highway funding second. The latter got early approval by the legislature, with Ezzell's strong support.

Both Farabee and Ezzell had creditable records in passing legislation this term. Farabee introduced 26 bills and two joint resolutions. He passed 20 bills and one of the resolutions. Three of the eight bills that failed were dropped in favor of similar or like bills. The Senator

Twiggy gets married

RICHMOND, England (AP) — Twiggy, the skinny model who became a cult figure in the 1960s, is now Mrs. Michael Whitney.

Twiggy, 27, and Whitney, a 42-year-old American actor, were married Tuesday in a civil ceremony in this well-heeled suburb on the River Thames.

About 30 colleagues and show business guests helped keep the wedding private, fending off reporters and photographers who turned up at the registry office when word of the marriage leaked out.

Twiggy, whose real name was Lesley Hornby, was formerly engaged to her agent, Justin de Villeneuve, a former hairdresser and son of a London bricklayer who changed his name from Nigel Davies.

De Villeneuve guided the skinny teenager to fame in the 1960s. She later starred in the movie, "The Boy Friend," and took up singing.

She and de Villeneuve broke up in 1973 after she met Whitney. De Villeneuve married American model Jan Ward in 1975.

Europe commander named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Harold Shear has been named commander in chief of allied forces in Southern Europe, succeeding Adm. Stansfield Turner, the new head of the CIA.

Shear, 58, now vice chief of naval operations, was named to the new job by President Carter with the concurrence of NATO allies.

Gone too far

ASCOT, England (AP) — Gertrude Shilling, notorious for 17 years for the startling hats she wears at the Royal Ascot, the ritziest meeting on the English horse racing calendar, went too far this time.

She was barred from the Royal Enclosure Tuesday when she turned up in a three-foot high, six-foot-wide creation, mostly of wire decorated with red, white and blue rosettes. Officials said it was "not suitable" for the comfort and viewing of other racegoers.

JFK Jr. in survival class

ROCKLAND, Maine (AP) — John F. Kennedy Jr., a 16-year-old member of the family long noted for its active pursuits of sports as well as politics, has enrolled in a 26-day wilderness training program operated here.

The son of the late President, now a Phillips Andover Academy junior, is expected to begin the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School course in early July, according to Pen Williamson of the school.

He said young Kennedy will be taught sailing, navigation, rock climbing and emergency first aid and test himself in a three-day solo period sent alone on an island with only scant necessities.

Cash addresses House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Decked out in a red, white and blue jacket graced with stars and an eagle, country and western singer Johnny Cash recited the words from one of his songs on the floor of the House of Representatives as Congress marked the 200th anniversary of the American flag.

Cash recited the lyrics of "The Ragged Old Flag," a ballad that traces the flag through two centuries of war and concludes it no longer is respected. Tuesday was Flag Day.

Terrorism top problem?

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Representatives of the military dictatorships in Chile and Argentina told Secretary of State Cyrus Vance that combating terrorism and subversion must take precedence over human rights. But Vance replied that terrorism should be fought by the promotion of justice, not by government counter-terrorism.

"The surest way to defeat terrorism is to promote justice in our societies — legal, economic and social justice," Vance told the opening session Tuesday night of the annual meeting of the Organization of American States.

West Texas water plans surveyed

West Texans are already painfully and personally aware of what the planners mean by predicting shortages. Recently, the federal government added 46 West Texas counties to its list of emergency drought areas qualified for federal aid.

Most of the drought-plagued counties fall in the Texas High Plains, the agriculturally-productive Panhandle region likely to be hit hardest and fastest by water shortages. The rest are spread throughout the West Texas area.

TWDB director James M. Rose has a grim prediction for West Texas over the next half century: everything west of Dallas is going to come up short of water.

The High Plains will be especially hard-hit. Estimates show the grain sorghum, cotton-cattle rich area will need seven million acre-feet of water a year more than it will have available by 2030.

Thus the High Plains is the prime impetus and will be the prime beneficiary, of the most ambitious and controversial solution proposed for the state's water shortages: importation.

Importation is certainly no new idea. It was the key recommendation of the original version of the water plan adopted by TWDB in 1969.

That time around, the plan proposed pumping water from the lower portions of the Mississippi River to the High Plains by a series of canals. Opponents claimed the project would consume all of the state's electricity-generating capacity. And voters didn't buy it.

By a narrow 6,000-vote margin Texans sent a $3.5 billion bond issue for implementing the $16.6 billion project down the river.

This time around, the revised plan is plugging importation of Arkansas water from tributaries of the Mississippi.

According to studies of Arkansas' Soil and Water Conservation Board, that state will have 43 million acre-feet of extra water over the next fifty years. Rose and his planners are optimistic about the feasibility and possibility of getting Arkansas water, but say they are also looking at other possible out-of-state sources.

From their predictions, West Texas is going to need it. The population is expected to double in most of the area by 2030: growth in the Brazos River Basin should be slower, but still about 96 per cent. Since population growth is a key element in TWDB's water need projections, such rapid increases coupled with the desire to maintain and promote the growth of irrigated agriculture in the area, is responsible for most of TWDB's water-need predictions.

Basically, water can come from only two sources: surface water developments like lakes, rivers and reservoirs, and ground water pumped up from aquifers. What can't be had from the surface sources has been, and will continue to be, pumped from below. The real problem in West Texas is that the Ogallala Aquifer, the largest in the area, is running dry.

By 2010, water that can be feasibly recovered in the Ogallala will not exist in Cochran, Garza, Hockley, Lynn, Swisher, Borden, Howard, Midland and Terry counties. Available supplies would be severely depleted in Dawson, Ector, Martin and Yoakum counties by the same date. In 2030, Glasscock and Dickens counties will have joined the ranks with no more obtainable water in the Ogallala.

As for surface water availability, Abilene and its surrounding area seems to be the most fortunate West Texas locale. Water for municipal and manufacturing uses should be sufficient through the end of the century without construction of additional reservoirs. By 2030, though, expected needs will exceed firm supplies by 13 thousand acre-feet a year.

Proposed solutions to the shortage problem include continued diversions from the Clear Fork of the Brazos River, construction of the proposed Breckenridge Reservoir on the Clear Fork in Throckmorton County and diversions from Possum Kingdom Lake.

The midsection of the Colorado River Basin is also in for a bad time in the future. Needs are expected to surpass supplies by 1,600 acre-feet a year by 2030. Possible solutions suggested in the plan include construction of the Stacy Reservoir on the Colorado River downstream from Lake Spence or construction of the Upper Pecan Bayou Reservoir in Coleman and Callahan Counties. The revised plan says the area will need at least one new major reservoir by the turn of the century.

Lubbock County will also fall short of its expected needs. An additional reservoir is a must here by 2000, the plan says. The plan suggests construction of the Post Reservoir on the North Fork of the Double Mountain Park Brazos River and the Justiceburg Reservoir on the South Fork of the same river. But by 2030, Lubbock's current supply and construction of both reservoirs could only provide for half of its projected needs. The rest would have to come from importation.

Sex murders suspect arrested

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — An unemployed Locust Grove man was arrested early today in nearby Ottawa County, and the sheriff said he plans to question him about the sex murders of three young Girl Scouts.

"We are very interested in this person," said Mayes County Sheriff Glen "Pete" Weaver.

He said officers from his department would go to Miami, Okla., the Ottawa County seat some 60 miles from here, today to talk to the man he said was arrested by the Oklahoma Highway Patrol under "suspicious circumstances."

"We definitely want to talk to this person," Weaver said. "We have reasons to believe that he could possibly throw some light on the Girl Scout camp slayings."

The sheriff declined to disclose other details until the man was interviewed.

Earlier, officials revealed they had found bloody fingerprints, apparently left by large tennis shoes, which were found on the wooden platform of the tent in which the Girl Scouts were killed on the first night of a camping trip.

The platform has been flown to the state Crime Bureau headquarters in Oklahoma City, where exhaustive tests were being conducted on it and other pieces of evidence, including a red flashlight found near the girls' bodies early Monday.

Fingerprints were lifted from the flashlight and from the skin of at least one of the girls, sources close to the investigation said. It wasn't known whether the prints were left by the killer or by someone else, possibly investigators.

The shoes that made the prints are much larger than any shoes the girls had left in the tent after donning bed clothes.

Mayes County District Attorney Sid Wise said "logic leads us to conclude the murderer is a man, a stealthy, physically agile man."

Investigators reportedly found other evidence early Tuesday about 200 yards from the tent at Camp Scott near here. The heavily wooded camp area has been closed off and a police command post set up at the camp.

The bodies of Lori Lee Farmer, 8, and Doris Denise Milner, 10, both of Tulsa, and Michelle Guse, 9, of suburban Broken Arrow, were found Monday morning about 120 yards from their tent.

Townsend posts $3,000 bond

Bribery charges were filed Monday in Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena's office against Wilbur Frank Townsend. Townsend was arrested May 27, and has subsequently claimed that he was beaten by police during the booking procedure. He has posted $3,500 bond set by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

Over black appointees

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — President Carter and Gov. Briscoe may be poles apart on energy policies but they should be able to emphasize over controversies stirred up by their top black appointees.

Carter, of course, has Andrew Young as the plainspoken United Nations ambassador. Briscoe has Nolan Ward as the plainspoken chairman and executive director of the Texas Employment Commission.

While Young is stirring up the UN with comments about racism, Ward is shaking up state government with blasts about the low number of minority employees on the state payroll — particularly in top-paying jobs.

Ward grabbed his share of the headlines last month with a news release declaring "a state of war" with the Merit System Council, which conducts employment testing for several state agencies, including the TEC.

Briscoe, like Carter, may not be happy with controversy stirred up by his top black appointees, but he apparently hasn't tried to shush him up. Or at least he hasn't succeeded.

Reds quiz newsmen

MOSCOW (AP) — The KGB widened its interrogation of American newsmen Robert Togh today to his contacts with dissident Anatoly Shcharansky and an article he wrote on secret Soviet installations, the 48-year-old correspondent for the Los Angeles Times reported.

There was speculation that Togh's testimony would be used against Shcharansky and not as the basis for charges against the journalist, who already is scheduled to leave the Soviet Union.

The security police questioned Togh for 2½ hours this morning at Lefortovo prison and told him to return this afternoon for more interrogation. It was his third session with the KGB in four days.

Shcharansky is an active Jewish dissident who was arrested in early March and reportedly is being investigated for treason. He was a source for reports written by Togh and other Western correspondents.

Togh said one such report was his story about secret installations. It suggested that outsiders can guess areas in which classified Soviet research is taking place by noting the location of would-be emigres who are told they cannot leave the country because they have worked at secret installations.

"The information on that was given to me by Shcharansky for the purpose of showing that it's ludicrous to say those institutions were secret," Togh said.

The Soviet government in a note delivered to the U.S. Embassy Monday accused Togh of collecting "secret information of a political and military character."

Togh was meeting on the street with scientist Valery G. Petyukhov, who the American said offered him an article on his research into parapsychology, the study of mental telepathy and extrasensory perception.

Togh said he barely got the document in his hand when five KGB men pounced on him.

The second secretary of the U.S. Embassy, Larry Napper, accompanied Togh to the prison Tuesday and again today, but he was not allowed to be present at the questioning.

Togh had planned to leave Moscow Friday with his wife and three children, having completed a three-year tour in the Soviet capital. He said there was no indication whether he would be able to leave on schedule.

Auto looted

Sheriff's deputies are investigating an auto burglary which occurred Tuesday afternoon. Alan Wayne, 2009 Johnson, reported a stereo 8-track player valued at $120 missing from his car. According to Wayne, the theft occurred between 1 and 5 p.m. while his car was parked outside Gamco Industries.

Woman slain in Midland

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — Police early this morning are still looking for the slayer of a 23-year-old pregnant woman whose slashed body was found in her fashionable home here Tuesday.

The victim was identified as Janice Abernathy. She was eight months pregnant. Police said one of the more than 20 stab wounds entered the woman's abdomen. Mrs. Abernathy's unborn child died with her mother.

Terry Abernathy discovered his wife's fully clothed body lying on the living room floor when he came home for lunch. Police said there no signs of forced entry and few clues aside from a hunting knife, believed to be the murder weapon, that was found on the premises.

Wedding party six in trouble

STANTON — Six New Mexico youths in route to the wedding of one of the group had car trouble in Tarzan and ended up getting in more trouble than they bargained for at that small West Texas Community.

The six youths were in three cars and when one developed car trouble, they were forced to wait for repairs. They were seen by Tarzan residents sitting on the east side of the Little Dutchman Antique Store which is owned by the Rev. J.B. Shewmake.

The next day, June 3, it was discovered that all the windows on the east side of the building had been broken out by rocks and also several pieces of antique china and a glass showcase were broken.

Sheriff Dan Saunders estimated the damage at $345.

Deputy Sheriff Chuck James was in charge of the case and he went to New Mexico June 11 to arrest six men, ranging in ages from 19-21 and charged them with criminal mischief, a felony of the third degree.

The prospective bridegroom, Michael Teel, who was later married in Junction and Mike Rollins, Richie Hart, Van Tidwell, Jeff Hunt and Mike Parker were arrested.

They were released Sunday, June 12 after making restitution to the owner of the store and posting $3,000 bond each. The case will go to the next Martin County grand jury.

Street dance to kick off rodeo activities

A street dance will be held on the evening before the rodeo on Tuesday, June 21 in the area east of the courthouse.

Dancing is expected to begin around 8:30 p.m. in a roped off block east of the courthouse square. This has become a tradition for the big rodeo held here each year in June.

The parade will be in the afternoon of Wednesday, June 22 and clubs and individuals are urged to enter floats in the parade. There will be parade float prizes.

The Kiwanis Club will again sponsor a barbecue on opening day from 5-8 p.m. at the Old settlers pavilion of Camanche Trail park.

Crime fighters call meet tonight

Highland South will organize against crime beginning 7:30 p.m. today.

At that time representatives from each block in the neighborhood will gather at the home of Polly Mays, 602 Highland, to organize the Neighborhood Watch Program to fight crime. Sgt. Ed Kissinger, head of the Big Spring Police Crime Prevention Department, will lead the meeting and provide expert advice for the concerned citizens.

"The idea behind the Neighborhood Watch Program is to get people to watch each other's homes, report suspicious goings-on, and, in general, try to fight the apathy here," said Kissinger. "I am anxious to help any other neighborhood group that wants to start the program," he added.

Mrs. Mays, a Big Spring City Council member, decided to baptize the program in her neighborhood at a recent meeting of the council. Police Chief Stanley Bogard was present, and councilmen asked him what could be done about the local rise in crime.

Three Croatians captured after shooting guard

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yugoslavian government expected an attack on its Fifth Avenue United Nations mission and had warned U.S. authorities, the Yugoslavian U.N. ambassador says.

Three armed Croatians seized an office in the mission Tuesday afternoon after shooting a security guard. They were believed to be members of the same group which hijacked a Chicago-bound airplane to Europe last year and planted a bomb that killed a police officer.

They barricaded the office for several hours. One of them apparently used a high-pitched voice to convince an officer they had a female hostage, but they were alone in the office.

The Croatians vowed to die for their cause but surrendered after hearing a radio report that their demands had been presented to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

Yugoslav U.N. ambassador Jaska Petric said in a statement his government had "had very strong indications" that some sort of terrorist action would be taken against the mission this week, timed to precede an international conference starting today in Belgrade.

Petric charged that "this is one more act committed by fascist terrorist groups whose activity has been tolerated on the soil of the United States for many years."

He said his country had repeatedly warned U.S. officials of such activity and "on the very eve of the attack, we again warned them of the danger of a repetition of terrorist acts."

The ambassador did not say what American officials had received the warning except that it was not the local police.

The city has mounted a 24-hour guard on the mission for some time and one police officer was on duty outside the four-story townhouse facing Central Park when the three gunmen entered.

They were identified as Marijan Buconjic, 28, of New Windsor, N.Y.; Jozo Brekalo, 30, of St. Louis, and Vladimir Bizbar, 23, of Chicago.

The officer, John Gavin, said he heard a shot moments after the trio entered.

They had locked the entrance door, but Gavin kicked out the glass and entered to find a Yugoslav chauffeur-guard, Radomir Medic, 58, lying wounded in the lobby. Medic was reported in "stable but guarded" condition at a hospital.

Gavin said he chased the intruders to the third floor office.

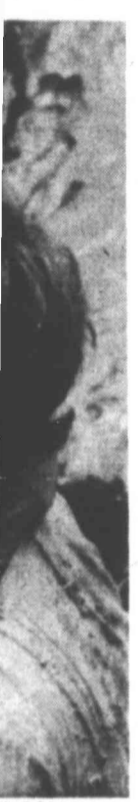

During the seige, marksmen trained rifles over a Central Park wall toward the mission and scores of other police and

FBI men surrounded the building. The Croatians floor leadlets out the third-floor window, hauled in the Yugoslav flag and demanded that Serbia, Croatia and Slovenia be made separate nations independent of Yugoslavia. The three were to be arraigned today in Manhattan Criminal Court on charges of attempted murder, assault, illegal possession of weapons and third-degree burglary.

LBJ's son-in-law wins No. 2 spot

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. Henry Howell and Charles Robb, son-in-law of the late President Lyndon Johnson, will head the Democratic ticket in Virginia's elections this fall.

Howell, 56, won the nomination for governor over former Atty. Gen. Andrew Miller, 44, by about the same margin he lost the governor's race in 1973.

Nearly complete vote totals in the governor's race gave Howell 253,681 and Miller 240,058.

Robb, a 37-year-old attorney from McLean in northern Virginia, had a nearly 30,000-vote edge over his nearest opponent in his first bid for public office.

With 99 per cent of the precincts accounted for, Robb had 185,511 votes, compared to 156,119 for state Del. Richard Reynolds III, heir to the Reynolds Metals fortune, and 132,008 for state Del. Ira Lechner.

State Del. Edward Lane of Richmond easily won a four-way race for the nomination for attorney general.

Howell, a liberal, consumer-oriented attorney from the port city of Norfolk, will face Republican Lt. Gov. John Dalton of Radford in the Nov. 8 general election.

Republican nominees were chosen by a party convention.

The winner in November will succeed Gov. Mills Godwin, a man who had the distinction of serving as a Democratic governor from 1966 to 1970 and returning in 1974 as a Republican.

Robb was the glamor candidate in the contest for the No. 2 spot on the ticket. He was joined frequently on the campaign trail by his wife, Lynda Bird, and his mother-in-law, Lady Bird.

Classes for tax avoiders said a fraud

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A course in beating taxes can run up to $20,000, but that doesn't rank it any higher in the eyes of state officials.

In a consumer protection suit filed by the state attorney general's office, a system of setting up trusts to avoid paying estate, gift, probate, income and inheritance taxes is termed fraud.

Spokane County Superior Court Judge Willard Roe ordered two financial counselors Tuesday to stop giving classes in beating the tax collector.

R. Bruce Ripley of Woodinville and Karl L. Dahlstrom of Bryan, Tex., reportedly charged $5,000 to $20,000 for the course.

The two and their American Law Educational Society and American Law Association are defendants in the suit, which claims the techniques sold as financial counseling constitute "a blatant fraud" and "a gross misconstruction of the applicable law."

The men have conducted lectures and classes in Washington state and engaged in the unauthorized practice of law, the state contends.

Temperatures were again in the 60s and 70s during the early morning, but were expected to reach the 90s and 100s during the afternoon.

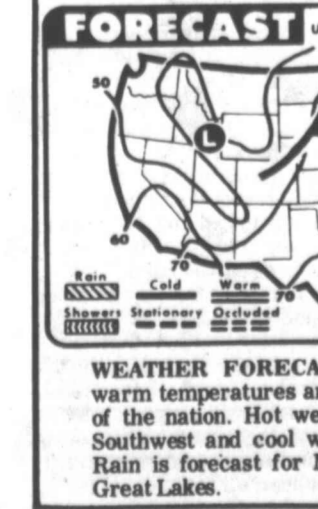

Forecasters predicted heavy rains and the danger of flash floods across Southeast Texas today, with thunderstorms punching into the eastern and western edges of Texas.

We should match jobs and skills

Remember, Mr. Big Spring Employer, that this community will have a number of civilians looking for new jobs this summer and fall.

These will be the 365 Webb Air Force Base civilians who did not receive consideration for military jobs elsewhere.

Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander at Webb, is mailing out letters to major firms in this region of West Texas to help these multi-skilled people find suitable employment.

BIG SPRING has a serious interest in keeping as many of these people in our community as we can. Most of them love West Texas and prefer to stay if possible.

Convincing companies that Big Spring can attract a labor force is one of the obstacles most in the road to bringing more industry to our town.

Employees, both skilled and unskilled, are in short supply all over West Texas, and it is a shame when one considers how high the national unemployment rate is.

Webb, which will have its flying mission ended by the first of September and the base reduced to caretaker status by Oct. 1, has very good employes for the most part. Before the government chose Webb to close (a political selection more than anything else), these employes had carved out the best record for Webb in the Air Training Command.

EVEN IF some of these employes find work in nearby areas such as Midland or Odessa, our community will be better off than if they leave the region entirely.

We know there are jobs needing good people. They are evident in the "help wanted" sections of this newspaper and the others of West Texas.

Let's try to match as many of these jobs with the Webb skills as we possibly can. If you have an opening of any kind, please take the time to contact Chris Hines, civilian personnel representative at Webb. The phone number is 267-2511, extension 2215.

It is important that these contacts be made before our civilians find themselves with offers from other areas that might encourage them to move away.

Lapsed war

William F. Buckley, Jr.

That war declared by President Carter a couple of months ago turned out to be the fastest war in the history of wars. "War," we have all noticed, early in the sixties became the preferred rhetorical form for launching large bureaucratic enterprises. The champagne bottle for dreadnought social movements. Unless you qualified to have a war fought in your behalf you were, really, nothing. We had a war on poverty, a war on pollution, a war on discrimination, a war on inequality, and most recently a war on energy, to the declaration of which President Carter mobilized all the noise-making instruments at his disposal.

There was considerable popular commotion, mobilization, discussion, — and then, after the elaborate countdown and the dread declaration was formally made, week after listless week went by, like the early months of the Civil War after the explosive beginning at Fort Sumter; and nothing happened. Last week, a committee of the House of Representatives emerged as the victor. The prophet is dead, and the war over.

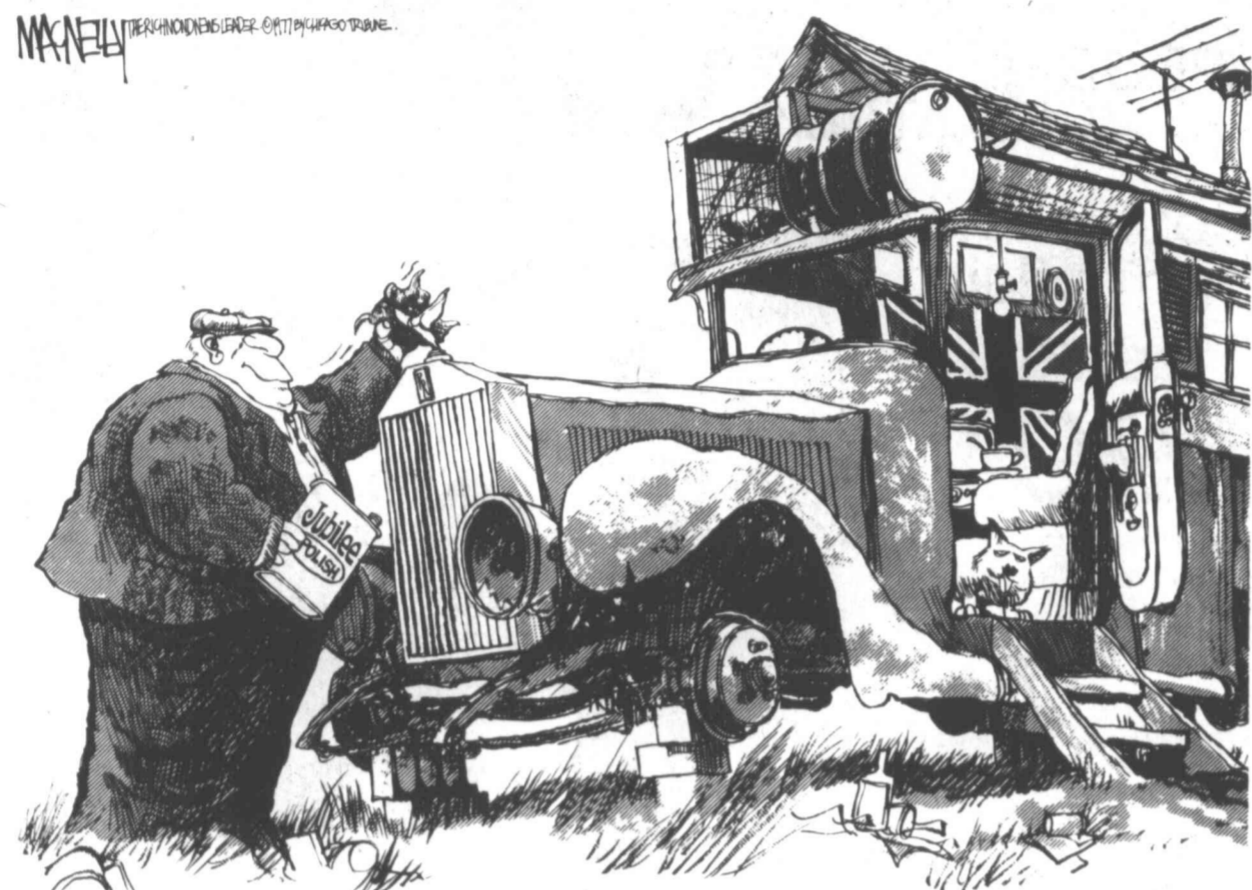

WHAT CONGRESS did was refuse to accept the sense of urgency required to make a war psychologically feasible. It was as if General Eisenhower had massed his army for the crossing of the English Channel in 1944 — millions of men, hundreds of thousands of machines — and Congress had voted to deny the army any 3-in-1 oil to lubricate the Specifically, Congress postponed until 1979 the surcharge on heavy cars. This postponement means that Congress intends to be guided by economic developments in the near future, lest that surcharge be understood as a marginal obstacle in the path to economic recovery. If pressure develops in the next year to postpone yet again the penalties on larger cars, Congress may yield to that pressure. In another measure, Congress has in effect refused to buy Mr. Carter's call for a progressive gasoline tax, calculated to reduce consumption. These measures have had the public effect of removing a crucial timber from a complex scaffolding. What is left up there appears to be suspended in general indecision, and will probably collapse.

Meanwhile all other kinds of factors erode the Carter plan. An obscure scientist reports the notion of doubling or tripling our reliance on coal is all very well, but did anybody stop to think what that much more carbon dioxide would do to the ocean currents, the trout streams, the protonatory warblers, the rainfall? To tell the absolute truth, if for one have not thought about this and, clearly, neither have the members of the Congressional committee, who did not quite know what to say.

The environmentalists are having a difficult time, because they do not wish to yield an inch in the matter of their pure air and their pure water and their virginal hills and dales, but the work is leaking out in the Archie Bunker circuit that we could double the efficiency of our present oil supplies by stepping back a pace or two from our struggle for a cleaner atmosphere.

THERE ARE people who are asking themselves frankly: Would I be willing to go back to the air pollution standards of seven or eight years ago if by doing so I could reduce the consumption of fuel by the amount required to postpone the crisis? Then, finally, the public is suffering from a kind of apocalyptic-hunger which, when all is said and done, is counter-productive.

Beware the quack clinic

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was very happy to read your article about "cleansing the system." I have discovered the biggest and most dangerous con artist in this country.

I all began about two months ago when we learned my mother-in-law, who had a mastectomy, now has cancer in the hip and right leg. My father-in-law heard about this practitioner who runs a facility and takes so-called tests involving the saliva and urine of the patient. This tells him if a person has a certain illness, where it is located and — get this — if he is on the verge of getting a disease or condition.

Much against our protests they made arrangements for the $400-a-week per person fee and went to this clinic. They met hundreds of people there from all over, some with cancer, some diabetes, others with such conditions as hypertension, hypoglycemia, colitis, and so on. Treatments consisted of fasting for three days and drinking lemon juice and water every half hour, colonic enemas, etc. Then there was a diet of nothing but vegetables, celery, fruit, celery and carrot juice, and various vitamins.

He also tells the people such things as that soap robs your body of vitamin C, and aspirins make you lose six teaspoonfuls of blood every time you take them, also that cookies cause polio in children, and so on.

After three weeks their my-in-laws now argue about the use of chemotherapy for cancer. They are convinced they are doing the right thing by following this clinic's advice. It's a very sad situation. My mother-in-law claims she feels good except she still has pain in her lower spine, hip, and leg. She can hardly walk on the leg. The clinic says this is normal, as the "poisons" are leaving her system.

My mother-in-law greatly respects your opinion, and she reads your column faithfully. Is this man giving false hope to people and robbing them of their life's blood? Please comment. —P.S.

Your last question expresses my views on the matter. I would add that this nonsense is also keeping them from proper medical attention they apparently do need.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a nervous person and I find that, when I rush and then eat, within an hour or two I get severe cramps and diarrhea. I had a GI series and all came back negative except for a slight diverticulosis. Could a nervous system cause this? It doesn't happen too often. I am 51. — Mrs. M.D.P.

You've diagnosed your own problem, so why not act on that? I suggest you begin your meal by relaxing over a glass of milk or whatever beverage you prefer. Tension and "nerves" are more your problem than mild diverticulosis. Nerves do not cause diverticulosis — it is fairly common at your age.

Dear Dr.: Do you recommend use of sugar to help cure bedsores? — R.E.

Sugar (granulated) apparently causes tissue changes that can bring healing in some cases. It is an old-fashioned remedy, but there's nothing wrong with old-fashioned remedies if they work. You sprinkle it on the sore and cover with a tight sterile bandage. Daily application is suggested.

For the bedridden patient, cleanliness and periodic changing of position can prevent bedsores.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible say about heaven? Will it be like the pictures you see of clouds and angels with harps? — Mrs. D.D.

DEAR MRS. D.: The Bible repeatedly tells us of the reality of heaven, although it does not try to describe it in great detail. Probably the most complete description is in the book of Revelation, especially in chapter 21. However, even here the author frequently uses phrases such as "her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper" (Revelations 21:11); this indicates that the splendor of heaven is beyond description, and the author can only say what it is like rather than what it is.

There are several wonderful things the Bible tells us about heaven. For example, it tells us that all the pain, suffering and sorrow we have on this earth will be completely absent. "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away" (Revelation 21:4).

The Bible also tells us that we will have perfect fellowship with God in heaven. "Now we see but a poor reflection; then we shall see face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I am fully known" (I Corinthians 13:12, New International Version).

The wonderful thing about heaven, however, is not simply that it is real, but that we can know right now that we will go there some day. When we put our faith and trust in Jesus Christ as our Saviour, we are born again "into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, and into an inheritance that can never perish, spoil or fade — kept in heaven for you" (I Peter 1:3-4, NIV).

Double life

Around the rim

Bill Werrell

Finally it was my 16th birthday, and it was my turn to take into my own hands the wheel of a car and establish myself on official paper.

It was a fairly simple ordeal; taking the drivers education courses, passing the driving examination, and finally, after proving my age with a birth certificate, and my identification with a Social Security number, I received the document which granted me the right to drive a car in the United States.

NOT ONLY did the slip of paper, signed by the registrar of motor vehicles in Ohio, give me the right to drive, but, in a couple of years, gave me access to many thrills that without proof of age were previously denied me.

I was a cinch, flash the slip of paper and I was instantly permitted to enter an X-rated theatre, enjoy 3.2 beer, open several bank accounts, write dozens of checks, and even manage to break the law a couple of times with traffic citations.

What a wonderful world the identification qualities of the drivers license opened up. There I was, substantiated in official black and white; my Social Security number tucked up in one corner, and birthday inscribed across the center, with a complete description of my physical characteristics in typed detail along the bottom.

Soon, most everything I did required at least a flash of the document. The Scholastic Achievement Tests, those absurd mind benders once believed to be an indication of one's overall knowledge of everything, were compulsory material for those who were college bound, and required a positive identification in the form of a Social Security number.

Personal patronage

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The president's pollster, Patrick Caddell, apparently has been granted his own personal patronage. He interviewed the candidate for census director and then recommended that the appointment go to one of his commercial clients.

With Caddell's endorsement, the prestigious post was awarded to Manuel Plotkin, a top Sears Roebuck executive. The company was an early subscriber to Caddell's $20,000-a-year polling service. And it was none other than Plotkin, as the company's research director, who urged Sears Roebuck to subscribe.

THE BRILLIANT, 27-year-old pollster told us he had undertaken the search at the request of the White House. He said he recommended Plotkin for the census post after interviewing half a dozen candidates. Applicants were told by a transition official: "Pat Caddell's handling that one."

The Census Bureau falls under the jurisdiction of the Commerce Dept. Yet the department's top officials never spoke to Plotkin until Caddell had already selected him for the job. As Caddell recalled it, he mentioned about six prospects to Commerce officials and told them: "You might as well start with Plotkin; I think he's the guy."

Plotkin was then interviewed by Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps and other department bigwigs. "Plotkin was Caddell's recommendation," one high official told us. "By the time the secretary interviewed him, he was pretty well chosen."

The pollster was more modest. "I helped with the search," he conceded, "but it was their decision."

He told us that he met with Plotkin every few months to discuss his Positive identification was required to enter college, and to hold down jobs during the school year and in the summer, and eventually to receive the certificate of graduation.

And finally the old S.S. number was needed in Big Spring to validate my existence to a couple of banks, my employer, and the credit union from which I borrowed a couple hundred dollars.

Everything seemed okay up until today. I had established an identity as Bill Werrell, holding down a job as S.S. number 521-24-0871 (the same as my Ohio driver's license) and even, (admittedly needing a reminder from mom and dad at times) making my own living.

AND THEN the letter arrived at my home from the IRS. It was addressed to James M. and Eloise G. Werrell, (my parents) but the postal address was correct. Never believing for a moment that I could owe anyone that much money, I finally came to the alarming conclusion that the Social Security number I had always assumed was mine, was actually my father's.

How strange it must have seemed to the Social Security department, that my father (S.S. 521-24-0871), all the time a fairly successful stock broker, managed to go back and get another B.A. degree, delivered papers, and worked summers as a trash man — all at the same time.

Not only was he able to get an education while working full time as a stock broker, and recently a newspaper reporter, but he was able to establish residences in Ohio, and Texas at the same time, working 40 hour weeks in both places.

As for the accomplishments of his son, William, nothing has been heard of him since he was 16.

polling data. But he stressed that his poll had been transferred from Plotkin's division before the 1976 campaign.

Caddell added that he knew some of the other applicants more intimately than Plotkin. He informed the Commerce officials, in any event, of his business relationship with Plotkin, Caddell told us.

White House press secretary Jody Powell is not disturbed over Caddell's involvement. He told our associate, Howie Kurtz, that Plotkin was "superbly qualified" to run the census and asked rhetorically: "What does Pat stand to gain from recommending him? Nothing."

Powell added: "If you get anyone who knows anything about the field, he's going to have relationships with people in the business. It's hard to avoid an appearance of conflict."

PLOTKIN TOLD us there was "no possibility of a conflict of interest." He had evaluated Caddell's polling service for Sears Roebuck in 1974, he said, "before I ever heard of Jimmy Carter." The final decision to subscribe to the service, Plotkin insisted, was made not by him but by his superior. Both Plotkin and Caddell acknowledged, however, that Plotkin had evaluated the service, recommended it highly and strongly influenced Sears Roebuck to subscribe.

As the president's pollster, Caddell has impressed Carter and has become a close adviser. At the same time, Caddell is earning about $1 million a year peddling his polling service to a long list of corporate and political clients.

OPENING DOORS — A 200-year-old tradition will come to an end this month with the recruitment of doormen to help guard the great bleached walnut door of the House.

The decision was made, perhaps inappropriately, behind closed doors. It all began with a request by House Doorkeeper James Molloy for more men to help him open doors. His request was approved by a House administration subcommittee, which referred it to the full committee for action.

"The Doorkeeper made a great case and convinced the subcommittee he needed five additional doormen," announced Chairman Frank Thompson, D-N.J.

Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala., objected. "There are no more doors than last year," he snorted.

"BUT WE find the doors unmanned," pleaded Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill.

The five extra doorkeepers "are probably needed," suggested Rep. Bill Frenze, R-Minn., "to open the doors for the ten additional pages."

The confidential transcript shows that Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., raised the question of recruiting women. The present door openers, he said are "all male and they have created a Doormen's Society which has parties on a regular basis."

"That would make the parties more fun," quipped Thompson. The committee agreed that there should be no sex discrimination on the House doors. And afterward, Thompson and Rose cosigned a letter in behalf of the committee, asking that the doorkeeper "actively recruit women applicants."

Bitter mother wants killer nabbed

DALLAS (AP) — "I want this person found, whoever it is," says a bitter Mrs. Barbara Baughman, the mother of seven-year-old Ladina McCoy, whose skeletal remains were found last weekend in a South Dallas creekbed. On Tuesday, police told Mrs. Baughman, who is four months pregnant, that her daughter died of a bullet wound to the chest. They admitted, however, that they have no leads in the abduction-slaying. "This is not the end," said Mrs. Baughman, who led a four-month campaign throughout the North Texas area distributing photographs and leaflets asking people about her missing daughter. "I want this person (the killer) found, not so much because of what has happened to Ladina, but to keep it from happening to some other child. "I am bitter and I want to get this person stopped. I don't want anybody else to go through this." The blonde first-grader was last seen on Feb. 11 while on her way to school.

Two other girls said Ladina walked behind and stopped to pick up something. They added that when they turned she was gone and the only thing they saw was a light-colored car speeding away. "I just hope she did not suffer," Mrs. Baughman said after learning how her daughter died. "If it had to be, I hope it was over very quickly so there wasn't any suffering on her part." "I know there is a reason for it (Ladina's death) but I can't comprehend what it is," she added. "It is important to us to know how she died," Sgt. Joe Poe of the Crimes Against Persons said. "There are no leads in the search for the killer."

Audience asks 'More' from Dana

BY MARJ CARPENTER

Known for his recordings of "More" and "Red Roses for a Blue Lady", Vic Dana opened his show in Big Spring Tuesday night at the Brass Nail. Dana, who will appear nightly tonight and Thursday this week and Monday through Thursday next week, presents a show with popular songs from three decades. This is an amazing feat for a young man of 36, who says, "Everybody thinks I'm older than I am because I have been around so long."

The young Italian showman started out when he was nine years old, tap dancing and winning several Ted Mack Amateur Hours.

At that time, Sammy Davis Jr. spotted Vic dancing in Buffalo, N.Y., and became interested in the lad. He told the boy's parents that he would never make it in show business in Buffalo and suggested they move to California.

The family picked up and moved. "That put a heavy responsibility on my back to succeed," Vic recalled. His name at that time was Sammy Mendola and "people often confused it with Mendoza."

"I picked the name Vic Dana out of a Los Angeles telephone directory and used it from then on," Dana recalled. He laughed, "I didn't think about the initials. I never have put my monogram on anything. And on top of that I'm often confused with Vic Damone or Bill Dana."

Dana got out of dancing when it appeared that the musical was out and there were to be no replacements for his heroes — "Gene Kelly and Fred Astaire."

He began with a recording of "Little Altar Boy" one Christmas and went on to record many successful recordings including "Mr. Blue," "Come Softly to Me," "Shangri-La," and "Crystal Chandelier."

He has made television appearances with Johnny Carson, Mike Douglas, Dean Martin and the Hollywood Squares and has acting credits, performances in "Burke's Law," "Combat," "Shadow Over Elevation" and the NBC World Premiere.

In 1959, he saw an advertisement in a show business publication that the Fleetwoods, leading singing group in the nation at that time, were hunting a lead singer.

"I don't know what made me do it, but I tried out and got the spot and I was on my way," Dana recalled.

He sang with that group until about 1962 and struck out with his own recordings. By 1963, his recording of "More" was climbing to the top and the Beatles came over from England and began to steal the scene.

Dana laughingly recalls, "My recording was fourth in the country and the first three were Beatle records."

He said that it is getting "more and more difficult to make it in the recording business. So many decisions are made now by a few individuals."

He pointed out that you used to could tour the country and talk to individual disc jockeys.

"Nowadays, a chain will own several radio stations and one man might make all the selections. They also play fewer records daily than they used to and there are more recordings out. It's quite a battle."

He explained that the fine lines between "Pop, Soul and Country music are almost gone. One song may end up on all three lists."

Coming to Big Spring from Canada, he has sung in such clubs as the Sahara in Las Vegas, Harvey's at Lake Tahoe, and the renowned Coconut Grove.

"A lot of people wonder why we tour at clubs out in the Southwest, but it is because we like to sing for people in the South and Southwest. People out in this part of the country are still alive," Dana said with a smile.

And the audience on his opening night was alive and responsive to the two shows he performed. His wife, Paula, operates the spot and he is also accompanied by a band that furnishes music for dancing in between shows.

"I don't believe this is Big Spring," one member of the audience quipped Tuesday night.

Police chief may make 'troop squirm a bit'

HOUSTON (AP) — Acting Police Chief Harry Caldwell says he wants to bring community relations closer to the community. He did not explain his plan Tuesday but said he would try to move community relations away from the downtown police station "and into the precincts." He also said at a news conference he will impose "strict" discipline that may make "some of the troops squirm a bit."

"It is my hope we can get off the front pages and onto the front streets," he said.

He said he has asked the U.S. Department of Justice to help him explore options to federal mediation as a means of improving police-community relations.

Members of the Coalition for Responsible Law Enforcement, a citizens group formed to monitor police affairs, were attempting to persuade former Police Chief B.G. Bond to agree to federal mediation before Bond resigned last week to seek the mayor's post in November.

Meanwhile, a grand jury investigation continues into the drowning of Joe Campos Torres, 23, last month while in police custody.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Bert Graham said the inquiry could continue at least two more weeks.

For the record

The Herald owes the City of Bonham an apology.

In the June 13 edition of the newspaper, the Sam Rayburn Home and the Sam Rayburn Library were listed as being in Denison rather than Bonham. The late speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives always took great pride in his home town, Bonham.

Several eagle-eyed readers spotted the mistake and were nice enough to call the paper about it. Those planning to visit the Rayburn shrines should remember they are in Bonham.

Water projects pass, veto override not likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House of Representatives, voting against President Carter in favor of 17 controversial water projects, don't appear to have the strength to overcome a possible veto.

The 218-194 vote on funding 16 of the projects was unexpectedly close Tuesday, apparently surprising even White House aides. One said the administration expected to have only 175 votes on the issue. The key House vote on the projects came on an amendment to eliminate 16 projects in 15 states from the measure. The amendment did not attempt to eliminate funding for a 17th project Carter opposes, the Auburn Dam in California.

The decision to fund the water projects came as the House worked on a $10.2 billion public works appropriations bill, passed on a vote of 356-54.

A Senate subcommittee was expected to vote today on staff recommendations that reportedly call for eliminating 8 of the 17 disputed projects the House approved.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter was pleased by the House vote, even though it went against his wishes. The spokesman said the vote "indicates substantial sympathy" for efforts to hold down spending.

Asked whether Carter would veto the measure, Powell said, "It's certainly our hope he will not be faced with a situation in which he has to exercise the veto."

A lobbyist working against the water projects, Brent Blackwelder of the Environmental Policy Center, said the close House vote would mean "more than eight dumped on the Senate side."

"This was a victory," said Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., one of the sponsors of the amendment to cut spending for the projects. "It was a real victory."

Supporters of the amendment had said they didn't believe it would pass, but had hoped to get the necessary one-third to prevent the House from overriding a veto.

The vote was 48 more than the one-third needed to sustain a veto.

Carter has said he might veto the bill if the disputed projects are approved. Sources in Congress and the environmental movement said the projects recommended for elimination in the Senate subcommittee vote were: Bayou Bodcau, Louisiana, $2.4 million; Cache Basin, Arkansas, $2 million; LaFarge Lake, Wisconsin, $2 million; Lukfata Lake, Oklahoma, $200,000,

High hopes for recovery dashed by death

DALLAS (AP) — Hopes ran high this past weekend for Dallaste Julie Lavvorn and her family. The 19-year-old mother of two, stricken with a deadly form of anemia, was in Los Angeles for a bone marrow transplant that might help her beat the odds.

But late Monday, eight days before the scheduled surgery, the disease won. She died in the Los Angeles hospital. Physicians suspected a brain hemorrhage caused her death.

Mrs. Lavvorn's mother and two of her sisters had made the trip with her. One sister was to be the donor in the marrow transplant and the other was to donate blood.

The young mother had said she was "going to fight this thing through" in hopes of seeing her two children go to school.

The aplastic anemia she was stricken with caused the marrow in her bones to stop producing necessary blood components. Doctors had told her she had only a 30 per cent chance of survival.

GI loans at record pace

Wide interest in GI home loans continued at a record pace in March, Jack Coker, Director, VA Regional Office in Waco, has revealed.

VA received 71,136 appraisal requests in March, the highest monthly total in nearly 21 years. The March 1977 figure was 22 per cent higher than February's and 12 per cent above the March 1976 total. A VA appraisal of a house is the first step to applying for a VA guaranteed loan.

March's heavy volume pushed the total appraisal requests received for the first half of fiscal year 1977 to 328,608. This is 15 per cent higher than the same period a year ago.

Applications for GI home loans also reflected the surge. VA received 40,979 applications in March, 35 per cent above February and 16 per cent higher than a year ago.

Loan applications during the first half of FY 1977 totaled 205,256, 22 per cent over the same six months a year ago.

VA loan guaranty officials attribute some of the new business to a 1975 law that eased GI loan eligibility.

Prior to January 1, 1975, a veteran who had once used his GI loan eligibility could have it restored only under special circumstances.

VA had to be relieved of liability and the property had to have been disposed of for "compelling reasons," Coker said.

Congress removed the "compelling reasons" restrictions, allowing entitlement to be restored if the property has been disposed of and the loan satisfied. This means most veterans with service since September 19, 1940, are potentially eligible for a GI loan.

The law also provided the original veteran's liability be removed automatically and eligibility restored if another veteran purchases the property and substitutes his VA loan eligibility for that of the seller.

Since June 22, 1944, more than 9.5 million veterans and service members have borrowed $129 billion under the VA loan guaranty program. The VA guarantees a loan up to 60 per cent or a maximum of $17,500.

The benefit is available to veterans and active-duty personnel with at least 181 days service. Also eligible are unmarried surviving spouses of these veterans and spouses of service members listed as missing in action for more than 90 days.

Information on VA home loan benefits can be obtained from any VA office, veterans county service officer, or from veterans' organization service officers.

Nuclear weapons race creates danger

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The nuclear weapons race and expanding international arms trade are increasing the probability of a general nuclear war, an international research body said today.

"The increasing amount of resources spent on arms competitions in the world today, particularly on the nuclear arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union, together with the uncontrolled international trade in arms and the proliferating capability to produce nuclear weapons will probably make the next decade an exceedingly dangerous period," said the eighth yearbook of the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI).

Improved offensive and defensive strategic weapons and sizable nuclear arsenals "could well lead to a situation in which adventurous political and military leaders in one (or both) of the great powers may perceive a chance of winning a strategic nuclear war," the report warned.

SIPRI, which is funded by the Swedish government but has an international staff and governing board, said the United States admits having 1,054 land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs), 656 submarine-launched ballistic missiles (SLBMs) on 41 nuclear subs and about 9,000 independently targetable nuclear warheads.

The Soviet Union was reported to have about 1,500 ICBMs, about 800 SLBMs on nearly 60 subs and about 140 strategic bombers. These forces could deliver some 4,000 independently targetable warheads, the report said.

In addition to strategic nuclear forces, the United States and the Soviet Union have tens of thousands of tactical nuclear weapons.

SIPRI reported the United States still ahead of the Soviets in qualitative development of nuclear weapons and warned of danger from the "continous improvement of the accuracy of warhead delivery."

The yearbook said the guidance system of the U.S. Minuteman III ICBM can drop half of its warheads within 200 yards of a target from a range of 8,000 miles. It said warheads of the mid-1980s may be accurate within 30 yards at the same range.

The arsenals of thousands of nuclear weapons constitute a hazard in themselves, the institute said. It reported there have been at least 125 nuclear weapon accidents in the past 30 years in missile silos, in the air and under the sea, an average of one every three months.

None caused detonation of a nuclear weapon, SIPRI said. But some released large amounts of radiation, it reported.

$12 Million Katy loan guarantee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Railroad Administration today awarded a $12-million loan guarantee to the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad to improve 154 miles of track in Texas and Oklahoma.

The guarantee is the first to be approved as part of a $400 million program under the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976.

In signing the agreement, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said it "signifies both my personal commitment and the dedication of the Department of Transportation to carrying out major rail improvement programs."

Also signing were Bruce Flohr, deputy administrator of the railroad administration, and Reginald N. Whitman, chairman of the board and president of the railroad.

The funds will be used for improvements along the main line tracks and sidings between Durant, Okla., and Whiteboro, Tex., and between Fort Worth and Waco, Tex.

Three other railroads have loan guarantee applications pending.

They include: Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Co., $17.7 million, and the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co., $16 million. The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co. has two applications, one for $81 million and another for $7.2 million.

Forsan school gets funds

Cong. Omar Burleson announces the tentative entitlement of $5,952 to the Forsan County Line Independent School District for fiscal year 1977 by the office of Education under Public Law 94 providing financial assistance for schools in federally affected areas.

Some $4,166.48 has been certified for immediate payments and the check should reach the school district within the next week or so.

Restaurant owner sued

MIDLAND — Alois Munder, owner of La Bodega Restaurant here, is being sued for $1.3 million.

Among the acts of negligence, Kirwan says, is the fact that the stairway had insufficient lighting.

Webb employees ponder future

Although Webb AFB civilian employees received their notices of separation and offers of transfer, for most there is still a lot of indecision and uncertainty about their future.

Even those who "have it made" and are eligible for retirement, would like to have worked just a few more years. That would increase their monthly income as well as add more to the nest egg.

Many who are not old enough to qualify for retirement have no choice but to go on to the best offer they can get. They have children yet to raise and educate and living expenses go on.

Harold Danford of Maintenance plans scheduling, at 49, still has a few years to go to retire. Most of his five children are grown and on their own, but he has a 14-year-old son at home and a daughter planning to start college this fall. He plans to accept a transfer and asked for Laughlin AFB, Del Rio, Tex.

Jesse A. Madry, an aircraft mechanic, has about 17 years invested counting four years military service. His wife, Betty, worked downtown most of her career but came to Webb as a clerk typist four years ago. They have two sons, Michael, 15, and Jeffrey, 9, Reese AFB, Lubbock, Tex., is his first choice and Betty plans to work wherever he goes.

About 50 per cent of the maintenance workers will take their retirement which being over 55 and having more than 30 years entitles them to, Mr. Danford estimated. Many of these transferred from other bases which closed previously.

Dorothy Nixon, whose husband owns a barbershop in Coahoma, will try to find a job at Reese and complete the time she needs for retirement. He will accompany her and get someone else to run his shop. "I've got to go someplace," she said. One of her main concerns is the comprehensive hospital insurance enjoyed by Defense Department employees.

Jo Jones, a widow whose two sons have families of their own, will go wherever she can get a job. She signed up for the "stopper list" as well as the "displaced employee" program. A budget analyst, she has worked at Webb 18 years and owns her home in Big Spring. Edna Ames and her husband Vic are two of those who plan to retire. She has "mixed emotions" and one day looks forward to it and other days thinks it will be difficult to give up the working environment and friends she has made. He has more than 20.

The Ames like Big Spring and plan to remain. She has been the Federal Women's Program coordinator for Webb and worked as a logistics management specialist. Vic is the supervisor of document control section in base supply.

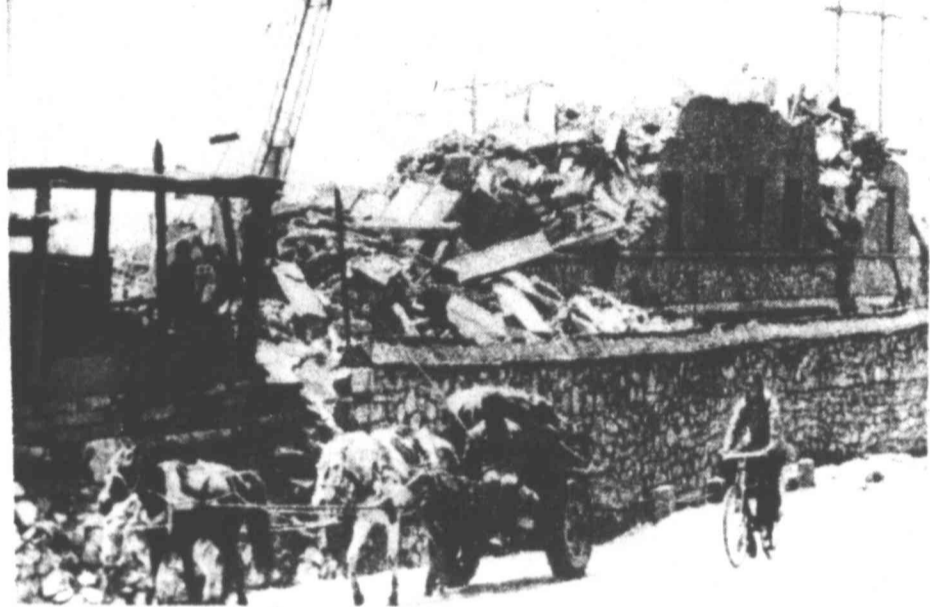

Neither of the Ames are natives of this area although she was born at Westbrook. She grew up in Kilgore and he is from central Illinois. They've been in Big Spring 20 years and own their home here. They met in California when she was a welder in a ship yard and he was stationed at Hamilton Field with the Air Corps during World War II. Their son is married and lives in West Texas.

Eddie James, a mail distribution clerk, plans to move back to San Antonio where he worked half of his 26 years with the other half here. Although divorced, the father of five has an obligation toward their support and at 45 he has a ways to go before retirement.

Many employees want to remain in the area and well over 100 have signed up to be considered for other Civil Service jobs with such agencies as the Veterans Administration, Social Security, Agriculture Department, and others as well as the Postal Service.

Chris Martinez's husband works for Cosden and their 2½-year-old son ties her close to Big Spring, but she wants to keep working. She is an accounting technician and hopes to find other work in Civil Service.

The uncertainty of what would happen to Webb is over. Those whose future is uncertain will be glad when they know what that next step will be.

Nursing homes reform sought

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, says he'll re-introduce a nursing home regulation bill, which was killed in the recent session, if Gov. Dolph Briscoe will expand the upcoming special legislative session.

In a letter to Briscoe, Mengden asked the governor to expand the upcoming session in light of recent Lufkin News revelations concerning abuse of Texas nursing home residents.

The articles claimed that scores of Texas nursing home residents have been beaten, underfed and given inadequate medication.

Mengden's nursing home regulation bill passed the Senate, but never came to a vote in the House before the 6th Legislature adjourned May 30.

State and federal investigations of nursing homes have been ordered since the articles were printed by the East Texas newspaper. The News said it had documents, obtained through private sources, concerning the beating of a 76-year-old woman, inadequate food supplies for residents and other abuses.

The bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Bill Blythe, R-Houston, would require semi-annual meetings of interested persons at each nursing home. Officials from the Texas Department of Health Resources, the licensing agency for nursing homes, would act as moderators.

Mengden said the proposal was strongly supported by the American Association of Retired Persons, the National Retired Teachers Association and the Texas AFL-CIO. The Texas Nursing Home Association, however, voiced strong opposition to it.

"During the regular session I could not understand why the nursing home association was so unequivocally opposed to my bill," Mengden said.

A GOLDEN ERA PASSES— The Broadway Limited, a crack train of the Golden Era of railroading, celebrated her 75th birthday today. She made her maiden run on June 15, 1902, covering the 904 miles from New York City to Chicago in 20 hours. Today she takes 19.

Smokers asked to fight, not switch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eastern Airlines will reserve 65 per cent of its seats for nonsmokers, a move the tobacco lobby wants smokers to fight.

The airline will guarantee a "nonsmoking" seat for any passenger who requests it, even if it means banning smoking in part or all of the smoking section.

The move comes as part of a settlement with antismoking groups that may set an industry-wide precedent.

Eastern also agreed to pay a $10,000 fine for denying passengers seating in nonsmoking areas.

In Miami, Bill Wooten, an Eastern spokesman, said that if all seats in the nonsmoking section were filled, the section would be expanded on a row-by-row basis if additional passengers request such seats.

Wooten said that the presence of one nonsmoker in a row would make it a nonsmoking row. Any smokers in such a row would have to refrain. He said that smokers would not be bumped from any flight to make room for nonsmokers, adding, "If you've got a reservation, that's it."

Civil Aeronautics Board rules say that seats must be provided in a no-smoking area for passengers who request them, but do not require a specific number of seats for nonsmokers. A CAB spokesman could not explain how the 65 per cent figure was reached.

The decision, reached with complaining consumer groups shortly before a trial was to begin before a Civil Aeronautics Board law judge Tuesday, is being hailed as a precedent.

"It certainly is the first time something like this dealing with smokers has happened," said Alan Pollock, a CAB spokesman.

Consumers groups said they hoped the agreement, which now goes before the CAB board for approval, will lead to the same outcome in similar complaints pending against TWA and United Airlines.

Better role for women urged

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The newly elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention says it is time his group found a better role for women, but he said local churches must decide individually on the ordination of women.

The Rev. Jimmy Allen, minister of the First Baptist Church of San Antonio, Tex., told a news conference after his election Tuesday that local congregations must decide how best to utilize the talents of their women members.

"Women need to have a role as leaders and decision-makers," Allen said.

The Rev. Mr. Allen defeated Jerry Vines of the Dauphin Way Baptist Church of Mobile, Ala., in a run-off election, 5,136-3,319 at the group's two-day conference here.

Later Tuesday night, the meeting of 12,000 delegates listened to a video-taped message from President Carter who called on his fellow Baptists to provide the money and support to send 50 per cent more missionaries abroad.

"I have done very little compared to others, but I can and will support a volunteer missionary for two years," the President said.

Carter said every major Baptist church should support one missionary family. He said now it takes 5,000 Southern Baptists to support one foreign missionary family.

The President's message dovetails with the Convention's "Bold Mission" effort to evangelize the nation by the year 1980 and the world by the end of this century. The Baptists have announced plans to double the denomination's overseas mission force, currently at 5,000.

The Convention represents more than 35,000 autonomous congregations in the United States with almost 13 million members. It is the country's largest Protestant denomination.

The group's Resolution Committee will consider 15 proposals today and Thursday, including resolutions opposing abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment, and one endorsing the crusade of singer Anita Bryant against homosexuality.

Desai's forces win in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Morarji Desai's forces consolidated their hold on power today with sweeping victories in state elections.

Desai's Janata (People's) party won decisive majorities in six state assemblies and the Union territory of Delhi, and was rolling toward a large majority in powerful Uttar Pradesh State. The Janata was also favored in Bihar State, but early results were inconclusive.

Only 2 of the 10 states voting in the current election round appeared to resist what newspapers called the "Janata wave." Elections were not held in the 12 other states.

As they did in the March national election, the voters overwhelmingly rejected former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's long-dominant Congress party. The party that ruled India for 30 years could claim some slight consolation only in the southern state of Tamil Nadu. There a regional party allied to the Congress appeared likely to win a majority in the assembly.

The traditionally leftist eastern state of West Bengal, which includes Calcutta, was the other holdout against the Janata wave. It appeared to be firmly in the grip of the Marxist Communist party and its leftist allies.

Chief Minister Shyama Charan Shukla of Madhya Pradesh state and Chief Minister Banarsi Da Gupta of Haryana state were among the Congress stalwarts who lost their bids for reelection. Shukla's brother Vidya Charan Shukla was Mrs. Gandhi's information minister and is now under investigation for his part in press censorship during the national emergency.

By midmorning, the Janata had won control of the assemblies in Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, Punjab and Rajasthan and the Delhi metropolitan council. It was running well ahead in Madhya Pradesh, Orissa, Uttar Pradesh and Bihar.

In Uttar Pradesh, Mrs. Gandhi's home state and the Nehru family's former stronghold the Congress party had secured only three of the 425 seats in the state legislature.

Sunday is Dad's Day

Fashion offers variety of gifts

NEW YORK (AP) — A little advance planning can go a long way toward finding a gift that Dad needs or wants for Father's Day this coming Sunday, suggests the Men's Fashion Association, which offers these shopping tips:

— Get to know Dad's sizes. Trying to guess about sizes is a shopper's version of Russian roulette and an almost sure trip to the exchange counter. Check with the store where Dad usually shops — it may keep a record of his collar, sleeve, hat waist, inseam and other key measurements. Or, look inside the collar band of one of his newer shirts or the underside of his belts. If the size search is unsuccessful, go for an item in the one-size-fits-all group, such as socks, robes, swimsuits or underwear. If you are successful in getting the right size information, put it on a card for future reference.

— Get to know more about Dad. Watch, listen to him, check his closet — and you may discover that there are things he needs. Does he come down to Sunday brunch, for example, without slippers or robe? Could he use a pair of new pajamas? Is his favorite aftershave lotion running low? No man really has everything.

— Get to know his favorite sport. Today there are colorfully coordinated outfits as well as specialized items for tennis, golf, sailing, camping, etc. For almost every activity someone has designed a hat, glove, sneakers and socks, sweaters, knit shirts and jackets, or whatever. More Americans than ever before are getting into some kind of action. Surely Dad has his favorite recreation.

example, pick out one of the suits he's recently purchased and using the base color of that suit as a starting point, select a shirt in a harmonizing color and a tie in an accent color as your gift combination. On those mornings when Dad's really too tired to be his own fashion expert, he'll be grateful to you for giving him an outfit that's a certain winner.

— Know your price range. There are gifts you can buy for Dad that range from $5 to $500. For those on a tighter budget, there are handkerchiefs, pocket squares, over-the-calf socks, sporty crew-type socks, underwear, belts, jewelry, wallets, visors, caps and other interesting new summer headwear. And going up the scale — luxurious lightweight sweaters, sports jackets and lightweight outerwear in chintz, chino, denim, suede, leather and nylon.

your favorite store is virtually without limit. But, if you know what you plan to spend and tell the retailer, he'll be able to save you time and trouble.

— Get to know where Dad shops. His favorite local men's wear merchant may have some ideas and information to offer you. At the very least, he can provide you with a gift certificate so that Dad can go to a place he knows and that knows him, where he can be properly outfitted.

The number of ideas you'll get just wandering around the men's department of

Dandy flowers for Dad

DANDY FLOWER: The official Father's day flower is the rose but a group of children from Wilkesburg, Pa., may have come up with a more appropriate blossom to dedicate to Dad, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins. Parents cautioned about diets for hyperactive children Parents of hyperactive children should be cautious about diets that claim to improve the condition, advises Mrs. Sally Coble, a foods and nutrition specialist.

She said there is no scientific proof the diet itself is the cause of improvements attributed to it, and she cites three reasons for being cautious about such a diet—Research does not yet prove food causes hyperactivity in children, recent "dietary" programs to improve hyperactivity really include more than diet—they involve the entire family's lifestyle, and these diets may deprive children of long-term nutrition needs by prohibiting many foods.

Mrs. Coble is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Her advice to parents who think the diet is "worth a try" anyway is to be sure to include proper medical supervision in any such program, and be sure children get a balanced diet of foods from the four food groups—bread-cereal, fruits-vegetables, milk and meat.

Explaining the background behind the "dietary" programs, Mrs. Coble said recent claims state that certain chemicals found in foods—some naturally and some added—"may" be responsible for much of the hyperactivity among children.

Those chemicals are said to be salicylate-like compounds in foods and artificial food flavors and colors, she said.

As therapy for hyperactivity, therefore, those who are making those claims prescribe a diet which eliminates a wide variety of natural (mainly fruits and vegetables) and processed foods.

Mrs. Coble said that reasons for recommended parental caution over the claims are based on research into them by a team of scientists.

To examine the claims, the Nutrition Foundation assembled a team of expert food, medical and behavioral scientists, Mrs. Coble said.

"Their conclusions say that no scientific evidence points to any food as the critical factor in hyperactivity. In fact, they could not pinpoint any single substance as the cause," she reported.

"Further, in the recent dietary programs to treat hyperactivity, more than just the diet is changed.

"The entire family is put on the diet—and on a total lifestyle program, which makes major changes in the entire family routine and in the interaction of members with each other.

"This could mean that changes in 'family dynamics' are the real cause of reported improvements in hyperactive children," Mrs. Coble added.

In addition—nutritionally, the diet may not meet the long-term nutrient needs of children, since it prohibits a large number of food items that contain important nutrients (especially vitamins and minerals), Mrs. Coble said.

Save energy at home

A home can save energy for its vacationing owners—if they will take five conservation steps before walking out the door, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The following is advised:

Turn off all unnecessary appliances. Unplug an "instant-on" TV or timed coffee pots and clock radios.

If you'll be gone more than a week, consider turning off your refrigerator. If you do, remember to unscrew the interior light bulb and prop the door open so mildew won't form. If you prefer to leave the refrigerator running, put it on a warmer setting—and be sure no foods are left that will spoil at this warmer temperature.

Turn off the air conditioner, but be sure to move any house plants to a friend's house—if warmer temperatures in your house would harm them. Consult a horticulturist about temperature-range the plants can withstand.

Feedlot production increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feedlot operators apparently are stepping up production of grainfed beef cattle, according to the Agriculture Department. Officials said Tuesday the inventory of feedlot cattle in seven major beef states on June 1 totalled 7,053,000 head, a decline of 3 per cent from a year ago but 21 per cent more than on June 1, 1975. The department said placement of new cattle in feedlots during May totalled 1,599,000 head.

Wheat crop yield, prices 'excellent'

AUSTIN — In spite of a poor growing season and damaging winds in the Plains, the Texas wheat crop this year is expected to yield over 100 million bushels, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced. Citing statistics released his week by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Brown stated that the yield per acre will be higher this year, forecast now at 25 bushels, totaling to 110 million bushels. Total acreage for the 1977 harvest has been estimated at 4,400,000, down 300,000 from last year; however, production will be 6.6 million more bushels over 1976 due to the increase of 3 bushels per acre. Harvest began in mid-May in South Texas and is now underway in the Southern Low Plains. The May 1 forecast was 9 per cent lower than the World grain harvest near record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a relatively small decline from an initial forecast six weeks ago, world grain crops continue to look as if they will produce near-record harvests in the coming year. The Agriculture Department said Tuesday the 1977-78 world grain output, excluding rice, is estimated at 1,087.2 million metric tons, less than 2 per cent below last season's record of 1,105 million tons. World grain consumption for the year beginning July 1 was estimated at 1,057 million tons, meaning that for the second straight year production will exceed use and lead to another buildup in global reserves of wheat, corn and other food-producing grain. The report cautioned, however, that spring-planted crops in some major Northern Hemisphere areas — including parts of the U.S. Corn Belt and the Soviet Union — still suffer from depleted subsoil moisture and will be vulnerable to summer drought unless rains occur. However, in a weekly weather review issued Tuesday after the world grain report, USDA said that "rains quenched thirsty crops in parts of the major corn and wheat production areas" during the week of June 6-12 and that the crop was rated in "fair to good" shape nationally. The world grain report indicated that if weather patterns do not change precipitously for the worse the grain stockpile on July 1, 1978 is expected to be about 202.1 million tons, up 17.6 per cent from 171.8 million estimated to be in reserve this summer. Harvesting of winter wheat has spread slowly into Kansas and Nebraska but progress there has been slow, the report said.

Vegetable reports to be issued soon

The federal-state seasonal market news office at Hereford will begin issuing reports on shipments, prices, volume and quality of fresh vegetables produced in the Hereford-High Plains district, the week of July 1, according to Jimmy Morrow, market reporter for the Texas Department of Agriculture. First reports will be on yellow and white onions and Red and Nargold potatoes. Both crops have made good progress this season. Acreages are slightly higher than last year. Later this season, Morrow will start market reports on cabbage, green bell peppers, cantaloupes, carrots and lettuce. All reports will be carried daily by the leased wire teletype system of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to all major fruit and vegetable markets in the current estimates. "Good rains during April and May provided needed moisture and allowed remaining dryland stands to reach full maturity," Brown explained. "Scattered hail hit the High and Low Plains, but overall crop prospects are excellent. "If prices for farmers were excellent too, this large crop would surely send Texas over the top in cash receipts. The average price in Texas last month was down to $2.10 a bushel," Brown commented. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has reported that increased carryover and the anticipated large crop would result in a record 1977-78 wheat supply. "There are some prospects that world trade may pick up in the People's Republic of China, North Africa and Latin America, but competition is going to be keen," Brown said.

Four-county farmers hear gin talk

The Four-County Young Farmers were privileged to hear the local District Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, Ken Dawson at their regular monthly meeting. Dawson discussed the many programs and services provided by the Soil Conservation Service. For the June meeting, James Renfro of the Lummus Gin Co. will discuss the operations of gin machinery and new innovations of the gin industry. Also to be present will be Delbert Donaldson to discuss the Howard County Fair and how the young farmers can possibly assist with the fair. The meeting will be held June 16, at 8:00 p.m. in the Sands High School Vo-Ag Building. All area young farmers are urged to attend.

Despite Allen, NFC East ready

I have my prejudices. As a Tech fan, I hate the University of Texas... as a Steer fan, I hate Permian, and as a Cowboy fan, I hate crybaby George Allen, the poor man's Vince Lombardi.

Allen has been quoted recently as downgrading the Dorsett deal that the Pokes pulled with such skill. He insinuated that there was something "not quite right" about the transaction. Bull!

The Washington Redskins mentor is just miffed because he didn't have the smarts or organization to pull off the deal.

Allen has also been quoted as saying "If there is ever a break in the schedule, Dallas always gets it. If there's ever an extra day or we're short a day, Dallas will have it. It's been that way for years." He reportedly said this with his mouth full of sour grapes.

Teary George sounds as envious of the Cowboys as Dada Idi Amin is of sane human beings. The wrinkled game plan that Allen has etched on his aging convolutions is proving to be ineffectual when placed against the still-productive coaching of Dallas.

And nowhere else could the two schemes be judged better than in the NFC East, where Dallas has increasingly shown that playing an athlete at his full potential, drafting to fill positions, and at least some change in philosophy over the years, makes for a much more successful football program.

Allen does have some ability to formulate thoughts. He picked the Cowboys to finish first in their division this season. In the NFC East poll of division coaches, Allen, Philadelphia's Dick Vermeil, and St. Louis' Joe Sullivan (proxy vote for Don Coryell), all picked the Pokes to finish at the top of the list.

New York's John McVay lumped the Cowboys, Redskins and Cardinals at the top. Landry was also vague in his choices. He just refused, in his own careful way, to talk about the Cowboys as champions.

In projecting the order of finish, the Eastern division coaches considered these developments around the division:

DALLAS

Personnel: Bob Breunig to succeed retired Lee Roy Jordan at middle linebacker, Randy White pegged as strongside linebacker. Uncertainty over playing status of guard Blaine Nye.

Key additions: Running back Tony Dorsett, No. 1 draft choice.

WASHINGTON

Personnel: Return of wide receiver Charley Taylor, all-time NFL career leader who missed 1976 season with shoulder injury.

Key additions: None apparent. Defensive end Duncan McCall of Stanford was first Redskins draft choice — on the fourth round. Perhaps linebacker help from Greg Hartle, signed as free agent from St. Louis.

PHILADELPHIA

Personnel: Loss of tight end Charles Young, an option play-out who's negotiating with Los Angeles Rams. Decision to adopt three-man defensive front.

Key additions: Quarterback Ron Jaworski, free agent from Rams.

NEW YORK

Personnel: First full season for McVay who replaced fired Arnsperger at mid-season '76. Rehabilitation of fullback Larry Csonka who underwent knee surgery for severe ligament damage.

ST. LOUIS

Personnel: Loss of two defensive starters, retired linebacker Larry Stallings and cornerback Norm Thompson who signed with Baltimore as a free agent.

Key additions: Veteran cornerback Perry Smith, obtained via trade from Green Bay; perhaps rookie fullback George Franklin (No. 2) of Texas A&I.

No NFL retro comp

NEW YORK (AP) — Realizing it was in a no-gain position, the National Football League has decided to keep its hands off the thorny issue of retroactive compensation.

That issue involves players who have joined new NFL teams by playing out their option year or by coming from the defunct World Football League.

For example, did the Washington Redskins owe the New York Jets anything for signing free agent John Riggins? Or did the New York Giants, who signed Larry Csonka after the WFL folded, owe anything to the Miami Dolphins, who owned the rights to Csonka before he jumped to the WFL?

At its annual summer meeting Tuesday, the NFL decided to stay on the sidelines on retroactive compensation.

"Individual clubs may explore on their own ways to voluntarily compensate each other," Commissioner Pete Rozelle said. "But at this point it is out of the league's hands."

Rozelle said there were too many problems involved for the league to adopt a uniform formula for compensation. The Redskins, for example, don't have any player

Gaylord young enuff

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gaylord Perry's pitching mastery at 38 years old and the latest in a series of batting slumps by the Cleveland Indians both were underscored in a 7-2 Texas Ranger victory Tuesday night.

The workmanlike Perry went 7 1-3 innings, giving up seven hits and striking out seven on the way to his sixth victory against five losses.

But that was only part of the story. Cleveland catcher Ray Fosse led off the fifth with the Indians' first solid hit of the game, a double to the base of the wall in left. Perry, suddenly becoming a 6-foot-4 tower of strength, reared back and struck out the next three batters.

He got the first batter in the sixth on an infield pop fly, but a pair of singles and a walk then loaded the bases. Again Perry began peering balefully at the batters and struck out two more to end the inning.

"I guess I was losing it a little, though I had pretty good stuff the whole game," the former Cleveland star said. "I reared back and threw when it was available."

"I used the slider, forkball, I used everything," Perry added. "In that situation, if you've got anything left, you'd better get it. No use saving it for the dugout or the clubhouse."

Perry finally was dispatched from the game as seldom-used Andre Thornton whacked a towering two-run homer that fell just inside the foul pole with one out in the eighth. Manager Frank Lucchesi hurried to the mound to relieve Perry and the pitcher chugged quickly to the dugout with eyes down and a scowl on his lips.

"I always get mad when I give up a home run," he said with a slight smile creeping onto his face. "I was pulling on that ball (by Thornton), but I didn't pull hard enough, I guess."

'Buzzard's luck' helps Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Despite victory, says Bob Watson, "Buzzard's Luck" continues to plague the Houston Astros.

"Buzzard's Luck" is when you can't kill anything and, nothing will die," Watson said after slamming a two-run homer in Houston's 5-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Tuesday night.

"My bruised thumb was feeling fine before the game, but a ball hit it in infield practice and almost re-injured it."

Joaquin Andujar and Joe Niekro combined on a five-hitter and Julio Gonzalez laced a bases-clearing double in the fourth inning as the Astros broke a three-game losing streak.

Andujar, who captured his sixth straight triumph, was hit in the right palm by a line drive off the bat of Tony Perez in the top of the sixth inning and was removed from the game. Niekro hurled the final three innings for Houston to pick up his second save of the season.

"There's always something happening," Watson said of Andujar's misfortune. "Our hottest pitcher is throwing a shutout, and then he's hit on his pitching hand with a liner. That's the way things have been going."

Fans want Seaver ... so should Reds

Tom Seaver has found somebody who wants him. The fans. The teams he says he'd like to go to don't want him, at least not at a fair-value price, but the Mets fans do.

They rocked Shea Stadium with shouts of "See-ver ... See-ver" while he blanked the well-muscled Reds the other night, and when it was flashed on the scoreboard that he had just passed Sandy Koufax in career K's they held up the game for three minutes or so by standing up and pounding their hands together, while the next batter deferentially stood outside the box, bat on shoulder, and Tom Terrific stood behind the pitching rubber, soaking up the adulation.

There couldn't have been a more ironic touch. The next batter, the man kept waiting, was George Foster. Seaver fanned him, too.

It was George Foster the Mets wanted if they were to give up Seaver. It was George Foster, outfielder, .300-hitter, 100-plus ribby man, MVP, the Reds wouldn't give up for Seaver.

The Mets had a second choice, Ken Griffey, .336-hitter, near batting champ, beaten out of it on the final day by Bill Madlock. Again the Reds said no.

"Why?" Why wouldn't you take the best pitcher in baseball for Foster or Griffey? Sparky Anderson was asked.

"Let's put this in the proper perspective," he said. "One guy goes once every fifth day. The hitter goes every day?" "This is not any starter," I said. "This is Tom Seaver. For years, you have been telling me how great he is."

"Even a great starter like that goes to the post 38 or 40 times. There is no pitcher living who is worth as much as a good, regular ballplayer."

"Not even for Griffey?" "Maybe I'm wrong, but I think Griffey is going to be the best player in America in two years," said Sparky Anderson.

Sparky Anderson is the manager of the Reds, and a dandy. In the Cincy scheme of things, the manager runs the team on the field and has very little else to say.

YOUNG IDEAS
By DICK YOUNG

Bob Howsam is the top executive. He makes the deals. His record is so good, his trades were listed in the Reds' press guides until it became a source of embarrassment. Other clubs would look at the list and say this is no guy to deal with.

"All I know about the Mets thing," says Sparky Anderson, "is that Bob said to me Seaver was unhappy, and maybe we could get him, but Bob said he didn't want to give up any of our front eight. I told him I understand."

I don't. If I'm in Howsam's spot, nine or ten games behind the Dodgers right at the start, and I'm blowing games because my pitchers can't win with six runs, I gotta figure I'd give Foster and Griffey for Tom Seaver, and throw in Mrs. Howsam, who happens to be a real doll.

Right now, I'd say the Reds need Seaver more than the Mets need Foster, a helluva lot more. Things have changed drastically in the past week or so. The Mets aren't as good as they have been playing under Joe Torre, and they weren't as bad as they were playing under Joe Frazier. They are somewhere in between.

They have enough talent to be a contender. Lenny Randle has helped to make them that. Joe Torre has helped make them that. All they need now is for Dave Kingman to stop moping around and concentrate, and for Tom Seaver to stop telling the guys he plays with how lousy they are, and just pitch.

"That's as good as Tom's ever gonna throw," said Sparky Anderson after the shutout.

He pitched liked a man possessed. He was out to show something. To the Reds, to the Mets, to the fans, to Don Grant.

The next day, Chairman Grant received several phone calls from his friends.

"Can't you guys bury the hatchet?" was the substance of the calls.

"I have no hatchet," Grant said. "The hatchet is in his hands. All he has to do is drop it by saying, 'here I made my reputation, and here I want to stay.'"

Bums take Bucs' help

By the Associated Press

The way things are going for the Los Angeles Dodgers, they will take any help they can get.

And they got it Tuesday night from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The reeling Dodgers were on the verge of another knockout when they were revived by an infield error, then completely resuscitated by a passed ball in the ninth inning.

The result was a 3-2 victory over the Pirates and a renewed confidence in themselves.

"Tonight, we finally got the breaks," said Lee Lacy, who drove in the tying run after shortstop Frank Taveras' boot gave him the opportunity.

The Dodgers were losing 2-1 going into the final inning, and undoubtedly were aware that the Cincinnati Reds already had won their game.

Diablos straight!

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Clemson should have been wary. California State-Los Angeles put its phantom drill on the shelf.

In two previous College World Series games, the upstart Diablos delighted fans with a pre-game routine that saw them take infield drills without a ball.

Tuesday night they stuck with straight baseball and produced a classic, eliminating Clemson 1-0 as Mike Sutherland pitched a four-hitter with the aid of some great defense.

"We play it straight when we have to," said 59-year-old when the batters were on strike," said Clemson Coach Bill Wilhelm.

It was the first shutout thrown against Clemson, 42-10, in 167 games — and only the 21 against a Wilhelm club in 20 years.

A single by Rob Hayne, a stolen base, a wild pitch and a single by Gary Adair off the leg of shortstop Robert Bonnette produced the only run.

NBA calling Kissinger?

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — It was said at the height of Henry Kissinger's globe-girdling shuttle diplomacy that even a man of Kissinger's powers of persuasion would have trouble getting the National Basketball Association's Board of Governors to agree on something as simple as time of day.

So NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien figures to have his hands full when he tries to talk the governors into agreeing on some kind of relief for the four financially ailing clubs which joined the NBA when the American Basketball Association folded its tent one year ago.

The financial plight of the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs was the prime topic of discussion facing the governors, who met this afternoon for the first of four scheduled sessions at the NBA's annual summer meetings at this resort community near San Diego.

The Pacers have the most problems. They were unable to meet their June 1 player payroll on time and club management has been unable to uncover new financial backing. They owe the NBA $200,000 by June 30 as the final payment on their entrance fee, and they also owe an even larger sum to the owners of the ABA teams which were folded at the time of the merger.

There has been talk that if the Pacers can't find new money among local interests, the franchise could be shifted elsewhere. Most prominent among other sites mentioned is Louisville, Ky.

The NBA owners appear split on whether or not to bail out the Pacers.

"There are a number of hard-liners," said one club owner, "who feel it's ridiculous for us to help them out. For years they were fighting us tooth and nail, and now they come begging for mercy? What about all during the time of the two leagues?"

It will be up to O'Brien to try and soften that line, and he does have support among some owners who feel that now that there is one league, the good of that league should supercede old grudges. And since the Nuggets, Spurs and Pacers all did well in attendance in their first year in the league, and the Nets are in a media showcase locale, the good of the league would seem to dictate easing their financial strain.

BIG TROPHIES FOR SMALL TOOL — Jack Bowers, team member of the local slow pitch softball team sponsored by Carl Small of Small Fishing and Rental Tools, stands among a host of trophies the team has won recently. Left to right, 4th place in Midland tournament, 2nd place in Lubbock tournament, and 1st place in the San Angelo tournament. Small Tool is currently 19-0 in local action and 40-12 overall.

U.S. Open to be 'real' scary

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — "Scary," said Linda Watson. "Somebody asked me what kind of year it's been, and that's what I told them — scary."

And should her husband, Tom Watson, win this week in the 77th United States Open, the most prestigious of all the world's golf championships, what then?

"Ohhhhh," shivered the wife of Masters king Watson. "Real scary. Really, really scary."

"But nice."

And Watson, who has the best record in the game this year, has to be considered a co-favorite for the national championship in the 72-hole test that gets underway Thursday on the 6,873 yards of wooded, gentlyrolling Oklahoma countryside that makes up the Southern Hills Country Club course.

Sharing that position with him, of course, is the awesome figure of Jack Nicklaus, the man Watson beat at Augusta, holder of a record 14 major professional titles and generally considered the greatest player of all time.

He has centered his life and his career around the major championships, the Masters (five victories), the U.S. Open (three victories), British Open (two victories) and the PGA (four victories).

Nicklaus, who approaches the Big Four titles with a desire undiminished by the passing of time, has a couple of special reasons for seeking another Open victory this season.

A fourth victory would match the record held by Ben Hogan, Bob Jones and Willie Anderson. Perhaps more importantly, it would halt Watson's march toward the Grand Slam — an unattained achievement that long has been Nicklaus' personal goal.

Now Watson may be making a move in that direction.

His record indicates it's more than a casual challenge. He's won three times this year and could have won a half-dozen more. He's been fifth or better, almost incredibly, in 11 of 16 starts. He leads the money-winners with $221,000.

And he has two big factors going for him here — youth and driving ability.

But it is not a two-man tournament. At least a dozen men must be considered prime contenders for the $45,000 first prize.

Chief among them are South African Gary Player, winner of eight major titles who has played extremely well without winning this year; Al Geiberger, who may or may not be emotionally drained from his record-setting round of 59 last week in Memphis, and Tom Weiskopf, who gives every indication he's once again the Tom Terrific who scored such spectacular successes two years ago.

Among the other standouts in the field of 153 are defending champion Jerry Pate, troubled by a pinched nerve and making only his second start since the Masters; Lee Trevino and Johnny Miller.

WARMING UP ACT — Detroit Tigers pitcher John Hiller warms up for the third inning of Tuesday night's game against the Toronto Blue Jays. Hiller, once the ace relief pitcher for the Tigers, was converted to a starter a few weeks ago and has been hypnotizing batters with his changeup pitches. In 60 innings Hiller has struck out 62, tops for the Tigers.

AHS coach to A&I

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Pat Aguilar, who was named Texas' high school track coach of the year in 1976, has been named as Texas A&I's head track coach.

Aguilar, who coached Abilene High School to one state, three regional and four district track championships, will also be a Javelina assistant football coach.

He has coached at Class 4A Abilene since 1972. Aguilar has also coached football and track at Clayton, N.M., and Farmington, N.M. At Clayton, his teams won two district football championships, eight district track titles and was once state runnerup in track.

Houston golf coach picture of success

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston golf coach Dave Williams has spanned the generation gap, battled leaky radiators and porous budgets and understood the changes in young men from the rock and roll '50s to the disco '70s.

And all Williams has to show for his trouble is 13 National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) golf championships and the admiration of hundreds of young golfers who got a college education because Williams was the only one to recruit them.

"All coaching is, is trying to get your players to want to win as badly as you do," Williams said Tuesday, celebrating the Cougars' 13th NCAA championship. "That's 90 per cent of winning right there."

Whatever magic spell Williams spins, it worked in 1956 when Rex Baxter Jr. sank a 45-foot putt from off the green to give the Cougars their first national title by one stroke.

And it was working again last week when the Cougars battled three days of rain and rallied behind John Stark and Ron Kilby to defeat the heavily favored Oklahoma State Cowboys for the team championship.

Williams couldn't overlook

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's New Moon suggests that you wind up whatever you have been working on so that it is out of the way. You will find that a whole new series of conditions will arise giving you the chance to handle them intelligently. Get rid of the unfinished.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Clear your desk of accumulated correspondence, straighten accounts and prepare for big deals ahead. Don't lose your temper with others or you get into trouble. Show more sincerity toward others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get bills paid and feel better. Plan how to increase income appreciably. You have untapped talents that can be put to use successfully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get personal duties handled quickly and get into some activity that really pleases you. Contact persons you have known for a long while and show you are still devoted to them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can handle private matters well now. Try to please a loved one more and be happier. Stop getting worked up over nothing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) First complete what you started before you go after some new aim. Be more appreciative of your good pals. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Civic problems can be worked out intelligently so get busy early. Listen to advice given you by a higher-up and follow it. Do nothing that can jeopardize present security, though.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get rid of unfinished work before you delve into some new interest you have in mind. An out-of-towner will demand part of your time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Pay bills, improve financial and material affairs. Clear up any arguments you have had with mate or loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you complete whatever jobs you start, you gain the respect of partners now. Don't confide in others about some trouble, since it could be a little plot. Handle it wisely yourself.

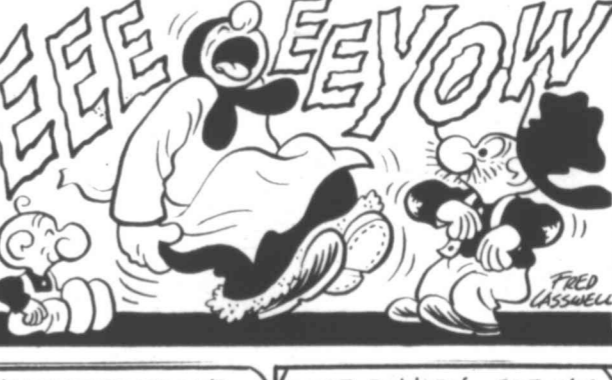

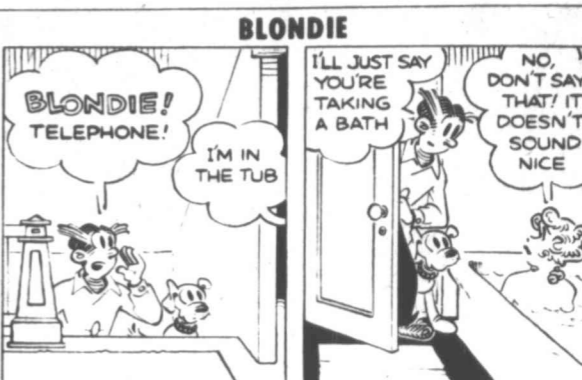

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Complete whatever tasks you have started since new situations arise that need careful attention. Take care of some physical problem quickly. Do nothing that can hurt another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get beauty and health treatments worked out nicely, and then be with good friends for fun. Avoid a known troublemaker, though.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Complete duties at home and establish more relations there. Wind up some outlet also so that you are ready to tackle a new one that is most promising. Avoid one with a jealous streak.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to handle projects or problems of long standing that will have others stymied, so be sure to slant the education along such lines. A very inquisitive mind here and a good talker and an interesting personality that others will take to easily.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Tom still in Metland

NEW YORK (AP) — Today is June 15. Do you know where Tom Seaver is? Where he is, is in Atlanta with the New York Mets. Where he wants to be is somewhere else. The Mets have until midnight tonight, PDT, the intra-league trading deadline, to put the best player the franchise has ever had into a foreign uniform.

Reluctantly, Seaver says, he has come to the conclusion that he and the Mets will have to part company. He says he would accept a trade to Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Los Angeles or Cincinnati.

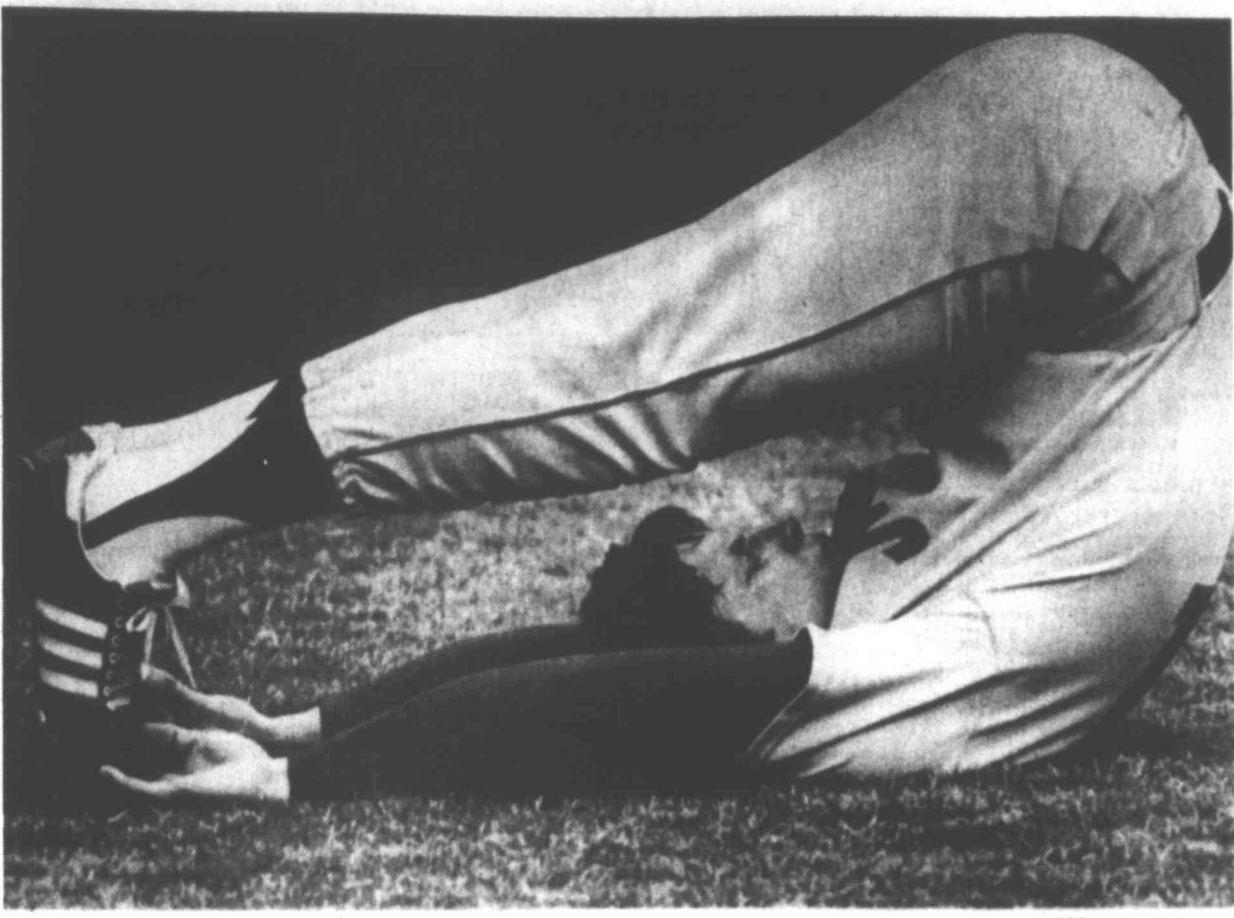

"I have no idea if anything will happen," said Seaver, the winningest pitcher in Mets history and a three-time Cy Young Award winner. "I expressed my views. I want to get away from Mr. Grant. I just cannot work for that man."

Seaver and M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board of the Mets, have been at odds since the star pitcher signed a three-year $675,000 contract last year. Grant says Seaver became unhappy with the contract after realizing other players, who had become free agents, were receiving bigger money packages.

Seaver, who has asked to renegotiate his contract and has been turned down by a unanimous vote by the Mets board, said he was unhappy with his contract even before he signed it.

"My unhappiness started with the contract negotiations a year and a half ago when I was called an ingrate and a lot of other things," he said.

PAINFUL POSITION — Tom Seaver, New York Mets pitcher, stretches during warmup exercises prior to the game between the Mets and the Atlanta Braves Tuesday evening at Atlanta Stadium. Seaver, unhappy with his contract has asked for renegotiation but the Mets management has refused. Seaver says he would go to the Cincinnati Reds if such an arrangement is made.

Six city workers get merit pins

Six city employees received pins for meritorious service at today's meeting of the Big Spring City Council.

Those eligible for the award included the late Howard Dodd, fire marshal for the city at the time of his recent death. His widow, Barbara Dodd, accepted the 25-year service pin in his name from Mayor Wade Choate.

Other awards went to: Tommie Arista Sr., superintendent of streets, 30 years of service; Dewey Byers, chief building inspector, 25 years of service; W.E. (Pete) Anderson, captain on the Big Spring Fire Department, 25 years of service; Barney Lopez, lieutenant on the fire department, 25 years of service; and Manuel Cervantes, Sewage Treatment Plant operator, 25 years of service.

Also at the meeting, Charles Weeg, administrator at Hall-Bennett Hospital, represented the Howard County Council On Aging in its request for $5,400 in city funds. The city had previously provided these funds on a temporary basis, but funding was discontinued in October when state funds were made available.

Now, however, state funding for the Council on Aging is about to expire, and it has again turned to the city for help.

"Costs for our Meals On Wheels program and especially transportation for senior citizens are continually increasing. We are obligated to provide transportation for all senior citizens in the county whether they live a block away or 50 miles away on the county line," said Weeg.

The council agreed to provide for the $5,400 in the budget for the next fiscal year. It also agreed to provide funds from the present budget in the interim.

"We will come up with some money somewhere in the meantime. We'll see that you don't starve to death," said Councilman Harold Hall to Weeg.

Only one bid was submitted to the council on the renovation of the Potton House. The bid was from the Hester and Robertson Contractors Inc., North Birdwell, for $49,985.

The city has only $30,000 in funds from the state and the Big Spring Tourist Development Council with which to restore the house. In order to bring the bid within the $30,000 cost range, the council agreed to try to eliminate certain parts of the restoration project.

"The problem is that we were funded by the state based on set specifications for the project. We will have to check first with the Texas Historical Society to see if we can eliminate anything from the restoration," said Tom Ferguson, city finance director.

In other business, councilmen gave permission to advertise for bids for the sale of city property immediately north of Mount Olive Memorial Park. The property was originally purchased as a possible site for water drainage, but was never utilized for that, and is now useless to the city, according to Choate.

men gave permission to advertise for bids for the yearly supply of chemicals for the city's water and sewage treatment plant.

men approved minutes for meetings of the Webb Steering Committee, the Tourist Development Council, and the Detoxification Steering Committee.

Court won't order ban on unconstitutional law

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court says it won't order Texas not to enforce an unconstitutional election law, because the state probably wouldn't use the law again, anyway.

The ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals arose from a suit filed last July by Eugene McCarthy, who wanted to get on the Texas ballot as an independent presidential candidate. But the state's laws forbade unaffiliated candidates for the offices of president and vice president.

The law was ruled unconstitutional, but only nine days before the election and too late to do McCarthy any good. He then filed suit seeking to block any future enforcement of the law.

The 5th Circuit said Monday that the state should be given the benefit of the doubt.

"In view of the ruling that the Texas election statute is unconstitutional as applied to presidential candidates, any possibility that the State of Texas will attempt to enforce the statute in any future presidential election is speculative at best," the court said in a brief printed opinion. "This Court presumes that Texas will not defy the holding of unconstitutionality in the absence of an injunction."

Texan looking for Ray's cell

EAST ALTON, Ill. (AP) — Authorities have the convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in custody again in Tennessee. But the search continues in this Mississippi River community for James Earl Ray's jail cell.

In 1964, Ray was held briefly in a jail cell in connection with a laundry burglary investigation.

Douglas Zimpel of Houston, Tex., purchased the cell as a historical curiosity in 1969 when the local government abandoned its building for a new municipal building and police station.

Although he paid $10 for the cell, Zimpel says he never got it.

What he got was the mumps, which prevented him taking delivery on the cell in the specified time.

"I lost the cell and my ten bucks," he said. "As far as I know, a bulldozer got it."

But Mayor Frank Keasler isn't so sure.

"I remember seeing it still standing in the shell of the building, covered with debris," Keasler said. "To the best of my knowledge, it might have been pushed into the basement and buried."

However, Keasler said there have been reports that someone salvaged the cell.

"There's no true story on it yet," he says.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Nominations by major Texas crude oil purchasers for July total 3,915,851 barrels a day, a decrease of 26,543 barrels a day from June, the railroad commission reported Tuesday.

The commission meets Thursday to set the statewide oil allowable for next month. The June allowable is 100 per cent.

Hill calls televised executions 'nonsense'

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill says televised executions would be "utter nonsense", but Dallas attorney Tom McCorkle argues that the banning of TV cameras from the death chamber is restriction on the freedom of "the electronic media."

A three-judge federal court panel heard arguments in Houston Tuesday on whether an execution in Texas can be filmed by television and shown to home viewers.

Hill told the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals judges that the state has the "right to prevent a return of public executions. Public hangings once was a form of entertainment. But now executions are carried out in private.

"There are no restrictions placed on the news media's right to report executions nor are there any restraints on a newsmen's constitutional rights. But we can say there will be no television, no still pictures, no tape recordings. And, no enlightened person believes executions should be made public."

McCorkle, attorney for former Dallas television newsmen Tony Garrett, argued that the "print media newsmen can cover the execution with their pens and paper, tools of their trade. But the state is telling the electronic media to leave your instruments of trade outside.

"The people have a right to see what their state is doing. If an execution is shown on television perhaps it would not happen again. What is there about an execution the state doesn't want the people to see?", McCorkle said.

Garrett, now a free lance writer, obtained an order from U.S. District Court Judge W.M. Taylor Jr. of Dallas in January that stated the Texas Department of Corrections must allow reporters and cameramen from television stations to witness executions.

Taylor said it would be "dangerous" to permit the government to decide what "is or is not fit for public viewing on television."

Hill appealed the ruling, claiming the "public display of an execution into the television media and into the homes of this country would be utter nonsense."

Hill said the state had the right to bar any member of the press from an execution but had established a system whereby two wire service newsmen could be in the death chamber and others in a larger room to view the death penalty on closed-circuit TV.

The judges asked Hill if the new Texas law, which ends death in the electric chair and replaces it with a lethal injection, would make any difference in his position on television.

"None whatsoever," the attorney general replied.

Garrett, in an interview after the hearing, said he would push the case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary because, "I don't believe the state or any other governmental body can define what is the press. TV is a technological extension of the press. The attorney general is simply trying to say he is the one to define the meaning of press and who can cover an execution."

Hill, in a brief interview, said he agreed that a question "of this importance should be settled at the U.S. Supreme Court level."

The attorney general added, "Are we going to bring an execution into our living room? The state has the right to prevent a return to public executions. I think a journalist's account of an execution is adequate. With television of the execution we are going too far and tell me where it will end?"

Hearing the arguments were Judges Paul Roney, Robert Answorth and Homer Thornberry.

They took the case under advisement with no indication of when a ruling was expected.

McCorkle said in his arguments if an execution is shown on home television "perhaps it would not happen again. Perhaps people want to know about death by injection. How will it be done? Is there pain?"

Hill answered, "Can anyone say what possible good it could do to watch some poor, unfortunate person go to sleep?"

Six accused of fleecing TEA

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Arrest warrants are expected to be issued for the director of the state's Good Neighbor Commission and five others after indictments accused them of stealing from the Texas Education Agency.

Travis County Asst. Dist. Atty. Richard Banks said he expected the warrants to be issued today at the latest.

GNC director Manuel Garza, his wife, Evangelina; Robert Avina, director of the Bexar County Adult Education program; his wife, Josephine; Sharon Flippen, a GNC employee; and William Jones Jr., owner of Travis Lodges in Kingsland, were indicted by a Travis County grand jury Tuesday.

Banks said the investigation and subsequent indictments stemmed from a recent TEA audit that brought the discrepancies to light. Contents of the audit were released Tuesday as well.

The indictments accused all parties except Ms. Flippen of accepting a total of about $7,000 in TEA grant monies two years ago for phony consultant fees.

DAs gang up on killer

TULSA (AP) — A meeting of prosecutors from several states is being sought by Tulsa County Dist. Atty. S.M. Fallis Jr. to decide what criminal charges will be filed against Tom Lester Pugh and Thomas Lee Cawthon.

Pugh, a convicted killer, and Cawthon, a convicted robber, were captured last week in Irving, Tex., after they had escaped Oct. 25 from a state prison in Kentucky.

Fallis said Tuesday he is trying to arrange a meeting, probably in Dallas, to "try to accomplish cooperation between all jurisdictions" who may file criminal charges against the pair.

Authorities believe they committed crimes in Oklahoma, New Mexico, Texas, Missouri and possibly Arkansas in the seven months they have been free.

Cawthon and Pugh are charged in Dallas with carrying firearms and armed robbery.

In a related matter, Fallis has asked that a trial date be set in Norman, Okla., for Albert McDonald for the 1970 car bombing injury of former Tulsa District Court Judge Fred Nelson.

McDonald obtained a delay in the trial last October after his co-defendant, Pugh, escaped. McDonald claims Pugh is a defense witness.

Pugh has not been brought to trial for either the slaying of Cleo Epps, a witness before the grand jury probing the Nelson bombing, or the Nelson bombing.

He was convicted of murder in 1970 for the death of another Oklahoma grand jury witness, Arles Delbert Self.

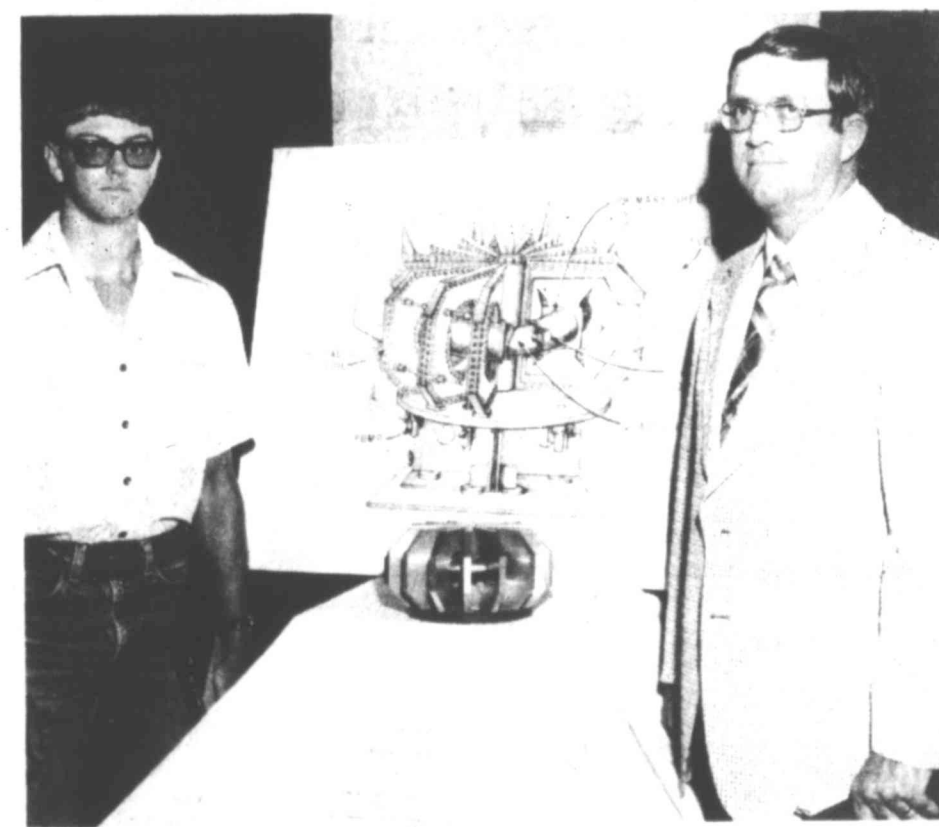

Ms. Flippen, the only person named in each of the three indictments, was formerly employed by the Greater South Texas Cultural Basin Commission, which received a $50,000 contract to provide the TEA with consultant work on the educational needs of South Texas adults.

Banks said investigators are not sure if Ms. Flippen received any of the funds but added, "She might have gotten kickbacks." He said the woman hired the consultants and kept their time cards.

"I imagine the investigation will go on for a little while," said Banks, "but I don't anticipate any more indictments unless something new comes up."

Garza could not be reached for comment.

Energy

AT NUCLEAR SYMPOSIUM — Ray Luedecke (left), student at Big Spring High School, and teacher Wilbur Cunningham at the school, attended the 17th Texas Nuclear Science Symposium held at the University of Texas at Austin recently. They were guests of Texas Electric Service Company at the conference, co-sponsored by the university and the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation of which TESCO is a member.

Conviction overturned

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today overturned a 30-year sentence for burglary because it found that a 1967 conviction considered in setting the sentence was void.

The conviction and sentence assessed Harold Henderson in Potter County were reversed and the case was returned to the county for possible prosecution.

The appeals court said that the record reflects that Henderson pled guilty to burglary in 1961 and was placed on probation, which was subsequently revoked. It noted, however, that Henderson had not been represented by a lawyer.

In 1967 Henderson was found guilty of burglary, and the 1961 conviction was used to enhance his sentence.

On Henderson's motion, the court held a hearing and wiped out the 1961 conviction, but denied his motion to strike the 1967 conviction, which was used in setting the 30-year sentence.

The court repeated an earlier ruling that, "No part of the (1967) conviction can stand because of lack of counsel in one of the prior convictions."

UT oil, gas leases auction at Midland

MIDLAND — University of Texas Lands oil and gas leases will again be auctioned at the Midland Hilton here Dec. 7.

The board which will conduct the sale is made up of State Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, chairman; Dan C. Williams, Dallas, vice chairman; and Dr. Sterling F. Fly Jr., Uvalde.

Jim Zimmerman, geologist in charge of the University Lands office in Midland, said letters would be mailed to major oil companies and independent operators next week requesting they make nominations of university leases they want to be put up for auction.

Zimmerman said the requests should be returned to the Midland office no later than Sept. 9.

The March sale in Midland was the first of its kind ever held outside Austin.

Violence Ice machines measure mars free triggers hot argument election

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Separate bombings this morning injured three persons and damaged commuter rail lines just before polling places opened for Spain's first free election in 41 years.

The injuries occurred in Seville when a bomb found in a window of the Justice Ministry building went off as a police guard was taking it out.

Long lines formed when the polls opened, and officials predicted 80 per cent of the 23 million voters would turn out.

Camp's safety factors should be checked out

The state health department licenses more than 700 youth camps in Texas. Church camps, day camps and similar facilities all should be inspected by the state but parents themselves need to be aware of certain safety factors, the Texas Medical Association says.

The law says camps should be inspected often but it is difficult for health inspectors to regularly visit all camps. Parents themselves should look for violations and encourage children to report problems. Here are a few of the almost 75 regulations to watch for:

—Each youth camp must be under the direction of a qualified adult with at least two years experience working with children. All recreational activities must be supervised directly by a qualified adult.

—There must be one adult supervisor for each 10 children.

Ridin' fence

Ray Lockhart of Odessa started out to Abilene last month to go to Dyess AFB on some business.

Along the way, he had a sympathetic streak and picked up a hitchhiker. That was a mistake.

As he arrived at Dyess, along with the hitchhiker, Lockhart suffered an apparent heart attack. He was rushed to the base hospital.

While he was in the hospital, the hitchhiker disappeared. So did Lockhart's car and all of his clothes.

He was transferred to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Big Spring. There he met several of the local veterans who made an attempt to help him out.

They got him some clothes. They visited him a lot. He appeared to be feeling much better and had a pass to attend the meeting of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting.

While there, he apparently suffered another heart attack. He was administered first aid by one of the local veterans and placed back in the hospital.

He is now in Ward 3 East, Bed 36. This just hasn't been his month.

It's kind of frightening that the good old days of helping out a fellow needing a ride have gone down the drain. The days of the Depression when so many desperate people were riding the rails and using the thumb to get across the country didn't see the violence that accompanies hitchhikers nowadays.

It tends to make you very untrusting of your fellow man. I know in Biloxi, Miss. last weekend I wanted to check out of my motel at noon but the plane didn't leave until night. I finally decided just to ask the office if I could leave my bags somewhere in the office.

A little bit rough with Marj Carpenter

They were really nice about it and kept an eye on them for me. But I kind of halfway told my luggage goodbye. I've worked police news so long that I know that nowadays, folks will steal anything that's loose. It's really frightening — what has happened to our country.

Reduced law fees would open doors

HOUSTON (AP) — A California attorney says reduced lawyer fees would open the door to middle and lower middle class citizens who have been under-represented legally because of the high costs.

Jay G. Foonberg of Beverly Hills, Calif., said legal fees could be reduced 10 to 15 per cent in the next five years if attorneys would better manage their practices.

Foonberg told a meeting of the State Bar of Texas Tuesday that middle and lower middle class citizens are not poor enough to receive aid from public defenders or wealthy enough to hire the better attorneys.

He said a lawyer, through sound economics, could lower a $100 charge to $75 and raise his profits from $10 to $15.

He said one way this could be accomplished is by attorneys integrating with banks and financial institutions so the lawyer can be paid fees while rendering services, and the client can pay over a longer period of time.

But for a little while, I decided to just forget it and go have a good time. My good friend, Donna Darvich Carter, from the Fort Worth Star Telegram and I went to see the blessing of the shrimp fleet in Biloxi.

And that is indeed a sight to behold. The Padre is out in the center of the bay in a highly decorated boat with guitars playing and everybody having a great time.

All of the other shrimp-boats are chugging around in the bay. Every boat is decorated with flags and balloons and crepe paper. Entire bands and lone guitar players furnish music.

There are refreshments for everybody and everyone is singing and happy.

The boats circle around the boat with the Padre and he casts out the blessings. I sure hope some fell over my way.

But regardless, everyone was having a great time and it was a wonderful spectacle. And I got back and my luggage was intact.

So I decided Biloxi was wonderful. However, at breakfast, I learned that it was a normal community and that they have a sorehead or two of their own.

One old salt said, "You're not going to catch me out there in the hot sun getting blessed. I'm going to stay home and watch television and if they want to bless my boat, they can come by the dock."

Vive la sorehead. We've all got 'em. Even in Biloxi when the shrimp boats are coming, out where I was on the ship's rail ridin' fence.

NEW IRS COMMISSIONER — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal swears-in Jerome Kurtz as the new commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service in Washington Tuesday. Mrs. Kurtz stands with her husband as he takes the oath of office.

No favorites, says FBI chief

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley, whose resignation is effective Jan. 1, says the bureau is "ready anytime for a black chief."

Kelley, 65, commented on the possibility of the FBI having its first black director after a Tuesday speech before the 79th annual Texas Police Association Conference and Seminar in this border city.

President Carter announced Monday the names of five men being considered for Kelley's job, including William Lucas, the black sheriff of Wayne County, Mich.

"The bureau is ready anytime for a black chief," Kelley said. "I have known Sheriff Lucas very well. He used to be a FBI agent."

Asked if he had any preference among the five men on President Carter's list, Kelley smilingly replied: "I have no favorites."

During his 30-minute speech, Kelley told the more than 300 law officers in attendance, "I leave the law enforcement field in January — unless it's before — and I do so with reluctance."

He said afterwards he didn't feel pushed out of the job he has held for 3½ years by the Carter Administration.

"I voluntarily submitted my indication that I would retire," he said. "I have been treated very well and I enjoyed it. I am looking forward to the next phase of my life."

Kelley said in his speech that the key to curbing crime lies with the citizenry more than with the law enforcement community.

Crime reduction "centers not so much on police action as it does on citizen action — preventive action through which citizens reduce their chances of falling victim of crime and help reduce crime by minimizing opportunities on which criminals thrive," Kelley said.

"As I've pointed out on previous occasions, this approach is not particularly new," he continued. "It is, in fact, one that Seneca, the Roman statesman and philosopher, may have had in mind almost 2,000 years ago when he said, 'He who does not prevent a crime when he can, encourages it.'"

Texas Department of Public Safety Director Wilson E. Speir addressed the group after Kelley and brought the applauding crowd to its feet when he said: "It's an outright shame that people intent upon good citizens would attack destroying the intelligence such great organizations as the FBI and the CIA."

Miller wins UMW election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arnold Miller apparently won election to a second term as president of the United Mine Workers with promises to unify the bickering union and restore peace to the strike-prone coalfields.

The silver-haired, 54-year-old union chief fought off two challengers and opened an unsurmountable lead, according to an unofficial tabulation of the ballots today.

His opponents, however, said their own tallies showed they still had a chance. Neither UMW Secretary-Treasurer Harry Patrick nor Lee Roy Patterson, a union executive board member, would acknowledge that Miller had won Tuesday's election.

With more than half the ballots counted, an Associated Press tally showed Miller had 39 per cent of the vote to Patterson's 34 per cent and Patrick's 26 per cent.

The unofficial AP

tabulation, with 500 locals out of 855 reporting, showed: Miller 33,594; Patterson 29,580 and Patrick 22,400.

About 46 per cent of the union's 183,000 working miners and 94,000 pensioners cast ballots in 25 states and Canada. Some 65 per cent voted in the last election in 1972.

Miller ran well in areas such as southern West Virginia, where he was opposed by local union leaders and where Patterson expected to cut into his strength. In western Pennsylvania, where Miller was expected to split the vote with Patrick, the incumbent president carried the region substantially.

Miller withheld comment, but scheduled a news conference today in Charleston, W. Va.

"Miller's running a lot stronger than we thought," said Patterson, who received the vote tallies at his Madisonville, Ky., home. He said the ballot was designed unfairly and he would challenge it.

With a second five-year term, Miller will lead the 277,000-member union into this winter's negotiations for a new contract with the coal industry at a time President Carter has called for increased reliance on coal as part of his national energy policy.

Federal officials closely monitored the election, concerned that a close finish or an election challenge could interfere with the start of the bargaining and precipitate a long strike.

The voting showed Miller had support from less than half the membership. He did especially poorly among the increasing number of younger miners, a group that has been making very militant demands on the UMW leadership.

Patterson, an executive board member who is identified with the "old guard" forces of W.A. "Tony" Boyle and who held control over the board, stands a favorable chance of winning an appeal. This could force Miller to appeal to the Labor Department, leaving the final outcome of the election in doubt for months.

The official tallying of the ballots by UMW tellers won't be done until July 1.

Coke Stevenson center planned

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Old friends of former Gov. Coke Stevenson were told Tuesday of plans to build a $200,000 Stevenson Community Memorial Center at Junction.

Prominent among those in the luncheon audience were Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Stevenson's second wife, and Coke Stevenson Jr.

"Janey and I want to take an active part in it," Briscoe said. "He was a good friend of my father."

Kimble County Judge William R. Dunk and Junction Mayor Larue Newby said the community center and Stevenson museum would be built near the Junction airport. Funds will be sought from friends of Stevenson, who served as governor from 1941 through 1946 after being a state representative, speaker of the Texas House and lieutenant governor.

Ernest Boyett, Junction, chairman of a steering committee, presided.

Allowable dip

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas' average calendar day oil allowable is 3,607,813 barrels, a decrease of 30,959 barrels a day from June 1, the Texas Railroad Commission said Tuesday.

The commission said the June 15 legal rate of flow was from 176,802 wells, 835 more than on June 1.

Heavy turnout predicted in Spain

First free election in 41 years

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Officials predicted 80 per cent of Spain's 23 million voters would cast ballots today to elect a new parliament in the country's first free election in 41 years.

No party was expected to come near a majority in the Cortes (parliament). Opinion polls indicated leftist parties would get more than a third of the votes but promised a close race for first place between Premier Adolfo Suarez' middle-road coalition called the Democratic Center Union and Felipe Gonzalez' Socialist Workers party.

The polls showed the Communists, the Popular Socialist Alliance, the neo-Francoist Popular Alliance and the Christian Democrats bunched close together and considerably behind. But in most of the polls, a third of those questioned were undecided though leaning toward Suarez.

The premier, who did not campaign actively, was appointed by King Juan Carlos to serve until 1981. But he said he would resign unless he received a mandate in the election.

The government made a final television appeal for a large turnout, telling the people it was their civic duty to vote so the nation "can proceed along the path of justice, liberty and order."

The broadcast was made shortly before midnight Tuesday by Lt. Gen. Manuel Gutierrez Mellado, vice-president of the government in charge of defense. Officials said he was chosen to show the army supported the election.

The new Cortes will replace a parliament appointed by Franco, who died in 1975. There are more than 5,000 candidates for 350 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 207 in the Senate. A total of 157 parties are represented among the candidates.

Eight persons were killed in political violence during the three-week campaign, and troops and police were out in force throughout the nation. Leading candidates had police guards, and the army detachments protected communications centers and power stations.

Definitive results are expected early Thursday, election officials said.

Guilty plea entered in cocaine caper

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge has set July 19 as the sentencing date for Herman Chavez, 36, of Colombia, who pleaded guilty to charges of possessing 72 pounds of cocaine with intent to distribute it.

Chavez, also known as Leandro Perez, entered the guilty plea Tuesday after his lawyers lost their fight to have the search that netted the cocaine declared illegal.

State District Court Judge Fred Hoey overruled a motion by Chavez' lawyers to keep the discovery of the cocaine out of evidence in the trial. Following Hoey's ruling, Chavez entered the guilty plea. A jury had been empaneled.

Chavez was arrested here Jan. 3. Officers said they found 59 packets of cocaine in his car. They said the seizure was the third largest in the nation.

Two police officers testified they stopped Chavez for speeding and arrested him on suspicion of driving under the influence of drugs. The cocaine, wrapped in plastic and burlap bags, was discovered after a routine search of the car at police headquarters, the officers testified.

George Sheinberg of New York City, a defense attorney, argued that the officers had no reason to arrest Chavez, who was never charged with driving under the influence of drugs.

Chavez, who said he sells shirts in New York City, is in the Harris County jail here in lieu of $2.5 million bond.
