Father of dead scout helps search

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — The father of one of three Girl Scouts who were slain two weeks ago was part of the search for the killer Friday.

Richard Guse of Broken Arrow, father of Michelle Guse, joined several hundred other searchers Friday as officials combed a 10-square mile area of timber land near here.

"I never thought it could happen ... and now that it has, I want to be a part of the search," he told newsmen late Friday.

"I would be very unhappy if we don't find out why he did it," Guse said.

Guse said he referred to whomever is responsible for the deaths, not to the suspect who has been charged.

GARRETT PATTON AND A LOP-EARED FRIEND PHOTO BY DANNY VALDEZ

Racing mules at Ruidoso? Local man had a winner

By BOB BURTON

E.G. (Garrett) Patton is not what you'd call a mulish man. At 62 he is active, witty, and completely involved with any kind of four-hooved, long-eared critter you might want to talk about.

Although he has worked for Cosden in its machinery department for 41 years, he still considers himself a stockman.

"I came through this county in 1921 in a covered wagon," he asserts. "My father was a teamster moving his transfer company out here from Haskell County. I grew up studying stock the way a modern boy would study cars."

That study paid off for Patton when, at the 1975 and 1976 state fairs, he was awarded a second place, five third places, two fourths, and a fifth. In addition to that, at the 1975 Collinsville Donkey and Mule Breeders Show, he had the first place jack.

Patton says he first got involved with mules in 1953; that is, with the sterile offspring of a male burro (jackass) and a mare. He was working with the Boy Scouts, leading trips into the Davis Mountains with a pack string of burros.

"There was one all-black jenny," he remembers. "who was there every year till 1968. After that I looked for her for two years, but she never turned up. She was better than 11 years old at the beginning, but she could carry with the best of them."

"Mules take the best qualities of both burros and horses," he elaborated. "George Washington was the first mule breeder in the United States. He had been given two burros by the King of Spain but the female died during the ocean voyage. Washington was looking for an agricultural animal, small-hooved, that could do well in America."

"The burros fit that description. They are intelligent, they stand heat better than a horse does, they can do more work, they cost less both to buy and to feed, and they can haul anything."

According to Patton, there are three distinct kinds of mules: the mining or plantation mule, which weighs between 800 and 950 pounds; the hunting and pack mules, which weigh between 1,000 and 1,200 pounds; and the draft mules, which weigh up to 1,600 pounds.

Patton bought his first mule in the fall of 1972. "She'd been caught once when I got her," he mused, "and it took three men and two horses to get her in a trailer."

"I've had her down, she's had me down. I've kicked her, she's kicked me," he remembers.

He bought another burro in the spring of 1973 and followed that with a male in the fall of 1975. Presently, he owns a jack, the '73 jenny and her colt. But for him it was a hobby until he met former county judge A.G. Mitchell, another local long-ear fancier.

According to Patton, Mitchell would buy the animals and turn them over to him for training either to race or to show. His success at both has been remarkable. One of their mules raced at Ruidoso, won, and later lost a head-to-head match.

Patton and his wife, Loma, have traveled as far as Bishop, California to the mule celebration there. Patton also talks of the Prospector's Day in Fairplay, Colorado. There is a parade followed by a 22-mile marathon. Man and mule train to run over the mountains in less than three hours.

Burros and mules are a vanishing breed, according to the stockman. Their usefulness as working animals has been limited by machinery and their use as recreational animals has been in direct competition with the horse.

But there are things a long-ear can do better. "It costs about as much to keep a small mule as it does a dog," said Patton. He wants to take his stock and go back to the Davis Mountains, where the burro "can go where you can't get with 4-wheel drive. They waste no energy, just go until they're tired, stop and look around, and go again. They can carry 40 per cent of their body weight. You can teach them to lead or drive themselves."

He wants to go out with his wife, his animals, and himself and climb into the mountains. If his determination is any indication, he will.

Rodeo rained out, reset for tonight

The weekend rain was good for crops, bad for rodeos.

With the Big Spring Rodeo Arena looking like a giant mud pie, officials reluctantly decided to put Saturday's competition off until 8:30 p.m. today.

"There will be no special entertainment scheduled for today, but it will be a full-fledged rodeo, if it doesn't rain," said Jimmy Taylor, member of the rodeo board of directors.

Coahoma gets best of two day rainfall

The rainmakers forgot to turn off the tap over the weekend.

Heavy showers were spotted, concentrated mostly northeast of Big Spring, skirting the city in several areas. The heaviest report came from Coahoma with 2.2 inches falling on Friday and Saturday.

Sand Springs, Fairview, and Moss Creek Lake all reported an inch of the wet stuff for those two days. Where the storm danced into the eastern edge of town, rain gauges read half an inch on Saturday.

Forsan and Knott received only a meager .1 of an inch for the two-day storm. But a gauge reading in Knott showed a rainfall total for last week to be a respectable two inches.

Stanton soaked up .6 of an inch of precipitation for Friday and Saturday. The rain may not be over. Clouds will continue to roll by today and Monday, and some may be heavy with H2O. Chances of showers are around 20 per cent today.

Police use teargas to scatter mourners

A police spokesman in Soweto, the sprawling black township 10 miles outside Johannesburg where more than one million blacks live, said the teargas was fired because police officials decided the crowd was getting too large.

The officials estimated the crowd at 15,000 and said it was feared they would not be able to control the mass people if any more gathered. Other witnesses estimated the crowd at 25,000.

Before tear gas broke up the crowd, a white South African reporter, escorted to the graveside by black friends, said only the spark of a single incident was needed to make Soweto burn "as easily as a fire set in the tall dry grasslands surrounding the township."

High school students directed funeral traffic and nearly a dozen municipal buses were used as roadblocks to control the streams of cars with blacks.

At the graveside on the outskirts of Soweto mourners and spectators stood hundreds deep, witnesses said. One photographer estimated 25,000 blacks were massed at the cemetery and surrounding streets.

Residents armed

Suspect still evades search

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — They think he's still out there, wandering the densely wooded limestone foothills of the Ozarks. The posse doggedly hunts the man accused of sexually assaulting and killing three Girl Scouts nearly two weeks ago.

Saturday morning, about 150 lawmen and a handful of volunteer citizens continued their search for Gene Leroy Hart, an escaped convict who has been charged in the deaths.

On Friday, about 400 persons — including the father of one of the victims — helped in the search. But most of them were sent home later because authorities said inexperienced hunters were hindering professional efforts to find clues that might lead to Hart.

Police have advised residents of the farms, ranches and homes to stay in their houses and keep the doors locked. Many are frightened.

"If they don't catch him, what's he going to do next?" wondered one housewife in this northeastern Oklahoma area. "What do we do next? Where do we go from here? We can't just hibernate."

And, from the locked security of her nearby home, Mrs. Jim English said: "You feel more conscious of this thing at night. At night you don't know what's coming through the woods."

The manhunt is in a 10-square-mile area about three miles from the Girl Scout camp where, with his footsteps muffled by a thunderstorm, the killer struck on June 13.

On Thursday, three counts of first-degree murder were filed against the convicted rapist who escaped nearly four years ago from the Mayes County jail at nearby Pryor.

More than half an inch of rain fell late Friday, washing out old tracks but also helping by making new ones more visible.

Temperatures rising toward 90 and humidity above 80 per cent made the tick-infested woods a steam bath for the searchers and those standing by at Camp Scott, where the girls were slain.

About 50 patrol troopers, along with State Bureau of Investigation and FBI agents awaited developments at the camp, ready to move in with tracking dogs and aircraft should any sightings be reported.

And on Saturday, the state police sent in special teams of khaki-clad troopers armed with rifles.

Hart, 33, was linked to the case through two tattered photographs found near the death scene, an annual retreat for hundreds of Oklahoma Girl Scouts.

"You don't know what to do. There's nothing really you can do. . . But we keep our pistols on the bar all day and a shotgun by the bed all night," said Mrs. Wayne McCartney.

Not far away, at the R. L. Stamper quarterhorse ranch, Randy Stamper said several families gathered in his father's house and kept an armed radio vigil deep into the night.

"There are a lot of people sitting up at night listening to their CB radios. They've got their doors locked and their guns loaded. The women are afraid to go into the yards by themselves."

Said one woman, "Please don't identify me. They haven't apprehended this fellow yet. He's still here with us, unfortunately. And the thing about it is, he's been with us a good long while and he may stay with us awhile longer."

One newsman drove up to a farmhouse to use a telephone. A screen door slowly opened, a grizzled old man stepped out, pointed a shotgun at him and said:

"Listen, around here, in these times, if you want to come up to my house, you honk first, step out of the car and wave your hands so I can see what you got."

Mayes County Dist. Atty. Sid Wise vowed to continue the hunt.

"First, we're going to catch Mr. Hart, and then we're going to determine to our satisfaction whether he killed the girls. And, if not, we'll look for somebody else."

Victor Auxier, a 63-year-old farmer, believes he may have accidentally stumbled across Hart on Thursday while walking his dog along a fence line.

"I was just walking along that fence about noon and all of a sudden my dog started growling, and when I looked up there was this fellow sitting under a small cliff," Auxier said.

"He was on the other side of the fence about 10 feet away. I knew he saw me.

"Well, I didn't know what to do. . . After hearing all the news about this killer running loose, I just pretended I hadn't seen him and said something sorta to make myself about fixing the fence and walked on.

"As soon as I got back to the house, I called the law."

Action/reaction: Clubs can exclude

Q. In regard to a recent question in the Herald about clubs staying open until 2 a.m., what can be done to begin the process? And what can be done to open the clubs to all persons over 18?

A. According to Jim Gregg, city attorney, "The late permit requires an ordinance passed by the city council for those within the city limits and action by the county commissioner's court for those without." If you want such action, best ask them about it. As far as the 18 question goes, although the law recognizes you as an adult, it appears that the clubs can set their standards wherever they wish and exclude whomever they want.

Calendar: Rodeo reset tonight

TODAY
Final night of Big Spring Rodeo was rescheduled from Saturday night until tonight, 8:30 p.m. Rodeo Bowl.

MONDAY
County Commissioners meet in their regular session and will discuss ambulance service with the local Start Talking Ambulance Today group, 9 a.m., courthouse.

Summer Youth Program registration continues at Westside Community Center, 1311 W. 4th. Open to elementary age youths.

Offbeat: Apple not mentioned

Wiley Madewell reads the Wrigley quiz on the funny paper page in the Herald.

A question this spring asked "What fruit made history in the Garden of Eden?" It gave the answer as "the apple."

Madewell, a Big Spring resident, wrote the company and pointed out that the book of Genesis does not even mention an apple.

He received an immediate response from the company telling him that he was correct and that they would notify the advertising department to be more careful with its future questions.

He also received a carton of Juicy Fruit gum, apparently the nearest to an apple flavor that the company makes.

Newton to 'face music'

TORONTO (AP) — Fugitive Black Panther leader Huey P. Newton arrived here from Cuba late Saturday on the first leg of a journey to California where he faces murder and assault charges.

The 35-year-old Newton arrived aboard an Air Canada flight from Havana, where he has spent the past 2½ years.

He told a Canadian broadcast interviewer he will spend about 10 days in Toronto preparing his legal defense before surrendering to U.S. authorities. He had said he would be willing to return to the United States and face the charges because of a "new" political climate in America.

There was no indication if Canadian officials would allow Newton to remain in the country until he had completed his preparations.

Canadian officials indicated Friday they might take Newton into custody and begin deportation proceedings. But Newton's lawyer, Paul Copeland, said an individual arriving from outside continental North America can only be deported from Canada after an official inquiry, which could take several days.

Seniors asked advice

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Twenty-five senior citizens have been asked by Atty. Gen. John Hill to advise him on nursing home problems, Hill said Friday.

Hill said he had the assistance of R.L. Pugh, San Antonio, president of the Texas Senior Citizens Association, and other leaders in picking the older Texans.

Hill said he already had professional investigators from his "white collar fraud unit" working with the State Department of Public Welfare in the Lufkin nursing homes abuse probe.

"We will, of course, cooperate with the DPW," Hill said, "but we will establish the parameters of the investigation. Since there are 900 nursing homes in Texas — some excellent and some with problems — we will need the input of this interested group on our investigation."

Reagan 1980 winner?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ronald Reagan would be an almost certain winner if he made another bid for the presidency in 1980, predicted Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., Reagan's running mate in the 1976 race.

"I don't think anybody could beat him. I don't think he'd be stoppable," Schweiker said here Friday night.

Schweiker, in St. Louis for a meeting of the College Republican National Committee, said he would support Reagan if he chose to run. He said he believed Reagan's health, more than any other factor, will determine whether the GOP conservative will run.

Hearts 'n flowers

The classes of the 50s had their crew-cuts. Students in the 60s gained much renown, especially in their own ranks, for the rebellious stance they adopted. What are the collegians of the 70s noted for? Mainly for their admiration of money, at least those of athletic bent who lust to be instant millionaires.

They are enamored of the success stories of people like O.J. Simpson, Joe Namath, Muhammad Ali, Dr. J. (Julius Erwin), Joe Morgan and Jack Nicklaus and they make up their minds quickly about their potential in their sport. Can I bring it off in two or three years if not now, they ask themselves. If their analysis isn't positive, they are prone to exit athletics for the flimsiest of reasons — they want to go to work to buy a car or they weary of tearing tape from their legs after each practice session.

They often develop the body of a Greek god, yet are beset with mental hangups. They do not respond to the need for discipline. They suffer from a lack of commitment and, not infrequently, they are troubled by instability of the family unit.

They see no need for restraint because so many of their professional heroes flaunt the rules and get away with it. Unionization has come to the world of the mercenaries and that is not conducive to good and sustained team effort.

For the pro athlete, indulgence seems to be the name of the game. Often he's a motor mouth. He says what he thinks. Free love comes too easily for him and he refuses to do anything that doesn't appeal to him. He thinks nothing of letting his teammates down in order to devote an inning to bedonism.

One high school coach says he finds it difficult to figure out the modern athlete, lamenting he has to seek out the boy who is willing to sacrifice for the team. In other times, the spartan life was the rule rather than the exception.

"Society itself has... this laissez faire attitude," the coach adds. "I can feel it in the administration. They're letting the animals run the zoo. It looks like recess all the time... Everybody on the team used to be dedicated. Now, they sit around. They're into drugs, drinking, girls, new fads — sports aren't as important as they used to be."

The play-for-pay people set a wretched example. They brawl in public, often humiliating their coach or manager. The front office offers lip service to their field bosses but that is about as far as it goes. The brass is cowed by the athletes and their legal beagles who somehow take on a status they have not earned. Pit bosses don't seem to have a friend anywhere anymore.

Too many of the kids don't want that intense involvement. They prefer to socialize where they gain recognition for their athletic merit, even though they resent being asked to pay the price.

Maybe we are approaching the twilight of the gods.

3,000 want up front

Women in back of political bus?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — About 3,000 women who want to improve their status in Texas were told Saturday their aim should be to defeat every "cotton-picking" legislator against the Equal Rights Amendment.

"Women are still riding at the back of the political bus," said Liz Carpenter, former White House press

drinking legislators against the ERA. The Texas Women's Meeting was one of 56 state and territorial meetings schedd this summer in preparation for the National Women's Conference in Houston, Nov. 18-21.

The meetings were authorized and financed by Congress to recommend ways to improve the status of women. Information distributed to Saturday's delegates showed expenditure of $88,400 from federal funds for the Texas meeting, including $12,235 for pre-meeting planning and travel, $11,450 in payment to speakers and translators, and $10,647 for publicity, and $15,600 for scholarships to the meeting.

Mrs. Carpenter also brought greetings from President and Mrs. Carter. "I assure you of my solidarity and support," the President said, in part.

"Women of this country need you because you want to do to human rights what Lyndon Johnson did to civil rights," Mrs. Carpenter said in reply to the President's message.

She also read a message from Lady Bird Johnson said the former First Lady hoped that "the history you write in Austin, the report you send to the national meeting in Houston forward looking; so that all women, now and in the future may grow as far as their dreams and capabilities can carry them."

Other speakers at the general session included Owanah Anderson, Wichita Falls, head of the Texas International Women's Year Committee. "We have been told to assess ourselves and propose our own solutions to our own problems," she said.

"Where we end up and the condition we are in depends on us," said Dr. Gloria Scott, Houston, a national IWY commissioner. After the general session the delegates broke into 21 different workshops, followed by seven reaction or panel discussion sessions.

Lawyer's bust offends judge, coverup ordered

DALLAS (AP) — There was a court-ordered coverup in Municipal Court here Friday and it's apparently an indication that Judge Joe Loving keeps a close watch over lawyers who appear in his court.

It all started when Mrs. Courtney Kappler, 33, a lawyer, came to Loving's court to represent a man on a misdemeanor theft charge. When it was over, there had been an argument about feminism, a judge who was slightly embarrassed, a client was willing to settle for less than he came to court for and Mrs. Kappler owned a piece of clothing she never intended to buy.

Not long after she arrived in Judge Loving's court, Mrs. Kappler said she was summoned to the judge's bench. "I thought he wanted to have my name spelled. A lot of people have trouble with my name," she said.

Instead, she said, the judge said something about a courtroom dress code. "I thought he was talking about my client. It took me a while to figure out he had some criticism of me," she recalled. For years, judges here have required lawyers in court here to wear ties and coats, but female lawyers have not practiced long enough in sufficient numbers for a specific dress code to be set for them.

Mrs. Kappler, the mother of two children, said she was not certain what was wrong with the white cotton blouse and blue skirt she was wearing.

Women, the judge told her, are required to have "undergarments" in his court.

"I beg your pardon," Mrs. Kappler said she replied. "Undergarments...under your blouse," the judge replied.

Mrs. Kappler then informed the judge in no uncertain terms that she was wearing the undergarment he mentioned.

"I cannot allow you to appear in my courtroom in a manner that will offend me and the jurors," she quoted the judge as saying.

While court was recessed for 20 minutes, Mrs. Kappler went to a nearby store and purchased a new $37 blazer.

When she returned to court, she found that her case had been assigned to another judge and that her client was now willing to sign an agreement not to pursue claims in civil court for false arrest if the store would drop the shoplifting charges against him.

Mrs. Kappler said her blouse, which she said is not of the see-through variety, is not the real issue. "The question is whether a judge can throw people out of a courtroom over something like this. Are women lawyers to be penalized by puritan whims?"

Judge Loving, who appeared to be perturbed by the amount of attention created by the incident, said "It was just a little thing. I thought she needed something on...something more conducive to the atmosphere of the courtroom. It's a little simple matter of courtroom decorum."

Oswald's ghost stalks in form of actor

MCKINNEY, Tex. (AP) — A ghost walks the courthouse lawn here, a ghost that sends residents of this North Central Texas town back in their memories to that terrible day in November, 1963 when the ghost was a man and a President lay dead.

Passersby stop and gawk openly at the little fellow sitting there nervously smoking a cigarette. There's the same pinched mouth, oversized ears and receding hairline. But John Pleshette, unknown actor and writer, is not Lee Harvey Oswald. He just acts like him.

Pleshette has been tapped to play Oswald in ABC's upcoming $2 million television epic "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," which is being filmed here and in Dallas where the Warren Commission said Oswald assassinated President John Kennedy. Some say the resemblance between Pleshette and Oswald is haunting. Others don't see it at all.

Oswald, like Pleshette, stood 5 feet 9. Their weight, 140 lbs., is the same. Oswald was 24 when Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby gunned him down in front of a national television audience. Pleshette is 38 but doesn't look it.

The actor's elation over the role is understandable. His prior credentials include only a few minor movie and TV parts.

"I really don't think people are going to do anything to me or say anything simply because they connect me with this part," he said during a break on the movie set. "To the public, Oswald is still a tremendous mystery man. This script offered me a lot of choices about how to play this character. What I'm trying to do is show the disintegration of the man. We're avoiding playing Oswald like a crazy."

Like virtually everyone else, Pleshette believes Oswald is guilty of shooting Kennedy. But his research into the assassination and Oswald's background have convinced him Oswald didn't act alone.

Registration for the Summer Youth Program will continue Monday at the Westside Community Center.

Children of elementary school age may participate. The program will feature arts and crafts, baseball, bike races and more.

The center is in need of volunteers, however, if the program is to function. Even one hour a day would help tremendously, according to center officials.

In order to help out, call the center at 267-6680, or drop by the center, 1311 W. 4th, in person.

Two accidents result in two injuries

Texas Highway Patrolmen investigated one accident early Saturday night, and were on hand for another that occurred right before their very eyes.

Two Snyder men narrowly escaped serious injury when the large oilfield truck they were travelling in went out of control a half mile south of Big Spring on U.S. 87.

According to investigating patrolmen, the truck hit a slick spot in the road, spun, and then rolled over twice. The driver, David Lee Green was thrown from the truck and received only slight injuries. His brother Thomas, a passenger in the truck, was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital with a broken leg.

Thomas Green spent the night in the hospital, and his brother was treated and released.

As troopers investigated this accident, a large D&H Transport truck driven by Harold Crawford, Coahoma, jackknifed at almost the same spot, and collided with a pickup driven by Duane Griffith, 1619 E. 17th. No one was injured in the second accident.

He has long dreamed of starting an orphan's home. He told friends if he ever made a big score in crime, he'd use it to provide a home for homeless waifs.

Furthermore, he would offer curb service to parents who didn't want their kids and if his asylum ever ran short of money he'd pull a job every now and then to restock the larder.

Ray, in reality, is a loner, so it's not surprising that the plight of neglected children tugs at some profound chord within him.

paradise for a bargain hunter. Custom inspectors are prone to look you over closely, seeking a flaw that would indicate to them you're trying to get by with something.

And, yes, the little old grey-haired lady is just as apt to be a smuggler as the bearded youth in sandals who is carrying a suspicious-looking valise.

Custom inspectors say most people are terrible liars, that they don't prepare their stories well enough. Invariably, they crumble when the questioning continues for any length of time.

I shall be very much surprised if Patricia Hearst, after having been sentenced to serve seven years in Stony Lonesome, spends another day in jail.

Deaths

W. X. Young

LAMESA — Services for William Xeno Young, 75, of Mesa, Ariz. will be at 3 p.m. today in Bronan funeral Home Chapel here with the Rev. Fred Heath, pastor of Bryan Street Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in the Lamesa Cemetery. Young died of an apparent heart attack about 3 p.m. Thursday 16 miles west of Snyder in a motor home.

Snyder Justice of the Peace Bobby Goodwin ruled the death due to natural causes.

A native of Callahan County, Young had lived in Mesa where he was a retired aircraft worker since 1969.

He was an early-day Dawson County resident and married Susie Payne in December, 1923, in Lamesa. He was a Baptist.

Survivors include his widow; four daughters, Mrs. Bilye S. Johnson of Mesa; Mrs. Loretta P. Taylor, Mrs. Bobbie Jean Adair and Mrs. Ida Willyene Wolfe, all of Los

Robert Sanders

SWEETWATER — Robert Sanders, 44, who arrived in Sweetwater the past week to become director of nurses at Rollins Plains Memorial Hospital, died of an apparent heart attack in the hospital at 6 p.m., Friday.

Arrangements for services are being completed at McCoy Funeral Home.

Mrs. Bearden

LUBBOCK — Mrs. Carson A. Bearden, 85, of Lubbock, mother of Mrs. Loys Stephens of Lamesa, died at 4:55 p.m., Friday in a Lubbock hospital.

Services were held at 2 p.m., Saturday in the Trinity Baptist Church in Lubbock. Burial followed in Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park.

Born March 4, 1882, in Westbrook, Mrs. Bearden moved to Lubbock from Lamesa in 1958.

If you've just bought a hollowed bed (or beds) and you need a headboard, why not invest in the wallboard paneling? The paneling is very easy to hang and, once you know the width of the wall space needed, you can have them cut to your precise measurements. You can run them floor to ceiling behind the bed, line up your mattress and box spring and voila — it's done. Put the finishing touches on with a spread in your favorite color and your room is ready with time and money to spare. Another good feature is the saving of floor space should your bedrooms be small. The average headboard juts out about eight to ten inches from the wall and this is saved with a flush headboard.

Select pre-finished paneling from the full display of Weyerhaeuser paneling at HARRIS LUMBER & HARDWARE, E. 4th at Birdwell Lane! We also have a large variety of moldings in all colors. Make HARRIS LUMBER & HARDWARE your headquarters for all your repair and remodeling needs. We carry a full line of paints and painting supplies, power and hand tools, vinyl tile, and all types of hardware needs. If we don't have what you need, we will gladly order it for you! Let our experienced staff help you solve your remodeling or repair problems. Call us at 267-8206. We are open daily from 7:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., and on Saturdays until 6 p.m.

Handy Hint: Use a small leazy sump on your kitchen table for condiments, coffee, etc. — It's stop-saving for the items you always need at home.

Webb AFB ambulances not suitable for EMS?

Members of the local Start Talking Ambulance Today group (STAT) have given up on the possibility of the use of two ambulances to be left behind when Webb Air Force Base is closed, to establish a public Emergency Medical System.

Members of the group, which was formed recently to lobby for a public Emergency Medical Service in Howard County, examined the two vehicles offered by the Air Force Friday. The area is presently served by Alert Ambulance, a private firm.

Major Edward Morton, Webb hospital commander, said that only the vehicles and no emergency equipment could be left behind. The vehicles were a 1964 Dodge "cracker box" type ambulance with manual transmission and four-wheel drive and a 1970 Ford Ranch Wagon.

The Dodge was labeled as not suitable for EMS by STAT because it was primarily a rescue vehicle for areas of rough terrain and would not go over 55 miles an hour.

The Ford wagon has 47,911 miles on the speedometer, but it is a station wagon and does not meet the 54-inch headroom requirement necessary for hanging an intravenous infusion or performing cardiopulmonary resuscitation, according to the group's leader, Diana Weir. It also does not have room for a cardiac monitor, drug box, or other life-support equipment, according to Ms. Weir.

She said that other ambulances on the base, which would meet the requirements of Emergency Medical System are scheduled to be taken to another facility when Webb AFB closes. Neither of the vehicles inspected had a barrier between the driver and patient and only the five extinguishers would be left with the vehicles, if they are left behind.

Webb personnel are still studying an avenue of authority to turn the vehicles over to Howard County, where they could possibly be used as back-up vehicles for the EMS, according to Ms. Weir.

Weather State generally cool with cloudy skies

By the Associated Press
Thundershowers, coupled with a weak cold front, advanced across the northern half of Texas Saturday while the rest of the state recorded generally lower temperatures and partly cloudy skies.

Much of the rain activity was caused by a stationary front that developed along the Red River and zipped eastward at up to 30 miles per hour. Locally heavy rains and strong winds accompanied the front that dropped temperatures in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, where gusts up to 30 miles an hour were registered in the late afternoon. The Panhandle area also experienced late-afternoon thundershowers and golf ball-sized hail was reported at Cary, 10 miles north of Childress.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Fair in the extreme southwest and partly cloudy elsewhere through Monday. Warmer in the north Sunday. Scattered thundershowers in the north Sunday night. Lows Sunday night near 60 northwest to low 70s southeast, except middle 50s in the mountains. Highs Sunday 90 to 97 except upper 80s mountains and near 100 Big Bend valleys. Highs Monday low 90s north to near 100 Big Bend valleys, except near 90 mountains.
EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy and warm Tuesday through Thursday. Highs in the 90s except 100 to 108 in Southwest Texas. Lows 60s to middle 70s, except 50s in the mountains.

Koreas mark 27th anniversary

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The two Koreas marked the 27th anniversary of the outbreak of the Korean War on Saturday with mass rallies above and below the 38th parallel. Each called for the ouster of the other's leader.

But quiet was reported in the rocky demilitarized zone, nearly two miles wide and 151 miles long, separating the armies of the Communist North and U.S.-backed South.

In an interview with the Paris daily Le Monde, North Korea's Communist President Kim Il-sung said two Koreas ought to be reunited in a confederation, but that U.S. troops in the South posed the major obstacle.

South Koreans marked the anniversary with vast anti-Communist rallies and warnings that North Korea was scheming to repeat its June 25, 1950, surprise attack on the South. Thousands of Koreans demonstrating in Seoul called for the ouster of the Communist regime in the North.

Culture and Information Minister Kim Seong-jin, in an anniversary statement, accused the Communists of planning another invasion of the South, taking advantage of the planned pullout of American troops.

President Carter has announced plans for a phased withdrawal of the 32,000 U.S. ground troops in South Korea over four or five years, while leaving air and naval forces to help defend the South. Some members of Congress have criticized the plan, saying it would leave the South vulnerable to attack, while the North Koreans have demanded total withdrawal.

North Korea's official news agency said more than 200,000 people gathered in the capital, Pyongyang, and filled the air with chants calling for the ouster of South Korean President Park Chung-hee and withdrawal of all U.S. forces from the South.

The Korean Central News Agency said Vice Premier Chong Jung-gi told the demonstrators that Washington must withdraw its troops and nuclear weapons and leave the people of Korea to solve the problem of reunifying the country.

In the interview with Le Monde Editor-in-chief Andre Fontaine, North Korean President Kim said "confederation constitutes the most rational means of achieving national unity while conserving the two existing regimes."

Fontaine reported that Kim appeared well, contrary to rumors that he was ill and on the point of abdicating power in favor of his son.

The mountainous Korean peninsula, annexed by Japan in 1910 and divided in Soviet and American zones when Japan surrendered after World War II, became a battleground on June 25, 1950, when North Korean troops backed by Chinese Communists swept across the 38th parallel dividing line and began an attempt to reunify the peninsula by force.

The South Koreans, helped by U.S. and other troops in a United Nations force, eventually pushed the Communists back to the 38th parallel. An armistice, signed on July 27, 1953, halted the fighting and established the demilitarized zone across the 38th parallel.

Yarbrough denies he plotted to kill witness

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough scoffed Saturday at a report that he had plotted to kill a grand jury witness to prevent him from testifying in connection with a state investigation involving the jurist.

In its Saturday editions, the Houston Post said the intended victim was Victoria banker Bill Kemp, who has been wearing a bullet-proof vest in fear of his life. The Post quoted former Yarbrough business associate John William "Bill" Rothkopf as saying Yarbrough approached him about "having Kemp eliminated" as early as December. Rothkopf said he initially thought Yarbrough was joking but later discovered he was serious.

Rothkopf said Yarbrough told him he was willing to pay a Mexican named "Pete" $2,500 to kill Kemp and dispose of the body so it would never be found. But Yarbrough reportedly changed his mind earlier this month after he couldn't raise the money. Rothkopf also said Yarbrough told him "the timing was bad." Yarbrough denied the story, calling it "utter fantasy." "I have nothing to say today, but I can assure you that I'll have plenty to say at the proper time," Yarbrough told the Associated Press. "I will say that this tale is an absolute fantasy. It reads like a cheap dime novel."

"It's interesting to note that six months ago, the assistant prosecutor for the state bar told one other witness that he was supposedly an assassination target. It's a three-ring circus, a complete and utter fantasy."

Rothkopf said he talked to members of the Harris County district attorney's special crimes bureau regarding the alleged plot to kill Kemp. The Post said bureau spokesman Carol Vance confirmed that a state grand jury is investigating Yarbrough in connection with an allegedly forged $200,000 letter of credit Yarbrough used to obtain a loan from a Houston businessman. Kemp, who the Post said can confirm the forgery, appeared before the grand jury June 1. Kemp's attorney, Tom Thomas of Dallas, said his client is on vacation but added, "I think he's very relieved. Publicity is certainly a deterrent and for that reason he's more comfortable. He has been unable to explain many things I imagine many of them (Kemp's friends) think he's crazy because of the marked departure from his usual behavior."

When told about the Post's story, Chief Justice Joe Greenhill declined comment, adding, "I have absolutely no knowledge of any of the facts in the story."

Stars gather, honor late Joan Crawford

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was like "a genteel Irish wake," said John Wayne. "It is the first time the entire film industry has come together to honor one of its own," remarked Myrna Loy.

The two indelible film stars were speakers at "A Tribute to Joan Crawford," conducted Friday night at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, with the film industry and its guilds participating and a thousand of Miss Crawford's friends and co-workers in the audience.

The star died May 10 in New York at the reported age of 69.

"This is not a somber memorial service," said Kathleen Nolan, president of the Screen Actors Guild, which Miss Crawford joined June 12, 1934, as the 328th member. "She never looked back. Regret was not in her vocabulary."

And so, for a couple of hours, friends talked about the actress who seemed to epitomize stardom. The audience watched scenes of her memorable performances in "Dancing Lady," "Mildred Pierce," "Humoresque," "Torch Song," "The Gorgeous Hussy," "Reunion in France," and others.

Miss Loy claims to be Crawford's oldest friend in Hollywood, since they appeared as showgirls in the 1925 "Pretty Ladies." Miss

Loy recalled, "We had to form a human chandelier."

Robert Young, who appeared in four Crawford films, reminisced about his secret marriage 44 years ago — "film actors weren't supposed to get married in those days and having children was out of the question." He brought his bride home to find two dozen red roses and a copy of "The Prophet," gifts of Joan Crawford.

Wayne recalled seeing Miss Crawford at tea dances in Los Angeles in the late 1920s and termed the star "so courteous, polite and gracious to fellow workers and unknowns."

For the record

C. C. Harrison, councilman for the City of Coahoma, said his reasons for leaving a council meeting in Coahoma the past week were misunderstood by the reporter who checked on the meeting for The Herald. He was reported as being ill.

"I wasn't ill," said Harrison, "I was just sick of some of the people who were there."

Briscoe selling Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — During the coming week, Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe will be talking with German industrial leaders trying to sell them on German investments in Texas, his office said Friday.

The exportation of Texas agricultural and industrial goods also will be a subject on the speaking tour in four West Germany cities.

Briscoe, who has been in Vienna for a vacation and social visit, will speak in Munich on Monday, Stuttgart on Tuesday, Cologne on Wednesday and Frankfurt on Thursday.

The meetings are sponsored by the German-American Chamber of Commerce.

Traffic deaths on the rise

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Traffic deaths in Texas are six per cent more this year than in 1976, the Department of Public Safety said Saturday.

DPS statistics show a total of 1,451 deaths on Texas streets and highways so far this year compared to 1,369 for the same period last year.

There have been 1,275 accidents in which deaths occurred, compared to 1,193 the year before.

Daylight savings with a little corn

When Horace Tubb and Lawrence Davis are sitting across the monthly agriculture breakfast table from each other, the farmers don't need a program that morning.

Tubb, who has a truck farm south of Big Spring, and Davis, who farms and ranches south of Coahoma, traded stories last week when the agricultural group met at Coker's Restaurant.

First, they wandered off onto the subject of daylight savings time, which Davis reckoned was a conspiracy dreamed up by golfers so they could get in 18 holes before dark.

TUBB COUNTERED that a woman he knew said her corn was burning up this summer, and she blamed it on that extra hour of daylight.

Tubb allowed that daylight savings had helped one kind of farmer, that being the "Fina farmer" (which he defined as one who works at the Coden Refinery and farms in the evenings) who now has enough light for some plowing after 5 p.m.

Naturally, the two farmers talked mostly about the weather since a thundershower had dropped half an inch of rain on the Big Spring area the night before.

Davis cast suspicion on rain gauges in general by noting that some farmers always seem to "out rain" their neighbors.

Tubb explained that this was done with those wide neck but thin bottomed rain gauges which have the potential for being exact to the hundredths since about three inches on the gauge represents a half inch of moisture. "That you do," he said, "is measure that gauge with ruler." Then they traded hail stories.

Davis' yarn went like this: When he was a boy, his father moved cattle to a place outside of Seminole. Two men came along in a Model A and stopped to visit until a black cloud on the horizon began to threaten. The two men left in their Model A in an attempt to reach town before the storm.

Baseball-size hail caught them before they could get into Seminole, and it went right through the top of the automobile. The two men leaped out to crawl under the car, but one of them was beamed by a large hailstone and knocked unconscious. If the other man had not been there to pull him under the car, the hail would probably have killed him, Davis said.

Tubb was not to be outdone. He had seen a good fieldhand ruined after the man had been caught out in a hailstorm. The fieldhand had to open the thin hood to the Farmall tractor and stand under it for three-quarters of an hour to avoid the hail.

After that, the fellow was no good, Tubb said, for everytime a powder-puff of a cloud would appear in the sky, by early afternoon he would have his family packed up and off to Coahoma to weather the "hailstorm."

"Had to pay that fellow by the day," Tubb said, "not by the week." Next Tubb and Davis swapped crop duster stories, but I won't attempt to retell those. You readers may have had more than you will believe already.

Energy shift

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Although President Carter was rescued from grave error by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill at a crucial moment in the great energy war between the White House and Congress, the administration's undisciplined tendency for overkill to sell its case continues to boomerang.

The day after a House Commerce subcommittee voted to deregulate natural gas prices as successful as far as it went. Alarmed that the President had decided to go "live" to the country over nationwide TV on the morning of June 10 to lambast that subcommittee decision, O'Neill quietly and correctly advised against it.

There was much that would happen before Congress came even close to final action on gas deregulation — and a score of only marginally less important energy decisions. O'Neill told Mr. Carter: cool it, for God's sake, and save your ammunition.

THE PRESIDENT cooled it — but not before instructing his press secretary, Jody Powell, to read the same riot act that he himself had planned to deliver on television.

Powell seized the occasion with relish, not only blasting Congress for caving in to the oil lobby but for costing taxpayers "a paltry $71 billion ripoff."

When the page one banner headline appeared in the Washington Star a few hours later — "Congress Caves In on Energy, Carter says" — presidential aides started beating a retreat. Waiting to tape a Chancellor-Brinkley interview on the battle with Congress for that evening's NBC news, Powell pleaded (wholly unsuccessfully) with NBC reporter John Hart: "Now don't say I was attacking Congress because I wasn't."

But where on earth had that "$71 billion ripoff" come from? It came not from Powell but from energy experts in the office of Dr. James Schlesinger, President Carter's energy chief. Instructed to make the worst possible case out of the gas deregulation bill then awaiting action by the House Commerce subcommittee, these experts drafted two case studies alleging to show the huge cost of gas deregulation under two differing sets of circumstances.

"Case 1" showed a revenue increase of $86 billion.

A DOCUMENT containing both "cases" was rushed to each member of the House Commerce subcommittee 20 minutes before the vote on Rep. Robert Krueger's deregulation bill. It had little impact. Krueger's amendment carrying by a 12 to 10 vote.

Krueger, a moderate Texas Democrat who sports an Oxford Ph.D. and has become the acknowledged super-expert in congress on the gas-and-oil industries so important to his state, was first surprised — then angry. The cost allegations in the administration's two "cases" ignore the extra cost of gas to consumers under Mr. Carter's own bill. That cost is conservatively put at $15 billion.

Before examining the rest of the data in the administration's documentation of the cost of his deregulation bill, Krueger bitterly complained to Dr. Schlesinger's office. That accounted for Powell's curious use of the "paltry $71 billion ripoff." He took the higher $86 billion cost estimate in "Case 2" and simply subtracted the cost of the President's partial decontrol program.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

HAIRCUTS
All my haircuts were given at home when I was little. The haircuts were a weekly ritual — every Saturday night whether I needed one or not.

I would be seated on a tall stool with a cup towel tied around my neck while Dad would get out his hand clippers, blow hair off them, squirt them with machine oil, and here we'd go. I didn't like to get haircuts. In fact I believe I would rather have had a tooth pulled any day as to get a haircut from my dad.

I would have to sit just right and perfectly still, not slumping or bobbing my head. Dad would hold my head with a hand that seemed more like a vice so I couldn't move a fraction of an inch but all the time his other hand worked the clippers he would be saying, "Stop wiggling around!"

I'll always believe those clippers were designed to pull hair out — not cut it off.

The haircuts weren't so hot looking either, I mean he didn't use a bowl or anything turned upside down over my head like I heard some people did but he might as well have because that's the way they usually turned out. My head would be pealed to some point an inch or so above my ears and from there it would kinda bush out like a tree. He would always start out to leave a little hair on the sides of my head but he would get a few gaps (because I wiggled around he always said). As he tried to get rid of the gaps he would cut off more and more of the hair until there were no more gaps because there was no more hair. I used to like to wear caps so nobody could see my haircut.

I got my first real store-bought haircut the week before I was to start school. Mother took me to the barber shop in town where we had to wait for quite a while before the barber could get to us. He had some clippers that plugged into the wall and made a humming sound but nobody in the shop seemed afraid of them so I figured they must be OK.

When it came my turn the barber motioned for me to climb up into the big chair. He put a board across the arms for me to sit on so I'd be tall enough and said, "What'll it be a shave or a haircut?" I just grinned but didn't say anything. I was eyeing those electric clippers hoping he didn't let them get loose and cut off my earlobes.

He looked at me for a while and said, "Did I give you your last haircut?" "No, my daddy did!" He frowned and said that's what he thought. He turned on the clippers and put them to my head. I fully expected it to hurt but it didn't — just made my ears kinda buzz. It tickled and I started giggling. Mother said, "Hold still son." But in just no time at all he was through and he gave me a big piece of bubble gum for being a good little man he said. When we left I asked Mother if I could go back there for all my haircuts, she said, "We'll see."

Emotions can cause rectal spasms

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can anything be done about rectal spasm? The pain is unbearable. You never know when it might come on. I get them periodically. I have been to the proctologist for an examination and nothing was found wrong. I have even fainted from the pain. Pain killers don't help. Any suggestions? I'm 50. — Mrs. L.A.

The rectum is a sensitive part of the anatomy. In spasm the sphincter muscle controlling the opening tightens and pain results. Yours seems severe. Proctitis, which is inflammation of the anal canal, is a common cause, and I assume this was checked out. Fissure (an abnormal cleft or groove) can cause it. So can a condition called "cryptitis," which is inflammation of certain "blind sacs" located in the anal canal. With fissure or infection there would most likely be pain during bowel movements.

There's another possibility — emotions. Spasms that are spontaneous — which come on at any time, unexpectedly — are usually associated with emotional problems. Can you match up attacks with emotional episodes? This is not uncommon in youngsters who develop bowel fixation.

A hot tub bath provides more relief than suppositories or pain-killers in this type of spasm. You seem to be drifting in a medical no-man's land at the moment. A problem like yours requires more than one visit to a proctologist to solve. Go back to him. It's his turn now. If you feel he is not showing sufficient interest in your spasm problem, find another doctor who will.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Have you any information on a man who gets dizzy when he gets up to urinate during the nighttime? This has been happening to my husband, but only during the night. Should he go to have this checked? — Mrs. R.R.

It's not uncommon in older men, and usually indicates a prostate situation. Having to urinate during the night would indicate that, anyway. Dr. Adam G.N. Moore, a Massachusetts physician, wrote on this recently. He has developed a formula — "Older man plus prostatism plus cold floor equals thud! — maybe." Dr. Moore offers this advice, "Gentlemen, please don't stand." Your husband should be seated when urinating, and he should be checked to determine the state of his prostate.

Two other conditions can contribute to this phenomenon. One is called micturitional syncope, the other postural hypotension. The former is a sudden feeling of weakness related to the urination effort. The hypotension is a sudden drop in blood pressure in the upright position on arising. My booklet on dizzy spells will explain the general problem in greater detail. For a copy, send 25 cents to me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I read recently about a 4-year-old girl who was beaten to death by her parents. I just can't understand why God would allow this to happen, do you? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: The Bible talks about "the mystery of iniquity" (II Thessalonians 2:7), and often evil is a mystery to us. The Bible does not close its eyes to evil, and in fact I think the Bible is the most realistic book ever written about the existence of sin and evil in our world. But the Bible also teaches us that God is still in control, and that some day He will defeat and destroy the forces of evil. We may not understand everything that happens to us now, but to the believer in Christ, "we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" (Romans 8:28).

Why do evil things happen? Because the human race is in rebellion against God. Sin takes all sorts of disguises, but our basic problem is sin in the human heart. Jeremiah said, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" (Jeremiah 17:9). Jesus said, "For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders" (Mark 7:21).

I know we sometimes wish God would simply wipe away all the evil and sin in this world. But we are all sinners, and "If thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?" (Psalms 130:3). But God delays His judgment, because He "is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (II Peter 3:9).

The evil that caused the tragedy you mention is sin, and sin lurks within each of us. That is why we need forgiveness, and that is why Christ came, "Who his own self bore our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness" (I Peter 2:24).

Jim Baum's sounding board, Fred Davis, who also observed his birthday Tuesday, says two young newlywed friends rented a modest house and a small plot of ground at the edge of town with the intention of growing their own vegetables.

One spring morning after the young man had left the house for work, his wife decided to prepare something special for dinner. Her cooking experience was limited but she decided to bake some homemade bread.

UNFORTUNATELY, She misread the directions and when the dough didn't rise immediately, she decided something was wrong. Rather than have her new husband to see the wasted ingredients, she dug a shallow hole in one corner of the garden plot and buried the lump of dough.

Two days later, when the husband was walking around the yard and surveying his "crop," he excitedly called his wife to come out and see what he found:

A huge "mushroom" that had suddenly grown up in one corner of the garden.

WASHINGTON—Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, has an unruly tongue, which has now gotten him into a backstage brouhaha with his black colleagues.

We started the imbrogio by reporting that Ashbrook, in a nasty reference to the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., had growled that time and money "should not be wasted investigating the murder of some nigger."

The remark allegedly was made in front of congressmen who got together over chicken dinner to discuss the House assassination investigation. Witnesses clearly recall hearing Ashbrook make the controversial statement. One witness, Richard Sprague, former chief counsel of the House Assassinations Committee, confirmed the incident from his records. But Ashbrook denied he had said anything of the sort.

THE CONGRESSMAN from Johnston, Ohio, is an amiable fellow who, nevertheless, has a reputation for shooting from the hip. He has also voted down the line against the civil rights measures that the venerated Dr. King died for. On May 13, therefore, we reported what the witnesses had overheard.

The Congressional Black Caucus immediately fired off a private letter to House Republican Leader John Rhodes asking him to investigate the alleged racial slur. "We submit this request to you," wrote Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., the caucus chairman, "hoping it will prevent the Republican Members of the House from being tarred with the brush of a person of discrimination.

Britain divided

Labor dispute becomes issue

LONDON (AP) — A 10-month-old labor dispute that recently has turned violent is threatening to become a major ideological issue in Britain at a time of economic malaise.

At 7 a.m. each weekday, about 1,000 policemen line up against a mixed army of strikers, pickets, labor union leaders and young leftist revolutionaries in two narrow streets around a film processing plant whose managing director refuses to recognize a union.

This bizarre scene in the seedy Dollis Hill district of northwest London has become a ritual rumble in which the two sides move with precision to kick, punch and claw each other at least once a day.

It also has the makings of a full-scale confrontation between left and right in Britain, where both political factions have been shaping up for a showdown for the last five years of economic stress.

The battle centers on the Grunwick plant and a dispute that began when Managing Director George Ward fired 80 of his 400 workers for joining a white collar union, the Association of Professional, Executive, Clerical and Computer Staffs — APEX. Forty other employees went on strike to support them. Ward refused to recognize the union.

The left has pitched in behind APEX. Other unions are sending men and money from all over the country to back the strikers in their escalating fight. And leftist students and a revolutionary fringe have joined in, eager for a cause and a scrap with the establishment.

On the right, the antiunion National Association of Freedom is giving money to Grunwick to help it through and, along with the Conservative party's right wing, is waging a fierce propaganda campaign against the unions.

The dispute sputtered along for months with little trouble until police and pickets clashed earlier this month. It's been like that ever since — a daily brawl with scores of injured.

Mick McGahey, a Scottish coal mine union leader who joined the pickets Thursday, said after another miners' leader, Arthur Scargill, was arrested: "The Grunwick dispute could explode into the worst-ever industrial action in Britain's history."

Prime Minister James Callaghan, who leads the Labor party, declared in the House of Commons: "The situation is getting extremely serious. There are people latching onto this thing to turn an industrial dispute into a political battle."

Sir Geoffrey Howe, a leader of the opposition Conservative party, said there seems to be "no limit to the mob warfare that can be justified in the name of trade unionism."

The Grunwick plant, a dirty red brick building, has been turned into a fortress with barbed wire strung along its walls.

Managing Director Ward makes no bones about his antipathy to the unions. "This firm is not antiunion," he told reporters. "It's nonunion."

The daily battle begins around 8 a.m. when a blue and white double-decker company bus rumbles the gantlet of the pickets and their allies to take workers into the plant.

Police line the narrow street leading to the back gate.

As the bus inches forward, the pickets and their supporters surge forward with a collective growl that builds to a roar of screams, curses, grunts and shouted orders.

On Friday, about 2,000 of them faced at least 1,000 police. Police officers dragged men and women from the mob. One young woman took a fist in the stomach, staggered from the melee and collapsed at a reporter's feet.

"Get them off me," she gasped, trembling with fright.

Another scratching, kicking girl in faded jeans was dragged away by her hair by a police officer, whose black tie had been torn off with a piece of his shirt.

POLICE AND DEMONSTRATORS CLASH — Police restrain a demonstrator at the Grunwick film processing plant in North London Thursday. A 10-month-old labor dispute centered on the plant's managing director's refusal to recognize a union, has recently turned violent and is threatening to become a major ideological issue in Britain at a time of economic malaise. Each weekday morning about 1,000 policemen line up against a mixed army of strikers, pickets, labor union leaders and young leftist revolutionaries in two narrow streets around the film processing plant.

It is simple to make an unforgettable glass for a delicious treat just combine one 8-oz. can of frozen pineapple-orange juice concentrate, thawed, 1/2 cup light corn syrup, 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon, and 1/2 tsp. of ground cloves and bring to a boil. Half an hour before heating or cooking time is up, remove from the oven, score it in fat diamonds, spoon on the glaze. Baste with the glaze two or three times, while cooking, remove to a platter, and pass the remaining glaze with the ham. It is delicious. Toll bill another blow for Trinity River plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A waterway users' toll bill that has been approved by the Senate may prove to be another nail in the coffin of the Trinity River navigation project, according to Rep. James Mattox.

Mattox, a Dallas Democrat, has begun working to keep the toll provision in the bill that Congress eventually approves. Its impact would be to impose a fee for use of canals and waterways on barge users for the first time.

If that happens, Mattox says, "I don't see how they can possibly justify" navigation projects like the proposal for a canal from Houston to Dallas-Fort Worth. The reason is that the canal fees would persuade at least some shippers to use other means to transport their goods. Less shipping on the proposal canal would mean fewer benefits from its construction in the long run. And the navigation portion of the Trinity proposal is already in trouble under the Carter administration's new way of calculating costs and benefits. Prior to this year, the Trinity navigation project was given a cost-to-benefit ratio of 1-to-1.7. That means that for every dollar the nation spent on the project, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers estimates the nation will recoup $1.70. The Carter administration made it more difficult for the water projects by insisting that the higher cost of borrowing money should be figured into the formula. Under that revision, the ratio for the Trinity navigation project dropped to 1-to-1.3.

If the water users' charge becomes law, the ratio would drop even further, to about 1-to-1.17, according to a hastily done Corps study that may be revised later if the bill becomes law. That is perilously close to no clear benefit at all, and Mattox said it would make it doubly difficult to get funding for any navigation project.

Trinity backers have decided in recent years that they want the various components of the overall project considered separately. They are now seeking funds only for the flood control, water supply, and recreational aspects of the project.

Mattox said he expected the same House faction which rebuffed President Carter on water projects earlier this year to fight to prevent the waterway toll from becoming law, "because it would make their favorite projects harder to justify."

The issue will be resolved soon in a House-Senate conference. Mattox has signed a joint letter from House members who favor the fees to Rep. Harold Johnson, D-Calif., chairman of the Public Works Committee. The letter urges Johnson not to insist that the fees be removed from the bill.

Lawyers get own trial

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—Two Amarillo lawyers indicted for allegedly bribing Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorpp have had their trial severed from Knorpp's.

State District Court Judge Don Metcalfe set Sept. 12 as the date for the trial of attorneys Michael Musick and A.B. Hankins during a 12-hour hearing Friday.

The lawyers allegedly bribed Knorpp to drop a charge of driving while intoxicated against Hankins.

Woman soldier unfit, homosexuality cited

FT. RUCKER, Ala. (AP) — Army clerk Marie Sode, by all accounts a dedicated soldier, has been ruled unfit for Army service because of "homosexual tendencies," but may appeal in a sex-roles case unprecedented in the military.

Her three-year military career riding on the verdict, Spec. 4 Sode stood dry-eyed but tense Friday as an Army board cited her for "homosexual tendencies" due to her marriage to an avowed transsexual man.

The husband, Kristian von Hoffburg, formerly known as Linda Bowers, remained seated as the board ended a three-week hearing by recommending Spec. 4 Sode's honorable discharge.

The board, two men and two women, agreed unanimously that the von Hoffburgs lived together as "biological females" and said the Army has no place for such affairs.

Spec. 4 Sode, a 22-year-old from San Diego, Calif., said she "most likely" will ask a federal court to block the dismissal. But she said an appeal will depend on funds.

The von Hoffburgs also have said money is an obstacle to completing surgically Kristian's change from woman to man.

The board said it felt von Hoffburg, 29, who sat throughout the hearing wearing coat and tie, had made the sex-change "psychologically" but not "biologically." Von Hoffburg, a former private who left the Army in 1975, first met Spec. 4 Sode in California several years ago, could easily pass for a man.

The board's recommendation is virtually binding. If Spec. 4 Sode's brigade commander, Col. George Powers, alters it in any way it is subject to review by the Department of the Army. A reversal in such administrative cases is rare.

It's expected to be at least a week before a transcript of the case is completed and reviewed by Col. Powers.

Spec. 4 Sode, who has maintained all along that she is in no way a lesbian, told reporters after the verdict there was "no biological proof" of any homosexuality.

The von Hoffburgs did not take the witness stand, but a sex-roles specialist for the defense supported their claims. Dr. Paul A. Walker, a gender specialist from the University of Texas, said the von Hoffburgs lived together in a state of "cognitive heterosexuality."

Walker said that from interviews he determined that Spec. 4 Sode is not homosexual and that von Hoffburg is now a transsexual man. He said the most important factor was von Hoffburg's "psychological sex."

The von Hoffburgs were married last Nov. 11 by a rural Alabama probate judge who said he did not know there was anything unusual about the groom. The marriage has not been challenged by the state.

Wichita Falls firemen suspended for 15 days

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Nine firefighters, including three lieutenants, from a Wichita Falls fire station are sitting out 12-to-15-day disciplinary suspensions for purchasing property later determined to be stolen.

City Manager Gerald Fox confirmed the suspensions, which were handed down for apparent violations of civil service statutes. The suspensions, which were effective Thursday, were handed down because of "poor judgement" on the part of the firemen, Fox added.

The three lieutenants were suspended for 15 days. The other six firemen, including fire equipment operators and firemen, were suspended for 12 days.

Fire Chief Hurschel Johnson confirmed the suspensions but declined further comment.

Fox said the purchases of stolen property, including various hand tools, came to light after police arrested three teenagers in connection with about 20 burglaries. After it was determined that the firemen had bought some of the stolen property, Fox said it was returned and the firemen helped make the case against the juveniles.

Johnson said city officials learned of the firefighters' involvement about two weeks ago. After an investigation by Johnson and the police, and after conferring with the city attorney, Fox said it was determined that no criminal charges would be pressed against the firemen.

Fox said city officials concluded they could not prove the firefighters "knowingly purchased stolen property." All nine firemen have been transferred to other fire stations around the city.

Police, military batter wives more?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Wife beaters are found in all professions, but the author of a book called "Battered Wives" says some occupations have more than their share.

Ms. Martin said that despite the stereotypes that exist, wife beaters can't be said to exist mainly among the poor or the alcoholic.

"It's really across the board," she said. Marriage itself "sets up a situation where the wife is vulnerable," she said, adding that wife battering is more likely where one partner is dominant and the other submissive.

Another part of the problem, she said, is that "men are socialized to respond with their fists" when crossed or threatened.

But no occupation can be considered a safe risk for a woman seeking a man who won't turn to violence, she said.

Davis juror selection begins—second time

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—For the second time starting Monday, oilman Cullen Davis must sit and watch as attorneys sift through 650 prospective jurors who will decide if he lives or dies.

The trial was moved here from Fort Worth on a change of venue after a mistrial was declared in March.

Davis, 44, is charged with two counts of capital murder, one count of attempted capital murder and one count of attempted murder. Police arrested the short, curly-haired multi-millionaire at his girlfriend's house in the wee hours of Aug. 3, 1976. He has been charged with two counts of capital murder in the shooting deaths of his stepdaughter, Andrea, 12, and his estranged wife's lover, Stan Farr, 30.

Two attempted murder charges involved his platinum blonde wife, Priscilla, 35, and Gus Gavrel Jr., a chance visitor at Davis' $6 million Fort Worth mansion the night of Aug. 2 when the shootings allegedly occurred. Both were wounded. Gavrel was paralyzed. State District Court Judge George Dowlen disposed of 161 pre-trial motions Thursday, including one defense motion that the charges be dropped because Davis has been placed in double jeopardy.

The motion stemmed from the first attempt to select a jury in Fort Worth. State District Judge Tom Cave declared a mistrial after eight weeks of jury selection when one of the seated jurors contacted a friend by telephone and expressed an opinion about the case.

Farm Farmers getting more for beef and pork

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government figures show that retail beef and pork prices rose again last month, due mostly to higher prices paid farmers for live cattle and hogs.

The average national retail price of beef, measured on an all-cut basis, was more than $1.38 a pound in May, up 4.4 cents from the composite retail price in April. That was the highest beef price since last December when the average was nearly $1.39 a pound.

As used by USDA, the price covers choice-grade beef sold in grocery stores. That is from cattle which have been "finished" or fattened in feedlots on grain rations.

The report, issued Friday, said that the market price of choice live steers in May averaged $41.43 per 100 pounds over the entire month, compared with $39.73 in April.

Translated to the supermarket, the report said that farmers received an equivalent of 82.8 cents of each retail pound of beef in May, up from 78.6 cents in April. It takes about 2.3 pounds of live steer to make one pound of store beef.

The middleman's share for transporting, processing and selling beef was 55.6 cents a pound in May against 55.4 cents in April the report said.

Cattle prices, meanwhile, have dropped since their spring peaks and by mid-June were averaging around $38 or so per 100 pounds of the major markets as the feedlot supply rose and packers became more selective, according to other USDA reports.

Retail pork prices rose to nearly $1.21 a pound in May from less than $1.19 in April. However, that was about what pork cost consumers last February and March.

Farmers received an equivalent of 73.8 cents a pound for pork sold in retail stores last month, compared with 64.5 cents in April. Middlemen's shares dropped to 47.1 cents from the April average of 54.4 cents a pound, the report said.

Live hog prices averaged $41.79 per 100 pounds in May, up from $36.97 in April. Through mid-June, hog prices have held fairly steady, according to recent USDA market reports.

Since red meat makes up a large portion of family grocery bills over a year's time, it has a heavy bearing on over-all food costs.

USDA economists expect this year's grocery prices to average around 6 per cent higher than in 1976. Last year, food prices rose 3.1 per cent in 1975 and 14.5 per cent each in 1974 and 1973.

Officials expect that U.S. farm products will account for only about half of this year's over-all food price increase, with seafood and imported products — mainly coffee, cocoa and tea — accounting for the rest.

Friday's report said "marketing spreads," or middleman charges for a market basket list of farm-produced food items, declined 1.5 per cent over-all in May, the first decrease this year. Even so, the May price spread between farmers and consumers averaged 2.9 per cent more than it did a year ago.

Chef tells of Marx abuses

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A chef who worked for Groucho Marx has told of 22 bizarre months in the comedian's household, where the dinner table was "an explosive battlefield" and the aged comedian's companion dreamed of inheriting all his money.

John Edward Ballow's memories were contained in a 368-page, three-volume sworn deposition filed in connection with Erin Fleming's bid for conservatorship of the frail 86-year-old comedian.

A Superior Court trial is scheduled July 18 to decide whether Miss Fleming, Marx's long-time companion, secretary and manager, should be named permanent conservator.

The comedian's son, Arthur, has won the first round of court battles by having the 37-year-old woman removed last month as conservator, after witnesses contended she had abused Marx. Two private detectives stated barbiturate-containing hypodermic syringes were concealed outside Marx's Beverly Hills home.

"She wanted to be conservator and she wanted to inherit as much as she could," the 27-year-old chef alleged in the documents made public Friday.

On the same day, Marx returned to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where spokesman Larry Baum said Friday he was suffering from pneumonia, "a kind of benign pneumonia." He had been released from the hospital earlier in the week after undergoing hip surgery.

And on Friday, his longtime friend Nat Perrin, 72, asked Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie to be relieved of his responsibilities as Marx's temporary conservator because "it's been far too much of a strain for myself and my wife." Perrin described Marx as "quite sick, quite feeble."

In the deposition, Ballow alleged that Miss Fleming convinced Marx to tear up all of his pictures of his daughter, Melinda. "And at lunch that day, he said, 'I don't have any children,'" Ballow recalled.

Frequently, Ballow said Miss Fleming railed against Marx's son, Arthur. The chef said she told Marx: "You don't love him, Groucho. I'm here. Don't worry about Arthur. Arthur doesn't deserve anything from you."

He said he saw Miss Fleming gag Marx by forcing a linen napkin into his mouth until he turned blue. On other occasions, he said she shoved a plate of food in Marx's face.

Miss Fleming was not available for comment but has maintained that she has done nothing that was not in Marx's best interest and theirs was a close, loving relationship.

"There were tons of incidents at that dinner table," he said. "It was like an explosive battlefield."

"She would drive him to the point that he was incapable of even sitting in his chair," Ballow said. "He was just a mass of nerves (from) the screaming alone."

He said Miss Fleming had frequently ordered a nurse to administer drugs to Marx even though doctors had advised that they could kill him.

"If she got him upset ... she would always come up as a way of, I felt, a way of soothing her own conscience, smack him full of those things (drugs) and that would calm him down," Ballow said.

Ballow said a doctor had told him "Mr. Marx could die any second. He's on a very thin line. He's not a strong man. He's had many strokes."

For a time, he said Miss Fleming was intent on having Marx adopt her. Ballow said a woman psychiatrist interviewed Groucho twice about the matter.

Another of Miss Fleming's plans, he said, was to sell Marx's house, and move him, perhaps, to a penthouse somewhere.

"I said, 'That sounds like a real drag. Do you realize that might be depressing? This is his castle; this is what he worked his entire life for.'"

"And she said, 'To hell with the castle. He'll do what I tell him to do.'"

At one point in the deposition, one of the attorneys hinted Ballow might be exaggerating the situation. The chef replied: "I can't paint any picture uglier than really occurred in that home."

Increase food stamps offered

Households which were receiving rent or mortgage supplements from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) between August 5, 1974 and October 8, 1975 may be entitled to increased food stamp benefits.

The State Department of Public Welfare announced today that the housing supplements paid under provisions of the Housing Act of 1937 should not have been considered as income to food stamp households during this period of time.

All households which were denied, or received a reduced level of benefits because of the application of this policy may be entitled to retroactive benefits or refunds.

Further details on this matter may be obtained from any food stamp certification office.

Ag Department allows pseudorabies vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department for the first time has approved a license for the manufacture of a vaccine to protect swine against pseudorabies, a virus disease especially deadly to baby pigs.

Officials said Friday that the license was granted to Norden Laboratories of Lincoln, Neb., for the production of a modified live-virus vaccine. It is expected to be available next week.

However, the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said that "distribution will be limited to those states where authorized by state animal health officials under such additional conditions as they may require."

Further, officials cautioned swine producers to "use the vaccine with care since pseudorabies antibodies in vaccinated swine produce blood test reactions identical to those from infected swine."

Thus, if tests show hogs to have disease signs in their blood it could result in restrictions on the movement of animals from place to place although the antibodies may have been induced by vaccination.

"Vaccination is recommended for newborn pigs over three days old if they are nursing non-immune sows," the agency said. "If piglets are nursing immune sows, however, vaccination should be delayed until maternal antibody levels have declined, generally when pigs are 3 to 8 weeks of age."

Pseudorabies is also called Aujeszky's disease and "mad itch." It can also affect cattle and sheep, dogs, and cats. Officials said it is not known to affect humans. The vaccine is licensed only for use in swine.

Suit filed against Estes

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — An Abilene man claims, in a suit filed Friday, that paroled former West Texas promoter Billie Sol Estes duped him into investing $50,000 into two Texas corporations.

In the suit, filed against Estes and his personal secretary Sue Goolsby in a state district court here, J.H. Burkett of Abilene alleged that Estes had not repaid the money. The $50,000, plus interest, was due on May 27, he claimed.

Burkett said that all he had to show for his $50,000 was a letter of guaranty signed by Ms. Goolsby. Burkett seeks the money, interest and court costs in the suit.

Estes, who received a 15-year federal prison sentence in 1963 for fraud, was paroled in 1971.

Under the terms of his parole, Estes is not allowed to be self-employed or engage in any promotional activities. His alleged business activities since his parole are being investigated by two federal and one state law enforcement agencies.

On May 6, a federal parole panel denied Estes' application for termination of his parole, which is due to end March 15, 1980. He presently lives in Abilene.

Estes was convicted of using non-existent fertilizer tanks in West Texas to secure multi-million dollar loans.

According to parole officers, Estes is employed as a dispatcher for Permian Petroleum Co.

Johnny Rankin on dean's list

CANTON, MO. — Johnny Rankin, Big Spring, is among students named to the Culver-Stockton Dean's List or Honor Roll because of exceptional grades earned during the Spring semester, according to an announcement this week by the college's academic dean, Dr. Henson Harris.

Students on the Dean's List earned a 3.5 or better grade average on a 4.0 scale. Those on the Honor Roll earned between 3.2 and 3.499.

Rebel not impressed with Pope's threats

ECONE, Switzerland (AP) — A papal threat of excommunication won't deter rebel Roman Catholic Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre from ordaining 14 priests in defiance of Pope Paul VI, says a spokesman for the embattled archbishop.

"We are not at all impressed. We are used to these threats," the spokesman said Friday. He said the archbishop, now in France, will return to his seminary at Econe for the ordination Wednesday.

Several thousand of the prelate's supporters — including about 100 Catholic priests — were expected to attend the ordination, coming in special trains from France, West Germany and Italy.

A Vatican spokesman said the Pope probably would excommunicate Lefebvre if the ordination service is held.

The spokesman said the Pope had warned the French archbishop in a letter that he faced excommunication if he carried through with "this new, extremely serious act of disobedience."

Pope Paul suspended Lefebvre from his clerical functions last year, but he has continued to operate the Econe seminary anyway.

The dispute between Lefebvre and the Pope arose over the archbishop's insistence on celebrating mass in Latin and on following other traditional rites ended by the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Excommunication is the Catholic Church's most severe punishment and excludes the person from sacraments of the church.

Color slides needed for recruit booklet

Malone-Hogan Hospital is looking for a few really good color slides for use in a recruitment booklet for physicians and medical personnel now in the development stage.

Needed are shots of a cattle branding, rodeo, the Dora Roberts Gala, CR presentation, cotton fields, grain fields, cattle grazing, and outstanding shots of Signal Mountain. Also any shots of cowhands hat would provide close cropping for good cowhand profiles or mug shots.

Especially needed is a good slide of Cosden that would show the skyline in interesting perspective.

Administrator Norman Knox explained that although a photographer will be hired to take photographs of various building, etc., shots such as these are seasonal and as such are not readily available.

The recruitment booklet will feature the area as much as the hospital, since prospects are especially interested in the community and topography of the town to which they are considering moving.

If you have such slides that would be available for use in the booklet, please contact Emily Ward, Director of Public Relations, at 263-1211.

Woman fined, won't give up monkeys

DALLAS (AP) — Marion McCarty's neighbors don't think living near her is more fun than a barrel of monkeys. A Dallas municipal judge agrees and has fined Mrs. McCarty $100 because of her noisy pets.

Mrs. McCarty keeps more than 50 caged pet monkeys, some of them endangered species, in her backyard. She says they're worth more than $20,000.

But some of her neighbors say the monkeys stink, lower property values and deprive them of valuable sleep.

Municipal Court Judge George Orndoff found her guilty Friday of disturbing the peace after a bizarre court hearing Thursday, complete with testimony from an anthropologist and an amateur noisemaker, who startled the court by imitating a piercing monkey screech.

"Naturally I am disappointed because I had to sit there in court and listen to outright lies," said Mrs. McCarty, who plans to appeal. "I am not going to give up my monkeys. I might move them somewhere they'd be safe, but I'm not going to give them up."

But neighbor E.R. Jennings, who spearheaded the anti-monkey campaign, said the problem hasn't been eliminated.

He'll still have the monkeys staring at him every morning.

"When I wake up every morning and look out my bedroom window all I see is monkeys staring me in the face," Jennings had said in making the complaint. "At night, I cannot sleep because the monkeys make so much racket."

Mrs. McCarty says "harrassment" from Jennings has caused two of her rare monkeys to die. Jennings says someone has thrown bricks through his window.

In the Thursday hearing,

Mrs. McCarty said she is licensed annually by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to keep the monkeys.

"This is a classic case of harrassment and malicious prosecution," said Mrs. McCarty, who acted as her own counsel. "I've been caring for monkeys 20 years, and I have never been cited for a city code violation until now."

She claimed the problems started when Jennings moved into the neighborhood several months ago.

Twenty-nine Bluffview Estates residents presented a petition to the city last December, contending "the monkeys create an offensive odor, excessive noise and cause severe devaluation of the property."

A sheepish amateur noisemaker, James K. Casey, recreated a screech made by the squirrel monkey for the court Thursday.

Jennings said a city ordinance he needed to combat such problems.

Two from here on honor roll

DENTON, — Dr. Miles Anderson, vice-president for academic affairs, at North Texas state University, has named 1,387 students to the spring semester honor roll.

Some 348 students earned all "A's" to make the 4.0 honor list, and 1,039 achieved the 3.5 listing, which includes those students whose grade average is midway between an "A" and a "B".

Big Spring students listed on the 3.5 honor roll at NTSU were:

Matt C. Holten, the son of Mrs. JoAnn Holten, 2505 Larry St.; and Diane Bailey Vick, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don G. Bailey, 2301 Alabama.

PLENTY OF DOLLS — This is only the beginning of a room filled with dolls and an extensive doll collection of well over 1,000 dolls in the Doll Museum at 3rd and Gregg which is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $1 to view historical dolls and a longhorn collection. Here Ray Shawn Harris and Mary Kathryn Terrazas get a preview of the shop.

Hello, Dolly Doll museum opens doors

By MARJ CARPENTER

The Doll Museum at the corner of 3rd and Gregg has quite an extensive doll collection, which will be available for residents and tourists to visit at a fee of $1.00.

The collection fills a room behind a new gift shop to be operated by Mrs. Sy Terrazas after a lifetime of collecting dolls.

A second room also holds the extensive longhorn collection of the late Earl Read. A few examples of that collection are at other locations in the city, but the bulk of them will be in that back room at the new doll museum.

The tour will include both the dolls and the longhorns for persons who wish to visit.

The front of the shop will hold a display of antique toys, which are not for sale and will eventually include a gift shop and a toy shop. This part is not complete, but the museum portion of the facility is ready for showing.

The doll collection is extensive. It includes the first dolls from the late 1800s which were among the very first collected by Mrs. Terrazas.

It includes a showcase of king and queen of England dolls. There is a set of Silver Jubilee dolls of the queen of England and her court. Only two of these sets have been sold to Texas collectors, with one of them here in Big Spring.

The collection also includes King Henry the Eighth and all of his wives. There is also a set of King Arthur and the Roundtable.

There are miniature dolls of Queen Elizabeth's wedding and Princess Ann in her wedding gown.

There is also a set of Madame Alexander dolls from around the world. They are the earlier type with moving knees and rolling eyes.

An Effonbee doll of a first edition is a real prize. It has never been sold in stores and is available only to collectors. Two large dolls from Jamaica are very different and in native costume and an Oriental doll has long hair to the floor.

There are dolls depicting poor Cinderella, and Cinderella the princess. There is a Sleeping Beauty and a Scarlett O'Hara.

One case holds a collection of baby dolls through the years and shows how they change.

An unusual doll made in Germany in 1899 is in a case along with a papier mache doll from Italy and special wax dolls.

The dolls also include a series of American dolls and shows how they have changed.

Bicentennial goes out of business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration is going out of business this week with the request that at least the 1987 bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution not be neglected.

Because the government agency which orchestrated the 200th Independence Day festivities last year closes its doors Thursday, there will be no national coordination or promotion of the bicentennial dates of the many important events in the nation's early years.

The 200th anniversary of the United States flag already has passed this month virtually unnoticed. Coming up later this year with local preparations at best are the bicentennials of Washington's encampment at Valley Forge, the arrival of Lafayette, and the battles of Saratoga which were among the most important of the revolution.

Later are the bicentennials of the exploits of John Paul Jones and Molly Pitcher, the perfidy of Benedict Arnold, the diplomacy of Benjamin Franklin, the victory of the backwoods patriots at Kings Mountain and the final victory at Yorktown, to name just a few.

In her farewell letter to President Carter, Acting ARBA Administrator Jean McKee urges that he appoint a task force to begin studying a proper commemoration for the Constitution, hinting that it fits Carter's oft-expressed concern for citizen participation.

"It surely follows that a better knowledge and understanding of this document of democracy is an integral part of encouraging citizen participation ...," Miss McKee wrote.

The same recommendation will be made in the final report of the American Revolution Bicentennial Board, which oversees ARBA.

A draft of the board's final report says ARBA did a good job of drawing attention to the Declaration of Independence and its bicentennial last July 4 but said that isn't enough.

"That great document represents the beginning, not the end, of the creative process which brought into being the United States of America," says the draft report.

Referring to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the report says: "It would seem appropriate as we approach the 200th anniversary of these basic documents that the years 1987-1989 provide an opportunity for a focus of attention on and an appraisal of the great principles embodied in them which have supported our form of government and democratic way of life through two centuries."

The Constitution was drafted in the summer of 1787 in Philadelphia in the same room where the Declaration of Independence had been produced. It was ratified by most of the states over the next two years and became effective in the spring of 1789 with George Washington as the first president under the Constitution.

The Bill of Rights, the first 10 amendments, was added in 1791.

Commemoration of these documents on their bicentennials would still leave out the last five years of the revolution which made all the rest possible. By comparison, the Civil War

Centennial a decade ago celebrated every battle and skirmish from Fort Sumter to Appomattox over a five-year span, compared to the 16 months given the revolution's bicentennial.

California drought alters life

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On a hillside near the Pacific Ocean, sheep nuzzle the earth for a few dried blades of grass. A Bay Area hostess rents a portable toilet for a party, and a hotel on Catalina Island asks guests to bring their own linen.

It's the drought California-style — the effects of two years of unprecedented dry weather changing the lifestyles and landscapes of the nation's most populous state.

More than 100 cities and towns have been forced to impose mandatory water rationing, since rainfall for the 1976-77 rainy season dropped to about half of normal for the second year in a row.

Officials warn that many of the state's 1,000 reservoirs could dry up. On the caked bottom of a Marin County reservoir a bridge covered for years by stored water bakes in the summer sun.

The marks of the drought are not always apparent at first glance. In Marin County, which imposed strict water rationing in February, tenacious native plants and trees create a deceptive veil of green. But behind it are brown lawns and withered gardens.

The Nicasio Reservoir has dwindled to expose yards of cracked surface like a moonscape and the beds of small creeks and streams in the hills look like the bottoms of empty aquariums.

In Monterey, as in Marin County, San Francisco and Oakland and the surrounding area, officials report full public cooperation with mandatory water rationing. In some areas, officials said water consumption even has dropped below allotments.

Water rationing calling for a 10 per cent cut in use takes effect July 1 in Los Angeles, where voluntary reductions didn't achieve the needed savings.

Beverly Hills, where water usually flows as freely as money, has hired a water cop to prowling the estate-lined streets and advise wasteful water users to mend their ways.

And in Hollywood, 20th Century Fox said they carefully reviewing any movie scenes requiring rain and they are stressing shorter shampoos of the pampered hair of the stars.

Fresno in the San Joaquin Valley has set up a "snitch" line which people dial to report on wayward water users and a local television station has started a "drip of the day" booby prize for water wasters complete with a rubber duck logo.

At Audrey Dodson's Mill Valley home, the sunburst locust out front bloomed this year, but the yellow clusters were tight and dull.

Mrs. Dodson and other customers of the Marin Municipal Water District can't spare much water for home landscaping because they are limited to 46 gallons per person per day. However, like many of her friends, Mrs. Dodson has kept her swimming pool full by buying water by the truckload.

She remembers the time when she wouldn't bother to turn off the faucet if she had to dash to answer the telephone.

"I won't do that ever again," she said. "It's surprising the things you become aware of, how to conserve."

Lions receive club charter

WESTBROOK — Twenty-five charter members of the newly organized Westbrook Lions club received their charter from Russell Devore of Big Spring, Lions District Governor, last Saturday night.

Raymond (Sonny) Hollis, news president, received the charter on behalf of the club. Lions from Loraine, Colorado City, Garden City, Sweetwater, Big Spring, Roscoe and Monahans attended.

Walter Roebber, district governor of 2T3 in Monahans, gave the charter address. Tail Twisters C.E. McCain of Midland and Tom Underwood of Westbrook were also on the program.

county dads hear ambulance service talk

Howard County commissioners face a busy agenda when they meet in special session at the courthouse at 9 a.m., Monday.

The commission has a 9:45 a.m. session set up with E.A. Richters of Coahoma, who will discuss the taxation of some lots in his community. The commission will also open bids on radar units for the highway patrol, eye bids for a sweeper for the Road and Bridge Department, discuss Emergency Medical Service with Diana Weir and discuss a permit to construct a pipe line for Getty Oil Co.

Consideration will also be given for an increase in the janitorial contract. A conference has also been set up with attorney Bob Moore concerning the adoption of the Texas Penal Code, Art. 666-4 (C) (1).

An increase in pay for the county trapper will also be discussed.

DALLAS (AP) — Ah, sweet revenge!

Kateri Ewing paid a $20 fine for failing to turn in right-turn-only lane. She then marched to the city attorney's office and filed a complaint against motorcyle cop C.W. Cottongame for littering. Seems Cottongame tossed a cigarette butt on his way to cite Mrs. Ewing. "I admit what I did, I guess, was wrong," said Cottongame, who was ordered to appear in city court July 11. But he complained that the department doesn't provide ashtrays on its motorcycles.

PLANS ADDITIONAL STUDY — Bill Albright (left), executive vice-president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, shown here being presented a certificate by Richard L. Bailly for having completed six year in Institutes for Organization Management, is preparing to attend the Industrial Development Institute at the University of Oklahoma in Norman later this year. Bailly is manager of the Center for Leadership Development of the United States Chamber of Commerce. At the right is Joe Wood, executive vice-president of the Duncan, Oklahoma Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Southwestern Region Board of Regents, governing body of the Institute program. The ritual took place at SMU in Dallas.

CONNORS STOOPS TO CONQUER — Jimmy Connors stretches low Saturday to return shot by Stan Smith during men's singles fourth round match at Wimbledon. Connors defeated Smith 7-9, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 to advance to the quarterfinals. There, he will face South Africa's Byron Bertram.

'Alice in Wimbledon,' 14-year-old thrills 'em

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "Alice in Wonderland," "Super Kid," "Little Miss Marvel."

British journalists pulled out all literary stops Saturday in singing the praises of tennis' 14-year-old wonder child who became the youngest ever to play in the 100-year-old Wimbledon championships.

Attired in a too-big white dress with a blue bow tied in the back, wee Tracy Austin of Rolling Hills, Calif., bowed 6-1, 6-1 to defending champion Chris Evert on center court Friday.

The fragile-looking, 90-pound twig of a girl lost the match but won the centenary Wimbledon. It's been years since anyone created a greater sensation or a stronger ovation.

Everybody loved her, but none more than the purple phrase makers of the English press.

"Alice in Wonderland came to the centre court yesterday at centenary Wimbledon," wrote Peter Wilson of the Daily Mirror. "It was as though one of the original Tenniel illustrations to 'Alice' had stepped out of its frame."

Ian Branes of the Daily Express called her "Miss Marvel" and said: "She hits the ball—double-fisted on the backhand and ferociously on the forehand—like the champion she will surely be in the 1980s."

Laurie Pignon of the Daily Mail had his story headlined "Tomorrow's Girl Arrives," reporting: "Tracy Austin gave tennis a glimpse into tomorrow's world."

Tracy shared block-letter headlines with the announcement that the Duchess of Kent was expecting another child at age 44.

"Ta-Ta, Tracy, But You'll Be Back!" Said one 72-point streamer.

TRACY AUSTIN
 Tennis' Wonder Child

"A Shirley Temple in tennis shoes," added a caption.

Lance Tingas of the Daily Telegraph wrote: "The rigour of Miss Austin's game was awesome in view of the slight body from which it came. One can only assume that in the normal course of events she is likely to be a champion, because already she is phenomenal."

David Irvine of the Manchester Guardian said the crowd "left convinced that as surely as Wimbledon is 100 years old, they had seen a future women's champion."

Ford beans spectator

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford, competing in the Vince Lombardi Golf Classic, hit his first hole tee shot to the left of the fairway Saturday and struck a spectator in the head.

Gene Bartelt, 58, was treated by medical personnel at the suburban North Hills Country Club, where the event to raise money for cancer research was held, before being taken to a nearby hospital.

Ford, whose shot went about 100 yards before striking Bartelt, told the injured man, "I'm very sorry." Bartelt did not reply at the time but quipped later at the hospital, "And I voted for him!"

Hospital spokesman John Hein said Bartelt suffered a cut on the top of his head which required six stitches. He was listed in satisfactory condition and was expected to be released Sunday.

Hein said Bartelt had a headache, but X rays showed no damage in addition to the cut.

Rangers drop 3-2 decision to Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Ron Jackson's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Joe Rudi with the winning run as the California Angels rallied for a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers Saturday.

Mike Marshall, 1-2, the Rangers' third pitcher, took the loss. He relieved Darold Knowles with one out in the ninth and gave up a double to Dave Chalk and hit Rudi with a pitch. Bobby Bonds, who earlier had hit a home run off starter Dock Ellis, singled Chalk home with the tying run.

Marshall then walked Mario Guerrero intentionally to fill the bases and set the stage for Jackson's game-winning hit.

Dave LaRoche, 5-2, got the victory.

Connors overcomes Smith's game

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors, in and out of trouble all day, finally overcame the stiff challenge of another former champion, Stan Smith, and joined three other American men Saturday in the quarter-finals of the centenary Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

Connors edged Smith 7-9, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 in a fluctuating, four-hour thriller that finally saw the 1972 All-England champion falter at vital points and throw away his chance for an upset.

Meanwhile, defending champion Chris Evert and Billie Jean King, six times the women's Wimbledon champion, both escaped trouble to advance to the next round and set up a quarter-final meeting of the top seed vs. the sentimental favorite.

The other American men who made it to the quarter-finals were 18-year-old John McEnroe of Douglaston, N.Y., Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., and Billy Martin, 20, of Evanston, Ill.

McEnroe, ranked No. 270 in the United States, downed Sandy Mayer, Mendham, N.J., 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1; Gerulaitis defeated Dick Stockton, Carrollton, Tex., 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, and Martin fought for four hours to dispose of the last British hope, Mark Cox, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 0-6, 9-7.

The men's quarter-finals lineup is Connors vs. Byron Bertram, South Africa; McEnroe vs. Phil Dent, Australia; Gerulaitis vs. Martin, and defending champion Bjorn Borg, Sweden, vs. Ilie Nastase, Romania.

Miss Evert fell behind in both sets—1-5 in the first and 0-2 in the second—before rallying to beat South African Greer Stevens 8-6, 6-4. Ms. King rebounded to oust Marise Kruger, another South African, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

The women's quarter-final lineup has Miss Evert vs. Ms. King, Virginia Wade, England, vs. Rosie Casals; Kerry Reid, Australia, vs. Sue Barker, England, and Betty Stove, The Netherlands, vs. Martina Navratilova.

Smith, who has seen many lean years since his Wimbledon triumph, found his old form in fits and starts and threatened to oust Connors, the 1974 champion.

For long spells Smith scored regularly with his first service and looked capable of winning. But there were fatal periods in which his service lapsed, and that was when Connors came back.

The last game of the first set was as good as any Smith played in his heyday, when he was the top player in the world. He hit a superb running forehand pass and passed Connors twice more for a decisive service break.

The match flowed back and forth to two sets all, but Connors took a 2-0 lead in the final set and Smith's brave bid appeared over.

Suddenly, though, Smith leaped to life again, collared Connors' service and raced to a 3-2 lead. The 8,000 fans at Wimbledon's No. 1 court were all for Smith and the excitement reached fever pitch.

Serving for a 4-3 lead, Smith hit a tremendous ace and reached 40-30. Then he unaccountably failed with two simple volleys and lost the game.

They were the last of many vital mistakes by Smith. Throughout the match, Smith missed chances to upset the man he has not beaten since 1974.

This time, Connors was in the mood to finish off his man and he won the last two games, dropping only three points.

McEnroe joined a small band of players who have reached the Wimbledon quarter-finals after playing through the qualifying tournament.

"I didn't even imagine I would get through the qualifying and make the tournament," McEnroe said after eliminating Sandy Mayer with the best serving and volleying of his life.

The day's most gallant loser was Tim Gullikson, the righthanded half of the Onalaska, Wis., twins. After his third five-set marathon in successive rounds, he was ousted by Dent, who won 6-3, 3-6, 9-8, 1-6, 9-7.

Borg, the defending champion, overcame Wojtek Fibak of Poland 7-5, 6-4, 6-2; Nastase came from behind to defeat Tom Okker of The Netherlands 6-8, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, and Bertram ousted Kim Warwick, Australia, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5, in the other men's fourth-round matches.

In women's matches, Miss Barker downed Lea Antonoplis, Glendora, Calif., 6-0, 6-4; Mrs. Reid beat Kathy May, Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-2, 6-1; Miss Stove downed Australian Helen Cawley, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3; Ms. Casals beat Linky Boshoff, South Africa, 8-6, 6-3, and Miss Wade beat Mariana Simionescu, Romania, 9-7, 6-3.

Miss Evert, who had lost only seven games in three previous rounds, found herself struggling in cold, threatening weather Saturday. In the early stages, Miss Stevens took a series of points by hitting in front of Miss Evert, who seemed uncomfortable at the net.

But Miss Evert finally showed the form that has made her the No. 1 female in the world.

BSGA tourney set for today

If the weather cooperates, the Big Spring Golf Association will hold a draw-for-your-partner tournament this afternoon at the Comanche Trail Golf Course, beginning at 1:30.

Entries must be in by noon, and all entry fees must be paid by 12:30 p.m.

Trio tied in Western

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — The Butler National course spooked pacesetters with double bogeys Saturday in a wild third round of inconsistencies that left Tom Watson, Wally Armstrong and Tom Weiskopf tied for the Western Open lead, each with two-under-par 214s.

Watson, the leading money earner of 1977 who has won the Masters and two other tournaments this year, rattled around for a 75. Water cost him two strokes to par on the 10th and 13th holes.

Meanwhile, Armstrong, who never has won a tour event, and Weiskopf rallied with 69 and 70, respectively, to draw abreast.

A dozen players were separated by only two strokes, setting up a frantic finale Sunday for the $40,000 first prize.

One stroke from the leaders at 215 were Andy North, Gary McCord, Bill Kratzert, Johnny Miller and Dave Eichelberger.

At even par 216 were Phil Hancock, who was tied with Watson for the lead at 45 holes, then collapsed with double bogeys at the 10th and 18th for a 75; Mike McCullough with 74; J.C. Snead 72 and Rik Massengale 71.

North, who shared the 36-hole lead with Watson, blew to a 76. McCord had 75 with two double bogeys and Kratzert steered to regulation 72.

Miller made his move with a 69 and Eichelberger, who had the lead to himself on the back side before bogeying two of the last three holes, finished with 71.

CHRIS IN THE CROWD — Defending Wimbledon champ Chris Evert casts a sideways glance Saturday as she sits with an unidentified friend in the stand on Number One Court at Wimbledon. She was watching the match between former champions Stan Smith and Jimmy Connors.

What's going on here: the press' fault?

NEWS ITEM: FRANK ROBINSON FIRED
He was a good manager, but a lousy babysitter. That's why he got the can. Today, a manager must be able to give certain ballplayers their 2 a.m. bottle, burp them, change the diaper, and in general supply tender, loving care, in large doses.

Frank Robinson isn't built that way. Few superstars are. That's why, as a general thing, they don't make successful managers. They cannot empathize with mediocrity. They cannot pamper immaturity. They cannot cater to bruised egos.

Mel Ott was one of the greatest ballplayers of my youth. Yet when he became a manager he fell flat on his face. He expected his players to have his talent, and when they didn't, he became enraged.

Gil Hodges was an exception, but Gil Hodges ruled with firmness, with stern hand, not with pampering. Frank Robinson was much like Gil Hodges. He took the players at their word when they said they wanted to be treated like men. Too many say that, but aren't capable of such treatment. Frank Robinson is a man.

One of Frank Robinson's problems on the Indians was Rico Carty. Rico was hurt, and not once, mind you did the manager kiss him on the booboo and say, aw, dido oo get hurt by nasty little baseball? Rico Carty went around telling everybody the manager didn't like him.

Larvell Blanks was another headache for Frank Robby. Blanks has some kind of a trick clause in his contract calling for more money if he plays a certain number of games or comes to bat x-number of times. Trouble with such an arrangement is that Larvell Blanks doesn't have the ability to encourage it. He is a utility infielder. He also isn't too bright. If he were, he'd have realized his gripe was with the front office, and taken it there. Instead, he blamed the manager, who wasn't aware of his trick contract.

One day, taking pregame practice, Larvell Blanks suddenly went to the clubhouse, took his clothing from his locker, threw them into the garbage can, broke a few bats lying around, and a few wooden stools. Then he felt better.

That's a man? I have a four-year-old grandson who does that when he doesn't get his way.

This situation is rampant in big league sports today. It is the fault of the front offices. They spoil the players, then expect the managers to exercise authority. How can a man manage without the firm backing of his front office? The star players snicker at the manager, and discipline distintegrates throughout the club.

"You can't threaten a ballplayer anymore." Gene Mauch said the other night on the Twins' bench. "The union has changed that. You have to make them want to play for you."

It made me think of Casey Stengel, one of the greatest. If the Old Man had a player or two not putting out, he would say to a newsman, loud enough for the nearby players to hear: "If some of these guys don't start doing something, a moving van will back up and hit them in the ass."

If he tried that today, the prima donna star would say, not me. It's your tail that will be moving.

NEWS ITEM: FINLEY OFFERS A'S PRIZES
Charley O, firm believer in the free enterprise system, has set up a prize list. Any man on his team going 4-for-4 gets a thousand bucks. Go 5-for-5 in a game and it's two thousand. Pitch a no-hitter, five thousand.

The league won't permit it. Maybe that's why Finley offered it. He knew Lee MacPhail couldn't permit it. It's all right to offer a man more money if he plays a certain number of games, or pitches a certain number of innings, but baseball rule prohibits incentive awards in games because of obvious problems such as a system invites.

"You cannot establish a rate beforehand," says Lee MacPhail. "If, on the spur of the moment, after a man pitches a no-hitter, or goes 4-for-4, the owner wants to tear up his contract and upgrade it, fine."

But not beforehand. Suppose a batter has gone 3-for-3, and as he comes up in the 9th with the score tied and a man on first, the manager flashes the bunt sign. After the guy had taken his swing, he'd come back to the bench and say, bunt sign? What bunt sign? I didn't see any bunt sign.

NEWS ITEM: REGGIE-MARTIN BRAWL IN DUGOUT
There goes the press, making it all up again.

"I'M VERY SORRY" — Former president Gerald R. Ford, top, bends over and tells a spectator at the Vince Lombardi Memorial Golf Tournament in Milwaukee that he is sorry for hitting him with his drive on the first hole Saturday. The man was struck in the head and taken to an area hospital.

Hockey merger may finalize

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League ended three struggling days of meetings Friday by proposing a merger with the World Hockey Association, effective with the coming 1977-78 season.

The proposal will be put forth to surviving WHA teams and is expected to be accepted. It stipulates that the WHA form a separate division of no less than six teams and play under a National Hockey League umbrella.

For the coming season, the new division would play entirely within itself with its four top teams joining the top 12 teams in the NHL to play in an interlocking Stanley Cup format.

WHA teams expected to join the NHL are Quebec, New England, Cincinnati, Edmonton, Houston and Winnipeg. Birmingham also is a possibility.

Making the joint announcement of the proposed merger were NHL president-elect John Ziegler and R. Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL's Players Association.

After two days of separate and joint meetings between the owners and players, it appeared that there would be little or no chance of a merger.

Early Friday, the Board of Governors met and then called in the players' representatives. The player reps broke for a brief meeting and again joined the Board of Governors.

Moments later the merger plan was announced. Eagleson said the move had to be made before July 1, otherwise the WHA felt it would be shut out and would have to play the 1977-78 season as a separate league.

With numerous problems still to be resolved between the NHL owners and the Players' Association, the two groups scheduled another set of meetings beginning July 13 in Toronto.

The "merger," as the players call it, or "expansion" in terms of the owners, will be worked gradually. After the upcoming season, the schedules will be slowly integrated where it is hoped that in four years there will be complete realignment of the NHL.

Ziegler refused to divulge what the incoming teams will have to pay for joining the NHL. "A figure of $3.2 million has been reported," said Ziegler, "but it is less than that."

6-7 Alvarado inks with MC

Luis Alvarado, a 6-7 basketball player from El Paso, has signed a letter of intent to play at Midland College. Coach Jerry Stone announced the signing today.

Alvarado, 19, is the son of Mrs. Rita Alvarado, 705 Mundy, El Paso. He is a 1977 graduate of El Paso High School where he was a three-year letterman in basketball. He also competed in track during his sophomore year. During his senior year, the El Paso high squad compiled a 23-9 record. He averaged 12.6 points per game. His high school coach was C.D. Jarvis.

"Despite his size, Luis is capable of playing either center or forward, which should make him a valuable asset to the Chaparral team this year," Stone pointed out. Alvarado becomed the fourth recruit to sign with Midland College this spring. He joins Kelly Newsom, a 6-1 guard from Richardson; Cullen Mayfield, a 5-9 guard from South Oak Cliff, Dallas; and Mike Denny, a 6-6 center from Midland Lee.

During the 1976-77 season, Midland College compiled a 23-9 record while finishing second in both the Western Junior College Athletic Conference and the Region V Tournament.

Carner tops in Hoosier

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — There's little doubt that JoAnne Carner feels confident when she plays in the Hoosier Classic at the Plymouth Country Club.

The 1976 winner of the Women's U.S. Open has won two of the previous three stops here by the Ladies Professional Golf Association. And at the start of today's second round the 38-year-old Mrs. Carner was in first place after carding a fiveunder par 68 Friday.

The veteran of 16 years on the tour used a career-low 25 putts to take a one stroke advantage over LPGA champion Chako Higuchi, Sandra Burns, Signa Quandt, South African Sally Little and Laura Baugh.

The field was tight at the start of the second round. Fifteen women were within three strokes of the leader, who shot a 33-35 on the 6,225-yard, par 73 course.

Debbie Austin, Karolyn Kertzman and veteran Mickey Wright were tied at 70. The group at 71 included Judy Rankin, Jan Stephenson, Janet Coles, Pat Bradley.

Tennis nut confesses

NEW YORK (AP) — Acting presents a problem to Lloyd Bridges. It has to do with locations...It keeps him off tennis courts.

"When actors aren't working, they're playing tennis," said Bridges. "You've got to be careful what job you take. If it's not good, it interferes with your tennis."

Lloyd Bridges is an admitted "tennis nut."

The actor, who made a reputation on television battling bad guys in the deep 20 years ago on "Sea Hunt," which still can be seen on the tube, is so taken with the landlubber's game that he is promoting it for the United States Tennis Association.

Bridges is doing advertisements for the USTA, which is bidding to get weekend players, even buffs who do not play to become members.

"They've (the USTA) been too much identified with tournament players," said Bridges, in an interview at a Central Park hotel. "It's not just for tournament players."

He noted that there are 35 million tennis players in the United States but that the membership of the USTA (formerly USLTA) numbers only 120,000.

So Bridges now appears in advertisements, shown in tennis togs leaning on a net above a caption that reads: "The United States Tennis Association Offers Something for Every Tennis Player."

What made him a tennis nut? "It came late to me, this tennis. I just got interested in it in the last eight years."

His interest shows no signs of slacking. Asked if he would be staying in New York long, he said he was leaving the next day to prepare to play with a pro against actor-comedian Bill Cosby and another pro in Detroit in the semifinal of a charity tennis tournament.

"I want to sneak in an extra day of practice," said Bridges.
That's a tennis nut.

Two new pilots for Big Spring

Big Spring may be losing its Air Force pilots, but two Big Springers are keeping aviation alive by becoming licensed pilots. Frank Vigus, Jr. and Donnie Andrews became licensed private pilots Sunday, by completing the private pilot training at Trans Regional Air flight school, Howard County Airport. It took only three short months for both to complete their training, and both are now eligible to win a $50,000.00 airplane in the "Take Off" sweepstakes. Anyone interested in learning to fly may obtain further information by calling 263-8389. L to R — Robert McClure, Frank Vigus, Jr., and Donnie Andrews.

Hassles irk Foyt, retirement hinted

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — "People talk about me retiring," A.J. Foyt began. "I'll tell you, it's hassles like this that make me feel like retiring from racing."

The tempestuous Foyt found himself once again in the eye of a storm of controversy as he prepared to lead the field to the start of Sunday's $400,000 Schaefer 500.

"It's a good thing I enjoy racing so much still, because if I didn't I sure wouldn't put up with all this," Foyt said during an extraordinary 45-minute meeting he called with the press Friday at Pocono International Raceway. "I feel like 'put the car on the trailer and say hell with it.'"

The hassle Foyt referred to centers on the decision of Citicorp Services to terminate its sponsorship of the U.S. Auto Club Indianapolis car circuit, a move that could cost the series $350,000-$400,000 by the end of 1978.

Fred R. Stecher, Citicorp chairman, said Foyt's behavior after being booed during qualifying Thursday "was the straw that broke our back." Stecher said Foyt made an obscene gesture to the crowd, and behaved in a manner "deliberately to the sport of auto racing."

Foyt, who won the pole position with a speed of 189.474 miles per hour, denied making any such gesture. Stecher criticized USAC President Dick King for failing to reprimand Foyt.

Stecher said he was considering legal action against Foyt, accusing him of preventing Citicorp from exercising the terms of its contract with USAC. Foyt said he might sue, too.

Huey, Annie, Phyllis Wait until Sunday

Back in 1968, Danny Birdwell played on the Big Spring Steer football squad. Later he was to play for the Oakland Raiders, remaining on the taxi squad for eight years before busting into the starting line-up.

Today, he has a nephew in Oakland by the name of Huey Birdwell Jr., a 6-5 tennis player who went through the Mission Valley Athletic League undefeated in singles play the last two years at Irvington High School in that California City.

Thanks to a recommendation from his congressman, a 3.8 grade point average and his level-headed leadership ability, Huey has been awarded a fully-paid appointment to West Point.

The young Birdwell has stated that he felt the lessons learned in athletics played a big part in his mental maturity, while also giving him an outlet for physical aggression.

A religious young man, the Irvington senior was among the most popular tennis players in his high school district. Birdwell's full ride to West Point is a combination academic and athletic scholarship.

John Birdwell of Big Spring is also Huey's uncle, and by the way, Danny (who, while he was in pro football, bragged of taking nothing on road trips and used his room-mates toothbrush), is now living in Houston.

Tommy "Mack" Hart said he read that one Texas Ranger fan stated, "That Eddie Stanky was around for such a short time, he would make a better mother-in-law than manager."

Has there ever been anybody in big league baseball history who played in over 100 games in a season and never struck out?

It's never happened. The closest anyone came was infielder Joe Sewell, who in 1925, played in 155 games, had 608 at bats, and struck out only four times all year.

Annie Garcia, the only girl in the Stanton Little League this year, powered a double off the centerfield fence last Tuesday night to drive in the winning run and advance the first place Astros over the Pirates 7-5.

In other Stanton Little League scores for the past week, the Astros beat the Yankees 7-2, the Braves over the Cubs 6-5, the Dodgers beat the Pirates 8-7, the Giants topped the Rangers 14-6, the Astros stopped the Yankees 7-2, the Giants beat the Braves 7-4, Dodgers over the Yankees 4-1, and the Cubs beat the Rangers 9-7.

The Sweetwater Country Club is hosting its Individual Tournament July 16 and 17, and some sweet-voiced girl called in and said that the top crop of Big Spring golfers are cordially invited to participate.

For more info, contact Pip Simons at 915-235-1314.

Speaking of Tournaments, Brownfield's 6th Open Tennis Tourney is coming up July 6-9 at the Brownfield High School Courts, 701 N. Fir.

Events will be 10BGS; 12 BGSD; 16 BGSD; 18 BGSD; Open MWSD; 26-39MWSD; 40 and older MWSD; and three divisions of Mixed Doubles.

Entry fee is $3 and deadline is July 2. Mail entries to Carey Lee White, 904 E. Lake, or call 806-637-6847 for further info.

One sports writer commented: "Would you rather watch Phyllis George ask dumb questions or someone else ask smart ones?"

"The plain fact is more people would rather look at Phyllis George asking innocuous questions for a minute and a half than someone else asking probing questions," said Larry Merchant, NBC's sports commentator. "That's the way it is," he said in a recent newspaper interview.

"Phyllis does not like to ask tough questions, that's not her role," said Brent Musburger, her comrade in arms. "We tried to have a woman football expert and it didn't work out. So we tried Phyllis, who doesn't pretend to be an expert, and somehow the chemistry has worked."

Baseball action

Bench's bat splinters LA

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench drove in three runs with a pair of home runs and reliever Pedro Borbon stopped a late-inning rally as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-6 in a nationally televised game Saturday.

Bench's two homers, his 15th and 16th of the season, helped the Reds rally from a 3-1 deficit against Dodger ace Don Sutton, 8-3, and trim the Dodgers' National League West Division lead to 8½ games.

Bench hit a solo shot in the fourth and his two-run homer capped a three-run rally in the fifth. Dan Driessen added a solo homer in the seventh, his sixth of the year.

Woody Fryman, 3-5, went the first six innings to get the victory. Borbon relieved in the eighth after the Dodgers had cut the Reds' lead to 7-6 against reliever Joe Henderson, making his first appearance since being recalled from Indianapolis.

Chicago attack bombs Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Eric Soderholm banged out three hits, including a solo home run, and lanky right-hander Chris Knapp fired an eight-hitter to spark the Chicago White Sox to an 8-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

The White Sox blasted four Minnesota pitchers for 15 hits and climbed back into first place in the American League West, two percentage points ahead of the Twins.

Knapp, 6-4, snapped a personal three-game losing streak while going the distance for the second time this season. Geoff Zahn, 6-6, dropped his fifth straight decision.

The Twins' Rod Carew had a single to keep his major league-leading batting average at .396.

Indians' streak finished, 6-4

DETROIT (AP) — Jason Thompson tripled home two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning Saturday to give the Detroit Tigers a 6-4 victory over Cleveland, snapping the Indians' nine-game winning streak and giving Mark Fidrych his fifth consecutive win.

Rusty Staub began the rally with a single and Steve Kemp followed with a walk. Sid Monge relieved starter Pat Dobson and was greeted by Thompson's triple.

Fidrych, 5-2, yielded 11 hits in pitching his sixth complete game in seven starts since coming off the disabled list.

Pirates down Expos, 10-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dave Parker, Al Oliver and Rennie Stennett each hit home runs during a six-run, third-inning spurge that powered the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-2 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

With the score tied 2-2 in the Pirate third, Parker opened with a towering homer into the third tier in right field off Montreal starting pitcher Jackie Brown.

After Bill Robinson singled, Oliver lofted a homer into the right-field seats to chase Brown, 4-6. With two outs, Frank Taveras doubled off reliever Don Stanhouse and scored on the second RBI-single of the day by Pirate pitcher Bruce Kison. Stennett followed with his homer down the right-field line.

Cubs rally past Mets

CHICAGO (AP) — Doubles by Larry Biittner and Bill Buckner keyed a four-run ninth-inning rally Saturday to give the Chicago Cubs their fifth straight victory, a 5-4 decision over the New York Mets.

The Mets took a 4-1 lead into the ninth when Steve Swisher singled. Skip Lockwood retired pinch hitter Greg Gross, but Ivan DeJesus doubled. Larry Biittner then doubled off first baseman John Milner's glove to chase home two runs.

The Cubs tied the game when Buckner's long fly in left center dropped for a double when outfielders Lee Mazzilli and Steve Henderson collided.

Bobby Murcer was given an intentional walk and Jerry Morales also walked to fill the bases off reliever Bob Apodaca, 2-3. Manny Trillo then bounced to third baseman Doug Flynn, who stepped on third for one out. But his throw to first for an attempted double play was too late as pinch-runner Mick Kelleher scored the winning run.

Ray Burris, 9-6, went the distance for Chicago to gain the victory.

Yanks over Red Sox 5-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Torrez ended Boston's record 10-game home run spree while Mickey Rivers and Graig Nettles homered for New York, leading the Yankees to a 5-1 victory Saturday over the Red Sox.

Rivers unloaded against Luis Tiant, 5-6, to lead off the first inning and Nettles blasted a three-run homer as the Yankees scored four times in the fourth to take a 5-0 lead.

Torrez, 8-6, held the slugging Sox to six singles and a double and snapped a 10-game rampage in which Boston walloped 33 homers to set eight major league long-ball records and tie another.

Denny taken off Card line

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals pitcher John Denny has been placed on the National League's 21-day disabled list retroactive to Tuesday, when he suffered his second pulled hamstring muscle of the season.

Cards team physician Dr. Stan London examined Denny prior to the opening of the National League baseball team's 11-game home stand Friday night and said the 24-year-old right-hander would be sidelined nearly three weeks.

Denny, who has a 7-2 record, previously missed 13 days of the season after suffering a similar injury to his left leg May 2 at Cincinnati. He was hurt Tuesday in the third inning of St. Louis' game against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Cauthen receives hero's welcome

NEW YORK (AP) — The scene opens with the hero breaking into a grin after watching a rerun of his winning ride in what was his first race after being sidelined a month because of injuries suffered in a spill.

Cameras click and grind. Writers write.

Hollywood would have loved it. Billing almost certainly would have gone to the winning horse — Little Miracle.

But it wasn't a screen play. It was just another true life adventure in the story of Steve Cauthen, a kid from Kentucky who has shocked big time thoroughbred racing.

"That a way Stevie," roared a better as Cauthen rode Little Miracle into the winner's circle after the second race Thursday at Belmont Park. "We missed ya."

And they were glad to see him, railbirds and box-seat patrons alike, cheering and applauding the 17-year old from the time he appeared in the paddock until he disappeared in the tunnel leading to the jockey's room after riding his 277th winner of the year, tops in the nation.

"I enjoyed my rest when it happened," Cauthen said a couple of hours before returning in describing how he felt for about two weeks after suffering a broken wrist and a rib and cuts of the face and hands when Bay Streak fell during a race at Belmont.

BACK SAFELY — Los Angeles Dodgers runner Reggie Smith dives back to the bag while avoiding a tag attempt by Cincinnati Reds first baseman Dan Driessen in a pickoff try in the first inning of a game in Cincinnati Saturday. Driessen took the throw from Reds catcher Johnny Bench but wasn't able to make the tag.

Henderson's homer proved the difference

ANAHEIM (AP) — California may be the land of no-fault divorce, but Frank Tanana can still sue his teammates for non-support.

Ken Henderson's two-out home run in the top of the 10th inning gave the Texas Rangers a 1-0 victory over Tanana and the California Angels Friday night. It was Tanana's fourth loss against 11 victories.

The Angels have scored in only one of the left-hander's losses. He was also the victim of a 1-0 loss at Cleveland when the Angels were no-hit by Dennis Eckersley and a 3-0 loss at Boston. The other defeat came at Minnesota last week 3-2.

Joe Rudi crashed into the left-field wall trying to flag down Henderson's game-winning drive.

"I would have hung up my spikes if he had caught it," said Henderson, who was lavish in his praise of Tanana.

"He's one super pitcher, no doubt about it," Henderson said. "He makes one bad pitch and loses a ball game."

Henderson said he hit a changeup for his fourth homer of the season.

"I'm sure Frank would like to have it back," said Henderson. "It was out over the plate."

The victory went to Adrian Devine, 5-3, who worked the final two innings for Texas. Devine relieved Gaylord Perry, who matched Tanana pitch for pitch through the first eight innings.

Perry allowed four hits, struck out 10 and issued only one walk. In his 10 innings of work, Tanana yielded five hits and didn't walk a batter, striking out nine.

The loss was Tanana's first at home this season after six victories.

Connie Ryan evened his record as the Rangers' manager at 1-1. He was appointed the Texas skipper Thursday, becoming the team's third pilot in three games at that stage.

Frank Lucchesi was fired as the Rangers' manager following a game at Minnesota Tuesday night, and Eddie Stanky was hired, but Stanky quit after leading Texas against Minnesota Wednesday night.

Ryan doesn't know when the game of musical managers will end. He was named as the team's "interim manager."

Houston reliever sees bright future

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros relief pitcher Joe Sambito says the team has a crucial set of games coming up but he forsees success for the club in the near future.

The 24-year-old lefthander handcuffed San Francisco on one hit over the final three innings and Bob Watson hit for the cycle — a single, a double, a triple and a homer — as the Astros nipped the Giants 6-5, in 11 innings Friday night.

Jose Cruz' single drove home Wilbur Howard with the winning run in the bottom of the 11th as Houston registered its third triumph in its last four contests.

"We're scoring more runs now and the pitchers are beginning to come through," said Sambito, 4-2. "I think that things are beginning to look a little brighter."

Watson's bases loaded triple in the first inning staked the Astros to a 3-0 lead, but San Francisco tied it in the fourth on a two-run homer by Darrell Evans and a RBI single by Marc Hill.

A fifth inning solo homer by Bill Madlock pushed the Giants ahead 4-3 but Watson tied it in the bottom half of the inning with his ninth home run of the season.

Gary Thomasson's seventh inning sacrifice fly gave the Giants another one run lead, but the Astros tied it in the eighth on Watson's run scoring single to left.

"This is the first time I've ever hit for the cycle in my entire baseball career," said Watson, who also clubbed a third inning double and collected five RBIs. "I never even got one in the little league."

Cruz' game winning RBI, came off losing pitcher Tommy Toms, 0-1, and followed a walk to Howard and a single by Enos Cabell.

Houston plays 16 of its next 20 games at home and Watson says that this is the time for the club to make a move in the standings.

"We've experienced a lot of bad luck this year," Watson said. "This is a great opportunity for us to gain some ground."

Crazy golf fans? No!

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — How would you like to see a golf tournament where spectators could cheer, boo or rattle the change in their pockets while Jack Nicklaus or another top pro is preparing to putt?

Sacreligious, you say? Why? Don't baseball, football, basketball and hockey players have to perform for big stakes under the duress of fan reaction? What makes golfers immune to the same working conditions?

Even Little League World Series competition, to say nothing of the regular season, has the normal fan noise. It may be worse, since it involves the anguished cries of frustrated parents.

The question was put to Tom Kite, who came to town this week to help promote the IVB Golf Classic, which he won last year for his first tour triumph.

Like most pros, Kite believes that cemetery-like quiet while he shoots is a golfer's inalienable right.

"I don't think it would get off the ground," Kite said of the heretic suggestion that cheers and boos be permitted while players are addressing or hitting the ball. "If you did it, you would have to build into it gradually," Kite said. "It's not something that you could do overnight. The players wouldn't like it. And I don't think the public would like it. The fans might swamp the players. You'd have to have some restraints."

Field wins Jr. Tourney

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Rain forced cancellation of the final round of the 21st annual Junior Texas-Oklahoma Golf Tournament Friday, giving Oklahoma City's Lawrence Field his second straight title in the 16-17 age bracket.

Field was declared the winner with a 54-hole total of 224. Mike Zarcaro of Seabrook, Tex., was second at 226.

Finishing in a four-way tie for third with 227 totals were Stan Talbott of Snyder, Matt Tillinghast of Dallas, Eddie Depperschmidt of Houston and Mark Brodick of Fort Worth.

Field is the third two-time winner in the tournament's history.

Kite said he has heard of an experiment with youngsters, forcing them to play golf under these unnatural conditions. It might be great if they got used to it. "If from, say six years old up they played under these conditions they could become accustomed to it. But the present players, used to the normal conditions, would shoot eighty or ninety with the unaccustomed noise. You'd have a lot of bad scores out there."

Recently retired Marquette basketball coach Al Maguire once questioned the tomb-like silence under which golf is played.

Maguire said that a college basketball player was expected to hit from the foul line with a big game hanging in the balance and a capacity arena crowd screaming, drums beating, but everyone had to clam up when a golfer tried to make a six foot putt.

Kite reminded that golf had always been considered a gentlemanly game. But he conceded that the human mind can learn to cope with an awful lot, even making a six foot putt with a gallery crunching peanut shells at the time of impact.

Where'd all the players go?

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Where have all the players gone? To the Big Ten, that's where.

The Big Ten signed 12 of the nation's top 40 high school basketball players, as rated in an annual survey done for The Associated Press by The Roanoke (Va.) Times and World-News.

It was the biggest sweep by a conference in the nine years of the survey, a compilation of the top players from two coaching services, seven scholastic All-American teams and the advice of some of the nation's finest basketball recruiters.

Eight of the Big Ten schools landed at least one Top 40 performer, with only Minnesota and Northwestern left out. Although the Big Ten was dominant with its dozen players, the Atlantic Coast Conference got the two biggest names among the seven it signed.

Albert King of New York, 6-foot-6 younger brother of Tennessee All-American Bernard King, signed with Maryland early this month. And Eugene Banks of Philadelphia, also 6-6, is going to Duke.

Earvin Johnson, a 6-8 forward many consider the equal of Banks and King, stayed at home in East Lansing by signing with Michigan State.

Elsewhere in the Big Ten, a couple of second-year coaches — in their first full season of recruiting — struck it rich. Ohio State's Eldon Miller virtually swept his home state, including 6-10 Columbus star Herb Williams, and also got 6-3 Kenny Page out of New York. Wisconsin's Bill Cofield landed the last blue-chipper to sign, guard West Matthews of Bridgeport, Conn. Matthews and Darnell Valentine, joining his high school coach at Kansas, were the best of the guard crop this year.

Notable among schools failing to land a Top 40 player was UCLA. This was the first time in the nine-year survey that the Bruins haven't gotten at least one of the elite prospects.

How valid is the Top 40 list?

Something about the game

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — "I find everything about professional basketball to be thoroughly distasteful — except the game itself."

John Y. Brown was relaxing during the National Basketball Association's annual summer meetings here earlier this month when he reflected on the sport he hates — and loves.

"The greed, the way people throw money around with no regard for reality or common sense, the whole business end of the sport — I hate all of it," said Brown, the Kentucky Fried Chicken multimillionaire who for many years was one of the American Basketball Association's few solid forces with his Kentucky Colonels and who now owns the NBA's Buffalo Braves.

"But the game itself is something I love. I could not stand to be apart from it."

That's where Brown found himself one year ago. He looked at the proposed NBA-ABA merger terms, pronounced them "financial suicide" for the teams coming in from the new league and instead folded up shop in Kentucky, letting the other ABA teams buy him out for $3,391,000.

Now, for about the same amount, he's back in as owner of the Buffalo club.

"Sports has a very unique place in American society," he said. "I like being associated with sports and with a winner. I wanted to get back in."

So Brown bought a half-interest in the financially troubled Buffalo Braves from Paul Snyder for $1.5 million. Before the season was over, Snyder sold his remaining 50 per cent to Brown.

Talking about the way sports are being run today, he said:

"There is so much ego and emotion involved in pro sports, it's easy for it to get out of hand. Sooner or later it will come back to haunt you."

The root of the evil is money.

"I don't think money ought to be the major catalyst of pro sports, which is what it has become," said Brown. "You take incentive away from the players when you give them 5-and 10-year contracts."

"The limit on salaries should be what the fans are willing to pay. There is only so much money you can take in without raising ticket prices. Ten dollars is too much for the average fan to pay for a ticket. You price the game right out of the realm of the public."

Brown feels, however, that pro basketball may have surpassed its greatest hurdle — the NBA-ABA war and subsequent merger — and is now on the right track.

Seaver loses first Game in Red togs

By the Associated Press

Tom Seaver was finally on the mound in Riverfront Stadium when the Cincinnati Reds lost. The only problem is that Seaver now pitches for the Reds.

A three-time Cy Young Award winner, Seaver made his first appearance in Cincinnati since being obtained by the Reds from the New York Mets last week. But he lost to Los Angeles 3-2, dropping the Reds 9½ games back of the Dodgers in the National League West race.

Although he won his first start in a Cincinnati Reds' uniform, blanking Montreal on three hits, the last game Seaver won in Cincinnati was in 1972.

Tommy John, 8-4, hurled the Dodgers to victory, pitching out of jams in the seventh and eighth innings.

Seaver pitched eight innings, allowing all three Los Angeles runs on seven hits while striking out four.

John scattered 10 hits while Steve Garvey drove in two runs with a first-inning single and Rick Monday singled home the eventual winning run in the sixth.

In other NL games Friday, Chicago blanked New York 5-0, Atlanta edged San Diego 9-8 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh nipped Montreal 6-5 in 10 innings, Houston squeezed by San Francisco 6-5 in 11 innings and St. Louis defeated Philadelphia 7-1.

Little League tourney begins Monday, 8 p.m.

There will be baseball in Mudville (Big Spring) Monday night, as the City Little League Tournament begins with battles among eight teams.

The action will be profuse as all four Little League parks in the city will see games. All games will start at 8 p.m.

The schedule follows: The Cabots of the American League will host the Cubs of the Texas League at the American Park. The Rangers of the National League will host the Comets of the International League at the National League Park.

The Cardinals of the Texas League will entertain the Yankees of the National League, at the Texas League park, and the T-Birds of the International League will play host to the Pirates of the American League at the International League park.

Tuesday night will also see four games, as the Cabots-Cubs winner will meet International League champ Rockets; the Texas League champs Tigers will host the Ranger-Comets winner; the American League champs Oilers will host the Cardinals-Yankees winner; and the Devils, champs of the National League, will host the T-Birds-Hawks winner.

Those games will also begin at 8 p.m. in each of the respective champions parks.

Two games will be on tap Wednesday night at 8 p.m., as the survivors of the Rockets and Tigers combinations will meet, and the winner of the Oilers and Devils combinations will also mix it up.

Thursday, at 5:30 p.m., the two losers of Wednesday night's games will meet for third place honors, and the Finals, to determine the city champion will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday night.

District Chairman Jack Barber urges the fans out to see the top-flight action.

Bad Sports

By Danny Reagan

Lake Thomas

The lake caught two inches of rain over the past week, and came up just a little. The creeks are barely running however, and the lake still could use some more of that wet stuff.

Rumors have surfaced at the lake that some Big Spring and area bass fishermen are frequently the lake, taking some good four and five-pounders, and then telling people just the opposite.

The report is that they are telling everyone that they're wasting their time going to Thomas, because the lake's down and nothing at all is biting. Sounds a little selfish and unsportsmanlike to me.

Fishing at the lake is good . . . e.g., M.W. Chaney brought in a 8 3/4 pound yellow cat; Max Hildebrand from Snyder caught a 3 lb. 8 oz. black bass and four different people have visited the Lake Thomas Lodge with strings of 12-20 "good-size" cats, caught on rod and reel, using worms, minnows, shrimp, and just about anything.

Lee Gordon of Big Spring also caught a 3 lb. 10 oz. black; and John Eubanks and his two small sons from Lovington, N.M. caught 20 "very good" crappie.

Moss Creek

The lake is still a little slow. Ed McCain did report that the catfish and carp fishing is picking up somewhat, "but the bass are still on strike."

A few walleye are finding the hooks, and the lake caught two inches of rain but no run-off. Still worth a try, though.

Lake Spence

Large strings of channel catfish were showing in fishing reports at Lake E.V. Spence during the week, along with more black and white bass, but striped bass continued as the variety most frequently caught. The strippers are still schooling on top of the water, but many of them are being caught on jigs in 20 feet of water. The largest for the week was a 14-lb. specimen. There also was a 20-lb. yellow catfish.

Reports included: Triangle Grocery — Dee and Cleo Reid, Big Spring, three strippers to 14 lbs., 12 channel catfish to 4 lbs., and four black bass to 2 lbs.; Butch and John McClintock, Big Spring, four strippers to 5 1/2 lbs., 15 channel catfish to 2 lbs., two blacks to 1 1/2 lbs. and eight white bass to 1 1/2 lbs.; Mrs. A.A. Taylor, Lamesa, two strippers to 9 lbs.

Wildcat Fish A Rama — Joe Martinez, Midland, a 4 1/2-lb. strip; Jack Hamm, Wellman, three strippers to 8 lbs., three channel cats to 3 lbs.; Bubba and Audrey Duncan, two strippers to 3 1/2 lbs.; Gay and Monty Witt, Takoka, five strippers to 6 lbs.; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Franklin, Odessa, seven strippers to 6 lbs., four white bass to 1 1/2 lbs., Ben Likie and party, Odessa two strippers to 6 1/2 lbs., B.J. Littlejohn and Tommy Anderson, Odessa, 85 channel cats to 3 lbs., six strippers to 6 1/2 lbs.; H.D. Carrigan, Odessa, five black bass to 5 1/2 lbs.; Bruce Allison, Midland, a 5-lb. strip; Cecil Sudduth and Bill Hall, Winters, six strippers to 4 1/2 lbs.; Hoyle Beadie and Lance Brown, Jal, N.M., six strippers to 9 1/2 lbs.; Ron Houghton, Casper Wyo., and Marvin Garrett, Odessa, 19 white bass to 1 1/2 lbs and four strippers to 5 lbs.

Y.J.'s Marina — James Holbomb, Hobbs, N.M., 20-lb. yellow catfish; Bill and Lois Schwager, Odessa, three blacks to 4 1/2 lbs.; Steve Croft, Mike Gross and Ricky Sides, Big Spring, a 6 1/4-lb. strip; Jim Kiker, Snyder, 5 1/4-lb. strip; Joe Barrett, Robert Lee, 4-lb. strip.

Hillside Grocery — Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Jones, Odessa, 15 channel catfish to 3 lbs. and two black bass to 3 lbs.

Edith Country Store — Dale Glenn, Big Spring, 6 1/2 lb. striped bass.

Rainbow trout come to Texas

DALLAS — Rainbow trout usually are associated with cold weather and cold water but June 24 some 500 to 600 trout will be stocked in the tailrace of Possum Kingdom Reservoir on the Brazos River.

Inland fisheries officials at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department say this is the latest stocking of rainbow trout in the state. The fish are 12 to 14 inches long and weigh 1 to 1 1/2 pounds.

The trout have been held at the P&W's Possum Kingdom Fish Hatchery since January where they were reared in cold-water troughs.

David Pritchard, department inland fisheries director, said the rainbows were held to determine growth rates in warmer Texas waters, and to provide additional recreation for area fishermen at a time when there is little rainbow trout fishing.

Independence latest victim

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A broken halyard latch, the problem that knocked Enterprise out of a day of racing, is emerging as the biggest bugaboo of the preliminary trials for potential defenders of the America's Cup.

The new victim is Ted Hood's Independence, which had the lock let go Friday while trailing Courageous in the first of two races south of Newport in Rhode Island Sound.

Hood was trailing Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner by 42 seconds at the start of race one, and had to withdraw the newest of the United State entries four minutes into the first windward leg when the mainsail began to flutter and slipped down the mast.

The America's cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club abandoned the race and the two yachts returned to their Newport harbor berths.

Meanwhile, Turner won a pair of practice starts against Independence Friday.

Webb sports

Duster slump

With just two weeks to go before the Air Training Command Central Division tournament, the Webb slowpitch softball team continues to struggle through one of the worst slumps ever suffered by a local varsity squad.

For a moment Saturday night, the Dusters appeared to be breaking out of their horrible skid when they came from behind to nip the Cannon AFB Roadrunners, 16-15, in the bottom of the final frame.

But the Roadrunners came powering back to take the next three games, 20-12, 15-10 and 14-8.

The Dusters have now dropped 17 out of their last 19 games.

Against the Roadrunners, the Dusters fell on the short end of a home run barrage in which 35 round trippers were belted during the four games. Cannon sticks clouted 26 of the homers with Larry Schmidt taking advantage of a stiff tailing breeze to cream eight over the fence.

The Dusters host a team from Midland tomorrow night at 7:30 on the Webb diamonds.

Two Webb heroes

Thirty-two of the best fast-pitch softball teams in the Southwest collided in Midland last week, and when the smoke cleared two Webb stars were among the local heroes.

Don Skeel came off the bench to deliver a two-out game winning single while Al Oldfather was firing a five-hitter for the Big Spring Merchants' most impressive win of the tourney. Skeel's screamer down the third base line, broke open a tight game with Saignaw Sandfleas from Fort Worth and gave the Merchants a 3-2 win.

One of the top-ranked teams in the state, Saignaw has a star studded line-up that includes Texas A&M super kicker, Tony Franklin. The extra inning victory gave the Merchants a 2-2 record in the tournament and a sixth place finish.

Unbeaten highlight

Six players off unbeaten Air Base Group highlight a cast of intramural all stars that will host 15 "Class A" fast-pitch softball teams in the Big Spring Lions Club Fourth of July softball tournament.

The ace of the Group contingent, Al Oldfather, will also coach the all stars. He'll be calling the signals from the opening of play on July 1 through the final games on July 3. At least one player off each intramural team made the all star list.

The balance of the 16-team field scheduled makes picking the winner near impossible, but, look for strong performances by the Laughlin Raiders, Big Spring Merchants and Webb's All Stars.

The intramural players chosen to play in the Fourth of July tournament, by position, were: Pitchers and catchers Al Oldfather, Steve Benson, Don Skeel; outfielders, J.J. Jones, Bernie Davis, Rick Johnson, Cliff Carlton; infielders, Nick Metcalf, Mike Zuvich, Dale Dees, Les Ballard, Rick Holderby, Gilbert Gonzales, Mike Smothers, Tom Blacone, Phil Thomas.

Fredricks, a two-handicapper, carded the day's best scratch round, a three-over-par 75, to take a two-stroke win over Jim Halvorson and Paul Brown in the first flight.

Dennis Layton and Phil Van Ess placed in the second flight while Ron Miller and Charlie Smith grabbed money in the third flight.

Rounding out the winners were Bebra Johnson and Pete Holden.

ORDER ON THE COURT — Ilie Nastase, Romania's tennis star, waits at right for police and officials to restore order on court 14 at Wimbledon, Friday. Spectators had spilled onto the court after filling the stands an hour before play was to begin. The match was delayed 10 minutes.

'Ice Maiden' nets Tracy

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "It was the toughest match of my life, psychologically," said Chris Evert after meeting tennis' new wonder girl, 14-year-old Tracy Austin, on Wimbledon's hallowed center court.

"Even playing Billie Jean King is a piece of cake in comparison," said Chrissie, who needed all the composure of a great champion to control her swirling emotions as she stepped onto the most famous court in tennis Friday and played a miniature version of herself.

With 15,000 fans packed around the center court and hundreds more watching the scoreboard outside, the defending champion was engaged in long, testing rallies by the youngster from Rolling Hills, Calif. which the 6-1, 6-1 score in Miss Evert's favor did not reveal.

Miss Austin was the center of attention, her teeth in schoolgirl braces and her hair tied back, as she contested the third-round women's singles match against the reigning queen of tennis.

For too long, Miss Evert has been cast as the unemotional "Ice Maiden" after the match put her arm around her, and they curtsied again.

But those close to the 22-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., say she is a warm, considerate person. And that's what showed Friday.

She told Tracy how to curtsy to the Royal Box, and after the match put her arm around her, and they curtsied again.

Texas dove count drops

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — A Texas Parks and Wildlife Department survey shows an 18 per cent drop this year in the number of nesting white-winged doves in the Rio Grande Valley.

P&W officials made representative counts of adult doves returning from Mexico and Central America to nest in citrus and native brush of the valley.

Based on counts of calling birds, project leader Gary Waggener and his crew estimate 455,000 white-wings to be in the Lower Valley. Of that total, an estimated 179,000 are in native brush and 276,000 are in cultivated citrus groves.

Across the river in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas, biologists estimate a 25 per cent increase in white-wings.

Woman wins rare honor

Sgt. Joan Folio of Air Base Group at Webb AFB became the "first, last and only" recently when she was named the Honor Graduate of Webb NCO Leadership School Class 77-H.

She earned the distinction of being the last honor graduate plus the first and only woman honor graduate in the school's brief history.

Sgt. Olds gets service ribbon

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. — Staff Sergeant James L. Olds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Olds of Lamesa, is now wearing a distinctive service ribbon as a member of an organization which recently received the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Sergeant Olds is a fuels specialist at Kincheloe AFB, Mich., with the 449th Bomb Wing that earned the award for meritorious service from July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1976.

The sergeant is a 1970 graduate of Lamesa High School. His wife, Elaine, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy D. Todd of Lamesa.

Alvarez goes to Colorado

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Enrique L. Alvarez, whose wife, Andra, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus M. Brito of Rt. 2, Big Spring, has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Alvarez will now receive specialized training in the supply field.

The airman is a 1971 graduate of Big Spring High School.

PVT. JOHNNY PAYNE

Pvt. Payne home on leave

Johnny Ray Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Payne, 902 Bell, is presently home on leave.

Upon termination of leave, he will report to Camp LaJone, North Carolina for Advanced Automotive Mechanic's school.

Pvt. Payne is the brother of Roy Lee Payne and cousin of Stanley Lennox, who are presently undergoing marine basic training.

"That really surprises me," said the Watha, N.C., native, after learning of the distinction. "I know other girls have attended the school and thought someone else would have been the first."

According to school officials, women have previously earned the Commandant's and Academic Achievement Awards.

Nabbing those honors in the last class were Sgt. David Livezey and Sgt. John Reynolds of Field Maintenance Squadron.

Major Grant finishes course for commanders

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. — Major Thomas A. Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Grant, South Route, Coahoma, recently was graduated from the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

The ten-month course at the army's senior tactical school prepares the students for duty as commanders and as principal general staff officers with the army in the field from division through army group, and at field army support and theater army support commands.

The college's primary objective is to prepare selected officers for duty in the field during wartime. Emphasis is on the art of command. The college also prepares students to perform equally well in such varied duties as operational research and formulation of military doctrine.

The major entered the army in July 1964. Maj. Grant received a B.S. degree in 1973 from Embry Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach, Fla. He received his commission through an Officer Candidate School.

His wife, Janice, was with him at the Fort, during the course.

Citizens 'waiting' for clubs to open

Big Springers were apparently sitting around waiting for clubs to open, if the last three clubs to open here are any indication.

The Brass Nail opened its public restaurant last week to operate in conjunction with the club. The club now has over 1,200 memberships.

They reached 1,000 in two weeks and had to stop and print more membership cards and recompute their records before they could accept additional applications, according to Charlie Wash, owner.

The club has had singing stars and bands playing to a packed house almost ever since it opened the doors of the facility.

Meanwhile, the Wooden Nickel, which remodeled the inside of a former lounge on old Highway 80 in west Big Spring, has picked up close to 500 memberships. Almost all of their's are the young crowd. Their manager is Bob Lancaster.

The clientele ranges in age from 18 to 30. On some nights, the patrons have had cars lined up for four to six blocks at this club. Weekends are best.

At the Mid-Continent Inn, the Pump Club also has sold several hundred memberships. The club is designed for visitors at the motel, truckers who pass through and have memberships and a lot of the local citizenry.

It's a smaller room and specializes in special drinks by an accomplished bartender and occasional entertainment. Gerry Jarrett manages this club.

For a town which has never once brought up the issue of liquor by the drink for a vote, it seems to fill up the clubs rather quickly.

Ironically, none of the established clubs in town appears to be hurting. The established clubs, include the Big Spring Country Club, the American Legion, The Elks, the Eagles, the Lamplighter at the Ramada, and the GI Forum. The Lamplighter is planning an enlargement.

The American Legion, in its heyday right after World War II, when there was a lot of enthusiasm, had over 1,000 members. It had dropped off several years ago, according to early members of the club.

Two Odessans sentenced for evading U.S. tax

MIDLAND — Two Odessa men, who have admitted publicly they didn't pay income taxes, have been sentenced to prison for failing to file tax returns.

William M. Rinehart, 51, and Gordon W. Kahl, 57, drew both terms and fines after they were adjudged guilty by U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle.

Rinehart was sentenced to a year in prison and fined $1,000. Kahl, formerly of Crane, drew a two-year term in prison and was fined $2,000. One year of Kahl's jail time and his fine were probated and he was placed on five years' probation.

Judge Suttle told the two that terms of the probation dictate that they must divorce themselves from organizations that advocate willful disobedience from any local, state or federal laws and that they refrain from making any public displays connected with the organizations.

Rinehart was an organizer and chairman of the Tax Rebels of Odessa.

Laetrile keeps cancer victim alive, breathing?

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The cancer victim didn't want a last fling in Mexico. He made the 1,400-mile trip to stay alive.

The man was told in April that the cancer tumors in his remaining whole lung would probably cause his death, so like other desperate Americans he decided to try Laetrile, the apricot pit derivative lauded by some patients and scorned as illegal and useless by the Food and Drug Administration and some physicians.

"The doctors tried to talk me out of it, but another said 'I'd do the same thing,'" said the 57-year-old salesman.

"I tell you, I feel so much better," he said after three weeks in Tijuana, a haven for those who believe the drug cures — or at least alleviates their suffering.

The cancer victim and his wife wanted to share their experience of the controversial drug, and at first were willing to have their names used. They changed their minds out of fear that the Laetrile shipments would be cut off.

Laetrile became legal in Washington state three days after his return, but interstate shipment is illegal without a court order.

A cigarette smoker since the age of 17, he gave up the habit in 1974 when doctors cut away cancerous tumors from his lower left lung.

After a three-day drive to the Mexican border town, the victim underwent two days of tests before he was admitted at the Cydel Clinic in Tijuana as a patient of Dr. Mario Soto.

Laetrile injections began on the third day.

"I quit coughing the next morning," he said. "My breathing was much better, too. I had such a shortness of breath."

Before leaving the clinic, the couple paid $25 for paperwork costs of obtaining a court order from a federal judge in Oklahoma to allow shipment of Laetrile. But their fear of being cut off from the source remains.

The man said his biggest concern is coming up with the $500 a month to keep the supply flowing.

He takes huge 50 cubic centimeter injections of the substance. A visiting private nurse uses four $8 vials for each daily shot.

Cytosin, a chemotherapy drug, supplements six consecutive days of shots. Then the process stops for six days before repeating.

The man is also on a special diet that restricts animal protein and limits the patient to fruit, vegetables, white fish and chicken.

He said he and his Spokane doctor have noticed an improvement when they view X rays of the lungs.

Local women at the controls

Flying takes 'a woman's touch'

"Women are easier to teach flying than men," Leon Anderson, instructor for Big Spring Aircraft, said, "because they have a 'light feel' for an airplane."

"Light feel" just might be translated into "woman's touch," no?

Anderson said women are "high spirited" when it comes to flying. "They have enough 'get up and go' to obtain a license," he said.

He added women are more eager to learn than men.

Usually very few problems are encountered in teaching a woman to fly an airplane, Anderson commented, because "if she is outgoing enough to want to learn to fly, giving lessons will come easy."

One comment Anderson said which made a lot of sense was "if a husband is going to learn to fly a plane, then his wife needs to learn to land, in case something happens to the couple while flying."

But for several Big Spring women, learning to land a plane was just one of many steps they tackled while working to obtain a private pilot's license.

Mrs. Wanda Ford, wife of local Attorney Roy Ford, received her pilot's license from instructor Anderson after just four and a half months of practice.

She has had her license now for a week, and she said she loves it.

"I especially love the feeling it gives me," Mrs. Ford said. "The license is something I worked hard for and it's something I can call my own."

Her husband is also a pilot, and the both of them have recently invested in a Cessna Skyhawk for their private use. The Fords have planned a trip to Arkansas in the plane, which will be the farthest they have flown together.

Mrs. Thay Lewis is an old hat at flying. She began in 1962 and has been flying since.

Her husband, Jack Lewis, a local car dealer, flies also. In fact, they learned to fly together.

They are the owners of a Beechcraft Baron, a six place airplane which they use to "fly down to Mexico on fishing trips," Mrs. Lewis said.

Mrs. Lewis is also a rodeo barrel racer, and besides riding horses, she enjoys hunting and fishing with her husband.

Mrs. Lynn Wilhelm, who has been flying for six and a half years, has had some scary moments while in the air.

One moment occurred, she said, while leaving from her family's mountain retreat in Utah. Just as they (she and her family) got over Zion National Park, heading for the Grand Canyon, the gas tanks on the plane began, one by one, to read empty.

Luckily, Mrs. Wilhelm said, they later found it to be just an electrical problem.

Mrs. Wilhelm is the wife of an instructor pilot at Webb Air Force Base, Major James Wilhelm, and it was he who first got her interested in flying.

In fact, before they were married, he sent her money to take lessons while she was in college. In Phoenix, Ariz. she received her license to fly.

Mrs. Wilhelm said the hardest part about learning to fly was soloing.

Flying is a family experience for the Wilhelms. Often the family will fly on trips together. The couple have three children, Jay, 5, Heidi, 3, and Erica, 2.

Mrs. Penny Blubaugh learned to fly through private lessons in Longmont, Colo., and has been flying for about three and a half years. She became interested in flying through her husband, Lt. David Blubaugh, who was taking private lessons and enjoying them. She decided to take the lessons, too.

She said she enjoys the freedom flying gives her.

"It is something everybody doesn't do," Penny said. She added that she hopes to someday obtain her instructor's license, and to teach others to fly.

Mrs. Fay Reed, an assistant vice-president for State National Bank here, got her license in 1966, but began flying in 1965.

She said she always wanted to fly.

Mrs. Reed's husband, she said, is not an enthusiastic supporter of her flying ability. She said he doesn't go with her on trips and will not even let her take their dog along.

Dallas is the farthest point she has travelled, but wants to go farther someday.

She said she would love to participate in a Powder-Puff Derby.

ONE STEP TO THE SKY — Mrs. Thay Lewis prepares to enter her plane, a Beechcraft Baron. Mrs. Lewis has been flying for many years, and she says she loves it

Her husband, Jack Lewis, flies also, and often they fly to Mexico.

FLYING RUNS IN HER FAMILY — Mrs. Lynn Wilhelm is married to an instructor pilot at Webb Air Force Base, Major James Wilhelm, and acquired her interest in the sport when he sent her money to learn to fly while she was in college.

AT THE CONTROLS — Mrs. Wanda Ford, who recently obtained her license to fly, sits prepared to take off in the plane she and her husband, Roy Ford, own. Mrs. Ford said that she has much more to learn about flying aircraft.

PLOTTING A COURSE — Mrs. Faye Reed checks map to plan her next trip. An assistant vice-president for a local bank, Mrs. Reed has been flying for several years.

ORGANIZING PLANS — Mrs. Penny Blubaugh marks a checklist of things she needs to do before leaving on a flight. Mrs. Blubaugh became interested in flying when her husband took up flying lessons, and decided to join him.

How to make home improving worth the while

By JANET SARGENT
Howard County
Home Demonstration Agent

To make home improvements be "just that," consumers should follow some simple precautions.

—Before calling a contractor, know what needs to be done. This will help identify the work which is most important—and it will help make sure additional jobs aren't "talked into."

—Get at least three estimates on any job. Be sure the estimates are comparable, that each contains what will be done, and that each says exactly how much the entire job will cost. —Before deciding on a contractor, check out the firm's reputation. Check that the company has a permanent place of business in the community—an itinerant contractor will not be around later to handle complaints.

Request references from the company—and check them out. Ask other customers if they were satisfied with that company's work. —After deciding on a contractor, carefully read the contract that is drawn up. Don't sign a contract that doesn't spell out what is to be done, the starting and completion dates, types of materials, the total cost, and a provision outlining who is responsible in case of an accident by an employe or damage to your property.

—Never hand over payment for the entire job in advance.

Pay at the end of the job—or make only a small down payment in advance, if necessary. Another alternative is paying portions—as the job is completed.

First United Methodist site of Alexander, Key rite

Miss Sherri Alexander and Dr. John Richard Key exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in the First United Methodist Church with Dr. Weldon Butler officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Alexander, 8 Highland Heather, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Travis Key, 601 Northwest 7th Ave., Mineral Wells.

The altar of the church was accented with three candelabrams entwined with ivy. One candelabra forming an arch was entwined with calla lilies and daisies. The other two candelabrams formed a circular pyramid. Two baskets of calla lilies and daisies were used as accent points. The pews were marked with pew bows and daisies.

Mrs. John Wilson, Dallas, provided music at the organ. Mrs. Carl Bradley and Mrs. Don Newsom were vocalists.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of ivory organza fashioned with a high Victorian neckline of scalloped val lace. Long slender sleeves featured a ruffle at the wrist. A deep oval lace yolk edged with a ruffle accented the princess line silhouette which extended into a full chapel-length train. A deep ruffle of lace formed the hemline of the skirt and train. Seed pearls accented the yolk and sleeves.

The headpiece was a Juliet cap of matching lace accented with seed pearls holding a lace-edged veil of illusion.

The bride carried white roses centered on an orchid which the bride wore as a going-away corsage. She carried her bouquet on a family heirloom Bible which was carried by her mother and sister. The bride wore a blue garter, made by Mrs. Reese Edmondson, Mineral Wells. In her shoe she carried an English pence which was collected on her European travel.

Mrs. John Thomas, Denver City, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ray Alexander, Mrs. Don Alexander, Junction City, Kansas; Mrs. Mark Alexander, Graham; Mrs. Mike Alexander, Dallas, all sister-in-laws of the bride; Miss Paula Green, Houston; and Miss Rebecca Cowling, Austin. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Stefanie Key, niece of the groom, Mineral Wells.

Dr. Tom Key, Mineral Wells, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Ray Alexander, brother of the bride; Dr. Lanny Kimbrough, Odessa; Dr. Richard Dutton, Palestine, Al Stephens, Ellis Britton and Jack Redding, Greg Thomas, Denver City, was junior groomsman.

Bob Moore and Richard Atkins were ushers.

Miss Christy Alexander, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

James Key, Mineral Wells, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Brian Thomas, Denver City, and Blake Alexander, Junction City, Kansas, were altar taper lighters.

Following a wedding trip to the Canadian Rockies, the couple will reside in Big Spring.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, and received a BS degree from North Texas State University. She received her master's degree from East Texas State University, and did advanced study at Texas Tech University. She is employed by the Big Spring Independent School District.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Mineal Wells High School, Texas Christian University and Baylor College of Dentistry. He has a private dental practice in Big Spring.

MRS. JOHN RICHARD KEY

A reception honoring the couple was held in the Big Spring Country Club following the wedding. The bride's table was covered with an antique satin and lace cloth, centered with a silver candelabrum, entwined with roses, daisies and ivy. Silver appointments were used. The cake was four tiered with a fountain below the cake, and was topped with doves nestled in a bed of roses and daisies.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. W.B. Lovelace, grandmother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cowling, and David Cowling, all of Kermit; Mr. and Mrs. Rex Alexander, Jayton; Dr. and Mrs. Joe Alexander, Abilene; Max Alexander, Ms. Bernice Cochran, both of Spur; and Dan Alexander, Abilene.

Others were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lockhart, Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hambrick, Devine; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bratton, Lohn; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jagers, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Horton, and Dr. and Mrs. Millard Kimmy, all of Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Turner, Mrs. Bruce Bagwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Turner, all of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. W.E. McKemie, and Mr. and Mrs. Myles McKemie, all of Austin; Mr. and Mrs. John Howell, and Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Edwards, Dallas; Mrs. Raymond Pinkerton, Decatur; Mrs. P.M. Nall, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Petty, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harris, Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Cox, and Mr. and Mrs. Green Stoker, all of Mineral Wells; Mr. and Mrs. Carelton Mann, Janet Mann, Brent Mann, Joshua, Gordon Franklin, Houston; and Tom Pullen, Dallas, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nobles, Corpus Christi were guests.

MRS. JAMES ROBERT PURCELL

Miss Diana Lynn Davis weds James Robert Purcell

The College Baptist Church was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Miss Dianna Lynn Davis and James Robert Purcell. Dr. Jimmy Law officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Elzy Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Toby Purcell.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with a column arch and the bride's chosen colors of yellow and white gypsophila.

The bride was attired in a sheer woven nylon gown lined in acetate taffeta. The gown was trimmed in nylon and acetate Chantilly-type lace. It was empire styling with stand-up collar, long slim sleeves with snap cuffs, and a full apron-style back. Lace appliques and iridescent sequins highlighted the bouffant skirt. The gown featured an attached ruffle-edged train. The veil was of net with a headpiece of lace, accented with pearls and iridescent sequins.

The bride carried a tinted feathered carnation bouquet with colors of yellow and white, with baby's breath accenting it. The bouquet was tied with streamers of yellow and white.

Miss Gala Teague was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Davis, sister of the bride and Miss Tonia Freeland. They were attired in matching floor-length gowns of yellow crepe. They carried long-stemmed yellow roses. They wore yellow ribbons and yellow roses in their hair.

Best man was Terry Purcell, Odessa, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Ricky Davis, brother of the bride; and Thomas Purcell, brother of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Rusty Henderson and Charles Purcell, brother of the bridegroom.

Miss Beth Boeker, Frosan, provided music at the piano.

Ms. Gloria Dodd registered guests.

Following a wedding trip to Kerrville and San Antonio, the couple will reside at 1703 Owens.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High School. The bridegroom graduated from Big Spring High School and is employed by Rose Construction of Abilene as a carpenter.

A reception honoring the couple followed the ceremony in the Holiday Inn Patio Room. A yellow lace tablecloth covered the bride's table and a floral centerpiece of yellow and white was used as a centerpiece. Punch was served from the table.

The head table was centered with a three-tiered cake with yellow velvet bells on the top. The bride's bouquet accented the tablecloth skirt in front of the cake.

The groom's table contained a carpenter's doll as a centerpiece. Chocolate cake and coffee were placed on the table. Silver and glass appointments were used on all tables.

Serving were the bride's attendants, as well as Ms. Angie O'dell, Virginia, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

Baby shower given

A baby shower was given last Thursday in the home of Mrs. Floyd Williams, 902 E. 15th St. honoring Mrs. Mike Eggleston and newborn son, Michael Evan.

A corsage was presented to the honoree.

Grandmothers present were Mrs. Bill Eggleston and Mrs. John L. Appleton.

Refreshments were served from appointments of crystal and silver. The centerpiece for the table was arranged on a crystal compote and contained blocks, baby dolls and ivy. The table was covered with a baby blue cloth.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Melva Cooper, Mrs. Wahda James and Mrs. Carolyn Schalk.

MRS. PAUL SCOTT BENNETT

Forsan resident honored

FORSAN — Mrs. Jim Alexander was the honoree at a baby shower Tuesday morning in the home of Mrs. Ann Fairchild. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Nova Scudday, Mrs. Nola Stroy, Mrs. Ben Oglesby and Mrs. Ruby McElrath.

The table was covered with a white tablecloth. The centerpiece was a pink candle arrangement. The cake was decorated in colors of pink and blue with baby safety pins, yellow baby shoes, and centered with a white stork. Crystal and silver appointments were used.

Summer rite performed in Killeen chapel

Miss Vicky Lee Wallin became the bride of Paul Scott Bennett Saturday evening in a formal candlelight ceremony at Clements Chapel, First Baptist Church, Killeen.

The Rev. Norris Onstead performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Wallin, Big Spring. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Bennett, Killeen.

Mrs. Dee Tucker provided nuptial music at the organ. Mrs. Stanley Lohse was soloist. Mrs. Larry Simpson registered guests at the church and reception.

The altar was decorated with an arrangement of blue, green and white silk flowers, and was flanked by two white wrought iron spiral candelabums with white tapers and greenery. A fan-shaped candelabum with white tapers was the focal point behind the altar.

The bride wore a gown of white silk crepe and Venise lace. The bodice was accented by a Queen Anne neckline and an all-over lace empire silhouette. The full bishop sleeves gathered into a cuff with matching appliques of floral lace. The A-line skirt was adorned with lace medallions and extended to form a full-length chapel-length train encircled with a gentle flounce trimmed in lace. Her double tiered, floor-length veil with silk Venise lace trimming was attached to an appliqued Camelot cap.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and pearl-studded stephanotis centered with a Jaffett orchid atop a white Mother of Pearl Bible belonging to Mrs. Charles Weiss. She also carried an heirloom blue handkerchief belonging to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Horace C. Wallin Sr. She wore a heart-shaped diamond pendant, a gift from the bridegroom, and a sapphire in her shoe.

Miss Debbie Tidwell, Houston, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Larry Meacham, Austin; Mrs. Allen Pittman and Mrs. Charles Weiss, both of Killeen.

Randy Rich, Killeen, was best man. Groomsmen were Troy Bennett Jr., brother of the bridegroom; Darrell Bennett, both of Austin; and Stanley Lohse, Killeen. Greg Bennett, Austin, was ringbearer. Ushers were Robert Wallin, San Francisco, Calif., brother of the bride; Scott Bell, Nocona; Steve Browning, Waco; and Danny Whitehurst, Longview. Candelighters were Andy Bay and Jay Walker, both of Killeen.

A reception was held in the Twin Mountain Room at the Holiday Inn following the ceremony. The table was arranged in a T-shape covered with a white cloth decorated with blue and green net and flowers. The table was centered with a silk flower arrangement and the bridesmaids' bouquets accented the ends of the table. The bride's cake and bridegroom's cake were at either end opposite the silver appointments. The bride's three-tiered heart-shaped cake was decorated with blue and green roses and white doves. The bridegroom's cake was a heart-shaped German chocolate cake.

The registry table held a white candle and holder with silk flowers and the bride's book. Blue and green rice bags in white baskets completed the decor.

Members of the house party were Mrs. T.H. Barr Jr., Mrs. Curtis Bay, Mrs. Alfred Bell, Mrs. Leroy Bigham, Mrs. Elmer Burch, Mrs. Cecil Carter Sr., Mrs. A.S. Chandler, Mrs. Ed Hickman, Mrs. Keith Martin, Mrs. W.A. Matkin, Mrs. Jimmy McLean, Mrs. T.J. Mills, and Mrs. Robert Mitchell.

Others were Mrs. Carrol Moffatt, Mrs. James Nitsche, Mrs. A.D. Robinett, Mrs. Ed Schulz, Mrs. Larry Simpson, Miss Myrtle Smith, Miss Barbara Teer, Mrs. Bill Turner, and Mrs. J.C. Walker, all of Killeen.

Also Mrs. Troy Bennett Jr., Mrs. Darrell Bennett, Mrs. Cecil Bennett, Mrs. Ellege Bennett, and Mrs. Shelby Barber, all of Austin; Mrs. Tommy Young, San Angelo; Mrs. Oscar Cagle, Mrs. Matthew Harrington, Mrs. Tom Harris, and Mrs. Noel Harvell Jr., and Mrs. Lee Roy Wright, all of Big Spring.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Flanary, Waco, grandparents of the bride, and D.C. Bennett, Manor, grandfather of the bridegroom.

The rice bags were distributed by Miss Karen Easterling of Georgetown.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School, and received her B.A. degree from Angelo State University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Killeen High School and received his B.B.A. degree from Baylor University.

Following a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will reside at 3202 Brook-bend, Killeen. The bride is a teacher at Killeen High School. The bridegroom is associated with T-Shirts Plus in Temple.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner Friday night at Frank's Lakeview Inn. The bride and bridegroom presented gifts to the wedding attendants.

Miss Myrtle Smith was hostess for a bridesmaids luncheon Friday in her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie and Miss Kim Guthrie were hosts.

Guthrie ranch site of party Tuesday

Miss Toni Jabor and Craig Medley were honored Tuesday evening with a hamburger party on the A.K. Guthrie's ranch.

Special guests were the parent's of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Medley. Approximately 25 guests attended.

Miss Pamela Jo Adams and Richard Don Mitchell were married Saturday evening in the First United Methodist Church in Midland with the Rev. Eugene Gaunt of Gary, officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold A. Adams, 2200 Harvard, Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Mitchell, 1505 Stadium, Big Spring.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Linda McLaughlin, Midland. Bridesmaids were Miss Michele Ballard, Philadelphia, Penn., and Miss Delise Macha, Seymour. Others were Mrs. Mike Adams, sister-in-law of the bride; and Mrs. John Walker, both of Midland.

Best man was Russell Mitchell, brother of the bridegroom, Big Spring. Groomsmen were Mike Adams, brother of the bride, Midland; Mike Bearden, Denver, Colo.; Tim Harrison, Odessa, and Jerry Lane, McKinney.

Ushers were Jimmy Edwards, Lubbock; Terry Mitchell, Hobbs; Don Lucas, Falls Church, West Va., and Matt Pettinos, San Antonio.

Miss Tonia Gunter, Midland, served as flower girl. Greg Moore, Odessa, was ring bearer.

Ervin Gunter, Dallas, and Theron Bogle, Anson, were candlelighters.

George DeHart served as organist, with Jose Gonzales, Big Spring, as soloist.

The bride was attired in a traditional style gown by Bianchi, which was pearl white with English net and hand beaded appliques of Alencon lace. The gown featured a fitted empire bodice and an A-line skirt flowing into a chapel-length train with long fitted sleeves featuring wedding ring necklines. Her four-tiered veil of silk illusion fell to three quarters length with a Camelot headpiece fashioned with matching lace and bridal pearls.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of cattleya orchids and yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

MRS. RICHARD DON MITCHELL

Alexander, Brownfield, provided music.

Following a trip to Red River, N.M., the couple will make their home in Earth, Texas.

The bride graduated from Lee High School in Midland, and from Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in Elementary Education. Parents won't let boy keep TV prize

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dear Dr.: Last week I won a motorcycle in a dance contest on television. I was told by the television people that the bike was worth $700.

I'm not really a bike fan, but I want to keep it and learn how to ride it. I'm 15 and have lots of time to learn.

My problem is my parents will not allow me to keep the bike, and my father wants me to sell it to someone who works with him for $300. I'll get the $300, but I really want the bike. Can you give me a few hints — fast?

Keith

Dear Keith: I'm not a motorcycle fan either, but I can see where there would be a lot of fun riding in the dirt or somewhere else other than surface streets and highways.

I'm sorry, Keith, I, too, would have you sell the bike, especially since you have no experience in biking.

However, I feel $300 is not enough for the cycle. Contact a local bike dealer and find out the exact value of your motorcycle. A well-placed ad

Three new teachers hired to fill vacancies at school

Three new teachers have been hired to fill the vacancies in the Westbrook School.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Truelove will teach next year. Mrs. Truelove will teach sixth grade, and Truelove will teach high school math.

Mrs. Honta S. Hines, who taught business at Colorado City High School for the past 18 years, will return to Westbrook where she began her teaching career.

Teachers who will not return this year are Miss Mary Jackson, Mrs. Donna Finch Walker, Charles Parnell and Roland Beale.

Mrs. Alton Raschke will teach third grade instead of second grade. Mrs. Bob Ratliff, Jr., will change from teaching sixth grade to teaching second.

Several relatives have been guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Henderson recently.

Guests included Mrs. Lucile McEwen, Mrs. Mable Newton, Mrs. Jackie Kelch, Modesta, Calif.; Mrs. Violet West and Mrs. Ruth Crabtree, Angleton; Mrs. Gertrude Henderson, Root Valley Fair Lodge, Colorado City; and Mr. and Mrs. Max Richards and Melinda Richards, Lamesa.

Father's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rice were their children, Mrs. Mavis West, Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Rice and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rice, and Sandra Rice, all of Midland; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul West and John West, Coahoma.

Others were Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Rice, and family; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rice, Julie Rice, Debbie Rice and Charles Rice, Westbrook.

The Rev. and Mrs. Bob Manning were in Odessa Tuesday where he officiated at the funeral of a friend.

Mrs. Leroy Gressett has returned from Midland, where she was a guest in the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jane Hudson.

Mrs. Donald Gressett, Snyder, the former Sue Cook of Westbrook, underwent surgery in Abilene last week.

MRS. GARY WAYNE LAWSON

First Christian Church site of Saturday rite

Miss Cynthia Ann Smith and Gary Wayne Lawson were married Saturday evening in the First Christian Church with the Rev. William H. Smythe officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Smith, 2806 Parkway Rd., and Laddie C. Lawson, Snyder. Grandparents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Lawson, Big Spring.

Few markers of white satin marked the bridal aisle, which was enhanced by arrangements of mixed white flowers, illuminated by wedding tapers held in seven-branched candelabrum.

Marvin Casey and Ms. Christin Haynes were vocalists.

The bride wore a traditional sheer bridal crepe A-line silhouette gown. The fitted bodice was overlaid with Venetian lace appliques outlining the Queen Ann neckline and empire waist. Full bishop sleeves were enhanced with deep cuffs and highlighted with lace appliques. The soft flowing skirt featured a front panel, traced in lace to the hemline, with appliques enhancing the center. The back flowed into a full chapel-length train. The entire hemline was etched with lace above a deep gathered flounce.

The bride also wore a matching picture hat edged with lace and etched upon the crown with appliques.

The bride carried a cascade of gardenias and stephanotis on top of a Bible tied with white picot satin.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Don Sauls. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Larry Russell and Mrs. Curtis Harbin. The attendants carried nosegays of blue, yellow and green mixed flowers.

Doyle Lawson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen included Stephen G. Smith, brother of the bride, and Charles E. Story, cousin of the bride.

Ushers were Robert Bentley, Robert Huibregtse, Richard Story, and Gordon

Story: Melanie Russell, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Amy Burgess was candlelighter. Steve Lawson, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Following a wedding trip to South and Central Texas, the couple will reside at 403 17th St., No. 2.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is attending Howard College. She is employed at Hester's.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Big Spring High School, and is working for Forsan Oil Well Service.

A reception honoring the couple was in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was centered with a branched, silver candelabrum containing the attendants nosegays and the bride's bouquet. The table was covered with a pale blue satin cloth overlaid with lace. Servers were Mrs. Roger Huit, Miss Rhonda Riley, Miss Mary Tanner and Miss Bettine Story, Odem.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a green cloth with a yellow candle arrangement placed on it. A bronze coffee service was used. A chocolate cake centered the table. Serving were Ms. Jan Hoover, Ms. Resee Mangum, and Ms. Jennifer Speegle.

Others in the houseparty were Miss Cindy Burgess, Miss Susan Smith, Miss Linda McClanahan, Miss Katie Kernodle, Miss Cheri Story, and Miss Margaret Leamons.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. S.A. Story, Odem; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Story, Odem; Mrs. Richard Kudlik, Plainfield, Ill., S.A. Story Jr., Devine; Mrs. A.C. Leamons, Grapeland; and Cecil G. Smith, El Paso.

Others were Laddie C. Lawson, Snyder; Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDannell, Callinsville; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Thompson, Fort Worth; and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thompson, Denison.

MRS. DON ADAMS

Baptist Temple Church site of summer rite

Miss Jeana Miller and Don Adams were married Friday evening in the Baptist Temple Church with Dan Sanford officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Miller, Gail R. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Don Adams, Lamesa Highway.

The couple stood before a column arch adorned with boxwood foliage and baby's breath, which centered a 21-branched candelabrum. On each side of the altar, columns held arrangements of yellow and white carnations, flanked by spiral and seven-branched candelabrams. The memory candle was placed in front of the bride's mother's pew.

The bride wore a white gown of polyester organza. The high, standup neckline trimmed with Cluny lace topped the sheer bodice, which was decorated with Brussels lace and seed pearls. The front and back bodice and high-rise waist were bordered with Cluny lace. Bands of Cluny lace trimmed the front skirt, the bishop sleeves, the two-tiered flounce hemline, and the chapel-length train.

The bride wore a modified Camelot capulet. Brussels lace with seed pearls covered the capulet. Cluny lace and seed pearls edged the fingertip veil.

The bride carried a cascade of yellow roses, white carnations and baby's breath, with yellow and white streamers.

Miss Suzanne Orr was maid of honor. Chris Chaney was best man.

Bridesmaids were Miss Darlene Emerson, Miss Melody Dabney, and Miss Renee Cooley, cousin of the bride.

Groomsmen were Daryl Anderson, Kevin Murphy and Craig Wyrick.

The bridesmaids and maid of honor were attired in floor-length gowns of coral and yellow print organza. The gowns featured long bishop sleeves and wide empire waist bands. Their hats were tied with coral ribbon and flowers. They carried a single yellow rose with coral streamers.

Joel Adams, brother of the bridegroom, and Gary Miller, brother of the bride, were ushers. Kerri Dan Adams, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Tabatha Miller, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Candlelighters were Greg Miller, brother of the bride, and Shawn Codey.

Providing music at the ceremony were Ms. Shirley Adams, piano, and Mrs. Jim Grizzard, organ. Both are sisters of the bridegroom. Miss Margaret McGee was vocalist.

Following a wedding trip to the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the couple will reside on their farm north of town.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, and will be attending nursing school at Howard College. The bridegroom also attended Big Spring High School, is a farmer and rancher and works with Adams and Sons Polled Shorthorn.

The reception followed in the fellowship hall of the church. The table was covered with white satin and chiffon. Silver and crystal appointments were used. The three-tiered cake was coral and white daisies and topped with porcelain bride and bridegroom. White carnations and yellow daisies centered the bride's table. The bridegroom's table featured chocolate cake and coffee. The cloth was a neutral color splashed with brown.

Serving were Miss Terry Stockton, Miss Carla Clanton, Miss Jill Walker, Miss Pam Manely, Miss Brenda Cooley and Mrs. Leon Anderson.

Miss Paula Miller, sister-in-law of the bride, registered guests.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was given Thursday at the Brandin' Iron for the wedding party.

Dear Abby

Beauty Alone Can't Hold Marriage Together

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that most "plain" women seem to have the best marriages, and most outstanding beauties are divorced, married again, divorced again, and can't make a success of a marriage? Even with the advantage of having been born beautiful they can't seem to find happiness. Why is that?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Believe it or not, natural beauty can be something of a handicap. Some beauties rely entirely on their "looks" to get them everything they want, and they neglect to develop the more durable and important qualities.

A girl may be able to "capture" a man with her beauty. Indeed she can capture more than one, if she so desires. But unless she knows how to give him more than the pleasure of just looking at her, she won't keep him long.

DEAR ABBY: When I married my wife 10 years ago I had a moustache. I kept it for two years, and she never complained about it. Then I shaved it off, and she told me to please leave it off because she never liked it. Okay, so I left it off, but here's the problem:

Every year for the last six years we have a celebration in town called "Frontier Days," which lasts for a whole month. Nearly every man in town grows a beard, moustache or goatee just to get into the spirit of the celebration.

Every year I go through the same thing. It takes me three weeks to get my moustache grown out, and I wear it for a month because I want to be one of the guys and I enjoy it.

As soon as I start growing the moustache, my wife refuses to kiss me, love me or have anything to do with me at bedtime.

Well, seven weeks is a long time for a fun-loving healthy guy like me to go without a kiss. Any suggestions?

MISSING SOMETHING

DEAR MISSING: Get a false moustache that can be glued on and removed easily. That way you can participate in "Frontier Days" without missing anything at night.

Miss Jody Michelle Batson weds Robby Furlow Tuesday

Miss Jody Michelle Batson and Robby Furlow exchanged wedding vows Tuesday evening in the Crestview Baptist Church in Lamesa. The Rev. Bob Manning, Westbrook, officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gale Batson, Ackerly. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. Alma Furlow, O'Donnell, and A.B. Furlow, Lamesa.

Mrs. Gary Waters, Brownfield, sister of the bride, registered guests.

The couple stood before a green archway with blue and orchid carnations and satin bows at the center. Two seven-branched candelabras holding white candles with greenery and orchid and blue carnations tied with satin bows and streamers completed the altar decorations.

Mrs. Janette Brown, cousin of the bride, was pianist.

The bride was attired in a traditional gown of candlelight duchess satin and sheer organza. The princess silhouette featured a molded bodice with a sweetheart neckline, framed in scrolls of the rose point pattern lace.

Long lantern sleeves were softly shirred to wide cuffs, edged in the lace. The controlled A-line skirt swept to deep folds at the back, forming a chapel-length train. Graduating panels of the sheer organza encircled the skirt with each panel framed in lace flowers. Rose medallions of the silk guipure lace was appliqued in each panel forming a window paint effect.

A matching guipure lace Camélot capulet held her veiling, which fell to a fingertip length, and was completely encircled in matching lace.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath with blue satin streamers.

Ms. Diann Armstrong was the honor attendant. She wore a floor-length blue halter gown with printed blue flowers accenting a long-sleeved jacket. She carried orchids and blue carnations surrounded by baby's breath and greenery, tied with blue satin ribbons.

Bobby Furlow, brother of the bridegroom, Draw was best man.

Virgil Summers, Weatherford; and Dean Brown, Hale Center, were ushers.

Aaron Furlow, Draw, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside at Rt. B, Lamesa.

The bride attended Sands High School. The bridegroom attended Lamesa High School, and is presently engaged in farming.

Forsan report Mrs. Grant is honoree

Mrs. J.H. Cardwell gave a coffee June 14 in honor of Mrs. Harley Grant, a former resident of Forsan, who now resides in Quitman, Miss.

Guests included the honoree's mother, Mrs. Mace Jones, Stanton. The Dorcas Class of the Forsan Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. J.H. Cardwell June 14.

Mrs. Pat Barron opened the meeting with a prayer. The group decided to adopt one girl at the Midland Home for Girls. They decided to send a Christmas box by Dec. 1 to be given to the girl.

Mrs. Lola Painter gave a discussion about the Will of God.

Visitors included Mrs. Tessie Knight, Mrs. Nola Story, Mrs. Ima Lee Hawkins, Mrs. Richard Lauder milk and Mrs. Isa Lee Henry.

The next meeting is July 12 in the home of Mrs. Joe Evans.

Mrs. J.W. Overton was given a surprise birthday party June 12 at the Forsan Baptist Church. Her children and grandchildren were hosts for the affair.

Mrs. Lorita Robinson, Seagoville; Mrs. Lanell Evans, Mrs. Mary Lou Overton, Crystal Overton, Candy Overton and May Robinson assisted with the party.

The Pioneer Sewing Club met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. V.E. Phillips.

Mrs. Virginia Bridge, Lomax, was a guest. The group voted to donate gifts for the Veteran's Administration Hospital Arts and Crafts Fair, which is slated Nov. 26 and Dec. 3 at the Highland Shopping Center Mall. The club will also send cookies to the Big Spring State Hospital July 25.

Mrs. Ida Mae Camp, Mrs. Elsie Leonard, Mrs. Ruby McElrath, Mrs. Eloise McRae and Mrs. Myriene Rogers will send cookies.

MR. AND MRS. D.P. DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Day note 50th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. D.P. (Cowboy) Day will be honorees at an open house today in celebration of the couple's 50th wedding anniversary.

The home of the Day's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D.B. Mason, 551 Hillside, Big Spring, is the site of the open house.

Friends and relatives are invited to the celebration, which will be between the hours of 2-4 p.m.

Cohosting the event are the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Day, Forsan, and their grandchildren.

Mrs. Day is the former Lee Roy Franklin. She was born in Howard County. Day was born in Talpa, Texas.

Day was employed in the building trade from 1927 until his retirement in 1973. He is a member of Carpenter's Local 1635.

The couple are members of East 4th Baptist Church.

Members of the house party will include Mr. and Mrs. Bill Petrofsky, Fulton; Mrs. Helen Woodriddle, New Braunfels; Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Mason, Snyder; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Mason, Big Spring; and Dennis Day, Cindy Day and Karen Day, Forsan.

Legislators coming back

By JIM DAVIS
Harte Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — With hardly a chance to gear down since the legislators went home, Austin already is having a gear up for their return.

When the final gavel fell last May 30 many Capitol employes heaved a huge sigh of relief, locked the office doors and disappeared for a while.

Things were quiet but for the tramping of summer tourists' feet and the voices of young Capitol guides telling about the crack in the terrazzo of the rotunda. (Yes, a workman did fall from the inside dome decades ago, but, no, that didn't cause the crack.)

Things began to pick up a bit last week and will really get moving next week as everyone gets ready for the special session starting July 11.

One dejected staffer looked into her cup of coffee in the Capitol coffee soup recently and moaned in anticipation of the special session. "It just doesn't seem fair for them to come back so soon," she said.

While Gov. Dolph Briscoe has been enjoying a European vacation proposals for special session consideration of items other than education financing have been coming into the office. Probably the most hopeless proposal came last week from Rep. Frank Hartung, a Republican from Houston.

He wants Briscoe to include money management legislation on the special session agenda. "Each month we delay this legislation, Texas loses almost $2 million in interest," he told a news conference. He urged a letter writing campaign to convince the governor.

The loss of $2 million because too much state money is invested in bank accounts that don't earn interest should be enough to stir the blood of any Texas citizen. But the issue has been around the last two regular legislative sessions and the principal interest (no pun intended) has come from bankers, who like things just the way they are.

Hartung was disappointed that more reporters didn't show up for the news conference. There wasn't a single TV camera in the place. He is due more disappointment if he really thinks his desperation tactic to force Briscoe to act on the matter will work.

Not too many people know that Texas owns a railroad, but work has gone as far as Hollywood.

The railroad is a state recreation site in Anderson and Cherokee counties. The track was laid by convict labor years ago between Palestine and Rusk for coal delivery. Now the facility has been developed to cater to tourists who want a taste of adventure: A ride in an old-time train.

The state has received some inquiries from filmmakers interested in using the old train in some scenes for westerns.

The Parks and Wildlife Commission tentatively has agreed to lease the train at $1,000 a day for the engine and tender plus costs for crew and additional cars.

When the matter was discussed at a P&W commission meeting last week, chairman Pearce Johnson said he wants to make sure there is a sizable bond involved.

"Some of those movie deals are not too solid," he said.

The comptroller's office has been known to issue news releases for just about anything that might get the boss's name before the public.

WHO NEEDS A TREE
... build it on a rack

But not many trees

Even West Texas has treehouses

By MARJ CARPENTER
Amy Carter's treehouse was not an original idea, but is an American tradition. Many, many children build treehouses — even in West Texas where there are not worlds of large trees.

The common elm is the scene of most West Texas treehouses, as it is a bit harder and a little bit larger than some of the other local trees.

An excursion up and down the streets and alleys of Big Spring this week by this reporter and a photographer saw at least five treehouses spotted in a short period of time.

Hospital bond election eyed

MONAHANS — Ward county commissioners plan to call a $4 million bond election within 30 days.

If approved by voters, the money would go toward construction of a new hospital to replace one damaged by a recent tornado.

The commissioners have accepted an insurance settlement of $373,682.34 for the damage to the hospital.

Ward officials are critical of state authorities, who ruled after a one-hour inspection that the building suffered no structural damage. The facility thus is not eligible for federal assistance.

The six-man style team was sent by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Replacement of the building was figured at $2,284,395 and it was insured for $1,035,000.

The emergency room of the hospital in operation. In addition, it is using 25 beds.

One of the most interesting treehouses is in the yard of Kelly Gafford with a ladder into the yard of the Vernon Bairds.

This neighbor-effort was built by Vernon Baird for his grandchildren visiting here one summer from Texas City. It was also to be used by Kelly Gafford and his friends.

The Bairds also have a grandson, Trent Allen Baird, 6½, who lives here in town and comes over and gets up in the tree.

Baird laughed and said that during the school year, one little girl from the Park Hill Elementary School spotted the treehouse and began a club.

"We never did know who she was but on the way home from school, she'd come in by the alley and skitter up the ladder to the treehouse."

"Soon she began bringing friends and unless she selected them or gave them permission, they could not go into the treehouse."

The Bairds got a big kick out of it and enjoyed watching the treehouse activity. The average homeowner would have run off the strange children, but the Bairds are kind of special.

One young school teacher here said, "When I see a treehouse in a yard, I always know there are good parents there somewhere." But people who build a treehouse for other people's children must really be special.

Up at 10th and Runnels, there is a treehouse without a tree. It's built on a metal stand with a ladder through the floor. It sits in the shade of a tree but is not attached to the tree itself.

This appears to have been vacated. Another vacated treehouse, that is a little bit sad, is the one in the big tree behind the small vacant house next to the George Thomas home which burned recently. The home is gone and the treehouse still stands in the backyard. There are one or two treehouses in the Kentwood area. There would probably be more if there were trees large enough.

Treehouses draw children to a yard like a swimming pool. And they need a lot less upkeep.

Only parents, who love all children, usually sanction a treehouse.

Those who would prefer that children play in some other yard can always find excuses. "They're dangerous." "I don't want you to fall" and "It would probably kill the tree" are some of the common excuses. But the lucky ones still have treehouses and sit in the privacy of their headquarters in a tree-shaded world. They may turn out to be the philosophers and artists of our times.

Rodeo books have local lure now

By REBBECA TAYLOR
With rodeo week, a revived interest in all phases of the 'old west' is evident. A brand new book on the shelves at Howard County Library is "On Down the Road" by Bob St. John. It is a personalized narrative of rodeo life and background. Explanations of rodeo events, equipment, scoring, and records of winners and champions are included along with personal interviews and observations.

The first rodeo was held in Pecos, Texas on July 4th 1883. This fact was established by the research efforts of Barney Hubbs who once owned newspapers in Big Spring, Midland and Odessa, as well as Pecos.

Beside the history of rodeo and its various events, a number of descriptive accounts are given of the efforts, in and out of the arena, by the rodeo cowboy today and yesterday. One cowboy recalls that during one Big Spring rodeo, he and a friend bought a pistol and drove through town firing in the air.

Major rodeos, raising and care of rodeo stock and the role of rodeo clowns like Quail Dobbs of Coahoma are shown in many photos and described vividly often in the competitors' own words.

An older book on rodeo is "Calf Roping," by Toots Mansfield. A champion calf roper, Mansfield has written a book for the beginner and the veteran on the art and science of calf roping.

Two books on rodeo which have been recent best sellers, are: "Rodeo," by Fred Schnell and "Let 'er Buck," by Douglas Kent Hall.

Many persons are interested primarily in the 'old west' aspect of rodeos. Among books of interest to these patrons are the following: Bart McDowell's, "The American Cowboy in Life and Legend," "The Mustangs," by J. Frank Dobie, and the series by Ben K. Green; "Horse Tradin', More Horse Tradin'" and "A Thousand Miles of Mustangin'".

If you own your own horse, two recent books on horse care are available: "The Horse Owner's Vet Book," by E.C. Straiton, and "Horseman's Veterinary Advisor" by Joseph B. Davidson.

SKATEBOARDING — The major summer sport that has boomed and rebounded draws these enthusiasts to the smooth stretches of pavement. The sport has gradually picked up more equipment, too. What used to be a dissected roller skate and some plywood is now formed plastic and polyurethane wheels, and gloves to match.

Merle Travis headlines Friday Kerrville Jamboree starts up

KERRVILLE, Tex. — The legendary country music guitarist-writer-performer Merle Travis will be making a rare Texas appearance at the July 1-4 Kerrville C&W Jamboree staged at the outdoor theater at Rod Kennedy's Quiet Valley Ranch, nine miles south of Kerrville on Texas Highway

16. Travis, who is perhaps best known for writing "Sixteen Tons" for Tennessee Ernie Ford and "Smoke, Smoke Smoke" for Tex Williams, also contributed "Nine Pound Hammer" to the classic American collection of folk music, but at Kerrville there'll be a whole bunch of guitar players more interested in the now world famous "Travis-style" of guitar playing. In the late 1930's and early 1940's Merle Travis developed a thumb and finger method of playing guitar never before heard on radio. It was a way of playing the melody and accompaniment at the same time. The style is now heard around the world and is known as the "Merle Travis Style" or "Travis Pickin'". Merle Travis will be exploring this style at a 12 Noon Workshop on the final day of the Jamboree and everyone who wants to bring their guitar can join in and get some personal coaching from the master himself. Later in the day he'll be joining Steve Fromholz, Linda Hargrove, The Singing Christians, and Stoney Edwards in a concert appearance.

The first three days of the third annual Jamboree will be filled with music by the Bob Wills Original Texas Playboys under the direction of Leon McAuliffe, Johnny Bush, Dotsy, Bob Luman, Oak Ridge Boys, Whitey Shafer, Sunday Sharpe, Cal Smith, Red Steagall, Hank Thompson, Floyd Tillman, Ernest Tubb, Charlie Walker, Don Williams and Chubby Wise with Allen Damron performing a "Tribute to Hondo Crouch," the late Mayor of Lukemach, Texas, and producer Rod Kennedy sharing the emceeing chores with Max Gardner (KKYX, San Antonio) and Chris Collier (KIKK, Houston).

Outstanding finalists in the $1000 Kerrville Music Foundation Country Western Song Writers Contest will also be heard and there'll be an old fashioned Brush Arbor Service on Sunday morning on Chapel Hill at the ranch. Rustic camp grounds are within walking distance of the stage and the food stands provide three meals a day at reasonable prices. Detailed Jamboree information may be obtained by calling the ranch after 10 a.m. weekdays at (512) 896-3800 or writing Jamboree, Box 1466, Kerrville 78028.

Midland Theatre offers Charlie Brown drama

West Texas audiences have only two more weekends left to enjoy the bright, happy musical hit "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," now playing at Midland Community Theatre.

The time action of the play is "an average day in the life of Charlie Brown." It really is just that, a day made up of little moments picked from all the days of Charlie Brown from Valentine's Day to the baseball season, from wild optimism to utter despair, all mixed in with the lines of his friends (both human and non-human) and strung together on the string of a single day, from bright uncertain morning to hopeful

Lubbock Mumpers melodrama

Lubbock Theatre Centre will again present its Summer Mumpers melodrama. This year's play "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" promises to be the best yet. Not only is it a hilarious play, but familiar old Gay nineties songs have been added to liven the mood.

The play tells in laughable style the tear-jerking story of Nellie Lovelace, an innocent country girl; of Adam Oakhart, the stalwart blacksmith's son; and of Munro Murgatroyd, the villain from the big city.

Popcorn will be available to throw at the nasty villain. Boogie, hissing, applauding and other audience participation will be encouraged.

Ancient treasures of Tutankhamun Egypt appears at DMFA

The treasures of ancient Egypt have fascinated man throughout the centuries... examining the genius that fashioned the pyramids, the knowledge that preserved their dead and the talent that produced some of the great artistic achievements of the world, is the exhibition, "The Face of Egypt" opening at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts on Wednesday, June 15.

This show will prepare visitor's for the important "Treasures of Tutankhamun" exhibition which will be shown only in New Orleans in the Southern U.S. from September 15 through January 15, 1978. "The Face of Egypt" was assembled by the Katonah Gallery in New York, to be shown at the Dallas Museum through August 15. It traces the development of Egyptian sculpture and related events in Egyptian life and religion over a span of 2,000 years. Supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the exhibition was selected from major museum collections from throughout the U.S.

Egyptian art was integral to Egyptian religion and many of the 60 pieces of statuary, reliefs and vessels of stone and pottery in this exhibition were created by ancient artisans to function as burial offerings in tombs. Three types of statuary represented here are those serving as representatives of the departed individual, the individual as a participant in the temple processions and ritual feasts and as a statue offered to fulfill a vow. The exhibition will also feature monumental statues of royalty and a number of photographs of the imposing temples and pyramids used to house these sculptures.

The exhibition illustrates many aspects which define Egyptian art: the many classes of society represented from the gods and goddesses, kings, queens and officials to the farmers and cowherds. There are representatives of animals, animal-headed humans and mythological creatures. As opposed to today's artist's commitment to recording emotions or impressions, Egyptian art represented and explained things as they should be or must be ideally.

The Dallas Museum of Fine Arts has scheduled a number of free events in conjunction with this exhibition. The following programs will be held at 2 p.m. each Sunday in the Museum Auditorium, seating on a first-come basis. June 19 and June 26, Dr. Anne Bromberg, presenting a two-part slide-lecture on "The Face of Egypt: Portraiture in Ancient Egyptian Art"; July 3, a slide-tape show, "The Art of Egypt: Old and Middle Kingdom"; July 10, "The Ancient Egyptian's", a color film and July 17, "The Ancient Egypt", a Time-Life film, introducing Egyptian art and culture. On July 24, a slide-tape show on "The Art of Egypt: New Kingdom" and on July 31, one of the most popular segments of the Museum's Egypt series, "The Opening of the Tomb of Tutankhamun", a slide-tape show.

A guided tour of the show has been scheduled to follow each of the free Sunday events, assembling in the area outside Gallery B. A tour is also scheduled for 3:15 each Saturday during the show's run.

'Lone Star' week starts Monday with outdoor drama

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has set aside June 27-July 3 as "Lone Star Historical Drama Week" to recognize the opening of the state's latest outdoor drama.

The public world premiere of "Lone Star" will take place June 30 in a $2 million amphitheatre in Galveston Island State Park. Performances will continue six nights a week throughout the summer.

"This project represents an expansion of the state parks program for the people of Texas to include historical and environmental interpretation as well as recreation," Briscoe said Tuesday in signing the proclamation.

Mary Moody Northen, Galveston businesswoman and philanthropist, attended the ceremony.

"The Lone Star" is the story of the Texas war for independence and of Sam Houston, as written by Paul Green, playwright who received the Pulitzer Prize in 1927.

The Lone Star Historical Drama Association was organized at the governor's Mansion in 1973 with John Ben Shepperd of Odessa, former attorney general, elected chairman.

"This outdoor drama offers Texans and visitors from other areas an opportunity to see our heritage depicted in inspiring, spectacular and memorable form," Briscoe said Tuesday.

Park officials noted that two other historical dramas already are operating in Texas — "Beyond the Sundown" at Livingston and "Texas," which has performed in the Palo Duro Canyon for the past 12 years.

Educational materials can be viewed by public

Films and other audio-visual materials available to public schools through Region 18 Education Service Center may be requested for review by parents and other interested adults during a one-day review session set for July 22.

The first media review session is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Center which is located on La Force Blvd., Midland Regional Air Terminal. Later review sessions, scheduled for each quarter, are set for October 28, 1977; January 27, 1978; and April 28, 1978.

"We hope parents and other citizens interested in requesting preview of particular films will notify the Center at least ten days in advance, so the staff will have time to check on the availability of the films and set up preview rooms. In the event a film is not available on the date requested, the person making the request will be given a date on which it may be seen," Dr. J.W. Donaldson, Executive Director, says.

Persons wishing to request review of films should call Mrs. Vera Smith, staff member of the Education Service Center, at telephone number 563-2380. The name of the film and the approximate time the person will come to the Center should be given to Mrs. Smith.

The Region 18 media materials inventory includes 2894 film titles and other audio-visual materials.

COLLEGE STATION — Engineers at Cotton Inc., and here at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station have developed a gin feeder-cleaner that removes over half the trash in seed cotton while improving the efficiencies of an automatic gin feeder.

The feeder-cleaner is being developed as a complete unit that can be used by gins that don't already have automatic gin feeders or as a cleaning unit that can be attached to existing automatic gin feeders, says J.K. "Farmer" Jones, Cotton Incorporated vice president and associate director of agricultural research. Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of American cotton producers.

removes 50 to 60 per cent of the total trash from brush harvested cotton. It removed about 50 per cent of the sticks in the trials and improved feeding efficiency by about 20 per cent over conventional suction pipe feeding, says Wilkes.

"That 20 per cent increase in efficiency does not take into consideration the improvement in gin capacity by having removed half of the trash," adds Wilkes. The equipment is the outgrowth of work on the automatic gin feeder, which is used to feed modulated cotton into gins. In research on ways to improve the automatic gin feeder, Jones and Wilkes studied high speed movies of the operation of spiked cylinders of an automatic gin feeder. They discovered that as the cylinder speed was increased, a separation of the trash from the seed cotton occurred.

The spiked cylinders throw the cotton and trash, which becomes suspended in air and separated, toward standard saw-type cleaning cylinders. Between the dispersal cylinders and the cleaning cylinders are a row of paddles which keep the cotton and trash suspended and separate. On the floor is a sweeper reel to pick up fallen seed cotton.

The saw-toothed cylinder holds the seed cotton, while the momentum carries the trash over a bar and into an auger which carries the trash away. The trash is run through a reclaiming unit which removes most of the seed cotton that otherwise would be lost after the initial cleaning. The seed cotton is accumulated in a sump, from which it can be removed with a fan. One of the keys to the success of the feeder-cleaner, explains Wilkes, was the discovery that a vertical arrangement of the cleaning cylinders in tandem was much more efficient than the traditional arrangement of cleaning cylinders in a series, as is done in most gins.

MOBILE FEEDER-CLEANER

The mobile feeder-cleaner used in field tests in 1976 and early 1977 consists of a 20-foot hopper section into which the seed cotton is dumped. A power driven live bottom feeds the cotton into a row of five spiked cylinders, much as in an automatic gin feeder, which break apart the mass of cotton.

The researchers also settled on 1,000 rpm as the optimum speed for the dispersal reels to get maximum separation of seed cotton and trash. Underbrink conducted tests of the equipment in the Brazos Valley and in the High Plains of Texas.

(AP WIREPHOTO) SEWER EXPLOSION — One street was destroyed and several damaged early Thursday morning as a sewer line exploded and rocked a wide area of Akron's west side. Damages will be in the millions of dollars, some residents were evacuated and there were no injuries.

Property values change with Marj Carpenter

A lot has been said in recent weeks about property values and the fact that the tax rolls here date back to 1958. I personally wish we could date back to 1958 on a bunch of things, but time doesn't work that way.

We're all familiar with the story of Manhattan Island being traded off by the Indians to the Dutch for $24 worth of beads and jewelry.

When I heard this tale about Jess Arnett I thought about the old tale.

Jess Arnett was raised in Alabama, married in Anson and moved by covered wagon to Howard County in 1905 after a year of marriage with his wife and tiny infant son.

Vets sought by recruiters

ALBUQUERQUE — A recruiting drive started here to attract qualified veterans under age 35 back into uniform, announced Lt. Col. Nicolas Vay, commander of Army recruiting for New Mexico and southwest Texas.

"The campaign thrust," Vay said, "is to get eligible people back into their old jobs with about the same pay grade."

Although all eligible former Armed Forces may apply, the primary aim is to recruit Army prior service personnel.

"There are some constraints and special provisions applicable to members of the other services," Vay said.

He explained that accepted applicants may be exempt from further career training in some cases. They may also have to undergo only two weeks of basic military training or none at all.

"It is difficult to explain all the program aspects," Vay said, "because each person's eligibility, pay grade, and career assignment depends on military background." Examples he cited are the length of active duty, time out of service, pay grade held, and the educational level achieved since honorable discharge.

Further information, Vay explained, may be obtained from a collect telephone call or a visit to the nearest Army Recruiting Station.

Then in 1924, he moved over around Midland and in 1926 he made a big profit off part of his land. He sold it to Cosden for $60 an acre. They built the refinery there.

I understand the land out there now is valued about $1,250 an acre. It is, of course, a perfect example of how land values can change.

Arnett was a good business man. A $52 per acre profit off land in 1924 was nothing to be sneezed at... and then too, the Big Spring area owes the late Mr. Arnett a big vote for thanks. He was willing to turn loose of his land for industry.

His wife's name was Effie Smith and after they married in 1904 and had moved to Big Spring, her parents and their family also moved to this area. They were the J.P. Smith family, also an early farm family.

All ten children received a high school education and had the opportunity to receive a college education. It was a hardworking family with an eye for the future.

They simply laugh at the change in land values. They realize, of course, that if it had all remained farmland, it would have the value of current farmland. They still have some acreage left in that area.

And some things remain the same — a firm belief in God, friendship, and families. But property values... they change.

Even the fences change — where I'm out ridin'.

Tadpole classes will be added to program

The YMCA's second summer session will begin July 5. All scheduled swim lessons will be repeated, and there will be two evening Tadpole classes added. Tadpoles are pre-schoolers, 3-5 years of age. We will take only 16 students and they may register up to July 5, for classes at 6:00 or 6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Award is made to area city

West Texas cities won four of the six awards presented by the Beautify Texas Council for programs of community beautification, property improvement and economic development.

The award winning West Texas cities were El Paso, Crane, Kerrville and Marble Falls. The other two awards went to Jasper and Nacogdoches.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce served as coordinator for the Beautify Texas Council awards program in the 132-county West Texas area. J. Fike Godfrey, Executive Vice President of the WTCC, also serves as a Regional Governor for the Beautify Texas Council.

The awards were presented at the Tenth Annual Meeting of the Beautify Texas Council in El Paso June 22.

Cities competing for the awards were judged on the basis of citizen participation, beautification, property improvement, economic development, theme, and coordination. Recognition went to the city in each of six population categories judged to have made the most significant contributions in these areas.

Awards were given as follows: Under 2,499 population: Marble Falls; 2,500-4,999: Crane; 5,000-9,999: Jasper; 10,000-19,999: Kerrville; 20,000-59,999: Nacogdoches; and cities 60,000 and above: El Paso.

He bought land out east of Big Spring that had two farm houses on it. One was a three-room house and one had four rooms.

The first year, they lived in the cellar because there was somebody living in the house they selected. He worked the land and farmed and also raised some cattle. He plowed up the virgin land for cotton.

And he raised ten children — five sons and five daughters. Two of the daughters still live in this immediate area.

The oldest daughter, Irene is Mrs. B.D. Rice in Stanton. One of the daughters is Mrs. Ernest Richters in Coahoma. There are also three children in the Midland and Odessa area and the other five are quite a ways off.

When Jess bought the land, he paid a high price for it — of $8 an acre.

Judge blocks ban of fire retardant

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A federal judge has blocked the nationwide ban on Tris, the flame-retardant and possible cancer-causing chemical used primarily in children's sleepwear.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Chapman on Thursday nullified the Federal Consumer Products Safety Commission's ban, saying the commission acted illegally in implementing the ban because it failed to follow procedural safeguards enacted by Congress.

He also said the agency's data on Tris was "unverified, uninterpreted and uncertain."

His 36-page ruling prevents the commission from enforcing the ban until proper procedure is followed.

There was no immediate comment from the commission on the judge's ruling.

On April 8 the commission banned the use of Tris and ordered manufacturers of Tris-treated fabrics to repurchase their products to get them off the market. The commission said Tris may cause cancer, based on its interpretation of data from the National Cancer Institute.

Chapman's ruling came in a suit filed against the commission by Springs Mills Inc., based in Lancaster. Springs Mills argued that the commission's order would unlawfully force the company to spend $2 million to buy back fabrics it treated with Tris.

Springs Mills stopped using Tris in 1976.
