By Trans Regional attorney

Firm's 'free ride' noted

By BOB BURTON

Is Big Spring Aircraft getting a free ride at the county airport, and does the county condone the firm's non-payment of rent while pressing Trans Regional for more rent?

According to Trans Regional attorney Bob Miller, the answer to both those questions is "yes."

Miller made a 20 minute presentation to the commissioner's court today in the Howard County courthouse. He presented the court and the audience with extensive figures purporting to show that Big Spring Aircraft has not paid any rent since February, and had a total indebtedness to the county or at least $4,212.34.

"We want to know who is subsidizing whom," said Miller. "Why is the county considering eviction or raised rent or any action against Trans Regional because you cannot subsidize any business when you are not collecting rent from your other fixed-based operator?"

The county began the 75-minute discussion with a simple question phrased by County Judge Bill Tune to R.E. McClure, vice president of Trans Regional: "Are you or are you not going to provide airline service to the people of Howard County?"

Returned McClure, "We intend to begin services at Webb when it becomes a municipal airfield, but not at Howard County Airport."

Before extracting that answer, there was some debate over whether Miller would be allowed to make his 20-minute presentation. Commissioner Bill Crocker expressed his opinion that "we don't think this needs to be dragged back through the mud."

Ken Howell, labor negotiator for Local 826 of the International Order of Engineers asked the court to hear Miller, saying "I represent many taxpayers, and I'd like to hear what's going on. I don't think any of our people want to subsidize any airline."

The commissioners decided to take Miller's presentation under advisement, and will consider their actions later this afternoon under an agenda item headed "Consider resolution to abandon Howard County Airport."

In his presentation, Miller charged the court with "dereliction of duty" in regard to three items. First, he felt that the county had not adequately insured that Big Spring Aircraft was keeping its licenses renewed as provided in the fixed-base operation (FBO) contract. Miller cited the unicom, the ground-to-plane communicating device used at the airport as an example. Big Spring Aircraft has not had a license to operate the device since 1969, and according to Miller, a letter received today from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has given exclusive use of the unicom to Trans Regional.

Secondly, Miller alleged that the county had not insured that Big Spring Aircraft would keep current on its taxes, and cited a hearing to be held in October as evidence of that. Thirdly was the accusation that the county has been lax in collecting the $650 per month rent from the airline. Miller pulled his figures from county ledger sheets, which do not show any rent payment since March for Big Spring Aircraft while Trans Regional has paid its rent. An additional $949.39 is listed by Miller as due the county for oil and gas returns. Miller also alleged that the county guarantees Big Spring Aircraft $10,200 annual income by allowing them to rent the 30 T-hangers at the airport at a profit. Crocker said that the reason Big Spring Aircraft receives revenue from the T-hanger is based in the inducements offered in 1958 to get someone to take over fixed-base operations at the airport. The inducements have been continued since then. Commissioner Ikie Rupard told Miller after the presentation, "We are going to readjust your rent. It will be a reasonable rate, but we are going to readjust it. And we'll get that other bunch down her too (Big Spring Aircraft), but we're not going to run them off and give you the T-hanger."

Jaworski urges caution

Korean probe under way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski took command of the House investigation into alleged South Korean influence-buying today and said no one should jump to conclusions about the case.

Jaworski urged great caution to avoid creating the impression "that this is a holocaust of some kind and then get into it and find it isn't that at all, that there has been wrongdoing, perchance, but that it's not as widespread as had been originally thought."

Jaworski talked to reporters briefly as he arrived on Capitol Hill to personally take charge of the House ethics committee's investigation.

"I don't like to see any institution of government labeled as not trustworthy or many of the individuals involved in that institution as not trustworthy until we know what the facts are," Jaworski said.

"And this jumping to conclusions really bothers me," he said.

Jaworski said the first thing he planned to do was get a briefing from the special staff conducting the House probe.

He said it is impossible to predict how soon the investigation can be completed because "we don't know what problems we may run into."

"Haste will come second," he said.

"Thoroughness will come first.

"I have a feeling it's not going to be a simple task," he said. "It's one of ferreting out the facts and searching for the truth and you never know what you're going to run into, what roadblocks there may be."

Jaworski said he expects public hearings but he said some testimony may be taken by the House committee in closed session to avoid public "accusations made by innuendo."

"We want to make certain we don't in any wise do harm to anyone who may be innocent," he said.

Although Jaworski declined to say when he hoped to complete the probe, associates said he hoped the task can be completed by early next year.

The House ethics committee will receive recommendations from Jaworski and in turn recommend to the full House possible punishment for present or former congressmen.

With Congress out of town for a month-long recess, the only other scheduled activity this week is a House merchant marine subcommittee hearing set for Wednesday on the Panama Canal agreement worked out by President Carter's negotiating team.

The panel, headed by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., has called as witnesses national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Panama Canal negotiators Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz.

Some members of Congress are criticizing the agreement, which calls for Panamanian control of the canal by the year 2000. Murphy has denounced the agreement as "an apparent surrender of American-owned property in Panama to a revolutionary despot."

Adair agent summoned

A representative from Red Adair oilfield fighters is being called in today to decide whether an attempt should be made to extinguish a local oilwell fire.

A Mabee Petroleum Co. on the Brooks Bell ranch, 23 miles southeast of Big Spring, blew in and caught fire around 11 p.m. Friday when workers apparently hit a gas pocket.

Riley Drilling Co., was drilling at the time. Their rig was still standing today and had not melted down in the intense heat.

The pump and doghouse had been pulled away from the fire. Production superintendents and crew and a representative from the Texas Railroad Commission had been letting it burn off.

However, since the fire was still burning today, they decided to call in an expert and decide whether to attempt to extinguish the fire.

Extinguishing a gas pocket fire sometimes brings additional danger of a possible back up explosion or larger fire. No decision had been made at press time.

By city council

Skateboard park approved

By BILL WERRELL

Despite objections from a group of angry citizens, the City Council voted unanimously today to approve the construction of a skateboard park on the east side of FM 700, behind the Barcelona Apartment complex, at a special meeting of the council at 9 a.m.

Main objections to the park raised by citizens in the proposed construction site pertained mainly to noise, traffic, and lighting controls.

John Burgess, attorney for Keith Bristow and David Terry, the promoters and owners of the park, answered the questions in his opening statement.

According to Burgess noise emission would be kept to a minimum since there will be no stereo system or any type of sound amplification system at the park. He expressed the fact that in no way would the park resemble a skating rink, and it wouldn't be nearly as noisy.

As to traffic congestion in the area Burgess said access to the park would be made off of FM 700. He expressed the fact that 700 was designed to take a heavy load of traffic, and should not present any real difficulties.

Harry Nagel, city manager, said that visibility was good at the proposed entrance of the park, and the highway was zoned at 30 miles per hour in that area.

As to the lighting problem, Burgess said that Mercury Vapor Lighting would be utilized, and would be similar to the lighting used at the Figure 7 tennis courts, but not so intense.

Citizens in the area of the proposed park who objected to the idea were represented by R. H. Weaver, who said that it was unfair to the long-time residents of the area to have to live with a noisy, commercial enterprise in their backyards.

Council member Harold Hall replied that in effect the citizens of the area were asking the council to condemn forever any use of the land purchased by Bristow and Terry, and that this put the council in an embarrassing situation.

Other objections were raised to the effect that the proposed park would ruin the scenery of the area, and was not compatible with the state park situated opposite on the West side of 700.

Designer of the project, Bill Brooks, explained there were three other such parks in Texas, and that all of them were quite attractive looking in his opinion.

He went on to say that the park would be invisible to a lot of the people who signed the petition against the park.

Another objection was the need for extra police protection in the area, to protect private property in the vicinity of the park.

Police Chief Stanley Bogard assured the citizens that this extra protection would be provided.

Projected cost of the park is estimated at 50 to 60 thousand dollars, and construction should start shortly.

When discussion turned to utility bills, Rupard commented judiciously, "We should just give all the businesses up and down Main Street here long extension cords and let them plug into the courthouse."

Crocker said, "We don't feel we are causing you any problems."

Commissioner Jack Buchman did not comment, but he was the first member of the court to recommend that Miller's presentation be allowed.

A decision by the commissioner's court is expected at this afternoon's meeting.

President will meet ministers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today his administration's foreign policy was continuing the work begun by the Ford administration in Southern Africa, the Middle East, China and Panama.

Carter, who was strongly critical of the Ford administration's foreign policy during last year's presidential campaign, told its architect, former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, that he had spoken with former President Gerald R. Ford earlier in the day.

"We've got obviously just an absolute continuum of what you and he started that we're trying to proceed with," Carter told Kissinger.

"I've always believed that foreign policy is a bipartisan enterprise," Kissinger said at the start of a luncheon meeting.

"So do I," Carter told the former secretary.

Among the topics the two were likely to discuss were meetings Carter will have next month with the foreign ministers of Israel and at least four Arab nations to build on what the administration calls "continuing momentum" toward a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

The President and Kissinger were also likely to discuss what Carter concedes are "major differences between Arabs and Israelis."

Fund donations total $1,025

Donations for the Bible Fund soared past the $1,000 mark over the week.

Since Saturday morning, a total of $310 has been picked up in the campaign. Although the rate of donations has accelerated in recent days, the fund is only a little more than a tenth of the way toward its $10,000 goal.

The donations to date have totaled $1,025.

Those desiring to give can make their checks out to The Bible Fund and forward them either to The Herald or to Dr. Kenneth Patrick, c-o First Baptist Church. Patrick is coordinating the drive on behalf of the sponsoring organization, the Howard County Ministerial Alliance.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Impossible

Q. Is the city or county responsible for cutting the weeds and high grass on the vacant lot by Alameda and Wason Road? It is almost impossible to see to the right going west on Alameda at that intersection.

A. Neither the city or county is responsible for clearing private lots. In fact, it would be impossible for them to keep them all cut if they tripled their crews and worked constantly. However, any intersection which is obstructed should be reported to the traffic division and the city and is empowered to clear the corner near the road.

Offbeat: Bright action

PORT LAVACA, Tex. (AP) — Oh, the stories young fisherman Randy Bright could tell about the one that was thrown away — by his stepmother.

The action started in the Masters Fishing Tournament here Sunday. Randy, 17, was hauling them in and Mrs. Jody Bright was tagging them.

The young fisherman reeled in a 25-pound yellowfin tuna which, up to that point, was the biggest tournament catch so far.

Mrs. Bright proudly tagged the big catch. The tag was on and she asked for further instructions.

Someone jokingly told her to throw it overboard.

So she did.

But the Bright family did manage to come away from the tournament with two honors. Randy's 32-year-old brother Shelby took second place in the yellowfin tuna competition (with a fish smaller than the one tagged and tossed by Mrs. Bright).

And Mrs. Bright took home a special prize for being the "best tagging and releasing crew ever."

Randy had no comment.

George announces

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Jesse T. George, 36, announced his candidacy today for U.S. Rep. George Mahon's 19th Congressional seat. Mahon has already said he will step down next year, completing 22 terms in office. George is a former state representative from Brownfield. Most recently, he has been working as a campaign consultant for various Democrats around the country. He served in the Texas Legislature from 1964 to the middle of 1967 when he resigned to take a presidential appointment by the late President Lyndon Johnson as a congressional liaison with the Small Business Administration. Republican George Bush Jr. of Midland is the only other candidate who has formally announced for the race.

Chadick new justice

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe today appointed Judge T. C. Chadick of Texarkana to the Texas Supreme Court, filling the vacancy created when Justice Tom Reavley resigned last Thursday. Chadick's appointment takes effect Oct. 6, the day after Reavley's resignation becomes effective. Chadick, 66, is currently presiding judge of the Sixth Court of Civil Appeals in Texarkana. He received his bachelor's degree from Southern Methodist University and his law degree from Cumberland University School of Law in Tennessee. Briscoe's announcement of the appointment said Chadick is past president of the Texarkana Rotary Club and a member of the board of directors of the Caddo Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Chadick's appointment extends through the 1978 general election, in which he must run as a candidate if he wishes a full six-year term on the high court. Briscoe recently named Judge Charles Barrow of San Antonio to replace Don Yarbrough on the high court following Yarbrough's resignation under fire. Yarbrough was elected in 1976 when another Briscoe appointee, Judge Ross Doughty of Uvalde, retired after a year of service.

Bear foot mystery bared

STILWELL, Okla. (AP) — Authorities here were wondering Sunday if Big Foot could be bear foot. The mystery remains following the appearance of a tall hairy creature that recently clawed and shoved a teenager. After the attack, in which the youth wasn't seriously hurt, speculation turned to the legendary Big Foot creature as the possible attacker. But Saturday night, a woman here reported spotting a big brown bear, standing on its hind legs. She said the bear mauled one of her dogs. George Sawny, a dispatcher with the police department, said hair from the bear found near the dog will probably be sent the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, to compare with hair found near the assaulted youth. Sawny said bears are a rare sight in the section of eastern Oklahoma, near the Arkansas line.

Lobbying pressure over bill continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lobbyists on both sides of a proposal to establish a federal consumer agency are working without interruption through a month-long congressional recess to find support among members of the House of Representatives. The buttonholing has shifted to the congressional districts and is focusing on fewer than 100 House members who are considered undecided on the bill. A vote is likely in the House this fall. The "Nickel Campaign," inspired by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, says it has showered 40,000 nickels and progeny letters on fence-sitting representatives. The campaign is designed to demonstrate a willingness to pay the five cents a year the agency would cost each taxpayer. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, a strong opponent of the bill, is urging local business leaders to express opposition personally to uncommitted House members while they are home for the recess. At stake is a bill to set up a consumer protection agency empowered to represent consumers before federal regulators, whose proceedings now often are dominated by business lawyers and lobbyists. The proposal has been pending in Congress throughout the 1970s and passed the House three times and the Senate twice, but opposition by the Nixon and Ford administrations kept it from becoming law. During the spring, after they won the support of President Carter, backers predicted this would be their year. But they have been surprised by an effective business lobbying campaign which has capitalized on voters' fears of increasing the federal bureaucracy. "This agency would spend more taxpayer money and would only be more bureaucracy. It would add to the cost of doing business and ultimately would increase costs to the consumer," Chamber of Commerce spokesman Mark Schultz said. The supporters say federal regulators take many actions that are not in the public interest because they hear only the side of business. Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill delayed a House vote until the fall after sponsors of the bill admitted they did not have enough votes to pass it. That admission set off the consumer effort to win over designated representatives through grassroots lobbying. Sponsors say Senate passage is assured if the House passes the bill.

Forest fires fight

The drought-stricken forests of the West continued to be hit by fire over the weekend, with the two-week-old Marble-Cone blaze on

Energy Mexican pipeline loan likely

TIJUANA, Mex. (AP) — The U.S. Export-Import Bank may loan Mexico up to $400 million of the $1.2 billion it needs to build a pipeline to carry natural gas from Mexico to the United States, according to the U.S. Ambassador to Mexico. The bank was created by Congress to stimulate the sale of manufactured goods abroad. It may agree to finance the project along with similar banks in Japan and West Germany, Patrick Lucey told the San Diego Evening Tribune in an interview published this weekend. The loan could mean construction of the pipeline could begin by the end of the year. Bank officials were in Mexico City last week to meet with the government-owned oil monopoly Pemex and discuss terms of the arrangement, Lucey said. The U.S. bank has been talking about providing $300 million to $400 million of the needed funds. Loans from the U.S. and foreign banks likely would be made on condition that some construction materials would be bought from the countries making the loans, Lucey said.

In western Colorado, the Deep Creek fire in the White River National Forest remained out of control today after charring 3,850 acres. About 400 firefighters battled that blaze. A fire line was set up two-thirds of the way around the Deep Creek blaze. Two fires in the same forest — the 590-acre Brook Meadow Creek blaze — were still burning today, but were declared under control. A wind-driven brush fire burned out of control in northeastern Washington, consuming more than 150 acres of brush and grass in the Colville National Forest. Over 100 firefighters, with support from helicopters and tanker airplanes, battled the fire Sunday night. Additional crews were expected at the fire line today. In central Oregon, the 1,800-acre Green Buttes fire was brought under control Sunday in the Deschutes National Forest. The Forest Service used seven miles of fire line, 410 firefighters, 16 tankers and 11 bulldozers to stop the fire. During the weekend, the 45-acre Skellock fire in the Winema National Forest and the 70-acre Chick Two blaze in the nearby Fremont National Forest were stopped. Both were in central Oregon.

Officer slain

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Police said a 29-year-old Mexican national is in custody in connection with the early morning shooting death of a San Antonio police officer. The officer, Eloy F. Gonzales, 29, died at a hospital shortly after he was gunned down in front of a lounge on the city's west side about 2:30 a.m. Police said Gonzales, a four-year department veteran, was on patrol when two women flagged him down. A witness said the officer got out of his car and was talking with the women when a man appeared suddenly and began shouting at the officer. The witness told police the man produced a revolver and fired three quick shots, hitting Gonzales at least once. The witness said he and a friend ran to Gonzales' aide and used the officer's radio to give police the location of the shooting. Police said a man fitting the gunman's description was arrested about two blocks away.

On-the-job training tips Farm

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

As the competition for jobs increases, young would-be workers are finding that apprenticeship programs can give them the edge they need in the search for employment.

The programs usually involve from two to five years of on-the-job training along with some formal classroom training. The apprenticeships are not easy to come by. There are more openings than there are applicants in almost every area.

Unions, high school guidance counselors, vocational schools, trade associations and regional state and federal employment offices are good sources of information for specific requirements and information on how to apply.

Finding out which occupations offer apprenticeship opportunities can be tricky. To help steer young people on the right road, the Labor Department has prepared a list of jobs for which apprenticeships are available and has assessed the employment outlook in each field.

Here is a rundown of some job areas in which employment is expected to grow faster than average from now through 1985 and for which you can train in an apprenticeship program:

LITHOGRAPHIC WORKERS: Job opportunities will grow due to the increased use of offset presses in place of letter presses. The best chances are for those with some posthigh school training in printing technology. Apprenticeship programs usually last four or five years.

BOILERMAKING: Construction of new electric power plants and the expansion of industries, such as steel and petroleum, which use boilers are expected to boost employment. Apprenticeship lasts four years.

OPHTHALMIC LABORATORY TECHNICIANS: The rising demand for eyeglasses will help job hunters. Training may be through apprenticeship program, vocational school or on-the-job. Some states require licenses.

ASBESTOS AND INSULATION WORKERS: Increased construction and the need for energy conservation will boost employment. Most opportunities will be in metropolitan areas. Four-year apprenticeship program, with examination on completion. Applicants generally must be at least 18.

CEMENT MASONS, CONSTRUCTION ELECTRICIANS, GLAZIERS: Increased construction activity is expected to help would-be workers. Applicants for apprenticeship programs generally must be at least 19. A three-year apprenticeship is recommended for cement masons; a four-year program for electricians and glaziers.

PLUMBERS AND PIPEFITTERS: Jobs will be available due to construction in areas such as chemical and petroleum refineries and nuclear power plants which use pipework. Applicants should be at least 16; an apprenticeship, including at least 144 hours of classroom training, lasts five years.

God did it, says killer

DALLAS (AP) — According to a raving 25-year-old man, God fired six bullets into Melba Jo Jones' head Sunday — not him.

Police tactical officers had to force the man out of his bathroom at an apartment complex with tear gas before he surrendered.

Another woman, Lynn Tyson, 21, said she was pistol-whipped before running next door to telephone police.

"According to this witness (Miss Tyson), she was sleeping (on the living room sofa) and everything was peaceful and all of a sudden there was shooting," said Det. Gerald Robinson. "And really, right now, that's about all we know. He just went berserk."

Miss Jones, 25, was dead at the scene. A .32-caliber pistol was found near the bed beside her body.

Another officer said he asked the man later why he shot the woman. He said the man replied the "Lord did it."

For nearly two hours, police, armed with riot guns and armored vests, talked to the man through the door using his first name in an effort to coax him outside. Officers said the man's only response was, "Jerry's not here. This is God."

Police finally chopped a hole in the bathroom wall and tossed in a tear gas canister. Minutes later, the man emerged coughing and still raving. He was still in jail this morning awaiting charges.

SCENE ON CARNIVAL MIDWAY
Locally-sponsored shows will open to public this evening

Sponsored by Band Boosters

Carnival sets up here

The Big Spring Band Boosters are sponsors of the Gene Ledel Carnival Midway show, which opens a seven-night run on the Howard County Fairgrounds this evening.

Show times will be 6 p.m. to midnight nightly. Part of the proceeds go toward support of the Big Spring High School band. Dale Worthan is coordinating efforts for the band boosters.

When you consider that 250 million persons visited a carnival in North America last year, it's safe to say that show operators are doing something right on the midway.

Year after year people of all ages flock to carnival midway set up on fairgrounds, downtown streets and shopping centers. They come again and again to ride the roller coaster, eat cotton candy and win a teddy bear. They never tire of the fun and excitement.

Some 500 carnivals are currently crisscrossing America, employing about 50,000 persons. The shows range in size from a couple of kiddie rides and a concession stand to the giant, mile-long midway with 100 rides and countless other attractions.

The carnival offers entertainment where the customer gets to participate. You don't watch a carnival, like you do a circus. You're there to do things. The whole midway is available to everyone. Even if Mom and Dad don't go on rides, they can enjoy themselves watching their youngsters.

Carnivals are still family-owned and operated businesses. Whole families travel and work together. A carnival owner might have his wife running the show office or concessions. He could have more than a million dollars invested in his show, considering that some spectacular rides cost $125,000 or up to $250,000 each.

A carnival is out to make money, but doesn't move into a community, empty everyone's pockets and blow town. Virtually every carnival is under the auspices of a local sponsoring organization. If it's not a state fair board, it's a shopping center merchants with the carnival, in many instances sharing a percentage of the gross for playing host.

In any case, the local economy reaps the benefits of increased traffic attracted to town by the carnival. Motels, restaurants, service stations and retailers ring up more profits.

Stiff competition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though a record $1.6 billion in U.S. farm goods is being exported to Arab nations this year, Americans have not significantly increased their share of that lucrative market, an Agriculture Department economist says.

Part of the reason is stiff competition from European poultry, Brazilian soybeans, African tobacco, and Australian and Canadian wheat, writes Ahmed Abou-Bakr said.

The projected $1.6 billion in exports would represent about 16 per cent of Arab food and food-related imports, compared with 17.4 per cent in 1974 and 11.5 per cent in 1968, when U.S. exports were a mere $170 million.

The 1973 price rises by the oil-producing nations kicked off the accelerating Arab buying spree that still left those countries with $41.3 billion in foreign exchange reserves when this year started.

The rapid development pursued by the Arab political leadership has changed eating habits and resulted in construction of airports, large buildings and other more obvious signs of growth, Abou-Bakr writes.

Bad news for beer drinkers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bad news for beer drinkers: the price of hops, a key ingredient, may be going up because production is down this year by 6 per cent.

The Crop Reporting Board, in its first forecasts of the season, predicted a hops harvest of 54.6 million pounds, compared with almost 57.8 million last year.

The peanut crop is down by 17 per cent, from last year's 3.75 million pounds to 3.12 million this season. But peanut prices operate under a support system that often keeps them above the world market anyway, so cost may not be affected.

Part of the problem with hops, the board said, was dry weather and uncertain water supplies in the West Coast and Northwest states that produce virtually all the crop.

At 30,800 acres, the area for harvest is down 1 per cent, and the projected yields as of Aug. 1 were an average of 1,783 pounds an acre, slightly above 1975 but almost 5 per cent below last year.

Two kinds of property available

People ask what will happen to some of the stuff the City of Big Spring has been buying in bulk from the Air Force as Webb Air Force Base closes.

City Manager Harry Nagel gave the answer Friday: There's going to be a heck of a big auction.

Nagel said his phone had been ringing off the wall down at city hall from folks asking what might happen to items such as golf carts that the city is buying.

The city manager said there are only two ways the city can dispose of property: one is by public bid, and the other is by public auction.

IT IS LIKELY to be many months before there would be any disposal of property by the city. First, it must be determined which things will be needed for the operation of the base as a municipal airport and industrial park. Many of the items might have lease value to industrial tenants which locate on the base.

This could take years to determine. Basically, there are two kinds of property which the city is getting as the Air Force moves out.

One kind is Air Force-owned items which are said to be a part of the facility. The Air Force is giving these kinds of items to the city, but these cannot be sold or moved away from the base until they are worn out.

Nagel said the city could use some of the equipment off base, but a rent would have to be paid to the operating fund of the base if, for example, the backhoe was used somewhere else.

THE OTHER kind of property is what is attracting attention. This is property owned by the non-appropriated fund groups within the Air Force. This property is not owned by the Air Force but by the Base Exchange and Commissary type agencies within the Air Force. These agencies generated the funds to buy their equipment, rather than have it appropriated by Congress.

In most instances, it is not practical to move this stuff, so it is being sold to the city at 5 cents or 10 cents on the dollar. The city has bought two separate inventories which range in value from $200,000 to $300,000 for $10,000 and $12,000.

Nagel said the city is still negotiating with the Base Exchange for much of its property here. The BX people want 20 cents on the dollar, and the city is not inclined to pay that much.

Nagel said he did not know if there would be things like surplus typewriters or shelves but that probably some of the stuff would turn out to have no value to the base operation and be sold at public auction.

The city manager said the auction would be well publicized, and everyone who is interested would have an equal opportunity.

"Don't phone me," Nagel pleaded, "we'll let you know."

Certain Action-Reaction questions and Letters to the Sports Editor arrive that are considered only worthy for this space here. Take that any way you like it. At any rate, here are the latest, Action-Reaction questions first:

Q. How do they expect us to stay down on the farm once we've seen gay Parree?

A. With chains and manacles.

Q. HOW DO they expect us to keep our garbage cans up to specifications if they keep running over them?

A. With chains and manacles.

Q. Do you know the way to San Jose?

A. No, I've been away so long I might go wrong and lose my way.

Q. Why don't they ever clean our street with a street sweeper? Do we have to call them?

A. Printed invitations are accepted on Sept. 31 of every year.

Q. Where is the location of the now infamous "last bloody ditch"?

A. A block and a half away from the Rayburn Building in Washington, D.C.

Q. Whatever happened to the good ol' days? Are they gone forever?

A. Only one question at a time please.

Q. It seems to me that most of the Action-Reaction questions are embarrassing to certain individuals or groups of individuals. Some of them sound heartless and downright rude. Do you do this on purpose?

A. Buzz off, creep!

Q. Another thing . . . some of the answers to Action-Reaction questions sound vague and pointless.

A. That is not a question, but we'll answer it anyway. From the most far distant alcoves of the trenchant beginning of city, state and federal governments there have been certain contingencies imperative for the certain goals unheralded among the ancient cosairs of Babylon. Does that answer your question?

Carter's first calamity

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The corrosive impact of the Bert Lance affair within the administration is seen in this privately expressed judgment by a member of Jimmy Carter's sub-cabinet: "This is the first real test to show just what kind of President he really is."

Since this Assistant Secretary had informed his colleagues two weeks earlier that Lance simply had to go as director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), the "test" in this official's mind was whether or not President Carter had the toughness to fire the cabinet's strongman. Such talk promoting the fall of big Bert Lance, not always expressed in sorrow, is widespread among administration officials.

BUT THERE is countervailing bitterness elsewhere in the administration that a decent man who has not yet been shown to have committed one illegal act is being crucified by the press, aided by officials in the Treasury and other departments. Partisans of Lance, then, see a very different "test" for the President: Whether he will play Harry Truman by defying the press and the growing consensus within his administration.

Lance's fall, which now seems inevitable, will deprive the administration of its invaluable "deputy President" and its principal link to the business community. Following recent setbacks for the budget-balancers, the end of Lance signals more federal spending. But beyond this, the political death of Lance will bequeath animosity and suspicion among those left behind in the administration. From many aspects, then, the Lance affair is not only President Carter's first crisis but his first calamity.

Lance's closest friends and allies here are convinced the interest in Lance's private financial affairs was partially fueled by non-friends of Lance inside the administration, and their suspicious concentrate on the Treasury. Whether or not Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal is involved, Lance is no favorite among Treasury subordinates.

HOSTILITY WITHIN the Lance camp focuses on John G. Heiman, the new Comptroller of the Currency in charge of the Lance investigation. Heiman, a former New York state banking superintendent, was pushed successfully for the comptroller's post by Blumenthal against Vice President Mondale's choice, who had wider support. Heiman is intensely ambitious, so much so that some officials believe he is angling to become the next Federal Reserve chairman.

That ambition explains the venomous emotions of some of Lance's friends, including one cabinet member, in their private complaints about Heiman's aggressive investigation. When Heiman's office labeled Lance's Aug. 5 press conference as ill-advised, OMB officials thought the comptroller was shooting at Lance's lifeboat.

High officials in other departments, while in no way sabotaging Lance, shed few tears over his predicament. Middle-level liberals who want higher, not lower, federal spending perceive Lance as lynch-pin of the balanced budget policy and believe the President will loosen federal pursestrings without the big, soft-spoken banker from Calhoun County, Ga., at his side.

She has 'wiped out' syndrome

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am one of those perpetually tired people. I am a woman, 29, weighing 130 pounds at 5 feet, 6 inches. My fatigue has been a part of my life whether I'm overworked, underworked, bored or excited. It seems unrelated to the amount of sleep, which averages 7 to 8 hours a day.

My thyroid is normal and a glucose test showed I don't digest large amounts of sugar taken in one sitting. I don't have hypoglycemia. My blood count is minimal, but I'm not anemic. I am ready to get illegal amphetamines because I can't stand being wiped out all the time. Isn't there anything else I can do? — Ms. T.M.

Well, you can't blame your age, weight, or lack of sleep for your plight. You use a lot of phrases that are confusing to me, and I assume to you as well — blood count being "minimal" but "not anemic" and others. I certainly couldn't interpret your glucose tolerance test from your description of the results. You could have a mild case of low blood sugar, or, for that matter, have a mild diabetes. I doubt that you have an under-functioning adrenal gland, although that should be checked, as should your thyroid.

I think it's time to toss aside your medical dictionary and look to some basic causes of fatigue. How about a chronic infection? Any afternoon temperature? Your "minimal" blood count could fit in with this. What about chest X rays?

If your fatigue is not due to a physical cause, then you must look to psychological ones. You don't mention whether or not you are married and, if you are, how many children you have. Is your domestic life too monotonous? Are you generally bored or depressed? Is your housework well-planned, or is it a day-to-day, dawn-to-dusk grind? Do you get out socially or take vacations? How about recreation? Nothing like a change of scenery to remove monotony and boredom. Consider some volunteer work.

I don't know where you plan on getting your illegal drugs, but no matter what the source I don't think that's going to be your ultimate answer. If no physical cause can be found for your "wiped out" condition you probably need psychological counseling.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I always read your articles and believe you know what you are talking about. My husband has a problem. I think he is 51 and can no longer perform sexually. We were married six years ago and he did quite well then. I think there is something physically wrong. What kind of doctor does one go to? I would like to help him. He seems to think there is nothing that can be done to help him. I disagree. — Mrs. P.

The majority of these cases of sudden loss of sexual activity are not physically caused. Often, anxiety about performing can itself have a bad effect. Or there may be business difficulties, a promotion he missed, anything that may threaten his self-esteem or confidence.

Examination by a doctor could rule out physical causes and assure him that his machinery is in good order. A urologist is skilled in these matters. He should have a thorough physical anyway if he has not had one recently. Diabetes and other systemic diseases are sometimes involved, although the development of the impotence would be rather gradual. After physical causes have been ruled out, then a psychiatrist might be consulted.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you say that a child who looks at pictures in his book, then makes up his own words to go with them instead of reading them correctly is dyslexic? — Mrs. F.

It's impossible to comment on such slender information as this. How old is the child? Is he able to read otherwise? It's true that this practice in children of reading age can be a symptom of a reading difficulty (dyslexia), but it need not mean anything more than laziness or disinterest. If the child is in school and having difficulty in classes, dyslexia may be involved. The teacher should be able to give you clues. Have his eyes been examined?

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Was Papa overrated?

Liz Smith

WHO'S NOT WHO: Ernest Hemingway's name is the one that pops up ever so frequently as the most over-rated of American classicists, or so says the upcoming Esquire, in which prominent critics rate U.S. writers. This August issue is an irony since Esquire was instrumental in establishing Hemingway as a short story writer . . . Clay Felker is in Le Madrigal talking deals every day, but now he's gone to the West Coast where he is being wooed and wooed to become a movie producer. Hmmm! Too bad he didn't produce "New York, New York" . . . Jim Bacon says if he could write "Hollywood Is a Four-Letter Word" now he'd add Liz Taylor's John Warner to his chapter on Milton Berle and Forrest Tucker as great lovers. (Or the Mount Rushmores of sex appeal.)

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a teenager who has recently come to Christ. Can things still go wrong and can bad things happen to me now that I am a Christian? — B.M.G.

DEAR B.M.G.: God has not promised that everything will go the way we want it to just because we are Christians. In fact, sometimes our lives may seem to be more difficult just because we are following Christ. Jesus said, "In the world ye shall have tribulation" (John 16:33). He also said, "The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you" (John 15:20). You see, sometimes it would be easier just to drift along like the rest of the world. But Christ calls us to follow Him, even if that means resisting temptations or doing things that unbelievers think are strange.

But don't get discouraged. First, remember that God is with you, even when the going gets rough. Jesus said, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth . . . and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world" (Matthew 28:18, 20). The apostle Paul had many difficulties (see his list in II Corinthians 11:23-30). But he could also say, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Philippians 4:13).

Also remember that God can use things that seem to us to be bad, to bring us closer to Himself and make us more like He wants us to be. "We glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope" (Romans 5:3-4).

Reflections on smoke

William F. Buckley, Jr.

"Smoking, or non-smoking?"
"I don't smoke. But I don't care if you put me in the smoking section."

So far as I know there isn't a key the attendant can depress that asks the computer to weigh the passenger's priority in just this way. You are traveling alone, and as usual overflowing with briefcases full of work undone. It would be very useful if the seat next to you were unoccupied, so you could slurr your papers over onto it. But by saying you are a non-smoker, you may find that you are traveling with a delegation of non-smokers on an air purification pilgrimage, and that you are wedged between two of them — while, up ahead in the smoking section there are seats to spare. Try to communicate this to the busy lady at the counter. Very difficult. It is easier to oblige men and women of emphatic positions on smoking, civil rights, air pollution, Vietnam, whatever.

THERE IS no question that the anti-smokers are feeling their fledgling strength. I have always been aware of the high conviction of the truly dedicated non-smoker, my father having been one. His feelings on the subject were very strong. He grew up in the age of Lucy Page Gaston. This was the lady who ran for President of the United States as head of the Anti-Cigarette League of America. She discovered that cigarettes had a thing called "furfural." Furfural is somewhere described as a "colorless aromatic, volatile, oily compound formed by distilling bran and the like with sulphuric acid."

That certainly sounds bad, and Miss Gaston believed it to be critically bad, "fifty times as poisonous as ordinary alcohol." Miss Gaston spent most of her life trying to extract out of innocent young boys a subscription to the Clean Life Pledge, and she carried Clean Life buttons to reward the conscripts. "A boy is a great stickler for honor," she said. "Once he has signed our pledge, he would cut off his hand before he would break it."

We all know that Miss Gaston's crusade was unsuccessful, and indeed it is well known now that worse things than furfural have been found in cigarette tobacco, including c-r-c-n-g-n-c agents: still smoking increases. But the drive against smoking isn't spearheaded these days by the likes of Lucy Page Gaston, who tell you that you will die a horrible death if you smoke cigarettes, that they will destroy your red corpuscles, rob the body of its vitality and the mind of its keenness, shatter the nerves, dim the vision, impair the memory, weaken the will power, and ruin the prospects of success. The only effective lobby against the smokers is the nascent lobby of those who are offended by the smell of cigarette tobacco smoke and demand sanctuary from it.

How far is it reasonable to ask that they be obliged?

INEVITABLY, ONE has to oblige the most demanding member of a lobby. Either there is a right to be protected from cigarette smoke or there isn't. The man who doesn't smoke but doesn't much care whether others do is increasingly a social nuisance as is the man who, asked what he wants to drink, replies, "Anything." It is better to ask for a meringue glaze sour, than for "anything." And as, increasingly, one is asked whether one smokes or does not, in the airports, in the movie houses, in the occasional restaurant, you have to be emphatic.

Ex-Gestapo official missing

ROME (AP) — Ex-Gestapo official Herbert Kappler, serving a life term for the reprisal mass execution of 335 Italian civilians, has vanished from a military hospital where he was being treated for cancer, police said today.

Kappler, 70, had said he wanted to die in Germany, but Italy's highest court ruled last December against setting him free.

On learning of his disappearance, Jewish leaders in Rome called for a demonstration at the hospital later today.

The one-time Rome commander of the Gestapo, the Nazi secret police, had been under treatment at Celio hospital here for the past several months. His lawyer said he was suffering from terminal stomach cancer.

Police gave no details of the disappearance, but the stateowned radio network said it learned that Kappler was visited at the hospital early Sunday by two women carrying two large bags.

The radio said the women may have arranged the escape, taking Kappler away in a waiting automobile. The radio station conjectured that it was possible to carry the German out in a large bag "because of Kappler's light weight after so many months of cancer sufferings."

Police later found the car on a Rome street, but there were no traces of the women or Kappler, the broadcast said.

The 335 Romans were shot on Kappler's orders in the Ardeatine Caves near the catacombs in southern Rome on March 24, 1944, just 24 hours after Italian partisans attacked a column of German soldiers marching up downtown Rome's Via Rasella and killed 32 of them.

The court that sentenced the Gestapo chief to life imprisonment in 1948 found that he was following orders for the execution of 320 persons — Nazi policy called for such a 10-1 ratio of retaliation — but held him personally responsible for the 15 other deaths.

Kappler argued that the other deaths resulted from the confusion of the moment. He served 28 years in prison, most of them at a medieval castle-prison in Gaeta.

Steady diet?

Worm recipe rates raves

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP) — If nobody loves you and everybody hates you and you guess you'll go eat worms, give Lynn Remisovsky a call. As worm chefs go, she's as good as you'll find.

Lynn's favorite worm recipe has brought her fame and fortune. Friends who have tried it rave.

"We eat snails, why not worms? I'll bet you wouldn't even know you were eating worms if you weren't told. Don't worry, I always tell."

Not long ago Lynn's worm cookery won first prize in a contest held by a California worm farm. More than 2,000 recipes were entered, if you can swallow the company's count. Lynn won with her tasty Quiche Lorraine avec Ver de Terre. If you live in Paris, a worm is a ver de terre.

(If you live in Worms, a worm is a Wurm and is pronounced wurm. Worms is where, in 1521, Martin Luther defended his doctrines before the diet, the Diet of Worms.)

"I don't know if I'd recommend worms as a steady diet," Lynn Remisovsky said, slicing a wedge of quiche, "but did you know worms are 73 per cent protein and low in cholesterol? These little black spots are the worms. They're crumbled up. The things on top are the onions, they just look like worms.

"I have some cooked worms here in the icebox. See, they look like bacon, don't they? Would you like to try the quiche?"

Thank you, Lynn, but no, and no, they don't look like bacon. If they look like anything they look like old shoelaces but mainly they look like burnt worms. Do you have any other intriguing worm lore?

"Well, worms are good for getting rid of garbage, which is nice.

"The worm farm that ran the contest put 20 million worms on a 42-ton pile of garbage. In two days the odor was gone because the worms had eaten all the organic matter, and in eight weeks the garbage was gone. Worms eat twice their body weight each day."

Lynn's consuming interest, beg your pardon, in worms came after she won the contest. The prize was $500. Before then she had no particular appetite for the subject; now she collects all the information she can, um, dig up.

Otherwise Lynn Remisovsky is perfectly normal. She is an attractive woman of 31 with deep brown eyes and ash blond hair, a schoolteacher.

When her first-grade pupils heard about her prize-winning worm recipe they all wanted to taste it. Lynn declined, but graciously invited their parents for a tasting. None came.

"I brought some in for the other teachers, though. They liked it. The truth is, the worms don't change the taste at all.

"The way all this began, I saw a little item in the paper about the contest. I already had this good recipe for quiche Lorraine, really delicious, and decided to enter just for fun, maybe get my name in a recipe book. I didn't even know about the prize.

"All I did was add worms to the recipe. I figured 16 per cent was a good number. I dug them out of the garden, big red ones, boiled them three or four times until the water stayed clear, put them on a cookie sheet and stuck them in the oven.

"When the quiche was done I talked myself into eating it, and did, and sent the recipe off to the contest. I had completely forgotten about it when they called to tell me I was a finalist and later to tell me I had won.

"Now I can see all sorts of possibilities — cookies with worms instead of chocolate chips, oatmeal cookies with worms instead of raisins, worms crumbled on salad instead of bacon..."

Enough. But could someone worm out of you that good recipe for quiche Lorraine?

"Yes. First you go out to the garden with a pitchfork

Consumers can cut costs, still eat nutritionally

COLLEGE STATION — Consumers can cut food costs—and still eat nutritionally—by following several guidelines, Frances Resonover, a foods and nutrition specialist, says.

She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A & M University System.

—Plan food shopping to make fewer trips to the grocery store and shop at fewer stores. This lowers fuel cost for driving the car—cutting down on food costs.

—Buy some of the less expensive foods and cook some foods from scratch. Foods to be cooked from scratch are less expensive than convenience foods.

—Cut down on snack foods.

—Plan meals that include some of the unsaturated fats. Cut down on the total calories if overweight, and eat foods that carry adequate amounts of needed nutrients.

—Eat a dark green or deep yellow vegetable at least every other day.

—Check the day's total intake of food to see that foods from the basic four food groups are included—even when some meals are eaten away from home.

"The basic four include: two cups of milk for adults or the calcium equivalent in dairy products, two servings of meat or meat alternates, four servings of fruits and vegetables including one rich in Vitamin C and one rich in Vitamin A, and four servings of bread.

—Check with the doctor before going on a weight reduction regimen.

—Learn basic nutrition knowledge needed to choose a nutritionally adequate diet.

"Attend continuing education classes or some other group under the leadership of a dietitian, nutritionist or home economist. Adequate nutrition not only is an aid to keeping healthy but can help prevent disease and costly medical bills.

—Grow fruits and vegetables at home if there's time and space. Fresh fruits and vegetables can add zest to family meals, possibly save some money and develop into a new hobby.

—Use sound food safety practices when handling food—from store to the table. Foodborne illness causes discomfort, loss of money and sometimes loss of life.

—Use a variety of foods from the meat group in family meals—beef, pork, lamb, poultry, fish—and don't forget meat alternates such as beans, peas, lentils and nuts. They not only add variety to meals, but help save money, too.

—Plan to cook a whole meal in the oven in order to cut down on fuel cost.

—Preparing some meals in a slow cooker helps lower fuel cost.

—Use nutrient labeling on foods to make buying choices.

Requires care

COLLEGE STATION — Acrylic bathtubs and shower units require special care, Glenda Moore, a housing and home furnishings specialist, says.

They are usually reinforced with fiberglass to provide a thick, super strong smooth surface which will give years of durable service, added this specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Using abrasive or solvent base cleaners will mar the surface. Instead, use powdered detergent dry on a damp cloth to provide adequate, mild abrasive action to clean the unit.

"Foreign materials, such as plaster, glue, or paint can be removed by scraping with a sharpened soft wood stick.

Dear Abby

Dead Lover's Letter Not Fit to Print

DEAR ABBY: I have a handwritten letter from a highly respected prominent married man who was my lover for 17 years. In that letter he said he never loved anyone in his life the way he loved me!

He died recently, and now I want the world to know the truth.

Can I buy space in my local newspaper and have that letter reproduced? Nothing would make me happier.

BACKSTREET SWEETHEART

DEAR SWEETHEART: Each editor uses his own discretion as to what shall be published in his newspaper. But I hope you realize that what may make YOU "happy" may cause embarrassment and heartache for the family of your deceased lover. Think about it. Then please forget it.

DEAR READERS: The editor of Teen Magazine sent me an "ad" that ran in a high school newspaper. With so many teenagers seeking summer employment, it might be helpful:

- Looking for a Job? Use this checklist on job interviews:
1. Ask for at least $374 a month, plus free room and board.
  2. Insist on 30-days' vacation for the first year.
  3. Demand $300 for new clothes, plus upkeep allowance.
  4. Be sure full, free recreational facilities are available—golf, tennis, theatres, pool, horseback riding, etc.
  5. Scream if you don't have a free medical and dental plan with unlimited sick leave. Tell your boss-to-be you expect a $150 per month raise if you get married.
  6. Don't be haseled because you are without experience. Pound the table and let it be known that you expect to learn a skill at his expense with full pay.
  7. Insist on the option of quitting after three years to go to college and that you expect him to contribute two-thirds to an educational fund of more than $8000!!

The punch line: "If an employer agrees to all of these terms, you're in the U.S. Army!!"

DEAR ABBY: My problem is really more of a question. Which way should a corsage be worn?

My mother says you wear flowers just like you grow—with the stems at the bottom, and the flowers on top. If she's right, almost every girl I've seen wearing a corsage has had it on upside down.

Is my mother right?

D.B.

DEAR D.B.: She's right.

DEAR ABBY: I am so mad, I have to unload on someone, so here goes.

My husband is self-employed. A year ago he did a job for a customer who lives in a home much more beautiful than anything we could ever afford. After a year, we received a check for this job. The check was misplaced (I thought it was stolen), so I called the lady and asked her to please stop payment on it.

I found the check today and called the lady back to tell her I had found the check and to apologize for any inconvenience I had caused her. She asked me to SEND HER ONE DOLLAR, as this is what it cost to stop payment on that check!

After waiting a year for our money, how could anyone be so miserably cheap?

CLEVELAND

DEAR CLEVELAND: For people who are miserably cheap, it comes naturally.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D.W.R.: The only way I know of to double your money is to fold it over once and put it back in your pocket.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For ABBY's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped

Miss Janet Kay Boyett honored at shower

Miss Janet Kay Boyett, bride-elect of Salvador Hernandez, was the honoree at a miscellaneous wedding shower Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Coy Little. Miss Suzan Langdon co-hosted the event. Bridal guests were played. A white tablecloth covered the refreshment table. The cake was in the shape of double hearts bearing the names of the couple. The cake was decorated with pink roses.

Punch was served from a bowl of cut crystal. Antique pink crystal and silver appointments completed the table arrangements.

Special guests were the mothers of the couple, Mrs. William P. Bodin and Mrs. Thomas Hernandez. Mrs. M.D. Cross, grandmother of the bride-elect, Colorado City, was also present.

The couple will be married Aug. 19 in the Wesley Methodist Church with the Rev. August Aamodt officiating.

Who says hutches are for dining rooms?

One of our Tell City beauties is probably the most gorgeous single piece you can put in an Early American dining room. But why stop there? A hutch can put beauty and storage in a family room or living kitchen. Make a hallway useful. Provide a bedroom hobby center. Of course, you need the right hutch. And that's where we come in. The area's largest selection of sizes and types will open your eyes to the many beautiful uses of a Tell City hutch.

Immunization to be enforced

ATLANTA (AP) — Health officials are being urged to enforce immunization laws this fall to protect at least 90 per cent of America's schoolchildren from measles and other diseases.

The national Center for Disease Control program will include a special effort to stem measles outbreaks which have shown tremendous increases this year in some states.

"Hopefully, we're going to try to get the older children (vaccinated) as well as those entering school for the first time," Dr. Neal Halsey, a medical epidemiologist in the Division of Immunization, said Friday.

"If we can get the older children, I feel that we can stem the outbreak of measles," he said. "We have usually managed to vaccinate only about two-thirds or three-fourths of the kids in the past."

As of Aug. 6, the latest figures available at the CDC show there were 52,290 cases of measles nationwide, compared with 33,701 at the same time a year ago.

Halsey said the CDC expects there will be at least 60,000 cases of measles by the end of the year, compared with the record of 75,000 cases in 1971 and the low of 22,000 in 1974.

The mortality rate of measles is about one in 1,000, but the disease can cause permanent brain damage.

States reporting major increases to the CDC include: California, 9,159 this year compared with 1,842 at the same time last year; Virginia 2,628 and 730; Kansas 1,427 and 661; Iowa 4,284 and 41; Minnesota 2,617 and 389 and Missouri 945 and 17.

Attention getters

COLLEGE STATION — Bias designs are "attention getters" — in garments or in fashion details, but there are strict rules for making them "work," Marlene Odle, a clothing specialist, says.

"Bias plaids generally give the feeling of added width — but a bias or diagonal stripe can add width or height, depending on the width of the stripes. Home sewers should consider bias effect and placement carefully to ensure most flattering appearance, the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, added.

Combined with solid colors on a shirt, a bias design on a front band and pockets or yokes provides interesting accent details and eliminates matching.

However, too many bias garments in an ensemble give an unsettling effect, and the fabric design is lost in the confusion.

Astros top Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe Niekro, the best pitcher the San Diego Padres had back in their first year as an expansion team in 1969, has come back to haunt them.

Niekro, a knuckleball specialist like his older brother Phil of the Atlanta Braves, stopped the Padres on just five hits Sunday in pitching the Houston Astros to a 6-3 victory over San Diego.

"The thing I remember most about 1969 was my consistency," said Niekro, who raised his 1977 record to 8-4 Sunday with his fourth complete game of the season. "I think it may have been the best year I've had in that regard until this one."

The pitching of Niekro and the hitting and scoring of Jose Cruz combined to snap the Padres' winning streak at five games.

"I had a real good knuckler all day," said Niekro. "But I had problems getting it over the plate during the middle innings."

The Houston right-hander also had problems keeping it in the ballpark in the late innings with George Hendrick at the plate. Hendrick accounted for all three San Diego runs with his 16th and 17th homers of the year.

"Both homers were on knucklers," said Niekro. "The first one was a high knuckler that he hit into the second deck. The other was down low, a good pitch, but he just went down and golfed it out."

"You have to give him credit — he's a good hitter."

Cruz, who has 15 hits in seven games against the Padres in San Diego this season, picked up a pair of hits, two walks, two runs batted-in and four runs scored Sunday.

"I love San Diego," he said after the game. "I just love to play here in this park."

The Padres managed just five hits off Niekro, who came into the game with a 2-1 record against San Diego this season compiled during five previous relief appearances.

"Niekro's knuckleball is tough to hit," said San Diego Manager Alvin Dark. "And when he's throwing it for strikes like he was today he's an even tougher pitcher."

Along with Cruz' big day, Joe Ferguson singled in two runs and Art Howe contributed two hits as Houston salvaged a split of the two-game series.

"George has been great," said Dark. "He's played great for us all year."

Orantes wins Open

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Spain's Manuel Orantes enjoys not having any pressure when he plays Jimmy Connors.

"If I lose to Jimmy, everyone expects it, so the pressure is on him," said Orantes, who needed only 72 minutes to win his third U.S. Open Clay Court championship at the Indianapolis Racquet Club on Sunday.

Orantes said he was surprised with the ease of his nationally televised 6-1, 6-3 victory over Connors, who is the top-ranked player in the United States and rates alongside Bjorn Borg of Sweden as the world's best.

"He made a lot of mistakes, which is unusual for him," said Orantes, the world's sixth-rated player, whose last victory over Connors came in the finals of the U.S. Open in 1975.

The play of Orantes, who

Wadkins takes PGA trophy

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins feels like both hero and villain.

Wadkins, a seven-year pro who has never reached the level of greatness predicted for him, won the 59th PGA National Championship Sunday with a victory over Gene Littler on the third hole of the sudden death playoff.

"I feel like a villain in a lot of ways," said the 27-year-old Wadkins in pulling off the biggest comeback of the tour this year when he made up six strokes in the final round. "They just don't come any finer than Gene. He's everybody's Mr. Nice Guy."

"At this point in his career, it would have meant a lot. I've had a rough three years, but Gene has been through worse than me."

The 47-year-old Littler, leader from the beginning, had a five-stroke lead going into the final nine holes but bogeyed five of the first six and then had pars on the last three to drop into a tie with Wadkins, who birdied No. 18 to finish his round at six-under 282.

"I made a lot of bad decisions both starting out and coming in," said Littler, whose nickname is "the Machine" for his near-perfect swing. "I misclubbed at least a half dozen times."

While Wadkins waited on the 18th green, Littler and Jack Nicklaus, playing one three-hole apart, were locked in a duel which many thought would produce the winner on the sunlit, 6,806-yard, par-72 Pebble Beach Golf Links.

Littler, winner in Houston by three strokes over Wadkins, made the turn for home at 10 strokes under par, taking bogeys at Nos. 3 and 5 but making birdies on 4, 6 and 7. Nicklaus and Wadkins made the turn at six under.

Littler then bogeyed No. 10, parred No. 11 and bogeyed Nos. 12 through 15.

While this was taking place, Nicklaus parred No. 10 through 16 before catching a bad break on No. 17 when his tee shot on the 209-yard, par-three hole caught the crown of the green and kicked right. He bogeyed the hole to go five under.

"Gene wanted to give it to me," said Nicklaus, "but I couldn't take it."

Littler parred the final three holes to set up the first sudden death playoff ever in a major tournament.

On the first extra hole, a 382-yard, par four, Wadkins said he used the wrong club and missed the green. He saved par with a 20-foot putt, while Littler had a tap-in for his par.

Both birdied the 502-yard, par-five second hole, each missing an eagle putt with balls rimming the cup.

On the 388-yard, par-four third, Littler hit his second shot short and to be left while Wadkins went over the green. Littler then chipped out of the grass badly and missed the 20-foot putt to the right.

Wadkins chipped to within five feet, sank the putt and leaped with joy.

To Wadkins, the victory meant many things in addition to the $45,000 first prize. He becomes a member of the Ryder Cup and World Cup teams and is exempt from qualifying on the tour for the next 10 years and for the PGA Championship for a lifetime.

Rangers unravel White Sox

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Rangers sealed a contract on Chicago's "South Side Hit Men" Sunday night, sending the White Sox staggering out of Arlington Stadium with taunts of their own theme song.

"Na na na na, na na na na, hey hey hey, good-bye," a record Sunday crowd of 29,734 fans chanted as the Rangers outslugged the White Sox 12-9 to move within a game of the American League Western Division leaders.

The theme song, which comes from a hit record in the late 1960s, is chanted by Chicago fans after each time a White Sox opponent gets into trouble. The team organist starts it up and the chant has seemed to inspire the low-rated White Sox all year.

Ranger pitcher Dock Ellis said, "Our fans are starting to feel the excitement of being in a pennant race. They know they are getting something now and they're going to be back for more."

Ranger Manager Billy Hunter said, "The fans have given us a big lift. That's why Chicago plays so well at home is because they have the fans behind them."

Texas took two out of three games in the series, which drew a record 101,718 fans. Never had such crowds attended a three-game series in the six-year history of the Ranger franchise.

The Rangers won, 10-7, lost 6-5 and then followed the hitting of Claudell Washington and relief pitching of Paul Lindblad and Ellis to the victory Sunday night.

"We knew we would probably have to score 10 or 12 runs each game to beat them and we did," said Hunter.

White Sox Manager Bob Lemon, whose team is batting .283, said, "Let's face it. They (the Rangers) have better hitting and pitching than we did."

Ellis, a starter who volunteered himself for relief duty, said the White Sox "have the damndest hitting club I've seen since I played for the Pittsburgh Pirates. A lead is never safe."

The Rangers fell behind 6-0 in the first inning on six Chicago hits, including a three-run homer by Eric Soderholm.

Then Texas charged back as Washington clubbed a three-run homer in the second inning to tie the game and drove in another run in the seventh inning.

Lindblad worked seven innings after starter Nelson Briles was bombed, earning his fourth victory against three losses. Ellis mopped up the last one and a third innings.

"Dock came to me before the game and told me he was ready to go two or three innings in relief," said Hunter. "I thought it was a hell of a suggestion."

Hunter had Texas stealing bases even when it was five runs down.

Sudden death just that for Cowboys

SEATTLE (AP) — Jim Zorn, the Seattle Seahawks' quarterback, described it as a lovely game. Dallas Coach Tom Landry thought it was a joke.

"It was lovely," said Zorn after directing his team 71 yards in three plays for a touchdown in sudden death overtime that gave the Seahawks a 23-17 National Football League exhibition victory over the Cowboys Saturday night.

"I've never been in a sudden death before. That's a new experience," said Zorn. "So far, I like it."

So did 58,789 fans in the Kingdome as they watched Don Testerman crash into the end zone from two yards out for winning touchdown only 1:15 into overtime. Zorn passed 37 yards to Sherman Smith and 32 yards to tight end Ron Howard to set up Testerman's run.

The victory boosted Seattle's preseason record to 2-0. Dallas dropped to 1-1.

The Seahawks had a chance to win the game in regulation time, but the Cowboys' towering defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones blocked John Leypoldt's 27-yard field goal attempt with 58 seconds remaining. It was the third blocked field goal attempt of the game for the 6-foot-9 Jones.

Landry was disappointed with his club's performance, but had praise for Zorn.

"We played a lousy game," said Landry. "I thought it was a comedy of errors. We had no chance of winning. I'm disappointed in our defense, especially our pass defense."

"Seattle wanted it pretty bad. They played extremely well. Zorn was exceptional. We tried to contain him with our defensive backs, but he was still escaping to the outside."

The Cowboys were penalized 13 times for 110 yards. One of Dallas' two fumbles led to a Seattle field goal and one of the two interceptions thrown by Cowboys led to a Seahawk touchdown.

Seattle Coach Jack Patera said the nicest thing about the game was "winning. The thing we did best on defense was keep them out of the end zone. They moved the ball on us, but we showed some poise."

Dallas took a 17-10 lead late in the third period when safety Cliff Harris intercepted a Zorn pass and returned it 18 yards for a TD. But Seattle tied the game midway in the fourth quarter on reserve quarterback Steve Myer's 38-yard touchdown pass to Steve Largent following an interception.

Backup quarterback Danny White, who relieved Dallas starter Roger Staubach in the second half, found Preston Pearson with a 23-yard TD pass on Dallas' first possession of the second half for a 10-3 lead. Seattle tied the game three minutes later on Zorn's 37-yard scoring pass to former Dallas wide receiver Duke Ferguson on a fourth down play.

Ferguson came to Seattle last May in the controversial 4-for-1 trade with Dallas in which the Cowboys received Seattle's draft rights to Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett.

Dallas took a 3-0 first period lead on Efran Herrera's 21-yard field goal. Seattle tied the score at halftime on Leypoldt's 46-yard field goal in the second period following a fumble recovery.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT — Texas Rangers' Sandy Alomar clings safely to third base after taking two bases on a passed ball in the sixth inning of Sunday night's game in Arlington. Third base umpire Larry Barnett makes his call as Chicago White Sox third baseman Eric Soderholm reels around to tag Alomar. The Rangers beat the White Sox, 12-9.

King showcases some very prime beef

In Gallagher's Steakhouse, feasting place of the big portion people, the sirloin shells are stacked row upon row behind glass, eye-poppingly visible as you push your way through the revolving door from 52nd Street, and so it was only proper that Don King would choose this place to line up his government inspected beef, prime, choice and good, for viewing before it is served to the public, Sept. 14, in one huge heavyweight orgy.

Fitting site of this orgy, for those few thousand who want to pay the $100 tab, will be Caesar's Palace. For those who prefer to take the free meal, it will be on NBC-TV, right there in your little old den. You can have just for the flip of a switch, Ken Norton and Jimmy Young (but not against each other; that comes later on another network); Ron Lyle, Larry Holmes, Stan Ward, Jody Ballard, Leroy Jones, and just to give the crowd an ethnic flavor, one white fighter, Italian champion Lorenzo Zanon.

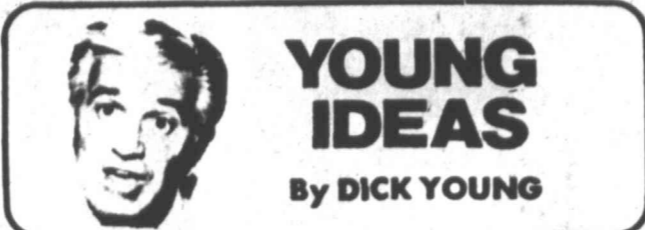

Zanon is the only man alive who can truly say that Muhammad Ali ran out on him. This is not to suggest that Ali is afraid of Zanon. I don't think Rahaman Ali, the champ's brother, is afraid of Zanon, but for some reason or other, probably money details, the Ali-Zanon scheduled match didn't come off, and Ali fought instead Alfredo Evangelista, one of the most forgettable wars in heavyweight history.

Alfredo Evangelista, incidentally, has just been signed for the semifinal on the Ali-Shavers card at Madison Square Garden, Sept. 29. Evangelista will fight Pedro Soto. For those of you who have been waiting to see Evangelista again, I thought you'd like to know that.

BALLARD DOESN'T RATE
Anyway, getting back to Don King's beefsteak party: Lorenzo Zanon will fight Ken Norton in the main event, and Jimmy Young takes on Jody Ballard in the semi. Jody Ballard holds some sort of distinct eminence on the card. He is the only fighter not ranked among the top 10 by somebody, and unranking is not easily achieved when you consider that Don King's researchers have clawed the files of the WBC, WBA, Ring Magazine, World Boxing Magazine, Boxing Illustrated and the North American Boxing Federation. You would think that somebody would have found a place somewhere for friendly Jody Ballard.

Now you may ask where Leroy Jones is ranked and by whom, and nobody would blame you, but the truth is he rates No. 8 with the NABF, who probably decided to give it to him when he walked into their office and asked to see the head man. Leroy is 6-foot-5 and goes 250, and few people have been inclined to argue with him about ratings.

The one thing he didn't have until yesterday, in fact, was an opponent for this promotion. He was listed on the poop sheet as facing (opponent to be announced), when out of the audience at Gallagher's popped Syd Martin, veteran trainer and manager to announce he would offer the N.Y. State heavyweight champ, Greg Johnson for the cause. Whereupon Leroy Jones grabbed the mike at the rostrum and said "I wish to thank Syd Martin for donating his fighter." That's the word he used, donating.

There is a casual feeling that more than one side of beef is being donated to the King Komeback Kard. Inasmuch as Kind is promoting Norton vs. Young in November, and both men are exposing their chins here, on this Sept. 14 program, it is suspected that the results are pretty much ordained. Don King shudders at the thought. He shudders at the very word "tune-up."

"From tune-up fights," he reminded the press gathering, "history has been made. Foreman-Young was a tune-up, people said. The first Norton-Ali jawbreak was supposed to be a tune-up. All-Young was a tune-up, but most people thought Young won. Anytime you get a man in the ring at 200 pounds, anything can happen."

Maybe so, but I find nobody, so far, who will risk a lira on Lorenzo Zanon against Ken Norton, nor a sawbuck on Jody Ballard against Jimmy Young. The third fight is something else. It is Ron Lyle, the tough warhorse, against Stan Ward, promising youngster from Sacramento. They have nothing beyond to distract them. Ditto Larry Holmes against Howard Smith. Holmes is the Pennsylvania Poker whose future has been delayed much too long. He is 24-and-9, with 17 kayoes, and he was headed for the top in Don King's tournament when something happened over there.

Don King's flood of words is sprinkled with terms like "vindication" and "resurrection" when he mentions the ill-starred tournament, and this comeback promotion. He is going full blast again. Even as he was pushing his five-foot heavyweight extravaganza, he couldn't resist waving a teasing tidbit in the face of Teddy Brenner, the Madison Square Garden boxing boss.

"THE GARDEN CAN B.S. NO MORE!"
"I have just signed up the champ, Alfredo Escalera to meet Alexis Arguello," said King. "Teddy Brenner keeps saying that Arguello is a killer, and that Escalera is afraid to meet him. Well, Escalera walked into my office this morning and said, let me sign for Arguello. The Garden can B.S. no more." This means King has tied up the junior lightweight champ, and if the Garden wants to put on Escalera-Arguello, it must deal with King. That would be an intriguing first. Resurrection, it's wonderful.

King evidently has hooked on solidly with NBC. He spent much of the press conference thanking Al Rush, successor to Carl Lindemann as sports chief of the network, for having faith in him. Most of the heavyweights, when their turn came, thanked the network.

"I would like to thank ABC," said Stan Ward, the Sacramento heavy.
Don King tugged at his coat tail. "NBC," he stage-whispered. Resurrection can be such a fragile thing.

4 Ways To Charge

Oilers off to bad start

HOUSTON (AP) — After spending his entire rookie year on the sidelines with the Baltimore Colts last season, thrills come in small packages for quarterback Mike Kirkland.

"Heck, I was just glad to score a touchdown, much less the winning touchdown," the former Arkansas standout said Sunday after his 14-yard run in the fourth quarter vaulted the Colts to a 14-7 National Football League exhibition victory over Houston.

Just to get into the game before the home folks (Kirkland is from nearby Pasadena) would have been enough. But Kirkland finished with six of eight pass completions for 101 yards, kept his cool on the TD run and was awarded the game ball.

"I needed something like this today to get going," said Kirkland, who scored his first touchdown since the opening game his senior year at the University of Arkansas. "I didn't play a single down last year in exhibition or the regular season."

"I was just trying to stay on the ground and throw when I had to."

Kirkland was trying to throw but had to stay on the ground on the play that resulted in his game-winning touchdown.

Kirkland retreated to pass, then ducked under a tackle attempt by linebacker Robert Brazile and sprinted to the left end zone flag with 13:52 left in the game for a 14-7 margin.

The Oilers, who have now lost 10 of their last 11 preseason games, struck first in the first quarter on a four-yard TD pass from Dan Pastorini to Ken Burrough, who snagged the ball in the corner of the end zone.

The play stood although the Colts argued vehemently that Burrough was out of bounds when he caught the ball. Houston's defense set up the score when middle linebacker Gregg Bingham tipped a pass by Baltimore's Bert Jones and Ted Washington intercepted.

Baltimore, the defending AFC Eastern Conference champs, tied it 41 seconds before halftime when running back Doug McCauley piled one yard to complete a 69-yard drive. The drive was keyed by pass completions of 26 and 28 yards from Jones to Freddie Scott.

The game also featured a crowd-pleasing punting duel

Midland still in first

By the Associated Press
Arkansas sent Tulsa nemesis Lynn Strelitz to the mound Sunday night in a bid to take over first place.

Despite a rain delay, it worked.
Strelitz notched his fourth victory of the season against Tulsa, 9-3, as the Travelers moved a scant percentage point ahead of the Drillers in the Texas League East Division.

Nick Leyva's three-run homer was the big blow, keying a five-run sixth inning for Arkansas that gave Strelitz all the offense he needed.

Midland kept its hold on first place in the West Division, outscoring Amarillo 7-4.

Karl Pagel paced Midland with a three-for-three night, including his 26th homer of the year, a two-run shot.

Midland was ahead 5-0 by the fourth inning and coasted home to give Andy Muhlstock his 10th win against four losses. Mike Lantz dropped to 3-6 for Amarillo.

El Paso kept pace in the West, breaking open a 2-2 tie with a four-run outburst in the eighth inning and going on to defeat San Antonio 6-2.

Dave Steck evened his record at 2-2, while Barry between brothers David Lee of Baltimore and Danny Lee of Houston. The young Lee, trying to make the Oiler roster, averaged 45.9 yards on seven punts and had boots of 62 and 57 yards called back by penalties.

David Lee, a 13-year veteran, averaged 38.9 on eight punts, including two kicks of 50 and 52 yards.

"I was relaxed today," said Danny Lee, who had a bad start last week against Oakland. "I didn't try to kill the ball."

SHORT YARDAGE — Houston Oilers' runningback Rob Carpenter (26) tried hitting daylight behind center Carl Mauck (55) in the second quarter of the National Football League game Sunday at Houston. Carpenter was only able to pickup three yards as Baltimore's Ron Fernandes (73) clamped onto his legs! The Colts took the game 14-7.

Travers scalped by Indians

By the Associated Press
Bill Travers was surrounded by Indians — and there was no sign of rescue.

"I said to myself, 'I might as well just throw the ball as well as I could,'" said the Milwaukee Brewer pitcher.

It wasn't good enough to withstand further attack by the Cleveland baseball team, but his courageous performance did earn him some applause from the crowd after a 14-5 shelling by the Indians in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader.

Travers' long afternoon included all 14 runs and 18 hits by the Indians, plus four walks, two hit batters and a wild pitch. It was a longer afternoon for the Brewers, since they had already lost a 12-4 decision in the opener at Cleveland Stadium.

"I thought after the first inning that I would settle down but when I did not settle down in the second, I thought that he (Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas) would pull me," said Travers. "Then in the fourth, when I got in trouble again, I thought he would pull me."

"Then, after going down 9-1, I said to myself, 'Well, I might as well finish the game as best I can.'"

Ironically, with one out to go in the Cleveland eighth, Grammas finally pulled his beleaguered starter and let Bob McClure get the last out.

As Travers left the game, he was greeted by a standing ovation from the crowd, which had booed Grammas for taking him out of the game. Travers jauntily doffed his hat.

"He should have known that I did not have many guys in the bullpen," said Grammas, explaining why he kept Travers in so long. "We have been having a lot of doubleheaders and I'm not about to use up all my pitchers in one game. Tomorrow night, we might be in a close game and I'll have someone rested."

In other American League action, the Boston Red Sox blasted the Seattle Mariners 11-1; the New York Yankees walloped the California Angels 15-3; the Baltimore Orioles edged the Oakland A's 5-4; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Minnesota Twins 6-5; the Toronto Blue Jays turned back the Kansas City Royals 6-3 and the Texas Rangers outscored the Chicago White Sox 12-9.

Aztecs, Tornado clash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If all goes true to form, the Los Angeles Aztecs and the Dallas Tornado will be involved in a sudden-death overtime Wednesday night to determine the Southern Division representative in the North American Soccer League playoff semifinals.

Martin Cohen scored his first two goals of the 1977 season Sunday night to lead the Aztecs to a 3-1 victory over the Tornado, giving Los Angeles a 1-0 lead in the "best-of-two series."

If the Aztecs win when the teams meet in Dallas Wednesday night, they win the secondround playoff competition.

If the Tornado wins, two 15-minute sudden death periods will be held following the match. Should neither team score in the sudden death periods, a tie-breaker shootout will be held.

Sunday night's victory by the Aztecs was their fifth, straight over Dallas in Los Angeles since 1974. But the Tornado hasn't lost to the Aztecs in four tries in Dallas during that time.

Ane Mihailovich scored the third goal for Los Angeles Sunday night before a crowd of 5,295 at the L.A. Coliseum. Mihailovich also added an assist. George Best had two assists for the Aztecs.

The Tornado, which played without Kyle Rote, Jr., who is sidelined with an injury, took 28 shots to only 13 for the Aztecs.

Cohen scored his first goal at 8:28 with an assist from Best. Mihailovich made it 2-0 at 23:12 with another assist from Best. Dallas scored its goal at 43:24 when Steve Pecher scored with an assist from Jim Ryan.

Cohen completed the scoring at 77:05 with an assist from Mihailovich.

Rote is expected to play Wednesday night.

Church softball finals tonight

The Church Slow Pitch Softball League will close out its schedule with two all-star games tonight starting at 8 p.m. in Stink Creek Park.

The 13 teams have been divided into the National and American League. The first seven teams listed on the league roster make up the National League, and the manager is David Rawls.

The manager for the American League team will be Boyce Hale. Each team will provide three or four of its best players to represent the team. A good crowd is expected, and the public is invited to attend.

Cigarettes tar ratings listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette manufacturers are continuing their competition to attract health-conscious smokers who can't kick the habit, the government's new rating of cigarette tar and nicotine levels shows.

Nearly one-third of the 166 brands of cigarettes tested by the Federal Trade Commission had relatively low levels of tar and nicotine, the elements of cigarettes that the government maintains can cause lung cancer and heart attacks.

The ratings, released Sunday, reconfirmed a general industry trend toward lower tar and nicotine content, according to the FTC, which based its findings on tests of cigarette samples purchased in 50 states. The ratings were the first since November 1976.

In a report to Congress last month, the commission noted that in the past year the lower tar and nicotine cigarettes have been the subject of an intensive promotional effort by cigarette manufacturers.

The FTC, which conducts the tests annually under a mandate from Congress, called for legislation changing cigarette labeling.

Asserting that present health warnings understate the hazard, it urged Congress to order more strongly worded labels advising consumers that cigarettes can kill them.

The industry regards all cigarettes having less than 15 milligrams of tar as being in the low range. The latest ratings show 52 of the 166 brands with less than 15 milligrams of tar.

Tar ratings ranged between five-tenths of a milligram in filtered Carlton 70s regular to 34 milligrams in Players nonfilter hard packs. Nicotine ratings ranged from Carlton 70s regulars' five-one-hundredths of a milligram to Players regulars' 2.5 milligrams.

Carlton king menthol, Now king menthol (hard pack), Carlton king and Now king (hard pack) all followed with 1 milligram of tar and one-tenth of one per cent of nicotine.

Next on the list were Iceberg 100s menthol and Lucky 100s, both with 3 milligrams of tar and three-tenths of a per cent of nicotine. In the last ratings both brands showed 9 milligrams of tar and six-tenths of one per cent of nicotine.

Repeating at the bottom was Players with 34 milligrams of tar and 2.5 per cent of nicotine. Just ahead of it was Domino with 33 milligrams of tar, 1.4 per cent of nicotine.

Tar is the element in cigarette smoke that produces cancer, according to the National Cancer Institute. Nicotine is a poison and, because it acts as a powerful stimulant in small doses, is a prime suspect as a cause of heart attacks, government officials say.

Cigarette prices increase posted

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is increasing the wholesale price of all of its domestic cigarette brands and Winchester Little cigars by about 6 per cent, or 85 cents per 1,000.

A company spokesman said the firm could not say what effect the increase would have on the retail price of cigarettes.

The increase, which became effective Friday, brings the price of the company's regular and king size brands to $14.35 per 1,000. The 100 millimeter brands and More, Reynolds' 120 millimeter cigarette, will wholesale for $14.85 per 1,000.

The company said the increase was necessitated by increases in the cost of raw materials, labor and other operating expenses.

Reynolds Tobacco, a subsidiary of R. J. Reynolds Inc. manufactures Winston, Camel, Salem, Vantage, Doral, More, Now and Real cigarettes.

NO BOOK WORM HERE — Little Gregory Lynn Gressett, five-month-old son of Mrs. Gary L. Gressett on the left, finds checking out books a bit boring. # Briscoe won't get involved

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe will sit on the sidelines and not enter the political battle brewing in Austin between the state's attorney general and comptroller.

Last week, Atty. Gen. John Hill was taken to the Texas Supreme Court by Comptroller Bob Bullock over Hill's reluctance to release delinquent tax rolls to the comptroller.

"I won't comment on that situation," said Briscoe Sunday before delivering the commencement speech at Pan American University. "That is strictly between the two men involved."

However, the governor did comment on the upcoming $2 increase in vehicle inspection fees.

When asked if the increase refuted the governor's oft-made statement that Texans have had no "new taxes" during his reign, Briscoe replied: "I don't think that can be considered a new tax. We considered that very carefully before the increase was made. I can't remember the exact percentage, but most of that increase goes to the businesses where the inspections are made. These people were hurt by the $2 fee so most of the money made off the increase to $4

Hustle 3 Basic qualifications

I think this is a good time to reemphasize some of the basic qualifications that folks look at when they consider Big Spring as a candidate for locating their industry.

Most of the things you would look for if you were going to move to a new town or city are the same that a businessman looks for in seeking a new town or city for his firm. Of course, the primary consideration is "If I move to Big Spring, will I be able to operate at a profit?" That is the single most important factor. It comprises many elements, from tax schedules and rental fees to freight rates and wage scales.

The margin of profit is very small so the margin for error is also small. Therefore, the firm can be expected to locate in the community that shows the greatest potential for the most profit.

Paralleling those profit motivations are the quality of life features that most of us often take for granted, and sometimes we can't fully recognize them because we are so close to the situation. At the critical end of the list are schools, housing, shopping, crime rate, cultural opportunities, medical facilities, recreation facilities and climatic conditions.

Hustle 3 Basic qualifications

These areas get a lot of attention and often they are the target of criticism. Most are subject to change which can either improve the desirability of our community or eliminate us from considerations altogether. Normally these changes are slow and most of us can't feel we're really a part of the change process. But there are things we can do that are meaningful and in support of our efforts to attract industry.

First, we must be aware that our image is important and our reputation, based on that image, goes a long way in attracting the interest of industry and establishing even the initial contract. Our image is projected to others

Ridin' fence

They call it lost

with Marj Carpenter

The other day I was over in Mitchell County and decided that while I had a camera along, I would go try to get pictures of a few rural areas around for the Friday series in this column.

You know the ones I mean, "They call it Ackerly, they call it Forsan, they call it Westbrook."

Well, I had found Payne and I had found Seven Wells and I had found the former location of Looney and I thought, "Boy I am really doing good."

I decided to go back into Colorado City and get some other news stories and then on the way home, I planned to drive off to the south of IS 20 and try to find Dorn.

Well, that's where my luck began to run out. I had decided that Dorn Chapel would be on Dorn Road.

Well it's not. It's not on North Dorn Road and it's not on South Dorn Road.

Now Dorn Road is definitely just that—a Dorn road. It's not a highway and it's not a street.

It's a road. In the old sense of being a road. I went down South Dorn for quite some miles and looked at all those bridges that have warning signs how many tons—and I finally decided that Dorn Chapel was not on Dorn Road. So I went back over to the State Park Road and found it.

Then I got a little too smart. I thought I could cut through somewhere to the west and come out at Hyman. Well, I cut through to the west all right, but I have yet to get to Hyman. I'll have to go back and hunt that burg down from this direction.

I turned of this road that had a Farm to Market number but I think the sign was turned. The road started out gravel and then became dirt and then became deep sand and then became deep sand with a gap cut across the road.

I couldn't turn around in that sand—I've lived in sandy country, thank you. So I backed and backed and backed for a couple of miles until I came to a little side road so that I could turn around.

I started traveling south again and came to a better traveled gravel road headed west, so I took it. It went west. I saw a lonesome farm house. It said "Rich" on the mailbox and I hope he is because it must take lots of gas to drive home.

I saw the back side of all those hills you see the front side of from IS 20. I suddenly came down a hill and I was in the oilpatch. From one hill, I could see over 30 pump jacks.

I thought, "Gee, I wish this were my place. I'd own all that oil and I would also know where I am."

But I began to brighten up as I saw a few oil trucks and the workers waved cheerfully. I thought, "At least if I break down, they know where they are."

I figured right, because I kept going and suddenly came to wonderful pavement. Then I came to a place where the pavement either went north or south and I decided I had ridden all the fences I wanted to that day and headed north toward good old IS 20.

I figured right, because I came to IS 20 and I headed on into Big Spring. I chuckled to myself. "I just saw what was on the other side of the hills," I thought.

And that was what I saw—one day, while ridin' backward from a fence.

Legislation to abolish OSHA supported by WTCC directors

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce board of directors has adopted two position papers in regard to pending legislation in Congress.

One is needed legislation to abolish OSHA; the other is a revised position regarding the proposed wild and scenic river designation of the Rio Grande.

WTCC strongly supports the passage of H. R. 1348 (Symms) which states in its entirety that "be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 be repealed."

WTCC has taken a position in support of the repeal of OSHA for many reasons, and some of the reasons expressed in the position paper are: (1) The Federal bureaucracy has demonstrated that it is incapable of understanding, administering and implementing the absurdly broad and ambiguous scope of the act as passed. Because of its lack of expertise, common sense and understanding, it has issued a deluge of incomprehensible regulations written in a veritable unknown tongue.

In its revised position paper regarding the proposed wild and scenic river designation for the Rio Grande, WTCC strongly opposes the inclusion of any portion of the Rio Grande in the legislation as proposed by President Carter on May 23.

Bob Corkins of Alpine, Chairman of WTCC's Tourist and Travel Development Committee, says that "the inclusion of a 191.2 mile segment of the Rio Grande, as proposed, would effectively close a major portion of the southern boundary of West Texas to any future job and profit opportunities that might develop in the future."

"It would also be detrimental to the good neighbor policy between the United States and Mexico. WTCC's concern over the possibility of West Texas being forever barred from making any decision or actions in the future for this area as a result of the proposed designation is certainly not new. WTCC has followed closely the efforts of the Interior Department and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation to arbitrarily assert their will regardless of facts, wishes, future plans or the desires of the people whom the Federal Government is supposed to serve."

Joe A. Kloessel of Midland, WTCC's chairman of National Affairs Committee, says that "the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is deeply interested in the development of outdoor recreation resources, and also in the protection of the natural resources located in the region it serves."

"In fact, WTCC has had an important leadership role in the establishment of Texas' two national parks, Big Bend and Guadalupe Mountains. It is taking a leadership role in the continued development of these and other areas with the objective of providing enjoyment for the majority of the people without adverse impact on what nature has provided."

In its revised position paper WTCC again states that it is greatly concerned with the President's proposal, and believes that if the proposal is implemented in its present form, it will have a far-reaching and long-lasting adverse impact on both West Texas and Mexico, and will result in completely closing a major portion of the international border to any future development of vitally needed jobs and profit opportunities in areas on both sides of the river.

Braniff, TI accused of stifling competition

DALLAS (AP) — The feud among three Texas-based airlines warmed Sunday when a report by the Justice Department surfaced, alleging that Braniff International and Texas International airlines worked together to thwart competition by Southwest Airlines.

The report claimed the two interstate carriers exchanged business secrets and ordered employees not to cooperate with the intrastate Southwest Airlines.

Cited in the report were internal company memos and grand jury testimony that had been secret.

That grand jury testimony was made in 1975, after an antitrust indictment charged that Braniff and TI conspired to restrain trade at a time when Southwest was just getting off the ground. The indictment was dismissed on procedural grounds.

A new grand jury is presently investigating the case.

Both Braniff and TI have denied any wrongdoing in the matter.

Southwest was organized in 1967, but court cases kept the airline on the ground until 1971, when a Supreme Court ruling allowed it to begin service.

Once service began, the report said, Braniff and TI mapped strategies that

Decals become more visible

AUSTIN — Those round, green inspection stickers by the Texas Department of Agriculture to commercial scales and gasoline pumps throughout the state will soon be sporting a new look, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said today.

In an effort to make the decals more visible to both consumer and TDA inspectors, the new ones will be red, white and blue instead of the traditional colors, he said. In addition, they will be square-shaped with round corners.

"Although the colors of the stickers are changing," said Brown, "the purpose—consumers protection—remains the same."

"If scale or gas pump has a sticker attached, it means the device was accurate to within strict state tolerances when it was checked on the date indicated," stated Brown.

The TDA's Weights and Measures Section, which inspects all Texas commercial measuring devices annually, invites consumers who question a particular device to call (512) 475-6577. All calls are followed up by a re-inspection of the instrument in question, at no charge to consumer or merchant.

included close monitoring of Southwest ticketing operations. The report said the goal was to see if Southwest was violating Civil Aeronautics Board rules by carrying passengers making interstate flight connections.

The report also quotes a memo in which Jim Street, Braniff director of passenger and cargo services, told his employees, "If one of our Rocket flights incurs a delay, we will not under any circumstances refer any of our stranded or delayed passengers to Southwest."

"We will supply no information, loan no equipment nor in any way accommodate or assist Southwest Airlines."

The report also states that a TI executive tried to influence officeholders to appoint persons sympathetic to Braniff and TI to the Texas Aeronautics Commission.
