OBITUARY.

The death angel has visited the home of J. E. and Mollie Eastham and taken from them their youngest son, Theron Eastham. He was born Dec. 27, 1882, died Oct. 19, 1900, age seventeen years, nine months and twenty-two days. Theron was a kind and affectionate boy, and was loved by all who knew him, and will be greatly missed by his friends where ever they may go.

And, oh! that vacant chair at home, it can't be filled. Yet, he is gone, but not forgotten. Weep not father, mother, brothers and sisters; but strive to live a life that you all may meet in that sweet by and by, in that home where there will be no more parting, no more sorrow, no more tears, but all is joy, peace and happiness there.

May the Lord bless and comfort the family in their sad bereavement.

The hand that break the tender cord,
Whose love has bound the heart,
The hand, he laid to rest the words,
Must we forever part?
Dearest loved one we have laid thee
In the beautiful grave's embrace,
But thy memory will be cherished,
Till we meet thy heavenly face.
We miss thee from our home dear boy,
We miss thee from the place,
A shadow of thy form is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face,
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy hand and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss the ever yours.

A FRIEND.

Republicans May Contest the Recent Election.

CHAIRMAN NOT SO DECIDED

While the Matter is Afloat in the State Primary, the Chairman is Not So Decided.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 18.—With unusual returns from every precinct in Kentucky, the Courier-Journal publishes the majority at 7035 and Beckham's at 4116. The county board canvassed the returns in every county in the state Friday, and the fifty counties out of 113 in the state whose official returns had been received Friday night did not materially change the majority given in the foregoing, though there is no doubt that the full official returns will vary somewhat from the unofficial figures. It is as likely as not that in a majority of the counties where the vote was not counted, it will be in favor of the Republican.

It is not yet known whether the chairman of the county board will advise with national and state leaders as to whether or not contests should be made. He is not yet known whether he will advise with national and state leaders as to whether or not contests should be made.

SMITH SWINGS.

Life for Life Was the Penalty an Old Soldier Had to Pay.

Nacogdoches, Tex., Nov. 18.—F. M. Smith, the murderer of Mrs. Theodore Vawter, was hanged here Friday. It is estimated that 10,000 people were present and witnessed the execution. Smith was taken back from the penitentiary at Pook Thursday by Deputy Sheriff Rusk and after a few hours' rest at a nearby breakfast, took a bath and dressed himself in a neat black suit of clothes and informed Sheriff Campbell that he was ready to meet his fate. At 11 o'clock he was taken to the gallows a mile north of town, and at 11:30 the drop fell and in less than fifteen seconds Smith was a dead man. His neck was broken and death was instantaneous. He was a Confederate soldier. Smith was guilty of the act but complained of being chilly after he was placed on the scaffold.

Rev. Ellis Smith, local pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, went with him and administered spiritually in his last moments. Smith made a short talk, but did not refer to the crime. He said that he was at peace with God and bore no malice to mankind.

His body was out down as soon as Dr. Smith and Campbell pronounced him dead, and at 12 o'clock he was buried in the Nacogdoches city cemetery.

On the morning of Dec. 24, 1890, Theodore Vawter left home early and started to Apply, some five or six miles distant. Before leaving home he was able to turn a certain row and plug out of the lot. It seems from evidence adduced at the trial that the row and plug had been broken.

Smith and Vawter had just then up Mr. Vawter turned them out as her husband had instructed, and Vawter had not been gone long when Smith came down to her house and asked her if she had turned the hog out, and she replied that she had. Without saying another word Smith went to the house and got his double-barreled shotgun and came back to Vawter's.

In the meantime Mrs. Vawter had gone to the turnip patch to give her dinner, and there Smith found her. Without a word of warning he fired a load of buckshot into the body of the helpless and defenseless woman. Smith went home, put up his gun and started out for Nacogdoches to give up. Half a mile away from the scene of the tragedy he stopped at Mr. Freeman's farm, where he had done and requested him to see and shoot the matter. Smith came to Nacogdoches, surrendered and was placed in jail. Mrs. Vawter died at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the day she was shot, and a few nights afterward a mob was organized and started to Nacogdoches, ostensibly for the purpose of taking Smith out of jail and dealing with him in a summary manner.

On the night Campbell had been apprised of the mob's approach and when it arrived on the scene Smith could not be found. He had been taken to a secret chamber, but the officer or the mob followed, but the officer there had been notified by telephone, and so Smith again escaped, being taken from Lufkin to Reed and put in the penitentiary for safe keeping.

SHERIFF SCOTT

Taken to Houston by the Light Guard Military Company.

Nacavato, Tex., Nov. 12.—Sheriff Scott promised to leave the county for all time to come and make his home in some state other than Texas. This proposition came from Mr. Scott himself. Saturday evening it was learned that the adjutant general had decided to take Garrett Scott out of the county, and had ordered troops here immediately for the purpose. No agreement had been reached between Scott and his citizens, but that some of the citizens would do their part toward helping Scott safely out of Grimes county was not doubted.

The Houston Light Guard of Houston, forty-three strong, arrived here on the early Sunday morning train. They were met by Col. Hinson and Capt. Norwood, who assisted them in every way possible. They occupied wagons which were placed at their disposal. After remaining here long enough to eat breakfast they left for Anderson, the scene of the trouble. The militiamen arrived at Anderson about 11 o'clock. In the morning, encountering no obstacles on the way there or after their arrival.

Adj. Gen. Surry used every precaution necessary to get Sheriff C. C. Scott and party out of the jail and the town of Anderson safely. The citizens were requested to remain out of all houses from the jail to the public road to Nacavato, which was done. Sentinels of the Houston military company were stationed at points on the road to keep the crowd back. No demonstration to cross the line was made by any one.

The procession left Anderson quiet and the only noise heard was a farewell whoop to the procession.

Gen. McCord's company left the town lying down upon a mattress and the soldiers marched on all sides of the wagon with Mr. Scott.

The procession headed by Adj. Gen. Surry arrived here about 3:30 o'clock. They did not come through the main thoroughfares of this city, but went through the most sparsely settled residence portion of the town and moved down the railroad about quarter of a mile from the depot. The people here were out en masse to view the procession and they followed them up the railroad until stopped by the sentinels of the military company. The citizens were as quiet as if they were in a funeral procession. No excitement was noticed.

Arrives at Baton City. Houston, Tex., Nov. 12.—Sunday evening at 7 o'clock Sheriff Garrett Scott arrived at Houston on a cot from Nacavato, under escort of the Houston Light Guard, commanded by Capt. George McCord. The company left here Saturday night and went to Nacavato, Sunday they went across to Anderson in vehicles and escorted Garrett Scott to the train. Adj. Gen. Surry of the state militia was there and came down with the company and their charge. Their trip, so far as the soldiers feared, was uneventful. They found Mr. Scott protecting himself in the jail.

Gen. Richard Cooke, a native of Austin county, and thoroughly familiar with this section of the state, as well as having an extensive acquaintance down here, is here. He came down Sunday night from Nacavato, where he spent yesterday. In reply to questions as to the situation, he stated that he had talked to a number of friends, including several leading business men, and they almost unanimously said that the trouble was over.

Body Discovered. Dallas, Tex., Nov. 12.—The crew of Texas and New Orleans train No. 182 found the body of a white man in a hole of the track near Mahank in Kaufman county, Capt. W. Wayne, the superintendent of the train. Adj. Gen. Surry of the state militia was there and came down with the company and their charge. Their trip, so far as the soldiers feared, was uneventful. They found Mr. Scott protecting himself in the jail.

Retained a Host. Waco, Tex., Nov. 12.—The second day of the Baptist General convention of Texas opened with the customary devotional exercises.

The fight between Dr. J. B. Crandall and Rev. S. A. Hayden, both of Dallas, came up on the agenda. The right to appear as a messenger in the convention by Rev. S. A. Hayden was challenged by Dr. Y. Bagby of Nacavato. The challenged was sustained.

Frangit Convicted. Waco, Tex., Nov. 12.—On Saturday, the 27th ultimo, Wm. King, a negro desperado shot and killed a white man, state Officer Mitchell, who was in the act of protecting other negroes from the murderous assaults of King, who having drawn himself into a frenzy, was being struck. King was indicted the following Monday, and Saturday last, two weeks to the hour, a jury found King guilty of murder in the first degree and gave death penalty.

SAYINGS and DOINGS

Need Not Fear Her Book.

With the assurance from Mrs. Crowninshield, wife of the chief of the bureau of navigation of the navy, that her forthcoming book "The Archipelago and the Lady," does not deal with either official or social foibles in Washington, comes a rather reliable report in official circles, where it was expected she would make it lively for some of the leaders and their families. Mrs.

Windfall for an Actress.

Not until the body of Asa Parker Wilber had lain for fifteen days in the Potter's Field was it discovered that he was the supposed pauper revealed but one. It was a niece, Sarah, who was known to the San Francisco stage as the beautiful Vila Bayne. She is now the wife of Archie Ellis of Brooklyn and a still very beautiful woman.

Mayor Strong.

Strong was born in Ohio and came to New York when a child. He organized the firm of I. Strong & Co. The firm is one of the prominent business in the city. He also interested himself in banking matters and was president of the Central National Bank. He took an active part in politics, and was one of the leaders of the reform movement in the city, and was elected mayor in 1894. He was the last mayor of New York before consolidation with Brooklyn and the other boroughs composing the present city of New York.

Head Ticket Agent.

Heater and ticket agent of the Missouri Pacific Iron Mountain, has been elected president of the Association of Ticket Agents. He was born at Pittsburgh, Pa., in August, 1867. He entered the railway service in 1885 as a clerk in the auditor's office of the railroad, and held the position for several years. He was appointed a clerk in the freight office of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad. In the following year he was given a position in the general advertising department of the Pennsylvania railroad. In December, 1897, he was appointed general passenger agent in the United States. He held that position for six years, and left Toledo, Ohio, in November, 1897. In May, 1898, he filed the office of general passenger and ticket agent of the Washburn, St. Louis and Pacific, with headquarters in St. Louis. At the latter date he was appointed general passenger and ticket agent of the Missouri Pacific system.

MRS. A. S. CROWNINSHIELD. (Wife of the Admiral, Author and Composer. Talks of Her Latest Work.)

Crowninshield says that her book does not deal with American characters at all, and, in fact, the plot is laid in France, the exact spot being an old chateau near Paris which was built in 1150 and is now owned by Mme. Julie Adams. The Crowninshields were the guests of Mme. Adams for some time over a year ago and while there were given an elaborate house party. It was on this occasion, while wandering through the great old place, with all its historic memories being rehearsed to her, that the idea of writing a book with the old chateau as the scene was suggested to her. The chateau was an abbey until the fifteenth century, when it passed into a secular establishment.

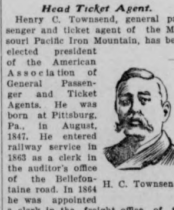

VILA BAYNE. Steps will not be taken to obtain her great inheritance.

A Cantonese Belle.

China is divided into eighteen provinces, and the dialects spoken in these states vary to so great a degree that the people of Canton—properly, Kiang-sing—speak a dialect which is entirely foreign to the ears of their brethren of the north or west.

By the will of Mrs. Indiana Wilber, who died in 1892, she left an estate of $500,000 to be divided among her children. The late Lord Date was one of the most ardent opponents of vivisection and at one time he was about to sign a transfer of an infirmary to the University College at Cardiff as a trust only on condition that vivisection should never be practiced.

THE LATE W. L. STRONG.

The contest was a bitter one. The one was the election of Mr. Strong a plurality of 47,377. The other was the election of Mr. Strong an overwhelming majority. It was he who appointed Colonel Waring commissioner of street cleaning, and, in spite of periods of strong opposition within and outside the party, kept him in office until the end of the mayoral term.

Holds Your Coat for You.

We illustrate below a novel device which might be the means of saving the price of a tip for the owner of the coat, provided the owner of the restaurant or other public place should see it to place it in position for use. The inventor's intention is to provide a device which will hold a man's overcoat in position while the arms are inserted and the coat adjusted to its proper position. Heavy spring wire is used for its construction and the arms are formed to spread the coat out and expose the armpits, holding the coat in this position as long as the person is standing, but folding together and withdrawing themselves from the back as soon as the wearer of the coat straightens himself up and relieves the weight on the spring arms. The mechanism is very simple and as the arms are pivoted on the wall support the device can be folded against the wall when in use, and can be taken up as an ordinary coat and hat rack.

Among the many passengers to arrive on the steamer New York Saturday, were Lord and Lady Francis Hope. Lady Hope is better known in the United States by the name of May Yobe. The actress and her husband.

Vivifying Water Power.

The technical press of Europe just now abounds in descriptions of the exploitation of water power. France, Italy and Switzerland are just discovering the amount of energy that goes to waste on their water sheds. Their water is to be replaced with the "cheap" white coal, as the snow and glaciers of the Alps have been called. An advantage of the white coal is that it is constantly renewed by the energy of the sun, whereas the black product of the same energy stored in the earth is subject to exhaustion.

FURIOUSLY DID THE WINDS ROAR

While a Number of Lifeless Bodies Were Cast by the Waves Upon the Bay of Lady Shore.

Yarmouth, N. S., Nov. 12.—The shore of this country for ten miles east and west is strewn with the wreckage of the hull and cargo of the steamer City of Montreuil, which foundered Saturday morning, and twenty-five bodies of victims of the disaster have been recovered from the sea, which is still raging with terrific fury. Many people have assembled at the wharves near where the first body came ashore, and numerous relatives of members of the crew who nearly all belonged to Yarmouth, have arrived to identify the dead.

Body of a Man Found.

The first body was found at daylight on the beach which was supposed by the survivors of the first boat to have been swamped was discovered on the shore. A few yards from the beach, the body of a man, a passenger, Second Engineer P. G. Phipp, a traveler for McGee & Sons of St. John's and the body of a seaman, were also discovered.

All four had life belts around them. At short intervals along the beach eleven dead bodies were found, making a total of twenty-five up to noon yesterday. They had all evidently come ashore in the life boat and were killed on striking the beach, not one escaping.

Watches in the Pockets of Two of the Men Stopped.

The body of Harding on the Montreuil has been found, and fully dressed. An unknown body, supposed to be that of a traveler, for a western who had been on board, has been found at the same place, with the bodies of Elsie McDonald and Second Officer Murphy, recovered Saturday. Of the members of the crew whose bodies were secured, Copeland and Bonham were not known to be on board until their bodies were identified. They had been on board for several days, having joined for the trip only. Several bodies are still unidentified. One body was recognized Saturday evening as John Richmond of Yarmouth, N. S., a traveler for a boot and shoe firm. He was not before known to have been a passenger. This week the known death roll of the steamer is as follows: Second Officer Whitmore previously reported lost; Copeland was also a substitute, but for whom it is not known.

It is a coincidence that the ship Terrence was wrecked off the coast a few days ago in the month of July, and a boat load of men came in from the Montreuil's boat was found. One of the men who died before the boat touched the land and many believe the same was true of those in the Montreuil's boat. The fury of the storm is appalling. In this morning's body of O. N. Coleman, another traveler, who was not previously known to have been on board the Montreuil; has been washed ashore and identified. He represented Levi Bros. & Co., jewelers, at Hamilton, Ont., and carried samples in trunks worth $40,000. One trunk has been found.

Wreckage of all kinds litters the shore, boxes, barrels, pieces of ships boats and parts of the superstructure of the steamer. James Burns, an agent of Yarmouth, who was supposed to have been on board, is safe, he having missed the steamer in St. John. Robert Gray was crossing the bay from St. John to Yarmouth to rejoin his own steamer.

"JUJUTSU"
 Science of Killing With Hands as Practiced by Japanese.
 IT MAY BE TAUGHT TO POLIEMEN.
 Interesting Demonstration Given Before Police Officials in Boston by John J. O'Brien, ex-Chief of Police of Nagasaki and a Japanese Master New Grip and Heala Shush.

It may be that the police of Boston and of New York will be taught the scientific art of jujitsu, which is the Japanese science of killing with the hands or killing without weapons, says the New York Journal. Then good-bye to policemen's clubs and clubbing by policemen. Refractory prisoners will suffer, not from cracked skulls, scalp wounds and bruised muscles, but their arms will be dislocated or their necks and backs wrenching until they submit.

John J. O'Brien, formerly of Boston and ex-chief of police of Nagasaki, gave an exhibition of jujitsu at the bureau of criminal investigation in Boston the other morning to the police commissioners, Superintendent Blodgett and many of the inspectors and sergeants. O'Brien explained that jujitsu enables small men easily to overcome big strong men. The truly leveling science is peculiar to one school of Japanese wrestlers, who teach the art to the children and to Japanese policemen, who have nearly untripped, tippy foreign sailors with it.

John J. O'Brien was invited to study jujitsu and became so proficient at it that he was made chief of it. O'Brien was assisted last night in his demonstration by a small Jap, K. Inou, who, although he is not strong, does know how to "kill" with his hands. The former chief of once admitted that the "holds" and "grips" he illustrated are "dead" on a street point of view. "But if a man is engaged in you to do anything, you may as well balance the sheets of fate and fore-wyn," said he. "Your idea is to prevent something. Let the other fellow take care of himself."

So saying, O'Brien once clinched, and Inou broke the clinch by throwing the Jap over his knee. Inou went flying and came on the mat with force enough to jar every bone in his body. But the Jap got up and smilingly requested the pleasure of showing some more "holds" to the commissioners. "A knowledge of anatomy, of where and how to take hold of a man, of the location and uses of the muscles, all of that is necessary," said O'Brien. "I've often seen Japanese boys, the young sons of welders, master me three times their age with the jujitsu."

Inou asked Commissioner Adams, a well trained athlete, to lend himself to the test, and the Jap could not push the commissioner from his feet. But he jabbed one finger on the commissioner's body where muscle heave was not effective, and Mr. Adams almost fell. "How about a man who is about to pull a gun on you?" asked the interested policeman. "If a fellow draws a gun at long range, I may be his, but if he comes close to me he's mine, sure," answered O'Brien, and he told Inou to make as if he drew a pistol from his hip pocket. Like a flash, O'Brien grabbed Inou by the wrist and wrifed his arm. The Jap was forced to lean over to rise and Inou, who had the gun, fell into his hands. If he had not, O'Brien could have twisted his arm out of its socket. "I can show you how to do when a man sees two holes of your coat," said O'Brien, and he seized Inou. "The man who is thrown in this way," said the instructor in the same fashion, "quicks as lightning placed his right foot against O'Brien's stomach, and pushed his forward leg and suddenly sat down. O'Brien sailed over the Jap's head and fell on his back several feet away. The Jap was standing over him before he could arise. "The man who is thrown in this way," said the instructor, "falls with his muscles rigid and looks for no further trouble. It's a fine way to end a street row."

"If a man comes at you with a stiff fist, how can you get?" asked one of the commissioners. O'Brien rattled off something in Japanese, then rushed at the man straight from the shoulder at his head. The Jap crossed his hands a few inches away from the man's face, and O'Brien's right hand struck the right hand, twisted it, and O'Brien fell. "There are many more ways of getting away from a punch like that," said O'Brien. "Here is one."

The Jap led for him with his left hand, struck up Inou's arm at the elbow. In the second O'Brien's left hand and under the Jap's left arm and gripped the neck of his neck. The Jap was perfectly helpless.

"With this grip, in this position, I could break his neck," said O'Brien. "The demonstration greatly interested the commissioners and police officials, and several showed more grip and holds, of which there are 200, but he said a thorough knowledge of these holds to a squad of policemen in four days. From Boston O'Brien was to go to New York, where he will demonstrate jujitsu to the police commissioners.
