Era ends with Groucho

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Groucho Marx is being cremated, and a memorial service Sunday will be a quiet family gathering closed to the millions who laughed at his zany antics and inspired insults for more than half a century.

"There will be just a private gathering at Arthur Marx's house Sunday," said a family friend. Arthur is Groucho's son.

"I guess you could call it the end of an era," said his longtime companion, Erin Fleming, who was at Groucho's bedside shortly before he died Friday night. "But I don't believe Groucho will ever leave us. He's too impudent."

Nat Perrin, long a close friend of Groucho's, said the comedian had asked to be cremated. A spokesman for Groman Mortuary would not say when Marx would be cremated, but Perrin said Saturday, "It may have already taken place."

Groucho, born Julius Marx on New York City's East Side 86 years ago, had lapsed into critical condition earlier in the day at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center after a two-month bout with pneumonia.

In a series of stage plays and movies with his brothers in the 1920s and '30s, Marx immortalized a variety of seedy, lecherous wisecracking characters like Wolf J. Flywheel, detective Sam Grunton, J. Cheever Loophole, and especially Professor

Marx's one-liners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Groucho Marx was as famous for his one-line wisecracks as for his bushy eyebrows and duck walk. Here are a few.

Woman: (passionately) "Closer darling."
Groucho: "If I were any closer, I'd be in back of you."

Man: "You love your brother, don't you?"
Groucho: "No, but I'm used to him."

Man: "He doesn't believe in wearing shirts."
Groucho: "Oh, an atheist, eh?"

He once resigned from a prominent country club, claiming, "I couldn't join any organization that would accept me as a member."

One night the daughter of actor Alan Ladd appeared on Marx' radio and TV quiz show, "You Bet Your Life." She remarked that her father was in the movies.
"Is your dad Laddie, son of Lassie?" Groucho asked.

Once a jackpot hopeful said he designed everything from a safety pin to a locomotive.
"Wait a minute — why would a locomotive need safety pins?" Groucho interrupted. "Oh, I guess when they change engines."

Auto firm suffers heavy loss in Saturday blaze

Fire, believed to have been caused by a lightning bolt, ravaged Dewey Ray Motor Company's building, early Saturday morning. The structure is located at 1607 E. 3rd St. The blaze was confined to the service department of the firm but damage from fire, smoke and water there was considerable.

The loss was estimated at near $100,000, the blaze apparently started in one of the electrical circuits in the parts department.

Firemen arrived on the scene at about 6:45 a.m., but it is believed the fire had been smoldering for a considerable time before it was discovered.

The heat from the fire was tremendous, as evidenced by the charred ceilings of the service department which in places were fully 50 yards from the actual blaze.

The inflammable materials and speed of combustion combined to cause the incredible heat which shattered several plate glass windows near the shop entrance.

According to Fire Marshall Colton Wright, the structure of the building had much to do with the intense heat because of the metal walls and fiberglass insulation.

According to Dewey Ray, owner of the dealership, the damage could have been much more extensive, and he said under the circumstances he felt lucky.

None of the records was destroyed, and the two cars which were damaged were not totaled.

Dewey Ray said he is confident that his operation would be back in business Monday. Ray also said the loss was fully insured.

MOTOR COMPANY'S SERVICE DEPARTMENT CRIPPLED BY BLAZE Dewey Ray says it'll be business, as usual, on Monday, however Hackenbush, of the raised eyebrows, false moustache and stooped walk.

His death leaves only Zeppo, who dropped out of the brothers' act to handle the business end, Gummo, Chico and Harpo all are dead.

Groucho became known to a younger generation as quizmaster of the radio and television show "You Bet Your Life," in which he mercilessly insulted contestants and sidekick George Fenneman until 1961.

"All we can say about Groucho is that he was one of the great original funny men," said another great comic of the same era, George Burns. "We're going to miss him a lot, but the things Groucho said will always be around."

And indeed, television reruns and Marx Brothers film festivals guarantee that future generations will learn to love Groucho one-liners

Baum may enter race in 17th

By TOMMY HART Jim Baum, longtime West Texas radio personality, presently manager of station KBYG in Big Spring, says he is lending serious thought to running for the office of U.S. Congressman, 17th District.

The position will be vacated after next year by Omar Burlison of Anson, who will have wound up 32 years in office.

Baum left on a short vacation the past week after telling intimates he probably would offer for the post. Baum, one-time professional baseball player who grew up in Abilene, has been a Democratic party worker. His friends say that at least two Republicans have come forward with offers of financial support if he elects to make the race.

Fred Davis, who shares billing with Baum on a morning radio show, said he was convinced that Baum will enter politics.

Should he declare, Baum would be the first Big Spring candidate in many years to seek such a position. Jim Sharp, a former Big Spring resident, announced recently he likely would run but he has not made a decision about his base of operations.

The only avowed Democratic candidate to date is A.L. (Dusty) Rhodes of Abilene, who formally announced the past week he would project his name in the First Democratic Primary next year.

A Republican, Bill Fisher of Abilene, visited Big Spring last week and stated unequivocally that he would be a candidate.

Baum has never offered before for public office but he said many of his friends, both in Big Spring and Abilene, had urged him to throw his hat into the ring.

Baum has attributes that may be hard to discredit. He is considered a good speaker and invariably is in a gregarious mood. He meets the public well and his radio audiences swear by him.

Equally important, he has a reputation for NOT making people mad. He feels at ease discussing the issues without trying to stampee his listeners on his viewpoints. In politics, that could be a major selling point.

Baum is married and owns his own home here. He and his wife, Margaret, are the parents of four children, all of public school age.

Drive a third of way home

Donations for the Bible Fund picked up again Saturday but the $3,391 raised thus far still leaves the sponsoring organization, the Howard County Ministerial Alliance, far short of its goal.

The alliance is seeking $10,000, a sum needed to insure Bible seats at the three high schools in the county — Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan. That means the campaign is only a little more than one-third complete.

In the 24-hour period ending at noon Saturday, a total of $520 was donated toward the fund, one of them in the amount of $100 from Mrs. C.B. Lawrence.

Gifts, preferably in the form of checks, can be turned in either to The Herald or to Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Big Spring. Patrick coordinates the drive on behalf of the alliance.

Welcome to the club

with Tommy Hart

A reader who signs his letter "Just Another Tired Taxpayer" sends along a choice item I know will make your day.

You're aware of the fact, of course, that your tax loot is used for every purpose imaginable — from studying the love life of animals long extinct to Elizabeth Ray's salary.

Consider, though, the case of the American flag. Something strange regularly occurs on the roof of the U.S. Capitol, something that contributes with monotonous regularity to the financial hole we've dug and from which we will never be able to extricate ourselves.

Daily, three laborers carry armful of U.S. flags to the roof of the majestic old building and commence running those standards up three flagpoles that have been erected there for that purpose. They allow each flag to whip about in the breeze for a few seconds, then run it down and run up another.

It goes on all day — up, wave, down. We couldn't afford the ammunition if they had to fire a cannon everytime a flag went up.

The bunting could just as well be a Jolly Roger, as far as the country's taxpayers are concerned.

What this imbecilic behavior has to do with, naturally, is votes. Any constituent, it seems, can write a congressman and receive a flag that actually has flown over the capitol.

People have been writing in at the rate of 500 or more a day, asking for such souvenirs. True, the constituent must pay for the cost of the flag — $5.10 for the regular size and $11 for the super-patriot size. Tax money, however, is used to bear the cost of the laborers, the mindless hauling up and down and the five secretaries it takes to type up certificates affirming that the flag actually did fly over the Capitol.

CONG. BOB KRUEGER PROJECTS IDEA He's off and running for Senate post

Krueger brings campaign here

By BILL WERRELL Congressman Bob Krueger said Saturday evening on a visit here that Sen. John Tower has a shameful record of leadership in the Senate for the last 16 years.

In his brief question and answer session with Big Springers in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Building, Krueger explained he was here principally because he was looking for work.

Having announced his intentions to run for the U.S. Senate nearly a month ago, Krueger asked the audience of 40 if they could ever remember Sen. Tower passing one piece of legislation or showing any kind of leadership through his 16 years as senator.

Krueger went on to say that he remembered something Tower said to the effect of "they'll close Webb AFB over my bloodied body". Krueger said he hadn't seen any tracks of blood.

In his opening remarks, he gave a bit of his background, and explained the "special responsibility" that Americans have in respect to the rest of the world. He explained, that while he was in England attending Oxford University he noticed that the United States of America was almost as much a household word as it is here, and that every decision America makes has its effect on the rest of the world.

Krueger briefly described his stand on the deregulation of natural gas and oil and said he thought that most Texans would prefer to bring control of these resources back to the people. He described such regulatory agencies as the EPA and IRS as institutions which could become institutions of "cruel interference."

Krueger said he was particularly concerned with the fact that America's gross productivity was expanding at a lower rate than it was in the 1950s and 60s. He said not only was this an indication that we might be losing a foothold in international competition, but those people in America who are not now in the economic mainstream are being pushed farther and farther away because there is no room to grow.

Asked if under his policy of deregulation he would jeopardize the important cities in the North, Krueger replied that the cities would not be deprived, and neither would the natural gas producing states. Under his bill, Texans would not lose from supplying parts of the Northeast with natural gas.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Tradition

Q. Why does the valedictorian not speak at graduation in Big Spring? Why was the valedictorian not even recognized at graduation last year?

A. Until two years ago, the valedictorian and salutatorian were always announced as a surprise at graduation. This practice was changed two years ago. However, the class has developed the tradition of electing two students to speak for the class. Often they are all-around students who have been involved in many things and are not necessarily at the top of the class in academics, but they do have to have a good grade average to be eligible. The valedictorian and salutatorian were asked to stand at graduation. They were presented scholarships in a senior awards assembly the same week. Giving the awards at the assembly keeps the graduation ceremonies from becoming longer. They also had their pictures in the high school paper and the Big Spring Herald the week of graduation.

Offbeat: Bear hair?

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A hair sample found on a Stilwell youth who said he was attacked by a nine-foot tall ape-like creature closely resembles the hair of a black bear, Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation chemists determined today.

"We can't conclusively state this is bear hair," said Don Flynn, chief chemist for the OSBI. But he said microscopic examination of the one strand of hair the OSBI was given showed the hair had "the appearance of bear hair."

Brian Jones, 17, said a strange creature clawed his back and threw him through the air near Stilwell the night of Aug. 5.

The report prompted a search of the area for the legendary creature Bigfoot, and other reports of possible appearances by a strange creature in northeastern Oklahoma and in nearby Dutch Mills, Ark.

Speculation turned to the possibility that a bear was involved in the attack when Mildred Kaiser of nearby Oak Grove, Okla., told authorities a large bear had mauled her dogs.

Radios play big role

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Arab radio stations, many calling themselves voices of unity, more often than not are fostering dissension in the Arab world.

"Radios are the thermometer of Arab political emotion," an Arab columnist wrote recently. "But this emotion is so volatile that the thermometer keeps going up and down like a crazy acrobat."

Radio plays a key role in forming Arab public opinion because of the emphasis on the spoken rather than the written word, a result of the spoken language's ability to incite emotion and of the fact that 70 per cent or more of the Arab public cannot read.

Expressions of fraternal love can turn to hatred that surpasses even the animosity toward Israel. The reversals can come quickly.

Cairo Radio, which two years ago lauded the Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy as "brother colonel," now calls him "a Soviet agent and Communist puppet."

Libyan radio, which once praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat as "our elder brother, the heir of Nasserism," now condemns him as "the American hireling" and "the C.I.A. agent."

Vance going to China to firm good will

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five and a half years after the United States and China first broke the ice, President Carter is sending Cyrus R. Vance to Peking to see if conditions are right for establishing full diplomatic relations with the Communist mainland.

The secretary of state departed Saturday for a four-day visit to China beginning Monday.

Administration officials, possibly mindful of frustrations in the Middle East and other foreign policy fronts, are minimizing Vance's expectations.

They told reporters the visit would be "basically exploratory" and without any prospect of "great results or pronouncements."

One top State Department official said flatly: "We are not going to China for a breakthrough in normalization."

Even so, Carter's goals are clearly pointed in that direction.

"We hope to find a formula which can bridge some of the difficulties that still separate us," the President said in a speech in May at Notre Dame.

Vance, in June, said: "We want to explore ways to normalize further our bilateral relations with the People's Republic of China. Mutual and reciprocal efforts in this regard are essential."

The main roadblock, administration officials agree, is the continuing U.S. relationship with the Nationalists on Taiwan.

Were it not for this "sticking point," a top policy-maker said, the administration would move immediately to full relations.

In signing the Shanghai communiqué with the late Premier Chou en-lai in February 1972, former President Richard M. Nixon acknowledged that "all Chinese on either side of the Taiwan strait maintain there is but one China and that Taiwan is part of China."

The Carter administration stands by the Shanghai communiqué and its promise of a gradual increase in American-Chinese contacts and exchanges. But the President and his policy advisers are reluctant to alienate Taiwan's supporters in Congress and within the public at large.

Some of these same Nationalist sympathizers are being courted by Carter to approve a new treaty scaling down U.S. control over the Panama Canal and to support pressures on Israel to make concessions to the Arabs.

Peking, meanwhile, has never permitted normal relations with any country until it broke relations with Taiwan. Unless Vance unexpectedly finds otherwise, the rule applies to the United States as well.

Li Hsien-nien, the senior deputy prime minister in the Communist government, emphasized last month that "relations can continue to be improved" if the United States fulfilled three conditions.

He listed them as: "Severance of diplomatic relations with Taiwan, withdrawal of its troops and abrogation of the (defense) treaty."

Li added: "None of these three can be dispensed with."

Searching for a way to accommodate Peking, the administration is considering the so-called "Japanese formula."

Hua leader in China

TOKYO (AP) — China announced today that its ruling Communist party has concluded its 11th national congress and elected Hua Kuo-feng as party chairman.

More than 100,000 flag-waving Chinese reportedly hailed the announcement by beating gongs and drums in Peking's central Tien An Men Square.

Hua's election, by secret ballot, formally endorsed his position as successor to the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung and indirectly gave the party stamp of approval to what are believed to be the keystones of Hua's policy — technological development and closer contacts with foreign nations.

The official Hsinhua news agency said that the seven-day congress, which ended Thursday, also elected 73-year-old Teng Hsiao-ping as a vice chairman of the party. Teng was restored to political power last month after radical elements, including the "Gang of Four" led by Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, toppled him early in 1976.

Other vice chairmen elected at the congress in Peking's Great Hall of the People were Defense Minister Yeh Chienying, Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien and Wang Tung-hsing, the party executive director, Hsinhua said.

Announcement of the congress' conclusion came as Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance began his trip to Peking for talks with the Chinese leadership. Vance was scheduled to arrive Tuesday.

The Hsinhua report from Peking, monitored here, said the congress was presided over by the 57-year-old Hua and "unanimously endorsed the political report delivered by Hua" on behalf of the party Central Committee. It said the report took four hours to deliver.

Hsinhua said Hua told the congress to "hold high the great banner of Chairman Mao and carry out his behests, sum up the experiences of our struggle against the ... Gang of Four ... bring into play all positive factors inside and outside the party and at home and abroad, unite with all the forces that can be united."

'Luckenback' top single?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Waylon Jennings is a finalist in four categories and his hit "Luckenbach, Texas" is a contender for top single in the nominations for the 11th annual Country Music Association awards announced Saturday.

Jennings, who has said he does not like competing against other singers for such awards, was nominated for entertainer of the year, album of the year for "Ol' Waylon," male vocalist of the year and teamed with Willie Nelson as a finalist for vocal duo of the year.

Other finalists for entertainer of the year — the top award — are Merle Haggard, Ronnie Milsap, Dolly Parton and Kenny Rogers.

Nominated with Jennings for top male vocalist are Larry Gatlin, Milsap, Rogers and Don Williams.

Finalists for top female vocalist are Miss Parton, Crystal Gayle, Emmylou Harris, Loretta Lynn and Barbara Mandrell. Superstar Tammy Wynette was not nominated.

The nationally televised awards show will be at the Grand Ole Opry House Monday night, Oct. 10. The awards are regarded as country music's equivalent to the Academy Awards for motion pictures.

Other nominees for single of the year are "It Was Almost Like A Song," by Milsap; "Lucille," by Rogers; "Margaretville" by Jimmy Buffet and "Southern Nights" by Glen Campbell.

Completing the finalists for album of the year are "I Don't Want To Have To Marry You" by Jim Ed Brown and Helen Cornelius; "I Remember Patsy" by Miss Lynn; "Kenny Rogers" and "Ronnie Milsap Live."

Nominated with Jennings and Nelson for vocal duo of the year are Bill Anderson and Mary Lou Turner; Miss Lynn and Conway Twitty; Brown and Miss Cornelius and Miss Wynette and George Jones.

Finalists for vocal group of the year are Asleep At The Wheel, Dave & Sugar, The Eagles, The Oak Ridge Boys and The Statler Brothers.

David and Archie Jordan for "It Was Almost Like A Song" by Milsap; Roger Bowling and Hal Bynum for "Lucille" by Rogers; Bobby Emmons and Chips Moman for "Luckenbach, Texas" by Jennings and Allen Toussaint for "Southern Nights" by Campbell.

DON'T LET YOUR KIDS HAVE ALL THE FUN.

Tell your kids to move over. The carnival isn't just for them.

The excitement on the midway is there for you, too. The thrilling rides. The fun games. The good things to eat.

They haven't changed, but maybe you think that you have.

Well, let's go, kid. Bring it all back. Come on out to the carnival.

Enjoy yourself again.

Chamber critiques itself fast, hard

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce wants to be accredited nationally.

Becoming so accredited take a number of steps, not the least of which is a self-study done by chamber members. Such an internal analysis would normally take three or four months.

But not when the town has "Hustle, Hustle, Hustle" down at chamber. Manager Bill Albright (better known as Hustle times 3) decided that if the accreditation is to be received by early next year, the self-study would have to be done in two weeks.

Given the guidelines set down for accreditation, this was a tough task, so he picked Howard College instructor Johnnie Lou Avery to ramrod the task.

Naturally, it was done in two weeks, and done well, I might add.

THE SELF-STUDY summary, as presented to the chamber's Board of Directors last Wednesday, makes interesting reading because, as Mrs. Avery noted, it is not a whitewash of chamber problems.

The study found most things right with the chamber, but the summary concentrates on area the accreditation task force found to be weak and recommendations on how they could be better.

For example, here are some high-points:

—A formal recognition program is needed for action group performance and outstanding volunteer service.

WASHINGTON—Dr. Rene Richards, the transsexual tennis player, is suing the U.S. Tennis Association, and The Women's Tennis Association for banning her from the U.S. Open at Forest Hills at the end of this month. The reason she has been banned is that she could not pass a sex chromosome test given to women athletes, to make sure they are what they say they are.

Dr. Richards claims the sex chromosome test is unfair and since she's allowed in professional women's tennis locker rooms, she should be allowed to play as a woman at Forest Hills.

"The other side maintains that if Dr. Richards is permitted to compete as a woman it will open the floodgates for a wave of transsexuals playing in women's sports. Many men would have operations just so they could compete against women.

It's possible. As a tennis player who rarely can beat a man on the courts, I've considered an operation similar to Dr. Richards' many times.

After a discouraging set the other day I even discussed it with my wife. "If I could only have a transsexual operation," I told her, "I know I could improve my forehead."

My wife was very sympathetic. "Do it if you think it will help your game." "The problem is I'm not sure. If I had the operation and then women started beating me, instead of men, it would make me sick."

"Women beat you now," she said. "I know," I replied, "and it makes me sick. But with a transsexual operation I might be able to psych them out."

"If they knew I was once a man, and they now had to play me as a woman, it could make them so nervous they might double-fault and lose their serve, particularly if I didn't shave my legs."

"It's a gamble," my wife admitted. "The only problem as I see it is that if you had the operation and you still kept losing tennis, there would be no way of going back, if you know what I mean."

"I've thought of that," I said. "But it did wonders for Dr. Richards' game."

"But she was a good player as a man. She's just become better as a woman. If you're a lousy player as a man there is no guarantee you'll play better as a woman. Wouldn't you feel more comfortable taking tennis lessons?"

"Do you know what they charge for tennis lessons these days? At least I could get the operation under Blue Shield and save some money."

"There is a compromise," my wife said. "Instead of going to all the trouble of the operation, why don't you play in women's tennis clothes? Then if it didn't work out you wouldn't have lost anything."

JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

—Strengthen and enlarge the scope of the newly formed Agri-Business Committee, since this is the weakest area of the chamber's program.

—Enlarge the Tourism Development Council and seek to attract new tourism facilities to Big Spring.

—Be more aggressive toward transportation, parking streets and highways, especially the proposed Interstate 27.

—Form a speakers' bureau to tell the chamber story.

—Set up a reserve or contingency fund for the chamber.

—Improve the chamber's relations with Howard County officials.

—Put more efforts into identification and development of new young leaders for the chamber.

—Place more emphasis on rural communities in Howard County.

—Form an intergovernmental council with the chamber as a coordinating organization.

—Improve the chamber's reception area and place a larger sign on building.

THERE WERE, many more recommendations, of course, since the pile of documents prepared in only two weeks is three or four inches thick.

But there is no doubt that our already hustling chamber is going to be the better for the self-criticism.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL D. BROOKS

TREE LIMB WHISTLES

Back when I was growing up the only toys lots of kids had were the ones they made for themselves. One we made quite often was the tree limb whistle.

Dad showed me how to make the first one I ever saw. He took a green limb (a little bit bigger than the kind you made switches with) from the elm tree in our back yard. (1) He cut off a section about three inches long that was about as big around as your finger. (2) One end was then tapered to make a mouth piece. (3) A small notch was cut in the top part through the bark into the wood just above and in front of the mouthpiece, then near the other end a cut was made through the bark all the way around the limb. (4) Next came the hard part. With the back of the pocket knife handle he whacked the bark a bunch of times all over the end with the mouthpiece. He would hold it up and inspect it then whack it some more. Then he carefully took the limb and twisted it in his hands 'til the bark on that end just slipped right off! (5) The slick, white wood left exposed was then hollowed out. (6) The bark was very carefully slipped back in place just as it had come off and the whistle was ready to blow.

We were very enthused about the possibilities of this project and immediately set about to make more. We tried several different types of tree limbs and found that some worked and some didn't. Willow worked as well as elm, cottonwood was fair but mesquite and hackberry were no good at all. We also found that at certain times of the year the bark slipped off better. I think it was in the spring but I may be wrong.

We made big ones and little ones and found that the sound (Mother called it noise) could be varied by how the notch was cut and how the limb was hollowed out. We sometimes cut round holes in the bark to make a sort of flute. You could make different notes by covering different holes with your fingers. We even made one from a tree trunk once. We had a devil of a time getting the bark to slip but when we were finished it looked pretty neat. The only problem was nobody had enough wind to blow it. My brother made one from the fork of a limb. He made a whistle on all three ends and each one sounded different.

I remember they were fun to make and fun to use. I think I'll go make one right now. You might want to try one too.

Ovaries not only culprit in 'flashes'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In a letter a while back you said there were reasons for a woman to have hot flashes other than from not taking hormones. I would like to know why a woman in her early 60s would have these hot spells and throw the covers off in the night, open the door, or take a sweater off in the daytime. I would think she should be past the menopause, or change of life, by then.

She had a hysterectomy 14 years ago and I think it was a complete one. Would you please list other reasons for this? It's my wife. — M.M.

The causes of the hot flashes is an unstable vasomotor system — the system that controls the size of the blood vessels, including those that serve the skin. If the vessels become dilated (widened) at random, as they may with an unstable hormone control system, then symptoms such as flushes or sweating can occur. While hormones do control this system, instability can occur with or without ovaries present. Anxiety, overactive thyroid, or a subtle infection can produce the symptoms you describe.

Your use of the term "complete" hysterectomy is, as always, confusing. If your wife's ovaries were removed (and I'd think she would know for sure) then flushes can result. This can continue well into the 60s for some women. My booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," answers most of the other questions about this often puzzling condition. You (and other husbands) might do well to study it. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard and read of fatty liver and swollen liver. Are they different ailments? If so, what is the difference? Outside of having a large stomach what are the symptoms of both? How is it determined? — D.J.M.

Fatty liver is due to depositing of fat into the liver cells. Just plain fatness can cause it, as can alcoholism and diabetes. Poisoning, as from carbon tetrachloride or chloroform, etc., may cause it. A swollen liver can result from congestion, as from heart failure. There are other causes, but this is enough to give you the idea. It can develop from any condition that interferes with the normal activity of the organ.

The liver may become so fatty as to cause a general enlargement of the abdomen, with few if any other symptoms. Diagnosis of fatty liver is made by examining a sliver of tissue obtained through a hollow needle (a liver biopsy).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am told that my white blood count is below normal. It was tested at 2,700. Is there anything I can do about that? I do have gouty arthritis. Is there any connection? — A.V.B.

A borderline count for the white blood cells is about 4,000, so yours is quite low. I presume your count was rechecked to determine if there was a laboratory error. In any case such a count is usually verified by a follow-up test.

Assuming the test was accurate there can be numerous possibilities. Among them are a recent viral infection, such as influenza or a cold, or a bone marrow deficiency. Your gouty arthritis can be a factor, because of medication taken for the gout or from the chronic infection.

You should be checked periodically. If the count remains as low as you say it is then other tests are needed to determine the cause.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a vaginal infection be transferred between three sexual partners? I mean if a woman has it can a man pick it up from her and then infect a second woman? — F.O.

The answer to your question is yes. One thinks of venereal disease, of course, but other infections not usually considered in that category (trichomonas, for example) can also be transferred in the way you suggest. So can most other genital infections. In fact, the male may, in the case of trichomonas be infected and not be aware of it. There are cases where a wife has been successfully treated only to be reinfected by the male. Thus, it is well to treat both sexual partners at the same time.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can find out about the causes — and the cures — for this troublesome complaint in Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get your copy, write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We give money to several Christian organizations in addition to our church. But a friend of ours said we should only give money to the church, and let the deacons decide whether or not to support any other Christian groups. Do you have any opinion on this? — M.T.

DEAR M. T.: I don't find anything in the Bible that would prevent you from giving money directly to various Christian ministries. Whether or not you want to do that instead of giving all your contributions to your church may depend on several things. You may, for example, have some special burden for a particular ministry, financially. There are many fine Christian groups today that depend almost completely on individuals for financial support. In fact, some of these groups could do a great deal more if they had greater support.

I am glad you take your financial responsibilities seriously. I believe there is a great need for Christians (especially in a wealthy nation like ours) to give prayerful attention to the giving of money for the Lord's work. The Bible warns us to "keep your lives free from the love of money" (Hebrews 13:5, New International Version). It also teaches that we have a responsibility to give our money for God's work. Our example should be the Macedonian Christians who "gave as much as they were able, and even beyond their ability" (II Corinthians 8:3, NIV).

President Carter is critical of the American public because, he says, we aren't taking the energy shortage seriously. Perhaps we all would if it'd start at the top.

For instance, when Carter goes someplace, he flies in Air Force 1 which uses a tremendous amount of fuel. Think how much energy he'd save if he took the bus.

Or better yet, why doesn't he hitchhike? *

Effective Immediately
1. Patrol officers while attending X-rated movies at the local drive-in will refrain from using the electronic speakers on the squad car to make comments such as "right on" during selected scenes.

2. Officers while on suspension will no longer be required to sit and meditate on the City Hall flag pole for the required three days (excluding rain time).

3. Will the officer or officers wearing panty hose please remove same from the first aid kit in the traffic car.

4. The practice of releasing stray dogs into the YMCA swimming pool at night will stop immediately.

5. It has been requested that the Police Grievance committee refrain from taking the Thompson .45 caliber to the next meeting with the city council. Furthermore, it was suggested that the term "living wage" be substituted for "slave wages" at the next proposal.

6. Aerosol cans of red paint will no longer be used to mark 24-hour parking violations. Chalk will again be used and officers are reminded it will no longer be necessary to note time and date of violation on the trunk lid of the violator.

7. Due to complaints from the District Attorney's office, the Matell toy phone will no longer be given to defendants requiring bond money.

8. One-year-old accident reports will no longer be given to the police reporter. He has recently purchased his required amount of Policeman's Ball tickets. *

Herald word maker Sandra Green, back from visiting Oklahoma City and Norman, reports:

Long ago, an old Indian chief was skins. The one returning with the most River and Falling Rocks, the two bravest warriors in the tribe, and asked them to go out and seek buffalo skins. The one returning with the most skins would be the new chief.

Running River came back several weeks later with 200 pelts but Falling Rocks never returned. To this day as you drive through the West, you see signs saying, "Watch Out For Falling Rocks."

Retails the Canal

WASHINGTON — President Carter realized the political complexity of seeking quick Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaty when his early barrage of telephone calls produced nothing immediate from the two notables whose help he needs most: Ronald Reagan and Henry Jackson.

THE WHITE HOUSE wanted passivity from Reagan to dampen opposition from conservative Republicans, and support from Sen. Jackson to bring along defense-oriented Democrats. Instead, both were noncommittal in response to the President's personal request. Reagan could well end up as an active foe of ratification and Jackson may levy a substantial price on unrelated matters before finally supporting the treaty.

Actually, Reagan and particularly Jackson are only secondarily interested in the canal itself. Reagan wants to keep his basic conservative constituency. Jackson, who has never shown interest in the canal issue, would like presidential commitments on arms control and national security.

Mr. Carter is vulnerable to such politics because he must sell the treaty at retail, not wholesale. Instinctive public opposition to transferring the canal to Panama is so overwhelming that Carter strategists doubt even the bully pulpit of the presidency can reverse opinion in time. So the President is reduced to a retail search for political leaders.

Gerald R. Ford and Henry Kissinger quickly granted approval (even without seeing the written treaty). But public rejoicing at the White House over the Ford-Kissinger endorsements was matched by private skepticism about their value. "Ford's support should do wonders with the Republican party, just like last year," a sarcastic Carter adviser cracked.

But Reagan's neutrality could help significantly. Reagan's response to the President's call — that he needed to see the treaty before deciding — was considered encouraging at the White House. Canal negotiator Sol Linowitz offered to travel to California to brief Reagan.

INDEED, SOME key Reagan aides were embarrassed last year by his dramatic use of the canal in primary elections against President Ford. They now worry that violence in Panama which might result from Senate rejection of the treaty could be blamed on Reagan. Besides, they reason, the charge of "secret" canal negotiations used against Ford so effectively no longer applies. So, when anti-treaty Senators asked Reagan to testify before a Senate subcommittee Sept. 8, Reagan's staff replied: sorry, the governor is busy that day.

Sensing what was afoot, other Reagan advisers were appalled — not so much by the canal itself but because they knew a passive Reagan role would be viewed by hard-core Reaganites as betrayal. One key Reagan supporter, who had silently accepted Reagan's selection last year of liberal Sen. Richard Schweiker as his running mate, told us neutrality on the treaty would be "a second Schweiker, and two is one too many."

Sen. Jesse Helms, leading the fight against ratification, called Reagan to argue his case — a precursor of an onslaught to come if he stays quiet. But Reagan is an experienced politician who knows that abandoning a base of support can be political suicide. On Aug. 16, he began edging toward clear opposition.

REAGAN INFORMED Linowitz there was no point in coming West without a written treaty (which does not exist yet). Anti-treaty Senators were told Reagan might attend that Sept. 8 hearing after all. Reagan flatly advised CBS what he had left ambiguous when talking to Mr. Carter: he opposes any treaty which relinquishes the canal. While aides will keep him from leading the fight, that is not the same as neutrality.

Scoop Jackson's role is less public but probably more important than Reagan's. The President cannot win ratification without defense-oriented Senators such as Jackson and Georgia's Sam Nunn — both of whom so far say nothing about the treaty.

Dear Editor:

I am writing this because I was embarrassed this morning when a certain place refused to take a personal check for a purchase. I failed to see a 1 inch by 4 inch sign saying No checks.

I am one of these people who carry very little cash, but carry a check book so that I can keep track of where every cent goes that I spend. I'm sure that there are many more like me in Big Spring.

I went down the street to a locally owned business, got better service, and they took my check. Most of the places that refuse to take checks are chain operations whose profits do not remain in Big Spring, but end up out of state or a larger city elsewhere. The local owner-operator keeps money circulating within our city's economy. Home owned operations are more concerned with people than excess profits. Sure they will lose some on taking checks but in the long run will be winners.

Lets help them be winners. If you walk into a place of business and see a small sign that states they do not take local checks (in essence we do not trust you) turn around and walk out, find a place that does trust you and do business there from now on. I would think our local bankers would make a point of doing this. I don't maintain a checking account just so I can go to the bank and write a check whenever I need cash.

Its fame a curse

LUBBOCK — The Egyptian Nile has been famous for some of the world's earliest civilizations, but today that fame is mixed with a serious problem of over-crowding in the cities of Cairo and Alexandria.

The solution perhaps lies in developing other areas to reduce the population pressures in the two cities. But whatever the solution, it can well have applications in any of the world's water-short environments, including West Texas.

The Egyptian Government, with assistance from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), is making an ecological analysis of the Mediterranean coastal deserts to lure people to the northern part of the country.

The ecological examinations will help in determining how the delicate desert lands in the northern coastal areas will respond to the migrating population and its agricultural practices.

Two senior Egyptian scientists visited Texas Tech University earlier this month, to seek advice on the continuation of their ecological analyses and also to discuss how their work will benefit the Lubbock institutions' research interests.

Drs. M.A. Ayyad and Samir I. Ghabbour of Egypt met with Dr. Harold E. Dregne, director of Texas

Tech's International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS), to discuss soil and water management practices in northern Egypt.

Ayyad is professor of plant ecology at the University of Alexandria and principal investigator, and Ghabbour is a soil zoologist at the University of Cairo and co-investigator on the project.

Dregne has an interest in the program, "as the results of the Egyptian's work could be used in any part of the world's water-short environments. Over-crowding near water sources in dry lands creates unusual strains on the ecology of the area surrounding the water source."

The first part of the project was completed during the last three years and Ayyad and Ghabbour have already presented preliminary results to the Egyptian Government and the EPA.

During their visit the Egyptians also met with Drs. Joe R. Goodin and David K. Northington of the biological sciences faculty at Texas Tech.

Both Goodin and Northington have done preliminary work on transplanting native North American salt-tolerant plants in Egypt for increasing forage production. The pair visited Egypt this year to lay the groundwork for research on salt-tolerant plants, or halophytes. The trip was funded by the Smithsonian Institution Foreign Currency Exchange Program and coordinated by ICASALS.

The idea originated when Dr. M.A. Zahran of Mansoura University in Egypt came to Texas Tech to attend the International Salinity Conference last year. Zahran read a paper on transplantation of salt tolerant plants in saline soils in Egypt. The conference was sponsored by ICASALS.

Ayyad advised the Texas Tech biologists how his current projects could supplement their efforts by using some of the data that he has already collected.

The Texas Tech professors will present a discussion on their studies during the International Workshop on Bio-Saline Research at Kiawah Island, Charleston, S.C., Sept. 15-18.

"The workshop will prepare a plan for a comprehensive bio-saline research program on an international level and identify researchers and institutions for the cooperative conduct of necessary basic and applied research in the United States and other countries," Goodin said.

The workshop is being conducted by Indiana University with the support of the National Science Foundation and the Kuwait Institute of Scientific Research.

Both Ayyad and Ghabbour said they hoped to attend the International Arid Lands Conference on Plants Resources, October 8-15, 1978, at Texas Tech.

Tax problems? help in sight

DALLAS — Having difficulty getting a knotty tax situation untangled? Well, help may be in sight. Internal Revenue Service District Director A. W. McCanless says.

McCanless explained that the IRS has created a Problem Resolution Program (PRP) office to help North Texas taxpayers with Federal tax problems they feel are not receiving prompt, appropriate attention from the IRS.

The District Director stressed that taxpayers first should try to get their problem solved through the usual IRS channels such as Taxpayer Service or the Audit or Collection divisions. If this fails the taxpayer should contact PRP.

"The system is not new to North Texas," McCanless stated. "It was tested in Dallas last year and will be used by all IRS district offices this year. It's a way to do a better job helping taxpayers solve their tax problems."

McCanless said that the PRP office is under his supervision in the district office in Dallas. Problems can be routed to the Dallas PRP office from any IRS office in the state or by writing Special Tax Problems, P.O. Box 1040, Dallas, Texas 75221.

John Marder, a native of the Houston area, has succeeded Ann Ward as head of the Journalism Department at Howard College.

Marder won his BA Degree in Journalism at the University of Houston and his MA Degree in Mass Communications at Texas Tech University.

For two years, Marder worked as an advertising representative for the Delta (Vancouver) Optimist, during which time he wrote advertising copy and did some photography.

While at Tech, he was a teaching assistant in Telecommunications for two years, having been assigned to basic radio communication operations.

He is married. His wife's name is Ella. They have a five-year-old daughter named Dawna. He is affiliated with the Unitarian Church.

Marder said he plans to continue publication of the college newspaper, El Nido. "Hopefully, we can make it the best newspaper of its kind possible," Marder said.

Sect. Stetson will be AFA conclave speaker

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Air Force Secretary John Stetson will make his first major public speech at a luncheon in his honor during the Air Force Association's (AFA) national convention next month.

The convention will be held in Washington's Sheraton-Park Hotel, Sept. 19-22. The luncheon honoring Sect. Stetson is scheduled Wednesday, Sept. 21, in Sheraton Hall.

The Association's Aerospace Development Briefings and Displays will run Sept. 20-22, also at the Sheraton-Park. They will be the largest, most comprehensive exhibit of aerospace technology in the country. Ranking military and government officials will get a broad look at the latest in aerospace technology, from avionics to cruise missiles, advanced aircraft and satellite design.

The Briefings and Displays — with more briefing companies occupying more space than ever before — will feature leading United States and foreign aerospace industrial exhibits.

Convention activities begin September 18 with an AFA Board of Directors meeting in the morning and an exclusive visit to the National Air and Space Museum in the evening. The convention kicks off officially the following morning with opening and award ceremonies. Business sessions begin that afternoon. Delegates will adopt AFA policy papers and will elect national officers and directors for the coming year.

The 12 Outstanding Airmen of the Air Force will be honored at a special dinner the night of September 19. Luncheons Tuesday and Wednesday will honor the Chief of Staff and Secretary of the Air Force. The convention will be climaxed by a Wednesday evening dinner dance and the presentation of the Association's highest award, the H.H. Arnold Trophy, to the Aerospace Man of the Year. Actor William Conrad, television's "Cannon," will narrate a tribute to the Air Force's 30th anniversary.

Also meeting during the convention will be the Association's Enlisted and Junior Officer Advisory Councils. Air Force Junior ROTC instructors will participate in a workshop, and will host the first worldwide Senior Enlisted Advisers Conference.

The Air Force Association, a private, nonprofit, non-partisan national organization, supports aerospace power adequate to protect national security and maintain world space.

Students report starting Aug. 23

LUBBOCK — Registration for the fall semester at Texas Tech University will be held Aug. 24, 25 and 26 in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Individuals may register at assigned times from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Aug. 24 and 25, and from 8:00 a.m.-6:00 p.m., Aug. 26.

Freshman students who have not registered previously may register Aug. 23. Late registration will continue through Sept. 14 in the Registrar's office and through departmental offices.

Fall semester classes will begin Aug. 29. Finals will be given Dec. 12-16.

Enrollment for the fall semester, 1976 were 22,176.

Energy

'Why not cut bills?'

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Brady, who told the government to "bug off" when it requested information about his solar-powered home, is giving the same government another chance.

Brady is a consulting energy engineer with a mission. He wants the Carter administration to offer incentives to those who find ways to recycle energy.

"Let's give the Carter administration credit for something bad," Brady said. "The Carter energy policy is not really appropriate without a credit of some kind for energy recycling."

Brady said he stumbled onto the "maddeningly simple" idea of using energy more than once when he was commissioned to do a study for a Dallas cafeteria.

He found that waste heat from air conditioners and refrigeration units could be used again to provide hot water for other needs.

Brady also found that no government help was available for such a project. "Energy recycling should be subsidized like solar, geothermal, nuclear and wind energy projects are," Brady said.

He estimates that the cafeteria could cut its utility bills by 30 per cent, with two or three years necessary for the necessary equipment to pay for itself.

"I'm having a hard time getting the country changed while I'm trying to keep my own profits and losses straight," said the university lecturer and City of Dallas solar consultant—with tongue firmly in cheek.

Brady had problems with the government when he tried to get some help for his solar-powered home in Plano, a Dallas suburb. The government backed off and it cost Brady $30,000 to finish the project, which includes solar air conditioning as well as the simpler process of solar heating.

"Then they (the government) started calling regularly to get data from my home's operation," Brady said. "I told them to bug off."

Brady said he knows of no other home which is totally solar powered. The house does have backup electric and gas systems, which are used instead of drawing on solar reserve power.

Summaries of Volume I of the water quality management plan for the Upper Colorado River Study Area will be presented at three meetings next week.

The initial publication was prepared by the Colorado River Municipal Water District under a grant from the Texas Water Quality Board. It is the first of the studies under Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972. Other segments of the Colorado River basin are expected to follow soon, as will studies in other Texas river basins.

O.H. Ivie, general manager of the CRMWD, and Rodney Lewis, who directed preparation of the report, will explain highlights of the report at a meeting Tuesday (Aug. 23) at the City Council chambers in Lamesa. County and City officials, from Lamesa to the New Mexico line west and northwest, are invited, as well as any interested citizen. Copies of the volume, along with an appendix of supporting data, will be distributed.

Officials and others will be asked to study the document, particularly as applies to their areas, and submit comments or suggestions for inclusions and exclusions, within 20 days to the Citizens

Two from here earn degrees

Clarence A. and Edith Beth Grubaugh, natives of Big Spring, were among 77 students receiving bachelor's degrees from Dallas Baptist College during its summer commencement on Thursday evening, August 18.

Grubaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Grubaugh of 1505 Cherokee, was awarded a bachelor of business administration degree, and Mrs. Grubaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alois Desire Heirman of Big Spring, received a bachelor of arts degree.

Dallas Baptist College is a four-year liberal arts college with about 1200 students.

DESIGNER BILL BROOKS' DRAWING OF PROPOSED SKATEBOARD PARK

Landslide may have killed 31 Plans compare with best Skateboard park a plus JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A major earthquake in the eastern Indian Ocean triggered a landslide on the Indonesian island of Sumbawa, the government said today. At least 31 persons were reported dead and 67 others missing. They were the first casualties reported since the quake, possibly the strongest ever recorded, struck between Indonesia and Australia at 1:11 p.m. Jakarta time, 2:11 a.m. EDT on Friday. The Indonesian Meteorology Department pinpointed the quake's epicenter in the ocean 931 miles southeast of Jakarta. Sumbawa is one of the closest land areas to the epicenter, about 400 miles to the north.

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder and, to many, the skateboard park being planned by Keith Bristow and David Terry, may prove to be a definite plus. The park compares favorably to the best parks in California (where the fad of skateboarding has been intensified) and will be, by far, the finest thing of its kind in the state of Texas. The park will be located on an acre of ground Bristow has owned for some time. According to Bristow, it will be situated in such a place that much of the sound emanating from it, if indeed there is an abundance of noise, is muffled from residences closest to it — board equipment or rent the padding they must wear to enter the track area. The project, which will cost up to $60,000 to complete, will be landscaped attractively with two gazebos, the pro shop, and shrubs planted about the tracks. Chances of attracting out-of-state competition are good, said Bristow, because of the high quality track the skateboard park will have. The proposed site of the park is situated on the east side of F.M. 700 just below the city water towers, to the northwest of the Barcelona apartment complex.

Educator rips biology books

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A Baytown educator says all biology books offered for use in Texas schools next year were full of explicit sex "and a bias toward revolution." "I recommend that you postpone adoption of all biology textbooks to allow a study of more objective and scientifically-sound books," said Dr. Monty Kester of Lee College in Baytown, one of the last witnesses heard by the Texas Textbook Committee in three days of public hearings. His wife, Karen, urged adoption of books that are "clean and objective."

At 64, singer going strong

TORONTO (AP) — Billy Eckstine, the man once known as the 'Great Mr. B. of Bebop,' is still going strong at 64. The jazz singer, composer and cornetist, looked back on his 43 years as a performer during a Canadian engagement this week with Sammy Davis Jr. "We were known for our bebop," Eckstine said of the 1940s swing group carrying his name that included singer Sarah Vaughan, saxophonist Charlie (Bird) Parker, and trumpeters Dizzy Gillespie, Roy Elridge, Miles Davis and Fats Navarro. "I love the music, but I hated the label."

Presley will be readied

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's will, which the singer had drawn up several months ago, will be probated starting next week, says his father. "Elvis did have a will and the attorneys will handle it next week," Vernon Presley said in an interview in today's Memphis Commercial Appeal. "Elvis called me up to his suite several months ago and asked me if I would have a will made up for him. We discussed it. Then I talked to the attorneys. It was drawn up. He approved it and it was signed and witnessed by three people and notarized." He declined to discuss the details of the will except to say that Graceland Mansion will remain in the family. Elvis bought the mansion after his initial musical success. He died there Tuesday afternoon at the age of 42 of a heart attack. The more than 3,500 floral tributes that were left at Forest Hill Cemetery where Presley was entombed in a private section of a mausoleum on Thursday were given to fans who were allowed into the cemetery Friday. Ralph Davis, cemetery superintendent, said the flowers and other mementoes were gone by mid-morning but that the fans marched through the gates and up the mile-long driveway to view the stately marble mausoleum in an almost unbroken line through Friday. Earlier in the week, cemetery officials said the mausoleum itself would be opened today. But M. N. Murray, one of the cemetery owners, said it may be Monday before the building would be opened to the public.

EYE-CATCHING ATTIRE IN AREA OIL FIELD
Mike Holton back from Middle East

Even in Arab garb

That face is familiar

That amiable Arab seen about the streets of Big Spring in recent days isn't an Arab at all, but rather Mike Holton, a native of the city. Employed by the Offshore Drilling Company of Houston, Mike has spent much of the last 18 months on overseas assignments.

While in the near East, he bought himself some Arab clothing for $20 and has been wearing them on occasions here. He's a roughneck with Offshore Drilling Company and has spent part of his time recruiting talent for his company. Holton was working on offshore rigs near Aberdeen, Scotland, from January until December 1976. He moved on to Malta in December, which he says is going to be the offshore oil capital of the world ere long. All the major companies are moving men and equipment there, using it as a base of operations from where they will fan out all over the Mediterranean. When he returns to his work shortly, Mike will be assigned to the African Ivory Coast where more drilling is taking place. Mike, now 26, is the son of J.T. and Joann Holton. His mother lives in the Kentwood Addition and his father works in Midland. His father is in the oil business, too. Money and travel inducements lured him into foreign service with the oil companies. He says he actually works only 5½ months a year but that is a deceptive schedule. When he works he sometimes does double and triple shifts. He's already been in all countries in Europe but Spain and the Communist countries and hopes to see much of Africa upon his return to his job. Mike graduated from Big Spring High School in 1970. He formerly was a ski instructor in Snow Bird, Utah and was a bar tender in Squaw Valley, Calif. He also sold cars for Jack Lewis Buick and Cadillac here. Russ Rutledge, who went to school with Mike, suggested that he apply for work with Offshore. Rutledge is about to return to an assignment in Brazil. Holton plans to do at least one more hitch with the company. In order to become tax exempt, he must remain out of the country 510 days over a two-year period. He says his company allows him to do $50 a month for cost-of-living expenses. As a result he and some of his co-workers often rent mansions.

Military Security is tightened at military facility

Base security police have strengthened their crime resistance campaign throughout Webb AFB through a number of initiatives.

The Big Spring Police Department, Howard County Sheriffs and other civil law enforcement agencies across the nation are implementing programs of greater citizen awareness and participation in crime prevention. These programs have names such as "Neighborhood Watch," "Parent Alert," and "Lady Alert."

Air Force security police have looked over the shoulders of civilian counterparts and found techniques suitable for application in the Air Force community. The command section of an Inspector General (TIG Brief) article emphasizes that this is not an effort to pin a badge on every citizen but rather to awaken them to the reality that certain of these responsibilities are inherent obligations of citizenship. The tasks of making a community a safe place to work and raise children falls upon each of us, the article said.

Security police surveillance has been increased in the housing area by walking and bicycle patrols. Shortly, security police hope to improve Crime Stop notification by monitoring the emergency Citizens Band radio channel. With the phase down, base personnel must join together to prevent pilferage, vandalism, and thefts from both unoccupied and occupied houses.

Authorities remind that empty homes provide added temptation for our youth. "Know where your children are playing," said Capt. Frederick Riccardi, SP chief. "Insure they abide by Wing curfew rules." Personnel and dependents in off limits or work areas after duty hours will be questioned by security police on their presence as part of the field interview program. Further, vehicle inspections and building checks are being increased on a daily basis.

Each citizen of Webb multiplies crime prevention efforts by alertness to suspicious activity. Surveillance should be increased by watching for and challenging unidentified or suspicious individuals in the barracks, housing, or work areas. One can call CRIME STOP, ext. 2200 (phone 267-2511 from Webb Village) if he has any doubts, or sees unusual or suspicious events, criminal or drug related activity, or indications of theft of government property.

Farm Fertilizer sale high

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers bought a record amount of fertilizer in the year ending June 30, but a top chemical corporation executive thinks the pace will decline by 5 to 7 per cent by next summer.

Fertilizer consumption, measured by the amount that left producers' facilities, rose five per cent in the year ending June 30 compared with the previous year, the Fertilizer Institute says. A 16 per cent increase in deliveries of potash products, an 11 per cent rise in deliveries of phosphates and a 6 per cent climb in use of nitrogen products pushed the consumption totals above 51 million tons for the first time, the private association said.

Joseph P. Sullivan, a former board chairman of the institute and president of the Chicago-based chemicals division of Esmark Inc., however, predicted in an interview that consumption would decline next year to the 1976-level of between 48 million and 49 million tons. One reason for the expected decline, he said is that corn growers who need rely heavily on fertilizer are receiving the lowest prices in five years.

Slightly offsetting that trend, he said, is "the fact that farmers and their bankers now have a higher certainty about the government's intentions in the way of price supports and such" because of imminent final action on new farm and food-aid policies through 1981.

Sullivan said he expects nitrogen-related fertilizer consumption to decline only slightly. Even though prices are rising because supplies such as natural gas are tight, nitrogen products were the only group of fertilizers to be in greater supply this July than last, the institute report said.

Sullivan said he estimates a decrease in phosphate and potash deliveries of between 5 and 8 per cent.

The increased production capacity for nitrogen-based fertilizers that was stimulated by high prices two and three years ago still has not been fully developed, Sullivan said.

Nonetheless, U.S. farmers will become much more dependent for nitrogen in the 1980s on imports from Russia, Canada, Mexico and Venezuela, he said.

Phosphorus and potash

Price of seeds may increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices on some vegetable seeds may be going up. Dealers' inventories on June 30 totaled 153.7 million pounds, 7 per cent less than a year earlier, the Crop Reporting Board says. Bean-seed stocks were down 33 per cent to level the 17 declines that offset 24 increases. Sweet corn and pea seeds were up, along with radish, turnip, carrot and onion. Stocks of cucumber, spinach, pepper and okra seeds were down significantly, the board said.

supply "are much more in balance with demand," and Sullivan expects no change in their consumption during the next six months.

More of a problem than supply, however, is transportation and distribution, Sullivan said.

Railroad freight rates and transportation costs generally are the fastest-rising cost that farmers end up paying for, he said. Rail spur abandonments, derailments, wage rates and fuel prices add to the problem, he said.

Whatever the problems on the commercial farming side, the market for fertilizers used in home vegetable gardens, flower beds and lawns "is truly buoyant," Sullivan said.

Agribusiness symposium scheduled in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Officials of the High Plains Agribusiness Exposition in Lubbock have announced that plans have been completed for the three-day educational symposium to be held in conjunction with the show, Sept. 8, 9 and 10 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Four topics will be covered in the half-day sessions, employing a panel of experts in various phases of each field, a moderator selected by cooperating organizations and a question and answer session led by members of the Exposition's Producer Advisory Board. Topics include Marketing, Estate Planning and Water and Energy Development.

Panelists for the Marketing Symposium which will begin at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, September 8, include Tom Duffy, Dr. Willard F. "Doc" Williams, Dalton Gandy and Frank Morris. Moderator for the session will be Mike Stevens, vice president and manager of the Lubbock office of Conti-Commodities. The Producer Advisory Board members will be Jerry Harris.

Duffy is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade and floor manager for Conti-Commodities. His background includes 11 years of experience in merchandising cash grain and managing facilities for Continental Grain Co. He holds a BS in agricultural economics from the University of Illinois and specializes in assisting commercials with their hedging operations.

Dr. Williams is a Professor of Agricultural Economics at Texas Tech University and President of TARA, Inc., a Lubbock-based consultation, research and advisory firm. He is currently conducting courses in marketing commodities across the High Plains.

The National Advisory Council on Child Nutrition that she chairs has a two-day meeting scheduled. She has invited a father, mother and two students to attend.

The panel makes recommendations for policies affecting programs like school lunches. Consumers were invited "because I want the council meetings to be broadly representative of the children who participate...and their parents," she said.

She said Bergland's idea would provide a way for farmers, consumers and others who don't belong to organizations to speak directly to department officials.

A distinguished educator and research specialist, Dr. Williams has held positions as economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C. He has also served on the staff of the National Commission on Food Marketing and has been a consultant to many public and private agencies. Gandy is president of the International Sunflower Association, Memphis, Tenn., a member of the executive committee of the International Sunflower Conference and a consultant of the USDA Southern Regional Task Force on New Crops and Oil Seeds. He holds a BS in agriculture from Louisiana State University where he has done extensive graduate work. Retired as head of research for the National Cottonseed Products Association, Gandy is currently employed as Sunflower Public Relations Coordinator for RBA Seed Co.

Davidson heads benefit show

CINCINNATI (AP) — Entertainer John Davidson, who was the star attraction the night of the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire on Memorial Day weekend in nearby Southgate, Ky., will headline a benefit concert for the 164 victims' families here next month.

"There is no way to bring back lives, but you can help the living. And in that sense I can help," Davidson said in a telephone interview.

Davidson's friend and music arranger was one of the victims in the May 28 blaze, which he is reluctant to discuss.

Jupiter, Saturn pictures likely

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Voyager 2 spacecraft was to be launched today on a multibillion-mile journey that scientists hope will provide live television pictures of Jupiter and Saturn beginning in 1979 and perhaps the outer reaches of the solar system later.

The 1,800-pound Voyager 2 was being carried aloft by a Titan Centaur rocket set on a course that, depending on how well the early parts of the mission go, may also include flybys of Uranus and Neptune, which is about four billion miles from Earth.

The Voyager 2 craft was to be separated from the rocket about one-hour after launch. Then Voyager's engine was to be fired to boost its speed to 32,300 miles per hour for the journey toward the planets.

"Galileo was really the first person to extend our observation with a telescope. The Voyagers are a remarkable extension of man's ability to observe the solar system," Stone said.

Voyager 1 will make its closest approach to Jupiter — about 170,000 miles — on March 5, 1979 and its closest approach to Saturn — about 85,000 miles — on Nov. 12, 1980. Voyager 2 will come closest to Jupiter — some 400,000 miles — on July 10, 1979. It would be a similar distance from Saturn on August 27, 1981.

Voyager 2 might pass Uranus in 1986. And there's a slim chance that it will pass Neptune in 1989. All four planets are nearly aligned, a phenomenon that takes place every 180 years.

The craft carries recorded messages for any deep space civilizations that might be listening, including one from President Carter and music ranging from a Bach Brandenburg Concerto to rock singer Chuck Berry's "Johnny B. Goode."

A twin craft, Voyager 1, is being readied for launch Sept. 1. Voyager 1 will be guided on a faster route and should reach the outer planets first.

Each Voyager carries two television cameras and sophisticated instruments. Dr. Edward Stone, project scientist, said the Voyager mission is in the tradition of Galileo, the 17th-century scientist who first observed some of the moons of Jupiter and the rings of Saturn.

Black is shot dead in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police shot a black youth dead and seriously wounded another in Soweto Friday after raiding a high school where, they said, pupils were holding lessons on how to make fire bombs and booby traps.

The shooting took place as thousands of Soweto high school pupils continued a three-week-old class boycott, despite urgings by student leaders to return to classes and official threats to close or take over most of the Soweto high schools.

Police said Desmond Mabuse, 19, was shot after police descended on Moleatsane school and found about 100 youths throwing rocks at vehicles. A police spokesman said five shots were fired from a service revolver to disperse the crowd.

Mabuse is the fifth black to be shot dead by riot police in Soweto since the boycotts began three weeks ago to back demands that black education be made equal with that of white children. Similar boycotts have been reported in townships outside Pretoria, but they have been less sustained.

A play called 'Survival' Banned in Soweto

NEW YORK (AP) — Four men run into a darkened New York theater, startling the audience with screams and shouts and lights that flash at times like the searchlights that follow a prison break.

"Is this America?" asks one of the men, crouched behind a chair in the audience, hiding from unseen pursuers.

"It looks more like Johannesburg to me."

The event is a play, entitled "Survival," performed by four South African actors.

Raised in the black ghettos around Johannesburg, they bring their vision of the prison they say exists whether or not a South African black happens to be in jail.

They have traveled in the United States for about eight months, invited to participate in a college tour. The play is scheduled to open Off-Broadway in September.

Inspired by American writings, such as the works of James Baldwin, Richard Wright's "Native Son," and "The Autobiography of Malcolm X," they view their work as a sort of consciousness-raising.

"We were in Soweto (the black ghetto of Johannesburg) last year and soldiers came to stop the play," said one of the actors, Themba Ntinga.

The show had been seen in Johannesburg and Cape Town by blacks and whites together. The actors say they would never perform for a segregated audience.

"A lot of whites came to the show not because someone said it's a happy show, but because they heard we are putting it raw on the stage," said Selaelo Maredi, who composed music for the play.

"When the (white) audience came backstage, they asked if they are going to be driven into the sea," said Ntinga. "That's very unfounded."

The actors say they see South Africa as a frightened place. Through a series of vignettes, their play deals not so much with violence as with the ironies of a system which they say denies their humanity.

Maredi, who is 34, Ntinga, 25, and Seth Sibanda, 24, say they all have been in prison. Fana David Kenana, 23, says he has avoided going to jail, except for minor cases of detention.

Under South African law, a prisoner may be held without trial, so that many of those in jail are at the mercy of South African security police.

A liberal Johannesburg newspaper, the Rand Daily Mail, estimates that since 1963, 42 persons have died in detention in South African jails. Of those, 18 nonwhites have died in the last year.

Child Care course set

An associate degree program in Child Care has been approved by the Texas Education Agency for Howard College. Two courses in the program are scheduled to be taught during the fall semester. The courses scheduled are Child Development I and Internship in Child Care.

The curriculum is designed for individuals involved in pre-school programs in child care centers, head start programs with the public schools and kindergarten through third grade in private schools.

While the basic idea of the program is to provide training toward an associate degree and the first two years of a bachelor's degree, it also provides the training required to become a Child Development Associate. The CDA classification is a professional credential recognized throughout the United States and shows evidence of ability to work with pre-school children in child care centers.

For additional information regarding the Child Care Program contact: Theron Lee, Horace Garrett Building, A-4 or phone 267-6311, ext. 78.

Registration for the fall courses will be August 25th and 26th at the regular registration at the college.

Meal, milk policy is announced at Forsan

Forsan Independent School District has announced its policy for free and reduced price meals and free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility: Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced-price meals and free milk.

In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or natural origin.

Under the provisions of the policy the building principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official he may make a request either orally or in writing to J.F. Poyner, Drawer A, Forsan, phone 263-6571 or 457-2226, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

Eddie Aurispa is new Good Neighbor chief

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The controversial and financially strapped Good Neighbor Commission hired a new executive director Friday and issued a blast against penalizing employers of illegal aliens.

Eddie Aurispa, deputy director for several years and acting director following the firings of the last two heads of the commission, was promoted to the top job by a 3 to 2 vote. He is 28 and will receive a salary of $27,700 beginning Sept. 1.

Selection of Aurispa came after a long session closed to the public for discussion of "personal matters." He has been acting director since his former boss, Manuel Garza, was indicted by a grand jury June 14 for alleged fraud and fired by the commission.

Commission chairman M.M. Vicars of Brownsville said Aurispa had "kept at the helm" of the GNC during troubled times and would continue to do a good job.

Commissioners Steve Lillard of Laredo and Henry Guerra Jr. of San Antonio opposed the promotion, however.

Earlier, in open session, Guerra drafted a resolution urging Congress to reject a proposal to put criminal penalties on persons who hire illegal aliens.

The resolution, which was adopted unanimously, said such penalties would result in a violation of the civil and citizenship rights of Mexican-Americans in Texas.

After loss of Webb

Two programs to help

A Lubbock representative of the Small Business Administration was in Big Spring Thursday to explain two programs which could help the community recover from the loss of Webb Air Force Base.

Denis C. McCaghey, SBA field representative, explained to members of the Industrial Foundation and Industrial Team these programs:

1) Base Closing Economic Injury Loans — This program, only for existing businesses, provides for loans up to $500,000 for a period that can be as long as 30 years. The interest is only 3 per cent on the first $25,000 and 6 and 1/2 per cent on the rest.

2) Formation of a Local Development Company (LDC) — This would involve a local group of 25 persons similar to the Industrial Foundation which could receive government loans of 80 per cent to finance new business and industry. A normal loan life is 20 years with loan amounts going up to $500,000. Most types of small business and industry are eligible.

McCaghey said that the loans for base closing economic injury are limited to small businesses who can demonstrate that the base closing has hurt its primary source of income.

The money may be used for relocating the business, starting a new business, or refinancing until new customers can be found, he said.

It is ideal for small businesses whose working capital has been upset or limited by the base closing, he said.

McCaghey said that there has already been one application for this type of loan by a Big Spring business.

Members of the Big Spring Industrial Foundation said that it was considering the organization of a Local Development Company to help finance incoming industry.

McCaghey said that a firm must be an identifiable small business to be eligible and employ under 250 persons. If it is a retail business, its sales must be under $2 per year. Wholesale businesses can go up to $10 million.

"My only word of caution," he said, "is that if you want to help business and it's a stranger, check him out awfully good."

He said the normal type of loan to LDCs are ones involving real estate.

The meeting was held in the Big Spring Country Club with John Arrick, industrial foundation treasurer, presiding.

Three classes sign up Friday

Registration for Big Spring sixth, seventh and eighth graders will take place Friday.

All sixth grade students should meet in the Goliad School Gym at 9 a.m.; seventh graders in the Goliad Gym at 10:30 a.m.; and

No criminal cases filed

Dockets for county and district court reveal July action in the county's courtrooms.

In district court, no criminal cases were filed during July. Ten cases were disposed of, including five theft and three drug cases, leaving a total of 224 cases pending at the end of the month. Of the dispositions, four pleaded guilty and six were dismissed. Four of the dismissed were due to convictions in another case.

In the civil section, 1,447 cases were pending at the beginning of the month, 58 new cases were filed during July, and 51 were disposed of, leaving 1,454 cases pending at the end of July. 33 of the dispositions were granted divorces, while 33 new petitions for divorce were filed during the month.

In county court, 609 criminal cases were pending at the beginning of the month and 67 new cases were added. A total of 234 cases were disposed of, 218 by dismissal, leaving a total of 442 cases pending at the end of the month.

In civil cases, 214 were pending, five were filed and five were disposed of, leaving the same total pending for the next month.

Student registration continues this week

Registration for all students who will attend Big Spring Schools will continue this coming week, Tuesday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m.-12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m. Monday, August 22, all teachers, aides, clerical staff, etc. will be having general orientation.

It is estimated that approximately one-half of students who will attend Big Spring Schools did register this past week. Because of the changes in the attendance areas for this year, it is important that students in grades K-8 pre-register prior to the opening day of school.

Senior High School students are reminded to report to the high school auditorium on Tuesday or Wednesday, according to the schedule printed in the Sunday edition of the Herald.

At Goliad, 6th and 7th grade students who have not registered should do so Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday. On Friday, 6th grade orientation will be in the Goliad gym at 9:00 a.m. and 7th grade orientation will be in the Goliad gym at 10:30 a.m. All 6th and 7th grade students should attend their respective orientation sessions.

Elementary students, grades 1-5, who have not registered should do so Tuesday through Friday at their respective elementary schools. All-day kindergarten students should register at the Lakeview School Tuesday through Friday. All half-day kindergarten students should register at Kentwood School Tuesday through Friday.

Parents are reminded that an immunization record of all students must be on file with the school district and must comply with State requirements. In addition to immunization records, parents of kindergarten students are reminded to bring their child's birth certificate.

Comment from capital

Rep. Hudson ran up highest tab

By JIM DAVIS
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The amounts legislators spent to run their state offices during the last legislative session varied greatly.

A check of office expense accounts for the first six months of 1977 shows a high expenditure of $27,320.90 by Rep. Samuel Hudson III of Dallas and a low of $8,181.97 by Rep. L.P. (Pete) Patterson of Brookston.

This wasn't the first record Hudson set during the session. He also introduced more bills than anyone and became the first representative to fast to force committee consideration of his bills.

A standard amount of $24,500 was budgeted for each House member during that six-month period, which included almost five months in session. Most members spent in the low twenty thousands.

Hudson, Sarah Weddington of Austin, Bill Caraway of Houston and Ed R. Watson of Deer Park spent more than the budget amount for the six months but have until the end of the year to balance things out. Anyone overspent at the end of the year has to write a check to the state.

Cutting down the second half shouldn't be a problem for Weddington. She's resigned to take a job in Washington.

The circle begins again. On Aug. 29 — three days before the new 1978-79 budget goes into effect — the Legislative Budget Board will hold its first meeting on the 1980-81 budget.

LBB members will spend more than a year studying the needs and requests of state agencies before issuing a proposed budget for the 1979 legislature to consider.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission is up to its elbows in records and plans to do something about it.

Old records now stored in the Texas State Library are scheduled for destruction. Joe Payne, assistant director of auditing for the ABC, said the records consist of tax reports and audits that will be past the required saving period of three years at the end of August. They have no historical or other value.

"We fill up 150 boxes a year and have to put them in storage," Payne said. The State Library holds the records until they are old enough for destruction. Payne said his office has more boxes ready to move to the library as soon as the old ones are moved out.

When Gov. Dolph Briscoe handed out some awards for helping the handicapped recently the temperature in his reception room was about as high as outside in the August sun.

Asked whether the temperature indicated a new dedication to energy conservation in his office, a perspiring governor allowed that it was not.

An aide said the large number of persons crowding into the room apparently had been too much for the air conditioning system.

Briscoe recently was notified by Atty. Gen. John Hill that the Governor's Energy Advisory Council is supposed to meet once every three months but hadn't gotten together since February. This isn't helping the state present a "united front" in Washington, D.C., on energy matters, was the message.

One can only imagine the glee with which Hill mailed that letter.

North squeaks through

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Lanky Andy North unlocked the biggest logjam of the '70s with a six-under-par 65 that staked him to a three-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

The 6-foot-4, 27-year-old North, who has yet to win in five years of tour activity, started the day one stroke behind a group of seven players who shared the lead—the largest number of men tied for the top since the first round of the 1969 PGA National Championship.

He swept by them all with a five-under-par 31 on the front side and an erratic back nine 34 over the hilly, windswept, 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course. He finished with a 201 total, 12 under par.

He missed five of the last nine greens but one-putted to save par on four of them.

Tom Weiskopf and Howard Twitty put on closing rushes to tie for second at 204 with 18 holes to go in the chase for a $60,000 first prize. Each had a two-under-par 69.

Leonard Thompson shot a 70 in the mild, breezy weather and was next at 205, four shots back.

Next came a group of four at 207, six under par. They included Tom Watson, winner of both the Masters and British Opens this season, former Master title-holders Charles Coody and George Archer, and Mac McLendon. Watson and Archer had 68s, McLendon 70 and Coody 72.

Thompson, Twitty, Weiskopf and Coody all started the day in a tie for the lead with Rod Curl, Miller Barber and Jim Wiechers, all of whom drifted back in the pack. Wiechers and Barber had struggling 73s and three round totals of 208. Curl was 74-209.

Jack Nicklaus shot 68 but was an all-but-impossible 12 strokes back at 213. Johnny Miller had 69-208. Defending title-holder David Graham was out of it at 72-217.

RISING ABOVE IT ALL — Golfer Andy North tiptoes a look at his chip shot to the green of the seventh hole of the Westchester Country Club Saturday. North sank a birdie putt on the hole. The four-year pro set the pace for the third round of the Westchester Classic finishing at 12 under par. If he should win the $60,000 first prize Sunday it would be his first tourney victory.

Dallas drops second straight

Dolphins kayo Cowboys, 20-14

DALLAS (AP) — Miami quarterback Don Strock hooked up with running back Nat Moore for touchdown passes of 56 and 69 yards to lead the Dolphins to a 20-14 National Football League exhibition game victory over Dallas Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

Miami was down 14-13 in the fourth quarter when Strock nailed Moore on a swing pass that Moore lugged 69 yards for the score. Bob Griese's kick put the final point on the board.

Dallas had scrambled to the lead after Strock and Moore connected for first blood in the opening period. With kicker Garo Ypremanian out with an injury, Griese tried the extra point and failed.

The Cowboys got back in it near the end of the first half as Preston Pearson cracked over from the one.

Efren Herrera's kick made it 7-6 Dallas.

After the kickoff, Strock tried to hit Freddie Solomon with six seconds left in the half. Dallas strong safety Charlie Waters intercepted, then lateraled to free safety Cliff Harris, who carried it in for a 28-yard touchdown and the 14-13 Dallas lead.

Pros all search for way out of jam

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf is searching for a spot in the World Series of Golf, Jim Wiechers is fighting for his playing life.

And five others—Miller Barber, Leonard Thompson, Howard Twitty, Rod Curl and Charles Coody, all tied with Weiskopf and Wiechers at seven-under-par 135—are seeking the $60,000 first prize in the rich Westchester Classic.

The seven are tied for first place halfway through this $300,000 event PGA title at Pebble Beach, Calif. last weekend, both failed to qualify for the sharing the lead in any tour event final two rounds. Wadkins, the PGA since nine players were locked for the first-round lead in the 1969 PGA was 73-150.

National Championship.

In addition, there are three golfers only one shot off the lead and four others another shot behind, producing a group of 14 players within two shots of each other after 36 holes over the tight, hilly, little 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course.

Aside from Weiskopf, the game's more glamorous names aren't among them.

Lanny Wadkins and Gene Littler, who had to go to a playoff to decide the PGA title at Pebble Beach, Calif. last weekend, both failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Wadkins, the PGA champion, had a 77-152 and Littler was 73-150.

Dent, Nettles hit homers

Rangers defeated again

ARLINGTON (AP) — Bucky Dent blasted a three-run homer, Graig Nettles added a solo shot and Sparky Lyle earned his 19th save Saturday night as the New York Yankees won their seventh game in a row, a 6-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Lyle relieved Dick Tidrow, 8-4, in the eighth inning after the Yankee starter had surrendered a leadoff double to Bump Wills, a run-scoring single to Juan Beniquez and a walk to Jim Sundberg. Lyle got Mike Hargrove to pop out, and then coaxed pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Texas starter Gaylord Perry, 10-10, was the loser.

Dent's homer, his seventh of the year, sparked a four-run New York rally in the second inning. Nettles' blast, his 28th, came in the fourth.

Perry had the satisfaction of becoming the fifth all-time strikeout leader in major league history.

Mike Hargrove gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead when he led off the Texas rally with a towering homer into the center field stands. The homer was Hargrove's sixth in his last 10 games. Four of the home runs have led off the Texas half of the first inning.

An error by Rangers' second baseman Bump Wills and a three-run homer by Dent sparked the Yankees' four-run outburst in the second.

Reggie Jackson and Chris Chambliss started the uprising with singles. After Nettles flied to center, Carlos May hit a chopper up the middle. Wills juggled the ball, couldn't make a play at second and stood helplessly as May crossed first to load the bases.

Willie Randolph forced May at second to score Jackson with the first run, and then Dent slammed his seventh homer into the left field bleachers.

When signed by Sox

Dream come true

CHICAGO (AP) — It's a wisp of a dream for thousands of youngsters who have played ball. For Kevin Hickey, it came true.

Until April, the 19-year-old left-hander, who works the night shift in a steel plant, hadn't thrown a baseball for three years. Now, he is a member of the Chicago White Sox organization.

Hickey was among about 200 ballplayers, aged 18 to 29, invited earlier this week to a one-day tryout camp at Comiskey Park. Some had written asking for a look; others were asked to come based on their sandlot play.

Hickey was the only one signed and will report to Sarasota, Fla., in March for spring training and then be assigned to the White Sox Double A farm club in Appleton, Wis.

He grew up and still lives only about a mile and a half from the ballpark and, like a lot of city boys, first learned how to throw a baseball against a brick wall in a school yard.

"It's like a dream come true, let me tell ya," said Hickey, who played only one year of high school baseball. "I've been a White Sox fan all my life. That's what's so unreal about this. I always wanted to play for the White Sox but I never thought it would have happened."

In April, he was persuaded by Frannie Pell, a policeman who plays ball in the John Sullivan semi-pro league in the south suburbs, to try out for the Cardinals, a team Pell catches for. Hickey not only made the team but Manager Joe Ippolito saw major league potential and made sure to give Hickey a chance to pitch whenever scouts were around.

They came more frequently after Hickey pitched two back-to-back no-hitters and he was invited to the White Sox' camp.

"More than half of the 200 or so guys there were pitchers. I took one look and figured my chances were two—slim and none," said Hickey. "I was told they never sign anyone from these tryouts."

Hickey knows, of course, that it's a long way from sandlots on the South Side of Chicago to the major leagues. But while unusual, it's not impossible.

Houston downed by Bears, 14-10

HOUSTON (AP) — The Chicago Bears scored touchdowns on a pair of crucial fourth-down plays, a two-yard pass from Mike Phipps to Johnny Musso and a one-yard plunge by Roland Harper Saturday to beat Houston 14-10 in a National Football League exhibition game.

The loss extended the Oilers' exhibition losing streak to nine in a row over the last two seasons. Houston is 0-3 this year while the Bears jumped to 3-1.

The Bears, who last week upset world champion Oakland 20-13, took a 7-3 halftime lead on Phipps' flat pass to Musso on fourth down after the Oiler defense had held for three downs inside the two.

Austin holds 2 stroke lead

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Scrambling to an even-par 72 by overcoming some admittedly poor putting, Debbie Austin held a two-stroke lead over LPGA glamour girl Laura Baugh following Saturday's second round of the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Miss Baugh, perhaps the best-known player on the ladies' circuit despite the fact she's yet to win a tournament in five years on the tour, fired a two-under-par 70 for a two-day total of 71-70-141.

A shot back of Baugh at two-under-par 142 is another tour non-winner, Kathy Farrer, one of two golfers to shoot three-under-par 69s on a bright sunny late summer day over Oglebay Park's rugged par 72, 6,150-yard Speidel Course.

Jan Stephenson also fired a 69 to deadlock U.S. Women's Open champion Hollis Stacy and Joyce Kazmierki at a one-under-par 143. Miss Stacy, shooting an up-and-down round that included five birdies and five bogies, is at 71-72-143, while Miss Kazmierki salvaged an eagle three on the par-five, 450 yard 18th hole to shoot a one-over-par 73 and a 70-73-143 total.

But domination broken

American edged at line

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — The East European domination of the World University Games was broken Saturday night by Silvio Leonard, the Cuban sprinter, and Sara Simeoni, the Italian high jumper.

Leonard streaked to the gold medal in the men's 100-meter dash in 10.08 seconds.

Miss Simeoni cleared 6 feet 3.5 inches to win the women's high jump, with Debbie Brill of Canada second.

But American Jane Frederick, who had led the women's pentathlon throughout most of the gruelling two-day series, was edged by Anna Dimitrova of Bulgaria in the last event, the 800 meters, and had to make do with a silver medal.

Miss Frederick, who studies at UCLA, collapsed screaming at the finish and lay on her back for 10 minutes afterwards as team officials revived her.

Nadejda Jakoubovitch threw the javelin 201 feet 6 inches to win a women's gold medal for the Soviet Union.

Cuba's athletes stood out on another hot and sticky night at Sofia's Levsky Stadium.

Alberto Juantorena, the double gold medalist of the Montreal Olympics, won his heat in 1:47.9 to qualify for Sunday's final of the 800 meters.

Leonard won the 16 hundredth of a second from Petar Petrov of Bulgaria, who took the silver medal in 10.19. Another Cuban, Osvaldo Lara, clocked 10.31 for the bronze.

Miss Simeoni's victory in the high jump gave Italy its first gold medal of the games. Miss Brill cleared 6-2 3/4 for the silver, and Tatyana Bojko of the Soviet Union took the bronze with a leap of 6-1 1/4.

Miss Frederick appeared a likely winner of the pentathlon at the start of the day, when she led Miss Dimitrova by 62 points after three events.

The Bulgarian tied for fourth place in the long jump, while the American finished seventh and had her lead cut to 36 points.

HELP FOR A TIRED ATHLETE — Jane Frederick of Los Angeles is helped off the track Saturday after running the 800-meter track event for women in the University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria. Golf tournament continues today

The Big Spring Men's Golf Association is holding its last Partnership Tournament of 1977 at Comanche Trail Golf Course this weekend. The 2-man low ball tournament is divided into Scratch and Handicap Flights with 1/2 handicaps being used. After Saturday's round, the leaders are:

Handicap Flight: Carl Small and John Arrick, 63. Nile Cole and Gary Roberts, 64. Roddy Caffey and Bobby Heith, 66. Ron Plumlee and Mel Williams, 67, and Keith Hamilton and Lynn Hamilton are tied with Bob Rogers and Tom Montgomery at 68.

In the Scratch Flight: Bernard Rains and Mike Weaver are tied for the lead at 65 with Mark McCraney and Pat Weaver, Bob Water and Jerry Barron, 67, Don Osborne and Dick Schwinn, 68, and Howard Stewart and Jimmy Stewart are tied with Jimmy Newsom and Robert Caffey as well as the team of Dan Wilkins and Mike Hall with 69s.

The final round will be played Sunday with the Handicap Flight teeing off at 9 a.m.

Pair to see series

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barber and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Dickens left Saturday for Williamsport, Pa., where they will witness the 1977 Little League World Series.

Both men are active workers in the Little League program. Barber serves as district commissioner.

Texas will not be represented in the series, which begins Tuesday and extends through Saturday.

The Texas champion (North Houston) lost to the Florida titlists, 8-4, the past week.

CLUBHOUSE CONFIDENTIAL
In Yankee dugout during old timers' game: Mickey Mantle, glowing on couple beers, kidding Hank Bauer about day "I showed up like this against his Baltimore team, and he told the pitcher, don't walk him, just get it over whatever you do — and I hit one about 440 over center field!" ... This led to teammates' remembrances of longies Mick had hit.

Bobby Shantz remembered one off Alex Kellner that banged against wall behind Stadium bleachers, on a 3-and-0 changeup ... Mickey says most people give the tape award to the one off Chuck Stobbs that glanced off scoreboard in Washington, but according to Mick the best of all was one that banged against triple-deck roof of old Yankee Stadium, against Bill Fischer, K.C. reliever.

Bob Merrill, operatic star, wore Billy Martin's 1 1/2 uniform shirt for Anthem ... Joe Pepitone telling Bill Kane, who handled lineups, "You better let me bat, or this place will become a parking lot." ... Pepi has opened "Sportspage," a membership health and drinking club. They get you coming and going.

Pirates must think they're back on Spanish Main, pillaging and brutalizing. In one week, Frank Taveras threw a bat at Joe Hoerner, Al Oliver had to be pulled off an umpire, and Ed Ott broke Felix Millan's collarbone with a body slam right out of Bruno Sammartino's routine ... I'm afraid injury will hasten Millan's retirement. He has been outstanding team ballplayer, terribly underrated because he is so quiet.

CASH, NORTHRUP STILL HITTING
Whitey Ford's stars in American Pro Slow-Pitch League are Norm Cash and Jim Northrup, who play with Detroit, and Mill Pappas, who manages Chicago. Next year, says Commissioner Ford, his 12-team loop will boom to 24 ... Philly Eagles seem to have one basic game plan: mess around for two downs, throw to Harold Carmichael for a first down, then do it all over again ... Pele's simple explanation for why he continues to sparkle at age 36: "If you keep in good shape, you can do what you know."

MONZON: ITALIAN COWBOY
Carlos Monzon rakes in $125,000 per spaghetti-western he stars in, and he grinds out three a year in Rome — explaining why he can give up the middleweight crown ... When it comes to sorting out ranking middleweights for successor to Monzon, Ron Harris should be right in midst of action, based on his eight-round stopper of Alan Minter ... Paul Hellmann, Greenwich High senior, has long-range shot for U.S. Olympic team in free style. Time Marches On Dept: In Jets' press brochure for 1976, Joe Namath occupied three full pages. In 1977 book, on page 103, is Broadway Joe entry, one line of agate type reading: "Namath, Joe, QB, 1965-76, Alabama" ... Ken Norton's acting interest now being handled by Jack Gelardi of ICM, husband of Annette Funicello, as in M-1-C, K-E-Y, M-O-U-S-E.

Cal Griffith says he has worked out five-year deal with Lyman Bostock's agent, but Twins' center fielder still wants to test free agent market at end of season "just to see what he's worth" ... If Bostock does jump, Griff's amazing replenishing machine has youth at Orlando ready to step in at center, named Jeff Youngbauer ... Minny owner also claims negotiations with Larry Hise are so close "he could say yes any day now." There will be much bitching and moaning out of San Francisco's football camp, but bet there also will be winner before long, or the general manager's name isn't Joe Thomas ... Billy Martin defending Carlos May against front-office charge of obesity: "He's not fat. He's big. Solid. His legs are like this post" — and Yankee manager bangs a fist against concrete pillar in Stadium ... Ed Firmani, who made intriguing switch from Tampa Rowdies to coach of Cosmos, analyzes things: "One of the troubles with the Cosmos when I came here was they had too many bosses. Now there is only one boss, Ed Firmani."

Latest spikes-licking member of TV newscasting corps is a CBS fellow named Bob Halloran, who insists that people, presumably newspapermen, have manufactured the ill feeling among certain Yankees. So, when Reggie Jax hits a game-winning homer, and teammates gather at plate to shake his hand, Halloran observes brightly, "I never saw players gather around George Steinbrenner like that!" ... I did. When George was passing out all that money, man, did they gather round.

WILLIE PEP, COMEDIAN
Who's writing Willie Pep's stuff? At Tanquary Award to Howard Davis and Sugar Ray Leonard, Pep told audience: "I have it made. I have a wife and a TV set, and they're both working!" ... Robin Roberts, Hall of Famer, favors four-day pitching rotation. Rather than five. What you gain in stuff with extra day, you give up in control," he says. "You become an exhibitionist, trying to strike out everybody, instead of a pitcher trying to get them out."

Duane Bobick has bought home in Longport, N.J., 8 miles south of Atlantic City ... Bob Kennedy placing Bruce Sutter on 21-day disabled list. "When he pitched he felt no pain, but he's developed this strange knot, the size of a knuckle, in the muscle down his side. It would disappear within two days, and maybe we acted too quickly, but we couldn't take a chance of tearing something." And there went the half-pennant.

BLIND SLUGGER — Blind Tommy Barker takes a healthy swing at a 16-inch softball containing a battery-powered beeper during sightless series championships Saturday at Berkeley, Ill. He got a long drive for his Chicago Beepers team in game against the Berkeley Little League All-stars who played blindfolded.

KNEES HIGH — Steer stomper Mike Blalack heads over the dummies while Brent Overman (right) and Eddie Puga look on. Coach Don Robbins' Steers are in full swing for Friday's scrimmage against Sweetwater at Memorial Park. Robbins is optimistic about the Steer conditioning program, saying, "We're far ahead of where we were last year."

Locals are tough in scrimmages

The Forsan Buffs looked good in their scrimmage against Klondike Friday, according to Coach George White. "But," he said, "the statistics are more lopsided than the scrimmage was."

The two teams alternated 20 plays on offense, 20 on defense, and when the dust cleared after the second time around, Forsan had rolled up some impressive figures for this early in the season.

Quarterbacks Angel Miranda and Craig Clark went 2 for 5 in the passing department, gaining 52 yards. But the real story was in fullbacks Rusty Henderson and John Wright and in halfbacks Randy Cregar and Gary Martin, who rolled up 432 yards on the ground.

The Forsan offense scored four touchdowns, and the defense one. The team recovered three fumbles, intercepted three passes, and had 13 first downs.

By comparison, Klondike could only manage 45 yards total offense for the scrimmage, with 30 of those coming in the passing department on one completion for eight attempts. The Klondike offense scored no touchdowns while the defense stole one Buff toss for a touchdown. Klondike had three first downs. Meanwhile Coahoma had its first hoedown with Denver City Friday night. Coach Roy Winters said that the hard-hitting tussle was primarily between defenses, but that he was not surprised as defenses are usually ahead of offense at this point in the year. Winters said he was exceptionally pleased with the entire defensive team, and that the offense was going to put some more work into the basics. No touchdowns were recorded by either team. Coahoma's next scrimmage will be Friday at home against the Stanton Buffalos at 7 p.m.

When tennis was graceful Do you remember Queen Helen?

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — In the days of the Charleston, tin Lizzies, Prohibition and the easy dollar, she was known as Queen Helen and "Miss Poker Face." She was the stoical, methodical empress of women's tennis, with her eight Wimbledon and seven Forest Hills crowns sealing a plateau that Billie Jean King and Chris Evert never hoped to reach.

A court automaton in a green-lined eyeshade and white pleated skirt, she became the center of controversies swirling around her feuds with France's Suzanne Lenglen and California's Helen Jacobs, but through it all she remained cold and aloof, never reacting in any kind.

Then, in 1938, after winning her final Wimbledon at age 32 she retired and went into virtual seclusion, declining personal appearances and interviews and isolating herself from the outside world.

What really became of Helen Willis? Now 71, twice married and twice divorced, the woman acclaimed to be the greatest of all female players lives quietly in the shadow of a towering mountain in the Carmel Valley where she keeps busy with her two main loves — writing and painting — and with trying to save a garden parched by the California drought.

"I am restricted to 50 gallons of water a day," said Mrs. Helen Willis Roark, formerly Mrs. Moody. "I seem to be spending my life hauling hoses around the house and siphoning water." It was one of her rare interviews.

The rendezvous spot was the lounge of an old Victorian inn in Ocean Avenue.

If the one who remembered newsreels of Helen Willis as a graceful fawn of a girl with frozen Grecian features expected to find a doddering and finicky old lady with gray hair he was in for a surprise.

Mrs. Roark turned out to be an attractive, lively person who looked 20 years younger than her age. She had maintained that trim, athletic figure. She walked with a crisp, bouncy step. Her conversation covered a wide range of subjects, from politics to sports.

She was smartly dressed in a dark suit, a red kerchief tied at the neck. Gold earrings matched the bracelet on his left arm. Her dark hair had only small flecks of gray. She never removed her large sunglasses. "The pines make my eyelids puff up," she apologized.

She ordered a Coca Cola and stirred the ice nervously.

Fuzzy-headed color man for ABC

Uecker draws 'em

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Uecker, the best thing about last season's version of "Monday Night Baseball," is also the best thing about this season's revised edition.

ABC's ratings for the Monday night games are up

(AP WIREPHOTO)

MONDAY NIGHT BASEBALL — Bob Uecker, a former Milwaukee Braves catcher with fuzzy hair and quick wit, was one of the best things about last season's version of "Monday Night Baseball." He is also the best thing about this season's revised version.

slightly this year and Uecker, the former Milwaukee Braves catcher with the fuzzy hair and quick wit, is one of the prime reasons.

Uecker teamed with Bob Prince and Warner Wolfe last year on ABC's first string unit. This year, with Prince having been placed on waivers and Wolfe dropped to third string as part of a general shakeup, Uecker lines up alongside Keith Jackson and the ubiquitous Howard Cosell.

"I got along well with Wolfe and Prince," he says. "Maybe the chemistry wasn't right, I don't know. I just tried to do my job. I don't think my job has changed that much this year. I enjoy working with Howard and Keith. No problem."

Uecker started out last season as a baseball version of Don Meredith. He was supposed to be funny. He was funny and still is, but he has also become an excellent play-by-play man and analyst. He tells you what shortstop has slowed down a step and is cheating toward the hole, or what a pitcher should throw in a given situation, or why a batter is slumping.

He knows his stuff. "I've had people ask me if I can really tell the difference between a slider and a fastball," he says. "I tell them, 'Hell, yes.' I was a catcher for a lot of years and I know pitchers. I like to call the pitch, what I think a guy will throw next. I think the fans gets a kick out of that."

"If there's a time to be funny, I can be funny. But if you've got a good ballgame going, who the hell wants to hear someone making jokes."

Uecker's last year in the majors was 1967 but he began preparing for a broadcast career long before that. "I spent enough time in the bullpen practicing play-by-play. I would be calling a game and the other guys would be laughing. We had a lot of fun in the bullpen."

Uecker currently does the play-by-play on the Milwaukee Brewer games in addition to his Monday night chores. "The only time I was really scared doing a game in Milwaukee was soon after I started and Merle Harmon and Tom Collins walked out of the booth and left me alone on radio. I didn't know what to do so I talked and talked. I was even talking about the paper on the floor, everything."

ABC has had a good run of close ballgames this season and that makes everyone's job easier. "When you get a 9-0 ballgame, that's when you really have to do some broadcasting," says Uecker. "You talk about other ballclubs, things that happened in the past, tell jokes, whatever."

Uecker says he has never blasted a ballplayer, although he doesn't hesitate to point out mistakes. He says he hasn't gotten any flak from players and he doesn't care if he gets any from writers.

"I don't ever worry about writers ripping me," he says.

BRUISES STARTING — The Big Spring Steers finished their final week of twice-a-day practices Friday. Their first scrimmage will be next Friday, and the momentum is building for opening day. According to Athletic Director Don Robbins, the team will be smaller and quicker than last year, including these linemen. Left to right is Greg Henry, Keith Sheedy, Coach Webb, and Jerry Bennet.

SMU has true grit

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University won three football games last year on true grit.

The talent-shy Mustangs parlayed a gung-ho spirit into victories over Texas Christian, North Texas and Arkansas with a narrow miss against Texas.

The cold hard facts are the SMU is going to have to take that wild-eyed attitude into the 1977 season because there's no depth and waterbug quarterback Ricky Wesson is gone.

SMU gets the privilege of meeting Woody Hayes and his Ohio State legions Oct. 1 in Dallas.

And that little match against North Texas at Texas Stadium Sept. 17 isn't going to be a mild fireproof what with former SMU Coach Hayden Fry hankering to hang a number on his old employers who beat him 38-31 last year.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer is the bubbly sort and you won't get much hang dog talk out of him. But he's realistic.

"We still don't have a whole lot of talent and depth and our schedule is murder, but look what we did with great spirit last year," said Meyer. "When we went into the year, I was afraid of going 1-10 or 0-11."

He added "A year under the system and the great spirit and morale of the team are probably our biggest plus factors going into 1977. Now, the players know our philosophies and our thoughts and they know what it takes to win. They know that they have to work hard every day." Meyer is depending on freshmen to give the Mustangs a lift to go with the handful of talented players on hand.

You can give the Mustangs E for effort anyway.

As Yanks stifle Rangers

Jackson looks for pros

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Reggie Jackson says it's show time now for the New York Yankees.

"It's business time now ...

time to come to the ball park with a mission to accomplish ... time for the professionals to come to the top," said the controversial Jackson Friday night after the Yanks crushed Texas 8-1.

Jackson knocked in three runs with a single and a homer to back Mike Torres' four-hit pitching as the Rangers stumbled into second place in the American League West Division — two percentage points behind Chicago.

"I agree with Texas' Dock Ellis that the season has just now started," said Jackson. "It's time for the men to step to the front."

"Everything has been overlapped in New York because we aren't in first place. The media has used me, owner George Steinbrenner, Thurman Munson, Catfish Hunter and Billy Martin, for sensationalism."

Jackson added, "We haven't been given the credit we have coming. I've got 22 homers. Those aren't bad numbers. We are playing solid baseball. I'm not saying we're going to kill or run over everybody. I'm just saying we'll be tough to beat."

Martin was razed by his former team, which played the song, "Where Have You Been, Charming Billy?" over the loudspeaker system.

Martin laughed about it in a dressing room saying, "I guess that was Brad's idea."

Hilton elected to Little League board

The Little League Foundation met in New York on May 11 and elected Eric M. Hilton as a trustee and governing member. Mr. Hilton replaces Foster Parker, President of Brown and Root, who served for three years prior to his untimely death.

Hilton, 43, youngest son of Conrad Hilton, has been closely involved in Little League Baseball for almost two decades. His children went through the Little League program in Houston.

Hilton adds distinction to an already impressive group of past and present Foundation trustees, and is the only member from the Southwest since former members, R.E. (Bob) Smith and Foster Parker, both of Houston are deceased. Among those now serving are Bob Hope and Walter O'Malley.

Former members now deceased include other well-known men such as Walt Disney, James A. Farley and J. Edgar Hoover. All past and present members have impressive records to their credit in their respective fields, although their names may not be as widely known as those mentioned.

Hilton, vice president of Hilton Hotels Corporation, makes his office in Houston, where he is Southwestern and Western Divisional Vice President for the Hilton Inns Franchise Division. While attending and following graduation from Texas

Western and Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration, he served his apprenticeship in every phase of the hotel service and worked his way up the executive position at the Shamrock Hilton's resident manager. He received additional promotions in 1967 and 1969 to his present position.

ERIC HILTON

He is presently serving on the Board of Directors of the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation, Beverly Hills, California; Board of Directors of Greenspoint Bank, Houston, Texas; President of District 16 of the American Contract Bridge League, board member of the Houston Bridge League, Unit 174, Houston, Texas. He is also a Trustee of Allen Academy, Bryan, Texas and is serving on the National Advisory Board of the Airline Passenger Association. He is Chairman of the Texas State Little League Fund Drive and on the Board of Trustees of the Foundation for the Museum of Medical Science.

Hilton is married to the former Patricia Skipworth of El Paso, Texas and they have four children, Eric Jr., 22, Beverly, 20, Linda 13 and Bradley 9.

HANGIN' IN THERE — Golfer Howard Twitty dangles his putter in order to judge the line of his putt at the 16th hole of the Westchester Country Club Friday. Twitty was among seven who tied for the lead of the Westchester Golf Classic after the second round of play with a seven-under-par.

Trevino leads US team to title

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — His back is better and Lee Trevino has returned to what he does best—making people laugh ... that is when he is not winning golf matches.

Trevino rallied for a 3 and 2 victory over Welshman David Llewellyn in an early match, then halved with close friend Brian Barnes of Scotland, leading the United States team to a pair of 2½-1½ victories in the Double Diamond World Golf Classic Friday.

In the match against Wales, Trevino trailed four strokes after eight holes, but won seven straight holes in beating Llewellyn.

"I set the grass on fire on the back nine," Trevino said after he had lost four of five holes, beginning at the fourth.

Jerry Pate, last year's U.S. Open champion, followed with an easy 3 and 1 victory over American-born Craig DeFoy and the Americans clinched the match when Bob Murphy, playing his first match in the $42,500 tournament, halved with Brian Huggett.

Caulkins sets another

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Tracy Caulkins is becoming the United States' latest swimming sensation, at the tender age of 14.

The Nashville, Tenn., youngster set her second American record in two days Friday night in the National AAU Swimming Championships at the Mission Viejo International Swim Complex.

Miss Caulkins swam the fourth-fastest women's 400-meter individual medley ever, 4:48.93, in breaking the American mark of 4:51.74 she set earlier this year.

Miss Caulkins set a United States record in the women's 100-meter breaststroke Thursday night with a time of 1:13.05.

For her efforts, she has been selected to the USA team that will compete against East Germany Aug. 27-28 and the Soviet Union Sept. 3-4. She will swim both events in the dual meets.

Nancy Hogshead of Jacksonville, Fla., who finished second to Miss Caulkins Friday night, was also under the previous American record. Miss Hogshead's time was 4:50.28, and she was also picked for the national team.

Finals were held in three other individual events and two relays Friday night.

Jesse Vassallo, 16, of Mission Viejo, Calif., won the men's 400-meter individual medley by four meters over Brian Goodell, also of Mission Viejo. Vassallo was timed in 4:27.62 to Goodell's 4:30.16. Both were picked for the national team.

Jim Montgomery of Madison, Wis., a standout at the University of Indiana, won the men's 200-meter freestyle and Gail Amundrud of Canada captured the women's 200-meter freestyle.

Jet's camp in Sweden

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association will conduct their fall training camp in Sweden next month, General Manager Rudy Pilous announced Friday.

It will be the second season the Jets have conducted their initial training in Europe.

The Jets will take part in a tournament in Sweden in September, and will also play six exhibition games in Sweden and Finland.

Miss Amundrud, 20, won a hotly-contested race that saw Wendy Boglioli of Ocean, N.J., and Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside, Calif., tie for second. Miss Amundrud was clocked in 2:02.48 to a 2:02.56 time for Miss Boglioli and Miss Woodhead.

Montgomery, 22, was timed in 1:51.14 in winning over runnerup Rick DeMont of Long Beach, Calif., who was clocked in 1:52.25. Montgomery was the lone selection from that race for the national team.

Majors unafraid

By the Associated Press
It must be a bit alarming to move from the security of the No. 1 position in college football to the bare-legged jungle of the tough Southeastern Conference where his Tennessee Volunteers are rated no better than ninth, but Johnny Majors is uncowed.

"You always have some qualms about that first game, I don't care who it's against," the one-time triple-threat Tennessee tailback said while preparing for his opening against California

(AP WIREPHOTO)

UNCOWED — University of Pittsburgh coach Johnny Majors carries Sugar Bowl trophy from field in New Orleans in January 1976 after Pitt defeated the University of Georgia. Now, Majors is with Tennessee in the tough Southeastern Conference where his volunteers are rated no better than ninth. But Majors, who has turned football sow's ears into silk purses wherever he has gone, is uncowed.

Sept. 10. "But once past that obstacle, you face up to the challenge. We know we are in one of the toughest leagues in the country. We know it's dog-eat-dog and we haven't had time to build our own team.

"Our job is to work hard and win. Then it can become fun."

Majors is an architect of football success. Himself a product of a winning tradition, he has turned football sow's ears into silk purses wherever he has gone.

At Iowa State he took a team that was 2-8 and 1-9 the previous two years and produced the only bowl teams in the school's history. In 1973 he took over Pittsburgh, a one-time Eastern power which developed a soft underbelly with three consecutive 1-9 seasons. In four years, he turned it into the best college team in the country.

Last year, with Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett serving as the sledgehammer, the Pittsburgh team carved out an unbeaten record, smashed Georgia 27-3 in the Sugar Bowl and won the undisputed national championship.

Majors was named college Coach of the Year, his second such honor. Football people were stunned when Johnny announced he was leaving such a bed of clover to take up the cause of his floundering alma mater in the Deep South where football, like the Baptist Church, is a religion.

A glutton for punishment, they said.

"Not at all," Major said. "It was a fresh challenge, a new opportunity. It promised to be exciting and fun. At 42, I am not sure how many more of such opportunities will be dangled in front of me."

Majors has found himself up to ear lobes in work. He is jumping around the country, attending clinics, addressing quarterback clubs and preaching the merits of a college football and academic career in the Smokey Mountains.

"It takes four years to put your stamp on a team," the youthful Tennessee coach said. "However, I don't think this team, this staff or the 82,000 people who come out on Saturdays to watch us play are willing to wait that long."

UNCOWED — University of Pittsburgh coach Johnny Majors carries Sugar Bowl trophy from field in New Orleans in January 1976 after Pitt defeated the University of Georgia. Now, Majors is with Tennessee in the tough Southeastern Conference where his volunteers are rated no better than ninth. But Majors, who has turned football sow's ears into silk purses wherever he has gone, is uncowed.

"You always have some qualms about that first game, I don't care who it's against," the one-time triple-threat Tennessee tailback said while preparing for his opening against California

"Our job is to work hard and win. Then it can become fun."

Majors is an architect of football success. Himself a product of a winning tradition, he has turned football sow's ears into silk purses wherever he has gone.

At Iowa State he took a team that was 2-8 and 1-9 the previous two years and produced the only bowl teams in the school's history. In 1973 he took over Pittsburgh, a one-time Eastern power which developed a soft underbelly with three consecutive 1-9 seasons. In four years, he turned it into the best college team in the country.

Last year, with Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett serving as the sledgehammer, the Pittsburgh team carved out an unbeaten record, smashed Georgia 27-3 in the Sugar Bowl and won the undisputed national championship.

Majors was named college Coach of the Year, his second such honor. Football people were stunned when Johnny announced he was leaving such a bed of clover to take up the cause of his floundering alma mater in the Deep South where football, like the Baptist Church, is a religion.

A glutton for punishment, they said.

"Not at all," Major said. "It was a fresh challenge, a new opportunity. It promised to be exciting and fun. At 42, I am not sure how many more of such opportunities will be dangled in front of me."

SEASON OVER FOR MILLAN — New York Mets manager Joe Torre, left, talks to Felix Millan and coach Joe Pignatano Saturday. Millan is going home to Puerto Rico today, finished with an injury sustained when thrown by Pittsburgh Pirates Ed Ott in a flareup following a second place play August 12.

Says will pass this year

Can Hayes change spots?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes begins his 27th Ohio State football season with a change in coaching philosophy.

No longer will he have the hammering, massive fullback style of attack. Instead, Hayes will deploy a quick, small backfield. No starter weighs more than 197 pounds.

Hayes first used speedboys Jeff Logan, 184, and Ron Springs, 197, interchangeably at fullback and tailback in surprising Colorado 27-10 in the Orange Bowl.

"We'll let the line take care of the weight and the backs take care of the quickness," said Hayes, with 222 victories in 30 collegiate seasons.

"We had one of the weakest offensive lines in seasons last year. We simply had little experience. We'll be better, much better from tackle to tackle."

The interior anchor is 6-foot-4 tackle Chris Ward, whom Hayes says at 271 pounds "is a little bit on the skinny side."

Ward's buddies are mammoth. Tackle Doug Mackey weighs 250, guards Mark Lang, Jim Savoca and Ken Fritz in the 220-230 range, center Tim Vogler 229 and tight ends Bill Jaco and Greg Storer, 246 and 216.

Logan, in Hayes' mind, saved the Buckeyes' unprecedented fifth straight Big Ten championship, 9-2-1 record and No. 6 national ranking.

"If it hadn't been for Jeff, we'd not have tied for the title with Michigan."

Logan was Ohio State's leading rusher with 1,284 yards, the fifth player in the school's history to pass the 1,000 yard plateau. Springs is even faster than Logan.

Quarterback Rod Gerald, who missed most of the last four games in 1976, has recovered and his darting style complements Logan and Springs.

Hayes, scornful of the pass normally, has as receivers swift 6-foot-4 Herman Jones, Storer and Jago. He said, "The end position could be a great striking force for us. I've promised to throw to Jones this year, and just not in practice."

Ohio State's defenders, just like the offense, have eight regulars back. The foundations are cat-quick middle guard Aaron Brown and tackle Eddie Beamon up front. Tom Cousineau at linebacker and Ray Griffin at safety.

"The greatest compliment I can pay Beamon is that he was double teamed 59 of 70 plays sometimes. That's how much other teams respected him. He's the quickest lineman we've ever had," said the 64-year-old coach.

Wilbur Wood made three changes and put the Chicago White Sox in first place.

The knuckleballer changed his delivery, his pitching style and his losing ways Friday as he hurled the White Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Friday. It was Wood's first victory since July 22.

He traced his recent problems to dropping his elbow and pitching hand as he is throwing straight over the top.

About the second change, he said, "I normally throw about 80 to 85 per cent knuckle balls, but I threw a few more fast balls than normal tonight because I've just been walking too many men."

"I struck out (Don) Money on a fall ball in the ninth inning. It may have caught him by surprise, although it was kind of a gamble. But he was the leadoff hitter and I just didn't want to walk him."

"If he hits a home run, so what? We still have a one-run lead. Maybe he'll hit a fast ball 400 feet for an out. The important thing was not to walk him," Wood said.

The victory boosted the White Sox into first place in the tight American League West race by two percentage points over Texas. The Kansas City Royals and Minnesota Twins are tied for second place, one-half game behind the White Sox and Rangers.

Suit filed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A North Little Rock man has filed suit in federal district court here against Tulsa Drillers' manager Marty Martinez, the Drillers' ownership, and their major league sponsors, the Texas Rangers.

In the suit, Jerry Sterling asks for $55,000 dollars in damages for injuries Sterling allegedly suffered while attending a Texas League baseball game between the Drillers and the Arkansas Travelers at Ray Winder Field May 10.

Sterling claimed in the suit that Martinez left the third-base coaching box during the ninth inning, and advanced toward Sterling using vile language. The suit claims that when Martinez reached the fence separating the playing field from the plaintiff's front row seat, Martinez reached over the fence and struck Sterling in the face with his fist, then dragged him over the fence onto the playing field where he was allegedly assaulted by members of the Tulsa Drillers' team.

Sipe gets bombsight; finds Cards range

Who thought mild mannered Brian Sipe would ever unleash a bomb? Certainly not the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sipe, who has been criticized for his inability to throw "the bomb," fired a 45-yard strike to Reggie Rucker Friday night to set up one touchdown, then passed for two others in leading Cleveland to a 19-10 National Football League exhibition victory over St. Louis.

Rucker wasn't the only one who was impressed by Sipe's 13 for 20 passing performance for 163 yards.

In Friday night's other game, Baltimore defeated Minnesota 29-7.

In NFL preseason action Saturday, Buffalo plays at New Orleans, Green Bay at Tampa Bay, Pittsburgh at New York Jets, Chicago at Houston, the Giants at San Diego and Denver at Atlanta.

On Sunday, Los Angeles plays at San Francisco and Cincinnati is at Detroit. New England visits Philadelphia Monday night.

Sipe, who was to play only one period, found himself at the helm in the fourth quarter because St. Louis were blitzing so much.

The Cardinals moved into a 3-0 lead on a 35-yard field goal by Jim Bakken. The Browns, 2-1, took the lead for good as Sipe passed to Larry Poole for three yards, then fired the strike to Rucker to set up Poole's 10-yard scoring run. Don Cockroft, who later missed a pair of extra point conversions, made it 7-0 with 2:47 left in the quarter.

On the third play of the second period, free safety Thom Darden intercepted a Jim Hart pass and returned it 19 yards to the St. Louis 34. That set up the Browns' second touchdown, an 18-yard pass from Sipe to Rucker.

The Cardinals cut the margin to 13-10 with a 68-yard drive near the end of the half, capped by a one-yard Hart pass to Wayne Morris.

The Colts converted two first-half fumble recoveries into touchdowns, one on a Bert Jones pass, and frustrated four Viking scoring drives in handing Minnesota its first preseason loss.

Two Louisiana sophs don't make practice

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A pair of sophomore Louisiana State football players have apparently quit the Tiger team.

Coach Charles McClendon said that tailback Keith Gilchrist of Nederland, Tex., and center Kevin Lair of New Orleans did not show up for the first day of practice on Friday and he assumes they have quit. Neither player saw varsity action last season.

A total of 135 players were in uniform for that opening workout.

HEROS' CATCH — Col. Gregory "Pappy" Boyington (left) and Lt. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, both retired, fished for salmon together off Westport, Wash., this week. Boyington was credited with shooting down 28 enemy planes and Doolittle led the Tokyo raid.

East dumps West

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Former UCLA teammates Richard Washington and Marques Johnson led a balanced scoring attack that helped the West to a 136-123 victory over the East in a benefit basketball game played before 10,686 fans at the Forum Friday night.

Washington, who played for Kansas City of the National Basketball Association last season, had 25 points and 16 rebounds while Johnson, the college player of the year at UCLA in 1976-77, had 23 points and eight rebounds.

Paul Westphal added 21 points for the West, while Rudy Hackett had 31 points and a game-high 17 rebounds for the East. George Gervin also scored 31 points, while Julius Erving had 24.

All proceeds from the game will go to the Souville Foundation, which gives scholarships and provides summer camp tuition for underprivileged children.

NO LUCK WITH THE HORSES — Pianist Liberace wore this expression Thursday as he watched his pick in the third race at New Jersey's Monmouth Park Racetrack finish out of the money. The pianist was honored at the Oceanport, N.J., track with a race named for him. Liberace is currently appearing at nearby Garden State Arts Center for a series of performances.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies catcher Bob Boone was haunted all last winter by a long fly ball he hit in the final game of the National League playoff series sweep by the Cincinnati Reds.

In his recurring nightmare, Boone saw Reds outfielder George Foster go to the wall in Riverfront Stadium and make a jumping catch.

"The one thing that inspired me was that if I was stronger and hit it harder, it would have been gone," said Boone, whose second-inning home run Friday night helped Larry Christenson, 12-5, to his eighth straight win, a 9-5 decision over the Houston Astros.

Boone's homer was his 10th of the season, equaling his previous major league high. He said he worked hard in the offseason with Phillies conditioning expert Gus Hoefling to build his strength.

"It's all in the wrists," he said. "I'm stronger and driving the ball more."

Boone's homer was the second of four clubbed by the Phillies off Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro. Richie Hebner hit a two-run shot in the first, Jay Johnstone parked one in the sixth and the big blow was Christenson's three-run shot over the center field wall in the sixth.

All the homers came off knucklers from Niekro, 8-5.

"Hitting the home run was the highlight of the game," said Christenson. "I knew that was gone, there was no sting in the fingers."

Christenson said he could tell by the way Niekro was gripping the ball that a knuckleball was on the way. "I could see the knuckler was coming and took a nice easy swing."

Christenson, who hasn't lost since June 1, needed the Phillies' home run production. He struggled through seven innings, giving up four runs on 10 hits before giving way to Ron Reed.

When Houston got a run in the first, the Phils started their assault on Niekro. Bake McBride singled and Greg Luzinski knocked him in with a double. Then came Hebner's homer, his 15th of the year.

Boone hit his over the left field fence in the second and Johnstone and Christenson connected in the four-run sixth.

Niekro said he felt good about his knuckler in the bullpen before the game but once the game started, he couldn't get a good grip on the ball.

"You walk in here and try to keep (Mike) Schmidt and Luzzinski from hitting it out and the others guys do it to you," said Niekro.

The Astros got their second run when centerfielder Terry Puhl drew the second of Christenson's walks and scored after singles by first baseman Bob Watson and Ferguson.

Houston got two more in the seventh on singles by Ken Boswell, pinch hitting for Niekro, and Puhl and Enos Cabell's double. Cabell had three hits for the Astros, who got their fifth run in the eighth when Ferguson doubled, went to third on Art Howe's fly to right and scored on Art Gardner's grounder to first.

Mack 1st round over; Corpus starts tussle

FARMINGTON (AP) — Toledo, Ohio, and Baltimore, Md., were the winners of first round games in the 1977 Connie Mack Baseball World Series.

A two-run homer by Mike Kennedy capped Toledo's four-run outburst in the fourth inning and led the Ohio team to a 4-2 victory over Portage, Mich., in Friday's second opening round game.

In the first game, Baltimore pushed four runs past the plate in the second inning to swamp Bayamon, P.R., 5-2.

The victory advances Toledo to a second-round game Sunday night against the winner of the game between Corpus Christi, Tex., and Independence, Mo. Portage will play Bayamon at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The loser of that contest will be the first team eliminated from the nine-team, double elimination event.

Baltimore plays the ninth team in the tournament, host Farmington, at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Baltimore pitcher John Carey scattered five hits in getting the win against Puerto Rico in the first game.

Puerto Rico's Orlando Calderon, the losing pitcher, allowed only two hits before he was relieved in the second inning. But those hits, plus two walks and an error, proved costly.

The first hit was single by Jeff Eaton—one of two he got on the night to lead the Baltimore team. He drove in two runs to give his team a lead it never relinquished.

The other second-inning runs came when Dave LeCompte smacked a double to drive in two more tallies.

In the second game, Portage jumped to an early lead, scoring single runs in the first and second innings. In both cases, the North-Central regional champions chalked up their runs after two were out.

But Toledo, champions of the East-Central region, did a little two-out rallying of its own in the bottom of the fourth.

Greg Crosby hit a high-hopping single over the third baseman, driving home Rick Coy from second. Crosby advanced to second on a late throw to the plate.

Belcik then beat out an infield hit, and Crosby came home as Portage first baseman Scott Johnson threw wildly to the plate.

Kennedy then put Toledo ahead for the first time—and for good—with his second-pitch blow over the wall, 325 yards from the plate.

The first round concludes Saturday with Corpus Christi and Independence playing at 1 p.m. and San Pedro, Calif., meeting South Lexington, Ky., at 6 p.m.

A DREAM COME TRUE — Kevin Hickey, 19-year-old steel plant worker, displays his southpaw pitching style during a one-day tryout camp for about 200 candidates this week at Comiskey Park in Chicago. He was the only one signed by the White Sox organization. "I've been a White Sox fan all my life," he said. "That's what's so unreal about this."

Young named new OC coach

ODESSA — Wayne Young of University Park Pa., who was captain of the 1976 United States Olympic gymnastics team, has been named gymnastics coach at Odessa College. He replaces Mike Willson who has accepted a position at Ohio State University.

Young, who placed 12th in all-around gymnastics competition at the 1976 Olympic games in Montreal, turned in the best performance of any U.S. gymnast in the history of U.S. gymnastics participation.

The past two years, he has been a graduate assistant at Penn State University, where he has worked with the coaching staff in gymnastics programs in Woodward, Pa., Southern Illinois University at Alton, and at the gymnastics clinic in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Young received a bachelor of science degree in physical education at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah in 1974 and is completing a master's degree in physical education with a major in biomechanics at Penn State this fall.

While a student at Brigham Young University, Young was captain of the university's gymnastics team. Between his junior and senior years, he trained in Japan for six months. His junior year, Young won the Western Athletic Conference all-around title in gymnastics and placed third in the NCAA gymnastics championships. Competing in the World Games for the U.S. in 1974, he finished highest of any American gymnast in the competition. In 1975, Young again won the Western Athletic Conference all-around title and the all-around title in the NCAA competition.

Dr. Philip Speegle, president of OC, commented, "We are very pleased to have an outstanding U.S. gymnast at Odessa College. With his talent and ability, we feel he will make a fine contribution to our athletic program."

Since OC began its gymnastics program in 1965, the college has captured six national championships in a row and seven in the last nine years, with two second-place finishes. The gymnastics program has produced over 72 junior college All-Americans, including 10 who went on to become NCAA All-Americans. Odessa College is now recognized as the top gymnastics power in the state.

Spence stripers keep on coming

Striped bass continued to be the most numerous among catches reported at Lake E.V. Spence during the past week.

The largest of the lot was an 8 3/4-pounder, but the biggest fish was a 20-pound yellow catfish. Reports included white bass, black bass, channel catfish and crappie. Among them were these:

Y.J.'s Marina — Pat and Roger Moore, Midland, two striped bass to 5 1/4-lbs.; Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Purser, Big Spring, three stripers to 8 1/2 lbs.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — California South captured the fifth Junior America's Golf Cup Friday at the Hacienda Club links.

David Games, Corey Povin, Jess Moreno and Eric Evans each shot 71 to give the California South squad the championship in the 16-team tournament. They totaled 648 strokes during the three days of competition.

California North took second place with 661 strokes and Hawaii was third with 669.

It was the first time the tournament, for players under 17 years old, was held outside the United States.

Without Dorsett, Majors, Romano Pitt wants No. 1

Can the Pitt Panthers do it again?

Heisman Trophy-winner Tony Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing king, is gone, nose guard Al Ramono, runner-up in the Outland Trophy voting, is gone. Coach of the Year Johnny Majors is gone.

Gone but not forgotten. Their legacy was the 1976 national championship, capping an incredible four-year rags-to-riches saga.

Pitt will defend The Associated Press National Championship Trophy with a souped-up aerial attack featuring quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and wide receiver Gordon Jones, rebuilt lines led by offensive guard Tom Brzoza and defensive tackle Randy Holloway with a standout secondary which led the nation in interceptions last season and returns intact — Bob Jury, Jeff Delaney, J.C. Wilson and LeRoy Felder.

Pacing the sidelines were Majors once roamed will be Jackie Sherrill, the No. 1 assistant for the first three years of Majors' reign, who was lured back after one season as head coach at Washington State when Tennessee made Majors an offer he couldn't refuse.

"I think that with the people we have coming back, with the young people on our team and with the incoming freshmen, the 1977 squad has the potential for a good nucleus," says Sherrill. "We have to find some linebackers and ends and replace some fine people on both lines."

"Our strong points are at the skill positions — running back, defensive backfield, quarterback and receivers. Offensively, we'll throw the ball more."

The tip-off on Pitt, just as last year, will come in the opener against highly rated Notre Dame.

The Panthers' No. 1 challenger for Eastern honors likely will be Penn State, which had things pretty much its own way in this part of the country until Majors, Dorsett & Co. came along. The Nittany Lions have had 38 consecutive seasons without dropping under 500, an NCAA record. The last 11 of them were under Coach Joe Paterno, who boasts a magnificent 101-23-1 mark. However, last year's record was a so-so 7-5 — the most losses since Paterno's initial campaign — and included a 20-9 Gator Bowl loss to Notre Dame which wasn't really that close.

Paterno sees more problems ahead. The Lions open with Rutgers, which boasts the nation's longest unbeaten streak, and then come Houston, Maryland and Kentucky, all Top Twenty hopefuls. In addition, Paterno calls his current squad "the most overrated team I've ever been around."

That's the bad news. The good news is that Paterno is optimistic.

"I'm concerned because we have to play so well so early," he said. "So many of our people haven't had any real experience. We're talking about playing sophomores at a lot of positions. In the long run I'm optimistic because we have some fine young players. It should be a team that gets better each week."

SANDY SEWELL, CHRISTI ADAMS
... win national saddles

Forsan had 4 entries in AJRA rodeo finals

Christi Adams, Valerie Adams, Hank Adams and Sandy Sewell of Forsan High School were in competition at the AJRA National Finals Rodeo held in Snyder August 9-13.

Sandy Sewell will attend Snyder High School next year, but has been a student at Forsan High since first grade only recently having moved to Snyder. Sandy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sewell, Snyder, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.R. Helms and Mr. and Mrs. Garland McMahan of Big Spring.

Sandy won the 13-15 Girl All-Around saddle at the Finals by receiving the most total points of any girl in her age group at the Finals. She competed in ribbon roping, breakaway roping and goat tying, winning two first places, a second place and a third place. Sandy was the fourth place total money winner for the year in Girls 13-15 Optional Roping.

Christi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.G. Adams and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McDonald of Big Spring, won the World Champion Girls 13-15 Optional Roping Saddle for 1977 in AJRA. She won the saddle for being the top money winner of the 1977 season in girls 13-15 optional roping. Christi competed in ribbon roping, breakaway roping and goat tying at the Finals and won a second and a third place.

Sandy and Christi competed in Saturday night's championship performance, which is open only to the top four winners of the year in each age group.

Valerie Adams competed in goat tying, pole bending, breakaway roping and ribbon roping at the Finals. She won a jacket by winning the average in goat tying. She also received a third place and a fourth place in Finals competition during the week. Valerie finished in seventh place for the year in 13-15 Girls Optional Roping.

Hank Adams competed in 16-19 Boys Optional Roping and Bull Riding at the Finals. Hank is a 1977 graduate of Forsan High School.

Extension granted

CARSON CITY (AP) — The Nevada Supreme Court has granted a two-day extension to an initial Monday deadline for responses to a Mormon judge's petition to be reinstated on the Howard Hughes "Mormon Will" trial.

The high court said Friday that in response to requests from a lawyer for relatives of Hughes, the deadline was reset for Wednesday.

A motion for a time extension was filed earlier Friday by Las Vegas lawyer William Morse, representing Annette Gano Lummis, Hughes' aunt.

Morse said a complete transcript of the hearing in which Clark County District Judge Keith Hayes was removed from the case is not expected to be ready until Monday.

Morse added the initial Monday deadline was "impractical and impossible," and added "it is not good judicial judgment nor is it good common sense that a 'mini' appeal be permitted in these proceedings on the scant record" presented thus far by Hayes.

Morse asked for a delay until Aug. 30. His request followed a similar one Thursday by Barbara Cameron, a paternal second cousin to Hughes.

The Supreme Court had first issued an order Wednesday telling Washoe County District Judge William Forman, who disqualified Hayes because of "implied bias," to respond by Monday to Hayes' reinstatement petition.

Hayes, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) has claimed Forman's order should be stayed or else "irreparable harm" will come to Nevada's judicial system and to his status as a trial judge.

The disqualification came after out-of-court statements by Harold Rhoden, lawyer and substitute executor of the "Mormon Will."

Power of love

By WILFRID M. CALNAN,
A.C.S.W. Director,
Howard Co. Family
Service Center

Suddenly Charles and I were alone in the Anderson's kitchen, our noon-day snack completed. It was one of those intensely quiet moments that signal great times in human lives. As Charles spoke, the timbre of his voice almost belied the fact that two years ago he had survived "open heart surgery". He began:

"Chuck writes his last exam on Friday, the day after tomorrow. He doesn't know that the Lord and I had a contract that I was to live to see him graduated from college. He started college. Then he dropped out. If I had died then, he would have felt too guilty and would never have returned to school."

I felt overwhelmed by this revelation of my respected but reticent friend who seldom let people know how he felt. As I began to gather my senses, I realized that I had been made privy to a great secret of love — of the father for his son. I thought of the telephone calls from Judy, Charles' wife, when he was in intensive care two years before. The painful struggle to stay alive, an almost seeming defiance of nature's laws governing our existence.

Suddenly I was aware of a miracle — the saving of a life that another life be saved — the life of a son.

How could a father stare down the messenger of death and then tell him to go away? How else but for the love of a son?

And then I thought: Is Charles really so different?

Wouldn't, couldn't, any father do the same? How many fathers, would they admit it, could be great fathers to their children, could really be great parents? How many fathers, puzzled though they may be by the antics of their young, can learn the intricacies of parenting? It's time to believe in the power of fathering. A power that could turn things around, by helping our young people, our children, to learn productive behavior.

Charges are 'thorough'

DALLAS (AP) — Zale Corp. officials say a U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission investigation that resulted in charges that the firm violated securities laws was "thorough and exhaustive."

The SEC filed a civil suit Friday accusing the nationwide company of income tax evasion and the maintenance of an offbook trading account in a foreign country.

Immediately after the suit was filed, top officials of the firm agreed to sign a consent decree enjoining them from engaging in activities of the type charged in the suit.

The decrees amount to a handslap by the SEC with a warning never to become involved in such illegal practices.

The SEC's allegations said Zale, in prior public filings, failed to report:

—Reimbursements of approximately $21,000 for political contributions to senior officers in 1970-72.

—The maintenance of an offbook trading account in a foreign country and the use of funds in the account.

—The full extent of the company's tax liability in prior years.

The SEC also asked that the company be ordered to name three persons to the board of directors who have not had any prior affiliation with Zale and to make one of the new independent directors chairman of an audit committee to review the company's financial procedures and adopt a "code of ethical standards and business practices."

sex offender

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A criminal judge says a former scoutmaster's remorse over having had sex with his scouts caused the judge to sentence him to 30 years in prison — instead of the maximum 175-year penalty.

Judge Oliver Schulingkamp sentenced Richard S. Halvorsen, 52, to the prison time on Friday. Two months ago Halvorsen pleaded guilty to five counts of indecent behavior and 11 counts of aggravated crime against nature involving five boys.

Shell topples Texaco

NEW YORK (AP) — Shell Oil Co., with one-third fewer filling stations, has deposed Texaco Inc. after an eight-year reign as the nation's leading marketer of gasoline, a new survey says.

According to the Lundberg Letter, a respected petroleum industry publication, a nationwide survey showed Shell, the nation's seventh largest oil company, led in U.S. taxable gasoline sales with 7.5 per cent of the market for the three months ending in March. Texaco, the second largest oil company in the nation, had a 7.4 per cent share of the market.

It was the third consecutive quarter in which Shell, with 19,000 stations, led Texaco, which has 30,000 stations. And there were signs the battle to be No. 1 is widening: Exxon Corp. and the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana (Amoco) now have about 7.1 per cent of U.S. sales apiece, the Lundberg survey says.

Shell said in a statement it has taken the lead because "we have been able to adjust to the changing conditions of the marketplace and the changing needs of the consumer by offering full service, self-service and split-island service. In this way, we have given the consumer a choice of how he wants to purchase his gasoline without promoting increased consumption."

Texaco refused comment on the survey. But in its last annual report, the company said it planned to extend its recent emphasis on gasoline-only, self service stations.

Although the struggle for the top has been intensifying, the nation's 11 major oil firms — taken as a group — have lost a significant share of the market to smaller firms that have managed to sell gasoline for less, often by cutting services.

In 1969, the major firms accounted for 77 per cent of all U.S. gasoline sales. They had a 67 per cent share at the end of last year.

Texaco reached a high of 8.5 per cent of the U.S. market in 1971, but has been slipping since then. Shell had 8.2 per cent of the market in 1969, and also has been slipping in total share, but at the same time has been catching up with Texaco.

For many years, Texaco has prided itself on being well-represented with service stations throughout the United States. But one industry analyst suggested the company waited too long before closing or selling some of its less profitable stations.

Lions engaged in aiding kids

In the first 25 years of operations, 18,000 children have been guests of Texas Lions at their Crippled Children's Camp at Kerrville. The tide is increasing with addition of programs for blind and deaf children, and now a summer camp for diabetic children.

These were some of the reports included by C.E. McClain, Midland, district 2A-1 director of the camp supported by the Lions of this state. McClain projected a sound film concerning the activities of the camp. All expenses of the children at camp, as well as travelling to and from, are covered by Lions. In the winter months, the facility is used for training blind adults for vocations.

Jim Lemons, past district governor, introduced McClain, who was accompanied by a Lions exchange student, Rudy Enns from Niagra on the Falls, Ontario, Canada.

Lawrence Snively, a transfer from the Mansfield, Pa. club, was welcomed as a new member by M.A. Barber, president. The dinner picnic for this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Quigley, 1302 Birdwell, was announced, as a Lions Auxiliary activity. Gary Bradbury, immediate past president, presented Ernie Boyd a plaque for seven years of exceptional service as club secretary.

Aikin may get foe in race

AUSTIN — Sen A.M. Aikin Jr., longest serving member of the Texas Legislature, apparently is going to get his first political opponent since 1948. Charles L. McFarrige, 44, plans a news conference Sept. 10 in his hometown of Mount Pleasant to announce his candidacy for the First Senatorial District seat.

Trustees will discuss plans

The board of trustees of the Stanton Independent School District will hold a special meeting 8 p.m. Monday in the School Administration Building.

The meeting will be used to consider an amended budget; select workman's compensation insurance; and discuss a building program.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, AUGUST 21, 1977

Section C

Now have more variations, more styles

Cowboy hat still popular today

By SUSAN HAMPTON
The cowboy hat, having endured more than 100 years of popularity, is still a common sight in the Western United States, especially in Texas.

Primitive handmaking procedures have given way to more efficient production lines of the hats, as has almost everything.

A person who dresses in western attire, will, no doubt, buy and wear a cowboy hat, usually the most popular feature of the clothes.

And, according to several experts on the subject, a cowboy hat is no inexpensive item when looking for quality and "wearability." The person might buy cheaper boots and clothes but will not compensate for a quality hat. It is the hat that makes the difference in the overall look, and the hat is what the other person sees first.

The quality, the price range, and the styles differ enormously, according to Joeneil Smallwood, owner of Smallwood's Western Wear here. The four top manufacturers of cowboy hats, for instance, have a different name for practically the same hats. The top makers, Smallwood said, Stetson, Resistol, Bailey and Miller Brothers, also make inexpensive hats and expensive hats.

The styles differ as much as the wearers themselves. No longer is a "standard style" the case. For instance, popular styles currently are the High Mesa, Bullrider, Square D, Del Rio, Association, (sometimes called the RCA), Go-Round, Quarter Horse and the Cutter.

Not all of these styles are made for women, a large part of the buying market for cowboy hats these days, Smallwood said.

The most popular styles for women are the Bullrider and the RCA. But, he added, it's really what the individual wants.

Each of the styles have variations to them and can be "customized" to what the wearer wants, he said. Popular features of the hat today are feathers and bands which go around the base of the crown. The bands come in all colors and different types of material and animal fur, he said.

The size of the hat differs too. The brims, for instance, range from three inches to five inches. The larger the brim, Smallwood said, the more popular with younger men and women today. The older man, he said, will lean toward more traditional style of a lower crown and smaller brim.

The crown can range from five inches to a "tall in the saddle" seven inches. The larger crown is another drawing point for the younger man today, he said.

The old Tom Mix style of hat, with the rolled trim and tall, tall crown, is not a popular hat today, but some still buy it, he said.

The felt cowboy hat, is not, contrary to general opinion, a kind of cloth. Actually, it is different from any other kind of cloth because it is made from countless short, single animal fibers which are interlocked by their natural tendency to move and twist when kneaded and manipulated in hot water and steam, a part of the making process of the hat. The better felt used on the hat, normally the more expensive the hat will cost.

Smallwood said it is not uncommon for a man to buy only one or two cowboy hats in his lifetime, having used them every day. These men usually buy good quality hats to begin with.

Prices on the hats can range from $30-$150 for a felt hat, and $6-$75 for a straw hat. Straw hats are usually worn in the summer or warmer months and the felt hats are worn in the colder months. Smallwood said in certain western states such as Arizona, where the temperature does not get extremely cold, the straw hat is sometimes worn all year around.

Sometimes the hat does not come ready to wear to the stores, he said. Many stores crease their own hats and "roll" their own brims to suit the buyers tastes.

Creasing and rolling is an art, Smallwood said. The first crease job he did, he said, was a failure, but since he has had more experience, he has gotten better.

The cowboy hat, although not a part of everyone's daily attire, is a symbol of the "last frontier" of this country. To many it holds a special feeling of what the country stands for.

JANICE PLATTE wears a RCA style cowboy hat. The RCA (Rodeo Cowboy Association) hat is a popular style for both men and women. Her hat features a crease in the crown. Janice lives on Jonesboro Rd.

DR. GALE KILGORE, a local eye doctor, wears a Cutter style cowboy hat which features a crease in the sides of the crown, a popular addition to the hat today.

CARLOS ROBERTO BVES wears a Cattleman style cowboy hat, the same style the Sheriff's Posse wears, he said. His hat features a crease in the sides of the crown.

Laundering care helps colors 'stay put'

By JANET SARGENT
Howard County Home
Demonstration Agent

Garment colors get staying power from easy, but careful, laundering steps. Color loss is a leading cause of damaged garments — due to incorrect laundering, ignoring care-labels, mislabeling by manufacturers or dye problems — but wearers can overcome many color snags with watchful laundry-room tactics.

Before buying a garment, check the permanent care label for warnings such as "wash separately" or "no bleach." If they cannot become part of the regular laundry routine, it is best to make another selection.

To answer fading questions about a garment, test it before laundering. Submerge it briefly in a small amount of water like the recommended wash temperature. Look for any change in the color of the water.

If still in doubt, take a few minutes to duplicate the actual wash. Clip a small piece of each fabric or trim used in the garment from seam allowances or facings. Place in a pint jar with one cup of water similar to the wash temperature. Add a teaspoon of detergent. Shake and let stand ten minutes. Check the water for any color change.

Rinse the clippings and again check for any color loss in the rinse water. Let the clippings dry, compare them to the original garment.

The following laundry pointers will minimize color damage:

Launder garments soon

and frequently after soiling, as prolonged soaking is harsh on many dyes.

Use cold or warm water to prevent harsh hot-water damage to dyes.

Before using any stain remover, test it on a seam allowance for color change.

Remember, oxygen bleach is safe for all fabrics and colors — white chlorine bleach may remove or lighten some colors.

If in doubt about using chlorine bleach, mix one-fourth cup water and one tablespoon bleach — then place one drop of it on a seam allowance. Let stand one minute and check for any color change.

Some garments such as jeans, or fabrics such as madras, are designed to fade. Wash these together by similar colors.

MRS. GUY WILLIAM CONDRA

Couple exchanges vows in Conroe church

The St. James Episcopal Church in Conroe was the setting for the Aug. 6 wedding of Miss Debra Kay Stallings and Guy William Condra. The Rev. Don Keeling officiated.

Parents of the couple are Don Stallings, Del Rio, Mrs. Dixie Allen, Houston and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Condra, Austin, formerly of Big Spring.

The bride chose a designer gown of white crepe de chine and silk Venise lace. Fashioned with an empire waist, the gown featured a scalloped Queen Anne neckline and bishop sleeves. The gently flowing skirt, also applied with lace, ended with a flounce which fell to a graceful chapel-length train. The bride's veil of white silk illusion draped from a Juliet cap of matching Venise lace.

The bride carried a cascade of white roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Wade Monroe, Houston, five-year-old cousin of the bride, was ring bearer for the couple.

Mrs. Lynn McMains, Houston, was matron of honor. Maid of honors was Miss Marsha Bennett, Houston. Bridesmaids were Miss Caron Hayes, Houston, and Mrs. Pamela King, El Paso.

Bill Condra, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen included Pete Shaffer, Big Spring; C.B. Moore and Marcelo Barba, both of Austin.

Ushers included David

Stallings, Houston, brother of the bride; Phil Condra, Austin, brother of the bridegroom; Ennie Hickman, Houston, and Steve Watson, Birmingham, Ala.

A reception honoring the couple followed in the Parish Hall at the church. A tiered wedding cake decorated the bride's table. In fitting with the couple's alma mater there was a Texas Aggie's groom's cake.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Texas A&M University and will teach elementary school in the Aldine School District in Houston.

The bridegroom is also a 1977 graduate of Texas A&M University and will be employed by Big Tin Barn Lumber Company in Conroe as a management trainee.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. R.D. Stallings, Pasadena, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mercer, San Marcos; grandparents of the bride; Mrs. A.D. Brown, Austin, formerly of Big Spring, grandmother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Marvin Woolbright, aunt of the bride and Michael Woolbright, cousin of the bride, both from Cypress, California and Dr. J.R. Tamsitt, Bogota, Colombia, uncle of the bridegroom, formerly of Big Spring.

Following a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the couple will reside in Houston.

WEDDING PLANNED — Mr. and Mrs. Tino Rosas, 1208 Lindbergh, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Elma, to Nabar Martinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Vega, 307 S. San Joaquin Ave., San Antonio. The couple will be married Sept. 10 at their future home at 2101 Allendale Rd. The Rev. Harlan Birdwell will officiate.

Mrs. Parker honored with baby shower

Mrs. Tena Parker was honored at a pink and yellow baby shower Monday night in the home of her sister, Miss Rebecca Taylor.

Miss Sandra Wells and Mrs. Duane Chester co-hosted the event.

The table was covered in lace with a background of baby's colors and a "babyland" rocking horse surrounded with miniature building blocks served as the centerpiece.

Cake and ice cream was served to the guests, along with lime sherbet and punch or coffee. Hollowed building blocks filled with peanuts and candy corn were given as favors.

Among the honored guests at the event was the future grandfather, Mr. Elmo Taylor, who presented the future mother with a high chair. Mrs. Gladys Custer aunt of the mother-to-be, also attended.

Former residents note anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Boatman, former residents of Big Spring, will note their 50th wedding anniversary next Sunday with a reception at the Texas Electric Service Company Reddy Room in Monahans, where the couple now resides.

The event will be from 2-5 p.m. The couple is requesting no gifts.

Retirement not in plans of 83 year-old lawyer

NASHVILLE, Ind. (AP) — As a 6-year-old, Florence Kauffman was worried sick. What was she going to be when she grew up?

While shuffling along a LaGrange County road near her home one day, young Florence decided that she would become a teacher and a lawyer. Both ambitions became realities.

She taught for a while in a one-room schoolhouse, then returned to the classroom, in her 30s, to study for her second career. Florence Thacker Bradley continues to practice law, as she has for 46 years.

"I suppose that nature's eventually going to retire me," she muses. "But as long as I can drive a car, I'll come on down to my office."

The attorney is 83 years old.

"M" IS PUBLISHED BY MacMillan and moved here 30 years ago because she wanted to retire. "I thought maybe I would work three days a week, have one girl in the office."

"Retirement" is five days a week with five women kept busy. "I work only until noon now, then I go home or go play bridge." Her twinkle suggests that she keeps a few aces up her sleeves.

The University of Wisconsin graduate received her J.D. degree in 1931 from the old Benjamin Harrison Law School in Indianapolis, now a part of Indiana University Law School, Indianapolis. There were three women in her class, but only Florence Thacker hung out a shingle.

"I had my first case several days before I was graduated. It was a divorce case for my barber," she recalls. "By the third day my practice was established. An estate came in, enough to pay the bills for a year."

The attorney logged a number of firsts during her stay in the Hoosier capital. She was the first lawyer of her sex to be named a referee in the Juvenile Court. She was attorney for the policewomen — "they were about to fire them" — and she was the first woman prosecutor in Marion County.

"I've never known any discrimination," Mrs. Bradley reflects. "I never tried to enter the 'men's world.' I took care of the women and children."

"I was so glad to get away from all of those divorce cases after moving here," sighs Mrs. Bradley, who was Brown County's first bona fide attorney. Three men had been admitted to the bar earlier under the "grandpa clause."

MRS. CHRIS ALLAN HART

St. Ambrose church site of wedding

The St. Ambrose Catholic Church in Wall was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Alanna Katherine Schniers and Chris Allan Hirt. The Rev. Kevin Heyburn officiated at the ceremony.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with two candelabums with gladioli and apricot carnations.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Schniers, Rt. 3, San Angelo, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hirt, St. Lawrence Rt., Garden City, Texas.

The bride wore a candlelight gown of satin overlaid with organza. A full circular skirt extended into a chapel-length train, trimmed in lace and pearls. A V-shaped neckline and layered sleeves added to the gown. The bodice and sleeves were trimmed in matching lace and pearls.

Maid of honor was Miss Ronda Schniers, Wall, sister of the bride. Matron of honor was Mrs. Gary Jacob, Winters, Texas, sister of the groom.

Bridesmaids included Miss Jan Hirt, sister of the groom and Miss Belinda Jost, both from St. Lawrence. Others were Janell Schniers, and Lynette Schniers, both sisters of the bride, and Debbie Pelzel, all from Wall, Texas.

Best man was Barry Hirt, St. Lawrence, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Gary Jacob, Winters; Daryl Schniers and Doyle Schniers, brothers of the bride, from Wall; Wayne Hirt and Kevin Hirt, both brothers of the groom, both from St. Lawrence, and Mike Batla, St. Lawrence.

Flower girl was Miss Glenda Schniers, Wall, sister of the bride.

Ringbearer was Brent Schniers, Wall.

Ushers included Jody Schwartz, Wayne Jansa, both from St. Lawrence; Guy Hirt, Wall, and Charles Glass, Carlsbad, Texas.

Following a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple will reside in St. Lawrence.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Wall High School. The groom is a 1974 graduate of Garden City High School and is now employed as a farmer in St. Lawrence.

A reception was held in the St. Ambrose Parish Hall following the ceremony. A supper and dance was given.

New commission on women created

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Commission on the Status of Women has been created by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, a job the Texas legislature refused to tackle.

policies and practices affecting women including "methods of achieving equal opportunity for employment and advancement and full utilization of the talent and skill of the entire work force."

Briscoe issued an executive order Wednesday for the unpaid 15-member commission. He said its goal would be that of "maximizing women's opportunities to contribute fully to the growth of this state."

Briscoe said the duties of the commission would include:

—Distribution of information and data concerning women.

—Develop policies and programs "to assure that women receive equal treatment in all areas of life."

—Develop new and expanded services for women in the home and the community.

Miss Gilbert, Jerry McMahon wed in Baptist ceremony

Miss Brenda Lou Gilbert became the bride of Jerry Wayne McMahon in a ceremony performed recently at Central Baptist Church in Odessa. The Rev. Roy O. Womble officiated at the double ring wedding.

1966 graduate of Big Spring High School, served four years in the U.S. Navy and is a 1976 graduate of Texas Tech University. He is employed with Rexene Polyolefins as an instrument technician. Following a wedding trip to Indian Lodge and Fort Davis, the couple will reside in Odessa.

MR. AND MRS. JERRY WAYNE McMAHON

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.R. Gilbert, 290 West Yukon Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. McMahon, Big Spring.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional style gown of white poly-chiffon. Venise lace and French imported Alencon lace decorated the empire bodice and a deep V-neckline was encircled with lace motifs and pearls. Bishop sleeves were capped with an Alencon band and were caught by cuffs edged in Venise lace daisies. The demibell skirt finished with a ruffled flounce and was bordered in lace. Her fingertip veil, edged in lace and encircled with lace motifs, had a scalloped effect, and the veil fell from a Venise lace cap. She carried a bouquet of blue wood fibre flowers with baby's breath and white ribbon.

Selections of "Sunrise, Sunset" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by the bride's niece, Miss Trina Foster, and her brother-in-law, Porter Foster. They were accompanied on the piano by the bride's niece, Miss Teresa Foster. She also played the traditional wedding march.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Sharon Spears, Arlington, as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of royal blue crepe with a plunging neckline topped with a short jacket of white poly-chiffon with blue flowers. She wore a flower in her hair.

The groom's father served as best man. Ushers were Bill Murphy and Tommy McMahon.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the reception hall of the church. The houseparty included Mrs. B.J. Gilbert, Mrs. J.W. Gilbert, Mrs. T.P. Foster, Mrs. Bill Murphy, and Misses Karen and Pam Gilbert.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Odessa High School, attended Odessa College and was an honor graduate of Merriman Draughon's School of Court Reporting in Lubbock. She is employed by Rexene Polyolefins as a chemical operator. Her husband is a

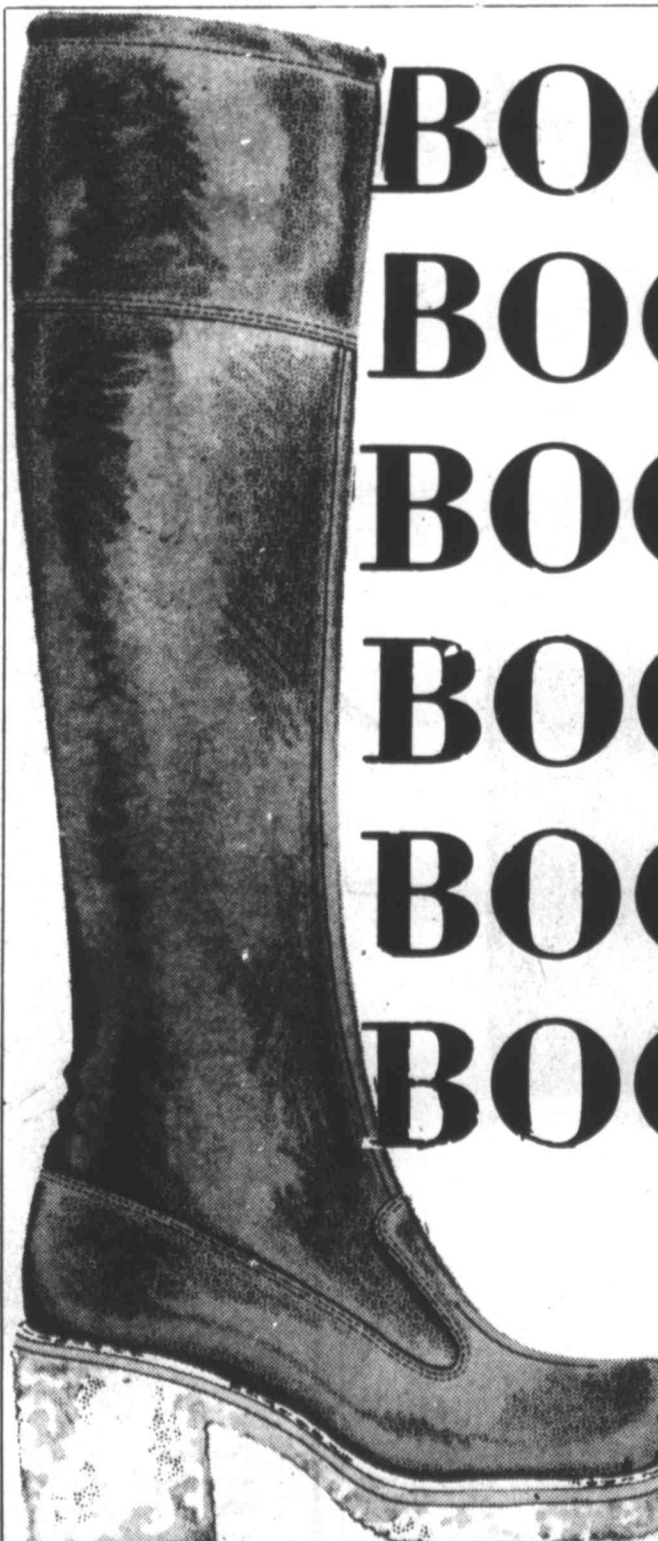

Trudeau optimistic

WEST VANCOUVER, Canada (AP) — Margaret Trudeau says she is optimistic about a complete reconciliation with her husband.

"It's what we've always wanted," the prime minister's estranged wife said in an interview Thursday at her parents' home. "We've been working in this direction and I am praying it will now work out again."

"I am very happy but I'm not setting any time limit."

Mrs. Trudeau is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sinclair, with two of her three sons, 5-year-old Justin and Michel, who is almost 2. The prime minister is on vacation in Klauane National Park in the Yukon with their third child, 3-year-old Sacha.

Haskell couple wed in Saturday ceremony

The First United Methodist Church in Haskell was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Miss Christie Kay McAdams to Cris Wesley Love.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Tommy McAdams, Haskell. The parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Love, Haskell.

The Rev. C.T. Jackson, the bride's grandfather and retired pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Anson, performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long gown of organza and lace in white. The empire bodice with a portrait neckline was outlined in a double-ripple of organza with appliques of Venice lace. Lace was repeated above the deep flounce on the bottom of her full skirt that fell into a chapel train.

A Camelot cap of lace and tiny seed pearls held her long veil of imported illusion. For something borrowed she carried a white lace fan overlaid with a charcoal and white antique fan that belonged to her great-grandmother, Mrs. Gene Crenshaw, Big Spring. It was decorated with a white orchid corsage with white satin streamers.

Sarah Cox sang "Loves Grown Deep" at the beginning of the ceremony. The traditional processional, "Bride's Chorus" by Wagner, was played by Mrs. Kenneth Lane. John Cox sang "The Wedding Song." Both John and Sarah Cox sang "We've Only Just Begun" for the recessional, and the "Wedding March" by Mendelsohn was played.

The altar was set with matching white baskets with yellow and white daisies, baby's breath, baby mums and fern. Two six-tier candelabums, fern and white satin bows were used. The pews were marked with white bows and jonquil satin bows.

MRS. CHRIS WESLEY LOVE

Maid of honor was Miss Melisa McCauley, Haskell. Bridesmaids included Miss Emily Thigpen, Haskell, Mrs. Tommy B. Watson, Jr., Snyder and Miss Sherrie Everett, Haskell.

Flower girls were Ronda Kim Clanton and Paula Kay Clanton, both from Big Spring, both cousins of the bride.

Ringbearers were Robert Eugene McAdams and Richard McAdams, both from Haskell, both brothers of the bride.

Candlelighter was Ronald Lewis Clanton, Big Spring, cousin of the bride. Best man was Tommy B. Watson, Jr., Snyder. Groomsmen were Jamie Mickler, Haskell, Mike Crim, Lubbock and Gary McAdams, Haskell, brother of the bride. Ushers included Jackie McAdoo, Haskell; Thomas McAdams, Haskell, brother of the bride; Archie Crim, Lubbock and Roy Don Klose, Haskell.

Following a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will reside in Snyder, where both are sophomores at Western Texas College.

The bride is a 1976 Haskell High School graduate. She is studying pre-nursing. The groom is also a 1976 graduate of Haskell High School, and is currently majoring in law enforcement. Both attended Tarleton State University.

At the reception following the wedding, Miss Susie Hopkins, Haskell, registered guests. The table was decorated with a white lace cloth and blue plume pen.

Severing were Miss Lynn Weatherly, Miss Sheryl Sparks, Miss Tracy Sparks, both of Big Spring, Miss Kerrie Gibbs, Fullerton, Calif., Miss Diane May, Grafford, Texas and Miss Toby Chambers, both of Rising Star, both cousins of the groom.

Reception hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McAdams, Lewisville; the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. McAdams, and Mrs. Jim Weeks, Amarillo.

The parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Love, hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Haskell Steak House. A supper for all out-of-town guests hosted by the bride's mother was held at the Haskell Community Room following the reception.

Reluctant boyfriend must make a stand

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dear Doctor,

I've liked this certain boy for a long time. Finally he told me he likes me but I am not allowed to tell anyone. We are the same age, but he is a year ahead of me in school, and says his friends will tease him for going with a younger girl.

I told him that if he really liked me, he would not care what his friends said, but he won't budge. What do you think?

N. H., Costa Mesa, CA
Dear N. H.,

The boy probably does like you, but the fear of being teased by his buddies is real.

Still, he has to make a choice. If he wants to keep it a secret, shine him on. No young woman deserves this type of a relationship.

Dear Doctor,

I am 19, have a daughter 2 and I have never been married.

I have been going with a guy that I love for five months. He has been divorced for over two years. We had been talking about marriage at Christmas time but something has come up.

His ex-wife has come to visit him and is staying in his apartment. He says that he doesn't want her back, but yet he doesn't want me to call him because he doesn't want his "ex" to know about us. I don't know how long she is going to stay with him, but I love him and I'm going out of my mind. What should I do?

D. L. W., Wenatchee, WA
Dear D.,

If this guy really wanted to, he would be with you, not his ex-wife. It appears that he doesn't know what he wants. Your friend must make a choice. If he loves and wants you, he must make it known to all concerned.

If he doesn't want this, look for a guy who, for sure, shows and says he loves you.

Dear Doctor,

I have been going steady with my boyfriend for four years. Two months ago, I broke up with him over something silly. Now I regret it, but since he won't speak to me, how should I go about letting him know I still care and want him back?

I know he still cares for me. Any advice you could give would be appreciated.

A. A., Fort Wayne, IN
Dear A. A.,

Find the nicest "Miss You" card and with a short note, tell him you are sorry for allowing something silly to cause a breakup. Tell him you care for him and ask him to call you.

If he doesn't call, don't wait for him. Start dating other boys. This may be the best and fastest way to gain his attention.

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

A new process has been developed for poaching hard-boiled eggs. As soon as the eggs are cooked, put them in a bowl of ice water for exactly one minute, then return them to the still boiling water they were cooked in for exactly ten seconds. Removing them, crack the shells, and then roll the egg between your hands to loosen the shells. When poaching the egg it is easiest to start from the large end of the egg, peel it under cold water, either from the top or in a bowl the water prevents breakage into the white.

How about scrambled eggs and toast for breakfast or add some sausage does that sound good? at COOKER'S RESTAURANT 306 Benton, 267-2218 you can breakfast with us any morning. Starting the day off right means having a good breakfast and that's just what we give you. Stop in soon. Open 6 a.m.-10 p.m. 7 days.

GOURMET TIP: Try garnishing your next salad with a couple of quartered, hard-boiled eggs.

Wesley Methodist Church Stork club site of Friday rite

The wedding vows of Miss Janet Kay Boyett to Salvador Hernandez were solemnized Friday evening in the Wesley Methodist Church with the Rev. Elra Phillips officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William P. Bodin and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hernandez. The bride is also the daughter of the late Rev. Robert Boyett.

The couple stood before an archway of greenery entwined with boxwood, red roses and doves flanked on either side with baskets of gladiolus and tree candelabrum.

Mrs. Chuck Boland provided organ music for the ceremony and accompanied Wade Burroughs, a vocalist at the wedding.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of white Quiana and chiffon fashioned with a scooped U-neckline edged in scalloped Venice lace. The high empire bodice had lace bands forming the sleeve and encircling the waist. The full gathered skirt was soft chiffon and flowed into a chapel-length train. The chapel-length veil of sheer illusion edged in Venice lace was caught into a Juliet headpiece decorated with lace and embellished with pearls.

For something old, something borrowed and something blue, the bride used her great-great-grandmother's, Mrs. John Alexander and great-grandmother's, Mrs. W.B. Ayers, wedding rings. Something new was tiny gold cross earrings encircled with tiny gold hearts. A 30-year-old white Bible from her mother was borrowed and a blue garter was used. The couple carried birthdate pennies for good luck.

The bride carried a cascade of feathered carnations, red roses and baby's breath on a white Bible.

Maid of honor was Miss Suzan Langdon, Big Spring. Bridesmaids included Miss Karen Boyett and Miss Terri Boyett, Sand Springs, sisters of the bride. The maid of honor wore a formal-length gown of pink dacron crepe with sheer sleeves of pink, decorated with tiny blue and yellow flowers. A single long stemmed pink carnation was carried.

The other attendants were attired in formal-length pale blue gowns with white cape sleeves and a white panel in front of dacron crepe. Long-stemmed single blue carnations were carried. All wore garden hats the same color of the gowns with white satin ribbons and white silk roses.

Best man was Wayne Brockman, Coahoma. Groomsmen were Danny Tucker and Donny Latimer, both of Sand Springs.

Ushers included Carlos Hernandez and Thomas Hernandez, Sand Springs, both brothers of the groom.

Candlelighters were Jimmy Trawick and Shelby Marvin, both of Sand Springs.

Flower girl was Miss Leslie Brockman, Coahoma. She wore a formal-length gown of pink, and carried a basket of roses petals decorated with pink satin ribbons.

Ring bearer was Gregory Bodin, Sand Springs, brother of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will reside in Sand Springs.

MRS. SALVADOR HERNANDEZ

Both attended Coahoma High School. The groom is employed at Pollard's Chevrolet.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlor. A three-tiered cake which was separated with columns, decorated with swans and red roses spiraling off the cake and topped with two white doves and a white wedding bell was served. Crystal and silver appointments were used. The centerpiece was fresh-cut pink, blue and yellow flowers.

Miss Nellie Rivera, Colorado City, presided at the registrar. Servers were Mrs. Tim Davidson, Big Spring and Miss Kelley Hoyle, Wolfforth. Rice bags were passed out by Miss Stephanie Stephens, O'Donnell, cousin of the bride.

For her going away outfit, the bride chose a bone gaucho suit trimmed with large brown butterflies on the pants and jacket. She accented the outfit with a yellow necklace and brown sandals.

Stand-in bridegroom 'marries' three women

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Patrick Dennis Murphy said "I do" in three marriage ceremonies with three different women but walked out of the courtroom married to none of them.

Murphy, who works at a local blood laboratory, stood in Thursday for three men jailed at a maximum-security federal prison in Marion, Ill.

Texas is one of two states, along with California, allowing proxy marriages.

The three brides drove here from their Illinois homes for nuptials before County Court-at-Law No. 3 Judge Jon Wisser. Their husbands were represented by signed affidavits saying they wanted to be married — and Murphy.

Murphy said he was recruited for the stand-in bridegroom job when the women came to his laboratory for premarriage blood tests. The new brides — Brenda Joyce Formby, Deborah Lenore Waugus Scott and LaQuita Louise Shrader Navarro — left immediately after the weddings to be back in Marion for visiting hours at 1:30 p.m. today.

Murphy got three kisses from his "brides" to mark the event.

Miss Tanner, Melvin Berry repeat vows Saturday

Miss Mary Christina Tanner became the bride of Melvin Walter Berry in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in the College Baptist Church. The Rev. Byron Orand, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church in San Angelo, performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Tanner, 2413 Alabama, Big Spring and Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Berry, 2517 Larry Dr., Big Spring are the parents of the groom.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with matching baskets of white gladiolus and blue and white carnations placed at either side of the pulpit area.

Selections by Bach and Beethoven were presented on the organ by Miss Annabeth Deats.

The bride wore a gown of crepe polyester with an empire waist, fashioned with a Victorian collar and lace shoulder yoke bordered in lace. Rows of lace accented the body of the gown. The long full sleeves were attached to cuffs of matching lace. The full skirt extended into a chapel-length train. Pearl buttons accented the yoke and the cuffs. The shoulder-length veil extended from a lace headpiece.

The bride carried a bouquet of two small orchids, baby's breath and blue and white carnations on a white Bible which had been carried previously by the bride's mother and cousin.

Maid of honor was Miss Judith Ann Tanner, sister of the bride.

Bridesmaids included Miss Dawn Berry, sister of the groom; Mrs. Linda Tanner, Malakoff, Texas, sister-in-law of the bride and Mrs. Babette Belcher, Lubbock, cousin of the bride. They wore floor-length dresses of blue crepe with capelet sleeves. Each carried a long-stemmed blue carnation.

Best man was Tracy Thompson, Big Spring. Groomsman was Greg Brooks, Big Spring.

Ushers included Bill Berry, brother of the groom; Thomas Tanner, brother of the bride and Donald Belcher, cousin of the bride.

Flower girl was Melanie Knows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Knows, Big Spring.

Ring bearer was Michael Harness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harness, Big Spring.

Following a wedding trip to Dallas and Fort Worth, the couple will make their home at Lakeshore Estates, Denton.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School. She attended Howard College and is presently a sophomore accounting major at Texas Women's University.

The groom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. He is currently a junior physical therapy major at Texas Women's University and is employed by the Denton State School.

MRS. MELVIN WALTER BERRY

A reception was given in the activities building of the College Baptist Church. The table was laid with a white cloth on which blue daisies, carnations and fern encircled the bride's Bible and a special wedding gift, a Paul Warren plaque commemorating this event, were placed. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with wedding bells was served. Crystal and silver appointments were used. Miss Debbie Vernon and Miss Jodi Grant were servers. Mrs. Linda Tanner and Miss Susan McMurray registered the guests.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. J.T. Hill, Kilgore, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Helen Berry, Alamogorda, N.M., grandmother of the groom and Mrs. R.T. Tanner, Malakoff, an aunt. Mrs. Byron Orand and Carole Ann and Kyle was also guests.

DATE SET — Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gray Lewis, Houston, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carol Binz, to Wincil Wayne Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wincil Price Morris, Big Spring. The couple is planning a September wedding.

Markets popular sight

HINOMISAKI, Japan (AP) — In this tiny fishing village, when the setting sun has turned the Sea of Japan into a shimmering carpet of coral, women and small children wade offshore with nets to catch sardines for their evening meal.

They toss the little silver fish onto the rocky shore, where they lie flopping and gasping until they are gathered into a wooden box.

On the horizon are hundreds of small fishing vessels which later will bring their catch to docks in nearby towns. The fish will be sorted at cooperatives and later sold to businesses in nearby towns, or frozen and flown to big cities.

The Japanese take about one-sixth of the world's fish catch from the teeming seas around them. They get more than 25 per cent of their protein from seafood.

On the Tokyo wharves, business at the Tsukiji Fish Market begins before dawn. Trucks arrive crammed with tuna, the big fish frozen and white with frost. Workmen pull them from trucks with wooden hooks and the fish clatter to the floor.

Other workers weigh each tuna on a scale that is wheeled up and down the docks.

Live-in Lover Not Invited by 'In-laws'

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend's parents are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary this month, and have planned a big bash at a very fancy country club. They say it's only family and close friends, and you guessed it—I'm not invited! I have lived with their son for three years, and if that doesn't make me "family," I don't know what does.

I could marry him if I wanted to, but if I did I would lose the alimony I'm getting from my last husband, and also the child support from my kids' father. (My second husband.) I also think marriage is very old-fashioned today.

Everybody in town, including my boyfriend's parents, knows that we have been living together, so why shouldn't my kids and I be invited.

I hear that my boyfriend's ex-wife and her kids will be there. I ask you, is that fair? I think it's rotten for his folks to treat me this way. Am I wrong?

LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: Yes. On two counts: (1) Marriage is NOT "old-fashioned"—it's as popular today as it ever was. (2) Your boyfriend's parents are free to invite (and exclude) whomever they wish. It's their party.

DEAR ABBY: I witnessed an incident at the beach last Sunday that ruined my day. A young mother was trying to teach her daughter, who appeared to be about three, to swim. She held the child's head under the water and yelled, "If you don't learn to enjoy the water, you'll never learn to swim!"

Meanwhile the poor child was hysterical as she clung to her mother for dear life, crying and begging her to stop. The mother tore the child's little hands loose, and pushed her head under the water time and time again, insisting she had to learn to "like" the water. The child came up repeatedly, gasping, choking and pleading, but the mother showed her no mercy.

I wanted to say something to the mother, but I was afraid she'd tell me to mind my own business. Later I heard her tell her friend that a swimming teacher had told her that this was the only way to teach a child how to swim.

I had a similar experience when I was young. I'm now 32, I never learned to swim, and I'm still afraid of water.

CONCERNED IN GA.

DEAR CONCERNED: Whether or not the mother knew it, she was abusing that child, and child abuse is everybody's business. You should have told that mother what you told me.

DEAR ABBY: Are there any foods or beverages which will help a person sexually? I have heard there are several.

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: I know of none. But if you believe that a certain food or drink will "help you" sexually, by all means try it. It probably will.

MRS. WILLIAM REID WHEELER

Andrews church site of private ceremony

Miss Donna Ann Martin and William Reid Wheeler were united in marriage July 30 in a private, family ceremony in Andrews Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Robert Zap officiating.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Martin, Marble Falls and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wheeler, Stanton.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a long white organza dress borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Bobbie Moxon. It was fashioned with a high Venetian lace neckline.

Her long full sleeves were attached to cuffs of Venetian lace, and a chapel-length train trimmed with matching lace attached to the dress at the waist. The mantilla headpiece covered with Venetian lace was also chapel-length.

The bride carried a nosegay of cymbidium orchids and fresh baby's breath.

The church was decorated with two large fern plants on each side of the altar, a kneeling bench and a large floral arrangement.

Miss Bobbie Kay Moxon, Springfield, Mo., sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Diane Belcher, Houston, and Mary Lynn Wheeler, Stanton, the groom's sister.

Attending the groom as best man was Bryan Allen Wheeler, Lubbock, the groom's brother. Russell Martin, Fort Worth, the bride's brother, and James McCullough, Odessa, served as groomsmen.

Andy Ervin sang "The Twelfth of Never" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a champagne buffet at the Hilton Inn in Midland.

After a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will make their home in Stanton where the groom is employed by Cap Rock Electric Co-Op as a meter reader and the bride is employed by Stanton Independent School District as a teacher.

MR. AND MRS. C. DOYAL THETFORD

Regina Rhoads, Thetford exchange vows

Regina Rhoads and C. Doyal Thetford were married in a ceremony in Clovis, N.M., July 29 at 3 p.m.

Ms. Rhoads is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Rhoads, 800 Lancaster and Thetford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Thetford, 4118 Cherry St., Gainesville, Texas.

The couple spent their honeymoon at a mobile home owned by the groom's parents on Lake Kiowa, near Gainesville.

The bride is a 1966 graduate of Big Spring High School. She attended Howard College and two years at Texas Women's University.

The groom is employed by Southern Pacific Railroad. He has won apprentice of the year of the entire Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

The couple will reside in Georgiaville, Ga., where Thetford will study electronics for three years.

A shower for the couple was given Thursday in the groom's hometown.

Waco Lutheran Church site of afternoon rite

Miss Rose Pearl McCraw and Brian Steven Pauling exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Waco.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald P. McCraw, Coahoma and Mr. and Mrs. Billy E. Pauling, Waco.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. Griesse in the same church that the bride's parents were married.

The altar was decorated with two bouquets of white gladiolus.

The bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white satin made by her mother.

The gown featured bishop sleeves and an empire waistline. Lace decorated the waist and skirt. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses trimmed with baby's breath and ivy.

The maid of honor was Miss Roni Louise Crow, Brownsville. Bridesmaids were Miss Paula Ann McCraw and Miss Patricia

Edna McCraw, both of whom are sisters of the bride. The Railroad retirees meet

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met at the Kentwood Senior Citizens Center Thursday, Aug. 19.

The group was entertained by a quartet consisting of Bill Norwood, Randall Morton, Hub Eastman and Ben Borroughs and later assisted by R.W. Cagle.

Mrs. Birdie Westbrook was the accompanist. After refreshments, the group joined in singing their favorite hymns.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. L.A. Griffith, Mrs. G.P. Morrison and Mrs. J.C. Pierce.

Bill Norwood and Randall Morton were visitors. The next meeting will be Sept. 15 at 7 p.m.

attendants all wore light green floor-length gowns and carried single white roses

Best man was Boyd Williams, Waco. Ushers included David Vria, Dallas, and Roger Pauling, the groom's brother.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church's reception room.

The couple traveled to Galveston following the wedding and from there plan to go to New Orleans.

Following the wedding trip, the couple will live in Bryan, Texas, where both attend Texas A&M University. The groom graduated last May with a B.S. in Mathematics and plans to graduate in December with his second degree, this time in Computer Science. The bride plans to graduate in May with a B.S. in mathematics.

A special out-of-town guest was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Edna McCraw, who traveled from Galax, Virginia to attend the wedding.

Texas members of NOW oppose 'he' in English

By LEE JONES
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The women from NOW have come up with a new wrinkle in written English, one they hope writers will use when they need to refer to someone of either sex.

It's "s-he."
The suggestion came out Wednesday in testimony by Texas members of the National Organization of Women before a panel of the State Textbook Committee.

In opposing "People and Me," a seventh grade literature and career education book published by Benefic Press, NOW said that "he" is "no longer an acceptable substitute for she and — or he."

"The form 's-he' could be used in place of 'she or he,'" the women's organization said.

Benefic replied that "s-he" would not do because it was not universally accepted.

"We realize this is not universally accepted, but we feel it is more equitable and will become universally accepted when publishers universally use it," replied Marianne Snider of Fort Worth, a NOW speaker.

In another room, the other half of the textbook committee heard Mrs. R.C. Bearden of San Angelo, speaking for the Daughters of the American Revolution, object to numerous books, from biology to drama.

Mrs. Bearden objected to "Consumer Economic Problems" by South-Western Publishing Co. because it mentions concern over industrially caused pollution and strip mining.

She read several passages from "The Disaster Lobby," a book whose message is that there is not as much danger from pollution and population growth as "intellectual" say there is.

"I didn't bring any little books to read out of context," said Henry D. Ransom of Cincinnati, a representative of the publisher who replied to Mrs. Bearden's criticism.

"If we put everything in context it would take much too much time and space," Mrs. Bearden said.

Publishers' representatives, with more than $30 million in contracts at stake, crowded both hearing rooms.

Exhausted engine innovator slaps rat trap saying

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP) — A Texas inventor says his stomach turns everytime he hears some government official calling for more research to get the United States out of the energy crunch.

Arnold Burke has been trying for the past few months to submit his exhaustless engine to the government as a solution to the energy crisis, but he says his offer has fallen on near-deaf ears.

"That saying about 'build a better mousetrap and the world will beat a path to your door' just isn't true," said Burke's partner, Larry Everett.

Burke has spent the past 16 years designing an engine that uses oxygen and nitrogen for fuel and recycles the mixture in almost perpetual motion.

The engineer had shelved the project two years ago, but decided to finish it up and offer it to the Carter Administration a few months ago when the President outlined the seriousness of the energy situation.

But Burke and Everett ran head-on into a series of buck-passings when they tried to submit Burke's invention.

The Economic Research and Development Administration (ERDA) first wrote back that it would take them up to nine months to evaluate the paperwork of his offering.

On May 12, 1977, the ERDA wrote that the project had been forwarded to the assistant administrator for conservation.

Then on June 10, the ERDA wrote that the offering should not be handled by that agency and had been turned over to the National Bureau of Standards. As of last week, Burke said he still had not heard from the bureau.

"The way people talk like they were looking for something, then when you try to submit something, nothing happens," Burke said, staring at the floor of his mobile home.

"All you want is somebody to look at it and say, 'there it is.' If I was trying to hoax someone, I wouldn't have built a prototype," he said.

Since the bureaucrats weren't attending to Burke's offering, the two wrote congressmen and senators.

But Burke noted the replies he received were more about what each elected official planned to do about promoting energy conservation than what could be done to put Burke's engine on the road.

Among others, he received a letter from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., dated May 26, that mentioned nothing about problems Burke faced with the ERDA. Bentsen wrote only that he planned to support President Carter's effort to establish an energy policy.

"I spent almost $250,000 to build the prototype, then when it was submitted, we couldn't get any response from anybody up there to even come down and look at it. Even the congressmen that wrote letters were just patting themselves on the back," Burke said.

About two dozen citizens of this Central Texas city also wrote the President and congressmen after hearing of Burke's invention, but the engineer said their efforts have also been fruitless.

"All they have to do is come down here and watch the thing run," he grimaced, hitting his hand with his fist.

Since the government hasn't been quick to respond to Burke's "better mousetrap," the pair decided to patent the engine themselves and develop it through their own corporation.

According to Burke, even his patent attorney found the oxygen-fueled engine unbelievable.

"If they can't find anything about a concept in library books, then they say it can't work," he complained.

However, the patent attorney finally got things rolling after viewing a video tape of the engine in operation. A patent search last month revealed that no previous patent came close to Burke's concept, he said, paving the way for a 100 percent patent.

The next step is for a patent artist to visit the inventor and draw up the paperwork, probably sometime this week.

Once the patent is applied for and a number is issued, Burke and Everett will be free to market the invention to a manufacturer.

So far, Ford Motor Co. has shown passing interest in the engine, and Burke said a group of West Texas farmers want an oxygen engine to power their irrigation pumps.

The inventor said Ford's research and development department called him earlier this summer and said they were reviewing his work. Burke said he has made a fortune on inventions for commercial and industrial use, including a machine that stamped out steel pallets for use in warehouses.

"I made my fortune by not doing things that were on the books. I've always been motivated by doing things other people give up on. But then you run into this hassle of people just not really being that interested," he said.

The corporation will be ready to sell stock for setting up a development lab at Temple once the patent artist is through. Burke says he wants his stockholders to be lower-income bracket investors "that are interested in this thing."

"I don't want this idea bought by some oil company and kept off the market," he said. "I want it made available to the public."

Texas wheat woes building

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The wheat situation in Texas has reached its most serious proportions since the early 1960s, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said today.

And this is what he wants to talk about when he talks with U.S. Department of Agriculture officials in Washington in September.

"Harvest in the state this year is expected to reach 117.5 million bushels, up 2.5 million bushels from earlier estimates. With current carryover stocks of 63.5 million bushels — a 63 percent increase over last year — the state's grain bins are bulging with a crop which is currently selling far below actual production costs," Brown said in a statement.

Brown said the set-aside program to drop some 12 to 17 million acres from production is being considered by the Carter administration.

"A set-aside program in this country, without similar steps taken by other major producing countries, would put the U.S. producer at the mercy of the world market."

Smelly waters

PORT LAVACA, Tex. (AP) — It's not unusual for the water to taste funny to a visitor in a strange place, but the stuff that's flowing from taps in this coastal city is alienating even long-time residents.

All 14,000 Port Lavaca residents started getting smelly, "yukish" water in their households early in the week.

One slightly green-faced resident described the stuff as tasting "like oil smells... whatever that means."

By Thursday, the stench had grown even stronger. The switchboard at city hall was a blur of blinking lights.

"You think you've been busy? You should be down here," harried Public Works Director Claude Bradley told a reporter.

City health officials are telling callers the water is "harmless," but admit it "tastes like hell."

Bradley said plant officials told him the cause of the problem is a microscopic "oil pod" found in algae blooms somewhere along the water supply canal from the Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority's water treatment plant at nearby Magnolia Beach.

The officials said the algae had been taken into the treatment system sometime Tuesday morning. The treatment plant will have to be scoured before the "yukish" taste is gone, perhaps by Friday, city officials said.

However, some local businesses are making the most of a bad situation — soft drink suppliers reported booming sales Thursday, as did those selling distilled water.

Laboratory seized

DALLAS (AP) — Two men were arrested in Houston following the raid in Dallas of a huge clandestine laboratory used to manufacture an illegal drug, according to Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) officials.

Ed Heath, DEA deputy director, said the laboratory "was the largest of its kind ever in the history of drug enforcement." He said the two men arrested were "the financiers and the heads of the operation." He said more arrests were expected in Houston.

"The operation was conducted actually in Houston although the laboratory was in Dallas," Heath said.

The laboratory had the capacity to produce "anywhere from 250,000 to one million" quaaludes, an illegal drug "that gets you high." Each pill costs anywhere from $3 to $5, he said.

No arrests were made in the laboratory which was found in an old warehouse in an industrial area near downtown Dallas.

Heath said the investigation started after some undercover information was obtained by agents in Houston last February.

"It was a complex investigation because they had several dummy companies operating legitimately to obtain the raw materials needed to manufacture the drug," Heath explained.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

DALLAS LAB RAIDED — These distilleries were part of the equipment seized when Federal Drug Enforcement Agency officers raided a laboratory in Dallas, Officials said the laboratory was capable of producing ingredients for 250,000 quaalude tablets in eight hours. Quaalude tablets, a sedative or tranquilizer that can be obtained legally with a prescription are sold on the "street" for between $3 and $5 each according to agents. No one was in the warehouse when the raid was made.

The equipment found in the laboratory was estimated to be worth "more than $200,000." "They obviously had a vast knowledge of business and chemical engineering," Heath said. "Their profits were staggering."

'Son of Sam' rarely lucid

NEW YORK (AP) — Psychiatric tests on David Berkowitz reportedly indicate that the man suspected of being "Son of Sam" is rarely lucid, an indication that he may not be found fit to stand trial on charges of killing six young persons and wounding seven others with a .44-caliber revolver.

The New York Daily News today quoted psychiatrists examining Berkowitz as saying they had "serious doubts" that he will be found mentally competent to stand trial.

It was also revealed that an agency which evaluates the bail status of criminal defendants recommended shortly after Berkowitz' arrest that he be released in his own custody.

The Daily News also quoted sources close to the psychiatric examination as saying that a brain scan found no tumors or physical damage which could account for the murderous rampage of which the defendant is accused.

"At present, we are not inclined to believe that Mr. Berkowitz is lucid," said one source quoted by The News. "He does not appear to know what is going on around him at all times. He does have rational moments, but for the present, he does not appear able to sustain them."

Other sources said Thursday that Berkowitz has been indicted in Queens on charges of killing two persons and wounding five others in five shootings incidents in that county.

An indictment in The Bronx is expected to be returned next week, charging Berkowitz with murdering three persons and wounding another. An indictment returned in Brooklyn last week accused Berkowitz of killing Stacy Moskowitz, 20, and seriously wounding Robert Violante, also 20, on July 31 in the last of the shootings.

Violante's doctor said Thursday that the youth's badly damaged right eye was healing better than expected. Violante left eye was shattered by a .44-caliber bullet and he will never see from that eye, Dr. Jeffrey Freedman said.

"He's not going to have great vision" in the left eye, Dr. Freedman said. The doctor said he thought Violante may eventually be able to discern hand movement "or maybe a little better than that."

Mayor Abraham Beame revealed Thursday that the Pretrial Services Agency, a private group funded by the city and federal governments, recommended Berkowitz' release even though the agency knew he was accused of being "Son of Sam."

Beame said the recommendation "defies belief," and added that similar recommendations in less notorious cases "could permit dangerous criminals to walk the streets on little or no bail."

The mayor, who is running for re-election, said the routine recommendation was based on information supplied by Berkowitz that he was a first offender and was gainfully employed.

The bail agency makes only one of two decisions: release without bail or no recommendation. In practice, judges in the city usually order murder defendants held without bail initially.

School nears at Klondike

KLONDIKE — First day of endeavor for the Klondike Schools will be Friday Aug. 26. The schedule for this day will be an abbreviation of a regular school day.

On Friday the 26th, the morning bus routes will begin about 10:00 a.m. The Junior High and High School will begin classes at 10:00 a.m. and the elementary school will begin classes at 1:30 and the Junior High and High School will dismiss at 2:00 p.m. It is requested that all parents allow their children to ride the bus to and from school on Friday August 26th.

Lunch will be served with the prices for lunches the same as they were last year — 40 cents for Kindergarten through fifth grade, and 50 cents for all other lunches.

Monday Aug. 29 will be the first regular day of school. The Junior High and High School will begin classes at 8:45 and dismiss at 3:50. The elementary school will begin classes at 9:00 and will dismiss at 3:30. All buses will arrive at the high school at 8:30 and 8:45. The elementary buses will leave the high school at 8:45 in the mornings and return in the afternoons at 3:45. All buses will leave the high school campus at 3:55 each afternoon.

Students attending the Klondike Schools for the first time should bring their immunization records with them when they come to register. In addition to immunization records kindergarten and first grade students attending the Klondike Schools for the first time should bring their birth certificates when they come to register.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 21, 1977
GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can easily express your charm and magnetism and get an excellent response from others. Take time to make plans for the days ahead since the planets are favorable now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make plans to get ahead faster. Be more interested in what your male has to say. Come to a far better understanding with this person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Associates may think that mutual matters are not working out as they should, but they are not thinking clearly. Keep calm.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Much work is ahead of you and you should handle it in a positive way to get the best results. Be more cheerful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Forget own concerns and engage in activities that can bring you true happiness. Avoid a no-good troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 9) Anything of an amusement in nature could prove disappointing now, so concentrate on whatever is practical and get much accomplished.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure you are careful in motion today and save yourself trouble and expense. Be more thoughtful of mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Make sure you are careful with finances or you could lose everything you have. Confer with a monetary expert who can be helpful to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An affair you dislike should be handled in a most diplomatic way. Stay at home tonight and rest up for the coming week.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time for meditation so that you will be well prepared to handle any problematical affairs. Take time for prayer, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Attend the services of your choice early in the day. Engage in favorite hobby during spare time. Be more thoughtful of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure you do nothing that could jeopardize your position in the community where you reside. Be logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make definite plans to make your life more profitable and interesting. Your hunches are likely to be erroneous at present time.

Bluegrass and good times

Kerrville Festival set

KERRVILLE, Tex. — The fourth annual Kerrville Bluegrass & Country Music Festival is set for Labor Day weekend, September 2-3-4, at Rod Kennedy's Quiet Valley Ranch just south of the Texas Hill Country resort community of Kerrville.

The Friday-Saturday-Sunday festival begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at Midnight Sunday, leaving Monday, Labor Day, for the drive home for camping families who gather at Kerrville from more than a dozen southwestern states.

The easy-going weekend of unamplified traditional music is a great favorite for families who like to camp out and listen to old time banjo, fiddle, guitar and mandolin music with its distinctive high soaring three-part harmony.

The performers include the famed Jim & Jesse and the Virginia Boys who have been members of the Grand Ole Opry since 1964 but whose performing career goes back nearly two decades before that time. The brothers are identified with their distinctive close harmony and Jesse's unique "cross-picking" mandolin style and will have an important spot in the history of bluegrass music long after they're gone.

Another exciting performing group at the 1977 festival, performing all three days, is the McLain Family Band from Kentucky, performing together as a musical family for the past nine years in 30 states in this country and in 42 countries around the world since 1972. Their charming mixture of traditional and contemporary music has been played with nine symphony orchestras and on hundreds of fair, festival and college stages.

Other musicians appearing on the Kerrville festival range from fiddling Chubby Wise, flat-picking Norman Blake and The Lewis Family to The Stonemans, Uncle Josh Graves and Red White and Blue (grass) plus many other national and regional bands.

The setting for the festival is rustic and beautiful with camping within walking distance of the theater. While bench seating is provided in the theater, most fans like to bring their lawn chairs. For concert schedules, motel accommodations, ticket prices and camping information, write: Bluegrass, Box 1466, Kerrville, Texas 78028 or call (512) 896-3800.

CEE CITY PRODUCTION — Carl Beery Moore as Tom Wingfield, rehearses a narrative sequence from the Colorado City Playhouse production of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie", which is set for production August 25-26-27 and Sept. 1-2-3 in the Opera House in Colorado City.

SONGSTRESS — Elvia Saldivar, who is the daughter of Fidel Saldivar of Rt. 2, has been selected as a song girl for West Texas State University in Canyon for the 1977-78 academic year. Elvia will perform at home football games this fall.

New plays at Globe

Durward Jacobs, guest director at the Globe Theatre for the remainder of the 1977 season has announced substitutions for the two plays left on the Globe season ticket in Odessa.

"Bell, Book and Candle" a wonderfully suave and impish comedy by James Van Druten will replace the scheduled production "The Matchmaker" by Thornton Wilder. The show is slated for October 7, 8, 14, 15, 21 and 22. Try-outs for roles in the play is open to the public and will be held August 23, 24, and 25 at 7:30 p.m. There are three men's and two women's parts in the play.

The author "assumes that a few modern people can cast spells and perform feats of supernaturalism. Gillian Holroyd, of the Murray Hill district, casts a spell over an unattached publisher, partly to keep him away from a rival and partly because she is attracted to him. He falls head over heels in love with her at once, and wants to marry her. But witches, unfortunately, cannot love, and this minute imperfection leads into a number of difficulties." Ultimately, the lady breaks off with her companions in witchery, preferring the normal and human love offered her by the attractive publisher. Sheppard Henderson but before the happy conclusion of the romance, Gillian comes very near losing him — but doesn't.

The delightful and enchanting comedy is one of the author's greatest successes. It enjoyed a long run with Rex Harrison and Lilli Palmer in the starring roles.

The December play will be "Romeo and Juliet" with a local cast of actors replacing the originally scheduled "Noah" by Andre Obey. The Shakespearean play was chosen because of the educational value of the play while school is in session. It is set for Dec. 2, 3, 9, 19, 16 and 17.

Starts Thursday

Menagerie at Cee-City

COLORADO CITY — Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie" will be presented by the Colorado City Playhouse Aug. 25, 26, 27 and Sept. 1, 2 and 3 in the Colorado City Opera House.

Tickets are $2.50 per person and will go on sale on Monday at the Opera House ticket office. Reservations can be made by going to the ticket office between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. or by phoning 728-3491.

The drama stars Bobbie Steakley as Amanda Wingfield; Carl Beery Moore as Tom Wingfield, Cynthia Wishart as Laura Wingfield and Bill Martin as the "Gentleman Caller."

George Womack and produced by Midge Ledbetter.

This is the third production by Colorado City Playhouse this year and "Glass Menagerie" has been in rehearsal since late June.

The play is based in the 1930's and is a memory play having to do with the restlessness of that time. The action of the drama occurs around the attempts within the Wingfield family to secure a husband for the daughter.

These attempts are narrated by the son.

Colorado City Playhouse presents productions in a restored turn of the century Opera House which is worth the trip to Colorado by itself says Playhouse President Tandy Curlee.

There are only 160 seats in the auditorium, all of which offer a good view of the stage. The seats are very comfortable, padded recliners, the acoustics are very special.

Curlee urges everyone to come to Colorado, see the play in air conditioned comfort and see the historic Opera House.

Colorado City Playhouse is an amateur group that draws on the community as well as surrounding towns for talent for its productions and is becoming well-known throughout the state for high quality productions.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. each evening.

BING AND HIS DAUGHTER — Singer Bing Crosby and his daughter Mary Frances, 17, dance together on stage during his first appearance since he took a 25-foot tumble off a Pasadena stage last March. Crosby, 73, performed last night at the Concord Pavilion with his daughter and his son Harry. The concert was a trial run for a proposed European concert tour.

Reading class is successful

By ANNE SMART, Children's Librarian "Jungle Journey", the 1977 Summer Reading program of the Howard County Library was a great success. This year's response was over twice that of last year's. In order to earn a certificate and a "surprise", each member had to read a minimum of 12 books and record the titles on his reading record which was kept by the Children's Librarian. The response was excellent. Out of 383 members, 225 received certificates. Many members have yet to pick up their certificates. Please do so by August 27.

Reading Club members also participated in a special activity every Wednesday morning. Some of the programs included watching Boy Scout Troop 401 demonstrate knot tying, making animals out of construction paper, listening to Mrs. Boland, President of the Big Spring Kennel Club describe how Aida, her guide dog was trained, and touring the Heritage Museum. Some of the members must have spent their entire summer reading as 22 members read over 50 books. They are: Niki Davis 55 books, Scott Ferguson 70 books, Lori Gonzales 77 books, Debbie Holguin 109 books, Ismael Holguin 65 books, Paul Holguin 65 books, Elizabeth Lapinski 67 books, Wendy Loveless 84 books, Nadine Marquez 148 books, James Mills 70 books, Rebecca Mills 67 books, Wendy Mills 67 books, Alfonso Morales 59 books, Gabriel Morales 59 books, Timi Morales 63 books, Delia Ortiz 85 books, Melissa Pendleton 85 books, Angela Reid 96 books, Kimberly Schaefer 90 books, Sonnett Summers 66 books and Stacy Walling 86 books.

We here at the library are proud of the members and hope that their interest in reading continues into the fall and spring.

Ridin' fence

Choate pioneered field

with Marj Carpenter

J.M. Choate was the first policeman in Big Spring. He went to work as a part-time police officer for Big Spring on Nov. 1, 1925. His employment at that time was on a fee basis because there was no police department.

He was working part-time as a policeman and part-time helping his wife run the Stewart Hotel. That hotel had formerly been the Cosmopolitan Hotel which the Earl of Aylesford, English nobleman, bought one day when he was unable to engage a suite of rooms. He just bought the whole place.

The city was officially incorporated in 1926 and the municipality passed to a city manager. They hired a police chief — the first one, Ed Long. Pop Choate was the "policeman" and the rest of the department. There was one chief and one policeman.

The two of them covered the city at the time that an oil boom had hit. It boosted the city's population from 4,000 to around 14,000 in less than four years.

J. M. (POP) CHOATE

The tough men who came into town with the oil boom didn't have much respect for police officers. One time, a big truck driver from Amarillo slammed Pop Choate right above the eyes and "almost knocked me across Main Street" according to Choate himself, at the time he retired from the force in 1943. "I won that battle," he recalled.

That also was the time that there was a wave of bank robberies throughout Texas. The police force added one more man. Choate, Long and the third officer would park each day at opening time outside the local banks to survey strange cars and people. Big Spring got through the bank robbery years without one happening here.

Pop Choate worked mostly on the night shift and helped out on the day shift on the side. Nobody knew when he slept. When he retired in 1943, the department had grown to 17 persons and even had two way radios. He couldn't believe all that progress.

At the time he retired, he received a special note from Congressman George Mahon which said, "I saw your retirement story and it reminded me of our association of past years. Good luck."

Mahon, who retires next year as the United States most powerful Congressman, began his political career as district attorney in Big Spring.

The following year, Pop and his wife celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. John M. (Pop) Choate was described in that news story as a wiry cowboy. His wife was the former Miss Zaid Gibbs. She had been keeping company with Choate for several years in Mason county when in 1894, her father, H.B. Gibbs started northward to Haskell with his family.

Enroute, they paused at Menardville to help a brother harvest crops. That was when John and Zaid decided to get married. They married at her uncle's home. A big dinner was spread on long tables under an oak tree.

They made their home in Mason County until 1910. They migrated at that time to Schleicher County and in 1920 moved to Big Spring. They had 11 children.

These included Mrs. Jewel Capansky, John Harrell Choate, Mrs. Maymie Hill, Melvin Choate, Curtis Choate, George Choate, Mrs. Merle Grace Haygood, Reuben Choate, Wyate Choate, Mrs. Elsie Petty and Earl Choate.

The family has had a strong impact on Big Spring and its history. And they all recall "Pop," who was a one-man police department in the 20s in Big Spring, where I ride fence.

Pesticides must adhere to controls

Howard County Agricultural users of pesticides need to remember that as of Oct. 21, certain pesticides will be restricted and available for use legally only by or under the supervision of certified applicators, according to the local extension office.

This means that to purchase most pesticides, the producer or user must have completed a training program to purchase certain pesticides. The proposed list includes virtually all on the market in Howard County.

Classification of certain pesticides as restricted-use pesticides and the requirements for certification are requirements of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended, which is scheduled to be fully implemented October 21.

The Texas Pesticide Control Act although not requiring certification of private applicators, authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to establish a program to certify private applicators, on a voluntary basis, who wish to use or supervise the use of restricted use pesticides in compliance with federal law.

The term "private applicator" means a certified applicator who uses or supervises the use of any pesticide which is classified for restricted use for purposes of producing any agricultural commodity on property owned or rented by him or his employer or, if applied without compensation other than trading of personal services between producers of agricultural commodities, on the property of another person.

The program established by the Texas Department of Agriculture provides three options for certification of private applicators to include:

- (1) Completion of an approved training program conducted by a qualified institution or training group.
- (2) Submission of a completed questionnaire to the Texas Department of Agriculture following review of self-study material, and
- (3) For emergency situations, a single-product, single-purchase, single-use certification available through the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Webb Village: 180 vacancies

Webb has lonesome look

Webb AFB is assuming a lonesome and ghost town feel as more people are leaving and buildings are vacated and closed.

Early this week 39 buildings had been vacated, however civilian entities were already moving into some. The Big Spring Steering Committee is located in Bldg. 351 where Housing Management had been and the Lubbock Manufacturing Company will soon occupy Hangar 1103 with adjacent water tank and pumphouse facilities.

In Webb Village, 180 units are vacant with more people moving out the past week.

As of Monday there were 950 military members remaining and 379 civilian employees, not including the temporary hires. At the end of March there were 2,330 military and 550 civilians. In addition, employees paid from non-appropriated funds dropped from 112 on May 1 to 56 the first part of August.

The once very busy flight line looks almost deserted as only 58 jets occupy space where about 200 formerly stood. These include an even 29 each of T-37 and T-38 aircraft.

Four links trainers remain two each of T-37 and T-38, in place of the 19 that were in operation when the base had its full student load.

The remaining 39 allied and 6 former helicopter pilots in the fixed wing program are all scheduled to complete their training next Friday. Combined graduation ceremonies Aug. 30 will give the allied students their sendoff beginning at 7:30 in the Chapel. All interested persons are invited to the final program.

Population explosion

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A well-known reproductive biologist says Americans and their lawmakers have been lulled into a false sense of security about the population explosion.

"The essential problem facing us is the reality of a world of four billion people which will double in 35 years and, if unchecked, within a century will be at least seven times greater than today," said Dr. Roy O. Greep, Harvard University, at the annual meeting of the Society for the Study of Reproduction, meeting at the University of Texas.

Greep said many apparently feel the population explosion, if not over, is at least a problem belonging to other areas of the world, not the U.S.

Greep said the intrauterine device and birth control pills have fallen into disfavor due to widespread concern about their safety. "The result is that in this country in 1976 there were more than 1.1 million abortions, and an additional 600,000 women sought, but were refused, abortions. Alarmingly, 600,000 children were born to mothers under the age of 20 and 115,000 of those children were born to mothers 15 or younger," he said.

He said that of the 3.1 million births in the nation last year 40 per cent were unplanned.

SPELUNKER? — This is a cavern of sorts, so would you call him a spelunker of sorts? Actually, this workman at Tenneco Inc.'s Newport News Shipbuilding subsidiary in Virginia is in the inner bottom of a tanker under construction. When completed, the tanker will be used to bring liquefied natural gas to the United States to help ease the country's natural gas shortage.
