'Truth squads' dispatched

Canal treaty foes organize

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative foes of the new Panama Canal treaty said today they will send "truth squads" around the country to mobilize public opinion against Senate ratification.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said a coalition of conservative organizations and various members of Congress will work in direct opposition to efforts by Carter administration for ratification.

"President Carter has said he is going to the country and so are we," Laxalt told reporters.

The "truth squads" will consist of prominent treaty opponents who will speak before and after Carter administration advocates of the treaty appear in various parts of the country, Laxalt said.

Laxalt said the same coalition of conservatives had won two big victories earlier by defeating public campaign financing for Senate candidates and a bill which would have allowed labor unions to picket an entire construction site when their dispute was with only one sub-contractor.

He said Carter has seriously underestimated opposition to the treaty. "Washington and the administration has completely misgauged public sentiment on this issue," he said. In many parts of the country, Laxalt said, the canal question is as strongly opposed as gun control.

The senator estimated that there are now 25 senators ready to vote against ratification. No vote is expected until early next year. A two-thirds vote is needed for ratification and some legislation must also pass the House.

The closer the congressional vote comes to the 1978 elections, Laxalt said, the more likely the treaty will be defeated in the Senate.

Acknowledging that many business leaders and AFL-CIO leader George Meany support turning control of the waterway over to Panama, Laxalt said he is hoping for some help in his campaign from maritime unions and the black minority in Panama.

He said there will be an inquiry into whether there is a connection between the timing of the signing of the treaty and a sharp increase in Panamanian government indebtedness to U.S. banks.

"We want to see if we might be engaged in another bailout here," he said. Because Panama will receive increased revenues from the canal under the treaties, its ability to pay back $2.7 billion in loans will be enhanced, he said.

Another issue he said will be raised in the campaign is the human rights record of Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos.

Conservative spokesmen have cited a finding by Freedom House, a New York-based organization, that Panama ranks at the bottom among Latin American countries in its observance of human rights and civil liberties.

They said this human rights question is one on which President Carter may be especially vulnerable, having made that issue a cornerstone of his foreign policy.

On the canal's security, one of the coalition's prime spokesmen, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, said Thursday that, if the United States were at war, her enemies would have equal access to the canal.

The sources said the conservative push to prevent Senate ratification next year will concentrate on Republicans and some southern Democrats who either favor the treaty or haven't made up their minds.

They said Laxalt, who headed Reagan's presidential primary campaign last year, was selected to lead this drive because he is felt to have more clout than Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who until now have been the leading Senate spokesmen for treaty opponents.

TESCO facing 'terrible' fuel bind, expert says

(Special to The Herald) A financial expert told the Public Utility Commission in Austin this morning that Texas Electric Service Company must build new power plants to avoid "a terrible fuel situation."

H. Russell Fraser, vice president of Paine-Webber, a nationwide brokerage firm, said Texas Electric's heavy reliance on short-supplied natural gas is the root of the problem.

Fraser told the commission that TESCO has a good supply of coal and lignite, but added, "Big deposits of coal are helpful, but you have to build power plants to burn the coal."

Texas Electric, which serves the Big Spring area, is seeking a 23.6 per cent rate increase to help finance construction of lignite and nuclear-powered generating plants.

Three-fourths of Texas Electric's construction budget must be provided by investors. The company says a rate increase is needed to attract enough investor money to support the fuel-changing construction program.

One measure of investor confidence in a company is the rating placed on the company's bonds. In written testimony filed with the PUC, Fraser said, "Without substantial rate relief, TESCO's triple-A rating must be reduced."

A triple-A rating is the top bond rating. It allows a company to borrow money at a lower interest rate than lower-rated companies.

Referring to his most recent study of TESCO's finances, Fraser testified, "It was my conclusion that without adequate rate relief, TESCO's triple-A rating was in serious jeopardy."

"In my opinion, Standard & Poor's would have downgraded TESCO some time ago if the company had not been part of the Texas Utilities System," said Fraser, a former vice president of Standard & Poor's, an investment rating firm.

"A good bond rating keeps the cost of electricity down and helps assure a dependable supply of electricity in the future," Fraser added.

"It's especially important to the ratepayers that the company keep its triple-A rating during this construction program," he said.

Fraser said the rate increase requested by the company should be sufficient to maintain the triple-A rating and keep investor confidence in TESCO.

Fraser testified that Texas Electric faced the "double-barrel problem" of building power plants both to meet the area's growth and to change from natural gas to more abundant fuels.

"It's a big problem most utilities in the country don't have," Fraser said.

Bank monitors 'alarmed' over Lance's overdrafts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banking regulators view overdrafts such as those allowed by one of Bert Lance's Georgia banks "with considerable alarm" because they occasionally cause banks to collapse, Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann said today.

At a Senate hearing into the budget director's financial affairs, Heimann was asked how serious he considers the overdrafts Lance and his family ran up at the Calhoun First National Bank in Georgia.

Lance, who was president of the bank from 1963 to 1974, and his family overdraw their checking accounts by as much as $450,000.

Heimann said such overdrafts are really indirect loans to "insiders" who operate or are associated with the bank.

"We consider loans to insiders very seriously... Well over 50 per cent of the bank failures in the country in the last five to 10 years have been the result of insider transactions," he said.

"Therefore, regulators consider insider transactions with considerable alarm because they have been the downfall of numerous banks," he said. "Any transaction which insiders use to the detriment of depositors is viewed with alarm."

Asked if he considered transactions such as Lance's serious violations, he replied, "Yes sir."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said that 73 per cent of the Calhoun bank's credit in 1975 was to officers, directors and people closely associated with the bank.

Asked if this is a common banking practice, Heimann said, "No, I would not say it is a common practice among community (country) banks."

Heimann said the Calhoun bank did not charge interest on anyone's overdrafts until 1974, "and in that respect it was not preferential."

However, he said his report on Lance, issued Aug. 18, considered the Lance overdrafts "an unsafe and unsound banking practice" because they were larger and lasted longer than those of other depositors.

Heimann declined to discuss his investigation of Lance's private use of the National Bank of Georgia aircraft when he became president of that bank. The Justice Department is investigating.

Asked if there was a strong case against Lance in the aircraft investigation, Heimann would only say, "I don't believe we've acted frivolously."

As the hearings continued in Washington, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland became the first member of the Carter administration to publicly suggest that the controversy has damaged the operation of the Office of Management and Budget.

Stokes charges FBI reports were hidden

ATLANTA (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. John W. Stokes Jr. charged today that officials of the Carter administration withheld and concealed FBI information on Bert Lance from the Senate committee that recommended his confirmation as budget director.

Stokes said at a news conference that as U.S. attorney, his office had investigated whether Lance violated federal law in 1974 by overdrawing his account at the Calhoun First National Bank during his unsuccessful try for the governorship of Georgia.

He said he found insufficient evidence to seek an indictment against Lance and closed the case.

Stokes said Senate investigators asked him last week for information he had found during the investigation. He said he had turned it over to the FBI, which was collecting it for the Carter transition team last fall.

"If the Senate committee had had this FBI report in January, they would not be needing to go into it with me and request all this information now," Stokes said.

"I charge that officials of the Carter administration withheld and concealed the FBI background report and the information it contained from the Senate committee in January," Stokes said.

"The point I wanted to get at is that in late December 1976, FBI special agents made a full and complete investigation in connection with the overdrafts. They interviewed me and anyone who had anything to do with the Lance case," he said.

"I felt the case was not prosecutable," he said.

"If the Senate committee had the report in January and found that I was right, that he should not have been prosecuted, they could still have considered the facts and acted on it as they chose," he said.

He said the day after he closed the case, President-elect Carter announced in Plains that Lance was his choice as federal budget director.

Third grider dies this week

ROGERS, Tex. (AP) — Gary Spanhel, a 16-year-old defensive end for the Rogers High School junior varsity team, died Thursday night after suffering head injuries during a game with Troy.

Spanhel was the third prep player to die in football-related accidents this week in Texas.

Peace Justice Joe Harrison pronounced the youth death of accidental head trauma at a Temple hospital. He had collapsed following a play in which he was involved.

"He went into the defensive huddle with his teammates, staggered and fell," said Coach David Hicks.

Spanhel was taken to a fire station, then transferred by ambulance to the hospital.

Defensive back Michael Green of Dallas-Pinkston died Thursday of a broken neck he received in practice Monday.

Wednesday afternoon, Bernard Derrick, the 17-year-old starting quarterback for the Terrell Tigers, died after he was struck by lightning on a practice field.

Bill Farney of the University Interscholastic League at Austin said his office had not heard of the Spanhel death, but that it would receive the same attention as other similar fatalities.

Farney said detailed forms are sent to schools when such a death occurs. He said equipment is constantly monitored and that manufacturers "are doing all they can to make the equipment safe."

Farney said a rule prohibits using the head as an offensive or defensive weapon.

As far as the lightning death goes, Farney said the UIL does not have rules governing practice conditions. "That's up to the individual coach," he said. "During games the official has the responsibility to call a game if they feel like conditions warrant it."

No new boats for farmers?

By MARJ CARPENTER "All of the farmers are concerned about the current cotton prices," Bruce Griffith, county agent, said here today. "All we can do is hope they go up. A lot of times they do, once the harvest is underway."

H.G. Keaton of Keaton and McCrary says that local cotton may bring around 44 cents this season. "They have not yet contracted much cotton because the harvest season is barely underway."

Keaton said farmers will still make a profit at that price, but nothing like the profits of last year when cotton averaged out over 60 cents per pound.

"The price still may change. Down in the Rio Grande Valley, longer staple cotton is bringing around 47 cents, and they are deep into the harvest season.

The government loan price is at about 38 and a half cents plus paying of charges if the farmer decides to store it and sell it later. That would bring the cost up to around 41 cents.

Griffith still expressed the hope that the cotton might go a little higher. "Usually, it goes a couple cents higher than buyers predict," he said hopefully.

Keaton said, "Of course we're just merchants for the mills. Exports in farm products have been down and the world economy is down and that affects the cotton prices in the United States."

Last year was an exceptional season when the crop was good and the prices were good. Because of this, a lot of new land was broken out in the county and put into cotton.

Tim Hall, manager of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service says, "We'll know by Christmas if there is going to be a set aside in cotton next year. We may not get to plant as much. However, we just don't know yet and will not hear until December."

One Ackerly farmer said Thursday, "Well, don't use my name or the other farmers would kill me. We won't be buying new boats and taking trips this year, but I still think we're going to make a profit. And then, maybe... just maybe, those prices will climb a little more."

Flynt wants arrest

ATLANTA (AP) — Publisher Larry Flynt is out to get arrested for selling his "soft core pornography" magazines, Hustler and Chic.

On Thursday, Flynt dared Fulton County Solicitor General Hinson McAuliffe, who has recently arrested several magazine sellers on obscenity charges, to arrest him for selling the magazines in a downtown bookstore.

But McAuliffe, who refused to comment on the matter, did not appear by about 1 p.m., and Flynt left the store, vowing to continue selling the magazines until he is arrested and can take the case to court.

After Flynt left, the copies of Hustler were removed by the store's owner, who leased the shop to Flynt for the day.

Flynt, who is free on bond pending appeal of an obscenity conviction in Ohio, said he was "in the pornography business, not the obscenity business."

Getty tax $10 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first phase of settling the $700 million estate of J. Paul Getty has ended with debts being cleared up and taxes paid, administrators say.

"Mr. Getty had no debts to speak of and taxes were relatively modest because he left the bulk of his estate to charity," said Edward Landry, attorney for Title Insurance, an executor of the estate along with Getty's sons, Gordon and J. Ronald.

Taxes came to about $10 million, Landry said Thursday, noting that "everything is relative."

The J. Paul Getty Museum, the charity Landry mentioned, was willed the bulk of the estate. Getty's family was well provided for in a trust fund set up before Getty died in June 1976 of heart failure at age 83, Landry said.

NY election ends in near dead heat

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame and former Rep. Bella S. Abzug were sent to stinging defeats in a mayoralty primary of dark horses that ended in a near dead heat today.

It was the biggest voter turnout in New York City primary history.

The victors in the most crowded Democratic field in will face each other in a runoff primary Sept. 19. They are Rep. Edward I. Koch, 52, from the Silk

Stocking district of Manhattan's East Side, and Secretary of State Mario Cuomo, 45, who ran at the urgency with the active support of Democratic Gov. Hugh L. Carey.

Beame, who came in third, is the first mayor turned out of office since Vincent Impellitteri lost to Robert Wagner a quarter of a century ago.

Beame's term in City Hall was marked by New York's gravest financial crisis since the Depression. A Securities and Exchange Commission report released 10 days ago said he had concealed the city's financial shape while promoting sale of its bonds.

Koch and Cuomo emerged from a field of seven candidates to face each other in the runoff primary because no candidate received 40 per cent of the vote. In fact, no one received more than 20 per cent.

Don Richard, assistant DA; Police Chief Stanley Bogard; Capt. Sherrill Farmer and Capt. Jim McCain; Bob West and Gus Ochotorena Jr., local justices of the peace and Harvey Hooser, county attorney.

Members of the Cultural Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce are looking for ways to raise money to finance a proposed renovation of the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater.

Plans were unveiled at the last meeting of the committee, but so far, no money has been made available for the project.

The proposed renovation would involve five stages. First to be constructed would be a concession stand and toilets at each wing of the theater. Under the second phase hurricane fencing would be added so that admission could be charged to the various performances which would take place in the theater.

In phase three, light and sound equipment would be added for nighttime performances. Phases four and five would add dressing rooms, demountable stages, and a canopy for foul weather conditions.

Members of the Cultural Affairs Committee, Polly Mays, Lila Hansen, and Jean Kuykendall are seeking fund sources to start work on phase one.

According to Tom Ferguson, city finance director, the City of Big Spring has no money to contribute to the project at this time. He explained that some funds could be provided through the motel occupancy tax, but would not amount to much.

Police beat Tap Room tapped for cash

Someone walked off with the cash from the Tap Room Lounge sometime since 6 p.m. Tuesday, according to the owner, James Hicks, 102 W. 19th. Hicks believes he knows who made off with the $1,283.45.

Renters moved into a furnished apartment at 2920 Melrose, and when they left it was unfurnished. Stolen were a couch, vinyl chair, coffee table, two end tables, a bed and box springs, and a dresser. Loss estimated at $260.

Vandals poured a corrosive chemical on a 1976 Chevrolet El Camino belonging to Jean Kirkpatrick, 422 Edwards, sometime between 4 p.m. and midnight Thursday. Damage to the car's finish was estimated at $300.

Earnest L. Stovall, employee at Mutt's Lounge, reported that a man came into the lounge, 7:55 p.m. Thursday and started a fight. The man struck Stovall several times with a crutch, cutting Stovall's nose and left arm. The assailant may face charges of aggravated assault.

Two passengers on a Greyhound bus were treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital after the bus collided with a tractor-trailer rig on IS 20 inside the city limits.

According to reports, the truck, driven by Walter O. Speaker, 1316 Park, had attempted to pass the bus when the accident occurred, 12:16 p.m. Thursday. William Roberts of Abilene drove the cross-country bus.

Treated and released were Alice Herbert, Houston, and Henry A. Kent, Los Angeles.

Three other mishaps were reported Thursday.

Vehicles driven by Christi D. Turner, 801 Marcy, and Curtis C. Hale, Route 1, collided at 217 Main, 12:55 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Henry O. Washington, 200 Carey, and Jimmy C. Beckmeyer, Lamesa, collided at Jones and West Fourth, 5:10 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Amelia Morales, 1004 N. Main, and Joann C. Garcia, 409 N. Scurry, collided at North Sixth and Main, 7:44 a.m.

Car accident injuries two

Henry Edwards, 18, of Big Spring Courts, Room 17, is in critical condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital after he was injured in a one-vehicle accident at 11:28 p.m. Thursday.

Edwards was a passenger in a car driven by Leo Barnett, 25, of 913 E. Pecan in Midland. Barnett is in fair condition at Malone-Hogan.

Edwards suffered severe scalp lacerations. Both men had injuries around the mouth, head and face.

The accident occurred at N. Birdwell and FM 700. The driver apparently came off Gail Road, went out of control, and hit an embankment. The vehicle then flew over 100 feet in the air coming down in a pasture still sitting upright.

Cattle, cotton prices talked during tour

By MARJ CARPENTER

A large crowd attended this year's Howard County Farm Tour and viewed everything from range grass to cotton varieties as it toured several locations.

First stop was at the Elmo Martin farm where Martin had two adjacent pastures of Klein grass and Blue Panic. He rotates cattle from one pasture to the other for 60 days and always keeps a ground cover, he was reporting producing from 3,000 to 6,000 pounds of hay on land which had been producing around 1,000 pounds.

His projects are in conjunction with the Soil Conservation Service and he reported a lot of success. In the part of the county that he was in, cedar trees are as big a problem as mesquite.

The tour then went to the farm of Paul Allen where it stopped and looked over his cotton, which was reported to be one of the better crops in the county.

The tour continued to the Davis farm and ranch where Lawrence and Wayne Davis were gathering cattle to be sold. A lot of the talk among the group was concerning the low prices that cattlemen have now faced for several years.

Wayne Davis told one tour member: "You can take a pencil to it. You need 25 acres for a cow in this country, unless you add grain or feed. Take the price of the land and the price you get for the cow and you can't even get enough to pay the interest."

Cotton prices were also quite a topic as the bus rumbled back to the experiment station for lunch. The Soil Conservation Service hosted the hamburger luncheon at the Experiment Station.

Bill Fryrear, Experiment Station director, then took the group on a tour of cotton demonstration plots at the station. They also saw some plots of guar.

Right before lunch, the group stopped north of Sand Springs at what will be the Habitat Management project for the Cotton Producers Association if enough funds are obtained.

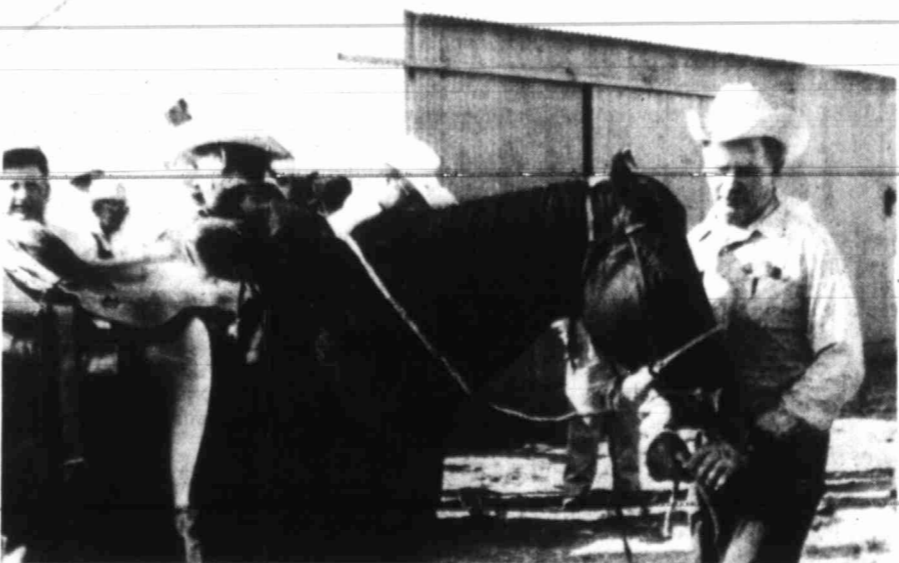

The cotton producers are planning to do extensive research next year in boll weevil eradication through habitat management. Their plans include testing some forms of safe weevil spray, not yet on the market.

They also are planning to clear out boll weevil habitats through chaining, burning and other methods.

Thus far, Martin County has raised $2,000 of the needed $8,000 and Howard County producers have only raised $3,000 and need an additional $3,000.

The experiment is to take place on the Boyce Snead and Elbert Long farms, which have heavy boll weevil infestation. The experts claim that they believe the boll weevil can be controlled in Howard County through habitat management and need the experiment to determine which direction to go in the battle with the boll weevil.

Bruce Griffith, county agent or Delbert Donelson, treasurer for the cotton producers may be contacted by those who wish to donate.

A terrific school is what's cooking

I will never forget the first Southern Kitchens Cooking School I saw. Find a big place to seat the people because it's a great show and it will bring out a big crowd, I was told. But I didn't really listen. Our newspaper wound up arranging for a hall that would seat only 1,000, and to my great surprise, that lacked several hundred seats being enough.

SO IT is with past experience in mind that I urge persons in Big Spring who are interested in seeing the Progressive Farmer's magazine show next week that they pick up their tickets early.

The tickets to the show are free, but they should be picked up in advance. This can be done at Furr's, Foodway, Newsom's, Gibson's, Keaton Kolor, Big Spring Hardware, First National Bank, Young 'N' Alive and Arcand Electronics.

The show is being sponsored by the Big Spring Herald. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium.

I CAN assure you that the cooking show is most enjoyable and informative. Each show is different, but the first one I saw was interesting even to a non-cook like me, whose talents do not extend beyond warming a can of soup.

Presenting the show will be Beth Hawes, program coordinator and a graduate of Southern Methodist University, and Pat Pittman, a home economics expert with her degree from East Texas State University.

Ms. Pittman somehow will manage to cook 10 dishes on stage in a style and efficiency that would burn the Galloping Gourmet. Mirrors above the table make her work neatly visible from every seat.

The Southern Kitchens Cooking School is something I know you will enjoy. Hope you can make it. —J. TOM GRAHAM

WASHINGTON — The campaign to reassure the American right that there is no need to worry about Communists taking over the Panama Canal went awry Aug. 19 when the president of Panama tried to ingratiate himself with visiting conservative Republican Senators by using offensive racist and archaic American jingoistic language.

Demetrio B. Lakas, who holds the largely ceremonial role of president in Gen. Omar Torrijos's dictatorial government, referred to "niggers" and "Coontown," praised the 1965 U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic and proclaimed Uncle Sam can do no wrong. The racism left the visiting Senators appalled, and the American jingoism convinced them the Panamanians were playing a con game.

REASSURING CONSERVATIVES that strongman Torrijos will not join arms with Moscow and Havana is central in President Carter's campaign for ratification of the treaty transferring the canal to Panama. But the beautifully orchestrated campaign in Washington could be undercut by repetitions of President Lakas's grotesque performance in Panama.

While short on authority, Lakas is viewed by U.S. diplomats as an important adviser to his old friend Torrijos. More obviously, he is a Panamanian good ole boy useful to reassure Americans worried about Torrijos dalliance with the Soviets. A businessman-engineer educated at Texas Wesleyan and Texas Tech, Lakas speaks English in a salty Texas accent.

So, on Aug. 19, the three conservative Senators — Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Orrin Hatch of Utah — were invited for coffee with the president. Lakas immediately assured them there are no Communists in Panama and "as long as we don't have them, I think we're on the right track."

He then demonstrated ignorance of how the politics of the South have changed between 1948 when Thurmond was Dixiecrat candidate for President and 1977 when Thurmond's six-year-old daughter enrolls in a racially integrated school. No American politician even privately uses the language that tape recordings show Lakas uses. "I was born on the other side of the canal in Colon, about like Coontown," he said. "That's where all the niggers come from."

ON A 1971 VISIT to the United States, Lakas told the stunned Senators, "I saw a colored boy" with a white girl. "I'm from down here we live with them, and walked with them, and played with them. And that (racially mixed couples) just doesn't look good. It's just the way you're brought up, that's all." Those sentiments coincide with private warnings by the State Department that Thurmond might well be accused of racism if he takes a "colonialist" position in Panama.

Lakas next addressed the point that may determine the treaty's fate: defense of the canal after Panama fully takes over in the year 2000. It "makes me very, very happy to feel that way, that Uncle Sam will be there and be strong to be able to defend it. This is good news coming from you."

Lakas could scarcely contain his enthusiasm: "By gosh, I have never seen Uncle Sam do nothing wrong." He then "off the record" talked about the U.S. 1965 intervention in the Goddamned place in order "because of 'Communists' there."

WHAT RIGHT WAS THERE to intervene? he asked rhetorically. "Your right is that you are right." Lakas pounded the table. "And there's nothing wrong by doing right." Lakas pounded the table again. "That's your right. You're going there to help some people, you're not going there to hurt somebody."

Four exercises for arthritis

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please give me a list of exercises for a person with severe rheumatoid arthritis? I am speaking specifically of those that would help in hip movement. —Mrs. F.K.

I wouldn't try to, the reason being that exercises for arthritis (any kind) has to be on an individual basis. Ideally, the patient should have specific advice from a physician or a trained technician familiar with his or her case. Too much or too vigorous exercise can further damage joints and too little can lead to joint "freezing." A compromise is in order.

The goal of exercise is to increase muscle strength without damaging joints or causing undue pain. Some pain is to be expected, but if pain is prolonged (say for a half hour) after exercise the program should be altered and the specific exercise halted.

It's best to begin moderately, working up to the pain threshold. For example, a joint might be moved in a specific way three or four times a day, then the frequency increased.

It's difficult, even dangerous, to try to explain specific exercises, as those for your hips, but I can give you an idea of the types available.

For the person with severe impairment, passive exercise can be tried first. This is where a second person does the moving of the joint while you report when pain occurs.

A second type is called "muscle setting." You do this by consciously contracting the muscles. It's much like what is done when a man shows off his tensed upper arm muscles.

A third type is active exercising, moving the joint yourself within the range possible without great pain.

The fourth is "resistive" exercise, comparable to isometrics. You make an effort to move the joint while someone helps by exerting opposite pressure.

Any or all of these exercises may be used, but which ones and how much of each depends on the severity of your arthritis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told I have diverticulosis (pouches) of the colon. There are many small bulges, but one pouch is infected. My side hurts and I bloat pretty bad. The doctor wants to operate, but I am putting it off. After taking antibiotics I feel much better.

Please advise me about anything I can do to ward off surgery. —Mrs. J.B.S.

What you have now is diverticulitis to go along with the "osis." That means there's infection. One of these tiny outpouchings from the gut can become infected from a bit of trapped fecal matter or from a tiny seed. It happens in about 20 per cent of diverticulosis cases.

If you are improving on the antibiotics you can bide your time as to surgery. Your doctor will be interested in the degrees and duration of the improvement. I presume the pain and tenderness have subsided.

Recurrence of either, with signs of bleeding might mean perforation of the infected pouch. That would mean surgery anyway, and might make it more involved than if done now. Your doctor should be able to explain his reasons for favoring surgery at this point.

The important thing is to avoid constipation. This can be done with stool softeners and a modest amount of roughage in your diet — fresh fruits and vegetables, particularly. Ask your physician about this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend of mine and I have breakfast almost every morning and he will always eat the same thing — one small glass of orange juice, one hot cake, one pork sausage patty, a pat of margarine or butter, and two cups of coffee. My question is, is there any harm in eating this every morning? —C.D.

I can't imagine a more healthful day starter than this. Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," are of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Who started it?

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Seven leaders of Young Americans for Freedom, questioned on the opposition of their organization to the New Panama Canal Treaty so firmly registered at their biannual convention in New York last week, seemed to agree on one point which, I think, will prove critical in the discussions ahead. They were asked: "If the revised treaty had resulted from an American initiative rather than a Panamanian initiative, would you alter your position on it?" Most seemed to agree that they would. That is to say, that other considerations were relatively insignificant by comparison: considerations arising out of the economic cost to us of the canal, and the residual military situation. What matters most is the symbolic act: We are being pushed around.

THE FIGURE OF General Omar Torrijos figures prominently in this act of international theater. He is out of Central Casting as the Guy We Would Least Like to Do a Favor For. He is an unsmiling left-wing tyrant who has expressed admiration for such characters as Fidel Castro and the mad Qaddafi of Libya. He is a specialist, at home in obliterating the opposition, whom he dispatches by the neat expedient of taking their property and booting them out of the country.

If the leader of Panama were the man who serves as its President, Demetrio Lakas, rather than Torrijos the Caudillo, the situation would very likely change substantially. President Lakas was educated in Texas, speaks as idiomatically as Lyndon Johnson and almost as colorfully, and positively brims over the pro-Americanism and its evil deeds. Ask not why therefore he associates himself with Torrijos.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think Revelation 22:18-19 means we should not use various translations of the Bible? —Mrs. G.R.

DEAR MRS. R.: Revelation 22:18-19 says, "If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life." This is a solemn warning that we are not to tamper with the words of the Bible, either by adding to the Bible or subtracting from it. While it applies especially to the book of Revelation, I believe it also applies to the whole Bible that God has given to us. The Bible, after all, is God's Word, and we must not dilute it with the ideas of mere man. "Prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (II Peter 1:21).

These verses do not directly talk about translations of the Bible. In fact, if they were meant to forbid translations, we would all have to learn the Greek language to read the New Testament in its original form. As long as a translation is accurate — does not add to or subtract from the Bible — it can be helpful to us in our study of God's Word. I use many translations myself, although I still have a deep affection for the traditional language of the King James Version.

Whatever translations we use, we should always ask God to make His Word clear to us.

Good sport

Around the rim

Bob Burton

Sports editor Danny Reagan inadvertently plunged me into a whirlwind this week when he sent me off to cover the Big Spring Steer girls volleyball team.

I went casually up to the door of the gym and peered in. There was a pretty fair-sized crowd of fans, and there were six pint-sized girls out on the court, facing Monahan's.

I say pint-sized, but that's only because they were the junior varsity team, and still had (theoretically) several years growth ahead of them. They hit that white ball as hard as anyone I'd ever seen and they worked hard at the game. They slid around on the hardwood basketball floor (painful) after the opposition's booming spikes and they scrambled to set up the ball each time it came over the net their way.

NOW, I USED to play the game a little bit, and one of those light, inflated balls packs some sting when it smacks into something soft, like your forearm. So they were stopping some real stingers. —I thought.

Then the varsity marched out. I began to figure out just how pint-sized these girls would be. Rose Magers, an All-State athlete, looked casually down at where I part my hair. Most of the other girls, Susan Johnson, Shana Farmer, Becky Ragan all could look me right in the eye.

What's my point? That high school volleyball (which I'll bet you've never taken the time to see) is not just played by dippy little daffodils in neat pinafores and ruffled panties. Most of these girls are in pretty good shape and they play a demanding game with demanding skills.

The varsity began their warm-ups by practicing spikes. They pounded those balls regularly over the net, each time the set-up and the smack. Really pretty exhilarating.

Then they all turned to the basketball backboard. Everyone could hit the backboard with the palm of their hand, and Magers hung for just an instant from the rim—making it look easy, I thought sourly (I have played basketball, too).

THEN THE GAME GOT under way. The score flew back and forth, and the balls flew back and forth, and I was kneeling down on floor level next to the court, getting all involved in spite of myself.

It was actually an exciting game. The scores are usually close, the action is quick and it provides for some long suspense as a rally gets under way and a lead changes hands. There is the kind of thing basketball fanatics get excited about when one player goes up for a spike and three others go up on the opposite side of the net to bounce the shot back. What can I say—the thrill of victory, etc.?

Anyway, the team looks pretty good this year, and I didn't even get to see them last year. Coach Nancy Deason is as even-tempered and self-effacing as everyone promised me she would be. Rose and Becky are as aggressive as they are supposed to be, and volleyball is, surprisingly, a much better spectator sport than it is supposed to be. Try it.

WASHINGTON — The muckracker wants to be liked. He pictures himself not as a resented troublemaker but as an affable, benevolent figure, an instrument of civic betterment. He assumes that even his victims recognize that he is just doing his job and that his job has something to do with the larger welfare.

Moreover, the most abrasive reporter is apt to be, in his personal life, a thin-skinned fellow, terribly sensitive, easily desolated by the slightest criticism of himself or his work. And so it has been that under several administrations, reporters for this column have carefully and chivalrously through private files and public reputations, confident that our altruism was generally recognized.

IT CAME AS a bit of a shock, therefore, to hear that the incomprehensible Watergate pair, E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, had plotted my liquidation. Hunt hastened to explain that they did not intend to do me in but merely to cause my irredeemable public disgrace.

We have now obtained evidence that Hunt's version, apparently, is quite correct. He had in mind nothing so base as putting out my lights forever; all he sought to do was make me an involuntary subject of the CIA's MK ULTRA-DELTA research. This was the secret behavior-altering program that sent the unfortunate Dr. Frank Olson diving to his death through a New York City hotel window.

Hunt got his motivation, whether by osmosis or otherwise, from Richard Nixon who used the formidable resources of the federal government to discredit us. Ex-White House aide Charles Colson has testified that he was asked "many times" by President Nixon to take action "to discredit Jack Anderson."

To this end, the CIA assigned 18 radio cars to keep us under surveillance. The Pentagon, according to its former security chief, W. Donald Stewart, conducted at least 11 separate investigations of us, sparing no expense. The FBI secretly grabbed our telephone records, and the Internal Revenue Service conducted a penetrating, year-long audit of my finances.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: If ever you assign a reporter to the medical field, I sincerely hope it will be Jim Werrell, or someone like him.

I am aware of the difficulties involved in good investigative reporting. It takes time to get the facts, to interpret those facts in context, to learn the context itself in order to interpret fairly the statements taken in an interview. I am also aware that objectivity can become a guise for irresponsible reporting; that more often than not, a slanted story is simply lazy journalism.

And I am aware of the keen sensitivity of a community's industries and people. Of the different languages of individual industries that are easily misunderstood by those outside the industry itself. Of political variables that once stated so often return to haunt. And of the community's tendency to court the media when it needs its services; to shun it otherwise.

Jim Werrell put together what I consider "one of the most comprehensive series that I have seen in a local paper (on One Mile Lake) and I appreciate the thoroughness of it. It is an evidence of professional concern and accountability to his public. I found myself empathizing with each group involved in the problem: the environmentalist, the property owner, the neighborhood, the city fathers, and the water authorities. I appreciated especially the time taken to talk to the authorities on the mosquito problem, since I have never understood why we have so many mosquitoes even though we live up next to the mountain. It was an educational series that provided some facts that I needed to form an opinion of my own as a citizen.

Steve Birdwell's letter is proof positive that Jim did his job well. The public is responding. What was once merely an item on the city agenda has become a real concern of a great many people.

I would like to add one question to Steve's list. Was there any effort to do a comprehensive study on the pros and cons of the lake drainage prior to seeking the funds for the project? I hope that the city fathers are becoming aware that there are in the city capable resources from which they can draw input in solving the many problems they face daily.

Thank you for allowing this series, and for allowing Jim the time and support in doing it.

Would do it again, says Liddy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The years in prison softened Gordon Liddy's voice, shrunk his physique, made him less cocky and overbearing. But they didn't change his view of Watergate: if his president asked, he'd do it again.

Liddy's plan had been to speak to a few invited reporters. Instead, the rented hotel suite was jammed with reporters, cameras and microphones. One network, ABC, had him to itself first.

Liddy told ABC's Barbara Walters that he took the blame for Watergate by design because "I was the captain of the aircraft carrier when it struck the reef."

But Liddy said he didn't take the blame in vain. "No, I think I delayed things substantially," he said.

What good did it do to delay them, he was asked. "The prince was prince for a longer period of time."

What happened to Richard Nixon was a tragedy, Liddy said. But, he added, what happened to Gordon Liddy was not.

"I undertook willingly a risk," he said. "I knew what I was doing and I accept the consequences, good, bad or indifferent. There could have been some very favorable consequences for me. I would have accepted those without gainsaying them ... it's five years, it's just a chapter. There's many more chapters to be written."

Liddy, the Watergate planner, a lieutenant?

"Yes. I would not rank myself as a captain. It was Liddy's first day home and he devoted hours to interviews. He wanted to talk about the two federal institutions where he spent most of his 52 months imprisonment, not Watergate.

But G. Gordon Liddy knows more about Watergate and has said less about it than anyone else, so the questions came:

Q. Can you tell us why you went into the Watergate?

A. I can, but I won't.

Q. Can you tell us what you were looking for?

A. I could, but I will not.

Q. Why won't you?

A. I choose not to.

For choosing not to, Liddy got the stiffest prison sentence of any Watergate figure, 6-20 years, plus an extra 18 months for refusing to testify before a grand jury. Only President Carter's intervention and the parole board's approval got him out of prison now.

"I don't want to appear to be quixotic in these refusals to discuss Watergate, and so I will say this," he said almost apologetically. "There were a substantial number of different reasons why five years ago I opted for silence. One of them is that if I don't want you to know something, I simply will not speak about it to you. If I say something to you, I will tell you the truth."

'Know Before You Go' tips

A new Custom-to-Customs information service for international travelers has gone into effect at all U.S. and Canadian Customs offices along the border.

The new service will permit much broader distribution of the U.S. Customs information booklet "Know Before You Go" to U.S. residents leaving the country by highway into Canada.

Tourists entering Canada from the United States will receive a copy of "Know Before You Go" from the Canadian Customs officer.

At the same time, tourists entering the U.S. from Canada will receive the Canadian Customs information booklet "I Declare" from the U.S. Customs officer.

Millions of travelers cross the U.S.-Canadian border each year, and this improved information program will increase their understanding of their tourist entitlements and obligations under the Customs law.

Bell trial jurors are deliberating

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A state district court jury was to resume deliberations today in a $29 million damage suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The jury, which got the case late Wednesday afternoon after four weeks of testimony, deliberated seven hours Thursday before quitting for the day.

Deliberations did not begin until Thursday morning. The suit filed in November 1974 by fired Bell executive James Ashley and the family of T.O. Gravitt, who headed Bell's Texas operations until his suicide in October 1974.

The suit alleges that Bell conducted an improper internal investigation that slandered both men, drove Gravitt to suicide and resulted in Ashley's wrongful dismissal Oct. 31, 1974.

Bell officials testified that they launched the probe in the summer of 1974, after executives heard rumors of sexual misconduct by some Bell San Antonio employees including Ashley.

Several female Bell employees testified that they had sex with both Gravitt and Ashley. Some said they were told that Ashley required sexual favors from female employees seeking promotions.

Bell maintained the investigation was never directed at Gravitt.

The plaintiffs argued that the probe was designed to drive Ashley and Gravitt out of the Bell power structure because they had become "rebels," by complaining about certain company policies.

Ashley testified he was forced to contribute money to a political slush fund and to participate in unfair rate-making practices.

The jury of 10 men and two women heard a total of nearly 100 witnesses and received nearly 200 exhibits from both sides in the case.

State District Judge Peter Michael Curry gave instructions to the panel Wednesday. Jurors had to answer 35 individual questions before returning a verdict.

Proposed set of revised lending rules due debate

DALLAS (AP) — A proposed set of revised federal lending rules will "protect the consumer from his own ignorance," says a Dallas consumer advocate.

But a Fort Worth bank official says he thinks the Federal Trade Commission has been misled in formulating the new rules.

Such feelings have set the stage for national hearings on the proposed rules scheduled to begin Sept. 12 in Dallas. Already 61 persons have registered to testify before an administrative law judge who will preside over the hearings that will run through Sept. 23.

FTC spokesman Freddie Luna said the proposed regulations "would have dramatic impact on creditor-consumer relationships."

Joe Martin, senior vice president of First United Bank Corporation in Fort Worth, said the FTC has been misled.

"They are proposing an additional series of regulations that would presumably remedy certain abuses," Martin said. "What I'm afraid of is that they're overlooking that abuses do not exist except in limited instances."

Dallas attorney Larry Nealer, however, sees the proposed regulations as overdue and needed to protect consumers from themselves.

The proposed rules would make sweeping changes in procedures concerning lending practices.

One proposed regulation would force creditors to alter current procedures whereby a creditor can retain an extended lien on an item if the buyer decides to finance a second item when the balance on the first item has been reduced.

Nealer said the process allows a creditor to repossess an item although it may have been paid for. The proposal would force a creditor to apply the payments to the first item until it is paid off.

But Martin said the revised process would mean a creditor might not receive payments on an item for up to a year after he sold it.

The proposed rules also restrict creditors from calling third parties such as neighbors and employers in an attempt to collect.

"I've heard of cases where they've called an employer so often that the employer told the man he would be

Lo-Vaca trying to halt 'litigation circus'

HOUSTON (AP) — In a move to stop what a spokesman calls a "litigation circus," Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. has asked a state court of civil appeals to stop further suits by Crystal City over its $740,000 natural gas supply debt.

The Lo-Vaca spokesman said Thursday that Lo-Vaca has petitioned the 8th Court of Civil Appeals in El Paso to prohibit further legal action until the original lawsuit is settled.

"We have been upheld in several court trials," the spokesman said. "But Crystal City officials and others keep going and going to the lower courts. The litigation circus could continue forever."

The spokesman said the El Paso appeals court has issued an order prohibiting the filing of any suits until Sept. 19 when a hearing has been set on Lo-Vaca's petition.

Lo-Vaca said it would continue to supply gas to the municipally-owned gas utility in the Southwest Texas community until the hearing are over.

The company has attempted on several occasions to stop supplying gas to the town until the bill is paid.

In the petition to the appeals court, Lo-Vaca said the case had been studied by 18 judges in six courts—both state and federal—and the company has been upheld.

Crystal City began mounting the debt in January 1975 when residents refused to pay gas rates above 36 cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf). The city argued that was the price fixed by the original contract with the company.

However, after the contract was signed, the Texas Railroad Commission granted Lo-Vaca permission to charge $2 per mcf.

Crystal City Mayor Francisco Benavides said recently if the gas is turned off, residents would have to use wood or butane as fuel.

A spokesman in Johnson's office here said the 58-year-old judge is recovering rapidly from surgery performed Aug. 26 to correct an aneurysm in the abdominal aorta.

The spokesman said Johnson should be back home by the first of next week.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, who performed the surgery on Johnson at Houston's Methodist Hospital, said after the operation that it would take about six weeks for the judge to recover.

Lawyer ads battle looms

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Directors of the State Bar of Texas take up the touchy question of advertising guidelines today.

Other matters to come before the board of directors in the special meeting today and Saturday include the new "Sunset Bill" that calls for periodic reviews of state agencies, including the bar.

Later this month the bar will sponsor a seminar for all affected state agencies.

If the board approves proposed advertising guidelines the matter will be presented to the 28,500 Texas lawyers in a referendum later this year.

Lawyers were granted a limited right to advertise their services and the fees under a recent ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court.

FBI nominee bouncing back

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., nominated by President Carter to head the FBI, is expected to be here next Monday from Houston, where he underwent stomach surgery.

A spokesman in Johnson's office here said the 58-year-old judge is recovering rapidly from surgery performed Aug. 26 to correct an aneurysm in the abdominal aorta.

The spokesman said Johnson should be back home by the first of next week.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, who performed the surgery on Johnson at Houston's Methodist Hospital, said after the operation that it would take about six weeks for the judge to recover.

London tour discussed at Thursday meeting

By DUSTY RICHARD

The London tour sponsored by the Big Spring Herald, the Abilene Reporter-News, the San Angelo Standard-Times and the Wichita Falls Times, all members of Harte-Hanks Newspapers, got off the ground with a meeting of participants Thursday night at 7:30 at the Skipper Travel Agency, which is coordinating local arrangements with Supertravel, Inc.

Bill Ragsdale, owner of the agency, and Harold Canning, who with his wife, Doris, will travel with the group as the Herald's representatives and hosts, discussed with the touring group how they plan to get from Big Spring to Dallas, where the group will fly to London. Some suggestions include chartering a bus or flying from Midland. They also talked about taking some sidetrips while in London.

Big Springers who are taking the London trip include Mrs. Nola King, Mrs. Nancy Liberty, Mrs. Jerrie Burchell, Mrs. Frances Ringener, Mrs. Ruth Edmondson, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Colling.

Others are Ms. Modeln Wyatt, Ms. Laverne Clawson, Ms. Lulu I. McAlister, Ms. Florence Lenox, Mrs. Toni Choate, Mrs. Mary Ann Taylor, Mrs. Marjorie Hollingsworth, Miss Dell Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. M.H. Barnes, Ms. Lena Damer, Ms. Dorothy Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. John Gary, Mr. Dan Norcross, Mr. Desmond Armstrong, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Canning, escorts.

The group will leave from Dallas to London Oct. 11. Included in the $659 cost of the travel package is round-trip air transportation via Capitol Airway's DC-8 jetliner, seven nights of hotel accommodations, a Continental breakfast daily and two half-day tours of London by private motorcoach.

On the tours, the travelers will view such sights as the London Zoo, the Underground, Parliament, Big Ben, Piccadilly Circus, the Marble Arch, Trafalgar Square, Westminster Abbey, the Tower of London with its Beefeater Guards and collection of crown jewels and, of course, Buckingham Palace.

In addition to the two tours provided in the program, the visitors to London will have optional tours to choose from, ranging in price from $4 to $26. Examples of these tours are visits to the Windsor and Hampton Court Palace, Stonehenge, Salisbury and Winchester, and a trip to Oxford and Stratford-on-Avon, home of the famous fifteenth-century poet, William Shakespeare.

In the free time provided in the tour, the participants can visit some of London's 17,000 pubs, 50 live theatres, four orchestras, two ballet companies and the Royal Opera at Covent Garden. They will also have the chance to shop in some of the world's most famous stores: "Marks & Spencer" on Oxford St., "Selfridges", "Harrod's" in Knightsbridge, "Fortnum & Mason" in Piccadilly, "Sotheby's" and "Christie's" in Mayfair.

If they like, the travelers can also gamble in some of the many casinos in London.

There should never be a dull moment for the group, whether they eat dinner in Chelsea or visit a nightclub in Soho.

Bride's Parents Refuse To Meet With Groom's

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my son's future in-laws. He has been going with this girl for four years, they've been engaged for a year and a half, and all this time, my husband and I have not met her parents.

We have often asked the girl and my son if we could meet her folks, but we never got a straight answer. Finally, with the wedding coming up in a few months, I decided to call the girl's parents and invite them over so that we could get acquainted. The mother said she would call me back to let me know when they could make it. That was eight weeks ago. No call yet. I am at a loss as to what to do.

Everyone will think it's odd if they find out at the wedding that we have never met the bride's parents. They live less than a mile from us.

Should I drop the matter? Or should I pursue it? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: If you haven't met the girl's parents by now, collar your son and find out why. Explain to him that as parents of the groom, you do have a role in the wedding plans. [The rehearsal dinner.] Don't call the girl's parents again.

It will be awkward indeed if you don't meet them before the wedding, but if that's the way they want it, for whatever reason, so be it.

DEAR ABBY: Am I wrong for refusing to sleep with the man I love because he wants his dog to sleep on the floor of our bedroom?

When I walked out, he said the dog always slept on the floor in the same bedroom with him and his first wife, who is now deceased.

Abby, I have never had dogs and I am not used to them. I told him he could put the dog in the other bedroom, but he said he wouldn't do it—that next to his deceased wife, the dog came first. So where do I stand? NO DOG LOVER

DEAR NO: Right behind his dog.

DEAR ABBY: I certainly hope you or your readers can help me with my problem. Is there such a group as "Spenders Anonymous" for "Clothes-aholics"? If not, I would be interested in starting a local chapter.

We are a lower middle-income family. I started working recently to help with family finances, but all I do is shop! I am compulsive about buying clothes, and I can't seem to control myself.

Please help me. I am desperate. MCKINNEY, TEX.

DEAR MCKINNEY: If there is such a group, I'll surely hear about it and let you know. If not, there ought to be.

Neutron warheads heat cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter appears to be leaning toward the production of neutron warheads, but officials say he is delaying a decision because NATO allies are not anxious to publicly embrace the new weapons.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell had said in August that the President was likely to decide what to do about the weapons — neutron artillery shells and Lance missile warheads — early this month. A Pentagon memo, believed to be in support of the weapons, went to the White House on Aug. 15.

But one administration official said Thursday that Carter will not decide before late September. Another said the decision could come as late as October. Meanwhile, they said, the United States will consult further with its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies. Both officials asked not to be identified.

"The President feels the neutron bomb would be a useful and worthwhile weapon," one of the sources said. The source added that the NATO allies appear eager to have neutron weapons but are not ready yet "to take the political heat at home."

"Privately," the official said, "they want to have the neutron bomb deployed in their own defense" but are reluctant to publicly commit themselves to deployment.

"If President Carter is going to take the political heat of building this (weapon) in the United States," he said, "the western European countries have to be willing to stand there, too."

Presidential aides have been reviewing the Pentagon report on the new nuclear weapons since it was delivered on schedule to the National Security Council. A State Department official who has seen the memo said it closely reflects Defense Secretary Harold Brown's public declarations about the weapons.

Brown said in an interview July 5 that senators aware of neutron weapon planning see the neutron warhead "as a useful military adjunct — most of them. That's how I look at it myself."

The secretary added: "The enhanced radiation warhead, because of its characteristics which limit the damage to people and to objects to a fairly well specified radius, would allow it to be used in military situations of interest, against tanks, for example, without doing much damage to people and to things outside that radius."

"That gives it some military utility."

Critics say neutron warheads, because they cause limited damage, would make it easier for military leaders to use them, opening the door to escalated nuclear conflict. The weapons are controversial because, although they would produce much less blast and fire than other atomic weapons, they would release more radiation, killing more enemy soldiers. Some opponents say that could mean more civilians, too.

Merrymaker Mostel dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Zero Mostel once observed: "The theater is like a cathedral — I mean a shul (synagogue). At the end of it, there's a cup of tea."

Solemnity and mirth were never far apart for Mostel, who died of heart failure Thursday in Philadelphia at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital. He was 62. The mammoth actor always seemed to be exploiting his talent as if running a rummage sale at Tiffany's.

"I don't give a damn about images," he replied when asked how a man of formidable stage feats who also was a painter who could get $11,000 for a picture, could take time out to pose nude in a bathtub with an unclad nymph for Playboy magazine. "How can you be an artist if you worry about images?"

Mostel was more than a natural crowd-pleaser and jovial merrymaker. Behind the facade was a sentimental, deeply dedicated and canny savorer of life.

"I feel very sad about the whole thing because I was a very good friend. He was one of the big talents, he could make you laugh, he could make you cry," said comic Milton Berle who was reached in Los Angeles.

Mostel will be remembered for a galaxy of performances that transcended one critic's judgment that his art was "the poetry of coarseness."

Another said he was "a pantomime genius who can say more with a cocked eyebrow than many actors with four pages of script."

His gamut extended from James Joyce's Leopold Bloom in "Ulysses in Nighttown" to Pseudolus, the Roman zany of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," from the avant-garde of Ionesco's "Rhinoceros" to the sentimental tribulations of "Fiddler on the Roof."

The latter two portrayals won him Broadway Tony awards.

In what was to be his final triumph, Mostel returned in June 1976 in a production of "Fiddler" that grossed $5.2 million on a 10-city tour and wound up last May with 167 performances on Broadway.

When stricken, Mostel was about to start the tryout in Philadelphia of "The Merchant," a new play by Britisher Arnold Wesker based approximately on the subject matter of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." It was scheduled to arrive on Broadway on Nov. 15.

The opening of the show was postponed after Mostel entered the hospital Saturday, suffering from a viral infection described as a mild respiratory disorder.

The son of an orthodox rabbi — who never saw him perform — Zero was born Feb. 28, 1915 in Brooklyn. He grew up on Manhattan's Lower East Side where schoolmates soon renamed Samuel Joel with the sobriquet that stuck forever — Zero. He got it because he was always cutting up in class and never seemed to study.

Mostel married Kathryn Harkin, a Music Hall Rockette, in 1944. They have two sons, Joshua, an actor, and Tobias, who became a stage manager.

TDC link issue in police trial

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Attorneys in the murder trial of two former Houston policemen were to begin sifting today through 37 prospective jurors — many of whom acknowledged having connections with the Texas Department of Corrections.

Prosecution and defense lawyers agreed Thursday on the 37 finalists in this Southeast Texas city where the TDC is headquartered. Five additional units of the TDC are located in or near the city.

Eleven of the 37 said they were connected to the TDC either through current or former employment or the employment of relatives.

Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, are on trial for the May 6 beating-drowning of Houston laborer Joe Campos Torres.

Two other officers reportedly involved in the incident were given immunity in return for their testimony during the investigation. A fifth was suspended and later reinstated.

Each of the 11 prospective jurors said his connections with the TDC would not influence his decision should he be chosen.

Defense attorney Bob Bennett told the panel that "much of the news coverage" concerning the Torres case "has been erroneous."

The Problem of Getting Started

Ours was one of those families. They all went to church but me, the breadwinner!

Sure, the others invited me. They coaxed me. Sometimes they almost pushed me.

But, let's face it: I figured I wasn't the church-going type. And I resented being urged. After all, it's a free country!

It is a free country. THAT is what got me started. We live in a land where men can believe in God and worship Him according to their conscience. People who believed and worshipped made this country what it is. And millions are still trying to keep it that way.

So one Sunday morning I asked myself: Just which side are you on?

From that practical beginning I have gone on to find strength and happiness with my family in the church we attend every Sunday.

My problem was getting started. Maybe it's yours!

INDIAN DANCER—Steven Evans, a member of the Order of the Arrow, displays some of his Indian dancing in all the splendor of his colorful costume.

Indian dance honors snared

After dancing to the beat of Indian drums for nearly 12 hours in Knoxville Tenn., Steven Evans brought home a trophy and ribbons for excellence in Indian dance and costume.

The event was a scouting jamboree held at Knoxville University featuring the famous scouts of the Order of the Arrow. The event brought in approximately 4,000 scouts representing all 50 states. In the dancing competition, over 18 teams took part.

After only 8 months practicing his dancing and creating his magnificent Indian costume, Evans snared a second place trophy in the Northern division of the Order of the Arrow for his dancing, and won a yellow ribbon for "superior and premium" work on his costume in the Southern Division of the competition.

Evans, 13, became interested in Indian Dance when he joined a group of scouts in Odessa called the Lakota Dancers, under the auspices of the National Order of the Arrow.

His costume, which was completely made and designed by himself, is a gorgeous array of blue and white feathers, intricate beading, leggings of Icelandic sheep hair, and a roach of porcupine quills.

Steven comes from an unusually strong scouting background, since both of his parents, Loren and Jeannine Lewis, are holders of the coveted Wood Badge.

The Wood Badge, until recently very rarely awarded to women, represents the highest level of scout training and is specifically designed for scout leaders.

Loren Lewis is advisor on the National Order of the Arrow Board, and also has become the scouting round table leader for the Lone Star District. Mrs. Lewis will be the Cub Scout round table leader.

Recently moved here from Odessa, Mrs. Lewis describes her commitment to scout leading as "the rent we pay for the space we occupy on Earth", and said it was necessary for fulfillment as a human being to become involved in the community or church.

She also said anyone interested in Indian Dance or the Order of the Arrow should ask their scout master.

Ridin' fence

They called it Seven Wells

with Marj Carpenter

Like many other areas in Mitchell County, there used to be a school at Seven Wells. There was also a store, but it never did have a church in that part of the county.

The area was also one that the people in the early 1900s considered "their best picnic spot." In those days, you would load up the buggy with picnic paraphernalia and head out to Seven Wells. Some would go wading and some would simply spread their lunch on the flat rocks and look at the water.

One of the persons who remembers going to school at Seven Wells is Buna Vista Harrell, formerly a Wulfjen. The Wulfjens owned the land which held the actual seven wells.

Nowadays, those wells are under Lake Champion when the lake is up. Currently, they are out of the lake.

However, the trend of going there for picnics has died with the years. People nowadays go to the state park at Lake Colorado City or to some other favorite location. The Seven Wells are too hard to get to, for one thing.

You have to leave the highway between Colorado City and Silver and go down off the bridge on the wrong side and under the bridge to get over there.

The Seven Wells school itself was a mile west and a mile north of the wells. Mrs. Harrell's brother, James who now operates the family ranch, also attended that school.

The school went through the seventh grade. When they got too old to go to the two-room school at Seven Wells, they were taken in Grampa Williams' "bus" into Colorado City for "advanced schooling."

The bus was an old truck with canvas awnings on the side and wooden seats. "It's the kind of truck that you have farm workers ride in nowadays," Mrs. Harrell laughed and then added, "In fact most of them would now refuse to ride in that thing, but it got us to school."

The L.L. Bassham family, uncle of the present mayor of Colorado City, ran a school at Seven Wells. They sold gasoline, groceries and ice on Saturdays. There were living quarters in the back.

Mrs. Harrell recalled, "Everybody used to get ice on Saturdays to last the rest of the week. Going for ice was a big event." One old timer recalled that the only time you got anything like lemonade with ice in it was the day that you went for the ice. Later on, there was no extra ice.

Buna Vista is well-known in the Colorado City area. Her mother is also named Buna Vista Wulfjen. When Mrs. Harrell was born, she said her mother planned to name her Charlotte Ann. However, her dad had them put Buna Vista on the birth certificate because he liked that name.

Mrs. Harrell said that people whom she attended college with call her "Buena" giving it the Mexican pronunciation. My friends around here call me Vista. "That way I always know immediately if I am talking to an old school friend," she added.

But Buna Vista is Spanish, if you add the "e" means good view. And it is a good view down around Seven Wells where the Wulfjens lived. There really is a beautiful view, out near Seven Wells where I've been ridin' fence.

Overconfidence plaguing the Steers?

Now one thing you could possibly say over the past half dozen years is that the Big Spring Steers haven't had to worry much about being over-confident. Defeats on top of defeats have seen to that.

But those days may be over. "We had a very mediocre week of practice," said Head Coach Don Robbins. "We've chewed and pushed, but the enthusiasm of last week just isn't there."

The old football adage is that "A team normally plays like it practices." Ooos! Let's look a little more at those Hobbs' Eagles. They are considered favorites to win the game tonight. Their size, numbers and offensive potential make them so.

In Andrews, the main worry the Steers had was Booger Brooks and fullback Joe Don Barnes. Booger could run, pass or hand it off. That was enough, I assure you, but the Bovines are going to see a lot more tonight in New Mexico.

The Eagles set up their offense like the Dallas Cowboys, about a 100 different sets, tricky for the defense to read. It's one thing knowing "Okay, he's going to run, pass or hand it off and I'll be ready for one of those three." But it's an entirely different ballgame when reverses, counter plays, screen passes, sideline passes, long passes, short passes, all the passes in the book can be used against you from the most innocuous-looking formation.

Robbins and his staff have had "Lot of Recognition Week" in preparing for the offensive onslaught. "We must have good recognition on all their offensive sets," Robbins stated. We just can't line up and declare, because we're going to see a lot of motion and will have to adjust coverage assignments accordingly."

Robbins will also use a hopefully improved rushing game to put the points on the board for the locals. "We have a feeling we're going to get double pass coverage all night. Hobbs saw that we didn't have much of a running game last week against Andrews and they will probably concentrate on passing defense."

"If we can block people out, we can move the football on the ground, and that's what we must do," Robbins finished. The end-around play that resulted in a TD for Kenneth Coffey during the Sweetwater scrimmage may be seen ("We probably won't, but we keep it oiled up"), and the Steers will definitely employ the counter-option, reverse pivot series to the weak side and quarterback draw to pile up the territory as best they can.

The Saturday Junior Varsity game against Abilene High on the road has been cancelled. Both Shorthorn quarterbacks are ailing, and the game was an extra one anyway. The JV's will play their regular season game against Abilene on Saturday, Oct. 1.

Cowboys' laser melts steel curtain

DALLAS (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers were blushing a bright red in their dressing room following Thursday night's 30-0 humiliating loss to the Dallas Cowboys in a National Football League preseason game and some were thinking ahead to Nov. 20.

"That loss concerns me, but we lost a battle not a war," said Steeler defensive lineman Dwight White. "They got to come to Pittsburgh. They got their vengeance for the Super Bowl, I guess. But we won't forget this one either."

It was the first meeting between the two teams since Pittsburgh downed Dallas 21-17 in the Super Bowl two years ago.

"You don't want to get zapped like this anytime," said Joe Greene, the Steeler's star defensive tackle. "But the next game is the one that counts."

Cowboy running back Preston Pearson also sounded a note of caution, saying "We shouldn't rejoice too much. They are better than that. We still have to play them two more times... once in the regular season, and once in the Super Bowl."

Dallas bounced back from a 23-14 loss to Houston last week to maul the Steelers, earning the Cowboys' first preseason shutout in their 18 years in the NFL.

Roger Staubach threw a touchdown pass, Efran Herrera kicked three field goals, and the Dallas defense sacked Steeler quarterbacks eight times.

Each team ended the preseason with identical 3-3 records.

The Cowboys meet Minnesota on the road Sunday week while Pittsburgh hosts San Francisco at home on a Monday night game in regular season openers.

Both have injured starting quarterbacks. Staubach suffered leg cramps in the same leg where he had a pulled hamstring.

"I didn't pull it again, it just started to tighten up," said Staubach. "I could have

Steers in Hobbs tonite

The Big Spring Steers are in Hobbs, N.M. tonight for a 7:30 p.m. (8:30 Big Spring time) meeting with the pass-minded Eagles. Both teams are undefeated — Hobbs by virtue of a 33-7 pounding of hapless Lovington in the opener, and Big Spring, due to a 14-14 knot-tying of Andrews.

The Bovines will be trying to find a ground game that looked promising during the Sweetwater scrimmage, but went on a vacation in the Mustang sister-kisser. And the Steer defense will have its hands full with Eagle signal-caller Flint Knight, a prolific passer.

The play-by-play will be broadcast live on local radio stations KBYG and KBST.

After one week on the gridiron, the Steer statistics have yet to be very revealing. Kenneth Coffey's 72-yard punt return for a TD shows up in scoring. They are self-explanatory and follow:

Tarkanian suspended

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Nevada-Las Vegas basketball Coach Jerry Tarkanian kept his Armenian mouth shut for the most part Thursday and a legal document do his talking as he unleashed an indictment of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Two weeks ago, the NCAA announced that the UNLV basketball program was being placed on two years of probation for numerous violations of NCAA bylaws. Some of the infractions dated back seven years.

As part of its penalty, the NCAA recommended that

Connors: 'No problem here!'

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Back problems and past accomplishments notwithstanding, Jimmy Connors may be a greater contender now than ever.

"It may be the best I ever saw him play, on clay especially," said Spain's Manuel Orantes, who lost to Connors Thursday night, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3, in the most hotly-contested match yet in the nine days of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

Connors enters the semifinals against Corrado Barazzutti, the little-known Italian who thrashed the tournament's third-seed Brian Gottfried of Lauderdale, Fla., 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 Thursday.

Orantes had been considered one of the men who could take Connors down a peg in this Open. He did it in 1975 after Jimmy's brilliant 1974 season, and took him in straight sets this summer in the finals of the U.S. Clay Court Championship at Indianapolis.

The sell-out crowd of 12,497 watched as Connors hit deep, sledge-hammer shots frequently right on the line or in the corners. Orantes' ground stroke seemed aimless, particularly off his backhand.

"I've played a few good matches on clay," said Connors, the 25-year-old from Belleville, Ill., who is the defending champion here but second-seeded behind Sweden's Bjorn Borg, who defaulted earlier this week.

"He was hitting the ball very hard, very deep and very consistently," said Orantes. The gracious 28-year-old left-hander had surgery on his left elbow to correct a pinched nerve on May 28.

Connors strained his back 12 days ago and defaulted the U.S. Pro in Boston. He hasn't had much sympathy from fellow players, some of whom suggested that he seems always to be injured when he faces a big match or must defend a title.

In other quarter-final matches, No. 2 Martina Navratilova of Dallas beat Mima Jausovec, the 10th seed from Yugoslavia, 6-4, 6-1. Wimbledon champion Virginia Wade fell to No. 12 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, 6-2, 6-1.

Ms. Wade, the third seed from England, blamed the clay surface and the earliness of her match — 11 a.m. — for her poor play.

The 31-year-old Briton won Wimbledon, played on grass, beating Chris Evert in the semifinals and Betty Stove for the title.

Her opponent, the little Aussie dubbed "Rabbit" for her ability to chase balls all over the court, had her first victory ever over Ms. Wade.

Meanwhile, Barazzutti played the best he ever has in a major event, passing Gottfried at nearly every opportunity. Gottfried contributed 52 unforced errors.

"He forced me to play badly by just hitting better shots," Gottfried said of the Italian. "I guess mentally I didn't think I could do anything about it."

UPSET WIN! — Sombre stare of Corrado Barazzutti, an unseeded clay court specialist from Italy, belies his unorthodox stance Wednesday during quarter final match against third-seeded Brian Gottfried. Barazzutti upset Gottfried 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

College rankers open Saturday

By the Associated Press

It's time for revenge for Notre Dame.

A year ago, Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett rambled for 181 yards as the University of Pittsburgh trampled the Fighting Irish, 31-10.

The victory over Notre Dame in the first game of the season started Pitt to a 12-0 season, a 27-3 trouncing of Georgia in the Sugar Bowl and a No. 1 ranking.

Saturday, Notre Dame gets the chance for which it has been waiting. Before a national television audience, the Irish take on the Panthers at Pitt Stadium. This year, though, things will be different.

Dorsett, the heart and blood of the Panthers, is playing for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. Johnny Majors, the fiery coach of the Panthers, has returned to Tennessee — his alma mater.

Pitt is ranked No. 7, but this may be the year for Notre Dame — picked by many as the No. 1 team in the country.

In another nationally televised game, No. 11 UCLA visits No. 14 Houston Monday night.

Meanwhile, top-rated Oklahoma entertains Vanderbilt while No. 2 Michigan visits Illinois. Fourth-ranked USC is at Missouri, Miami at No. 5 Ohio State, Mississippi at No. 6 Alabama, No. 8 Texas Tech at Baylor, Kansas at No. 9 Texas A&M and No. 10 Maryland at Clemson.

Games involving Second Ten teams include Stanford at No. 12 Colorado, Washington State at No. 15 Nebraska, No. 16 Mississippi State at Washington, Oregon at No. 19 Georgia and No. 20 Oklahoma State at Tulsa.

A record opening-day crowd in excess of 60,000 is expected in Champaign, Ill., for the Michigan-Illinois game.

The Wolverines are heavily favored in the game where former Michigan assistant coach Gary Moeller makes his debut at the Illini helm.

Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant says he's worried as he begins his 20th season at Alabama, but Ken Cooper's Mississippi squad will be trying to break a jinx.

"Alabama is even better than at the end of last year" when the Crimson Tide swamped UCLA 36-6 in the Liberty Bowl to cap an 8-3 season, Cooper said.

CELEBRATING the squad's first touchdown of 1977, members of the Stanton Buffaloes gathered around line Oscar Perez Friday night in the first half of the Tahoka game. Perez (middle) threw a pass from his wingback position to Marvin Jones for the Buffaloes' first tally. Quarterback Tommy Morrow (1) was one of the first to arrive on the scene to congratulate Perez. The talented senior will miss the next three Buffalo games with a broken hand, however. Stanton won 26-14.

Houston takes 12th win in 14 tries

HOUSTON (AP) — After missing nearly a month of action, Astros rookie left-hander Floyd Bannister is regaining his old form. Bannister, 6-8, walked only three and struck out three while pitching a seven-hitter as Houston blasted the San Diego Padres 7-1 Thursday night.

Roger Metzger's bases-loaded triple capped a five-run Astros outburst in the sixth inning as Houston took its 12th victory in its last 14 contests.

"I think I've finally got my rhythm and confidence back," said Bannister, who suffered with tendonitis during most of July and August. "I'm spotting the ball better now. I felt real good tonight."

Bannister, who was the first player chosen in the 1976 free agent draft, picked up his sixth victory in his last eight decisions while going the distance for only the fourth time this season.

Enos Cabell's third-inning RBI single staked Bannister to a 1-0 lead, but Mike Ivie tied the score for the Padres with a fifth-inning sacrifice fly. Houston regained the lead with its five-run explosion in the sixth, which was highlighted by Cesar Cedeno's run-scoring sing, in a bases-loaded walk to Joe Ferguson and Metzger's three-run triple. Metzger's hit was his fifth triple of the season, all of which have come against the Padres, and gave the Astros their 10th win in their last 11 home games.

Back-to-back seventh-inning doubles by Cedeno and Bob Watson accounted for Houston's final run.

"There's always a reason for walking a guy like that," said Metzger of San Diego's decision to walk Art Howe prior to his triple. "It (the decision) just made me want to drill the ball."

Padre starter Bob Shirley, 9-17, suffered the loss as San Diego fell for only the third time in its last 10 games.

Arnie ties for B.C. lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Arnold Palmer showed the style that made him a golfing legend, shooting a six-under-par 65 in the first round of the $200,000 B.C. Open, and was tied for lead with Lee Elder going into today's second round.

Palmer demonstrated little difficulty negotiating the narrow fairways on the 6,903-yard En Joie Golf Club course, and narrowly missed a hole-in-one on the 17th hole.

"I played a little better than I have been playing," Palmer said after his performance Thursday, which included five birdies and one eagle. He has not won a tournament on the Professional Golfers Association tour in four years and is 97th on this year's money winning list.

Palmer celebrates his 48th birthday. Saturday and almost passed up the tournament to spend the time with his mother in Latrobe, Pa.

John Mahaffey played with Palmer and was in a group two strokes back of the leaders.

"It's a thrill for me just to play with the man, especially when he's playing as well as he did. It's tough keeping up with him," said Mahaffey.

Elder caught Palmer on the last hole with a 10-foot birdie.

"The gods were with me today. Whenever I missed a green I had a pretty good lie. It was the type of round you enjoy playing," said Elder, who carded six birdies.

Lanny Wadkins, fresh from victories in the PGA championship and World Series of Golf, could do no better than a two-over-par 73 Thursday. He was eight shots behind the leaders.

Lee Trevino dropped out after playing nine holes, complaining of back and leg pains.

Behind Elder and Palmer were Mac McLendon and Lou Graham, each with a 66. Playing on the windless course, 43 golfers finished the first round with sub-par scores.

Farm Livestock to reign over crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since 1973, farmers' gross income from livestock is expected to exceed what they get from the sales of grain and other crops.

The Agriculture Department estimates that 1977 sales receipts from the marketing of cattle, hogs and other livestock will be $47.3 billion, compared with crop marketings of $46.5 billion.

Crop receipts in 1977, meanwhile, are projected at $46.5 billion, down from $47.9 billion last year.

For three straight years, beginning in 1974, farmers have grossed more from the sale of crops—primarily wheat, corn, soybeans and cotton—than they have from selling livestock, a reversal of the traditional pattern of U.S. agricultural income sources.

But prices of the major commodities have tumbled from the relatively high levels of the last three years. Some livestock prices have improved, but cattle prices still have not worked completely free of the depressed levels which have plagued producers most of the time since 1973.

The estimate for 1977 is included in a new "Agricultural Outlook" report issued this week by USDA's Economic Research Service.

When high prices for grain and some other crops were high in 1974, sales soared to a record value of $51.3 billion from $41.1 billion in 1973. Livestock receipts, meanwhile, dropped to $41.4 billion from a 1973 level of $45.9 billion.

The 1974 turnabout was the first time since 1925 that farm crop sales exceed the value of livestock sold in a year, according to USDA records.

Crop sales outstripped livestock annually from 1910 when USDA began records on farm marketing receipts through 1925.

There are many reasons for the ascendance of livestock, including the shift half a century ago to tractors from horses and mules. This meant farmers had to do something with their grain instead of feeding work animals, so they fed it to more hogs and cattle.

While that is an oversimplification, the change from animal power to machines did help result in surplus grain stockpiles in many years and the surge in livestock production as a way to use excess commodities.

Cash receipts should not be confused with farm income. What farmers get from the sale of livestock and crops is much like the pay check of a factory worker before his deductions are computed. It is similar with farmers. Gross income, or what they get from producing crops used by USDA before export and livestock, is the figure pens are subtracted.

Ag cooperation factor in Latin relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the new Panama Canal treaty is getting the most attention, the Carter administration also is talking about agricultural cooperation as a factor in improving relations with Latin America.

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture John C. White, for example, paid tribute Thursday to past efforts between the United States and other Western Hemisphere countries in tackling mutual agricultural problems and pledged further cooperation in trying to solve food problems.

White's comments were in a speech to an Inter-American Conference on Agriculture in Tegucigalpa, Honduras. A text was released by his office here.

Although much of what White said related to global food and agricultural matters and strategy being developed by the administration, he called attention to cooperative ventures involving Mexico, Panama, El Salvador, Costa Rica, Honduras, Guatemala, Belize, Nicaragua and Colombia aimed at overcoming foot-and-mouth disease in livestock.

White said also there are mutual interests in seeking more favorable terms in the Multilateral Trade Negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland.

'Vegetarian' beans to sell

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department plans to buy "vegetarian style beans" for distribution to school cafeterias but officials said the choice is not a slam at meat eaters.

The announcement was made Thursday by Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, who oversees food and consumer affairs for USDA. She said the beans will be in cans and mixed with tomato sauce.

Tom Lutz of the department's Food Safety and Quality Service said it will be the first time canned beans have been purchased for distribution to schools. In the past, he said, USDA has bought dry beans in 25-pound bags for distribution.
