

Vance trying to sell canal treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, hoping to prove to a doubtful Senate the wisdom of the Panama Canal treaty, said today the pact creates "a partnership under which our two countries can join in the peaceful and efficient operation of the canal."

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Vance said the treaty proves "once and for all the falsity of the tired charges that we are an imperialistic exploiter bent only on extracting Latin American raw materials and using the continent for our own economic interest."

Since President Carter signed the treaty Sept. 7, there have been repeated forecasts that the administration would be unable to obtain the two-thirds vote needed for Senate ratification.

In hearings this week before Senate and House committees the administration hopes to reverse the momentum of treaty opponents.

While Vance and treaty negotiators Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker were testifying before the Senate panel, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and Gen. George Brown, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were called before the House International Relations Committee.

The defense secretary testified that the treaty best assures continued U.S. access by promoting cooperation rather than risking a U.S. "garrison amid hostile surroundings." He said that "use of the canal is more important than ownership."

He said the treaty will give the United States "unimpeded use ... effective operation ... and physical security of the canal."

Expanding on the reference to risk of a U.S. garrison, Brown said, "If Panama and other Latin American countries, or major elements of the Panamanian population, became hostile to the United States, then protecting the canal against internal threats, terrorism and guerrilla actions would become much more difficult.

"Such occurrences are far less likely under the new treaty than they would be if the long unsettled status quo were to continue," he said.

Gen. Brown said that "Our capability to defend the Panama Canal will be enhanced through cooperation with the government of Panama."

And he added: "The Joint Chiefs of Staff will continue to plan for rapid reinforcement of the U.S. Southern Command in the event of emergency need."

Council eyes new ambulance service

The Big Spring City Council will consider whether to grant permission for a new ambulance service in Big Spring at its regular meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The new service, called El Paso Ambulance and Rescue Services Inc. has asked for a certificate of convenience and necessity so that it may begin serving the Big Spring community.

Alert Ambulance is currently the only ambulance service in the city.

The question of whether to allow a skateboard park in Big Spring behind the Barcelona Apartments off of FM 700 will again be considered by councilmen.

The question involves an ordinance which would change the zoning of a little more than a single acre of land from "single family" to "light commercial."

In other business, councilmen will consider a zone change in the Fairview Heights Addition for the purpose of constructing a duplex apartment.

—consider a request for a quit claim deed on Lot 6, Block 3, East Park Addition.

—consider a resolution authorizing Mayor Wade Choate to submit a Title Nine application to the Economic Development Administration for grant funding.

—and consider allowing the city to advertise for bids for a half-ton pickup for the City Parks Department.

Filibuster fears flare in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders are trying to halt a filibuster on a bill regulating the price of natural gas in an effort to pave the way for a vote on a proposed compromise.

The natural gas issue is expected to tie up Senate floor action all week, despite the Senate efforts today to kill the filibuster by invoking debate-limiting cloture.

President Carter, who spent part of the weekend campaigning in Virginia for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Henry Howell, said at a rally in Norfolk, Va., that he might veto the natural gas bill if senators use it to remove controls from the price of natural gas.

"I hate to veto a bill that a Democratic Congress passes, but you can depend on it: I'll protect your interests when the bill comes to my desk," Carter said.

Meanwhile, hearings get under way today in both houses on the new Panama Canal treaty, giving the Carter administration its first major opportunity to try to persuade Congress to go along with the recently negotiated agreement.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd has formally asked the Senate to permit television and radio coverage of the Senate ratification debate when it gets under way next January.

It would be the first time for such coverage in the Senate chamber, although Senate committee hearings frequently have been broadcast.

Byrd told reporters over the weekend that if a vote were ready this year, it would be defeated. It might have a better chance by early next year, he said.

And the Senate Banking Committee is beginning hearings on whether federal regulation of banks should be overhauled, an outgrowth of the controversy over resigned budget director Bert Lance's personal banking transactions.

The vote of 60 senators is required to limit debate on the natural gas pricing bill, which is a major element of President Carter's energy program.

If cloture is approved that would end the immediate threat of a filibuster and further debate on the bill would be limited to 100 hours.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, is expected to push for Senate approval for a compromise between President Carter's proposal, which would keep federal controls on natural gas, and a competing industry plan, which would lift them.

Either measure would raise heating prices for companies and individuals using natural gas.

Byrd, who filed the cloture measure along with Jackson, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker and 17 other senators, also said he sees a good chance of a compromise.

He said there is still a good chance Carter will get much of his energy program enacted, despite some recent setbacks in the Senate.

The filibuster has been led by a handful of liberal Democrats who don't want to see any relaxation of government price controls.

Stenholm maps Stamford rally

Charles Stenholm of Stamford will formally announce his candidacy for the position of U.S. Congressman in the 17th District in his home town with an old-fashioned rally on Stamford's courthouse square the night of Monday, Oct. 3.

The following day, Stenholm will board a campaign bus that will cover 17 communities within the 17th District, at which time he will meet with community leaders and visit with the electorate. First stop on the tour will be at 8 a.m.

The group will come to Big Spring at 5:30 p.m., and will remain over for supper.

Members of the news media have been invited to make the tour with Stenholm.

In Stamford, a stage will be set up for the occasion and a band will provide entertainment.

Bible battle back before U.S. judges

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A seven-year court fight over whether a Florida school board can allow the reading and distribution of the Bible and the teaching of Christian virtues in public schools is again before a federal appeals court.

All 14 judges of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals were to begin hearing testimony today on an appeal from the Orange County School Board, which takes in schools in Orlando.

The hearing comes six months after a three-judge panel of the same court ruled against the Florida law which required the teaching of "the practice of every Christian virtue."

The court ruled that Bible readings during a morning inspirational period in the Orange County schools were unconstitutional and threw out a policy allowing Bible distribution in schools.

Eight families with various religious affiliations have been fighting the school board since 1970.

They contend the reading and distribution of the King James' Bible and other school board policies could offend Jewish, Catholic and some Protestant students. The families say the policies violate constitutional guarantees of separation of church and state and due process of law.

A lower court judge had said such a prohibition against the Bible would permit "governmental hostility to religion."

Cease-fire taking hold in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A cease-fire was taking hold in the southern Lebanese war today as Israel began pulling its armored forces back across the border.

Beirut radio said the cease-fire agreement, involving the Israeli and Lebanese governments and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat, was tentative, and a small radical guerrilla group rejected it. But Israeli spokesmen said the cease-fire had been fully approved and taken effect.

The Israeli Defense Ministry in Tel Aviv said the truce agreement called for withdrawal of the Palestinian guerrillas from positions north of the border from which they could shell towns and settlements in northern Israel.

South Lebanon. We also shall allow no one to prevent us from striking at the Israeli enemy or existing in areas where we can strike from."

The Popular Front and its Iraqi-supported allies of the so-called Rejection Front have an estimated 300 guerrillas in the South while Arafat's Al Fatah and other units of the Palestine Liberation Organization have an estimated 5,000.

Informed sources said a force of 1,470 officers and soldiers of the reorganized Lebanese army has been formed to move into southern Lebanon to act as a buffer between the guerrillas and the right-wing Christian militiamen who have been battling them there.

County OKs new chiller

In its morning session, Howard County Commissioner's Court accepted a $9,000 bid to replace the patched chiller in the air conditioning system.

Bids taken were from General Service and Supply, $9,000, Girdner Electric and Refrigeration Service, $10,723, and Arrow, $26,630.

The commissioners also set the rate scale for election judges and clerks at the maximum level, $2.50 per hour wage with $15 for transportation for judges.

County Clerk Margaret Ray also informed the court of impending changes in election precinct boundaries. The change, caused by the city accepting Webb AFB as city property, will affect election precincts 9, 16, 1, and 8, but will not affect the next general election.

Offbeat: 'Easy Mary' and 'CBVD'
 CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The increasing use of citizens band radio by prostitutes has produced a new term for an old disease. Officials call it "CBVD" for venereal disease spread by prostitutes using the airwaves to make dates.
 "When you have a prostitution house, you know where it is. But with the CB, everybody involved is more elusive," said Ronald Bryant, head of the venereal disease section of the state Health Department.
 The CB prostitutes have most of their encounters along interstate highways — at truck stops, rest stops and large parking lots, he said.
 He said it is difficult to track down the women through their CB "handles." The woman who is "Blue Feathers" one week may be "Easy Mary" the next.

Trial of ex-marshal begins

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Trial of a former Gastroville town marshal, charged with violating the civil rights of a Mexican-American prisoner who died while in custody, opened this morning before U.S. Dist. Court Judge Adrian Spears.

Frank Hayes' case was moved from San Antonio in June when Judge Spears said "prejudices do exist" in the heavily Mexican-American city.

Hayes was indicted by a federal grand jury in February on charges of violating the civil rights of Richard Morales, a 27-year-old laborer who was gunned down Sept. 14, 1975, on an isolated country road near Castroville.

His wife Dorothy and sister-in-law Alice Baldwin were indicted as accessories and are also on trial here.

Last summer a San Angelo state court jury tried Hayes on a murder charge and found him guilty of aggravated assault. The former law officer is now serving a two-to-10-year sentence.

During the state trial Hayes testified that he killed Morales but the shooting was accidental. If convicted of the federal charge, Hayes could spend life in prison.

The women are charged with helping transport Morales' body to an East Texas farm where it was found in a shallow grave.

Truck driver shot in chest

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The body of a 42-year-old truck driver from Rapid City, S.D., was found here early Sunday between two buildings of an East Side apartment complex, police said.

They identified the dead man as Thomas Clayton LaFortune. Police said he had been shot once in the chest and had been dead several hours when a passerby discovered the body about 7:15 a.m.

Investigators said LaFortune's pockets had been cleaned out and his wallet and identification papers were found in a trash can near the body.

Detective Eddie W. Pinchback said LaFortune was a driver for Lyons Van Lines and was staying with a helper at a San Antonio motel. The helper told police LaFortune had taken a taxi cab downtown late Saturday night.

There were no suspects in the slaying and an investigation continued Monday.

'Reason' for death?

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — One of two former Houston police officers charged in the slaying of a prisoner in their custody said today when the prisoner was taken to an isolated spot following his arrest, officers only wanted "to talk to him, reason with him."

The prisoner, Joe Campos Torres, was arrested May 5. His body was found in Buffalo Bayou three days later.

Five Houston policemen were dismissed and two of them — Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, — were charged with murder after an investigation of the circumstances surrounding Campos Torres' death.

The prosecution has presented witnesses, including some of the dismissed officers, who testified that the officers beat and kicked Campos Torres before Denson pushed him into the bayou. Denson took the stand today and, under defense questioning, explained how, as a U.S. Marine, he had seen members of the Special Forces display their karate skill and swim in full combat gear. His testimony appeared to be paving the ground for defense contentions that Campos Torres, who claimed to know karate and to have been in the U.S. Army Rangers, could have hurt the officers.

Denson said when Campos Torres was arrested at a bar, officers took him away from the scene of the disturbance to a place near Buffalo Bayou "to try to calm him down."

He denied that the officers planned to beat the prisoner. Other officers have testified that Campos Torres was beat up and kicked and then taken to a police station where a sergeant refused to book him and ordered him taken to hospital. According to previous testimony, Campos Torres was taken instead to the place of the original beating.

It was the last time Campos Torres was seen alive.

IMF unleashes gloomy report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antiinflation policies of industrial nations have slowed economic growth and kept unemployment at recession-levels, and now must be "decisively corrected," the head of the International Monetary Fund said today.

Major reductions in unemployment are possible only if industrial nations pursue "markedly higher rates of economic expansion," Managing Director H. Johannes Witteveen said in remarks prepared for the opening of a week-long annual meeting of the IMF and World Bank. He said the United States, Germany and Japan have an "international responsibility" to maintain adequate growth of their economies because what they do affects the rest of the world.

President Carter planned to address delegates from the IMF's 131 member nations later in the day. The disappointing growth of the world economy clearly is the topic most on the minds of the central bankers and finance ministers attending the meetings.

In his remarks, Witteveen said: "The pace of economic recovery in the industrial countries as a group has become so slow that it is adversely affecting employment and foreign trade... and encouraging protectionism. This is a

In a separate speech, World Bank President Robert S. McNamara called on industrial nations to help accelerate growth in poor and developing nations with special efforts to channel the benefits to the very poor to "meet their basic human needs."

"Without these two complementary actions, the outlook for the poorest nations — nations that contain well over a billion human beings — is grim indeed," he said in prepared remarks.

Gunman misses assailant

Ramon Conners, 620 NW 4th, remains unscathed after a man drove up in front of his home Sunday and shot at him four times.

According to reports, Conners had received threats from a man earlier in the afternoon, but had not taken them seriously and was standing in his doorway when the man returned shooting.

None of the 38-caliber bullets hit Conners, and four of them lodged in the wall of his dining room.

A man was arrested at 6:15 p.m. fitting the description Conners gave police. A pistol was found in the front seat of his car which showed evidence of being recently shot, and had several bullets missing.

Silvia Ontiveros, 1501-A Wood, may have thwarted a burglary attempt when she investigated a noise at the rear door of her home just after midnight Sunday.

According to reports, she heard a noise at her back door and went to investigate.

Freight rates

hike sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to approve a 5 per cent freight rate increase, to go into effect by Nov. 30.

Terminating the raise vital, the railroads said it is needed to partially offset rising operating costs for labor, materials, fuel and other items for which they have not previously asked for increases.

The industry said in its petition that recent operating cost increases have amounted to $1.1 billion, and that additional money also is needed "to replenish working capital and absorb higher replacement and retirement costs."

Approval of the increase would generate $937 million in additional annual revenue, the railroads estimated.

Inmate, jailer hurt

in escape attempt

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — An inmate was seriously injured and a jailer hurt during an unsuccessful escape attempt at the Weber County Jail Sunday evening, jail officials say.

Sheriff's Lt. Sam VanderHeide said Corrections Officer Carroll Adams was checking cells on the 12th floor of the Ogden Municipal Building when an inmate outside the cells struck him on the head with a sock filled with hard bars of soap.

VanderHeide said Adams was able to go to the ninth-floor jail offices and report the attack, which happened at about 8:20 p.m.

Jail officials said that in the meantime, an inmate identified as Rogelio C. Ortiz, 23, of Ogden either jumped or fell from a 12th story window to a fifth-floor ledge.

VanderHeide said the inmate received serious leg and back injuries and was removed from the ledge through a courtroom window by ambulance attendants. Ortiz was taken to Ogden's St. Benedict's Hospital, officials said.

Corrections officer Jeff Cottam said Ortiz was being held at the jail for investigation of an Ogden burglary and on a fugitive warrant from Lamesa, Tex.

VanderHeide said Adams was taken to St. Benedict's Hospital for treatment of a head cut and injuries to his leg and wrist.

Officials said no other inmates were involved in the incident and the jail was secure Sunday night.

Dancing mark easy as bunny hop for rabbit

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — For Oscar Belinda, a veteran of the three-month dance marathons of the Depression, 47 hours of dancing was as easy as a bunny hop for Peter Rabbit. "It was just a short one," said Belinda, 76, of San Diego after finishing third in Sunday's charity event at Knott's Berry Farm. Proceeds are going to the St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Belinda said he first waltzed in a marathon more than 45 years ago in the now defunct Egyptian ballroom in Santa Monica.

The Sunday fox trot was the first ever for Belinda's partner, Dorothy McClarnan, 57, of Hawaiian Gardens.

"I'm fine, thank you," she said after the dance. "I think I could dance a few more hours yet."

Belinda and his partner each won $50 for third place and a color television for being the oldest contestants. The winners were a Santa Barbara couple, Stuart Eisenman and Jeanette Collins, both in their early 20s.

Panel to mull year 2000

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will create a commission to study the problems Texas will face in the year 2000.

Briscoe told a symposium at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs Sunday night he will name San Antonio businessman Belton K. Johnson to head the commission.

"In the end, a study of this kind should help both the legislative and executive branches make current decisions more consistent with the state's long-run requirements and interests than if those decisions are approached in ad hoc, short-term terms," he said.

Briscoe said he expects the commission to be financed from private sources.

County airport good industrial site

Big Spring soon will not just have one airport industrial site, it will have two.

Judge Bill Tune and I met on Main Street recently, and we began talking about possible uses for the Howard County Airport after air traffic is shifted to Webb.

Webb is very quickly becoming Big Spring Municipal Airport and Industrial Park.

This will leave the rather large acreage and runways at the county airport without a use. The judge was hoping that an industrial prospect can be found to locate at the county's facility.

THE SITE IS a good one with utilities available, long spaces of runway perhaps for equipment or product storage, several buildings, including the terminal which could serve as an industrial office.

A railroad spur is not far away. The county seems anxious to do something with the airport. When the county operated the airport for Big Spring, it was a dead loss for taxpayers.

But as an industrial park, the judge hopes taxpayers will be able to see the facility contribute to county revenues instead of drain from them.

THE BIG SPRING Area Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Team will be attracting many potential industries to the Webb site during the next year. And it is certainly possible that one or two of them will be able to better locate at the former county airport.

The net result is that Big Spring could eventually develop both airports for industrial use, and maybe both facilities can become valuable assets for this area to speed forward from the Webb Air Force Base close-down.

Right, Israel

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Even the most pro-Israel members of the House International Relations Committee scarcely believed their ears Sept. 12 when a scholarly witness praised Israel's mushrooming settlements on the West Bank as "an important contributor to the region's well-being and to the fostering of better relations" between Jew and Arab.

In President Carter's view, no issue has so poisoned relations between the U.S. and Israel as Prime Minister Begin's claim to the entire West Bank of the Jordan River as "liberated" lands that belong to Israel, with an inherent Israeli right to plant settlements.

FAR FROM "fostering better relations" with the 700,000 Palestinian Arabs who live on the Israeli-occupied West Bank, the Jewish settlements are officially labeled by the Carter administration as "obstacles" to peace. The settlements, furthermore, are clearly "illegal" under various international conventions. So, it might be expected that members of the human rights and Mideast subcommittees of the International Affairs Committee would hear some Arab spokesmen when they conducted the Sept. 12 hearing on legal and human rights aspects of the Israeli settlements.

They did not. Nor were the Congressmen aware of an essential fact when they heard Prof. Fred Gottheil of the University of Illinois express those remarkable views about Jewish settlements. The fact: he had been picked as a witness by staff of the two subcommittees at the express request of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC).

AIPAC, which is run by Morris J. Amity, is this city's most important and effective pro-Israel lobbying group. Its roots run deep into the political soil of both the House and Senate and its network of political and public relations contacts extends to every major American city.

AIPAC and other political arms of the American-Jewish community did not want any hearings at all on the politically combustible issue of West Bank settlements. Rep. Edward Derwinski of Illinois, ranking Republican on the human rights subcommittee headed by Rep. Don Fraser of Minnesota, sought to block the hearings altogether.

CALLING THE subject "explosive," Derwinski said public hearings might "complicate" Mr. Carter's Mideast peace plans at a delicate moment in the negotiations. Fraser and Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, chairman of the Mideast subcommittee, disagreed. But the political courage implicit in their decision to move ahead with hearings filled with political boobytraps was overshadowed by extraordinary kowtowing of their staffs to the pro-Israel lobby.

Not only was AIPAC permitted to "recommend" at least one witness (Prof. Gottheil), but the decision was made to veto all testimony from any Palestinian or Arab-American witness. Considering the fact that the Sept. 12 hearing related only to the human rights and the legal issues of Jewish settlements in Arab Palestine, the refusal to take testimony from Palestinian Arabs seems surprising.

What made this especially frustrating to the largely unorganized American-Arab community was the futility of their efforts to change that committee decision. The American Arabs were denied the same chance to propose witnesses that the committee gave AIPAC. The record is slightly chilling.

A STAFF AIDE of Sen. James Abourezk, the Senate's only Arab-American, was secretly informed by a House Committee staffer in June that the hearings were being planned for September.

Can mean nutrition lack

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I wonder if you could shed light on my problem. The bottoms of my feet are blazing red, and very tender and painful to step on. Also, the palms of my hands get red during the day, although they do not hurt.

I am a woman of 73, and in pretty good health. I do not take medication of any kind. — B.D.B.

Certain possibilities always come to mind. Start with your nose. Nylon can be irritating. I understand that stockings with cotton feet are hard to get, but you can wear a cotton slip-on inside the nylon foot.

The next consideration is a nutritional deficiency — of protein, or vitamin B, or both. Your age and the fact that your hands are also red suggests this. Examine your diet. Try a B-complex vitamin preparation, one containing thiamine and pyridoxine. Brewer's yeast would help.

A vascular (blood vessel) disorder such as arterial hardening should be considered. Not much you can do about this. But keep in mind that nylon irritation can aggravate such a condition. You could try contrast foot baths (warm to cool to warm, etc.)

Finally, you cannot rule out diabetes. Symptoms of diabetes are not usually dramatic at your age, but an after-meal blood sugar test would be in order. Irritated soles can be enough of a disabling condition to warrant a check by a foot specialist, who might find other leads to investigate. But he'd probably start with those I've suggested.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 18. For the past few months I have had several attacks of crushing chest pains, always following a meal eaten too quickly. The only way I can get relief is by vomiting, and even then it takes an hour or two for the pain to stop. Is there any medication I can take when these attacks occur? I am trying to eat less compulsively. Is there a name for this? — J.B.

My first instinct is to scold you for your eating habits. But much is missing from your letter. I don't know what you mean by "compulsive" eating or "a meal to quickly eaten." Could be incomplete chewing; gulping of food.

Your description of "crushing chest pains" sounds ominous, because that is how heart patients often describe their attacks. It would take a monumental amount of fast stuffing to cause such symptoms unless there was a defect in your gullet.

But no purpose is served in speculating about what might be causing your chest pains. I suggest you be examined thoroughly. If the cause is found to be your gorging, then perhaps psychological help would be in order.

I presume the vomiting is forced. If not, there is more reason to suspect a digestive or structural problem. An X ray of your esophagus, stomach, and chest would show this. Your gorging and haste could cause spasms which in turn would give you pain. Slow down before talking about medication.

I can't suggest any medicine to help during the attacks.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can

Mideast impasse

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Mind you, the Palestinian refugees are going to have to be represented somehow at the Peace Conference, even if in order to do so we have to construct a trapezoidal table. Still, the obduracy of the Begin government on the point — they take the position that never, under any circumstances, will they permit the PLO to be present at the bargaining table — is not difficult to sympathize with. One reason is that the PLO is forthrightly devoted to the ideals of destruction of Israel. But a second reason is the historic behavior of the United States in equivalent situations.

In November, 1968, the Thieu government of South Vietnam, scheduled to begin an endless (and fruitless) series of conferences in Paris, refused to permit the presence there of the Vietcong. Thieu's position was straightforward: the Vietcong were agents of the North Vietnamese, not indigenous revolutionaries. To have given them an extra seat at the table would be to replicate the foolishness of the United Nations where we gave one seat to Russia, and others to such of its provinces as the Ukraine and Byelorussia.

THE NEXT diplomatic crisis came four years later; when Henry Kissinger had initiated a draft peace treaty with the North Vietnamese making dispositions that involved South Vietnam. Thieu refused to sign it. The pressures on him to do so were immense. He warned and warned again of the weaknesses of the understanding but finally capitulated to pressure. A couple of years later he was tilling the soil in a little farm in Taiwan, his republic having been swallowed up by the enemy.

It is all highly regrettable, but the Israeli government, surveying the record, really has no reason to trust the United States. We are the nicest people in the whole world, but — perhaps it is inevitable — we look after our own interests, narrowly construed in the crunch, and when the armies roll down to shred carefully-constructed agreements — as they did in Laos in 1962, in Poland in 1945, in Vietnam in 1975 — what we tend to do is listen to speeches from people like magnifying reading glasses be injurious to my eyes? I use them to read and sew. — Mrs. G.B.

Not specifically, so long as they are used exclusively for reading. Neither will such magnifiers be helpful if you have an astigmatism that needs to be corrected with prescription glasses. All they do is make the print appear larger.

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Comedy like

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

I discovered the importance of comedy early in life. From the time I was five years old, sitting in the congregation at Wesley Methodist Church, watching an all-male wedding skit one evening, I knew that laughing was something special.

That night, 24 years ago, I sat there in the pew, barely able to see over the top, with scores of belly-laughing people jumping around with tears rolling down their faces. They were watching my dad singing "I Love you Truly" in a falsetto, dressed as a woman.

I'VE NEVER forgotten that night. That was the first time I ever saw so many people laughing and having so much fun. That was that night I started down the road to becoming a comedy 'freak, rather than the alternative — dramatic realist.

I knew right then that I wanted to become a funny person, (or comedian, as I approached the age of big words — 23). I never really made it though, even with my big nose. But trying is half the fun of comedy anyway. So what if no one else is laughing, as long as you're having a good time and not spilling anything.

I studied the pros back then: Ernie Kovacs, Sid Caesar, Groucho Marx. Those guys were funny. There was a lot of comedy back in the late 50's and early 60's, before Vietnam. Maybe that's why everyone's trying to bring those days back.

Comedy is like history... it runs in cycles, probably in 20-year movements. Looks like it's come again in the late 70's. Television, that vast wasteland of westerns and laugh-tracked situation comedies from the mid 60's to mid 70's, has finally recognized the talents of the "new" funny men.

Even TV commercials have taken a stab at good comedy. If you haven't seen the Fruit of the Loom commercial where the bunch of grapes man falls through the dresser drawer because "he forgot to get small," you've missed a good time.

And then there's "Saturday Night Live," "The Richard Pryor Show," and "Welcome Back Kotter" — the best of a dozen comedy shows on the tube that make a sincere effort for the real laughter, and not the canned variety.

And don't leave out the motion picture screen. "Annie Hall" by Woody Allen was a masterpiece. It probably didn't play to more than a score of people a night while it was in Big Spring last week, but it was a great work of comedy.

Why all the emphasis on comedy in 1977? If it wasn't what the people wanted, it wouldn't be on television, right? It's the cycles. The economy is depressed, crime is increasing every day, oil is quickly disappearing, it's getting harder and harder to keep the extra pounds of fat off, everything from saccharin to who knows what is supposed to cause cancer, and the overall shooting match is looking pretty grim.

"So, make us laugh already!" the American public is telling the performing artists. And that's just what they're doing. And that's just what they'll keep doing until happy days are here again, which, God willing, they will be someday.

This may have seemed like an overly-long lead in to a rim, but that's exactly what it was.

What this rim is actually about is the group of amateur comedians that surround me every day from 8 to 5. Walt Finley once said, "You have to laugh in this business to keep from crying." That may have been he would have said it, or it may have been an Edsel salesman, but it bears out nonetheless.

The best natural amateur comedian I ever met was my cousin Donnie Reagan. I had the pimples in the family, he had the one-liners. I had the hayfever, he had the punch lines. I had the brains, he had the jokes.

HERE'S WHAT we'll do today. We'll take a joke, with its standard punch line, and then change that last line for each involuntary participant in this madcap scheme... in accordance with that particular person's sense of humor (viewed by yours truly).

Got it? Good.

Here's the joke: An Aggie farmer wrote to his government's agricultural bureau with a problem. "Gentleman," he wrote, "every morning when I check the coops, I find several of my fowl on their backs, with their feet up in the air. Can you tell me what is wrong?" After several months, he received this reply from Washington: "Sir: Your chickens are dead."

Now, here's how I think the cronies around here would give the punchline: TROY BRYANT: "Sir, your chickens are dead."

TOMMY HART: "Sir, your chickens have turned up their toes."

J. TOM GRAHAM: "They could be dead or they could be faking it, but they're probably dead."

MARJ CARPENTER: "They're probably Democrats."

EILEEN MCGUIRE: "They're on strike."

BOB BURTON: "Apparently, many of your feathered friends have no doubt succumbed to the rigors of chickenhood."

DUSTY RICHARD: "Like, you know, who cares man?"

JAMES WERRELL: "They're trying to cross the road on their backs."

BILL WERRELL: "We're still looking into it, but we suggest that you don't eat the eggs."

OLIVER COFER: "To get to the other side."

MR. CANNING: "Sir, we'll answer that as soon as you return the enclosed forms in triplicate."

GARY BISHOP: "They're probably feeling cooped up. Ha."

DANNY REAGAN: "Sir, there were no nerve gas experiments in your area, but here is a check for $25,000 anyway."

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I'm writing in reference to the article in the Sept. 22 Herald paper about the trial of Johnny Lee Williams.

As foreman of the jury who assessed penalty of the case, I was unaware that our job was to appease Mr. Hamby's personal feelings on burglars. In the charge from his honor to the jury I did not see anything indicating this. We were not aware that we were to punish Mr. Williams for all burglaries committed in District 118, past and future.

I was under the impression that our job as a jury and citizens of this community was to assess punishment that we felt was adequate for the crime committed based on the facts we had of the case. The unanimous vote on the punishment assessed indicated that we felt that we had accomplished this.

I feel that Mr. Hamby as a public elected official owes said jury a public and individual apology for implying in the paper that we as a jury did not do our job "right".

Floyd Brownfield
Foreman of the Jury
2404 Morrison

intended for that remark to have been aimed at the jury.

For this misunderstanding I apologize.

But, Mr. Brownfield, I will not apologize for any more.

You're correct when you say your job is not to appease my personal feelings on burglars (would that it were). But I have a job too, Mr. Brownfield, and as I see that job it is not to appease burglars or any other law breaker.

You're right again when you say they are my "personal feelings". I take my job and crime very personally.

Nothing I said to the jury was improper. I have a right and a duty to plead for law enforcement and to ask a jury for a term of years that will act, hopefully, as a deterrent to others.

The feeling I have when a jury does not "appease" this funny little quirk I have against law breakers is not anger or anything which would revile a jury. The jury in this case did its job well. The only feeling I have is disappointment in myself.

Reread the quote, Mr. Brownfield. If you're still mad you have one other recourse: get thee to a ballot box.

Dear Editor:
Evans and Novak's column which purports to describe a conversation between Dr. Graham and President Carter is virtually a total fabrication.

The President and Dr. Graham did talk Aug. 21, almost four weeks ago, not last week as stated by Messrs. Evans and Novak. The call was initiated by Dr. Graham, not by the President as Evans and Novak stated. This "lengthy" conversation lasted less than five minutes. Its subject was Dr. Graham's forthcoming trip to Hungary. They also talked briefly about Baptists in the Soviet Union. The only mention of Mr. Lance was when Dr. Graham said he had told Mr. Lance that he and his family were in his prayers. President Carter simply expressed his appreciation.

There was absolutely no discussion even remotely resembling the ramblings about the press vendettas against the administration which Messrs. Evans and Novak apparently fabricated for their column.

On Saturday Dr. Graham also denied that the President had ever made any such statements to him.

No one has been convicted of breaking lobby law in Texas

Lobbyists spend $400,000 to wine, dine legislators

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Top contributors to Texas political campaigns are often top spenders for lobbying during legislative sessions, according to a study made by the Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau.

"Special interest groups and individuals wined and dined legislators to the tune of $400,000 during the legislature," the Harte-Hanks Bureau study said after an extensive study of lobby expense accounts.

"Reported campaign contributions from special interests, totaling more than $1 million in 1976, and reported expenditures proved what many have long suspected — lining up a sympathetic legislative audience is a very expensive business," said the two-part series.

The study showed that 743 registered lobbyists report spending $508,173 for "influencing legislation."

"The top 15 spenders, representing mostly industrial or trade organizations with statewide membership, put up more than one-third of all money reported spent," the series said.

The top contributor to successful 1976 political campaign and the No. 2 lobby spender was the Texas Trial Lawyers Association. The Texas Association of Realtors and the political arms of the Texas Dentists Association and the Texas AFL-CIO also were substantial political contributors and lobby spenders.

"Most of the top 15 spenders got at least half of the bills they supported through the legislature and signed by the governor," the stories said.

No one has been convicted for breaking the state lobby law because no one has ever been prosecuted.

The secretary of state's office, which administers the Texas Lobby Control Act, relies chiefly on voluntary compliance. When the 1957 lobby law was rewritten in 1973 the secretary of state was not given any police or investigatory powers over lobbyists.

Under the 1973 law, which was amended in 1975, lobbyists are required to register and file monthly expenditure reports during legislative sessions. Otherwise reports are made every three months.

Anyone who "communicates directly" with legislators or members of the executive branch to influence legislation is considered a lobbyist and must register. Failure to register or file reports is a misdemeanor with a possible $2,000 fine, a year in jail or both.

The top 15 spenders in the 1977 legislative session, along with their 1976 campaign contributions, according to the Harte-Hanks study included:

Texas Savings and Loan League, $19,482 lobbying expenses and $16,850 campaign contributions; Texas Trial Lawyers Association $17,554 and $186,250; Lower Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce $13,808 and no reported campaign contributions; Texas Motor Transportation Association $12,641 and $18,285; Texas AFL-CIO $11,344 and $26,500; Texas Dentists Association $10,655 and $39,700; Communications Workers of America $9,858 and $19,470; Texas Association of Realtors $9,423 and $104,210; Texas Chemical Council $9,318 and $9,150; Lone Star Steel Co. $7,996 and $3,200; Tyler Area Chamber of Commerce $7,812 and no reported campaign contribution; Texas Hospital Association $7,675 and $5,300; Licensed Beverage Distributors $7,590 and $9,800; Texas Nursing Home Association, $7,424 and $34,450; Texas Automobile Dealers

'Television insanity' 'Kojak' may testify

MIAMI (AP) — A hypnotic drug was secretly administered to teenage murder defendant Ronald Zamora during a nighttime visit to his jail cell by a defense psychiatrist, the defense team said today as Zamora's trial began.

"Sodium amytal was administered to Ronney Zamora," defense attorney Ellis Rubin, who contends that the boy was driven to madness by watching television violence, said in pretrial proceedings in the courtroom.

Rubin described the substance as a "drug-hypnotic" and said Zamora "made certain statements."

A pharmacist said sodium amytal was a commonly used prescription sleeping drug but not a so-called truth serum. However, she said it might be used with hypnosis to have a similar effect.

The drug incident, which Rubin said occurred last Thursday night at Dade County Pretrial Detention Center, led to an acrimonious exchange between lawyers. Rubin said that after he, psychiatrist Michael Gilbert and Rubin's wife, who acts as a secretary, left the jail, Zamora was "wooly, dizzy."

Rubin complained that when Zamora refused to submit to a blood test, "the attendant plunged a needle into his arm" anyway.

A source with direct knowledge of the incident had suggested earlier that use of the drug led to a re-enactment of the June 4 murder of Elinor Haggart in her Miami Beach home.

The novel aspect of the case drew three dozen newspaper, magazine and television reporters to the courtroom. Special television lights were installed in Circuit Judge Paul Baker's tiny courtroom to allow gavel-to-gavel taping of the trial. Rubin has subpoenaed Telly Savalas, star of the "Kojak" series, as a witness.

The judge, in an unusual pre-trial briefing before jury selection began, said Florida's one-year experiment in allowing cameras in courtrooms would meet a severe test in the Zamora case, which he said could determine "if we can have an acceptable marriage between the concepts of free press and fair trial. It's going to make it or break it." Several attorneys for the news media were on hand for consultation in today's proceedings.

Zamora, 15, and Darrell Agrella, 14, are both charged with first-degree murder in the death of 83-year-old Elinor Haggart, found shot to death at her Miami Beach home. Agrella is to be tried separately.

MASS MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR BIKO — The coffin of Steve Biko is carried into Victoria Rugby Stadium at King William's Town Sunday. Almost 20,000 mourners, with fists and voices raised in black-power salutes, and songs, thronged the stadium.

Mourners stone two policemen to death

KING WILLIAM'S TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The death toll rose to three today in racial incidents in South Africa. Bloodshed followed an emotional funeral here for black leader Steve Biko, whose death aroused new black antigovernment protest in this country.

Authorities said a black man was shot dead and two policemen were wounded when police went to investigate alleged terrorist activities at a house in the black township of Soweto, outside Johannesburg, 450 miles north of this coastal town.

The dead man, who police said fired first, was not immediately identified.

Almost 20,000 persons packed an open-air sports stadium for the Biko funeral Sunday and heard five hours of speeches condemning South Africa's white government.

There was only one brief scuffle during the service. But afterward, police reported, a crowd of mourners on their way home stoned two black policemen to death and went on a rampage in a black township outside East London, 30 miles east of King William's Town.

Police Brig. B.J. Smail said the two policemen were killed outside a bus terminal in the Mdantsane township when a crowd returned from the funeral. He said the mob looted a shopping complex, set fire to two cars and overturned three others

Title this story wild

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — Policeman Milton Merrill and his bank were involved in a title dispute over his motorcycle, so he dropped by to discuss the matter.

The First National Bank, however, wasn't too happy when he tried to drive the motorcycle up the stairs to the loan office on the second floor.

Merrill was charged with disorderly conduct and criminal damage to property, but he was acquitted Friday by Circuit Court Judge Richard Weiler.

Merrill was innocent of criminal damage to property because there was no evidence of permanent damage to the walls and stairway, Weiler held. He dismissed the disorderly conduct charge, saying there was no testimony that patrons had been alarmed during the Sept. 2 incident.

Pope says end of his life is approaching

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI celebrated his 80th birthday today, and said the end of his life is approaching. But one of his close associates said he doubted the pontiff would abide by the retirement-80 rule he has set for his cardinals.

Pope Paul told a crowd of 50,000 in St. Peter's Square Sunday that his birthday "preannounces that our end in the order of temporal life is approaching.

"This obliges us to great humility," the pontiff said. "We feel the fragility of being human to which we are subject as Christ was at the crucifixion."

The fact that the pope has made retirement at 80 mandatory for cardinals and his increasingly frequent references to his advanced age have given rise to speculation that he might abdicate.

But Giovanni Cardinal Benelli, a close associate who is considered by many to be the pope's choice for his successor, said in a weekend interview:

"Knowing his way of thinking, I believe that such an hypothesis should be ruled out. Paul VI has a very high, exceptional sense of duty. He knows that he was called to this mission and that no one can exempt him."

Sergio Cardinal Pignedoli, the head of the Vatican's Secretariat for Non-Christians, reported that the pontiff is in good health except for arthritis of the legs and still a "formidable worker."

Birthday greetings poured in.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said: "The world owes His Holiness a debt of profound gratitude for his tireless work for peace and understanding among peoples of the world."

OCTOGENARIAN POPE — Pope Paul VI bends to listen to unidentified young boy, one of a 10,000 voice choir that performed Sunday during a mass celebrated by the Supreme Pontiff. On the eve of becoming the fifth pope of this century to reign as an octogenarian, the Pope said his 80th birthday would put him closer to the end of his temporal life and make him feel "the fragility of being human."

American trade deficit grows to $2.7 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — American businesses sold fewer products abroad during August than at any time in the last 16 months as the nation's trade deficit grew to $2.7 billion, the Commerce Department said today.

The trade deficit, the 15th in a row and the second largest in history, is surpassed only by the $2.8-billion deficit in June.

American exports totaled $9.6 billion, a sharp decline from the $10.1 billion a month before, and was the smallest amount since a $9.4 billion in exports in April 1976. Imports for the month declined from $12.5 billion to $12.2 billion.

A trade deficit means more dollars are leaving the country to pay for foreign goods than the United States is earning from sales of its goods abroad. It means a loss of purchasing power to Americans and can result in reduced employment and production at home.

The Carter administration has said the continuing trade deficit has been caused mostly by increases in imported oil from the Arab countries. Some officials have said nearly all non-Arab countries have built up trade deficits and it could take 10 years to return to normal.

They say other countries have been unable to buy our products because the U.S. economy has been growing more rapidly than theirs.

The latest trade report shows that petroleum imports declined for the second month in a row, dropping

Bargain day for air fares from London to New York

By LOUISE COOK, Associated Press Writer

This week's introduction of a bargain-basement, $236 round-trip air fare between New York and London gives consumers almost a dozen basic fares to choose from and makes the job of figuring out which one is best even more difficult.

The first Laker Airways Skytrain flight is scheduled to depart tonight from New York's Kennedy Airport with a maximum of 345 passengers. Similar flights will leave daily from now on.

The difference between the bottom — $236, no meals, movies or beverages included — and the top — $1,312, for first-class luxury — is $1,076. The most expensive New York-London round-trip fare is more than 5 1/2 times or 456 per cent higher than the cheapest.

The Laker fare is a standby arrangement. You go to a special travel center, take a number and wait for the tickets to go on sale six hours before departure time. When you're coming back, you do the same thing in London.

Six other airlines recently instituted similar standby fares, on regular flights with a few more frills for $256. After that there are 280 budget fares, $350 APEX or advance purchase excursion fares, two excursion fares ($467 and $541), two group inclusive tour fares ($382 and $424) and $626 regular economy fares. And, if you're between 12 and 22, there are $473 youth fares.

In addition to the basic fare plans, there are several types of charters, both for individuals and members of a group. Prices generally start at about $300.

Note: Some fares increase during the summer and include a surcharge, usually $15 each way, if you travel on weekends.

Picking a specific fare is partly a matter of deciding how much inconvenience you're willing to put up with. What happens if you don't get a flight and have to spend a night in New York? How can you make hotel reservations? Do you have to be home on a particular day?

It also is a matter of where you live. The standby and budget fares apply only between New York and London. There are through-fare arrangements across the Atlantic available from many American cities, however. Such a fare is often cheaper than flying to New York for one of the standby

She's heard them all

PHOENIX (AP) — People who want to avoid serving on a Maricopa County jury are advised not to plead that they can't spare the time away from a lonely parakeet or a sick dog.

"I think I've heard them all," said Marjorie Jackman, the county's jury commissioner for 10 years.

Mrs. Jackman calls in 1,000 persons a week, who are picked by computer from voter lists and paid $12 a day for jury service.

Some are excused for pressing health, business or personal problems. Others just don't want to serve and often are the ones who offer the most "original" excuses, she said.

"I haven't taught my dogs how to answer the telephone yet," one candidate wrote the commissioner.

Another said her parakeets would die of loneliness if deprived of companionship.

"Jury duty is for everyone, so let everyone serve and then come back to me," wrote one man asking to be excused.

258-pounder gets equal space

Dallas photographer releases unusual book

DALLAS (AP) — For much of her life, Mary Jackson's mirror told her she'd never raise many male blood pressures.

Yet her 258-pound body shares equal space with Dallas' top model, a waiter, a nurse and a housewife in an unusual photo book called "Dallas Nude."

Photographer-author Charles Collum said he never thought to ask his amateur subjects why they agreed to pose. But Mary, whose pixie-like face is captured for posterity, peering over a huge floppy hat that struggles to cover the rest of her, explains:

"I think there's a little exhibitionism in most women ... men too," she said. "My girlfriend, Cindy Stevens, a model who is also in the book, told me about it and I said, 'Why not?' ... But when I got there and it was time to take my clothes off, I thought to myself, 'My God. Why am I doing this?'"

Collum said a story on his project and an invitation to pose that appeared in a local magazine was surprisingly well received.

"I got about 60 calls, and I photographed them all sight unseen because I wanted a cross section of the people of Dallas," he said. "It didn't matter if they were fat, skinny, beautiful—whatever. 'This one woman called me and said she was eight months pregnant and wanted to pose with her husband. Needless to say, I got them right in ... She was a sales girl and he was a waiter. They were just ordinary-looking folks but they had the most beautiful baby girl. They came back about a month later and I photographed the three of them.'"

Like others in the book, Jim and Margie Montgomery appear almost blasé about their decision to undress for the camera.

"We were a little apprehensive at first, but after we got down there and discovered there was nothing lewd about it ... it was no big deal," said Montgomery.

Jerome Conser, owner of Conser Petroleum Co., said he went to pick up his wife, Angie, a model, at Collum's studio one day, discovered that the book would contain couples and echoed Mary's reasoning—why not?

"None of these people are kooks," Collum protested, somewhat disturbed at the amount of "hate mail" he's been receiving. "I've got no apologies to make for this book. Those who see something ugly are the ones with problems."

Collum said almost all his 70 or 80 subjects are amateurs—just ordinary people. "There were a few who backed out, but not many."

"There was this 90-year-old couple. I asked them if they would pose and he wanted to do it, came and all," said Collum. "But his wife said no way. He could if he wanted but she refused."

"Another time, this well-known Dallas heart surgeon called and said he wanted to pose with his wife and little boy, but later, he called back and chickened out."

"Dallas Nude" is essentially a study in shadows with some of the subjects appearing only as silhouettes, others in portraits and all in the buff.

Depending on the book's success, Collum said he is entertaining an idea of swapping his native Big "D" for London's fog for a year. The idea of a British sequel to "Dallas Nude" intrigues him.

"Now, I have something to show people what I can do," he said. "So if I get to London, well, who knows ... Queen Elizabeth? Maybe Prince Charles."

Mrs. Lance says she still believes in hubby

WASHINGTON (AP) — LaBelle Lance was wrong She and her husband won't be around to see their azaleas bloom next spring. They're going back to Georgia.

Just a week ago, the wife of the former budget director pointed to the azaleas she and her husband had planted in the back yard of their Georgetown house as a sign of their determination to ride out the controversy about Lance's financial affairs.

They would be in Washington to see the azaleas bloom, she said.

But Lance resigned Wednesday and said he would go home to Georgia.

"I still feel he could take a job anywhere," Mrs. Lance said shortly after President Carter announced the resignation on national television. "He's honest and good, and I'm proud of him."

Within minutes after President Carter's press conference Mrs. Lance stepped out on the front steps of their fashionable Georgetown house to make what she called a "statement of faith."

emotion. "As far as I'm concerned, my husband didn't have to resign."

In fact, she counseled him not to, she said: "I told him, 'I would not resign but again, that was not my decision.'" reporters to hear Mrs. Lance proclaim faith in her husband, her country and her religion. "We're still proud to be Americans," she said.

Mrs. Lance, a devout Methodist who writes religious poetry, said faith helped her through the past few weeks. "As long as I can walk in the light of Christ, I have faith that he puts me where he wants me," she said. "And my husband shares that same faith."

Prefers Calif. Single To New York Married

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 24-year-old California woman who fell in love with a terrific eligible bachelor while vacationing in New York.

We're planning a November wedding, but every time I think of living in New York I break down in tears. I hate New York! I was born and raised in California, and all my friends and family live here.

We have to live in New York because my fiance is a physician, and his father (also a physician) is retiring and leaving him a wonderful established practice.

I've asked my fiance to consider taking the California Medical Boards so he can practice there, but he says it's foolish to start all over again in California when he has a successful ready-made practice in New York. I know he's right. But as much as I love him, I know I'll be miserable in New York.

Please answer soon as time is running out.

TORN

DEAR TORN: If you "know" you'll be miserable in New York, you will be. And he'll be miserable, knowing that you're miserable, which will make for a miserable marriage.

Unless you go to New York determined to build a new and happy life, for your sake and his, call the wedding off and stay in California.

DEAR ABBY: I am involved with an older married man with whom I have a unique relationship. He never questions me about other men, and I never question him about his wife—although I admit, I'm curious.

He pursued me, I didn't pursue him, and from the very beginning he told me he was a "happily married man."

My question: Why would a "happily married man" want to have an affair? Or is the affair a sign that something is wrong with his marriage?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: It's possible for a man who is sufficiently satisfied with his marriage to seek supplementary excitement just for the fun of it.

I would translate his statement into the following: "I enjoy fooling around with you, but don't get any crazy ideas about marriage, because I'm perfectly happy with things the way they are."

DEAR ABBY: For years I have been driving four neighbor children and my daughter to school every day. I decided not to join a car pool because I figure that as long as I am driving anyway, I may as well take a car-full. Incidentally, we have a nice new car with six seat belts, and I am as dependable as a clock.

We've lived in this neighborhood for many years and I know all the parents, but I don't see them socially. Of course all the mothers know that I chauffeur their children every morning because I pick them up at their doors.

Now I don't expect a medal, but when I meet one of the mothers in the market or at PTA, not ONE mother has ever said "thank you" to me.

If parents are so thoughtless about showing their appreciation, is it any wonder their kids think the world owes them a living?

This has been on my mind for a long time. Please print this to wake up a few mothers. But don't use my name or location.

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Names and locations are unnecessary. The guilty ones will know who they are.

Baker family has reunion

The annual "M.T." Baker Reunion was held recently in Stevenville, Texas, with all 12 of the children either represented or there.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Bob (Artie) Hatcher from Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Baker, Garland, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed (JoAnn) Henry, Bostroy, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Floy Baker, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Zola) Bushy, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baker, Mrs. Vera Lacky, Mrs. Daisy Riggan and Mrs. Maryon Snelson and family, from Big Spring.

Also attending were the grandchildren and great-grandchildren: Mr. Sonny Lacky, of Vista, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Watkins, Stevenville; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Baker (representing Johnny), Southlake, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Woody Baker, Arlington, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hodson and Dallas, also from Arlington; Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Long, Killeen, Tex.; Mr. Jimmy Baker (also representing Johnny), Arlington; Mrs. Ione Kay Noble, New Orleans, La.; and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Riggerman and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie McCusian of Big Spring.

Friends of the family of Mrs. Maryon MrcGowmen of Ranger and Mr. and Mrs. C.R. McCleren, Ft. Worth, were also present.

The "M.T." Baker Reunion is held every year on the third Sunday of September. This was first year, however, that each of the 12 branches of the family was there.

Prosecutors chipping away at conspiracy theory

Davis murder trial enters its sixth week

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — The Cullen Davis murder trial entered its sixth week today with prosecutors slowly but surely chipping away at a defense conspiracy theory.

"The only conspiracy in this case is in the minds of the defense," prosecutor Tim Curry snapped before summoning Police Detective Greg Miller as the state's 12th witness.

"This is a classic example of a society drug caper that went awry," countered Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, the crafty thunderbolt of the high-priced defense team.

The state contends Davis, 44, a millionaire Fort Worth industrialist, was the "man in black" who killed two and wounded two in a shooting spree last year at his $6 million mansion.

He is on trial for his life in the Aug. 2, 1976, slaying of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea.

The once carefree Davis is accused also of wounding his estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, and killing her live-in lover, 6-9 Stan Farr, 30.

Gus Gavrel, 22, who arrived at the mansion that night with a date, was left partially paralyzed by a bullet that remains lodged in his spine.

His girlfriend, Beverly Bass, 19, the third eyewitness to the shootings, escaped unharmed and is expected to testify for the state within the next few days. It has been nearly five weeks since Mrs. Davis, a striking blond socialite, took the stand and identified her husband as the midnight intruder who shot her in the chest and gunned down Farr.

Gavrel, hobbling into the courtroom on crutches, likewise pointed to Davis as the assailant who, without word or warning, shot him down on a walkway outside the mansion.

Although Miss Bass has not yet appeared, a Fort Worth policeman testified outside the presence of the jury that the young woman told him it was Davis who shot Gavrel.

District Court Judge George Dowlen, an affable, easy-going and widely respected bachelor jurist, must decide if he will permit the officer to repeat his testimony for the jury.

With millions of dollars and the palatial mansion at stake, the defense contends the three survivors had ample motive for a conspiracy against Davis.

The dark-haired defendant is reputedly the richest person ever to stand trial for murder in this country.

The defense intends to show that Farr and the surviving trio were involved in a narcotics deal that backfired violently and, as part of a cover-up, they seized on Davis as the assailant.

Sounding a little like Perry Mason, Haynes said the identity of the real killer will be revealed during the trial proceedings.

Prosecutors label the theory a "contrived defense."

The most lurid testimony came during the 13 days Mrs. Davis was on the stand and under withering cross-examination by Haynes, considered by some, including himself, to be Texas' top criminal trial lawyer.

In a relentless attempt at impeachment, Haynes by innuendo accused the jet set blond of converting the mansion into a sin-mill rife with drugs, booze and sexual hijinks.

Mrs. Davis conceded she "probably" is addicted to a prescription pain-killer called Percodan and that she shared her bedroom with at least two lovers after separating from Davis and suing him for divorce.

But she stuck by her basic story, angrily complaining outside the courtroom that "their only defense is to destroy me... they are treating this like a smutty divorce when in reality it's a murder."

The state has produced four witnesses who have corroborated her testimony that immediately after the shootings she identified

The detective said, however, no fingerprints were recovered from the bag. There has been little indication when the state will complete its case, but once called, it is unlikely Miss Bass will be released after several days of cross-examination.

Haynes said he has not yet decided whether he will put Davis on the stand.

The marathon murder trial, moved here from Fort Worth after a mis-trial last spring, began June 27. It took eight weeks to select the jury, which is sequestered in a downtown motel, and testimony did not begin until Aug. 22.

Defense lawyer Phil Burleson, an attorney involved in the eight-week murder trial of Jack Ruby in 1964, said he believes this already is the longest trial in Texas history.

Maddox suffers heart attack

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox was reported in critical condition after suffering a heart attack while working in his front yard.

Maddox, 61, was admitted Sunday to the intensive care unit of a Marietta, Ga., hospital north of Atlanta. "He's alert and oriented, talking to people," said a hospital spokeswoman.

An ambulance was called after Maddox complained the pain was so severe "he couldn't stand it any more," said his wife, Virginia.

Maddox was governor from 1966-70 and lieutenant governor from 1971-74.

White elected to major post

Texas Secretary of State Mark White has been elected president of the National Association of Secretaries of State.

White, who is currently the State's Chief Elections Officer, is the first Texan in the 60-year history of the organization to be elected president.

He is also the youngest Secretary of State in the group's history to serve in its highest office.

In his acceptance remarks, White called for restoration of public trust in our election process.

"I believe that candidates have a responsibility to start speaking to the real issues and quit double talking and soft soaping the voters," White said.

"I believe that candidates ought to be able to stand the test of full public scrutiny. There's no other way to restore public confidence in our election process," White said.

Sullivan joins Singing Cadets

COLLEGE STATION — David S. (Scott) Sullivan of Big Spring has been auditioned into the Singing Cadets at Texas A&M University.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy G. Sullivan, 110 E. 18th St.

An all-male glee club of national renown, the Singing Cadets furnishes the "Voice of Aggieland" in performances and concerts throughout the Southwest.

The group directed by Robert L. Boone has performed on national television, as U.S. "Ambassador for Friendship" to Romania in 1974 and in the White House.

A between-semester tour in Texas' Rio Grande Valley is planned for January along with other concerts and shows. The Cadets join forces with other campus groups Oct. 3 for a concert preceding the inauguration of Texas A&M's new president, Dr. Jarvis E. Miller, on Oct. 4.

Membership in the Singing Cadets is determined through audition with Boone and pianist-accompanist Mrs. Charlotte Ary. Until they become familiar with the organization and its procedures, new members are called buffos, after the comic part in opera.

A bass, Sullivan is a freshman applied mathematical science major at Texas A&M. He is a Big Spring High School graduate.

In the matter of Karen Ann Quinlan TV movie anything but gripping

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An oddly flat dramatization of an emotionally charged, widely publicized legal and moral case is on NBC tonight. It's a TV movie, "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan."

Brian Keith and Piper Laurie star as Joe and Julie Quinlan, parents of the young New Jersey woman who lapsed into a coma — and never came out of it — 2½ years ago after a few drinks at a friend's birthday celebration.

Doctors said her brain was hopelessly damaged. Her condition was deteriorating rapidly. Death seemed inevitable.

Her parents, devout Catholics, faced an agonizing decision: Should they let her die a natural death, tell the doctors to turn off the respirator that artificially kept her alive?

Their decision was widely debated in legal, medical and religious circles. It led to a landmark right-to-die court battle.

Tonight's retelling of that sad, difficult time for the Quinlans is a commendable effort in restraint, particularly in that we never see the girl in her latter stages of deterioration.

We do see fine work by Keith, Miss Laurie and David Huffman — he is cast as the Quinlans' young lawyer, Paul Armstrong, who took their case at great personal financial sacrifice.

Strong support also comes from David Spielberg as a doctor who, out of his own convictions, refused the Quinlans' plea to turn off the machine all though was the only thing keeping her alive.

And the script by Hal Sitowitz is remarkably low-key for such an easy-to-sensationalize story. Unfortunately, he does change some facts recalled by the Quinlans in their book, "Karen Ann."

In one scene, for example, a shyster lawyer sees Armstrong filing the first petition in the case and rushes to a phone to tip off a newspaper pal. Not so, according to the book.

It says Armstrong, on the advice of a prosecutor in the case, arranged to meet with three local reporters after filing the petition, the idea being to get the issues "properly interpreted."

The script also shows that Miss Quinlan, who was under care at St. Clare's Hospital in Denville, N.J., remained there — although her parents

College offers adult education courses

Education is now recognized as a life-long process that each person follows for personal enrichment or to build or refresh career skills. The Continuing Education program at Howard College fills these specialized educational needs for area residents by offering both avocational and vocational classes and community service programs.

Enrollment is open regardless of educational background and is accepted on a "first-come" basis when class size is limited. It takes only twelve students to begin a class.

Registration is easy. It may be accomplished by calling or coming to the Continuing Education Office. Instructors of these classes are chosen from leading businessmen and businesswomen, professional educators, and recognized sports and hobby enthusiasts.

Howard College awards Continuing Education Units (CEUs) for many of the courses. The CEU is a nationally recognized standard unit of measurement, officially defined as ten contact hours of participation in an organized continuing education adult or extension experience under responsible sponsorship, capable direction and qualified instruction. All CEU awards are recorded on a transcript that is permanent, confidential, and transferable upon your authorization.

Fees charged for courses are based on the actual costs of teaching that course and the number of persons who can reasonably be expected to enroll. That means a minimum number of students must enroll for each class. Classes in which minimum enrollment requirements are not met, and which therefore, would be taught at a financial loss, will be cancelled. The cancellation decision is made at the first class. Course fees received up to that time of cancellation will be refunded in full.

Some of the courses that will be offered in the near future are:

CROQUET — Instructor: Susan King. Date: October 13 through November 12, 1977. Place: Art Building. Fee: $12.00.

STAINED GLASS — Instructor: Scott Long. Date: October 17 through November 21, 1977. Place: Art Building. Fee: $15.00.

Answer: What the man who slept through a political speech was - A 'BULL' DOZER

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 27, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you could be restless and a change of scenery now would be wise. Rely more on your instincts now for best results. Avoid acting in a forceful manner. Follow your hunches.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study a new course of activity well before you embark upon it. Take no chances with your reputation at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your hunches and find the right way to have increased harmony with others. Consult business expert for advice you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know better what is expected of you by associates and then you can deal with them more equitably. Avoid a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A higher-up understands your needs and will give you the backing you need. Take no chances with one who is tricky.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to gain more favor than usual where associates are concerned. Make the evening a charming one with persons you like.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to what a co-worker has to suggest for greater mutual success. Take no chances with your credit at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in recreations of a lofty nature and increase your happiness. Find the best way to handle routine duties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take health treatments that will make you stronger and ready for big tasks ahead. Take time to improve your surroundings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your creativity is high and you can now accomplish a great deal. A good day to repay social obligations. Be happy.

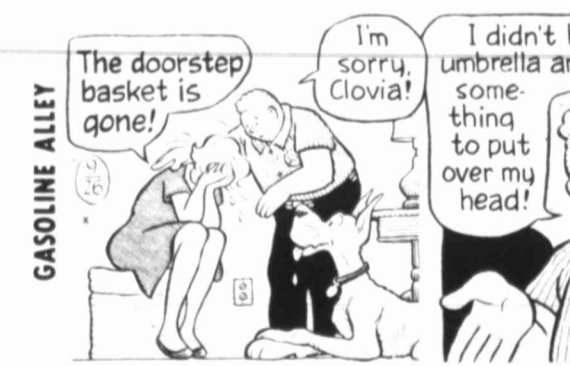

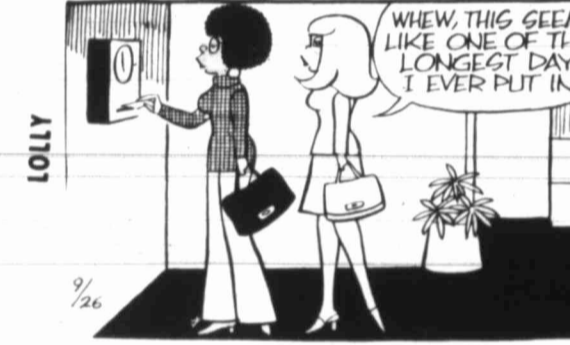

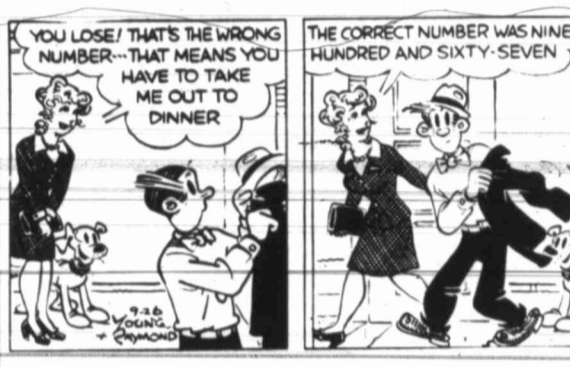

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study conditions at home carefully and then make necessary changes. Do those things that please family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Obtain important data you need in order to operate more intelligently with your associates. Take no risks with your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use a different tack where some property matter is concerned and get excellent results. Do those things that will please kin.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be alert to opportunities but is likely to jump from one to another and never complete any. Teach to finish what is started and then this becomes a most successful chart since the ability to perform is remarkable.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
