One Mile Lake safe for now

City won't drain lake

The city has given up the attempt to drain One Mile Lake, at least for now. "The council gave permission to amend our request for funds from HUD (The Department of Housing and Urban Development) for Aid to Community Development," said Harry Nagel, city manager. "The application will specify only the dredging of Beals Creek and will not include the draining of One Mile Lake," he added. Although the request to drain the lake has been dropped for now, the project may receive future consideration, according to Nagel. The decision to drop the drainage project was made during closed session because the city "has been threatened with litigation," according to the city manager. The litigation to which he referred is a possible injunction against the project which local environmentalists had threatened if the city attempted to go ahead with the drainage of the lake. Why was the project dropped?

"Because we have to get this dredging project under way, and get it done quickly. The so-called environmentalists objected to draining the lake and managed to hold us up. We have to get going to alleviate the flood problem out there," said Nagel.

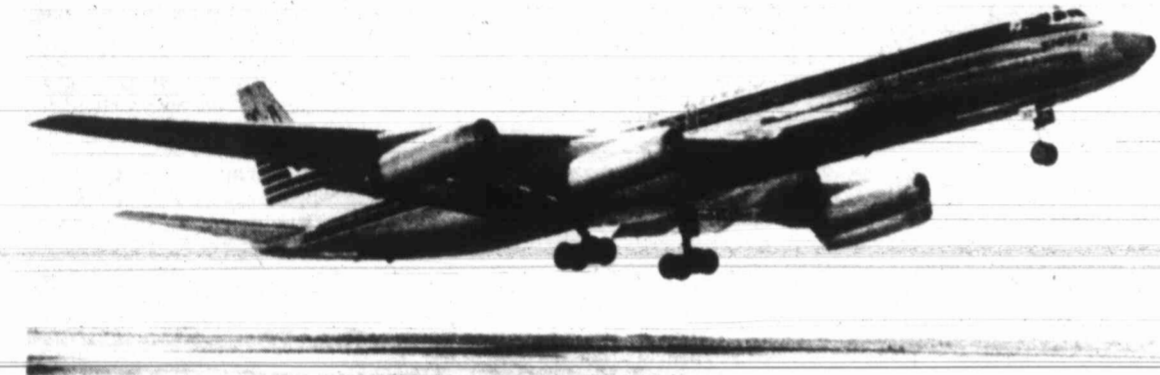

It's hot but not a record

Big Spring must be just a little bit hotter than other towns in West Texas. That's the only reason why the 103 degrees recorded here Monday was a record almost everywhere else, but fell one degree short here.

Unfortunately for ribbon breakers, a sultry day in 1953 peaked at 104 degrees. So Big Springers are getting all the heat with none of the reassurance that this is freak weather and will soon go away.

103 is a good mark this year, but on August 23 the mercury bubbled up to 105.

The hot weather is expected to continue, but relief in the cool evenings is expected to keep up its end, too.

PLANE CRASHES IN FLAMES — This is a 1969 file photo of a Japan Airlines DC8. Malaysian police said Tuesday that a jetliner crashed in flames on the outskirts of Kuala Lumpur, the capital. The crash was reported shortly after Japan Airlines said one of its DC8s with 79 persons aboard was missing on a flight from Hong Kong to Kuala Lumpur.

Illegals face fear of deportation

Editor's note: Since President Carter suggested a softening of the United States' stance against illegal immigrants, Mexican aliens have become a sore issue in Texas. This is the second of a four-part series examining the situation of Mexican nationals in Big Spring.

By BOB BURTON

For Jasinta, there is still fear, although she has been in Big Spring for seven years. As a Mexican national without papers, she still deals with institutions in this country. The three she has had most dealings with are the school district, the Border Patrol and the federal government.

Jasinta would not go into detail about how she obtained a social security card. She said she "applied for it at the Post Office and got it" within two weeks of her arrival in this country. Perhaps more remarkable is that she regularly pays her income tax, under her own name, to Uncle Sam.

"I don't know how they've got it," she said, "but they do. I've been paying income tax since I got here, and I have the returns to prove it."

Jasinta has changed jobs several times since her first employment. Where she first worked 17 hours a day, six days a week for $25 from a lunch counter operation, she now works from 5 a.m. to 4 p.m. in a business. She gets, she maintains, minimum wage. She makes $4,500 per year and she gets a refund on her tax return.

"If Mexico had help for widows or divorcees, I probably wouldn't have come," she repeats, "but since I have been here I have always had a job. My employers have always known I had no papers. I have never taken welfare."

"A lot of people think we come over here to take people's jobs, but I place myself above the American worker. I work hard, without complaining, and I take no help from nobody. A lot of these Americans complain after they work for a day or two. I have been working since I got here."

She has worked at several restaurants in Big Spring, earning about $35 per week, at one time holding down two back-to-back waitressing jobs for almost two months before quitting "because it got too heavy."

She does not know how her employer reports her on his tax form, but she receives her W2 forms at the end of each year. From a federal point of view, she is as much a part of the tax system as any citizen.

She has been stopped several times by the Border Patrol. "Each time has been the same officer," she recalls. "The first time I was on my way home from work. He stopped me after asking for me by my name and my kid's names where I worked. I had been reported."

"I was scared and I cried. I had been in this country for over three years. The Border Patrol said he wouldn't take me, he talked to me for ten minutes. Then he gave me a 30-day permit and an address in Dallas to write to for a permit."

"I wrote and they never answered, but I didn't leave."

Kermit McKnight, patrol agent in charge of the Big Spring branch of the Border Patrol, verified that a 30-day permit is normal procedure for illegals caught in the United States with families. "It gives them a chance to write to Dallas for an adjustment-of-status hearing before a judge, or to get ready to go back to Mexico."

"The second time I was caught," recalls Jasinta, "I was going to the police station on some other business. When I was there, the same Border Patrol spotted me. He asked me if I had got my papers yet. I said no, and he gave me another 30-day permit and brought me home."

"The third time, I was again coming home from work. It was the same man. He knew me by then. He drove past me, then turned back and asked me if I had my papers yet. I said no, I had no money. He said get in, and he filled out another permit for 12 days. He said he was trying to help, but after 12 days I would have to leave the country. I told him I had no money. Again I didn't leave. That was last year."

Jasinta was stopped yet again by the same Border Patrol agent within the last few months. The agent queried her again about her papers and took her to the immigration office. She told him she was still trying to save some money. He gave her a five-day permit and released her.

Jasinta says she doesn't know what it takes to become a citizen. "But I won't go back until they take me," she vows. "And even if I go, my children will stay. They have a right because of how long they have been here."

Jasinta's three children have been enrolled in the public school system here since she arrived. "I have kept my children in school," she said, as if that were her greatest achievement in this country. "I came because they could not get a good education in Mexico," she said at a different time.

She enrolled her children in the public school system, she says, by using their Mexican birth certificates.

"They knew that my children were Mexican," she said, "but they accepted them. My children know they are not U.S. citizens."

But Jasinta is not as worried now, because, she says, "One of my children told a school official that he was a Mexican citizen, and the official said not to worry, that my child had been here long enough that they probably wouldn't send him back."

Jasinta said that her children have met one or two other Mexican nationals in their years in the public schools, but that she herself has met only one other such person. "She had only been here a year," she remembers, "but the number of illegal Mexicans here is more than people think."

Jasinta and her children attribute their success in Big Spring to God. "He has helped me through some hard times," she says. "But possibly another reason for her success is her honesty. At each meeting between Jasinta and the United States system, she has not hidden that she is illegal in this country. And at each meeting, the system has chosen to be generous with her."

"For me," she said of crossing the border, "it was different. I had small children and that made it tougher." She does not think the border should be thrown open to any Mexican who wants to cross. "We know we can cross," she states simply, "if we do it, we do it."

But she wants, very badly, to be a citizen of this country. When President Jimmy Carter's plan for amnesty was brought up, she smiled instantly.

"Yes, I would take that," she said.

Next: The Border Patrol's point of view.

THE ROAD BACK — These illegal aliens are climbing on the bus for home, for some an unwanted homecoming. They are some of the 250 illegal aliens the Border Patrol offices estimate they take out of a ten-county area around Big Spring every month. Border Patrolman R.H. Brito looks on at right. Some of them will be back in the United States soon, some will be back in the Big Spring area within two or three days.

New ambulance service may locate here soon

A new ambulance service may locate in Big Spring soon.

The El Paso Ambulance Company made first official contact with City Council at today's regular meeting. A formal request for a permit to operate in the city may be submitted at the next meeting of the council.

"I would like some time to study the city before we submit for service. But it seems that with a city this size the (ambulance) runs would average about four a day, and we could handle that easily," said David Tellez, company president.

According to Tellez, he was approached first by the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital, and entered into contract for ambulance service there. When he learned that in order to fulfill the contract he would have to relocate part of his business here, he decided to look into a contract with the city.

"I estimate that we would need two ambulances to cover the VA Hospital, and four to cover the city. I would hope to bring my drivers from El Paso, and hire local EMTs (Emergency Medical Technicians)," said Tellez.

The ambulance company, which has operated for seven years in El Paso, recently applied for Emergency Medical System certification in that city. The company would also seek certification here, according to Tellez.

Ambulances used by the company are fully-equipped Ford modular vans. The staff of El Paso includes a number of trained paramedics and will include 15 Emergency Medical Technicians within a month, according to Patrick Spencer, El Paso paramedic.

The second and final reading of an ordinance requesting a zone change for property owned by Keith Bristow and David Terry was passed unanimously at the meeting. Just over an acre of land off of FM 700 behind the Coronado Apartments will be rezoned from Single Family Residential to Light Commercial to accommodate a skateboard park.

A score of citizens, mostly juveniles, came prepared to speak out on the ordinance. But when the motion was opened for discussion, no one came forward.

The motion passed, and the citizens filed quietly from the council chambers.

"There is a possibility that the action of the council will be challenged. I have talked with one of my clients, but a course of action has not been decided upon at this time," said R.H. Weaver, local attorney representing those who oppose the zone change.

Council members authorized Mayor Wade Choate to enter into a lease agreement with the Army Corps of Engineers on various buildings at Webb AFB. According to Harry Nagel, city manager, the agreement will involve 12 to 15 buildings which may be used by industry in the near future.

"This is just a preliminary request. When the time comes, it will come before the council again. But right now we can't release the names of these prospects. It is a bit premature," he said.

The council also authorized the mayor to submit applications to the Economic Development Administration for development and implementation grant funding.

"What we are asking for comes to about $4 or $5 million, and that won't all be funded during the year. So we have set up priority projects for funding," said Nagel.

The project to improve the existing sewer plant was named as first priority. The city will request $1,750,000 from the EDA for this project.

Other priority projects include the modernization and improvement of the railroad spur on Webb AFB, paving and fencing areas on the base, utility relocation, the conversion of the communications building on the base, and the modernization of the amphitheater there.

The council also adopted a minimum standards program for demolition projects in the city. This was the second reading of an ordinance amending the city code concerning substantial buildings in Big Spring.

"We have used what is almost an identical ordinance as that used in Dallas," said Nagel.

In other business, council members:

—passed the second and final reading of an ordinance concerning land use and control measures of flood prone areas of the city.

—approved the minutes of a meeting of the Tourist Development Council for Sept. 15.

—approved a request for a quit claim deed on a lot in the East Park Addition.

—passed a second and final reading of an ordinance requesting a zone change for Single Family Residential to Two Family for the construction of a duplex apartment at the corner of 18th and Goliad.

Kidnaping suspect surrenders

James Timothy Young, the man wanted for the October 30, 1974 kidnaping of Mrs. Robert Pendleton in Midland, turned himself in to Big Spring Police Captain Jim McCain at 10:23 a.m. Monday.

Young was charged with aggravated kidnaping in Midland on Nov. 29, 1976, under the authority of Justice of the Peace Robert Pine. At that time Young was stationed with the U.S. Air Force in Rome, Italy, and has just returned from his tour of duty.

Young was escorted from Big Spring to Midland by Detective Ron Arron of the Midland Police Department, after bond was set by Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena at $10,000.

Offbeat: Students get interested

BARCO, N.C. (AP) — A graphic arts teacher printed a dollar bill on a copier to try to get his high school students interested in printing. He succeeded too well.

Crisp, black and white $1 bills suddenly sprouted around Currituck County High School. And eight of them turned up in an automatic self-service gas station machine, surprising the owner, who didn't know his machine was color blind.

"We would like to get this counterfeit money back before too many kids get themselves in trouble not realizing what they are doing," Sheriff Norman Newbern said Thursday.

The word went out quickly from principal Jimmy Webb that the fake money had better be turned in. "We got exceptional cooperation from the students right away," Webb said. Nearly $70 worth was turned in by 37 students.

Dallas coed drowns

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A 19-year-old college coed drowned late Monday night when she fell into an open storm drain after heavy rains pelted Springfield for just over an hour.

Springfield police identified the victim as Lynne Ann Dedrick, a Baptist Bible College freshman from Dallas.

No other deaths were immediately reported as a result of the flooding, which was spurred by up to three inches of rain in some areas of the city.

Officer Gerald Dove, who recovered the woman's body, said Miss Dedrick and another woman were crossing a low spot between two dormitories on the campus when they both fell into a partially open storm drain and were swept underneath a road to a spot 50 to 75 yards away.

The other woman, Deboah Marie Thomas, 20, of Haines City, Fla., was treated for cuts and possible head injuries at a local hospital.

The rain hit the city about 11 p.m. and continued just past midnight, leaving cars stranded and homes flooded. Flood warnings for the early morning hours were issued for Springfield, and the National Weather Service was predicting more rain for the area.

Numerous streets were closed after the sudden cloudburst, and windows were knocked out of the top floor of a dormitory on the Southwest Missouri State University campus.

A Southwest Baptist College student in Bolivar, Mo., located north of Springfield, was injured when lightning struck a tree, causing it to crash through a window of her home.

Miss Dedrick was found against a fence with her head under water, according to Dove. He said she had apparently been knocked unconscious when she was swept into the drain which runs under the street.

Miss Thomas told police she she didn't know what had happened to her until she emerged from the drain on the other side of the road.

Students on the campus saw the incident and reported it to police shortly after 11 p.m.

Mentally ill standard

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled today that the evidentiary standard for commitment of mentally ill persons is a preponderance of the evidence — the greater weight of the evidence.

The court affirmed the commitment of Dan Turner of Travis County.

An Austin district court judge told a jury it could not commit Turner unless it found the state had met its burden of proof on his incompetency with "clear and convincing evidence."

The jury made that finding.

A civil appeals court reversed the case, saying the standard is "beyond a reasonable doubt."

The supreme court said this conflicted with a decision by another civil appeals court which held the standard to be "preponderance of the evidence."

The high court resolved the conflict by endorsing the standard approved by the second appeals court.

It noted that in the Turner case the jury had determined his incompetency by an even higher standard, so the result was not changed. It reversed the civil appeals judgment and affirmed that of the trial court.

Arson suspected after Blue Moon Lounge burns

The Blue Moon Lounge, 303 N. Lancaster is no more after flames believed set by arsonists consumed the building in the early hours of today.

According to Fire Chief Alvie Harrison, the first call received at the fire department came in at 12:55 a.m. today, when flames had already come through the roof of the two-story building.

The fire, believed to have been started in the vacant part of the building, took two pumps, a snorkel truck, two other booster trucks, and 25 to 30 firemen to put out.

The Blue Moon Lounge was located just one block away from the Dreamland Hotel which burned to the ground a short time ago. Arson was also suspected in that blaze.

Chief Harrison said that this form of urban renewal was dangerous, and that it was a good thing the wind was not blowing this morning, and that there was no one trapped inside the building.

Firemen will be watching the ruins all day today to make sure no hot spots develop into flames which could cause another serious situation.

LOUNGE BURNS — Approximately 30 firemen and five fire trucks fought flames at what used to be the Blue Moon Lounge early this morning after arsonists started the fire in a vacant part of the building.

PROPOSED GAS TRANSPORTATION SYSTEMS

HE BROUGHT A MAP — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger puffs his pipe during testimony before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee Monday in Washington. Schlesinger used the map behind him to show proposed routes for natural gas pipelines.

Volcano water hot issue

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A natural gas company hopes to turn volcanic Mt. Hood into a virtual hot water faucet that eventually may supply the entire city of Portland.

Northwest Natural Gas Co. said its plan would provide a "renewable and essentially inexhaustible" reservoir of hot water.

A projected five years of research and construction begins Thursday with drilling on two small exploratory wells designed to test geologists' belief that hot water is available in a 10,000-acre area 43 miles from Portland. The initial goal is to supply factories.

But "there's certainly a possibility of finding enough hot water ... to heat the whole city of Portland if it becomes economically feasible," said consulting geologist John Hook. The company believes it can use the geothermal method to deliver water at 150 degrees Fahrenheit and hotter.

The test wells are on federal land and the utility must get permission from the U.S. Forest Service to develop the geothermal system. Company officials say the utility is applying for a lease.

Water from artesian springs and melting snow is heated when it drifts near the whitehot core of Mt. Hood, said Hook.

Initially, the project would ship hot water through a pipeline to factories about 43 miles west of Mt. Hood in the Oregon Cascades, NWG vice president Paul Howe Sr. told a news conference Monday. It might also be diverted to heat private homes along the route of the buried pipeline, he said.

Preliminary results on the test wells should be available within about two weeks, Howe said.

If results are favorable, Howe said, the project would cost about $50 million to complete.

Steam from geothermal reservoirs is currently generating electricity in California, Italy, Mexico and elsewhere.

Tower defends oil profits

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., has asked President Carter to release to the public a report which Tower says shows profits of the 40 largest oil companies are no more than those of other manufacturers.

In a statement released Monday in Washington, Tower said the report by the Federal Energy Administration led to a conclusion that returns of oil companies correspond, in general, fairly closely to non-oil manufacturing groups.

"I think it is imperative that all pertinent information available be provided, not only to the Congress, but the public as well," Tower said.

"Much has been written about 'oil company profits' which would make a report by the federal government most meaningful in arriving at objective conclusions as we debate such issues as oil and natural gas pricing measures."

Tower quoted a draft of the report as saying "It appears that a choice may have been made between allowing higher profits or probably seeing lower capital expenditures for privately financed energy development efforts."

"The alternative will be increased federal participation in energy development by subsidy or direct operational participation," the draft was quoted as saying.

Tower there is indication in the report that many oil companies may be approaching their safe debt limit.

"Unattributed but probably informed comments from the investment community have indicated a belief debt ratios about 30 per cent have become dangerously close to the maximum attainable without impairment of credit standings," Tower quoted the report as saying. "Many smaller companies have already exceeded their maximum 'safe' rate."

Automated Controls and electrical firms are working around the clock to get the gins into high gear.

Her selection was only part of a week's activities which saluted King Cotton in Dawson County.

The county on two occasions has been the top producing cotton county in the United States and the activities included a style show, speakers for the farmers and special displays and contests.

The most original display award went to Zane's Ltd. while the "most representative of the industry" went to McCall's downtown store.

The Vogue's window was named "best commercial display" and Baldwin's was named "best woman's display." Fontone's was "most educational" and Collins "most colorful."

Cowboy Supply won the award for "best overall."

In the meantime, the farmers kept stripping and harvesting cotton. The county has already baled close to 20,000 bales and anticipate over 200,000 this cotton season.

The gins have already handled more bales than they had by the first week of November in 1976. The early crop is creating some problems for ginners who anticipated at least another month to get ready for the CALLS TRADE DEFICIT UNACCEPTABLE—U.S. Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps talks with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda today before a closed-door meeting at his official residence in Tokyo. In Japan for a two-day visit to discuss fishery and trade issues, Kreps said today the U.S. deficit in trade with Japan is "unacceptable, both economically and politically." She is to leave for South Korea on Wednesday.

Sex ed needed at West Point

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's military academy at West Point should offer new courses on ethics and sex education, produce winning football teams, and develop a sense of humor, a Pentagon study says.

The 175-year-old Army institution is suffering from poor morale, a lack of supervision and planning, overburdened cadets, resistance to change and even a pervasive lack of humor, according to the 200-page report released today.

These problems must be solved if the academy is to regain lost excellence and recover from last year's cadet cheating scandal, said the report, drawn up by a study group headed by three generals.

The study said there was "a slackening of the pursuit of excellence" that "appears everywhere in cadet life but is most troubling in the academic program."

"Marginal scholastic performances do not preclude graduation," the report said, adding that "even the frequency of success on the playing fields has declined. There is a pervasive need to set and enforce standards in all aspects of cadet experience."

The report also urged retention of the controversial honor system and the "non-tolerance" clause that requires cadets to report violations of the honor code. But the study said slight infractions should not be punished by expulsion.

A total of 152 students left the academy because of the 1976 cheating scandal, which involved a routine homework assignment in a computer course called Electrical Engineering 304.

The academy offered to reinstate 105 of those cadets, and 98 of them returned this past summer and began regular classes three weeks ago. The academy has 4,475 cadets, including 177 women.

SWEDISH PRINCESS CHRISTENED—Sweden's Queen Silvia holds her first-born child as King Carl XVI Gustaf looks on from behind the baptismal font prior to the baby's christening today as Princess Victoria Ingrid Alice Desirée at the Chapel Royal in Stockholm. Seated behind the royal family are Queen Silvia's parents Walther and Alice Sommerlath. Some 700 guests, including the entire Swedish government, were present for the ceremony.

Special Adult Ed series set at HC

The Howard College Adult Education program will be offering a series of presentations which will be open to participants in the program and to all members of the community.

Topics will include issues of public concern, current interest, and matters which are personally relevant to family living. The presentations will be informal talks given by members of our community who have expertise in the area of discussion.

On Tuesday, October 4th at 7:30 p.m. in the Howard College Student Union Building in the Tumbleweed Room, the first topic of the series will be presented. The

The bill's author, Rep. Dale E. Kildee, D-Mich., says thousands of boys and girls — some as young as three years old — are being sexually exploited in films and magazines.

"Just as pernicious as the sweat shops in the early part of the century which left physical scars are the modern-day conditions which leave psychic scars," Kildee said Monday before the 375-12 House vote in favor of the bill.

The report recommended a sex education program "that would be straightforward, mature and sufficiently broad to encompass physiology, reproduction, contraception, hygiene and responsibility."

It also suggested upgrading intercollegiate athletics on a campus that was once famed for its football teams.

Ex-officer says he thought prisoner jumped into bayou

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A former Houston policeman charged with the drowning death of a Mexican-American laborer last May returns to the witness stand today after telling a state court Monday that he thought the man jumped into Buffalo Bayou in an escape attempt.

Terry Denson, charged along with another former Houston officer, Stephen Orlando, said he "felt real bad" about the death of Joe Campos Torres in testimony Monday.

Denson said he thought Torres leaped from a 16-foot wall into the bayou because, "He probably thought it was a good time to make his escape or prove to policemen around there that he could escape."

Asked by prosecutor Ted Poe if he thought a man wearing combat boots, fully dressed, and drunk could survive a leap from that height and swim away, Denson said he thought he could if the man had received (U.S. Army) Ranger training.

Denson said Torres told him and other officers he was a former Ranger and "knew karate."

Denson has been singled out in testimony as the man who pushed Campos Torres into the bayou.

He described how he and other officers arrested Torres and then took him to the bayou "to talk to him, reason with him."

Witnesses, including some of the dismissed officers, have testified that Campos Torres was arrested during a bar disturbance, beaten and kicked by police, and then taken to a police station. At the station, a sergeant refused to admit him and ordered him taken to a hospital for treatment. Witnesses testified that Campos Torres was taken instead back to the bayou where he drowned.

Campos Torres' body was found in the bayou May 8. Five officers were dismissed from the Houston force as a result of the investigation into Campos Torres' death and Denson, 27, and Orlando, 21, were charged with the slaying.

He said that he was holding Campos Torres by the arm at the edge of the water when he thought that the prisoner reached for his arm and he pulled back. "He was fully facing me and he jumped off into the water," Denson said.

Weather — Unseasonably hot across Texas

Temperatures were expected to climb as high as 105 degrees today as unseasonably hot weather continued across Texas.

Forecasters said readings by mid-afternoon might reach as high as 105 degrees at some locations in Southwest and Central Texas. Highs generally were expected to be in the 90s with several areas expected to break the 100-degree mark again.

Texans have not even been able to gain much relief from the searing heat at night as temperatures early today (4 a.m.) were in the 70s and 80s. Even the mountains of Southwest Texas, generally the coolest point in the state during the summer and fall, had readings above 75 degrees a few hours before sunrise.

There was some cloud cover over central and western portions of the state early today, but not even the clouds were expected to shield Texans

Hustle 3 — Fair share time

Well, it's that time of the year again. It's fall, fair time and fair share time. It's time to support one of our most important activities — our United Way Campaign.

This organization supports Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, Boys Club and numerous other worthy programs.

If we meet 50 per cent of our goal, doesn't that mean that we only "Half Care"? There should be a lot of pride connected with meeting that goal.

If you gave one hour's pay per month or pledged to give that much — you show that you really do care. Congratulations!

If you haven't pledged your part, then you hold the key to a successful campaign. Why don't you use that key?

The kids need your fair share — Please pledge your hour's pay — today — don't delay — the United Way is the only way you can make it work.

They say that if you can recognize the problem, you've got it half whipped. Well then, that should be good news... because we do have a problem... it's identifiable and we desperately need to whip it. It's not a new problem and it's really quite a basic one. The diminishing supply can not keep up with an ever increasing demand. And what supply is available becomes unbelievably valuable. In some cases a substitute can be found — in others, there is no substitute.

So where does that leave us? I guess we could apply another old saying — "Make the most of what you have." To me that means don't waste, get full value from what's available, find ways to reuse, economize, save and another good work... innovate... use initiative and imagination to come up with better ways of doing things which will require less expenditure of a given resource.

Sounds like a pretty simple solution doesn't it? It is... but it's also pretty difficult to get people to face up to it till there's a real crisis. Just knowing there's a threat over our well being isn't enough. There is a shortage and it's going to get worse... only maybe it won't happen in this part of the country or if it does, it won't happen to us, or we've been through this before.

County tables action on firefighters fund

The Howard County Commissioners Court Monday inspected the county jail, took bids on typewriters for the District Attorney's office, and tabled action on a Firefighter Relief and Retirement Fund Bill.

The court tabled until October any action on the Senate Bill 411. The bill would create a fund at the cost of $12 per month per firefighter and would place additional restrictions on the departments. The county must resolve to turn down the bill before the end of October if it is not to become law.

In other action, the Commissioners accepted bids of $630 from IBM for a typewriter for the County Agents office, $721.65 for the District Attorney's office typewriter, and $137.15 from the County Attorney's adding machine. They were the only bids submitted.

The commissioner also inspected the screens in the county jail and agreed to use Road and Bridge Department manpower to repair the problem.

They approved the appointment of Loyce Belew as part-time employee for the Justice of the Peace Office, Precinct 1, Place 2.

CRMWD approves Scottish Rite Masons set Feast of Tishri

A 1978 budget calling for revenues of $7,890,974 was approved Tuesday morning at a meeting of the Colorado River Municipal Water District directors.

Under the budget, revenues will show a gain of $285,322, or 3.84 per cent. All but $88,000 in recreation revenues would come from sale of water.

Expenditures of $6,612,814 would be $32,800 more than the current year, or up 4.73 per cent. It is anticipated that $298,555 of the increase will be in higher energy costs, which were budgeted for $1,603,910. Higher payroll totals, $596,340 up $39,747 from this year, more than account for the balance of the budget increase. Other significant gains are $11,000 more for water royalties, $18,000 more for maintenance materials and supplies, $17,800 more in employe benefits. Debt service is set for $3,651,887, down $78,508 because of less interest requirements. Recreation allocations are down by $10,000, and the $1,278,160 set aside for net revenue to be transferred to indented funds such as reserve, debt investment, contingency and operation and extension, is down by $27,478.

Capital expenditures of $74,500, which are not part of the budget, were earmarked for eight units of rolling stock from cars to crawler tractor with front-end loader.

UW agencies serve most of us

You may think that the United Way campaign is for charities and has nothing to do with you.

Not so, as United Way Campaign Chairman Charles Beil so ably demonstrated last week at the kickoff luncheon.

After the 11-member agencies of United Way had explained their services to the 150 persons present in the Settles Hotel meeting, Beil asked who had not been in a United Way agency in the last 60 to 90 days.

Only a handful of people had not had some contact with the services which the United Way drive helps to support in the last couple of months.

That the 11 agencies of the Howard County United Way so touch our daily lives is the best reason I can imagine for supporting and contributing to the campaign.

We are not talking about government welfare programs. We are not talking about charities where the vast majority of the money is spent far, far away from Big Spring.

WE ARE TALKING about supporting local organizations that help local people — at home, where charity is supposed to begin.

We are talking about supporting the Big Spring Boys' Club that provides fun and guidance for the boys in our community — right down there on 3rd Street.

We are talking about the Dora Roberts Rehab Center which helps persons in the Big Spring area who are trying to learn to walk, or to talk, or to hear, or to work.

We are talking about West Side Community Center which provides services for persons in the lower income west side of our town. The day care service for children there is essential for many of our community's families.

We are talking about our two YMCAs which involve so many Big Spring youths and families and so enrich Big Spring life.

We are talking about Family Service Center, an agency which helps to strengthen the most essential bond in our society, the family, and we're talking about Planned Parenthood which works to make sure that every child born in Big Spring is a wanted one.

We are talking about the Salvation Army, which helps those in our town who have nowhere else to turn.

We are talking about supporting Boys Scouts and Girl Scouts with the hundreds of youngsters which they involve.

YOU CANNOT live in Big Spring and not have your life affected by the organization which the United Way helps to support.

The United Way must have $130,000 raised this fall if these agencies are to continue enhancing the lives of Big Spring. The only way this money can be raised is if people in Big Spring are willing to dig into their pockets and give a fair share.

As Beil noted to United Way workers and civic club members, we do not want our community to be without any of the services these agencies provide.

The Howard County United Way needs your help this year. Don't let our community down.

After 'Star Wars'

Around the rim

Troy Bryant

"Star Wars," the movie which fished 20th Century Fox out of the financial doldrums, is changing what you see on television, how future science fiction movies will be marketed and what kind of bubble gum cards you can buy.

The box office take on the movie topped $100,000,000 last month, and many other companies are getting ready to capitalize on its popularity.

Some plans being made include: —ABC television is readying a second season replacement tentatively called "Star Worlds."

—Paramount television plans new episodes of "Star Trek" for its own "fourth network" hookup starting next spring, although it isn't saying how many of the original stars will return.

—King Features is reporting new interest in "Flash Gordon," the original interplanetary adventure, and is offering the film either as an entity or in 12-chapter serial form. Besides being carried in 300 newspapers in comic strip form, the syndicate has sold NBC on an animated prime time movie for fall 1978 and on a Saturday morning series, both based on "Flash Gordon."

—Columbia Pictures, which had been expecting strong tie-ins for its Christmas science fiction movie, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," is even more bullish on the movie's prospects. —A batch of science fiction outer space theatrical movies are in the works.

—Texas Instruments is going to market a digital "Star Wars" wrist watch.

—Continental Baking Co. (Wonder Bread) is planning to put 100,000 "Star Wars" trading cards in its bread packages.

—Kenner is offering a "Star Wars" club membership for Christmas which includes a membership card and a certificate. The certificate can later be traded for the first set of "Star Wars" figures, which won't be ready for Christmas.

—Several other companies have been licensed to produce such "Star Wars" items as Halloween costumes, vinyl wading pools, lunch boxes, posters, buttons, model flying rockets, bubble gum cards, children's socks, towels, sheets, bedspreads, and sleeping bags.

All of that is on top of 20th Century's own plans to produce a sequel to "Star Wars" and the paperback sequels from Ballantine.

The movie is the only one I've ever thought good enough to see twice and I am an avid fan of science fiction, so most of the after effects of "Star Wars" sound promising to me.

However, I don't think I can stomach any "Star Wars" dolls or toys.

CARTER ADDRESSES speaks to a general Monetary Fund Monday session chairman of finance.

Carter after Lance

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Minutes after the President glanced at his watch and cut off the inquisitorial flood of questions at Wednesday evening's press conference, a politically astute aide commented that the press, having disposed of Bert Lance, had a new target: Jimmy Carter.

If so, it is a weakened Jimmy Carter. After violating his impossibly high standards by sticking with Lance so long, he cut him loose just as Lance was gaining popular support. Besides managing to get the worst of both worlds in the Lance affair, the President has strengthened the widespread impression that even his most strongly held convictions are susceptible to change under pressure.

Thus, the end of the Lance affair opens the first serious time of troubles for the Carter presidency. Economic omens are grim, the Senate is ripping the President's energy program to shreds and foreign policy is becalmed. At such a point, Mr. Carter scarcely needs the capital's remorseless corps of investigative reporters trying to prove a presidential cover-up on Lance.

The last days of Lance's tenure as budget director reflect the mood of presidential vulnerability that is now at the heart of Mr. Carter's problems. The President is described as shifting back and forth last weekend on the question of whether his closest friend and adviser should go.

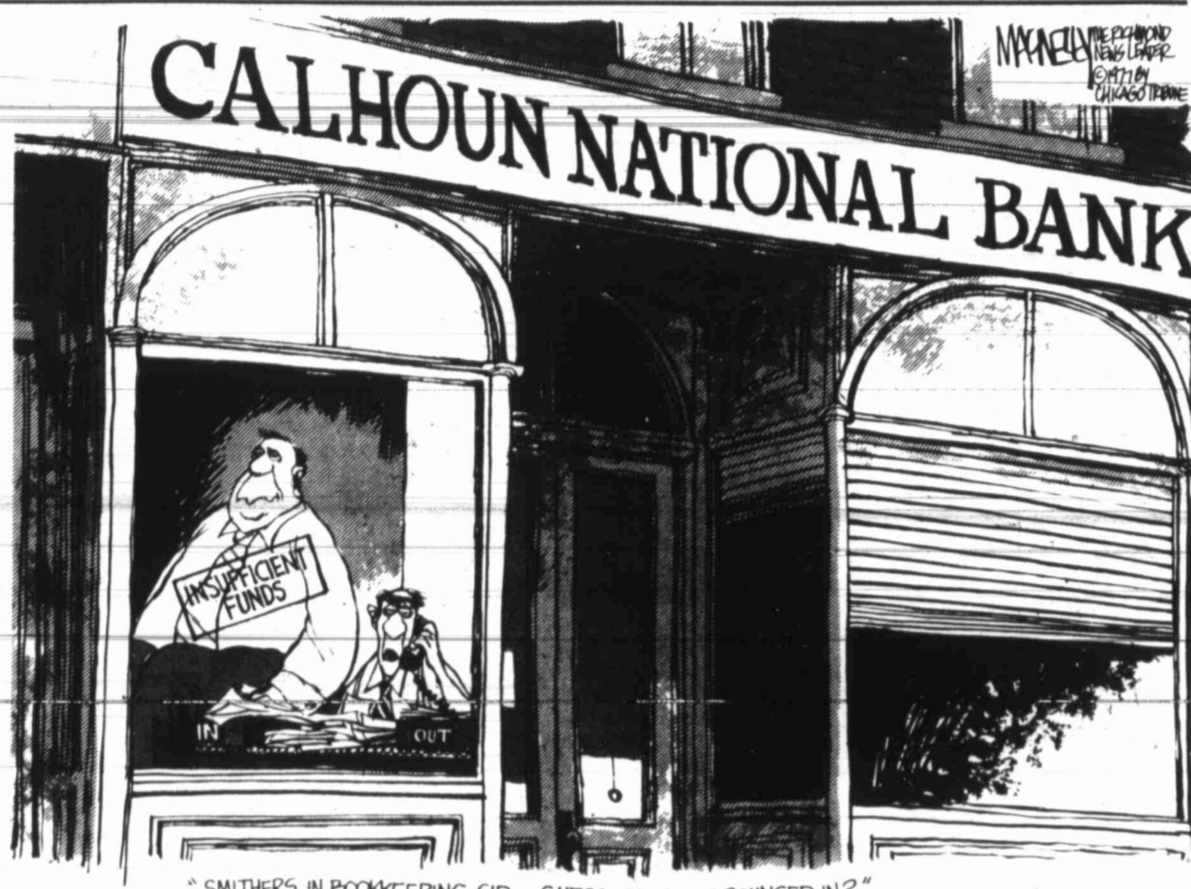

As late as Monday, Lance himself seemed optimistic and determined to fight it out. What worried Lance even more than continued sniping from media and congressional critics was his personal financial squeeze — especially how to pay the October interest on his huge Chicago bank loan.

But Lance is politically sensitive enough to perceive the climate at the White House. Although his opening statement to the Senate committee Sept. 15 encouraged some presidential aides to think Lance might yet be saved, the cross-examination of Sept. 16 and 17 extinguished all hope. Whatever Mr. Carter's vacillations, everybody else at the White House was convinced Lance had to go as the week of Sept. 19 began.

But the Senate hearings, while invaluable for public restoration of Lance's self-respect, made Mr. Carter's position more difficult. One presidential adviser told Mr. Carter during the first week of September that holding onto Lance was political suicide. Two weeks later he determined that a public backlash against the press and Congress was building rapidly.

Given the powerful backlash, Lance's resignation was not universally applauded — especially among some businessmen who judged the affair more from the standpoint of presidential backbone than Lance's offenses. "I think we learned today," one Wall Streeter told us shortly after Wednesday's press conference, "how much Carter would protect one of us if we came down to Washington."

The fact that Lance was forced out not because the President agreed with charges of his unfitness for office, but because of political pressure, also buttressed this widespread feeling. Jimmy Carter can be taken into camp by the application of pressure. The vulnerable Lance may not be the best example, but it follows presidential retreats from firm positions on tax rebate, SALT, the Middle East and welfare reform.

Shoes can give him mental boost

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am depressed about my height. I am 5 feet, 3 inches tall, and am 20 years old — and very vain. When I come down from the clouds (5 feet, 9 inches in elevated heels and socks in my shoes) I am discouraged. Any chance for growth hormones for me? — E.C.

No chance. At 20, you're probably as tall as you'll ever be (without the elevator shoes, that is). Your bone ends have fused, that fact X rays would show. After that happens no amount of hormones can help. As a matter of fact, it's my understanding that, even before the fusing, hormone supplements (from the pituitary glands of human cadavers, the only source) won't make a person significantly taller than he is determined to be by heredity.

Nothing wrong with vanity — in moderation. Find a 5-foot-2 girl friend and go on from there. Your height, although short of the 5-foot-10 average for American male, is not abnormal. Get that idea out of your mind and find equally short ancestors. I doubt hormone deficiency is involved at all. If the shoes give you a mental lift, fine, use them.

Finally, you can always find a silver cloud in the situation if you look for it. There are a lot of skyscraper males who would like to trade for a bit of shortness.

It's all relative. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 58 years old. All my tests come back with the report that I have an irritable colon. Is this colitis? Is it curable? — M.V.

It's often loosely lumped together with "colitis," it doesn't belong. Colitis is inflammation of the colon (the large intestine). With irritable colon there need not be inflammation.

Irritable colon is a so-called "functional" problem, one that involves the way the colon behaves on its own. It is often called spastic or nervous colon. The colon just doesn't produce the normal rhythmic movements it should.

This might be caused by extra-sensitive membranes or by emotions.

The cause would have to be determined by your doctor. Sometimes drugs of the parergic type can be used. Irritable colon is discussed (page 13) in my booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped self-addressed long envelope to me in care of The Big Spring Herald.

Do you have hair problem? Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper hair treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Thosteson in care of The Big Spring Herald, inclosing a long, self-addressed and stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Marriage on rocks

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Every day you hear more and more stories about credit companies and computers invading people's privacy. The last one I heard has to do with my friends, the Sheldons.

Mrs. Sheldon went into a store to purchase some towels. She gave her credit card to the clerk. After what seemed like quite a long wait, Mrs. Sheldon was called to the cashier's office. The clerk gave her the phone.

The man on the other end of the line said he was from the credit card company and asked Mrs. Sheldon, "Are you having any trouble with your husband?"

MRS. SHELDON thought for a moment and then said, "Not any more than usual."

"Well," said the man, "your husband made out a card and signed it saying he was no longer responsible for any of your debts. We've had to cancel your credit card."

Mrs. Sheldon was very shaken by the news. "Are you sure?"

The man became insulted. "We never make a mistake." Mrs. Sheldon forgot the towels and waited at home for Mr. Sheldon to arrive. He seemed in a good humor and couldn't understand why Mrs. Sheldon was so frosty.

"Is there something you want to tell me?" Mrs. Sheldon asked. "Nothing I can think of," Mr. Sheldon said. "Then, is there something you don't want to tell me?"

MR. SHELDON suddenly realized Mrs. Sheldon was on to something. But he didn't know exactly what he didn't want to tell her that she had obviously found out about.

So he decided to play for time. "Of course not. What are you driving at?" "We're grown-up people. At least you could have the decency to tell me first."

Mr. Sheldon not only didn't know what ballpark they were in, he didn't even know the name of the game. "Tell you what?"

"Let's not make a soap opera out of this. I always thought when the time came you would be different."

"Different from what?"

"Is she prettier than I am?"

Now Mr. Sheldon knew the name of the game. "Oh, for God's sake, what brought this on?"

"Don't pretend you don't know. Everyone knows — even the credit card company," Mrs. Sheldon said.

"The credit card company? How did they get into this discussion?"

"THEY'RE THE ones who told me. They said you had signed a card that they were no longer responsible for my debts."

"I never signed such a card," Mr. Sheldon screamed. "They're out of their minds."

"Credit card companies never make mistakes," Mrs. Sheldon replied.

"Who told you that?"

"They did," Mrs. Sheldon said.

"And you believed them? You believed them before you even asked me?"

"They have a lot more facts about you than I do."

"I'm calling them in the morning," Mr. Sheldon said. "They can't go around breaking up marriages."

"When it comes to credit," Mrs. Sheldon retorted, "they can do anything they want."

THE NEXT DAY Mr. Sheldon called the credit card company and blew his stack. "How dare you tell my wife I am no longer responsible for her debts and we are splitting up?"

"That's what our computer told us," the man said. "Here is the card. I, Harold Sheldon, am no longer responsible for my wife's debts."

"My name is Hackney. Hackney Sheldon — not Harold. You got the wrong Sheldons."

"Oh, dear," the man replied. "You're not Harold."

"I am Hackney."

Stars in probe

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Teamsters boss Frank Fitzsimmons and ex-Attorney General Richard Kleindienst will be the star witnesses in a new Senate drama next month. They have already been questioned behind closed doors about their role in a multimillion-dollar insurance scandal.

Sources close to the investigation say Fitzsimmons and Kleindienst told Senate investigators conflicting stories. The Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee will try to clear up the discrepancies by putting both men on the witness stand.

The incorrigibly promiscuous Fitzsimmons, who is usually found on the defensive in Washington proceedings, will be cast in the unfamiliar role of the accuser. He is full of righteous indignation over an alleged scheme to defraud the Teamsters' welfare fund.

THE COMPLEX case involves the insurance coverage for Teamsters in 33 states. This amounts to a staggering $2.6 billion worth of insurance business. After a few well-placed phone calls by Kleindienst, the contract went to Old Security Life Insurance Company.

Kleindienst, a wounded political warhorse still recovering from the Nixon debacle, collected $125,000 for his phone calls. This was his half of a $250,000 "finders' fee" for helping the company land the contract.

Kleindienst told Senate investigators earlier this month his $125,000 service to Old Security consisted of several telephone calls to Fitzsimmons urging him to award the contract to the company. But the Teamsters chief reportedly told the investigators Kleindienst did not ask him to swing the insurance contract to Old Security.

The company got the contract despite the opposition of several Teamsters officials who reportedly wanted to give the business to Prudential Insurance Company of America. The Senate investigators are trying to determine whether the lucrative contract was awarded because of a backdoor deal. They have also learned that Old Security may not be old reliable. They have received allegations that the company has been involved in several shady transactions.

Kleindienst told us in a telephone interview that the conflicting accounts are a matter of "semantics." Fitzsimmons, he said, is a "good friend of mine. . . I didn't ask Fitz to use his influence."

The former attorney general acknowledged telling Senate investigators that he made several telephone calls urging Fitzsimmons to grant the insurance business to Old Security. His $125,000 share of the finders' fee, he said, went to his law firm, not to himself. Despite Teamsters demands that the fee be returned, Kleindienst told us he has no intention of giving back the money.

Footnote: Fitzsimmons acknowledged that he "visited" the Senate subcommittee, but refused to comment on what he told the investigators.

FAT AMERICAN: The Fat American is becoming the symbol of his country in a world where two-thirds of the people are hungry. Eating has become the national pastime and obesity is the No. 1 nutritional problem.

Yet Americans are starved, ironically, for wholesome nourishment. They are the victims of massive advertising which promotes the wrong foods, nutritional experts tell us. The less nutritional value a food has, apparently, the more money the food companies spend to sell it.

The cereal companies, for example, are raking in millions pushing junk food on children. The federal government spends $70 million a year advising the populace on their eating habits. But critics contend that the program is ineffective and the money is wasted.

NEITHER THE educational nor medical professions have responded to the nutritional crisis. Only two states require any kind of nutritional education, and merely 20 per cent of the nation's medical schools have expressed the slightest interest in the subject.

"We should convince the food industry that selling nutritious products is as easy and profitable as selling junk food," suggested Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y.

"What we need," added Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., "is to use proper nutrition as a preventative to reduce the staggering $150 billion we're spending on health care."

Footnote: Food industry leaders privately have expressed a willingness to work with Congress to deal with the nutritional crisis. Richmond is planning hearings to establish a national nutrition policy.

PAY REFORMS: Most congressmen aren't happy about facing the voters after helping themselves to a 29 per cent pay raise without an "aye" or "nay" vote.

Fearing the taxpayers' wrath, several congressmen have been trying to reform the pay hike procedure during secret meetings this summer in House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill's office. A measure suggested by Rep. Charles Whalen, R-Ohio, would forbid any future pay raise voted by Congress from taking effect until the following session.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband recently passed away. I am a Christian but I am almost overwhelmed by loneliness and grief. What can I do? — T.L.

DEAR T.L.: It is clear you and your husband had a close relationship in your marriage, and you should be thankful for this. Now that he is gone, it is not strange that you feel his loss keenly. It is not necessarily wrong for you to grieve the loss of your husband. Jesus, you will recall, wept at the tomb of His friend, Lazarus (see John 11:34-36). I am glad Hebrews 4:15 says "For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities." Jesus Christ completely understands our problems and burdens. That is why you can come to Him, "casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (I Peter 5:7).

Remember too that your husband is now in Heaven, and has been delivered from all the problems of this life. This fact should bring comfort and peace to your heart. That is why we "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope" (I Thessalonians 4:13).

Some day you will go to be with your husband in Heaven. But God is with you now, and He has His purposes in keeping you on this earth. Ask Him to show you what these purposes are. When you become active in serving Christ, your grief and loneliness will begin to fade.

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter's plea to resist imposing restrictions on imports despite a huge U.S. deficit, is expected to prove a collective sigh of relief from other nations.

Carter told a joint Monday of the Internal Monetary Fund and Bank that he is "committed to policy promote freer and trade without the deleterious consequences of protectionism."

He made his pledge a few hours after the Commerce Department announced a $2.7 billion trade deficit for August, the second largest deficit on record. The likely will end the year a total deficit of about $10 billion, which would be a record.

Janssen stars in 'Police Story'

Gumshoe to give up gun

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Janssen plays a police sergeant tonight in the new season start of NBC's "Police Story." But never again, he says, will he play a gendarme or gumshoe in a series of his own.

"I've just sort of had it with continuing series involving law enforcement," says he. "Obviously, I don't mind doing a show about it. But not a series, because I'd only wind up copying myself."

His adieu to weekly cops-and-robbers work ends a tour that began with "Richard Diamond," then went through a four-year run from the law in "The Fugitive," a one-year stint as a G-man in "O'Hara, U.S. Treasury," and finally, "Harry O."

That series, in which he played a sardonic but decent private eye, was considered by many critics as one of the best of its kind. Alas, ABC axed it in the spring of 1976 after a two-year run.

"I enjoyed that show when we did it the way we all wanted to," the 47-year-old actor said in his familiar raspy drawl.

What he wanted, he added, was an emphasis on character studies, not car chases and gunsmoke.

ABC, however, wanted more action and "they wanted something I didn't want to do," he said. "I didn't want to jump over cars and play cops and robbers."

He laughed when told it seemed kind of ironic that he was fighting for what the PTA seems to have gotten from network TV this season — less violence in entertainment shows.

"Well, it's been whispered in network circles that they're looking for another Harry Orwell type of show," he said. "Which is no particular pat on the back to us."

We just liked doing the show when we could do it our way."

He spoke by phone from New Orleans, where he's playing a pro football executive in a TV movie involving murder and the Super Bowl.

The actor, recently acclaimed for his work in the NBC movie "A Sensitive, Passionate Man," said despite his success in series, he'd now prefer doing five or six TV movies a year instead of a series.

"The long form of TV is more appealing to me as an actor than an hour or half-hour show," he said.

He's also trying a new route, writing music lyrics, and to date has put words to 12 songs, including the title tune of "A Sensitive, Passionate Man."

What comes after his current TV project?

"I don't know," Janssen said. "I just bought a house in Malibu and I'd like to lay out on the beach awhile."

"I'm always responsive to a good script, but I don't really have any offered on a 'we-go-next-month' basis. So I'm reading some things we're talking about for early next year."

"And it wouldn't bother me at all to sort of lay out for a while."

Ex-marshal quoted: 'Don, I killed him'

WACO, Tex. (AP) — The former Castroville town marshal, Frank Hayes, Monday heard one of his assistants testify that he killed a prisoner on a deserted road.

The trial in U.S. district court continued today as prosecutors were expected to parade witnesses to the stand for another two or three days.

Hayes is charged with violating the civil rights of a Mexican-American prisoner, Richard Morales, who died in his custody at Castroville. Also, Hayes' wife, Dorothy, and sister-in-law, Alice Baldwin, are charged with being accessories in the case and are being tried.

Donald McCall, a former deputy, quoted Hayes as saying, "Don, I killed him."

But McCall said the marshal claimed he was only joshing and that he had shot at Morales to scare him. He testified that Hayes wanted McCall to be the scapegoat for Morales' escape.

"If you are talking about murder, I'm not lying for you or anyone else," McCall testified he told Hayes.

A second witness and friend of McCall, Steve Worthy of San Antonio, said he was on patrol with McCall when he heard Hayes boast: "I killed me one Mexican and I'm about to kill another."

Both testified that they drove about 200 yards, turned off the vehicle lights, waited and then heard what sounded like a shotgun blast.

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Baylor University's president, Dr. Abner McCall, was listed in "stable" condition today at a Waco hospital where he entered Monday for treatment of a blood clot in a lung, according to school officials.

The 62-year-old McCall was admitted to the hospital after waking with breathing difficulties.

He has been president of Baylor for 16 years.

Two Beaumont officers fired

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Two veteran Beaumont policemen suspended since last Wednesday were fired Monday after an investigation of an excessive force complaint.

Chief Willie Bauer dismissed eight-year veteran Jerry Claiborne and Larry Kaleck, who had been on the force seven years.

Police said the complaint was filed by Dalton Davis Jr. after an incident Sept. 16. They said the two fired officers responded separately to a call for backup units at a Beaumont bank.

Davis filed the complaint and was treated for head and arm bruises at a Beaumont hospital.

Further details were not revealed.

In a statement, Bauer said his department's investigation into the complaint resulted in "substantial evidence that the rules and regulations of this department were broken. Moreover I should point out that this complaint was received and processed through normal complaint procedures."

Procedures within the Beaumont police union provide for a grievance which could be filed within 10 days, but a union spokesman said he had not talked with either officer Monday night.

Carter's vow nets collective sigh

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's pledge to resist imposing trade restrictions on imports, despite a huge U.S. trade deficit, is expected to prompt a collective sigh of relief from other nations.

Carter told a joint meeting Monday of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank that he is "firmly committed to policies to promote freer and wider trade without the deleterious consequences of protectionism."

He made his pledge only a few hours after the U.S. Commerce Department announced a $2.7 billion trade deficit for August, the second largest monthly deficit on record. The nation likely will end the year with a total deficit of about $25 billion, which would be a record.

U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and finance ministers of several other of the IMF's 131 member nations were on the speaker's list today.

Concern has been widespread among member nations that the Carter administration might succumb to domestic pressures from labor and industry to impose restrictions against imports of some goods to protect U.S. industry and jobs.

But IMF Managing Director H. Johannes Witteveen said such a course would be a mistake that would hurt the entire world economy in the long run.

"Let me emphasize the importance for the rest of the world that expansion of the U.S. economy be maintained at a satisfactory rate," he said in his address Monday.

The United States so far has come in for general praise for its economic policies, but there has been considerable criticism of Japan and Germany for failing to meet their economic goals for the year.

Witteveen said all three countries have an "international responsibility" to pursue economic policies that will help nations with weaker economies.

Carter said the United States will meet its goals for economic growth both this year and in 1978, although he emphasized it would be non-inflationary growth.

Gunman apparently not seeking money kills bank vice president

GROVETON, Tex. (AP) — A gunman apparently not seeking money still was at large today after bursting into a bank and shooting a vice president to death.

A spokesman for Lufkin Memorial Hospital said Robert Rush, 28, died on the operating table after he was rushed in with bullet wounds in the neck, arm and chest.

John Weaver, also a vice president at the First Bank of Groveton, said the gunman ran into the bank and gunned down Rush, but did not ask for money from any of the bank employees. Weaver said no one at the bank recognized the gunman.

Reportedly, the gunman went straight to Rush's office after entering the bank. "He just came in, shot and ran out the door," Weaver said.

Witnesses said the man was waving a pistol as he left. County and state law enforcement agencies set up roadblocks around Southeast Texas, but there were no reports of the assailant's whereabouts.

Plunge from State Capital rotunda kills Austin man

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A 40-foot fall to the marble floor of the State Capitol rotunda Monday was fatal to 25-year-old Glenn Knox of Austin.

Officials said Knox died Monday night at an Austin hospital. At least one witness said Knox jumped to his death, and veteran Capitol employees said the death plunge was the first since the 1920s when a workman fell from a scaffold.

Billye Jones, an employee of Rep. Doug McLeod, D-Galveston, said she saw Knox jump.

"He looked straight at me," she told police, "then I saw him step over the railing onto a ledge. I wondered at the time what could possibly be so important that would have to go after it from there."

"Then he put his hands up over his head and jumped to the ground floor. I heard noise as he hit the floor, but I didn't look over the railing."

Holocaust Memorial presented

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A memorial commemorating the six million Jews who died in Nazi concentration camps was dedicated Sunday at the Omaha Jewish Community Center.

The Holocaust Memorial a 9-by-11-foot marble monument was presented to the Omaha Jewish Community by Paul Lewis, a Dallas industrialist.

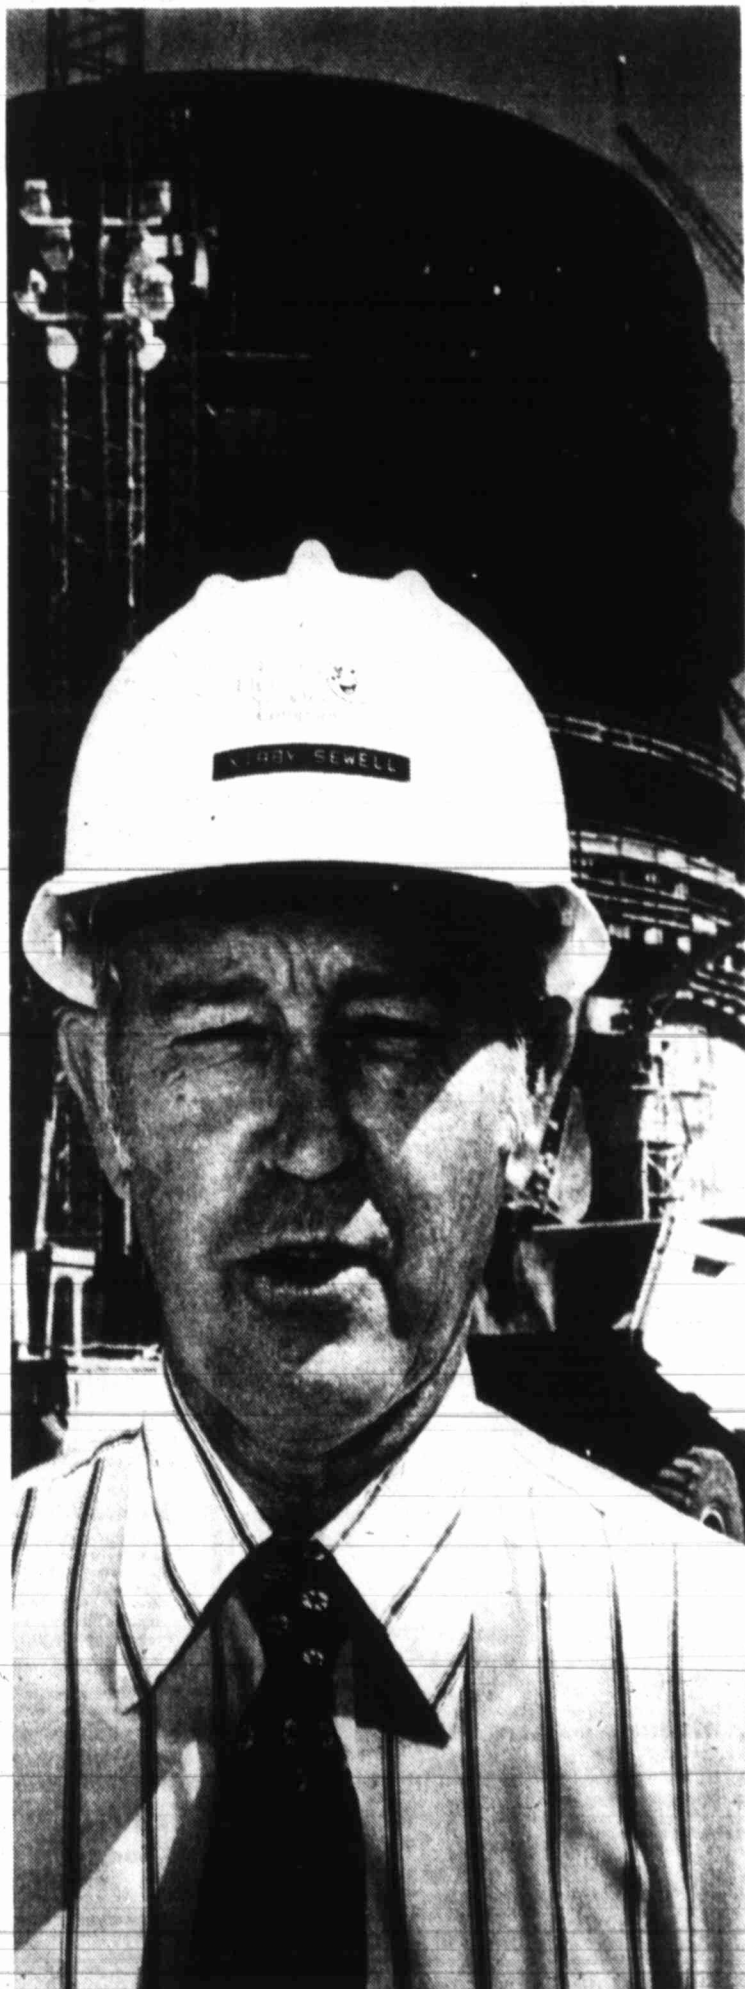

Lewis designed the memorial and wrote the inscription chiseled into its marble. The Omaha gift is the 12th of its kind Lewis has given to American communities.

Lewis, 75, said most of his family—including a sister and seven children—died in concentration camps.

According to Lewis, the memorials are more than things of beauty; they have a purpose.

"They should serve as a red light to every member of our human family," he says, "We must all be on guard and beware demagogues and lying lips."

An audience of 400 crowded the center's auditorium to take part in the dedication ceremony.

Kirby Sewell, senior electrical engineer for TESCO, checks construction progress at the Comanche Peak nuclear plant site

"Today most of your electricity is made with cheap natural gas. But this gas will be gone soon."

How will we supply the electricity you'll need then?"

"About 70 percent of the electricity you use today is generated in plants that run on natural gas.

Most of it is gas we got at a low price many years ago. But those long-term contracts will expire soon.

This is why our construction budget is nearly a quarter-billion dollars this year — so we can continue building plants that can use other fuels, specifically lignite coal and nuclear.

The first unit of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant is scheduled to go into service in 1981 and the second unit in 1983.

And we have five lignite coal-fired generating units in operation now, with five more under construction. Others are being planned.

By 1983, over 80 percent of your electricity will come from coal and nuclear fueled plants. This is how we intend to continue supplying you with the electricity you'll need."

One reason for Texas Electric's low rates is low cost gas contracted for years ago. As the chart on the left shows, more than half the fuel we use now is cheap natural gas. But our contracts for this gas expire soon. The chart on the right shows how we will replace this gas by 1983 with more abundant fuels.

No plans to cut train service

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for Amtrak says there are no immediate plans to further curtail service on the "Inter-American" train from Chicago to Laredo, Tex.

Amtrak President Paul Reistrup mentioned the Inter-American last week when a Senate subcommittee asked him what would happen if Amtrak does not get a $56.5 million supplemental appropriation.

Reistrup said that Amtrak would be forced to study a number of routes, including the Inter-American, to determine where to cut back. But the Amtrak spokesman emphasized Monday that the study would not merely be a formality prior to a cutback.

The Inter-American runs from Chicago to St. Louis,

Little Rock, Ark., Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, San Antonio and Laredo, Tex. It used to run daily, but Amtrak this month cut the St. Louis-Laredo runs to three times per week.

Last year, Mexico abruptly changed its train schedules so it is no longer possible to board the Inter-American and transfer immediately to a southbound Mexican train at the border.

The spokesman for Amtrak said neither of the other passenger trains serving Texas was under consideration for curtailment. They are the daily "Lone Star" from Chicago to Houston and the thrice-weekly "Sunset Limited" from New Orleans through Beaumont, Houston, San Antonio and El Paso.

Shooting spree at mansion

Prosecutors dip into physical evidence

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Prosecutors dip into their physical evidence again today in a painstaking effort to tie millionaire Cullen Davis to a 1976 shooting spree at his Fort Worth mansion.

Two died and two fell critically wounded in the midnight rampage and the state has produced some 150 items of evidence it is methodically weaving into its circumstantial case of capital murder.

Using police Detective Greg Miller as a catalyst, prosecutors offered evidence ranging from bullets and blood samples to a garbage bag and wig fibers.

Davis, 44, whose vast business interests stretch around the world, is on trial for the gunshot death last year of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12.

He stands accused also of wounding his estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, killing her lover, Stan Farr, 30, and firing the bullet which remains lodged in the spine of 22-year-old Gus Gavrel, Jr.

Gavrel's date, Beverly Bass, 19, fled the 181-acre estate on foot and later returned with police.

Officer Miller testified Monday he took morgue pictures of Farr and Miss Wilborn and the state propelled the graphic photos through defense objections into the hands of jurors.

Miller also identified two more bullets recovered at the mansion, including the one which Mrs. Davis testified struck Farr when the gunman fired through a hall door.

Six other bullets and the door itself were offered into evidence previously.

Chillingly visible on one photo was a bullet hole in Farr's neck, which prosecutors said tends to corroborate the jet-set blonde's testimony that Farr was gasping for air when he died on the mansion floor.

State attorneys also got into evidence a plastic garbage sack that apparently was used by the black-clad gunman to conceal both his hands and the deadly .38 caliber pistol.

Plastic particles were recovered in or near the areas where the victims were shot.

Miller testified that investigators also found dark fibers on the garbage bag and a prosecutor identified them as synthetic hairs from a wig.

Mrs. Davis said it was her husband, who she was suing for divorce at the time, in black wig and black clothes who stepped into the breakfast area, said, "Hi," and shot her with a pistol wrapped in a plastic bag.

The state offered an unspent, unexplained .38 caliber bullet into evidence, but abruptly withdrew it when the defense challenged its admissibility.

In a rare light moment, Miller told how a dog trotted up hours after the shooting and dropped a sandal at his feet. Investigators later found the other shoe and identified them as belonging to Miss Bass.

"Did you identify the dog?" a prosecutor asked facetiously.

"No," Miller replied.

"Did you noseprint the dog?" the prosecutor continued.

"No," he laughed.

"What about pawprints?" quipped a defense lawyer.

'Soap' rubs three editors wrong

DALLAS (AP) — The ABC television show, "Soap," has brought Texas Methodists, Baptists and Catholics together in a rare show of unity.

Editors of three religious newspapers have signed a joint statement urging their 800,000 readers to campaign against programs they might find "morally objectionable."

"Basically, 'Soap' is not the issue," said Presnall Wood, editor of The Baptist Standard. "It's television programming in general. There's probably things much worse than 'Soap,' but it serves as a symbol."

Wood signed the statement along with Spurgeon Durham III, editor of The Texas Methodist, and Steve Landrigan, editor of The Texas Catholic.

"Soap" is a comedy series that touches on topics like homosexuality, adultery, impotence and broad ethnic characterizations.

Thrust of the joint statement was to encourage readers to voice their objections to programming to sponsors and local television stations.

"ABC expects us to yell a little and write letters, and then lay down and be quiet," Wood said. "I don't think we're going to lay down and play dead."

About the unified front, he said, "One of the nice things about 'Soap' is that we've been able to lay aside our theological differences and come together in the community interest for better television programming."

Ski resort fuss sparks $60 million civil suit

DENVER (AP) — A company that planned a ski resort in Colorado has filed a $60 million civil suit in Denver District Court against a Chicago law firm it says caused it to lose 5,000 acres of land near Winter Park.

The suit was filed Monday by Val Moritz Village Inc. It names the Chicago law firm of Jenner and Block and one of the law firm's attorneys, Gilbert H. Hennessey Jr.

In the suit, Val Moritz alleges Hennessey forced the company's president, Fred Finkovitz, a Lisle, Ill., physician, to sign a document that was not in the firm's best interests.

The agreement allowed a Fort Worth, Tex., insurance firm to foreclose on the land that was to be used for the ski resort, said Val Moritz's Denver attorney, Sheldon Friedman. The insurance firm, World Services Life, was funding development of the resort.

Val Moritz claims that it lost $60 million by signing the document, because that would have been the value of the resort if it were built.

Neither Hennessey nor any official at the law firm was available for comment.

OUR FRIENDS & NEIGHBORS

SERVING YOU FOR A BETTER HOWARD COUNTY

John M. Burson, a detective in the police department in Big Spring, has been with the department only five years, but has already been named outstanding officer in the department in 1975 and this year is serving as president of the Big Spring Police Department.

He was named outstanding officer in the department after catching burglars inside a local business in process of a burglary. He was elected president of the police association by his fellow officers.

John's reason for working with the police is "a desire to do something for humanity, to try to make this a little better place to live."

He served two and one half years with the U.S. Army prior to joining the department and began in the department as a patrolman.

John and his wife, Charlotte, who also works in the police department, have a son, Brian and two daughters, Christie and Jennifer.

He graduated from San Angelo Central High and has attended Howard College. He was born in Brownwood in 1948.

John likes outdoor sports of all kind and especially softball, golf and horseback riding.

Jan Hyden was one of the very first women in police work on the Big Spring force. She originally began her work in the juvenile office when a department was funded by the state in the city police department. When state funds ran out and the department was halted, she moved over to another position in the department.

At one time, she handled half the juvenile cases, almost all cases involving women and many other duties.

At the present time, she is utilized quite often as cases involving women, such as questioning during a rape case.

Jan, at one time, had to make a rather difficult arrest, who refused to go because she was a woman officer.

She pulled a gun on the victim and hauled them off to the station without batting an eye.

The petite police woman has worked for the department two years. She and her husband, Charley, both approve of her job.

She was born in Big Spring, took some college courses, and worked as a store clerk and technician in an optical lab prior to her first police job.

After she worked for the department, she never wanted to do anything else.

Her hobbies, however, don't sound very police-like. She loves to crochet and embroidery. But don't argue with her when she makes an arrest.

Jerry Edwards says he is a policeman "because I always wanted to be one." That's the best reason anyone could have, and it is the reason why Jerry Edwards is the kind of officer he is.

He was born in Lubbock and went to school there through high school. He has experience in law enforcement dating back through dispatcher and jailer for the Lubbock police, officer for the Slaton police department, and dispatcher for the DPS in Lubbock.

He also has college credits from Wayland College in Plainview and Howard College. He has been with the Big Spring Police Department for two years.

His hobbies are target shooting, hunting, and camping.

Teach children caution

School time means stressing basic safety rules to children enroute to the classroom.

According to CNA Insurance safety experts, more than 50,000 children are injured each year between home and school. Parents' instruction can help insure against these accidents.

It is particularly important to map out a route for a child who has not been to school before. Determine the safer side of the street, watching for dangerous construction sites, troublesome intersections and blind alleys.

Don't over estimate the ability of your children as pedestrians. Teach them to cross the street only at corners and to obey traffic patrol guards in crossing busy intersections.

Safety experts warn that children bicycling to schools must ride on the right-hand side of the road in single file, yielding the right of way to motorists and pedestrians. Passengers should not be carried on a bike unless it is equipped by the manufacturer with more than one seat. Children also should be encouraged to use car-free bike trails whenever possible.

If you drive your children to school, make sure all are seat-belted properly to reduce horseplay which can lead to serious injury. Children under 4 feet 7 inches tall should not use the standard shoulder harness which can cause injury to a child's head and neck.

Before allowing children to get out of the vehicle, make certain they will not be stepping into the path of moving traffic by having them exit by the curbside doors.

If safety is taught by parents and teachers, the trip to and from school will be a much happier and safer one for your children.

The new Fall "look" is soft and natural

Ankle boots are proper footwear for this fall, when worn with dresses of an appropriate length, said Young 'N' Alive consultant, Delores Majors.

Mrs. Majors was a speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Big Spring chapter of the National Secretary Association, held at the Western Sizzler. Mrs. Jane Overman presided.

Mrs. Majors said that the "Total New Look" for the fall and winter will be soft and natural. Backcombing and frosting the hair is passe, and foiling is the new way to achieve the desired effect.

Blue and green eyeshadow worn up to the eyebrows is out, she said, brown, beige and burgundy on just the eyelid is the "Look" for this fall.

She said that eyeliner will no longer be brought out beyond the edge of the eye, and bright colors are in for nails and blushers. Black, grey, brown, fawn and smoky blue are the fashion shades of the year. Scarves, shawls and lots of jewelry will show, a haute couture look for the fall, Majors said.

"Pants should be baggy — no more pegging. And flowers should definitely be worn in the hair and on the clothes at every appropriate occasion. Shoes will go back to the Fifties' styles and dresses will be okay at any length between the ankle and kneecap.

Boots — both ankle and knee-high, will go with dresses as well as pants and gauchos, Ms. Majors concluded.

Two guests attended the noon meeting, Ms. Majorie Dykes and Ms. Brenda Stevenson, both of Big Spring.

The next meeting will be held at the Western Sizzler Oct. 24.

Hearts Also Come In Economy Size

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "John") took out a life insurance policy 15 years ago. The agent hesitated selling him a policy because John is 6 foot 9. The agent said "extra tall" people have a shorter life expectancy because they usually develop heart problems. He explained that the heart has to work much harder pumping the blood in a very tall person than in a person of average size.

I believe Mother Nature compensates by giving the extra large man a heart large enough to handle the job, but John believes the agent, and he keeps insisting he'll never see 55. (He's 45 now.) Both John's parents are alive and in their 80s.

Anything you can find out about this will be greatly appreciated.

JOHN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: My heart expert says, "I am not aware of any documented evidence supporting the theory that the heart works harder in extra tall people; certainly it doesn't in giraffes and in professional basketball players. John would do better to listen to a competent cardiologist than to the insurance agent."

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who recently married a widower. He keeps talking about his first wife. What should I do?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Keep talking about your next husband.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office, and every time there is a collection to be taken up to buy a coworker a gift, this one woman always does the collecting and buying. Recently she bought our supervisor a purse. She said it cost $21. I like the purse very much and went to the store to buy one for myself. There, I found it was marked $16.98, so I asked the manager if the purse had been marked down. He assured me it had not, and he said they never had one even similar at any other price.

In checking the price on a few other items, I found that this woman had ripped us off when buying some other gifts. I told several coworkers, but no one wants to mention it to her, and I don't either.

Next time a collection is made, how should this be handled?

RIPPED OFF

DEAR RIPPED: Why wait until "next time"? Since you are the one who uncovered this petty chiseling, let the chiseler know what you learned. You needn't apologize when calling a crook a crook.

Survey: Contraceptives used by Roman Catholics

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 90 per cent of the Roman Catholic couples in the United States who use birth control are using contraceptive practices forbidden by their church, a nationwide survey shows.

The survey, by Charles F. Westoff and Elise F. Jones of the Office of Population Research at Princeton University, was released Sunday.

It also shows that the birth control practices of Catholics are virtually the same as those of non-Catholics and that any differences will probably disappear completely in a few years.

The only method of contraception approved by the church is the rhythm method, abstinence during a woman's fertile period of the month.

The report, based on interviews with a national sample of 3,300 married white women in 1975, is part of a continuing series of national fertility studies sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The survey is the current issue of Family Planning Perspectives, the professional journal of the Alan Guttmacher Institute, shows that the same proportion of Catholics and non-Catholics — about one third — were using the pill in 1975.

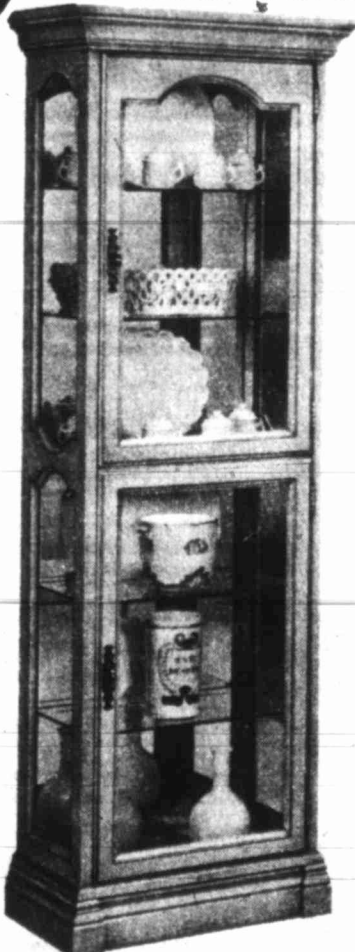

The Alan Guttmacher Institute is the research and policy analysis division of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

A decade ago, while 31 per cent of non-Catholics were using oral contraceptives, that method was used by just 22 per cent of Catholics.

In 1975, 76 per cent of Catholic couples currently use some method of contraception, compared to 60 per cent of non-Catholics, and most of that 76 per cent use methods banned by the church. A decade earlier, just 58.5 per cent of Catholics were using birth control, compared to 70 per cent of non-Catholics.

THROUGH the fieldglasses

By Danny Reagan

One play a season makes

It was about 9 o'clock Sunday morning when the cleanup crews arrived at Jones Stadium. It took four of the more serious crewmen to pry my imbedded fingernails from seat 39, row 30, section 108.

That night out under the Lubbock sky hadn't been that unpleasant... all things considered. All those jeering Aggies were gone, the lines at the concessions were considerably lessened, and as long as I sat there, the game wasn't over, theoretically at least, for me.

But it was over. It was over in the first half, when Texas Tech quarterback Rodney Allison scrambled first left, then right, in an attempt to locate an open receiver.

He didn't find one, but two onrushing Aggies found him. The first Aggie clenched tight onto Rodney's leg, grasping the tibia at a right angle to the plane in which Allison was falling. The second Aggie wasn't needed.

Through the binoculars, Allison's pained expression broadcast the ensuing break as loudly as any strapped-on microphone could have. There was no hoping that it was just a sprained ankle or bruised knee.

When the trainers carried that useless leg off the field, it was evident that it would not return.

And at that same moment, an almost visible cloud of Momentum rose from the scarlet and black clad players, drifted quickly over the recently installed tartan turf, and settled onto those warriors sporting the maroon and white.

The same goes for the record crowd of 55,008. Twenty to 30,000 individual "airs of confidence" and "acts of enthusiasm" surged en masse from the Red Raider encampment to the Aggie faithful side. Before Allison had been carried completely off the field, A&M had every facet of the game won except the scoreboard, and the fulfillment of that goal was just a matter of time.

Almost to the man, there's not an Aggie fan who wouldn't admit, with sincere regret, that he hated to see Allison leave the game that way. That's because A&M believed they could beat Tech with Allison in there. No one will ever know how.

During a post-game press conference, hastily convened just inside the door to the Tech dressing room, Raider Coach Steve Sloan, with misty eyes and halting voice, tried to assure the gathered cameras and newsmen that a missing Allison wasn't the reason that Tech lost the game.

He cautiously avoided dwelling on that point, and returned again and again to field position as the ultimate cause for defeat. The proper-sounding quotes about "team effort" and "no one-man teams" were paraphrased in one form or another in that brief time. The agony of defeat hung in that room like a faded red and black mobile.

Allison may not be a superman, but he was vastly important to Tech's chances on the gridiron this year. It is not always an individual player's talent that figures in the outcome of a game, but his mere presence.

Football is a physical game. Any doll can plainly see that from watching it. But it is extremely mental—as well. If Allison would've been hurt during the preceding week, the score might have been different. The Tech players would've had some time to prepare mentally for a game without their talented quarterback.

But any army, with its leader taken out right in the heat of battle, has to suffer some loss of composure.

RODNEY ALLISON
...with broken leg

An Aggie fan sitting directly behind me said, as Allison was wheeled off the field on a stretcher: "I hate to see that happen to anyone." Yeah, I know how he feels. But as an Aggie, he can't possibly know how I feel as a Tech fan.

The Aggies have had their years of glory. The University of Texas and Arkansas have had years and years of glory, not only in the Southwest Conference, but nationally as well. And look at the Houston Cougars. They did it all their very first year in the league. Even Baylor, SMU, and TCU have won outright SWC championships.

Techans were not only talking SWC crown this year, but Heisman trophy and a slim chance for a national title. It may have all been pipe dreams, but 1977 was the best chance the Red Raiders have had to date to make any of those dreams come true. Not any more.

This was also going to be the best year ever for competition in the SWC. Tech, Texas, A&M, Houston, Arkansas and even Baylor were given a chance at taking all the bacon.

Now, with Houston's loss of quarterback Danny Davis, Tech's loss of Allison, and Baylor's failure to live up to early expectations, the picture almost looks like the crumpled one of old: "Who will win it this year, Texas or Arkansas? Big deal." Of course, the Aggies have poked their noses in there and have to be considered favorites now, but for the Tech fan, the Tech fan who has kicked the dirt year after year from drubbings by every conference foe, the picture has been stopped in mid-development... and it may never be resumed this year.

Steers travel to speedy Eagleland

By DANNY REAGAN
Sports Editor

The Abilene Eagles do not have the speed they had last year. Sounds good, until the realization hits home that they still have the quickest feet in District 5-4A this year.

It doesn't set easy with the Eagles' foes either that those Warbirds have the best quarterback in the league as well. Glen Stirman, the 6-1, 170-pound senior, has been dubbed "excellent" in his capabilities at the helm.

Stirman heads up the pro set "I" formation that utilizes AHS's talent to the utmost. Abilene employs the "O.J. Simpson Philosophy," according to Steer Coach Don Robbins.

Their tailback Reggie Fields (160, Jr.), who by the way has tremendous balance and speed, will get the ball and run at will anywhere from the middle to the outside," Robbins said. "This is the purpose of the I formation, to use a talented middle-sized back to the best of his ability. And he can run to either side."

Abilene runs the trap series up the middle and the country sweep out wide with great effectiveness, and rely heavily on the blocking skills of the fullback.

But perhaps the greatest offensive threat shown by

"I think we're going to have a pretty good team," said first year coach Louie Spinks. "We'll be more balanced this year than we were last year. Our weak point is our offensive line, and because of that I don't know if you could consider us a contender."

Abilene hasn't looked like a contender thus far this year. They currently sport a 1-2 pre-district record, beating Stephen F. Austin 9-0, and losing to Wichita Falls Rider 14-0, and state-ranked Temple 27-24.

The Eagles started slow last season and failed to catch up to the powerful competition that the league showed last season. They went 3-4 in the loop, with one of those wins a 43-22 decision over the Steers.

The Abilene game will be the first of two consecutive road trips, and classes at BSHS will be shortened Friday afternoon so that the buses can make their rounds early enough to assure the Band and Goldbuggers sufficient transportation to make it to the game on time.

Abreo will make trip

Steer senior quarterback Mike Abreo joined football practice again Monday after being out of action for more than a week, due to an eye injury.

"It's still uncertain whether he'll play Friday against Abilene," Coach Don Robbins said, "but he doesn't look too rusty, and as long as he's working out and keeping his timing down, he might participate."

Abreo was hit in the eye with a rock prior to the Snyder ballgame Sept. 16, and the doctors gave him an okay to begin practicing again "on a limited basis."

Oklahoma rises to top of pack

By the Associated Press

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, who asked newsmen a week ago not to vote his team No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll, got his wish today.

The Wolverines, who squeaked past Navy 14-7 after struggling to beat equally-unheralded Duke 21-9, dropped to third place in this week's poll behind Oklahoma and Southern California.

Oklahoma, the preseason leader, surrendered the top spot to Michigan for the first two weeks of the season but climbed from third place back to No. 1 by nipping Ohio State, last week's No. 4 team, 29-28.

The Sooners received 23 first-place votes and 1,164 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

Southern Cal, a 51-0 winner over Texas Christian, actually received one more first-place ballot than Oklahoma but the Trojans only totaled 1,116 points to remain No. 2.

Then came Michigan with eight first-place votes and Class 3A powerhouses Gregory-Portland and Mount Pleasant spent last weekend trying to outdo each other against Class 4A competition Gregory-Portland won.

Although Mount Pleasant, ranked No. 1 in 3A last week, edged 4A Nacogoches 6-5, Gregory-Portland massacred 4A Kingsville 70-13 and moved from No. 2 into the throne room this week.

It was the only shake-up of top-ranked teams as Sherman in 4A, Bellville in 2A, Seagraves in A and Wheeler in B, maintained their No. 1 rankings.

Stafford Dulles earned a No. 8 ranking in 4A this week after upsetting Brazoswood 24-13. Galveston Ball, No. 10 last week, dropped from the top 10 after a one-week stay. Longview, up to No. 7 this week, edged Ball 17-13.

Ennis was the lone casualty in 3A, losing to McKinney 17-0. Dickinson moved into the 3A to replace Ennis as the No. 10 team.

Class 3A Fort Stockton whipped No. 3 ranked 2A Kermit 34-1, knocking Ennis out of the top 10. Slaton, 4-0, replaced Kermit in the No. 10 spot.

Class 4A emerged as a disaster area after five ranked teams were defeated in games last week and only one of the losers remained in the poll this week.

Fifth-ranked Grapeland fell to 10th after a 24-0 loss to

Switzer admits to Lott dependency

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer conceded Monday that his offensive team is heavily dependent on junior quarterback Thomas Lott.

The top-ranked Sooners, with Lott at the helm of their wishbone offense, rolled over Ohio State in the first quarter last Saturday, but faltered when he left the game with an injury in the second quarter. Oklahoma had to come from behind for a 29-28 victory.

"The first quarter, offensively, we played as well as we have all year," Switzer said. "After that we lost all consistency, rhythm and confidence."

"If Lott hadn't got hurt we might have won by two or three touchdowns. When Lott turns up field he'll get three, four yards after getting hit. That's the difference."

Steer tennis team wins second in row

The BSHS tennis team won their second outing in as many tries Saturday as they upended visiting Snyder. The Steer boys team posted an impressive 11-2 win, while the girls team thumped their opponents 9-4. Head Coach Wendell Sadler was extremely pleased with a strong beginning in the young fall season.

Winners for the boys in singles were Barry Fish, Craig McMahon, Nick Williams, Wasi Syed, Bill Little, Dale Brown, and Brent Pearce. Doubles pairing scoring victories were Fish Williams, McMahon and Little, Stiegel and Smith, and Syed and Brown.

Nick Williams turned in his second straight win of the season as he crushed his Snyder opponent 6-4, 6-0. The captain of the squad and number one singles player, Barry Fish, also scored an impressive victory, 6-4 and 6-1.

Coach Deanna Adams' girls team winners were Toni Cline, Susan McMurray, Kelli Bryans, Joni Cline, Cindy Jones, and Lori Hicks. All six of these girls scored easy wins over their opponents. Victories in doubles included McMurray and Bryans, Carlile and Jones, and the twin sister combination of Toni and Joni Cline.

The BSHS netters will continue on their road to victory as they travel to Seminole on Tuesday and to Sweetwater on Saturday. They will be looking to keep their undefeated record intact on these trips.

No QBC meet

Local football boosters are reminded that there will be no meeting of the Big Spring Quarterback Club tonight.

The meetings will resume next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Big Spring High School cafeteria, when a film will be shown on the Abilene-Big Spring game.

Oakland has leg up in NFL

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ray Guy gives the Oakland Raiders a leg up on the rest of pro football, says Coach Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

'Bum' pleased

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips said Monday his team's offensive performance is improving after a lackluster regular season start.

The Oilers offensive line was a pleasant surprise for Phillips during preseason contests, but the level of performance dropped with the beginning of the games that count.

"We're playing a lot better football players than we did in the preseason," Phillips said.

ROOKIE DORSETT HAS BRILLIANT DAY FOR DALLAS — Million dollar rookie Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys glides past New York's Brian Kelley in first half action between Cowboys and Giants. Dorsett scored his first two pro touchdowns in helping the Cowboys win 41-21.

Tech fish QB will join team

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Freshman quarterback David Stone will make the trip to North Carolina when his Texas Tech team takes on the Tar Heels Saturday.

Stone is a replacement for Rodney Allison, who broke a small leg bone Saturday and will be out four to six weeks.

The freshman signal-caller will back up junior Tres Adams, who will start at quarterback for Tech against North Carolina.

Baylor juggles

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Injuries prompted Baylor Coach Grant Teaff to juggle assignments in preparation for Saturday's game against Houston.

Offensive tackle Greg Zulkowski has moved to nose guard and Davis Seaborn will start at tailback to replace the injured Gary Blair.

Quarterback is still a question mark. Sammy Bickham apparently will start against Houston despite a dislocated finger.

Shepard rallies

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's junior varsity team rallied behind quarterback Darrell Shepard Monday in taking a 31-26 victory over Louisiana State.

Shepard passed for one touchdown and ran for a second.

Allen Polk scored twice for the Cougars on runs of 14 and four yards.

Cleveland was hungry for win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns Coach Forrest Gregg watched intently during overtime as his team moved steadily toward the New England goal line.

Suddenly, defensive backfield coach Billy Kinard broke into his thoughts with a surprising suggestion.

"Why not get it?" Kinard said, referring to a field goal attempt.

Gregg gave it some thought, quarterback Brian Sipe tried to talk him out of it and — after the coach rejected Sipe's plea — Don Cockroft calmly booted a 35-yard field goal to give the Browns a 30-27 National Football League victory over the Patriots.

The Browns won the toss and received the kickoff in the fifth period. Sipe felt he had good reason to try to veto his coach, since he had directed the Browns from their own 29-yard line to New England's 17. It was second-and-nine when Cockroft connected on his third field goal of the see-saw game 4:45 into the extra period.

A crowd of 76,416 at Cleveland Stadium and a national television audience watched as Cockroft's kick stayed barely inside the right upright, giving Cleveland, 2-0, its second straight upset victory.

"I felt we have a field goal kicker who can get it through the uprights," Gregg explained.

Cockroft, whose second 37-yard field goal of the night had given the Browns a short-lived 27-24 lead with 55 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter, agreed enthusiastically with Gregg's decision.

"I was ready at 50 yards," he said. "I hit some 55-yards in practice."

New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks said, "I was not necessarily surprised by the field goal at that point. He was close enough to make it and they weren't risking a fumble or loss.

What made the loss more bitter for the Patriots, 1-1, was the fact they blew leads of 17-7 and 24-17. They got a new life when quarterback Steve Grogan moved the team 72 yards in six plays, setting up a tying 34-yard field goal by John Smith with no time remaining in regulation play.

"If we would have got the ball, we would have scored again. But Cleveland won the toss in overtime," said New England tight end Russ Francis, who caught one of Grogan's two scoring passes and lugged a 28-yard toss to Cleveland's 17 with just one second left in the fourth quarter.

The New York Yankees have it all figured out. If they win their remaining six games, it doesn't matter what the second-place Boston Red Sox do.

"We want to do it ourselves," second baseman Willie Randolph said after the Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-2 Monday night. "We don't want any help from anybody."

The Yankees have a 3 1/2-game edge over the Red Sox, who have seven games left to play after having Monday's contest against Toronto rained out. New York's "magic number" is four — any combination of Yankee victories and Boston losses totaling four — to capture its second straight American League East title.

"I can't worry about the Red Sox," said Yankee Manager Billy Martin. "I don't care if they win a doubleheader tomorrow as long as we win."

In the other AL game played Monday, Oakland crushed Kansas City 7-1. In the National League, Chicago downed Philadelphia 10-7.

Philadelphians' "magic number" remains at one.

Braves 12, Astros 10

Seventh-inning home runs by Jeff Burroughs and Gary Matthews snapped a tie and boosted Atlanta over Houston. Matthews also had a two-run homer in the second inning and Brian Asseltine added a solo shot. Jose Cruz and Bob Watson homered for the Astros.

Yankees want to do it themselves

Philadelphia 10-7, Atlanta beat Houston 12-10, Montreal defeated St. Louis 9-5 and San Francisco clobbered Los Angeles 9-1.

"Thank God for Sparky," said Yankee starter Mike Torrez, 17-13, after Lyle came on in the seventh to record his 26th save of the season and the 201st of his career.

New York scored two runs in the first inning when, with the bases loaded, Dave Kingman was hit by a pitch and Cliff Johnson was walked by loser Don Hood, 2-1. The Yankees got run-scoring singles from Thurman Munson in the fourth inning and Paul Blair in the seventh.

Cubs 10, Phillies 7

Home runs by Bobby Murcer, Greg Gross and Larry Bittner paced Chicago's 20-hit attack as the Cubs defeated Philadelphia, keeping the Phillies from clinching the NL East title.

Philadelphia's "magic number" remains at one.

Braves 12, Astros 10

Seventh-inning home runs by Jeff Burroughs and Gary Matthews snapped a tie and boosted Atlanta over Houston. Matthews also had a two-run homer in the second inning and Brian Asseltine added a solo shot. Jose Cruz and Bob Watson homered for the Astros.

Expos 9, Cardinals 5

Montreal erupted for four runs in the ninth to defeat St.

Louis. Gary Carter slammed a three-run homer in the seventh and added a two-run single in the ninth to spark the Expos. Gary Templeton had a two-run, inside-the-park homer for St. Louis.

Giants 9, Dodgers 1

Willie McCovey and Gary Thomasson slammed two-run homers and Ed Halicki, 15-12, backed his six-hit pitching with a solo shot as San Francisco crushed Los Angeles. The homer was McCovey's 27th of the season and 492nd of his career, one short of Lou Gehrig, who holds 12th place on the all-time list.

Coahoma, SJH split games

COAHOMA — The Coahoma and Stanton Junior Highs split a pair of games last week, with Stanton 7th grade taking 6-0 decision, and Coahoma's 8th grade outlasting Stanton 14-8.

In the 7th grade contest, SJH ran back the second half kickoff for the only points in that game. Benny Islis, Bruce Walker and Tom Orange were praised for defense by the Coahoma coach. John Wilson for CJH had 43 yards rushing.

Arnaldo Abrego and Gregg Harrington had touchdown runs of three and 38-yards respectively, and Vivian Garcia ran over a two-point conversion to lead CJH to victory. Troy VanNess and Tommy Shirley were credited with great defensive play.

Coahoma's 7th grade sports a 2-2 record, while the 8th grade stands at 2-1. Next game for CJH will be Thursday against Colorado City.

Cowboys beat Eagles, 22-0

The Pee Wee Cowboys ran roughshod over the Eagles Saturday, thumping out a 22-0 victory. Junior La Grande ran the opening kickoff back 60 yards to start the scoring.

La Grande, the cowboy work horse throughout the game, scored again with a one-yard run in the first period. Jimmy Belshe had the point after.

In the second quarter, Mark Johnson scored on a one-yard run and Charlie Ragan got the point after.

Two punts were blocked by the Cowboys and there were two fumbles for two turnovers in the game.

Ridin' fence

It was refreshing to have a new controversy this week.
After all, very little has been said lately about whether there are, or are not,
mosquitoes at the lake.
Then we've had the saga of Bert Lance. I think we are getting so ridiculous about our politicians that we are going to end up with some real crooks. We managed to make a big hubalaboo about Watergate and get everybody to quit or get locked up that was connected with phone tapping.
Now we've managed to get a resignation out of Lance for covering overdrawn checks. If we keep working real hard at making mountains out of all the mole hills, we're going to end up with a bunch of guys who have very carefully covered up all their real sins.
And believe me, that's
bad. I'm always scared to death of these puny, sinless people myself. There's probably lots of people who

The longest spit

with Marj Carpenter

hit a period in their life when they faced overdrawn checks. I'm guilty myself and am proud of all of you who are not.
The only good thing about Lance resigning is that I just couldn't keep Lance and Vance straight anyway. It kind of sounded like the gold dust twins.
But now we have a new issue. There was a tobacco spitting contest at the Howard County Fair. And the question is — who spat
second furthest?
Now that's the kind of
iss' you can get your teeth into — especially if you are chewing tobacco at the time.
The Ackerly Young
Farmers organization,
which is a go-ginning outfit,
sponsored the event.
They also sponsored the Jerry-Glower Show which was attended by around 2500 persons, and even though they took a big risk made a nice profit for their scholarship fund. They also sponsored the Washer pitching contest as well.

But they made the mistake
of sponsoring the tobacco spitting contest and that is an important issue which got bogged down.
Now everybody agreed that when Randall Moore
from Ackerly stepped up as the last contestant and spit 17 feet and one inch that he was the winner.
The question arose over second place. The judges of the Young Farmers announced that Bill Little of Big Spring was second with 16 feet and four inches and that Larry Shaw was 16 feet flat.
Now Larry contends he was second and that only
Randall outspat him.
However, I've seen Bill
Little throw spit wads and there's no question in my

Colorado City council considers street signs

COLORADO CITY — The city council meets tonight in a workshop session and will consider the purchase of new street signs.
New signs and poles were projected to cost a possible
$5,000 according to James
Campbell, city manager.
The money would come out of street bond funds.
The signs would be green
with white lettering.
Colorado City has 300 intersections needing signs and they need 150 new poles.
In other items, the council will consider an audit contract with Joe Morren, CPA and consider payment to Mitchell County Utility Co.
for cemetery improvements
at a cost of $10,904.70.
Also on the agenda is a

Houston woman charged in death of daughter

HOUSTON (AP) — Cora Mae Peterson, 37, kept repeating, "The lamb is slain," a neighbor said, while they waited for the police.
When police arrived, they found the body of Mrs.
Peterson's 7-year-old
adopted daughter, Demeterica G. Peterson, on the den floor of the Peterson's home.
The child, dressed in a blue print dress, had been stabbed more than 20 times
with a six-inch kitchen knife.
Mrs. Peterson was being held in city jail charged with murder in the Sunday slaying of the child. No bond was set.
Juvenile Detective Shelia
Wilcox said Mrs. Peterson made a statement admitting the slaying but said God told her to do it.
"She quotes scriptures,"
the detective said. "She said
God had no condemnation toward her because He told her to do it... for the sins of the world."
Sgt. David Sitz quoted
Mrs. Peterson as saying
"whatever is removed from the world will be returned twice fold by God."
He said she told investigators, the child, whom they called "Cookie" was spraying air freshener in the den when the stabbing occurred.
Geneva Young, a neighbor, said she heard Mrs.
Peterson's husband, Lester, 27, screaming and crying
and she went to investigate.
She said Peterson was crying, "Oh my poor baby,
I've got no more baby."
Then Mrs. Peterson came out of the house, Mrs. Young said, and she asked Mrs.

Five escape
from La Tuna
EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Five men escaped from the federal prison at La Tuna tied together, officials said.

identified as Manuel Fernandez of Fort Worth; Otis
Woodring of Oklahoma,
Apolinar Macias-Diaz of El Paso, and two Mexican nationals — Jesus Enriquez-
