Senate routs energy tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today completed its rout of President Carter's proposed energy taxes, voting 13 to 4 to kill the biggest proposed energy-saver in the President's plan.

That vote rejected a House-passed provision designed to save up to 1.25 million barrels of oil a day by levying a stiff tax on industries and utilities that use oil and natural gas.

However, the committee then began considering a proposal by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the panel, that could result in all the President's proposed energy taxes being revived by a Senate-House conference committee.

The effect of that plan, if approved by the full Senate, would be for conferees to negotiate between the taxes passed by the House and the no-tax action of the Senate.

The Finance Committee earlier had rejected Carter's proposals to levy taxes on gas inefficiency cars and a tax on crude oil aimed at forcing conservation by raising domestic oil prices to world levels.

Long said his plan was the only way Congress could complete action on energy taxes before Christmas. "I see no alternative... It's going to have to be written in conference," he said.

The Senate was working on Carter's energy plan when talks opened today between negotiators for the coal industry and the United Mine Workers on a new contract to replace the pact expiring Dec. 6. An industry-wide strike is likely when the current pact expires but it is expected to be brief.

The full Senate was hoping to complete action today on the electric utility provisions of Carter's energy proposals. The Senate was expected to go along with an energy committee recommendation to ditch Carter's plan to force utilities to revise their rate structures.

They added a provision to the bill Wednesday night requiring utilities to offer cheaper rates to senior citizens, a step sponsors said would mean a reduction of about 40 per cent in the electric bills of persons over 62.

Floor action was also planned on an effort by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., to bypass the Finance Committee altogether on the issue of crude oil taxes.

His proposal would lift federal price controls on some oil while putting a higher price ceiling on the remainder.

Johnston said he may offer the proposal today as an amendment to the electric utility bill.

He says his measure would drive up gasoline prices less than one cent a gallon, compared to the seven-cent-a-gallon increase under the Carter plan.

HALF AND HALF — Lights still burn in downtown Boston, left, as a power outage leaves the Back Bay area in darkness Wednesday night. The blackout affected some of Boston's largest buildings, including the John Hancock Tower, tall building at center, and the Prudential Center at right.

Short circuit sparks blackout

BOSTON (AP) — Electric company officials blamed a short circuit in a substation for a power failure that blackened a 30-block downtown area for about 3½ hours.

Police reported no looting or other disturbances due to the outage, which began just before 10 p.m. Wednesday and ended early today.

The blackout cut service to about 30,000 customers.

It darkened Kenmore Square, the Back Bay section, the Copley Square area including the large Prudential Center commercial and residential complex, the John Hancock Tower and the nearby South End.

A Boston Edison Co. spokesman said power was returned to the Prudential Center, Hancock and Kenmore Square areas by about midnight.

Resumption of power to the Back Bay and South End areas was delayed by a minor explosion in the Carver Street substation that occurred while repairmen were returning it to service.

Boston Edison said the short circuit occurred in an underground generating unit in South Boston.

Police sent special tactical officers to the blackout areas.

"People seem to be taking it calmly," said Sgt. Paul Conway, who is in charge of police communications.

No lead in murder of 'prophetic' girl

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities say they have no leads in the apparent abduction-slaying of 12-year-old Suzie Magee, who had written an apparently prophetic essay about a kidnaping and slaying of a young girl.

The body of the Denton seventh grade honor student, who had been missing since Sept. 25, was found Tuesday floating in a water-filled gravel pit in a remote section of South Dallas.

Using dental records, officials identified the body Wednesday.

Authorities, awaiting results on further tests to determine how the girl died, declined to officially call the case a homicide. But detectives from Dallas and Denton, FBI agents and a Texas Ranger met Wednesday to exchange files and establish procedures for the case.

Suzie's father, Del Magee, said Wednesday that he was "very numb, but somewhat relieved at the confirmation."

The badly decomposed body was found Tuesday afternoon by two women fishing at the pit. The body was clad in blue jeans and a Dallas Cowboy T-shirt — the outfit Suzie was wearing when she was seen talking to a long-haired man at a Denton fast food restaurant Sept. 25.

Fire department divers searched Wednesday for almost three hours in the muddy water of the pit, but found no clues, police said.

Several days before the apparent abduction Suzie wrote an essay about the kidnap-slaying of a girl she called Shelly.

Police and family members discounted the essay as coincidental and recalled that the girl had also written an essay called "Hello, I'm Suzie" in which she told of her happy, peaceful home life.

Posters bearing the headline "Abducted" and Suzie's picture were posted throughout the town.

Building permit filed for new funeral home

A building permit was issued 1 p.m. Wednesday for construction of the $260,000 Sheppard Funeral Home at 600 E. FM 700.

The brick building will measure 154 feet by 111 feet. Ground breaking ceremonies will be held 10 a.m. Friday with Ambassadors and city officials in attendance.

City gets new green pumper

A brand new big green machine was delivered to the Big Spring Fire Department today.

The machine is a lime green, 1977 Mack 1,250 gallon pumper truck, which was purchased by the city for $89,896.

"This will be a real asset to the department. It carries a lot more water than our other trucks, and it has all the latest equipment," said Fire Chief Alvie Harrison.

According to the chief, it will take about a week to completely rig the truck and to install all the paraphernalia that comes with it. Breaking with tradition, all new fire trucks will be painted light green because the color is so much more visible at night and under highway lights, said the chief.

LOCAL MAN ON COVER — This ferocious-looking Army paratrooper on the cover of the U.S. News and World Report is actually a Big Spring man, 21-year-old Sgt. Gregory K. Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Forshee, 1310 Lexington.

Big Springer makes cover of magazine

A Big Spring man has accomplished something usually reserved for presidents, kings, and movie stars. He has his picture on the cover of a major news magazine.

Sgt. Gregory K. Spencer, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Forshee, 1310 Lexington, Big Spring, appeared on the cover of the Oct. 10 issue of U.S. News and World Report, illustrating an article on defense.

Sgt. Spencer, stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C., is a paratrooper in the 82nd Airborne Division of the U.S. Army.

Mrs. Forshee said that her son was selected to appear on the cover of the magazine after he wrote an article which was well-liked. It wasn't the article which appeared in the magazine, however.

Mrs. Forshee said, "He was very proud of the picture, and called me as soon as he found out about it."

She also said that he joined the 82nd Airborne Division as a paratrooper because his father fought in the division as a paratrooper during the Korean War. Sgt. Spencer's father, Marion K. Spencer, is now deceased.

Sgt. Spencer graduated from Big Spring High School in 1974 and joined the Army in May 1974.

U.S. News and World Report is a weekly magazine, published in Washington, D.C., with a circulation of more than two million.

Action/reaction: Not charged

Q. Why didn't the Big Spring Herald run the names of the two hold-up men of the drug stores in Wednesday evening's newspaper? Two radio stations gave the names on their news. Aren't you people supposed to give us the full hard information?

A. The Big Spring Herald has a policy that it will not run the names of persons committing crimes until they are charged with the crime. This is a policy standard of responsible newspapers across the nation, said Publisher J. Tom Graham. Despite what may have been reported, the charges against the two men had not been filed on Wednesday. As of 10 a.m. today, the charges still had not been filed. Graham said that while other news agencies may set what standards they choose, the Herald will not run names until the charge is filed. Graham said the newspaper feels this is an important part of protecting an accused individual's rights.

Offbeat: Sugar can stay

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Sugar, a rooster who can ride bicycles and skateboards, won't have to go away after all.

The city council partially lifted a ban on chickens in residential neighborhoods so 17-year-old Janet Harris can keep her 9½-pound Plymouth Rock.

Some neighborhood boys gave him to her about 15 months ago. In addition to his knack for perching on moving bikes and skateboards, Sugar can do all of the things that other roosters can do — like crow at the sun.

"Sugar is not only giving our family pleasure, but he gives the whole community pleasure, except in the morning when he crows," said Janet's mother.

The revised ban allows residents who already have chickens to keep them, upon approval of the community development director.

Spanish poet wins Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1977 Nobel Prize for Literature was awarded today to Spanish poet Vicente Aleixandre.

The Swedish Academy awarded the prize to Aleixandre, born in 1898 in Seville, "for a creative poetic writing, which, with roots in the traditions of Spanish lyric verse and in modern currents, illuminates man's condition in the cosmos and in present-day society."

Aleixandre belongs to the same group of Spanish writers as Federico Garcia Lorca. But, like Italian poet Eugenio Montale, who won the 1975 prize, he is not widely known outside his homeland. The last Spaniard to win it was Jacinto Benavente in 1922.

The prize's cash award this year is $145,000.

On Wednesday the 18-member academy suddenly disclosed that the winner of the literature prize would be announced within 24 hours, breaking long tradition. The literature prize in the past usually was announced after other Nobel prizes.

Last year's literature winner was American novelist Saul Bellow.

Aleixandre had not even been mentioned in advance speculation about the 1977 award winner. In winning the prize he bettered such well-known authors as Doris Lessing of Britain, Guenther Grass of West Germany and Gabriel Garcia Marquez of Colombia.

The 79-year old poet first gained notice with the poems "Ambito" in 1928. This was followed by "Espadas como Labios" — "Swords as Lips" — in 1932, and two years later he was awarded Spain's top literary prize.

In 1935, shortly before the Spanish civil war broke out, Aleixandre's "La Destruccion o el Amor" — "Destruction or Love" — was published in Spain and later the same year "Pasion de la Tierra" — "Passion of the Earth" — in Mexico. Both works were carefully censored free verse, the latter changing to prose poems.

Jorge Luis Borges, Argentina's most noted author, said today the selection of Aleixandre was "very good news."

Charges near in robbery

Charges against two armed robbers arrested Wednesday in Big Spring have not yet been processed by the District Attorney's office, although the complaints had been submitted by Lt. Avery Falkner today.

According to police officials, a great deal of paperwork was involved in compiling reports and supplemental information in the case. All reports were finally completed by 11 a.m. today, and submitted to the District Attorney's office by Lt. Avery Falkner shortly thereafter.

According to Assistant District Attorney Don Richard, the complaints are on his desk, but have not yet been read by District Attorney Rick Hamby.

The pair are meanwhile being held in municipal jail under $100,000 bond each. The bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

Toy rattle kills infant

Tragedy struck the Felix Garza family of Lenorah Wednesday when 10-month-old Samuel Garza choked to death on a piece of a toy rattle.

The baby was brought into Malone-Hogan Hospital just after 9 p.m. unable to breathe. A doctor there reportedly found a piece from a rattle about the size of a marble lodged in the child's throat.

Services will be held at 4 p.m. Friday in the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church with the Rev. Bernard Gulley officiating. Burial will be in a Big Spring cemetery under the direction of River-Welch Funeral Home.

He was born Dec. 6, 1976 in Stanton. Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Garza, Lenorah; one brother, Felix Garza Jr., of the home; one sister, Melissa Garza, of the home; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Florencio Garza, Lenorah; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Isabel Sanchez, Corpus Christi; maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Evrista Sanchez, Alice.

PROUD LADIES — Some of the Garden Club presidents take it upon themselves to pick up the trash which unthinking citizens hurl into the planter boxes and the downtown parking areas. Oscar Glickman and Dr. Otto Wolfe look on approvingly. Trying to help clean up the downtown area are Mrs. Tommy Hart, Mrs. Clyde Thomas, Mrs. Odell Womack and Mrs. Tommy Hubbard. They plead with local citizens to take more pride in the community's appearance.

CHUTZPAH — Last February, housewife Rachel Borden, Philadelphia, Pa., began making phone calls for people for $5 a call. Her Chutzpah Phone Service now offers chutzpahgrams and chocolate cream chutzpah pies in the face, for $25 and up. She says the entire operation now nets her about $250 a week.

Pie's the limit, she says

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What heights chutzpah? Rachel Borden, creator of the Chutzpah Phone Service, says the pie's the limit.

The Philadelphia housewife who last year began making phone calls for people for $5 now hand-delivers chutzpah pies to the face of your choice for $25 and up.

"I've thrown several at ex-boyfriends, you know, like when girls want them thrown at their ex-boyfriends. I do the throwing. I do everything. I love it," said the 30-year-old mother of two.

"People can pick their flavor, but everybody so far has picked chocolate cream pie. I've thrown about eight. The worst thing that happened to me was when a guy threw one back at me," she said.

Chutzpah is a Yiddish word for gall, and Mrs. Borden showed she had it when she began the phone service last February. For $5, she'll chastize your mother-in-law, prod your boss for a raise or play cupid.

About 2½ months ago, Mrs. Borden added chutzpahgrams to her repertoire, written messages, also hand-delivered for $25 and up, depending on delivery technicalities.

"About four weeks ago I delivered one at Veterans Stadium. I hopped over the fence in the middle of the seventh inning. The message was for Mike Schmidt, but he wasn't playing, so I gave it to Richie Hebner instead.

"It was a get-well message from a fan who paid me $100 to deliver it. Richie Hebner was really sweet about it. He was such a pussycat," she said of the 6-foot-1, 200-pound Philadelphia Phillies first baseman.

The phone service began, at the urging of Mrs. Borden's husband, Gene, who suggested that since she liked talking on the phone so much she might as well make money doing it.

Mrs. Borden said she has made about $8,000 to date, including $2,000 for selling rights to use the name Chutzpah Phone Service to a Dallas housewife and a New York City attorney.

'Black bag jobs' by FBI

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents investigating organized crime have placed illegal wiretaps and then used the information gathered from them in false affidavits presented to federal courts at times during the past five years, the New York Times reported in its editions today.

In a report from Washington, the newspaper quoted "key law enforcement sources" as saying the illegal activities included illegal entries or "black bag jobs," and were known to some lawyers in the Justice Department's organized crime section, but were not criticized or investigated.

However, the Times said the department has been investigating similar practices by agents in internal security cases for the past 16 months. As a result, according to the newspaper, a former FBI official has been indicted.

Robert Havel, a spokesman for the Justice Department, said that Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell "knows nothing about such allegations," the Times said.

For the record

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The editors of the Herald are anxious to correct any errors of fact or accept any amplifications on stories which appear in the pages of the newspaper.)

In the County Court Filings which ran Wednesday, October 5, it was mistakenly reported that Rosa De La Garza was filed on in County Court for assault. This was not the case. De La Garza was actually the woman who filed a complaint against Joanne Cerda for assault against her daughter, Mary Jane De La Garza, on September 22.

The Herald mistakenly reported that Baxter Moore graduated from the University of Texas June, 1974. He is actually graduated from the University of Texas in August 1968. Moore is a new assistant cashier at State National Bank.

Roloff must get state licenses

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff must get state licenses for his three South Texas children's homes, even though he claims it would violate his religious beliefs, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The court said there was "no question as to the sincerity (of Roloff's) religious beliefs," but the statute specifically prohibits intrusion of a state agency into matters of religion in its regulation of children's homes.

The law says, "Nothing in this act shall give any governmental agency jurisdiction or authority to regulate, control, supervise or in any way be involved in the form, manner or content of any religious instruction or the curriculum of a school sponsored by a church or religious organization."

The court noted Roloff's assertion in the trial court about "conflicts that I cannot conscientiously go by and go by my Bible at the same time," but said, "... we hold that the testimony is nothing more than a bald conclusion entirely unsupported by any factual evidence from which a jury could draw a differing conclusion."

The case was argued before the court on June 30. Roloff told reporters afterward he would appeal an adverse decision to the highest court. "There must be justice somewhere," he said.

Today's ruling was a "per curiam (for the court)" opinion, which means it contains no new law and is not signed by a particular judge. Judges on courts of civil appeals are elected.

OU-Texas ducats going for $200

DALLAS (AP) — How fleeting is fame and how soon they forget.

Larry Richardson, program director of a Sherman radio station, has offered to trade a 12-hour taped special of Elvis Presley Story for four "good" tickets to the Texas-Oklahoma game Saturday.

Notakers. The Cotton Bowl has been sold out since June 6, just the way it was sold out the year before, and the years before, to the privileged few 72,000 with enough foresight to buy the tickets many, many moons ago.

From now until Saturday, it is open season on anyone with a fat wallet.

Scalping is legal in Texas and with both Texas and Oklahoma high in the national rankings and with no television for the game, the market is a seller's market.

You can tell it is a seller's market when advertisements in local newspapers change from "will buy" or "need tickets" to "DESPERATELY NEED. WILL PAY TOP DOLLAR."

Tickets today were going for anywhere from $65 to $200.

Lions succeeding in caring of others

Lions International was created on the concept of caring about other people, and it has succeeded admirably in that respect.

Horsemen have playday. The Howard County Youth Horsemen Club will sponsor an open play day Saturday at the arena on the Garden City Highway.

Registration begins at 4 p.m. with play beginning at 5 p.m.

Events include western pleasure, barrel racing, pole bending, ring or potato race, followed by some crazy events of the contestant's choice.

The entry fee is 50 cents per event. Coinciding with the playday will be the presentation of candidates for junior and senior youth of the Howard County Youth Horsemen. Voting on these candidates will also take place at the playday.

Disliked supervisors help union organizers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Union organizers have their easiest pickings where intermediate supervisors are neither liked nor respected, a national labor leader says.

Murray Finley, vice-president of the AFL-CIO and president of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, spoke at the University of Texas graduate business school.

"Union organization is much more difficult at a plant where the supervisors are respected by the employees," said Finley.

He said economic issues are only part of the picture as far as unions are concerned.

"Treatment on the job is just as important," he said. Finley, a Northwestern University law graduate, said more and more labor leaders come from "academia" as opposed to the workshops, and "I don't know if that's bad or good."

He added that much of the bitterness between management and labor can be avoided.

"Inflation worries, pensions, hospital costs and welfare issues are joint problems to be shared by management and labor groups," Finley said.

Death signs sprout

NEW HOPE, Minn. (AP) — "You Are Next," "Maybe You" were the ominous messages in black spray paint on two houses in the middle-class suburban neighborhood where a young newlywed was stabbed to death.

Susan Rosenthal, 29, was found dead of multiple stab wounds — perhaps as many as 13 — in the kitchen of her one-story home on a quiet dead-end street, authorities said.

The warning, "There Are More" was painted on the kitchen wall. The writing matched the signs on the outside of two neighboring houses, police said. Prior to the killing Tuesday, nobody could remember so much as a burglary occurring in their peaceful block of $60,000 to $70,000 homes in this Minneapolis suburb.

On Wednesday, dozens of children gathered at the Rosenthal house trying to get a peek inside. Sight-seers cruised by regularly. Some parents kept children indoors and many neighbors were double-locking doors.

The first neighbors knew of the killing was when one saw two policemen running, pistols drawn, from the Rosenthal house.

Mrs. Rosenthal's body was discovered by a sister who was concerned because she had not shown up at the downtown office where she worked as a paralegal assistant.

Two treated after wreck

Marlon Cohen, 24, and Richard Lawrence, 27, both from Richmond, Va. were treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital Wednesday night, after their car rolled over on IS-20.

Trooper David Jones worked the accident. He reported that Lawrence apparently said he fell asleep at the wheel of the car as he drove west at 12:43 a.m.

Confederate Air Force kicks off 'Airshow '77'

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The roar of vintage World War II piston-powered aircraft will be intermingled with the whine of modern-day jets this afternoon as the Confederate Air Force kicks off 'Airshow '77.'

The CAF, a South Texas based organization dedicated to restoring and flying World War II planes, expects more than 250,000 persons to attend the four-day show.

Last year, the CAF affair attracted international attention for its re-enactment of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima.

The re-enactments of famous World War II air battles are scheduled again this year but the Hiroshima bombing has been dramatically altered.

A B-29 Superfortress, billed by the CAF as the only plane of its kind still in flying condition, will be flown again this year by Paul Tibbets, the man who commanded the Aug. 6, 1945 bombing of Hiroshima, but the atomic bomb simulator that produced last year's controversial mushroom-shaped cloud has been deleted.

The Hiroshima re-enactment highlighted last year's show and sparked protests from Japanese officials.

On Aug. 22, the CAF announced the Hiroshima re-enactment would remain unchanged but after a Sept. 2 meeting in Washington with congressional, state and defense department officials, the CAF reversed its decision.

"The decision to omit the A-bomb (simulation) was made solely on the basis of defense and national security considerations as outlined by Department of Defense officials," said Lloyd Nolen, one of the CAF's founders. "No pressure or threats of government retaliation were made by the DOD."

"However, the State Department did indicate that the government could not support the original CAF program and could not agree to support federal participation and other DOD support could be withdrawn."

"The objections of the Japanese were not a factor in this decision," continued Nolen. "Considering the unprovoked events of Dec. 7, 1941, it might be difficult for the men of the CAF to find concern for Japanese sensitivities to the events of Aug. 6, 1945."

Attractive signs point the way

One of the best things accomplished in Big Spring in many a moon is the new tourist signs which have been put up all over town.

I have heard so many favorable comments on this recent action by the Council on Tourism, headed by City Councilman Ralph McLaughlin.

The signs are so attractive, so professionally done and so well placed that they lend to Big Spring the atmosphere of a tourist resort, which indeed we are to a minor extent.

But the thing that most amazed me about the signs is that they were entirely done locally. Architect Daryle Hohertz did the teepee design which is so eye-catching.

City Councilman Harold Hall provided the pipe. The multi-talented Bill Brooks made the signs, much of them from city wood, and city employees put them up.

RARELY DOES A town see such a display of local talent, and it reminds me how many people assets Big Spring has to draw upon.

It was McLaughlin and the Tourism Council, however, that provided the impetus for the new signs.

McLaughlin says the council was determined to have the signs — no matter what the obstacles or the cost.

But the cost is the most amazing thing of all. Thanks mainly to the project being an entirely local one, the price tag is going to turn out unbelievably low.

If someone had told me the project cost $10,000, I wouldn't have batted an eye.

While all the bills are not yet in, McLaughlin says the cost range will likely be between $900 to $1,300.

McLAUGHLIN says the Tourism Council is still open to suggestions on where to place the signs. While they seem to be almost everywhere as they point directions to the coliseum, the parks, and other points of interest in Big Spring, McLaughlin thinks there may still be a few more locations where such a sign would be appropriate.

The location subcommittee was co-chaired by Mrs. Polly Mays, mayor pro tem, and Mrs. Janelle Davis, with quite a bit of help from Mrs. Roscoe Cowper.

The people of Big Spring are obviously proud of the signs. Even the vandals appear to be leaving them alone.

Congratulations to the Tourism Council and all the many others who had a hand in this most successful of projects.

3D experience

Around the rim

James Werrell

Tonight is the last night to see "Andy Warhol's Frankenstein" at the R-70; a mixed blessing.

One should be immediately suspicious of a movie called "Andy Warhol's Frankenstein" when the small print informs that it is a "film by Paul Morrissey." Morrissey is Warhol's protege from the days of "Trash" and later "Dracula."

If my memory serves me correctly, Warhol himself had little to do with the actual making of this movie. But his spirit is in it, and that's what counts.

Who else but Warhol (or one of his followers) would choose in this day and age to make a movie in 3-D? Warhol's world is one of Polaroid cameras, soup cans, TV, and TV dinners.

So the choice to use 3-D, a pinnacle of sorts in the pop culture, is really no surprise. And 3-D is an experience right from the start.

When you get your ticket, the vendor gives you a little plastic bag containing your pair of special 3-D viewing glasses. Friend Pearl had the presence of mind to suggest that we turn around and look at the audience during the movie.

We did, and there sat a large group of people wearing these wild black-framed glasses that made them all look like Ray Charles. This was at least as interesting as the movie, and an image I am sure crossed the minds of those who made this film: "You think we look ridiculous up here on the Screen, you should see yourselves."

The film itself is just a conglomeration of the finest in the pop-horror cliches; grotesque violence leaving a trail of guts across the screen, a bit of kinky sex and several unrecognizable Germanic accents.

The plot in a nutshell: Baron Frankenstein has created a girl zombie and needs the head of a lusty male to put on his male zombie so that the male zombie can impregnate the girl zombie and begin the perfect Serbian race.

Meanwhile the baron's wife, who is also his sister, has taken up with a common farm hand (who has a Brooklyn accent) who is worried because his best friend who wanted to become a monk now has stitches in his neck and is seven inches taller.

Much of the monk goings-on were extremely boring, which was no real surprise either. In his earlier days Warhol made a film called "Sleep" which was just that; eight hours of a man sleeping.

But some of it was pretty funny. Unfortunately the most memorable line in the picture cannot be printed here.

The 3-D was somewhat headachey except for a few special effects. At one point, bats were actually flying over row three. Really, no kidding!

This is the film's greatest asset and its greatest weakness. There is literally no suspense in the plot and the dialogue is mundane.

You just sit there waiting to see what kind of eye-popper they will throw at you next.

But nonetheless, it is a painless experience, especially if you are in the mood for a pop phenomenon. And you also get those neat glasses.

(Reagan stood in front of the mirror wearing his and singing "Georgia On My Mind" for three straight hours the next day.)

Who needs SALT?

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The State Department is seriously thinking of sending a team of American technicians to Egypt to repair its Soviet MIG-21 fighter planes. It appears that Egypt's air force is in a shambles and, since the country is feuding with the Soviet Union, the Egyptians have turned to the United States for help in getting the MIGs off the ground.

The incident shows you what a crazy, mixed-up world we're living in. Many countries that have been armed by the Soviets and the United States have switched allegiance after getting military aid. Former American allies are now in the Soviet camp, and countries once dependent on the Soviet Union for weapons are now staunch friends of the United States.

The only problem is that their military machinery doesn't work.

The answer to the problem might be that, instead of the United States and Russia going for SALT talks, we might work out an exchange program where our technicians could be trained to repair Soviet equipment, and their technicians could come to this country and learn how to fix American hardware.

Also, a hot line could be set up between the two countries so that when an American mechanic gets stuck he could call his Soviet counterpart and ask him what to do.

It would work like this: Suppose the American technician is thrown by a MIG-21 engine problem. He would dial a toll-free number in Moscow and ask for the MIG engine expert.

"I'm having trouble with the oil filter on the left pod," the American would say. "The threads don't seem to screw into the manifold."

"Is simple, Comrade. You have oil filter upside down. Try it the other way."

"Yes, it does work the other way. Thanks a lot."

"While I have you on the phone, Comrade, the rocket release on the F-5 planes you sold to Angola keeps getting stuck."

"What kind of grease are you using?"

"The GS-15 that came with the plane."

"Oh, for heaven's sake. That grease has been replaced with a B-112. It's in the new manual."

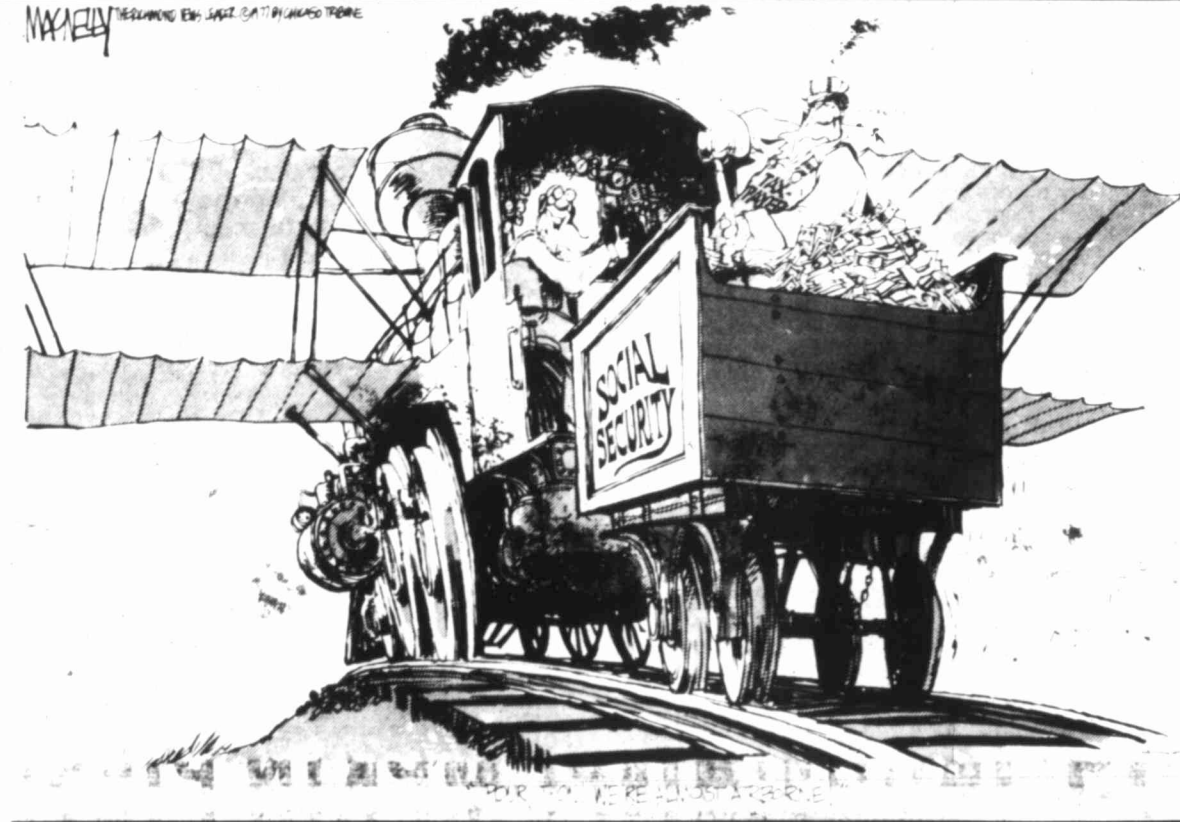

"We don't have the new manual, Comrade. Could you send us one?"

"Yes, if you tell me how to replace the MIG's high-pressure gauge in the heat-seeking missile component."

"That, as you Americans say, is a bitch. You have to take out entire front panel and readjust the rheostat, which is next to the altimeter light just below automatic pilot computer. But don't break the seal on the computer because it will send the MIG straight into the ground."

"That's good to know. Are you people okay on spare parts for the Grumman fighters we sold to Ethiopia?"

"Yes, Comrade, but we're short of spare fuselages for the C-130's you left in Vietnam."

Killed by own shells?

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The Army's most potent non-nuclear artillery shell may wind up killing some of our own soldiers.

The deadly rocket-assisted shell, fired by 155-mm howitzers, is designed to fragment into more than 30,000 particles, pelting its victims to death. But studies at the Army's Frankford Arsenal in Philadelphia indicate that the shell may rupture prematurely, our sources say.

Despite the test warnings, however, the Army brass remained so anxious for the high-fragmentation M-549 shell that it ordered the weapon into production. Tens of thousands of the shells have now been manufactured at the Army Ammunition Plant in Burlington, Iowa.

The problem is in the warhead, the metal-encased explosive that flies through the air. The metal must be brittle enough to fragment into thousands of particles. But this brittleness can cause the shell to rupture as it is being launched.

Experts consider it unlikely that the explosive in the warhead would go off too soon. But the blast that launches the shell could rupture the warhead's metal casing, killing anyone in the way of the particles.

Nor, according to our sources, is there any way to guarantee the shells are safe. Wrote one concerned expert: "Flaws cannot be detected consistently in the warhead by any existing means of inspection." Said another: "The metal is a problem."

Footnote: The Army vigorously defends the M-549 warheads, contending the Frankford arsenal studies indicated the inspection safeguards were "adequate." Some 35,000 shells are being released to the field. The Army said no injuries had occurred in connection with the shell.

INSIDE IRS: The nation's top 1,200 corporations have been placed in a special audit program, according to confidential IRS files. Some 15 per cent of these conglomerates are now being investigated by the IRS for criminal tax fraud.

This compares with less than one per cent of all ordinary taxpayers who are being probed by the IRS. The financial documents in the files of these 1,200 corporations and their 60,000 subsidiaries are so immense, say our sources, that the IRS agents can only audit samples of their tax returns.

And corporate tax experts, who earn twice as much as their government counterparts, outnumber the IRS agents by 10 to one. The conglomerates, therefore, are far more likely to get away with tax fraud and slush funds than the average citizen.

CORPORATE CONNECTION: The top trust-buster in Congress is still being paid by a New York law firm representing IBM, which the government has been suing for alleged antitrust violations.

David Boies, new chief counsel for the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, will receive substantial payments from his old law firm for the next 10 years. The payments from Cravath, Swain and Moore, where he personally represented IBM, will come from a general pool of income from clients.

Boies, therefore, will indirectly be getting money from IBM while his subcommittee is investigating the giant corporation. The firm has also represented such giants as Bethlehem Steel, Chemical Bank and Time, Inc.

Dear Editor, I'd like to say a few things about the Mennonites.

Pennsylvania was my home state and there has been a Mennonite community there for many years. These people are hard-working, God-fearing people who ask nothing they can't pay for themselves, even from the good Lord.

If He gave them good crops, they thank Him for the strength to work in the fields.

The Mennonites have suffered much religious persecution.

We in Texas protect our own and aren't these the kind of people that made the great state of Texas what it is today?

They only ask to be allowed to stay and work the land they bought and I hope we the people of Texas can help.

Since I've been in Texas, I've learned that Texans can do anything they really want to do.

Sincerely,

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I just can't understand what is wrong in my family. It seems like all we do is argue. I am a teenager, and my brother and I are the only ones who go to church. We get along well. —S.H.

DEAR S.H.: The Bible teaches that the family is not merely a unit of convenience. It is a gift from God, and yet, like so many of God's good gifts, it sometimes becomes a source of grief and unhappiness.

When does a family begin to fall apart? It begins when various members of the family insist on their own selfish ways. That is when arguing and bickering start. Love is lost, and each person is only concerned about himself.

If you know Jesus Christ as your Lord and Saviour, you are beginning to understand how Christ can heal human relationships. You are also beginning to understand that when God is neglected, chaos results. Let me suggest first that you pray for the other members of your family. Pray that they will see their own need of Christ and His love. Pray that they will come to know Him as Lord and Saviour. Pray for a specific way to witness to them.

In addition, be sure that your own example is helpful. Do not allow yourself to be drawn into the family arguments, but instead respond in love and kindness. "Live in harmony with one another; be sympathetic, love as brothers, be compassionate and humble. Do not repay evil with evil or insult with insult, but with blessing, because to this you were called so that you may inherit a blessing" (I Peter 3:8, 9 New International Version).

Glaucoma check

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 19-year-old daughter was checked for glaucoma and was told that she may have glaucoma. What causes this glaucoma, and what can be done? Should she get a second opinion? Will she have normal eyesight? —Mrs. J.V.

Most eye examinations include glaucoma tests routinely. This has resulted in the early discovery of many cases, leading to effective treatment.

Since glaucoma was mentioned, it would be wise to have an ophthalmologist confirm it so that treatment can begin. Basically glaucoma is an increased pressure within the eyeball. Untreated it can lead to blindness. There are about a million cases in the U.S. alone. If there's doubt other tests can confirm it.

Treatment is quite successful if begun early enough. It's quite simple. Eye drops help constrict the pupils, thus improving fluid drainage in the eye ducts.

Might be wise for both you and your husband and other family members to be checked for glaucoma. It tends to run in families.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You once spoke of toenail thickening and some medicine that can be used for it. I've forgotten what it was. Can you repeat it? —Mrs. L.S.

You didn't read it here, because I know of none. I have suggested soaking the feet to make the nails easier to cut. My booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems," may be of help. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. There's a section on grooming.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard about injections of bull sperm to help a person lose weight. It's supposed to burn up trapped fat cells. Do you know anything about this? —"Hopeful."

Heavens! Hope you don't place too much hope in this. Never heard of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are there physical characteristics that tell a doctor if a woman is going to have an easy delivery or a difficult one? I've always heard that things like widely-spaced hip bones make labor easier, but I consider them myths. —F.S.

Not necessarily. Measurement of the pelvic outlet is important. The size of the fetus and location of the placenta can be determined nowadays by ultra-sound techniques that do not damage tissue.

In most cases, the structures adjust to the birth process. The size of the fetus at various stages is matched with changes in the woman's body structure. Other factors more common in difficult labor are premature rupture of the membranes or sluggish uterine contractions. These are last-minute occurrences, not usually predetermined.

The factors to which you refer are determined long before the delivery date.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 22-year-old married female. I've been trying to get pregnant for 15 months. My doctor recommends fertility pills. He found that I am not ovulating on a regular basis. I have my periods about every three to four months.

What are the risks involved in taking these fertility drugs? Are there any side effects? How about birth defects in a baby that would be conceived in this manner? What are the odds of multiple births? —Mrs. R.J.

With the proper dosage of the fertility drug (Clomiphene), the risks and side effects are minimal. There may be pelvic discomfort, enlargement of ovarian cysts, headache, increased urination, and a heavier menstrual flow.

These effects were noted primarily among women taking larger doses of the drug during its experimental phase. When the recommended dosage is used over a five-day period, the side effects are infrequent and mild.

Two ex-Houston cops guilty of negligent homicide

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Two former Houston policemen, charged with murder in the slaying of a Mexican-American prisoner in their custody, were found guilty of negligent criminal homicide today by a state court jury.

Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, stood neatly dressed and displayed no emotion as Judge James Warren read the verdict returned after more than 16 hours of deliberation by the jurors. The two had been charged with murder in the May 5 drowning of Joe Campos Torres, a Houston laborer whose body was found in the Buffalo Bayou three days after his arrest by Denson and other officers during a bar disturbance.

Testimony showed that Campos Torres had been beaten severely before his body ended in the bayou. Defense attorneys argued Campos Torres willingly jumped into the bayou when officers tried to release him from custody while taunting him about throwing him in the water.

Most of the testimony came from three of the officers who accompanied Denson and Orlando the night of the arrest and who provided state evidence in exchange for immunity.

Immediately after the verdict was read in the Criminal Justice Center of Sam Houston State University, Orlando and Denson turned and walked toward the back entrance accompanied by their attorneys.

Judge Warren had warned the more than 200 spectators against any outbursts of emotion upon the reading of the verdict. There were no disturbances.

Mrs. Jose Campos Torres, mother of the victim, talked to newsmen after the verdict was announced and said in quiet anger:

"I am glad they were found guilty of something. But we want Orlando and Denson convicted of murder. If Jose (Joe) had killed one of those cops or if five Mexican-Americans had killed one cop, they they would all be on death row."

The two had been charged with murder. The guilty verdict as to criminal negligent homicide was one of the lesser charges the seven-woman, five-man jury could have returned.

Jurors began deliberations Tuesday afternoon. Jurors stopped deliberations about 10 p.m. Wednesday and resumed them today at 9 a.m.

Tender offer agreement

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge in Boise, Idaho, has dismissed Sunshine Mining Co.'s suit against Great Western United Co. after the two firms agreed on GWU's tender offer for Sunshine stock — ending nearly six months of legal battles.

The two companies agreed to dismiss, with prejudice, their claims and counter-claims. Idaho-based Sunshine and Dallas-based GWU said Wednesday.

One appeal in the court battles resulting from GWU's takeover of Sunshine is still pending in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

That litigation is an appeal of U.S. District Judge Robert Hill's recent ruling that Idaho's takeover statutes were unconstitutional.

The Idaho statute prohibited an out-of-state firm from buying up blocks of stock in an Idaho-based company without consent from that company's executive board.

The agreement, announced this week by the two companies, would include replacing three Sunshine executive board members with GWU officers.

The agreement was an apparent compromise to the final "friendly" tender offer made by GWU. Sunshine rejected that offer, and its legality was the question before the federal judge in Idaho.

The jury sent two notes Wednesday night to State District Judge James Warren, one asking about a typographical error in his charge to the panel and the other asking if the testimony of two other former policemen had been presented as evidence.

The judge said there was a typographical mistake in his charge, and that was quickly corrected. He also said the testimony of two other former officers had not been admitted as evidence.

Testimony in the month-long trial had revealed that Torres, 23, was arrested at a Houston bar for creating a disturbance three days before his body was found.

In his explosive final arguments, prosecutor Ted Poe stormed, "It makes me mad. It makes me angry and it makes me sad that those two men have tarnished the badge of every good policeman. They are wolves behind a badge. Joe Torres had his trial and it lasted only 58 minutes and these policemen were the judge, jury and executioners.

"Denson executed him. Joe Torres died only because he was a public drunk. Most policemen are good, but those two have made it harder for every other officer to do their job."

Defense attorneys Mike Ramsey and Bob Bennett finally argued along the lines of the defense they presented — that Torres either jumped from a 16-foot wall into the bayou or slipped and fell.

"When arrested, Torres was kicking, screaming and violent," Ramsey told the jury. "He tried to kick windows out of the police car. He was acting like a madman."

Key witnesses in the case included other former officers, dismissed after the incident and granted immunity in exchange for their testimony. Both admitted they took part in the beating of the handcuffed Torres.

Those officers said Torres was refused admittance at the jail after his arrest, and was then taken to the bayou where he was beaten.

Consumers pay too much for drugs not needed?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Too many Americans take drugs they do not need and don't know enough about, says the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He wants a "top-to-bottom, thorough overhaul" of government regulation of drugs.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said Wednesday he will begin revamping the Food and Drug Administration, but also urged Congress to rewrite the 40-year-old law which governs the agency. Califano said consumers often are not supplied enough information about drugs, both the prescription and over-the-counter varieties, and "our regulatory process itself is closed and secretive." The result, he said, is that too many consumers take drugs that do not help them. "Little dispute exists that much prescribing (of drugs) in this country is done for symptoms for which the drug is not recommended or is not effective," Califano told a luncheon sponsored by Public Citizen Forum, a consumer group. "Too often doctors automatically write, and patients automatically expect a prescription for every ailment. Unnecessary use at a minimum wastes money and contributes to already soaring medical costs," he continued. Califano said that since the law governing the FDA was enacted in 1938, sales in the drug manufacturing industry have grown from about $300 million to more than $7 billion a year. "Today, more than 1.5 billion prescriptions are written every year — an average of 5.7 prescriptions for every man, woman and child in the nation," he said.

And he said the growth of the industry and scientific developments which have resulted in the development of many new drugs have made the current law archaic. Califano said manufacturers should be required to disclose tests they make of drugs to assure that they are safe and effective. The results of such tests are withheld from the public on the grounds that "trade secrets" might be divulged. "Not only should the (test) data be public but decisions should be made in open proceedings to provide interested groups an opportunity to submit views and to participate before the FDA," Califano said.

Nationwide coal strike is likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal contract talks opened today with labor and management seeking a formula for ending wildcat strikes that have crippled eastern coal production and weakened the United Mine Workers union. UMW President Arnold Miller presented the union's laundry list of general bargaining goals that range from a call for $100-a-day pay to coverage of health and retirement benefits for Indian medicine men who treat miners in the Southwest.

Miller made no public statement before the negotiations got under way at a downtown hotel. But Joseph P. Brennan, the industry's chief negotiator, said in a lengthy statement that the survival of the union hinges on ending the labor turmoil in the coal fields. "If we do not come to grips with the problems of labor instability, wildcat strikes and the drop in productivity, UMW coal will continue to drop... and may even cease to be a major factor" in the U.S. coal industry, Brennan said.

A nationwide strike is likely when the union's current three-year contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association expires Dec. 6. But it is expected to be brief. Fear of a long and crippling shutdown has diminished in recent weeks and government officials believe a brief strike by the union's 170,000 working members would have little impact on the nation's energy needs this winter.

Today's session, held in a small room, was largely ceremonial. Industry and union bargaining teams will break into small committees and hard bargaining on major issues isn't expected for several weeks.

Many of the union's demands were mandated by the 1976 UMW convention. In addition to a substantial wage boost, they include 12 additional holidays, longer vacations, complete eye and dental care, a six-hour work day and abolition of compulsory overtime.

The major issue in the negotiations is expected to be the wildcat strikes that have plagued the industry since the last contract was signed in December 1974. The strikes have meant lost production and a depletion of employer-financed health and benefit funds for the miners.

Both sides are looking for a way to prevent the illegal strikes, which Brennan calls "industrial anarchy."

The last of the walkouts was a 10-week strike last summer. It was triggered by a sharp cutback in medical care benefits available to miners and their dependents through the UMW Health and Retirement Funds.

The funds, which are supported by royalties based on a combination of coal produced and hours worked, were drained by rising medical costs and a series of wildcat strikes earlier in the year.

Miller is demanding full restoration of benefits and improvements in the system for financing the funds. But the coal operators are expected to tie this issue to the strike problem.

Brennan has indicated that the industry will attempt to devise an incentive system for paying health and pension benefits based on the amount of time an individual works.

Warren G. Harding replaces Jesse James

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Warren G. Harding — not the one you're thinking of — has been appointed by Gov.olph Briscoe to succeed the late treasurer who won the name of an outlaw, Jesse James.

Briscoe announced the appointment Wednesday of Harding, Dallas County treasurer since 1950. The appointment is effective immediately.

James died of a heart attack last Thursday.

"The people of this state will be proud of the way I handle their money," a booming Harding said Wednesday in Dallas.

Harding, 56, ran a close second to James in 1956 and reportedly had been considering running for the post again even before James died.

Harding, a Democrat, is not kin to the Republican president by the same name who died in 1923 during a scandal-plagued administration — just as James wasn't kin to the infamous outlaw.

Harding will serve until Dec. 31, 1978 and hinted strongly Wednesday that he will seek a full term next year.

Harry Ledbetter of Austin and former Bexar County Auditor Charles Sanderson of San Antonio announced before James' death they were running for his job.

Ledbetter has been a top aide to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Comptroller Bob Bullock. He also is a former Legislative Budget Board staff member.

A 33rd degree Mason, Harding was first elected treasurer of Dallas County in 1950. He was named outstanding treasurer of the United States by the National Association of County Treasurers and was the first recipient of the Outstanding Treasurer Award of the County Treasurers' Association of Texas.

He is a past president of the National Association of County Treasurers and Finance Officers and has been president of the County Treasurers' Association of Texas.

Burleson speaks

Is 'normalization' worth it?

By OMAR BURLESON, WASHINGTON, D.C. — Although there is no visible gain to be achieved, the U.S. Government is being urged from within and without to "normalize" relations with communist China. This "normalizing" would be accomplished on the severe terms of the People's Republic of China.

These terms would involve our withdrawing recognition from Taiwan and nullifying the defense treaty which we have had since soon after the close of World War II. This would be the first time a friendly Nation was denied U.S. recognition.

No one has any convincing argument as to why we should appease communist China. There is no evidence that China, if unappeased, will turn its policy inside out and seek re-alignment with the Soviet Union. This is one of the arguments advanced but either China needs close relations with us to counter the Soviet threat or it doesn't. If it does, it need not require the United States to humiliate itself by sacrificing a friendly small nation.

Some sources in and out of government want to use the term "de-recognize" Nationalist China as a softer approach than simply turning our back and repudiating agreements. This term has been used in the State Department in talk of getting out of our treaty obligations and throwing Taiwan to China's hungry communists.

The U.S. defense treaty with Taiwan is, like all treaties, a part of the supreme law of the land. Even if there was a policy to abandon our agreements on defense with the country, it at least should be done by lawful method which would be formal abrogation, but it seems that people who favor appeasement towards Red China simply seem to want the United States to crawl away from its commitment by announcing "de-recognition." Incidentally, this is contrary to the spirit injected into the Panama Canal issue. The Carter Administration spokesmen say the treaty with Panama is not an act of weakness but rather expresses sympathy of a large and powerful Nation towards smaller nations. If we are to gain respect in Latin America by giving the Canal back to Panama, how could we be respected anywhere in the world for sneaking out the back door on Taiwan. It is proper to ask if those nations in the Far East would have any confidence left in us if we went this route. If we abandon an ally which we really created in the first place, would those nations in the Middle East whom we are asking to take grave risks to preserve peace, be willing to rely on us? It is important to assess what we

into cowboys

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police turned into cowboys for a while after a rush hour freeway accident started a stampede.

About 40 steers got loose on Interstate 75 Monday when a truck driven by Johnny Ball, 33, of Flemingsburg, Ky., collided with a car stopped in traffic. Five persons were injured in the wreck, which closed the city's main traffic artery for hours.

About 30 police officers were dispatched for the roundup.

The steers, averaging about 900 pounds each, bolted down the expressway when Ball's truck caught fire. They headed up a hill and through a cemetery, where 16 were caught while eating.

ABILENE VISITOR — Mrs. Bernie McCrea, (center) visited the local Daughters of the American Revolution Chapter this week. She is state chairman of two DAR schools, national chairman of the DAR magazine's Advertising Committee, and a DAR member 50 years. With her are Mrs. W.A. Riley (left), regent, and Mrs. C.G. Barnett, publicity chairman.

Dear Abby

Too Tall Girl Looks Down At Herself

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and I don't care if I ever see my 15th birthday. I am 5 foot 9 and weigh 188 pounds. I hate being taller than all the boys my age. People say, "Wait a few years, they'll grow," but what is a girl suppose to do in the meantime? I know I am too fat, but I don't care. I'm so tall I haven't a chance with a boy anyway, so I might as well eat and enjoy myself. I am so mixed up and have made such a mess of myself, I wish I were dead. Is there any hope for me?

TOO TALL

DEAR TOO TALL: A girl who asks, "Is there any hope for me?" hopes with all her heart that there is. You have two of the most precious gifts in the world — youth and health — and you say you wish you were dead. I don't buy that. You letter tells me you want to live! Tell your parents you want to see a doctor for a physical checkup and a sensible diet. Go and heed his advice. It won't be easy, but you can do it if you try hard enough. Once you've taken off that excess weight, you'll have a new respect for yourself and like yourself better. And I promise you that you'll be well on the road to enjoying life and living it more fully.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin (I'll call her "Carol") is being married soon, and because of financial circumstances, she has invited only the members of her immediate family to the wedding. (Since cousins are not considered "immediate family," I am not invited.) Carol hinted to me that I should give her a bridal shower and invite all her friends. Would it be proper to ask girls to a shower that are not invited to the wedding?

CAROL'S COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: Nowhere is it written that everyone who participates in a bridal shower is entitled to an invitation to the wedding. Or because someone "hinted," you have to do her bidding.

DEAR ABBY: While vacationing recently, my husband and I stayed at a lovely motor inn. When we left I took some ashtrays and glasses. These things had the name of the inn on them, and I thought they'd make nice souvenirs. I was under the impression that guests are expected to take such things as souvenirs, and the cost of the items is built into the price of the room. My husband says I am wrong. Why then would they have their name on everything if not to advertise? Are guests expected to take souvenirs?

THIEF OR COLLECTOR?

DEAR THIEF: I would advise against taking anything. Before checking out, ask the manager for a souvenir and he'll either sell — or give you one.

DAR hears of schools

The state chairman of the two schools owned and operated by the Daughters of the American Revolution spoke to the Captain Elisha Mack DAR Chapter Monday. Mrs. Bernie McCrea of Abilene showed slides and presented the history of DAR schools, Kate Duncan Smith School in Grant, Ala., and Tamassee School in Tamassee, S.C. Mrs. McCrea, a 50-year member of the Abigail Ann Berry Chesley DAR Chapter in Abilene, also is national chairman of the DAR Magazine Advertising Committee.

War broke out, and Alva A. Chesley sided with the South and was told by his father in New Hampshire to leave home. He came to Texas and settled at Bellville, eventually becoming a Texas senator.

As the DAR magazine's advertising chairman, she is in close contact with two persons under her supervision in Washington, D.C. She must approve all advertising — no wine, whiskey or alcohol ads accepted — and she writes a brief message for each edition. The magazine has a circulation of 60,000 throughout the U.S.

30 years in business

Gomezes share 8 recipes

By DUSTY RICHARD
David and Lola Gomez have found Mexican food a way of life.

For 30 years, they have been in the Mexican food business in Big Spring, the latest at Carlos Restaurant, 308 NW 3rd.

In their free time, Mrs. Gomez said they like to "sleep and eat."

They don't have time for much else, she explained. Their first restaurant was Gomez No. 1 Cafe on 4th Street, where the GI Forum is located now. It was opened about 1947.

Then they had another restaurant on 3rd Street next to where the parking lot of Carlos is now.

And now they own Carlos Restaurant.

THE RESTAURANT was named after Gomez' brother, Charlie. When they started out, they had only 3 waitresses and two cooks. One waitress, Jean Oliver, has been with Gomezes for 20 years.

"We couldn't do without her," said Mrs. Gomez.

David Gomez, Sr., is the supervisor of the restaurant and helps in the kitchen. Lola Gomez is the chief cook, but also helps wait tables and acts as hostess.

David Jr., is the "general flunky," floor-sweeper, waiter and record-on-the jukebox-changer.

As Mrs. Gomez said, "It's just the three of us."

MRS. GOMEZ came from a farm in Hill Center, Tex., and David Sr. was born and raised in Colorado City.

They were married in 1947, and David Jr. came along in 1948.

David, Jr., who played football at Big Spring High School as a guard, has a son, Michael Wayne, from his first marriage. He was married to Kathy Ann Stewart from Hereford, Va., in 1976. She has worked for Social Services at Big Spring State Hospital for almost nine years. They are members of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

They are currently making plans to remodel the upstairs of their restaurant into a private dining room for small parties.

In addition to an assortment of enchiladas, chalupas, tacos, and burritos, they also have American foods such as steak. There are wines and beers to drink.

Their specialties are the Carlos Special: a chili relleno, guacamole chalupa, enchilada and taco; and the Mexican Dinner: a taco, enchilada, refried beans and rice. Mrs. Gomez said that if a customer would like her to prepare a dish that is not on the menu, she would be happy to fix it for him.

Immaculate Heart has milk plan

Immaculate Heart of Mary has announced its new free milk policy for children unable to pay the full price of milk served under the Special Milk Program.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown on the graph are eligible for free milk.

In addition, families not meeting these criteria but having other unusual expenses due to high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of the child, and disaster or casualty losses may be eligible.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in letters to parents.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the application forms include a statement above the space for the signature certifying that all information furnished in the application is true and correct.

A statement warns that the application is being made in connection with the receipt of Federal funds, and deliberate misrepresentation of information may subject the applicant to prosecution under state and criminal statutes. School officials may, for cause, verify the information in the application.

Additional copies of the application are available in the principal's office.

The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the school year.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits.

Under the provisions of the policy, IHMS will determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Mrs. Virginia Ross, Box 2175, Big Spring, or call 263-1728 for a hearing to appeal the decision.

If a family member 4 becomes unemployed or if 5 family size changes, the 6 family should contact the 7 school to file a new ap- 8 plication. Such changes may 9 make the children of the 10 family eligible for milk. 11

In the operation of child milk programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color or national origin.

The office of the principal has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Art Festival this month

Saturday will be the final day to enter Big Spring's first major Arts and Crafts Festival.

The festival, set for Oct. 22 and 23 at the Dora Roberts Community Center, is expected to attract artists from all over this region.

Hours for the festival will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 22 and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 23.

Mel Prather, chairman of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Arts and Crafts Advisory Committee, said that there will be a token fee of $10 a booth. Some booths will be located inside the Dora Roberts Community Center, but many will be on the lawn around the center, which adjoins Comanche Trail Lake.

Come-and-go shower honors Anne Deitrick

A bridal shower honored Mrs. Anne Deitrick Tuesday night in a come-and-go event at the Reddy Room of Texas Electric.

Cohostesses for the event were Mrs. Phyllis Stinson and Mrs. Iwana Stanton.

Gifts were opened by the bride-elect and passed around. The refreshment table was covered in gold and centered with an arrangement of light green tapers and fall flowers.

Frosted punch and cake were served to 18 guests. Ms. Deitrick and Jerry Don Kinman have set Oct. 21 as their wedding date.

A special guest was Mrs. Mary Pitts, the bride-elect's mother.

Specialties of Carlos include chili relleno

If your appetite has been piqued, here are eight recipes that the Gomezes gave us so you could try some of their dishes at home.

ENCHILADAS (for ten people)

- 1 doz. corn tortillas
- 2 onions, chopped
- 1/4 lb. longhorn cheese, grated

Deep-fry the tortillas, but just until they are soft. Roll the onions and grated cheese inside them. Place in a flat pan and pour the red or green sauce over them. Sprinkle some grated cheese on top and bake in an oven until the cheese melts. For a variation, use hamburger meat instead of cheese and onions.

RED ENCHILADA SAUCE

- 10 California red peppers
 - 3 or 4 tbsps. flour
 - Dash salt and pepper
- Boil the peppers in water. When soft, take out and cool. Remove stems. Grind them up in a blender. Take a skillet and put the flour in it. Brown. Pour the sauce from the blender into the skillet. Add a little water to achieve the desired consistency. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour over enchiladas.

GREEN ENCHILADA SAUCE

- 2 lbs. Velveeta cheese, grated
 - 1/2 gallon sweet milk
 - 1 large can chopped green peppers
 - 1 c. flour
- Put flour in skillet and brown. Pour in milk. When thickened, put in peppers. Then add the grated cheese and simmer until the cheese melts. Pour over enchiladas.

ALHAMBRES (for six people)

- 2 medium sirloin steaks
- Onion, cut in large chunks
- Tomatoes, cut in large chunks

Marinate the steaks in lemon or vinegar at least two hours or overnight. Cut into large chunks of desired size. Put the chunks of meat on skewers, alternating with the chunks of vegetables. Cook on an hibachi or barbecue grill to taste. Serve with tossed salad, beans and rice.

CALIENTE CHILI PICANTE CON QUESO

- 8 jalapeno peppers
- 1 medium onion
- 1/2 c. water
- 1/4 lb. Longhorn cheese, grated

Dash salt and garlic. Roast the peppers on a grill until they blister and the skin comes off. Chunk them up in a blender; do not let the peppers get mushy. Fry the onion in a half-teaspoon of shortening, and pour the pepper sauce into the skillet with the onions. Add the water, salt and garlic. Let it boil for a minute or two. Put in the cheese and let it melt. This sauce can be used to top almost any dish — but watch out 'cause it's hot!

GUIISO MEXICANO (for eight people)

- 1 round steak, chopped
- 1/2 onion

- 1 small clove garlic
- 1 potato, diced
- 1 small can stewed tomatoes

Fry steak as desired. Add a couple of teaspoons of flour in skillet. Add the potato when the meat and flour have browned. After the potato is cooked, add the rest of the ingredients and simmer for 20-30 minutes. For a variation of this recipe, use squash instead of meat, and add a can of whole kernel corn after the squash and onion has cooked.

CHILI RELLENOS (for eight people)

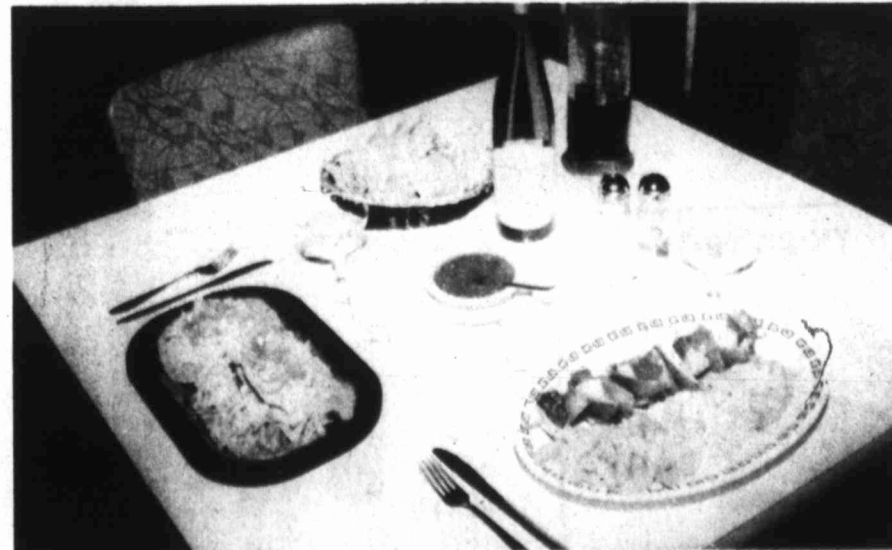

- 16 long green chili peppers
- Hamburger meat, fried
- A couple of eggs, separated
- Dash flour

Stuff peppers with meat. Beat egg whites until stiff, whip in yellow. Add the flour. Dip each pepper in the batter and fry in the skillet until brown. Pour Relleno Sauce over peppers in a pan and add some grated cheese on top. Bake at 350-400 degrees until the cheese melts.

RELLENO SAUCE

- 2 onions, chopped
- 2 Bell peppers, chopped
- 1 can stewed tomatoes
- 2 tps. flour
- Garlic, cominos, oregano, salt

Fry the onions and bell peppers in a skillet with a little shortening. Add the flour and brown. Mash in the tomatoes. Add a little water to taste. Dash in salt, garlic, oregano and cominos to taste. Let simmer for 15-20 minutes. Pour over stuffed peppers.

Royals have no problems with Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kansas City Royals, those Missouri riverboat gamblers, are playing a confidence game that they think will make them the first American League expansion team to float into the World Series.

The Royals, rolling an unbelievable string of winners since mid-June, continued the fun Wednesday with an easy 7-2 victory over the New York Yankees, those big-money sharpshooters from the East Coast, to take a 1-0 edge in the best-of-five AL playoffs.

The Yankees' also lost starter Don Gullett because of an injured shoulder and New York Manager Billy Martin said he doesn't expect his ace lefthander to pitch again this year.

The Royals, who raced to a 6-0 lead in the third inning, got a big lift when leadoff batter Freddie Patek walked to open the game and Hal McRae followed with a home run over the left field wall.

"It helped to get off in front when McRae hit it out," said the speedy little Patek. "We realized we could score off Gullett. The adrenaline was flowing and our confidence was flowing."

The confidence has been building for the Royals since June 17, when they began an amazing streak of 68 victories in 92 games, a winning clip of .786. Along the way, they had stretches of 21 victories in 22 games and 32 in 36.

Last year, the Royals were an uncertain club when they met the Yankees in October and lost the AL playoffs in five games. They had lost seven of their last eight regular-season games and 22 of their last 35.

"The difference was like night and day," said McRae. "Last year we were terrible in the second half. This year we had a terrific streak in the second half. It's better to win. It builds your confidence and gives you lots of momentum."

Wednesday, they played with the assurance of a card shark holding four aces, adding power to their game of speed, timely hitting and effective — if not spectacular — pitching.

They profited from three homers, two-run shots by McRae in the first, John Mayberry in the third off reliever Dick Tidrow and a solo blast by Al Cowens in the eighth. Patek's two-run double down the third base line in the second knocked in the only runs not scored on homers. Thurman Munson's

Much ado about alotta stuff

Few unfinished notes about last week's Abilene game. Seems that the Abilene coaches used the school computer to get ready for the Steers. They scouted themselves in the three previous game films, and then fed all the info into the electronic brain.

All consistencies, such as throwing exclusively to their talented tight end and others, were dropped from the game plan for the Steer tilt, and new wrinkles took their place, (such as the highly effective pass to the fullback coming out of the backfield).

"That crossed us up pretty good," said Don Robbins, "plus they had Hofer who was a coach with us last year. They had a good inside track on us."

Kenneth Coffey played half of that game with one eye. Seems like the Abilene defensive secondary people had a knack of getting up underneath the face guard during the first half.

Coach David Thompson of Stanton says that his guys are ready to play Anson. The visiting Tigers are 2-2 on the season, and about like they were last year, when they threw up a highly effective Veer against the Buffs.

Marvin "Lemon Juice" Jones will almost certainly play in Friday night's clash. The hobbles, caused by a severely wrenched knee, have slowly left him. Quarterback Todd Smith will also be ready to go. Oscar Perez, who had the pins taken out of a broken hand Tuesday, will probably stay on the bench to finish complete recuperation.

After three ballgames, the Dallas Cowboys look in pretty good shape, statistically.

My main man, Don Meredith, is finally doing what he did best in the past: ruffling the feathered toupee on Howard Cosell's pointed head. If you caught last Monday night's broadcast of the Oakland-Kansas City match, you heard Dandy at his best.

The following exchange took place after an unheralded Kansas City linebucker named Dave Rozumek, from the University of New Hampshire, made a sticking tackle: Cosell: "That kid came from nowhere!" Meredith: "No he didn't. He came from New Hampshire."

Cosell: "Yeah, but he came from nowhere."

Meredith: "No he didn't. He came from the outside linebacker slot."

Cosell: "I know, but I never thought that kid would still be around."

Meredith: "Well, he never thought you'd still be around."

Steers on the road to Bulldogs

By DANNY REAGAN
Sports Editor

"They're the first team to score against Permian this year," Steer coach Don Robbins is wont to repeat these days, in obvious reference to the Midland Bulldogs' tenacious effort against mighty Mojo last Friday night.

The Steers will travel to enemy territory this Friday in hopes that they can put the bite on the 'Dogs and keep from getting bitten themselves. Big Spring currently sports a 1-2-1 season record and 0-1 in league clambakes. Midland uncharacteristically shows a 0-3-1 slate, likewise 0-1 in district.

Many see Friday's game as a struggle by both teams to keep from reserving the 5-4A cellar this season. Midland was destined for great things this year, or so said the scribes in pre-season.

Eight returning starters on defense was to make the 'Dogs formidable. Regardless of the early prognostications, Midland is still winless.

Big Spring was expected to be everyone's doormat this year. But a surprisingly spunky start had the experts second guessing after a couple of weeks. Past calculations are of little consequence, however, as both teams have suffered through recent weeks of poor showings.

Joey Vasquez is still the only sure non-starter for the locals this Friday. He is still hobbling on a sprained ankle. Ricky Torres is a doubtful participant because of a knee bruised in practice Monday.

Rain has dampened this week's workouts somewhat. Tuesday, the Steers watched films and went through blackboard drills before taking to a wet field for an abbreviated practice. "We're working real hard to impress upon the offensive people the importance of holding onto that football," said Robbins. (The Steers have turned the ball over 12 times in four ballgames).

Defensively, the Steers have been working on formations intended to stop the Midland power sweeps, fullback traps and wingback reverses that show up frequently.

Unlike the Abilene Eagles, who had speed and could spread any defense pretty thin, the Bulldogs are basically a ball control club. "Their whole philosophy is different," Robbins said. "They're ground-oriented and just try to grind out the yardage on you."

The mood of the two teams is hard to determine, according to the coaches. They both are definitely hungry for a win, it's just a question of who is the hungrier.

"All I want us to do," said Robbins, "is to play a game up to our potential... a whole 48 minutes, and just see what will happen. Since the Andrews game, we haven't done that, and we seem to have lost our poise, concentration and intensity."

"We haven't changed our offensive philosophy. We're just going to try to improve on what we do. If we don't beat ourselves with mistakes, we have a chance of winning the game. I know we're a better football team than last year," concluded Robbins.

Game time is 8 p.m. Friday, and temperature at kickoff is expected to be reminiscent of football weather — fallish. The Steers will leave from beside Steer Gym Friday afternoon at 4:45.

Young Oilers suffer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler offensive coordinator Ken Shipp hopes his experience-shy rookies can cut down on their errors Sunday when they face the veteran Pittsburgh Steelers in a National Football League game in the Astrodome.

Kickoff is at 1 p.m. CDT. The Oilers have 17 first year players on the team, the most of any NFL team, and 10 are offensive players.

"When you decide to go with youth, you've got to suffer," Shipp said. "I think this is the way to go. You've got to start from the ground up. They've already gone the other way."

"When I came here they have a bunch of has-beens who couldn't play on the special teams. These kids play special teams plus play every down."

The Oilers "suffered" last week in a 27-7 loss to Miami. The pain, in fact, became almost unbearable at the start of the fourth quarter when Houston failed to score after getting a first down at Miami's three-yard line.

"Jimmy Giles (rookie tight end) is going to be another (John) Mackey," Shipp said. "But on the draw play he lined up wrong and it cost us the touchdown."

"Giles was supposed to split on the play, taking the strong safety with him. Giles stayed in, however and the strong safety made the tackle."

The draw play came on Houston's fourth down from the three.

Houston must face the Steelers with an unsettled tight end situation.

"I don't know if I'll have any tight ends this week either," Shipp said. Both Giles and backup Mike Barber have been hobbled by injuries.

Dodgers even playoffs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies are tied at one game each in the National League championship series today because of a pitch that was described as three feet too high, a foot and a half too far inside and hit 390 feet too far.

The picturesque description was made by losing pitcher Jim Lonborg, who threw the pitch to the Dodgers' Dusty Baker in the fourth inning and the score tied 1-1.

Baker hit a grand slam home run to put Los Angeles ahead 5-1, a lead righthander Don Sutton protected as the Dodgers went on to a 7-1 victory that squared the best-of-five series at a game apiece.

So the series shifts to Philadelphia, where Burt Hooton and his knuckle curve will go for Los Angeles against power pitching Larry Christenson for the Phillies on Friday afternoon.

The second game simply narrowed down to that fourth inning after Bill Russell and Reggie Smith had singled and Ron Cey sacrificed. Then Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark took a slow walk out to talk to Lonborg.

"I had made up my mind to intentionally walk Steve Garvey," Ozark was to say later. "I just wanted to talk about how we would pitch to Baker."

Ozark said he reminded Lonborg to keep the ball down, so the infield could get a ground ball and bail out of the one-out jam.

"It was sound logic," said the crestfallen Lonborg, who threw a sidearm curve on a 1-2 count to Baker that the Dodger slugger hammered into the left field seats, the second grand slam in two games for Los Angeles.

"Danny didn't know I was going to hit a curve ball," said Lonborg. "I knew when the pitch was 10 to 15 feet toward the plate that I had made a mistake."

Baker said he wasn't insulted when the Phillies elected to walk the clutch hitting Garvey to get to the former Atlanta Brave who hit 30 homers during the regular season, one of four Dodgers to do that.

"I knew it was a good percentage play," Baker said. "I just tried to remain calm, not to get too excited. I wasn't trying to hit the ball out of the stadium. I just wanted to hit it hard and not into a double play."

Ozark and Lonborg knew that Baker was 0-for-7 against Lonborg this year, including a fly out in the second inning.

Baker, of course, was elated after the game.

"When I was a kid playing in the backyard in Riverside, (Calif.), I used to pretend I was the hero in a big game," said the Dodgers' left fielder. "I guess all kids play pretend games like that. But I never dreamed it would come true."

After Baker's big hit, the Dodgers turned the job over to Sutton.

Farm Details bony meat proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bits of bone the size of ground pepper and odd scraps of meat may soon find their way into bologna, sausages and hot dogs.

The Agriculture Department wants to allow bony material from ribs, backbones and other parts of slaughtered animals to make up 20 per cent of the meat portion of processed meats.

But the plan, which will take effect after the public is allowed to comment, will require labels that tell consumers just what they're eating.

The regulations will allow bones and the hard-to-

choice on whether or not to buy it."

A year ago, the department proposed a similar regulation, which would have referred to the additives as "mechanically deboned meat."

The new plan calls, instead, for the labels to read "tissue from ground bone."

"Mechanically deboned meat" is not an acceptable title, said Ms. Foreman. "It is not meat. We have redefined it as a meat food product."

Richard Lyng, president of the industry-supported American Meat Institute, called the labels inaccurate and said it "seems to be a deliberate attempt to make the product unattractive."

The Agriculture Department canceled its earlier proposal after a federal judge issued a preliminary injunction against it.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant said then Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz failed to consider "the possible gastroenterological side effects which may result from frequent ingestion of bone particles."

He also cited high levels of Strontium 90 that could be contained in bone particles and possible long-range effects of the fat content of the mechanically deboned meat.

Military pay, benefits erosion poses woes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of the armed forces are angry and discouraged at what they see as an erosion of their pay and benefits, the President's Commission on Military Compensation was told Wednesday.

If the perceived erosion is not stopped, it will lead to serious morale problems and enhance the chances that unions might be invited to organize enlisted men, said John Keely.

Keely is one of the leaders of a study of the military role in America being conducted at the University of Virginia. His testimony came at the third meeting held by the commission since President Carter appointed it in June.

Carter asked the commission to write a series of recommendations to overhaul the military pay system. Its work is due in March.

Keely and Virginia's Robert Leider urged the panel not to take the path of putting all compensation in the form of salary. Leider said that approach has not worked in Britain, which it went to in 1969.

Rather, Keely said, the commission ought to recommend that the allowance system be made more flexible to reflect the difference in the cost of housing between posts like Ft. Benning, Ga., and Washington.

He said the commission needed to stop the perception by the military that benefits like medical services for dependents and retirees are being taken away from them because there are only enough medical personnel to take care of the troops.

Keely said pay was only one of the morale problems faced by the military. Others stem from the Vietnam War, the tax on commissary and exchange benefits, and what he described as the "strident press attacks" on the fact of the system which allows military retirees to collect a pension and work for the government at the same time.

Keely said he thought the commission, in addressing the pension question, ought to distinguish between enlisted men and officers. He said enlisted men are often burnt out and need to retire after 20 years of service. They have trouble getting adequate civilian jobs because of factors like union seniority rules, he said. Therefore, he maintained that they should retain current pension rights.

Officers, Keely said, are a different case. He said they have an easier time returning to civilian life after retirement because of their education and management skills. And he called the loss of so many officers after 15 or 20 years of service a needless loss to the military.

Keely predicted that no matter what the commission recommends, Congress is going to insist that officers, if not enlisted men as well, begin contributing to their pensions the way civilian workers do.

Tractors to converge on Amarillo

SPRINGFIELD, Colo. (AP)—An American Agriculture tractor caravan is to converge on Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 14, to demonstrate the militant farm organization's solidarity and to show that farmers mean business when they say they will strike for better economic conditions.

Don Self, a spokesman for the organization formed about three weeks ago in this southeastern Colorado farm community, said the movement wants between 13,000 and 15,000 farmers on hand for a rally at the Amarillo Fairgrounds.

Farmers from the Lamar, Springfield and Walsh areas in Colorado will drive tractors to the meeting, and the movement's 30 branch offices across the nation will be urged to send representatives, he said.

Amarillo is about 165 miles away, "about like going from here to Pueblo," Self said.

He was one of more than 50 farmers who drove tractors from Springfield to Pueblo two weeks ago to a meeting with Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland.

A similar caravan is scheduled for Denver Oct. 22 when President Carter is to stop over for several hours en route to California.

"We've gotten clearance from the Texas Highway Patrol and the City of Amarillo to do it," he said.

"We're just trying to get a big group together to show that we can get a mass movement going."

Self said the rally should eliminate "any remaining skeptics that feel farmers and ranchers cannot unite."

A program is scheduled to begin at the Fairgrounds Coliseum at 2 p.m. on Oct. 14, Self said. He said a schedule of speakers would be released later.

Self was critical of remarks made by the president of the American Farm Bureau Wednesday in Wichita, Kan.

Allan Grant said he believes the farmers' strike proposal would have "little effect," and if demands for parity prices for farm products were met, the U.S. would "price itself out of foreign markets."

American Agriculture wants to force Congress to raise farm support prices and insure stability in foreign and domestic markets. The strike would stop all planting and selling of crops, and halting purchases of all but essential items.

While the movement's motives were sincere, Grant said, "I don't think it will be very effective."

Self said Farm Bureau officials have been asked for support, but has received very little.

"The Farm Bureau never did stand up for 100 per cent of parity anyway," Self said. "But we're after them. I am a member and I told them they have until Dec. 14. If they don't back us by then we will cancel our memberships."

"We don't need them if they don't need us."

Self said American Agriculture will be represented at the state Farm Bureau meeting Dec. 6 in Denver and "we'll try to get the whole state membership to switch over."

"We're going to shut them off," by Dec. 14th, we will be cancelling our insurance policies with them, and our memberships as well if they don't do something. There are a lot of Farm Bureau people working in American Ag today that will tell you the same thing."

14 agencies will be eliminated

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fourteen agencies in the Agriculture Department will be eliminated by folding them into new or larger existing units under a reorganization plan announced by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

But Bergland told a news conference Wednesday that while the affected agencies involve more than one-fourth of USDA's 82,000 full-time employees, none will be dismissed as a result of the reorganization and "no mission of the department will be downgraded."

There are 40 separate units or agencies in the department now. Those will be reduced to 26 as the reorganization plan is carried out, he said.

Bergland said that, while "it may not save any large amounts of money," it will "improve the efficiency and delivery system of the department."

A part of the plan is the re-creation of the Office of the Inspector General, a post abolished some years ago by then-Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz. The office was divided into two agencies, the Office of Audit and the Office of Investigation.

Bergland said he has chosen Thomas F. McBride, 48, a former associate Watergate prosecutor, as the department's new inspector general. McBride since October 1975 has been director of the Civil Aeronautics Board's bureau of enforcement.

This includes exhibits in farm products, horticulture, food, needlework, youth arts and crafts, a men's division, a children's farm yard and other activities.

There will also be a carnival daily through Saturday night. The pet show will be held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

Fair officials anticipate a big turnout for the event tonight, Friday and Saturday.

To get a good crowd to both events, the 49th annual Old-Timer's Reunion is scheduled for Saturday at the Civic Center.

Registrations begins at 8:30 a.m. with music provided by Frank Bassham. Mayor Marion Bassham gives the welcome at 10 a.m. The main speaker will be a Colorado City ex, Jimmy Beal of Dallas.

A frontier blacksmith shop will be dedicated after lunch. It is being donated to the museum by Mrs. Louise Wulfjen Geisenberger. Her grandfather started a ranch in Mitchell County in 1882.

Ridin' fence

Together 61 years

It hasn't all been easy. Their bleakest days were back in 1972 when their son Charles disappeared while on business in Mexico. I'm talking about Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Clanton.

They were told their son was killed in a car wreck. But further investigation showed that he may have been murdered while in Durango attempting to buy interest in a mine.

Through the years they've had other difficult times. They have farmed and seen good crops and bad. Clanton has worked with a water drilling corporation and seen big wells come in down on the Poyote field.

He was excited as anybody around over them. Of course, they weren't his wells, but he helped bring them in and they furnished water for many West Texas cities.

The Clantons have seen droughts, sandstorms, blizzards, hailstorms, and every kind of natural disaster that can strike crops.

But through it all, they raised a family and toughed it out. She even had all of her babies on the same bed and never did go to a hospital. That bedstead still sits in the guest room.

"Somebody wanted me to sell it, but I'm not about to sell that bed. It's part of our history," Mrs. Clanton emphasized.

She came with her parents to Texas in September 1914 from a little mill town of Lamison, Ala. Clanton's parents came from Griffith, Ark., also in 1914. The two families settled in the same Texas community the same sons, Morris Clanton of Big Spring and Bill Clanton, Midland.

Morris worked with his father for many years in the water well drilling business. The family has resided in Howard County for over 50 years.

They stay pretty close to home nowadays. He has had a light stroke. She has some difficulty with her hearing, but they manage fine.

And they have a house full of memories — some good, some bad.

But they have 61 years of memories and a 61-year-old bed. And I enjoyed recalling the old days with them while out ridin' fence.

In addition to the son they lost in 1972, they have two

Pollution abatement prime goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rural pollution abatement will be one of the prime goals under next year's Agricultural Conservation Program which provides federal payments to farmers for carrying out approved conservation projects.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that the 1978 program under ACP will be financed at $190 million, the same level as in recent years. State allocations will be announced later.

Normally, farmers can get federal payments covering 50 to 75 per cent of the cost of carrying out approved conservation practices, although there is a limit of $2,500 a person.

However, farmers who qualify for carrying out special high priority conservation projects may be able to get payments covering up to 90 per cent of the costs, officials said.

IN THE BLIGHTED BRONX — President Jimmy Carter is flanked by New York's Mayor Abe Beame, right, and Patricia Harris, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Wednesday during an unscheduled tour of the blighted South Bronx area of New York. Portions of the area are being rehabilitated through the use of federal funds.

Mayor Beame gets job offer from president

NEW YORK (AP) — President Jimmy Carter has offered outgoing Mayor Abraham Beame, his first major supporter here, a job as chairman of a federal commission. Beame says he's "thinking very seriously about it."

The job offer, disclosed late Wednesday before the President left for Washington after a two-day visit here, is the chairmanship of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. The post carries no salary but pays $50 a day and expenses when the commission is meeting.

Beame, obviously pleased with the offer, said the post was a "very challenging" one and added: "I told the President I would get back to him shortly."

Carter made the offer at a private early-morning talk with the mayor before the two, along with Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris, set out for a tour of the South Bronx, where crime and arson have turned some sections into rubble or abandoned shells of buildings resembling a war-ravaged city.

"It was a very sobering trip for me," Carter said later, adding that he was "encouraged in some ways," because part of his Bronx tour included a building renovated by a tenant group.

Carter told Mrs. Harris after the tour, "Get a map of the whole area and show me what should be done."

He met later with Gov. Hugh Carey in the President's United Nations Plaza Hotel suite and asked the governor to cooperate in the effort to rebuild devastated city areas like the South Bronx.

Carey said Carter told him he would assign White House aide Jack Watson "to work with you and the mayor" on the project.

"The President said that when you fly over New York it's so beautiful," Carey related. "It's an enchanting city. It needs the cooperation of all."

The governor said Carter was impressed with the "stability" of some high-rise projects in the Bronx, and talked about the possibility of putting "recreational resources for children and adults" in some of the rubble and garbage-strewn areas the President visited earlier in the day.

Sacrificing pledge Carter to work for more jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's economic advisers are telling him that his twin goals of a balanced budget and low unemployment by 1981 probably cannot both be achieved, administration sources say.

Faced with making a choice, these sources say, Carter has decided to work for a low unemployment rate of below 5 per cent, while sacrificing his oft-repeated campaign pledge to balance the budget by the end of his current term.

One very tentative estimate projects the 1981 budget deficit at between $20 billion to $25 billion under the low unemployment option. Inflation would be about 4.5 per cent, also short of Carter's goal.

Both during his campaign and since taking office, Carter has pledged to have a balanced budget, low unemployment and low inflation, all by the end of his current term in the White House.

However, the continued sluggishness of the economy and the failure of the nation's industry to increase sharply jobcreating investments are pulling the rug from under the Carter plan.

The retreat from a balanced budget may not be acknowledged outright, but will be couched in references to the need for a high or a full employment budget, a source said.

"The President bought the idea of a high employment budget," said the source, who had knowledge of a meeting Carter held in August with top economic advisers.

Former OMB Director Bert Lance was the staunchest advocate of a balanced budget in 1981, and he has resigned. However, the source said even Lance was tempering his public comments in favor of a balanced budget just before his resignation.

Sources say Carter was presented at the meeting in August with a joint analysis and his advisers agreed his goals may not be achievable. The analysis was the work of the Treasury Department, the Council of Economic Advisers and the Office of Management and Budget.

The analysis said that if Carter wanted a low unemployment rate of below 5 per cent by 1981, the budget probably would need to be in deficit by as much as $20 billion to $25 billion. But if he decided to push for a balanced budget at all costs, the jobless rate would still be at least 6 per cent. It was 7.1 per cent in August.

The analysis projects the nation's inflation rate at 4.5 per cent by 1981 with a deficit in the $20 billion to $25 billion range, up only slightly from the 4.4 per cent annual inflation rate under a balanced budget.

Homecoming lauds choirs

The Big Spring Homecoming on Oct. 28 will honor former all-state choir and all-state choir winners through the years.

Craig Fischer, assistant principal, said information is needed on all-staters for the years of 1938-1964.

Anyone who has any old programs or clippings concerning all-staters should call the high school and talk to Fischer or Mrs. Janice Rosson as soon as possible.

FROM BEHIND THE CURTAIN—This new Olds Cutlass is just one of the new 1978 model Oldsmobiles which will be on display and sale all day today. Sonny Shroyer, (above) says his dealership will stay open tonight as long as he's selling cars.

'Conditioned' by TV violence

MIAMI (AP) — Ronny Zamora was reacting to the words he heard on TV when he fired a gun and killed an elderly neighbor who threatened to call the police, says a defense psychiatrist.

Dr. Michael Gilbert, who took the stand Wednesday during the third day of defense testimony, said the 15-year-old defendant was "conditioned" by television violence.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin was expected to rest his case today after trying to prove Zamora was compelled to shoot Elinor Haggart, 83, because of his excessive television viewing.

Rubin surprised the court earlier Wednesday by releasing actor Telly Savalas from a defense subpoena. The star of "Kojak" had been scheduled to give a deposition on television violence today. Rubin had claimed that the TV series was Zamora's favorite.

The psychiatrist's testimony was Rubin's first chance to present expert testimony over the question of TV violence. Circuit Judge Paul Baker had refused to allow general testimony on the issue unless it applied directly to Zamora.

Rubin said Baker's rulings caused him to release Savalas from appearing in Miami.

"I see no need to bring Telly Savalas to this court," said Rubin. "He can't meet the legal standards that have been set. It would be a waste of time and money to bring Mr. Savalas here from California."

Gilbert testified that Zamora was insane at the time of the shooting, and blamed the boy's home life and TV habits for his inability to comprehend his crime.

"Television gives a distorted sense of violence because when one sees that many killings, the death of a human being is no more than swatting a fly," he said.

Briscoe says personality of Okie governor changes completely

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's hallmark is optimism, and he stretched that beyond politics this week to a new arena — football, and, more precisely, the Texas-Oklahoma game.

"It's our time, our year," Briscoe said Wednesday night when he ate supper with the Longhorns.

Texas and OU tied last year, 6-6, and OU had won the previous five games.

Briscoe shared the Governor's Cup with Gov.

David Boren of Oklahoma as a result of the tie, with Boren keeping it the first half of the year and Briscoe the second.

The two governors will sit together, and Briscoe will take the cup to Dallas, hoping to return with it to Austin.

He said he and Boren "generally agree on everything. Every issue, energy, everything — except on the day of the OU game. Then he changes personality completely."

ZEPHYR ZALESMEN — Jack Thorpe, Randy Gee, and Charlie Sandridge don't think it will be any trouble to sell a record number of these new 1978 models. The Mercury Zephyr can be found in Big Spring at Bob Brock Ford, opening the 1978 models on Friday.

Thomas free on bond

Johnny Lee Thomas, 38, 1107 NW 7th, was released from Howard County Jail today after posting $7,500 bond.

Thomas was being held on charges of auto theft filed in February in Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena's office. The bond was made by Mercury Bonding Co.

Centerpoint reunion set

The Centerpoint Community will hold its annual reunion from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The event will be held at the Centerpoint Community Center. The speaker at 1:30 p.m. will be the Rev. Davis Eden, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Stanton.

All former and present residents of the Centerpoint area are urged to attend.

Eyewitness account of shooting spree attacked

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for a millionaire capital murder defendant Cullen Davis slashed deeper today into Beverly Bass' eyewitness account of the shooting spree last year at Davis' Fort Worth mansion.

The Fort Worth coed, 19, who named Davis as the gunman who wounded her boyfriend Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, faced her second day of withering cross examination by defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

He rooted out two contradictions Wednesday in testimony by the prosecution's key witnesses, Miss Bass and the defendant's estranged wife Priscilla, 36.

Davis is on trial for the Aug. 2, 1976, slaying of his stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12. Mrs. Davis was wounded and her 30-year-old lover Stan Farr was slain in the midnight gunfire.

Haynes took the blond Miss Bass on a grueling review Wednesday of her earlier testimony, scoring tactical coups as he sought to establish the "personal" relationship between her and Mrs. Davis.

Miss Bass said the ice blond socialite, whose teenage daughter Dee Davis is among her best friends, assisted her with a "personal problem" two years ago and loaned her money to resolve that problem.

The nature of the "problem" was not disclosed although prosecution attorneys earlier moved to block the defense from alluding to records subpoenaed from a Fort Worth clinic, Pregnancy Control Inc.

Those records have not been introduced into evidence.

Miss Bass also said

Jan Garber dies

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Jan Garber, an orchestra leader from the big band era who was noted for smooth, danceable music in the Guy Lombardo style, died Wednesday at age 82.

Wednesday that Mrs. Davis mentioned her divorce action against Davis when she and Gavrel saw Mrs. Davis and Farr at a Fort Worth nightclub about two hours before the shootings.

Mrs. Davis had testified she never mentioned the divorce to Miss Bass.

Mrs. Davis testified previously that she accompanied Miss Bass to a clinic in August 1975, but denied providing her financial assistance.

Miss Bass, her eyes cast downward, said she also was accompanied to the clinic Aug. 26, 1975, by Dee Davis, who was adopted by Davis.

"August 1975 was a period in your life that you had some sort of personal problem?" Haynes asked, triggering this exchange between Haynes and Miss Bass.

"Yes," she replied. "And you went to Priscilla Davis with that problem?"

"Yes."

"And she assisted you with that problem?"

"Dee went with us."

"It was not Dee's problem was it?"

"No, sir."

"In reaching a resolution to that problem, you used the name Priscilla Davis, did you not?"

"I don't remember."

Haynes showed her a document, then repeated the question.

"Yes, sir," she replied the second time.

"She stayed with you as you worked out the mechanics of resolution of that problem?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did she extend some financial assistance to you?"

"She loaned me some money."

"Did you pay the money back?"

"She said I could pay her back when I started working."

"How old were you at the time?"

"Sixteen or 17, I don't know."

Mrs. Davis had repeatedly denied discussing her divorce case with Miss Bass the night of the shootings. On Sept. 6, Haynes asked her,

"Did you lean over and tell her that you'd been in court, you'd got what you wanted and would tell her about it later?"

Mrs. Davis replied, "No sir, I did not. I'm positive I've never said anything in the vein you've just quoted."

But when Haynes asked Miss Bass if the divorce action against Davis had been mentioned, she said it had.

"It was in that conversation that Mrs. Davis told you about her divorce and that she would talk to you about it later, was it not?" Haynes asked.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "That was not the first time Priscilla Davis discussed her divorce case with you, was it?"

"I don't remember."

"She told you she'd been to court that day and she'd gotten everything she'd wanted?"

Miss Bass said she could not recall being told that Mrs. Davis got "everything she wanted" but said money probably was mentioned.

Haynes also questioned Miss Bass about the exact time she and Gavrel arrived at the mansion and what she heard before confronting the "man in black."

Although the time was not conclusive, it appeared to be about 11:50 p.m., which previous testimony indicated would be prior to the shootings of Farr and Mrs. Davis.

Miss Bass had earlier denied that anyone ever instructed her to take Miss Wilborn shopping several hours before the shootings.

"to get her away from the house for a few hours."

Big drop in food prices leveling off, fuel costs up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose one-half of 1 per cent last month, the biggest increase since April, as the big drop in food prices began leveling off, the Labor Department said today.

After declines averaging nearly 4 per cent in the last four months, farm products declined in price by only two-tenths of 1 per cent in September.

Contributing most to the increase last month were industrial commodities, which rose eight-tenths of 1 per cent, the biggest jump in a year.

The biggest contributors were lumber and wood, which rose 4.4 per cent in September alone amid continuing demand for new houses. Also increasing were fuels and power, nonmetallic minerals and transportation equipment.

The overall increase of five-tenths of a per cent for September would average out to just over 6 per cent for an entire year, close to levels the administration considers an acceptable inflation rate.

Wholesale prices are paid by retailers and manufacturers before they reach the consumer, but the prices often show up later at retail stores.

Finished consumer goods, which are the furthest along the stage of production, rose four-tenths of 1 per cent in September after being virtually unchanged in the previous three months.

The September wholesale price increase was the largest since a 1.1 per cent rise in April, at a time when inflation was near the 10 per cent level.

As food prices began to decline, wholesale prices rose only four-tenths of a per cent in May and then dropped by seven-tenths of a per cent in June and by one-tenth of a per cent in July before going up by one-tenth of a per cent last month.

The Carter administration predicted during the summer that improvements in food prices would reduce inflation to about five per cent in the last half of the year.

Government economists expect inflation to be about six per cent next year.

Wholesale prices moderated during the summer, declining seven-tenths of one per cent in June and one-tenth of one per cent in July before rising one-tenth of one per cent in August.

The decline had been led by falling wholesale food prices, which dropped 11.9 per cent during the same period.

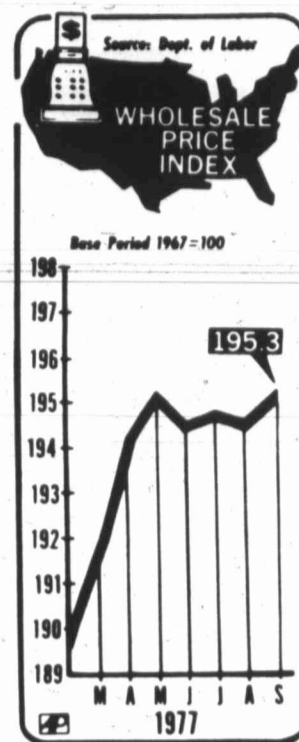

The Agriculture Department said last week that prices received by farmers declined one per cent from Aug. 15 to September 15, the fourth consecutive monthly decline.

The declining food prices, while showing up on supermarket shelves, are worrying farm officials who say farmers may stop growing some of their crops.

Food prices, which can change drastically from month to month, were also responsible for the high rates of inflation in the first half of the year.

Meanwhile, other products have risen at a more consistent rate. Industrial commodities rose in price about one-half of one per cent in August, mainly because of more expensive lumber and wood products.

(AP WIREPHOTO)
PRICE INDEX — Chart shows wholesale prices, before seasonal adjustments, rose four-tenths of a per cent to 195.3 in September. That means the average product that was sold for $100 in 1967 now sells for $195.30.

Ford price hikes listed

DETROIT (AP) — When Ford Motor Co. unveils its 1978-model cars Friday, they will carry prices averaging $387 more than comparable 1977 models. The stiffest boosts are on large models, while many small cars will cost less.

The nation's No. 2 automaker said Wednesday that the increase works out to an average of 5.8 per cent, and it boosts the suggested retail price of a typical Ford, Mercury or Lincoln for 1978 over the $7,000 mark, including options.

Ford is hoping that putting the price increase burden on big cars will boost sales of its small, fuel efficient cars.

Under a new federal law, each company's fleet of cars produced in the 1978 model year must average at least 18 miles per gallon. Otherwise, the company faces a stiff fine. Ford has said it must sell a greater proportion of small cars to meet the minimum standard.

Ford's price hikes are in line with those announced last month by General Motors Corp. GM said its 1978 prices would be about 6 per cent or $405 higher on the average than for comparable 1977 models. An average GM car also will be priced above $7,000 for 1978.

Ford's 1978 base prices will range from $2,995 for the subcompact Pinto Pony, which has been cut 4.3 per cent from a comparably equipped 1977 model, to $20,099 for a special edition Continental Mark V Diamond Jubilee model.

Prices for fullsize and intermediate cars are 6 per cent to 8 per cent more on average than in 1977, prices on luxury compacts are up 2 per cent to 4 per cent, and prices for subcompacts are down 1 per cent to 5 per cent.

In addition to price cuts on its small cars, Ford said prices for the 1978 subcompact Bobcat Runabout, Wagon and Villager Wagon would be $122 lower in Alaska, Hawaii, Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Arizona.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite some delays in putting in motion your plans, study as many new and worth while ideas as possible since you will soon be able to put them in motion with much success following.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine creative ideas now, but will find delays keep you from putting them across as speedily as you want. Do nothing that upsets a loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what a family tie has to say since this could be of great help to you. Get rid of the cause of any friction.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) By choosy, where friends are concerned, since some could be nothing but time-wasters. Attend social affair with partner, even though you may be distraught. Be careful in driving.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study monetary matters carefully and do whatever will improve them. Make plans that are comprehensive and will work for a long time to come.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Speed up activities so that you get better results, both in business and in personal matters. Accept invitations of a social nature that are worthwhile. Dress in fine style.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Think out bigger and better plans for the future and you can have greater success. Confer with an adviser who has good ideas for you. Take no chances with reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Confer with good friends and see if they will assist you in gaining personal aims. Also cooperate with them in their goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some new outlet seems hopeless but there is a gold vein running through it that could make it a big success. Look for it.

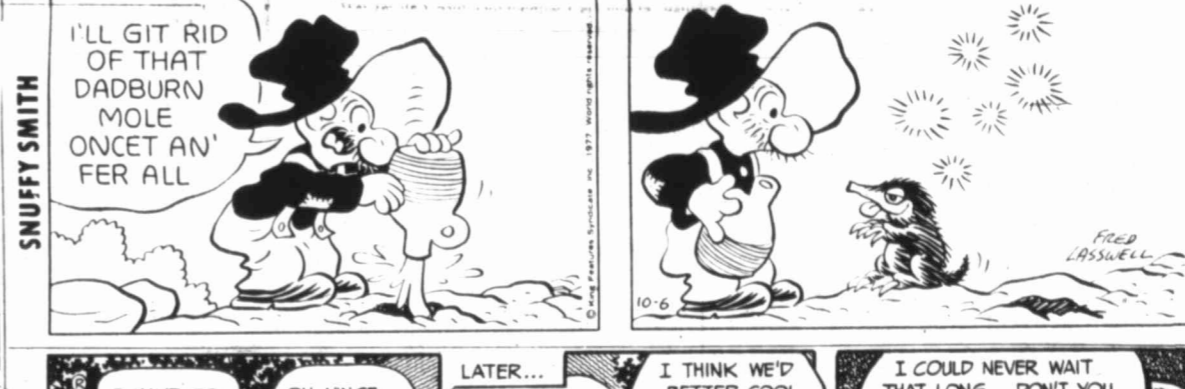

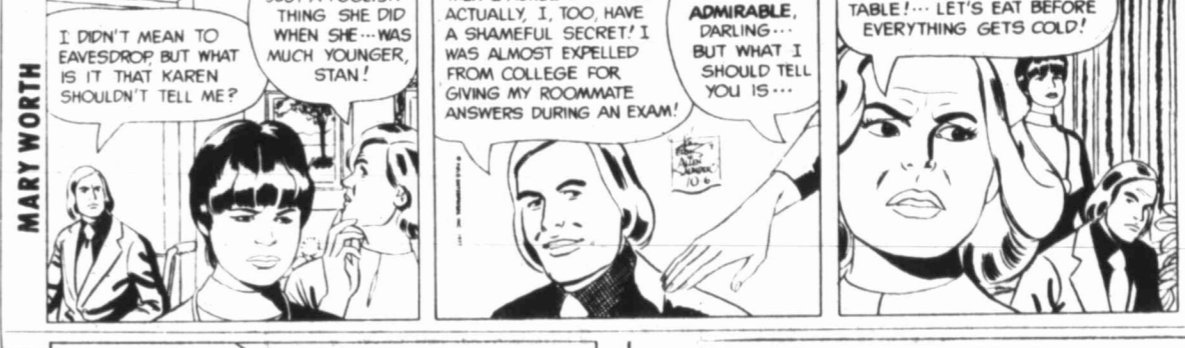

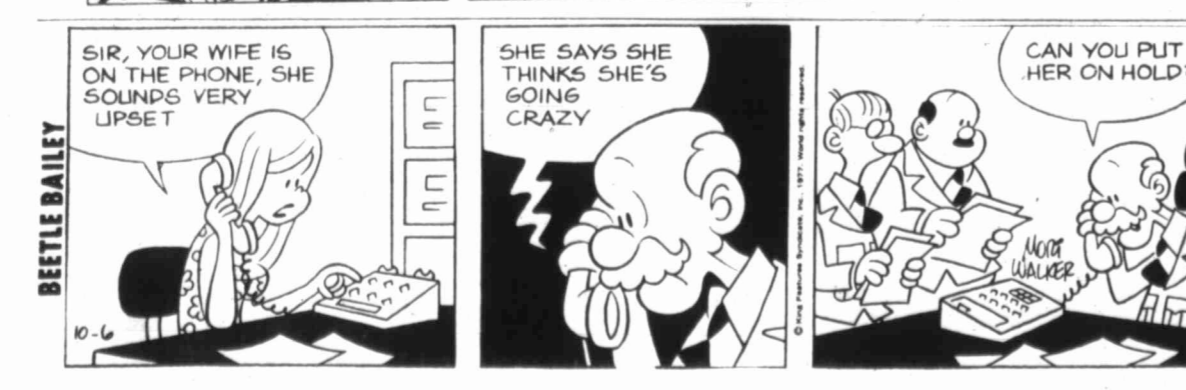

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) New projects fascinate you, but they need more study if they are to work out successfully. You have many hunches, but weed out the wrong ones, use the right ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take a more practical view of your obligations and you can discharge them more intelligently. Try to meet expectations of loved one and be happier. Be wise to the ways of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to please associates more and be sure to keep any promises you have made to them. Don't permit an inconsistent person to lead you astray. Keep above board and all is fine.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many important things to do so don't permit anyone to lead you in the wrong direction.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to think big and get big and will also help others along the way of life to become more successful, and will be a good friend. Give good ethical training early and don't neglect religious studies either.

AT ANCHOR — Cargo ships sit at anchor in the Mississippi River around the bend from New Orleans Wednesday. The ships had abandoned rental space at the city's wharfs because of a general strike by Longshoremen. New Orleans skyline in background.

Still a country boy, says Glen Campbell

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Glen Campbell says he's as much a country boy now as he was when he was growing up in Delight, Ark. "Hell, all I am is country, that's what I want people to see. I'm just doing what I want to do, singing what I want to sing — what I feel," he said.

Campbell, 41, in his second year of marriage to the former Sara Davis, ex-wife of singer Mac Davis, said his life is headed in a new direction.

"Sara turned my head around. She convinced me I could sing what I want. I decided I was abusing my talent, maybe trying to sing things I couldn't. Now I'm going to concentrate on the art in this business," Campbell said during a recent appearance at Harrah's.

Campbell lives in the posh Holmby Hills of Los Angeles. It is a far cry from Arkansas, but Campbell says he still likes to go home. He said he doesn't need to stay in show business for the money, he doesn't need it. He just wants to stay.

"They still think of me as Wes and Carrie's kid when I go home. Sometimes it's like I never left."

He still sings his hits: "Gentle on My Mind," "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," "Wichita Linemen" and more. But he said he plans to start diversifying his repertoire for shows here and in Las Vegas. He manages himself, and said he plans to keep it that way.

For Glen Campbell, the road to the top began in Arkansas. He was the seventh of eight sons in a sharecropper family of 12.

Somehow he got a guitar in his hands at a very early age and began picking. "What I remember about my childhood was that it was cold. Man it was cold! I would sit in the schoolhouse during recess and play my guitar because I didn't have a jacket," he said.

He eventually made his way to Southern California and landed a studio job playing his guitar in recording sessions behind the likes of Nat Cole and Frank Sinatra. "I would have been happy to stay in the studio work. I really had fun. I never dreamed about any of this and never planned any of it. Why do people end up like this? It's a matter of luck and talent," he said.

Campbell still has the boyish looks which won him a following among television fans, but he has his own ideas about television.

"TV blows everything out of proportion. It gives people images, in fact, that's what it's all about. Also, television is restricting. You don't really have enough time.

'Love Boat' joins Titanic

Fearless Forecast

By JAY SHARRUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's cancellation of "Sanford Arms" suddenly reminded us this week that once again it's time for the annual Fearless Forecast of the new, somewhat bad television season.

As in the past, we, ah, guess which new series will poop or prosper. "Sanford," of course, already is disqualified from the forecast.

So is Richard Pryor of NBC. He canceled himself by reducing his series commitment from 10 to four shows before the new season began. The last of his series, NBC says, airs Oct. 20.

As in the past, all new-show forecasts are made without benefit of tea leaves or their equivalent, ratings. The forecasts now begin.

SUNDAY — "On Our Own," starting this Sunday on CBS, concerns two young ladies who work in an advertising agency. They'd be wise not to plan any Christmas sales campaigns.

MONDAY — CBS' "Young Dan'l Boone" will be permanently lost in the woods by November. "Rafferty," a medicine show, also will expire then, but "Betty White" gets a full season, maybe two.

ABC's "San Pedro Beach Bums" will be all washed up by December, provided we all pray real hard.

TUESDAY — CBS' "Fitzpatricks," a close-knit family, will not be around for Thanksgiving dinner. But "Lou Grant" and his newspaper are good for at least a season's circulation.

No call yet for a new Tuesday family, NBC's "Mulligan Stew," airing Oct. 25. But ABC's not-for-all-the-family "Soap" will float until January, then assuredly gurgles down the drain.

WEDNESDAY — NBC's "Oregon Trail" will be covered over before December, likewise "Big Hawaii," which started on aloha note.

THURSDAY — NBC's "Chips," a motorcycle hour, roars into oblivion in November, at which time "Rosetti and Ryan" will be disbarred. "Man From Atlantis," in what seems a salvage operation, moves to Tuesdays on Oct. 18. But the man and Atlantis will sink for keeps in December.

At ABC, "Carter Country" will be plowed under by January. A month earlier, Redd Foxx, who made a much-publicized network shift last spring, will prove that NBC's loss was ABC's loss.

FRIDAY — CBS' modernized "Wonder Woman" and new "Logan's Run" obviously aimed at the "Star Wars" trade. But The Force is not with them. Out they go in November.

SATURDAY — A similar fate awaits CBS' "We've Got Each Other." But it'll take at least another month before ABC's "Operation Petticoat" is pinkslipped and "Love Boat" joins the Titanic.

Carter's power watered down

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has discovered, perhaps to his embarrassment, that not every Democratic politician wants to grab hold of his coattails.

A case in point is Floyd K. Haskell, a first-term senator from Colorado who already is raising money for a 1978 reelection bid.

When the White House announced last week that Carter would be visiting Denver on Oct. 22, as part of a two-day, five-state tour, it said the President would "make remarks to a fundraiser for Sen. Haskell."

Within two hours, a second announcement came forth. It began, "There has been an alteration in the President's schedule." Lo, there will be no appearance on Haskell's behalf.

According to an aide, Haskell's reaction when informed about the prospective fundraiser was, "Absolutely and positively no!"

It seems that Carter's much-publicized efforts to crack down on federal water projects have met with something less than universal approval in Colorado's irrigated farm sections. The Haskell aide would not deny this was an important factor in the senator's rejection of the President's proffered embrace.

Haskell's office had suggested that Carter visit an irrigated farm while in Colorado. The trip's fast pace made that impossible. However, water will top Carter's Colorado agenda. While in Denver, he will take part in a round-table discussion of western water policy.

Carter's campaign coattails are in demand elsewhere, of course. Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey, in a tough race for re-election, welcomed him to Newark and Trenton last month. And Henry Howell, the Democratic candidate for governor of Virginia, was equally enthusiastic about Carter's appearances on his behalf more than a week ago.

More on water: Without fanfare or announcement, Carter passed up an opportunity last week to try anew to derail federal funding for the proposed Richard B. Russell Dam in his native Georgia.

Back in April, Carter announced his opposition to the $248 million project, along with more than a dozen others. But Congress stuck $21 million for the Russell Dam into a catchall appropriations bill. The President signed the appropriation but made known his displeasure at the inclusion of the $21 million.

Last Friday, the final day of the 1977 fiscal year, Carter passed up his last chance to seek deletion or deferral of the Russell money from the fiscal 1978 budget. He could have sent Congress a message proposing either action. The fact that he did not do so suggests he felt he lacked the votes necessary for approval of such a move.

The President will have another chance to call for a
