After fuel overcharges cited

Slow to take action

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Federal energy files show dozens of cases where $42 million in fuel overcharges were identified during a probe after the 1973 Arab oil embargo. But officials acknowledge they have yet to mount a single prosecution against suspect firms. In a copyright story Sunday, the St. Petersburg Times traces a 2½-year federal probe into the fuel oil dealings of a Houston, Tex. firm, Saber

Petroleum Co., and its agent, oil broker Lawrence C. McBride. More than 18 months ago energy officials prepared but never issued a violation notice accusing the firm of illegally inflating fuel prices by $5.6

million to customers, including electric utilities in Pittsburgh and Chicago, the newspaper says. The utilities automatically pass the charges along to their customers. Other dealings listed were with companies in New York and Washington, D.C.

The Federal Energy Administration inquiry began in 1975. The bulk of it was completed by early 1976. But energy officials won't say why the violation notice wasn't issued. An FEA spokesman in Dallas only told the Times that the case is still under investigation.

The Times says part of the reason for the delay in recovering alleged overcharges appears to be a parallel and complex investigation of McBride, a wealthy oil broker who shared hefty profits with Saber. McBride is under audit by the Internal Revenue Service and has a criminal record including a still-pending murder charge.

The following is the Times account: Saber was named in a January 1976 "notice of probable violation" issued by the FEA regional office in Dallas. Investigators concluded there was "reason to believe that Sabarcharges by Safuel oil and jet turbine fuel) resulted in overcharges by Saber of at least $5,609,097 over the period Nov. 1, 1973, through Jan. 31, 1975, in violation of FEA's price regulations."

Saber officials deny any wrongdoing and say their transactions were above board. Saber's attorneys have challenged the findings in letter exchanges with the agency.

The so-called "daisy-chain" investigations focused on oil brokers who side-stepped FEA regulations by transferring ownership on paper through a series of companies to illegally inflate prices.

Emergency petroleum pricing regulations froze fuel prices and profit margins at pre-embargo levels and allowed fuel dealers and oil companies to pass along to customers only dollar-for-dollar increases in product costs.

Bodies of 7 recovered

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Bodies of seven Texas residents have been recovered from wreckage of the light plane in which they crashed Sept. 30 while en route to a Mormon Church conference in Salt Lake.

The wreckage of the single-engine Cherokee Six was found Friday near West Canyon in the Oquirrh Mountains about 25 miles south of Salt Lake City by two hunters on horseback.

The Utah County Jeep Posse made its way to the craft on horses in 90 minutes and searchlights from a television station helicopter helped identify the plane by its letters.

The bodies were brought out Friday night.

The victims were Robert Butterworth, 25, of Houston, pilot of the rented craft, Terry Way, 30, of Houston, Gary Holt, 28, of Denton, Jan Williamson, 25, of The Woodlands, Maxine Ferguson, 22, of Sugar Land, Thomas M. Hunt, 22, of Huffman and Bob Marsh, 28, of Houston.

The plane clipped several trees before crashing on a steep incline. Sheriff Mack Holley said the doors were shut and there was no indication any attempt was made to escape from the plane. He said it appeared they seven were killed on impact.

One observer, a pilot, said it appeared the plane made a powerless landing.

The Federal Aviation Administration said bad weather the day of the crash could have obscured the mountains.

Hart is invited to White House

Herald Editor Tommy Hart will go to the White House Friday to attend an all-day conference with senior White House staff and President Jimmy Carter.

Hart was invited by Walter Wurfel, deputy press secretary, to join with 30 editors and news directors from across the country in in-depth briefing sessions dealing with foreign and urban policies. He is the first West Texas editor to make the trip to Washington.

The conference will be broken down into four briefing sessions, including one half-hour session with the President. Photographic sessions will be permitted and the entire procedure will be on-the-record.

The session will begin in the Executive Office Building with coffee and doughnuts at 8:30 a.m.

'I'LL TAKE HER WITH ME' — Anthony Ricco, 23-year-old escapee from Rikers Island, holds automatic to his wife's head at their apartment in New York Friday. Police discovered his presence at building after finding stolen auto nearby. Ricco held police at bay for nine hours by holding his wife hostage. He told police, "I'll take her with me," but finally surrendered.

Ford is out, Lance is in--barely WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is in. So are Liz Taylor and Henry Kissinger. But Jerry Ford is out. And Bert Lance is in—barely.

The Green Book, the 1978 Washington social register of who counts and who doesn't in the nation's capital, is off the presses. Carter wasn't listed last year, but he's in this year because he lives at the most prestigious address in town—the White House.

Attracting Elizabeth Taylor is in because she married potential senatorial candidate, former Navy secretary and Virginia estate-owner John Warner, who also owns a house in Georgetown.

Former President Gerald R. Ford isn't in this year because he moved out of town after he left the White House. But former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made the list because he still lives in the city. Lance, who resigned under fire as Carter's budget director, doesn't live here any more, but he left town after the social register was printed.

Known as the Green Book because of its fuzzy Kelly green cover, the social list contains most White House executives, members of Congress, the Supreme Court, ambassadors, party givers and upper crust.

And it gives the dos and don'ts of capital etiquette.

One of its most useful functions is that it serves as a handy telephone directory for many of those who find it socially unacceptable to list their telephone numbers in the local telephone book.

Addresses, too, are listed. Except, say Green Book staff members, for a select few, like Chief Justice Warren Burger, who considers it a security risk for folks to know where he lives.

For $31.50 you, too, can get this little guide on whom to seat below the salt (assistant chiefs of protocol); how to address Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts (My dear Mr. Speaker); and what it means when someone leaves you a calling card inscribed "P.P." (pour presenter, or, if you no parlez Francais "to introduce.")

But if you have to send an invitation to a man and his wife; watch out if she's one of those liberated types, like deputy director of Action, Mary King, who keeps her maiden name. The Green Book says Ms. King, who prefers that title, is really Mrs. Peter Bourne.

If asked however, Mrs. Peter Bourne insists she is Mary King. "We refuse to get into the business of listing people this way," said Jean Shaw Murray, the Green Book's new publisher. "It isn't correct, and we won't be pushed into it."

Mrs. Murray took over as publisher this year from her mother, Carolyn Hagner Shaw, who died last spring.

Action/reaction: Reason

Q. Why did the city wait until school started to begin paving the streets of the schools? There was fresh tar on Goliad and now it will cost me about $50 to get it off my car. Couldn't the city at least have rerouted traffic?

A. "Unfortunately, the schedule of our (the city's) paving program depended completely on the availability of materials. There has been a real shortage of slurry seal since the State Highway Department received funds to go ahead with some of their projects," said Harry Nagel, city manager.

Offbeat: Appeal in apple

NEW YORK (AP) — For centuries apples have been associated with Halloween celebrations.

"Maybe it's because apples ripen at Halloween time, and were sacred to the early Druids," says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins. "They also figured in the Roman equivalent of Halloween, a festival honoring Pomona, the goddess of the fruits."

The Halloween game for bobbing apples or biting at apples suspended by a sting originated generations ago in Ireland. Scotland and parts of England, according to Miss Hopkins. Sometimes a riskier variation was played by fixing an apple and a light candle at opposite ends of a suspended stick. The stick was rotated and the object was to bite the apples without getting burned by the candle.

Family sought better way of life

Long wait well worth it

By JAMES WERRELL

Both the Sea of Japan and the Pacific Ocean lie between Korea and the United States. But they are nothing compared to the vast ocean of red tape that lay between the two countries for one man.

It took nearly three years for So Kyu Pak and his family to receive permission to come to live in the United States. But with the help of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marsalis, owners of D & C Mobile Home Sales, 3910 West Highway 80, Pak and his family are happily settled in Big Spring.

The first small step of Pak's journey began in the spring of 1974 when a spot at D & C opened for skilled upholsterer. Bobby Nicholson, D&C manager, had served in Korea during the war, and suggested that Marsalis start the search in that country.

"We were interested in helping a family that wanted to find a better way of life, and a man who would give an honest day's work for a day's pay," said Nicholson.

Marsalis like the idea, and applied to the American-Pacific Manpower Corporation, New York, N.Y., for help. In return he received the resume of So Kyu Pak in May of 1974.

Address: 61, Bongchon-dong, Kwanak-ku, Seoul Korea. Born: Nov. 15, 1938. Education: Graduated with diploma from Kwang Ju Senior High School, Jeonnam-do, Korea.

A reference from his employer at the Dia Han Furniture Shop in Seoul said of Pak that he was a skilled furniture upholsterer who "has shown the exceptional ability, honest diligent and desirous manner and he is a man of responsibility."

Pak was the man for the job. So the wheels began to turn, but more slowly than could have been imagined. It was almost a year before Pak was able to confirm Marsalis' offer.

April 21, 1975
Dear Sir,
I am Pak, So Kyu, made contact employment by you as furniture upholsterer in July 1974. I thank you very much for you employed me at your shop. I shall be delighted to work at your shop in good condition soon.

It takes a lot of time to go through the entry procedure. But, I think I may be going to get the visa in a few months.

Yours faithfully,
Pak, So Kyu
Little did Pak know that his application for a visa had been shuffled to an office in Houston where it had been buried for several months.

Marsalis wrote letter in April of 1975 to the U.S. Ambassador to Korea, Texas Senators Loyd Bentsen and John Tower, and Congressmen Omar Burlison, hoping to clear up some of the confusion: "For some reason, the forms were erroneously sent to the Houston Immigration Service and held for several months. Now that they are finally where they belong, we are still having to wait."

While Pak went through the painful process of applying to come to the U.S., he and the Marsalis family were in constant contact. When correspondences were gathered and compiled, they formed a sheaf of paper five inches thick.

It is Pak's letters during this time that tell most vividly the grueling task of trying to enter the "land of the free."

Aug. 20, 1975
Dear Sir,
I have not yet received my petition approved from U.S. Immigration yet. This is not only mine but many of Korean who submitted immigration last year. I hope I am going to get it soon and, I am very sure I get it in a few months.

I sent a small gift to you which is a cigarette box. Mother-of-Pearl decorated on cover. That is one of Korean special products. Hand made.

Yours faithfully,
Pak So Kyu
During the following months, Pak sent scores of letters saying nearly the same thing. Always there was a bureaucratic logjam, and always there remained hope that the visa would be granted soon.

Then finally, on Dec. 10, 1976, received his visa.
Dec. 10, 1976
Dear Mr. Marsalis,
I got the visa today! I am very glad to have it. Here, I send you small Christmas gift. Korean New Year Calendars.

Yours faithfully,
Pak, So Kyu
My family is going to arrive at Midland Airport at 5:50 a.m. Feb 3 New Years by Continental Air Line. I take my family and three daughter (elder is three years old and twins are two years old). I would like to ask you, please to arrange housing where we live in. I appreciate very much of it. Hope to see you and enjoy working at your shop very soon.

Yours faithfully,
Pak, So Kyu
This was the last correspondence that Marsalis received before Pak arrived in California and then Big Spring. It was, however, the first mention of twins which had been born to Mrs. Pak during the long ordeal of emigrating to the U.S.

The Paks are now comfortably settled in a mobile home supplied by D & C, the first such home Pak had ever seen. Pak has grown to enjoy American football, his English improves every day with practice, and he owns two cars.

Mrs. Pak, who speaks no English, sometimes becomes homesick for Korea, according to her husband. He may arrange a trip back to their homeland for the whole family, he said.

And why did Pak go through all the hardship to come to the U.S.? He has a simple answer.

"The U.S. is the greatest country in the world. I want to have my children here. I am almost 40 years old and I live for my children only."

And so it took almost three years for Pak to earn a shot at the American dream. Had he been less patient with the bureaucratic roadblock thrown in front of him, the U.S. might have been short one devoted citizen.

Graffiti in Moscow subway

Youth fad catches on

MOSCOW (AP) — The visiting Moscow have marveled at the total absence of untidy scribbles in the Metro's long-time reputation as a graffiti-free subway system.

For years, foreigners have marveled at the total absence of untidy scribbles in the Metro's long-time reputation as a graffiti-free subway system.

Other cities in the West. But a recent stroll through the Moscow Metro's Arbat station, about a block away from the Kremlin, indicated that yet another Western youth fad may be catching on in the Soviet Union.

Amid curlicue bas-relief, massive bronze chandeliers and other ornamentation typical of Moscow Metro stops, a visitor spotted graffiti on more than half of several dozen arched walkways leading to train platforms from the station's central concourse.

Most of the graffiti amounted to names—for example, "Kolya" (a common nickname for Nikolai), "Sasha R." (Sasha is short for Alexander), "Noginsk-Valya" (apparently referring to someone named Valentina from Noginsk, a city about 70 miles northeast of Moscow).

One graffiti declared: "Spartak-Durak" (Spartak-Fool). The Spartak hockey team just a few days before had suffered a surprise defeat at the hands of a much lower-rated Soviet team.

A few of the graffiti appeared to have been scribbled either by foreigners or Soviet students of English—such as "Hendricks and Tom" (Tom is a female nickname) and "I Want You, Sveta" written in English.

Rounding out the selection were a handful of drawings without words—a ban-the-bomb peace symbol, a winding road or river, as well as a Christian cross carefully sketched with three-dimensional perspective.

All of the graffiti had been scratched into the white-painted archway walls with some kind of hard metal object, such as a pen knife.

Elsewhere around Moscow, occasional graffiti painted onto stone embankments are visible, despite sandblasting. The graffiti appear to be names of people and similar to that seen in the subway.

City managers Ross Calhoun of Arlington and Clifford Johnson of Grand Prairie asked the DPS to help their local police supervise traffic and investigate accidents on the road.

They said it sometimes is difficult to get on the highway quickly by way of the present ramps, and this would hamper local police in reaching accident scenes.

Plane still missing

According to Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard, the Piper Navajo seized Thursday by U.S. Customs agents was not the missing Trans Regional plane. Although it was the same model, according to Standard this plane was a 1969 model, not a recent one.

The plane was impounded near Junction with a load of mesquite and marijuana.

Standard said that progress was still being made in the missing plane case.

News not good enough

NEW YORK (AP) — From Wall Street's point of view, the latest news on the money supply has been better, but still not good enough.

The Federal Reserve's report on Thursday of a $1.2-billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply marked the second straight weekly decline in that closely watched statistic.

Deaths — Ruth Moon

COLORADO CITY — Ruth Moon, 82, of Colorado City died Friday morning at her home of natural causes.

Services will be at 2 p.m. today in the Kiker-Seale Funeral Home Chapel.

The Rev. Roy Byrd, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be in the Colorado City Cemetery.

Born Ruth Roark June 23, 1895, in Clarksville, she had lived in Colorado City since 1949. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include a daughter, Lillian Mundy of Colorado City; a son, Ray Moon of Memphis, Tenn.; eight grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

J. L. Hanson

James Lee Hanson, 56, died at 7 p.m. Friday in a local hospital. Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Hanlan B. Birdwell, pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, officiating. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park with military honors by Goodfellow AFB, San Angelo.

He was born July 13, 1921 in Arp. He was raised in Longview, and stationed at Webb AFB in 1951.

He married Katherine Happel July 3, 1959 in Carlsbad, N.M., and they returned to Big Spring in 1962 when he retired from the Air Force. He had served in the Army in World War II. He had served, at retirement, a total of 21 years in the armed service.

He was a member of the Elks Lodge, the D.A.V., the V.F.W., and the American Legion.

Survivors include his wife, Katherine of the home; one step-son, Adrian DeGraffen Reid, Washington D.C.; three brothers, Floyd Hanson, Houston, Donald Hanson and Darnell Hanson, Longview; two nieces and one nephew.

Palbearers will be Oliver Cofer, Bob Talley, Ron Engler, Floyd Young, Max Moore, and John Fort Jr.

Preserving art of yarn spinning

JONESBORO, Tenn. (AP) — "Doc" McConnell leans forward and, with an "I had this friend named Woody," he's off on another of his yarns at a festival dedicated to preserving the art of story-telling.

The National Storytelling Festival was begun five years ago in Tennessee's oldest city by Jimmy Neil Smith, a former teacher who worried that story-telling was becoming extinct.

With the help of grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the festival spawned the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling.

A resource center has just been established to tape-record and catalogue the tales of traditional story-tellers — not just Appalachian, but Cajun, Western, black and urban practitioners of the art as well—before they die.

McConnell, known in the East Tennessee mountains as the barker of Doc McConnell's Old Time Medicine Show, is one of 20 featured story-tellers at the festival. But any of the more than 500 persons attending are encouraged to exchange stories at "swappin' place" outside a log cabin where Andrew Jackson lived.

More than a dozen workshops were conducted Saturday. The most popular covered Jack tales, derivations of the Jack-in-the-Beanstalk story in which a country-bumpkin character outwits a more sophisticated or powerful antagonist.

Festival director Brett Harrell said the biggest boost to story-telling in recent years has been Alex Haley's book, "Roots," and the television drama adapted from it.

"More and more people are trying to trace their genealogy, and stories handed down from one generation to another is one of the only few things available to do it with," he said.

A four-block area of Jonesboro restored to resemble the way it looked in the early 1800s is the backdrop for both the festival and for McConnell's story about Woody and his girl.

"Woody had decided he wanted to walk her home after tradin' and swappin' stuff up at the general store. He had a walkin' stick, and had just bought him a No. 2 tub a hangin' on his shoulder. Some fellow up at the poultry house had given him an old hen, and he'd been up at the stockyard and traded his old hound in for a calf."

He started walking down the railroad track with her, then started for the woods, and she said, "I'm not going through those woods with you Woody. You get me back in them woods someplace on a dark path and you'll take advantage of me—because I'm a virtuous woman."

"He said, 'Now how in the world could I take advantage of you back in there somewhere? Here I got this No. 2 tub a hangin' over my shoulder, got this walkin' cane and got this old hen under my arms and leadin' this calf.'"

"She said, 'Well you could stick that walkin' cane in the ground, tie that calf to it and put that tub over that old hen.'"

Chilling recollections

Davis trial ending

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — In a week of high and low drama, theatrics and emotion, jurors heard the final eyewitness account of a night of terror on a summer evening in 1976.

For a young, blonde, co-ed, a state witness, it was a week of tears and trauma and revelation of a personal tragedy.

To some extent, the seventh week of testimony was the most surprising and sensational in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis, 44.

And it ended Saturday after a prosecutor read a hearsay statement by a security guard who concluded a report to his office by saying: "Cullen Davis was the man who did the shootings."

Two died and two fell gravely wounded during the shooting spree at the hilltop mansion Davis built as the "dream home" for his free-spirited wife, Priscilla, 36.

Prosecutors contend the jetset blonde Mrs. Davis and her live-in lover, Stan Farr, 30, were the only intended targets for death of the "man in black."

But the defendant's 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea, alone in the mansion the night of Aug. 2, 1976, was the first victim.

Then, according to testimony, the gunman ambushed Priscilla and Stan when they returned to the mansion, killing Farr and wounding Mrs. Davis.

Before Mrs. Davis fled for help, testimony showed, a young couple on a date arrived at the mansion, unaware that Andrea and Farr lay dead and the killer was still at the scene.

Minutes later, Gus "Bubba" Gavrel, 22, would fall, a bullet lodged in his spine, and Beverly Bass, 19, would be fleeing across the sprawling estate with a gunman in pursuit.

And it was the chilling recollections of Miss Bass that the state used this week to wrap up the eyewitness phase of its case against the darkly handsome defendant.

As Mrs. Davis and Gavrel had done before her, the Fort Worth teenager pointed to Davis as the man dressed in black who triggered the midnight carnage.

She said she recognized Davis when he stepped from a darkened walkway into a lighted area, whirled and wordlessly gunned down her boyfriend.

"Bubba screamed and stumbled and fell in front of me," she testified.

She said the gunman leaned over as if to put a second bullet through the young man's head, then, for several seconds, "he just stood there and looked at me."

"Cullen, please don't shoot me, it's Bev," she said she pleaded as she ran screaming from the mansion, eluding the gunman in the darkness and flagging down a passing motorist.

After the motorist telephoned police, she said, she "whistled down a patrolling security guard, John Smedley, and begged him to take her back to her wounded boyfriend."

It was Smedley who provided the legally significant corroboration to the story she told jurors.

Although out of context, this is what he quoted the excited Miss Bass as telling him minutes after her escape:

"You've got to help me. There's been a shooting. My boyfriend's been shot and he's dying. I saw him shot. Cullen did it. I saw his ugly—face. He tried to kill me, too. I just ran."

Before prosecutors released her to the defense, Miss Bass twice broke down in tears after viewing a color photograph of Andrea's body lying on the bloody floor of a basement utility room.

But her most excruciating moments came later under two-and-a-half days of withering cross-examination by crack defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, who probed relentlessly into her personal background.

Miss Bass tearfully admitted she once gave false information under oath regarding a "personal problem" and that she used her sister's name to falsify records at a Fort Worth pregnancy clinic.

Asked if that sworn statement was truthful, she almost screamed at Haynes: "It was not true. It was something I wanted to forget. And I had forgotten about it."

As Haynes pressed on, she said, "Mr. Haynes, I told you before I wanted to block this from my memory and I had."

At week's end, Haynes caught the prosecution by surprise by suddenly surrendering the witness back for redirect examination.

But chief prosecutor Tom Curry and his colleagues perhaps overtrumped the defense, releasing her without further questioning.

That move likewise barred Haynes from additional questioning of the witness, at least at this point.

"Haynes gambled and lost," a prosecutor said. "The prosecution should not have turned her loose," Davis himself declared. "I think they were just damn glad to get that witness off the stand."

With Miss Bass gone, defense lawyer Phil Burleson turned his attention Saturday to Smedley and the report he gave his security company after the shootings.

"Beth (meaning Bev), an eyewitness to two murders and two attempted murders, flagged me down...she said there had been several shootings and to call (police)," Smedley's report said.

Burleson sought to show if Miss Bass indeed witnessed the other shootings, then the account she gave investigators was false.

Weather

FORECAST

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts an area of rain in the northwest.

Another cold front races across state

Another cold front rode 20 and 30 mile an hour winds across Texas Saturday, dropping early afternoon temperatures into the 50s and bearing down on the Gulf Coast.

Showers and thunder showers were expected when the front collided with warm southerly winds along the coast.

The front trailed cool and dry air as it moved across Central Texas. Some rain was reported in the Hill Country around Kerrville as the front approached.

Forecasts also called for some light rains in West Texas.

Police beat Employee slugs boss in row

Two assaults were reported to police over the weekend. A T & P railroad employe was arrested by police Friday after the employe allegedly struck his boss twice. The blows were precipitated, according to police reports, by an argument. Other employes apparently pulled the man off the employer after the first blow, but the arrested man struggled free to take another shot.

Juanita Jordan, 506 Douglas, apparently returned to her home Friday to find an intoxicated man in her kitchen. After a brief altercation, according to police reports, the man attacked her with a butter knife, cutting her on the earlobe and neck. Shedd did not require hospitalization. The man was not arrested.

Two major losses were reported to police. Two mikes with windscreens were taken Thursday night from the First United Methodist Church. The value of the items was $256.65.

Damage estimated at $100 was done to a 1957 International Harvester pickup belonging to Douglas Nichols, 3911 Dixon, when vandals smashed the front windshield Friday night.

CLIMBING THEY PYRAMID

Edwin Drummond, 32, of San Francisco, and Robert Zipper, 23, of Los Gatos climbed the Transamerica pyramid in San Francisco Saturday. The two climbers were arrested for trespassing before they could reach the tip of the 48-story pyramid. Drummond, who has attempted to climb before, was caught on the 23rd floor and Zipper arrested on the 10th floor.

Hearings to resume

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Hearings into psychological experiments at the State University of New York at Albany are to resume Oct. 26 to determine whether some student subjects may have risked their lives in the experiments.

A state Health Department lawyer said Friday, the first day of testimony, that evidence submitted during the upcoming hearings would prove that a faulty electric shock machine "was capable of causing death."

Tests with the allegedly dangerous machine were halted last spring when a technician alerted university officials, and there is no evidence that anyone was hurt by that machine, lawyer Douglas McGivney said.

Other than one subject who suffered a slight burn from a light source in an unauthorized experiment that did not involve electric shocks, there have been no reports that any of the hundreds of student subjects were injured in any of the experiments the department has called into question.

A lawyer for the university, the largest in the nation with nearly 350,000 students on 64 campuses, said the case had "triggered an intense review and self-examination" at all SUNY units, to make sure they comply with state law.

The Albany university officials admit that not all experiments were reviewed by an Institutional Review Board, and that not all subjects gave full written consent required by the law.

In event of attack

Sanctuary is planned

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New England Civil Defense officials are developing elaborate plans to transform New Hampshire, Vermont, and Maine into a sanctuary for other residents of their area if the nation is ever threatened by nuclear attack.

"We expect to have something on paper that should work, in about two years," said David Hayden, who is coordinating the plan in New Hampshire. "Then we would make various refinements."

Under what is termed the Crisis Relocation Plan, people who live in more populated "risk areas," such as southern New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, would be evacuated to less populated "host areas."

The plan is designed to help disperse the population from "risk areas" near big cities and military bases that officials believe could be used as pawns in nuclear blackmail attempts.

"This plan would never work with normal cooperation, but if World War III were imminent, and the president says, 'this is what you have to do to stay alive,' we think the people would respond. A disaster seems to make people more cooperative," Hayden said.

He said New Hampshire officials hope to sign a federally funded planning contract.

"After the contract is signed, we will go into the cities and towns, high-risk areas first, and talk with officials about cooperating," Hayden said.

"If a town says get lost, I will quietly get lost, but I'll tell them if the time comes, the people will come here, whether they plan or not," he said.

Private houses would not be used for the refugees, but an engineering study, compiled in a thick computer printout, lists churches, banks, schools, county homes for the elderly and other buildings as possible shelters.

The New Hampshire Statehouse would become the temporary home for about 7,500 people; the Sullivan County Home in Claremont would house 1,200; a wastewater treatment plant in Concord 563; the Shaker Building at the LaSalette Seminary in Enfield 1,700; Dartmouth College in Hanover about 69,000.

Hayden said some states already have car stickers designating where evacuees would go.

New York State is "pretty much taking care of itself," Hayden said. That means Connecticut and Rhode Island residents cannot flee west, but must head north, most of them into New Hampshire.

"Maine is not too bad areawise. It is good for a tremendous amount of people, but the problem is transportation. There would be a tremendous bottleneck at the southwestern corner of the state."

The evacuation ratio calls for five "immigrants" for every "native." That would jam the streets of Concord, N.H., with about 175,000 people instead of the usual 35,000. Conway, N.H., would be transformed from a quiet resort town of about 6,000 to a crowded city of 30,000, all within 72 hours.

40 booths are likely

There will be a number of food and drink booths at the first Big Spring Arts and Crafts event to be held Oct. 22 and 23 at the Dora Roberts Community Center and the park area surrounding it.

Mel Prather and Mike Paul, co-chairmen of the event, also point out that the event will include close to 40 booths of artists featuring arts and crafts for sale.

Many are Big Spring artists, but there will also be some artists from Austin and from other West Texas towns.

Handcrafted items, in addition to paintings, will be sold.

Big Spring citizens are urged to invite out of town people whom they know to Big Spring for the weekend and make plans to attend the festival.

Letters to prospective exhibitors invite them to visit the many excellent clubs and restaurants in Big Spring while they are here.

They also urge them to take a lazy autumn stroll down the picturesque hike and bike trail winding around the big spring or to visit the Heritage Museum or the Museum of Dolls.

Carter's international trade plan threatened

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter's attempt to keep international trade free from restrictions appear to be facing its toughest test to date as problems worsen in the country's steel industry.

No one disputes that the U.S. industry is in serious trouble. Industry and union officials cite job losses that have recently reached about 60,000 workers as evidence of that.

Profits are sinking, production is down and the share of steel sold in the U.S. by foreign producers is getting bigger. The United States went from being a net exporter of steel in 1955 to importing as much as one-fifth of its needs now, according to a government report.

In 1976, the level of steel imports here averaged a little above 14 per cent, but had reached about 20 per cent on an annual basis in August.

Man is still among missing

George Jordan, who disappeared in May 1974 is still missing, according to his parents who reside here.

George would now be 27 years old. He was five feet five inches tall and dressed in a robe and sandals when he disappeared. He had been taking medication.

He was last thought to be seen wandering in a dazed condition near the city landfill. Helicopters and searchers looked for him for a week at that time.

His brother, Raymond Jordan, a Vietnam veteran, died the week before as he was checking into a local hospital for an apparent overdose.

The family has one other son in Odessa. This week, the father again appealed to anyone who may have heard of George's whereabouts during the past three years. Any information should go to the missing persons department at the city police.

Headline needs to be used often

Friday's newspaper contained a headline which I hope will become increasingly routine:
"Two new industries for Webb."

AT A PRESS conference Friday morning in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office, it was announced that two more firms will be moving onto the base, which will soon become Big Spring Municipal Airport and Big Spring Industrial Park.

The two new industries are: Cage Corporation, an Abilene firm which specializes in repairing and rebuilding aerospace ground equipment and electronics for the industry. Able Construction Co., a new firm which has opened in Big Spring which repairs oilfield equipment.

Cage will bring about 40 jobs to Big Spring over the next several months, and Able is a small, but growing, company which now employs three.

Two industries are already operational at the base. The biggest is Lubbock Manufacturing Co., a pressurized tank truck manufacturer. Its building on the west side of the base is a beehive of automobiles, tank trailers and activity.

The second is Energy Efficient Windows, which has moved in and got its sign up. When the immediate potential of all four of these industries is realized at Webb, it will mean more than 150 industrial jobs at the base — and perhaps as many as 200.

Winston Wrinkle, head of the chamber's Industrial Team, has said that he hopes the former Air Force base will have 350 new industrial jobs by the first of next year.

It looks very possible that the goal can be reached. The paperwork roadblock which has held up progress for the past two months appears to be breaking.

THE INDUSTRIAL team is showing the base to what Wrinkle likes to call "industrial suspects" almost daily, and a number of these, including one of two who would employ rather large numbers of people, have been developed into definite prospects.

With some luck, there could be as many as 1,000 new, solid, good-paying jobs at the base by mid-1978.

But it will take time, patience and hard work. The chamber must negotiate with a dozen companies to land one.

However, it looks like the base as an industrial park will be a going operation very soon.

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — A Pentagon commission has just released a study recommending, among other things, that West Point cadets develop a sense of humor, something it found the academy was lacking. As anyone who has dealt with military officers knows, this is easier said than done. But I'm sure that if the Pentagon recommends it, West Point will give it the old school try.

"All right, cadets, we will now devote the next hour to developing a sense of humor. Brinckley, are you prepared?"

"YESSIR!!!!!!!!"

"At ease, Brinckley. You don't have to stand at attention. Just tell us a joke."

"A WHAT, SIR?!!!!!!!!"

"A joke. You know, something to make us all laugh."

"YESSIR!!!!!!!!"

"Well, go ahead, Brinckley."

"IN THE ARMY THERE ARE THREE KINDS OF FOOLS, SIR. FOOLS, DAMNED FOOLS AND VOLUNTEERS."

"Very good, Brinckley. Very amusing. What is it, Grunback?"

"SIR, I TOLD BRINCKLEY THAT JOKE LAST NIGHT IN THE MESS HALL. HE STOLE IT FROM ME."

"If that's true, Brinckley, this is a serious violation of the Honor Code. West Point has a rule that a cadet will not lie, cheat or steal a joke from another cadet."

"SIR, GRUNBACK HEARD THAT JOKE FROM SOMEONE IN THE SECOND BATTALION. HE STOLE IT FROM THEM."

"Why didn't you report it under the rules of the Honor Code?"

"I INTENDED TO, SIR, IF IT DIDN'T GET A LAUGH."

"That's not very funny, Brinckley. I'm afraid you'll have to go on report. The academy will not condone joke stealing, nor the failure to report another cadet who stole one. When you lead men into battle, they will expect you to make up your own jokes, and they will not follow an officer who takes jokes from someone else in the field. Have I made myself clear?"

"YESSIR!!!!!!!!"

"All right, now let's keep our sense of humor in spite of this tragic affair. O'Reilly, can you make the class laugh?"

"YESSIR!!!!!!!!"

"Well, go to it."

O'Reilly takes a banana cream pie out from under his desk and flings it into the captain's face. The captain, wiping the cream off his starched uniform, says, "That was very good, O'Reilly. I'm giving you an A in the course."

"THANK YOU SIR!!!!!!!!"

"I am also going to have you court-martialed for striking an officer, insubordination and insulting the uniform of the United States Army under Article 12, Section 8 of the Military Code."

"BUT SIR, YOU TOLD ME TO MAKE THE CLASS LAUGH. THEY'RE HYSTERICAL."

"Good, then I am also adding the charge of mutiny. What is it Grimstead?"

"SIR, YOU STILL HAVE SOME WHIPPED CREAM IN YOUR LEFT NOSTRIL."

"Do you want to go to Leavenworth, too?"

"NO SIR, THAT WAS A JOKE. I JUST MADE IT UP."

"How would you like to march around the parade grounds in full battle dress for six hours?"

"THAT'S VERY GOOD, SIR. YOU'RE VERY FAST ON THE REPARTEE."

REMEMBERING...

By BILL D. BROOKS

PICKING PLUMS

By the creek that ran through our place was a large thicket of wild plum bushes. We kept a close watch on it each year to let Mother know when the plums were ready to pick. We would bring home a pocket full to show her.

If she thought they were ready we would plan to go picking the next day. We would take along a bushel basket and several buckets (the gallon kind that molasses came in with the wire bail). We would usually carry along a quilt and a snack of peanut butter and cracker sandwiches and a fruit jar of drinking water as it sometimes took the better part of the day to pick all the plums.

When we got there we would find a nice sandy spot in the creek bed to spread out the quilt then we would put the drinking water in a shady place and hang the bag of sandwiches from the limb of a tree with a piece of twine.

This kept ants from getting into the snack before we did. Leaving the basket near the quilt we would each take a sirup bucket and spread out in the thicket. Mother would always warn us not to eat any but we always did and sometimes got a tummy ache as a result. The plums were bright orange, about the size of a marble and almost as hard, with a bitter taste. Plum jelly was good though, especially with a spoonful of cow butter slipped into the middle of a hot homemade biscuit. I never could figure out why plums would give a fellow a tummy ache but plum jelly wouldn't.

When our buckets were filled we would dump them in the bushel basket and go back to picking. By late afternoon the basket would be full and so would all the buckets. Our arms and legs would be scratched from the sharp limbs of the thicket and we would be tired but there would be enough plums for a whole year's supply of jelly.

Don't lay everything to menopause

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I keep breaking out in sweats. I have been through menopause almost four years. I have tried estrogen tablets, but nothing helped. I am not sickly, I am 5 feet, 3 inches tall and weigh 155 pounds. I'm drinking a lot of ice water in the evenings and eat a lot of sweets then, too. What can I do? — D.M.

Assuming that menopause is involved, this is not unusual. There is no time clock for menopause, particularly for the symptoms of it, which can include sweating.

Your weight could be a factor. I suggest you lose some. Abandon the evening sweets. The ice water won't help you. As far as your body is concerned, it's just ordinary water a couple seconds after you drink it.

Have you checked your temperature? The sweats may be due to an infection and not menopause.

Which leads to an important general observation. Women read and hear so much about menopause and its great variety of symptoms that they often miss significant clues to other ailments not related to this "change of life."

Not all the ailments of middle age can be cured by popping an estrogen tablet, now and then.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does a stroke damage a person's mental faculties? I mean is a stroke victim less intelligent? — M.G.G.

I don't believe you can use the terms "mental faculties" and "intelligence" interchangeably. Certainly faculties controlled by the brain (and all of them are) can be lessened by a stroke — memory, speech, coordination, etc. But I don't believe this can be called loss of "intelligence" (a vague term at best). The stroke victim's personality is basically the same after as before a stroke. His abilities to project that personality through various faculties may be what is lost. As an example, a highly intelligent person may have difficulty expressing himself after a stroke because speech has been affected. However, that person may be just as avid a reader or writer of complicated material. You may be interested in "Stroke, Hope and Help," one of my newest booklets.

For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that non-fat milk has less calcium than whole milk? — J.L.A.

To the contrary, it usually contains more. Removing fat reduces the liquid volume. The calcium remains, and in greater concentration.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband and I have been bothered with a question. He has olive skin, light brown hair and definitely green eyes. I have naturally blond hair, fair skin, and definitely blue eyes. We were both adopted and neither of us has any genetic history to go by. Would it be possible for us to have a brown-eyed baby? Also of the blue and green, which is more likely to occur? — N.K.S.

Glad you used the terms "possible" and "more likely," because heredity rolls many-sided dice in this game.

All light-skinned babies have blue eyes at birth. Genes dictate how much of what kind of pigment is laid down and thus ultimate eye color. Darkness is dominant over lightness, so one might predict that tendency to crop up in your offspring. Also, green would be dominant over the blue because there is an element of brownness in the green.

I don't know what odds you'd get from Jimmy the Greek on this. But were I a betting man and not knowing the genetic history I'd lay my money on brown and green and cross my fingers.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of The Big Spring Herald, for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know we are supposed to love people, but I find it very difficult to love certain people who are just too obnoxious. Surely there must be a limit to love, don't you think? — W.T.

DEAR W.T.: Yes, I know it is difficult to love some people. In fact, humanly speaking, it is often almost impossible. But let me suggest two things to help us grow in our love.

In the first place, realize that there were no limits to God's love. The world is in rebellion against God, and from a human standpoint there is no reason why God should not simply wipe us off the face of the earth. But God loves us anyway. God loves the very person we find so obnoxious, just as much as He loves us. The Apostle Paul said, "Very rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though for a good man someone might possibly dare to die. But God demonstrates his love for us in this: While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:7, 8 New International Version). He also said, "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ" (Philippians 2:5).

The other thing I suggest you do is pray that God will give you love for other people, and that He will give you opportunities to express that love. After all, love is a fruit of the Holy Spirit's work within us. We do not have enough love within ourselves; only God can give us true love. Often I have found in dealing with people that I can really begin to love them only when I begin to understand their problems. On the surface they are very unattractive, but the more we deal with them the more we come to see that God loves them also, and He alone can meet their deepest needs.

I suggest you study the four Gospels and particularly look at how Jesus loved people, many of whom were unattractive or even outcasts. But He loved them all, and calls us to do likewise if we are His disciples.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a college student, and I wonder how you know that Jesus Christ ever lived? I mean, can you know that someone didn't just make it all up? — S.W.

DEAR S.W.: Frankly, I know of no serious scholar — Christian or non-Christian — who would claim that Jesus Christ never lived. There are several reasons why.

First, remember that the whole New Testament was written during the lifetime of people who had heard and seen Jesus. Paul said concerning the witnesses to the resurrection that "the greater part remain unto this present" (I Corinthians 15:6). It is inconceivable that the Christian church could have spread so rapidly in the first century if there had not been eyewitnesses to Jesus. All that would have been necessary to bring the Christian movement to a halt was for someone to declare that Jesus never existed. Yet not even the most violent enemies of the Christian movement ever denied that Jesus had existed.

Second, I think it is important to remember that men do not willfully die for something they know to be a myth and a lie. Remember that every one of the original 12 apostles of Jesus died a martyr.

The important thing, however, is not simply that Jesus existed and that He lives today, but who He is. He was not simply a great historical figure, the New Testament tells us. Instead, He is "the image of the invisible God" (Colossians 1:15), who died for our sins and rose again from the dead. I urge you to read the New Testament for yourself, and come to know the Lord Jesus Christ personally.

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we have raised the possibility that alcohol fuels could make up much of the oil deficit and reduce our dangerous dependence upon overseas supplies.

The idea is now catching on in Congress, where Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and Rep. David Emery, R-Me., are preparing alcohol fuel legislation.

They may introduce a comprehensive bill, which would require the nation to use alcohol for 10 per cent of its automotive fuels needs by 1985. A 10 per cent blend of alcohol fuel with gasoline, experts tell us, would require no engine adjustments in most cars.

Only minor alterations would be necessary to convert engines to 100 per cent alcohol fuel. Government experts contend alcohol engines would operate more efficiently and produce less pollution.

Alcohol fuels could also be produced in the United States, thus saving billions that we now pay to the oil potentates. The fuel could be distilled from coal, grain, wood and even garbage.

The proposed legislation would offer tax incentives to encourage the production of alcohol fuels. Dr. William Scheller, a University of Nebraska professor, has conducted a comprehensive study of the production problems. With a three-cent tax credit, he contends, "gasohol" could be produced and sold at a price competitive with unleaded gasoline in Nebraska. This would be gasoline with a 10 per cent alcohol mix.

At least 20 senators, Democrats and Republicans alike, are ready to back the alcohol fuel legislation the moment it is introduced. Some want to bar the oil industry from participating in alcohol fuel production.

Senators from farm states are the strongest supporters. They see alcohol fuel as a way to utilize the growing stockpile of surplus grain. According to Dr. Scheller, two-thirds of the wheat that is processed into alcohol can be salvaged as protein mash. This can be used as cattle feed or a base for breakfast cereals.

Sens. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Robert Dole, R-Kans., co-sponsored an amendment to the farm bill, which would provide $60 million in federal loan subsidies to build four alcohol production plants.

The Agriculture Department has shown little interest, however, in the project. A spokesman told our reporter Hal Bernton that Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland would prefer to let the Energy Department build the plants. Their economists are skeptical of Dr. Scheller's studies.

Indeed, no one at the top level of the Carter administration is excited about alcohol fuels. Yet President Carter has called for a 10 per cent reduction in foreign oil imports. He hopes to achieve this by conserving oil. But a major effort to produce enough

CIRCLE INDICATES WHERE CABOT FIRE BROKE OUT
No injuries occurred in Unit One blaze

At Cabot plant

Fire doused quickly

A fire which broke out at the Cabot Carbon Black plant in mid-afternoon Friday was extinguished within 20 minutes, according to Mike Atchete, plant manager.

There were no injuries when flames broke loose in Unit One which contains light oil. Only one man who makes the rounds of that unit would have been nearby at that time and he was out of the range of danger.

There were close to 100 men working at the plant when the fire occurred. The firm's firefighting crew was quickly joined by Cosden's fire fighters and truck, as well as the Sand Springs volunteer unit and the City of Big Spring.

One Cabot official said at the scene, "It could have been really bad if it had gotten out of hand. That was good fire fighting."

Debbie Payne, who was operating the switchboard at the main office said, "I was plenty scared and suddenly had lots of calls to make and lots of calls coming in." Her desk faces a glass door where she was looking right at the unit that caught on fire.

Atchete said, "We are temporarily out of order for repairs, but hope to be back in full operation within 24 hours."

One woman, whose husband had just returned to work after heart surgery, called in to find out his condition, but he was reported to be "just fine."

The plant manager expressed appreciation to all fire units who assisted in combating the blaze.

Chance to run state declined

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—State Auditor Ray Parr, who says he would rather see an Oklahoma football game than be governor, has turned down a chance to be acting governor.

The offer came from Secretary of State Jerome Byrd, who is acting governor while all the higher ranking officials are in Dallas for today's Oklahoma-Texas football game.

Carolina train jumps tracks

SPENCER, N.C. (AP)—A Southern Railway train carrying more than 100 passengers jumped the tracks early Saturday morning as it entered a railyard here, authorities said.

An undetermined number of persons was injured when 12 cars and four engines of the southbound train derailed, a spokesman for the Rowan County Sheriff's Department said. There were no fatalities and none of the injuries was believed serious, the spokesman added.

The spokesman said most of the injured were treated at the scene by rescue teams, but the more seriously hurt were taken to Rowan Memorial Hospital in nearby Salisbury, about 40 miles northeast of Charlotte.

Hospital director M.E. Bullard said 16 persons had been treated there. He said most of the injuries consisted of "cuts and bruises."

Two from Texas face charges in Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A couple from Texas has been indicted in the August shooting death of Chicago steel executive Nigel Harlan, whose body was found in a pasture south of Birmingham nearly one month after he disappeared after leaving a nightclub with a woman.

A Jefferson County grand jury acted within an hour after the completion of a preliminary hearing Friday for Debra Ann Andrus, 21, and Tony Randolph Nolen, 25, both of Kountze, Texas.

Mrs. Andrus, who testified for the state and blamed the shooting on Nolen, was indicted on a first-degree murder charge. Nolen was charged with capital robbery-murder, which could lead to the death penalty.

Mrs. Andrus said from the stand earlier that she turned state's witness so she could receive a lighter sentence.

Both were held without bond. A trial date was not set.

Abortion provision temporary

WASHINGTON (AP)—House and Senate conferees, who have spent nearly three months arguing over an abortion policy for the federal government, now are playing a waiting game in hopes of forcing concessions.

The House is scheduled to try again this week to offer some proposal that might prove acceptable to the Senate.

Whatever provision is agreed upon will remain in force for only one year. Thus, the abortion battle is likely to be waged again in 1978.

Timing is becoming crucial.

The abortion issue is linked to a $60.2 billion funding bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and 10 related agencies. Their operating money technically ran out Sept. 30.

Programs such as those for unemployment benefits and welfare have been continued. But administrative spending for such items as overtime, expense accounts and new hiring has been curtailed.

Most employees of the agencies face receiving only half pay on Oct. 18 unless congressional agreement is reached early next week.

Checks issued on that date would cover work done in the final week of September and the first week of October. But without new legislation, there is no provision for salaries for the first week in October.

The House leaders and conference committee members say a House vote can be expected Wednesday or Thursday. The employees can be reimbursed retroactively once the bill is enacted.

The House conferees arranged to delay the House vote by a week. Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., their chairman, said the objective was to gain support in both houses for the House conferees' position.

One House member, who asked not to be identified, said the strategy is to give the Senate as little maneuvering time as possible. The source said the senators then will feel compelled to accept the House proposal or take the blame for denying agency employees their full salaries.

However, when the two sides met Monday, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., who heads the Senate conferees, apparently had decided what would happen.

Magnuson, who controlled enough proxy votes to speak for the Senate side, said the most recent House proposal would be unacceptable. He suggested that if the House members couldn't agree to a position closer to the Senate's they should take the matter back to the full House.

In its first vote on the issue in June, the House agreed to bar all federal funding of poor women's abortions.

These abortions are paid for through programs such as Medicaid and Social Services. Some $50 million was spent last year to pay for 300,000 of them, HEW estimates.

Later, the House backedtracked and adopted the same position which had been enacted last year. Federal money could be spent on abortions only when a woman's life was jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy.

Weekend of OU-Texas game much, too much for many DALLAS (AP)—Eddie was not one of the bad guys. Slouched against a building, a jug of something liquid perched on his lap, a red and white "OU" hat on his shaggy head, he admitted, "Man, I'm just down here for the boogeyin'. I'm an Alabama fan."

So it was with many of those who came to town for what amounts to a good natured, if drunken, Friday night cakewalk up eight blocks of Commerce and down the other side. Around and around they went. Some driving and honking. Most walking. And all hooting appropriate obscenities at each other between gulps of amber, red and clear liquids.

The excuse for the merriment is provided by the Universities of Texas and Oklahoma, whose football teams play an annual game at the "neutral" Cotton Bowl here to coincide with the opening of the State Fair of Texas.

Friday night's celebration precedes the Saturday game, seen through bleary eyes by many who always swear, "Never again."

Each year, a small army of Dallas police and assorted deputies and security guards don helmets and trudge out along the Commerce Street strip to keep a semblance of order.

This year's street fair was a little rowdier than some, owing to Oklahoma's No. 2 ranking and Texas' No. 5 position.

Besides that, the game is not being televised nationally or regionally.

By the time the city water truck moved through the throng, shortly after 2 a.m., spraying water to announce the end of the annual shindig, there were 209 persons in custody of Dallas police for a variety of offenses, ranging from drug violations to public drunkenness, disorderly conduct for many different reasons and failure to obey orders from police.

One man was arrested after he threw a piece of a police barricade through a window at the downtown Neiman-Marcus store.

Bob Shaw, Dallas police public information officer, said only five of the persons arrested identified themselves as University of Oklahoma students and only six would claim to be students at the University of Texas. "Some of them may not have been telling the truth," Shaw said.

"Most of the ones we arrested were locals, just out trying to get away with something they normally couldn't get away with," Shaw said.

"We keep 'em moving. Pretty soon they got to get tired," grinned one tree-tired, helmeted officer.

Age is no barrier to the celebration.

A passing convertible overflowing with happy drunks flashing the Texas "Hook 'em Horns" sign, was met by a high-pitched "Yea, Oklahoma" from a young grin jeans and a bright red T-shirt.

A matron, several years her senior and dressed in a conservative suit, turned and drawled, "A lot you know honey. This is God's country and God's boys are gonna send you Okies packing tomorrow."

Man shot; car taken

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—An Oklahoma City man told authorities he was shot and left on the side of Interstate 35 near the Texas border by two hitchhikers who stole his car Friday night.

Billy Prather, 48, was hospitalized in serious condition with a bullet wound at Memorial Hospital here after the 10 p.m. shooting, authorities said.

Prather told the state Highway Patrol he picked up a man and a woman in their 20s in the Norman area at about 9 p.m. Friday. About an hour later, as he was driving through Love County, Prather said he was shot by the hitchhikers and left on the side of the expressway, 10 miles north of the Red River near Marietta.

Prather said the hitchhikers fled in his 1972 maroon Plymouth-Duster, bearing the Texas license plate NAQ192.

Oklahoma and Texas authorities were searching for the car and the hitchhikers.

The male hitchhiker was described as white, with long blonde hair, about 25 years old, 185 to 200 pounds. The female was described as white, blonde hair, about 20 years old.

Prather said the man used the name John and the woman used the name Cindy.

Question of Brezhnev successor unsettled

MOSCOW (AP)—The question of who will succeed the aging Leonid Brezhnev as Soviet leader is as wide open as ever following the appointment of an even older man to be his top deputy.

Kremlin watchers had hoped they would get some hint about the future of Soviet leadership when the post of first deputy president was filled Friday.

The job was a new one, created by the just-adopted "Brezhnev" constitution. The man elected to it would sit in during absences by the 70-year-old president, who often disappears from public view because of his health.

When the secret maneuvering was over, the job went to a relatively young up-and-comer who might one day step into Brezhnev's shoes, but to Vasily V. Kuznetsov, a 76-year-old career diplomat whose age and lack of top-level political experience rule him out as a contender in a future power struggle.

Kuznetsov, who has served as an able diplomat but not a decision-maker for the last quarter century, was named only Monday to the inner circle of Kremlin leadership.

He was elected one of eight candidate members of the Politburo, who along with 14 full members make Soviet policy.

His appointment as first deputy president means the new job is not likely to be a politically powerful one. Rather, it will remove from Brezhnev's shoulders much of the routine duties of president, such as airport greetings of foreign diplomats and meetings with ambassadors.

Brezhnev, who as Communist party leader has been the top man in Russia for more than a decade, assumed the presidency in June after the ouster of his long-time rival, Nikolai V. Podgorny.

Part of program may be salvaged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders plan to give President Carter's ailing energy program some intensive care after a week in which a rebellious Senate nearly finished the job of killing it.

Administration allies on Capitol Hill, frantically searching for new ways to keep the plan alive, are pinning their hopes this week on what is sometimes called the third house of Congress—a House-Senate conference committee—to pull at least part of the plan through.

But few expect the final result to be anything like what President Carter envisioned when he asked Congress last April 20 to join him in a battle against an energy crisis he termed "the moral equivalent of war."

Conference committees are named whenever bills on the same subject pass the House and Senate in different forms. The committees, made up of an equal number of members from each House, reconcile the differences and produce a compromise bill.

Senate Democratic leaders have devised these two strategies, both involving conference committees, to try to salvage some of the natural gas pricing and tax portions of the President's plan:

—The expected naming of the natural gas conference committee of a majority of Senate negotiators who are sympathetic to the President's plan for continued price controls, even though the Senate voted for a rival plan to lift the price restrictions.

—Letting the Senate pass an energy tax bill that contains none of Carter's tax plans in hopes conferees will produce a compromise tax package tailored to win both Senate and House approval.

At week's end, the President's energy proposals, which had sailed so easily through the House last August, were, in the words of Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., "in a shambles."

As the Senate delivered final blows to the nontax portions of the plan, its Finance Committee was busy killing off the remaining tax proposals. Little of Carter's plan was left standing. Carter's plans to keep price lids on natural gas and to force utilities to revise their rate structures were the latest Senate casualties.

Earlier, the Senate did approve some of the minor energy conservation measures proposed by the President, but made a major modification in his coal-conversion program.

The President wants to force utilities and industry to convert from oil and natural gas to coal. The Senate went along with the gas part but voted to allow all but the biggest plants to keep burning oil.

The Senate also decided to ban cars getting poor fuel economy—a repudiation of the President's "gas-guzzler" tax.

Cartel's effectiveness is argued by observer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A former Westinghouse Electric Corp. employee says there was talk of formation of a foreign uranium producers' club in April 1973, but he didn't think it would be very effective in raising the prices of uranium.

C. A. DeSalvo made the statement Friday in a deposition read into the record in the Westinghouse uranium contract case in U. S. District Court here.

Westinghouse has argued that one of the main reasons it was forced to cancel uranium contracts with more than a dozen utilities was that an international cartel pushed uranium prices so high the company could not afford to meet its commitments.

However, the level of Westinghouse's awareness of cartel activities is in dispute.

Judge Robert R. Merhige scheduled a court session today in an effort to wind up the utility presentations by the end of next week.

Edward C. Duffy, retired president of Long Island Lighting Co. (LILCO), testified Friday that Westinghouse won a "preferred position" over General Electric Co. in bidding for a fuel contract for two nuclear reactors because it had a superior uranium offer.

Duffy said he would not have recommended the purchase of the Westinghouse equipment had it not been for the attractive fuel proposal.

LILCO traditionally had used a substantial amount of GE equipment and had a satisfactory relationship with the supplier, he said.

Until Westinghouse canceled its LILCO contracts Sept. 8, 1975, Duffy said it never was brought to his attention that any of his subordinates were afraid the utility's 1973 uranium agreements were in jeopardy.

Duffy said he thought the utility was "doing business with one of America's great companies" when it agreed to buy the steam supply systems and nine million pounds of uranium from Westinghouse.

In addition to having its deal with Westinghouse terminated, LILCO also is trying to convince the judge that it had a binding agreement with the equipment manufacturer even though it does not have a signed contract.

"I had no doubts at all when organizations like Westinghouse make a proposal, and we accepted, it was a binding contract," Duffy said.

Tax incentives are expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders expect to produce legislation giving Americans tax incentives for saving energy as an alternative to President Carter's taxation program.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., said Friday the Senate Finance Committee is likely to report such a bill to the Senate next week. It would face a presidential veto, he said.

"I envision a bill that will involve literally billions of dollars of tax incentives to produce more energy and to conserve energy," Long said.

The Senate has emasculated Carter's tax program, designed to force conservation and conversion from higher priced to cheaper fuels. The House passed the plan almost intact.

Long said he doubts the tax program could be revived on the Senate floor, and there's no guarantee that it could be salvaged in a House-Senate conference committee.

"It might not be as simple as some might expect," he commented. "There's a good chance we can work it out but no guarantee."

Long's committee on Thursday defeated the last of Carter's tax plans, rejecting 14 to 4 the proposed tax on factories and power plants that use oil and natural gas.

Earlier, the panel defeated proposed taxes on gas-guzzling cars and crude oil.

If a vote were taken now, not one of the taxes approved by the House could pass the Senate, Long said.

Legal oil flow down slightly

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas oil production, as of Oct. 1, had an average calendar day allowable of 3,542,414 barrels, the Texas Railroad Commission reported Friday.

This legal rate of flow from 178,063 wells compared with 3,589,585 barrels from 177,672 wells on Sept. 15.

The oil allowable for October is set statewide at 100 per cent of the market demand.

Economists Education board rules worrying about '78 Custom won't charge decrease

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is confident the economy is coming out of its summer decline, but government economists are already starting to worry about next summer.

Unemployment figures released Friday showed the jobless rate declined from 7.1 to 6.9 per cent in September. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the figures are evidence the economy is recovering from a summer slump.

Most of the improvement in unemployment was registered in the black work force. Unemployment among blacks, which rose to 14.5 per cent in August, dropped to 13.1 per cent last month.

Analysts said there was some indication the August increase was caused by a "quirk" in the statistics rather than an actual rise in unemployment.

Although the national decline in joblessness was slight, it coincided with further signs of immediate improvement in the economy.

Consumer credit and new factory orders, which indicate the confidence people have in the economy, made sharp increases in figures released this week.

The government's index of economic indicators also jumped after three months of sluggish signals.

Government economists warn that figures for another month will be needed, however, to show the size of the upturn.

Economists consider it important to keep the economy growing at a rate of at least 4 per cent for the year. If the nation's output falls below that level, unemployment usually gets worse.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal told reporters Friday that the economy is expanding at a rate of about 5 per cent after a strong 7 per cent rise in the first half.

He added, however, that "the rate of growth may not be as rapid" as is needed to reduce unemployment in late 1978.

He did not give a figure, but private reports circulating at the White House say growth could slow to 3.5 per cent late next year.

Blumenthal added it is "somewhat more possible" than it was two or three months ago that the administration will propose a tax cut in 1978 to stimulate the economy. The administration's tax package for 1979 includes tax cuts, but officials have been considering proposing the tax cut alone for 1978.

Because of the economic outlook, advisers have told President Carter he may have to give up the idea of balancing the budget by 1981 if he hopes to get the unemployment rate below 5 per cent by then.

The administration has been counting on newly enacted job programs to reduce unemployment to 6.5 per cent by year's end, but large layoffs in steel and other industries could interfere with that goal.

The steel industry has said its main problem is imports from other countries and has asked for government protection. Although the government seemed to be bending its way a little this week, an administration study said import restrictions would be of little help.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Pupils from the tiny Paige Independent School District can continue going to Giddings schools as Paige pupils have done for 27 years, the State Board of Education said Saturday.

The board refused to overturn Commissioner M.L. Brockette's approval of a one-year contract for the 32 Paige pupils to remain in Giddings schools.

Last year, the Bastrop school board attempted to annex the Paige district which lies wholly in Bastrop County, although the pupils have been going to Giddings. An appeal of the action is pending before the Texas Supreme Court.

"This smacks of blackmail," board member W. W. Carter, Amarillo, told the Bastrop board attorney, J.C. Hinsley. "You are not going to educate these children unless they withdraw their legal suit (against the annexation).

"Those people at Paige have been informed not to spend any money or they will be held individually liable," Hinsley said.

Hinsley said the Bastrop school board had every right under law to annex the Paige pupils. Furthermore, he said, state law does not allow whole districts to be placed under contract.

Al Snyder, Giddings attorney, said their argument was that the Bastrop board action was illegal. "They merely posted notice of a meeting one day and held it the next when they tried the annexation," he said. "We contend this does not comply with the Texas Open Meetings Act and therefore they had no jurisdiction."

Don Hensley, attorney for the Texas Education Agency, said the state agency was not taking sides in the Central Texas controversy. "Our position is that the case is still pending before the court," he said.

"The children have been educated for 27 years in Giddings district, we felt they should stay there as they are until the courts make a decision."

They work hard, but few complain

GERMANTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — They work hard, but who's complaining?

Their sewing machines whirr, whirr, in a neon-lit room above an empty store on the block-long main street of this tiny Hudson Valley village which has been blessedly ignored by most forms of progress as well as by most map makers.

Norma starts with a single-needle dart. Sue adds a double-needle decorative stitch and passes it to Dolores. Dolores does the top stitching of the darts and hands it to Linda. Linda closes the bottom of the cup and gives it back to Dolores for more top stitching. Dotie attaches the hooks and eyes, sews in the label, and it is done.

One brassiere. Size 52-D.

Now, if you haven't seen a size 52-D brassiere, or have seen a hammock, or a spinnaker on the downwind leg, you have an idea of what it is that Norma, Sue, Dolores, Linda and Dotie make.

"There really isn't much of a demand for them this size," said Sue Bruch, who supervises this uplifting operation. "I suppose that's why there is no need for a big plant, just a small shop like ours."

The shop has been here, through good times and bad, since 1948.

The good times were nine years ago, when Mrs. Bruch took over as supervisor and the shop turned out 10,000 dozen of those beauties a year. Then, about five years ago, the output began, um, sagging to its present foundation of 5,000 dozen.

"I just cannot explain why there has been a decrease in demand," Mrs. Bruch said.

"It's true that the whole brassiere business started slowing down a few years ago when so many women began going without them. But I can't imagine that somebody who wears one this size ... well, I just can't imagine."

In any case, 5,000 dozen a year (that's 60,000 items, don't forget) not only conjures up quite a picture of abundance but also has proved to be sufficient work to keep 25 to 30 seamstresses busy.

"We're all local ladies," Mrs. Bruch said. "All of us can use the extra money."

"We're paid union wages and most of the seamstresses earn between four and six dollars an hour on piecework. Most work about seven hours a day. So, you see, that makes a nice bit of change at the end of the week."

"My daughter and two granddaughters work here. Another mother and daughter work here too. We're like a big family, all friends, neighbors. It's a pleasant place to work."

Mrs. Bruch is the daughter of Ukrainian parents who came to America in 1905, nine years before she was born.

During the Depression she sold candy in a theater to help make ends meet. Later, when her husband went into the service in World War II, she answered an ad and took a job in New York's garment district.

Later, an executive from the Top Form Brassiere Co. picked her to take over when the job of supervisor opened.

Sirica seeking more time off

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Watergate finally behind him, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica is adopting the more leisurely pace of a senior judge.

He notified President Carter that he will leave full-time service at the end of this month, and said he hoped "I have contributed to, and measured up in some degree, to the high responsibilities" of his office.

Carter, in turn, thanked Sirica in a letter for showing personal courage and wisdom at a time of "the greatest challenge to our system of government" and wished him "good health, happiness and more years of fruitful, contributions as a senior judge."

Sirica's decision and the President's response were made public Friday by the White House.

Sirica will retain his office, staff, and salary of $54,500 when he steps down from the job he's had more than 20 years. As senior judge he can accept or reject cases as they come up.

He probably will concentrate on civil cases, leaving the more arduous criminal work to the 15 active judges in the court-house.

For the last five years — since Sept. 15, 1973, when he received the grand jury indictment of the seven Watergate burglars — Sirica has been involved in Watergate.

As chief judge at the time of the indictments, Sirica took the case. He set the tone for the tough decisions to come by asking lawyers for the burglars: "Who paid them? Did they get any money to go in there? Was it purely for political espionage? What was the purpose?"

That was in January 1973. The answers did not come until much later.

Sirica became involved in epic legal struggles with lawyers for President Richard M. Nixon for release of his White House tapes. When an 18½ minute erasure was discovered in a key tape, Sirica sent a panel of experts to find out if it had been deliberate. When Nixon's lawyers claimed the former President couldn't testify at a trial because of illness, Sirica sent doctors to examine him.

The biggest trial was the cover-up case of the men who had been closest to Nixon — H.R. Haldeman, John N. Mitchell and John D. Ehrlichman. It took three months and drained Sirica's energy.

In February last year he suffered a massive heart attack and was brought into a hospital emergency room showing no signs of life. But he was revived and six months later was back on the bench.

Sirica made the landmark decision that even a president had to yield evidence for a criminal trial. The ruling eventually forced Nixon to give up the White House tape recording that showed he had ordered the FBI diverted from the original investigation. Three days after that disclosure, Nixon became the first American president to resign.

The speaker will be the Rev. Davis Eden, First United Methodist Church, Stanton, who will talk at 1:30 p.m.

Lawyer cites case for client Trial's publicity hurt

MIAMI (AP) — Publicity surrounding the "TV intoxication" murder trial of Ronny Zamora will prevent Darrell Agrella, his alleged accomplice, from getting a fair trial anywhere in the United States, Agrella's attorney claims.

Milton Grusmark asked Circuit Court Judge Paul Baker on Friday to throw out all charges against the 14-year-old Agrella.

Grusmark had said earlier he intended to seek a change of venue for Agrella's trial, but he said he had changed his mind.

"I think it would be unfair to ask the state and a private law firm to bear the expense of moving the trial to another city. The defendant's family does not have the funds," he said.

Baker said he would rule on the motion Nov. 7, the same day he plans to sentence Zamora, 15, for the June 4 murder of his neighbor, Elinor Haggart, 83.

A jury of nine men and three women found Zamora guilty of first-degree murder and three lesser offenses late Thursday, rejecting defense attorney Ellis Rubin's contention that Zamora suffered "involuntary television intoxication."

The jury deliberations took less than two hours.

"I feel the boy is sick, he needs help," said jury member Irving Winer. "But the facts just did not prove he was intoxicated by television."

By law, Zamora must be sentenced to life in prison with no opportunity for parole for 25 years.

The trial was covered by television and still cameras under a statewide one-year experiment.

Ricardo Chavarria Hilario, 23, who gave a Big Spring address, was arrested Friday at 10:45 a.m. by the Fort Stockton police with an alleged 300 pounds of marijuana in his possession.

According to Ft. Stockton Chief of Police Mickey Clark, the bust was carried out in cooperation with state authorities, who coordinated a simultaneous raid which snared an additional 400 pounds of the illegal substance in Pecos County.

"There had been surveillance on the subjects for over a month," commented Clark. "The street value of the marijuana found in Hilario's car was estimated at approximately $100,000."

THIS YEAR'S CROP — Harley Jackson and Mack Ritchey compare notes on this year's cotton crop and cotton crops of other seasons in Mitchell County. A large number of cotton stalks were judged in the agriculture division during the Mitchell County Fair.

WELL, NOW — Malcolm Bruce looks at a gun on display by the Colorado City Gun Club. The club had a display which emphasized gun safety for hunters at the fair in Colorado City this past week.

WINNING ART — This water color by Tracey Brookover is one of three champion paintings at the Mitchell County Fair. The oil championship went to Pauline Liles and the youth championship went to Tracie Hammond.

EARLY CRADLE — Mrs. Billie Norman and Mrs. Martha Lewey look over an early cradle which was one of the entries in the woodwork division of the Mitchell County Fair, held for three days this past week in Colorado City.

Wheat subsidy payments to begin in November

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department expects to begin pumping more than $1.2 billion into the beleaguered farm economy sometime next month in the form of federal subsidy payments to wheat farmers.

Reagan Brown to make talk

Reagan Brown, Commissioner of Agriculture of the State of Texas, highlights Sweetwater Production Credit Association's annual meeting of stockholders Friday in Scurry County Coliseum, Snyder.

The meeting begins with registration at 9:30 a.m., followed by the business session at 10:30 and a noon meal.

According to F. C. Shillingburg, the association's president, Brown, Henderson, Texas, native, began his agricultural career with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in 1948 and has served as extension sociologist in the department of agricultural economics, Texas A&M University. He was sworn in as the State's agricultural leader in March 1977.

Other meeting highlights include the election of a director by the stockholders. Nominees are incumbent W. J. Harvey Jr. and J. G. Moore, both of Roby.

Main business items include the directors' report by Othell O'Kelly of Trent, and the association's financial report by Shillingburg. Board Chairman T. L. Finley of Lorraine presides, followed by PCA Vice President S. E. Rogers of Snyder who will welcome the group.

An attraction at this year's meeting will be Miss Texas National Teenager of 1977 Rebecca Graham of Roby. Graham's participation in preliminary and final competition was sponsored by the Sweetwater PCA.

More than 800 farmer-rancher members and guests are expected to attend. Door prizes will be awarded.

most should be in the range the payments will represent this year. On a national average, the payments will represent the difference between a target price of $2.90 a bushel and the government's loan rate of $2.25 or the average five-month market price of wheat since last June 1, whichever is higher.

Since the farm price of wheat has been less than the loan rate, the payments will bridge the gap between $2.25 and the $2.90 target, or payments of 65 cents a bushel. Payments will be

Operators of equipment should exercise care

COLLEGE STATION — Cotton harvester overturns, fires and contact with electrical power lines are primary hazards encountered during field operations of large overhead basket cotton harvesters, points out Dr. Gary S. Nelson, a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Nelson advises harvester operators to be sure their machines will clear electrical wires before raising or dumping the basket. A raised basket may reach a height of 25 feet and can easily reach nearby overhead power lines.

To reduce the probability of upset, always fully lower the basket before driving away from an unloading station, cautions the engineer. A raised basket causes the harvester to become more top-heavy and more easily upset. Also, operators should remain seated when raising or lowering the basket on a tractor mounted stripper as a sudden drop of the basket could result in a serious head injury.

To prevent upsets during field operations, Nelson recommends keeping harvesters a reasonable distance away from ditches, creeks and other steep or sloping ground. Also, keep end rows smooth and firm. Quick stops or turns with high-profile cotton pickers are also hazardous. Reduce computed on the basis of a farmer's 1977 plantings or acreage allotment — whichever is smaller — and yields.

Actually, there are two target prices — the $2.90 rate and one of $2.47 a bushel for farmers who did not plant all of their allotments. The $2.47 rate, which means a payment of 22 cents a bushel, will apply to the unplanted acreage of a farmer's 1977 allotment.

The department provided this example: "Let's assume your allotment was 1,000 acres but you planted only 900, and your farm's program yield was 30 bushels per acre. Your payment would be $17,550. In addition, you would collect payments of $660 on the 100 allotted acres you didn't plant... so your total deficiency payments would be $18,210."

The National Association of Wheat Growers has asked Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to expedite the payments, but a USDA spokesman indicated Friday that the checks will be forthcoming as planned, beginning next month.

Under federal farm law, the national average farm price of wheat over five months, June 15 through Oct. 15, are used in determining the payments. If the loan rate is higher than the farm average, however, it is used as the base price.

Don Howe, association president, said in a statement that the farm price of wheat in the first four months averaged $2.09 a bushel, well below the $2.25 loan level.

"This means the October price would have to average over $2.93 a bushel nationally to change the amounts of payments USDA must make," Howe said. "We think it's safe to conclude that the payment will reflect the 65 cents difference between the $2.90 target and the $2.25 loan."

The department spokesman said he had no argument with that reasoning.

But normally, if the market price average for Oct. 15 is much closer to the loan rate, the department would wait to compute the five-month average until the November price report is issued and then begin mailing checks in December. Thus, he said, payments will be going out sooner than otherwise could be the case if the loan and farm price of wheat were much closer.

The association's current newsletter includes a breakdown of estimated 1977 target price payments expected to be made to wheat farmers in its member states, assuming the 65-cent rate is used, including:

Boll weevil eradication plan roundly applauded

MEMPHIS — Announcement from the U.S. Department of Agriculture that a trial boll weevil eradication program will begin next year brought quick and enthusiastic response from National Cotton Council officials.

The three-year eradication trial — funded jointly by farmers, federal and state governments — will make its first strike against the destructive cotton pest in Virginia, North Carolina, and parts of South Carolina. Council President Jack G. Stone of Stratford, Calif., said: "The trial program is the final step needed to pave the way for victory over the most wasteful and costly agricultural insect in all U.S. history. Just one class of chemicals is the only effective means of control, and must be applied repeatedly year after year."

"If this chemical control is lost due to weevil resistance or EPA cancellation before eradication is achieved, the insect can destroy cotton production in the present weevil belt. Then, it would surely move westward to play havoc in the irrigated areas. Elimination of the boll weevil would help tremendously in our battle against budworms, bollworms, and other insects by greatly reducing the sprays that also kill beneficial insects which feed on these serious cotton pests."

Robert R. Coker, cotton producer of Hartsville, S.C., and chairman of the Council's Beltwide Boll Weevil Action Committee, called the decision "a landmark" culminating a 19-year effort by industry and government to find a permanent solution to the weevil problem.

"Using new biological, chemical, and cultural methods, the trial program is the only way to prove

Stock payments are guaranteed

New regulations and policy statements to insure that persons receive payment for livestock they sell on a cash basis have been adopted and will become effective Nov. 1, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The changes will be published in the Federal Register Sept. 28. The new regulations clarify amendments to the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act that became effective Sept. 13, 1976. Those amendments require that payment for livestock purchased on a cash basis must be made by the close of the next business day. They also require that livestock, inventories, sales proceeds, and proceeds receivable of packers be held in trust to insure payment for livestock purchased on a cash basis.

USDA officials emphasized that the new regulations are designed only to regulate the buying practices of packers, market agencies and dealers. The rules will not affect livestock purchases by producers or feeders, unless they also operate as a packer, market agency or dealer.

The regulations make distinction between livestock purchased for slaughter and livestock purchased for other purposes, such as stocker or feeder uses.

eradication capability and to determine feasibility of carrying out a Beltwide program as directed by the 1973 federal farm act," he said.

Coker noted that benefits of weevil eradication ultimately will accrue to consumers, a better environment, and the general economy, as well as to cotton producers.

Stone and Coker commended Congressional leaders, federal and state officials, and the Administration for supporting the trial program.

Larger stocks are in sight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can expect larger supplies of fresh fall market vegetables this year, the Agriculture Department said Friday. Officials said farmers intend to step up their harvested acreage for 14 major fall vegetables. If the crops develop normally, they could produce 46.3 million hundred weight, up six per cent from 43.6 million last fall.

The report said that larger production is expected for snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, cucumber, eggplant, lettuce, green peppers and tomatoes. However, reduced supplies of celery, sweet corn, escarole and spinach are expected.

Random tests upcoming involving aflatoxin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department plans to begin a year-long survey of livestock products in six southeastern states to see if aflatoxin, a cancer-causing substance found in nature, is showing up in the nation's food pipeline.

Officials said Friday that the survey will include random tests of cattle, swine, chickens and eggs in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina. It is expected to begin October 15. The survey will be conducted by USDA's Food, Safety and Quality Service which oversees meat and poultry inspection and other programs.

Dr. Ronald Engle, director of scientific services in the agency, said random samples will be taken of beef, pork, milk, poultry and eggs in each state over the next 12 months.

Aflatoxin, which can develop from a mold-Aspergillus flavus-is considered by many authorities as one of the most potent carcinogenics known in certain animal species. It has been described as "a potential carcinogen in humans" by USDA.

Much of the 1977 corn crop in the Southeast, stricken by drought earlier this year, has been contaminated by aflatoxin. Some concentrations have ranged up to 1000 parts per billion or 50 times the acceptable rate set by the Food and Drug Administration. The Federal Grain Inspection Service of USDA alarmed last month that contaminated corn might reach foreign buyers and hurt U.S. grain exports, is offering a voluntary aflatoxin testing service for corn at major grainports and large inland terminals.

A news story is where you find it and sometimes the ones that are closest by are the hardest to see.

The house immediately in front of the Big Spring Herald at 8th and Scurry has been razed within the past two weeks.

It belongs to Mrs. Travis Reed, who decided that it had deteriorated so badly from the days when it was their family home, that she would no longer rent it out. She decided she would simply tear it down.

On looking back in the county clerk's records at this property, it shows that the Texas and Pacific Railroad first deeded it to Charles J. Canda in 1888. The first part of the house was built at the time. His family apparently lived in it until the turn of the century when it was sold in 1902 to Mrs. Millie Levy.

Mrs. Levy lived there for a while and then her family apparently rented the house to several different families. Mrs. Vera Hefferman and her brother, Cecil Westerman, were reported to live there at one time. She later became Mrs. Vera Edwards and died last year in Christoval.

The R. E. Lloyd family lived there for a short time when Larson Lloyd was a young boy. Larson recalls that the family moved in their new home at 512 Aylford on Oct. 5, 1912. They moved from the house on Scurry.

In 1913, the house was sold by Mrs. Levy to Ed M. Mabley.

In those years, the area where the Big Spring Herald now stands held the Lorin McDowell home. On the corner down from the Reed home was the T.S. Currie home where Agnes Currie lived when she grew up.

Across the street was the Bill Jones home, father of Mrs. Clara Johnson who resides there now.

Behind the home which is being razed was the home of Mayor Deas which has been refurbished and made into law offices by Bob Moore and John Burgess.

C. T. Gooch bought the house from Mabley in 1916. He was a brother-in-law of John Northington, who lived in the house which still stands at 805 Scurry. It is owned by Elizabeth Northington Drouet of Houston.

The home was next sold to O. W. Morosko, a railroad man and he then sold it to Travis Reed in 1921.

This piece of property, which is listed in the county clerk's office as Lot 7, Block 64, Original Township had another small house and a store built on the back by the Reeds. Travis Reed ran that neighborhood store for many, many years.

Mrs. Reed has a beautiful painting of the home as it looked in those days with a lovely lawn and shrubs. That was the elite section of town. Scurry Street was a choice street for family homes. Of the homes cited by the local Bicentennial Committee in 1976 an estimated seven of them were on Scurry Street.

The people who tore down the house took the lumber to build a small home for a relative. It was reported to be excellent lumber in the house, built between 1888 and 1891, probably one of the oldest homes left in the city.

And it bit the dust this week — right across from the Big Spring Herald where I was leaving the office going out to ride fence.

Alcoholism seminar set

By other judges

The Big Spring State Hospital Alcoholism Program will conduct the 29th alcoholism seminar Friday. It will be held in the auditorium at the Big Spring State Hospital.

These monthly seminars are made possible through state appropriations and are held in conjunction with the Big Spring-Veteran's Administration Hospital and Howard College.

The theme for this seminar will be "Mexican-American Folk Psychiatry and Alcoholism." The consultant for this day long seminar will be Robert T. Trotter, II, Ph.D. Dr. Trotter is from the Department of Behavioral Sciences, Pan American University, Edinburg.

Registration begins at 8 a.m., with the general session starting at 9 a.m. and adjournment at 4 p.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive continuing education units from Howard College. The persons wishing to receive credit for attendance will be expected to remain the entire day.

Additional information may be secured from Clyde Alsop, training officer, Alcoholism Unit, Big Spring State Hospital.

Jurist signature shunned

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Supreme Court members were reluctant to have Don Yarbrough sign controversial opinions when he was on the bench, former Justice Tom Reavley said Sunday. Reavley recently resigned from the court. He said Yarbrough's presence kept the court from being totally open and frank in its conferences.

Reavley's account, evidently the first given from behind the scenes, was broadcast on "State Capitol Dateline," an interview program.

"We went ahead with our business almost as we had before and have since. We were conscious of the fact that a cloud hung over the court. We were not unaware of the charges against him. And while he conducted himself courteously, properly in our conferences — he was never out of line — but for these things in the background I suppose we would have gone right ahead exactly as before," Reavley said.

Reavley favors a merit selection plan, under which the governor appoints judges to their initial term and voters later decide whether a judge merits subsequent terms.

But he said there was little chance this could get the required two-thirds majority in the legislature and win voter approval.

Initial response good to manual on drugs

The initial reaction by business, professional and individual citizens on the sale of advertising space in the drug manual we have entitled "The Community Drug Scene" has been pleasing," Burson said.

The manual, sub-titled "What every teenager and parent should know," is a 24-page informative, educational publication, 8 1/2 X 11, in full color. It contains many articles and graphic illustrations concerning the hazards associated with use of narcotics and ways to detect the deadly drugs.

"Drug abuse is not just law enforcement's business anymore, it is everybody's business," Burson said. Big Spring police chief Stanley Bogard explained: "If you don't talk to your children about drugs, there's always a pusher who will. However, before you start talking about drugs, make sure you know what you're talking about."

Urging the public to read the Community Drug Scene manual, Bogard and Burson added: "The book is not a scare tactic publication, it contains hard, straight facts, and some clues which could save a child from the grip of drugs."

Officers and members of the BSPA have gone on record to extend thanks to all businesses and individuals who have supported them by sponsoring ads in the manual.

Youth scalped by bear on way to recovery

KITIMAT, Canada (AP) — A 10-year-old boy who had his scalp stitched back after it was ripped off by a 300-pound black bear is recovering in a hospital's intensive care unit.

Chad Taskinen was in satisfactory condition today at Kitimat General Hospital following surgery for severe abdominal, shoulder and head wounds suffered Thursday in the attack at this north coast British Columbia community.

Surgeons spent several hours stitching the scalp back on, and the operation was reported to have an even chance of success.

Klaus Kushke, who fatally shot the bear from 60 yards with a rifle, said he and other searchers cut the bear open with a knife in a desperate bid to find the scalp. It was eventually discovered 30 yards away, two hours after the attack, as night approached.

"Chad was attacked by the bear just near our home," said Kushke in an interview Friday. The boy and some friends had been working on a Boy Scout cabin in the woods at the time.

"I heard a boy yelling and screaming for help. I grabbed the rifle and ran into the woods," he said. "I saw the bear climbing up a gully with its teeth around the boy's middle. I knew I had to get in a good one, and I was lucky. It hit the bear just below the neck. The bear died instantly."

Kushke, a father of three, said he was no marksman and had bought the rifle only a year ago. He described it as "the most important shot of my life."

When he and the boy's mother reached Chad, the boy was in bad shape.

"His abdomen was wide open, his chest had claw marks and his head was bleeding badly," Kushke said. "He lay there conscious as we wrapped him up in sweaters and blankets until the ambulance came."

Kushke, 35, a superintendent at an aluminum smelter, said black bear attacks are rare and the bear involved "was in perfect condition."

Birth rate guessing

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. birth rate is likely to continue at a low level as long as the economy stays healthy and a large proportion of women hold jobs, a research firm reports.

"Obviously, people are not going to stop having babies altogether, but low levels of fertility are probably with us to stay," said the report released by the Rand Corp. on Thursday. Economists William P. Butz and Michael P. Ward contend the decline in fertility rate in recent years is the result, more than anything else, of the great increase in the number of young women who work.

Since the late 1950s, they said, there has been a reversal of the historic pattern that saw more babies born during economic good times and fewer in lean periods.

In the past, when few women worked, the report said, an increase in male wages raised the family income and there was a corresponding tendency for families to have more children.

But now, a strong economy leads to increases in women's wages, and a wife's working time becomes more valuable, while taking time out to bear and raise children is relatively more expensive. This discourages fertility, the economists speculate.

Rick Nelson is sued by wife

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Rick Nelson, whose marriage became part of the closing years of his parents' "Ozzie and Harriet Show," has been sued for divorce.

Kris Harmon Nelson, 32, the daughter of former football player Tom Harmon, cited irreconcilable differences in the suit filed Friday. She asked for custody of the couple's four children, Tracy, 14; twin 10-year-olds Matthew and Gunner, and Sam, 3.

She and the 37-year-old singer were married April 20, 1963.

Homosexual teachers facing difficult task in Texas

Homosexual public school teachers face a difficult task in keeping their jobs in Texas, according to a random survey of local school districts across the state. While most of the district administrators said they had no official written policy, the majority of those contacted said a teacher would be dismissed following proof of homosexual activity. "Anybody that is a known homosexual and is so identified would be asked to resign by me," Dallas Independent School District Superintendent Nolan Estes said. "It's an unwritten part of our district policy." Last Monday the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a Washington state court decision approving the firing of a homosexual teacher. The lower court had ruled that homosexuality is immoral. Of the districts contacted, only the Houston ISD indicated that known homosexuals might be allowed to continue teaching. The Houston spokesman, however, said the Houston school board is expected to be briefed on the Supreme Court decision at the board's next meeting later this month. While the district does not have a policy currently on homosexuals, the spokesman added, "if a person is a homosexual in private life and is a good teacher, his private life would have no bearing on his status with the school district." In Dallas, Steve Wilkins, president of the Dallas Gay Political Caucus, said the remarks in Dallas were "disappointing." "You can't teach children to be homosexuals," Wilkins said. He said he was afraid opinions such as that expressed in Dallas could lead to a "witchhunt." Victor Rodriguez, assistant superintendent in San Antonio, said that while a section of the Texas Education Code would allow a school district to fire a known homosexual, his district does not plan to search out such individuals. Some district officials, such as Dr. Lee Williamson of the Wichita Falls ISD, were blunt in their feelings. "It is not appropriate to have homosexual people working with children," said Williamson, who added he would fire a teacher after receiving proof of homosexual activity "rather than have the community think I condoned it."

Asked of financial aid people

Involvement beyond office

AUSTIN — College and university financial aid administrators must be looking beyond the red tape and students who fill their offices to improve relations and communication with other administrators and educators. This was the advice of the executive secretary of the National Association of School Financial Aid Administrators to the Texas chapter at the group's fall convention. Dallas Martin, who has been both a financial aid and admissions director, said financial aid administrators will play key leadership roles in school administrations in the future. Financial aid is "no longer run out of a desk drawer," Martin said. "It's big business and it brings in big money." Administrators for student work-study, loan and scholarship money bring in almost one-fourth of a college's or university's revenue on the average, he said. Most students say they would not be in college without financial aid, yet these administrators rank next-to-last in salary for educational professionals, Martin said. "We've been too busy with red tape and the students filling our offices and we haven't had time to get involved with the politics and public relations that are a necessary part of our job," he said. An estimated $8.3 billion of aid money is available nationally from all sources now, but programs are coming under increasing pressure to cut back, Martin said. A divorced mother with two children and a $10,000 home equity divorce settlement would be expected to contribute one-third of that amount for her own college education under Basic Educational Opportunity Grant guidelines and would be ineligible for most aid. Her children would probably qualify for maximum aid under the same guidelines, Martin said.

White in big challenge

By SCOTT CARPENTER

Marie-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Secretary of State Mark White will announce as a candidate for attorney general in mid-October.

He's got a lot of work to do. Already announced as a candidate to replace Attorney General John Hill is Price Daniel Jr., the former reform speaker of the House and former head of the Constitutional Convention.

White will resign his office as the state's chief election official when he announces, he says. That's as it should be. In his current post White is charged with checking the campaign finance reports of political candidates. As a candidate he shouldn't have that job.

Daniel already has released results of his first survey showing that in a head-to-head race, Daniel would get 45 per cent of the vote and White 16 per cent. Such early surveys really aren't indicative of what will happen next May. But they are indicative of the efforts that will be needed.

Daniel's survey further showed that 65 per cent of Graham predicts death in decade

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says he is "pretty sure" he will die within the next 10 years and is looking forward to meeting Elvis Presley in heaven.

"I never met him (Presley). But I believe I will see him in heaven because Elvis Presley was very deeply religious, especially in the last two or three years," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Graham said he foresees his own death in the next 10 years because of his family's history.

"My father had his first stroke at my age now (59). Well, I have the same problems he had — I've got high blood pressure and these other symptoms so I look forward to it," Graham said.

The Charlotte native made the remarks in an interview with David Lawrence Jr., editor of The Charlotte Observer.

those surveyed recognized his name — probably largely due to his father, Price Sr., the former U.S. senator, governor and current Supreme Court justice. It showed 33 per cent of those surveyed recognized White's name, which is probably partially attributable to the longtime agriculture commissioner John White.

It is going to be quite costly for White to overcome those results, if they are accurate. White hasn't run a survey, saying he's relying on people he talks to as he travels the state.

They know him and will vote for him, White says. Money is going to be hard to come by. Certainly, tough fights for the governorship and for the right to run against U.S. Sen. John Tower are going to soak up campaign funds that might otherwise be available.

Expected fights for treasurer, agriculture commissioner and wild fights for congressional seats also will drain off campaign money from the attorney general's race.

White is looking for credentials to be used in his race with Daniel. Two weeks ago White was elected the first Texas president of the national association of secretaries of state.

He'll have to vacate that post when he resigns, after serving about a month of the one-year term. His selection wasn't politically motivated, White contends. Rather, he says, those voting knew he'd be dropping out soon.

Texas has never really understood the importance of the attorney general's office. Besides being a traditional stepping stone to the governorship, the attorney general has as much power as many court judges.

His opinions amount to judicial decrees, and his choice of emphasis in legal fights helps determine the course Texas takes.

Program starts second year

The Sounds of Sunday radio program, heard each Sunday evening at 10:25-11:25 p.m. on KBST, is beginning its second year of broadcasting this month. It is the radio outreach ministry of the Evangel Temple Assembly of God Church, 2205 Goliad.

Each week's program is made up of requests phoned in the week before on the request line.

Station KFNE-FM now under new management

Radio KFNE-FM, 95.3 on the FM dial, is now under new management and has brought a new concept of radio entertainment to Big Spring.

New manager Jon Honea, has guaranteed the totally live programming offered on Big Spring's only stereo station, now known as K95 FM, will bring a new concept to listening pleasure with a progressive approach to contemporary adult programming.

Honea has promised a radio station with a strong emphasis on the local community including full-time news coverage, and live coverage of local football and basketball games.

Maddox hopeful about health

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Former Gov. Lester Maddox says he's confident he will recover from his recent heart attack.

"There's no doubt in my mind I'm going to whip this thing," Maddox said from his hospital bed.

He said he's reading a book on heart attacks which is very interesting but "nobody reads until they have one."

Maddox said he was not surprised to get a phone call from President Carter, a bitter political enemy who succeeded Maddox as Georgia governor.

"That was the gentlemanly thing to do," Maddox said. "People who have occupied the same position in politics always afford this courtesy to one another."

JON HONEA
General manager

Starting market. Starting today, Shawn O'Conner, of Kansas City; Ricky White, of Lawton, Okla.; John Onstott, of Pratt, Kan. and Jon Honea, of Big Spring, will report the news and the best of contemporary music over what is claimed to be Big Spring's most powerful radio station.

Described as "Dynamic stereo for a progressive city," K95 FM will give away over $1,000 in prize packages to listeners in Big Spring.

Jon Honea has wanted to come back to Big Spring to manage a radio station for a long time.

He worked for KBYG radio for four years while attending Big Spring High School. After graduating in 1973, Honea joined the Navy and became an electronics technician. He worked as sales manager at KIXY Radio in San Angelo, and was manager of KYRN Radio in Sonora before coming back to Big Spring.

Honea says K95 will offer more music programming than other stations in Big Spring, and a heavier emphasis on entertainment.

School program is successful

The first in a series of Community Action Presentations sponsored by the Howard College Adult Education Program was a success Tuesday night. Dub Moore, senior vice president of First Federal Savings and Loan presented descriptive and enlightening material on the topic of "How to Get the Most from Your Income."

A detailed family plan for budgeting was mapped out for the participants. It was stressed that each family's budget must be and is logically different. Responsibility to fixed debts or unavoidable expenses such as income taxes, home mortgage, life insurance, bank loans, medical expenses, etc., as well as family emergency savings funds which should amount to two months net income, were emphasized as the primary concern in a budgeting plan.

Moore set up a system of simple bookkeeping for daily inventory of expenses. A concentrated effort to follow this plan yields a structured outlook for wise money spending through the year.

Moore also pointed out the dangers of borrowing from disreputable "loan sharks," the necessity of becoming an informed consumer, and keeping abreast of national and local news.

Approximately 100 people attended.

Would-be rioters warned by chief

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Like a shotgun blast, the one-year probated sentences of two ex-Houston policemen accused of slaying a Mexican-American prisoner has sent shock waves throughout South Texas and brought a harsh warning from Houston Police Chief Harry Caldwell.

"Whoever steps to cross that penal code that forbids inciting a riot is going to be put in the city jail," snapped Caldwell in response to rumors of reprisal by Mexican-Americans. "This is going to be a law-abiding community."

Caldwell called Friday's sentences against ex-officers Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, "a tragic miscarriage of justice."

They were charged with murder in the drowning death of Jose Campos Torres, 23, a construction laborer whose body was found May 8 floating in Buffalo Bayou in downtown Houston. The jury, which included no Mexican-Americans, returned misdemeanor verdicts of negligent homicide Thursday.

Trial testimony included statements from two officers who were granted immunity from prosecution. Both said Torres was beaten by six officers after being arrested at a bar for disorderly conduct, then tossed into the bayou.

Joe Cornado, executive vice president of the Houston Mexican Chamber of Commerce, said he was "very disgusted by the action taken by the jury."

"This is an insult to the Mexican-American community," he said. "We're going to do something, but we're going to do it in a legal way."

Texans bound over by jury

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A Texas man and woman, charged in the shooting death of a Chicago steel executive, Nigel Harlan, were bound over Friday to the grand jury.

Debra Ann Andrus, 21, and Tony Randolph Nolen, 25, of Kountze, Tex., were being held without bond. A trial date was not immediately scheduled.

Mrs. Andrus has agreed to testify for the state against Nolen in hopes of securing a 20-year prison sentence instead of the death penalty.

She testified at a preliminary hearing that she fled Harlan from a midnight nightclub Aug. 18, to a car where Nolen was waiting with a rifle. She described how Nolen demanded Harlan's wallet and watch, then how Nolen took Harlan into a pasture in Shelby County and shot him.

Harlan was naked and wounded in both legs. However, Nolen returned later and fired the fatal shots into Harlan's head as the victim begged for mercy.

Mrs. Andrus testified. Harlan's badly decomposed body was found Sept. 10, in the pasture. Nolen and Mrs. Andrus were arrested Sept. 9 in Florida.

believes the jury reacted to intimidation in rendering the light sentences, thought otherwise.

"Five police officers went to Buffalo Bayou and used physical violence on a prisoner in their custody and he ended up dead," said Caldwell. "I don't know what they jury knew. But I know what I know."

State Rep. Ben Reyes added, "When I heard (the sentences), it made me feel sick for about 15 minutes."

Friday, before the sentences were returned, Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Texas Attorney General John Hill, fired off letters to the Justice Department calling for an investigation into the matter that could lead to federal prosecution of the two men on civil rights charges.

A federal spokesman Friday afternoon said the Justice Department was "actively reviewing" the possibility of filing such charges.

Some Texas Mexican-American leaders met Friday with Justice Department officials in Washington to seek federal prosecution of the officers.

The officers could face life prison sentences if convicted of violating Campos Torres' civil rights.

Despite the reaction to the verdicts and subsequent sentences, members of the jury said they believed their actions were proper.

"I think we came up with a just verdict," said juror Edna Dix. "It was a long, hard and complicated case. I am very tired and I just don't want to talk anymore."

But Caldwell, who said he

Maryland's new leader plans to move quickly

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Maryland's acting governor, Blair Lee III, a liberal aristocrat descended from the old-line families from Virginia, is expected to move quickly, but quietly, to tighten his rein on the state's administration.

Lee's position was strengthened Friday when Gov. Marvin Mandel was suspended after being sentenced to four years in prison for his conviction on federal mail fraud and racketeering charges.

Expressing sadness at the sentencing, Lee also said he had "no small measure of sympathy" for U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Taylor, who "was compelled to perform his duty as he saw it."

The entire trial is an extremely painful chapter in our history," Lee said in a statement released by his press office.

Lee took a rare day off from work Friday, apparently anxious to remain out of the public eye while Mandel appeared in federal court in Baltimore.

At a news conference Thursday, Lee said Mandel's suspension would produce few changes in state government. He noted he had been acting governor since June, when Mandel's trial began, and that he would continue to hold that title.

Lee's roots go back to the earliest days of colonization of the Americas. Starting with Richard Lee, who landed in Virginia in the 1640s with a royal land grant, Lee's ancestors include two signers of the Declaration of Independence — Zachary Taylor, the 12th president, and Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee, and Montgomery Blair, Abraham Lincoln's postmaster general.

Man in custody Art treasure damaged

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — A 40-year-old unemployed man has been arrested and accused of an acid splashing attack Friday on four paintings, including Rembrandt's priceless "Jacob's Blessing," in a Kassel art gallery, police reported today.

Police said an investigation is under way to determine if the suspect, identified as Hans-Joachim Bohlmann, was involved in similar acid splashing attacks on paintings this year in galleries in Hamburg, Lueneburg, Bochum, Essen and Duesseldorf. Police said Bohlmann was arrested at his apartment Friday night, eight hours after the attack at Kassel's Wilhelmshoeh Palace gallery.

Paintings damaged in the attack in addition to "Jacob's Blessing," the gallery's premier attraction, were a 1655 self-portrait by Rembrandt and paintings by two of his students, "The Architect," by Nicolaus Maes and "Christ Appears to the Magdalena," by Willem Drost. Officials at the gallery said "Jacob's Blessing" suffered the least damage, but they did not say if the 1656 masterpiece would be restored.

Witnesses said the self-portrait and "The Architect" were the most severely damaged. The face on the self-portrait was completely erased, they said.

No motive has been given for the attack.

Visitors to the gallery reported seeing two suspicious men near the paintings just before the damage was discovered, but there was no word whether police were searching for anyone else in the case.

Pokes and other folks

A few random notes as we sit here before our TV sets, chagrined at the fact that the Cowboys are playing at 3 o'clock instead of 12:30, that they are playing baby-faced Jim Hart and the Cardinals instead of Tampa Bay again and that they are in their doom-gloom blues instead of winning whites.

The Pokes are riding high the offensive (as opposed to defensive) waves of the glorious mist of victorious pigskin, but the defensive breakers, washing upon rocky shores of the Cowboy beachhead have eroded away the fiber of brick walls from past years. Whew! That's a little too random.

How about, the Cowboy offense is looking good this year, but the defense has slacked off somewhat, despite the 3-0 record.

Ferinstance: the Cowboys are tied with Minnesota in the entire NFL for first downs gained — 64. The Pokes are first among the 26 teams in total yards gained — 1,156, and they are second in passing yardage gained (635), touchdowns made (9) and total points scored (80). The skinniest stat Tom Landry's boys show offensively is net rushing yardage...they're fourth in the league with 521 markers.

The defensive picture has been over-exposed however. (It's darker folks!) The best numbers the Pokes have on defense is a three-way tie for most interceptions. They are knotted with Kansas City and Baltimore in that category with eight.

The Metallic Blue crew stand at fourth place in total yards allowed, rushing yardage given up and passing yardage yielded. Those yardage figures are 618, 301 and 317, respectively. The Cowboys are also sixth in first downs allowed (44) and eight in points yielded (381). Doesn't quite sound like the Domsday Defense of old does it?

Many odds-makers are giving St. Louis the edge in this afternoon's contest because of those statistics. Don't believe it. The stat board for the Redbirds looks much larger than that of the Pokes. The only category in which the Cards lead over the Cowboys is passing. St. Louis has gained 642 (1st) to the Cowboys 635 (second you recall?).

Dallas is much more talented than St. Louis this year. They should win the game easily. But then, there's the problem of the dark blue jerseys. If the Pokes can beat those beauties and conquer the mental blocks associated with them, it will be a major upset, and the first step on the road to the Super Bowl.

I want to take this opportunity to thank the Steer band for getting my favorite spotter over to Midland. Since about the only thing she'll watch in a football uniform for more than five minutes is Golden Richards, I enticed her over to Midland with talk of the Bold Gold marching band's circus spectacular, which I caught at the Abilene game.

Must say she was impressed, as will the home crowd this coming Friday night at the Permian game in Memorial Stadium. Bradley's bunch has come up with quite a little half-time number. Favorite spotter's favorite part was the white twirling rifles.

Saw number one Steer fan Wayne Henry at halftime. We both felt at that time that the Steers were going to win the game. Up until the final two minutes, I was almost positive they would at least tie the ground-oriented Bulldogs.

The Steers could be 5-0 right this very minute, except for one or two plays in each of the games they lost. Lady Luck always seems to rest on the shoulder pads of the opposing team. Sure, you make your own luck, good and bad, but fair's fair Ms. Luck.

Elder Del Poss feels that the backing of the fans would go a long way in helping the Steers on the gridiron. He's right too. Sometimes it just isn't enough to believe in yourself, you have to have someone to believe in you as well.

The Bovines have nothing to be ashamed about last Friday night's game. There were a few mistakes, but Midland made some too. Circumstances just made ours costlier. But it was definitely the best effort since the 'Horns tied Andrews in the opening game of the season, and it can do no harm to the upcoming effort against Mojo at home.

Permian. There's a word with a bad taste to it. I refuse to believe that it is out of the realm of possibility for the Steers to beat the Panthers. I will firmly believe that until the final gun. Aggies got it all over Mojorers.

Speaking of people worse than Aggies, Marj Carpenter came in Saturday afternoon and did the T-sipper crow for two hours in my ear. "nuff said for UT equal time. My condolences Walt, wherever you are."

FUMBLE RECOVERY — Indicative of a fine defensive effort by the Big Spring Steers Friday against Midland was a fumble recovery by Byron Harris (lunging for ball) in the first quarter. Del Poss comes in to help, as fumble-fingers Brentley Jackson hits the dirt.

Stanton Buffs stampede Anson

STANTON — In what has been called their best effort of the season, the Stanton Buffs, coached by David Thompson, stuck it to Anson 33-6 Friday night, largely on the efforts of players returning after injuries.

Todd Smith, who had been out for four weeks with a broken hand, returned to action Friday and took up where he left off playing in the tailback slot. Smith racked up about 150 yards and scored two touchdowns on runs of 70 and 47 yards, respectively.

Stanton took the opening kickoff and marched 80 yards, with quarterback Tommy Morrow sneaking the ball in from the one with 4:19 left in the first quarter. Blocker kicked the PAT.

Anson rallied with 6:16 to go in the first half on a 17-yard run, but failed on the PAT. With 3:22 left in the first half, Buff fans saw Marvin "Lemon-Juice" Jones helped off the field with a reinjured knee. He may not be hurt as badly as first expected, though.

A pass from Tommy Morrow to Russell Mims for 48 yards set the Buffs up at the Anson seven yard line after intermission. Two plays later, Richard Perez scored from five-yards out. Collerson Huffman kicked the PAT, and Stanton took a 14-6 lead into the dressing room. Huffman had also come back from a lengthy thigh injury.

The third period was all defense. Stanton was hampered by a fumble and interception, but the Buff defense kept the game scoreless during that third quarter.

Stanton blew the game wide open in the final stanza, however, on Smith's two TD's and a long wingback option pass from Kendel Blocker to Collosson Huffman and ensuing QB sneak by Morrow.

Morrow pitched out to Smith with only 14 ticks gone in the fourth period. The fully recuperated Smith circled around right end, broke two tackles and scampered 70 yards for the score. The PAT failed.

Midway through the fourth, Morrow pitched out to Smith, who fumbled the ball. He picked it up, however, reversed his field, and left everyone in his wake. 49 yards for a TD. Huffman kicked the PAT.

Choate leads SWC in INT's

Putt Choate, co-captain of the SMU Mustangs, led the Southwest Conference last week in interceptions. The business administration junior intercepted a pass earlier this year in the Tulane end zone and ran it back 100 yards for an SMU touchdown. This has happened on only two other occasions in Southwest Conference history.

The lead in number of interceptions increased last week as Putt Choate intercepted a crucial pass during the Ohio State game, giving him a total of two interceptions for 108 yards. Choate is also credited for the longest return in the Conference.

Prior to the start of the 1977 football season, Putt Choate was nominated to the All-Southwest Conference team linebacker position.

Putt Choate is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Choate of Sand Springs and is a 1974 graduate of Coahoma High School, where he was named to All-District.

Wolfpack whips Wylie

ABILENE — The Colorado City Wolves left little doubt in anyone's mind Friday night that they are contenders for the crown in District 6-AA. After a dismal start this season, against tough competition, the Wolves pulled out their second win in a row, this one over Abilene Wylie, 25-0.

Cee City pulled its record to 2-4 on the season and 2-0 in district play, while Wylie fell to 3-3 and 0-2 readings.

Senior quarterback Frank Sanchez lived up to his pre-season billing as well in the game. He scampered for 86 yards, three touchdowns and threw for another one. The Wolfpack conglomerated a smothering 437 yards in total yards against the hapless Bulldogs.

The grit-tough Wolf defense did not allow Wylie to get deeper into the Cee City turf than the 29 all night long.

The road was not that smooth during the early going for the Wolves, however. They lost three fumbles, two of them just a few yards from the Wylie goal, and only led by a score of 7-0 (5-yard run by Sanchez) at halftime.

While the offense was having its problems, Wolf defensive standouts Blake Hammond and Bill Jordan picked off interceptions to thwart Bulldog scoring drives.

But it was all over in the second half for the Dogs. Cee City scored on three of four possession, and were knocking on the door again when time ran out.

Forsan wins all facets but score

By MARJ CARPENTER

FORSAN — The Forsan Buffaloes lost their district opener Friday night by a 14-13 score to the Jayton Jaybirds, longtime rivals of the Buffs.

It was one of those games that Forsan football players will wake in the night and recall with horror. They out yarded, out downed, out passed and out rushed the Jaybirds.

At one point, Forsan even outscored the Jaybirds in that they knocked down the passer for two points when the Forsan Buffs led 13-12. But the official called roughing the passer and Jayton received a second chance to make their two.

Forsan did win in penalties, getting even penalties at key times including the one that cost them the ballgame. They had three more penalties than the Jaybirds refused. Jayton, on the other hand, collected one five yarder when the entire team jumped offside.

Forsan now has to collect their pride and continue in district with the hope that somebody will knock off the Jaybirds. "They played their game through to the end with a lot of pride Friday night," Coach George White said and added, "We were stunned by some of the developments in the game but every one of our boys gave of their best in that contest."

Forsan scored first in the game when Gary Martin picked up four straight first downs for the Buffs and Randy Cregar went into the end zone from the seven with 7:41 left before the half. Martin kicked the extra point making it 7-0.

The first quarter showed Allen Hollandsworth, Don Roberson, Kevin Low, Tom Posey and Dennis Baggett knocking down Jaybirds every time they got the football.

The Jaybirds scored on a razzle dazzle double reverse pass play shortly before the half with an 18-yarder from David Noles to Harold Parker for the score. Their try for two was thwarted by Johnny Wright.

Right after the half, the Jaybirds made a good kickoff return, which was one of their strong point all night. But on the next play, Randy Cregar hopped on a fumble and the Buffs had the ball back.

The Buffs moved the football on scampers by Cregar, Rusty Henderson, Wright and Joe Kinder with Martin adding a 14 yarder to put it on the two where Henderson took it in for the score.

A bad snap caused enough delay in putting the ball in place for the extra point, that it failed.

An outside kick from the Buffs did not work out like it does on television and the Jaybirds ended up in good field position on the 49.

The Buffs held and got the ball back. In two plays, Martin and Cregar had the Buffs down on the 24 and then they were given 15 yards for holding, which nullified their first down. The ball went over as they went to the final quarter.

One good run by Parker, a long pass interference call and the old Statue of Liberty play put Jayton down on the goal line where Gene Cleveland went in from the three.

It was then that Forsan knocked down the try for two and the officials gave Jayton another whack at it. Noles went around end to score the points that won the ballgame.

There was 9:43 left in the game. Forsan put together a drive including two first downs picked up by Cregar and then had a halfback pass from Martin to Ron Roberson that was incomplete. The drive fizzled. The Jaybirds kept the ball three plays and were forced to punt.

The Buffs picked up four first downs including one collected by Kinder at the price of being knocked completely out. A 23-yard pass from Angel Miranda to Martin was complete with six seconds left in the game. Martin attempted a field goal into the wind and failed with the game horn sounding as the ball was in the air.

BUFF WALL — Dennis Baggett (62) and another unidentified Buff converge to snuff out the running hopes of a Jayton Jaybird. Forsan won the battle of the statistics, but lost the war to Jayton 14-13 Friday night in Forsan in the district opener for both teams.

Snyder Tigers edge Lamesa

LAMESA — Bitter rivalries always tend to make supposedly runaway games, close ones. The Snyder and Lamesa tiff Friday was no exception.

Highly-floored Snyder found itself up against a golden brick wall for the entire first half of the ballgame Friday and had to rely on a touchdown in each of the last two periods to take a 13-6 win over the Golden Tors.

Lamesa, 2-4, scored first on a three-yard plunge by fullback Clay Wright in the first stanza. Tiger quarterback Clay Johnson tallied from one-yard out in the third period, and Richard Willis kicked the PAT.

Clay Peterson made it a full house for TD's scored by players named "Clay," as he romped in from eight-yards out late in the game. Snyder now sports a 2-3 season record.

Tough competition highlighted 5-AAAA

You'd have to say that the favored teams in District 5-4A won their games Friday night. But the underdogs gave them a run for their money, in each instance (not counting Abilene against Permian, of course).

This week's hullabaloo award goes to the San Angelo Bobcats and Midland Lee Rebels, who battled to a 19-14 verdict. 'Cats on top. Central out-statted the Rebs (268-229 total yards and 13-9 first downs), but the Rebels have to feel they were robbed.

With two minutes remaining in the game, and the score what it was when the gun sounded, San Angelo had the ball on Lee's five-yard line. Bobcat quarterback was going to fool everyone and throw a pass on first and goal. A Lee defender stepped in front of it and returned it 98 yards for the seeming go-ahead score. Uh-uh! Lee clip, call it back, last ditch effort fails. That and four very untimely lost fumbles by the Rebs was the story of the game.

Odessa Permian sang "Walking the Eagle" all night long, coming out of the dance with a 45-7 victory for their gyrations. Mojo racked up 437 yards to only 151 for Abilene, and amassed 30 first downs to only six for the grounded Warbirds.

Abilene scored first on a 63-yard scamper by fleet Reggie Fields, but the

Coyotes rip Dawson

DAWSON — A much healthier Borden County Coyote squad took out a season of frustration on Dawson Friday night in the form of a 40-6 District 3-B West bombing.

Borden county sped out to an early 18-0 lead on short runs by halfback Ernest Rhinehart (2 and 5), a 22-yard field goal by Tim Smith and a two-point conversion by Rhinehart.

Dawson notched its only points of the night on a 75-yard breakaway scamper by Kelly Carr near the end of the first quarter.

Borden County snuck in another TD before intermission on a five-yard run by Pat Toombs. Another PAT by Rhinehart made the score 26-6 at halftime.

The Coyotes put their final 14 points on the scoreboard in the third stanza, on an eight-yard run by Rhinehart and ensuing PAT by Toombs, and a Lane Dyess pass to Ty Zant for paydirt.

Borden County now sports a 2-4 record, while Dawson evened its showing at 3-3.

Ali's manager implores champion to quit ring

"I wish he would quit," said Teddy Brenner, looking squarely at Muhammad Ali.

That's Teddy Brenner, as in fight promoter, president of Madison Square Boxing. You know what a boxing promoter is. He's the guy who would put an old man with a cane into the ring against a gorilla if Channel 4 will come up with $3 million for it.

The assembled newsmen couldn't believe their ears. They had come to the press conference to listen to Ali, to learn of his plans for the next title defense. Ali had tossed out a maybe or two, and then came Teddy Brenner with this shocker. The reaction was predictably cynical.

"How much have you offered Ali for his next title defense?" said a newsmen.

"I have told Herbert Muhammad, I will never make Ali an offer of fight here again, as long as I'm here. As far as I'm concerned, the 15th round yesterday was his last hurrah" — an allusion to the champ's strong finish in wrapping up the decision over Earnie Shavers, the man with the right-handed bombs.

Then Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, simply will go some place else for the offer.

FULL OF SURPRISES

Brenner had another surprise, a bigger surprise. "Herbert told me he doesn't want Ali to box any more, but he can't make him quit."

The people around Ali, those few who really care, are concerned about him. They see him being hit with punches he danced from, laughed at, when he could float like a butterfly, sting like a bee. They see Earnie Shavers land jolt after jolt on that remarkable chin, causing the eyes to blink, the brain to rattle, and they worry.

"This is a young man's game," said Teddy Brenner. "Ali is 35. He has half his life ahead of him. Why take chances? Joe DiMaggio, at 35, could take a third strike with his bat on his shoulder a ball he hit out when he was young. So what. He shouldn't get hurt. Ali can."

"What Ali needs now is a boxing manager," said Loren Cassina, a promoting veteran. "A man who can pick opponents that Ali can handle without too much risk, and still make an entertaining show."

Some profitable stiffs, in other words. That's what Earnie Shavers was supposed to be. The Acorn. The shaven skinhead that Ali would drop onto the Garden lost to Ken Norton — and been given the decision. He has lost to Jimmy Young — and been given the decision.

"I'M NOT PAID TO JUDGE"

And now, Earnie Shavers. "I thought I won eight or nine rounds," said Shavers, "but of course I'm not paid to judge."

Ali is pushing Shavers as "The next heavyweight champion of the world" — a nomination he has made for other beaten opponents in recent fights. What Ali really has in mind for Shavers is that Earnie be his hit-man against Ken Norton. Ali wants no part of Norton's mwr who had given him mucho trouble in three fights. Ali had promised to meet the winner of the Norton-Young fight.

Now, Ali says Norton should fight Shavers.

Norton wants Shavers just about as much as Ali wants Norton. When Shavers knocked out Howard Smith in 2 at Vegas a few months back, Norton was there. Somebody suggested Teddy Brenner make Norton-Shavers for Madison Square Garden.

"There's one reason you can't make it," said Norton. "I get weak knees when I think of climbing into the ring with Shavers."

So, Norton will demand Ali, and Jimmy Young will demand Ali, and Ali will pick a lamb or two. The tentative schedule is Jerrie Coetzee in early December, then Leon Spinks in February.

Leon Spinks, the Olympic champ, is perfect. He has had five pro fights and a bad eye. Jerrie Coetzee is heaven sent. He is white. He is a South African white. Can you imagine the racial crusade Ali can make of that? Avenge Steve Biko! Liberate South Africa! Should be worth five million, easy. Maybe six. Retirement can wait.

canvas for the entertaining sum of $3 million. Instead, it was Shavers who made Ali's knees wobble, and when it was done, Ali was fortunate to have had the usual friendly judges give him all the close rounds, enough to take the nod.

Ali brides at the suggestion that he gets help "They say the judges are prejudiced," he said, "but the judges are Jews, probably, and I am Muslim."

The protection is not religious. The protection of Ali is self-protecting. No fight judge wants to be the one to deprive Ali of his title on a close decision. And so, Ali has

Dolphins, Colts showdown in top NFL game today

When fans in Baltimore got their first look at the 1977 National Football League schedule, they probably circled Dec. 18—the final home game of the season—as the biggest home game of the season for the Colts.

Surprise! While everybody ... well, maybe almost everybody ... was bracing for a season-long dogfight between the Colts and New England Patriots climaxed by a Dec. 18 showdown at Baltimore for the American Conference East title, the Miami Dolphins tiptoed in and rewrote the script.

The Dolphins, a mediocre 6-8 last year for their first losing season since their Super Bowl teams of the early 1970s and given little chance of challenging for a title this year, have won three straight games and take their unblemished record into Baltimore Sunday for a game against the unbeaten Colts.

The Patriots, meanwhile, are trying to get themselves organized after barely winning their opener, then dropping a pair of 30-27 decisions to Cleveland and the New York Jets. Perhaps the Pats should offer thanks to the schedule-maker, who has them at home Sunday against the winless Seattle Seahawks.

Sunday's other games are the Jets at Buffalo, Atlanta at San Francisco, Kansas City at Denver, Oakland at Cleveland, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, Washington at Tampa Bay, Cincinnati vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Dallas at St. Louis, Detroit at Minnesota, Pittsburgh at Houston and San Diego at New Orleans. Los Angeles is at Chicago Monday night.

Miami Coach Don Shula undoubtedly is delighted at the team's fast start and the attention it is receiving—but cautiously so. "We're not interested in what others think of this team, good, bad or lucky," he says. "Look, let's not kid anybody. We're not all the way back yet, 3-0."

Defense highlights Pee Wees

Following Saturday's play in the Pee Wee Football League, the Cowboys are all alone at the top with a mark of 3-0. Results in Saturday's fourth round found the Vikings of Mike Faulkner skunking the Eagles 6-0; Bob Schooler's Packers held off the Dolphins 6-0; and the Coahoma Bulldogs gained an 8-8 tie with the Oilers.

Pee Wee League Football games are played every Saturday on the football field behind Howard College.

P.S. Only details available at press time were that Paul Hogan scored the TD for the Vikings on a two-yard dive play, set up by 20-yard runs by Steve Alvarez and Mark Walker. The Vikes are 2-1-1 and the Eagles are 0-3. "Outstanding defense by both teams," said one source.

fumble just when it looked as if the Steers were heading down the field for the tying points.

After that score and a pair of off-setting penalties, Abreo was intercepted to end the final hopes for another Steer score.

Again, as in the other Steer losses, the opposing team mounted only one long scoring drive. The other two scores came about due to turnovers. The Steer defense, with its collective hands busy all night long with Jackson and Bryson, performed admirably and perhaps with their best showing of the season.

The Steer offense managed to compile 200 total yards, mainly on the rushing efforts of Wegner and Puga and the throwing capabilities of Johnson.

The Steers, who now sport a 1-3-1 season record and a 0-2 showing in district, play host to unbeaten powerhouse Permian next Friday night in Memorial Stadium.

Walt Frazier traded

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Frazier, whose lifestyle and flair fit the city he played in for the past 10 years, will be leaving the Big Apple for mid-America and the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The New York Knicks announced Saturday that they had reached a verbal agreement with the Cavaliers, who get Frazier as the compensation for losing free-agent guard Jim Cleamons to the Knicks.

The National Basketball Association club said they also had reached a verbal agreement with Larry Fleisher, Cleamons' agent, on a multi-year contract, reportedly for three years at $250,000 a year. Cleamons is expected to report to the team on Monday, when the final contract arrangements will be completed, the Knicks said.

Pivotal game for Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers tackle Kevin Hunt says the way the Oilers play against the Pittsburgh Steelers in Sunday's National Football League matchup could determine the kind of season Houston will have.

"We're coming off a bad game," said Hunt, a 6-5, 265-pounder who will start at right tackle for Houston for the second week in a row. "We can't deny that. And Pittsburgh has the best defense in the league. So, if we can take it to them, really help them up front, it's going to make a difference in the kind of season we'll have."

"We're a little discouraged right now because everybody feels that we can play much better than we have."

Joe Bugel, Houston line coach, said Hunt has got himself ready and deserves a chance to show what he can do.

Coahoma, Stanton split Jr. High tilts

COAHOMA — The Coahoma and Stanton Junior high 7th and 8th grade teams split a pair of games Thursday evening, with Stanton taking the 7th grade contest 20-6, and Coahoma edging out the win 6-0 in the 8th grade clambake.

Stanton ran the opening kickoff back in the 7th grade tilt, and didn't let up the rest of the game. John Wilson for Coahoma scored their only points on a 10-yard gallop in the fourth quarter.

Manuel Martinez, Tony Uranga and Charlie Martinez on defense, and Bruce Walker, Danny DeWees and Benny Islas on offense were applauded for their efforts by the Coahoma coach.

In the 8th grade defensive battle, Coahoma's Renaldo Obrego ran back an intercepted pass 56 yards for the winning points. Dennis Scroggins, Mike Coffman and Bobby Tucker on offense, and Robert Walker, Bendle Kyle, Lynn Heinsley and Vivian Garcia on defense played exceptionally well for Coahoma.

CJH's 7th grade sports a 3-3 record, while the 8th graders rose to 3-1-1 on the year. The 8th grade unit travels to Snyder next week, and the 7th is idle.

Local roundballers meeting slated

The final organizational meeting for the Big Spring Men's Basketball Association will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in the Hawk Gym.

All participants who are interested in being in the league must be present at that time. The Association will be limited to eight teams.

Games will be played on Wednesday night's this season in Hawk Gym.

Scouts take second place

Boy Scout Troop 136 from Sand Springs won second place last weekend in a Buffalo Trail Council swim meet.

The troop, sponsored by Cosen Oil and Chemical, journeyed to the West Texas Children's Home to compete against troops from Midland, Odessa, Andrews, and Pyote. Outstanding competitors for the troop included first-place winners Michael Meyers, Billy Rorick and Billy Kels; second-place winners Ricky Martin, and Mark Woolvorton; and third-place finishers Mike Owens and Bruce Meyers.

Scout leaders on the trip included Lee Ray Wright and Marvin Wright.

bolster the Over-the-Hill Gang of the Washington Redskins, what can they do for the Dallas Cowboys?

If Dallas Coach Tom Landry knows, he's keeping it to himself — at least until his undefeated Cowboys have had a chance to clear another hurdle in their National Football League path Sunday.

Landry, the only head coach in Dallas' 17 NFL seasons, insists the Cardinals are still in the running for a championship in the National Conference East.

And despite St. Louis' 1-2 record, he points to recent history, in maintaining that even another loss would not destroy the Cardinals' postseason hopes.

"Pittsburgh proved you're never out of it last year. What'd they lose, the first four out of five?" said Landry, referring to the Steelers' late surge into the 1976 playoff picture.

"A good team, once it gets it going, can go a long, long time without losing," he added. "And the Cardinals are a good team."

Whether St. Louis, the NFC East's divisional ruler in 1974 and '75, rates the label described by Landry

Fem golfers take fourth

The Big Spring girls' golf team found itself handcuffed to a fourth place finish Friday in Amarillo in a tournament against eight other area teams.

According to coach Howard Stewart, the tourney was marred by rain and 30 mile-per-hour winds.

Amarillo won the contest with a total of 355 points. Big Spring's top scorer was Mitzi Sanderson with a 55 and 50 for a 105. She was followed by Tommie Tonn with 107, Tanga Cain with 110, Shawna Henry with 121, and Lavoy Moore with 128. The team total was 433.

has been the object of soul-searching within Cardinal ranks.

"We've just got to put the pressure on people earlier," said quarterback Jim Hart, the victim of two costly pass interceptions during last week's 24-14 loss to Washington.

"We can't be playing politics anymore," suggested running back Terry Metcalf. "If we want to do the job against Dallas, we're going to have to go after them from the first quarter."

While St. Louis has struggled to manufacture a total of only three touchdowns, the offense of the Cowboys has blossomed rapidly to produce a league-leading 80 points.

"Imagine the Cardinals losing (Conrad) Dobler and (Dan) Dierdorf," said Landry of Dallas' overhauled offensive line. "That's about what we were going through. Rayfield Wright got hurt, then Blaine Nye retired."

The Cowboys seem to have overcome their problems, but facets of Sunday's game still make Landry cautious. One is Dallas' 0-3 record in St. Louis since 1973. Another is the Cardinals' plan to return Metcalf, who is playing out his option, to full service.

LSU comes back

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Running back Charles Alexander scored three touchdowns, two in the fourth quarter, to power Louisiana State's 28-15 comeback victory Saturday over Vanderbilt in Southeastern Conference football.

The victory was 18th-ranked LSU's third straight, giving it a 3-1 record this season and a 2-0 mark in the conference. Vanderbilt is 1-4 and 0-2.

Local Bass Club has busy month

The Big Spring Bass Club had an extremely busy month in September, with a tournament at Lake Amistad and a Gibson's sponsored "Member-Guest" tourney.

In the September meeting of the club, Jerry Avery was presented the Club Champion Trophy for last year. The October meeting, held Oct. 6, featured a film on techniques of spinnerbait fishing.

Top weights in the very slow Permin Tournament included: Jackie Touchstone (3 lb.-2 oz.), Vic Keys (3 lb.-4 oz. and .big bass), Bobby Nobles (2 lb.-3 oz.), Ken Sprinkle (1 lb. 12 oz.) and Jerry Avery (1 lb. 11 oz.).

Jackie, Vic and Bobby won prizes in that tourney. Joyce Grigg did catch the big fish, but did not get a prize as it was a catfish.

A total of 11 teams fished on Sunday, Sept. 25, for some nice prizes donated by Gibson's and Bill Steagald. A breakfast was held at the Fina Truck Stop, where a drawing was held for pairings. Each team consisted of a member and non-member with Jerry Hughes and Wayne Henry flipping a coin to determine who was a non-person (non-member). The fishing was fair.

Results were: TEAM — Ken Sprinkle-David Hodnett 13 lb.-6 1/2 oz. (Big Bass 5-13 1/2); Jerry Dudley-Leon Alfano 9 lb. 2 oz.; Bobby Nobles-George Kloss 5 lb. 8 oz. MEMBER — Tom Henry, Wayne Henry, Boc McCullough. NON-MEMBER — Howard Kloss, Bill Steagald, Bob Peary.

Current partial standings in the competition for this year's club champion are: 1. Ken Sprinkle 6 pts. 2. Jackie Touchstone, Charles McCamant and Vic Keys 5 pts. Several are tied at 4 pts. and lower.

All participants, except Vic, indicated they had a good time and expressed a desire to have another tournament next year.

On Oct. 15-16, the regular monthly tourney will be held on Oak Creek Lake with headquarters at Live Oak Lodge. Fishing times will be Sat. daylight til 6 p.m. and Sunday, daylight til 2 p.m. Prizes will be gift certificates from Gibson's in the amounts of $30, $25, $20, $15 and $10.

Current partial standings in the competition for this year's club champion are: 1. Ken Sprinkle 6 pts. 2. Jackie Touchstone, Charles McCamant and Vic Keys 5 pts. Several are tied at 4 pts. and lower.

Bass crop up

Bass — white, black and striped — cropped up in increasing numbers in fishing reports from Lake E.V. Spence during the past week.

Also, there were several reports of good catches of channel catfish, along with some crappie. The striped bass abounded in the younger to median class.

Among reports from the lake were: Y.J.'s — C.D. Carvey, Pecos, 65 white bass and a 6-lb. strip; Crowley Harmon and Bill Harmon, Robert Lee, six channel cats to 5 lbs.; Wesley Wallack, Midland, 4 1/2-lb. striped white trolling; Jess Bowers and Party from Sanderson, 12 strippers from 1 1/2 to 8 lbs., seven black bass to 4 1/4 lbs and 20 white bass; Jess Bowers Sanderson, a 6 1/2-lb. striped bass; James Connally, Odessa, 3 1/2-lb. strip; Neil James, Odessa 2 1/2-lb. strip; Van Ritter, Lubbock, nine channel cats to 3 1/2 lbs.; Dair and Y.J. Sherrill, Robert Lee, 17 black bass to 2 lbs.

Triangle Grocery — Betty Taylor and Robbie Kilgore, Lamesa, two crappie and 15 white bass; Orville Drake, Robert Lee, three black bass to 1 1/2 lbs.

Hillside Grocery — Larry Miller, Sterling City, 36 channel cat to 4 lbs., three strippers to 6 lbs., and four black bass; M.F. Chambers, Odessa, 15 channel cat to 3 lbs and two strippers to 6 lbs.

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good day and evening to take the very best you have acquired from the past and to utilize this for your future plans and for everyday living. Show your really live what you believe.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be enthused about whatever it is you have to do today, and get good results. Study how to have more concord with fellow workers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Take time out for amusements that relieve tensions. Do some creative work that involves good friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): There are many little tasks to be done at home first before you make more concrete plans for the future. Build a more secure structure for the future in your daily living pursuits.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get out to inspiring places and meet interesting people. Be wary of one who is in love with you and wants to marry you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Getting together with influential persons is wise today. Needs interests of a personal nature can bring you greater happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Get involved in tasks that will stamp you as an A-1 citizen. Situations develop that show how to get on the good side of higher up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get into studies with clever persons that can give you a new lease on life. Make arrangements for a trip you want to take shortly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Think of new methods for operating in the future. Do whatever brings more security for you and loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Long talks with loved ones bring true results and more harmony. Avoid that tendency to try off the handle with others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a precocious and will go into every little detail meticulously. Plan finest education and add psychology and philosophy to the curricula for best results throughout the lifetime.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Annuals are still on sale for $7.50

By JOURNALISM CLASS

Student Council is making plans to attend the Fall Forum at Permian High School Saturday, October 15. Anyone interested in going needs to contact Mrs. Brooks or Mr. Herbst.

Annuals go off sale Friday, October 14. Cost for this year is $7.50 and a $1 extra to put a name on it.

Junior magazine sales made a profit of $960. The grand total of the magazine sales was $2,399. High salesmen were Denette Wright with $301.60, Debbie Reid $275.15, and Suzanne Shive with $213.38. Denette received a $50 deposit on her senior ring. Julie Hall received $20 from a drawing for people who sold ten or more magazines.

Go Red Day was sponsored by FCA Thursday, September 23. The "go red" slogan and a Bulldog head was stenciled on white T-shirts for 50 cents to raise money for FCA, and promote spirit. The T-shirts will be done again next week and anyone wanting one needs to bring a white T-shirt and 50 cents to Cindy Fryar before Wednesday.

FHA Tupperware sales ended Friday, September 23. The three top salespersons were Lisa Furlong, Tammie Procter, and Roxanne Daniels. The net profit was $237. FHA mum sales began Wednesday, October 5.

Homecoming Activities and Parade

are as follows:
1. Must use at least one tumbleweed on float.
2. There is a $25 limit to spend on float. If a group spends more, the float will be disqualified.
3. The float must be in front of the high school building by 2:30 p.m. on October 22nd.
4. Judging will take place before the parade starts.
5. Be sure that class name or organization name is on float.

FHA and FFA will leave for the State Fair in Fort Worth following the football game on October 14. The cost will be two dollars and the group should return early Sunday morning. Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Meeks, and Mr. Byrd are the sponsors for the trip.

The band float committee met Monday, October 3, to decide on their theme. All of the senior band members are on the committee. They are Pierce McCraw, Lori Broughton, Debby Kerby, Delaina McQuerry, and Ron Barr. Five juniors were elected to help. They are Mike Henry, Susie Swann, Robby Rupard, Suzanne Shive, and Kerre Brown.

Junior class met Wednesday, October 5, to discuss plans for their homecoming float. Chairmen for the float committee are Teresa Sneed, and Diana Jones. The theme will be kept a secret until the homecoming-day parade.

Sophomores met Wednesday during activity period and decided on a theme for their float. Work will begin soon.

Mrs. Byrd is sponsoring UIL spelling this year and if anyone is interested in competing, they need to see Mrs. Byrd.

Jr. High students voted Kari Robinson and Pam Riddle most spirited this past week. Both are members of the Pep Squad.

FHA held a meeting Wednesday during activity period in the homecoming department. Mum sales began and the mums will sell for $9.

The FHA meeting scheduled for Monday night has been cancelled.

Laurine Proctor receives cap

WTSU — Laurine Proctor, a nursing major at West Texas State University, was one of 90 students to receive their nursing caps during the recent fall convocation in the WTSU Activities Center Ballroom.

State Representative Phil Cates of Pampa was guest speaker at the ceremony.

Female nursing majors receive their caps during the beginning of their junior year, while males receive a bar. When they become seniors, females receive a maroon stripe on their caps while males receive an additional bar.

"Receiving caps means they've passed their first step in nursing. From this point on, they'll be involved more with clinical area in the community and in the hospital areas," said Betty entry, assistant professor of nursing at WTSU.

Miss Proctor is the daughter of Don Proctor of 2700 Carol Drive.

The second full month of school is here, and there are several activities of interest to note this month.

Senior portraits were taken Monday in the school auditorium. The mailing out of those fateful progress reports occurred Wednesday. Students receiving those reports should check with their teachers concerning eligibility for certain activities.

Westbrook Plans begin for Harvest Festival

By PAMPARSONS
Plans have begun for the Westbrook High School annual Harvest Festival. Elections will be held October 6 to elect representatives from each class to participate in the program presented by the senior class. Also, both games will be chosen by each class and their sponsors.

The Future Homemakers are working on home experience projects. This can be any type of project; sewing, cooking, crafts, and also self-improvement projects. The projects are then thruned in to Mrs. Mary Ellis every six weeks.

Westbrook High students have entered many projects in the Mitchell County Fair, held October 6-8.

Westbrook has always been well represented in all events in and outside of Mitchell County.

ACU sets new record

ABILENE — With a final 12th-day total of 4,220, Abilene Christian University has set a new enrollment record, according to ACU assistant registrar Paul Wilson.

The total breaks the old record of 3,979, set during the fall 1976 semester. It is also the first time in the school's 71-year history that enrollment has gone over 4,000 students.

ACU went over the 4,000 mark Sept. 1, after only four days of registration, when Martha Watson of Canyon became the 4000th student to register. Official enrollment figures for the semester are reported after the 12th day of registration.

Abilene Christian University in Dallas is also reporting a record enrollment for their campus. The ACU at Dallas total is 783, breaking the old record for Dallas campus enrollment of 704 set during the spring 1976 semester, and pushing the enrollment total for the ACU system over 5,000.

The breakdown of final enrollment figures for Abilene includes 1,319 freshmen, 818 sophomores, 689 juniors, 701 seniors, 499 graduates, 69 post-graduates and 125 specialists, with 1,386 new students, 2,834 former students and 2,146 men and 2,074 women.

Goliad Jr. High Volleyball team defeats Andrews

By DIANE JOHNSON
Goliad's White volleyball team defeated Andrews by scores of 15-7 and 15-1. The game was held in Andrews on Monday, October 3.

The cheerleaders made spirit signs for the halls and lockers. The pep club and cheerleaders are sponsored by Miss Settles. There was a football game held at Blankenship Field Thursday between Goliad's White and Gold teams.

Coach Hise's wife had a baby boy last Friday morning at 4:48. The baby's name is Jon Wesley Hise. Jon weighs 7 lbs. 5 oz. and 18 1/2 inches.

Mrs. Tate, seventh grade science teacher, was honored with a baby shower Thursday, October 6, in the teacher's lounge. There were eleven hostesses.

Goliad seventh-grader Miker Forshee was very interested to see the October 10 copy of the U.S. News and World Report. On the cover is a picture of his brother Kent, who is an Army paratrooper at Ft. Bragg.

Students will receive their report cards next Wednesday.

Local students receive degrees

DENTON — Lisa Jordan, Mary Holten and Diane Vick of Big Spring were among the 1,137 candidates receiving degrees Aug. 13 at North Texas State University.

DECA Leadership labs are scheduled

Distributive Education Leadership Labs are scheduled along with Fall Inservice workshops throughout the six areas of Texas it was announced by Royce Burrows, chairperson of the DECA Board of Directors.

The DECA Leadership Labs offer Texas high school students, who are in the Distributive Education program, the opportunity to learn from experts how to better themselves for the future.

The purpose of DECA is to further development education in marketing and distribution which will contribute to occupational competence and to promote understanding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship in our free, competitive enterprise system.

Burrows, one of the 700 DE Coordinators in Texas, explained that most of the DE teachers-coordinators not only have secured the educational and teaching background but have also worked in the fields of sales, merchandising, distribution or other phases of business and are well qualified to further the DECA program. In addition many business leaders will assist at the various area leadership labs.

The Area One Fall Inservice Workshop and Leadership Lab will be held Saturday, October 29, at 8:00 p.m., at the Houston Harte Center, Angelo State University in San Angelo and will be under the supervision of Area Consultant Will W. Inkman.

The Area Two program is scheduled for September 30 through October 1, at 6:00 p.m., at the Royal Coach Inn in Dallas under Robert Hall, area consultant.

The Area Three workshop is scheduled for October 7 through 8, at 1:00 p.m., at the Astro Village in Houston, Ray Anderson, area consultant, will be in charge.

Area Four will hold its workshop and leadership lab October 21 and 22, at the Master Host Inn, at 3:00 p.m., in Corpus Christi. Ward McCain is the area consultant.

Berry Sullivan is the Area Five Consultant for Area Five, holding its workshop and leadership lab at the 7A Ranch Testor in Wimberly, October 14 and 15, at 4:00 p.m., for the South Zone. The Area Five North Zone will hold its workshop and leadership lab October 28 and 29, at Camp Carter in Fort Worth.

Kappa Kappa officers elected

MIDLAND — Officers of Kappa Kappa service organization at Midland College have been elected for the fall semester.

Heading the group is Robert Thompson, president. Other officers include: Chuck Matthews, vice president; Mark Lund, secretary; and Marc Nelson, treasurer. Faculty advisor this year is Jerry Watson.

"Our primary purpose is to be of service, first to Midland College and then to the entire community," Thompson said. "We are seeking to become a positive factor in the student life activities on the campus."

One of their initial activities this year, however, was on the lighter side when Kappa Kappa challenged the Midland College faculty to a flag football game. Played last week before a sizable crowd, the game ended in a narrow overtime victory for the faculty. Scheduled later this month is an off-campus Halloween costume dance, sponsored by Kappa Kappa and open to all Midland College students.

Grady played Wellman Sept. 30 at 8:00 (here). The game started off badly with a half time score of 0-34. Wellman's favor. Grady made a come back in the 3rd and 4th quarters though. In the 3rd quarter Jimmy Mitchell received a 22-yard pass from Ronald Chee, good for a touchdown. Joe Lozano kicked his first PAT for the evening. Lozano made another PAT, good for another 2 points. After that Alex Perez scored 6 more points. Ruben Gutierrez scored the 3rd touchdown that quarter on a 52-yard pass from Perez. A 3rd PAT was kicked by Lazona and called good. Ruben Gutierrez led by the end of the game in tackles and yardage. He made 11 tackles and rushed 115 yards more than half of the total yardage for Grady, which was 218 yards. Grady attempted 26 passes and completed only 7. 6 passes were intercepted by Wellman. At the end of the game the score was 30-60. Grady played Water Valley (here) last Friday. This coming Friday, Oct. 14, Grady plays Cotton Center (here) at 7:00.

Clayton wants to implement it

Tax law challenged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton and farm groups are trying to devise a strategy to guarantee that taxation of rural land on its productivity alone will begin Jan. 1 as planned.

Clayton denied anybody was playing politics with the possibly unconstitutional law that tells local tax assessor-collectors how to appraise open space land, now taxed on its value as real estate.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Friday he did not know if the law is constitutional but expected that question to be settled by the first of the year.

And Comptroller Bob Bullock criticized two House members who had jumped him, Clayton and Briscoe concerning the measure.

Bullock is preparing appraisal manuals for taxing authorities to use in evaluating rural land.

Clayton stirred things up early in the week with a mail-out newspaper column that said tax assessor-collectors should implement the bill even though some question its constitutionality.

The bill was introduced in the legislative session as contingent on approval of a constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to write rules for taxation based on agricultural use values.

The amendment failed by two votes, but the bill passed and was signed by Briscoe.

Clayton said he or someone else might request an opinion from Attorney General John Hill on the law's constitutionality.

"We are talking to people that are affected by the thing to see what they think is the best way to handle it," Clayton said. One group he consulted was the Texas Farm Bureau.

It would take a court case to resolve the constitutional issue. But a favorable opinion from Hill would clear the way for tax assessor-collectors to implement the law Jan. 1. Cases sometimes take years to reach the Texas Supreme Court.

An opinion request would put Hill on the spot. He is running for governor and probably would lose ground in rural areas if he held the law unconstitutional.

But Clayton said nobody was playing politics with the question since it is "a pretty serious concern of agricultural landowners."

Bullock issued a statement Friday blasting Reps. John Bryant, D-Dallas, and Luther Jones, D-El Paso, for criticizing those who want to implement the bill even though they voted for it.

"It is flat hypocritical for a

Highland South sponsors show

Highland Shopping Center will host a five-day arts and crafts show, starting Wednesday, October 12-Sunday, October 16.

A total of 25 professional craftsmen will be displaying their original work at Highland Center and, of great interest to shoppers on the mall, they will be demonstrating just how they actually create their hand-crafted objects.

Among those practicing their crafts will be: Roger and Elaine Johnson of Kenosha, Wis. who create unusual designs in string art; Mike and Mary Jane Holland from Oakland, Calif. who carve candies to your order; Ted Vance of Caldwell, Idaho, decoupage; and Bill and Marcie McDonald from San Clemente, Calif., portraits or sketches.

Also featured at the Highland Shopping Center show will be a variety of handcrafted objects of wood, jewelry, leather, macrame, as well as an attractive display of original paintings.

The show is a presentation of Jay Viets' Creative Promotions of Woodland Hills, Calif.

member of the legislature to help write and vote for a bill all the way through and then cry 'unconstitutional' when it finally becomes law," Bullock said.

Jones said everybody in the legislature believed the bill was unconstitutional without the amendment — which he opposed because it lacked a prohibition against giving the tax break to corporations.

"As a result, unless Clayton and Bullock usurp the power of the voters and find some way to amend the constitution by fiat, H. B. 22 isn't worth the paper it is written on and Bullock knows it," he said.

Traffic deaths show increase

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — There have been seven per cent more Texas traffic deaths this year than in 1976, the Department of Public Safety reports.

DPS statistics show there have been 2,604 deaths on state highways and streets this year compared to 2,429 the previous year.

There have been 1,776 accidents in which deaths occurred, or nine per cent more than the 2,093 fatal accidents in 1976, the DPS said.

Next New Year's Day

Many workers due pay boosts

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is nearly certain that more than three million American workers paid the minimum wage will get a raise of 35 cents an hour next New Year's Day.

How big the raises will be in the future is up to a House-Senate conference committee, which will meet later this month to adjust differences between House and Senate versions of the federal minimum wage bill. Both versions of the bill would raise the wage floor to $2.65 an hour on Jan. 1, up from the $2.30 that has been in effect since Jan. 1, 1976.

The Senate bill would provide for future increases of 25 cents an hour every Jan. 1 to a top of $3.40 an hour in 1981. The House bill would allow 20-cent annual increases, stopping at $3.05 in 1980.

The measure will directly affect a little more than three per cent of the nation's 90 million workers. Official figures show an estimated 3.1 million persons are paid the minimum wage.

The Senate passed its bill Friday, 63-24. Approval was voted for the measure after senators rejected four efforts to exempt youths under 20 from the minimum wage or set for them a wage floor 15 to 25 percent below the adult minimum.

The Senate also turned back an attempt by Sen. William Scott, R-Va., to permit employers to hire persons over 68 years old at 75 per cent of the minimum wage. The vote was 77-14.

The proposals for a sub-minimum wage for young workers were backed by business but opposed by organized labor.

4 Big Spring women tell

How I found out who I am

One generation of women is caught between the old values of homemakers and the new values that emerged out of the 1960s.

They are women at the ages of a middle generation.

They were raised in the old way to be homemakers and mothers, but the revolution in American society of a decade ago puts both peer group and economic pressure on them to be different persons from their upbringing.

It is a dilemma reaching far beyond the problem of getting rid of ring-around-the-collar. It is one pointed straight at this in-between generation.

Middle generation women often have to stand in both worlds. When they were in school, homemaking was supposed to be every woman's goal. Both their friends and society as a whole pushed them toward marriage and family life, toward home economics in school, toward becoming Mrs. Somebody R. Other.

Then the game rules changed. The women's movement made the young women feel they must be their "own person." Peer group pressures began to demand that they be more than mothers. They must have careers, they must have identity of their own, or at the very least, they were forced to rethink and rejustify their roles as homemakers.

At the same time, economic pressures on the young family forced women into the marketplace for work.

This swift upheaval of values left the in-between generation of women with an identity crisis that perhaps no other generation of American women have ever faced. How could they find their place in a much different world? What should their role in life be? How could they find themselves?

Herald staff writer Dusty Richard asked these questions to four Big Spring women, and here are their answers:

Bebe: Not what society expected

Mrs. Bebe McCasland said that she began to find herself when, in 1966, she came down with a lung ailment which prohibited her from going outside or having visitors.

"I had to quit work and had time to think over everything." She said that she was forced to stay in virtual seclusion since she could not come into contact with germs from other people's breath.

It was at this time that she "turned from being self-centered to being more outgoing and caring for other people."

She said that although the outdoors had always been a favorite place for her, it took on added significance when that was one of the only places she was allowed to go.

"Since I couldn't go out in public, I stayed in my backyard, and my husband and I took long drives in the country to break the monotony."

Mrs. McCasland said that she values the peace and solitude of the outdoors.

"It is the feeling of being in the presence of something larger than yourself."

MRS. McCASLAND, who said that she was known as "that environmentalist" by some people, was born in Dallas and raised in Irving. She attended schools there and graduated from Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Magna cum Laude in 1961 with a B.A. in English.

She was married in 1962 to Ardis McCasland Jr., who has lived in Big Spring since 1943. She moved here to live with her husband in that year.

Mrs. McCasland said that her parents never tried to fit her into the mold of future housewife. They encouraged her to get a college education, she said, because at that time (the late 50's) it was considered by society to be a way to make more money.

"I was only able to go to college on a valedictorian scholarship and by working summers," she said.

Mrs. McCasland said that she knew, even when young, that she wasn't what society expected her to be.

"It wasn't intentional on my part. I was not a rebel, but I just never enjoyed the social amenities that most people do. I enjoy people but not their trappings," she said.

She said that she was very happy as a child — "not a care in the world" — but grew increasingly frustrated as she matured, because she didn't care for the social and dating programs in school.

"If you don't have a date to the prom, you're an outcast, and you have to belong to the right sorority. "There were other things I thought were more important. I had to keep up my grades because that was the only way I could remain in college."

MRS. McCasland said that she has never felt like she was not her own person, a common complaint in this era of identity crisis. She attributed this to a good self-image, fostered by loving parents and grandparents.

She also said that when she was married, she did not feel as though she were losing her identity by changing her name.

"I have not only a husband, but a friend. I am not ashamed to say that I have a good marriage. There must be sharing in a marriage, but there comes the time when someone has to make a decision, to be the boss," she explained.

Mrs. McCasland said that she is reasonably happy with her life as it is now, and more importantly, with herself.

"I don't fit a conventional mold (sigh). I will be outspoken for the things I believe in. I'm no loner — I could be a Thoreau — since I love the outdoors and peace."

Pat: Learned to put her husband first

The turning point in Mrs. Pat Anderson's life was when she had her last child.

"I made up my mind that this is what I wanted — to be a wife and mother — it was my goal in life, and this role would fulfill me."

Mrs. Anderson was born and raised in Big Spring and graduated from Big Spring High School. She was married to her husband, Jimmy, in 1959.

The Andersons have four children — David, 14; John, 12; Dana, 9; and Nikki, 5.

MRS. ANDERSON said that she will raise her children in the same way that she and her husband were raised.

"I was brought up in a very Christian-oriented household. There were four girls and we were raised with Christian beliefs."

She said that they were taught that wives should submit to their husbands.

"I wanted four children: two boys and two girls — that is, before I knew how hard they were to raise," she laughed.

Mrs. Anderson said that she worked as a secretary at Cosden for five years after her marriage while her husband was going to college to be a pharmacist. She has a Ph.T. degree hanging on her wall — Putting Hubby Through.

She said that she has never felt as though had lost her identity in her marriage.

"In a sense you do after you have children — you become someone's wife and mother, but that's my goal."

MRS. ANDERSON said that although some people think "it's for the birds," she was helped by taking a course in Fascinating Womanhood, by Helen B. Andelin, and reading the book, "Total Woman" by Marabel Morgan.

"It helped me to establish my priorities. Before, I was self-centered and concerned about how things affected me instead of those I love. I learned to put my husband first, in what he wants. The things he wants in life come first with me unless they conflict with God."

She said that she disagrees with some things in the Fascinating Womanhood course.

"It teaches you to manipulate your husband by your actions. I don't think that's right. To get your way by making your husband think he thought of it. Total Woman is more down to earth or maybe I relate to it better."

Mrs. Anderson said that she does not feel like an instrument for her husband.

"My role is as a helper to him. We are equal as parents, but he has the last say. I'm fortunate to have a husband who's willing to take the lead. If I put his needs first, he in turn does me the same way."

She said that she had never been influenced by the women's liberation movement and efforts to pass the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

"I believe that a woman should be paid on an equal basis with a man, but the ERA and women's lib are causing a breakdown in the homes. In a lot of instances, women earn more than their husbands, and they feel independent of them and this reflects in their children. It is not the way God intended."

She said that children learn what they live. If they see the woman as the major wage-earner, she said, "it makes for an unbalanced situation and will carry over into their adult life."

MRS. ANDERSON said that she'd be "lying if I told you I was never unhappy. It's harder to stay married than to break up. Marriage is a job and you never stop learning."

"I am happy, because happiness is where you find it, and I think I found it. I'm not saying there are no bad days around here. There are always the frustrations of being a parent."

Katie: More aware of herself

"There was no question that I would go to college and live my own life afterwards," said Katie Weber.

Ms. Weber, an art instructor at Howard College, said that since her father is an attorney and her mother finished three years of college, a college education was taken for granted in her family.

She said that after graduating from a high school in Milwaukee where she was born, she attended the University of Wisconsin for two years and then transferred to the University of Northern Colorado. She received a bachelor of fine arts degree from University of Colorado. She then did some graduate work there and finished her master of education degree at Sul Ross University.

Ms. Weber said that because of her conservative Midwestern upbringing, she naturally did what her parents expected of her.

"However, I wanted a little more than a home and family," she said.

OF COURSE, she had dreamed of being a wife and mother when young, she said, but she attributes this more to the roles that she observed from her parents, teachers and peers.

"In junior high and high school, I had a show horse. Not that that is masculine or feminine, but the horse was my main interest, rather than the usual girl stuff."

She said that the main difference between the way she thought she would be when she was young and the way she is now is that "I never saw myself with this much responsibility. I'm the chairman of the Art Department at Howard College, and I'm teaching a full load and two days a week at UTPB. No one sees themselves as being responsible when they are young."

MS. WEBER was married in 1972 to an Air Force pilot who was stationed at Webb. She said that marriage changed her in that she became dependent on "the security thing, not that that's bad."

After her marriage, she quit teaching for a year.

"But the whole idea of support and being taken care of was foreign to me. I started looking for a job, not out of dissatisfaction; I just needed to be a productive member of society. I had spent a lot of time getting to where I was (college graduate) and I didn't want to waste it. So I taught part-time."

Ms. Weber was divorced in 1976.

"It was traumatic — the loss of identity and the feelings of disgust and self-hate because I had 'failed.' It was the first time I faced being single and alone."

Ms. Weber said, however, that it changed her to become more independent.

"I was more aware of my needs and of myself after the divorce."

"I thank my parents daily for pushing me to get my education. Independence was a motivating factor to get my master's. I enjoy being single and the independence I have."

MS. WEBER said that she took her maiden name back because she did not have any children.

"That was the turning point — the acceptance that I was single again. It was kinda neat to be a whole new person."

Although she presently has no plans for remarriage, she said that if she did get married again and had children, she would not want to put them in a day care center, unless "it was necessary," but she would want to teach part-time.

"Functioning human beings are a thing with me. Everyone has to find what makes them happy and do it, whatever it is."

Ms. Weber said that she is happy with herself and where she is now.

"Whatever you're doing, you get frustrated at some time, but I truly enjoy art and teaching it. It's sharing a part of myself with my students. The results are solid... there is something you can look at and say 'I made that.' It's not only satisfying for the student, but to me, I share in the success and failures of my students."

"It's fulfilling — I'm fulfilled."

Carol: Had need to be outside home

Mrs. Carol Hutchinson said that there is no conflict between her marriage and her career.

"My husband is understanding when I have to go out of town or work late. I have raised my children to be independent, and I have a good attitude towards working, so my family doesn't resent it."

Mrs. Hutchinson was born in Paris, Tex., and graduated from high school in DeKalb. She attended East Texas State College and was married in 1962 to her husband, Dan. She has a son, Lee, who is 12 years old and a daughter, Julie, seven.

She is presently employed at the Chamber of Commerce as office manager where she has worked for three years, with a brief stint as secretary-receptionist for Charles Butts at Malone-Hogan Hospital from May 1978 to December 1976.

MRS. HUTCHINSON said that the Women's Movement hasn't really influenced her way of thinking, but it has given opportunities to women to earn higher salaries, have their opinions listened to and "do the jobs that they have proved themselves capable of doing."

The effect of Women's Lib, in Mrs. Hutchinson's opinion, is that more women want to work.

She said that her parents had raised her to do anything she wanted in life, and to be independent and take care of herself.

"My mother was not just a housewife; she worked outside the home, but I never missed anything because she was a fantastic mother."

She said that she is taking the example set by her mother in raising her own children.

"A girl can take out the garbage as well as a boy, so the only differences between the way I raise my son and the way I raise my daughter is based on age rather than sex."

MRS. HUTCHINSON said that her life is about what she had expected it would be when she was younger.

"The responsibilities that I have in work, home and school do not bother me as much as I thought they would have."

She said that the main reason why she works is the money.

Clubhouse

Style show presented

A style show was presented to the 1941 Study Club last week by Swartz and Swartz Jr. Shop, exclusive ladies ready-to-wear stores in Big Spring.

Eighteen members and 50 guests, greeted by Virginia Allen, watched the styles from Swartz and the accessories too after club President Gean Cagle called the meeting to order. The shoes that most of the models wore were from Barnes Pelletier.

The modeling was done by members of the club. They were Lou Clawson, Sue Tindol, Marie Ethridge, Barbara Justiss, Hattie Swann, Peggy Hodnett and Helen Shive.

A bit of humor was added when Miss America, Miss Charlene, entered with blonde hair and a striped skirt. This model was Rev. Charlie Murphy.

Virginia Allen served as narrator. She said that this is the season to be your warmest, most romantic self, wearing clothes that are feminine as never before, and that the models will be showing some of the most dazzling, romantic, glamorous styles in marvelous blends of texture, patterns and rich fabrics.

The audience seemed to agree with the narrator as the models appeared.

Some of the most admired styles were: the ultra suede coat with the red fox collar, the mink coat, the evening wear and the three piece ensembles. There were also dresses, pantsuits and jump suits.

Joyce Choate won the door prize of a lovely necklace, and her sister, Evelyn Burchett, won the gift certificate from Swartz.

Club learns to make dolls

The art of making corn husk dolls will be the subject of the Creative Homemakers Home Demonstration Club meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Clay Thompson, 421 Hillside.

Mrs. Darla McLeod will instruct the group in making the dolls.

Since all materials needed will be supplied by the club, those wishing to attend are Jackie Zimmerman said that although the group's last meeting was a salad supper with the emphasis on membership, new members are welcomed anytime. Programs vary from crafts and food to health care.

Members have club luncheon

Busy Bee Hobby Club members worked on their projects Thursday which will be given to Big Spring State Hospital for their Christmas bazaar.

The club had a covered dish luncheon for the 15 members present.

Birthday of the month gifts were won by Leta Miller and Jimmie Robertson.

Members voted to use money from the club treasury to buy materials for projects rather than on out-of-town trips since all members cannot go.

Women honor Mrs. Black

A women of the courthouse luncheon Thursday honored Mrs. Virginia Black, who is state president of the county auditor's association.

Mrs. Black was installed recently at the state convention in Brownsville. She was presented with a fall arrangement of flowers.

Women working in the courthouse were guests at the salad luncheon, along with Mrs. Black's longtime friend, Mrs. Merle Stewart, and Mrs. Jerry Forestry, who formerly worked in Mrs. Black's office.

Men invited included County Judge Bill Tune and County Commissioners Bill Crooker, Jack Buchanan and Louie Brown, along with County Attorney Harvey Houser.

Mrs. Rogers speaks on fat

"Why people are fat" was the subject of last week's Airport Home Demonstration Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Raymond Key, 1109 E. 6th.

Howard County Home Demonstration Agent Janet Rogers presented the facts on how people become obese. She was assisted by Sandy Stretch, assistant to Mrs. Rogers.

The normal reasons for obesity are social eating, habitual eating, inactivity, lack of knowledge, boredom, frustration or heredity, the agent said.

She said that what will help most is resisting food and exercise.

Announcements included: the Big Spring State Hospital Arts and Craft Show Nov. 26-27 at Highland Mall; the Senior Citizens' Sale at the mall on Nov. 19.

Mrs. Fred Jones won the door prize. The next meeting will be Oct. 18 at 810 Andree.

Robinson new 4-H president

Kent Robinson will be president of the 1977-78 Knott 4-H Club and presided over last week's meeting of the club at the Knott Community Center.

Other officers for the coming year are Danny Peugh, vice president; Stacy Parker, secretary; Lesli Guitar, program chairman; Scott Robinson, reporter; Cole Hunt, refreshment chairman; and Van Gaskins, clean-up chairman.

Howard County Council delegates are Robinson, Guitar, Peugh and Parker. Adult leaders are Mr. and Mrs. Repps Guitar and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hunt.

Home County Demonstration Agent Janet Rogers presented the program, which was an explanation of the duties and responsibilities of 4-H Club officers and committees.

D'Ann Hall lead the pledge to the American flag, and John Guitar lead the 4-H pledge.

Project reports were given, and new members were introduced. These were Ben and Cheryl Scott and Lyle Grantham.

The Knott 4-H Club was to have been in charge of registration at the 4-H awards banquet Saturday night.

Three chairmen were named by the Christensen-Tucker Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2013 during a meeting at the post home Tuesday.

Mrs. Pauline Petty was named legislative chairman and press book chairman.

Mrs. Rosendo Santellan was named poppy chairman, and Mrs. Louise Horton was selected as youth chairman.

Mrs. Pauline West, president of District 25, made her official visit.

The auxiliary also made a gift to the national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich. The gift was for the Christmas cheer fund of the children at the home.

The fall meeting of District 25 will be Oct. 29 and 30 in Odessa.

Hostesses for Tuesday's meeting were Mrs. Clara Lewis, Mrs. Santellan and Mrs. Katie Spivey. The auxiliary's next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 1 at the post home on Drivers Road.

Center plans cooking class

Quick breads, desserts and main dishes will be a few of the things Mrs. Jack McCall will teach girls 13-19 years old how to cook.

The cooking class for girls will be at the Westside Community Center from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. every Tuesday.

As is the policy of the Community Center, there will be no registration or fee required and everyone is welcome.

American Heart Association Monday.

The meeting was in the conference room of the V.A. Hospital.

The film covered the proper foods one should eat to help prevent heart attack and heart disease.

Dr. David Rickey, president, discussed the success of the Howard County Fair blood pressure screenings. Several people who had no knowledge of their conditions were found to have high pressure.

Also discussed were the programs the Heart Assn. provides for other clubs and organizations. These programs include films on high blood pressure and proper diet, and C.P.R. demonstrations.

Anyone interested in a program for their club may contact Dr. Rickey.

The Howard County Chapter of the Heart Assn. meets the first Monday night of every month at 7 in the V.A. Hospital.

Workshop set for November

It was voted to have a workshop in November to make Christmas decorations for the V.A. Hospital at a meeting of the Texas Star African Violet Club.

The meeting was Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. R.W. Baker. President Mrs. A. C. Moore was in charge.

Mrs. Moore named her standing committees for the coming year.

The club will help with the Council of Garden Clubs project to keep the downtown planter boxes clean.

The November workshop will be at the home of Mrs. C. Y. Clinkscales.

For a money-making project the club had a plant sale at the meeting.

Mrs. Malind Blackburn is a new member and Mrs. Guion Keating was a guest.

The next meeting will be Nov. 3 at the home of Mrs. R. P. Kountz, 202 Washington Blvd.

Elbow hears state report

Mrs. Joyce Soles, delegates to the Texas Home Demonstration Association State meeting, gave a report to the Elbow H.D. Club Thursday morning.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. R.W. Dolan.

Mrs. Joyce Soles attended many workshops and will give programs on some of them this year.

The club donated $25 to be used at the Big Spring State Hospital for Christmas.

Mrs. Wayne Bristow was a new member, and Mrs. D.R. Phillely was a guest.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Leroy Dolan.

The next meeting will last all day Oct. 20 at the Berea Baptist Church. Mrs. Dolan will be hostess.

At the meeting, Mrs. Janet Rogers will give a demonstration on weight control and members will have a craft exhibit.

Rosebud sees dried plants

Mrs. John Knox spoke on dried plant arrangements at a meeting of the Rosebud Garden Club.

The club met in the home of Mrs. J. R. McMurray. Mrs. Wayne Basden was cohostess.

Mrs. Tommy Hubbard presided over the business meeting. The club members recently purchased a tree as part of their civic beautification project. They voted to have Mrs. Clyde Thomas and Mrs. Odell Womack decide on a place to plant the tree.

Plans were made by the club members to help in the litter clean-up campaign of the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs.

At 9 a.m. October 20 the club members will meet in front of the court house and clean up the litter accumulated in the city's planters.

A.B.O. plans couples party

Alpha Beta Omicron planned a couples Halloween party for Oct. 28 at last week's meeting in the home of Rhonda Rothell.

The program on Beta Sigma Phi was given by Genie Carroll. It was an open meeting with all members present and one guest, Charollett Wennik.

The next meeting will be Oct. 18 in the home of Debra Wilson.

LOOT DROPPED — Teresa Hamilton shows how the stereo was dumped by the intruders in the front yard of their home. The drop broke the turntable, she said, but the radio on the stereo still works. The Hamiltons theorize that it was dropped when the burglars saw or heard someone coming.

Burglarized:

Family tells what it's like to come home to ransacked house

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Big Spring Herald wondered what it feels like to return to your home and find that it had been burglarized, so staff writer Dusty Richard picked a burglary from the "Police Beat" at random. She visited with the family that was victimized, and here is her story.)

By DUSTY RICHARD
"Who would do something like this?" said Mrs. Betty Hamilton, tears in her eyes. Mrs. Hamilton and her daughter, Teresa, were gone last Tuesday night when someone broke into their home and stole $2,025 worth of property. Teresa said that their radio, stereo, stereo headphones, two stereo speakers, a box of eight-track tapes and a Zenith color television were stolen.

THREE HUNDRED dollars, "all the money I have in the world," were also stolen, said Mrs. Hamilton. "They even took a bag of ice and five pounds of hamburger meat from the freezer."

Mrs. Hamilton explained that the robbery, while it would have been bad at any time, came at an especially bad time, because all their money has been going to a lawyer in Odessa who is handling the divorce of her daughter. Teresa is suing for the custody of her baby.

"Neither of us have a job," said Mrs. Hamilton. She said that she was working in Midland at Furr's Cafeteria until her car broke down. "Now I am driving a borrowed car," she said.

THE HAMILTONS, who were in Odessa at their lawyer's, had left a note on the door of their home saying that they would be home at 12:15 that night. Mrs. Hamilton's brother came over. Since she was expecting to be home early, she did not leave a light on in the house or on the porch.

But, as she explained, they visited with some friends and didn't return home until 12:15 that night.

The first indication that the house had been broken into came when Teresa noticed her stereo sitting in the front yard as if someone had dropped it when a car drove by.

Mrs. Hamilton said that when her daughter pointed it out to her, her mouth dropped open and she could not say a word.

Apprehensively, they opened the door, which had been kicked open by the burglars, and saw that another stereo and their T.V. were gone.

The house, she said, was a shambles. The couch, bed, and dresser were moved from their places and clothing was strewn all over the floor.

"It looked like a cyclone hit it." Since their phone had been disconnected because they did not have the money to pay the bill, they yelled at a man who was driving by to call the police.

She was crying by that time, Mrs. Hamilton said.

BECAUSE THEY did not have the registration numbers on any of the stolen goods, the police could give little hope that the property would be recovered. Mrs. Hamilton's father fixed the door, which was demolished by the intruders' kick.

In the future, said Mrs. Hamilton, they are leaving lights on in the house, and on the front and back porch. "I will not lie down without a light on," she said.

When asked if they were scared to stay there now, she said that they would protect themselves, "whatever it took." She did not elaborate.

Mrs. Hamilton said that they "just didn't know what we are going to do" since neither is working and they have no money.

"I can't even wash my clothes."

Mrs. Hamilton said that they are both looking for work.

"Just anything," she said.

ALL GONE — Teresa and Betty Hamilton stare forlornly out of their house, which was burglarized last Tuesday. Mrs. Hamilton said that they had been living alone ever since her divorce.

Tween 12 and 20 Parents should share teen marriage plans

Dear Doctor:
I am 14, and a month ago I met a guy 18. He had long hair, smoked and drank, but now he has stopped smoking and drinking and got his haircut. Last week he gave me a diamond. I haven't told my dad because he keeps saying we see too much of each other.

I've never found anyone that I've loved so much and I've loved a lot. We want to get married when I am 15. He can provide a good home and we do love each other. How can I get my parents to understand how we feel about each other?

B. T., Asheville, Ohio
Dear B. T.:
It will be very difficult if not impossible to convince your parents to allow you to get married when you are 15. What you must do is have your boyfriend and you meet with your parents and share with them your plans. When you do, I'll probably hear their explosion all the way to California!

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Smiths leave for Padre Isle following afternoon wedding

Mr. and Mrs. James Monte Smith are on a trip to Padre Island following their wedding Saturday afternoon in the Bethel Baptist Church, Luther, officiated by the Rev. Harold D. Carroll.

The bride, formerly Miss Deidre Shon Tucker, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.T. Tucker, Vealmoor. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Smith, Gail.

The altar was decorated by two seven-branch candelabra with white tapers. A basket arrangement of white gladiolus, white mums and white pompons was placed by the altar. White pew markers marked the aisles.

Miss Martha Anderson at the piano provided the music.

The bride wore a Victorian gown of candlelight chiffon satin accented in silk Guipure lace. The moulded bodice featured a sheer yoke neckline with a picture frame fashioned of lace. Bishop sleeves were shirred to wide cuffs edged in lace. The stained-glass window skirt was framed in lace scallops with cut-away under the lace. A deep circular flounce encircled the skirt sweeping to a chapel-length train. She wore a matching lace-edged mantilla.

She carried a bouquet of colonial white roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

MRS. JAMES SMITH
formerly Deidre Shon Tucker

Maid of honor was Miss Kevva Tucker, Vealmoor, sister of the bride.

Best man was John Anderson, Gail.

Darin Tucker, Vealmoor, brother of the bride; and Doug Tate, Seminole, brother-in-law of

Ring bearer was Eric Lusk, Vealmoor, cousin of the bride.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents after the wedding. The table was centered with a silver candelabrum, and the bride's and maid of honor's bouquets were placed in a crystal bowl. The three-tier cake was decorated with doves. Crystal appointments were used. Serving at the table were Miss Lisa Ludecke, O'Donnell; and Mrs. Paula Tate, Seminole.

Miss Toni Hanson, Big Spring, registered the guests.

The bride is a graduate of Borden County High School, Gail. She attended Howard College.

The groom is a graduate of Borden County High School, Gail. He has attended Western Texas College, Snyder, and is presently employed by Sonny Tucker Transport, Vealmoor.

Following the wedding trip to Padre Island, the couple will make their home in the Vealmoor community.

Evening ceremony unites Joyce Wood, Leroy Lumzy

Miss Joyce Wood became the wife of Leroy Lumzy in an evening ceremony last night at Baker's Chapel, A.M.E. Church. The rites were officiated by the Rev. Howard Adams.

Miss Wood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Wood, Sr., 602 N.E. 10th. Lumzy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lumzy, Sr., Dixon, Ill.

The couple stood under an arch decorated with blue and yellow carnations. A candelabrum accented with yellow carnations stood on either side of the arch. Two kissing balls hung from the arch, embellished with blue and yellow carnations.

Music was played by Timothy Wheatspoon.

The bride chose a gown of white chiffon featuring a square neck, empire waist and long sheer sleeves. The hem of the gown was ruffled and trimmed with blue and yellow lace. The three-length veil of illusion fell from a crystal headpiece matching the bride's bouquet.

She carried a bouquet of blue and yellow carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Jennifer Mosby of Montgomery, Ala. Mary Smithwick, Odessa; Joyce Easley, Dallas; and Connie Hilario, Big Spring were her bridesmaids.

Bruze Lumzy, Dixon, Ill., brother of the groom, was best man. Tommie Ruffin and Tyrone Lumzy, both of Dixon, Ill., and Mike Randle of Big Spring were groomsmen.

Ushers were Elroy Green and Joe Willie Jones.

Ms. Toy Tate was flower girl and Michael Wood was ring bearer.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was draped with a white cloth and lace. The three-tier cake was decorated with blue and yellow daisies. An arrangement of blue and yellow daisies and candles stood on each end of the table. The groom's table was accented with a silver CEREMONY SLATED — Mr. and Mrs. James J. Fitts, 1102 Lloyd, announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Patricia, to Jerry Stout, son of Ms. Ina Stout, Coahoma, and Robert E. Stout, Big Spring. The couple will be married Nov. 11 in the Trinity Baptist Church with Dr. Claude Craven officiating.

LAS VEGAS CEREMONY — Mrs. Madge McGaff, Midland, and Charlie McGaff, Midland, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Marlene, to Don A. Kasch, Big Spring, son of Mrs. Maudine Kasch, Sterling City Rt., and the late Fred Kasch. The couple plan to marry Dec. 3 in Las Vegas, Nev., and will honeymoon there.

DATE SET — Mr. and Mrs. John Morelon, 609 N. Goliad, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Phyllis, to A. Edward Perez, Corpus Christi. The couple will be married at Our Lady of Prompt Succor Catholic Church, Alexandria, La., on Oct. 22.

Donna Harris honored with bridal shower

A bridal shower honoring Miss Donna Harris, bride-elect of Danny Coldiron, was held Oct. 3 in the home of Mrs. Delbert Harland, 2701 E. 24th St.

Corsages of sweetheart roses and baby's breath were presented to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Stanley Harris, Big Spring, and the groom's mother, Mrs. G.M. Coldiron, Big Spring.

Also attending were the grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Ira Dement, Big Spring, and Mrs. J.G. Coldiron, Big Spring, and the aunt of the bride, Mrs. Charles Green, Gail.

Assisting Miss Harris in opening her gifts was Kelly Denton and Tammy Plew, with Jill Beall helping to display the gifts.

From a table covered with a white linen, lace-appliqued cloth, the hostesses served cake and punch to about 36 guests from milk glass appointments.

The centerpiece was an arrangement of mixed flowers in shades of pink, rose and wine.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jesse Cuthbertson, Mrs. Alfred Stanley, Mrs. Ralph Dennis, Mrs. Leon Pettit, Mrs. Reuben Englert and Mrs. Wendell Patye.

Other hostesses were Mrs. Alvin Harrell, Mrs. Clyde Denton, Mrs. Billy Plew, Mrs. Dealon Stanley, Mrs. Robert Caffey and Mrs. Delbert Harland.

Miss Harris and her fiance plan to be married Oct. 15 in the Highway 80 Church of Christ.

Dear Abby

Better To Lose Him Than Your Principles

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15 and I'm going with a dude who just turned 18. He says he loves me and wants to marry me some day, but we fight almost every time we're together because he keeps trying to talk me into going all the way with him.

I told him I was saving myself for marriage and I wasn't going to change my mind, but he keeps trying to break down my resistance.

Abby, I really love this guy, but if he keeps hassling me to go all the way, I don't know what I'll do. How can I hold him off without losing him for good?

HANGING IN THERE

DEAR HANGING: Let's get one thing straight. A fellow who loves a girl doesn't hassle her to do something that's against her principles. If you lose him because you can't hold him off, you'll be lucky. Hold out for orange blossoms. He's offering you poison ivy.

DEAR ABBY: Most men think nothing of wearing a suit for four or five years—or even longer. So will you please tell me why a woman won't wear last year's dress?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Some don't want to. And others can't.

DEAR ABBY: I have a darling 5-year-old granddaughter I'll call Lisa. My son is Lisa's father, but he and Lisa's mother were never married and do not live together. Lisa's mother has lived with one man after another. Right now, the one she's living with belongs to a motorcycle gang.

You wouldn't believe the terrible filth this child lives in. She's dirty and hungry much of the time, and sleeps on a filthy mattress (which she wets) amid roaches and mice. She also has a chronic kidney condition. We live 85 miles away, and Lisa's mother sends her to visit us occasionally. When it's time to take her home, she cries and begs to stay with us.

Our doctor has prescribed medicine for the child's kidney ailment, but her mother "forgets" to give it to her.

We appealed to the Child's Protective Service in the community where Lisa lives, but were told that since our son was never married to the child's mother we are not the child's grandparents, so it is none of our business! What can we do?

FRANTIC IN ARIZONA

DEAR FRANTIC: This is clearly a case of child abuse. Had you disclosed your name and address, I would have reported it promptly. I urge you to phone PARENTS ANONYMOUS at this toll-free number: 1-800-421-0353, and tell them Abby told you to call. And write again to let me know what is done. I care.

Sale where it counts

By MARJ CARPENTER
One of the most dangerous jobs around is that of serving as an undercover narcotics agent.

There is a group of these agents who serve on a statewide basis, moving from location to location in an attempt to remain anonymous while they help attempt to halt the dope traffic across the border from Mexico into Texas.

During the past five years, they feel like they have made some real strides in halting the moving of hard drugs, but the battle is constant and new each day.

FINISHING TOUCHES — Raymond Phillips adds a final dusting of paint to one of his insulation blowers. The blowers, of Phillips' own design, are selling faster than he can manufacture them.

One-time hobby shop beehive of activity

By JAMES WERRELL
Raymond Phillips, owner and proprietor of Phillips' Machine Shop and Manufacturing Company, is not a man of small ambition or talent.

blower which Phillips manufactures.

The machine shop located at 1318 E. 3rd which he took over about two and a half years ago is no longer the lazy, small-time, slow-paced hobby shop it used to be.

Relaxing in his office, which doubles as the electronics department, Phillips wipes the sweat from his forehead with his welders cap, and casually places heavy boots among the electrical components on the desk.

Through his own efforts Phillips has changed the operation from a one-man odds-and-ends fix-it shop, to a seven-man manufacturing company; and he is still growing.

Then smiling smugly, Phillips announces he owns stock in the Weather Check Corporation.

Out of the slightly delapidated stucco building, which represents Phillips' main base of operations, come lifts, presses, and insulation blowers which are all of Phillips' own design.

Things look good for Phillips, but asked if he had any difficulty in getting where he is now the answer was "of course."

The shop, now crammed full of lathes, welders, drill presses and other metal working equipment also represents one man's decision to risk economic stability in order to fulfill his dream of owning and operating his own successful business.

It seems the main difficulty in bringing the insulation blower into mass production was the delay and expense of having another company manufacture an essential component to the machine.

Phillips gave up his job as maintenance superintendent for CRMWD after 17 years in order to try his hand at self employment.

Manufacturing firms in Lubbock and other areas estimated cost of making molds for the aluminum part at $300, and cost per cast part at $4.80.

With the help of one of his employees who is on the road between West Virginia and California all the time, Phillips finds he can't manufacture his products fast enough to fill the demand.

Not willing to believe that this was the cheapest way to make the parts, Phillips spent a morning making the molds himself, and that same afternoon turned out his own castings. Total cost to Phillips was a morning's work, and about $2 per finished part.

Perhaps Phillips' most successful venture into manufacturing has been his insulation blowers. Having built the first one just over 30 days ago, he now has enough orders to keep his company in full swing for over a year, just making the blowers.

Besides including his own small foundry, Phillips has made his shop more self-sufficient with a paint shop. He paints all the presses, blowers, and lifts, as well, and at a fraction of what it would cost to send his work out.

His main source of demand for the machines is Big Spring's Weather Check Corporation, which has contracted to buy every

For the parts and equipment which he must buy, Phillips says he buys from local merchants as much as possible.

because I considered it important. I used to be a state trooper stopping people and giving them traffic tickets," the agent stated.

"You would occasionally arrest somebody with a load of grass or maybe some hard stuff. But all you ever got them for was possession. Sale is where it counts.

"A lot of folks buy and use, but the important action is who is selling and pushing. There has actually been a drop in pushing during the past two years in most West Texas towns.

"I think part of the reason is that there have been more and more arrests. And most of the arrests that have been successfully prosecuted include an undercover agent or operation."

The tired looking young man stopped and rubbed his heavy beard and said ruefully, "You have to go around looking like death warmed-over."

He said that most undercover agents grow beards or long hair or both. "We wear old blue jeans, coveralls, dirty wrinkled shirts, baseball caps, and straws that look like they've been sat on a week," he recalled.

"We chew tobacco, swill beer, and occasionally smoke a joint. We pretend to do a lot of things too, but you better not get caught pretending," he added.

"There's been a few times I rubbed dirt in my eyes to look bleary-eyed enough for the crowd I was running with. And there's been a few times that I was plenty bleary eyed from just staying up late," he laughed.

"My wife is very careful with our telephone calls. If she isn't sure, she'll say she's busy and ask for their number to call back. That way we know for sure who we are talking to anyway," he added.

"We move a lot — from the Hill Country to the Panhandle and over to East Texas and back," the agent stated.

"That way you avoid running into people who have known you before. But thieves move around a lot too. And now and then you can get into a real tight. Once I did.

"I was sitting in a crummy beer joint in one West Texas town and saw a fellow outside the window that I knew was out on probation in another county. And I knew he would recognize me from testifying in a trial in that county.

"I went to the restroom before he got in the door. And thank goodness there was a window in there. I went out the window, down the alley and left town. Another agent was sent in my place," he recalled.

Then he sat staring off into space. "I remember another time that I haven't told my wife about. A group of the local pushers had gotten wind that there was an undercover operation.

"They suspected the wrong guy. They grabbed up this guy as he walked into one location where a group gathered to gamble. One of the pushers held a knife to his throat and told him to get out of town. I had to join in with the ones threatening the poor guy. And sweat was pouring down my back. It really was scary," the young man added.

Boys' Ranch benefits

Art sale totals $108,000

The seventh annual Steer Roping and Art Exhibit at the OS Ranch was a huge success last weekend. Over $108,000 worth of art was sold Friday night at the Preview Party, according to Mrs. David Newby, secretary of the committee.

Ten per cent goes to West Texas Boys Ranch. Jerry Worthly was Big Spring chairman for getting people from this community to the event.

Over 500 attended the opening Friday at the OS Ranch headquarters. Most of the 37 artists themselves were on hand to receive the enthusiastic crowd.

A number of them donated paintings or a bronze to be auctioned with 100 per cent profit going to the Boys Ranch. Some $18,000 was collected on this project. A work by Ray Swanson of Prescott, Ariz., brought $3,100 for the highest bid of the evening.

Jimmy Longine and Dan Fisher of Andrews took the roping honors Saturday from a field of 300 contestants. Dan is the son of Junior Fisher, who was well-known for many years in roping circles.

Matlock Rose of Gatesville riding Pep-O-Nita took the cutting horse championship. Kent Youngblood, well known in Borden County won calf roping with a time on three calves of 39.36. Junior Garrison of Oklahoma was second with 39.63.

The matched roping between three-time world champion Phil Lyne of Artesia Wells and Roy Cooper of Monument, N.M., current world champion, Cooper won with a time of 147.19 on ten calves. Phil broke a rope on his sixth calf but still totaled 180.70.

Winner of the barrel racing was Chris Cook with 33.13. On Sunday afternoon, in steer roping, with 35 invited topnotch ropers, was won by Lewis Kincaid of Tucumcari. He won the coveted Giles Wilson Connell Memorial Trophy. Big Spring's Toots Mansfield served as a timer.

The board will also discuss a new policy for helping needy children with supplies. The board will discuss selling a 1970 GMC 4 passenger school bus and discuss a washing machine for the athletic department.

Dinner meeting planned

The Local Nurses Association will hold a dinner meeting Tuesday at Howard College student union building in connection with Texas Nursing Week.

Mrs. Otilie Van Fleet, director of nurses at the Big Spring State Hospital is president of the local organization. Other officers include Mrs. Lettie Lee, college nursing instructor, vice president; Mrs. Jackie Wielander, Malone-Hogan, second vice president and Mrs. Mary Ernsting, secretary-treasurer.

The organization will also have a window display this week at Dunlap's which will feature the early cap, uniform and pin of the Texas nurses.

Some of the longstanding nurses in their organization include such persons as Mrs. Jewel Hyer, Mrs. Bessie Love, Mrs. Dixie Hogan, Mrs. Louise Porter, Mrs. Dean Brown and Mrs. Louis Horton. The local organization points to these women with pride.

The week was formerly proclaimed by Mayor Wade Choate who pointed out in his proclamation that "The profession of nursing is committed to the maintenance of health, the prevention of disease and the alleviation of suffering and pain."

Texas Nurse Week starts today. It is time for all of us to consider what nurses mean to us and recognize the valuable contribution these professionals give our community.

Nurses work closely with other health professionals in preventing illness and restoring health. By law a professional nurse must be licensed by the state of Texas to practice nursing and is called a registered nurse, an RN. Licensed vocational nurses (LVNs) are also important providers of nursing services.

Nurses practice in many situations: homes, hospitals, clinics, schools, and industry to name a few. Today, nurses are emerging into new roles in order to bring the delivery of good health care closer to the consumer. An example of one of the new roles is the nurse practitioner. A nurse practitioner works closely with patients to assess their health by physical examination, patient education, and nursing care. Currently, the nursing profession is encouraging the return of non-working nurses to practice through refresher courses and in-service training. Less than one-half of the 43,000 registered nurses in Texas are practicing. The greatest need for nurses is in rural areas. Fortunately, the number of applicants and graduates of nursing schools has risen sharply in the last half decade. The number of men in nursing has also increased.

Nurses are acutely aware of their need for informal continued education beyond graduation in order to keep up with the modern changes in nursing. Schools of nursing, hospitals and health agencies across Texas are striving to offer continued education opportunities. Just recently the Texas Nurses Association, the professional organization for RNs, initiated a modern recording system to document the continued education efforts of RNs. By means of this system, called CEARP (continuing education approval and recognition program), participating RNs receive official recognition for their activities in maintaining their competency.

Local nurses point out, "This week should remind us to examine the nursing care in our community. Nursing's purpose is its ability to deliver quality nursing care for the well-being of the consumer-patient."

A little lower Learning meaning of radio message

By WILFRID M. CALNAN, A.C.S.W. Director, Howard Co. Family Service Center

"Today and yesterday," the message came, "over the radio, people were being asked to give blood for you." An humbling, yet somehow puzzling message! The more so since it came on top of other messages so grim in nature. The passing of time has given me the understanding and insight needed to explain my mixed and somewhat confused feelings as of then. It's important to explain them to you because they relate to a community matter.

For more years than I could count I had been on the "giving" end. People had problems and I was there. It seemed to be a pre-ordained system that would end only when I chose the day that I would retire. Then one day, inexplicably, a medical science intervened saying, "Stop! Right now! Seek examination!" The imperative brought me to a halt.

From the helper I turned to be the helped. The firm connections with life and its people suddenly seemed slackened. I began to slip away from life. Then the terrible message. And after a while, the "radio" message.

The radio message was the reconnection with life, with the land of the living. I was not reading the comforting sentiments now, important as they had been. I was not hearing the loving words, as great as they had been. Suddenly, people had stretched out their arms and silently said, "Take my blood and live." It really makes no difference that the blood was not needed and the donor line was curtailed. People, some very close to me, some whom I knew not at all, had held out their

More than two billion gallons of water used

For the first time in its history, the Colorado River Municipal Water District delivered more than two billion gallons of water for September.

The 2,068,440,746 gallons pumped to customers was only 16 million gallons less than August, which was the fifth highest month. Municipal demands rocketed in reaching 1,507,830,400 gallons, up 66.44 per cent over September a year ago. This ran the municipal total for the year to 10,999,854,800 gallons, up 10.92 per cent for the first nine months.

Mining and industrial deliveries of 560,601,346 gallons were about 26 million gallons less than the month a year ago. This left the first nine-month total at 4,990,288,524 gallons, of about 23 million gallons less than the first three quarters of 1976.

Through the first nine months deliveries have amounted to 15,990,143,324 gallons, 7.10 per cent more than for the same time last year. If the output for the final three months matches that of a year ago, the district will achieve another 20-billion-gallons year.

Most remarkable of the increases occurred at Odessa, which took 659,053,000 gallons, up 103.06 per cent. Big Spring had 278,791,000, up 37.15 per cent; Snyder 88,153,000, up 41.53 per cent; Midland 460,621,000, up 49.31 per cent; Stanton 14,419,000, up 97.22 per cent. Robert Lee, which took no water in September of 1975 required 6,793,000 gallons this September.

Loan deadline extended

WASHINGTON — Congressman Omar Burleson is pleased to advise that the Farmer's Home Administration has extended the period for receiving applications for emergency actual loss loans to farmers and ranchers that were eligible for emergency drought assistance as a result of disasters occurring on or after July 1, 1976.

The counties included in this extension are Borden, Coleman, Comanche, Crosby, Dawson, Floyd, Garza, Howard, Kent, Lynn, Scurry, and Young.

Lamesa to host meeting

The Lamesa Baptist Association will hold its annual meeting October 13 at the Crestview Baptist Church in Lamesa. The afternoon session will begin at 3 p.m. Reports from various committees and programs of the associational work and from the Baptist General Convention of Texas will be given.

The evening session begins at 7 p.m. This session will hear some more reports and Dr. Charles Lee Williamson, director of the missions division since 1968. Prior to that he pastored churches at Old Independence, Back-jack, Peoria, LaMarque, Magnolia Ave. in Beaumont. He also served as Superintendent of Missions in the Southeast Texas Association, Golden Triangle Association, and Waco Association.

Supper will be served at this meeting at 5:30 p.m. by the host church. A nursery will be provided.

Headliners contest cash

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — More than $6,000 in cash awards will be made to top Texas daily newspaper reporters, editors and photographers for their work the past year, Headliners Club officials said today.

Ernest Stromberger, contest committee chairman, said the winners in the 1977 Charles E. Green Journalism Awards contest will be recognized at the annual Headliners awards party on Feb. 11, 1978.

Stromberger said the contest was expanded by the club this year to include editorial, headline and column writing categories, as well as a separate category for sports photography.

Top prizes of the three main categories, for general assignment reporting, investigative reporting and spot news reporting were increased to $750 each.

The competition is open to Texas daily newspapers, Texas-based news services and Texas bureaus of national news services. Entries must have been published in a Texas daily newspaper between Nov. 16, 1976 and Nov. 15, 1977. The entry deadline is Nov. 20.

Prime rate increased

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major commercial banks raised their prime interest rates today from 7 1/4 per cent to 7 3/4 per cent in the second general increase in the economic barometer with two weeks.

Citibank of New York, the nation's second-largest bank, announced the increase at 10 a.m. Within minutes, other commercial banks made the same announcement.

The closely watched prime interest rate is the rate a bank charges its largest and most credit-worthy customers. Changes in the prime rate often influence similar changes in other interest rates, and one of the first effects of a higher prime rate often is increased housing costs.

The current round of increases actually began Tuesday with an announcement by Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, the nation's 11th largest bank. Thursday the smaller United Jersey Bank of Hackensack also announced an increase from 7 1/4 per cent to 7 3/4 per cent.

Books teach crafts

Children enjoy their creative art experiences at home and at school. Parents and teachers need not spend a fortune on art supplies to insure that their children's experiences continue. Many potential art supplies can be found in the kitchen cupboard. There are many books at the Howard County Library that contain ideas and recipes for making a variety of things at very little cost.

"The Recyclopedia" by Robin Simons is a collection of game, science, and craft ideas all made from recycled materials. The author suggests saving scrap materials from around the house and collecting discarded materials from factories and businesses around town.

"Concoctions" by Lowi Price and Marilyn Wronsky is a collection of inedible recipes for making such fun projects as creeping crystals (made with epsom salt), fake plastic (made with unfavored gelatin), red cabbage blue-denim dye, and invisible ink (made with lemon and onion juice.)

"How to Make Snop Snappers and Other Fine Things" by Robert Lopshire is a collection of fun games made from styrofoam cups, Elmer's glue, paper plates, milk cartons, string, and shoe boxes. The games have such humorous names as "Ballimp", "Silly Wheel", and "Zak-Zok Game". The author illustrated some well known children's books such as "Big Bear to the Rescue", "Wish Again Big Bear", and "Put Me in the Zoo."

Indian sagas to be filmed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two sagas of the American Indian will be made into television miniseries.

NBC will air a 16-hour series on the struggle of a Navajo family over a 100-year period, called "The Yazzies." Oscar-winning screenwriter Budd Schulberg will write the first eight hours, which will begin filming next March in Arizona.

Producer David Gerber has commissioned Dee Brown, author of "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee," to write a novel following three generations of an Indian family. Gerber will then develop it as a miniseries for ABC.

Baking can be a creative experience. "Let's Bake Bread" by Hannah Lyons Johnson is also intended for children to read and do on their own. (It might be a good idea to have a minimal amount of parental supervision in the kitchen while cooking.) The book indicates step-by-step the involved process of baking bread. It is illustrated with black and white photographs.

"Origami" by Robert Harbin is a step-by-step guide to the Japanese art of paper folding. The book begins with an explanation of the symbols used in the patterns and moves from the simple to the more difficult folds. This book is too complicated for elementary age children. However, teen, parents and teachers will be able to follow the directions to create beautiful things from paper.

From Ronettes to Asbury Jukes

Ronnie Spector goes solo

RED BANK, N.J. (AP) — She was the leader of one of rock 'n' roll's most famous girl groups, a teen queen of the mid-1960s who broke thousands of hearts with AM hits like "Be My Baby" and "Baby, I Love You."

Fourteen years later, Ronnie Spector has dropped her Ronettes, finalized her divorce with ace producer Phil Spector and, with the help of Bruce Springsteen's Asbury Park gang, returned to the rock music spotlight.

LADS FROM LIVERPOOL — The Beatles, George, Ringo, Paul, John, will be featured in the multi-media presentation, "The Beatles: Away With Words," for three performances at the Big Spring Auditorium Tuesday.

although things like sound and lights are so much better now," she said after an energetic performance here with Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes.

She's 31 now and her sexy, quatty voice strains to reach some of the high notes of her sentimental, teen-age hits. But, attired in a striking black jumpsuit cut to the waist and singing her oldies as well as her new single, "Say Goodbye To Hollywood," she had little trouble winning over a young teenage crowd that was in diapers when the songs first hit the radio.

Event helps Scouts

Fine art, live entertainment and a barbecue feed by the world famous Chuck Wagon Gang is scheduled for the first annual Hanging Tree Roundup Benefit for the Buffalo Trail Council Oct. 29th at the F-Bar Cowder Ranch south of Odessa.

The event is sponsored by Midland's Hanging Tree Gallery to raise funds for the Buffalo Trail Council Ranch in the Davis Mountain through the sales of artworks of nationally known artists and by other Round-Up activities.

More than 20 artists from across the U.S. will participate in this year's Round-Up and all mediums will be represented. Continuous entertainment will be provided by area bands and featured guest performers from Happy Shahan's Alamo Village in Brackettville.

The round-up will kick off at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, October 29th and climax with an old fashioned western dance under the stars beginning at 8:00 p.m. A contribution of $10 includes art show, entertainment, barbecue dinner and dance. Additional information can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Carol Swain at The Hanging Tree Gallery — 3201 No. Big Spring-Midland, by phoning 684-4776 or 684-4721.

Beatles show slated

What is billed as the next best thing to the Beatles will appear in Big Spring Tuesday for three performances.

"The Beatles: Away With Words", a multi media performance featuring slides, music, and film will be shown in the Big Spring Auditorium 6 p.m., 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. Tuesday. Advance tickets are $3.50, and $4 at the door.

The production has been viewed by more than two million Americans, and has broken 46 all-time house records.

It showed to sold-out theaters in cities such as Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, Atlanta, New Orleans, Detroit, Houston, Cleveland, Memphis and many more.

A year in the making, this presentation incorporated 26 still projectors, three motion projectors, a 360 degree sound system, multiple special effects, a cinerama size screen and a computer to operate it all. The production is housed in stainless steel racks standing six feet tall and spanning 25 feet.

The quadrophonic sound track is reproduced by a sound system driven by 8,000 watts of undistorted power.

The show consists of three acts. The first traces the roots of the famous four from Liverpool back to such artists as Little Richard, Chuck Berry, Buddy Holly, The Everly Brothers, and, of course, Elvis.

The second act relives the crazy days of Beatlemania with scenes from classic performances such as Albert Hall, Shea Stadium, Hollywood Bowl and the first Ed Sullivan appearance.

Act Three follows the Beatles through their transitional phase when their collective consciousness was raised along with everybody else's, and they wrote the music to go with it.

Tickets will be on sale at Tape Town, Nick's Toggas and The Cottage.
