

Slick public relations

Ku Klux Klan growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan is growing after a decade of decline as it switches from heated, anti-black rhetoric to slick public relations, says the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

"For the first time since the late 1960s, there has been an increase in Klan membership and visibility," said Irwin J. Suall, director of Jewish organization's domestic fact-finding unit.

The membership of three major KKK factions has risen about 20 percent in two years and now totals about 8,000, compared to 6,500 klansmen in 1975, Suall said in an interview.

The ADL offices around the country monitor the activities of the Klan and other groups considered anti-Jewish and estimate the number of members and supporters, Suall said.

Suall attributed the membership increase to several factors, including the rise of David Duke as a leader of one Klan faction.

"Duke is extraordinarily clever in manipulating the media," Suall said. "He tones down his views for public consumption, and he is being given platforms, all over the United States."

"The impression has been spread around that there's been a national resurgence in the Klan and that it is now respectable to be a member of the Klan."

Duke, a 27-year-old college graduate and imperial wizard of the Louisiana-based Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, has attracted national media attention as "a new breed" of klansman.

However, Suall said Duke's organization, like other KKK groups, continues to be militantly anti-black and anti-Jewish.

Suall said another factor contributing to the growth is Klan's exploitation of America's current race-

Three killed when tank folds

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Investigators attempted today to determine what caused a condensed steam tank to collapse and kill three men at a chemical plant.

Two other men were critically burned Wednesday in a flood of scalding water from the 500,000-gallon tank at the Monsanto Co. plant.

The dead were identified as J. P. Irwin, 31, of Friendswood, a manufacturing supervisor; Millard Akers, 43, of Texas City, a maintenance foreman; and B. G. Elliston, 49, of Dickinson, an insulator.

Two men were listed in critical condition at a Galveston hospital. One of them was J. E. Guidry, 45, of Texas City, an insulator. Company officials withheld the name of the other injured man pending notification of next of kin.

Plant manager P. E. Brubaker said the tank of condensed steam was part of a styrene unit and the men were working around it trying to locate a leak in the structure when the tank collapsed.

(AP WIREPHOTO) CONTROVERSY SURROUNDS POLICE CHIEF — Charles Gain, the controversial police chief of San Francisco, says he was astounded when papers published this photo of him with Margo St. James, head of COYOTE, the prostitutes union, at the annual "Hookers Ball" in San Francisco in October. "I was just exercising my philosophy of relating to all segments of the community," he said. The mayor defends his police chief, quoting a 6.6 per cent decrease in crime since Gain took over.

Chief: Sometimes I bring about my own problems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The police chief who moved the American flag out of his office, invited homosexual police officers to "come out of the closet" and attended a "Hookers Ball" says, "Sometimes I bring about my own problems."

Charles Gain has been surrounded by controversies since taking over as chief of San Francisco's 1,700 police officers 20 months ago.

Tongues were set a-wagging after a newspaper published a photograph of the broadly smiling chief standing between Margo St. James, founder of the "prostitutes union" COYOTE (Call Off Your Old Tired Ethics), and a person identified only as "Wonder Where."

Critics led by Police Officers Association President Gerald Crowley demanded the chief resign. He refused and brought the controversy before the Police Commission Wednesday night. He was cleared of charges of "unofficer-like conduct."

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Potter County Sheriff T. L. Baker has been indicted for allegedly misusing county-owned equipment.

The grand jury Thursday also indicted Capt. Don C. Smith of the Sheriff's Department on charges he sexually abused a male inmate at the Potter County Correctional Facility.

Baker was also indicted on misdemeanor charges stemming from the alleged improper use of a county-owned air compressor.

By the Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms plagued central and southern regions of the Texas coast today while most of the rest of the state enjoyed clear to partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures.

A weak cold front was responsible for the wet weather along the coast. Brownsville had reported about a half an inch of rain since midnight.

The front kept clouds over the southeast sections of the state. Elsewhere, skies were clear.

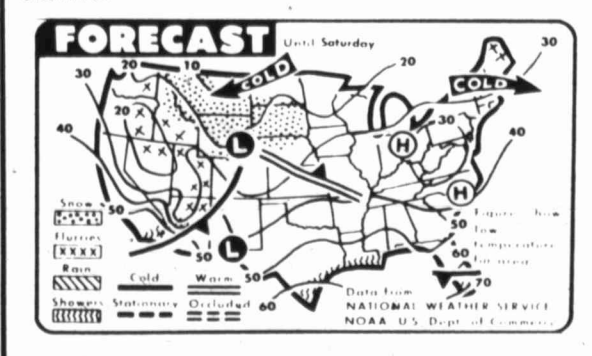

Temperatures just after dawn ranged from 72 degrees in Corpus Christi to a 36-degree reading in Wichita Falls.

The forecast called for more rain along the coast through today with clear to partly cloudy skies and more mild temperatures elsewhere.

WEST TEXAS: Fair and warmer most sections tonight becoming partly cloudy Saturday. Windy north Saturday. Highs Saturday lower 60s north to mid 70s south, except mid 80s Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight near 40 north to mid 50s south except mid 30s mountain areas.

A far out house---a modest desire

NORTHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — To find Dan and Robin Woodard's house, you drive over a mountain on a blacktop road until the rutted dirt lane until the lane ends, then you walk.

You walk and climb half a mile up a twisting, boulder-strewn path obscured by fallen leaves and pine needles, following a stream that tumbles down the steep hillside over mossy rocks. Deep in this idyllic wilderness the only sound is the bawling stream.

The house is utterly isolated among the trees, a handsome two-story house covered with weather-mellowed cedar shakes.

Nearby is an acre clearing where Dan and Robin grow their own groceries. Robin cans the produce and stores it in a root cellar. Dan built the root cellar.

Dan also built the house, sawed every board, drove every nail. He is a fine carpenter and a resourceful man; he taught himself the craft. Robin is resourceful, too, and giving. She teaches sewing one day a week in a nursing home.

Behind the house stands another tidy structure. With its two stained-glass windows, also hand-crafted by Dan, it might be a small chapel, but it is not.

It is an outhouse. The most troublesome outhouse you can imagine.

"We came here because we like the woods, the outdoors," Dan Woodard said. "We like privacy. All we want is to be left alone. Instead, for three years we've been in and out of court and it isn't over yet. All because of an outhouse."

"Sometimes it gets pretty silly. One official asks why on earth we want an outhouse and another says if we have an outhouse everybody will want one. How do you deal with that?"

Dan Woodard discusses his outhouse woes with remarkable calm. A less forgiving soul would be tearing his hair.

Dan and Robin, both in their early 30s, met at the University of California at Los Angeles. From the start, they treasured being alone. After graduation and marriage they rented a cabin far back in the redwood mountains of northern California.

They wanted their own place, though, and began a search, traveling the country unhurriedly, enjoying the scenery and each other.

In the spring of 1974 they found this spot: 96 acres of romantic mountainside with its crystal brook, ample firewood and garden clearing. No electricity, but they prefer oil lamps. It was ideal.

Dan applied for a building permit. He was told he would need a septic tank. He explained that he planned to build an outhouse.

"Not only would we have to build a road so a truck could come up with a tank, which would be terribly expensive and spoil the beauty, but we really do want an outhouse," Dan said. "An outhouse forces you to go outside even in bad weather, and once you're outside you're glad to be outside."

The town said too bad, no outhouse. Against the law. Dan was told to stop building not just the outhouse but also the house.

He wanted to finish by winter so he hired a lawyer, got a restraining order against the town and built his home. The case came up in February and the court found in his favor.

The town gave him a permit for an outhouse. "We thought that was the end of it, but a week later the plumbing inspector arrived. He said we could have an outhouse, but the state required indoor plumbing as well, plus a washing machine hookup. Why, we don't even have electricity for a washing machine."

The inspector himself saw the absurdity, resigned rather than enforce the rule, and went with Dan to Boston to plead for a variance.

They returned and found a summons from the town for building without a permit. Dan lost that case in court but won it on appeal. The judge ruled that the town could hardly have been unaware of his plans.

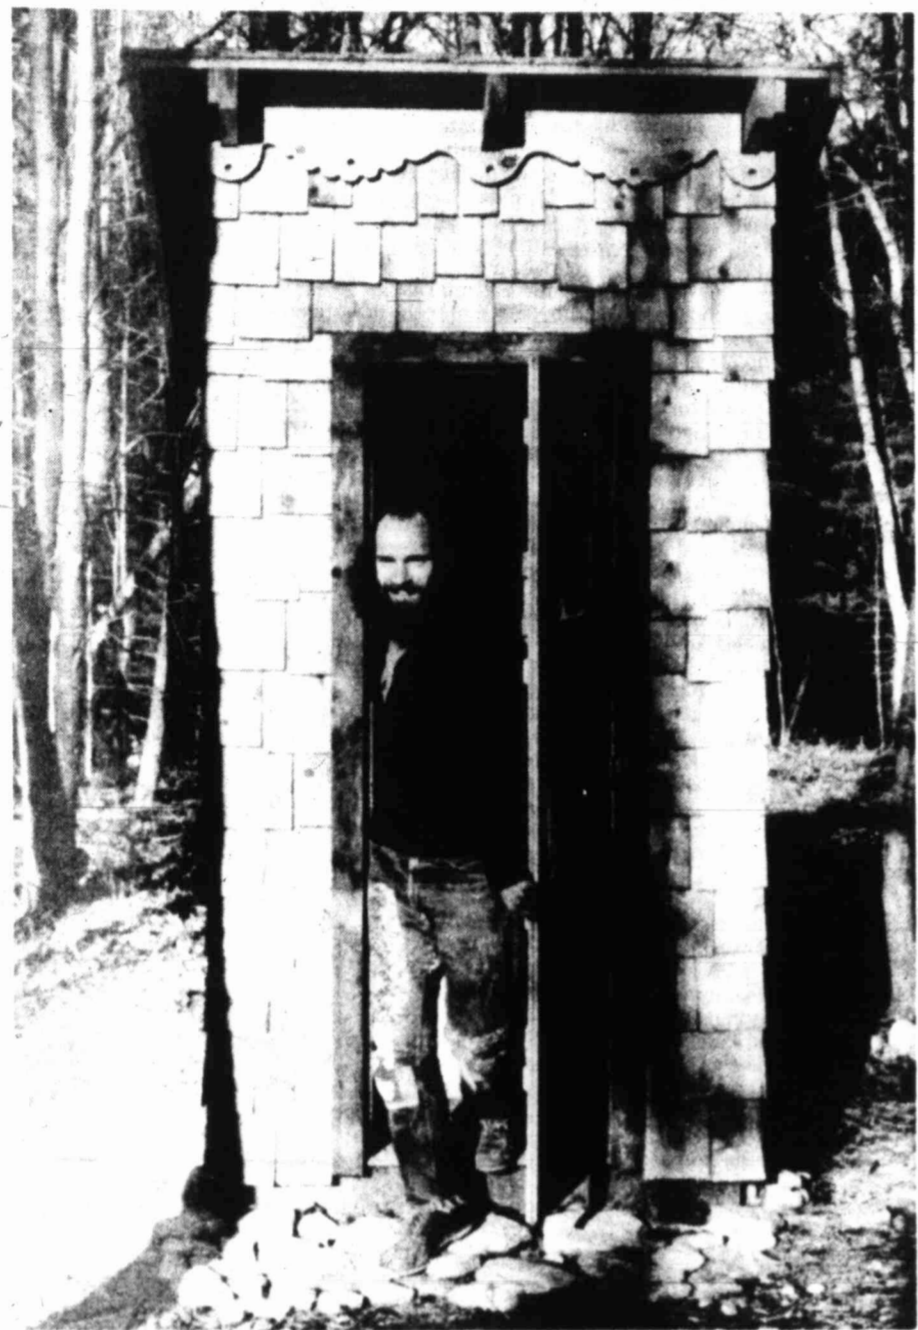

"What we now have is approval in the state court but no variance from the state Board of Plumbing Examiners. That's still unsettled."

"We have the feeling we're being harassed but don't know why. I guess they think we're strange. At one hearing they kept pointing out that we were from California." He laughed. "Actually I'm from Michigan."

"We don't want to cause trouble. The last thing we want to do is bother anybody. All we want is an outhouse, just a simple outhouse."

A modest desire, Dan and Robin. Hang in there.

WILDERNESS HOME — Dan Woodard stands in the doorway of the outhouse he constructed behind his isolated home near Northfield, Mass. He's fought the town for three years for the building permit.

Preacher, smut king agree on kiddie porn

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A state legislative panel has been told it should try to control child pornography in Texas by passing laws that treat it as a form of child abuse, and not by putting restrictions on its publication and distribution.

That was the thrust of some testimony Thursday at the first public hearing of the Texas House Select Committee on Child Pornography, which heard from more than 20 witnesses in all-day sessions here.

The topic of child pornography found Dr. Jimmy Allen, a San Antonio pastor and president of the Southern Baptist Convention, on the same side as Larry Flynt, controversial publisher of Hustler magazine.

Both told the 11-member committee it would be a mistake to pass obscenity laws to control publication and distribution of pornography which uses children.

They said new child abuse laws would probably stand up better in the face of constitutional challenges in the courts.

"Profiteers pandering to the lowest sexual appetites in human experience are parasites using our concepts of freedom of expression to greedily sap the strength of the American soul," Allen said.

He said there are few issues on which as great a consensus and concern exists "as that of the protection of children from sexual exploitation and concern for our national trend toward exploiting and kinky sexual expression."

"Let us make no mistake about it," the preacher added. "We are dealing with child abuse. Children are being abused."

Flynt, who is appealing a 25-year prison sentence for an obscenity conviction in Ohio, said the sexual exploitation of children in pornography should be attacked "through specific child abuse laws."

Military

No draft produces shortage of docs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The end of the draft and its pressure on medical students has left the military short of doctors, and a spokesman says the situation may get worse.

"I think there's no doubt that all three military services are feeling the effects of the lack of a draft as far as getting physicians in," Vice Adm. Willard P. Arentzen, the Navy's surgeon general, said in an interview.

While money is a factor, Arentzen said, job satisfaction matters too. He said Navy physicians look outside the service and see that they "don't have to wait for equipment and so forth. They don't have to put up with some of the frustrations that we in government do, and, therefore, they go ahead and get out. It's unfortunate."

Energy

Doubts being raised over task

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional conferees are making progress toward a compromise energy bill, but the pace is so slow that doubts are being raised over whether the task can be finished this year.

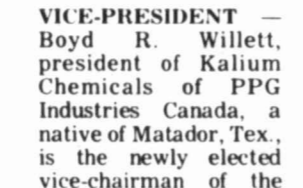

"At the rate we're going, we'll be lucky to get natural gas resolved by Christmas," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., leader of the Senate conferees.

The administration has placed a major emphasis on getting a bill this year. President Carter has said the reputation of his first year's domestic program hinges on what Congress does with energy.

Johnston acknowledged the possibility that Congress may not finish work on energy until next year. "There's no particular magic in Dec. 31 versus Jan. 1, although we still hope to finish this year," he said.

Some of the biggest differences between the two chambers — including natural gas price regulation and energy taxes — have yet to be dealt with.

The conference panel that has been meeting for five weeks on non-tax aspects of the energy bill made some headway Thursday in resolving an impasse over

VICE-PRESIDENT — Boyd R. Willett, president of Potash-Phosphate Institute, the agronomic research and education arm of major potash and phosphate producers. Willett is a University of Texas-Austin graduate.

Under the compromise, state regulatory agencies would still have to consider these standards but would not be required to adopt them. However, they would have to explain a failure to do so to the federal government.

Some electric rate issues still must be resolved, including whether special "lifetime" electric rates should be given to the elderly, reducing their electric bills by as much as 10 percent.

There is a chance that the tax differences between the two houses may not be resolved until conferees finish work on natural gas — which some congressional leaders say could take most of December.

The disclosure rules had been challenged by Superior Oil Co. and Mitchell Energy Corp., which contended that the commission had no right to demand information from company affiliates.

The 5th Circuit said the energy commission's right to require the information was based on congressional acts giving the commission power to regulate the interstate sale of natural gas.

Firms must tell U.S. where they hunt for gas

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that natural gas companies and their affiliates must tell the government where they hunt for gas and how much they find.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Thursday upheld the right of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, formerly the Federal Power Commission, to demand the information.

The 5th Circuit said the information would help in setting gas rates and would not harm producers. The 5th Circuit had suspended the commission's disclosure rules last year while the court considered the case.

Turkey Day gas supplies ample

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association says gasoline supplies across the state for the Thanksgiving weekend will be ample.

However, the association said Thursday about one-third of the state's service stations will be closed on the holiday itself.

The AAA said a survey shows 31 per cent of the state's stations will be closed on Thanksgiving Day and 26 per cent will be closed the following Sunday.

Gas prices at the 258 stations surveyed ranged from a low of 52.8¢ a gallon for self-service regular brand in Austin to 70.8¢ for full-service premium in Fort Stockton in far West Texas.

Meet Missions Sunday slated

On November 19-20, four missionaries of the United Methodist Church will be in Big Spring.

The Rev. Guy Garrett, serving in Singapore, returned to the United States in July 1977 for a one-year furlough.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harold Crow, United Methodist Missionaries to Liberia, Africa, have retired from missionary service. Since 1967, in Ganta, Liberia, Crow has served at the United Methodist Mission and Leprosarium. Mrs. Crow was a Junior High School teacher at the Mission School, as well as the mission hostess.

The Rev. W.L. Armstrong, missionary to Indonesia (now residing in Lamesa) will show slides and tell of his work in Sumatra. The people of Big Spring and Howard County are invited to hear these four missionaries at First United Methodist Church.

Saturday, November 19, at 10 a.m. there will be a coffee for all ladies of the church at the home of Mrs. Hayes Stripling, Jr. A coke party is scheduled for the youth, grades 7-12, in the church parsonage, 101 Washington, Saturday evening at 6:30 p.m. in the fellowship hall each of the missionaries will be featured individually.

Sunday at 9:45 a.m. the Rev. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Crow and Rev. Armstrong will bring special programs for all those attending church school at First Church.

Church welcomes Stanton youth

The First Christian Church will host youth groups from the First United Methodist and First Baptist Churches of Stanton for a presentation of the musical drama "The Clown."

The program will be presented at a fellowship dinner Sunday evening, November 20 at 6:30 p.m. in the church's fellowship hall. The production grows out of the two churches working together in a combined youth ministry during the summer.

In the dramatic presentation, the clown encounters the four forces of unrighteousness appropriately named "E," "V," "I" and "L." The clown struggles with these forces throughout the drama helped by witnesses of people who have had encounters with the Risen Lord.

Appropriate solos and choral numbers reinforce the message that the clown is trying to communicate with E.V.I.L. Finally, "I" decides to try "The Way" which the clown has demonstrated to him.

The presentation lasts 45 minutes. A covered-dish dinner will be served immediately before the presentation begins. A free-will offering will be taken at the end of the play to defray expenses which the youth groups experience in presenting the play. Everyone is invited to share in this fellowship and enrichment presentation.

College Baptist invites public to hear singer

Jack Price, one of America's most sought after gospel soloists, will appear in concert at College Baptist Church, Big Spring on November 22, 7:30 p.m.

The musical message of Price has been presented to millions through television, radio, recordings, and personal appearances. Jack appeared with Rex Humbard on the "Cathedral of Tomorrow" program. He has been a guest of Jerry Falwell on the "Old Time Gospel Hour" on several occasions.

"Music With Meaning" concerts take Price from coast to coast each year. He has sung in Carnegie Hall, New York; People's Church, Toronto, Canada and many others. Jack presents more concerts yearly than any other soloist in America.

The music industry has honored Mr. Price with Grammy nominations for two of his albums. His choral compilations have sold over 500,000 copies. Here the ministry of Price at College Baptist Church, November 22, 7:30 p.m.

The church is headed by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon. Rankin claims that he was flown in a private plane from Missouri to Kansas where his father had obtained a conservatorship from Judge James Z. Zeller of Pottawatomie County, Kan., and was confined in a house.

Providence...

... the capital of Rhode Island! The river on which that city is situated! But both derive their common name from a word that meant much to the early Pilgrims.

The word providence stands for the goodness, the faithfulness of God. It reminds men that He has provided everything to meet our daily needs. It dwells on spiritual as well as material blessings.

Thanksgiving is man's reverent response to God's providence. In colonial history that word became associated with a single day, an occasion set aside for appreciating our blessings... expressing gratitude in worship and celebration.

But providence is a reason for worshipping God all year. And it is a reason for celebrating our religious convictions in daily concern for one another.

Two school buses flip

By the Associated Press
Forty-seven Texas school children have been treated for injuries suffered when two school buses overturned in separate incidents Thursday morning.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said a Brownsboro Independent School District bus that overturned Thursday, injuring 40 students, had a faulty brake cylinder.

At about the same time, a Vanderbilt Independent School District bus rolled over after the driver lost control in a dense South Texas fog. Seven children, ages 5 to 15, were injured in the accident.

Hispanics may be largest minority in U.S. by 1990

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States' Hispanic or Spanish-speaking population could become the nation's largest minority group but is falling far short of its economic potential, a conference here has been told.

Hispanics are a wasted resource now," Jaime Oaxaca, a vice president in charge of Northrop Corporation's missile program, told a "Hispanics in Management" conference at the Hyatt Regency Thursday.

Surgeon cuts through Air Force red tape

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A surgeon who cut through Air Force red tape to beat a little-known regulation and get discharged from active duty says he doesn't think much of the way the Air Force treats its doctors.

Dr. Charles Frenthway, 30, says Air Force doctors are routinely given assignments that don't match their specialties.

But the Air Force says Frenthway doesn't know enough about the subject to talk.

"Dr. Frenthway is totally unfamiliar with the medical situation at F.E. Warren Air Force Base because he has not worked here since September," a spokesman for the base said Thursday.

Frenthway, a two-year veteran, was discharged from the Air Force in September after a federal judge ruled that the Air Force had not kept an implied promise to pay him a $25,000 re-enlistment bonus.

There are two obstetricians assigned to F.E. Warren but no babies are delivered because of a lack of facilities, Frenthway said.

The base spokesman said that's half true. A 40-bed base hospital opened in September and, the spokesman says, two obstetricians are "performing normal gynecological services and prenatal care."

The services do not include delivery of babies because the delivery room and nursery are not ready, the spokesman acknowledges.

"They've been there about a year," Frenthway says. "They're just sitting around, directing pregnant ladies to other hospitals."

The hospital was to have been completed last April, but there were construction delays, the Air Force says.

The Air Force acknowledges that two orthopedic surgeons, a full-time military doctor and a part-time civilian, were assigned to the base even though the hospital surgery suite was not ready. It still is being worked on, and the spokesman says the military doctor has been sent elsewhere on temporary duty. The civilian is still assigned to the base.

"I was assigned at Warren as a general medical officer, although I did have some flight surgeon duties," Frenthway says. "They had promised me I would be strictly a flight surgeon."

The Air Force also had promised Frenthway the $25,000 for re-enlisting, but then declined to pay the bonus because he did not sign form 2292, as required before bonuses can be paid.

Frenthway then sought his discharge.

The Air Force refused to "cut through their red tape" and give Frenthway his bonus, as U.S. District Judge Clarence Brimmer put it. So Brimmer cut it for him; he ordered Frenthway discharged. He did not get the bonus.

Siboney's quarterly income is $152,000

Siboney Corporation reported revenues of $6,186,000 in the quarter ended September 30, 1977, and a net income of $152,000. In the comparable period in 1976, revenues and net income amounted to $5,383,000 and $258,000 respectively.

For the nine-month period ended September 30, 1977, Siboney reported revenues of $12,591,000 and a net loss of $57,000. These figures reflect non-recurring charges totaling $130,000 attributable to matters in litigation. In the comparable period in 1976, the company reported revenues and net income of $11,448,000 and $118,000 respectively.

The corporation increased the dollar volume of its business by over $1 million in the first nine months of 1977 compared to its results in 1976. However, because of increased costs of doing business in 1977 and commitments to fixed prices in catalogs and in contracts previously entered into, profit margins were reduced and income from operations was below the income figure of a year ago.

Fire-alarm fire doused

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A five-alarm fire — the largest in this North Central Texas city in a decade — roared through a warehouse in an industrial area late Thursday night before firemen brought the blaze under control.

More than 100 firemen, utilizing about 25 pieces of equipment, fought 100-foot-high walls of flames in battling the fire. Fire department officials said no estimate of loss or cause of the fire were immediately known.

Many puffers' puffless plans go up in smoke

By the Associated Press
They chewed gum, nibbled popcorn and sucked on lemon drops. Anything in place of a cigarette. They had promised to give up smoking for 24 hours. Some of them made it and some of them didn't.

Thursday was the "Great American Smokeout," sponsored by the American Cancer Society which hoped to convince 10 million of the nation's 54 million smokers to give up puffing for a day.

There were no figures available on how many people tried or how many succeeded. But an Associated Press spot check showed a variety of efforts. More than 790 employees at the Mutual of Omaha office in Omaha signed "I Quit" pledges and the workers set up a "crisis center," stocked with chewing gum and lemon drops to help. What was it like? "Desperate," said Lela Hairston, one of the volunteers.

In an Atlanta employment agency, 14 people promised to give up cigarettes. By the end of the day, four were still not smoking. A big bag of popcorn helped the successful quartet.

Mayor Francis Koenig of Kingston, N.Y., switched to Lifesavers for the day, according to his secretary, June Diamond, who joined her boss in the anti-smoking effort. Other employees checked up on her progress. "The city clerk came in and the first thing he did was check my ashtray to see if I had smoked," she said.

The San Francisco Examiner published first-person accounts of people who quit smoking in the past. Among them was the story of Jack Hartman who stopped because of a football game. There were 36 seconds left in the game and Stanford trailed Berkeley by a point. Hartman made his vow: he would quit a pack-a-day habit if Stanford won. It's been three years since Hartman has smoked, thanks to a 50-yard field goal.

Carter endorses jobs measure!! Big deal!!

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — So President Carter has endorsed the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1977. Big deal.

He also endorsed the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976, and that was a lot stronger economic medicine than the version he favors now.

At this rate, with another endorsement or two from Carter, the measure might vanish altogether.

In Washington shorthand, it's called the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, after Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., who first proposed it to mandate government measures to put the unemployed back to work.

They wanted to set by law a limit on unemployment in the United States, and to reach that goal if necessary with jobs financed by the government as the employer of last resort.

What they've got now looks like a bill of last resort since, as a Carter lieutenant noted, the new draft doesn't compel anybody to do anything except set economic goals — which would themselves be subject to change.

Any new programs, and any new spending to cut unemployment, would be subject to separate action by Congress and approval by the president.

In successive versions of the bill, the target unemployment rates have become progressively less ambitious and less binding, as have the provisions for government measures to reach the goal.

The original measure, which candidate Carter opposed as inflationary, set a ceiling of 3 percent unemployment within four years of enactment.

With labor, liberals and black groups committed to the bill, and with his rivals for the nomination supporting it, Carter held out for months.

He said he was no less committed than the other Democrats to curbing unemployment, but that the bill as it stood would have meant double-digit inflation.

Carter never was very enthusiastic about the Humphrey-Hawkins formula, but the bill became a symbol and endorsement a campaign necessity. Besides, the measure had been modified so as to set an unemployment target of something over 4 percent.

So he endorsed it during the presidential primary campaign, and again in his recommendations for the Democratic platform of 1976.

According to the campaign promises catalog assembled by his staff, Carter went to the White House "believing the federal government has an obligation to provide funds for public employment of those who private business cannot and will not hire," and "supporting the Full Employment Act of 1976."

All of this raises the question of how Carter came to be in a position to negotiate a still milder version of the bill and to announce with considerable fanfare that he was endorsing his handiwork.

The answer is simple. He got himself elected president.

That put him in a pretty good negotiating position. "We attempted to negotiate sentence by sentence and paragraph by paragraph specific language the president could endorse," a Carter aide said.

What came out was a bill establishing a 1983 goal of unemployment not exceeding 4 percent with, as Carter noted, "flexibility to modify that goal if necessity requires," and without compulsory measures to attain it.

The jobs rate now is 7 percent.

The bill would establish a federal commitment to full employment — which sounds just as good as it did when Congress first made that declaration in a law passed 30 years ago.

It would at the same time commit the government to combat inflation.

It also requires that the administration and Congress set specific goals for unemployment, productivity and other economic targets each year. That's the kind of work their economic advisers are paid to do anyhow.

For all of that, the bill's sponsors and promoters said they were happy with the endorsement, apparently considering it a foot in the door they can push open later to gain some of the mandatory measures they wanted in the first place.

Given Carter's form chart on the subject, that may be wishful thinking. But then again, the Humphrey-Hawkins alliance of labor, liberal and black organizations could prove more persuasive at presidential campaign time than it is now.

At one point, an embittered Balsam suggests the police take the law into their own hands, noting that even Sinatra at one time or another has "taken out" a no-goodnik.

"Of course, I have," Frank gently replies. "So have a lot of other guys. But that's like playing God." And he nixes the idea.

The cause of such talk is the cops' losing battle.

DANA WESTBROOK

CRAIG ALEXANDER

Dana Westbrook plans for trip to Chicago

Two young people from Northwest Texas won expense-paid trips to the 56th National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 27-Dec. 1.

Dana Westbrook 19, of Big Spring, and J. Craig Alexander, 17, of Tulia, received the Congress trips as sectional winners in their 1977 4-H projects.

Selected by the Cooperative Extension Service, they joined some 30 other Texas 4-H'ers at the five-day meeting in Chicago. Awards were arranged by National 4-H Council.

Miss Westbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross W. Westbrook, was among 24 sectional winners in the 4-H home environment program. Her trip was donated by the S&H Foundation Inc., sponsor of the program.

Miss Westbrook is a freshman at Abilene Christian University and plans a career as a home economics teacher. She is an eight-year 4-H'er.

The Howard County girl said that 1977 was a perfect year for her home environment project because her family bought a ranch with a house on it that needed remodeling and repairs.

"I was given the opportunity to be involved in the planning and in the actual work," she said. She began by re-doing kitchen cabinets.

The coed repainted the kitchen and then moved on to panel some of the walls. She even pitched in on the carpentry, measuring and cutting shelves.

Alexander, son of Mrs. O. F. Alexander, was among 24 sectional winners in the veterinary science program. The Upjohn Company donated his Congress trip.

Alexander is a high school junior and plans a career in farm management. THE Swisher County youth assumed full responsibility for the operation of his family's farm after his father died in 1973. He said that his love of animals led him to enroll in the veterinary science program.

The eight-year 4-H'er assisted a local veterinarian in giving shots to all the horses in his county after an outbreak of Venezuelan equine encephalitis. "I learned a lot about vaccine supplies," the youth said. Alexander has bottle fed calves from time to time.

Menus ire cattlemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has come up with some sample menus which are bound to raise the hackles of livestock and poultry producers since they go heavy on fruit and nuts and easy on steaks and eggs.

For example, a man 20 to 54 years old might start the day with 2 cups of cereal and 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1 cup of skim milk, margarine, no butter, 3 slices of toast, one-half cup of juice and coffee or tea.

Lunch might consist of macaroni salad, vegetable, 3 slices of bread, margarine and one-half cup of milk.

At dinner he could have 5 ounces of lean meat, poultry or fish; one-half cup of potato; half a cup of vegetable or salad; 3 slices of bread; margarine; cake, and coffee or tea.

The menus are not recommendations by the department. They were, however, designed by its Agricultural Research Service as ways of eating to meet dietary goals set forth last February by the Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs headed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Livestock groups, particularly the National Cattlemen's Association, and other agriculture-related organizations have criticized the McGovern committee's contention that Americans eat too much meat, eggs, sugar and other items which it says contribute to obesity and other health problems.

The model menus were included in a report to the annual Food and Agricultural Outlook Conference, which concluded Thursday. It was presented by Betty B. Peterkin, a home economist in the agency.

Under one of the options, Mrs. Peterkin said that if people were to meet the dietary goals specified by McGovern's committee report they would have to consume:

- 25 percent less meat, poultry and fish, with none of the drippings or separable fat from meat being consumed;
- 24 percent fewer eggs;
- 59 percent "less visible" sugar, syrup, jams, jellies and candies;
- About the same amount of visible fats and oils; however, soft margarine and oil replaced butter, lard and vegetable shortening which are higher in saturated fatty acids;
- 10 percent more milk, all in the form of skim milk;
- 21 percent more dry legumes and nuts;
- 25 percent more vegetables and fruit; and
- 69 percent more grain products, on an equivalent grain basis.

Cotton team to tour Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of U.S. cotton industry representatives will begin a four-country visit to Europe later this month. The Agriculture Department said Thursday that the team will visit Spain, Italy, France and Germany Nov. 29 through Dec. 17.

The trip is being co-sponsored by the department and the Cotton Council International.

"The purpose is to review the cotton textile situation and consult with textile industry representatives about the potential for increasing U.S. cotton sales," the department said.

The seven-member team will include: L.N. Arnold Jr., El Paso, Tex., Southwestern Irrigated Cotton Growers Association; Frank Mitchener, Sumner, Miss., National Cotton Council; David Brandon, Memphis, Allenberg Cotton Co., and Calvin Brints, Lubbock, Texas, Texas Cotton Marketing Corp.

Honest, cynical cops

Old Blue Eyes is back again

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Well, Old Blue Eyes is back again. This time, Frank Sinatra, 61, is in a three-hour NBC movie, "Contract on Cherry Street," which airs this Saturday night.

It's his first TV movie. He plays a deputy police inspector in New York, where the movie was made. He runs an elite unit formed to fight organized crime and get good press for the mayor.

His crime-fighting force contains such fine actors as Martin Balsam, Harry Guardino, Henry Silva and Michael Nouri.

As "Contract" is about cops and mobsters, shots are occasionally heard. And no less than 14 hearties, mostly bad guys, are dispatched during this proceeding, written by Edward Anhalt.

True, 14 KIAs may be a mite excessive. But they are so spread out over the three hours, and the gore and on-camera violence is so minimal, Dirty Harry would turn over in his shoulder holster.

When it's time for a guy to be "taken out," a euphemism for "a hit," you against stolen car parts operations involving two competing mobs.

Sinatra's character is the kind of warm, decent, brooding police veteran who never tells his wife (Verna Bloom) what's bugging him, a theme you may have seen exercised before in "Police Story."

Frustration is what's bugging him. And he finally sanctions police lawlessness when Balsam is slain by a black baddie (Johnny Barnes) during a raid on a garage where stolen cars are stripped for parts.

Sinatra does a good job, but the plot get mighty murky. The dialogue occasionally is laughable, and this "Contract" seems padded. Its pace might have been better at two or 2½ hours.

All things considered, though, it's a passable way to kill Saturday night if you've nothing better to do, usually only see the assailant firing his artillery at the camera, or a few 45-caliber air vents put in car windshields.

(There is much ado about folks being "taken out." If you don't pay attention, you may feel you're in a short-order corpse cafe.)

The film is a morality tale about honest, cynical cops tired of seeing their efforts sabotaged by their superiors, fainthearted prosecutors and overly lenient courts.

At one point, an embittered Balsam suggests the police take the law into their own hands, noting that even Sinatra at one time or another has "taken out" a no-goodnik.

"Of course, I have," Frank gently replies. "So have a lot of other guys. But that's like playing God." And he nixes the idea.

The cause of such talk is the cops' losing battle.

They call it Punkin' Center

with Marj Carpenter

Somebody did it. They really did. They stole the Punk off the Punkin' Center sign. Underneath was a sign that earlier began with the letters "Com" and if almost looks now as though it is called Come In Center Gin. But everybody in Dawson County knows it's Punkin' Center. I have one good friend in Lamesa who recently attended a national cotton meeting. When he said that he was from Lamesa and they didn't know where it was, it made him mad. After all Lamesa is the county seat of the biggest cotton producing county in the nation.

But anyway, he said tartly, "We're close to Punkin' Center." And the other party, said, "Oh."

Well Punkin' Center was named in the first place, more or less as a joke. There were a couple of cotton gins out there in the early '20s and later they added a store and some service stations.

In those days, there was a baseball team getting ready to go play some folks down around Ackerly. They were from off farms in the Punkin' Center area. But their area or their team had no name.

On the team were some of the Addison brothers. Milton Addison said, "Let's just tell them we're from Punkin' Center." His brother, Alton, now a Dawson County commissioner, wasn't sure that would sound too high class. This is all the way Mrs. Lillard Thomas, who lived near Punkin' Center from 1924-1971, remembers it. But the team loved the name and they used it. It stuck.

Now a fellow named Armstrong over around Lubbock says that this is all a bunch of hocus—that he named the town. Well, he may have. That may be why the baseball team came up with the name. If I can find the elusive Mr. Armstrong, I'll be glad to include that part of the story.

SOMEBODY STOLE THE PUNK ...at Punkin Center gin

But in the meantime, Punkin' Center became Punkin' Center. Later, another town sprang up nearby and they called it Shack Town. It turned into Welch. But that is another story.

Mrs. Thomas recalls that a lot of people came out to Dawson County in the early '20s. "We had been farming up in Oklahoma and that land was about worn out. So we decided to come out this way. We were small grain and cotton farmers until we retired," she added. She and her husband now reside in Lamesa.

She said Ralph Myers owns the Punkin' Center gin and that a Mrs. Smith operates the store there.

"Punkin' Center's a good little community," she added, "And everybody always remembers the name. There never were any pumpkins grown there. And we didn't spell it Pumpkin anyway. It's Punkin'. And everybody from Punkin' Center is proud of it."

That's the way it is out on the highway between Lamesa and Brownfield—out where I ride fence.
