

Boston neighborhoods still off limits to blacks

BOSTON (AP) — The white people of Charlestown don't hold rallies or motorcades anymore. But within their neat, wooden tenements, grim resentment toward court-ordered busing still seethes.

No blacks live in this small, isolated neighborhood built around the Bunker Hill battleground. And they rarely venture onto Charlestown's streets.

Charlestown, like South Boston, is a center of white opposition to court-ordered integration. Four years after busing began, these neighborhoods are regarded as still off-limits to blacks.

Generally, blacks do not challenge these ground rules, because there is little to attract them to either neighborhood. Charlestown, a largely Irish-American, working-class neighborhood of about 17,000 persons, is cut off from the rest of the city by rivers, railroad yards and highways.

Last week, Boston's racial boundaries drew new attention when a group of black teenagers from Pennsylvania went to Charlestown on a school trip. They visited Bunker Hill Monument, and afterward, as they waited for a bus, five white men attacked them with golf clubs and hockey sticks. None were seriously hurt.

Both blacks and whites attributed the assault to the tensions that grew out of integration.

"It's sad, but this city just isn't going to change overnight," said Mayor Kevin H. White. "We still have a virus here, and that virus is ugly."

Ironically, the attack came just one week after three opponents of mandatory busing were defeated in citywide elections.

Louise Day Hicks, longtime busing foe, and John Kerrigan failed to win re-election to City Council. Elvira Pixie Palladino lost in a bid for a second term on the School Committee. Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Palladino lost by narrow margins in the nonpartisan elections and have asked for recounts.

"There was only one apparent motive for this assault," said police Lt. William A. MacDonald. "Race prejudice." Three white men were charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Black and white city leaders said they were shocked by the incident. "But, we weren't surprised," said Marilyn Anderson of the black-oriented Roxbury Multi-Service Center.

"It's the kind of thing that is anticipated," she said.

"We didn't have these difficulties until busing began. There are a lot of people who may have been racists all along who have used busing as an opportunity to act out their own emotions and incite other people."

She said she warns blacks who are unfamiliar with the city to be prepared for trouble if they go into Charlestown.

The National Park Service said only a handful of blacks are among the 75,000 annual visitors to the Bunker Hill Monument.

Dreary skies dull much of Texas

By the Associated Press
Dreary skies and drizzles dulled much of Texas Saturday as forecasters warned of a Pacific cold front that was expected to touch off thunderstorms across the state today.

drizzle. Only in West Texas were skies fair with little humidity. Forecasts called for the new front to zip across the state from the west today, setting off thunderstorms in its wake.

A clearing trend was expected to begin late tonight.

Hillcrest Baptist Church PROCLAMATION TO ALL YE PILGRIMS

Inasmuch as the great Father has given us this year an abundance harvest of Indian corn, wheat, peas, beans, squashes, and garden vegetables, and has made the forests to abound with game and the sea with fish and clams, and inasmuch as he has protected us from the ravages of the savages, has spared us from pestilence and disease, has granted us freedom to worship God according to the dictates of our own conscience; now I, your magistrate, do proclaim that all ye Pilgrims, with your wives and ye little ones, do gather at ye meeting house, on ye hill, between the hours of 9 and 12 in the day time, on Thursday, November ye 29th, of the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and twenty-three and the third year since ye Pilgrims landed on ye Pilgrim Rock, there to listen to ye pastor and render thanksgiving to ye Almighty God for all His blessings.

—WILLIAM BRADFORD, Ye Governor of Ye Colony

The first Thanksgiving Proclamation was made by Governor Bradford three years after the Pilgrims settled at Plymouth. His words held special meaning for the Pilgrims who had gone through indescribable hardships in settling their new homelands.

Hearts 'n flowers

 Dr. Laurens van der Post, a reputable man of letters and a conservationist, suggests that it is wrong to say that man is getting tired of civilization "because we have never had civilization."

He describes man today as a technological barbarian. "In this sordid moment of time when people are killing and bashing each other, when the world is being so hateful, this is so important," Dr. van der Post says. "It is our overwhelming mission to support conservation. People should realize that we are partners of nature, not lords over it."

The obscene phone caller has always been regarded as a sick member of society.

Would it surprise you then to know that there are some women who join obscene phone call clubs? The only requirement to affiliate oneself with such a unique club is that they leave their telephone numbers. That they willingly do.

The men who provide the service (that is, make the calls) pay $19 a year for the privilege of reaching the women by telephone.

Apparently there are enough women who want to receive such calls, and enough men who will pay to be put in touch with these women, because the business is thriving. The lines stay busy most of the time on any given day.

The obscene phone call club epitomizes something, in that it recognizes the fact that there are people, no doubt an army of them, to whom this is a way of coping with life.

The phenomenon, according to one observer, is loneliness. He says that while we have come to talk freely and openly about sex, we have not attained the point where we can act the same way about loneliness.

Loneliness frightens us. It is probably the only subject left that scares us to the marrow of our bones.

Consider the number of men's magazines, so prolific and yet so offensive that legitimate businesses will not advertise in them. Yet the publications thrive. Millions upon millions are purchased every month.

Invariably, in the back of such periodicals are small advertisements, revelations within themselves. These public notices contain the names, addresses and photographs of "beautiful women eager and willing" to start relationships.

The patron finds he can even obtain the telephone numbers of known prostitutes in his part of the country.

Invariably included in these commercial sections are ads for life-size latex dolls, which the makers claim are as realistic as the original model. These items, believe it or not, sell by the tens of thousands.

Loneliness, psychologists will tell you, is everywhere and nowhere more evident than in the "respectable" world. Escort services have proliferated in recent years. For the shy, there is the videotape operation, where one can meet a member of the opposite sex via television without having to come face-to-face with a prospective date.

Are these signs of a newly liberated society? They could be. More likely though, they are indications of a solitude that pervades us all.

Those who study human frailties are prone to look upon such demeanor as pleas for help rather than as an avenue which promises to lead to happiness.

As far as we have come technologically, we are still filled with needs for human contact that should be so simply gratified yet, for so many, cannot be gratified at all.

If you've ever visited the Notre Dame Cathedral site in Paris, France, and considered your visit to have been untimely because repairmen trestles were in evidence, think nothing of it.

There has never been a time since the AD 1163 construction of the great church that there wasn't scaffolding somewhere around it.

The wordsmith who wrote these lines should have endured into the last quarter of the Twentieth Century:

*When lovely lady stoops to folly
 And finds too late that man betrays,
 What charm can soothe her melancholy?
 What art can wash her guilt away?
 The only art her guilt to cover,
 To hide her shame to every eye,
 To give repentance to her lover
 And wring his bosom is — to die.*

I don't care what you've heard, barflies are NOT an endangered species.

It's been 20 years since the book "Why Johnny Can't Read" hit the market. Americans are still wondering why Johnny remains so ill prepared for life.

According to the November issue of Journal on Reading, one reason may be that Johnny's teacher can't read.

In tests conducted over a period of 4½ years by a research group, teachers read slower and with less understanding than the average person entering the freshman year in college.

The researchers said that while none of the teachers tested in the project could be considered "illiterate," many demonstrated a wide range of deficiencies in their reading habits.

I'm still trying to pinpoint that factory in America which specializes in making square wheels for super-market carts.

It's hard to fault communities which court motion picture companies. The TV production, Christmas Sunshine, was recently filmed in the Claude (Tex.) area. Universal films, which financed the production, had a crew in Northwest Texas about two weeks and unloaded about $150,000 on the area.

A story originating with Reuters says that two and a half years after hostilities ceased in Vietnam, dozens of people are being killed each month by weapons of war.

Despite a huge cleanup effort by Viet authorities, hundreds of thousands of unexploded bombs, mines, booby traps and grenades still lie undetected in dense jungles and paddyfields around the country.

Unwary citizens wander into the danger areas and are blasted into eternity.

Accidents have become particularly frequent in newly-established "economic zones" where authorities are setting up farming villages to absorb the millions of jobless who are prone to concentrate around cities.

Rarely a week goes by that television's Howard Cosell doesn't take slings and arrows from listeners. His supporters are legion but his critics are far more vocal.

In a street poll taken to gauge Cosell's appeal, a female type said it "looks like his lobotomy was not complete."

A bumper sticker broke out the message "Let them keep the canal if they'll take Cosell."

One acid wit who pieces words together for a living refers to Howie as "our house vulgarian...with the strident ambulance chaser's voice."

Granted that Cosell can turn your mind to oatmeal on occasions, I think he'd be missed if he were put on the shelf. No one is neutral about the guy and I think even the people who insist they hate him want him around to hate.

Pryor denies heart attack

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Richard Pryor, hospitalized last week for what news reports called a heart attack, says he feels fine now and denies he had suffered a heart attack.

"No, it wasn't that," the 36-year-old star said Friday in a phone interview from the California mountain resort of Big Bear, where he said he and his wife, Debbie, have been on vacation the last two days.

Pryor became ill last week while visiting relatives in his hometown of Peoria, Ill. He was taken to the coronary care unit of Peoria's Methodist Medical Center.

'Chappie' James hints med tests

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Gen. Daniel "Chappie" James, commander of the North American Air Defense Command, may return to Washington for more medical tests before his retirement next year.

James, a four-star general and the highest-ranking black officer in the American military, is on convalescent leave for a heart attack he suffered last year.

TAGGED EXPLOSION — A recent model auto is completely enveloped in flames, near San Pedro, Calif., in a "tagged" explosion conducted by the U.S. Department of Treasury Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. The explosive used contained "tags" that will stick to the object after the blast and aid law enforcement officers to track the explosive to a point that will assist the investigator in apprehending the criminal.

Chambliss trial 'I never in my life killed anybody'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Prosecutors who won a murder conviction against Robert Edward Chambliss in a 1963 church bombing that left four black girls dead say the case took so long to come to trial because federal and state officials were not cooperating.

Chambliss, 73, was convicted Friday of murdering 11-year-old Carol Denise McNair, one of four black girls killed in the bombing. He was led away from the courthouse in handcuffs after telling the judge: "God knows, your honor, sir, I never in my life killed anybody."

Chambliss was sentenced to life imprisonment on the recommendation of the jury, composed of nine whites and three blacks. His lawyer, Art Hanes Jr., said an appeal would be filed. Hanes complained that witnesses who could have helped Chambliss a decade ago had since died.

Asked why it took 14 years to bring the case to trial, Jefferson County District Attorney Earl Morgan, who helped prosecute Chambliss, said, "I just don't know. There must have been a lot of distrust between law enforcement agencies during the investigation." He took office in 1965.

Alabama Attorney General Bill Baxley said his office decided to reopen the case in 1971 when Chambliss began to talk about the bombing to acquaintances on the police department and to friends who had retired from the police force.

The FBI was contacted and a spirit of cooperation developed, Baxley said, adding that the FBI didn't turn any evidence over until 1975.

The Justice Department reportedly explained to Baxley that it had hesitated to turn over some information because sources had been promised anonymity and because it seemed there was no chance for a conviction in Birmingham's racial atmosphere of the 1960s.

Two FBI agents testified for the prosecution during the week-long trial.

Rosalynn views old masters

ATLANTA (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter attended an art show to benefit the Friendship Force and viewed an exhibit of old masters collected by Armand Hammer valued in excess of $30 million.

Mrs. Carter, who stopped in Atlanta on Friday en route to Houston to address the Women's International Conference, said she particularly liked the paintings of Rubens.

About 300 other persons, including former budget director Bert Lance and his wife, paid $100 a couple and joined Mrs. Carter for the premiere showing in Atlanta of the exhibit, collected by Hammer, the 79-year-old chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp.

Friendship Force is the exchange program between citizens of the United States and other countries inaugurated by President Carter last year.

Oil-industry officials frustrated

HOUSTON (AP) — The expertise, competence and sincerity of President Carter's energy advisers are being questioned by oil-industry officials frustrated at their inability to redirect the President's energy proposals.

With industry forces and administration officials trying to influence Congress in different directions on Carter's proposed National Energy Plan, oil company spokesmen appear anxious to appear conciliatory.

The official line during a two-day conference of the American Petroleum Institute (API) this past week, as put by outgoing API Chairman Maurice Granville, was "Cooperation must replace condemnation. Compromise must replace confrontation."

But the common theme of private conversations and interviews was: "Why won't they listen to reason in Washington and why won't they at least deliver what they've promised us?" And that theme occasionally leaked into public utterances as well.

Of course, the oil industry has its own view of "reason" and it sometimes conflicts with the view held by the consumer whose winter heating bill exceeds his mortgage payment.

But the industry is angry, and no one argues that if the nation's developing energy crisis is to be withstood, the cooperation of a reasonably satisfied oil industry will be necessary.

One of the things being questioned by the industry is the ability of Carter's energy aides to understand the complexities of the oil business, and even a high-ranking administration official finds merit in the argument.

"Most of them (government energy officials) are not energy experts," John E. Swearingen, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) and newly elected API chairman, said during a news conference. "They have no experience in the oil business. We have a bunch of people chosen to watch the energy business who are naive."

Granville, chairman of Texaco Inc., said the industry wants to help, but often is blocked.

"Today, many federal officials dismiss our views as being prejudiced, as being in conflict with the public interest," he said, almost plaintively. "...I feel some personal disappointment when knowledgeable men from the energy industry are not utilized today in government service or even as advisers because of an unwarranted fear of a conflict of interest."

A top administration official, one who generally strongly defends the President's energy proposals, admitted that a problem might exist.

"We have to work with strict conflict-of-interest regulations given us from Congress," he said, "so if an industry type comes in, he's got to divest himself completely (of stock in energy-related firms). Not many are willing to do that."

Offshore vets in New Orleans reminisce

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The men who drilled the first successful offshore oil rig got together Friday night to reminisce on the 30th anniversary of that daring feat.

"Ours was kind of like the step on the moon," said D.A. McGee, president of Kerr-McGee Corp., which drilled the historic well 12 miles off the Louisiana coast.

Today there are thousands of offshore oil and gas wells. Not far from where that first one was drilled, Shell Oil Co. now is putting down a rig in 1,024 feet of water.

The water under the first offshore well was only 18 feet deep. However, it was the first time a well had been drilled out of sight of land, and Eulan Rodriguez, one of the 30 men on the original rig, said it was a scary experience.

Kerr-McGee wins another court round

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A number of discovery motions filed by attorneys representing the Karen Silkwood estate were denied Friday by U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon.

A motion for an extension of the Dec. 1 deadline for completion of discovery also was denied.

Jim Ikard, attorney for the family of the late plutonium worker and union activist, told the judge that dismissal of the motions was "stripping us of the opportunity to prove our case."

The damage suit was filed by Miss Silkwood's family against the Kerr-McGee Corp., some of its officers, two FBI agents and an FBI informant. It's alleging Kerr-McGee harassed Miss Silkwood and that the FBI agents covered up the cause of her death.

Bohanon, calling the case "one of the clouds in some regards," sustained defense motions to quash subpoenas for Oklahoma City Police Lt. Billy Vetter and Thomas Bunting, an Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation agent.

Million dollar mayoral campaign

Yawns turning into name-calling

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston residents settle Tuesday a million dollar mayoral campaign that had most voters yawning before turning into a name-calling runoff.

Frank Briscoe, 51, a former district attorney, and Jim McConn, 49, a builder and former city councilman, want to succeed Mayor Fred Hofheinz, who did not seek a third two-year term.

Briscoe led McConn, 54,472 to 37,621, as the two survived a 12-person Nov. 8 general election which drew only 23.7 percent of the registered voters, including only 18.4 percent of the normally powerful black vote.

Through last Tuesday, McConn had reported $546,022 in campaign expenditures, Briscoe $533,586.

Hofheinz and two black organizations ignited the runoff fireworks last Monday with blasts at Briscoe.

Hofheinz blamed Briscoe, his runoff opponent two years ago, for planting rumors about him which led to a grand jury investigation earlier this year. The jury ended its investigation by saying no evidence could be found to support allegations a high elected official was arrested in a drug or vice raid and released after a high police official intervened. Hofheinz said he is considering filing a slander suit against Briscoe. Top officials of the two black groups, the Harris County Council of Organizations and the Black Organization for Leadership Development, accused Briscoe of being a racist. responded by calling Briscoe a "sick man."

Briscoe denied the allegations and charged that McConn had orchestrated the accusations. McConn Residents quickly lost interest in such issues as fiscal responsibility and mass transportation.

They went home together

Convicted of conspiring to kill abusive husband

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — Shirley Garcia and her husband, Leroy, went home together after an all-woman jury convicted her of conspiring to kill him.

Mrs. Garcia, 22, left the Lake County Courthouse on Friday, free on a $30,000 bond, and went home to await sentencing.

During the course of the three-day trial, Garcia testified he wasn't bothered by his wife's attempts to kill him. He also acknowledged having beaten her.

Mrs. Garcia works 70 hours a week in an all-night cigarette store near the Indiana-Illinois state line to support her husband and their three children, whose ages range from 1 to 5 years. Her husband, also in his 20s, is unemployed.

The prosecution said Mrs. Garcia persuaded a friend, Allen Young of Whiting, to find someone to kill her husband. Young told Whiting and Hammond police of the request and an undercover policeman was introduced to Mrs. Garcia as the man who would commit the crime.

With Young's help, police tape-recorded conversations between Young and Mrs. Garcia, including one Oct. 12 in which she said, "I want him dead. He beat the hell out of me and my kids and I'm tired of it."

The prosecution claimed Mrs. Garcia gave the undercover policeman $200, a picture of her husband and a memo of his daily activities. Police said when she was arrested, Mrs. Garcia said, "I'd do it again."

Neither Mrs. Garcia nor her husband, who sat in the spectators' section, showed any emotion when Judge James Letsinger read the verdict. They left the courthouse without making any statement.

She had pleaded innocent to the charge, saying she was entrapped by police. She also insisted it was not an actual conspiracy, since Young and the undercover policeman only pretended to go along with her. However, the judge ruled it is possible to have a one-person conspiracy.

A hearing has been scheduled Dec. 16 to determine her punishment. Under Indiana's new penal code, conspiracy is punishable by a maximum sentence of 30 years.

Two charged with fraud

HOUSTON (AP)—Two men have been charged with defrauding investors by selling interests in oil wells owned by another firm.

Michael Riley, president of Liberty Oil Co., and Ralph Ben Schoter, a consultant, were indicted Friday on four securities fraud counts. The charges allege two investors paid about $14,000 for interests in oil wells in Liberty County, wells actually owned by Lozano Oil Co., Houston.

Assistant District Attorney Wendell Odum said Lozano discovered the transactions and reported them to the State Securities Board.

She didn't give enough, YWCA desk clerk fired

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A desk clerk at the Kansas City branch of the YWCA, described by her supervisor as an excellent employee, was fired because she gave only $10 to the United Way charity drive.

"It's not that I didn't give to the United Way. It's that I didn't give enough," said Sharon Walter, a mother of two who has worked at the YWCA here for four years.

Her supervisor, Alice Kennedy, YWCA executive director, confirmed that Mrs. Walter was dismissed Nov. 10 because her contribution to the Heart of America United Way was too small.

Mrs. Kennedy said YWCA policy dictates that each employee give at least an hour's pay each month. Mrs. Walter earned $2.30 an hour, which would amount to a required contribution of $27.60.

Mrs. Kennedy's superiors in Kansas City and in the national YWCA headquarters in New York said national policy does not require a minimum amount even though it encourages employees to contribute.

"We would never put pressure on employees to give a certain amount," said Sarah Alice Wright, executive director of the national organization.

The YWCA is a United Way agency and last year was allocated $215,000 from the community fund program.

Mrs. Walter and her husband, Tom, a Kansas City police officer, said a $10 donation was all they wanted to give because they had decided to make an extra donation to their church's educational fund. Walter also said he gives to the United Way at work.

He said he could understand some of the pressures on employees, but added: "Holding a job over somebody's head for a certain dollar amount sort of takes the love out of charity."

Jack Y. Smith Day proclaimed Monday in Big Spring by mayor

Jack Y. Smith Day has been proclaimed Monday in Big Spring at the request of the volunteer services council at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Smith has done extensive work in the volunteer division at the hospital and currently served as their finance chairman. He was named to a state award this year as top statewide volunteer.

He has also been involved in other civic groups here for 20 years, and the proclamation was issued by Mayor Wade Choate.

Three members of Willie Nelson's entourage nabbed on cocaine raps

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three members of country music star Willie Nelson's entourage, here for a concert that drew 30,000 people Friday night, were arrested for possession of cocaine, police said.

Police said the three, including Nelson's equipment manager, were arrested Thursday at a routine roadblock set up to check drivers licenses and vehicle registrations. Officers said they confiscated 1.12 grams of unusually high-grade cocaine.

Free on bonds ranging from $3,000 to $5,000 were Kenneth G. Moore, 33; James R. Locke, 29, and Harry G. Montgomery, 27, all apparently from Austin, Texas, police said.

State does not owe free education to kids of aliens

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state does not owe a free education to children who are in the United States illegally, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled here.

The court's decision came in a case filed on behalf of 10 illegal alien children from Mexico, who were barred from entering Houston public schools unless they paid tuition.

It is directly contrary to a finding by U.S. Dist. Judge William Wayne Justice in a similar case from Tyler.

Lawyers for the Houston children claimed it was not their fault that they were in Texas illegally, and that illegal alien children would grow up to be an uneducated "slave class" if denied a free education.

But the appeals court said, "The child should have no greater rights to a free education, due to his unlawful presence than those rights he would have had if he had not come to this country."

Alien children who are in the United States legally do have a right to a free public education under Texas law.

Cotton harvesting remains active in WT

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Harvest operations are winding down over Texas, with cotton harvesting in the High and Rolling Plains still the major activity. Some peanut and soybean harvesting also continues over central, southern and eastern sections.

Harvest operations have made rapid progress this fall due to the ideal harvesting weather, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Open weather has allowed harvesting to run ahead of schedule throughout the state.

However, the dry weather still plagues stockmen concerned about lack of fall grazing and a shortage of stock water. Small grains are making little progress, with some planting still under way. Many cattle continue to move to market as stockmen are reducing their herds for the approaching winter season.

Fall vegetable crops are generally making good progress in the Rio Grande Valley and San Antonio-Winter Garden area, noted Pfannstiel. Some cabbage, kale and spinach are moving to market.

The pecan harvest continues active across the state, with good to fair yields reported.

Sugar beet harvesting continues to make good progress in the High Plains while harvesting of sugarcane is becoming active in the Rio Grande Valley. Reports from district Extension agents show the following conditions:

WEST CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting remains active, with about 80 percent of the crop in. A fair to good pecan crop is also being harvested. Recent rains have helped small grains but moisture is still short. Cattle culling and marketing continues due to poor grazing conditions. There is some supplemental feeding.

SOUTH PLAINS: Seventy to 95 percent of the cotton crop is out in southern counties and 30 to 50 percent of the harvest complete in the northern half of the area. Cotton yields and quality have been excellent. A large amount of cotton has been stored in modules.

Presley fiber strength readings remain unchanged through the season with an average 88,000 pounds per square inch.

The quality of samples classed showed little change from a week ago, with one-half called White, and one-half Light Spotted. The predominant grade was 32 with 34 per cent. Grades 31 and 41 accounted for 18 per cent each, and grade 42 was 13 per cent. Staple lengths were staple 31, 52 per cent; staple 30, 16 per cent; and staple 32, 29 per cent. Micronaire readings in the 3.5 to 4.9 range accounted for 90 per cent of the cotton tested. Four per cent of the samples were reduced in grade because of Bark or Grass.

Ginning activity continued heavy with receipts averaging around 9,000 samples per day. The Abilene Classing Office processed around 53,000 samples this week, bringing the season total to 323,000. A year ago at this time 39,000 samples has been processed. Cotton-seed brought growers $60 to $62 per ton.

Prices paid for cotton were unchanged from a week ago, according to B. B. Manly of the USDA Cotton Office in Abilene. Although prices were unchanged, less cotton appeared to be selling. On Thursday a new crop estimate raised production estimates 1/2 million bales, and most markets have been very inactive since that time. Growers sold mixed lots for 42 to 43 1/2 cents per pound in very light trading. Cotton-seed brought growers $60 to $62 per ton.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas traffic accidents have killed 3,063 persons this year, compared with 2,765 at this time a year ago, the Department of Public Safety reported Friday.

The number of fatal accidents this year is 2,690, compared with 2,386 for the same period in 1976. The death rate is up 11 percent, and the fatal accident rate is up 13 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, in one of its periodic revisions of reports, has stopped reporting on the number of sheep and lambs being fed for slaughter in Kansas and South Dakota.

Enough red meat to meet needs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can expect plentiful supplies of red meat, broilers, milk and potatoes next month, although some items will be in smaller supply than a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

In another of its "food marketing alerts" reports Friday, the department said December beef supplies available at stores will be 2 percent to 4 percent less than a year ago but above average for the month.

"Grain-fed beef production is to be above a year earlier levels but not enough to offset smaller output of grass-fed beef," the report said.

As defined, plentiful means "more than enough for requirements" while adequate means "enough to meet needs" of consumers. When supplies are light, they are said to be "less than adequate, not enough for normal needs."

Pork output next month will "continue seasonally large" but 1 percent to 3 percent below a year ago. However, December pork production is expected to be about 4 percent above the 1974-76 average for the month.

Other items on the plentiful list include: fresh apples and winter pears, fresh oranges, grapefruit, raisins, fresh onions, some processed vegetables, peanuts, almonds and walnuts, wheat and corn.

Young farmers hear Stenholm

The Four County Young Farmers met Thursday in the Sands High ag room with Stan Smith, presiding.

The program was presented by Charles Stenholm, Stamford, candidate for Congress.

After the program, the members discussed the state convention to be held in Waco. They also made plans for the Sands Stock Show and discussed their scholarship fund.

Refreshments were served by the Young Homemakers.

Enough red meat to meet needs

Products on the adequate list included turkeys, eggs, fresh cranberries and cranberry products, filberts, dried prunes, some processed vegetables, sweet potatoes, pecans, filberts, rice and dry beans.

The only item shown to be in short supply next month is dry split peas. Officials said 1977 production is down 55 percent from last year and 64 percent below the 1974-76 average harvest because of drought in the Northwest, the major production area.

'Moovin' On' is theme

By MARJ CARPENTER
The theme of the Campus Review 78 will be produced by the Big Spring High School Steer Band in January.

Dates for the event this year have been set on two separate weekends including Jan. 19, 20 and 21 and Jan. 26, 27 and 28.

The band will be presenting their Campus Review production for the 11th straight year with Bill Bradley as director.

He will be assisted by Lois Waggoner and the junior high band directors. Student assistants will be Kim Andrews and Joe Edwards.

A false rumor got started last year that because the program was reviewing ten years of Campus Review, it would be the last one. Tain't so. Come around this January and you'll hear the high school group presenting selections from "Guys and Dolls", "The West Side Story" and "Jesus Christ, Super Star."

There also will be a series of songs about rain, including "Stormy Weather," "Rainy Days," "Raindrops Are Falling on My Head" and "Singing in the Rain."

Again, the band members will spend a lot of their Christmas vacation brushing up on their dance numbers for the show with Mrs. Cherry Jones, choreographer from the Midland Community Theatre. There won't be a pit band this year, but along the trend of the big musicals, there will be a house band on stage.

For the young and young at heart, the trend this year will be away from Disneyland and over to "The Wizard of Oz."

The program is already set and the group is already learning the musical numbers. Campus Review will be back in 1978.

LoVaca bids to sell gas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission is expected to rule next week on LoVaca Gathering Co.'s request that it be allowed to sell surplus natural gas out of state without first asking the commission.

LoVaca's customers and competitors from throughout the state, including gas companies and utilities, urged Thursday that LoVaca's request be granted.

Spokesmen for Austin, San Antonio, the Lower Colorado River Authority, Lone Star Gas Co., United Texas Transmission Co., Corpus Christi and the attorney general's office said letting LoVaca sell surplus gas to interstate buyers would help hold down Texas utility bills.

The testimony was received at a hearing called by the Railroad Commission on LoVaca's application to sell surplus gas to interstate pipelines without having to get the commissions approval first.

The three-man commission is expected to rule on the request next Monday. Because of mild weather so far this year reducing gas and electricity consumption, LoVaca now has more gas than it needs for its customers. The company maintains that having to obtain prior Railroad Commission approval has prevented several potential interstate sales, resulting in it and its customers having to pay for gas they cannot use.

Two years ago the commission issued an order saying LoVaca must get prior commission approval so the commission could be sure that Texas customers would not suffer from out-of-state sales.

Man hurt in fall to recover here

Gary Pope, 26, who was injured Nov. 4, when he fell from a scaffold, will return from Houston to Big Spring today.

Pope fractured his back, pelvis, wrist and rib in the fall while working on a construction site in Houston. He has been in a Houston industrial hospital since the accident.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pope, 3602 Calvin, and will stay with his family during his recovery here.

NEW FLAG — The Howard College flag was raised for the first time Friday afternoon by Dr. P. W. Malone, shown at the right, charter member of the board of trustees. He donated the sign and flagpoles out front to the college which has just completed one phase of a $200,000 landscape program provided through donations. Mitchell Hays is shown at the left and Dr. Charles Hays, college president, at the right.

WELL-APPOINTED NEW SHOWROOM FOR MARQUEZ AND SONS Business moved recently to 1010 N. Lamesa Drive

New address for TV firm

The Thomas Marquez family has moved its radio and television business from 401 Gregg to 1010 N. Lamesa. The business, named T. Marquez and Sons, has been a Big Spring fixture since 1956, serving all residents for 21 years.

But with this move the store has added new lines of equipment and merchandise. Completely new is their line of Quasar TV's, Electrographic stereos, Cobra CB radios, and Regency scanners.

The store still provides the same quality, and will still perform extra services, such as installing CB antennas. The new location will continue to offer extended hours, open six days per week from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Their phone is 3-3033. "I've been in the business 21 years," claims Thomas

Dr. Hansen gains award

Dr. Halvard Hansen, Big Spring, recently received an award from the Foundation for Chiropractic Education and Research "for significant contribution to chiropractic education" for his continuing research on effects on the cervical spine from extension-flexion injuries, commonly called whiplash.

Dr. Hansen received recognition in 1976 by election to the Council on Chiropractic Physiotherapy of the American Chiropractic Association for use of cryotherapy which is the use of cold applications to forestall degeneration in the spine by stopping or arresting swelling in the initial stage of injury.

Marquez, and he and his sons are intending to keep that tradition going.

This current award is a continuation of his reports of prevention of eventual damage to the spine and the associated muscles and ligaments that relate to the spine.

By proper attention in the initial stage immediately after the injury the premature wearing out of sensitive and damage prone areas of the neck structures can be greatly diminished or almost eliminated.

Big Spring sets pace in sales tax rebates

Big Spring was not the only city in the area to receive hefty sales tax rebate checks recently.

In all area cities, rebates for the year to date were up over the same period for last year. Big Spring's check was for $42,420.21, as compared to $28,367.95 for the same month last year.

The city's total for the year to date is $666,024.59, as opposed to $603,534.08 for the same period in 1976.

Checks for area cities included: Coahoma, $533.83, up 155 per cent for the year; Colorado City, $6,783.20, up 16 per cent for the year; Lamesa, $23,875.75, up 24 per cent for the year; and Stanton, $2,636.55, up 20 per cent for the year.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said that Texans may be headed for their biggest Christmas holiday shopping spree ever if retail sales continue at their current brisk pace.

Bullock said that city sales tax collections — a prime indicator of the buying public's mood — are up an impressive 22 per cent to date over last year, the biggest increase in recent years.

"This increase in retail sales reflects a growing confidence in the Texas economy which we feel will carry over into the holiday shopping period," Bullock said.

"If everything continues to go as expected, Texas merchants should have one of their best holiday sales seasons yet."

Bullock said that 880 Texas cities were mailed checks totaling $19.2 million as their November share of the one per cent sales tax. This brings the total to date for the year to $307.7 million, up from $252 million for the same period last year.

The City of Houston will receive the largest of the November rebate checks — $4.3 million. That raises the city's total for the year to $82.6 million, up 19 per cent over last year.

Incompatible: So what?

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
A.C.S.W. Director, Howard
Family Service Center

One Monday afternoon as the late sun poured into the judge's chambers, Jennie and Pat ended their marriage. Judge Henrion silently reviewed the divorce petition. It was all there. Every reason for a no-fault divorce. It spelled out neatly the primary contributing factor to Jennie and Pat's conflict: incompatibility. Jennie and Pat had never agreed on the choice of schooling for their eldest child, Jane. Jennie would never agree to go along with Pat on his hunting trips. Pat objected to Jennie's rabid church activity. There it was, all so clear. There were too many differences. They could never get along.

Thelma and Tracy came into the counselor's office late in the afternoon. Thelma was so frightened that she brought her mother with her. In the reception area she cringed and cried. It looked like they might never get to tell me their problem. But with encouragement they did.

They told their story of incompatibility. Thelma needed to go to church for the comfort going gave her. She needed to have Tracy go with her. But Tracy's experience with church left him cold. His parents had forced him to go. When he got to be 18 he swore that he would never go again. And he didn't. Thelma wanted a child. Tracy didn't want one — not until they could agree on certain things. The list of differences went on almost endlessly. At the end of the interview I could have concluded: "This couple is incompatible. There is no hope." But I did not come to this conclusion. For one thing I observed that every time Thelma described a difference she sobbed. And Tracy was serious, almost moved to tears as he described their problems.

"I have a hard time understanding," I remarked. "You have so many differences. Hard differences. Why are you here?" Tracy looked up. "I think we have something worth saving". Thelma looked up and echoed. "Yes, something worth saving."

During the next six weeks I spent many difficult hours with Thelma and Tracy. What I constantly emphasized was the right of each to his or her individuality. At one point I even startled the couple with the comment, "I'm glad you're incompatible." I explained that one purpose of marriage was to help partners emerge as individuals in their own rights. Once they knew who they were as persons they could accept and tolerate each other's differences. As they accepted differences, the differences seemed less, the gap between them narrowed.

The day that I knew we had won came when Tracy said, "Today, I told a guy he needed to come to see you. I thought that was something because when I first came here I didn't want to. I really questioned that coming would do any good."

"You've stuck it out," I commented. "Why?"

"Because," said Tracy, "you acknowledged that Thelma and I were incompatible, but that didn't seem to phase you. You made me feel good when you said that a function of marriage is to help each partner emerge as a person. I know you meant a different person."

Sure enough, authorities spotted two men Wednesday night coming out of a casino with one man holding the white hen turkey under his arm.

They were booked for investigation of petty theft and possession of stolen property. Watson said the turkey would be held as evidence.

Costs outstrip income during first 10 months

Operational expenses increased at a higher rate than income for the first 10 months of the year for Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The monthly revenue statement reflects income of $6,231,662, a gain of $792,323 over the same period in 1976, or up 14.56 per cent. Operating expenses of $2,310,768,000 were up $379,600, or 19.67 per cent. The major increase was in energy costs of $1,221,085, up $236,085, or 23.97 per cent for the 10 months. General and administrative expenses amounted to $332,861, a gain of $55,800, of which $29,000 was in increased pay, insurance and benefits to employees, $17,000 for bond handling charges, and $5,000 more taxes.

Bulk of the income came from cities which paid $4,026,480 for water, an increase of $594,341. Industries and oil companies paid $2,120,779, a gain of $188,695. Recreation revenues were up by $10,000.

Water deliveries for the period amounted to 17,291,434,000 gallons, an increase of 987,687,000 gallons, or 6.05 per cent. Of this amount 73.16 per cent came from Lakes E.V. Spence and J.B. Thomas, virtually the same as for the first 10 months of 1976. There were no inflows into the lakes in October, and Lake Spence was left with a reserve of 50,000 acre feet and Lake Thomas 20,100 acre feet.

'Great Gobbler Caper' solved

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The police in Carson City say they've solved the "Great Gobbler Caper," the two culprits are in custody and the victim will be spared the ax come Thanksgiving.

Two men were arrested after they allegedly kidnaped a 20-pound gobbler from radio station KPTL, which was using the bird to publicize a Thanksgiving promotion.

Carson City Sheriff's Deputy Tim Watson said one of the men phoned disc jockey Jim Fairchild and said the turkey was being held for $100 ransom.

Watson said the next time the man called he told Fairchild he and a friend were bar-hopping and "feeding the turkey popcorn."

'Citizen Kane' second greatest film produced

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Gone With the Wind" was chosen the greatest American film ever produced, edging out "Casablanca" and "Citizen Kane."

Lillian Gish and Fay Wray were there, and so were Elizabeth Taylor Warner and Ethel Kennedy. Others included James Stewart, Henry Fonda, and Charlton Heston and Henry Kissinger.

The occasion Thursday night was the American Film Institute's 10th anniversary gala benefit at the Kennedy Center. Earlier at a White House reception President Carter paid tribute to films as "a true people's art form."

George Stevens, director of AFI, announced the selection of the best film. He said the 1939 classic about the Civil War was the greatest among many equally great films.

The AFI, which was created by the National Council of the Arts in 1967 "to preserve the heritage and develop the art" of film and television, has catalogued nearly 14,000 films in its archives, grants funds to independent film makers, distributes a film journal. It also has set up a center for film studies in Los Angeles.

At the White House reception, congressmen, cabinet officers and Amy Carter mingled with hundreds of directors, producers, film company executives and movie stars as well as other celebrities.

They included Claudette Colbert, Olivia de Havilland, Bibi Andersson, Keith Carradine, Dina Merrill, Cliff Robertson, Omar Sharif, Cicely Tyson, Eva Marie Saint, Katharine Ross, Lauren Bacall, Sidney Poitier and Rod Steiger.

Big Spring High Powder Puff Football game is canceled

By TRACIE McELYEA
The Powder Puff football game for the March of Dimes has been postponed until February or March. A number of reasons has been stated for the postponement. First, a band banquet is scheduled for the same night thus they cannot participate at the game; second the lack of practice time and third the lack of response at the practice last Wednesday especially from the underclassmen.

The OEA Club members are selling giant coloring books as another money making project. The coloring books sell for $3.15 and are 2 ft. tall and 1 1/2 ft. wide. There are various stories such as Rudolph, Twas the Night Before Christmas, Yogi Bear, Wendy's Family Fun Album, and more. They encourage everyone to buy one.

The winners of the turkeys given away by the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs were Bert Sheppard, Tommy Madigan, Mrs. Bothe, Mrs. Long, and Mrs. Wise. They would like to thank all those who supported this project. The Judicial and Legislative branches of the clubs are now in full swing preparing for the District Conference that will be held in Big Spring on December 10. The Governor nominee for Big Spring this year will be Cody Harrington.

Goliad Jr. High Choir prepares for concert

By KRISTY Mathews and DIANE JOHNSON
Miss Hull's seventh grade choir classes have been preparing for contest. Any boy or girl that takes choir is eligible to sing a solo at contest if his grades are adequate. So far, about seventy have signed up to sing a solo.

Library officers were elected this week. The title of president goes to Sharise Jackson; vice president, Renee Green; secretary, Melissa Brown; treasurer, Patricia Ezell; and assistant secretary, Pansy Loper. Mrs. Person, librarian, helped the officers and all of the students a great deal in their use of encyclopedias, dictionaries and books.

Students in Mrs. Warren's English classes have been holding spell-downs as a part of their review for the quarter tests. Winners include Reneah Rybolt, Cara Morris, Diana Lewis, Pete Florez, and Esther Strain. In the fifth period Shaune Woolldridge and Cindy Peacock tied for first place.

Forsan High Girl's basketball team defeats SA Lakeview

By STEVE COWLEY
Forsan High School seems to be coming down with a bad case of "The Shaft." First off, the football team gets the Shaft from Jayton, and now, another organization was hit by the deadly Shaft. The band is still reeling from the second division they received in UIL marching competition last Saturday. In the same manner that everyone stood in shocked silence after the Jayton game, so was everyone speechless when the rating was called out. The immediate question on everyone's mind was "Why?"

The girls' basketball teams continue to roll along in good fashion, and they took two victories from San Angelo Lakeview Tuesday night. The JV took a 51-36 win, and the varsity looked awesome as they rolled up an 82-48 score. The varsity took on the highly touted Robert Lee team Friday at Robert Lee.

Nevertheless, the band must, as the football team has done, move on to the two other competitions without bitterness or bad attitudes.

The boys' roundball squads got into action Friday night at Robert Lee also, following a scrimmage with the Big Spring JV's Wednesday. According to the schedule, the boys will be idle until Tuesday of next week, but the girls will have two games this week.

They travel to Lakeview Monday, and follow that with a trip to Stanton on Tuesday. School will dismiss Wednesday for Thanksgiving holidays.

'Jewelry should last forever'

Bulgari brings exhibition of jewels to West Texas

By DUSTY RICHARD

Looking for a little something to give to that special someone for Christmas? How about a diamond necklace composed of flawless marquise-cut stones, none under three carats, with an eight-carat, pear-shaped diamond pendant? A matching 19-stone bracelet and a flawless 23-carat diamond solitaire ring complete the set. The cost? A paltry 2.5 million dollars for the necklace, almost a million for the bracelet, and a million dollars for the ring.

A bit too rich for your taste? Well, Nicola Bulgari, who, with his two brothers, manages the House of Bulgari in Rome, New York and Geneva, brought many less expensive and just as beautiful items with him for his showing at the Midland Hilton Nov. 15-18.

Among his less-expensive items are money clips for $40, "little gold bracelets for $40-$50," and a sterling silver pen for $48.

THE HOUSE OF BULGARI was established in the 1870's by Sotirio Bulgari, grandfather to the present generation, who fled Greece for Italy to avoid a Turkish massacre. Sotirio sold his first silver pieces to other Greeks in Rome and soon his craftsmanship became respected. His two sons, Constantino and Giorgio, began working at an early age, and together with their father, redirected the firm's focus from silver to jewelry.

Giorgio developed a worldwide reputation as a master jeweler, and began the vogue in the 20's of combining gemstones such as rubies, sapphires, emeralds and diamonds and of using red, yellow and white gold in a single piece of jewelry. These innovations have remained hallmarks of the House of Bulgari.

ART-DECO — This striking brooch has a green cabochon sapphire, onyx and pavé diamonds in bold but simple geometric lines, which are hallmarks of the House of Bulgari.

The firm today is managed by Constantino's daughter, Anna, and by Giorgio's three sons, Gianni, Paolo and Nicola. Master designer Donald Claflin has recently joined Bulgari as their first American designer. Well-respected for his tailored, contemporary designs, Claflin's method of perpendicularly-set bagettes has resulted in some most beautiful and innovative pieces of jewelry.

NICOLA BULGARI, who brought the jewelry display to Midland, is an intelligent and attractive man with a sense of humor. He speaks three languages: French, Italian and English.

"When I get around people who speak seven or eight languages, it makes me uncomfortable."

He learned the business from his father as he was growing up.

"I WAS BORN into it. As soon as I finished high school, I went right into it."

The firm came to America five years ago, he said. Before World War I they had many U.S. clients, and since they have come to the United States, they have shown in all major cities of the U.S.

"We came to Midland because this was a new place. Our name was completely unknown here, I'm sure. We would like to do more shows in Texas. We've shown in Dallas and Houston, and would like to do a show in San Antonio. Texas is the most important state, you know. If I were to open another shop, it would be in Houston. Really! Before Beverly Hills even."

"Midland is very interesting. I'd like to visit the Petroleum Museum; I have heard that it is fascinating. But San Antonio and Galveston are the best and most historical places in Texas."

Bulgari said that he loves the United States. He has been to all the historically important places, and would like to visit the Northwest.

"AMERICA CONQUERED the world with language. English is the Esperanto of languages. You would not believe all the nations that speak English. Maybe not as a first language, but most people have to speak English, because they cannot get by just with Swedish or Italian for example."

Bulgari lives in Rome three or four months out of the year, and the rest of the time, he lives in New York. His three daughters go to school in New York, he said.

Bulgari thinks that jewelry should be clean and simple, and maybe dramatic.

"JEWELRY SHOULD last forever. It should be wearable 20 or 30 years after it is designed. Jewelry is for fantasy. It can make a statement. It shouldn't be fussy, but should show some lust! A piece should have a recognition of a particular period of history. We are always looking into different times of history to get ideas for designs. For example, we have drawn on the Art-Deco period of the 20's and 30's and the Greek classical period."

He said that some firms, though designing good jewelry, do not design lasting pieces. He cited Cartier's, Tiffany's and Van Cleef's.

"You can do anything with jewelry. A particular piece may not even look important, but could have an incredible intrinsic value."

ALTHOUGH BULGARI enjoys managing the firm, he likes to get with his designers and said that "an hour with a designer is my reward."

Buyers should always be careful to go to a reputable house, he said.

"Look for top workmanship in a beautiful design with good stones. A reputable dealer has a moral investment to sell only the top stones. Make sure the stones are certified by the Gemological Institute of America."

For investment purposes, only the best stones should be bought.

"You must buy the G.I.A. certificate before you buy the stone. Tell the jeweler that you want investment stones only, and make him responsible for the quality of the jewels that you buy. By finest quality, I mean of D, E, or F quality. F means flawless, and D and E are flawless, blue-white stones."

When a person is buying for looks, he said, the gems can be beautiful without being the best quality. They should still be documented by the seller.

"THE BEST DIAMONDS come from South Africa. The De Beers Syndicate controls 65 per cent of the diamond industry, and they regulate the prices. The big stones are cut in New York where the best cutters and largest international markets are. On 47th Street between 5th and 6th Avenues in Manhattan, the block contains only diamond merchants. Millions of dollars a day are traded there."

Bulgari said that Antwerp, Amsterdam and Israel no longer are the hubs of the diamond industry. They cut smaller stones, only those up to about three carats.

"Emeralds can be more expensive than diamonds, especially those of the best quality, because they are so rare. The most precious jewels are rubies, sapphires, emeralds and diamonds."

Then Bulgari got into the history of jewelry.

"YELLOW GOLD has always had a hold on people. It grabs them — it is so beautiful and warm. However, in the 17-19th centuries, silver was used for all jewelry. You know, at one time, about 200-300 years ago, silver was more expensive than gold. Anyway, that was a very dreary period. In the Victorian period, both silver and gold were used, and in the Edwardian times, at the turn of the century, platinum became popular."

Speaking of the compositions of metals, he explained that silver is very liable to oxidation (tarnishing), gold oxidizes very little, and platinum will not oxidize at all.

"You could throw a hunk of platinum into the ocean, and when you fish it out 200 years later, it won't be tarnished a bit."

Bulgari explained that gold, in its natural state, cannot be used to make jewelry because it is too malleable.

"WE HAVE SOME very old pieces made of 24-karat gold, and they are so soft . . . they dent, nick and scratch easily. We usually use 18-karat gold. To make gold into a lesser karat weight, it is mixed with copper, silver, lead or other metals depending on the color of gold desired."

He said that green, red, white, pink and yellow gold are available to be used in jewelry.

Art-Deco is a very dramatic style that Bulgari uses in his jewelry designs. It is bold and geometrical, but pure.

"THE WORD ART-DECO came from a museum or a show in Paris. I'm not sure. It was popular in the 20's and 30's, and has been revived today. It is stylish and geometrical, simple, pure and plain. There were stages in the development of Art-Deco, and it influenced virtually all aspects of life."

For example, the 1934 Pierce Arrow and the Packard are great Art-Deco objects, as is the Chrysler Building in New York. It is very neat and dramatic. A '34 Buick is great. 1932-35 was the best period of Art-Deco; you can see it in the buildings, interior decorating of that time, the clothing styles, flatware, and so on."

He said that today because of the great love for Art-Deco items, there are shops on Madison Avenue in New York dedicated solely to them. Bulgari said that he was spoiled when it came to jewelry, because he sees so much of it, and sees only the best.

"JUST THE BEST doesn't please us anymore. . . I like a fancy-colored or fancy-shaped diamond. One that's out of the rules; one that can't be judged. You know, a gift of nature that doesn't come along very often."

Diamonds can come in all colors, he said. The best is considered to be a blue-white, or what is called a "colorless" diamond. Diamonds are commonly tinged with colors such as yellow, brown, pink, or black. Very rare colors are red, blue and green. The 45.52-carat Hope Diamond is a brilliant sapphire blue.

Bulgari explained that a diamond is said to be flawless when no carbon specks, bubbles, or other flaws can be seen at a magnification of 10x.

When asked who were his usual clientele, he replied that that information is very secret.

"I will say that the finest international clientele . . . all sorts, from all social classes. We treat our clients the same whether they want to spend a hundred or a million dollars. It makes no difference to us; we respect all of them. Naturally, we have more rich clients. We like a client to be difficult — to give us a challenge."

He said that he, personally, does not wear jewelry.

"FOR MEN, jewelry is corny. We have cufflinks, money clips, blazer buttons, but only a few rings for men. I only wear my gold wedding band and my Rolex!"

$275,000 — The 20-kt. gold and platinum ring is set with an emerald-cut emerald, 50 round diamonds and four triangular-cut diamonds. Each work of Bulgari is inscribed with his name, the karat amount of gold and a special serial number so that the work can be replaced with an exact copy if it is ever lost or stolen.

ONLY A ROLEX — Nicola Bulgari, head of the House of Bulgari in New York, said that he, personally, wears only his wedding ring and a watch. Bulgari was exhibiting jewelry and silver works at the Midland Hilton Nov. 15-18.

SAPPHIRES AND DIAMONDS — The 18-kt. gold necklace, which is priced at $75,000, is set with five yellow sapphires, five black onyx, and 576 diamonds. The gold bracelet is set with five cabochon sapphires, five mother-of-pearl pieces, and 114 round diamonds. It sells for $15,000.

Double-ring ceremony unites Sexton, Womack

Sherry Sexton became the bride of Randy Womack in a double-ring ceremony at the First Christian Church of Big Spring Nov. 12. The Rev. Darrell Williams officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Laura Sexton, Austin; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Womack, Arlington. The couple knelt on a bench before an altar decorated with an arch candelabrum with long globed candles and accented with greenery and burgundy ribbons. The aisles were adorned with long candles. Betty Newman, at the piano, accompanied Melanie Churchwell, soloist. The bride chose a gown of polyester organza featuring an empire bodice trimmed with sequined Chantilly lace. The long sleeves were sheer. The chapel-length train was enhanced with a center panel of lace. A veil of bridal illusion was bordered by scalloped Chantilly lace and extended beyond the train of the gown.

MRS. RANDY WOMACK

The maid of honor was Debra Jaksik, Pleasanton, best friend of the bride. Diane Beddingfield, Houston; Linda Sexton, Austin; and Pat Sexton, Austin, were bridesmaids. They are all sisters of the bride. The bride's attendants wore polyester burgundy dresses belted at the waist and gathered at the neck and sleeves. They wore dusty rose flowers in their hair. The groom's best man was Scott McLaughlin, Big Spring. Groomsman included Richard Bullard, Houston; Tony Dean, San Antonio; and Tony Womack, Arlington, Va., the groom's brother. Ushers were David Englert, San Angelo; Ben Barton, Waco; Dave Duncan, Big Spring; and John Gary, Dallas. The bride's mother was dressed in an ice-green, sleeveless, long crepe dress. Her accessories were a jade necklace and a white shawl. The bridegroom's mother wore an aqua V-neck dress with a matching jacket. The groom's parents held a rehearsal dinner Nov. 11 at the K.C. Steak House, Big Spring. There were 35 people present. A reception was given for the couple at the church after the wedding. The bride's table was draped with a satin cloth, and decorated with a brass candelabrum holding crystal candles. The bride's bouquet centered the table, and crystal and brass appointments were used. A three-tier white cake accented with tiny pink roses adorned it. The bridegroom's table was covered with a brocade cloth of multiple colors. The flower arrangement was composed of dusty rose feathered carnations and burgundy sweetheart roses.

The table held a German chocolate cake. Coffee and punch were also served. Serving were Betty Webb, Austin; Denise Simmons, Houston; Pattie Gary, Dallas; Clare Wylie, Austin; and Kim Wooten, Big Spring. Donna Tonn attended the bride's book. Rice bags formed into burgundy roses were distributed at the table. Dale Reed and Bill Smyth coordinated the wedding. The bride attended San Antonio College and University of Texas, and is presently working at Hal Rossos Insurance. The groom attended University of Texas at Arlington, and is employed as a salesman by Saunders Company. After a wedding trip to Dallas, the couple will make their home at 706 E. 13th St.

J.O.Y Sunday school class plans social for Christmas

MEMBERS of the J.O.Y. Sunday school class of First Baptist Church met Nov. 11 in the home of Mr. W.A. Bell for a business meeting. Mrs. Altis Clemmer worded the prayer and Mrs. Finis Brown read a poem entitled "Thanksgiving Day." Deceptive pillars from 1 Peter, chapter 2, verses 1-10 was the devotional thought presented by Mrs. Charles Ranne. Officers elected for the year include Mrs. Emery Sweatt, president; Mrs. W.D. Whitesides, vice president; Mrs. Altis Clemmer, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Ranne, associate secretary. Mrs. Rex McKenney is the teacher and Mrs. Bell, associate teacher. Plans were made for a Christmas social for the class, to take place Dec. 16 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex McKenney at 6:30 p.m. A traditional turkey dinner will be served, gifts will be exchanged and a program rendered.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 Let football player hold someone else

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dear Doctor:

I am a junior in high school and I have been invited to join the best sorority in school. I like all the girls in the group and was thrilled when they asked me to be a member. Now comes the interesting part: As part of the initiation, all prospective new members are required to spend one hour at night in a van with one of the members of the football team. With the philosophy "whatever happens is up to you."

My mother wants me to join the sorority and said she knows I know how to handle myself with a boy for one hour. I would like to become a member, but I feel the initiation is stupid and is against my principles. I really don't want to go through with it. What do you think I should do?

Ellen, Lodi, Calif.

Dear Ellen:

I think it is more important to your mother that you join the sorority than it is to you. Stick to your principles. Let the football players be penalized fifteen yards for holding someone else — not you!

Dear Doctor:

I am trying desperately to keep my weight down as I have a tendency to put on pounds easily. Mother (who is overweight) insists I clean my plate, and her comment, "Don't waste any food. Just think of all those children starving in China" makes me feel like a criminal if I don't devour all of my meal. Do you feel I should clean my plate or is it alright to throw away the food I don't want to finish? Don't advise me to take smaller portions because the portions I take are already small.

Harriet, Big Spring, Tex.

Dear Harriet:

You've got me on the spot. In your case, I would say don't eat what you don't want. It is wrong to waste food — we all agree to that. But it is also wrong to stuff yourself just because the food is on your plate. Unfortunately, cleaning your plate will not help those "starving" children in China.

Dear Doctor:

I am 17 and I passed driver's training last semester in school, and I now have my driver's license. I am a good safe driver and obey all the traffic laws, but my father refuses to allow me to drive. Every time I ask him to be gets angry and yells that I am not going to drive the car. I enjoy driving and need the practice. There is no one else I can ask. Please help!

Jana, San Rafael, Calif.

Dear Jana:

I would like to help, but all I can do is offer advice and hope it is beneficial. Since father is your only hope at present, you've got to continue working on him, but change your plan of attack. The next time dad is going on a short errand in the car, go along, be extra nice and helpful and see if he will allow you to drive home. As a last resort, maybe your driver's training teacher might call your father and tell him what a wonderful, safe, and courteous driver his little Jana is. Good luck!

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fullers celebrate thirtieth wedded year

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM G. FULLER

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Fuller were honored with a reception Oct. 30 to commemorate their 30th wedding anniversary. The party was given in the Texas Electric Reddy Room, between the hours of 6 and 8 p.m., and was hosted by the couple's children.

Guests were served from a table covered with a white lace cloth on which crystal and silver appointments were used. Centered on the table was a tall cake, the tiers of which were separated with pilasters of angels. Pastel fruits and grapes, made of almond paste, adorned the layers and the cake was topped by figures of angels.

The punch bowl held an icing ring of fruits and berries, adding a festive touch to the occasion. To carry out the color scheme, a fresh flower arrangement—of pastel carnations and baby's breath was placed in an antique footed bowl in front of silver candelabrum.

On another table, a porcelain cupid candelabrum was centered and surrounded with memorabilia. Some of the items displayed were wedding pictures of the couple, wedding invitations, the bride and groom figures from their wedding cake and baby pictures of their children.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller were married at the First Presbyterian Church in Big Spring on Oct. 19, 1947 and have resided in Big Spring ever since. They are the parents of three children: Lynda of Fort Worth, Sabra of Big Spring and Bill, Jr., of the home.

Fuller is working toward his 36th year with Cosden. His years as a Naval Air Force pilot during World War II are counted in that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller share many of the same interests, including fishing, which they particularly love, as well as family outings and gatherings. Fuller is fond of hunting and all spectator sports, while Mrs. Fuller is an art enthusiast. She also enjoys looking for and collecting sea shells.

Assisting in the house party were Mrs. Genevieve Schafer, mother of Mrs. Fuller; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Banks, Mrs. and Mrs. Bill Ward and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Shirley. Mr. Shirley registered guests.

Approximately 75 people called at the Fuller home and reception to congratulate the couple. Coming the greatest distance was Father Louis

Betrothed couple honored

Miss Sue Garrett and Stan Partee were honored at a champagne brunch given by Gene E. Mikeska Saturday morning at the Brass Nail. The serving tables were centered with an arrangement of Peruvian lilies, enchantment lilies, starburst palms, roses, baby's breath, and iris accented with eucalyptus mounted on a brass pedestal. Guests were seated at tables for four. The tables were laid with ecru linen cloths and arranged with miniature centerpieces of the buffet centerpiece. Honored guests included Mrs. Dorothy Garrett, mother of the bride-elect and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Partee, parents of the prospective bridegroom. The wedding date has been set for Jan. 7 at First United Methodist Church.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Thompson, George Brewer, Miss Jan Hirt, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Matthews, all of Lubbock; and Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Cox, Sweetwater.

Beta Omicron holds ritual

Beta Omicron of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday in the home of Rose Stukel. Stephanie Roll, president, presided and one guest, Connie Kuykendall, attended.

A bazaar will be held Dec. 3 in the Highland Mall. Several handmade items will be offered for sale as well as some baked goods.

A transfer ritual was held for Linda Coskey.

Two programs were presented at the meeting. Lillie Curry presented one on careers and Jackie Taylor and Linda Coskey gave one on marriage and careers.

The next meeting will be Nov. 28, in the home of Lillie Curry, 2715 Centreal.

Training date announced

Ten members and two guests of the Airport Home Demonstration Club met in Furr's Cafeteria for a Thanksgiving luncheon before their meeting Tuesday.

The guests were Mrs. L.L. Marshall and Bea Miller. The group then met in the home of F.D. Jones, 810 Andree, for a business meeting.

The group made plans for their Christmas luncheon, which will be Dec. 8 at the Sizzler Cafe.

After the Christmas luncheon, the group will meet in the home of Mrs. F.D. Jones, 810 Andree.

It was announced that a leader's training meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 21 in the home demonstration agent's office. The subject will be violence in the home.

The senior citizens' sale and display will be Nov. 19 in the Highland Mall.

Dec. 13 is the date of the Council Christmas party. All women who are members of home demonstration clubs are invited. It will take place at Kentwood Older Adult Center.

The Airport Home Demonstration Club is in charge of refreshments, so the group is planning on what will be served, and is assigning duties to each member.

Child care decision

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' child care licensing act, which applies to both secular and religious institutions, does not violate freedom of religion, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled today.

The decision came in an appeal filed by an employe of radio evangelist Lester Roloff, who has been fighting for years to avoid state regulation of his child care centers.

Harmon Oxford, the plaintiff, operates the Roloff home for boys in Zapata County.

Oxford contended that regulations by the State Department of Human Resources impinged on his constitutional right to free exercise of religion. Regulation of child care homes was extended to religious institutions by the legislature in 1975.

The appeals court recited a series of U.S. Supreme Court opinions dating back to 1878 to show that while government cannot regulate opinion it can regulate action in the interest of protecting society.

"We hold that the act being a regulation only of conduct, the law's purpose and effect are to advance the valid secular goals of the state," the court said.

Sponsors said the 1975 act invaded the constitutional right to freedom of religion, breaching the wall between church and state.

Grandchildren host anniversary fete

Mr. and Mrs. Luis Cisneroz, Sr., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary yesterday with the gathering of friends and relatives at their home. The couple's granddaughter and grandson, Dolores and Luis Cisneroz, Jr., hosted the occasion.
 Married in St. John's Church at San Marcos, Tex., on Nov. 19, 1927, the couple resided in New Braunfels before making their home in Big Spring in September 1945.

Christmas party planned
 The Big Spring School Food Service Club planned their Christmas party at their meeting Nov. 10 in the Goliad Junior High School cafeteria.
 The party will be Dec. 3 at the Big Spring Senior High School cafeteria, and cafeteria employees and their husbands will attend.
 The meeting was called to order by president Kitty Andrews, and Ray Lawlis gave the invocation.
 Refreshments were served to 25 members and two guests.

Born on Aug. 25, 1899, Cisneroz is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mariona Cisneroz.
 Mrs. Cisneroz, born April 8, 1901, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Zacarias Garcia.
 They have one son, Lupe Cisneroz of Loveland, Col., and seven grandchildren, Janie, Lucy, Chuck, Robert and Norma Cisneroz all reside in Colorado while Luis, Jr., and Dolores live in Big Spring. Their one great-granddaughter, Cathy Cisneroz, also lives in Big Spring.

Gay Hill 4-H makes candy

The Gay Hill 4-H Club decided to make candy wreaths at their Christmas party for nursing homes at a meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. Jana Wegner presided, and Tanya Hollis led the club motto. Billy Wegner led the pledge to the flag, and Kevin Hamblin led the club prayer.
 Each member is to bring two pounds of wrapped hard candy for the wreaths.
 Wendi Lane was elected to serve as council delegate.
 Sandy Stretcher, assistant home demonstration agent, was a guest at the meeting. She passed out lists of all projects in which 4-H members may participate, as a group or individually. Each member filled out a form checking the projects in which he or she might be interested.
 Joyce Hamlin presented a program on dough art. All members enjoyed making Christmas and fun items out of dough.
 Brent Rhoton served refreshments.
 The next meeting will be a Christmas party at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 12.

Masons invest

Coahoma man
 David E. Grant of Coahoma was invested with the Knight Commander of the Court of Honour of the 32nd degree of Scottish Rite Masons, in Lubbock, Saturday. Mrs. Grant attended the banquet at Lubbock Civic center given in honor of the seventeen members of the Lubbock Consistory who received this investiture of rank.
 David is a member of Coahoma Lodge No. 992 where he is a past master and now serving as secretary, a past master of Garden City Lodge, a member of Big Spring Scottish Rite, a member of Lubbock Scottish Rite Association where he serves as an officer, and member of the 14th degree team. He is also a member of the Suez Shrine.

Faulkenberry initiated

The Annual Thanksgiving Dinner was held by the Social Order of the Beauceants and Sir Knights Monday night at the Masonic Lodge.
 Talks were given by Mrs. Wayne Parish, worthy president of the Beauceants, and Tony Parsons, Right Eminent Commander of Big Spring Commandry No. 31.
 Mrs. W.C. Fryar gave a talk on the meaning of Thanksgiving and spoke on lessons of the scriptures.
 At the regular meeting of the assembly, the initiation ceremony was held for Mrs. David Faulkenberry.
 Reports of clothing given to various organizations were made.
 Plans were made to help with the Christmas party at the Big Spring State Hospital Dec. 13.
 All annual reports will be given at the next meeting, Nov. 28.

Delta Delta plans party

The Texas Delta Delta Chapter of Phi Sigma Alpha met Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Jean Cantrell, hostess for the meeting.
 Plans were made for the chapter's Christmas party and program which will be held the evening of Dec. 13 at the Brass Nail. There will be a gift exchange and cards signed for members unable to attend.
 The program, "Expression of the Good Life", was presented by Mrs. Callie Jo Mason. The program was concluded with a question and answer period with all members participating.

MR. AND MRS. MARVIN MILLER

Reception to honor Miller's Golden

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Miller will be honored with a reception for their golden wedding anniversary from 2-5 p.m. at the Texas Electric Reddy Room Nov. 27.

Hosts and hostesses will be the couple's seven children, Jack Miller, Hayward, Calif.; June Emerson, Randolph; Mayzelle Waite, Odessa; and Fern Hart, Jonetta Yarbar, Royce Miller, and Joyce Daylong, all of Big Spring.

The couple also have 18 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The golden theme of the reception will be carried out in the refreshments of cake and punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were married Nov. 26, 1927 in Marlow, Okla., and resided there until they moved to Big Spring June 25, 1952.

Miller retired from the concrete refinishing business in 1962.

The couple live at 506 E. 18th Street.

The reception will be an open house for all friends and family wishing to pay tribute to the couple.

Reddy Room is site of Murphy reception

The son and other relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Murphy will host a reception honoring the couple on their golden wedding anniversary from 2-5 p.m. today at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy were married in Lubbock Nov. 18, 1927. They are both native Texans, having lived in Knox County until Jan. 1936, at which time they moved to Dawson County, where they farmed until 1942.

Murphy enlisted and served three years in the Air Force, after which the couple moved to the Center Point Community in Howard County, where Murphy farmed until his retirement in 1971.

Murphy had an interest in stock farming, and was a business partner in the Moline Tractor Co. for several years.

The Murphys moved to their present home on North Birdwell Lane in December of 1966, and are active members of the Howard County Sheriff's Posse. Murphy is also a member of the Masonic Lodge, and is a Shriner.

They are members of the 14th and Main Church of Christ, and have one son, Pat Murphy, of Lamesa. He and his wife, Terri, have three children, Laura, Shane and Misti.

Stop ERA declares ratification illegal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment to the federal constitution said they will seek a court order declaring Texas' ratification of the change in 1972 as illegal.

Mary Ann Holman, a leader in the local Stop ERA organization, said the legal move would be undertaken shortly because Texas legislators acted and have continued to act "without consideration of their constituency."

Texas was one of the first states to ratify the proposed U.S. Constitution amendment after it was approved by Congress. However, the amendment has not become effective because supporters are still three states short of the 38 needed for ratification. The deadline for ratification is 1979.

Mrs. Holman told a news conference that their suit, to be filed in a state district court, would allege Texas' 1972 ratification was illegal because it was done while the Texas Legislature was in special session and the federal equal rights amendment was not the assigned business of that session.

"Gov. Preston Smith did not designate this subject matter in his proclamation calling the special session or in any subsequent messages while the special session was in progress," she said.

Files in the legislative library show Smith's original call for the second special session of 1972 was for the session to consider Texas' part of the federal highway beautification act and to consider party primary election financing.

Mrs. Holman said that in the past two regular sessions of the Legislature (1975 and 1977) she and others have pushed petitions to rescind or recall Texas ratification of the ERA.

"The committees hearing these petitions have succeeded in keeping them from reaching the floor of both houses for a vote where it is probable they would have passed," she said.

In addition to approving the federal ERA in 1972, the legislature approved a similar equal rights amendment to the state constitution in 1971 and the state change was approved by Texas voters in 1972.

Engagements

DECEMBER VOWS — Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Davidson, III, Box 448, Ozona, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Christy to Steve Fryar, son of Neil Fryar, Garden City Rd., and Betty Fryar, 408 Edwards. The couple will be married Dec. 30 at Ozona United Methodist Church with the Rev. Larry Bailey officiating.

ENGAGEMENT REVEALED — Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Lipscombe, 2404 Allendale, announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Marianne, to Steven Dean Marshall, son of Dr. and Mrs. Carlton D. Marshall, Swanton, Vermont. The wedding will take place Dec. 10 at All Saints Episcopal Church, Austin, with the Rev. Harland Birdwell, Big Spring, officiating.

Women's conference sparks law suit

HOUSTON (AP) — An Idaho homemaker and Republican activist has filed a libel suit to try to stop what she calls malicious lies uttered against the National Women's Conference by conservative opponents.

The suit was filed in Boise on Wednesday by Hope Kading, who is a delegate at the National Women's Conference.

Mrs. Kading asks for $275,000 in damages from Susan Hill, the leader of two Phyllis Schlafly groups in Idaho — Stop ERA and Eagle Forum.

Mrs. Kading, who convened the Idaho state women's conference last June, said that since the state meeting Mrs. Hill and others have claimed that Mrs. Kading had misspent federal funds allotted for the Idaho meeting.

In an interview here Thursday, Mrs. Kading said the conservatives' allegations escalated as the Houston conference approached.

"Last week they said that the women's conference was a front for radicals and lesbians, both of which are lies," she said. "It is the repetition of falsehoods that consists of malicious intent."

She said Mrs. Hill was vulnerable to libel charges because she was issuing press releases containing what Mrs. Kading contends are lies.

Followers of Mrs. Schlafly, an outspoken anti-feminist, have filed suit against the National Commission on Observance of International Women's Year several times, aiming to abolish the commission and try to stop the 56 state meetings and the national conference organized by the commission.

Mrs. Kading has been active in the Republican Party for the last 17 years. She said she is a full-time homemaker and reared three children now ranging in age from 11 to 22.

JANUARY WEDDING — Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hatchett, 411 Terrace Circle, Lamesa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alison, to Montie Layne Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie F. Foster, Rt. 1, Ackerly. Miss Hatchett is a 1977 graduate of Lamesa High School and is employed at Baldwin's Department Store, Lamesa. Her fiancé is a 1976 graduate of Klondike High School and farms in the Ackerly community. The two will be married Jan. 7 at First Baptist Church, Lamesa, with Brother Bill Harbage officiating.

Ratification of ERA is primary goal of National Women's Conference

HOUSTON (AP) — With the Equal Rights Amendment as a rallying point, delegates to the National Women's Conference were to begin debating a blueprint aimed at assuring equality of the sexes.

But thousands of opponents who claim most of the delegates to the conference do not represent the views of the average American woman were to meet across town today at what sponsors call a "pro-family rally."

The conference, attended by 2,000 delegates selected at state and territorial meetings, is costing the federal government $5 million. It is to make recommendations to Congress and President Carter on the subject of equality between men and women.

Hundreds of delegates stayed up late Friday night to plan strategy to expedite debate and votes on their proposed plan of action. Conference leaders say they expect attempts to block the plan by about 20 percent of the delegates.

First lady Rosalynn Carter and Betty Ford, the wife of the former president, were among the speakers at an ERA rally Friday night. It was the first time the two women — both staunch supporters of the ERA — made joint appearances for the proposed amendment.

"The ERA means — and this is what our message should be — that women can live and work and learn as they choose," said Mrs. Carter. She said she was "proud to be a woman" and proud to be the wife of "a very special person who shares my desire for the ratification of the ERA."

and Lady Bird Johnson were to speak briefly during the conference today.

The ERA was expected to be a focal point of the conference and also one of the more controversial issues before the women.

Organizers of Friday night's rally have said that 80 percent of the delegates consider the amendment's ratification their primary goal.

At the Friday night rally, Betty Friedan, founder of the woman's movement, said the ERA would not give women equality in itself but would be "an underpinning of our rights."

John Ryor, president of the National Education Association, said some people fear the ERA "because they fear competition from women." But he said the nation's full strength can never be realized unless women are given equal rights to participate.

Carol Bellamy, a New York state senator and recently elected New York City Council president, said delegates in favor of the conference plan of action are trying to "make certain that the will of the majority is not circumvented by a vocal minority which does not support the plan."

A strategist for opponents to the plan, Joan Gubbins, a state senator in Indiana, conceded her forces are "way outnumbered" but she said they plan no walkouts or delaying tactics though they will push for substitute amendments on the conference floor.

Opponents of the plan, as well as some of the conference critics who are not delegates, have charged that

Panel advises smoking, birth control pills don't mix

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal advisory panel says the government should tell women who use birth control pills to stop smoking because the two together markedly increase the risk of heart and circulatory disease.

Dr. Edwin M. Ortiz, director of the Food and Drug Administration's division responsible for overseeing oral contraceptives, said Friday the FDA may soon issue new warnings about the effect of using the pill and smoking.

This week the Advisory Committee on Obstetrics and Gynecology reviewed a number of scientific studies on the issue of oral contraception and smoking, and then recommended to the FDA that it require a warning of possible dangers.

Each package of birth control pills, the panel said, should include warnings proclaiming: "Women who smoke and who wish to use oral contraceptives should be advised to stop smoking."

The warning also should point out that combining use of the pill with smoking results in risks of serious cardiovascular side effects "especially in women older than 35," the panel said.

There are an estimated seven million to 10 million women in the United States who use the pill.

"The added risk (as a result of taking the pill and smoking) is definitely there and it doesn't just add one (risk) on top of the other, but the risk can be more than double," said Ortiz.

He said studies have focused on the 35-and-older group because that's where more heart attacks and cardiovascular problems occur, but that researchers have not ruled out the possibility that younger women may suffer the same risk.

Among the scientific studies reviewed by the advisory panel was one made public last month in Britain. The study by the Royal College of General Practitioners said that the death rate from circulatory diseases was almost three times as high for smokers who use the pill as non-smokers who use it.

Dr. Valerie Beral said in a report on the English study that the death rate from circulatory diseases per 100,000 nonsmoking women on the pill was 13.8, while the death rate per 100,000 smoking women using oral contraceptives was 39.5. The death rates in both cases were between four and five times that of women not taking oral contraceptives.

Based on a British study in 1975 linking the use of oral contraceptives and heart attacks, two Americans also have developed information showing that the risk of such attacks is especially high in women who smoke, the panel said.

Baby bust over, birth rate up

NEW YORK (AP) — Some products of the post World War II baby boom may be contributing to a baby boomette.

They are women in their early 30s who are deciding to start families. Their child-bearing years are dwindling, their professions are secure, their marriages seem stable and their financial future appears adequate if not rosy.

Postponement helped to contribute to the so-called baby bust — the dramatic drop in the U.S. birth rate in recent years. But there are statistical signs that the birth rate may be on a slight increase.

Early this year, the birth rate was up six per cent over the same period last year. And the National Center for Health Statistics has reported that the rate of first births to women 30-34 was up to 8.1 per thousand in 1975, from 7.3 per thousand in 1970.

The subject is explored in a new book, "You're Not Too Old to Have a Baby," by Jane Price, a research associate in the East Asian Institute at Columbia University who waited until she was nearly 32 to have her first child. Much of the book is devoted to medical aspects of late pregnancy.

"Medically, the risks of waiting to have children past the biological prime have been exaggerated," she writes. "With recent advances in genetics and obstetrics, most mothers over 30, 35, and 40 have an excellent chance of bearing a healthy child."

It is still true that older parents have a statistically greater chance of having a child with birth defects, especially a child with mongolism, known medically as Down's syndrome.

Lamesa clubs host caucus

Several from Big Spring and surrounding communities attended the Nov. 10 Southern Zone Meeting of the District One Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. The convention, held at the Dawson County Community Building in Lamesa, was hosted by the Dawson County Garden Club and Lamesa Dirt Dobber Garden Club.

Attending from Big Spring were Mrs. D.S. Riley, district honor roll yearbook chairman and delegate; Mrs. L.B. Edwards, How to Grow yearbook district and state chairman and delegate; Mrs. Odell Womack, district and state pollution and litter control chairman and delegate; Mrs. J.I. Balch, president and delegate from Big Spring Garden Club; Mrs. Cass Hill, district Green Foliage Plant chairman and president of Planters Garden Club and delegate; Mrs. Tommy Hubbard, president of the Rosebud How To Grow Garden Club and delegate.

Serving on committees were Mrs. Thomas Brown, Amarillo, district director; Mrs. Carroll Anderson, Lubbock, first vice director; Mrs. J.D. Banta, Lamesa, second vice director; Mrs. J.W. McCart, Midland, recording secretary; Mrs. John Brewer, Amarillo, corresponding secretary; Mrs. L.B. Bailey, Borger, treasurer; and Mrs. C.A. Hollingworth, Lamesa, zone chairman.

Presiding at the General Assembly was Mrs. Roy Bearden, general chairman. Invocation was given by W.L. Armstrong and the group was welcomed by Mayor Lloyd Cline. Greetings were presented by Mrs. J.D. Jenkins, response was given by Mrs. D.S. Riley, and Mrs. Thomas Brown, District One director, was in charge of presenting. Mrs. C.A. Hollingworth presented the director's report, district business, and zone business.

The program, "A More Beautiful Table," was presented by Mrs. Charlene Williams, Master Judge. Resolutions were presented by Mrs. A.P. Shirey, Mrs. O.R. Littell and Mrs. John Knox.

Mrs. Womack, Mrs. Edwards, and Mrs. Guilford Jones recently returned from the State Meeting of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., which was held in Corpus Christi at the Holiday Inn's Emerald Beach. Mrs. Jay Huckabee, Snyder, is the state president of Texas Garden Clubs of District One.

Colonization explored

The Anglo-American colonization of Texas from 1820 to 1835 was the subject of the program presented by Mrs. Kelly Lawrence to members of the 1948 Hyperion Club Thursday at the Big Country Club.

This colonization progressed from fidelity to Mexico to resistance. The great differences between the Anglo-American and Spanish-Mexican peoples and cultures eventually could not become reconciled.

In the 1819 treaty, the United States renounced all rights to Texas in order to get recognition of our rights in Florida, leaving Texas completely under the control of Mexico. The colonies were established by empresarios, or land agents, empowered by the Mexican government, which had recently achieved independence from Spain. The first such agent was Moses Austin, the father of Stephen F. Austin.

Mexico united Texas with Coahuila and endeavored to get Mexican Catholics to colonize. The Anglo-Americans were willing to conform to laws they understood but simply could not understand the Mexican form of government. The Texas Revolution was the inevitable result.

The Texas Revolution and the American Revolution bore resemblances. Both Texas and the colonies were remote from central authority; during their early years both were ignored by a government concerned with other matters; both were allowed to exercise local self-government; both had to defend themselves and build their own social institutions; and in both cases custom duties or taxes were resented. The revolutions differed in that the Anglo-Americans who came to Texas arrived with certain constitutional principles already formed and were more psychologically "primed" for revolt.

Mrs. Lloyd Wasson and Mrs. W.E. Archer were hostesses for the meeting. Mrs. Jerry Dudley presided over a brief business session, and Mrs. Dwayne Fraser was a guest.

Mrs. Ray Don Williams and Mrs. Jerry Dudley will be hostesses for the next meeting Dec. 15.

Club tours museum

Following a morning tour of the Heritage Museum, members of the Elbow Home Demonstration Club enjoyed a Thanksgiving luncheon at Furr's Cafeteria recently.

Devotional was given by Mrs. H.O. Faiver, acting hostess.

Visitors were Larri Bristow, Stella Holguin and Ruben Holguin. The door prize was won by Mrs. Lester Duffer.

On tables decorated with the Thanksgiving theme, mints, made by Mrs. L.Z. Rhodes, were placed at each place setting.

Club members brought gifts to be given to the State Hospital to be sold. Proceeds will go towards funding of a therapeutic swimming pool for patients.

The council report was given by Mrs. R.P. Morton.

The next meeting will be Dec. 1 at the home of Mrs. Ross Hill.

Thanksgiving plans made

Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the I.O.O.F. Hall at 9th and San Antonio. Margi Norwood presided at the meeting which 32 members attended.

Final plans were made for a Thanksgiving dinner to be held at the Lodge at 7 p.m. on Saturday for members and prospective members.

Members voted to send $500 to the I.O.O.F. Children's Home at Corsicana and to the Home for the Aged at Ennis. The purpose of the donation is to help buy supplies such as sheets, pillow cases, towels, etc.

A collection was taken from members for a money tree to be presented to the Lodge's oldest member, Nanny Adkins, who will be celebrating her 93rd birthday on Nov. 25.

Test given Credit Women

Big Spring Credit Women Int. met at the home of Ruth Apple for their first meeting in November. After a short business meeting, a spaghetti dinner was served buffet style.

The club voted to send $25 to help with the restoration of the Polton House.

Marguerite Wooten presided during the business meeting and was also in charge of giving an exam to members over the club's study manual "Luck is What You Make It." Results of the tests will be sent to the International Office of Credit Women in order to get credit for those participating in the test.

The new study manual "Strength Through Education" will be studied for the new year beginning with the Nov. 17 meeting, to be held at 12 noon at the Settles Hotel.

President protests tax

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees (NARVRE) met at the Kentwood Older Adult Center, at 7 p.m. Thursday. J.T. Gilmore, president, presided.

A memorial for Cleo Richardson was held. The National Association advised that necklaces and tie clasps with the Association's emblem are now available. These are to be ordered through the local secretary.

Earnest B. Burns, National President, advised that he has protested a proposed tax on Amtrak passes to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the assistant to the president the U.S., the secretary of the treasury and the director of Management and Budget.

New members welcomed were Mr. and Mrs. Hubert A. Ross, Mrs. N.R. Smith and Mrs. C.D. Coats.

Officers elected for the next two years were J.C. Pierce, president; R.W. Cagle, first vice president; J.H. Eastham, second vice president; G.C. Ragsdale, chaplain; Margaret Barnett, secretary and treasurer; and George Hill, O.O. Brown, and J.W. Weidel, trustees.

A Thanksgiving dinner preceded the meeting. Tables were decorated in the Thanksgiving theme. Turkey, and ham, with all the trimmings, were served.

Hostesses were Mrs. J.T. Culpepper, Mrs. J.W. Weidel, Mrs. J.H. Eastham, Mrs. Berdie Westbrook, Mrs. Thelma Kesterson, Mrs. W.C. Bell, Mrs. W.E. Wozencraft, Mrs. J.T. Anderson, Mrs. J.H. Parks, Mrs. R.A. Pachall, Mrs. Russell Stringfellow and Mrs. D. Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cagle of Abilene, and Mrs. Nan Howard were visitors.

The next meeting will be Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. at the KOAC. A Christmas party will be included.

Club plans festivities

Plans for the holidays were made at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Alpha Beta Omicron.

The group met in the home of Betty Kelley at 7 p.m.

A Thanksgiving basket will be given to the welfare office for a needy family.

A Thanksgiving party will be held for residents of the Mountain View Nursing Home.

The Chapter Christmas party was planned. It will be formal.

A potluck supper was served. The next meeting will be Dec. 6.

Kids make spiced apples

The Oasis Garden Club conducted their garden therapy project of making spiced apples for the Thanksgiving season at Moss Elementary School Wednesday.

Children who participated in the project inserted whole cloves into apples, and tied them with nylon net. Each child was pleased to carry his apple home with him.

Pictures were taken of the group at work. Fifteen children attended and showed interest in the project.

Conducting the therapy were Bea Bonner, Sybil Horne and Mary Newell. They were assisted by the classroom teachers.

A Christmas party will be given for the children in December.

Altrusa urged to get it done

"Let's Get It Done" was the message of Fayrene Biro of Odessa, governor of District Nine (Texas) of Altrusa International, when she was the guest speaker of the Big Spring Altrusa Club at a dinner meeting at Coker's Thursday night.

She began her program by saying that the service club movement has achieved both strength and greatness through the imagination and achievements of people who have dedicated themselves to its calling to shaping a better life for others. Since the early 1900's, millions of men and women have brought hope and restricted dignity into the lives of their fellow men.

Altrusa was organized in 1917 by a small group of professional women who dreamed of a better world and realized that through their combined efforts, they could be of greater service than they would be as individuals. Within a year, the club had expanded to four states and has continued to grow until it is now represented in 13 countries besides the United States.

The first accomplishment of Altrusa was the awakening of business women to a sense of their responsibility as citizens and their willingness to accept their share of community work and the solving of civic problems. The sole purpose of Altrusa's existence is to give to other communities the gospel of service and friendship.

"It matters not how small or grand the act of voluntarism," Ms. Biro said. "Whether it benefits one lone child or the community at large, volunteering is that continual outpouring of caring in all directions which gives a woman the freedom to be as she is meant to be."

In a letter written just a few months before her death, Mamie L. Bass said, "What we have already achieved is magnificent. But Altrusa is not static; it is dynamic. New fields shall open unto us, and we will achieve new goals of helpfulness. In the past, the present, and in the future, the strength of Altrusa is in the individual member, her vision, her character, her kindness and her desire for service."

Ms. Biro concluded with a message that members should re-dedicate themselves to the dreams and hopes of their founders. "Let's be the women of intelligence, courage and vision we're supposed to be — women who, by knowing and understanding our past, can be wise enough to build our future with such strength and integrity that everyone everywhere will know Altrusa and be inspired by it."

"We have never-ending, ever-increasing work to do. Let's get it done?"

There were 14 present at the meeting, including two guests: Evelyn Delatour and Vera Grass.

An informal question and answer period was held after Ms. Biro's talk.

Importance of wills stressed

The 1905 Hyperion Club met Nov. 17 at the Big Spring Country Club, with Mrs. Coy Nalley and Mrs. Ted Hatfield hosting.

Clyde Angel was the guest speaker, his subject being wills. He read a copy of the first will on record, dated 1799 BC, composed by Lord Wah of the Egyptian Empire.

Every adult, whether married or unmarried, should have a will, according to Angel. The first step in drawing one up is to list all of your assets, then go to a legal advisor to have it written properly and an administrator named. This is particularly important if there are minor children and if there is much property to be divided.

Club president Mrs. Clement Jones presided for a short business session. The next meeting will be Dec. 15 in the parlor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Silent film in quiet basement

UT student finds first Alamo film

AUSTIN — When Tony Rimmer crawled into the basement of the big house on East 32nd earlier this year, he was apprehensive about what he would find.

He was looking for five reels of a 62-year-old movie stored in film cans since the 1930's.

"When I crawled in and saw those cans sitting there, it was as if there was a halo over them," says the University of Texas doctoral student. "I felt like Howard Carter must have felt when he discovered King Tutankhamen's tomb."

His discovery had somewhat less global significance, but in personal terms, the two finds were comparable.

"I opened the can immediately, expecting to find a little pile of dust," Mr. Rimmer recalls.

But the five 1,000-foot reels of 35-millimeter film were in relatively good condition. The movie was "Martyrs of the Alamo," a movie sequel to "Birth of a Nation," shot in 1915 and supervised by D. W. Griffith.

"Martyrs" is the earliest motion picture version of the Battle of the Alamo in existence, notes Mr. Rimmer, who is a student in journalism and radio-television-film. The significance of the copy found by him lies not in outstanding technical work or acting, but in its age, its relevance to Texas history and the fact that it is one of only two known copies. The other is the property of the American Film Institute in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Rimmer's path to that basement in a neighborhood near UT was directed by a man named Elmo Hegman, and old-time theater manager in Austin who had "roadshowed" the film around Texas during the 1920's and '30's. Roadshowmen traveled around the state with copies of movies to show in towns they visited.

After Mr. Rimmer had interviewed him in regard to some graduate research, Mr. Hegman recalled placing the reels of a movie in 1948 in the basement of a house owned by his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Craddock. Earlier, the film had been stored in an old theater owned by Mr. Hegman and his father.

Mr. Rimmer believes he found the movie in the nick of time. The film is a highly flammable nitrate stock used in the early 20th Century, and some deterioration was anticipated. However, only slight moisture damage had marred small areas of the film.

Working with Dr. George Wead, assistant professor of radio-television-film, Mr. Rimmer sent the copy of "Martyrs of the Alamo" to the AFI which found the newly discovered copy to be in better condition than its own. The two are being combined by the AFI to produce a good copy on new 16-millimeter film stock.

Mr. Rimmer has not yet viewed "Martyrs" because of logistical problems in projecting the 35-millimeter film and concern about how modern projection equipment might damage it.

Going through old trade publications, however, Mr. Rimmer has unearthed a number of reviews of the movie when it was released late in 1915 and some history of its production.

"When 'Birth of a Nation' was a success (early in 1915), some people got together a production company with a group of actors and three big producers — D.W. Griffith, Thomas Ince and Mack Sennett," Mr. Rimmer explains. "They would put out three feature films a week and several shorter ones. Griffith would make the big prestige ones, the $2-a-seat films. 'Martyrs of the Alamo' was one of the first prestige films done before the group fell apart."

Library expands audio-visuals

By ANNESMART
Children's Librarian

The West Texas Library System (one of our sources for 16 mm films) is expanding its audiovisual program. Currently it has approximately 360 16 mm films which circulate to the 25 member libraries. In addition, it recently added 240 sound filmstrips suitable for adults and children.

A filmstrip consists of a series of illustrations or photographs on 35 mm film in sequence, prepared for projection. In several ways filmstrips are preferable to 16 mm films. Filmstrips and filmstrip projectors and cassette tape recorders are less expensive and easier to operate than 16 mm filmstrips and projectors. They can also be shown to individuals or groups.

The Howard County Library recently received its first packet. There are ten filmstrips per packet. This first packet will be at the library until January 3, 1978. The packets will be changed every other month.

The sound filmstrips are suitable for all ages. Several, including "A Cricket in Times Square" and "Why Mosquitoes Buzz in People's Ears" are taken from popular children's books. Others will have great appeal to middle and high school students such as "Motorcycle Safety," "Agriculture: Agricultural Sciences" and "An Audiovisual History of American Folk Music." Parents, counselors, and those working in the health care profession will especially benefit from seeing "Children in Crisis: Illness." It discusses the physical and emotional problems of hospitalized children.

There is a copy of the catalog at our circulation desk. The West Texas Library System hopes to finish an annotated catalog similar to its 16 mm film catalog by January, 1978.

The Howard County Library has one filmstrip projector and one cassette tape recorder which may be loaned to teachers if they do not have such equipment at their school. However, this equipment is frequently in use so please call in advance to see if the equipment is free. We also have a Singer Insta-Load sound filmstrip projector for individual viewing in the library. This machine consists of a filmstrip projector, a cassette tape recorder and small screen combined in one portable unit.

We here at the Howard County Library, as well as all of the other members of the West Texas Library System, hope that you will support the new filmstrip program as much as you currently support the 16 mm film program.

The further you go, the more you'll like it Runner finds exercise 'high'

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time, far back in American history, people ran for buses, away from mean dogs and after their hats on gusty days. Otherwise, they walked.

Now an estimated 20-million Americans run to lose weight, quit smoking, love longer, enhance their sexual performance, lower their cholesterol level, think clearer, slow their heart rate, breathe deeper, win marathons and help overcome alcoholism.

Some just run for the pure joy of running, experiencing a "runner's high."

James F. Fixx, a marathoner and free-lance writer, has come out with a 125,000-word literary marathon, "The Complete Book of Running," that deals with everything from what kind of shoes you should wear to the psychological benefits of running.

Fixx started running 10 years ago when he was 35, suffering from a tennis injury and smoking two packs of cigarettes a day. He weighed 220 pounds then. Today, he weighs 159. He looks far younger than 45, and doctors say that medically he is Why would one write such a lengthy book — complete with appendices and bibliography — about running?

"Two years ago, I realized I had a lot of information about running, things you don't find out until you've been running a long time. For instance, in a heavy wind, if you tuck in behind somebody and run in the slipstream you'll save about six per cent of your energy," says Fixx. "You don't realize that until you've been running a long time."

running in the best way it could be done. Not just the how to, but the ambience of running."

Fixx runs 10 miles a day, usually near his home in Riverside, Conn. He also runs in the annual Boston and New York marathons.

"I'm not a writer who also runs. I'm a writer who also runs." But he's good enough to finish in the middle of the pack in the Boston race, where you have to qualify to get in.

To that he adds: "I just wanted to tell people about

Holiday specials will give a boost

Television programming recommended for children gets a boost around the holidays with more classics again being brought to life. This Thanksgiving is no exception, with works by Chekhov, the Brothers Grimm, and Jules Verne scheduled. The programs recommended by the Teachers Guide to Television are: "All I Could See From Where I Stood," Sunday, PBS, a drama of a teenage girl who plans to marry as an escape from her alcoholic mother. "How the Beatles Changed the World," Tuesday, NBC, a special tracing the Beatles as a reflection of the upheavals of the 60s and early 70s.

Calypto's Search for the Britannic (Cousteau's Adventures in the Sea of Time), Tuesday, PBS, a blend of myth and reality attempting to probe visually the age-old questions that have perplexed mankind highlighted with undersea search for a lost civilization. "The Seagull," Wednesday, PBS, a dramatic must for all ages by Anton Chekhov. "Once Upon a Brothers Grimm," Wednesday, CBS, a musical presentation of our of the famous fairy tales. "Five Weeks in a Balloon," Thursday, CBS, animation of the Jules Verne classic.

Barber-surgeon poles

with Marj Carpenter

Back in the 1500s, barbers were officially called barber-chirurgieon, which meant barber-surgeon. Barbers at that time were the only persons who practiced surgery. They were made into two separate corporations in France in the time of Louis XIV and in England in 1745. King Louie didn't want his barber to also be in charge of blood-letting.

The barber pole was the sign of the barber-surgeon and included the striped pole with a symbol of a basin beneath. The white stripe symbolized the bandage twisted round the arm previous to blood-letting and the basin symbolized the receiving of blood.

The original barber shops in the 700s were also the community place for gathering news. They still fare pretty well in this division.

This old barber pole is in front of a shop in Colorado City in which Matt Graham, 73, is the barber.

Matt purchased the pole from Floyd Sheppard when he retired from barbering. Sheppard's shop and the pole were at a location where the Civic Center now stands. Graham said that Sheppard originally purchased the pole from some of the older barbers like Leon Jenkins.

Matt Graham is a barber strictly by choice. He learned his trade on the shine stand in Eastland County when a youth. He worked there as a part-time barber until he finished high school and he attended the University of Texas where he got both a master's and bachelor's degree in history and government.

He began teaching and worked in Haskell County several years. He became superintendent of schools at Avoca. Later he was principal at Rochester High School and became Haskell County superintendent in 1935, serving eight years.

Then he was office manager at the State Board of Education in Austin for four years until 1947. "By then, I had just really gotten worn out on education and decided to do something else. I came back to Stamford and sold insurance and then was purchasing agent for Lubbock Machine Co.," Graham related.

Mary and I had married in Stamford in 1933. Eventually, we decided to move to Colorado City and I decided to go back to my original job of being a barber. She's a dental assistant.

"It's relaxing to me to be a barber. I'm my own boss. I can work as long as I want to. I don't have to worry about the lack of discipline in kids nowadays," Graham said.

He and his wife raised three children. Mrs. Don Cox, a Lamesa housewife, is married to an implement dealer. She finished at Howard College and is now attending Texas Tech. The other daughter, Mrs. Suzanne Scott has a degree from Tech, worked many years for General Dynamics and returned to TCU to get a master's degree.

Their son, Matt Patrick (Pat) Graham, has two degrees from ACU and is working on his doctor's degree at Emory University in Atlanta. He teaches Greek and Old Testament and is an assistant minister at Druitt Hill Church of Christ.

Incidentally, Graham at 73 does not hold the distinction of being the town's oldest barber. Adolf Woods, an old friend, is a couple of years older.

But it's rare to have a barber with two degrees that has worked for the State Department of Education with a son teaching Greek in Atlanta.

But that's the way it is at Matt Graham's barber shop — in Colorado City — out where I ride fence.

Democrats treating big business as evil force?

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally today accused the Democrats of "trying to destroy the strengths of America" by treating big business as an evil force.

The Carter administration wants to talk only about the safe subject of consumerism, Connally told about 700 people at a 13-state Southern Republican Conference.

"We ought to talk about producers and those who create and those who build,"

Connally said as he contended that Democrats were ignoring the factors which originally made this country strong.

"Democrats think we've done it all, that there are no new worlds to conquer ... Congress has a policy of resignation and retrenchment," Connally said.

The average American, he said, understands that big business is not the evil it's made out to be and that "unless he has economic freedom, he has no personal freedom." Connally told the Republicans they have to appeal to the people in the coming years to return to a position of political, military and economic strength that the country held shortly after World War II because right now "this nation is in mortal danger."

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan also attacked the Carter Administration during a news conference at the opening of the conference.

Hospital protesting

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) — Some 800 residents of this Northeast Texas town have agreed to launch a letter-writing campaign protesting Department of Health, Education and Welfare guidelines that would do away with obstetrics programs in small hospitals.

The proposed regulations, aimed at reducing medical costs, would eliminate obstetrics in rural hospitals that do not deliver 500 babies a year and metropolitan hospitals that do not deliver 2,000 infants a year.
