Eilenburger Wildcat Is Staked In Borden

Three and three-quarters miles northwest of the Canning-Wolfcamp field and in Central-East Borden County, Hunt Oil Company will drill its No. 1 R. L. Oray and others as a 9,000-foot Eilenburger wildcat.

The drills will be 330 feet from south and east lines of section 234, block 97, H&TC survey.

That puts it 11 1/2 miles east and slightly south of the town of Gall. Work is to start as soon as location is cleared and rig is erected.

Dawson Explorer Finds Oil On DST

James H. Snowden No. 1-30 Dean, wildcat in Northeast-Central Dawson County, is shut in for repairs after a drillstem test of the Spraberry developed 5,750 feet of fluid.

The testing tool was open for 10 hours and 45 minutes. After the tester was closed, the drillpipe started unloading oil intermittently. It was calculated that 3,750 feet of fluid was in the pipe.

The oil caught fire when 27 stands of pipe had been pulled. The tester is still in the hole.

Location of the prospector is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 30, block 1, J. Poltevar survey.

Gauge Reported On Midland Prospector

Operator reported an estimated five to six barrels of oil per hour recovered on the swab from the Wolfcamp at Ralph Lowe No. 1 Hill, indicated Dean sand and Wolfcamp discovery in Northwest - Central Midland County.

The prospector, which is located five miles southwest of the City of Midland, is at plugged back total depth of 9,850 feet in the Wolfcamp swabbing open hole to test.

The section being swabbed has not been treated with acid.

Operator cemented seven and five-eighths-inch casing at 9,440 feet, which is the top of the Wolfcamp pay.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,800 feet from east lines of section 30, block 32, T-2-S, T&P survey.

Oil, Salt Water Found In Dawson

Standard Oil Company of Texas No. 1 Glen F. Pool, et al, Northwest Dawson County wildcat, 15 miles northwest of Lamesa found a little show of oil and some salt water in the section at 8,240-84 feet.

That zone was drillstem tested for two hours. Recovery was 90 feet of 42-gravity oil, 885 feet of oil and gas cut mud and 225 feet of salt water.

It is now making hole below 8,482 feet in lime. It is projected to 10,500 feet to explore through the Pennsylvanian lime.

The section which was covered by the drillstem test at 8,240-84 feet has not been officially identified. Some observers think it may be in the top of the Pennsylvanian reef.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 123, block M, EL&RR survey. It is a short distance southeast of the Cedar Lake field in Northeast Gaines County which produces from the San Andres lime of the Permian above 5,000 feet.

E-C Upton Project Coring Spraberry

Sohio Petroleum Company No. 1 A. P. Hill, 12,500-foot Eilenburger wildcat in East-Central Upton County, is coring below 7,255 feet in sand and shale of the middle Spraberry.

Top of the Spraberry is at approximately 7,065 feet.

The prospector indicated possible production on a 30-minute drillstem test over the section at 7,067-7,100 feet in the Spraberry.

Recovery was 180 feet of oil and gas-cut drilling mud. There was no formation water.

The exploration is being drilled 390 feet from north and west lines of section 2, block K, D&SE survey.

SW Reagan Test Calls Strawn Top

Union Oil Company No. 1-76 University, Eilenburger wildcat in Southwest Reagan County three miles west of the town of Big Lake, is taking a drillstem test in the Strawn lime.

That formation was topped at 9,097, elevation 2,857 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 10, block 11, University survey.

That makes it two and one-quarter miles northwest of Atlantic, Oil & Refining Company and The Sulphur.

Avalanches In Alps Kill 170; Many Missing

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND—(AP)—The death toll stood at 170 Monday with many still missing as rescue workers in three Alpine countries continued to dig through snow and debris left by disastrous weekend avalanches.

Austria had at least 95 dead, Switzerland 60 and Italy 15 as a result of great slides crashing down Alpine slopes for the last three days. Whole villages were buried, houses broken like kindling wood and families entombed.

Kidnap Trio Charged By Midlander

Three Latin American men were being returned here Monday to answer charges they had kidnaped a Midland oil field worker and driven him in his own car to Del Rio, on the Mexican border.

The charges were filed Sunday after R. D. Sammons, 31, 1310 North A Street, gave a formal report of the incident to Sheriff Ed Darnell.

The three Latin Americans, identified as Frank Olgin, Juan G. Ramirez and Juan Alvarez, are being returned from Del Rio by Deputy Sheriff Ed Edwards.

Sammons, an oil field driller, told the sheriff he had picked the men up shortly after 9 p.m. Friday when he had gone into the Latin American section of Midland for supper. "I had never seen the men before," said Sammons, "but they asked me if I would take them to Odessa."

"I said I would give them a ride," Sammons said.

"When we reached the outskirts of Midland one of the men reached over and cut off the ignition and took out the key."

"He ordered me to move over," Sammons said he obeyed, the recent rampage of Badman Bill Cook still fresh on his mind.

"They said they didn't want to murder me," he related, "but they said they would if I didn't do what they said."

The men turned around and headed toward Big Spring and then south.

"At first they talked like they were going to San Antonio," said Sammons.

"Then they decided to head for the border at Del Rio."

"I was pretty sleepy and went to sleep."

He said they arrived in Del Rio Saturday morning.

"Two of the men got out of the car," he continued, "about 200 yards further down the road, the car ran."

Two-Year-Old Boy Found Unhurt After All-Night Search

BUCKHOLTS, TEXAS—(AP)—Shivering from the cold but apparently unhurt, two-year-old Robert Lehmann was found Monday in tall grass in a creek bottom.

The sturdy youngster had been missing since 3 p.m. Sunday. His collie dog apparently stayed by the boy during the long cold night. A rescue party of almost 200 men found the tall grass matted down where the two had huddled together.

The shivering boy had wandered a mile and a half north of his home, through rough, weedy country. It appeared he had followed the wandering course of a ravine.

"He's not hurt at all," said Sheriff Carl C. Black, one of the searchers. "Not even scratched. Guess that dog was protecting him. But the boy sure was cold."

New Bills Flood Legislative Hopper Ahead Of Schedule

AUSTIN—(AP)—A new small loan control bill was introduced in the House Monday.

The 52nd Legislature sped into its third week, far ahead of schedule. The House got up to business quickly by hearing a long list of bills on first reading.

The loan bill by Rep. T. M. Collins of Eastland provides strict regulation and licensing of small loan operators.

Other important measures read in the House included those to place a 10-cents-per-1,000 cubic feet minimum price on natural gas; to hold Democratic primaries the first Saturdays in April and May; to prohibit the sale of beer on Sundays and before 7 a.m. on weekdays.

A bill to require automobile drivers to carry public liability insurance was among 14 heard in the Senate on first reading. A similar measure caused heated controversy during the last session.

Senator John Bell of Cuero also offered the Senate a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the state to issue bonds of water conservation projects.

The Senate then adjourned until Tuesday.

The House also quit for the day after introducing 114 bills.

Fast work in opening public hearings prompted House Speaker Reuben Senterfitt to predict an earlier end to the session than had been expected. He wouldn't say just how much earlier, but he was optimistic because the lawmakers have gotten down to business with the session just two weeks old.

Tickets Still Available For C. Of C. Banquet Tuesday

More than 100 reservations to the annual banquet and membership meeting of the Midland Chamber of Commerce remained unclaimed Monday, as officials called upon Midlanders to obtain tickets by Tuesday noon if possible.

The banquet is scheduled at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Crystal Ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer. It will be informal and open to both men and women.

Manager Delbert Downing said Monday tickets sales dropped off noticeably the last several days after getting off to a fast start early last week. He expressed concern at the failure of C. of C. members to make reservations for their "big annual event."

Dallas Man To Speak

Principal speaker at the banquet will be Eugene McElvaney, senior vice president and a member of the executive board of the First National Bank in Dallas. He has headed the bank's oil loan department since 1930 and is said to be one of the Southwest's best-informed men on the oil industry.

McElvaney also is a prominent Dallas civic worker and is a trustee and chairman of the executive committee of Southern Methodist University.

Bill Smith of Pampa, one of the top entertainers in West Texas, will present a musical novelty act as a feature of the entertainment program. Dinner music will be furnished by Johnny Bizzell of Midland.

Officers and directors for 1951 will be introduced and special membership awards will be made.

Representatives from chambers of commerce in various other Permian Basin Empire cities have accepted invitations to attend the banquet-meeting here.

Mobilizers Map Control Plan Policy

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Eric Johnston, Michael V. DiSalle and Cyrus S. Ching, the government's new first-string lineup for stabilizing the economy, looked to the White House Monday for an order spelling out their assignments.

President Truman was due to act shortly—maybe Monday or Tuesday—to set up Johnston as a general umpire and policy supervisor of the stabilization program, including prices, wages, rents, and credit controls.

Last week the President appointed Johnston as administrator of the Economic Stabilization Agency (ESA) to replace Alan Valentine.

New Steel Ruling

In the field of actual controls, the National Production Authority Monday tightened up its steel regulations and ordered tungsten, an important ingredient of high-temperature steel for such things as jet engines, under allocations March 1. NPA regulations provide that no steel company is required to accept defense priority orders for shipment in any one month in excess of certain percentages of its average monthly shipments during the first part of last year. Varying by items, the amount set aside for the military had ranged from five to 25 per cent.

Monday's order raised the top set-aside figure to 35 per cent for slabs and blooms, hot-rolled bars and mechanical tubing.

Price, Wage Panels

Truman, in the executive order spelling out the duties of the stabilization officials, also was expected to split the 500 employees of the ESA sharply into two separate operating agencies:

1. The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS), under DiSalle, the 42-year-old former mayor of Toledo, Ohio, who formerly eventually may reach the peak OPA strength of 60,000, though he says he hopes not.
2. The Wage Stabilization Board (WSB), of which the chairman is Cyrus S. Ching, the former vice president of the U. S. Rubber Company.

DiSalle's OPS is preparing a nationwide freeze and rollback of prices, hoping to issue it before the end of this week.

23 Known Dead, 34 Missing After Volcanic Eruption

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA—(AP)—At least 23 persons are dead and 34 missing in the four-day volcanic eruption of Mount Lamington in New Guinea, a government spokesman in Port Moresby announced Monday.

Airline pilots reported a 100-mile diameter volcanic cloud 40,000 feet high spewing from Lamington, which exploded last Thursday for the first time on record. Because of its four peaks, Lamington is known locally as "The Marx Brothers."

A one-inch carpet of sulphuric ash, turned into mud Monday by a tropical deluge, covered Port Moresby, 100 miles from the volcano.

Meeting Of City Council Postponed

The regular meeting of the City Council, scheduled for Tuesday night, has been postponed until 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

City Manager W. H. Oswald said the meeting was postponed so it will not conflict with the annual banquet Tuesday of the Chamber of Commerce.

Merchants Propose Car-Parking Areas On Courthouse Lawn

A proposal to convert a major part of the Midland County Courthouse lawn into a parking area was laid before Commissioners' Court Monday.

The plan, which would provide 130 parking spaces in a traffic circle around the courthouse, was proposed by a group of Midland merchants as the commissioners meet for their regular monthly business meeting.

"Such a plan," said Spokesman John B. Mills, "would help us as retailers and we think the citizenry would appreciate it."

In suggesting the parking area, the merchants presented a detailed plan which they said was prepared at their request by the city engineer's office.

"You would keep 16 of the trees on the lawn," said Mills, "and lose only 14 of them. Very little of the shrubbery would be disturbed."

Two-Year Study

The proposal to the county group marked another step in the effort toward solving Midland's growing traffic problem in the business district.

"We've been studying this thing two years," Mills told the commissioners. "Something has to be done."

Mills said the 130 spaces in the proposal represent a total of 520 additional parking spaces available during a day's time.

He explained there would be two turnovers in the morning and at least two in the afternoon.

Under the plan, the parking circle, with metered spaces on each side, would be located inside the sidewalks now bordering the courthouse. There would be an entrance and exit on two sides—on North Colorado and on North Fortne Streets.

The commissioners took no action on the proposal but agreed to take it under consideration.

Others in the merchants group included Glen Mereshon, Barney Greenhouse, Lester Short, R. H. Wilson and All J. Oleson.

Situation On Central Front Said 'Perfect'

TOKYO—(AP)—Four powerful Allied columns, looking for a fight, thrust deep into Communist territory Monday but Reds on the Western Korean front didn't answer the challenge.

The motorized columns were bolstered with tanks and mobile artillery. They returned to the main Allied lines late Monday afternoon after blasting several Red patrols in minor skirmishes.

The columns ranged across a 50-mile span of the western front and pushed within less than 25 miles of Red-held Seoul. Terms officially a "reconnaissance in considerable force," the scouting patrols were charged with taking Red prisoners and obtaining information on Communist troop buildups.

"I guess they saw us coming and ran to the north to hide," an Allied intelligence officer said.

"They seem to be willing to stay and fight when we send out small patrols. But when we beat one up and hunt them out with it they run away."

Ridgway Files In

"Then we pull out and they filter back into their former positions."

On the central front, Allied forces retook Wonju airstrip and nearby Hill 233 Monday after a three-hour fight. A Communist regiment had held the commanding hill for two days.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway landed at the strip a few hours after the fight. The Eighth Army chief said the central front situation "is perfect and getting better all the time."

Wonju is the road and rail gate to the heart of South Korea. Allied forces withdrew last Tuesday after a fighting stand there of almost three weeks but some patrols remained last Friday. They have fought in and around the city for the last four days, usually within a short distance to the southeast each night.

Ridgway praised the Second Division for its dogged Wonju stand and lauded French troops fighting with it.

He cited specially a "magnificent bayonet attack" by the French battalion earlier this month and said he would be happy when other Eighth Army troops used the cold steel with such deadly results.

An Eighth Army communique Monday night said the Second's (Continued On Page 10)

18-Year-Old Draft Gets Bradley Nod

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley told Congress Monday the military forces the United States is planning "are sufficient in my opinion to avert disaster for our country."

Testifying before the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff said bombing of American cities might be possible but "There is little real danger now of the continental United States being invaded and overrun so far as we can see."

Bradley said U. S. air defenses, "combined with the efforts of the Canadians," could avert "complete disaster" but "if a determined enemy is willing to expend the effort, some bombers will get through."

Bradley was before the committee to endorse the Defense Department's proposals for drafting of 18-year-olds and extending the period of draft service from 21 to 27 months.

He gave the committee in addition a briefing on how the services plan to meet any attack.

"The initial retaliation against an enemy by strategic bombing will be provided if the air power and the necessary Army and Navy support to seize and hold the bases from which to operate are in our hands the moment an emergency arises," he said.

"The closer the bases are to the enemy the easier it will be, and the less costly it will be, to provide a sustained retaliation air attack."

"Our strategy does not include a retraction of all of our military power to the continental limits of the North American continent when we are attacked."

Some senators are questioning the proposal to draft 18-year-olds.

Senator Hunt (D-Wyo) said he felt Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's views of the need for this step should be secured before Congress votes on the issue.

"I know the public has great confidence in his judgment and I believe the Congress should know his views," Hunt told a reporter.

Hunt says he is convinced 18-year-olds must be drafted—and for 27 months' service instead of the present 21.

Q—Why are so many religious candles made of beeswax? this Texas "Veteran" has GROWN He served Uncle Sam during World War II. He served him well. Then, after V-J Day, he returned full-time to his regular job of furnishing telephone service to the people of Texas. Much work, delayed by the war, had to be undertaken. The progress he's made in five years has been remarkable. That growth of telephone service is all-important. Telephone service today is more valuable and a better bargain than ever before. . . . more valuable because we've been able to add 720,000 telephones in Texas—you can call more people, more people can call you. . . . a better bargain because the price of telephone service has lagged behind the rising cost of living. A dollar today buys considerably less of almost everything . . . but a dollar today buys considerably more telephone service. The nation's defenses are bound together by its telephone wires. Again, this Texas "Veteran" has an essential role to fill in these critical times. Texas' telephones are already at work. Over them, inquiries are being made . . . contracts are being negotiated . . . orders are being placed . . . men and women are being summoned to their posts of duty. And as production for defense rolls off assembly lines, the telephone helps speed materials to their appointed places. WHAT'S AHEAD IN 1951? We can't be sure—nobody can—exactly what the events of coming months will demand of telephone service. We do know that Texas' telephone system is stronger and better equipped to handle its share of national defense than it would have been without the growth of the last five years. Yes, it's a good thing this Texas "Veteran" has grown. SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

Well Worth Fighting For

By BOYD LEWIS

A father's letter to his draft-age son:
The other day I heard a man say he hated to look into the eyes of 18-year-olds because they seemed to accuse him: "What a mess your generation made of this world."

No doubt some of the guys do feel genuinely resentful of their elders because of the state of the world. However, there must be a lot more who realize that the state of the world is a sort of serious accident or grave natural disaster, not a dirty trick we dads pulled on them.

It seems to me the fellows who are putting on uniforms might very well say: "This is a helluva note and we wish we didn't have to fight, but anyway, folks, thanks for giving us the kind of life which is worth defending."

Maybe the minority of resentful guys are resentful only because they aren't conscious of the issues.

If your generation were under a Communist state, you'd have been taken over by the government when you were in grammar school and brought up as a little puppet, with a stock answer to everything. As soon as you were able to tote a rifle you'd have been doing military drill. Most of you would be put in factories, where wages and hours were established by the state and not at all like any American plant.

Mom and Pop may have been a bit strict now and then, but our discipline was based on love and your best interest. We worked pretty hard to clothe and school you but we loved every minute of it. That was part of our compensation under our kind of life.

I can't feel any personal responsibility for Joe Stalin and the rise of communism, but I sure take pride in the kind of life our kind of people have tried to set up here in the U. S. A.

As much as I hate to see you and other guys your age having to interrupt their educations and put on uniforms, I'd feel infinitely worse if you didn't. The worst tragedy of all would be to feel that our kind of world isn't worth fighting for.

When you stand off and take a broad view, our kind of people haven't done so badly. They opened up this continent and set up the fairest government ever created. Even folk whose parents and grandparents came here from other countries, like ours, can claim this as their heritage.

When the forests were cleared and a country grew up, everyone, by and large, got a pretty fair share. Sure, there were injustices, but we've gone a long way toward evening them out and we will go a long way more if we can just set our minds to it without the interruption of war.

Take kids. Under our system most kids get an excellent education and good medical care. They can go just about as far as their brains and willingness to work will take them. A lot of people worry to make sure they get the right amount of milk and vitamins and their teeth are looked after. Sure, we can do a lot more, but we're on our way and that's something worth defending.

The way I see it, communism is a damned dirty disease, disguised in the trappings of a religion, and we've got to fight it the way we would bugnic plague. We've got to do that so we can get back to the job of progressing like decent folk always have been doing, slowly and sometimes blunderingly, perhaps, but always with good ideals in sight, bringing up our own kids as responsible citizens, doing our part to make the system work.

That ends my speech, Son. What do you think? Dad.

Strange Campmates

On the theory that every strong adversary of Stalin is useful to the free world, we in America have approved sending $38,000,000 in drought relief funds to Tito's Yugoslavia.

In doing this, we do not delude ourselves that Tito is a democrat. We know he is a totalitarian. But so long as he commands 35 divisions of soldiers who can fight against the Russians, we are willing to consider him our man.

There's nothing very idealistic in this approach. Winston Churchill summed it up when, in reaching an accord with Communist Russia in World War II, he declared: "I'd pact with the devil to save England."

The only question raised: If totalitarian Tito is our friend in this crisis, by what logic do we exclude arrangements with Franco and Chiang, who also have divisions and are opposed to communism?

Stalin's 'Good Copy'

A Yugoslav newspaper counted 91 mentions of Stalin on the front page of Pravda, the leading Moscow propaganda organ, in just one issue. Naturally, none was complimentary, and many fairly reeked with reverence.

You need only recall President Truman's music critic letter and the critical storm it generated to realize how different things are here. If we followed the Stalin model, it would take a mass grave to hold all the editors who spoke out against Truman on that occasion.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Drew Pearson says: American people should know what transpired at Wake Island; stenographic notes reveal complete confidence in military victory; MacArthur advised against occupying Korea.

WASHINGTON — A lot of books have been written about the historic World War II decisions made at Tehran and Yalta, but nothing either official or semi-official has come out about the Wake Island conference last Fall which preceded one of our most disastrous defeats in history.

Because that defeat has cost many American lives and the worst proportionate casualties of any recent war, and because it has given an equally serious setback to the United Nations' goal to prevent aggression, it is only proper that the public know something of what transpired at Wake Island.

The President of the United States flew halfway round the world to confer with General MacArthur, yet aside from a few conversational pleasantries reported by accompanying newsmen, nothing has been published regarding what happened on this mid-Pacific island.

The direct talks between MacArthur and President Truman took place with no one else present, no stenographic notes taken. It is next to impossible, therefore, to report accurately what happened. Furthermore, the stenographic notes made of the more extended conversations between Truman, MacArthur, General Bradley and the other military men still are so secret that each copy is numbered.

However, I believe it is more important that the American people know what took place at Wake Island; so herewith I shall report some of the conversations recorded in these notes.

Only one clue was given in the more extended conversation as to what Truman and MacArthur talked about in their private meeting. This was when someone asked the President about Formosa, and he cut further discussion short with the curt reply:

"General MacArthur and I have discussed Formosa already and we are in complete agreement on the subject."

This appears to confirm reports that one of the chief reasons for the President's long trip was to put the question to MacArthur's unauthorized conversations with Chiang Kai-Shek and certain other more trips to Formosa to converse with the generalissimo and Madame Chiang. These had stirred political dissension at home.

The trend of discussion in the rest of the conference was that a military victory already was in the bag. Almost more time was given to a discussion of Korean rehabilitation, therefore, than to military strategy.

At one point Gen. Omar Bradley asked whether MacArthur could make any troops available for Europe in the next few months. MacArthur replied: "Yes. I think a division can be made available early in 1951."

Bradley also remarked that he hoped MacArthur wouldn't have the same trouble he had with American pilots in Europe shooting up railroad bridges that were needed later for rehabilitation.

"I have had the same trouble," MacArthur replied. The stenographic notes show laughter at this point.

Only other laughter came when John Muccio, U. S. ambassador to Korea, proposed using sound trucks for propaganda purposes to sell democracy to the Koreans' people. This prompted the President to observe:

"I believe in sound trucks. I won two elections with them."
Highlight of the Wake Island meeting was the brilliant exposition of one man, MacArthur completely dominated the conversation, and virtually no effort was made to challenge his opinions or to warn him that the Chinese might very well intervene.

Perhaps also this was the most tragic part of the conference. Another phone strike Labor unrest in the telephone industry is so serious that another strike may shut down the nation's telephones at any time. This is the warning of a Senate Labor subcommittee which has spent the last six months investigating telephone labor conditions.

In a blistering report, not yet made public, the subcommittee charges that "bad labor-management relations exist in the Bell Telephone system. These relations appear to be getting worse. Strikes and threats of strikes are becoming more frequent."

"The Bell System," says the Senate Labor subcommittee, "is an integrated, national network of communications vital to the health, wealth and security of this nation. It is the obligation and responsibility of both management and labor to recognize under law one another's legitimate rights. . . . And above all, to recognize that neither party has any right to engage in acts or practices which jeopardize the public health, wealth, safety or interest."

The report wants both management and labor to "use the utmost restraint. . . . in the exercise of their respective economic powers."

Of management, the report declares: "The Bell System, the wealthiest and largest employer in this nation, must recognize that it has an obligation under the law to allow its employees to select labor organizations of their own choosing. . . . It is not important that the unions grow to become the kind of labor organizations that Bell System management would like them to be. It is important that those unions are independent of the system and its influence."

Of labor, the report adds: "The unions must realize the tremendous power they can wield for good or evil. As they grow in strength and power, they must assume correspondingly greater responsibilities to the employees they represent, and to the nation they serve."

A freshman congressman from Mississippi has a plan that may save two major areas from falling to the Communists. He is Frank Smith, a young editor with an inquiring mind, who proposes creating a "rice bank" for use in Asia.

Smith dug up the plan while studying ways to improve the livelihood of Mississippi delta farmers. Many of the delta farmers favored growing rice, but, as Smith discovered, after poking through the long halls in the Department of Agriculture, there is a limit on rice production and the department does not want to lift that limit.

However, realizing that rice is the staple food of the Far East, the congressman contacted the State Department and ECA. Of them he asked the question: "Wouldn't it be of strategic value to have an international pool of rice for use in Asiatic areas we are trying to save from communism?"

It happens that Japan and India depend on Indo-China and Burma for rice, and without their aid famine would sweep both the first-named countries. However, Indo-China and Burma appear next on the Chinese Communist invasion list; so the State Department was delighted with Congressman Smith's proposal that Mississippi and Louisiana grow more rice.

He paused at 9th Street, panting, perspiring, dragged down by a sudden overpowering weariness. Paul's legs stopped, his mind started functioning on sner, sner planes. He could conceive of no reason why May had failed to keep their rendezvous other than arrest. There was a newsstand at the opposite corner.

He went to it and scanned the headlines without buying a paper. He knew that if what he dreaded were true, the front pages would be shouting the news.

Nothing, then he wondered if it had been too recent to have made the final edition. He forgot his weariness and hurried over to Amsterdam Avenue.

He knew from many previous stays in New York that there he would find an endless succession of bar-and-g-rill establishments. Many of them kept a radio going all the time.

DAUL went from one to another, just opening the door and thrusting his head in until he found one with a radio. He went in this one and slumped down at the first table. The place was crowded and busy.

No one paid any attention to him. He saw an empty spot at the bar so he pulled himself up and shouldered his way into the vacant place. The bartender poured the straight whisky he called for. The hot glow of the liquor in his empty stomach revived him, steadied his jumping nerves.

A comedy team was performing on the radio and it was apparently a favorite of the patrons. Crowded as the place was, most of them were listening with quiet grinning attention. From time to time there was a chorus of hearty laughter. The laughter irritated Paul.

He looked at his watch. At 7-15 in 15 minutes—there should be a news program. He signaled to the bartender and ordered another drink.

The broadcast started off with international news. Paul couldn't pay attention to it. The man at his right turned to him and voiced his views on how the State Department should handle Russia. Paul nodded without knowing what the man had said.

Then it came. Involuntarily Paul held up his hand for the man at his side to be quiet.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Sometimes you can make several bids, each of which tells part of your story. That is a good sensible device, provided you can be sure that you won't be alienated at a time when your story is only partly told.

In the hand shown today, South didn't consider the danger of being left high and dry. He told an unimportant fact about his hand and left the important story untold. As a result, his side missed a game.

What is the important feature of the South hand, once North has made the vulnerable overall of two hearts? Is it important for North to know that the South hand contains a good club suit? Or is it important for North to know that the South hand is generally strong and can support hearts?

Let's look at the full meaning of North's overall of two hearts. This vulnerable bid shows a long suit (five or more cards) of considerable solidity in a hand that will win about six tricks.

Another way of describing the type of suit needed for such an overall is to say that the bidder will not be worried if his partner has a singleton trump; will be satisfied to find two trumps; and is willing to be raised if partner has three trumps.

When North showed a heart suit of such strength, there was no need for South to look around for a different trump suit. When South actually bid clubs, he indicated that he was dissatisfied with hearts.

North had to believe this story. If South were short in hearts, as his bid indicated, there was no game for their side, and there might be some trouble making even a part-score contract.

South should have raised to three hearts. Then North would have taken a chance on bidding game. He wouldn't know exactly where the tricks would be coming from (until he saw the dummy), but he would bid game anyway.

North would have made four hearts without any trouble. He would lose a spade, a trump, and a club, but would be able to discard his low diamonds on South's clubs.

When South actually played the hand at his miserable contract of three clubs, he managed to win ten tricks. Needless to say, he did not consider this a great accomplishment in view of the fact that game at hearts would have been just as easy.

Q—With both sides vulnerable, the player at your left deals and bids one spade, your partner bids two hearts, and the next player passes. You hold: Spades 4-4, Hearts 10-8-2, Diamonds 6-4-3, Clubs A-Q-J-10-4. What do you do?

Point 4, After Wobbly Start, Seems Solidly On Its Way

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—It was just two years ago that President Truman launched his "Point Four" program for aid to underdeveloped countries. It has had a tough time getting started. But it now seems to be on its way in this uneasy world.

The new head of Point Four is Dr. Henry Garland Bennett. He is a "professor" if you must, but he isn't the type you normally associate with the word. Nor is he the smart, sleek, Homburg-hatted type of diplomat usually found in State Department high places.

Dr. Bennett has been president of Oklahoma State College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts more than 20 years. He is medium height, and round. He wears high, laced shoes. He speaks with a rural twang that is softened by southern drawl.

"We can't make the world over, and we don't aim to," he says with disarming frankness. Then he adds, "But maybe we can double the food production of places where they don't have enough to eat."

If Dr. Bennett and his organization can do that, Point Four is, of course, made. It is refreshing to find a dirt farmer of this type in the State Department. He would like to see the world made better, but not by building TVA's on every river or trying to put two cars in every garage right at the start. Mechanization, he says, would only cause mass unemployment in most countries.

Dr. Bennett tells the story of Horace Holmes, a Tennessee and North Carolina county agent who went to India a few years ago. It is an example of what one man can do with little or no money, if he has head full of experience and common sense.

Without Mechanization
Horace Holmes was hired by the United Provinces government of India as an agricultural planning adviser. He went to work on a 100-square mile area near Lucknow. In less than three years he was able to increase wheat production by 50 per cent and Irish potato production by 200 per cent. He did it without tractors and without fertilizer—both of which were too complicated for the natives to understand. He did it simply by taking what he found and using it to better advantage.

He found the natives plowing with one spike on a stick. They barely scratched the surface. Their furrows were four inches apart and they plowed the field both ways. It took forever and the crops often were washed out by heavy summer rains.

Horace Holmes simply rigged up half a dozen spikes on the sticks, and he set them so that they plowed deeper. Then he taught seed selection. And by the speed-up of gang plowing with his half-dozen spikes he saw that the crops were planted before the big rains came.

When it came time to harvest, Horace Holmes found the natives walking one team of oxen interminably around a threshing floor.

A—Bid three hearts. The reason is discussed in today's hand.

Twining Case, the metallic voice intoned, "look place less than one hour ago here in New York City." Paul sucked in his breath and gripped the edge of the bar.

The man next to him turned and said, "If you ask me . . ."

"SHUT UP!" Paul exploded.

"A ATTENTION has been focused here since early this morning," the radio voice continued. "when the child, Judy Twining, accompanied by a woman, was recognized in a south-bound subway. This evening Federal Agents uncovered the tuggage and the car of the woman and child at a rooming house on West 51st Street."

"Mrs. Kate Barron, proprietor of the rooming house, had read the account of what had taken place in the subway. The description of the woman and the child, who is reported dressed as a boy, caused her to suspect a Mrs. May Jenkins of Wheeling, W. Va., who had come to her establishment last night, accompanied by a small boy."

"Mrs. Barron called the police this afternoon. Two detectives, from a special squad detailed to run down the many leads that had been pouring in all day, answered the summons."

"They saw and spoke to Mrs. Jenkins in her room and they saw the child, but they did not arrest the woman. The investigation when they noted that the boy with her had brown eyes. Judy Twining's eyes are blue."

"Later in the day Mrs. Barron learned that the boy the detectives had seen was the son of another roomer in her house, not the one Mrs. Jenkins claimed to be her son. Agents of the FBI responded to Mrs. Barron's second call."

"The woman and child were gone. Fingerprints in the room and in the car, which was left in front of the building, tallied with those of Judy Twining. Inquiries concerning May Jenkins and the car which bears West Virginia plates, are being made."

"In the meantime, the authorities in charge of the case predict that an arrest will be made within a few hours."

Gov. Bob Taylor of Tennessee used to tell a negro story about the convention of the animals; proceedings were going smoothly until they were about to take a vote. The raccoon moved that they raise their tails. But the opossum objected, "Brudder Coon wants to show off his beautiful tail. He knows dat a possum has a tail dat looks like an' ol' file. De motion of Brudder Coon, am an innut to de possum race."

"Besides, ef dis convention decides to vote by raisin' de tail, den de billy goat has done voted already."

DADDY RINGTAIL

By WESLEY DAVIS

Daddy Ringtail And Chicken In A Bottle

Daddy Ringtail, your monkey friend, and the Huffen Puffen, the friendly wolf, one fine day were walking along the Elephant Path when they heard a noise of "Cheep! Cheep! Cheep!" Our friends stopped very still to listen.

"Why, it sounds like a little chicken, it does," said the Huffen. Yes, and he said that the noise seemed

Daddy Ringtail waited while the Huffen got down on his hands and knees and crawled beneath the bush to see about the noise of "Cheep! Cheep! Cheep!"

Daddy Ringtail stood there and waited. He heard the Huffen chuckle down there beneath the bush, and then the Huffen came backing out on his hands and knees. "It's a little chicken, all right, it is," said the Huffen. "It's a little yellow chicken down inside an empty bottle that is lying flat on the ground." "Oh, but Huffen," said Daddy Ringtail, "how did a little chicken ever get inside the bottle?" "Oh, he must have walked in, he must, except the mouth of the bottle is much too little for him to do it, and so he must have got in some other way, he must."

"But how, Huffen Puffen?" asked Daddy Ringtail. "If the little chicken didn't walk in the bottle through the only way in, how did he ever get there?" "Ooooh!" said the Huffen, a little frightened by the mystery. "Steady, Huffen," said Daddy Ringtail, and so the Huffen was steady. He wasn't frightened any more. No, because down under the bush he crawled again, and out he came with the chicken in the bottle for everyone to see.

What a mystery it was how the chicken got inside. No one knew the answer to the mystery, and I don't either, but I'll know more about it tomorrow, and then I'll tell you. Happy day!

Kiwanis Club Hears World War II Pilot

A former American pilot who escaped during World War II from a German prison camp after his plane was shot down in action gave his own life Monday of a United Nations.

He is Perry Pickett of Midland, who appeared as the principal speaker for the Kiwanis Club, of which he is a member, at its luncheon meeting at Hotel Scharbauer.

Pickett traced the efforts of men since World War I to establish permanent world peace.

"The present United Nations," he said, "was started in a spirit of optimism."

"But within just a few days we saw the ridiculous and pathetic behavior of the Russians in leaving the conference table and throwing every obstacle into the road toward peace."

He described how, during World War II, he escaped from the Germans and wound up high in the mountains, with a group of men which included an Englishman, a Yugoslavian, an Italian, a Greek and a Russian.

In the days that followed, they shared each other's hardships and comforts and got to know and like each other.

"If the men of the world," said Pickett, "could sit together as we do now at this table... the butcher, the banker and the merchant... then perhaps we could break through this Iron Curtain that bars the road to peace."

UN Columns—

"Late reports indicate the Communists are again building up strength in the Wonju area for another offensive."

Along the western front, where the Reds also were reported massing troops for a new drive, the four Allied combat patrols met virtually no opposition.

One column drove straight through Osan and prowled north of the town. Osan is 28 air miles south of Seoul.

A second column ranged through Kumyangjang, 10 miles northeast of Osan. A third unit drove north between these two columns.

The fourth column ran into an hour long fire-fight near Ichon, along the lateral road from Kumyangjang to Wonju.

Then the U. S. Eighth Army clamped a security blackout on all news stories mentioning action on the western front. It banned reporting of any movement after noon Monday in the area west of Yaju, a town 18 miles west of Wonju.

The ban was lifted upon completion of the UN attack.

Avalanches—

Throughout the night rescue workers toiled feverishly in an effort to save some 14 men and women still buried at the Swiss village of Vals, 4,000 feet up in the Alps.

A great mass of snow roared down into the little hamlet Saturday night, knocking over five houses and burying 31 persons. Twelve were brought out alive Sunday and five dead, including three children.

The village was cut off from communication with the outside world most of Sunday, but the army of rescue workers reached it late in the day.

Family Of Six Buried

At Salfen-Neukirch in Graubunden a family of six was buried beneath a mass of snow Sunday. The parents and two children later were found dead. One child still is missing. The other lived, badly injured, to describe the terrible experience.

More than 500 workers managed to free one track of the main line railroad from Eastern Switzerland to Italy, through the Gotthard Pass.

Tragic casualty stories filtered in over disrupted communications lines.

Rescuers at Zuoz, near St. Moritz, heard the crying of children, buried in a deep mound. Three dead children finally were brought out. Two women remained buried.

Small Hotel Covered

Another slide covered a hillside house at Klosters, near Davos. Two of the six occupants were killed.

Fears were expressed for the safety of the occupants of a small hotel at Oberalpsee, Central Switzerland, which was covered completely by mountainous slides. It was not known how many persons were in the hotel.

In Austria, an avalanche roaring down the slopes of Grossochner Mountain virtually swallowed up the little village of Heiligenblut, leveling houses and trees, and burying 15 persons. Three were dug out later, but the other 12 were given up for lost.

Fear was expressed for 200 inmates of a labor camp higher up on the slope.

In Italy, slides overran the village of Poschiavo, smashing four houses like matchwood and killing five persons. Nearby an avalanche descended on a barracks of men employed in a power plant, seriously injuring five of them. Many other villages through the Italian Alps were struck.
