

Midlander Is On Committee

DALLAS—Jean Lipscomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Lipscomb, 1802 South Lorraine Street, has been named a member of the planning committee for new recreational facilities at Hockaday Preparatory School. President Hobart Foster Mossman and Rosamond Larmour, principal, head the 15-member committee.

The recreation center will feature a playhouse, walled on the west with a giant Austin stone fireplace. Two picture windows on the south will overlook a two-level terrace and a swimming pool. The grass and brick terrace will be furnished with umbrella-top tables and a barbecue pit.

Trent House, dormitory for 21 years, will bound the terrace on the west. The old verandahed house, one of the early mansions of Dallas, will be redecorated on the outside.

Bad weather entertaining will be simplified by the installation of extensive kitchenette and serving facilities in the east end of the recreation hall, which will have entirely new furniture throughout.

Preliminary plans for the new recreational facilities were discussed in committee meetings last week. Work on the center will begin as soon as plans can be completed. The new facilities are expected to be ready by the second week in September when Hockaday begins its 1951-52 school year.

The apple blossom is the state flower of Michigan.

Study Club Has Board Meeting

The Modern Study Club held a special board meeting Monday to fill three vacancies on the board. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Carl Westlund.

Mrs. Bryan Denson was elected first vice president; Mrs. Earl A. Johnson, second vice president, and Mrs. J. W. Brown, corresponding secretary.

The board members made recommendations for amendments and additions to the constitution to be presented to the club at the first meeting in the Fall.

Others attending the meeting were Mrs. C. C. Keith, Mrs. R. E. Morgan, Mrs. Harrie A. Smith and Mrs. Brandon E. Rea.

Christian Church Will Sponsor Bible School

The First Christian Church, located at the corner of Louisiana and F Streets, will sponsor a two-week Vacation Bible School beginning Monday. Mrs. Sidney P. Hall will be in charge.

Classes for beginners, primary students, juniors and intermediates will be held from 9-11 a.m. The study course will be "Heroes of the Old Testament." A film is scheduled to be shown each week, with the first one on "Joseph."

MEDICAL PATIENT

Mrs. Elsie Jenkins of Wink was admitted Monday as a medical patient in Midland Memorial Hospital.

Permian Basin Oil And Gas Log—
bore of 4 1/2-inch diameter oil flowing through a three-eighths-inch choke was reported by the operator.
Open hole from 9,200 to 12,270 feet was added with 1,500 gallons. No water was made on the test.
The new well is one location east of the closest completed oil well at the east edge of the field.
Closest location is 440 feet from north and 300 feet from west lines of the southeast quarter of section 21, block 41, T&P survey.

Weiner-Floyd Field In Upton Gets Oiler
One location east of the discovery well of the Weiner-Floyd field of extreme Northwest Upton County, Rowan Oil Company and Roger B. Owens have completed their No. 1 F. A. Braden as the fourth oiler in the field.
Operators reported a daily flowing potential of 264 barrels of low-gravity oil from open hole at 6,975-7,120 feet. That section was hydraulically fractured.
No water was made during the potential test which was taken on a one-quarter-inch tubing choke.
Location is 690 feet from south and east lines of section 18, block 27, T-5-S, T&P survey and 28 miles north of Roshan.

C-S Ector Sector Gets New Producer
Another Fusselman producer has been added to the Jordan-multiphase field of Central-South Ector County. Shell Oil Company completed its No. 4-C Connell as the second oiler from that pay. The well was finished for a daily flowing potential of 1,064 barrels of oil per day from open hole at 7,400-7,451 feet.
The flow was gauged through a 2 3/4-inch choke. It was completed natural, and no water was made. Gas-oil ratio was 498-1. Gravity of the oil is 43 degrees.
The new oiler is one location north of Shell No. 3-C Connell which was completed as the discovery well from the Fusselman.
No. 4-C Connell is in the west side of the Jordan field and 813 feet from east and 1,973 feet from south lines of section 13, block B-14, 1st survey.

Rowan & Hope Will Test In SW Fisher
Rowan & Hope has staked a deep test well in Southwest Fisher County 10 miles southwest of Hoby. This No. 1 Mary E. Masterwood will be 600 feet from north and west lines of section 206, block 3, H&RTO survey.
It will be projected to 7,500 feet. That should take the venture into the Ellenburger. Drilling with rotary tools will start soon.

Midland Project Is To Cut Side-Track

Some shows of oil were logged in the Spraberry, Devonian and Fusselman sections. Operators may go back in the hole and test those upper sections later.
Tentative top of the Devonian was picked at 10,810 feet. The Spraberry was entered at 10,965 feet and the Fusselman was topped at 11,070 feet.
Location is at the center of the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 20, block 28, T-1-S, T&P survey.

Reagan, Upton Each Get New Prospector
Four miles north of the Fernbrook field of East-Central Upton County, Phillips Petroleum Company staked location for a north-west offset to Paul F. Barnhart No. 1 Tipsett, recently completed Spraberry strike.
The new test will be Phillips No. 1-A Tipsett and will be dug 600 feet from south and west lines of the southeast quarter of section 20, block 28, T-5-S, T&P survey.
Permit is for a 7,500-foot rotary test.

The Blackwood & Nichols Company of Midland staked location for a one and one-quarter mile north-east outpost to production in the Benedum field of Central-West Reagan County.
Projected to 7,600 feet for a test of the Spraberry, the firm's No. 1 L. T. Clark will be 600 feet from south and east lines of section 45, block Y, MK&T survey.

NE Coke Project Plugged, Abandoned
Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Lee Lacy, Northeast Coke County wildcat, has been plugged and abandoned at 6,800 feet which is 4,900 feet below sea level.
There was only slight oil shows in the Ellenburger, which yielded 1,800 feet of salty sulphur water on the last drillstem test, from 6,224-60 feet. The tool was open two hours. Open flowing bottomhole pressure was 275 pounds, 30-minute shut-in pressure was 1,334 pounds. Chloride content of the water was 49,500 parts per million.
The failure was in the center of the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section 272, block 1-A, H&TQ survey. It was two miles west and slightly south of Blackwell and four miles northwest of the West Port Chadbourne Strawn field.

Anti-Red Coalition Breaks Leftist Hold On Northern Italy
ROME—(AP)—An anti-Communist coalition has broken the extreme left wing hold on Italy's "Red North."
Incomplete returns Tuesday indicated Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Atlantic Pact front had given the Reds their worst beating in five years in provincial elections. The Communists were kicked out of five provincial capital administrations they had held since 1945. De Gasperi's forces took a heavy majority of council seats in elections which ended Monday for a third of the nation. The rest of the nation votes later.
Ministry of Interior results in 636 of 854 provincial council seats gave the anti-Communist bloc a combination of the majority Christian, Catholic party, the Republican, Liberal and anti-Communist Socialist. Fifteen seats were lost for the Communist-left wing Socialist bloc.
The returns indicated anti-Communist forces will control city councils in 23 provincial capitals. The Communists held two, and three are undecided.
Two Top Prizes
The prizes led by de Gasperi won Venice and Genoa—two top prizes in the municipal elections—and three other province capital administrations which were Communist for five years.
The Red hold on Genoa and Venice had worried the premier's Atlantic Pact government. Ships bringing American arms aid to Italy had avoided Genoa as a port of discharge, presumably because of the Communist administration there.
Two contests, at Bologna and Imperia, where Communists and their left Socialist allies have majorities now, still were undecided. The opposing forces were running neck and neck.
A 1948 vote count from 808 to 339 precincts gave the pro-Communist bloc 194,813 votes to 102,778 for the de Gasperi forces, and observers familiar with the city forecast that the left wing would keep control of Bologna's government by a narrow margin.

Stanoldil Is To Plug SW Ector Explorer
Stanoldil Oil & Gas Company is preparing to plug and abandon its No. 1 Earl Vest, northwest stepout to the Yarbrough & Allen field of Southwest Ector County.
Operator took a drillstem test in the Ellenburger from 6,359 to 6,661 feet. Tool was open one hour and 50 minutes. Recovery was 1,200 feet of drilling mud and 7,200 feet of salt water.
Location was 1,981 feet from north and east lines of section 7, block B-14, 1st survey and eight miles northwest of Penwell.

SE Martin Wildcat Is Temporarily Quit
Stanoldil Oil & Gas Company has temporarily abandoned its No. 1-A F. E. Mulkey, wildcat in extreme Southeast Martin County, after water was developed in the Ellenburger.
That formation was topped at 11,150 feet.

Korean Fighting Gives Tactical Air Force A Tremendous Boost

TAC's weapons: F-86 Sabres, a potent weapon of the Tactical Air Command, fly over California.

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, VA.—(AP)—The Air Force is well on its way to correcting one of the Pentagon's biggest post-war errors.
Nine months ago, the Tactical Air Command was a paper organization of frustrated, highly-decorated fighter and light-bomber pilots with not one plane they could call their own. Economy-eager experts at the Pentagon were saying: "Why have an expensive major air command for the support of ground troops when the Army hasn't enough ground troops worth supporting?"
Then came Korea with its shocking revelation of the state of America's military forces. The tactical air arm was one of the worst aspects — through no fault of TAC.
Today TAC has been given a legal status to that of the Strategic Air Command. From TAC headquarters here 10 groups are being whittled into various advanced states of organization at more than 10 bases around the country. By mid-summer a portion of these ground-support groups are expected to be combat-ready. And five more groups will have been organized.
Inside Greater
They include troop-carrier groups of 48 C-119's each; fighter-bomber groups and reconnaissance bomber groups with 75 planes each, most of which are now equipped with World War II B-26's, and a light-bomber group which is practically combat-ready with B-47 jets. The fighter groups which have been training with the older P-51's are now being equipped with the latest F-84-B jets.
About 80 per cent of TAC's build-up is from the ranks of weekend warriors, Air National Guards and active reserve pilots who have been called to active duty. Their average age is between 36 and 39. They've brought their families with them. Most of them have taken cuts in pay. It's not an easy new life.
And, although they had forgotten the headaches of military red tape and still chafe under the necessary Air Force administrative details, their flying proficiency has amazed TAC's top commanders. Maj. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, TAC's No. 2 man and a veteran leader of ground support units during the last war, puts it this way:
"These men have brought to our units a wealth of experience and flying ability which we never dreamed of having during World War II. They've responded to training amazingly well and are making a wonderful contribution to putting tactical air back in business."
The morale of the Air Force pilots who have been called back to duty is extremely high.

plenty of solid and new plans under way as part of the mobilization. Already progressing well are such things as the training of tactical air control parties to be employed with front line army units. This is being done at TAC's Ninth Tactical Air Force at Pope Field, adjoining Fort Bragg, N. C.
It involves close training with infantry units, parachute training for some units that will operate with airborne troops, the use of new radio equipment and new procedures learned in Korea.
TAC units have supplied pilot replacements for Korea, and many Korean-experienced pilots are back with various groups to help with training.
Closer Cooperation
One outstanding accomplishment of TAC is a new and closer cooperation with Army units. Specific Air Force units have been assigned to support specific Army units, and have been stationed as close together as possible.
The 40th Infantry Division at Camp Cook, Calif., for example, will be supported by the 118th Fighter Group at George Air Force Base, Calif. The 40th and other National Guard divisions will actually train and hold maneuvers with their assigned fighter groups. This is shooting at the kind of close air-ground cooperation which is standard Marine Corps practice, and which has paid great dividends in Korea.
To a certain extent, the build-up of TAC is being delayed by shortages of equipment and airplanes. The reconnaissance groups are using bombers and have had to install make-shift cameras to perform their training missions, and the latest type of electronic equipment is slow in coming.
Eventually, ever airplanes assigned to TAC will be jet-propelled. But this will take years.
And while the training program of all TAC units is not being seriously affected by shortages and bottlenecks, their combat-readiness obviously depends almost entirely on how soon the jets and new electronic gear become available.

TAC's General Cannon: He took over a gung concern.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Huffman of Bluffton, Ind., arrived Monday and will spend the summer in McCamey. Mr. Huffman is a brother to G. W. Huffman.
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wheeler of Stamford were guests recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. McManara. Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. McManara are sisters. Mrs. McManara has gone to Stamford with them and plans an extended visit there and in Mineral Wells and other points during the summer.
Miss Eleanor Beth West of Big Lake was a visitor over the weekend in the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. West.
Mrs. Bess Moorman plans to spend the weekend in Midland visiting in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jack Walcher. Mrs. Moorman will go from there to Lubbock, where she will visit several days before returning home.
Mrs. A. B. Holley of Longview, formerly a McCamey resident, is here visiting friends and was honored at a coffee last week in the home of Mrs. G. W. Brown.
Recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Robertson of Rio Pecos Station were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Coble of Grant; Mr. and Mrs. Tiny Eary and daughter, Carlton; Mrs. and Mrs. W. C. Coble, Wink; Mr. and Mrs. Tuffy Garrison and children, Lou and Tommy, of Iran and W. H. Hutchins.

Congratulations, Graduates

Commencement time is here again, and congratulations are in order for members of the 1951 graduating class of Midland High School, who receive their diplomas in exercises Wednesday night.

The 158 graduates have completed their high school work and now are ready to seek broader and even more challenging endeavors. Many of the young men and women will attend colleges, universities and business schools, while others perhaps will enter directly into the field of business and commerce.

The graduates of today are stepping into a troubled world, and some may think perhaps there is little cause for optimism, but although the challenge is great, the chances for success in a free America are as great as ever.

And as the graduates complete their high school careers, congratulations also are in order for the school officials and faculty members upon the turning out of such a fine group of young Americans.

Midlanders are proud of their high school graduates, the future leaders of this city, county, state and nation, and all join in wishing for them the utmost of success and happiness.

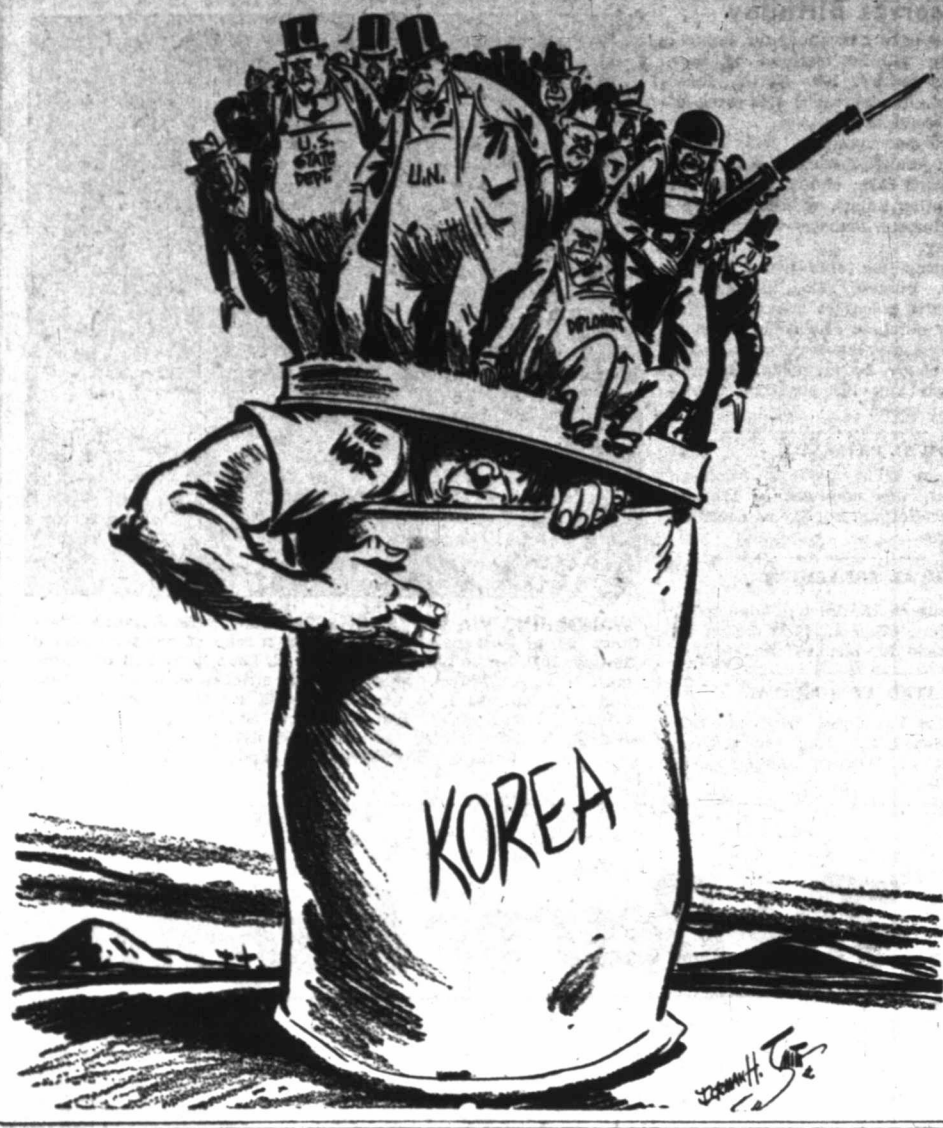

Adding Insult To Injury

Only a greatly inflamed nationalism could lead Iran to refuse any consideration whatsoever to legitimate British concern over the future of the seized Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Iranian leaders obviously are operating under tremendous public pressures. It's proper to say, in fact, that they are openly fearful of making the slightest concession to the British viewpoint.

Something like murdering a man's good friend and then inviting him to preside over the dismemberment of the body.

The Old Boy Is Troubled With Claustrophobia

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson (Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.) Drew Pearson says: RFC scandal suppressed since 1947; Mink coat is peanuts compared to railroad loan; Senators Capehart and McCarthy bottled B&O report.

WASHINGTON—It has been kept under lock and key four years, but a Senate report has been suppressed which would have blown the lid off the politics-ridden Reconstruction Finance Corporation in July, 1947.

This column now has obtained a secret copy of the long-suppressed report. It tells how the great Baltimore & Ohio Railroad system borrowed $87,000,000 from the government and, instead of paying it back, conspired with Jesse Jones and RFC officials to go into "fictitious" and "synthetic" bankruptcy.

After a review of the testimony at the hearings and the documents in the files presented before this committee, the Senate Banking and Currency report concludes, "It is found that the B&O originated the idea of its present reorganization, persuaded RFC to accept the idea sometime before April, 1944, and thereby involved RFC in a conclusive proceeding in bankruptcy."

The surrendered report plus Senate hearings of the Banking and Currency Committee is scathing in its criticism of the RFC and the B&O railroad. It tells how Cassius Clay, solicitor general of the railroad, denounced the "bankruptcy" as a "fraud" and "frameup."

For ethical and professional reasons, says the Senate report, "Mr. Clay refused as a lawyer to sanction a second B&O petition in bankruptcy. Two other lawyers questioned the good faith of B&O's proposed bankruptcy proceedings—its veteran general counsel and law department head, John J. Cornwell, and B&O's special counsel, Henry W. Anderson."

The mystery is why these charges against an important government agency were suppressed. Obviously an $87,000,000 loan to a railroad is more important than a $9,000 mink coat worn by a White House secretary. Yet the mink coat has become a symbol of RFC corruption, whereas the loan to the Baltimore & Ohio on which Uncle Sam still is owed $76,300,000 was hushed up.

be returned to the Banking and Currency Committee and put under lock and key."

Thus Capehart kept from the public the story of RFC corruption until, four years later, Senator Fulbright of Arkansas unearthed entirely different scandals.

In addition to the revelations in Monday's Washington Merry-Go-Round, here are more shocking facts on the B&O's "bankruptcy" case, as revealed in the suppressed report: 1. After Jesse Jones had loaned $87,000,000 to the B&O in 1939, Jones proceeded to put some of his own favored proteges into lush jobs with the B&O at higher salaries.

"RFC's failure to protect its own interests," the Senate report comments, "appears on the basis of evidence before this committee to have been the result of RFC's carelessness and extraordinary complacency in dealing with B&O management which included so many former RFC officials."

In this connection, the Senate report observes: "The RFC was formed to save railroads and other financial institutions from bankruptcy, not to plunge them into it."

Yet the RFC was saved from extinction. At the same time the B&O filed for bankruptcy, its net profits were higher than any other period during its 120-year history, and the railroad industry was booming with war business. Yet the B&O deliberately used these profits to buy bonds that didn't mature until well after the RFC loan was due.

PETER EDSON'S Washington News Notebook

Defense Mobilizer Finds Out Why Big Wheels Walk In England

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, on his recent trip to England, tried to sell British officials on the idea they would have to cut back their civilian economy more, to get more defense production.

At a State Department top-level conference the other day, one of his aides advised Secretary Dean Acheson against taking a certain course of action. The reason given was that this policy "might get the secretary in trouble."

Secretary Acheson laughed and said, "Let me tell you a story." It went like this: "There was a man in a railway car, and he had a little boy seated on one side of him and a little girl seated on the other side."

Questions and Answers

Q—Is the weight of a bushel uniform throughout the United States? A—A bushel of Indian corn is supposed to weigh 56 pounds by national standard, but certain states have placed the standard weight lower—down as far as 52 pounds to the bushel.

Q—What are some American representatives of the olive family? A—The common lilacs and privets, used widely for ornamentation and hedges, are among its members. The ashes are the most important group of forest trees belonging to the olive family.

Q—Has the book "Treasure Island" any historical basis? A—No. The story was written and read, a chapter at a time, for the entertainment of Stevenson's stepson, to relieve the tedium of a rainy vacation, and grew out of a map the author had drawn and labeled Treasure Island.

What's RIGHT?

You are speaking of your husband to a social acquaintance. WRONG: Refer to him as "Mr. Smith."

THE STORY: Lucilla Webb calls in the Beautiful-You School, but neglects to tell her husband that the object is to make her taste a beautiful woman, and improve her skin's figure.

THE floor mother, with the aid of a Glamour Guide, was pushing the scales into the center of the Hall of Mirrors. "Monday check-up, girls. You're to weigh in before Body Molding. We'll soon know how many of you have been naughty over the week-end."

THE check-up went on through the alphabet, with Miss Coxtwaite handing out prizes to Deeds of Mommery diets, and the students' words varying from elation to deep melancholia. Lucilla who came last, turned out to be the heroine of the hour. Mrs. Coxtwaite peered incredulously at the scale's indicator. "Why, it can't be—but it is. A gain of... ." She raised her voice to announce, "Class, this Little Boy has gained six whole pounds."

Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers' deputies now have been meeting in Paris more than three months. If they finally are successful in agreeing on an agenda for the foreign ministers themselves to discuss, the meeting probably will be held in Washington. U. S. Congress will be in session while the FM's are talking and this may cause a lot of complications.

Incidentally, if U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson should be fired or resign—just before the Foreign Ministers' Council convened in Washington, it would put a green hand in for the U. S. to dicker with Britain's Herbert Morrison—also new, France's Robert Schuman and Russia's Andrei Vishinsky.

It's largely a question of semantics—or the meaning of words—but there is known to be a vast difference between the views of General Dwight D. Eisenhower and Douglas MacArthur on what constitutes the free world's main enemy.

General Eisenhower, on the other hand, has expressed the view that the real enemy is "Russian imperialism." He looks upon communism as merely the vehicle of the Russian imperialists to further their ambitions. And by inference, General Eisenhower attributes the same motives of conquest to the Stalin Politburo as to the old Russian czars.

So They Say

It used to be automatic to read the latest book of a well-known author, but now it isn't. That isn't the same tendency to regularize reading.

When we are spending billions of dollars to prevent war by strength, it seems utterly foolish to count pennies in making friends behind the Iron Curtain.

I suggest that the establishment of a single department of defense and a single department of foreign policy for the democracies is both possible and urgent.

Paris stood sullenly, unwilling to confess to so low a crime. "We'll have to double the dosage of mineral oil," her inquisitor continued. "And no solids but the rind of one grapefruit."

All the students cooed and aahed. Lucilla herself was dumfounded. As she stepped down off the scales, she was conscious of her body in its entirety; there was the feeling that whatever she did now carried weight, literally. Even the New Girls most detested by their own girls crowded around to congratulate her, and to speculate where the six pounds showed up. Several students said Lucilla's hips looked heavier. Mrs. Copts voted for the cheeks. Miss Thumbolt, the hockey-muscled girl, eyed Lucilla with hungry hope. "It just goes to show," she kept saying, "that this school is really terrific." Her tone implied she wanted desperately to believe that. She herself had been depressed to find she'd lost only four ounces. "It's because my flesh is so firm," she explained to Lucilla, kneading her sausage-like arms.

Have a Laugh cartoon by Boyce House. A boy is told to take a calf to market. He decided to tie the rope around his waist. On the road, the calf got scared and began to run away, pulling the boy along, of course. Someone asked, "Son, where are you going?" The boy replied, "Don't ask me; ask the calf!" A friend met the village drunkard on the street and exclaimed, "Drunk again?" The man said, "Not—yet."

The Form Divine by Hildegard Dolson. A story about Lucilla Webb who goes to a 'Beautiful-You School' and gains six pounds. The story is told from the perspective of a friend who is jealous of Lucilla's success. The story ends with Lucilla being crowned 'Miss Green' and the narrator feeling dejected.

DADDY RINGTAIL

Daddy Ringtail And Mouse-Catcher

Daddy Ringtail, your monkey friend, was hiding behind some bales of hay with Old MacDonald who has a farm. They were hiding at the barn to watch some corn that the mice might try to steal away.

Then, from out of a crack in the wall came an old mouse with a walking stick in his hand. He looked around him, but he did not see the folks who were hidden. He put his fingers to his lips and blew a shrill whistle. From out of the wall came seven mice as fast as mice. They picked up an ear of corn and ran, whisk! The mice were gone, and the corn with them.

The old mouse did not run away. He polished his glasses with his handkerchief, and then—after flickering a bit of dust from his shoulder—he ambled away through the wall as though the world were his alone.

When he had gone, Old MacDonald laughed a cackly laugh, very quiet. But what was there to laugh about? That's what Daddy Ringtail asked, and so Old MacDonald showed him.

From beneath his coat, Old MacDonald pulled out a cat of black and white. The cat was tall and skinny, but Old MacDonald said the cat was a mouse-catcher. Old MacDonald never had seen the cat catch a mouse, of course, because the cat had only come to the farm that morning. But the cat looked like a mouse-catcher, and so Old MacDonald was thinking that a mouse-catcher is what she was.

"Sehhh!" said Old MacDonald. Now he was putting the cat on the floor to wait for the mice and catch them. Old MacDonald poured out a saucer of milk for the cat, and then he tiptoed away to hide again behind the hay. He waited. Daddy Ringtail waited with him. They listened. Oh, the mouse-catcher cat would soon be eating a mouse, Old MacDonald whispered.

Then our friends heard a shrill whistle. It was the old gentleman mouse who had come again! Would the mouse-catcher cat now catch him? Old MacDonald rushed out to see, and he did see. Daddy Ringtail saw it with him.

There was the cat, and the old mouse, and the seven young mice, all drinking milk from the same saucer. "Tsk! Tsk! and shame on the cat who wasn't a mouse-catcher at all, even though he looked like one. Happy day! More tomorrow!

Even Air Over Hanford Is Out Of Bounds

Booming city is Richland, which houses the employees who work at the Hanford A-bomb manufacturing area. It's grown from 300 in 1943 to 23,000 today. This is the site of a new housing project, which will accommodate 300 families.

HANFORD, WASH.—(P)—In the operations office of an Air Force base a few hundred miles from here there is a sign for all to see which says:

"If you have never had a court-martial, try flying over Hanford."

At another nearby base the sign reads:

"It is better never to have flown at all than to fly over Hanford."

Only the jet fighter pilots whose 24-hour-a-day mission is to defend the 620 acre Hanford site from air attack are permitted to fly over it. For every other pilot, the air above the site where they make plutonium for the atomic bomb is strictly out of bounds.

Because Hanford is considered the A-bomb manufacturing area closest to possible air attack by Russia, it is probably the most heavily-guarded of any of the Atomic Energy Commission's establishments.

Industrial Wees

However, there is one defense of Hanford which is beginning to look vulnerable. That is its protection against creeping industrial woes caused by America's expanding war production.

By dint and industrial resourcefulness and certain emergency measures, production of plutonium has been maintained at a satisfactory rate with the rest of the A-bomb program. Production of plutonium has doubled since General Electric Co. took over in 1947, and the cost per unit has been cut in half.

Nevertheless, the labor and material shortages which have been caused by the Korean-inspired mobilization are having an impact.

G. R. Prout, GE vice president in charge, says there are growing shortages of such things as construction materials and stainless steel. And there is growing need for such specialists as instrument mechanics—to maintain the elaborate precision instruments needed in the production of plutonium—and draftsmen and other technicians.

About 20 per cent of the 8000

GE Hanford employees are working a six-day week. Teams of expeditors are keeping vital materials flowing in here at a reduced but steady rate. And training programs have been started to create the skills for which there is a bad shortage.

Richland Is Key

As far as the shortage of personnel goes, the key lies in the amazing city of Richland, a few miles from the manufacturing site of Hanford, which houses all of GE's employees and their families. There are many extraordinary things about Richland.

Having jumped from a population of 300 in 1943 to a city of 23,000 today, it is probably America's fastest-growing city. Every inch of land is owned by Uncle Sam and managed for the population by GE's Commercial Facilities Division. Individual private enterprises run such things as retail stores, restaurants, and laundries. The townspeople seem to be happy under the GE regime.

Because the prime mission of Hanford is as an industrial enterprise, it is natural that Richland would have more of an industry-town atmosphere than the AEC's Los Alamos, which is built on a beautiful mountain plateau and has more of a university-town atmosphere. But Richland is an extremely pleasant industry-type city.

Compare Favorably
Its rows of neat, modern frame cottages compare favorably with any prosperous U. S. suburb, as do its modern, up-to-date shops, new schools and new churches.

Main source of recreation for the citizens of Richland are the natural facilities of Washington's beautiful mountains, lakes and streams. Richlanders live an out-of-doors existence with fishing, skiing and hunting as the main diversions.

Richlanders appear to be taking the war-scare of recent months with little panic, in spite of the fact that they possibly present the most ready target for Russian bombers

EARLY HEMP ROPE

One of the earliest recorded uses of hemp for a ship's rope was on the famous galley Syracusa, built about 200 B.C. for Hiero under the supervision of Archimedes.

URBAN AREAS GROWING

The first United States census in 1790 revealed that only five per cent of the population lived in cities; today, cities claim 60 per cent of all people.

striking across the North Pole route and Alaska.

"We don't want war any more than any other citizen of the U. S.," says a typical Richlander, "but I do think we all are more serious about our work because of its vital importance to the country's defense."

A-bomb worker is Mary E. Shideler, a chemist with the Technical Division's Analytical Section at the Hanford Works. She is working with a "hot" sample behind a lead-shielded hood.

Air Force Crew Tests Arctic Crash Survival On Jelly Bar Vitamins

DAYTON, OHIO — (P)—How would you like to live on a daily diet of three jelly bars, tea and coffee concentrate, two sugar lumps, a piece of candy-coated chewing gum and a vitamin tablet?

Now, suppose you were living on this diet outdoors in the Arctic with the mercury bouncing sluggishly around at 45 degrees below zero. Suppose, too, there were five inches of snow on the ground and you had to make daily eight-mile hikes across country.

Impossible? Not at all, 35 men of the U. S. Air Force did just that for two weeks.

The idea? Well, the Air Force wanted to find out if its airplane crewmen could walk back from a crash in the Arctic in wartime.

The answer? "We determined that Arctic survival is feasible in overland treks if the crewmen has sufficient energy to make the most of the survival equipment which parachutes down with him," said Capt. Harold L. Buffenbarger of the Air Force's Air Material Command at nearby Wright-Patterson Field.

One of 35 Men

Captain Buffenbarger was one of the 35 men who made the test of Air Force survival kits.

Big item is what the crashed aviator eats. To get the most of the slim low-calory survival ration, the Air Force crewman is told to eat a small part of the diet each two hours. He is warned not to eat it all at once.

"That way they can get by fairly well," said Captain Buffenbarger.

Why doesn't a crashed aviator just stay by his plane until someone picks him up?

"Ever since Arctic flying became a major activity," said Captain Buffenbarger, "Air Force survival techniques and rations have been built about the premise that the downed aviator will stay with the aircraft."

But, now, said Buffenbarger, Air Force crews are told they might not be able to stay with the plane under combat. Air rescue squadrons might not be able to carry on search procedures in a shooting war. Crewmen might have to try to walk to the nearest inhabited spot before their food supplies run out.

Prove It Can Be Done

Captain Buffenbarger and his buddies of the survival test may save hundreds of lives some day. They proved it can be done. And, they found out a lot about how to do it.

If you are ever in such a spot, here are two tips:

Don't drink snow. Melt the snow in the plastic bag packed with the Air Force survival kit by putting it next to your body.

Don't try to soak up heat with your clothes buttoned up and your toes in a camp fire.

And, come what may, you have one consolation: while fat men do better under survival conditions, thin men can do all right.

"Even the thinnest person actually has about 15 pounds of fat he can rely on for reserve," said Buffenbarger.

John Gorrie, who invented the ice making process, is honored by statues, one in Apalachicola, Fla., and one in Washington, D. C.
