McKnight-Parker Gel Spraberry Oil Signs In Reagan Wildcat

John McKnight of Midland and Parker Drilling Company of Midland and Tulsa logged good shows of possible production in the top 100 feet of the Reagan County wildcat.

This prospect is 600 feet from north and east lines of section 1905, G&SFP survey. It is eight miles north of Texon and 15 miles northwest of Big Lake.

It is eight miles east of the Benedict multiplicity area along the Reagan-Upton County line.

The show came in a core at 6,243-78 feet. The material which was recovered was sandy shale with fractures and it was bleeding oil in some places.

Top of the Spraberry is thought to be between 6,200 feet and 6,223 feet. That surmise is not official, but informed observers say it is substantially correct.

Operators attempted a drillstem test at 6,243-78 feet. There was a hole in the drill pipe and there was no recovery. Another attempt to get a drillstem test was being undertaken.

C-N Reagan Wildcat Flows Spraberry Oil From Upper Section

J. H. Williams and others No. 1 J. D. Merchants Estate, wildcat in Central-North Midland County, kicked off with force and started flowing through casing as operator was trying to set a bridge plug at 6,555 feet in order to test the upper Spraberry formation.

As last report operator was trying to kill the flow.

Operator has been unable to make an estimate on the rate the well is flowing.

As soon as the flow is killed operator will set the plug and make production tests in the upper Spraberry. It is believed that the oil is coming from the upper Spraberry, as swabbing tests in the lower section after hydrofracture treatment failed to develop commercial production.

Location is at the center of the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 19, block A, L&S.V. survey and 12 miles north of Stiles.

Ellenburger Wildcat Staked By Murphy In North Pecos Area

Murphy Corporation of Midland is to start drilling immediately at its No. 1 W. H. Gilmore, slated 7,500-foot wildcat in North Pecos County.

It is three miles east of Imperial and 330 feet from north and east lines of section 2, block 3, H&T.C. survey.

It is slated to dig to 7,500 feet—unless it finds granite or gets a test of the Ellenburger at a lesser depth.

The prospect is one half of a mile south of production from the Ellenburger and from the McKee on the south side of the Abel multiplicity area.

The nearest producers are on the Blyden and Ford leases owned by Murphy.

Harwit, May Made Deal For Digging Reagan Wildcat

Lion Oil Company is rigging up rotary tools and preparing to start drilling at its No. 1-D University, scheduled 7,500-foot Spraberry wildcat in Southwest Reagan County, six and one-half miles northwest of Texon.

The prospect is 660 feet from north and 2,022 feet from west lines of the southwest quarter of section 16, block 58, University survey.

Near A Dry Hole
The development is two miles southeast of the Benedict multiplicity field and two miles northwest of Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1-N University, a 7,242-foot dry hole which was plugged in April of this year.

This wildcat is being drilled as a result of a trade worked out by Ben Harwit and Jack May of Midland.

They took a farmout on a check-boarded spread of 1,200 acres from Continental Oil Company out of a large block of acreage that concern has held on University lands.

Harwit, May Turned Deal
The acreage secured by Harwit and May included the northeast quarter and the southeast quarters of section 15, 16 and 17 in block 58, University survey. It also included (Continued On Page Ten)

House Revolt Puts Tax Hike Bill On Shelf

WASHINGTON—(P)—The House, breaking all precedent, Tuesday rejected the compromise $5,732,000,000 tax increase bill and ordered it sent back to a Senate-House Conference Committee.

The stinging, unexpected action set the Administration groping Wednesday for a solution to a potentially serious national budget problem.

Leaders' plans to adjourn Congress Saturday until the new year were threatened by Tuesday's surprise development.

The next move is up to the Senate, which now can say whether or not there will be a tax increase this year. If it doesn't accede to the House request for a new conference to try to work out differences, there'll be no tax bill that might—unless the tax hike finally approved were made retroactive—deprive the Treasury of something like half a billion dollars a month in increased revenues.

Two senators Wednesday said the Senate Finance Committee has agreed to try again to break the deadlock over the multi-billion dollar tax increase bill.

Both sides astounded
Both senators, who asked that their names not be used, attended a brief closed-door session of the tax-writing Senate committee Wednesday morning.

The bill under preparation almost nine months was tossed aside summarily by the House Tuesday in a half-hour rollcall, with Administration leaders hardly more astounded by the outcome than the group which put across the 203 to 187 coup.

On the winning side were 139 Republicans and 64 Democrats. The minority which supported the bill included 122 Democrats, 34 Republicans and one Independent.

Uprising In House Leaves Tax Bureau Like Bride At Altar

WASHINGTON—(P)—House rejection of the proposed tax increase bill left the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which collects the taxes, feeling a little like a bride left alone at the altar.

Bureau officials already were operating in high gear on the assumption the bill would be passed and signed this week. They were ready to put new income and excise (sales) taxes into effect on November 1.

Now, no one is sure when new taxes will become effective.

The bureau had to go into reverse in a number of files. It had ordered 5,000,000 copies of tables showing how much more the new income tax would bite into paychecks under the withholding plan.

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, MASS.—(P)—A smear of yellow dye was found on the sea Wednesday 490 miles east of Cape Cod by a search plane seeking a missing stratosphere and its crew of 11.

Westover officers said the dye marker was sighted by Capt. Lewis Randolph of East Rutherford, N. J., flying a C-54 search plane, at 9:30 a. m., and that it was consistent with dye carried in pneumatic rafts used by planes.

Captain Randolph reported he did not see a raft.

Captain Randolph's report added impetus to a search already speeded up by reported light flashes in the area Tuesday night.

Rebellion By 1,300 Convicts Put Down Without Casualties

MOUNDSVILLE, W. VA.—(P)—An 18-hour revolt of 1,300 prisoners at the West Virginia State Penitentiary ended without casualties at 8:45 a. m. Wednesday.

State Police Maj. R. W. Boyles suddenly appeared on the steps of the Administration Building leading into the two-acre exercise yard where the prisoners had milled all night.

He yelled: "I have a message for you."

"Get on the loud-speaker," called back some of the prisoners.

Warden Orel J. Skeen's voice came on the prison public address system.

"If you men care to go in your cells," he said, "the doors are open. And when you get in, well arrange to feed you. We can't feed you where you are."

There was a surge for the door. There were some scattered yells among the leaders: "No, no, no."

The main body of the cold and hungry convicts paid no attention to them.

Leaders Join Rush
Even the leaders joined the rush. They apparently feared they might be identified if they held out.

Arsenal Produces Proper Credentials

Officers were tipped Tuesday that an automobile parked in downtown Midland contained "a virtual arsenal."

And so it did!
Investigating, Highway Patrolman Mac Stout found 74 pistols and 17 rifles. But:

A checkup with Austin and the owner's home city of Corpus Christi proved the man to be a dealer in antique pistols and guns. He had proper credentials.

Rankin Youth Dies Of Accident Injuries

Howard Ray Miller, 16-year-old Rankin youth, died without regaining consciousness Tuesday, 11 hours after he had been struck on the head by a mud gun from a high pressure mud line in an oil field accident.

A roughneck for the Rowan Drilling Company, Miller was knocked unconscious at 4 a. m. Tuesday when a high pressure mud line blew out on the Schwertner Rig No. 3, situated in the Weiner-Floyd field in Glasscock County, 42 miles southeast of Midland.

Miller's body was removed to Stephenville, Texas, Wednesday by the Trust Funeral Home for funeral services.

Negro Killed In Highway Accident

10 McGee Trial Jurors Are Chosen

By COPE ROUTH
The selection of a 12-man jury neared completion Wednesday afternoon as the sanity trial of 27-year-old Richard McGee moved into its third day before Judge R. W. (Bob) Hamilton in 70th District Court.

Only two vacancies remained as the court was recessed at noon, scheduled to be resumed at 1:30 p. m.

Three more jurors were selected Tuesday afternoon and only one during the three-hour session Wednesday morning.

The additional jurors are William O. Holly, Jr., manager of the West Texas Brick and Tile Company; Ernest T. W. Neill, air conditioning and plumbing contractor; Marvin W. Taylor, power salesman for the Texas Electric Service Company, and J. F. Horton, grocer.

Defendant Felton Boredom
As the jury selection proceeded slowly Wednesday morning, the convicted slayer of a Lubbock grocery executive continued to feign boredom, keeping his eyes closed tight, even when being led into the courtroom.

At noon Tuesday, he was examined for an hour by Dr. Paul White, psychiatrist from the University of Texas at Austin. Dr. White resumed his examination of McGee at noon Wednesday.

He declined to comment on his conference with McGee but has been summoned to testify as a defense witness.

Several other psychiatrists are slated to examine the slayer Wednesday night at the conclusion of the trial session.

While McGee's courtroom, McGee has been kept under close guard as officers sat on each side. His hands remained handcuffed.

Texas Ranger John Wood and Deputy Sheriff F. S. Buckalew alternated with Constable Jack Merritt and City Detective Harold Wallace in guarding the defendant.

If the selection of the jury is completed Wednesday afternoon, the first defense witnesses are expected to take the stand.

U. S. troops and Colombian infantrymen began the assault. Artillery covered them from newly-captured flanking hills.

British Ferry Paratroopers From Cyprus

CAIRO—(P)—Ismailia in the Suez Canal area was an armed camp bristling with machine guns and tanks Wednesday. Both British and Egyptians rushed reinforcements here. Britain also faced new trouble in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

One leader of the powerful pro-Egyptian Sudanese Ashigga Party called upon the people of Sudan for a campaign of disobedience to British authorities there in the campaign to drive the Britons out of the land over which Egypt now has proclaimed King Farouk the sole monarch.

In the Suez Canal area, the British reported that the Lancashire Fusiliers, RAF forces and the Egyptian police were in control of the situation after the city of 50,000 was rocked by violent rioting Tuesday.

A release distributed in Cairo by the RAF said, "Almost all the shops and buildings (in Ismailia) are closed and the town resembles an armed camp."

British parachute troops, 3,500 strong, were taking off from Nicosia, Cyprus, only 300 miles away, to reinforce the British in the Canal Zone, where at least seven and possibly 12 persons were killed in Tuesday's violence.

Troops Grimly Alert
Ismailia was divided into two sections, the western part held by British troops grimly alert behind barbed wire, with Bren guns nosing through.

The Egyptian sector was patrolled by Egyptian police on a 24-hour emergency alert.

An Associated Press reporter in Ismailia said he saw no sign that British families of military men were preparing to leave, although they have been instructed to be ready to go at a moment's notice.

The Egyptian government here said the British extended their control in Ismailia by taking over the railway station, the waterworks and the customs station, injuring an Egyptian policeman seriously in the operation. Several hundred Egyptian workers once employed by (Continued On Page Five)

Postal Inspector Checks On Midland's Congested Facilities

A survey of Midland's overcrowded and congested Post Office facilities was being made here Wednesday by C. E. Curtis, postal inspector of San Antonio. The inspector had no comment on his findings, but said his report will be filed promptly with the Post Office Department.

He conferred with Postmaster Noel G. Oates and Chamber of Commerce Manager Delbert Downing.

The survey was ordered following a recent visit by Downing, School Supt. Frank Monroe, Congressman Ken Regan and representatives of Senators Tom Connally and Lyndon Johnson, with Post Office Department officials in Washington, D. C.

Downing, at the Washington conference, submitted a pictorial brief, calling attention to the inadequate Post Office facilities in Ever-Growing Midland. He was told a survey would be ordered and that every effort would be made to provide temporary relief from the overcrowded condition while plans for a long-range improvement project are being worked out.

The MATURE PARENT

Don't Drive Your Child Into A Poor Marriage

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Bob Allen was 23, he fell in love. His mother said, "She's pretty; but why doesn't she dress more quietly?" A little later, she said, "That play bridge? My, what kind of people does she come from?" Still later she said, "Suppose you were wrong on the name of the chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee. Girls who argue over politics with men can't have much respect for their opinions."

Bob married Sue. Their first serious quarrel was over the purchase of a yellow dress he thought was too "loud." Their tenth one was over Bob's accusation that Sue was using the baby as an excuse to give up her bridge lessons.

Their final break-up seemed due to a conflict over money matters. It was really due to Bob's conviction that wives who don't share all their husbands' opinions don't love or respect them.

If criticism of the people our children want to marry prevented their marrying, it might make sense, so far as we are concerned. It seldom does. Instead, it drives them into marriage. Then it makes their adjustment to marriage difficult and sometimes impossible.

We take a grave responsibility when we assume the right to decide who is the right or wrong person for our child to marry. Like Mrs. Allen, we may discover that we have misjudged the person whom we have criticized.

Sometimes we can discover it too late. Bob had been divorced and become an alcoholic when his mother realized that the girl she thought was the "wrong" wife for her son had been the "right" one after all.

In their 20's, children are not nearly so independent of our opinions as they—and we—like to believe. Our criticism of their choices of husbands and wives carries the weight of years of shared experience, affection and trust. When the honeymoon raptures are over, faults that otherwise would appear small and unimportant can loom, discouragingly large through the magnifying lens of our disapproval and prejudice.

Quiet Support of Love
If we have criticized the boys and girls our children marry, they may secretly hold us partly responsible when their marriages fail.

If our judgment is correct, and our son or daughter has chosen the wrong person to love, criticism is still unwise.

Finding fault with the girl a son loves forces him to an impassioned defense of her. To show us how wrong we are, he inflates and exaggerates her good qualities while he justifies and hides her bad ones. Our criticism distracts his attention and falls in its purpose.

It is not easy to hold fear in check when we believe Mary or Buck is about to make a marriage mistake. But if our love is bigger than our fear, we will do precisely that.

We will not stir up doubts of his ability to solve his problem wisely. We will not inflame him with resentment against us so that he seeks reassurance and understanding elsewhere. We will not arouse violent feelings toward us when he is already struggling with violent ones about somebody else. We will hold our tongues, giving him all the quiet support our love can muster.

If he does not marry, our attitude will win his gratitude and increased respect. If he marries, and his marriage fails, he will not blame us. If he marries, and his marriage succeeds, we shall have earned the right to the love of our two children. (All Rights Reserved, NEA Service, Inc.)

Film Personalities Appear In Midland

Hollywood, as a community, is no better than any other place—but it's certainly not any worse either. Peter Hanson, a promising young movie star from Paramount Studios told a large crowd Tuesday afternoon on the steps of the Midland County Courthouse.

Hanson appeared here with Chill Willis and John Barrymore, Jr., and four young starlets from Paramount's Golden Circle of promising actresses who are being groomed for stardom.

Celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the motion picture business, the group is part of a nationwide tour by motion picture stars who are attempting to give a singing box office a shot in the arm.

Chill Willis, who is perhaps more popularly known lately as the voice of "Francis," the talking mule, delighted the crowd with his homespun humor.

Midland Mayor Perry Pickett welcomed the stars to Midland before turning the show over to Conrad Brady, who was master of ceremonies.

Four attractive young actresses, Mary Murphy, Ann Robbin, Joe Ann Taylor and Virginia Hall, spoke briefly. Laura Elliott, a fifth member of the group was to have made the tour here, but had to turn back to Hollywood because of illness.

Called "Movietime in Texas U.S.A." the show was sponsored here by movie exhibitors.

Preacher Battalion Will Carry Gospel To Armed Forces

NEW YORK—(AP)—A battalion of preachers plan to visit the nation's military camps.

It will be the biggest drive to carry the gospel to the armed forces since World War II.

"The armed forces are ripe for a revival," said Maj. Gen. Roy H. Parker, chief of chaplains of the Army.

Week-long preaching missions, beginning early next January and lasting through February, are scheduled for 90 Army camps and 30 Naval bases.

Plans for the evangelistic drive were mapped by the general commission of chaplains, of Washington, and the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

It has the backing of about 40 Protestant and Orthodox denominations. Approximately 250 civilian clergymen, operating in three-man teams, will fan out to the various military posts.

Each preaching mission will open on a Sunday and continue through the following Friday night.

The programs will include mass meetings, discussion groups, individual counseling and conferences of team members with base chaplains.

Friends Are Too Important In Life To Drift Away From Them

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

"I'm not very good about keeping up with my friends." Have you ever made that admission?

If you have, what you are really saying is: "I don't bother much with being a good friend" and also, "I haven't as many friends as I might have, if I had only been less lazy about keeping in touch with them."

That is a common enough mistake and one that most of us make to some degree. But it is a costly one. For friends, real friends, are important to our wellbeing and happiness. And we are important to theirs.

We choose our friends for many different reasons. Because they think like we do. Or because they challenge us to do things differently. Because we have something to offer them. Or they have something to offer us.

Because they are fun to be with. Or because they are sympathetic and understanding. Because they have qualities we lack but admire. Or because they admire qualities in us and the admiration is heart-warming.

Friends Add Pleasure
We make friends for all these reasons. And all of them are important. For they all add to our pleasure in life, to our growth as individuals, and offer us the satisfaction of giving something of ourselves to others.

That is why we shouldn't let them drift away out of pure laziness or selfishness or by not caring enough to make an effort to keep in touch with them.

"I'm not very good about keeping up with my friends" isn't a confession we should make lightly. It is an important lack. And if we make that confession today, we should start trying tomorrow to change it.

Friends are too important to lose from laziness or neglect or from being too busy to bother. (All rights reserved, NEA Service, Inc.)

Reds Again Stalling On-Armistice Talks, Declares UN Chief

MUNSAI, KOREA.—(P)—The Alies Wednesday declared the Communists "are up to their old tricks of delaying" renewal of Korean truce talks.

"The Reds intend to make the going as sticky as possible," Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said in a Tokyo release.

The statement was issued a few hours after Ridgway's headquarters reported United Nations and Communist liaison officers had made "considerable progress" toward preparing for new armistice negotiations.

Liaison officers met twice Wednesday in Panmunjon, within sight of Allied shell explosions on a hillside in no-man's-land. A cloud of black smoke and dust covered the hill a few miles north of Panmunjon.

Liaison officers made "additional progress, however slight," UN truce headquarters here said in a release.

Shortly after liaison officers adjourned, Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, head of the UN truce delegation, flew back to Munsan from Tokyo.

There was no indication whether Joy brought back new instructions from Ridgway, with whom he conferred in Tokyo.

Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Craigie, another member of the five-man Allied truce delegation, remained in Tokyo. The others were in Munsan.

Taft Announcement Too Early, Declare Eisenhower Backers

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Senator Robert A. Taft's non-surprise announcement that he wants the 1952 Republican presidential nomination Wednesday drew a "too early" reaction from backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But there also was a feeling in the Ike-for-President camp that the general should announce his availability soon—provided he announces it at all—lest Taft get too long a head start in the race for national convention delegates.

Taft Tuesday became the first declared presidential candidate in either major party, announcing his intentions a full nine months ahead of the GOP nominating convention in Chicago.

The Ohio senator followed through by attacking the Truman Administration health program and spending policies, thus giving a forecast of the campaign he is likely to wage.

Speaking to the American Dental Association convention here last night, the senator proposed creation of a military-civilian commission to determine "just what is the economic capacity" of the nation to cope with defense spending.

He said he believes the projected output is "beyond what the program ought to be" and called it "a threat to the stability of the country."

MacArthur Assails Truman Policies In Address To Legion

MIAMI, FLA.—(P)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur Wednesday declared "You cannot profitably negotiate with Communists" and called for the use of greater military power in the Korean war.

In a ringing attack on the Administration's military policy, the ousted five-star general told the American Legion convention:

"We negotiate and negotiate and negotiate, never seeming to learn that you cannot profitably negotiate with Communist any more than you can with any other type of malefactor in civilized society.

"The only persuasion that will move them is the resistance to their abusive pressure by adequate counter-pressure."

The general did not call for a break-off in the Kaesong truce talks, but he left it clear he puts no faith in them and would open all-out war against the Reds in the Far East as the best way to get an agreement.

Plunging Toward Disaster

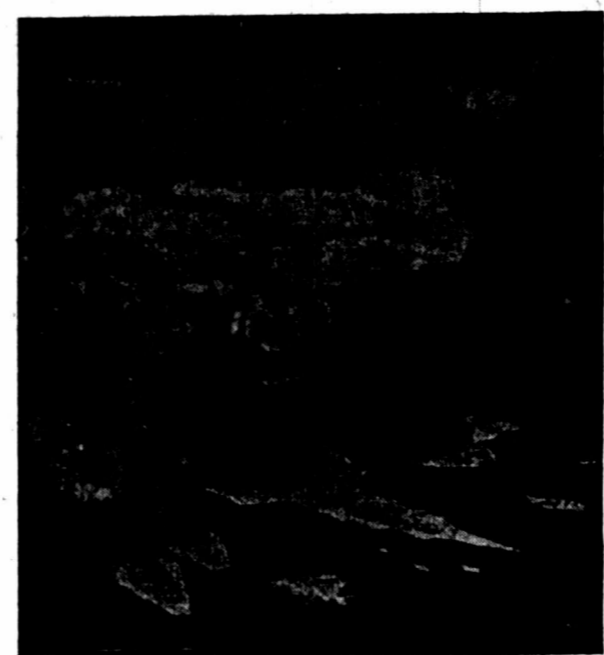

He also charged this nation is plunging toward socialism and economic disaster under the present national leadership and said the people will insist "that American policy be reoriented to American tradition, American thinking and American needs."

There had been some speculation that MacArthur would mention the presidential candidacy of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. But the general made no mention of Taft or the coming presidential election, although he assailed the Truman Administration policies.

Other highlights of the MacArthur address included:

1. A charge that he (MacArthur) had "unquestionably wrecked" a secret plan to let Formosa fall to the Communists and permit Red China to enter the United Nations.

2. A charge that there has been a "startling and dangerous shift" in basic U. S. military policy which forces the armed forces to "defend our blows" and send men to battle with neither promise nor hope of victory."

NOT SNOWDRIFTS, BUT "MOLD-DRIFTS" — This model "town," built on a large culture plate by GE engineers at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio, was left for a few days in a warm, humid atmosphere. Mold began to grow—the same kind Mama sometimes finds on stale bread. But a small germicidal lamp was left shining on the model. No mold grew where the lamp's ultraviolet light shone, but in the shadows cast by the buildings and trees, green and white mold grew rapidly and thickly. The effect was the same as in late winter, when snowdrifts in the shadows remain unaffected by the sun. So the "snowdrifts" in this picture are really "mold-drifts".

Citizenship Film Viewed By Lions

A film on citizenship, "Land of the Free," was shown to members of the Midland Lions Club at their luncheon meeting Wednesday in Hotel Scharbauer.

The program was brought to the club by District Governor Frankie Cochran of Odessa. Lions Brooks Harmon of Odessa presented the film.

James L. Daugherty was program chairman. J. P. (Kit) Carson presided. Invocation was by Ray Gwyn. Clayton Tatum was introduced as Junior Lion of the Week.

John Reid announced the Community Chest Drive of 1951 would begin in Midland next Tuesday. An appeal for campaign workers was made.

Farley Dates Set

District Governor Cochran announced May 18-20 as dates for the District 2-T-2 convention in El Paso. He said it would be a joint parley with District 2-T-1. Also he announced dates of the Lions International Convention in Mexico City would be changed to June 29-31.

H. F. Nutter, president of Lions International, will be in Odessa December 7 and Midland Lions are invited to attend a ladies night event there on the occasion.

Suez Area—

British forces left Ismailia by train Wednesday for Southern Egypt.

As for the Sudan, Mohammed Mur el Din, chief of one Ashigwa Party faction, said Sudanese would refuse to obey orders from the British Governor General, Sir Robert Howe. He said Howe "will not be able to find enough jails" to imprison all Sudanese who disobey British orders.

Ready For Trouble

The Egyptian press quoted another faction of the Ashigwa Party as saying all Sudanese—civilian and military—would support Egypt in the drive to throw the British out. The two factions have been reunited under the spur of Egypt's treaty cancellation.

Planes already were ferrying in British parachute troops from Cyprus to the Suez area to reinforce the garrison.

The British commander of the garrison, Lt. Gen. George Erskine, told his men in a broadcast Tuesday night, "We are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out of the canal zone area.

"We are not looking for trouble," he said, "but we shall deal with it quite firmly if we meet it."

Egypt's Premier Mustafa el Nahas Pasha, in a press statement, urged his people to remain calm. The rioting, he said, "could stand in the way of our national aspirations."

A report from the canal city of Ismailia said 300 Egyptian police were being dispatched by special train from Cairo to reinforce the 1,500 Egyptian police already there and that 300 others were being sent to Port Said. Tuesday's violence centered in these two cities.

Britain's garrison along the canal at present is estimated at 40,000 men, with 400 planes.

House Revolt

of Republicans and Southern Democrats which has become familiar in recent years. The Democrats who opposed the bill are, in the main, representatives of Northern and big-city districts. Most Southerners went along with the Administration.

Chorus Swells Swiftly

The leaders were baffled by the factors which caused the upset. The volume of "No" votes swelled swiftly as the rollcall went along. Some of those who voted against the bill confessed later they hadn't anticipated the actual outcome.

Leading Democrats trying to analyze the vote speculated that "a great many members simply oppose any tax increase at this time, and that others believe the boosts called for by the compromise bill were inequitable and poorly balanced."

Thus any new tax conference would face a difficult problem in resolving such conflicting interests. Representative Mills (D-Ariz.), one of the House conferees, remarked: "It would be difficult to write a bill that would satisfy a man who didn't want to vote for a tax bill."

Tuesday's action by the House did not kill the bill. It did set things back exactly to the stage reached weeks ago when the Senate returned the original $7,200,000,000 House increase. It revised that bill down to $5,400,000,000. Conference committee action upped this to $5,732,000,000, the figure voted on Tuesday.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means Committee moved immediately to ask the Senate for a new conference. The House agreed and the same seven conferees, headed by Doughton, were reappointed.

Unless a new conference can get together with unprecedented speed on a bill acceptable to both Houses, there is no chance that proposed increases in the individual income tax and excise (sales) taxes can be put into effect November 1, as planned.

Both Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee and Senator Millikin (R-Colo), senior Republican on that group, said they would not vote for any greater increase than the $5,732,000,000 which the House turned down.

And Senate Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.), his eye on adjournment Saturday, said: "If the conferees go back and can't agree, we are not going to sit around indefinitely waiting on them."

Some lawmakers said they thought the House, if given a second chance at the same bill, would pass it.

House Republican Leader Mills (Mass) said there is no use bringing back another tax bill this year, "because the House just won't pass it." He said the Administration ought to "show some sign of wanting to get down on spending."

Wallace Lashes Out At Budenz Charge He Followed Red Line

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Former Vice President Henry A. Wallace Wednesday denounced as "slander" and "nonsense" statements by ex-Communist Louis Budenz that Wallace made Communist-line recommendations after a 1944 mission to China.

"Far from following a line favorable to the Communists," Wallace declared, "my mission resulted in recommendations to the President which, if promptly followed, would have been most harmful to the Communist cause in China."

Wallace testified before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. The room was packed, and would-be spectators, unable to squeeze their way in, crowded around the door outside.

It was before the same Senate group that Budenz gave testimony that Wallace's recommendations followed the Communist line. Budenz is a former editor of the Communist newspaper "Daily Worker." He renounced communism several years ago and now is a professor of economics at Fordham University.

With Prepared Statement

Wallace came before the senators with a prepared statement in which he lashed out at Budenz's testimony as "aburd" and "an affront to the dignity" of the Senate.

"Never have I seen such unmitigated gall as that of this man (Budenz) in coming before a committee of the United States Senate to utter such nonsense," Wallace said.

Also called as a witness by the Senate subcommittee was Joseph Alsop, a newspaper columnist, who has assailed Budenz's testimony as "demonstrably false." Alsop served as an Air Force officer in the China Theater during the war.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), is searching for possible subversive influences on U.S. policies in the Far East.

McGee Can't Win In Sanity Hearing

Richard W. McGee can't win! The best he can hope for is to beat the electric chair.

And, if he does that, he is doomed to a grey existence in an insane asylum with the ominous shadow of death ever present on the wall of his padded cell.

That point was made clear this week as attorneys plodded through the tedious task of selecting a jury to sit in judgment at his sanity hearing now underway before Judge R. W. (Bob) Hamilton in 70th District Court.

The careful explanation of that fact and numerous others—which differ from court rules and procedures in normal criminal trials—has made the selection of the jury a lengthy and difficult process.

And, just how does this sanity hearing differ?

In the first place, McGee is not being tried for murder.

It was on July 7, 1948, he shot and killed R. L. Alliston in Lubbock when the grocery executive objected to the attentions the former Air Corps private was paying to his daughter, Betty Jane.

Tried, Convicted

In 1949, McGee was tried in the 72nd District Court in Lubbock. He pleaded in his defense that he was insane at the time of the shooting and insane at the time of the trial.

The 12-man jury pondered these defenses as they examined the evidence and listened to the testimony, finally rejecting both these pleas and convicting McGee of murder with malice.

His penalty was fixed at death in the electric chair.

The state's Court of Criminal Appeals subsequently upheld the verdict and October 31 was set as the date of the execution.

Subsequently, Defense Attorneys Burton S. Burks and E. A. Simpson filed an affidavit of insanity, and the Court of Criminal Appeals ordered the sanity trial.

In Texas, the law provides that no man shall be executed while he is in a state of insanity.

Thus the job of the present jury simply is to determine if McGee is sane or insane at this time. It cannot sit in judgment as to whether he is guilty of murder or was sane at the time of the killing or at the time of the trial.

In listening to the evidence in the sanity trial, they must consider the evidence differently than in normal criminal trials.

Dentists Lay Down Pointers To Parents

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Don't try to "bribe" your child into going to the dentist for the first time, mothers were advised Wednesday.

Reward him afterwards—if he behaves well—and praise him to his old man for being such a good soldier, a group of Rhode Island dentists suggested.

These were among "pointers to parents" suggested by the Rhode Island Society for Dentistry for children in an exhibit at the ninety-second meeting of the American Dental Association. Among others:

1. Tell the child what to expect. But don't use the word "hurt" in any way—not even to say "The dentist doesn't hurt."

2. Build up the child's faith in the dentist as a kind friend—"Your child trusts you; help him to trust his dentist."

3. "Take the child with you on a dental appointment of your own so he'll know what the place looks like, and meet the dentist before his own trip."

planes spotted the lights about 150 miles south of Sable Island about where the latest of three weak SOS signals were picked.

A spokesman here said the lights were described as resembling the ones attached to Mae West life preservers.

The two planes reported they weren't able to pinpoint the lights on a chart for benefit of surface craft because they were on only intermittently or were obscured at times by the rough seas.

The Coast Guard cutter McCulloch, also in the general vicinity, reported to its headquarters it spotted lights that resembled parachute flares.

The straitsfreighter with 11 crewmen aboard disappeared shortly after it left the Azores Monday, enroute to Westover Air Force Base.

The plane was equipped with Mae West life preservers and parachute flares, which gave rise to hopes that the lights spotted were used by its crewmen.

The SOS signals picked up earlier were so weak the nature of the calls or their definite origin could not be determined.

Mediterranean Gale Again Halts Fleet Maneuvers

ABOARD FLAGSHIP DES MOINES OFF BARDINIA.—(P)

A gale that whipped spray 100 feet high forced the Sixth Fleet again Wednesday to call off maneuvers planned for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Visibility was zero. Ferocious swells were whipped by wind gusts up to 62 miles an hour. Eisenhower holed up in his cabin as Vice Adm. Matthias Gardner ordered the fleet temporarily to suspend maneuvers.

The armada then was moving along the Sardinian Coast preparing to blast the uninhabited Aranci Peninsula with shore bombardment.

It was the second consecutive day sales had forced the Navy to call off the long-planned demonstration of the Navy's supreme Allied commander.

The weather man predicted the storm would continue Thursday, Eisenhower's last day at sea.

which had been scattered in the yard for squirrels.

Only a short time earlier the prisoners had shouted defiance from the cold, foggy exercise yard.

During the night, gunfire had driven back their ruses on the grocery storeroom and the power plant.

The revolt started late Tuesday, when all but 400 of the prison's 1,700 inmates refused to file into the mess hall for the evening meal. They protested a prison cook was filthy. They said they had too little clothing.

The mutineers for the first few hours were noisy but started no real violence. As the night chill and hunger pains overtook them—their last meal was at noontime—they tried their attacks.

Both assaults on the power plant and commissary were broken up by heaving firing by the guards. Some tear gas also was used. Some of the men were armed with crude knives and broken scissors, but they did not have an opportunity to use them.

Inquiry Ordered

After the firing stopped, prison officials inquired over the public address system if anyone was hurt.

A brief silence followed, then a single voice: "Nobody hurt."

After that it settled down to an endurance test, with neither side asking for a compromise.

A three-man committee had called on Warden Carl J. Eiken earlier in the day to complain about the cook and to ask for more clothes.

Two months ago, a petition signed by nine prisoners was smuggled out of the penitentiary. It complained of "vile, corrupt and unsanitary" conditions in the prison.

Just a few hours before the revolt occurred, Federal Judge William A. Baker named a panel of four Wheeling attorneys to make a preliminary investigation of the petition.

An announcement said the committee would be under chairmanship of Charles R. Hook, an active Episcopalian layman and chairman of Armco Steel Corporation, Middletown, Ohio.

The committee held its initial session Wednesday to hear a prepared statement from Dr. Roy G. Ross, associate general secretary of the National Council.

Dr. Ross said the council has a budget of more than $4,000,000 in business affairs, employs 500 persons, including 160 in executive status, and has more than 31,000,000 church members in its affiliates.

As such, he said, the council is "big business."

The council announcement said the committee is made up of business, financial and labor leaders, among them William Green, president of the AFL; Charles E. Wilson, director of defense mobilization; former Oregon Gov. Charles A. Sprague, publisher of the Salem (Ore.) Statesman; J. Howard Perry, Sun Oil Company director; Harvey Firestone, Jr., tire firm executive, and Grover Patterson, editor of the Toledo (Ohio) Blade.

Reds Again Stalling On Armistice Talks, Declares UN Chief

MUNSAN, KOREA.—(P)—The A. L. Hines Wednesday declared the Communists "are up to their old tricks of delaying" renewal of Korean truce talks.

"The Reds intend to make the going as sticky as possible," Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said in a Tokyo release.

The statement was issued a few hours after Ridgway's headquarters reported United Nations and Communist liaison officers had made "considerable progress" toward preparing for new armistice negotiations.

Liaison officers met twice Wednesday in Panmunjom, within sight of Allied shell explosions on a hillside in no-man's-land. A cloud of black smoke and dust covered the hill a few miles north of Panmunjom.

Liaison officers made "additional progress, however slight," UN truce headquarters here said in a release.

Shortly after liaison officers adjourned, Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, head of the UN truce delegation, flew back to Munsan from Tokyo.

There was no indication whether Joy brought back new instructions from Ridgway, with whom he conferred in Tokyo.

Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Craigie, another member of the five-man Allied truce delegation, remained in Tokyo. The others were in Munsan.

Taft Announcement Too Early, Declare Eisenhower Backers

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Senator Robert A. Taft's non-surprise announcement that he wants the 1952 Republican presidential nomination Wednesday drew a "too early" reaction from backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But there also was a feeling in the Ike-for-President camp that the general should announce his availability soon—provided he announces it at all—lest Taft get too long a head start in the race for national convention delegates.

Taft Tuesday became the first declared presidential candidate in either major party, announcing his intentions a full nine months ahead of the GOP nominating convention in Chicago.

The Ohio senator followed through by attacking the Truman Administration health program and spending policies, thus giving a foretaste of the campaign he is likely to wage.

Speaking to the American Dental Association convention here last night, the senator proposed creation of a military-civilian commission to determine "just what is the economic capacity" of the nation to cope with defense spending.

He said he believes the projected output is "beyond what the program ought to be" and called it "a threat to the stability of the country."

MacArthur Assails Truman Policies In Address To Legion

MIAMI, FLA.—(P)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur Wednesday declared "You cannot profitably negotiate with Communists" and called for the use of greater military power in the Korean war.

In a ringing attack on the Administration's military policy, the ousted five-star general told the American Legion convention.

"We negotiate and negotiate and negotiate, never seeming to learn that you cannot profitably negotiate with Communists any more than you can with any other type of malefactor in civilization."

"The only persuasion that will move them is the resistance to their abusive pressure by adequate counter-pressure."

The general did not call for a break-off in the Kaesong truce talks, but he left it clear he puts no faith in them and would open all-out war against the Reds in the Far East as the best way to get an agreement.

Plunging Toward Disaster

He also charged that the nation is plunging toward socialism and economic disaster under the present national leadership and said the people will insist "that American policy be reoriented to American tradition, American thinking and American needs."

There had been some speculation that MacArthur would mention the presidential candidacy of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. But the general made no mention of Taft or the coming presidential election, although he assailed the Truman Administration policies.

Other highlights of the MacArthur address included:

1. A charge that he (MacArthur) had "unquestionably wrecked" a secret plan to let Formosa fall to the Communists and permit Red China to enter the United Nations.
2. A charge that there has been a "startling and dangerous shift" in basic U. S. military policy which forces the armed forces to "soften our blows" and send men into battle with neither promise nor hope of victory.

Citizenship Film Viewed By Lions

Parley Dates Set

District Governor Cochran announced May 18-20 as dates for the District 2-T-2 convention in El Paso. He said it would be a joint parley with District 2-T-1. Also he announced dates of the Lions International Convention in Mexico City had been changed to June 23-28.

H. P. Nutter, president of Lions International, will be in Odessa December 7 and Midland Lions are invited to attend a ladies night event there on the occasion.

Suez Area—

British forces left Ismailia by train Wednesday for Southern Egypt.

As for the Sudan, Mohammed Mur el Din, chief of one Ashigga Party faction, said Sudanese would refuse to obey orders from the British Governor General, Sir Robert Howe. He said Howe "will not be able to find enough jails" to imprison all Sudanese who disobey British orders.

Ready For Trouble

The Egyptian press quoted another faction of the Ashigga Party as saying all Sudanese—civilian and military—would support Egypt in the drive to throw the British out. The two factions have been reunited under the spur of Egypt's treaty cancellation.

Planes already were ferrying in British parachute troops from Cyprus to the Suez area to reinforce the garrison.

The British commander of the garrison, Lt. Gen. George Erskine, told his men in a broadcast Tuesday night, "We are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out of the canal zone area."

"We are not looking for trouble," he said, "but we shall deal with it quite firmly if we meet it."

Egypt's Premier Mustapha el Nahas Pasha, in a press statement urged his people to remain calm. The rioting, he said, "could stand in the way of our national aspirations."

A report from the canal city of Ismailia said 300 Egyptian police were being dispatched by special train from Cairo to reinforce the 1,500 Egyptian police already there and that 300 others were being sent to Port Said. Tuesday's violence centered in these two cities.

Britain's garrison along the canal at present is estimated at 40,000 men, with 400 planes.

House Revolt

of Republicans and Southern Democrats which has become familiar in recent years. The Democrats who opposed the bill are, in the main, representatives of Northern and big-city districts. Most Southerners went along with the Administration.

Chorus Swells Swiftly

The leaders were baffled by the factors which caused the upset. The volume of "No" votes swelled swiftly as the rollcall went along. Some of those who voted against the bill confessed later they hadn't anticipated the actual outcome.

Leading Democrats trying to analyze the vote speculated that a great many members simply oppose any tax increase at this time, and that others believe the boosts called for by the compromise bill were inequitable and poorly balanced.

Thus any new tax conference would face a difficult problem in resolving such conflicting interests.

Representative Mills (D-Ark.), one of the House conferees, remarked: "It would be difficult to write a bill that would satisfy a man who didn't want to vote for a tax bill."

Tuesday's action by the House did not kill the bill. It did set things back exactly to the stage reached weeks ago when the Senate returned the original $7,200,000,000 House increase. It revised that bill down to $5,400,000,000. Conference committee action upped this to $5,732,000,000, the figure voted on Tuesday.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means Committee moved immediately to ask the Senate for a new conference. The House agreed and the same seven conferees, headed by Doughton, were reappointed.

Bill May Be Jeal

Unless a new conference can get together with unprecedented speed on a bill acceptable to both Houses, there is no chance that proposed increases in the individual income tax and excise (sales) taxes can be put into effect November 1, as planned.

Both Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee and Senator Millikin (R-Colo), senior Republican on that group, said they would not vote for any greater increase than the $5,732,000,000 which the House turned down.

And Senate Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz), his eye on adjournment Saturday, said: "If the conferees go back and can't agree, we are not going to sit around indefinitely waiting on them."

Some lawmakers said they thought the House, if given a second chance at the same bill, would pass it.

But House Republican Leader Martin (Mass) said there is no use bringing back another tax bill this year "because the House just won't pass one." He said the Administration ought to "show some sign of wanting to cut down on spending."

McGee Can't Win In Sanity Hearing

By COPE BOUTH

Richard W. McGee can't win! The best he can hope for is to beat the electric chair.

And, if he does that, he is doomed to a grey existence in an insane asylum with the ominous shadow of death ever present on the wall of his padded cell.

That point was made clear this week as attorneys plodded through the tedious task of selecting a jury to sit in judgment at his sanity hearing now underway before Judge R. W. (Bob) Hamilton in 70th District Court.

The careful explanation of that fact and numerous others—which differ from court rules and procedures in normal criminal trials—has made the selection of the jury a lengthy and difficult process.

In the first place, McGee is not being tried for murder.

It was on July 7, 1948, he shot and killed R. L. Allston in Lubbock when the grocery executive objected to the attentions the former Air Corps private was paying to his daughter, Betty Jane.

Tried, Convicted.

In 1949, McGee was tried in the 72nd District Court in Lubbock. He pleaded in his defense that he was insane at the time of the shooting and insane at the time of the trial.

The 12-man jury pondered these defenses as they examined the evidence and listened to the testimony, finally rejecting both of these pleas and convicting McGee of murder with malice.

The state's Court of Criminal Appeals subsequently upheld the verdict and October 31 was set as the date of the execution.

In Texas, the law provides that no man shall be executed while he is in a state of insanity.

Thus the job of the present jury simply is to determine if McGee is sane or insane at this time. It cannot sit in judgment as to whether he is guilty of murder or was sane at the time of the killing or at the time of the trial.

In listening to the evidence in the sanity trial, they must consider the evidence differently than in normal criminal trials.

For instance, in a criminal trial, the state must prove a defendant's guilt "beyond a reasonable doubt." In this case, the burden of proof is on the defendant and he must prove insanity, not "beyond a reasonable doubt" but merely by "a preponderance of evidence." There is a vast difference. Instead of having to show overwhelming evidence, the mere tilting of the scales one way or the other will decide the issue.

Both sides undoubtedly will parade psychiatrists and other professionals to the witness stand, along with lay witnesses who merely have observed McGee, demeanor over a period of years.

If the jury decides McGee is sane, he will continue to face his October 31 date with the electric chair.

If the jury decides McGee is insane, he will be committed to the insane asylum.

And he will remain there the rest of his life—unless, at any time, the head of the mental institution reports McGee again is sane.

Then, he again will go through the process of a sanity hearing.

Whether, it is next month or 20 years from now, if he is ever adjudged sane, his execution will proceed.

Richard W. McGee can't win!

Dentists Lay Down Pointers To Parents

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Don't try to "bribe" your child into going to the dentist for the first time, mothers were advised Wednesday.

Reward him afterwards—if he behaves well—and praise him to his old man for being such a good soldier, a group of Rhode Island dentists suggested.

These were among "pointers to parents" suggested by the Rhode Island Society for Dentistry for children in an exhibit at the ninety-second meeting of the American Dental Association. Among others:

1. Tell the child what to expect. But don't use the word "hurt" in any way—not even to say "The dentist doesn't hurt."
2. Build up the child's faith in the dentist as a kind friend—"Your child trusts you; help him to trust his dentist."
3. Take the child with you on a dental appointment of your own so he'll know what the place looks like, and meet the dentist before his own trip.

planes spotted the lights about 150 miles south of Sable Island about where the latest of three weak SOS signals were picked.

A spokesman here said the lights were described as resembling the ones attached to Mae West life preservers.

The two planes reported they weren't able to pinpoint the lights on a chart for benefit of surface craft because they were on only intermittently or were obscured at times by the rough seas.

The Coast Guard cutter McCulloch, also in the general vicinity, reported to its headquarters it spotted lights that resembled parachute flares.

The aircraft carrier with 11 crewmen aboard disappeared shortly after it left the Azores Monday, enroute to Westover Air Force Base.

The plane was equipped with Mae West life preservers and parachute flares, which gave rise to hopes that the lights spotted were used by its crewmen.

The SOS signals picked up earlier were so weak the nature of the calls or their definite origin could not be determined.

Mediterranean Gale Again Halts Fleet Maneuvers

ABOARD FLAGSHIP DES MOINES OFF SARDINIA.—(P)—A gale that whipped spray 100 feet high forced the Sixth Fleet again Wednesday to call off maneuvers planned for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Visibility was zero. Ferocious swells were whipped by wind gusts up to 62 miles an hour. Eisenhower holed up in his cabin as Vice Adm. Matthias Gardner ordered the fleet temporarily to suspend maneuvers.

The armada then was moving along the Sardinian Coast preparing to blast the uninhabited Aranci Peninsula with a shore bombardment.

It was the second consecutive day gales had forced the Navy to call off the long-planned demonstration of Naval might for the supreme Allied commander.

The weather man predicted the storm would continue Thursday, Eisenhower's last day at sea.

Texas Backs Named Best In Country

NEW YORK—(AP)—A pair of aces from down Texas way took all the chips Wednesday as the best backs of the week in The Associated Press poll.

The winners were Fred Benner, Southern Methodist's one-man aerial offensive who passed for four touchdowns and 336 yards against Notre Dame, and Bobby Dillon of Texas, who made the key defensive play in the bitter Texas-Oklahoma battle.

As might be expected, Benner drew most of the praise in ballots sent in by sportswriters and broadcasters.

Although he's been filling the Southwest air with footballs for several seasons, Benner enjoyed his greatest day against the amazed Irish last Saturday. Unhurried and unruffled, Benner completed 22 of 42 passes.

Dillon's performance was just as outstanding defensively as he provided the winning points in Texas' 9-7 win over Oklahoma. Safetyman Dillon came up fast to tackle Sooner Halback Frank Silva in the end zone for a safety as Silva attempted to run out a wild backward pass, from Quarterback Eddie Crowder.

Dillon also returned two punts 59 yards, intercepted a pass and ran it back 16 yards and made several important tackles in the safety position.

Other backs nominated included Carl Mayes of Texas, Larry Isbell of Baylor and Junior Arterburn of Texas Tech.

Selection of the backfield stars came after rampaging Bob Ward of Maryland was named Tuesday as offensive and defensive lineman of the week for his great play in Maryland's 43-7 win over Georgia.

Phil Wrigley Goes Before Committee

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Phil Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs and the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League team, was Wednesday's top-billed witness before congressmen investigating whether baseball is a monopoly.

The House Judiciary subcommittee handling the probe centered all day Tuesday on the farm system, and in particular the Pacific Coast League.

Leslie O'Connor, a Chicago lawyer who is counsel for the Pacific League, was the chief witness.

O'Connor said the farm system is "on its way" to destroying the structure of organized baseball. This, he said, was because the farm system allows major teams to hold down good players (if a farm club, for instance, signs a good second baseman, but the major club already has one, the former may be put into "cold storage"); and because minor league farm teams lose revenue through inability to sell players.

The farm system allows major league teams to own, or control, minor league teams.

BAD MANNERS FOR HOSTS

Purple Tunes Up For Loop Opener

The Midland Bulldogs tuned up their reshuffled lineup in Tuesday workouts, trying to work up a smooth attack for the opening conference with Lamesa High School in Memorial Stadium. The game will be played October 26, and the Bulldogs are idle this week.

Coch Tugboat Jones had Freddy Bilbo working at the blocking back slot, Larry Friday at fullback, M. A. Rose and Jesse Hatfield alternating at the tailback position with Roy Kimsey and Johnny Kennedy dividing time at wingback.

"Kimsey has been showing steady improvement at wingback," Jones said Wednesday, "and Hatfield and Rose are nip and tuck for the tailback spot."

Line Standouts
He said Terry Fuglaar, reserve guard, and Tackle Bobby (Red) East were line standouts in the Tuesday drills.

Robert Keisling, although playing with a severe cold, caught several passes from his end position with Friday on the throwing end.

Friday and Bill Leonard, tackle, were named by their teammates as captains for the contest with Lamesa.

Denton Ryerley, letterman guard who failed to show up for practice Monday, was on hand Tuesday but didn't work out due to a cold. He was to rejoin the team in action Wednesday.

Work against the T formation also highlighted the Tuesday drills. Overall, the coaches were pleased with the session, although Jones said "We have a long way to go before that opening conference game."

Hoople Turns To Schultz Law Of Mathematical Progression

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Old Blue
Egad! Like lions leaping upon a fallen gladiator—

Like wolves pouncing upon a mighty stag at bay—

Like footpads robbing a drunk in an alley—

Like orges snatching candy from a babe—

That is how some of my jacked readers have been prying upon me because on a recent Saturday I chanced to pick more losers than winners for the first time in my brilliant career!

One of the more-insulting scribbled:

"Why don't you go back to picking walnuts off cakes?" Another crass person wrote: "We've got rich off your selections—betting against them!" Another vents his spleen: "Your selections are the worst since George Bernard Shaw picked Carpenter to beat Dempsey!"

This you beheld me swirling in a Johnston flood of insults from those craven mites who lurk in the shadows waiting for the leader to weaken.

But I am not weakening, and my strength is as the strength of 10. I will continue to pick a perfect card. Har-umph!

I've found a new system, by the way, sure-fire, consistent and supreme.

It is the Schultz Law of the Mathematical Progression of Automobile Numbers.

Read the forecast, paste it in your hat, and swear by it, men:

N'Western Coach Has Defensive Key

EVANSTON, ILL.—(AP)—Coach Bob Voigts of unbeaten Northwestern has an explanation for the free-scoring contests popping up everywhere on the collegiate football front. It's this:

The two-platoon system, coupled with military inroads on personnel, has prompted many coaches to break in their rookies on defense (where they have less to learn) and use their old hands on offense.

So veteran players are scoring and novices can't stop 'em.

So far as his own surprising, if comparatively green Wildcats are concerned, Voigts has tried to keep seasoned performers at key defensive jobs.

The result is that Northwestern Saturday takes against Navy at Dwyce Stadium a record of yielding only 25 points in three straight wins over Colorado, Army and Minnesota.

Reynolds, who is 33 years old, was bothered by the chips all last season, although he finished with a 17-8 record and won one world series game against the New York Giants.

Lee Mackey, who shot a 64 in the first round of the 1950 National Open tournament at Barton, shot an 84 in the first round at Oakland Hills, Birmingham, Mich., this year.

PUTTIN' ON THE DOG.—When the chips are down Helen Dettweiler, one of the nation's top women golfers, can be depended upon to come through. She proved this while practicing for the recent Women's National Open at Atlanta, Ga. Chips, the poodle, squatted between Helen's ball and the hole. With a flick of the wrists, Miss Dettweiler flipped the ball into the cup. (NEA)

Wink, McCamey, Pecos Picked To Win Grid Contests

By LARRY KING
Reporter-Telegram Sports Editor

Conference clashes highlight play in Texas schoolboy football this weekend, with West Texas teams cranking up for another round of family squabbles.

The big one in West Texas is the Seminole-Pecos go in Pecos Friday night, with the winner due to make things rough on other 8-A elevens. Both teams have three wins.

And the state for other choices: El Paso High 40, Jefferson El Paso 7, Arlington Heights (FW) 21, Fort Worth Tech 7, Poly (FW) 20, North Side (FW) 13, Paschal (FW) 21, Riverside (FW) 0, Adamson (D) 13, Crozier Tech (D) 6, Wichita Falls 13, Waco 7, Tyler 7, Highland Park 6, Texarkana 13, Denison 0, Port Arthur 20, Pasadena 6, Brownwood 21, Stephenville 13, Weatherford 13, Graham 0, Grand Prairie 14, Gainesville 6, Marshall 19, Paris 7, Kilgore 6, Bryan 0, Comroe 20, Freepport 7, Colorado City 14, Anson 7.

Midland's C Bulldogs will play the Stanton B team at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in Stanton in a game that could go either way, but will take Midland by a touchdown.

Stanton's varsity plays O'Donnell Friday night in Stanton, with the visitors given a 13 to 6 edge.

Wildcats Favored
Wink's powerful Wildcats of District 5-A should maul Fort Stockton, 41 to 0; McCamey should have enough to subdue bitter-rival Crane, 21 to 12; Big Lake should upend Marfa, 13 to 0, and Iran should roll over Alpine, 27 to 0.

Odessa plays host to San Angelo, and the powerful Bronchos probably will take this one by any margin they desire. Make it 48 to 0.

Ablene and Pampa tangle in a headline in District 1-A-AAA, with both unbeaten. Pampa has the home field edge, but Ablene gets the nod, 21 to 14, in a battle of two fine clubs. Lubbock should have little trouble with Borger, since the Bulldogs were smeared by Odessa last week, 53 to 13. Anything Odessa can do, Lubbock can do, so make it 47 to 14, Westerners.

Amarillo should have recovered from its loss to Lubbock enough to take little Ysleta, 20 to 7.

Three teams play in District 1-A-AAA this week. Sweetwater should have a 26-6 margin over visiting Childress and Plainview is a 27 to 14 favorite over Austin of El Paso. Big Spring, without a victory this year, has a chance to break into the win column at the expense of Little Haskell in a game to be played in Big Spring. Give the nod to the Steers, 19 to 13.

Keith Lane Goes To Wayland College

PLAINVIEW—(AP)—Keith Lane quit the University of Oklahoma Tuesday because he has to help support his family.

Then he enrolled at Wayland College here.

Lane, 18, was one of the most sought-after basketball players in the Southwest last year while playing for Berger High School.

Basketball Coach Bruce Drake at Oklahoma said the freshman basketball player told him he withdrew because his father, an invalid, lost his job and he had to help support the family.

His father lives at Albuquerque, N. M.

Reynolds Velos Elbow Operation

NEW YORK—(AP)—If Alie Reynolds has his way, his right elbow will continue sounding like a pair of castnets next season.

The chief, first pitcher in American League history to hurl two no-hit games in one season, has decided not to have his elbow operated on for removal of some loose bone chips. For the last months, he has been planning the surgery.

"I was pitching too well down the stretch this last season to take a chance on an operation now," he said Tuesday, in revealing his plans to the New York Yankees. "Naturally Dr. (George) Bennett cannot guarantee the result of an operation. As a matter of fact, he says the elbow is most improved over what it was last Spring."

Reynolds said he plans to give it a full test in an exhibition game Sunday, and if things go as he expects them to, he will skip the operation.

Reynolds, who is 33 years old, was bothered by the chips all last season, although he finished with a 17-8 record and won one world series game against the New York Giants.

Lee Mackey, who shot a 64 in the first round of the 1950 National Open tournament at Barton, shot an 84 in the first round at Oakland Hills, Birmingham, Mich., this year.

This corner, for one, is becoming a bit short tempered with the would-be saviors who would "clean up" college athletics in general and football in particular.

The latest to bite the hand that fed him is an ex-U of Michigan tackle who picked up a neat bit of change from a national magazine for taking slams at his alma mater for paying his way through college.

Having discovered some years ago that no longer do athletes do or die just for the glory of suffering for dear ole Siwash, we don't expect collegiate athletics to be lily-pure. Neither, however, do we think they are as black as they have been painted recently since the collegiate cage scandal broke in the East.

To be sure, that little incident can't be brushed off simply as a prank by playful boys. But we regard it more as the greed of a few rather than the typical attitude of many.

Nor are we sure that the younger generation is going to hell simply because it plays football for its three squares a day while in college.

The chief argument of those who would "clean up" the present situation is this: Football takes up too much time and doesn't leave enough time for studying.

While this might be true in a sense, we note many graders at top-flight "football" schools are honor students. Some, actually, take courses designed to teach them something in spite of the popular opinion that athletes aren't allowed to sign up for anything requiring more mental prowess than drop-the-handkerchief.

Many football players graduate with honors and are successful in their chosen fields.

Too, the halubalo about the grid game killing all the time for study is magnified out of proportion.

Say an average of 100 boys per school play football—in some, more in some less. But the 100 is an approximate average and the rest of the student body hardly is kept from its studies by the minority.

Then, how many of the boys in college to play football would have gone on to further their education without the benefit of grid scholarships? Probably a very few.

In fact, many boys continue through high school only because they can play the grid game.

Sure, colleges are recruiting, trying to win and spending plenty of the folding stuff in the process—but they are making money, too, and for every kid the game hurts it will help a dozen.

Show us a school which hasn't a football team, and we'll show you a school with more problems than Notre Dame or any other grid power.

That's why we're tired of the hue and cry to "kill college football." When you do, you've killed something in the colleges.

College Basketball Scandal May Spread

NEW YORK—(AP)—The college basketball scandal is expected to spread to more schools and players, according to Assistant District Attorney Vincent O'Connor.

O'Connor made this assertion Tuesday following the arrest of Joseph Benintende, 42, alleged king pin of a basketball "fix" ring.

O'Connor, however, gave no indication as to how many colleges or players might be involved, or when details would be made public.

The scandal so far has involved 31 players from six teams, Bradley, Toledo, CCNY, Manhattan, Long Island University and New York University.

Benintende was indicted August 17 on a bribery charge in connection with an alleged fix attempt of the 1950 NCAA championship game between CCNY and Bradley.

Irish, SMU Set Two Pass Marks

NEW YORK—(AP)—Southern Methodist's victory over Notre Dame last Saturday caused statisticians to scurry for their record books to find out if more passes ever were thrown in a single game. There weren't.

Figures released Wednesday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau revealed that two new records were set. It was the first time that two major teams have tossed 40 or more passes against each other, and the two-team total of 89 passes set a new mark for passing in one game.

The Mustangs flipped 45 times, and the Irish came right back with 44 of their own while winding up on the short end of a 27-20 count.

Southern Methodist's total of 45 was the third highest in history eclipsed only by Loyola of Los Angeles' 50 and SMU's 47, both last year.

Loyola has been throwing an average of 41.5 passes per game. The record for one season is 21 set by Arkansas in 1937.

Meanwhile, Tulsa and College of Pacific took over the total offense and rushing offense leadership, respectively. Already the leading scorers of the country, Tulsa piled up 555 yards in whipping Houston last week to shove their yardage up to 47.4 per cent per game, and skyrocket from seventh place to the top.

College of Pacific looks at things in a little different light than Loyola. The Tigers have struck close to the good earth, and have piling up 1,517 yards along the ground against only 171 yards overhead. The rushing averages 379.3 yards per game.

Tulsa also is at the top of the class in the scoring department. With 129 points in three games for an average of 46.3 per game, Maryland is second with an average of 42.5 compiled on 130 points in three games.

Betting Odds Rise Against Return Of Labor Government

LONDON —(AP)— Heavy betting on Winston Churchill and his Conservative Party to win the October 25 British election drove the odds still longer against the Labor government Wednesday.
In the books of Douglas Stuart,
one of the nation's biggest bet takers, backers of Prime Minister Atlee's Labor Party can put up two pounds to win seven pounds. Conservative supporters must bet nine pounds to win two pounds.
The odds reflect the weight of betting money on both sides, not the bookies' opinions, a Stuart spokesman said. A few days ago
Stuart was offering three to one against Labor and one to four
against the Conservatives.
In the last general election, in February, 1950, betting odds proved an accurate indicator of the outcome. The handbooks then made the Labor government a four to six favorite and offered six to five
against the Conservatives.
The odds were close and so was the election. Atlee scraped home with a thin overall majority of six seats in the 625-seat House of Commons.

Recovery was 900 feet of salt wa-

Three-Day Search For Kidnaped Baby Produces No Clues

MICHIGAN CITY, IND. —(AP)—
Police Wednesday turned to factory and business absentee records in their search for a clue to the disappearance of a four-day-old baby.
They planned to question all absentees on their whereabouts at dusk Saturday, when Lawrence
James Lyons vanished from his crib at St. Anthony Hospital.
A three-day search of the city
by 2,000 volunteers ended late Tuesday. They had poked into trash cans and sewers and combed the nearby dunelands without result.
The distraught mother, Mrs.
Francis Lyons, 37, offered the theory that the baby might have been taken by agents for a Chicago "baby black market" ring. She gave police a letter she had received, containing clippings of magazine stories about such rackets.
Reward Total Grows
The total of rewards offered for the baby's return neared $3,000.
Police checked several reports of mysterious women seen carrying small babies, but they got no clues.
The father, James Lyons, 37, appeared on a Chicago television broadcast to appeal for the return of the baby.
The child was Mrs. Lyons's first,
born by Caesarian section October
9. He disappeared from his crib in the middle of a row in the fourth floor of the hospital. Police have found no motive for the kidnap-ing.
Lyons, who operates a filling station, said he had no enemies and no money to tempt a kidnaper.

Youth Sought For Questioning In Mother's Slaying

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— Police of four midwest states Wednesday hunted a 16-year-old high school boy, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of his mother Tuesday.
Object of the search is Robert
Farrington Pett, a black-haired,
190-pound youth. Sheriff Lester
Melcher said Robert had been missing since the body of his mother, Mrs. Mary R. Pett, 51, was found on a bed in the Pett's suburban Christmas Lake home. She had been stabbed, shot and beaten.
The sheriff said young Pett may be accompanied by Reginald Frost, 16, a neighbor of the family. Frost's father reported his son missing after a call from Pett Monday night. Authorities in Minnesota, Wisconsin,
Illinois and Iowa were asked to aid in the search.
Harris C. Pett, husband of the victim, told police he believed his son took a Dodge car owned by the family, gray in color and bearing Minnesota license plates 300-455.
Pett, regional manager for the Railroad Retirement Board, was absent
when his wife was slain.
Mrs. Pett's body was discovered by a housekeeper. The sheriff said she had been stabbed 17 times with two butcher knives, both of which produced from her body, beaten with a length of bamboo fishpole which was broken by the attack, and shot with a .22 caliber rifle.
"Co" is the chemical symbol for cobalt.

Furniture Movers Hand $1,000 Cash Bonanza To Police

NEW YORK —(AP)— Two furniture movers, who had only $1.01 in cash between them, walked into a police station and handed an astonished police lieutenant $1,000
they had found in a sofa.
"Here," they said, "we don't want this on our conscience. We'd like to see the real owner get it."
The men, Peter Daly, 38, and his assistant, Joseph Daly, 26, a cousin, said they found the money in an envelope while moving a sofa belonging to H. Nelson Slater of Fifth Avenue. They were told the money will be returned to them if no one claims it in 90 days.

Eleven U. S. Planes Explore Supersonic Airways Newest One Will Fold Back Its Wings During Flight

Northrop X-4: One of the smallest planes built for USAF.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—America now has 11 experimental airplanes designed to explore still-unsolved mysteries involved in flying faster than the speed of sound.

The latest to be announced, the X-5, built by Bell Aircraft Corp. of Buffalo, N. Y., is probably the most startling feature is a wing which can fold back in flight to change the sweep-back angle.

According to flight plans for the tiny plane, it will test the feasibility of taking off and climbing with the wing straight, and then sweeping it back for penetration of the sonic barrier into speeds faster than sound (760-miles-per-hour at sea level).

Much of what has been learned during three intensive years of experiments with supersonic speeds has gone into the design of the X-5. Powered with a turbo-jet engine, it is 33 feet four inches long, has a wing span of 31 feet nine inches, is 12 feet high and weighs approximately 10,000 pounds.

Bell X-5: The folding wings are more important than speed.

Under Own Power
Although the X-5 has not yet been flown, it is planned to test it by taking it off under its own power. The X-1, first supersonic experimental plane, and first aircraft to cross the sonic barrier and survive, was lifted into the air in the belly of a B-29 and then dropped for a free flight at a very high altitude. Its rocket motor could only supply power for about three minutes. The X-5 will have power for considerably longer than that.

Just how fast the X-5 is expected to fly is a secret. Air Force spokesmen say that testing the variable-

Japanese Television Will Begin In 1952

TOKYO—(AP)—The Japan Broadcasting Corporation will begin television broadcasts four hours daily beginning April 1, 1952.

Studios will be set up in the present JBC radio stations in Tokyo and Osaka. Programs will be transmitted on 10 kilowatt beams from towers constructed on top of the two stations. The decision to begin broadcasts next Spring was made after an announcement that a commercial TV broadcasting station would be constructed by private interests early next year.

The JBC broadcasts will be strictly on an experimental basis. Tentative plans call for the use of mobile sets in various districts to give the people of Tokyo and Osaka a chance to see the programs. Only a few TV sets are privately owned in Japan now. Most of them were bought in anticipation of TV broadcasts in the near future.

Red Lesser Lights Get New Playground

VIENNA—(AP)—The lesser lights of international communism have a new Summer playground. While the top leaders spend their vacations in Moscow or at Russia's resorts around the Crimea and the Black Sea, the second-fiddle boys go to Hungary.

The huge hotels and Summer resorts along the shores of the 50-mile long Lake Balaton, once a gathering point for East Europe's elite, have been converted to rest centers for weary Communists from West Europe. Hungarian newspapers recently revealed that among those sojourning on the shores of the lake were Communists from West Germany, Norway, France and Belgium.

Businesses Lighten Residents' Tax Load

CHICAGO—(AP)—Suburban home owners can lighten their tax loads by encouraging, rather than opposing, the establishment of desirable businesses in their communities.

This is the contention of Stephen Porter, writing in Review, publication of the Society of Residential Appraisers. A director of the Westchester Court (N. Y.) Realty Board, Porter explains that in suburban communities without industry, practically the entire tax burden falls on home owners.

Mysteries Are Career For Editor

AP Newsfeatures
NEW YORK—It is fortunate that Lee Wright likes mystery stories. To earn a pretty penny, Miss Wright must read some 250 of them each year—in manuscript—and just about all the published output, which is considerable.

Lee Wright, who is brunette, fun and who admires writers, is the editor of Inner Sanctum Mysteries, a branch of a major publishing house.

She is pretty catholic in her tastes, as indeed she would have to be as the person who picks and chooses among the manuscripts which pour onto her desk. The only type of mystery she personally dislikes is the one where the heroine is forever hearing a funny noise in an abandoned house, dark cellar or deserted stables and immediately goes there. Miss Wright refers to these distastefully as "girl-in-the-attic" mysteries, but that doesn't mean she won't put her okay on a good one if it rolls along.

Reading an endless succession of mystery stories can be a grim vocation, but there are some wonderful compensations. There was the day, for instance that a literary agent threw 25,000 words of an unpublished writer on her desk. It was by an unknown named Craig Rice and the finished novel was called "Eight Faces Three."

Then there was the day that two chapters of an unfinished work landed on her desk. It was the opening of "The G-String Murders," by one Gypsy Rose Lee, hitherto known for an activity somewhat afield from letters.

Miss Wright got into the editing business by a fairly direct route. Her father was a New York restaurateur, but her mother thought it would be a good idea to have a book business. They started the Wright Library.

By running a lending library, Miss Wright decided that knowing people was more important than knowing books. She got so good at knowing people that she could almost invariably pick a book for a customer that he would enjoy.

Very few people have ever gotten rich writing mystery stories. Miss Wright figures about 90 per cent of the editions go into rental libraries and only 10 per cent of them bought for private use. The average mystery story runs to about

Malaya Exports Still Skyrocket

SINGAPORE—(AP)—Malaya's exports are still skyrocketing. Shipments to foreign countries in August exceeded $146,000,000. That was $10,000,000 more than in the preceding month.

Malaya had a favorable trade balance of almost $26,000,000 in August. This compared with July's $5,100,000 and June's $42,000,000.

Vegetarian Beetle Helps Destroy Weeds

SALT LAKE CITY—(AP)—A type of strictly vegetarian beetle is helping destroy a noxious range-damaging weed found north of the Salmon River.

The weed—called goatweed, St. Johnswort or Klamath, depending on the section of the country—has crowded out desirable plants on two million acres of western grazing land.

The beetles are fussy, too. Imported from California via Australia, they devour all the goatweed—and only goatweed—in sight and then conveniently lie down and die.

Chinese 'Bandits' Are Suppressed

HONG KONG—(AP)—Communist authorities in South China are boasting that 261,686 bandits or guerrillas were killed or captured during the first six months of 1951. The South China military command's report on Red China's "bandit suppression campaign" said most of the dissidents were "inactivated" in Kwangsi Province, which borders Northeast Indochina.

The report listed the capture of thousands of weapons and even such things as "20 telephone switchboards, 449 telephones, four radios, 449 telephones, and 29 telescopes." It didn't say what the guerrillas would be doing with telephone switchboards in a land noted for the scarcity of such items.

In England, during 1708, coal was sold for as little as 50 cents a ton at the pithead.

4,500 copies, but of course if one of the mystery book clubs picks it up, it runs higher.

It is sad but true that most mystery writers make a total of around $1,250 for their book, and do other work, like writing radio scripts or for the pulp magazines, to supplement their incomes.

Prussian Spirit No Longer Desired

BONN, GERMANY—(AP)—Members of Parliament here are planning to eliminate the Prussian spirit from any future German armed force.

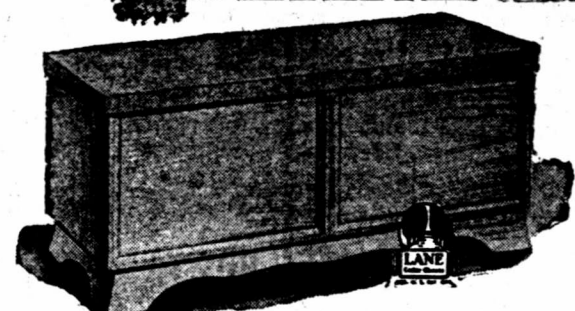

Informal discussions are being held between members of leading political parties to draw up a new code that substitutes civil rights and democratic respect for the individual for the bullying methods of the old German Army. The deputies recognize the need for discipline but want to get rid of the haughty officer caste system, brutal punishments and victimization of subordinates who complain of injustice.

Better Luck Next Time

The abortive revolt of a group of army officers against Argentina's dictator, Juan Peron, has some curious angles. Quickly suppressed, it was perhaps the least successful rebellion in Argentine history.

More than 70 Argentine officers escaped by plane to nearby Uruguay. One rebel leader among them said plans for the revolt had been considered "foolproof" but that "something went wrong."

It is axiomatic in Argentine politics that the army is key to any leader's continuance in office—or his accession to command. That's how Peron gained power initially.

Knowing Peron for the complete autocrat he is, none of this really can come as a surprise to the world of free men.

Every man always gets just what he wanted for his birthday—and then sneaks downtown to exchange it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson (Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — The two old tyrants of the Senate, McKellar, of Tennessee and McCarran, of Nevada, tried to browbeat the nation's top secret out of Atomic Energy Chairman Gordon Dean the other day.

Later McKellar got back to the number of bombs again. "Now we made you trustees last year, and we appropriated all of this money for you. Sure you can tell us what you have done with it," persisted the aged Tennesseean.

That does not answer the question, exploded McKellar. "How

In their hearts administration leaders want to force on foreign peoples through the use of American money and even, perhaps, American arms, the policies which moral leadership is able to advance only through the sound strength of its principles and the force of its persuasion.

"If you would trust an order of magnitude answer," Dean tried again to placate the grizzled Tennesseean.

"What doesn't mean a thing in the world to me," bellowed McKellar. "I think you should answer the senator's question," chimed in McCarran eagerly.

Need To Prop Economy Slows Europe's Arms Production

By PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Trying to get more arms production out of Europe to support General Eisenhower's army is proving to be one of the toughest assignments American officials ever tackled.

Up to now, the general theme song has been that if the Russians ever overran Western Europe and got hold of its production, it would be just too bad for the United States.

There is little doubt now that more arms production can be forced out of Europe. But if, in getting this additional rearmament to combat Communist aggression from without, the European civilian economy is so weakened that it is unable to resist Communist political pressure from within, there will be no gain.

On this scale, however, it has not been found practical to assign to, say Italy, the job of producing one-twentieth of what's needed to rearm Western Europe. Italy offers a good example because its Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi has been in Washington trying to get more American arms aid.

There's a little doubt now that more arms production can be forced out of Europe. But if, in getting this additional rearmament to combat Communist aggression from without, the European civilian economy is so weakened that it is unable to resist Communist political pressure from within, there will be no gain.

American studies of the Italian economy indicate there are a million and a half unemployed workers, with another million under-employed. Italian shipyards, automobile plants and ball bearing works are running at only one-quarter of capacity.

Super-Super-Market Is Packard's Empire

"Old country store gone modern." That's how Frank Packard describes his super-super-market in Hackensack, N. J., in front of which he stands. It draws 30,000 customers every weekend.

HACKENSACK, N. J.—(NEA)—Frank Packard is a lot like the store he runs, except in size. He's a small man and his store is tremendous. But they're both dynamic, successful, well-groomed and a little flamboyant.

His business is hard to pin a label on. It's too big to be called just a store, yet it isn't quite big enough to be a regular department store. Packard himself has trouble classifying it.

"I guess you could call it an old country store, gone modern," is the way he describes Packard-Bamberger, known more simply around northern New Jersey as Packard's.

That's an apt description. Like an old-fashioned general store, Packard's chief business is food. It is a super-super-market, with shelves stretching for over a city block. You can stand at the check-out counter and look down to the other end and it seems like it must be in another county.

Shares First Floor

But there's much more to Packard's than the food departments. Sharing the first floor with them are counters where you can buy drugs and men's furnishings and closet accessories and liquor. In the basement are such things as housewares and hardware and radios. On the second floor is a complete fashion store for women. Outside is a garden shop and garage. Tucked in odd corners are a barber shop, restaurant, post office, bar and cobbler's shop.

As far as Packard can arrange it, everything is self-service. It is his theory that the self-service method of merchandising saves customers money. He claims that his stores gives about 83-cents-worth of merchandise for the consumer's dollar.

Packard's, which opened in 1932, was the first super-market, he believes. And he sees a completely self-service department store as the next forward step in merchandising.

"It's a very simple idea," he says. "So simple, in fact, that nobody sees it. Manufacturers just don't package soft merchandise right for self-service now, but it's only a matter of time."

Windows Open

Packard sits in a big, comfortable office on the building's second floor. The windows are unshaded and open, and bees fly in and out from their nests in the ivy that covers the snowy white wall. His office is decorated with dozens of pictures and framed clippings, with hundreds of ribbons from his horse-show days, with a set of golf clubs mounted on a wooden plaque, with a pair of boxing gloves from Joe Louis.

"I helped Louis get started riding horses," Packard says, "and he gave me those gloves. He claimed he knocked out Billy Conn with them."

Packard leans back in his chair and talks about his business as though it were a person. He is a healthy-looking 44, with curly brown hair and a ruddy complexion. He wears white shoes, white collars and cuffs on a blue shirt and a polka-dot tie. He is the picture of a successful businessman.

But it wasn't always so. He was a youth who loved literature and he majored in that field at Yale. But he graduated in the depression days, and literary scholars were not in demand. His education got him a job selling books in Brooklyn.

One day his father-in-law called him up from Hackensack about another man's "crazy idea."

The "crazy idea" was for a gigantic super-market, and even Packard took a long time in getting sold on the scheme. The first man could not make a go of it, and Packard and Edgar Bamberger, who was looking for something to do after selling his big Newark department store took it over.

Packard invented the first self-service carrying cart. He worked with manufacturers on packaging. He undersold competitors.

Challenges Law

In 1938, he challenged the state's fair trade law. In a big ad, headlined "We are willfully violating the most pernicious law ever passed in the State of New Jersey," he liberally marked down price-fixed goods. The case was taken to the State Supreme Court, and Packard won.

Through the years, Packard's has prospered. Today it has a 12-acre site. It can park 3,000 cars. On its shelves are a fabulous variety of foods, such as 32 different brands of canned peaches. In a week it sells over 3,000 cases of beer, a couple of tons of frankfurters.

During an average weekend it will have 30,000 customers. It claims to do the largest food business under one roof in the country.

"I can't prove that, of course," says Frank Packard. "But whenever anybody else makes that claim, I challenge them to compare figures. So far, I've had no takers."

HORSE STEAKS

WINNIPEG—(AP)—The manager of Manitoba's only horsemeat retail butcher shop says Winnipeggers consume almost 3,000 pounds of horsemeat every week. Most popular cuts are tenderloin steak and roasts retail at 60 cents a pound.

Mass Wedding Is Cheap In Singapore

SINGAPORE—(AP)—Young Chinese can now get married at low cost, and still with all the necessary ceremonial trimmings.

The Singapore Chinese YMCA had 18 couples at its first mass wedding in Victoria Memorial Hall. The total cost was $180—or just $10 per couple.

It was the cheapest mass wedding in Singapore since the liberation from Japanese occupation.

Trashy Books Are Flayed By Council

MONTREAL—(AP)—The National Council of Women was told recently that a sharp increase in the number of "highly dramatic crimes" is largely attributable to "the sad plight of the modern, so-called literature."

Mrs. C. L. Pearson of Toronto, in her report as chairman of the council's committee on cinema and printed matter, said such crimes usually follow "one or the other of the threadbare patterns of trashy books."

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

One of the most interesting hands of the recent international canasta match in London found Johnny Crawford, well-known American expert, badly stuck for a safe discard. See if you can pick the right play with his hand.

Both sides needed 90 points for the initial meld, and the player at your right melds ace-ace-joker very early in the play. The discard pile survives for a few more plays, and you finally freeze it by discarding a deuce.

The discard pile continues to grow until the stock pile is almost exhausted. In this situation, you draw from the stock pile and hold: three tens, three eights, three sevens, a pair of fives and one ace.

No aces have appeared except the two that were melded by your right-hand opponent at the very beginning of the hand. Only two fives have appeared, both thrown by your partner fairly early in the play. Both got by safely, of course. No eights or tens have appeared at any time. The last three discards of the player at your left have been two sevens and a deuce, in that order. No other sevens have appeared at any time.

What do you discard? Crawford knew that the ace was very unsafe. That had to be ruled out, since there were five aces still to be accounted for. His partner would have thrown aces if they seemed at all safe, so it was very likely that his partner had no more than one ace. That left too many aces for the opponents to hold.

The fives were unsafe also. Crawford's partner wasn't saving fives, and his two discards had gotten by safely, thus indicating that fives were not held at his right. It was a near certainty that the player at Crawford's left did hold fives.

By elimination, Crawford knew that his discard had to be a ten, an eight, or a seven. What was safest?

The answer was that the player at Crawford's left simply had to have another pair of sevens still in his hand. He couldn't have discarded at that late stage from fewer than four of a kind. The correct play, therefore, was to toss a mental coin in choosing between a ten and an eight.

As it happened, either the ten or the eight would have been safe. A seven was not.

ON SHORT NOTICE

The music for "Silent Night" was written in a few hours' time by Franz Gruber. Father Mohr brought the words to Gruber on Christmas Eve and wanted the song sung at midnight. The melody was ready on time.

Cut in 1860, a load of cedar posts was sold in Texas during 1937 as sound material.

A Boy Can Dream, Can't He?...

SURE. You can probably remember when you sat behind a steering wheel with your own feet dangling somewhat short of the foot pedals... doing some pretty excited dreaming, yourself.

Nice thing about it, as you found out, little boys' dreams have a way of coming true, here in America.

And one reason for that is the fact that the competitive companies in every industry are free to outdo one another to make them come true.

Take the petroleum industry, for instance.

This year, the Ohio Oil Company, alone, is plowing back millions and millions of dollars (as it does every year) to bring in new wells, to expand its vast pipeline network, to improve its refining, transportation and marketing facilities.

That is partly for you.

It is also partly for that youngster whose scuffed toes don't quite reach the foot pedals—yet.

As long as the companies in the oil industry are free to compete to fill your needs... and his dreams... we can, all look to the future with a lot of confidence, can't we?

DADDY RINGTAIL

Daddy Ringtail And Sam

Uncle Fuzz from the circus came home to the monkey house for a visit, there in the top of the very tall tree, right in the middle of the Great Forest. Daddy Ringtail was happy to see him, and Mother Ringtail was happy to see him, and everyone was happy to see our Uncle Fuzz from the circus.

Oh, but Uncle Fuzz didn't know how long he could stay. He might have to go away for a long time, he said, and if he did, he wouldn't be going back to the circus.

"Where will you be going?" asked Mugwump while they sat out on the porch of the monkey house that night, looking at the stars.

"Now, now, now," said Mother Ringtail, because she thought Mugwump shouldn't be asking all his questions.

"Well," said Uncle Fuzz with a queer little smile. "I don't really know that I'll have to go, and if I do go, I don't really know that I will be gone a long time. I just might be gone a long time." "Where?" asked Mugwump. "And why?" Uncle Fuzz began to tell him. Uncle Fuzz began to explain. Uncle Fuzz had an old friend, he said. The friend's name was Sam. Yes, and Sam had ships that sailed the ocean. Sam had many ships, and he might be needing Uncle Fuzz to help him sail them, Uncle Fuzz explained. And so if Sam sent a letter for Uncle Fuzz to help, Uncle Fuzz would have to go to it.

"Why?" asked Mugwump. "Well," said Uncle Fuzz with that queer little smile of his. "If Sam needs me to sail his ships, and if I don't sail them, something might happen to them."

"We wouldn't want something to happen to them," said Mugwump, and he looked at the moon where it sailed in the sky, and he thought of ships and the friend named Sam until he fell asleep with grownup talk all around him. Happy sleeping, happy day!

Some-where a Road is Call-ing

If the purr of a great-powered engine is music to your ears —
If command of two tons and more of nimble-footed and beautifully balanced automobile can step up your pulse beat —
You are just the man for whom a ROADMASTER was engineered.
Whatever it takes to give you a sense of complete and carefree freedom behind its wheel, you'll find in this proud master of the highways.
Added to the breadth and length that any fine car can give you are four soft-action coil springs to cushion the wheels, and a torque-tube to banish rear-wheel wander. Added to its high-compression, valve-in-head engine are eight exclusive Fireball combustion chambers that get extra power from each whirling charge of fuel.

Added to the convenience of clutch-free driving is the torque-converter principle of Dynaflo Drive — that feeds a steady flow of power without lag or falter ever.
Added to the light responsiveness of its steering wheel is a Buick-engineered "front-end geometry" that gives this phenomenal performer a sense of direction straight and true.
But no roll call of engineering accomplishments can tell you the feel of a ROADMASTER out on the road.

That's something that only firsthand acquaintance can bring. Not just a trip around the block — but enough time and enough miles to let you discover what a joyous companion this great car can be.

That's something that is easily arranged. If you're truly interested, a phone call will bring a ROADMASTER to your door.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

Tito's Soldiers Still Consider West foe

By JULIUS HUNI
NEA Staff Correspondent

CAPO D'ISTRIA, YUGOSLAV- OCCUPIED TRIESTE—The average Yugoslav soldier still regards the West as an enemy, judging by reactions I picked up as the first Allied newsman to visit Zone "B," the Yugoslav-controlled area of Trieste.

Once a Yugoslav "GI" and I stood with our "weapons" pointed at one another, I with my camera, he with his rifle. My accompanying officer prevented an incident.

Getting into the zone proved surprisingly easy.

The frontier that separates Allied-occupied Zone "A" from Zone "B" is only 20 miles long. But it is just as formidable as the other Iron Curtains between the West and the Communist worlds. I had tried to have British and American officers arrange my visit to Zone "B," but without success.

Finally, I visited the Yugoslav mission in the Allied zone. There was only one question: did I want to go that afternoon or could it wait until morning?

My Italian friends were very anxious for my safety. They practically asked me to make out my will before I left. But I was never in any danger in Zone "B," although once a Yugoslav soldier persuaded me not to take a picture by the impressive device of pointing a rifle at my head.

The guards at the border were not easily impressed as the secretary in the mission had been. The Allied-employed Italian guards were astonished that I had permission to cross, and the Yugoslav guards did not seem too pleased to admit me. But they did.

The cameras I brought with me upset the Yugoslavs. I was only allowed to proceed after they assigned an officer, Miletic Rajko, to accompany me everywhere I went. Rajko passed on every picture I took, or at least he thought he did. I managed to shoot a few pictures of Yugoslav soldiers when he was looking the other way.

And there are soldiers, Yugoslav soldiers, everywhere in Zone "B." They are young and tough-looking, but their equipment is woefully all it rivals anything in the Adriatic. An agreement reached with Allied authorities permits American and British soldiers, stationed in Zone "A," to spend their holidays in Portorosa.

Few have taken advantage of the opportunity so far, but a good

Rajko had said I could photograph soldiers if "they wanted to." Every time I saw a horse-drawn cart he made a great show of taking them into a picture. But always the answer was "nide," an extreme negative. At one place, a soldier pointed his gun at me to emphasize his feelings.

Rajko had to explain continually that I had permission to be there. Officers would suggest that I should be arrested, but he stood up for me.

Outside of soldiers, Zone "B" is inhabited largely by peasants. There are 75,000 persons in the area, more than 80,000 of them Slovenes, or of Slovene extraction. And their lot is a hard one.

Since the Yugoslavs occupied the zone in 1946, they have been cut off from Allied aid. The people had to produce what they needed to live, and had to feed the occupying Yugoslav troops to boot. It hasn't been easy. Food was rationed until very recently and clothing is still rationed.

Of late, some of the border restrictions have been relaxed enough so that Zone "B" residents may market in Allied-controlled Zone "A," where prices are better and goods more plentiful. And American aid to Yugoslavia has filtered through enough to ease the situation a little.

But Zone "B" has a weak economy. There are only two industries in the entire area—a jam factory at Isola that is working at half-capacity, and a wine cellar still being built near Capo d'istria. An unexpected bonanza has been the 52,000-ton Italian liner Rex, which was washed up on the shore near Capo d'istria after it was bombed by Allied planes in the war. A two-man crew has been working for over two years, slowly dismantling the ship. The scrap metal has helped Zone "B" make ends meet.

Authorities are hopeful that they've found a new source of revenue in Portorosa, a tiny tourist resort. They've reconstructed a 120-room hotel and fixed the beach un-

Horse-drawn army: Tito's troops are young and tough, but their equipment is weak and most of them travel by wagon.

many Swiss, Austrian and Scandinavian families have discovered that Portorosa offers a pleasant and inexpensive vacation.

Evident Everywhere

Throughout Zone "B," the People's Militia is everywhere in evidence. Rajko continually reminded me for referring to that organization of police.

"Police are unnecessary in a country where everyone obeys the laws and is disciplined," he said. But he didn't explain what the function of the People's Militia was.

This militia is all made up of Yugoslavs, in keeping with a stated "Yugoslavization" policy. Though bars and shops will accept Italian lire, the official currency is the Yugoslav dinar. Inscriptions on walls and shops are in Slovene first, then Italian. All customs officials, guards and even railway workers are Yugoslavs.

Although Rajko was explicit in saying that "everyone obeys the laws," I was made aware of fear in the peasants. I stopped to take a picture of an old man carrying his wine cask on his shoulder. I asked him how old he was, and he said 64, well under the government retirement age.

The old man was apprehensive when he caught sight of Rajko and his Army uniform. He hastened to explain that he wasn't working because he was sick that day. He started to pull out a doctor's certificate to prove it.

Rajko was obviously embarrassed as he led me away. For an instant, I had caught him with his Iron Curtain down.

Infection Of Middle Ear Is Usually Cause Of Running Ear

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

The use of the sulfa drugs and penicillin and its relatives seems to have cut down enormously on the number of people afflicted with chronic discharges from the ear. This, in turn, has greatly reduced the number of those with severe infections of the mastoid process just in back of the ear. This progress indeed, as many of those now in their middle or later years readily can testify.

There are still a few, however, who develop a chronic discharge from the ear and have trouble getting rid of it.

The usual cause of running ears is a chronic infection in the middle ear, which is a small cavity lying back of the drum membrane, and connected with the nose by a tube. With an infection in the nose, such as a severe cold, the germs pass up this tube, called the eustachian tube, into the middle ear. The eustachian tube is likely to be blocked up, pus forms in the middle ear under pressure and the drum membrane is broken, so that the pus is discharged into the outer part of the ear.

If the secretions become stagnant, there may be an unpleasant odor to the discharge. If drainage is interfered with while infection still is present, pain may spread to the surrounding tissues, and fever also may be present.

People who have this chronic infection particularly are susceptible to complications from colds. Too often the hearing becomes somewhat impaired, and, of course, the presence of a chronic infection always tends to create a rundown condition.

In recent years, considerable progress has been made in treatment by the use of local applications and surgical measures.

Cleanliness, including the removal of crusts and obstructions to drainage, especially is important. This is done by applying solutions or "drops." Suction has been used to clean out the middle ear of pus and mucus.

Alcohol treatments, silver nitrate, special dressings, antiseptics, and a form of electrical treatment called zinc ionization have all been tried and are useful for some, but not all, victims of a chronic running ear. Removal of lymphoid tissue in the back of the nose with locally applied radium may be helpful, especially to children.

Great improvements in surgical methods have taken place which make it possible to get at the source of the infection. Those patients who cannot be cured by other means may be relieved by a delicate operation. But the most important aspect of the problem is the prompt treatment of acute middle ear infections by penicillin or the sulfa so that the chronic condition is prevented.
