Disarmament Talk Marathon

The last time the Big Four met, they could not even agree on an agenda in 14 weeks of futile discussion. There is no reason to believe anything more decisive will emerge from current disarmament talks among the great powers

As European observers said of past arms parleys, 'Reduction of armaments implies confidence." Does anyone honestly think confidence exists today between Russia and the West?

The gulf between Western and Soviet disarmament proposals is miles wide. We want all nations to discuss present arms step by step, to accept limitations on atomic weapons and all others, to permit UN inspection of each country to assure compliance.

The Kremlin suggests the five greatest powers, including Red China, reduce arms by one-third, ban atomic weapons immediately, but do these things without any inspection check.

This plan would give advantage to Russia, as the nation with the largest existing armaments, and would penalize the United States, as the country with the largest stock of atomic weapons. And it would rest on nothing more substantial than the notoriously untrustworthy word of the Soviet Union.

The Russian scheme essentially is the same as it has been offering throughout the postwar period. The Western plan, framed by the United States, has some new elements, chief among them the idea that the program should proceed by stages—giving each country a chance to meas- num Canada is withholding from us steel. ure others' sincerity and performance before going on to was financed by American RFC lokes Predicted It

SANTA and the MAGIC MIRROR by LUCRECE HUDGINS

SYNOPSIS: Belinda tells the tooth fairies her troubles. They advise her to go to Santa Claus for help. They'll take her half-way to Santa Land, as far as Tooth City. She asks permission for Tommy to go with her. The fairies say some magic words and both children become as small as the fairies. Mounting a white mouse, they scamper off to Tooth City.

CHAPTER SIX

THE BALLOON

THE white mouse scampered through the land carrying his four passengers on his back.
He went so swiftly and followed so twisting a path that neither Tommy nor Belinda could ever have said where they went or how they got there. All they knew was that suddenly the mouse was running down a tiny street paved with enamel and lined with lovely shining houses made of teeth instead of brick.
Hundreds of fairies ran to greet

Hundreds of fairies ran to greet them shouting, "How many teeth did you get? Hope they are good ones with no holes in them!"

Frank and Fanny jumped from the white mouse and helped the two children down. The fairies gazed at them. "What are they?" cried the creatures. "Are they fairies or are they children? Did to the fairies or are they children? Did to the fairies or are they children? you find them under a pillow?'

"It Nearly Flew Away With Me!" Said Belinda.

reside the creatures. "Are they fairies or are they children? Did you find them under a pillow?"

"Shush!" said Frank. "They are children on their way to see Santa Claus and it's up to us to see they get there."

Then Frank and Fanny told the fairies the story of the children's troubles.

"The question is how to get you there." said Frank.

"Couldn't we borrow your little white mouse: "asked Tommy, shyly.

"The way is hard because it is through the snow lands," explained Frank. "It would take white mouse two days to make the trip."

"And what of that?" asked Belinda.

"Just remember," said Frank.
"This very night you will be big children again and little white mouse could not carry you at all."

"Oh!" said Tommy. "I forgot," said Belinda.

"Just at this moment another white mouse dashed into the fairy city, He carried on his back two fairies whose pockets bulged with teeth they had collected through the night.

"Here's Buster and Barbara," said Fanny. "How excited they are!"

"He wo new fairies ran forward dragging a strange shapeless red thing about as long as trange shapeles thing about as long as the story of the children's fairies. "Where did you get it?"

"We don't know what it is," "We don't know what it is," "We don't know what it is," "Well, then," said Frank. "Why fairies. "First we get children looking for Santa and now we get the fairies asked Belinda.

"Just remember," said Frank.
"This very night you will be big children again and little white mouse could not carry you at all."

"Oh!" said Tommy. "I forgot," said Belinda.

"Just at this moment another white mouse dashed into the fairy city. He carried on his back two fairies whose pockets bulged with teeth they had collected through the night.

This week. Wink gets a special test. Newcastle not only has won 13 straight games — the same as Wink-but has given up only 12 points in 13 ball games while doing so. Wink, however, holds the offensive edge, having tallied 527 points to 328 for Newcastle. The points to be scored against it.

Grid experts point out, however that Wink has played what is considered much the tougher schedule and many of the points scored against the Wildcats have been against the reserves.

Still, you can't overlook the Newcastle defensive record, no matter the opposition. And Newfans will tell you Wink may draw a goose-egg as has 11 of the 13 Newcastle opponents.

A group of 1-AAAA district officials Saturday voted Midland into that loop for the 1952 grid season and two schools of thought prevailed

Some fans said: "Oh boy, now we can play with the teams and get the ranking we deserve.

Others threw up their hands and said: "There goes our second district championship.'

We heard several comments of each, but the one comment which impressed us was the statement by Coach Tugboat Jones of Midland. Jones looked at it this way: "If I had a group of boys who didn't feel they were good enough to play in the top league, I wouldn't want to coach them. We have several the boys who deserve to play in the best conference in Texas-such boys as day for their second successive Roy Kimsey, Larry Friday, Robert Keisling, Red Cast and others." Jones said he was "pleased with the boys we landed on the 1-AAA all-district team" and said all of the boys were "fully qualified." However, he was disappointed that Dan Black didn't make the defensive team.

At Least 14 Killed As Tropical Typhoon Lashes Philippines

As the 125-mile-an-hour storm churned into the Sulu Sea. AP Correspondent Frank A. White reported from Cebu City, on Cebu Island that at least 12 persons were dead and hundreds homeless.

White said virtually every building made of light materials was partially wrecked and many large structures lost roofs or sustained other damage. Cebu bore the brunt of the storm.

The Philippine News Service reported two persons killed and 17 of Panay Island, west of Cebu. The news service said thousands were

On Negros Island, between Cebu and Panay, the news service estimated property damage in Bacolod City at a quarter-million dollars and said 2,250 were reported home Communications Broken

Radio communications with most of the devastated central islands were disrupted. Authorities feared casualties would be heavy. White's dispatch was radioed from the freighter Elizabeth Bornhofen, which apparently rode out the storm at anchor in the harbor. Some 85 miles south of the typhoon's path, dying winds and quieter seas permitted rescue vessels to resume evacuation of 22,000 rain-soaked, frightened refugees from Camiguin Island, where Hibok Hibok Volcano continued to spout molten rock and ashes.

Four Philippines naval vessels and a Japanese freighter were ferrying the homeless refugees across the strait to three ports on the big Island of Mindinao.

The evacuation was speeded late Monday as Hibok Hibok showed no sign of cooling off.
