Magnolia Wildcat In C-E Andrews Is Possible Discovery

Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 1-CA Fackler, Ellinger wildcat to 15,000 feet in Central-East Andrews County, has shown for a possible discovery from the Wolfcamp lime.

A drillstem test was taken in the interval from 9,999 to 10,023 feet. Tool was open two hours. Recovery was 1,950 feet of oil plus three per cent heavy oil and gas-cut mud.

Open flowing bottomhole pressure ranged from 140 to 340 pounds. Shutin pressure was 1,845 pounds after 15 minutes.

On the test, gas surfaced in seven minutes at the estimated rate of 75,000 cubic feet daily. No water was found on the recovery.

Top of the Wolfcamp has not been picked by the operator. More hole was being made below 10,023 feet.

This wildcat is 1,990 feet from west and 680 feet from south lines of section 30, block 40, T-3-N, C-2-M-B-A survey and 18 miles southeast of the town of Andrews.

Lyle Will Try To Complete Gas Well At Sutton Wildcat

W. M. Lyle of Midland is to plug back at his No. 1 G. C. Allison, Northeast Sutton County wildcat and try to complete a gas well from the Strawn formation.

This prospector drilled to 6,885 feet in barren Ellenburger. Top of that formation was at 6,147 feet. Derrick floor elevation is 3,215 feet. It is to be plugged back to 5,200 feet and 7-inch casing will be cemented at that point.

To Perforate And Test

The interval at 5,010-50 feet in the Strawn will be tested through perforations. That zone had shown some gas when drilled through and operator hopes to develop it for commercial gas production.

The exploration is five miles south of the two-well Allison gas field which is now shut-in. It is 15 miles northeast of Sonora and 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 30, block 9, TW&NG survey.

Thieves Loot Parking Meters Here By Sum Of $300 Monthly

Midland's several hundred parking meters are being looted systematically to the tune of more than $300 a month.

This was indicated Tuesday by a comparative check of parking meter receipts over the last two months and city officials fear that, unless it is stopped, the yearly revenue will be well below the anticipated $45,000.

On the basis of September collections, in fact, the meters will produce only about $36,000 during the current fiscal year.

Police have been studying the situation for several weeks and have been unable to determine just where and by whom the meters are being looted.

"Obviously," said Police Captain Jack Tramm, "some unauthorized persons has found a key to the meters and is taking the money from them."

May Change Locks

"It is impossible of course, to watch every meter 24 hours a day but we are seeking some remedy," he said he is to confer with representatives of the parking meter manufacturer and possibly will change the locks on all the meters in the city.

"Obviously," said Police Captain Jack Tramm, "some unauthorized persons has found a key to the meters and is taking the money from them."

Adlai Accuses Ike Of Dodging Issues

CASPER, WYO. (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson declared Tuesday that the Republicans "prefer slogans, emotion and confetti" to facing up to their record on the campaign issues of peace and prosperity.

The Democratic presidential nominee, beginning here a 6,000-mile flying trip to the West and Texas, voiced a ringing indictment of what he called a long record of "Republican isolationism in foreign affairs and inaction in domestic affairs."

In a speech prepared for a Casper campaign rally, the Illinois governor expressed "sorrow and dismay" at the tactics adopted by his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Asserting that the "Old Guard reactionaries" of the Republican party had "opposed every measure to build up America's strength and America's alliances against the Communist conspiracy," Stevenson added:

"Moreover—to my sorrow and dismay—they seem to have induced or forced the general to alter his own positive principles and to adopt equivocal and hesitant views that favor more of isolation and retreat than security and confidence."

Slogans, Emotion, Confetti

Firing a broadside at his opponents, the Illinois governor declared:

"There are some desperately important issues, although you would never guess it from listening to the Republican candidates. They don't like to talk about issues very much. They prefer slogans, emotion and confetti."

Eisenhower's advance men have furnished confetti for the crowds which turn out to greet him.

"It's easy to understand why when you look at the voting records of the Republicans in Congress for the last 20 years, you can see right away why they decided that the less said about the issues the better."

Pressure-Type Solicitation Deplored At C. Of C. Meet

Pressure-type solicitation by telephone, particularly in the sale of tickets for shows and entertainments of various kinds, attracted the attention of Chamber of Commerce directors at their meeting Monday afternoon.

Jack Wicker, C. of C. president, told the directors the Chamber has received numerous complaints from members concerning telephone solicitations, which seemingly are on the increase. He explained the calls apparently are made to businessmen by advance agents of shows and entertainments presented under the auspices of Midland civic, service and fraternal organizations.

A lengthy discussion of the matter followed, with most directors present stating they have received telephone calls from persons whom they do not know, asking that they purchase tickets for one thing and another. All agreed they do not favor such a procedure, and several commented they have adopted a policy of saying "No" when solicited by telephone.

Opposition Expressed

One director said oil companies and service firms particularly are opposed to the "ticket sale by telephone" practice. Another director was outspoken in denouncing the practice, and said the sponsoring organizations do not create goodwill for themselves when they allow out-of-city agents to attempt to

EISENHOWER'S TEXT FOR HOUSTON ADDRESS

HOUSTON (AP)—Following is the text of an address prepared for delivery here Tuesday by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican nominee for President of the United States.

I am deeply moved and downright proud of the generosity of Price Daniel's introduction. He makes me feel at home in the state where I was born. I respect and admire him for the fight he has made to protect the rights of his state.

Texasans have never been afraid to fight for what they believed in. I learned that as a soldier.

That fighting spirit has been shown at its best in Price Daniel's valiant defense of the rights of your state in its own Tidelands. He thinks the Texas Tidelands ought to belong to Texas. So do I.

As I said last night in New Orleans, this has been my position since I first looked into this matter in 1948 long before anybody persuaded me to go into politics. I have always felt that the titles to these submerged lands should be recognized in the states out to their historic boundaries.

Tells History

General Calls For 'Rebellion' By Texas Folk

HOUSTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower celebrated his sixty-second birthday in his native Texas Tuesday by calling for the Southland to rise up in political rebellion against the Democratic Party.

A midmorning crowd estimated by police at more than 15,000 gave the GOP nominee a warm welcome to Houston, the first stop on this push into Texas.

State Attorney General Price Daniel—Democratic senatorial nominee—introduced Eisenhower and declared: "Because of you, Texas can no longer be taken for granted by any political party."

Daniel said he spoke as a Texas Democrat who was going to vote for the general for President—and that the Texas "Democratic Party was fed up with Trumanism," and "with being used as a whipping boy."

"This year," he said, "I predict Texas is going to do something about it." The crowd cheered.

Rips Into Demos

Eisenhower responded by ripping into the Truman Administration with such harsh words as "weak-kneed and soft-headed" . . . "power hungry" . . . "power mongers" . . . "reckless drivers" . . . and "discredited."

Chief Police Inspector W. P. Haley estimated 65,000 persons in the crowd that gathered in the square outside the Civic Auditorium. But others sized up the crowd as being considerably smaller.

Fete Starts Early

Eisenhower said experienced politicians had told him not to campaign in the South because the Administration has those states in the bag. "A swelling yell of 'No, No,' rang up from the crowd."

They laughed and cheered when he called "the Administration 'weak-kneed and soft-headed.'"

It was a clear, warm day and a majority of the people were in shirt sleeves and Summer clothes. A number of businessmen had declared "Eisenhower Hour" so they

He is no stranger to Houston, San Antonio, Dallas or Fort Worth, but as far as is known, he'll be making his first trip to the South Plains of Texas when he visits Lubbock.

Down in San Antonio late Tuesday, where he makes a major speech in front of the Alamo, a lot of people remember Ike. Some of them are retired top sergeants—and retired generals.

Cries Of 'Happy Birthday' Welcome Home Native Son

By WILBUR MARTIN

HOUSTON (AP)—Ike Eisenhower was born in Texas 62 years ago Tuesday—and now he's back, considerably better known than when he first made his appearance at Denison.

"He isn't going to stay long, just two days, but he aims to say 'howdy' and ask for votes from more people than any other Republican candidate ever did in Texas. And he's going to cover more ground inside the state than he has in weeks of touring the country."

Just Tuesday he's scheduled to speak here, at Waco, Lubbock and San Antonio, and if you don't think that's traveling why you're just a Texan. That's 1,000 miles if you're traveling by plane—like he is—or a million if you've ever tried the same trip in the family automobile.

Dwight David Eisenhower, general of the Army (resigned), is the first native-born Texan ever to get the presidential nomination of a major political party and he's due a slam-bang reception everywhere he stops.

That's right down to "Happy birthday" from scores of lusty-lunged musicians, high school and college variety.

Eisenhower's campaign special whistled to a stop here early Tuesday. From then on, the schedule read like a military operation. Everything was blueprinted, even to how long it was supposed to take the 150

Unique Pact Puts Scene From 'Mutiny' On Stage

What's Clark Gable got that Chill (the voice of Francis, the mule) hasn't got? Chill not only makes love to Ella Raines in the forthcoming "Golden Tide," but wins her in the final reel.

Assignment of Ruth Hampton to the second lead with Ronald Reagan in U-T's "Law and Order" should delight Miss Italy, who sounded off about the unfairness of the Miss Universe contest and said that Miss New Jersey should have won. Ruth is Miss New Jersey.

Economy note: Dorothy Richmond, the former Follies beauty who sec's the used clothing of movie stars at a swank Beverly Hills shop, is getting calls from business managers of top stars asking her to dispose of their clients' fancy wardrobes at the best prices she can get.

Remember the case of the teenage baby-sitter in Boston who found $60,000 while taking care of a prominent doctor's kiddies and scooted to New York with two other girls for a big spree? Well, it's practically the plot of Sidney Harmon's forthcoming independent movie, titled—appropriately—"Baby Sitter."

The film version of "The Girl on the Via Flaminia" is due for a new locale and title. As a novel, the story had an Italian background and an Italian heroine. As a film, the locale will be France, the heroine French. Kirk Douglas plays the American soldier, with the girl due to be cast any day.

Now it's Glenn Ford who will play the matador in Budd Boetticher's "The Number One" to be made in Spain next Spring. Happy note for newspaper headline writers: The headlines on all Gottlieb's murder mystery, "The Blue Gardenia," will be written by Los Angeles newsmen. For once they'll read like headlines.

Prediction: Shirley Booth should cop this year's best-actress Oscar for "Come Back, Little Sheba."

Nixon Attacks Stevenson's Record On Communist Issue

NEW YORK—(AP)—Senator Richard M. Nixon, delivering a major attack on Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson Monday night, called him disqualified for the presidency by his record on communism.
 The Republican vice presidential candidate asserted on a nation-wide radio-television broadcast that the Democratic standard bearer "has failed to recognize the threat" of communism.
 Stevenson's election, the California senator said, "would mean four more years of the same policy which has been so disastrous at home and disastrous abroad."
 Nixon attacked Stevenson for his character deposition for Alger Hiss, former State Department official convicted of perjury after he gave out government secrets for a pre-war Russian spy ring.
 Nixon devoted most of his address to the Hiss case, then led up to Stevenson's deposition.
 He criticized Stevenson on four grounds in the Hiss matter:
 "The deposition was given after some facts in the case had become known—Whittaker Chambers' meeting with Hiss and the revelation of Chambers' famous pumpkin papers."
 "The deposition was voluntary on Mr. Stevenson's part."
 "It was given at a time when he was governor of Illinois and the prestige of a great state and the governor of that state were thrown in behalf of the defendant in this case."
 "And fourth, it is significant to me that Mr. Stevenson has never expressed any indignation over what Hiss has done."
 Before Hiss' first trial, several government officials gave character depositions for him.
 Nixon, speaking from a studio without an audience, said he wasn't questioning Stevenson's loyalty, but declared he thought there was "a very grave thought" about his judgment.
 Nixon accused the Washington administration of covering up the Hiss case. He said Chambers had told his story to government officials—in 1939 and in the 1940's—and that no effective action was taken.

Esso Says Tanker Collision Damage Claims Discharged

HOUSTON—(AP)—An attorney for the Esso Company said Monday all but five of some 50 personal injury claims resulting from the disastrous collision of two Esso tankers have been settled.
 Thirty-nine men were killed when the Esso Greensboro and Esso Suez collided in fog-cloaked Gulf of Mexico waters off Morgan City, La., in April, 1951.
 At one time personal injury claims totaled 11 million dollars. Attorney Denman Moody said Monday only five claims now are outstanding, although he could not say exactly how much the company has paid out in settlements.
 A hearing on petition by the company that its liability be limited to the value of the vessels after the collision was continued indefinitely in federal court here.

Midland, Borger Meet For First Time Friday

Still billed as Lubbock's No. 1 challenger, the Midland Bulldogs Friday night will open a new chapter in their athletic history.

Midland, holder of four straight victories, plays Borger for the first time in the annals of the two widely separated schools. The Bulldogs dropped off from their point-a-minute past last week to defeat a key-up San Angelo team. Borger lost its second game in four starts in a 13-13 game in Abilene.

The Odessa Bronchos will be gunning for their first District 1-AAAA win of the current warfare in trying again to get above the 50-50 mark in season play. The Odessans will meet the reviving Amarillo Sandstorm in Broncho stadium following the Lubbock Westerners.

Odessa has dropped two games, one to Lubbock and the other to Fort Arthur, and has beaten Sweetwater and Paschal.

The Sandies will be seeking their first 1-AAAA triumph after losing a close 13-7 game to undefeated Pampa last week. The Amarilloans, although they lost, made their most impressive showing of the year.

Called the feature in this week's four-game district card, Pampa will invade Abilene. The Harvesters, expected to be weakened through the graduation ranks last Spring, have surprised the observers with five straight victories. The Pampans have downed El Paso, Austin, Vernon, Duncan, Okla., and Amarillo.

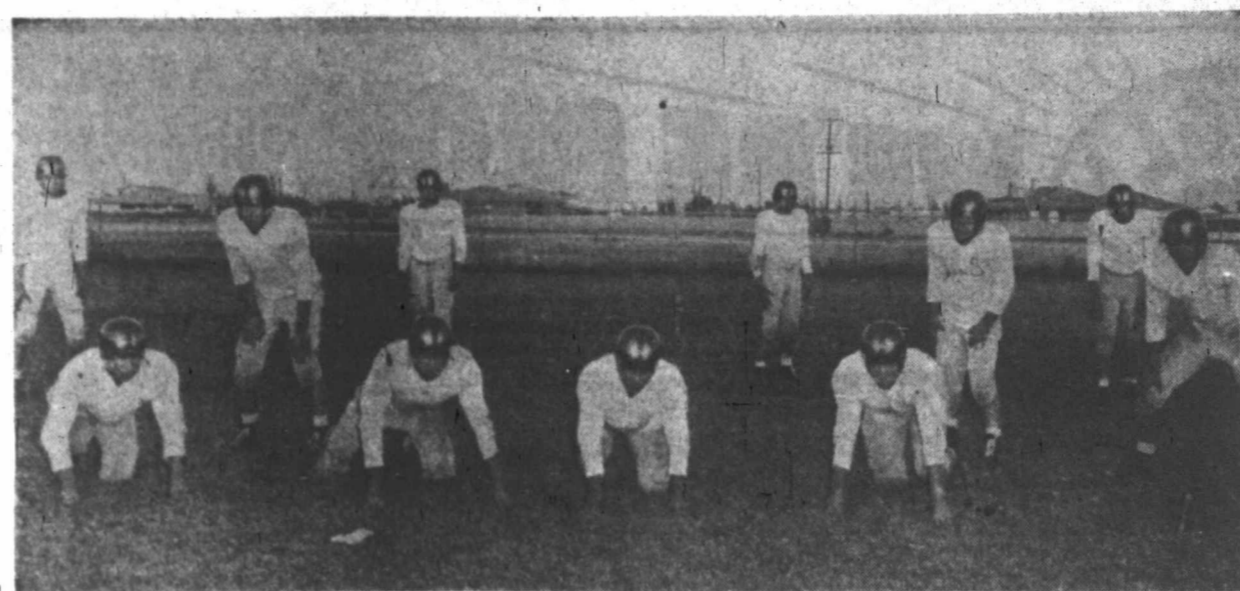

Abilene also suffered heavily through graduation. The Eagles lost to powerful Breckenridge but have whipped Arlington Heights, Sweetwater and Borger.

Lubbock will face the improved San Angelo Bobcats in the South Plains hub city. The Bobcats are supposed to be Lubbock's easiest conference foe but the San Angeloans proved up-and-coming in slowing the vaunted Midland running game.

Film Studied
Coach Tugboat Jones, his staff and the Bulldogs Monday afternoon studied motion pictures of Friday night's game in San Angelo. It was late when the Bulldogs called it quits at the end of the long Monday afternoon practice centered on the week's tussle with the Borger aggregation.

Jones planned another stiff session Tuesday afternoon with tamping off starting Wednesday. The Borger outfit evolves its offense on a multitude of formations and the Bulldogs will be schooled in the play-by-play changes. Defense will not be neglected but the Midland running game and passing attack have to be repolished for Borger.

Pass defense continues a problem for the Bulldogs who remember how the San Angeloans employed the spread for gain after gain via the passing department.

BULLDOG DEFENSE AWAITS BORGER THRUSTS
—This is the defense pattern which Midland High School presents for the Borger football team in the Panhandle city Friday night. It has proved effective in gaining four consecutive victories for Coach Tugboat Jones' contingent. In the front from left to right, are Bill Leonard, Keys Curry, Kenneth Schrum, James Reagan and Bill Mims. Behind these scrapping forwards stand Paul Davis, Melton Jones, Russell Rutledge, Jesse Hatfield, Darrell Spivey and Roy Kimsey. The Bulldogs have devoted special attention to defense this week since Borger utilizes several types of formations in its attack.

Improved Blocking Sought By Borger

BORGER—The Borger Bulldogs, still smarting from their 12-13 loss at the hands of the Abilene Eagles, opened practice Monday and good, old-fashioned fundamentals were the order of the day.

Coach Guy Gardner and his staff were especially distressed by the quality of Bulldog blocking Friday night.

DESTROYER—Don Fisher's running and passing finishes the fireworks in Navy's cohesive attack. (NEA)

Borger's line outweighed Abilene by almost 14 pounds per man but the lighter Eagles had little trouble bottling up Bulldog backs. Borger recorded a net of only 140 yards rushing after setbacks eliminated over 50 yds.

The loss left Borger with a 2-2 mark over the full season. The Bulldogs won their opener 37-6 against Shamrock, dropped a 0-34 decision to Wichita Falls and closed out non-district play with a 37-27 victory over Austin of El Paso.

With 16 returning lettermen Gardner can field a team that averages 186 pounds in the line with the backfield falling off to 151.

Team Captain Phillip Wright, 202, and Ronnie Arendall, 206, anchor the line at tackles. Bob Covington and Lloyd Reynolds, a pair of 170-pound ends, pull most of the offensive duty at the terminals.

The guard positions are well manned by Franklin Carter, 196 and John Hewitt, 186. Center is Dale McFarland, 166. Except for Reynolds all the boys are veterans.

Bubba Hillman, 151 pounder, is installed a quarterback. A letterman in 1951, Hillman is a fine ball handler, punter and better than average runner.

Halfbacks—Dean May, 145, and Ed Ward, 159, combine with Fullback Raymond White to give the Bulldogs a well balanced running attack. Through Friday's district opener Ward was the team's leading ground gainer with an 8.4 average per carry.

Last Friday, however, his rushing leadership was challenged by Reserve Fullback J. D. Whisenunt. Whisenunt rolled for 97 of the 140 yards Abilene allowed.

Reserve and lack of depth are the most pressing problems in the Bulldog camp. Defensively, Borger will make just five substitutions most of the time. Toby Yows, 145, replaces Reynolds at end and Jim McGraw takes over Hewitt's guard.

In the backfield, Henry 'Argh' and Charles Mitchell operate as line-backers. Halfbacks are May and White. Teddy Phillips, 138, usually plays safety.

Scott, Simon Lead Crane's Grid Team

CRANE—(SC)—George Scott and Kenneth Simon are co-captains of the Golden Cranes this year.

The two boys play tackle. George, a 210-pounder, is the heavyweight of the squad. Kenneth weighs 160. George is a senior and playing his third year of football. Kenneth is a junior in his second year on the team.

Southwest Conference Teams To Seek Glory In Own Yards

By CLAYTON HICKERSON Associated Press Staff

With a disastrous inter-sectional schedule behind them, Southwest Conference teams Tuesday prepared to regain glory in their own backyards.

The defending champion, Texas Christian, goes up against the Texas Aggies at College Station. Texas plays Arkansas at Austin and Southern Methodist plays Rice at Houston. Baylor takes on a non-conference foe, Texas Tech. at Lubbock.

The Saturday games at College Station and Austin begin at 2 p.m. The others are Saturday night contests.

As practice for the important conference tussles went into their second day, four teams had injured players who might not see duty this weekend.

Expensive Victory
Arkansas Razorbacks paid dearly for their 20-17 win over Baylor last week. It appeared All-Conference Quarterback Lamar McHan—a knee ligament torn—might be on the sidelines when the Hogs meet the disappointed Texas Longhorns, losers on successive weekends to Notre Dame and Oklahoma.

Razorback Coach Otis Douglas said he would use Soph Southpaw Bob St. Pierre at quarter if his star is not ready. St. Pierre would run at quarter in the split T and at full in the deep formation with Ralph Trollet operating at quarter in the latter.

Coach Jess Neely's Rice Owls appeared in good shape except for

PECOS EAGLES RATES WITH BEST OF THEM—Strong Teams Stand Out In Class AA

Spartan Team Back At Top In AP Survey

NEW YORK—(AP)—The combination of Michigan State's one-sided victory over Texas A&M and Ohio State's upset triumph over Wisconsin sent the power-packed Spartans back to the top of the heap in the third weekly Association Press football poll.

The four last-period touchdowns which turned State's game into a 48-6 rout apparently were enough to convince the nation's sports-writers and broadcasters that the Spartans, who were first in the pre-season poll and led the first weekly ballot, should be ranked No. 1.

Thirty-nine of the 123 writers who participated in the poll picked Coach Biggie Munn's team for first place.

Wisconsin, which had jumped from eighth to first on the strength of its October 4 win over Illinois, fell to twelfth as the result of a 14-23 loss to Ohio State.

Maryland's powerful Terrapins moved up from fourth to second place.

Georgia Tech and Duke, the powers of the Southland who meet in a big one November 1, both moved up a notch, with Tech now fourth and the Blue Devils fifth.

16-Year-Old Sets Pace In Casting

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Freddie Mathia, 16-year-old flyrod wonder from the Pasadena Rod & Gun Club, scored perfect 100s in both the dry fly and wet fly accuracy casting championships at Peoria recently. Freddie turned in the outstanding performance of the entire 44-year history of the national casting organization.

A number of casters have scored perfects in the wet fly division. But in the last 28 years only four men have scored perfects in the tough dry fly accuracy competition.

Only Freddie, who still casts as a junior, has ever been able to put the two events together for a perfect 200 in the accuracy division.

Little Guys Make Best Umps, Says Stewart, Target For All

NEW YORK—Little men make the best umpires, says Bill Stewart, pointing to Babe Pinelli, Bill Summers, Jocko Conlon and Arlie Gore. The National League veteran stands only five feet five-and-a-half inches.

"If a little guy has any backbone at all he will develop it early in life, because so many big guys will try to push him around," says Stewart.

An umpire needs all of it, for since being almost killed 20 years ago in landing his major-league job Stewart has been hit by pop bottles, stones, rotten eggs, firecrackers, tomatoes, seat cushions, umbrellas, compacts, beer cans and leftover liverwurst sandwiches. Knives and black-jacks have been pulled on him. He has been sat and spat on, punched, pommelled and choked.

Stewart recalls, in The American Magazine, first attracting major-league attention by being mobbed in a New York-Pennsylvania League game in York, Pa., for over-ruling another umpire and calling interference. Bill Emalle, then of the National League staff, was in the stand, admired his courage.

Stewart stresses the difficulty of an umpire's job. He has to carry hundreds of rules and interpretations in his head, make 300-odd split-second decisions in a game. A mistake by the margin of a half-inch can mean a difference of $250,000 to a club.

Frisch Troublesome
That's no gag about players and managers nagging an umpire in order to keep an appointment downtown.

"Bench jockeys get bored in the dugout, so they insult the ump, hoping to get kicked out so he could get an early dinner," asserts Stewart.

He recalls Frank Frisch stirring up a lot of trouble, but only in two cities.

"In the New York area, Frisch seemed to sniff the scents from his garden in nearby New Rochelle, and tried to get kicked out so he could plant his rosebushes," says Stewart.

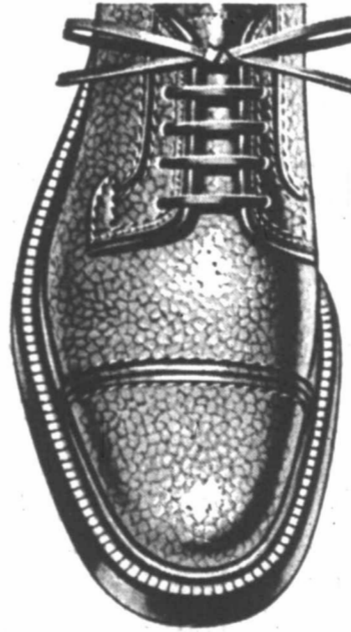

"In Boston, he would develop an insatiable yearning to make off for a swim along Cape Cod. One afternoon the temperature hit 99 degrees, and Frankie kept insulting me on almost every play. Finally I turned to him and said: 'Look, Frankie, I've got to stay here and sweat, so you're gonna sweat right with me. There'll be no Cape for you today!' Frankie sighed, went back to his station, and found nothing to complain about the rest of the day."

Stewart must admit that Leo Durocher carried down quite a bit since he married Laraine Day, but points out that the Giants' manager suffered a relapse the last Summer.

Stewart rightfully calls the umpire the loneliest man in town.

"It's hard to resist being friendly to a stranger trying to make conversation," he says, "but you never know when that stranger may turn out to be a gambler, fixer or a generally-shady character. If he's pure in heart, he may be a disgruntled fan trying to start a brawl."

Yankees, A's Dominate AP All-Star Nine

NEW YORK —(AP)—New York's World Champion Yankees and Philadelphia's Athletics dominated the 1952 Associated Press Major League's All-Star Team, capturing half of the 10 positions.

Seven of the 16 big league clubs, four in the American, were represented in The AP's seventh annual All-Star team, selected Tuesday by 72 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Walcott-Marciano Film To Be Shown At Texan Theater

A special film of the Jersey Joe Walcott-Rocky Marciano fight will be shown Wednesday and Thursday at the Texan Drive-In Theater.

Marciano won the battle with a knock-out in the 13th round. Climax thrills of the fight are in slow motion for added enjoyment of the fans.

The feature Marciano film will be "My Darling Clementine" starring Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell and Victor Mature.

The Texan Drive-In Theater is located on West Highway 80.

8-AA Teams Record Wins

A perfect weekend as far as football is concerned was enjoyed by District 8-AA grid teams with four having victories, while Andrews had an open date.

Top game in District 8-AA this week will be the opening circuit clash between the Andrews Mustangs and Kermit Yellow Jackets Saturday night in Kermit.

Another top affair will send the Denver City Mustangs to Pecos. The Mustangs have split thus far against 8-AA clubs, losing to Seminole and winning over Andrews.

The big game in District 8-AA last weekend saw the Seminole Indians scalp a good Brownfield team, 8-0.

FIVE YEARS AGO—The commissioner's office announced the Brooklyn Dodgers National League champions, had voted suspended Manager Leo Durocher a full World Series share but it was turned down by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

TEN YEARS AGO—Ray Donnell quit as head football coach at Iowa State and was succeeded by A. M. (Mike) Michalske.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO—Kid Chocolate knocked out Lew Fiedler in the twelfth round to win recognition as N. Y. State featherweight champion.

The Yankees and A's were the only clubs with more than one representative.

The All-Star Team:
First base—Felix Paine, Athletics (.327).
Second base—Jackie Robinson, Dodgers (.308).
Third base—Al Rosen, Indians (.302).
Shortstop—Phil Rizzuto, Yankees (.253).
Right field—Stan Musial, Cardinals (.336).
Center field—Mickey Mantle, Yankees (.311).
Catcher—Larry (Yogi) Berra, Yankees (.273).
Right-handed pitcher—Robin Roberts, Phillies (.287).
Shants Near Unanimous
Four players are holdovers from the 1951 team. They are Paine, Robinson, Rizzuto and Musial. Musial made the team for the sixth time. Shantz, 27-year-old southpaw ace of the Athletics, received the most votes, getting all but two of the 74 cast. Musial was right behind with 68, but he received seven votes for first base.

Only Berra, Mantle and Rosen had strong competition. The Yankee catcher edged out Roy Campanella of Brooklyn by only two votes, 36 to 34. Cleveland's Jim Hegan got the other two.

Mantle took the third spot in the outfield, beating out Larry Doby of the Indians, 36 to 28. Sauer was named on 59 ballots for an outfield berth to 61 for Musial.

Six third basemen received backing. Rosen topped the list with 37. George Kell of the Boston Red Sox, last year's pick, finished second with 18. Brooklyn's Billy Cox was third with 11. Eddie Yost of Washington, Bobby Thomson of the Giants and Bobby Adams of the Cincinnati Reds also got scattered support.

Felix Paine Easily
Paine, the American League batting champion for the second successive year, walked off with first base honors, corraling 58 votes to seven for Musial and five for Gil Hodges of Brooklyn. Whitey Lockman of the Giants and Joe Collins of the Yankees got one apiece.

Robinson also had an easy time picking up 59 votes for second base to 10 for Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals and three for Nellie Fox of the White Sox. Rizzuto's 44 votes topped a field of seven for the shortstop berth. Alvin Dark of the Giants led the runner-ups with 12. Brooklyn's Pee Wee Reese had eight to four for Roy McMillan, Red; two for Eddie Joost of the A's; and one each for Johnny Hamner, Phils, and Johnny Logan, Boston Braves.

Most competition was for the outfield, where 14 flycatchers vie for the three berths. Others receiving mention in addition to the first four included Eros Slaughter, Cards; Hank Bauer and Gene Woodling, Yankees; Duke Snider and Carl Furillo, Dodgers; Jackie Jensen, Senators; Dale Mitchell, Indians; Frank Baumholtz, Cubs; Bobby Thomson, Giants; and Minnie Minoso, White Sox.

PAT GARNER ... Always a gallery favorite

Pat Garner To Compete In Annual Women's Open

The walking wood-shot artist of Midland, Pat Garner, will be included in the galaxy of competitors for the annual Women's Texas Open, opening over the River Crest course in Fort Worth October 21.

Pat, always a gallery favorite, was a 20-hole victim of Betty Rawls last year. Betty currently is champion of the Westhavant Open, the high-hike journey that sips all over the country.

The photographic Bauer sisters, Marlene and Alice, formerly of Midland, will be in the pro contingent at Fort Worth. The incomparable Babe Dickerson Zaharias already has arrived on the Cowtown scene and on the heels of the world's most fabulous woman athlete will come many of the finest pro and amateur golfers for the annual women's open.

Qualifying is ticketed for Tuesday, October 21, the 36-hole championship.

Southwest Anglers To Try For Record In Mazatlan Rodeo

MAZATLAN MEXICO—Southwestern anglers with an ambition to set a new world record, or those just craving a weekend of competitive deep sea fishing, have been extended a special invitation to try their skill at the Third International Mazatlan Deep-Sea Fishing Rodeo October 23-25.

The contest is open to any angler registering with Sr. L. Roberto Gorostiza, Olas Altas 75-2 Sur, or Apartado Postal 199, Mazatlan, Sinaloa. Mazatlan, located 594 airline miles from El Paso, can be reached from Ciudad Juarez via LAMSA Lines. The official program of the rodeo opens at 8 p.m. Wednesday, October 22, with registration, drawing for boats, and a "get-acquainted" dinner at the Roof Garden of the Hotel Freeman. The mayor of Mazatlan, other city officials, and members of the Lions and Rotary clubs will attend.

Fifty-nine women are entered in the tournament, which ends Friday. Miss Romack met Mrs. Donald Duncan of Chicago, who qualified with an 85, in Tuesday's first round. Miss Smith played Mrs. Williams Roundtree of Shreveport, La., who scored 90 Monday.

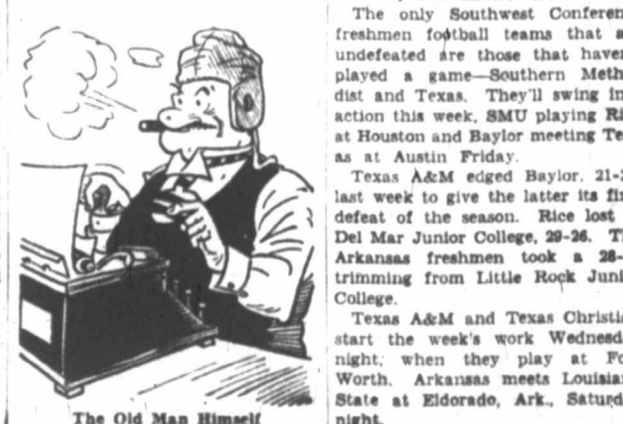

Other pairings for the championship flights with qualifying scores: Miss Faulk vs. Mrs. Thom Lichty, Fort Smith, 88. Mrs. Nell Moody, Sherman, Texas, 80, vs. Mrs. Ray Fellows, Tulsa, 90. Miss Jameson vs. Miss Lesbia

Southwest Frosh Elevens Get Busy

By The Associated Press
The only Southwest Conference freshmen football teams that are undefeated are those that haven't played a game—Southern Methodist and Texas. They'll swing into action this week, SMU playing Rice at Houston and Baylor meeting Texas at Austin Friday.

Texas A&M edged Baylor, 21-20, last week to give the latter its first defeat of the season. Rice lost to Del Mar Junior College, 29-26. The Arkansas freshmen took a 29-27 trimming from Little Rock Junior College.

Texas A&M and Texas Christian start the week's work Wednesday night, when they play at Fort Worth. Arkansas meets Louisiana State at Eldorado, Ark., Saturday night.

The Old Man Himself

Salas Rallies Big Following In Carter Go

CHICAGO —(AP)—Mexican hero Lauro Salas, the lightweight champion, is far from those who normally give him the old "Viva, Lauro!" but he'll have hundreds of Latin supporters at ringside Wednesday night.

Salas has picked up a terrific following among Mexican and South American-born Chicagoans and is promised a vociferous cheering section for his 15-round title fight with Jimmy Carter at Chicago Stadium.

The Monterrey boy has become something of a national idol in his native Mexico and he's been making appearances before various south-of-the-border groups here.

L. L. Cuplan, Mexican consul general, says, "Lauro has many, many friends in Chicago who will be there cheering for him." He said several hundred fans of Mexican descent will be on hand to give Lauro "every bit as enthusiastic support as he got in Los Angeles."

This is something of a sore spot with Carter, who lost the lightweight crown to Salas in Los Angeles last May.

Says Judges Influenced
Carter claims the California judges were influenced by brief round-end spurts by Salas that Carter said were flashy but not particularly effective.

"He had the ringside loaded with Mexican friends who cheered madly as he hurried and this resulted in a hometown decision," Carter declared.

With a crowd expected to top 5,000 at the nationally televised bout CBS-9 p.m. (CST), the New York negro expects to have plenty of those present on his side.

"He won't have any of that hometown influence here," Carter observed.

GRAY GHOST—Naave Dancer will be tried for distance for the first time in the mile-and-a-sixteenth of Jamaica's Eastview Stakes October 22.

Stengel Believed Smartest Of All

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK —(AP)—Four Winters ago, the New York Yankees invited members of the press to attend a news conference at their twenty-ninth floor offices. A spokesman said there would be an important announcement.

The newsmen were curious, because the Yankees already had signed a clown named Casey Stengel to manage their team the next season, supplanting a popular diamond genius named Bucky Harris.

Turned out it was the football Yankees who were providing the cheesecake and coffee on this occasion. They were signing a new coach, who was on hand, and our best recollection is that it was Red Strader. It must have been, and whatever became of Red? What ever, in fact, became of the football Yankees?

Anyway, the boys all congratulated the new coach, phoned their offices and then stood around drinking coffee. All the time there sat off in one corner this gray-haired

Russell Buys Club, Stadium, Single Player

BEAUMONT —(AP)—Allen Russell had a franchise, park and one player around which to build a Texas League ball club Tuesday.

The Houstonian sought the Beaumont franchise and Stuart Stadium Monday from Guy Airey, who had operated here seven years.

The lone player going to Russell was Hank Robinson, a catcher, and he represented the Beaumont roster.

Russell, who resigned as president of the Houston club in order to purchase the franchise, reportedly paid $150,000 for it. He borrowed $80,000 from a group of Beaumont business men to finance the deal.

Russell obtained the franchise and Stuart Stadium, the Texas League park, and also bought the Beaumont franchise.

Airey, who is expected to make a connection with Mobile, Ala., in the Southern Association, sold out because declining attendance lost him considerable money here.

The Texas League board of directors met Monday and unanimously approved the transfer of the franchise. President J. Alvin Gardner welcomed Russell as a club owner with the statement: "We are glad to have you although we regret to see Guy Airey go."

Russell probably will be succeeded as president of the Houston club by Art Rutzow, who has been business manager of the club. Fred Saigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals who own the Houston franchise, Rutzow would head the Houston club "while we are giving it consideration." Every indication was that Rutzow would be named permanent president.

Member 40 Years
Beaumont has been a member of the Texas League since 1912. When Airey announced in the later part of the season that he would dispose of the franchise, it was thought it would be bought by Austin as a likely site. But Airey agreed to see to those who would keep the club in Beaumont.

Austin, as far as known, never made a bid for the franchise. Austin is in the Big State League.

Russell comes here after seven seasons as president of the Houston club. He started with baseball in Houston as a parking lot attendant, entered other phases of plant operation such as selling tickets and working in the concessions. He had a knack for crowds and how to please them.

Made Stadium Pay
In 1943, when the Texas League closed down, Russell was asked to take over the Houston stadium and operate it jointly for the city and for the Cardinals. Staging various types of promotions at the stadium, Russell made it pay off until the league again opened in 1946. On resumption of baseball activities, Russell was named president of the Buffs.

Houston won the Texas League pennant in 1947 and 1951 and was third in 1948, the year Russell set a new Texas League attendance record with 401,283 paid admissions.

With control of the concessions, Russell is expected to make the Beaumont franchise a paying proposition. He has announced he will get a major league tie-up. Beaumont had a working agreement with the New York Yankees until recently, when the Yanks severed relations.

Homers In Series Change Mize's Retirement Plans

NEW YORK —(NEA)—John Robert Mize was thinking seriously of retiring at just three months short of 40.

Johnny Mize has just closed his 23rd season in organized baseball, not counting the years in the military. He has spent 17 campaigns in the majors.

"I got off to a slow start in the Spring," recalls the gigantic Georgian. "The bat felt like a bar bell. I couldn't get any distance."

A friend offered to buy Mize a Johnny Mize minor-league club. The Big Cat decided it was time for an old guy like him to call it a career.

But Joe Collins couldn't buy a base hit in the first three games of the World Series. So Casey Stengel called on Mize, the old pro, as a pinch-hitter, and he came through with a home run.

That put Mize back in the lineup as the regular first baseman. He won the fourth game with a home run off Joe Black.

His home-run hitting reached a crescendo in the fifth inning of the fifth game with a majestic smash into the lower right-field deck for three runs that put the Yankees temporarily ahead, 5-4. It was his third homer in as many games.

Mize was the victim of downright larceny in the 11th, when Carl Furillo created something in the way of a new high-jump record to pluck what would have been his second homer out of the second deck, or so it seemed.

This changed Mize's mind about retiring. Johnny Mize wasn't Leo Durocher's kind of ball player.

He helped the Yankees to four straight pennants, and wound up playing first base in the World Series.

Preacher Roe's six-bitter in the third game of the Series recalled how Branch Rickey was throwing the Pittsburgh club into throwing the slight and slight-of-hand southpaw into a package deal in December, 1947.

Marciano Receives Hickok Pro Award
NEW YORK —(AP)—Heavyweight Champion Rocky Marciano Monday was named September winner of the Hickok Pro Athlete of the Year Poll.

The undefeated Brockton blaster's knockout of Jersey Joe Walcott earned him the monthly prize by a landslide vote. He was picked first by 91 of the 99 selectors and piled up 284 points on a 3-2-1 basis.

Branch Rickey was made many a smart deal, but this one certainly ranks among the best.

EXTREMES—Tennessee went to extremes selecting talent. Senior Doug Atkins is a six-foot six, 220-pound defensive right tackle. Freshman Bobby Brenzle is a five-foot five, 150-pound safety man. (NEA).

Hogs Picked To Edge Texas, Rice Owls Over Methodists

By MAJOR AMOS HOOPLE
Sage of the Sidelines
Egad! Today I hope my millions of readers are prepared to delve with me into some football calculations based on canine astronomical aristocracy.

We will come up with some amazing forecasts for the Saturday grid contests.

This study concerns the influence of the dog star, Sirius, on coming sports events. Sirius, which also is known as Canis Major (the greater dog), has a companion satellite. This Saturday the heliacal position of Sirius and its companion star suggest great athletic victories for the underdog.

Therefore I have selected a slate of winners in which the underdog will defeat the favorite, such as Iowa beating Wisconsin. If you will pardon the pun, this is what I call a Sirius matter—heh-heh!

You probably will shudder when I say that Arkansas will nose out Texas, but I cannot desert my dog star dogma. By the way, Sirius is 8.6 light years distant from the solar system, so you see what kind of long range computations I am up against. It's staggering.

Now, if you will just pursue the forecast, you'll be surprised.

Western Powers Are Split As UN Assembly Convenes

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — The Big Three Western Powers were reported split Tuesday over the issue of France's North African colonies as the United Nations General Assembly gathered to open its seventh session.

Many diplomats here expected the colonial issue to be second only to the Korean question in importance during the 10-week meeting which opened at 10 a.m., Central Standard Time.

The crack in Western unity was revealed in reports that the U. S. delegation, headed by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, had decided to support a move for full debate on Tunisia and Moroccan complaints against France's rule over them.

The U. S. delegation, sources added, have not decided how they will vote after the issue has been debated. Opening Formalities that war between the capitalist countries was more likely than war between Communists and capitalist countries. This was seen by some as an indication of new Communist efforts to split the non-Communist countries.

KEEPING TABS—In Korea, U. S. Marines model the stages of development of the new tabs added to bullet-proof vests to protect the lower abdomen. Cpl. Joe Sanchez, left, of San Antonio, Tex., wears one design, a square, four-plate "apron"; Cpl. Robert Welch, of New Haven, Conn., wears a straight, two-plate protector and Cpl. E. L. Norris, of Seminola, Tex., wears the final design which evolved from the other two.

Both France and Britain oppose putting the Tunisian and Moroccan questions on the agenda. The French also have voiced strong irritation over the U. S. attitude on colonial questions.

In Paris last winter and later in New York last spring, the U. S. refused to back Moroccan and Tunisian demands for a hearing on the ground that direct negotiations still were under way outside the UN.

The opening session of the assembly was set aside primarily for formalities, but even the introductory speeches of Secretary-General Trygve Lie and others were expected to point to the Korean and colonial questions as the most important before the Assembly.

The U. S. delegation has disclosed that Acheson will take the initiative quickly in bringing up the Korean War when he leads off the general policy declarations Wednesday. He was reported ready to urge an Assembly appeal for Communist acceptance of an armistice at once along the lines proposed by the UN Command.

The U. S. wants the Assembly to declare its support for the UN Command's position that no prisoners of war should be sent home against their own will.

The importance of Russians attached to the session was indicated by the high-ranking diplomats in their delegations. These included Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Gromyko and Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin.

The Soviet news agency Tass also indicated it would have a large staff on hand, in contrast with the very limited coverage it gave the 1951 session.

It was considerable interest in Russian plans in view of the recent declaration of Premier Stalin

Air Force Orders Production Of First Delta Wing Fighter

WASHINGTON — The Air Force announced Tuesday it has ordered "initial production" of America's first supersonic delta wing fighter plane, the F-102.

The new aircraft will be built by Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation (Convair), at San Diego, Calif.

incorporate significant improvements in armament and electronics," the announcement said.

The Air Force said the F-102 will resemble in general the Convair-built XF-92, the first known delta-wing aircraft to fly. A delta plane is triangular in shape, roughly like a half diamond, and it has no horizontal tail.

The speed of sound varies, depending upon temperature, humidity and other factors, from about 760 miles an hour at sea level to 660 at 40,000 feet. An airplane which barely exceeds that speed is in the trans-sonic range. However, the F-102 will be definitely supersonic, as are several other Air Force and Navy swept-wing aircraft now flying.

Because it must function as a high-altitude interceptor of enemy bombers, the F-102 also will have a terrific rate of climb. Like all supersonic aircraft it will have complex automatic electronic controls. These are necessary

EXHIBIT A FOR WHAT FAITH CAN DO— Rickenbacker Recalls Saga Of Rendezvous With Death

NEW YORK (AP)—In the beginning, he appeared busy and strained but slowly, as he talked about death, Eddie Rickenbacker began to relax.

He recalled his incredible list of narrow escapes — as a racing driver, as a flying ace of the first World War, as a victim of a plane crash in the second. And, as he remembered, his voice grew softer and his heavy-browed eyes, more reflective.

"The sensation of dying," he said, "is sweet, sensuous, placid. It is the easiest thing in the world, to die. The hardest is to live."

"I have probably cheated the grim reaper more than any other man in the last 45 years. I came very close several times. Twice I was actually dying, and knew it."

But each time, as I moved closer, I began to fight harder. I had faith in the power above and I had the will to live. Without them, I would have been dead long ago."

Raft At Sea
He recalled his epic adventure 10 years ago this fall. And as he talked, the picture of the busy executive—the safe comfort of his office, the granite-steel strength of the surrounding buildings, the whole throbbing mood for a big city—began slowly to fade away.

Oct. 21, 1942. Rickenbacker, Col. Hans C. Adamson and the six-man crew of a B-17 were flying the Pacific on an inspection trip for the War Department. Rickenbacker, at 32, was too old for combat but he made several missions covering all the battlefronts throughout the world for the secretary of war.

About 1,500 miles southwest of Hawaii, the men in the B-17 found themselves lost. Finally, with their fuel gone, they crash-landed in the lonely, open sea.

Eight men crowded into three tiny, rubber rafts. There were Rickenbacker, Adamson and the crew—Capt. William C. Cherry, Jr., Abilene, Texas; Lt. James C. Whitaker, Burlingame, Calif.; Lt. John de Angelis, Nesquehoning, Pa.; Sgt. James Reynolds, Ft. Jones, Calif.; Sgt. Alexander Kaczmarek, Torrington, Conn., and Pvt. John F. Barick, Freehold, N. J.

No Drinking Water
They had escaped the sinking plane with no drinking water and only four oranges. For the next eight days, they had no water and the oranges, carefully rationed by Rickenbacker, were their only food.

Beginning on the third day, they frequently prayed and sang hymns, the ragged congregation being held together by the single rope connecting the rafts. They prayed this way on the eighth day and an hour later a sea gull landed on Rickenbacker's felt hat.

With seven pairs of desperately hungry eyes watching him, he slowly raised his hand up to his hat and finally grabbed the gull. They ate it raw and saved the intestines for fish bait. Two small fish were caught and the diet was sharply rationed.

During the night of the eighth day, it rained, and they kept wringing precious drinking water out of their shirts, socks and handkerchiefs.

Value Of Faith
But the food and water came too late for Sgt. Kaczmarek. Unable to resist, he had consumed some salt water. During the night of the twelfth day, he died and was buried at sea.

Finally, after their bodies had been thinned to skeletal frames and their minds had blurred into frequent delirium, the survivors were rescued by a Navy plane on the twenty-third day.

Now, 10 years later, back in the president's office at Eastern Airlines, Rickenbacker leaned back in his chair and stared at the ceiling.

"In that kind of situation," he said, "you realize, more than ever, how little the material things of life really count. The whole experience gave me a valuable perspective."

"I never doubted we would be picked up. I had my faith. Nobody, I realized, could make any worthwhile success of life without faith in the power above. Without it you get lost, you get off the big beam."

"When I got back to the states and related our experiences," he recalled, "they told me I was responsible for more Bibles being sold than any other living man. I suppose I symbolized what people wanted to believe in. If I could come back, their boy could, too. I was Exhibit A for what faith could do."

Nationalist Army Not Strong As Advertised, Writer Warns

By STANLEY RICH

HONG KONG — American sources in Taipei are of the opinion that the folks back home may be a little overland on Chiang Kai-shek's tight little island fortress Formosa.

A succession of American congressmen, judges and publishers visited Formosa last Summer. Almost to a man they gained a quick confidence that the Chinese Nationalist armed forces have grown so powerful that their island stronghold no longer is in any danger of invasion.

U. S. military men who advise, train, equip and live with Chiang's armies express no such confidence. Chiang's troops are stronger, certainly, but if the Chinese Communists throw a major invasion force across the Straits of Formosa, the defenders are not considered better than a 50-50 bet to hold.

The two staunch bulwarks of Formosa today, these Americans say, are the U. S. Seventh Fleet, which guards it, and the 120 miles of rough water between the island and the Red mainland. It is considered doubtful that the Reds, at their present stage of amphibious training, could set a big force across—even opposed by nothing more than wind and waves.

But if they did, one U. S. officer said, "I wouldn't want to be here."

The Fleet Helps

Even Mr. Gen. William C. Chase, chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group (USMAAG) will not commit himself, beyond saying the Nationalists will be "reasonably effective so long as they are aided."

by the U. S. Seventh Fleet." American military men on Formosa describe Chiang's ground forces as probably the best drilled in the world. They should be. They have been at it steadily for more than three years now.

These Americans feel, however, that Chiang's forces have gone about as far as they can go until American equipment arrives in quantity. Nobody expects that will be soon.

For this reason, although it has been denied, some American military officials on Formosa have recommended sending two Nationalist ground force divisions, totaling 22,000 men, to Korea for combat training they so badly need. They cannot get it on supply-short Formosa.

Chiang's forces are substantial but lack balance. They have dangerous soft spots. They have done too much marching and not enough shooting. The best available estimates total the Nationalists at 410,000 overall with the following breakdown:

Army: 280,000 troops of which one-third are non-combat supply personnel. They are well equipped with small arms but short on ammunition, which is mainly of Japanese and British manufacture. Troops are rationed to three rounds of ammunition a week. They need U. S. 30-caliber ammunition, recoilless rifles, light artillery and automatic small arms. They are drastically short of tanks and heavy artillery.

Few Old Plans

Air Force: 80,000 men but only 225 rapidly aging World War II vintage planes, mostly F-51 fighters and C-37 transports. Gasoline supplies are short with the result that American-trained pilots are limited to 30 minutes of flying time each month. The Air Force needs about two million gallons of fuel per month and more planes. There are now five pilots assigned to each plane.

Navy and Marines: Possibly 50,000 men described by General Chase as showing the best improvement of all Chiang's forces. In view of Red China's naval weaknesses, military authorities don't expect the Nationalist destroyers, destroyer escorts and small craft to count for much in any foreseeable military action.

They Jumped The Political Fence

Feelings run high in one of the hottest presidential campaigns in many a decade. So high, in fact, as to move prominent personalities on both sides to bolt their traditional party and go over to "the enemy." Outstanding among such politicians are those pictured below. Exception is Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican, who is careful to point out that he's not bolting—merely "taking a walk."

"I shall not vote for the label. I shall place loyalty to my country above loyalty to a political party and I shall vote for Dwight D. Eisenhower." — Gov. James F. Byrnes (D., S. C.)

"On Nov. 4, the Good Lord willing, I will go to the polling place and cast my ballot for Dwight D. Eisenhower." — Gov. Robert F. Kennon (D., La.)

"I personally will not support the Democratic national candidates and urge all Democrats to reconsider and work for the election of Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard Nixon." — Gov. Allan Shivers (D., Tex.)

"The time has come to organize a new party. Not a third party because we must draw upon people of similar beliefs in both parties. We will follow Lincoln and Jefferson while we repudiate Truman and Dewey." — Robert R. McCormick (R.)

"A party bolter is one who campaigns for the opposition, whereas when one takes a walk he simply doesn't campaign for his party's candidates. I am certainly taking a walk as of now." — Senator Wayne Morse (R., Ore.)

"I can't support the candidacy of Dwight Eisenhower even as the lesser of two evils. Eisenhower is a one-worder out and out. He may know something about war, but he knows nothing about this government if he thinks the U. S. can democratize the world." — Rep. Usher Burdick (R., N. D.)

A Husband Always Wins Out When Competing With Wife

A New York couple recently broke up their marriage over a card game. It happened like this, according to the wife's story: Her husband insisted that she play cards with him for "house money." When she started winning heavily from him she claims he "marked the deck."

When a woman enters into competition with her husband the cards usually are marked.

She may be able to show him up, but still she is not the winner. Because a man just isn't going to let his wife beat him at anything he considers important.

To be sure that she doesn't, he can fall back on all kinds of unfair advantages.

He'll drop out of the competition. Or he'll decide his wife is neglecting her responsibilities in order to pursue her career, or that she wants to become a big shot club woman, or whatever she is doing to overshadow him.

Or he'll resort to ridicule and make it apparent that he likes women who make him feel important.

So there's really no winning for the wife who turns herself into her husband's competition.

The only winning game a wife can play is to be her husband's sustaining partner. If she is on his side the cards aren't marked against her.

But let her oppose him and she'll find she is playing with a marked deck. She can holler "Unfair" all she wants to but the fact remains that she can't win.

So if you don't want the cards stacked against you, always be his partner—never his opponent. (All rights reserved, NEA Service, Inc.)

The MATURE PARENT

How To Keep From Frustrating Tot's Spirit Of Independence

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Somewhat plaintively a young mother writes: "My small boy has begun to climb. Though I have removed breakables, his reach is now extended so that he can grab from tall tables and hoist himself on small ones or push them over. What do you do—strip your living room of all but heavy furniture? My sister-in-law says that he is too young to be frustrated.

Before we start using the word 'frustration' let's see what it means. My dictionary defines it as 'prevention of attainment of a purpose.' To be frustrated therefore is a universal human experience. Little children can no more be protected against it than they can be protected against breathing the air we breathe.

But to frustrate an immediate purpose is one thing and to deny the spirit back of the purpose quite another. That is indeed dangerous. Although we may frustrate Billy's purpose of hoisting himself up on our mahogany coffee table, the spirit of enterprise and independence that motivates his purpose must be protected and encouraged. Coffee tables come and go, but the spirit of enterprise in little children does not always recover when it has been discouraged.

We discourage the spirit back of the purpose of climbing the coffee table when we show impatience and disapproval of the purpose. If we speak angrily to Billy or jerk him roughly from the coffee table, he may begin to associate all enterprise with fear of consequence.

That is why the child guidance books always are talking about "distracting" children from climbing up mahogany antiques by interesting them, say, in a smooth box or some other object which they can conquer without driving us distracted.

If we want to support the spirit of enterprise in toddlers, the more relaxed we are, the better job we do. For the way we treat his acts of independence establishes his point of view about the world.

Babies regard their mothers as parts of themselves. Toddlers, too, often have this impression. Regarding us as parts of them, they expect us to share their opinions. Gradually, as we remove them from coffee tables and piano benches, they learn that we do not agree that it is a glorious thing to jump up and down on our wedding presents.

Then it dawns upon Billy that we are not part of him at all, but different from him. Thus his first experience in prohibitions are his first awareness of Others—the beginning of his discovery of his own identity as one kind of person, distinct and separate from another kind of person.

Now we begin to see why our treatment of his independent acts is so important. As we are the first Other our little boy realizes, the attitude we take toward him influences his idea of all subsequent Others who will ever come into his life.

A gentle voice, a firm touch, a relaxed face tends to establish Billy's confidence in the world inhabited by his first gentle, firm and relaxed Other. If his spirit of enterprise is encouraged by this Other, he will expect all subsequent Others to accommodate it, too.

And this is exactly what we want him to expect.

High-Flying Red Feather

The time now is at hand for all Midlanders—men, women and children—to join hands in putting their Community Chest finance campaign "over-the-top" in quick order.

It is a responsibility which should not be shirked. Everyone must give—and give enough—if the $68,250 goal is subscribed on schedule.

Hundreds of volunteer workers now are engaged in an all-out effort to contact every Midland resident for his or her Community Chest gift.

The Community Chest, which finances the operations of eight Midland youth and welfare organizations, belongs to YOU and YOU and YOU, and it is YOUR generous contribution which will make the finance campaign the success it should be.

With YOUR gift, the agencies participating in the Community Chest will be forced to curtail their worthwhile operations next year. And if that should happen, the entire community will be the loser.

Midland long has had the distinction of being a city capable of caring for its own, and surely Midlanders will see to it that ample funds are provided in the current campaign to take care of its Red Feather youth and welfare agencies in 1953.

The Community Chest campaign presents a challenge which must be met promptly. Donors should remember they are giving not just to one organization but to eight agencies when determining the amount of their gifts.

It also is well to remember that the Community Chest this year is operating on a pledge system, whereby contributors may sign pledge cards, making their gifts payable in amounts and at times to suit their convenience over a 12-month period.

The success or failure of Midland's 1952 Community Chest campaign rests in YOUR hands.

Let's be sure OUR Red Feather drive is the tremendous success it should be.

Let's put Midland's Community Chest campaign "over-the-top" NOW!

Hey! Whose Side Are You On, Harry?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Drew Pearson says: Senator Sparkman averaged $71,000 income during eight-year period; Son of cotton picker bought an Alabama farm; Sparkman owns two automobiles and Washington house.

WASHINGTON—Having focused some attention on the finances of Senator Nixon, the GOP vice presidential candidate, here is a report on the finances of the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

In 1942, Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama, then a member of the House of Representatives, telephoned this column to say: "You have been writing about members of Congress who put their wives on the payroll. I've never had Mrs. Sparkman on my payroll yet, but I'm about to put her on. She's going to be a real working member of the staff, and anytime you drop around to the office, you will find her there. If that's a story make the most of it."

This column frequently has called attention to relatives of congressmen carried on the public payroll who merely draw a salary but do not work. Likewise this column has been careful to point to family members who performed real jobs for congressmen—among them Mrs. Irving Jves, wife of the Republican senator from New York, who works in his office and works hard.

Another was Arthur Vandenberg, Jr., son of the late Republican senator from Michigan. It would have been difficult for Senator Vandenberg to have accomplished what he did without his son's help. Likewise Vice President Jack Garner kept his wife on the payroll and she earned every penny she got.

However, in keeping with the healthy policy of dissecting the financial affairs of candidates, here is a scrutiny of Senator Sparkman's income.

His income taxes, already made public for the last eight years, show that in 1944 he grossed $9,493.52 before taxes. This climbed to $13,903.47 in 1951, and the average income was around $11,000—all before taxes.

Against this, Sparkman paid an average tax of about $2,300 a year. The senator's income, chiefly his congressional salary, was augmented by rent of $75 a month on a six-room bungalow in Huntsville, Ala., plus rent of $400 a year on a 160-acre farm near Huntsville.

During his 16 years in Congress he has made a total of $3,000 on lecture fees and $950 from two magazine articles. His wife receives a base salary of $4,500, which with overtime comes to around $6,500. She is also a 49 per cent owner of radio station WYU at Albertville, Ala., the other owner being the husband of the senator's niece.

Senator Sparkman's capital investments include: $50,000 in life insurance; about $20,000 in government bonds; about $10,000 in investment certificates; $675 of stock in a vending-machine company that sells insurance at airports; and a $35,000 home in Washington.

Sparkman bought his Washington home in 1947, paying $15,000 in cash, by converting government bonds. He took a mortgage of $20,000 of which about one-half has been paid off.

PETER EDSON'S Washington News Notebook

Truman And Bess Take Second Billing To 'George Washington And Martha'

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Just before President Truman left town on his whistle-stop tour to win the West, the President, Gen. Harry Truman and their ladies had to take second billing to a couple of actors impersonating Col. George Washington and his wife, Martha.

It happened on in Alexandria, Va., at the old Gadsby's Tavern where a group of the townspeople have been putting on a colonial theater revival of "The Beggar's Opera," Charles Gay's eighteenth century classic satire on Italian opera.

Charles Dillon, head of radio and TV operations at the Pentagon, produced the show and did a good job of it. All the eighteenth century atmosphere was recreated, including hostesses and usherettes in colonial gowns, candlelight and girls selling peppermint candy straws stuck in whole oranges for refreshments.

All guests arriving at the open air theater were announced by a wigged dandy in a lace-trimmed, long silk coat and knee breeches. The next to the last guests announced were, "The President of the United States and Mrs. Truman, Gen. and Mrs. Harry Truman." Everybody stood up, but nobody applauded.

Then the real ranking guests of the evening arrived and were announced as "Col. George Washington and Lady." They were dressed in the fashion of the day when the real George Washington and lady coached in from Mount Vernon and attended plays performed by companies from London in the old Alexandria theater.

Between the acts, Colonel and Mrs. Washington received the Truman. The actor impersonating Washington explained that, since this was supposed to be 1783, he wouldn't be a general for four years and wouldn't be President for another 20 years.

Scouting For Votes

Two million Boy Scouts will be sent to ring doorbells November 1, three days before the election. On each doorknob they'll hang a Liberty Bell urging people to vote. Afterward, each Scout will be presented with an imitation gold medal pocket piece, contributed by the Freedoms Foundation for taking part in this "Get Out the Vote" campaign.

Since there are something less than 48,000,000 households in the United States, theoretically each household would have to ping only 50 doorbells to reach everyone in the country. But a lot of rural areas aren't so covered.

My Compliments, Sir—Ouch! Campaign compliments now are being exchanged at a crisp fall rate. Republican crack: Mr. Truman has certainly kept America a land of plenty—over plenty, spend plenty, tax plenty and waste plenty.

Democratic crack: The difference between Eisenhower and Stevenson is the difference between a college president and an educated man. Senator's Best Friend

Not Breath Of Spring

Americans in Japan now have found a new use for chlorophyll chewing gum. Many of the Jap and Korean barbers are women, and their breath is terrible from eating kim-chee, an Oriental garlic. Before ordering shave and haircut and free massage that goes with them, GIs feed the odor-killing gum to the operators.

Forgotten Oil Complaint

Mutual Security Administration's complaint that the U. S. government was overcharged some $67,000,000 on European oil shipments by four American companies had a somewhat parallel case at the end of World War I.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

Normally, you use the ace of trumps to extract trumps held by the enemy, and you use dummy's small trumps to ruff losing cards. In today's ambitious bid hand, however, this normal procedure was reversed with very good effect.

West opened the jack of spades, and South planned his play very carefully. There was no point in getting to his hand for a trump finesse, since the bidding made it perfectly clear that the finesse would lose. Hence trumps could be played from the dummy and South's precious ace of diamonds could be saved for the strategic moment.

At the second trick, therefore, declarer led the queen of hearts from the dummy. East won this startling lead with the king of hearts and returned the king of clubs, forcing South to ruff. South now led the ten of hearts and let it ride to East's jack. The idea was to make East take his two trump tricks while dummy still had the third trump.

On taking the jack of hearts, East led another spade, and South discarded a low club. There was no way to avoid the loss of this club trick, so South was not giving anything away. The advantage of the play was that South preserved his own trump length, knowing that dummy could ruff the next spade.

East persevered with a fourth round of spades, and declarer ruffed in dummy with the ace of trumps. South could now enter his hand with the ace of diamonds to draw East's trumps with the nine and eight, after which he could take the rest of the tricks with high diamonds.

If South had taken the ace of hearts on an early round of trumps, East's persistent spade leads would have fatally reduced South's trump length. East would then defeat the trick by winning three trump tricks instead of only two.

Today's Question

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades K-Q-J-7-3-2, Hearts 5-4, Diamonds A-9, Clubs K-8-6. What do you do?

SECOND MAN on the Ticket

By Edwin Luskman

THE Governor smiled warmly. "Hitting Clyde McDonald seems to be our only consolation. Thanks for trying."

"He definitely tried," Lucy said. "He had so much lipstick smeared on him, he looked like the Dying Gladiator."

"I can still detect a trace of it," the Governor said gently. While Lucy blushed and I rubbed my mouth with my handkerchief, the Governor said to me, "Better go over to the airport and pick up Bill. We'll all sit down together and decide the best course."

I asked Lucy to go along and we went out to the car. When we were all settled, I put my arm around her. "We've got an errand," she said reprovingly. "Let's go."

"Now don't play hard to get." It was the sort of thing a man says when his emotions are functioning and his brain is not. I had not thought it an offensive reproach, but Lucy bristled.

"I know that would be contrary to your conception of me." "Now, Lucy," I said. "I—"

"After all," she went on in the same tone, "a girl who's seen around," "I didn't mean anything like that," I protested. "Drive on," she said.

More Beef Than Ever Fails To Develop Price Reduction

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Feed & Markets Editor

CHICAGO—There's a continuing rush of beef cattle into the stockyards. Even in some of the old back pens which haven't been used for years, future beefsteaks were being packed like sardines this month. By the end of this year there will be a total U. S. cattle population of more than 22,000,000. Were in the top brackets of a long cycle of ascending production, the greatest in our history.

John Holmes, president of Swift Company, world's largest meat packer, estimates that by the end of 1954 there will be still another four or five million cattle, plus another two or three million by the end of 1955—a total of about 100,000,000.

Compare those figures to Jan. 1, 1952, when the total was only 88,000,000 and with the previous January's 82,000,000 figure.

From steaks to stew meat prices have been going down. The Bureau of Labor Statistics Wholesale Meat Price Index for week ending September 23 was eight per cent below peak at same period in 1951. Choice beef, the pin-up girl of the American appetite, was down six and one-half per cent and had dropped a little more since then. However, the non-broiling cuts, which constitute about 45 per cent of the carcass, have skidded faster than high quality steaks and roasts.

All to the good, of course, for Mr. and Mrs. You and Me. But a good thing can't go on forever, even in the Chicago stock yards.

Swift's ruddy-faced president, a realist with dogged optimism about the future of the industry, told me in his office in the Chicago yards, "I don't see that meat prices in the near future should go down much further, except seasonally."

He explained that consumers in any normal year (other than black market years) have always spent from five and one-half to six per cent of their disposable income for meat, adding, "I don't myself foresee any great increase or reduction in income for people as a whole for the next six months."

The price level of meat has explosive importance to the consumer. But it is only a matter of academic importance to the packer. Holmes insisted. In fact, when prices get too far out of line the packers suffer because then the consumer buys less.

"The price level of dressed meat is in and of itself not the important thing. Volume of sales is the important factor in our business," he exploded. "When we operate at considerable volume, our overhead cost per item goes down."

H. H. Corey, president of Hormel & Company, warned that profits in the meat industry are too low and that this situation is a source of danger. Other Chicago meat people predicted some packers would go out of business.

But silver-haired, rugged Irish-born Holmes said he thinks his company will have a fair year. "And we are going to stay in business. Some one has to provide meat for a meat-loving nation."

The packer is on a hot spot, he said, plunk in the middle between the housewife who clamors for lower prices and the farmer and cattle breeder who battles for higher prices.

If volume in business is the important thing to the packer, low prices for the meat she buys for her family is the important thing to the housewife. But Holmes pointed out that unless the cattle breeder gets enough to make his end of the business profitable, he is likely to turn his energies and money into other channels.

"In other words," he said, "you can't have your steak and not pay a reasonable price for it."

Other factors beside a declining market have put the bite on the meat packer's profit, according to claims of several key men I interviewed. Holmes listed O.P.S. as one of the major factors in upping production costs; also the sharp drop in the price of lard, hides and other by-products naturally affected earnings. He stressed steadily rising labor rates as another factor.

On the other end of the butcher's counter, pork production will be down after November about 600,000, a drop of between five and six per cent.

But packers here point out that our pork supplies have been near peak level and next year will be closer to the normal average.

The drop in pork, they state, is not alarming. Smoked hams have been selling at seven per cent below the peak price reached in July, 1951, and bacon, not so long ago a luxury item, has been 14.12 per cent below the peak reached in September, 1950, and a good budget item today.

Our pork supplies have been near peak level and next year will be closer to the normal average.

Headed for the stove: Some of the rush of beef cattle being headed to markets in unprecedented numbers arrive in Chicago.

NO BUBBLES TO BLOW IN SIBERIA, BUT— One Case Of Dubble Bubble Buys Wife For Man In Africa

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(P)—A 10-year-old girl in a New Jersey amusement park recently took a piece of gum and airily blew it into a bubble 20 inches in diameter.

No one was more astounded at this new world record than Norman Hutson, a 50-year-old former civil engineer.

"We had always thought a 17-inch bubble was about the limit," he said.

There was a trace of envy in his voice as he recounted the young girl's feat, a real landmark in the history of bubble gum.

"Personally, I'm not a very good bubble blower myself," Hutson admitted wistfully. "I'm handicapped by false teeth. Kids don't have that problem."

Gum Follows Flag

The irony of Hutson's case arises from the fact he is president of a Philadelphia firm that turns out two billion pieces of "Dubble Bubble" gum a year. He estimates this is about half of America's annual output.

In less than 25 years this business built on a bubble has grown into a still mushrooming 40 million dollar industry. Bubble gum has followed an American flag, and is now popular around the globe. Eskimo children even prefer it to blubber.

Hutson's product has been banned in Iron Curtain countries because the wrapper of each piece of gum contained a printed U. S. historical fact and a comic strip about a typical family.

The Russians banned it two years ago because the comic strip made the American way of life look too happy," he said.

Army Big Buyer

The U. S. Army buys 20 million pieces a year, and troops overseas have used it to plug oil leaks in bombers or to keep rain out of their rifles. They sometimes have found it better than money in Korea to hire kids to clean their barracks or run errands.

"We have heard of many instances where it has been used as currency," said Hutson. "Some headhunters in Borneo captured a minor British diplomatic official and released him only after a ransom of 2,400 pieces of bubble gum was paid.

"And in Africa we had a report that a man bought a wife for a case of bubble gum instead of the usual price—two or three oxen and a half dozen sheep."

Bubble gum formerly was made from pontianak, a gum tapped from a Borneo tree. When this source dried up during the last war, the industry developed a plastic base, and this is still used.

Researchers Busy

Hutson employs 21 persons, including three chemists, who do nothing but test and blow bubble gum. He is proud that, although he is a poor blower himself, he was able in his laboratory to stretch an inch square piece of gum large enough to cover an 8-by-10 foot rug.

"It was rather frightening," he said, "we didn't know what to do with it."

Many a mother with a gum-chewing small son, however, would hardly regard that as a record.

Hutson sees no bust ahead in the boom in the world's largest penny confectionery. Adults buy only six per cent of the bubble gum out-

Engineer Whistles Melodies For Wife

READING, PA.—(P)—Every time retired railroadman Harry Reber, 63, hears a train whistle he thinks of "Home Sweet Home."

That's the tune he started playing on his train whistle in the early years of the century to let his wife know it was time to get his dinner ready. "On a clear night the whistle could be heard up to 20 miles," he recalled.

"I found that the further I pulled on the whistle string, the higher the note." Once a railroad employe reported him to the supervisor for playing the tune. The supervisor merely said he was glad to know there was one man who could play it with one string when some engineers needed six.

put, the kids buy the rest themselves.

No Chlorophyll Please

"Our market is the children from five to 15—and there are 28 million in America alone," said Hutson, and added dreamily:

"Our goal is to sell each of them one stick a day—that would be $102,300,000 in retail sales."

Hutson violently is opposed to marketing bubble gum on a health basis or on the grounds it provides needed exercises for growing mouths.

"The day they start putting chlorophyll in it I retire," he said. "We never claim bubble gum is good for kids. It is just one of the few things left that can give them harmless fun for a penny."

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Sometimes the question of whether to make the initial meld early or late depends on the kind of pairs you have in your hand. With high pairs, you tend to meld early; with low pairs, you tend to meld late.

Let's take an example. You hold a pair of jokers and a pair of kings, with both sides needing 120 points for the initial meld. Hence you are in position to make the initial meld with only four cards.

If the rest of your cards include, say, a pair of queens and a pair of jacks, you should make the initial meld at once. You have, to be sure, a fair chance to win the pack, but the enemy will probably throw low cards rather than queens or jacks.

Contrariwise, if the rest of your cards include a pair of sixes and a pair of sevens (instead of those queens and jacks) you should tend not to make your meld so quickly. The opponent at your right is likely to throw a six or seven in the hope you don't have the count, but if you make your meld he will discard much more cautiously.

Q—We play six-handed Canasta and sometimes six-handed Samba. In such a game, what is the rule when a player wants to ask permission to meld out? The player has two partners, as you know. Does he ask both of them, or only one?

A—When you want to ask permission to go out, you must ask the partner at your left. You can't ask both partners, and you can't ask the partner at your right—at least, not to begin with.

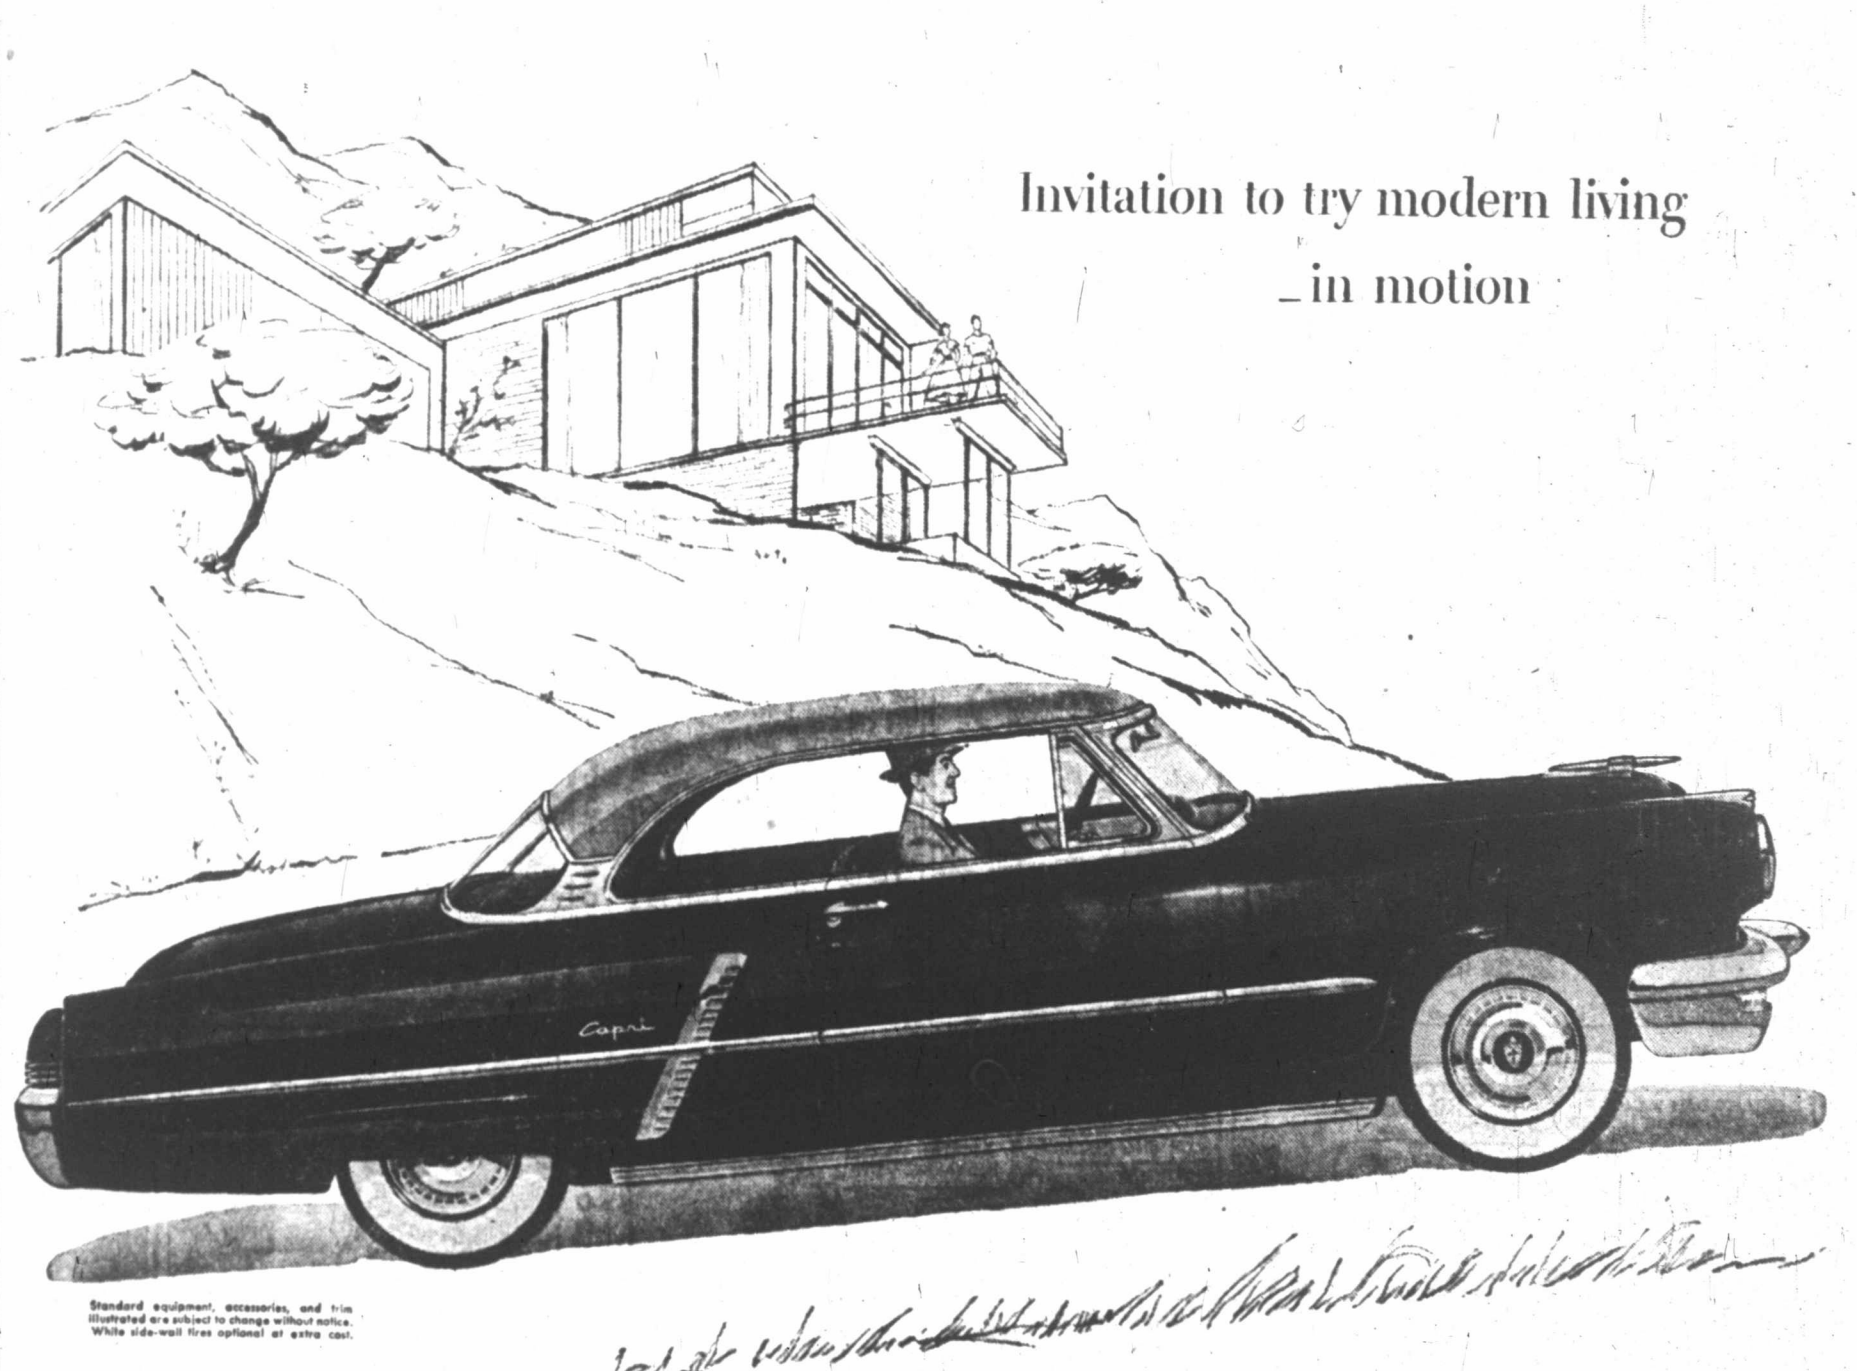

The partner at your left must answer your question with "yes," "no," or "I pass." If he says "yes," you must meld out; and if he says "no," you must continue to play. In either such case, the partner at your right has nothing to say in the matter. He must remain silent and must not indicate his wishes by facial expression or any other way.

If the partner at your left says "I pass," the decision is then up to the other partner. In this case, the partner at your right must say "yes" or "no."

When you ask permission, the partner at your left should pass unless he has a good reason for making a definite answer. If he is going to guess at the right answer, he can allow the other partner to do the guessing; and, after all, the other partner may have very strong wishes one way or the other.

Daddy Ringtail and Certain Someone

Mugwump Monkey, the monkey boy, was tiptoeing along the Elephant Path. A great big club was on his shoulder. He was looking for a certain someone. He was going to do a bit of kerpopping right on the certain someone's head.

"Why?" the certain someone asked. "Because you are covered with stripes," Mugwump explained. "Hah!" said the certain someone with a laugh. "I'm going to kerpob you myself." "Why?" asked Mugwump. "Because you are not covered with stripes," the certain someone explained.

Not far away, however, was the certain someone—tiptoeing and tiptoeing along—looking for Mugwump Monkey. The certain someone carried a great big club on his shoulder. He was going to do a bit of kerpopping right on Mugwump's head. Sashh! Tiptoe, and toetip, and there they came. The certain someone was a monkey boy, just like Mugwump, except he was a striped monkey. Striped all over up and down!

And so there one boy was going to kerpob because the other had stripes, and the other boy was going to kerpob because the first boy didn't have any, and they drew back their clubs as far as they could to do a fine kerpopping job. "Is your kerpopping stick made of rubber, so it won't hurt too much?" asked Mugwump. "Sure, and is your kerpopping stick made of rubber, so it won't hurt too much?" asked the certain someone.

Washington Society Ready To Descend On White House

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—Prospect for a real, live White House social season with the incoming President is the best thing to excite this town's party set since Perle Mesta departed.

No matter which candidate wins, the assumption is that bright lights will go on at the rebuilt executive mansion for the first time since they were dimmed at the state of World War II.

Heightening the interest among emales is the chance that the unnamed Gov. Adlai Stevenson might be the victor. This possibility has inspired some spintangling questions of protocol. Carolyn Hagner Shaw, social arbiter, puts it this way:

"Should his sister, Mrs. Ernest Ives, act as his official hostess and assume the position of the First Lady of the land? If so, that would raise the more complicated question of what rank her husband would hold."

Mrs. Glenn Cafritz, considered the city's No. 1 unofficial hostess, has her own solution to this stumper. She hereby offers her services as official White House hostess to Governor Stevenson. That's if Mrs.

Ives declines, of course. "Of course the whole idea is really kind of a joke," she explains. But rolling her eyes skyward she sighs, "Imagine being able to entertain in that heavenly place, the new White House."

Beas Sets Record
When Mrs. Truman sees that the last dust fluffs are swept up for the new tenant on January 20, she will leave behind her a unique social veit, would have considered it dull social going if she didn't have that many formal affairs in one month. Only during the Winter of 1946-47 did the Trumans conduct the full, traditional White House season of a minimum of five state dinners and five formal receptions.

It's no secret that that Winter's chores turned Mrs. Truman against the whole idea. Next Winter the Trumans held only a few receptions and no dinners. Then the reconstruction of the mansion took Mrs. Truman off the hook completely. Last Spring when the White House was reopened and that ended it.

If Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower should win the election the town's socialites are no less enthusiastic about the party future of the White House. When the Eisenhowers lived here, they did their full share of entertaining, and it was said to be of a high caliber. Both the general and his wife are gregarious persons and have many friends in town.

recor. as First Lady. During seven years as mistress of the White House she managed to limit the number of formal affairs to 20. Her predecessor, Mrs. Roosevelt, on the social front in Washington, the party throwing has taken on a rigid bi-partisan character. For every important Democrat invited, the rule is to invite one Republican. In that way you are socially hedged, regardless of what happens at the polls.

The climax of the campaign, as far as Washington society goes, will come at a tremendous party on election night. Four hostesses who are keeping anonymous, supposedly two Republican and two Democratic women, are sponsoring a completely bi-partisan affair of dancing and celebrating all night until the returns are in.

More than 400 persons, the cream of society, will be there. It will be held in an old mansion which Mrs. Robert Schenck, a prominent society woman who also sells real estate, is trying to sell. Each person is being charged

★ DR. JORDAN SAYS ★

To Neglect Ulcer Symptoms Is To Invite Complications

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Mrs. G. D. writes that her husband was operated on for gastric ulcer, and wants to know if that is the same as cancer.

The answer is that it is not the same as cancer, but cancer can form in or near an ulcer pocket. It is important to be sure that one is dealing with one and not the other, since the treatment is not the same for both.

Coming to a discussion of ulcer of the stomach, it should be said first that there are two main kinds. In one the ulcer is located in the stomach itself and in the other it lies below the stomach in the first portion of the intestines known as the duodenum.

The symptoms of these two types of ulcer are not quite alike, nor are they always the same even when the ulcer is in the same spot in two different patients.

The pain of an ulcer in the stomach proper usually comes on soon after meals and is associated with some tenderness just below the breastbone. It is not always constant and may disappear, perhaps leaving the patient with no symptoms at all.

Other digestive disturbances or sensations are common. Vomiting several hours after eating is one. The pain when present may be burning or gnawing in nature and may come and go for several hours.

The symptoms of an ulcer in the duodenum are not too different and the physician cannot tell from the symptoms alone where the ulcer is located.

In duodenal ulcer, however, the discomfort or pain is more likely to come two or three hours after a meal rather than immediately after eating. Vomiting is not as common as in ulcers located in the stomach itself.

Must Take History
Actually, the diagnosis of the location of the ulcer depends on the results of careful history taking, examination of the stomach contents, and looking into the stomach or photographing the lining.

If the ulcer eats through the wall of the stomach, the contents will be spilled into the abdominal cavity, and this is a very serious complication indeed.

Such symptoms as those mentioned, therefore, even if they are not present continuously, should not be neglected because of the danger of the serious complications of bleeding or eating through into the abdominal cavity.

When typhoons twice stopped the Mongols from invading Japan in the 13th Century, the Japanese have called them "Kamikaze" or "divine wind."

Carolyn Shaw: A complicated question of protocol.

$7.50. That pays for the television sets which will be rented, the orchestra and the liquor.

Mrs. Schenck doesn't think that there will be any money left over. But she says if there is, it might be used to throw a consolation party for the candidate who lost.

When milk cows are given free access to water in hot weather their production may be as much as four per cent higher than when they are watered only twice a day.

NO CADILLACS OR REPUBLICAN FLAVOR— Texas Ike Center Bustles With Organized Enthusiasm

By MARTHA COLE

FORT WORTH—(P)—State campaign headquarters for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower doesn't mention the word Republican.

The receptionist answers the phone with a "Texas Eisenhower-Nixon" Headquarters.

The five half-floor rooms up on the twenty-fourth floor of a Fort Worth office building are draped to the ceiling with bunting and huge colored pictures of Eisenhower and Senator Richard Nixon.

Plenty of "Texas for Ike." But the only "Republican" showing is on a pamphlet entitled "What the Republican 80th Congress Did."

Ben Gull, the young man from Panama who upset the Democratic tradition in the Panhandle and got himself named a Republican Congressman for a while, is the state campaign manager.

Gull sits in a carpeted office—

the only carpet in the headquarters. Cadillac Campaign

"We're spending our money for organization," Gull said. "We're not making a Cadillac campaign."

"It's the down-to-earth Texas man that's going to win this election."

While Gull spoke, some man called up about an offer to do some skywriting for Ike for a fee.

"We don't do things like that from here," Gull replied. Houston would decide on that.

Houston is the home of Jack Porter, the GOP National Committeeman from Texas and the big wheel in Eisenhower's campaign in the Lone Star State.

Ben Gull

On one wall of Gull's office is a huge map of the state of Texas with a tiny red flag stuck in everywhere there's a town with an Eisenhower-Nixon headquarters. Harris County alone has 14.

Poll Every Voter

State headquarters has asked each county chairman to poll each individual voter in his county.

"Tell them we want reports as fast as they get them," Gull told an office worker who came in with a stack of papers. "So we can see how they're stacking up out there. And give us the actual count. We're going to be realistic."

Headquarters has five field men for each of five divisions of the state—East, West, South, Central and Panhandle.

Curtis Traywick was in this particular day from West Texas.

"See about that speaker for Lockney, Friday night," he asked Bob Hoague, head of the speaker's bureau.

Hoague tried to reach a man in Lubbock, then called Lubbock headquarters.

"Ask how the fair is going," Traywick said. Then he turned to the reporter and added: "We have a stand out there with 25,000 Ike balloons."

The busiest place in state headquarters is the mailing room. Looks like a post office at Christmas time.

The two men packing cardboard boxes full of campaign material and buttons and stickers estimated they send out a ton and a half a day—and that's conservative, one said.

Most of the boxes go to county chairmen. All is free, except the little gold lapel pins that spell "Ike." Those cost $9.50 a hundred for the county chairmen. Each person who makes a donation gets one free.

Mrs. Gladys Smith of Rockdale came in the room and asked for some material on the Tidelands.

"This is too general," she said, thumbing through a pamphlet. "You've got to talk dollars and cents to those people."

Most of the requests for campaign material come by mail. But people from the towns around Fort Worth drive in often to load up their cars.

Weekly Newsletter

Headquarters also sends out a weekly newsletter to the various county chairmen and key workers—a thousand in all. It gives new ideas on ways to get out the vote, announces speakers at various places.

Bob Ottum, a young fellow with a leave of absence from the Salt Lake City Tribune, writes the newsletter. He is the public relations man for the headquarters.

People write in and call up asking what can we do to help, Ottum said.

"Here's a woman who lives in Clovis, N. M., and practices in Farwell, Texas, a chiropractor named Dr. Mary Leon McNeff. She got on a bus early one morning and got to Fort Worth in time for the 'Womanpower for Eisenhower' (a daylong clinic for women held October 1.) That's 485 miles.

Then she came over here and one of the girls took her down to the lounge to rest for a few hours before her bus left to go back to the Panhandle that night.

"It's people like that—"

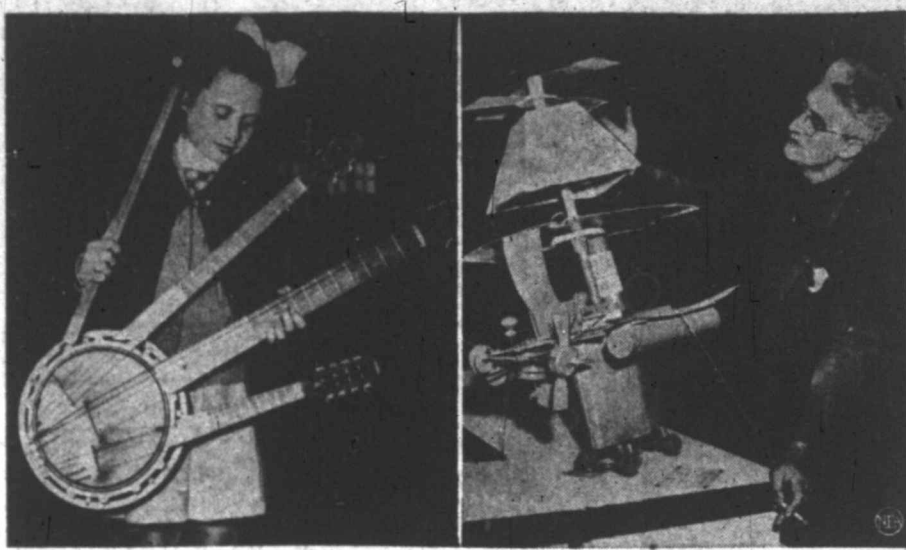

Modern highways are built as much as 36 inches thick for heavy duty, but as late as 1934, a 10-inch concrete slab was thought sufficient.
