Campaign News Coverage

Every four years the question arises whether American newspapers give their readers balanced coverage of the presidential campaign. This year, as before, they are charged with favoring the Republicans in their news

Recently a group of 96 U.S. authors accused the American press of offering a distorted picture of the Eisenhower-Stevenson battle to their readers. They based the charge on study of 26 papers in six states.

Be it noted here that the authors are not saying these papers simply prefer Eisenhower editorially. They assert that various journalistic tricks are used to play him up on the news pages, and play Stevenson down.

Fortunately, in this argument we need not rely on mere guesswork to challenge the authors. For The Associated Press has made its own study of 115 U.S. papers, and concludes that the Democrats, not the Republicans. enjoy a pronounced advantage in volume and display of news coverage in this campaign.

The AP's box score showed that 47 per cent of the papers surveyed gave the Democrats dominant coverage, 32 per cent gave Ike and Stevenson an equal break, and just 21 per cent actually favored Eisenhower in news treat-

A majority of these papers explicitly prefer Ike for President, yet the evidence indicates they are leaning over backwards to provide fair coverage of the news.

Some critics may contend that only President Truman's entry into the 1952 fray has balanced accounts in many cases, or fipped the scales for the Democrats. That's why lots of young adults, who enjoy choosing sides for anything from football to parlor games like to busy themselves with politics. Over all the country you will see buttons such as J'Aime Ike or Stevenson being worn by students who conduct rallies and soapbox meetings to propound their theories on their favorite candidates, even if they are not of voting age. Pat Tuchy, age 20, says:

"We need a man who is honest. courageous and uncorrupted by pplitical deals-someone who will put the interests of the United States above everything. That man is General Eisenhower."

From young people actively working in Stevenson's New York headquarters come these reasons for their choice: Says Lois D. Goldsmith, 191/2:

am for Adlai Stevenson because he promises the American people only what he sincerely be lieves he can fulfill for them. He realizes, among other things, that taxes cannot be reduced without harm being done to national security. Other candidates must realize this fact but have not got th backbone to admit it. They even claim they can do the impossible. We need in the White House a man who will face the problems of this country without rose-colored glasses, and then go on to remedy the ills of the country without killing the patient. This is why I am for Adlai Stevenson

Says Ruth Rafael, 18: Although I am not of voting age, I am very interested in the forthcoming election.
