MARILYN MONROE'S MERCHANDISING— Movie Stars' Clothes Tip Personality, Expert Says

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD —(P)— Found: a new way to analyze your friends. Take a gander at their clothes. Does he wear spats? He could be a manic-depressive. Does she sport a feather boa and a diamond tiara? She could be a schizophrenic. Of course, this system of analysis isn't as precise as these examples. But Hollywood designer Clinton Stoner claims you can learn much about a person's true nature by what he wears.

Stoner designs and makes sports wear for such stars as Gary Grant, Van Johnson, Joan Crawford, Betty Hutton, Dick Powell, Fred Astaire, Barbara Stanwyck and heaven knows who else. He remarked that he can judge his customers as well as his non-customers by what they wear.

WITH SIGH OF RELIEF— Joe Doakes Keeps Date With Hopes For Future

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —(P)— The little man woke up Tuesday with a sense of relief. This was the day at last when he was going to keep that date with his conscience and his hopes for the future.

Stoner volunteered to name the best-and-worst-dressed males in the movie business. "I would have to name Gary Grant as the best-dressed," he observed. "His taste is impeccable. Not only does he always wear good-looking clothes, he also has something that few men possess—flair. Gary can put on a $15 sport shirt from a mail-order house, turn the collar up and make it look terrific."

Board Of Directors Reports Membership Drive Progress

Progress on the drive for patron memberships was reported Monday at a meeting of the board of directors of the Midland Woman's Club, Inc. Mrs. Paul Crandall was hostess.

Auxiliary Helps In Convention

Members of the Legion Auxiliary took an active part in the weekend activities of the Legion's 16th District convention.

Following the barbecue Sunday, the auxiliary held a business session in the City-County Auditorium. Speakers included Mrs. H. E. Campfield of Canyon, Fifth Division vice president; Mrs. George Farlow of Amarillo, director of hospital workers; Albert D. Brown of Austin, Texas department commander, and Stowpall Jackson, Fifth Division vice commander.

Mrs. Farlow reported that she is planning to make her home in Midland in the near future. The group elected Mrs. Lillian Magendie of Kermit as vice president.

Other events on the program were a solo by Edith Hall, two selections by a girls trio and a poem read by Steve Thorson.

Walter Dungan played taps at the Memorial service held Sunday morning in the City-County Auditorium.

Auxiliary members, in addition to those already listed, who helped with the two-day event were Mary Gay and Dorothea Logsdon, who were in charge of the cocktail party and buffet luncheon; Mrs. Vivian Steele and J. R. Damron, stage decorations, and Mrs. Jack Ellington, who furnished music during the memorial services.

Flowers for the speakers' stands were furnished by Buddy's Flowers.

Energetic Mamie Awaits Vote After Long Crusade With Ike

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—With the cheers of a packed Madison Garden still ringing in her ears, Mamie Eisenhower prepared for one of the hardest ordeals of her life Tuesday, waiting to hear the people's voice.

"I hope—no, I know we will win," she said shortly before the two months of campaigning came to an end.

"We have worked so long for these things, and we believe so thoroughly in them, it seems that success must come."

After some 60 days, 50,000 miles, some 200 speeches and seeing and being seen by millions of Americans, Iowa-born Mamie Eisenhower appeared surprisingly rested, poised and apparently was enjoying even the last hectic phases of campaigning.

The trouncing potential first lady carried on at a fast, disciplined pace throughout a tightly scheduled day, which started with a two-hour tour of Boston and its suburbs—much of it in an open convertible and in a rain storm.

Without even stopping long enough to change her rain-spattered clothes, she hurried on to a small, informal luncheon for women friends, given by Mrs. Charles P. Howard, Republican national committeewoman from Massachusetts and only woman adviser on Eisenhower's policy-making council.

Then, pausing only long enough to change from her favorite gray flannel street dress into a bottle green taffeta afternoon frock, she greeted a ballroom packed with Republicans, women.

They followed a short rest period in the Eisenhower suite at the Sheraton-Plaza Hotel, after which she followed a long-lime family routine—by dining quietly—and lightly—with her husband.

After almost 14,000 men and women jamming the Garden rally sang "Mamie" under the leadership of orchestra leader Fred Waring, Mrs. Eisenhower walked into the platform limelight and with smiles and waves accepted the cheers of the crowd.

The MATURE PARENT

It's Too Late To Blame Men For Expecting Wives To Work

By RUTH MILLETT

Women's problems don't stay the same. They change with the changing times.

One of the most noticeable differences in the letters that come to me when I started writing this column some 15 years ago, and the letters that women write today, is that 15 years ago women were complaining that their husbands didn't want their wives to work.

Today a great many of them are complaining because their husbands EXPECT them to work.

Women wanted to know then how to overcome their husband's "silly, masculine pride" that made them ashamed to have a wife helping to earn the living for the family.

But in just a few short years women have done such a good job of overcoming that "silly, masculine pride" a lot of them are complaining that their husbands expect them to hold down a full-time job and do all the housework, too.

In a way, it is rather strange that women didn't foresee the possibility that, if they finally persuaded men there was nothing wrong in a wife's holding down a job and earning a pay check, the men would in time come to expect them to do just that.

And it is rather strange that they blame the men for such a normal reaction. What women wanted was for men to accept their right to work after marriage, but not to expect it.

But the change in the masculine attitude toward women working did not stop at such a convenient point. And because it didn't, a lot of women today are holding down jobs, not because they still want to, but because their husbands have come to expect them to.

It's a problem, all right. But it is one women brought on themselves.

Daddy Ringtail Tiger Stripes

"Daddy Ringtail," said Mugwump Monkey, the monkey boy to Daddy Ringtail, your monkey friend, "why does the tiger have his stripes?"

Daddy Ringtail and Mugwump were walking along the Elephant Path when Mugwump asked the question. Daddy Ringtail sat down on a log to think about it. "May as well be comfortable while I think," Daddy Ringtail explained.

"Sure," said Mugwump.

Daddy Ringtail thought and thought, and at last, he said: "Where did the tiger get his stripes? Well, there was once a farmer who painted a striped fence all black. Old Mr. Tiger came along and rubbed against it, and ever since then—ever after—tigers have had their stripes."

"No!" said Mugwump, because he knew Daddy Ringtail was teasing. You know, why there wasn't a fence with enough paint to give the stripes to all the tigers there ever were. And so where do tigers get their stripes?"

"Well," said Daddy Ringtail, "I suppose the tigers really get their stripes from their tiger mothers."

"Suppose?" asked Mugwump.

"Yes indeed," Daddy Ringtail agreed. Because after Old Mr. Tiger had rubbed against the striped fence all black—and after he had got the black stripes on his yellow fur—he began to feel very sorry for himself that he had stripes and other tigers didn't. And so—so Mr.

Tiger wouldn't be unhappy—the tiger mother began to give all little tigers their tiger stripes for a birthday present.

"I betch it really happened," said Mugwump, because he could see in his mind a handsome birthday box all wrapped with pretty ribbon. A mother tiger was holding the box to give the little tiger who was reaching for it. It was a birthday present, right, all right. In it was tiger stripes, I am happy to say. Happy day!

Texas' Long, Hard Political Campaign Ends In Flurry Of Flying Fists, Jeers

By CLAYTON HICKERSON
Associated Press Staff

The thundering campaign for Texas' 24 electoral votes was in the hands of the voters Tuesday—perhaps two million of them—and the hectic battle that began with mild words in January had ended in a flurry of flying fists and jeers.

Three of the stoutest generals of the political battle that has rocked Texas and aroused the nation slugged it out right down to the last bitter minutes. Both sides predicted victory, in Texas and across the nation.

On one side, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Bonham, campaigning like an eager youngster in his first race, sent out a legion of doorbell ringers to tell the story of and ask support for the faithful Democrats of the state—supporting Adlai Stevenson for President.

On the other side, Gov. Allan Shivers and Attorney General and Senator designate Price Daniel, spearheading the efforts of Democrats for Eisenhower, made last-minute pleas for Republican Dwight Eisenhower.

Republicans Sit Back

The state's Republicans, meanwhile, sat back and let the Democrats fight it out on the final day of campaigning. They had fought their fight and even the Democrats knew it had been an effective one.

But as the voters went to the voting booths in what was almost certain to be a record number, nobody knew just how effective the Democratic or Republican campaigns had been. As election day dawned, thousands upon thousands of voters still apparently were undecided.

Only that factor of indecision threatened the probability of a record vote turnout. An unusually heavy surge of absentee voting, however, underlined the record vote forecast.

Fights Break Out

Booting and fistcliffs featured the only big rally as the campaign ended Monday night at Beaumont, where Governor Shivers was the principal speaker.

An estimated 25 persons in the Beaumont Municipal Auditorium started the booting as Shivers spoke, but protest shouts from some of the 1,700 there drowned them out. Two persons were injured.

Outside the auditorium, others stood in front and passed out Stevenson-Sparkman campaign literature, jeering those who went in with taunts of "Hoover depression" and warnings against electing a GOP administration.

Shivers termed Eisenhower the man the country needs "to lead it from the crisis of today, as he has led it before."

"Eisenhower, Texas born, has the strength, character and dependability to gain our confidence and do the job," he added.

Predicts Ike Victory

Shivers, as he has done since he first announced he would support the Republican candidate, dwelt on corruption, communism in government and other aspects of what he called "Trumanism." He confidently predicted victory for Eisenhower, and told his Beaumont audience that "labor had nothing to fear."

Earlier in the day, Shivers made an appeal from Austin for each qualified voter to vote his honest convictions and to recognize the rights of others to do the same thing.

Daniel spoke by transcription on a nine-speech state-wide broadcast that wound up the historic Democratic-for-Eisenhower campaign. He said the Texas vote very well could decide who will be elected president and ended with a last appeal for state ownership of the Tideland.

Teacher Follows Daniel

"Make no mistake about it," the attorney general said, "your verdict x x x could win or lose those lands which are held by Texas in trust for the people and dedicated to our public schools. A school teacher who followed Daniel on the broadcast said money for Texas schools could come from either the taxpayers or the Tideland.

As the long, strenuous campaign ended, there were these last-minute developments and facts to fill out the election day picture in Texas:

1. Fourteen Texas Rangers were scattered over four South Texas counties to keep order during the voting if they are needed. Two political factions' efforts in the area grew so hot that the Rangers were asked to come down. A write-in campaign has been carried on to defeat candidates backed by political strong man George Parr, whose family has been a leader in South Texas politics since 1911.

Gilmer Makes Plea

2. Claude Gilmer, state chairman of Democrats for Eisenhower, declared in a last-minute speech to Texas farmers that Democratic Nominee Stevenson lacked interest in the farmer, and warned of a "Stevenson depression." Insisted Gilmer: "We must be on guard against a Stevenson depression, but naturally we can't blame Stevenson for his grandfather's depression, just as we can't blame Eisenhower for Hoover's depression."

3. Texas largest city—Houston—also settled a hotly contested race for mayor and eight city councilmen Tuesday, selected four members of the seven-member school board and voted on four separate bond issue proposals. About 600 volunteer workers helped election judges count the flood of ballots. From 180,000 to 220,000 votes—or about one in every 10 Texas votes—would be cast in Harris County observers said before the voting booths opened.

4. The outcome of Tuesday's voting in Texas may not be certain until midnight or later. Robert Johnson, manager of the Texas Election Bureau said that if the result is not apparent at midnight that it "might be two days before we know." That would run the counting—and indecision—to Thursday.

Prestige At Stake

5. Prestige of top political leaders was at stake in the voting. A Republican victory over the nation would mean loss of the House Speakership for Rayburn who has held the seat longer than any other man. It would also lessen the power of Rayburn, Senator Lyndon Johnson, and the various Texas members of Congress, almost all of whom have pluggd for Stevenson in the presidential campaign.

A Democratic victory in Texas would be a come-down for Shivers, Daniel, Gilmer, and GOP National Committeeman Jack Porter of Houston, as well as former Congressman Ben Gull of Pampa. Whoever wins, some giants are bound to fall.

Three members of Congress who did not help the Stevenson forces were Reps. J. Frank Wilson of Dallas, O. Clark Fisher of San Angelo and Ken Regan of Midland.

One who had much to gain in a Democratic victory was Rep. Olin E. Teague of Bryan and College Station. Teague is in line for chairmanship of the House Veterans Affairs Committee should the Democrats return to power. He did yeoman work for the Democrats in the campaign and party members felt his shining war record (he's one of Texas' most decorated veterans of World War II) was a good weapon against Eisenhower in Texas.

A short-wave radio brings programs from overseas, and a student can listen to them and secure permission to record an important program.

Wycoff Rites Held Tuesday

Following services at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the First Methodist Church, with the Rev. Vernon Yearby, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating; the body of Fred A. Wycoff, 64, Midland, was to be forwarded to Enid, Okla., for services and interment at 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

Wycoff, manager of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company of Midland, was killed Saturday when his automobile collided head-on with a heavy transport truck near Artesia, N. M., while on a business trip.

Active pallbearers were Leif Olson, C. W. Murphy, Bob Baker, Dick Crum, J. D. Dillard and Dick Meyers. Honorary pallbearers were R. P. German, Arch Clevenger, George McQueen, F. A. Olson, C. E. Blount, Bert Hemphill, Paul Smith, Carl Oigey, Gene Williams, Kenneth Martin, B. G. Lewis, George Douglas, Frank Imbring, E. B. Clements, John Allison and Q. M. Upton.

Survivors include the widow; two daughters, Frieda Wycoff of Midland and Mrs. Maxine Smith of Elms; a son, Glenn P. Wycoff of Farmington, N. M.; a brother, Roy P. Wycoff of Billings, Okla.; a sister, Mrs. Paul Booher of San Jose, Calif.; and a granddaughter, Patricia Smith of Elms.

Year's Smartest Car— Year's Greatest Deal!

TRADE NOW FOR THE DEAL OF THE YEAR ON A FUTURE-STYLED MERCURY

THINK of it this way. The car you are now driving will never be worth more money than it is right now. In a few short weeks it could be a year older by trade-in standards.

That's why it's more important than ever that you trade for a Mercury. For this is the one car in its class that eliminates the worry of buying a new car that may soon look out of date. Mercury's forerunner styling is designed to anticipate the future... is planned to stay years ahead of the calendar.

And don't forget Mercury's unequalled record for economy. On the official ton-mile basis—with optional overdrive—it's twice been Sweepstakes winner of the Mobilgas Economy Run. Pounded for pound Mercury is the most economical car in America today. And that means the very best balance you can buy of real comfort plus power, beauty plus economy.

So let's talk figures. We honestly believe we can map out a deal that will open your eyes... make you glad you didn't wait any longer.

Eisenhower Sums Up Goals At End Of Campaign Trail

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to New York Tuesday to await the decision of a nation.

He made a last great appeal Monday night for a mandate from the American people to take his "crusade" into the White House. Peace, he said, is "the dearest measure in the sight of free men," and he placed it at the head of his objectives if he is elected.

This was his last major campaign speech.

Eisenhower went home to sit out the biggest day of his life since that heavy hour, in June 1944, when, having said, "Let'er rip," there was nothing to do but wait. Then, it was the great invasion; now it was the end of a struggle for the greatest office on earth.

Mamie With Him

His wife—famous now as "My Mamie"—was beside him.

The Republican nominee was a picture of confidence.

He seemed more at ease, more sure of himself, in his last appearances Monday night in Boston than he has at any time since the campaign began. In these closing efforts—the speech at the Boston Garden Auditorium and a 60-minute television show—he gave no indication of strain or doubt.

He took the train from Boston shortly after midnight for New York and voted early Tuesday morning.

Tuesday night, he will be at his headquarters in a downtown hotel to watch the vote totals as they roll in.

Eisenhower's campaign leaders also carried an air of quiet confidence. They said they believe he is "in."

Relaxed, Optimistic

But the atmosphere around headquarters appeared to speak with a more convincing voice than any of the conventional election—eve pronouncements. The people closest to Eisenhower looked relaxed, quietly optimistic—anything but worried.

Eisenhower went through a work-horse schedule on the last day.

He motorcaded through the suburbs of Boston in the morning, then rehearsed two hours for his television show, appeared on a program boosting Rep. Christian Herter's campaign for election as governor of Massachusetts, delivered a major speech in the Boston Garden Auditorium and finally appeared on a television show from 11 until midnight.

One Supreme Cause

His speech was a kind of credo.

His main objective, he told a frantically enthusiastic 14,000 people in the Garden, is to achieve the peace. "I have dedicated myself to one supreme cause—to strive to keep war from ever again wounding the bodies and scarring the spirit of America's youth."

He then repeated—and the usual roaring storm of applause greeted the words—"If I am summoned to your service, I shall... go to Korea."

The speech had a high-level tone, but it whipped a number of sharp-points shafts at the Democrats and at Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the party nominee. He appeared to be aiming at Stevenson when he said: "What I know I have not learned in academic seminars or diplomatic briefings. I know evil from those years when I shared in the heavy burden of decision in the free world's fight against Nazi tyranny."

And again, this quoting a phrase from one of Stevenson's speeches, he said: "To vacillate, to hesitate, to plan aloud about 'what it will be necessary to concede' is surely to feed the tyrant's fierce appetite for conquest."

12 64-inch choke and from open hole at 5,036-5,057 feet. Casing pressure was 625 pounds and tubing pressure 575 pounds.

The Silurian was topped at 5,036 feet, no elevation available.

This new producer is the first completed by Neely, Midland location.

Location is 660 feet from east and 170 feet from south lines of section 17, block 1, H&TC survey. It is a one-location northwest extender to production in the field.

drilled and 8 3/4 inch hole to 271 feet. At 240 feet operator encountered a strong flow of oil and gas which continued to the total depth. The well was killed with mud and the bottom cemented with 124 sacks of cement and 100 pounds of calcium chloride.

Operator reamed the hole larger and tried to run 120 feet of 13 3/8 casing. Oil and gas blew around and inside the casing, and it was pulled and hole reamed again. Operator finally ran 138 feet of pipe. On drilling plug, the well started blowing oil and gas and water, which was estimated to be flowing at the rate of five barrels an hour through two-inch opening, with 10 per cent of it oil and 90 per cent of it water. No gauge was taken on the gas.

Operator drilled a 12 1/4 inch hole to 436 feet, with heavy mud in the hole, and when drillpipe was pulled to run casing, the well started flowing oil, gas and water again, and operator had to mix heavy mud again to kill it.

Operator is unable to say just what the source of the oil and gas is.

Drillite is 12 miles northeast of Christoval and 9,537 feet from east and 1,980 feet from north lines of league 105, Washington County School Land.

That makes it nine and one-half miles northwest of the Susan Peak field. It is located on a 2,560-acre farm out from Cities Service Oil Company.

NE Schleicher Area Gets New Venture

Charles F. Garlitz of Fort Worth and others have spotted a 5,000-foot wildcat in Northeast Schleicher County.

It is No. 1 Williams Estate and is 330 feet from south and east lines of section 13, block 1, GH&SA survey and 20 miles east and slightly north of Eldorado.

Rotary tools will be moved in and drilling will begin in the near future. Drillite is 12 3/4 miles northeast of the Page pool.

Nolley (Wolfcamp) In C-N Andrews Given New Oiler

Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 2 Tom Peay, project in the Nolley (Wolfcamp) field of Central-North Andrews County, has been completed for a calculated daily flow of 339.84 barrels of 34.5-gravity oil.

Production is coming through perforations at 9,258-9,270 feet and 30 64-inch choke. Gas-oil ratio was 296 and tubing pressure 16 pounds.

The new well is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 6, League 314, Gaines County School Land survey.

More Oil, Gas Uncovered On DST In Andrews Test

Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 1-EA Fasken, wildcat in Southeast Andrews County, found more pay in the Wichita-Albany on a drillite test.

The test was for three hours in the section at 8,568-8,598 feet. Gas surfaced in seven minutes at the estimated volume of 101,000 cubic feet daily. Recovery was 990 feet of 40.4-gravity oil. Flowing pressure was 432 pounds and 15-minute shut-in bottom hole pressure was 3,440 pounds.

Operator cored from 8,600 to 8,630 feet. Recovery was 30 feet of lime with no description.

Another drillite test was slated at total depth of 8,630 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 12, block 42, T-2-N, G&MM&A survey and three miles north of the Midland Farms field.

Arizona Town Is Site For PO&R Proposed Plant

Proven Oil & Refining Company of Dallas will begin construction on an $18,000,000 refinery near Florence, Ariz., about January 1, L. M. Glasco, president, has announced.

The refinery is to be a companion project to a $100,000,000, 953-mile pipe line from Texas oil fields to the West Coast. The pipeline is to be built by West Coast Pipelines, Inc., of which company Glasco also is president.

Glasco said the Arizona refinery will employ about 200 persons in the initial operations. Capable of processing 18,000 barrels of crude oil daily, the plant will turn out both automotive and aviation gasoline, kerosene, diesel fuel, asphalt, and other petroleum products.

Esasco Services, New York, has been awarded the general contract.

Garlitz To Dig 5,500-Foot Test In C-N Schleicher

Charles F. Garlitz and others of Fort Worth, spotted location for a 5,500-foot wildcat in Central-North Schleicher County.

It will be drilled as No. 1 Williams Estate, 330 feet from south and east lines of section 14, block 1, GH&SA survey.

Operations are to start at once. Elevation at drillite is 2,340 feet.

Seaboard Wildcat In Dawson Finds San Andres Oil

Seaboard Oil Company No. 1 R. M. King, wildcat in Central-East Dawson County, found shows for possible production on a drillite test in San Andres dolomite.

Interval tested was from 4,305 to 4,354 feet. Tool was open two hours. Recovery was 118 feet of clean oil, 268 feet of oil and gas-cut mud and 33 feet of sulphur water.

Operator was drilling below 4,718 feet in the San Andres.

Location is 2,355 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of the northwest quarter of section 2, block 35, T-6-N, T&P survey and four miles south of Arvanna.

Phillips To Drill Long Outpost To New Andrews Field

Phillips Petroleum Company spotted location for No. 1-SS University in the recently opened Shafter Lake, South (Yates) area in North-Central Andrews County.

It will be drilled 668 feet from north and 661 feet from east lines of section 47, block 13, and 12 miles northwest of the town of Andrews. It is one mile west of the field opener.

It is slated for a 3,200-foot-bottom.

N-C Fisher Gets Deep Prospector

Lon Cron of Houston and others will drill No. 1 J. A. Brown and others as a new wildcat in North-Central Fisher County.

Location is 2,350 feet from south and 1,670 feet from west lines of section 12, block 2, H&TC survey and three and one-half miles southeast of Rotan.

Rotary tools will be used to drill to 6,500 feet for a test of the Ellenburger. Operations will begin at once.

Demos Hold Edge In Race To Control Next Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democrats carried a numerical advantage into the showdown battle with the Republicans Tuesday for a control of the next Congress.

Victory predictions came from both sides as the voters began making their choices after listening to weeks of campaign oratory.

The outcome was bound to be influenced by the presidential race and, conversely, to have an important bearing on the success of the next President's administration.

At stake in Tuesday's balloting are 34 of the 96 Senate seats and 435 House seats.

The House, where the Democrats now outnumber the Republicans 230 to 200, rarely has run counter to the presidential tide. Capitol authorities said that only twice—in 1848 and 1876—has an incoming President been faced by a House controlled by another party.

Battle For Senate

The Senate presents a different picture. Numerous Republican senators conceded privately that it probably would take an Eisenhower landslide for them to capture the Senate.

The Democrats now hold 49 Senate seats—the bare minimum necessary for control. But only 14 of their seats are on the block and five of these are in the Democratic South.

The Republicans have 46 seats, not counting Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who "resigned" from the Republican party and threw his support behind Stevenson in the presidential race.

With Morse's defection, the Republicans needed to pick up at least three seats to be assured of control of the next Senate and at the same time had to risk 21 they now hold.

Seats Assured

One of the 21 already has been filled with the election of Republican Gov. Frederick O. Payne of Maine to succeed Senator Owen Brewster, and Senator William F. Knowland of California was assured of reelection by winning the Democratic as well as the Republican nomination.

The Republicans won control of both the House and the Senate in 1946 for the first time since the Hoover Administration, riding into power on a wave of discontent over meat shortages and postwar economic controls, but they lost it two years later.

Four senators swept into office on the Republican upsurge six years ago—the famous "Class of '46." Tuesday's balloting brought a first test of voter reaction to their records.

Republicans in this group include McCarthy of Wisconsin, Jenner of Indiana, Cain of Washington, Ken of Missouri, Malone of Nevada, Fecton of Montana, Bricker of Ohio, Watkins of Utah, Martin of Pennsylvania and Williams of Delaware.

The Democrats went into the election with a carryover of 35 seats and, in addition, five Democratic candidates had little or no opposition.

These five are Senators Spessard L. Holland of Florida, John C. Stennis of Mississippi and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, and Rep. Albert Gore of Tennessee and Price Daniel of Texas.

To these 40 seats they needed to add at least nine more, and they figured they definitely had the upper hand in Rhode Island, Kentucky, West Virginia and Arizona.

The Republicans started off with a lineup of 25 seats, again excluding Morse, and to these could be added Payne of Maine and Knowland of California.

Republicans also were regarded as certain victors in Vermont and North Dakota and in Nebraska, where two GOP-held seats are at stake.

This leaves 20 key contests to be fought out.

Fifteen of the 20 seats involved in races in 19 states now are held by Republicans. Barring a major upset elsewhere, the Republicans must hold all 15 of these seats and win three of the five others to clinch control of the Senate.
