WILLOWS CALIF. — (AP)—Weary fire-fighters Saturday sorted out the blacked bodies of 14 mission rangers and a U. S. forest ranger who lost a race with an explosive forest fire near here.

The 15 were members of a 24-man fire-fighting party overtaken by flames which trapped them in a steep gulch. Nine scrambled up a mountain slope to safety just a few feet ahead of the racing fire.

The intruders had just blasted open a safe, which reportedly contained several hundred pounds, when they were surprised by a watchman. They got away in the darkness.

HOLLYWOOD TODAY! MOVIES - TV - RADIO by Erskine Johnson

Movies Without Popcorn: Jimmy Stewart is before the camera at U-I in a scene for "The Glenn Miller Story" and June Allyson, his co-star, is on the sidelines waiting for her cue.

The set represents a New York nightery and Jimmy is pretending to play the trombone as he fits his actions to a recording of "Moonlight Serenade." Every now and then, one of three musicians whose business it is to see that Jimmy plays the trombone according to Hoyle, interrupts to correct a lip movement or hand gesture.

If sets are bigger and more spectacular in Hollywood than they've been since D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance," blame it on the advent of the mammoth, titanic, gargantuan screen.

There are miles of polished staircase, marble floors and alabaster whatnots on the big sound stage at Fox that houses the huge set of Caligula's palace for "The Story of Demetrius." The studios follow up in CinemaScope to "The Robe."

Before the stars, Vic Mature and Susan Hayward, speak their lines in a scene for the film the script clerk halts proceedings. She reminds a dignified white-haired extra playing a senator to remove his eyeglasses.

Marie Wilson, in a bridal gown cut looser than most brides would stand for, is playing a highly emotional scene with Bob Cummings in "Marry Me Again." TV's Mrs. Beeton listens as TV's Mr. Beaton tells her her marriage is off because she's inherited a million dollars.

As Bob talks, Marie's chin quivers and her eyes fill with tears that spill over and course down her cheek. It's such an un-Irma-ish performance that Director Frank Tashlin congratulates her. And a press agent quips aloud: "Gee, Marie, you're a Helen Hayes with cleavage!"

Scott Brady is the star of "El Alamein" at Columbia but he's sharing the camera against a background of sand dunes and desert expanse with a movie camel named Drydock.

The scene calls for Scott and the camel to be ambushed. But just before the guns are fired, an animal trainer leads Drydock off the set and substitutes another camel.

Drydock is gun shy and goes to pieces as an actor when he hears loud noises. And that's Hollywood, Mrs. Jones — a star like Scott Brady doesn't have a stunt man to step in and do the scene for him, but a gun-shy camel commands a stand-in.

Hundreds of beauties in shimmering costumes that cover very little are milling around on the colorful set of RKO's new 3-D swash-buckler, "Son of Sinbad."

The scene to be filmed involves Dale Robertson, this hominy-and-grits accent is explained away in the escapist film by references to him as a South Persian. Vincent Price, Mari Blanchard and Sally Forrest.

But before the action starts, Price insists his costume in a mirror and frowns at his gold-encrusted jacket that's slashed down the front a la Alan Ladd.

"When the men have to show cleavage," quips Price, "then you know it's Jane Russell's studio."

The big climatic scene in which Guy Mitchell and Gene Barry fire

First National Bank To Mark Sixty-Third Anniversary Date

The First National Bank of Midland will observe its sixty-third anniversary Tuesday.

No formal observance is planned, but friends and patrons of the financial institution—one of the largest and strongest in the Southwest—are invited to stop by the bank for a birthday visit.

The First National Bank received its charter and opened for business on July 14, 1890, and has been serving the banking needs of Midland and area citizens since those early days in Midland's history.

When the bank first was organized, its capital stock was $60,000. Today the bank's capital and surplus total $1,850,000.

Largest Deposits

Deposits, too, have increased through the years, and today The First National has the largest deposits of any bank on the Texas & Pacific Railway between Fort Worth and El Paso. Its deposits on June 30, 1952, totaled $42,633,958.61. Its loans and discounts amounted to $10,245,481.49.

The bank has occupied its same location at the corner of Main and Wall Streets since its organization. The building which housed the bank in its first years was destroyed by fire about 1907, and a new two-story structure was erected in 1909. That building was remodeled in 1936, and again in 1939 when the eight-story First National Bank office building was completed. Again the banking quarters were remodeled and enlarged in 1950. The bank last year erected and put into service a modern Auto Teller at the corner of Wall and Baird Streets. Recently, a trust department was added.

Officers Listed

Officers of the bank are John P. Butler, president; J. T. Baker and E. D. Richardson, vice presidents; C. J. Kelly, vice president and cashier; G. S. Cone, Jr., and C. M. Burke, assistant vice presidents; and Minnie L. Baker, O. J. Edwards, William H. McCright, Jr., Glenn P. Breeze and Chester C. Cathey, assistant cashiers.

Directors are Butler, Baker, Frank Cowden, J. L. Crump, Mrs. Ruth Scharbauer, E. B. Dickenson, H. H. Watson, A. N. Hendrickson, Clarence Scharbauer, Jr., Paul L. Davis and Barron Kidd.

SAVES WISECRACK FOR LATER—

Berlin Tourist Stevenson Looks Into Red Gun Muzzle

BERLIN—(AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson looked down the muzzle of a Russian Tommy gun in the hands of a trigger-happy East Berlin people's army soldier Saturday. The soldier meant business. "You move and I shoot," he said in English.

The incident occurred as Stevenson, 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, and his party were touring East Berlin, restless and tense since last month's riots. He and his party were held up 20 minutes and the films they had taken behind the Iron Curtain were confiscated.

Telling about the gun episode afterward, Stevenson said with a smile:

"You know, curiously, I didn't move."

He and his party of seven persons were clambering around the ruins of the bunker on Wilhelmstrasse, where Hitler is believed to have committed suicide. Several of the group started snapping pictures of Stevenson.

Suddenly about 10 police and soldiers appeared. One car pulled in behind Stevenson's car, another in front of it, blocking escape. They ordered the Americans to stop taking pictures.

The group included Cecil B. Lyon, Berlin director for the U. S. High Commission, U. S. Maj. Edwin Lumpkin of Athens, Ga., Ernest Ives of Chicago, Stevenson's brother-in-law, and Stevenson's assistants William Blair and William Attwood and Mrs. Attwood.

When the Americans started to get back into their cars an East German soldier wearing a khaki uniform of a Russian Tommy gun, carrying a Russian Tommy gun, stepped forward menacingly.

"You move and I shoot," he said gruffly.

When the police refused to let them leave, Lyon demanded to see the Russian ambassador. After about 20 minutes some officials—not the ambassador—showed up. The officials confiscated the party's films and ordered them to proceed on their tour.

The Communists who forbade Stevenson's companions to take pictures seemed honestly surprised at the Westerner's reaction. "Why, you know foreigners can't take pictures in America," one said. "Why should you expect to take pictures here."

Speaking of the East Berlin riots, Stevenson said:

"The flame of resistance to tyranny burns ever bright. I pray for the day when Germany will arise again in freedom and unity."

"From what I have seen, it seems that West Berlin is winning its struggle against the devastation of war. I salute the indomitable spirit of an indomitable people."

TOO FEW SOUTHPAWS— Stengel's Team Rated Underdog

CINCINNATI (AP)—The homer-happy National League team, boasting one of the most powerful representative squads in years, rules a stout 7-3 favorite to capture its fourth straight victory over the American League in the all-star game at Crosley Field Tuesday.

Starting pitchers and batting orders will be named Monday.

Charlie Dressen, who will manage the National League, will surely send Robin Roberts, Philadelphia's remarkable right-hander, to the mound for the first three innings. Roberts, who has won 13 and lost six this season, pitched in winning all-star games in 1951 and 1952.

Charlie Dressen Robin Roberts

American League pilot Casey Stengel, seeking his first all-star victory in four straight attempts, is expected to counter with Billy Pierce, Chicago's fine left-hander. Pierce, the only southpaw on the junior circuits six-man pitching staff, will be facing a starting lineup that boasts six left-handers, exclusive of the pitchers. His season record is 10 victories and four defeats.

A capacity crowd of 31,000 is expected to attend the classic. The American League has won 12 of

STALL BREAKS ACE DROUTH

T. Stall of Midland, a twice-a-week golfer, Saturday garnered the first hole-in-one at Ranchland Hill Country Club in two and one-half months of the busy season.

When things were slacker, last Winter and Spring, two others, Leon Pickett and Bill Hightower, scored aces.

Stall, to record the ninth ace in three years at Ranchland, used a five-iron shot on the 145-yard No. 3 hole. It was played into a slight wind.

Horace Rankin, Jack Gazzell, and J. M. Cox were in Stall's foursome Saturday.

the 19 previous games. This game, scheduled at 12:30 p.m. (CST), will be broadcast and televised. Receipts will be turned over to the players' pension fund.

The starting lineups, voted by the nation's fans who cast 4,500,000 ballots, are:

National League:

American League:

Dressen's force includes 10 players who have hit 10 or more home runs this season and the 18 players, exclusive of pitchers, have whacked 214 round-trippers. Dressen's pitchers, consisting of four right-handers and three southpaws, have won 64 games and lost only 33.

The chief criticism against Stengel was his failure to select more than one left-hander pitcher to throw against the predominantly southpaw-swinging National League. Casey has an imposing array of sluggers but their combined home run total is 130, 84 fewer than made by their rivals. The combined record of the six pitchers is 47 victories and 30 defeats.

Power Firms Continue Fight For 'Free Enterprise' Ideal

Public Sources Lose Ground In Election

Editor's Note: What is electric power? A commodity, to be bought and sold? Or is it national defense—the drive behind the machine tools grinding out a tank, the searing heat of the aluminum furnace? If war comes will it matter whether power is public or private? Belman Morin, Associated Press special correspondent, back in Washington after a tour of the nation's major power areas, finds this will be one of the big questions Congress and the Administration have to answer in tackling power policy.

By BELMAN MORIN
WASHINGTON—(AP)—A government dam is a segment of American history frozen in concrete. It is a mark of resource development and a milestone in the eternal battle of men against the elements.

It is one of the symbols of the many-sided conflict over economic philosophy that developed in this country soon after Franklin D. Roosevelt came to the White House. It is a symbol too of the 20-year-old struggle between "public power" and the privately owned electric companies that so strongly printed itself on the federal power policy of those two decades.

Struggle Goes On
That struggle apparently is entering a new stage now.

The people who are close to it—legislators, utility executives, federal power administrators—agree almost unanimously that changes are coming in power policy. They expect some major revisions if not a complete reversal.

One of the strong proponents of public power, Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.), told this reporter recently: "I expect some rough sledding in the orderly development of our power program. If this Administration has its way there will be no new public power dams built."

'Regaining Ground'
A utility executive said: "For 20 years we have been fighting a rear-guard action. It looks as though we may regain some lost ground now."

Chairman Jensen (R-Iowa) of the House Interior Appropriations Committee said: "Without a doubt, new rules and regulations will be formulated in the near future to compose some of the differences between power-producing agencies and marketing machinery."

What kind of new rules and regulations? Perhaps in the end they will turn out to be a middle-of-the-road settlement, judging from statements of Interior Secretary Douglas McKay, who is carrying the ball for the Eisenhower Administration in the power field.

Expect 'Fair Share'
McKay, in talking over the problem with Jensen's committee, agreed to this view: The government should not offer "unfair" competition, but there should be a fair supervisory action to see that neither the public nor private power takes an unfair advantage of the other.

McKay said: "Our policy should not be to try to freeze out the privately owned power companies. . . but those companies cannot expect anything of me but a fair shake. . . I do not believe in monopolies on the part of the power companies or on the part of the government. A little competition would do us good. But I do not think the power companies should move in and try to take over this thing."

Typical American Story
Behind these comments is an interesting story—a typically American story.
Twenty years ago what is now called "public power" hardly existed. The electricity to use in your home or farm or factory came largely from private industry. It was a commercial commodity.

Then, in Roosevelt's first Administration, the federal government went into the power business. "Socialized Power"
The portion of American electricity that is "public power"—about 82 billion—is more than the total production of any other nation except the Soviet Union.
As the federal government went further and further along this line private power companies grew more and more alarmed. Finally they began to fight the movement. They called it "socialism" and asserted that the aim of government was to take over the whole industry, to nationalize it. They warned that whoever controls the power sources of this country controls America. Public power proponents retorted that government was doing for the consumer what private industry did not, or could not, do. They cited the big, costly dams as an example.

First To Flare
Last November the nation elected a President who described himself as a "middle of the roader." The Republicans took control of both houses of Congress.

Neither the form nor the degree of the expected revision in federal power policy is yet clear. However, here are some of the areas under examination, points where the conflict may flare up first:

1. Economic feasibility.
Secretary McKay recently said in a conversation with reporters "the day of the big dam may be over."

Era Of Low Prices
In planning a federal dam the element of repayment to the government is supposed to be a major factor. How much will it cost? How much can it earn from the sale of the electricity it generates? When, if at all, can it pay for itself?

Some of the great dams, like Hoover and Bonneville, were built in depression years. Building costs then were infinitely lower than they are now. Public power people say these dams will pay for themselves completely in a relatively few years.

Many experts, considering costs today, seriously question whether any new government dam would "live" long enough to pay for itself. Floods Checked, Too
Electricity, however, is not the only function of a "multipurpose" dam. It also is designed for flood control, irrigation and so on. But no revenue comes from these operations. No system has been devised whereby, for example, a city pays the government for damages that did not occur because a flood was held back by government dams.

Kitchen Takes Over Ever Greater Roles
The kitchen is moving into the living room.

Open planning in modern homes merges living room, dining room and kitchen, with partitions gone. Sometimes only a fireplace remains in the center of this group.

This architectural trend is a major force in the development of new types of glass for the decoration and equipment of kitchens says H. Creston Doner, director of the design for the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company.

"The cleanliness afforded by modern kitchen appliances," Doner says, "including ventilating hoods over stoves, has eliminated the need for closing off kitchens to keep smoke and grease from the rest of the house."

"With the kitchen open to full view there has been a new demand for colorful and easily maintained materials."

Hence, at the very least, observers expect a much more rigid "standard of feasibility" may be applied to government dams from now on.

Joint Control Idea
2. Sale of federal power.
Much of the argument between government and business pivots on this point. Various aspects of rates taxes and transmission arrangements enter into it. Various suggestions have been made.

One is for joint government-industry operation of the dams. In this, private companies would undertake the cost of installing generators and transmission lines. They would handle the power operation, while government fulfilled flood control and other functions.

Power For Resale
Still another is to permit private industry to buy electricity at the dam site for resale to consumers of all types.

3. The "preference clause."
Today a public body has first call on the electricity from federal dams. Priorities are given to farmer cooperatives, municipally operated systems, public utility districts and defense plants.

For years the utilities have fought this clause.
They contend that they contribute to the building of the government dams through their corporation and other taxes. Public power bodies do not pay federal taxes, though they are subject to local taxes. Consequently the private companies demanded equal treatment in the allocation of government dams.

Secretary McKay said he thought the preference clause should be amended in some cases.
"The net result is that some customers are not treated fairly," he said. He has testified along the same line in the Senate.

NEW WINDOW WALLS DROP INTO A SLOT
Outdoor dining on garden terraces is simplified by sliding weather-tight glass panels separating kitchen from patio.
An entire wall of a kitchen is opened to the out-of-doors in this manner on Summer days.
Window walls of this type have been designed so that the entire large sheet of glass slowly descends into a weather-stripped slot in the floor when a button is touched.

Double glazing used in these arrangements eliminates fogging in winter and reduces heat loss as well as chill in the kitchen.

HOW TO SELECT A FRYING PAN
A frying pan made of cast aluminum, cast iron, heavy-gauge sheet aluminum or stainless steel, is a good choice because all these metals can take high temperature.

It's a good idea to buy a cover with a frying pan so that the skillet can be used for braising and other moist cooking.

Refrigerator Salads Easy To Fix; Fine Summer Fare

Use your refrigerator to make nutritious and delicious molded salads to serve all year round. Get this cooking chore out of the way by preparing the salad early in the morning, let your refrigerator do the rest and serve the salad at lunch or supper.

The refrigerator shown here is spanking new. It is an 11.4 cubic foot two-door combination refrigerator-freezer, with automatic defrosting and automatic temperature controls.

The freezing compartment will quick-freeze and store 77 pounds of food, and its inner door shelf will store small packages of frozen foods conveniently. The refrigerator compartment has a special storage drawer that holds 18 pounds of meat just above freezing, handy drawers that hold plenty of vegetables for a family, and a butter keeper that keeps butter so it's easy to spread.

Here's the recipe for a prepared-ahead refrigerator salad that looks attractive and tastes good.

MOLDED TOMATO AND COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

Ingredients: 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 4 cups tomato juice, 1 small onion, 1/2 cup diced celery, 4 whole cloves, 6 peppercorns, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup lemon juice, few drops tabasco sauce, 1 pint cream-style cottage cheese, salad greens, salad dressing.

Method: Sprinkle gelatin over cold water to soften. Simmer tomato juice with onion, celery, cloves and peppercorns for 10 min. Strain and add to softened gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Str in sugar, salt, lemon juice and tabasco. Pour into one large ring mold or individual ring molds. Chill. Unmold and fill center with cottage cheese. Garnish with salad greens and serve with salad dressing. Makes eight to 10 servings.

GADGET FOOLS EGG FACTORIES

DAVIS, CALIF.—(AP)—A photoelectric cell that turns electric lights off and on assures a theoretical 13-hour day in the experimental cage laying house at the California College of Agriculture.

Now hens in the wire cages down the middle of the house, where the light had been poor on dark winter days, lay as many eggs as hens in the outside rows.

HARDBOARD MAKES HANDY CUTTING BASE

A square of smooth-surfaced tempered pressedwood makes a handy and serviceable cutting board for the kitchen. Thin and rigid, it is stored easily. Costing only a few cents per square foot, it is economically replaced when desired. Its hard surface needs no finish and is quickly wiped clean.

COLD METAL FOIL BECOMES BRITTLE

If a piece of aluminum foil has been used for covering food in the refrigerator, don't try to smooth it out when it is cold.
The foil is brittle when it's cold; let it warm up to room temperature, then smooth the wrinkles away.

Power Tools Make Home Shop More Fun, Widely Versatile

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—To the hills, men, they're after us. "They" are the nation's hardware manufacturers, who are trying to popularize a do-it-yourself trend among the nation's house-husbands.

At the National Hardware Show here, booth after booth was loaded with subversive devices, designed to turn the American male into a combination carpenter-electrician-plumber, whether he wants to be turned or not. There's not an easy chair in the joint.

But there are tools and machines, ranging from old-fashioned screw drivers to entire home workshops, which will do everything from hanging pictures to building houses. We haven't got a chance.

Triple-Threat Job
There's one electric sander, as an example, that's a triple-threat assault on our laziness. It sands, polishes and massages, says the sign. We not only have to be a repair man, then, but they're trying to make us into a masseur-it-yourself.

Another device is a torch which aims to replace the good old blowtorch. It's a lightweight cylinder of propane gas, with a nozzle. You can light it with a match, it'll burn for at least 16 hours, then you throw the cylinder away and get a new one.

This torch is supposed to be just the thing for the man who wants to do any of the following: tinning, burning paint, fitting pipes, laying tile, doing body and fender work, soldering jewelry, splicing cable, softening old putty. Nothing like a peaceful evening at home, softening old putty.

Safe For Children
There's an electric jig saw that's billed as "safe for children to use." If you have a six-year-old that feels a hankering to cut asphalt tiles, this is the very thing.

More and more chores can be done by you, unfortunately. A new canned compressed air bomb, like the ones with whipped cream and insect killers, can shampoo and dye rugs in one operation. It comes in five colors. After a hard day at the office, you can spend your evening relaxing over a wet rug.

Or you can re-cover bicycle seats, with the help of a new kit. That is if you feel like re-covering bicycle seats. All sorts of snazzy coverings, too, including one in leopard skin. Now your child can have the flashiest seat on the block.

Save The Walls
One kind manufacturer has taken pity on us men, and especially on our often-battered thumbs. A new type of picture hook uses gummed tape, with a hook attached. You moisten it, apply one to the wall and one to the back of the picture, and the job's done. They'll support 15 pounds and will work on glass, tile and metal as well as wood and plaster.

Another industrial Good Samaritan has produced a solder in the form of tape. You wrap it around the joint you want to join, then just apply heat from a soldering iron or even a candle.

New torch for home use is fueled by disposable tank.

To make all these do-it-yourself appliances nice and homey, many of the manufacturers are turning the tools out in eye-catching styles. Even some of the electric sprayers and drills now come in all colors. Some of the items are neatly packaged, some newly streamlined, some chrome-plated.

And don't think, fellows, that birthday will bring any respite. If one tool maker has his way, under the tree you'll find a lovely decorated gift box. It's nicely wrapped in red ribbon, too, and contains the very thing you've always wanted—four assorted chisels.

Food Freezer Has Problem Of Insurance

Home food freezers have raised new insurance problems.

When a storm disrupts power lines and the current remains off some time, food in freezers can spoil. Since some householders keep hundreds of dollars worth of meat and other food in their freezers, this damage can be considerable.

Can this be called windstorm damage under extended coverage endorsement to fire insurance policies?

Insurance companies for the most part take the view that this is not "direct damage" by the wind. If the storm breaks power lines on your property as part of its damage to your property, most companies will pay for the thawed out food.

But if the power line break occurs off your property, the companies deny liability. As one insurance executive put it, "In our policies, we do not assume responsibility for the maintenance of electric power."

Some food freezers, if unopened are rated to hold food below the freezing point for as long as three days in emergency. Others in rural areas use gasoline-powered generators during power failures.

Five Million Food Freezers Are Sold Since World War

More than five million home food freezers have been sold since World War II, according to figures compiled by Crosley. For the current year, freezer sales are expected to exceed a million.

Cooking meals in the cool of the morning, freezing them in ready-to-serve form and then heating them quickly at meal time, comprises one of the big advantages in food freezers.

However, Nancy K. Masterman, freezer consultant for Crosley, offers some additional tips on how to get the most out of this appliance.

Operate your freezer at maximum capacity for greatest economy, she advises. In buying in quantity, watch for Friday meat specials. Often they are priced near wholesale. Let your butcher know you have a freezer. He can help you pick up good buys late on Saturdays—poultry and meats he'd rather sell than carry over for the next week.

Prices for a half or quarter of beef, pork or lamb are usually quoted on the dressed or hook weight, Mrs. Masterman reminds us.

"A 200-pound hog," she says, "weighs 180 pounds when dressed yet you get only 126 pounds of freezer pork from it. If the price is quoted on the 180 pounds, you must complete what the 126 pounds costs in order to know if you have a good buy."

Irons Should Be Selected With Basic Points In Mind

Purchase of an electric iron, when it's time to get a new one, should be given the most careful attention. For few appliances now in general use are more of a household necessity.

Whatever type of iron is chosen—automatic, non-automatic, or steam-type—certain basic points always should be considered.

First, it's wise to check the ironing surface, correctly called the soleplate. This surface should be a rapid heat-conductor, made of mirror-smooth metal, and should be extra-hard and scratch-resistant.

Equally important is the shape of the iron. The tapered point should be well-shaped for easy ironing of pleats and ruffles. The bottom should be beveled all around so that it permits fast ironing under buttons. And the handle, to insure comfort, should be set at a sloping angle to reduce fatigue.

Consider, too, the iron-rest. The models that are easiest to use are those which do not use a stand, but which can be rested with a slight tilt or roll-back.

Many modern irons also have a fabric dial. This permits the user to choose the correct ironing temperature for each basic type of clothing.

An important feature is the cord, which should be well insulated and durable as it is subjected to much twisting and bending. More and more new models have cords that are permanently attached, with protection at the point of attachment.

Three Basic Types
And, of course, you'll be interested in the safety features. Most irons now include a "heat shield" which confines the heat to the base and helps prevent blistered fingers. And some have extra large handle platforms, made of burn-proof plastic.

Of the three basic types of irons, the most popular are steam and automatic models.

The steam iron eliminates the need for sprinkling, or the use of a dampened pressing cloth, by emitting steam through the soleplate. This saves considerable time and helps give clothes a "finished look" usually achieved only by tailors.

SAFE REFREEZING

If meat in a food freezer thaws during a power failure, it can be cooked immediately and then refrozen to keep for two to three months. First check carefully to see that it still has a fresh odor.

Building Materials 'Save' Heat For Powerless Hours

LONDON—(AP)—A British company has designed a new form of space heater to offset the shortage of electric power generating plants here.

Because everybody needs electric power at certain peak periods, and then most consumers switch off at around the same time, British power stations have surplus energy for some parts of the 24-hour period and at other times cannot produce enough current to meet the demand.

The new General Electric Company heater aims at overcoming this difficulty—by storing heat for long periods in a block of concrete. Consumers switch their radiators on during the night—when there is plenty of spare current—and for the next eight hours an electric element pours its heat into a block of concrete.

The next morning the radiator is switched off, but the hot concrete continues to warm a large room for the rest of the day.

During the charging period radiators emit enough heat to provide a comfortable temperature for the start of the day.

CAN OPENER CAN BE BUILT INTO WALL
A built-in can opener is one of the most useful gadgets for the kitchen. With chromium fittings, it is installed easily in tile, plaster, wood or any wall finishing. Deep-seated screws make it sturdy and dependable.

Any size can is placed under this contrivance and its top is sheared off, with the lid held until the can is removed. Neither the lid nor shreds of metal drop into the food.

More 'Easy Living' Ideas Help Kitchen

The growing trend toward informality—sports shirts, shorts, "come-as-you-are"—is causing the kitchen to burst at its seams and attempt to push the living room out of the house.

Some people, who have taken seriously the idea of having a house planned for the way they live, are building homes with big kitchens and little living rooms as small as old-fashioned parlors.

These slacks-and-sneakers kitchens measure 20 by 20 feet and more. They include space for a complete dining room suite of furniture, sofas and club chairs, piano and television and a big fireplace.

The owners argue that since they almost never use a living room they have little need for it. They don't even put a fireplace in it. They prefer to live in a big and comfortable kitchen and on its adjoining garden terrace.

FROM REFRIGERATOR TO FIRE—

Full Meal Baked At Once In Same Oven In One Hour

Home economist Ruth Bean is convinced that women like the idea of preparing a whole meal, all at one time, in the oven of the kitchen range — main course, vegetable, sometimes hot bread, and dessert. So sure is she that this keeps homemakers from feeling kitchen-bound, that she has written "All-in-One Oven Meals" (Barrows, $2.95) devoted to just this kind of meal. Her cookbook is widely useful—not only because of its practical menus and recipes—but because she has one section devoted to meals to be placed in a preheated oven. This means that you can prepare foods in advance and refrigerate them until cooking time. As reassurance here, Mrs. Bean says, "Do not hesitate to move glass baking dishes from the refrigerator into a hot oven. The temperature difference between refrigerator and room is rarely more than 40 degrees, but there may be 400 degrees difference between room and oven temperature. The additional 40 degrees will not matter."

Takes Less Cooking
A second section of "All-in-One Oven Meals" takes homemakers into the field of cold oven star meals. This method is particularly satisfactory with clock-controlled ovens.

A third section is concerned with broiler meals. And still another feature, the index, lists menus that take 30 minutes or less cooking, those that take 60 minutes or less, and those that need more than 60 minutes oven time.

Here is a menu adapted from Mrs. Bean's book. When we tried it in a gas oven, all we did was set the oven for the right temperature; because the heat is distributed so evenly in these modern gas ovens, we did not need to move, turn or fiddle around in any way with the meal in process until the 60 minutes needed for its preparation was up.

Method: Place ham slice in greased 5- by 8-inch baking pan and press cloves into ham. Sprinkle with crushed pineapple, brown sugar, cherry juice and garnish with whole cherries.

Baked Sweet Potatoes
Ingredients: 4 medium-sized sweet potatoes, 1 teaspoon shortening.
Method: Wash and dry potatoes. Coat each well with shortening and prick with fork to prevent bursting in oven. Arrange potatoes in nine-inch baking pan.

French-Style Green Beans
Ingredients: 1 package frozen French-cut green beans, 2 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup water.
Method: Place beans, butter and water in saucepan. Cover tightly.

Date-Nut Loaf
Ingredients: 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/4 cup all-purpose flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1/2 pint heavy cream (whipped).
Method: Beat eggs, gradually add sugar and vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and stir into egg mixture. Fold in chopped dates and nuts. Blend well and pour batter into 4 large, greased custard cups. Place cups in baking pan and pour warm water around them to a depth of 1 inch. When serving, unmold and top with whipped cream.

Baking Directions: Preheat oven to moderate, 350 F. Arrange ham slice, sweet potatoes, green beans and date-nut loaf on oven shelves. Total baking time 60 minutes.

A complete meal can be baked at one time in your oven.

10 Simple Rules Can Help You Keep Your Home Intact

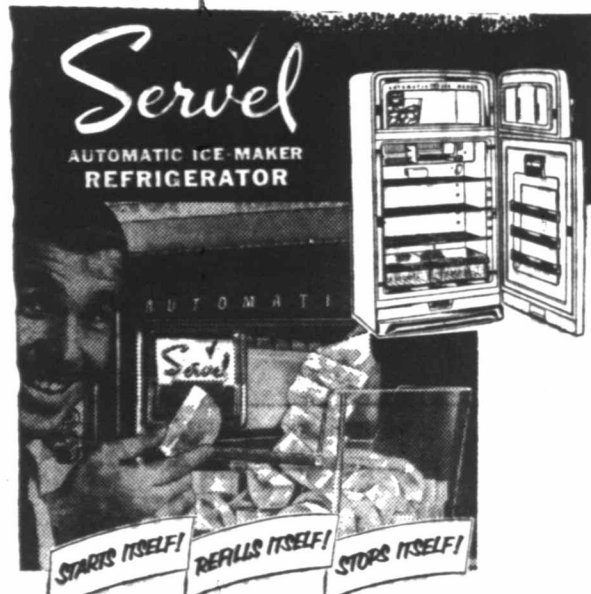

To help protect you and your home from fire and accident, the National Board of Fire Underwriters suggests that you keep in mind "10 don'ts" when dealing with electricity and electrical appliances.

1. Don't place a radio close to the bathtub while you're bathing.
2. Don't turn off your refrigerator when you go away for a short vacation. (An old motor may become overheated with the sudden strain of continuous effort when you turn it on again.)
3. Don't leave your bedroom with an electric blanket plugged in.
4. Don't leave the room with an electric iron plugged in.
5. Don't allow children to play with electrical toys unsupervised.
6. Don't fall to properly ground your television or radio aerial.
7. Don't stick a penny in the fuse box.
8. Don't leave Christmas tree lights, or similar decorations, turned on when you're not at home.
9. Don't throw water on an electrical or grease fire. (Use a type of fire extinguisher specially made for this purpose.)
10. Don't run power cords under rugs.

These Designers Think Of Everything

In portable cookery, a field that's growing rapidly, biggest news is provided by the acceptance of rotisseries and deep-fat fryers. These versatile devices can perform almost every cooking operation, as fast or faster than ever before possible. And they produce a special flavoring all their own.

In home freezers, the better-known chest-type models, which are waist-high and open from the top, are getting competition from upright designs, which outwardly look like refrigerators. The uprights use much less floor space.

Several manufacturers are introducing advances in temperature control, specialized interior compartments and freezing speeds. Some feature "inventory" dials on outer doors to help the user keep track of what food has been stored and how long it's been frozen.

In smaller kitchen appliances, an item winning acceptance is the versatile liquidizer-blender, which can do all sorts of blending, mixing and chopping jobs to help fashion imaginative taste and flavor combinations.

Also outstanding are the newer coffee makers. Available in chrome-finish, stainless steel and glass, they're fully automatic. You measure the coffee and water, the maker does all the rest—even to keeping the brew at an even temperature for second cups.

In laundering equipment, the accent is on space-saving designs that can be fitted into kitchens or utility rooms—or even in the bathroom.

A major advance in the field is the development of an automatic washer-dryer combination. This machine does all the work of a separate washer and dryer, yet takes only the floor space needed for one.

In lamps and lighting fixtures, the trend is toward more flexibility, and designs that are easier-to-clean. Almost spartan in appearance, newest types can be tilted in several directions, or put along a track in the ceiling, to aim the light wherever it's most needed at the moment.

In water heaters, new waist-high, or "table-top," models are finished in gleaming enamel and are as outwardly attractive as ranges, refrigerators or washers. Since they're compact and require little floor space, and don't need flues or vents, many users now place these heaters in upstairs laundries or the kitchen—nearest the points of greatest water usage.

In ranges, 24- and 30-inch "apartment-size" models are giving the standard 40-inch ranges a stiff battle in the popularity race. The disadvantage of the apartment ranges is that they don't have as many storage compartments. But this is more than balanced by their space-saving benefits.

Most electric ranges now are fully automatic, making "pot-watching" a thing of the past. One model, for instance, has an "electronic eye" which measures the temperature of food cooking on surface units and keeps it always uniform. Burning and scorching of food is virtually impossible, even if you let it cook as much as an hour overtime.

A growing field is that of electric beauty and grooming aids. Lightweight hair dryers, home haircutting sets and permanently installed sun lamps are rapidly approaching "best seller" status.

In air conditioning units, steadily dropping prices are bringing a booming market. Complete household systems, expected to be standard equipment a decade from now, are still a trifle costly. But good room models, which are installed in a window or in cabinet form, cost less than most television sets or refrigerators.

In dishwashers, now most often installed as a permanent part of the sink unit, there's a movement toward more production of front-opening models and less production of top-opening models. Reason: the front-opening models give more work surface.

In refrigerators, the trend is toward larger freezing compartments, or refrigerator-freezer combinations. Most models are narrower, and make more use of recessed doors.

On the novel side are refrigerators with special doors that the housewife can decorate with fabric to match her kitchen color scheme.

Use Of Electricity Increase In State

Austin—(AP)—Texas use of electric power increased slightly from April to May and was far greater than in May a year ago, the University of Texas Business Research Bureau reports.

Consumption by industrial, commercial and residential users increased from two to five per cent from April to May, but the yearly comparison showed industrial use up 29 per cent; residential, 16; commercial, 8.

TRANSPARENT SHIELD
Grease and water spots can be kept from spotting kitchen wallpaper above sink or range by stretching a sheet of transparent cellulose on the wall and fastening it with thumbtacks or cellulose tape.

Pigeons Get Juicy Hints

NEW YORK—(AP)—The best way to keep pigeons off public buildings is to give them the hot foot.

The British Information Service reports that a slender electric wire is run along ledges on which the birds usually perch. This transmits a weak shock once a second.

Any bird coming in contact with the wire usually takes off immediately.

A number of large buildings in Birmingham, England, have tried it successfully, according to the report.

"LIVE BETTER . . . SAVE MONEY WITH AN ELECTRIC HOME FREEZER"

Farms Turn To Electric Aids Often

There's a little more time for leisure down on the farm these days, thanks to the wide-spread distribution of rural electric power, and the use of gasoline or diesel-driven home generators in unwired areas.

For help with the chores nothing is much more appreciated on a dairy farm than electric milkers, and electric cream separators. The devices really are household aids, when it is taken into consideration time that the family spends on the routine of maintaining even a small dairy herd.

Electrically driven pumps, automatic air-conditioning equipment for the home, freezers, refrigerators, washers and ironers all go to make for a much more pleasant, happier life for the farm family.

The near-magic power of electricity is available even where a major power source is not available. Farms beyond the reach of power facilities have at their command powerful, battery-energized electric lanterns, and radios which run for long periods of time on current supplied by batteries, the cost of which are relatively low in comparison with the safety and entertainment delivered.

There are also low-cost private telephone systems, powered by batteries, which make for easy communication between buildings and outposts of a far-flung farm spread.

More power to the farmers—thanks to electronics developments of today.

Range Lands Called Worse Than 1930's

AUSTIN —P— The condition of Texas ranges July 1 sunk to an all-time low, even under that of the dismal dust bowl days of the 1930's, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported Saturday.

The condition of sheep dropped to a new record low, the USDA said.

It reported ranges at 61 per cent of normal July 1, one point lower than on July 1, 1934.

It was 22 percentage points below average, 14 below a month ago and also 14 below the range condition a year ago.

The condition of all cattle was 74 per cent of normal compared with 81 per cent a year ago. The ten year average for this date is 85 per cent.

Ewes and lambs showed heavy shrinkage, the USDA said. They were 70 per cent of normal, four points below the previous July 1 low record recorded in 1934.

Ranges were practically bare of grass over the main sheep producing areas and the animals are being kept alive by feeding.

The USDA said commercial meat production during the first five months was 13 per cent above a year ago, reflecting the heavy marketing of livestock in the drought.

then push the dry gas on through the main lines.

A carbon dioxide removal plant in Pecos County will clean gas from the Pickett (Ellenburger) Field and shove it on to the Spraberry Area network.

El Paso Natural Gas Company is taking what might be termed a "careful start" on its $175,250,000 Spraberry outlet project. No report was received last week on the 1,066-mile plan, completion of which has been set for Fall, 1954.

Three Near Midland
Briefly, this plan will include 793 miles of 30-inch transmission line, about 108 miles of 24-inch main transmission line, about 155 miles of related gathering lines, purification plants, gasoline plants, compressor stations and other needed ingredients of the pipeline pie.

Three of the compressor stations, Midkiff, Driver and Pembroke, will be in the Midland area, and carry some 77,750 in compression horsepower, together with dehydration facilities.

These two plans will take some 400,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily from the Spraberry Area, and, in turn, take 400,000,000 cubic feet of "headaches" daily from Spraberry operators.

Capitol Oil Debates, Acts Swirl Rapidly During Week

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Oil developments came fast here this week. President Eisenhower serving notice on Iran she could expect no more U. S. economic aid until her dispute with England is settled and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company resumes operations.

The House Commerce Committee checked relations among various companies in its inquiry into recent crude and gasoline price increases.

Representative Haselton (R-Mass) pushing a bill to place the oil industry under federal regulation, with a setup similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The House Ways and Means Committee approving 15 to 10 a bill which would limit crude imports to 10 per cent of domestic demand and imports of residual fuel oils to five per cent of domestic demand.

New Tidelands Suit
Arkansas asking the courts to declare unconstitutional the Tidelands Act which recognizes coastal states' claim to ownership of offshore lands within their historic boundaries.

Legislation to authorize development of mineral resources in the outer continental shelf hit a snag. Both houses have passed differing bills. House leaders apparently so dislike the Senate provision that federal revenues be used for aid to education, through grants to the states, that they have not yet named conferees to meet with Senate spokesmen to compose the differences.

There is some doubt the differences will be ironed out in time for final passage before Congress recesses.

Hot Oil Squabble
One session of the inquiry into prices brought a proposal for repeal of the Connally Hot Oil Law, enacted in the 1930s as a conservation measure. Lawyer Paul Hadlick told the committee the law no longer is needed. The act backs up state conservation laws by making it a federal offense to ship across state lines oil produced in excess of state quotas.

Rep. John Lyle of Corpus Christi voiced the same idea. He said he thought the Connally Act had outlived its usefulness.

"During the last few years," Lyle said, "there has been no problem of illegally produced oil being taken across state lines. At the time the law was enacted there was extensive boot legging in East Texas but this is no longer the case and there is no longer any need for the law."

Called State's Job
"It appears to me that in order to warrant their appropriation and the maintenance of their bureau, the enforcement agents are looking for minor infractions of state laws as a means of justifying their own existence. This serves only as an irritant to oil men and oil companies, but it serves no useful purpose because the state Railroad Commission (of Texas) is perfectly adequate to function in this respect and to see that all laws are obeyed."

Lyle criticized the inquiry into price increases, calling it a move primarily designed to embarrass a segment of industry because it had been alert and successful.

Russell Brown, IPAA counsel, also criticized the inquiry. He disagreed with the proposal for repeal of the hot oil act. He said it is still needed.

Major Oil Companies Invested More Money Than They Made In 1953

NEW YORK—The nation's 20 major oil companies invested almost a billion dollars more than they made last year, National Petroleum News, reports.

Net profits totaled $1.9 billion but capital expenditures added up to $2.8 billion, the magazine says. They also paid over $1.2 billion in taxes, slightly less than in '51.

This figure does not include the $2.4 billion in taxes the companies collected from the public on products, a sum which was handed over to state and federal agencies.

Earnings of oil companies in the first quarter of this year (1953) shows that the total is about 23 per cent lower than the first quarter of '52. The majority of companies are suffering from this decline in earnings, one almost 30 per cent, the magazine says.

Most stockholders last year received about the same dividends as in '51. Only one company paid less, while the other 19 either paid the same or more. Highest cash dividend per share of common stock was $5; lowest was $1.

The 20 companies increased total assets from $19,275,499,000 in 1951 to $21,996,407,000 in '53. Gross sales and operating revenues rose from $17,165,202,000 to $18,204,328,000.

The comparative standings of the companies according to gross operating revenue were: Jersey Standard, Indiana Standard, Socony-Vacuum, Gulf, The Texas Company, Shell, Standard of California, Sinclair, Phillips, Cities Service, Sun Oil, Atlantic, Tide Water, Continental, Pure, Union of California, Standard of Ohio, Ohio Oil, Skelly and Mid-Continent Petroleum.

Bull Defies Train; 20 Persons Injured As Cars Quit Rails

ARDMORE, OKLA.—(AP)—A stubborn bull, refusing to yield the right of way to the Santa Fe's Texas Chief, derailed the train north of here Friday and caused injury to 20 persons.

Only 19 were hospitalized, and none was listed as in critical shape. The 1,200-pound bull, which blundered into the switching mechanism, shunted the Galveston to Chicago streamliner off the main line. The four-unit diesel engine, mail car, baggage car and three chair cars jumped the track.

The engineer, seeing the animal ahead, braked for several hundred yards, passengers said, but failed to stop. The bull was killed.

President Chooses Agriculture Aides

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Eisenhower nominated two new assistant secretaries of agriculture Saturday as authorized under a recent reorganization act.

They are John Davis of Virginia, now director of commodity marketing and adjustment, and Romeo Short of Arkansas, now director of the department's foreign agricultural service.

Nimrods Reminded To Prevent Fires

AUSTIN—(AP)—Hunters and fishermen were urged Saturday to do their own policing while afield to hold down brush and forest fires.

Howard Dodgen, executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission, called attention to a new law authorizing the closing down on hunting and fishing where fires become a menace.

The best way to keep it from being invoked is to guard at all times against starting woods or brush fires, he said.

Clergymen Are Held

BERLIN—(AP)—East German Communists have released more than a score of pastors in the last few weeks, but they still hold almost 50 church representatives in jail. Protestant church authorities said Saturday.

Mexico Gambles On National Economy In Decision On Hoof-And-Mouth Ban

By LAURANCE STUNTZ
 MEXICO CITY—(AP)—Mexico is gambling dangerously that she can control an outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Veracruz three months by quarantine alone. If she wins, she may save half the cost of several thousand head of cattle. If she loses, she may find U. S. markets closed indefinitely to her cattle. If the disease spreads, the U. S. border may be closed to more than cattle. U. S. authorities may ban the import of straw figures, a favorite tourist purchase. Tighter disinfecting rules might be put on at the border, discouraging tourists still more. "There'll be a regular bonfire of straw handbags and things like that outside the U. S. customs houses," one authority said. Slew Tourist Trade "And how long are tourists going to come to Mexico if they have to have their cars sprayed with disinfectant and all their shoes dipped in it when they cross the border going back?" The gamble arises from the most serious difference of opinion between Mexico and the U. S. since the cattle disease appeared here in 1946. The U. S., anxious to protect its own multi-billion dollar cattle industry, cooperated with Mexico at that time to the extent of about 125 million dollars. A joint U. S.-Mexican commission fought the disease. Mexico supplied personnel and material to the value of another 125 million. The disease, through a vaccination program, was apparently wiped out. The U. S. border was reopened September 1 after Mexico had been free of infection a year. Plague Breaks Out On May 23, the plague broke out again in Veracruz. A deer or some other wild animal might have carried the virus; it might have lived in the soil, or some cattle might have been missed in the vaccination program. There were also hints the new outbreak may have been planted deliberately. A lot of commission employees had been paid better than ever before in their lives during the campaign. They lost these jobs when the vaccination ended.

A commission official said "we have heard these reports, but we don't have any evidence one way or another." Half The Cost A Communist-line newspaper said it was "odd the disease should have broken out just when U. S. cattlemen were complaining about lower prices." This was a reference to the fact Mexico exports about 400,000 live cattle annually to the U. S. in normal times. When the May 23 outbreak was reported, the U. S. closed the border at once. U. S. veterinarians proposed that all infected animals even exposed to the disease be killed and buried. The U. S., as usual, was ready to pay half the value of the animals slaughtered. Refused To Kill Some 700 head in the immediate area were killed but Gilberto Flores Munoz, Mexican minister of agriculture, refused to kill those only exposed to the disease. Flores Munoz took over direction of the campaign from the Mexican and U. S. technicians on the commission. Vaccine in sufficient quantity was not available at once. It will take about three months to get into quantity production. Flores Munoz hopes to contain the disease within the original area of the outbreak. Some 700 troops are guarding the zone to keep cattle from moving out of it. There has been one small outbreak outside the quarantine area. The line was changed promptly to put this new outbreak in the quarantine zone and the few cattle ill of the disease were slaughtered. All Farm Products The minister's decision not to slaughter exposed animals was generally applauded by Mexican livestock men. A group of senators wired the President supporting the minister's action. But a few Mexicans saw a danger to the country's general economy if the disease is not wiped out quickly. Jose del Pozo, formerly a government veterinarian now in private practice, said in Monterrey the U. S. might ban the import of all Mexican farm products. This would include the early vegetables, whose sale abroad is important to Mexico. It might even include cotton, the country's largest single export.

GARDEN NOTES

Hardy Daylily Plant Needs Little Care

(One of a series of articles on gardening in Midland, prepared and submitted by Midland Garden Clubs.)

July and August are probably the most difficult months for Midland gardeners. It takes a strong plant and an adaptable one to survive high temperatures, lack of rain and alkaline soil and water. Only plants which tolerate alkalinity in the soil will thrive.

Plants that require or prefer acid soil will not grow in Midland unless given expensive treatment and burdensome care. Plants which will do well also must be able to grow and bloom in air of exceedingly low humidity. Full sun in Midland is much hotter and more drying to plants than the full sun usually referred to in garden magazines and on seed packets.

Check Blooming Plants

One of the easiest ways to determine which plants will do well in mid-Summer in this area is to note the plants which now are blooming in established gardens. If the same flower is blooming in many yards then it probably will grow well with a reasonable amount of care. A drive around Midland today will show zinnias, verbenas, galliardia, daylilies, petunias, portulacas, marigolds, cannas, shasta daisies and few gladiolus and roses blooming in spite of difficult conditions.

Of this group, daylilies are perhaps one of the easiest to grow. Varieties are available which will spread the blooming period over several months. Some varieties start blooming in April, many are blooming now and repeat bloomers will have a second bloom period in August and September.

Many of the daylilies blooming now in Midland are the common or orange variety but there are many other available colors—pale yellow, strong yellow, apricot, red, deep brown, dark red and bi-colors. Daylilies may be purchased with bloom sizes ranging from miniatures of about three inches to huge eight inch blooms. Some varieties are fragrant, some stay open at night.

Hardy Plants

A daylily, or hemerocallis, is a very-hardy plant. It grows from a group of tuberous roots which resemble a cluster of fingers. It can be planted at any time the plants can be obtained. One grower ships any time except during winter months, another from February to October.

Daylilies should be planted in good soil with the roots spread out and covered with about an inch of soil, then watered several times. They require a half day of sun and will survive the hottest all-day sun except that the colors of some varieties will fade if continuously exposed. However, they are called daylilies because a bloom lasts one day a new bloom opens. A stalk may have as many as twenty five or more blooms and there are several stalks to an established plant so there are lovely, fresh blossoms every day.

These may be used in arrangements for special daytime occasions. They combine beautifully with ivy leaves, lemons and limes. The blooms will last several hours without water and with no conditioning. Try them placed along stems of ivy or in any design you wish without the necessity of holder or water.

Revival Scheduled At Crane Church

CRANE—The Youth Revival at First Baptist Church July 19-26 will be under the leadership of one of Southern Baptist's leading youth evangelistic teams, Freddie Gage and Jimmy Shelton.

Evangelist Gage, of Decatur Baptist College, has been leading revivals throughout the state since his conversion and call to the ministry. Before his conversion Gage lived a hoodlum life, and in 1948 was sentenced to Gatesville Reform School after his arrest and conviction on charges ranging from shop-lifting, fighting, vagrancy and robbery to handling narcotics. He later was paroled to his father and in January, 1951 was converted.

Shelton, who was soloist for the world famous Cowboy Band of Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, and recently minister of music and education director of the Becky Heights Baptist Church, Dallas, is teamed with Gage to lead the gospel singing.

In 1952 Great Britain had 733,000 foreign visitors who spent 218.5 million dollars in the country.

Use small tender leaves of Spring-time spinach for a salad. It's delicious with French dressing and bits of crisp crumbled bacon. Add a couple of tablespoons of finely-chopped celery to a serving of cream of tomato soup for good flavor and crunchy texture.

WOMAN'S CLUB BUILDING—The architect's drawing above pictures the clubhouse to be started in the near future by the Midland Woman's Club, Inc. The

Clubhouse To Serve Many Midland Groups

Midland women are watching with interest the progress of plans for the Midland Woman's Club, Inc. clubhouse, which will answer a long existing need in the club and social activities of the city. Plans for the clubhouse, as outlined by the architect, Walter L. Norris, include a large auditorium with stage and dressing rooms, meeting rooms, office, checkroom, storage rooms, a ladies parlor, lounges, a flower arrangement room, tea room and kitchen.

Central Location

The kitchen is to be located centrally so that it will be convenient to serve, not only to the tea room, but to any room in the building. Outside walls of the tea room building, to be located across from Ranchland Hill Country Club, will be of masonry construction, with full-length glass walls in the tea room.

are to be of full-length glass and the large entry lobby will have corridors leading to the various rooms of the building.

The building is to be of masonry construction and is to be heated and air conditioned completely. It will be located in Hogan Park, formerly Wadley Park, across the street from the Ranchland Hill Country Club.

As an added service, testing plots will be available on the grounds for garden clubs.

Subject To Change

These proposed plans, Woman's Club officials pointed out, are subject to minor changes if funds are not adequate. However, member clubs and individual members now are working on a fund-raising project, and it is hoped the building can be constructed with few modifications. The building facilities, it was stressed, will be offered on rental basis to non-member clubs and individuals after the 13 member clubs and the individual members have been scheduled.

Serving on the house rules committee are Mrs. Leonard Thomas, chairman, Mrs. Ernest Sidwell, Mrs. Richard Hinkle, Mrs. Neta Stovall and Mrs. R. L. Spencer.

Mrs. B. R. Mathews is president of the club, with Mrs. C. M. Goldsmith as building chairman and Mrs. John B. Mills as co-chairman. The advisory board for the proposed building includes C. W. Chancellor, Sr., Barney Grafa and Murray Pasken.

MCC Women Hold Bridge Luncheon

Fractional master points were awarded during the duplicate bridge session when the Ladies Golf Association of the Midland Country Club met Friday in the clubhouse for luncheon and bridge.

The awards included 75 to Mrs. Harry Hubbard and Mrs. Arthur A. Moore; 50, Mrs. Roy Lockett and Mrs. W. L. Meadows; 40, Mrs. L. W. Randerson and Mrs. R. L. Spencer; 20, Mrs. Hastings Pannill and Mrs. Ed Pritchard, and 10, Mrs. Robert Boone and Mrs. Phil McKanna. A special prize was awarded to Mrs. McKanna.

The association will hold a bridge luncheon again next Friday, with luncheon served at 12:15 p.m. and duplicate bridge beginning at 1:10 p.m. Reservations for the luncheon should be made at the clubhouse. Bridge players should bring their own partners or call Mrs. Spencer, telephone 2-3158, and players will be paired.

You're a friend of the bride and you'd like to give her a shower. But several have already been planned. Should you give her still another shower? Not unless you want to produce groans of "Not ANOTHER shower!" among those who have to buy the shower presents. Give her some other kind of party—for instance, a luncheon.

Showers aren't always showers of blessings for those who buy the gifts.

Voters Again Will Decide

When President Eisenhower won the GOP nomination over Senator Taft last year, it was hailed as a victory for the liberal Republicans. Some of the political sages said, however, that it would take a triumph over the Democrats in the Fall to consolidate the intra-party victory of the "Eisenhower wing."

Eisenhower got that triumph, by impressive margin. But the consolidation of his party victory over the more conservative Republican forces has not followed.

The President captured the nomination with the substantial assistance of many middle-range Republicans who did not share the views of the GOP liberals.

2. Furthermore, with one or two exceptions the liberal Republicans did not stand to inherit positions of power in Congress, where the real test of party control is had.

3. There still remained the power of the presidency itself. A President lifted into office on a flood of popular support has immense prestige, and, as many have shown, it can be translated into tremendous influence both in his party and beyond it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson (Copyright, 1953, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Drew Pearson says: Army probes peculiar contracts for uniforms; Russia's most popular clown returns from exile; Senator Welker polishes up his oratory—after it's delivered.

WASHINGTON — Unbelievable waste in ordering army uniforms, as told to a closed-door session of a Senate committee, has touched off a hasty investigation of Army quartermaster contracts.

Turner at an additional cost to the government of over $50,000. Asked what government buyers were responsible for these deals, Mirabelli put the finger on one major quartermaster contractor.

"On this particular item," Mirabelli repeated, "they gave away $12,000,000. Not only that, but the negotiations were conducted in such a way that it is simply a profit business for the buyer. What they are doing, your honor, they eliminated the low bid to give the bid to their friends at high prices."

"It's a human trait after a debate for people suddenly to think of all the telling arguments and clever remarks they would like to have made. Not many, however, get the chance to go back and insert their afterthoughts into the actual debate."

It took 14 years for the actual construction of the Washington monument in Washington, D. C. A further period of 36 years elapsed between the laying of the cornerstone and the dedication, because of a lack of funds.

★ STATE DEPARTMENT CLEAN-UP ★

McCarthy Probe Boils Down To Little Solid Achievement

By PETER EDSON (NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Wisconsin Republican Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's Government Operations subcommittee on State Department affairs has brought a steady stream of witnesses into the television spotlight ever since he became head of the group in January.

When all these cases are boiled down, however, the substance of constructive contributions to the State Department's "Operation Clean-Up" is not too impressive.

Privately, however, in his dealings with Senator McCarthy on State Department investigations, Security Administrator McLeod is just as critical of the Wisconsin chairman and his methods as are some of his most bitter enemies.

Daddy Ringtail The Expert
An expert is anyone who knows a whole lot of everything about something. Sometimes, however, he knows nothing about something. As you can see, it's rather confusing just what an expert is and isn't. You never can be sure when an expert is really an expert, or can you? We shall see.

and Doctor Shoobug. The expert stood up and made a speech about monkey tails, although most of his words were such big words that no one knew what he was saying. No one understood him, you know. "The incident of the occidant," said the expert, "is the molar extremity of the paralog."

And you mustn't be bothered if you don't know what he meant. I don't know. Daddy Ringtail didn't know. Neither did Doctor Shoobug nor anyone else. Of course the Hufferman, Mugwump Monkey, and so he jumped up and down and said, "Wonderful!" He did it to try to make people think he understood the big words.

Everything might have been all right, I guess, but Mugwump Monkey suddenly shouted: "Eeow! Help!" "Ah me," said the expert. "It can't be his tail that is causing the trouble. It must be a corollary occlusion of the occidant."
Daddy Ringtail looked at Doctor Shoobug. Doctor Shoobug looked at Daddy Ringtail. Then Doctor Shoobug said: "Expert, maybe it is what you say, but I think Mugwump wouldn't shout any more—if you'd only move over a little bit. You are standing on his tail."
The expert moved and Mugwump hushed. But the expert felt so foolish that everyone knew he was not really an expert—why, he left the Great Forest that very day and never returned again. Happy day!

SHE SHOOK GERONIMO'S HAND—

Hardy Pioneer Texan Tells Of Riding First Train West

Approaching her ninety-eighth birthday anniversary Mrs. Zelpha Calhoun Ebbersol of Midland looks back upon a life that has been filled with such events as her elopement into the wilds of Nebraska, coming to Texas on the first train to run out West, and meeting the great Indian chief Geronimo.

Mrs. Ebbersol presently is living with a granddaughter, Mrs. O. C. Hazelwood of 2506 Cuthbert Street. Mrs. Hazelwood is a counselor at the Texas Employment Commission here.

Mrs. Ebbersol was born Aug. 9, 1855, in Maryland and was a distant cousin of Vice President Calhoun.

Her father packed the family up in a covered wagon one day and they journeyed out to Iowa, which still was settled sparsely. There he built a large colonial type home in the wilderness and this is where Zelpha Calhoun spent most of her childhood.

After completing her education at a girls finishing school in Philadelphia she eloped with Aaron Ebbersol to Nebraska which was also practically virgin territory at the time. There the couple staked out a claim, lived in a sod dugout and reared three children.

By 1880 West Texas was the spot where they wanted to live so they boarded the first Texas & Pacific train and rode as far as the line had been constructed which was at Abilene.

Intending to settle in the area they journeyed by wagon to the town of Ben Ficklin which is now San Angelo. They had relatives at old Fort Concho next to Ben Ficklin and lived there several months.

Work wasn't too plentiful, recalls Mrs. Ebbersol, so the family wheeled back to Abilene and settled down to grow with the town which was then mostly a trading area for Buffalo hunters. Aaron, being a carpenter, found plenty of work constructing homes at Abilene which then was mostly a tent city.

The Ebbersols reared their family in Abilene and in 1920 moved to Stanton where Mrs. Ebbersol has lived with an only daughter, Mrs. J. B. Collier, up until June of this year when she moved to Midland. Her husband died in 1929.

Mrs. Ebbersol numbered among her talents such activities as doing her own photographic darkroom developing, crocheting, and swimming in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Her Favorite Stories
She has toured all over the United States and Canada and still was swimming for sport when she was 75. The active little lady is a wonderful conversationalist and likes to tell of her life and the many things she has experienced. She has kept a glove she was wearing on the day she shook hands with the famous Indian chief, Geronimo—after he had been captured, of course.

One story she looks upon with amusement was when she kept a smuggled copy of one of Walt Whitman's books under her pillow. Whitman at the time was banned from young people and especially young ladies since he was considered too outspoken.

With a twinkle in her eye she will tell you she is still a Whitman fan.

SOON TO BE 98—Mrs. Zelpha C. Ebbersol holds a photo of her great-great-grandson, Jai Garner, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Garner of Roswell, N. M., as the ninety-eighth birthday of the pioneer Abilene and Stanton resident approaches.

Congress Slates Quick Aid For Drouth-Stricken Areas

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Final approval early this week was forecast Saturday for an emergency drouth aid program to aid farmers and livestock men in the arid Southwest.

The House, which meets again Monday, is expected to approve and send quickly to the Senate a compromise agreement reached Friday on differences between similar measures the two houses had passed. Approval of the Senate and President Eisenhower then would make the program effective.

The conferees agreed to make established feeders, except "commercial feed lots," eligible along with producers for special livestock loans exceeding $2,500. The five per cent loans, repayable in three years, are to be made by the government through local committees to those who cannot obtain credit from other sources.

The Senate had voted to limit the loans to producers, in an effort to keep out livestock speculators.

The Farmers Home Administration now is permitted to make livestock loans only up to $2,500.

The conferees also accepted a House provision for emergency feed and seed loans to farmers. The Senate had said ample provision for such loans already exists.

The program provides also that the secretary of Agriculture may make loans to farmers for agricultural purposes and gives him authority to fix the terms and conditions of the loans.

Some funds already are available for the program, and more money is expected to be appropriated later.

HD Clubs Plan Frozen Foods Demonstration

Members of the county's five home demonstration clubs will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the homemaking department of Midland High School for a food freezer demonstration.

The demonstration is to be conducted by Joyce Chambers of Fort Worth, home economist for Texas Electric Service Company.

The home economist will discuss the preparation of fresh fruits and vegetables, meats and poultry for the home freezer. She will show frozen ready-to-serve foods, as well as frozen baked and unbaked products.

There also will be a display of the supplies, including containers and wrapping materials, used in preparation of foods for the freezer.

All interested persons, as well as home demonstration club members, are invited to attend, Pauline McWilliams, county home demonstration agent, announced.

Symphony Interviews Conductor Applicants

Interviews have been conducted with two of the 15 musicians who had applied by this weekend for the position of conductor of the Midland Symphony and Chorus Association, officials announced.

Four more interviews were to be conducted over the weekend by the association's officers, directors and members of the symphony and chorus.

The first applicant to be interviewed was Dr. Eric Sorantin, assistant director of the San Antonio Symphony and director of the San Angelo Symphony.

Dr. Sorantin, who would commute from San Antonio, proposed that the association plan top production concerts to be given with about 50 musicians, importing the necessary performers from San Antonio and San Angelo to supplement the Midland group.

Also in Midland recently to discuss the position of symphony conductor was William Yarborough, former conductor of the American Symphony in Paris, France and the Richmond, Va., Philharmonic Orchestra. He also is a lecturer for the Adult Education Department.

If he were named conductor, symphony officials said, Yarborough would plan to build an orchestra and chorus with Midland musicians. He would make his home in Midland.

Mrs. Dave Tidmore Holds Cousin Party

Unlike the old woman in the shoe, Mrs. Dave Tidmore, 1007 North D Street, knows just what to do with a crowd of children.

And a crowd of children she's had for the last week for her annual cousin party, when she keeps all of her grandchildren who are large enough to walk—providing a vacation for the mothers.

Has 15 Grandchildren
This year 12 of Mrs. Tidmore's 15 grandchildren and a niece have been at her home for the annual party.

Caring for the children is no problem for Mrs. Tidmore. She puts some on telephone and door duty, the older youngsters help with the toddlers and some of the children sleep out on cots in the pleasant backyard.

In addition to the fun children can make for themselves, Mrs. Tidmore has entertained them with picnics, amateur hours, a Mother Goose party and similar events.

Mrs. Tidmore and her husband have seven children—Max Tidmore of Lubbock, David Tidmore of Houston, Mrs. Charles Patterson, Mrs. W. G. Ray, Jim Tidmore and Mrs. Kenneth Wood, all of Midland.

The grandchildren who have attended the cousin party this year are Ronnie and Marialice Houston, children of the Tom Houstons of Stanton; Kay, Kent and Kurt Tidmore, children of the Max Tidmores of Lubbock; Marilynn and Keith Wood, children of the Kenneth Woods of Midland; Todd Tidmore, son of the Jim Tidmores of Midland; Suzanne, Ginger and Sarajane Patterson, children of the Charles Pattersons of Midland; and Skipper Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ray of Midland.

The niece attending was Glenis Nevins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Tabb of Odessa.

Other grandchildren of the Tidmores are Kris Tidmore, daughter of the Max Tidmores of Lubbock; David Loyd Tidmore, son of David Tidmore and Mrs. Dorothy Weaver of Houston; and Tommie Houston, son of the Tom Houstons of Stanton.

Specialist Named To Unsnarl Tangle In Aftosa Campaign

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Agriculture Department appointed Saturday a special representative to Mexico to help work out tangled relations in U. S. - Mexican efforts to wipe out a new outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Mexico.

Dr. Charles Duckworth of Sacramento, Calif., is interrupting an assignment in Europe combatting the dread animal disease.

Sharp differences have arisen over methods of dealing with the new outbreak. U. S. officials contend the only way to eliminate the disease is to destroy diseased and exposed animals. The Mexican government is insisting that vaccination alone be used.

REDUCING DIETS CAN BE HARMFUL

A strenuous reducing diet can do a great deal of harm; in some cases possibly more than the excess weight. A strenuous reducing diet should not be undertaken, except upon the advice and under the supervision of a physician.

Here is a sensible way to take off unguainly fat without diet or calorie counting. Just ask your druggist for four ounces of liquid Barcontrate. Mix with grapefruit juice as directed on label and take according to directions. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the sensible way to reduce, return the empty bottle for your money back.

Mrs. Ruth Malloy, 9521 Manchester Blvd., Houston, Texas, wrote us as follows:

"I am very proud to be one of your Barcontrate users. When I started taking Barcontrate, my weight was 189. I now weigh 163, a loss of 26 pounds, and I must say I feel like a new person."

And Mrs. Albert Hoos, Jr., 2115 Clinton, Fort Worth, Texas, wrote that she lost 15 pounds taking Barcontrate.

Four Living Ex-Mrs. Presidents Stay Active

By SIGRID ARNE
WASHINGTON—(P)—There is no obscurity, even years later, for a first lady. Today curiosity seekers still dog the steps of the four living ex-Mrs. Presidents.

Three have drawn a silken curtain of silence around themselves, a curtain that can be opened only by close friends. The fourth, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is a notable contrast. She will talk with one and all—if they are interested in public affairs, her chosen life since her husband died.

Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, 74, lives in Northampton, Mass. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, 81, still lives in Washington. Mrs. Harry Truman, 68, is having a good time traveling with her husband. And Mrs. Roosevelt, the greatest traveler of them all, is on the homeward leg of a world trip, avidly interested in anything from public housing to women's rights in Japan.

Towering hemlocks almost completely hide the handsome home of Mrs. Coolidge. Through a break in the trees she can be seen occasionally having a meal on a pretty second-story porch.

For a year and a half, since she suffered a heart seizure, she has had to limit her activities to quiet dinner with small groups of old friends. The illness put her in a hospital, and she returned home only after an elevator had been installed in her three-story house, Road Forks.

Looks Century Old
Built after her husband died, it is a white brick so true to New England that it looks more than a century old.

She has had to give up going to the baseball games she enjoyed so much. The affairs of Smith College have become a less active enthusiasm. But she keeps on making fine needlepoint, much of which she gives to the wife of her son John, of Farmington, Conn.

A maid takes care of the house, but on good days Mrs. Coolidge still likes to do her own shopping. Northampton folks permit her to go quietly about her business. She has become quite thin, and a little stooped. Sometimes tourists pass her by without realizing they have glanced at Northampton's most famous citizen.

Name On Office Door
But let a story break about her, and she is again deluged with mail. People begin calling to ask favors or just talk about the good old days of "Keep cool with Coolidge." The maid fends them all off.

The name "Calvin Coolidge" still appears on the window of his old law office in faded gold lettering. Sometimes, tourists stop in to ask Kenneth Hemenway, only remaining member of the firm, why he doesn't have it touched up.

Mrs. Coolidge is still a meticulous dresser; still likes navy blue and that rich shade of red which she wore to White House parties.

She says of her presently enforced quiet life, "I'm making the most of my limitations."

Wears Her Orchid
Mrs. Woodrow Wilson still keeps the name of her husband alive in Washington. She is invited to gilded Democratic parties, and arrives wearing an orchid, just as she did in the days when she was first lady.

Several times a month she plays bridge. The sessions sometimes last till midnight.

Mrs. Wilson is a big woman who likes elaborate clothes. Hats, tea she usually wears flowered hats, two or three pieces of jewelry, and furs.

In public she wears a blank expression, as though to fend off any brass autograph seeker. She also refuses to answer the phone except for close friends.

Fear Of Assassination
Washington was her home before she married the widowed President Wilson in 1915, so she stays on. She attends church at the Washington Cathedral (Episcopalian), where her husband is interred.

Mrs. Truman seems to wear a permanent smile since last January 20, when a train pulled out of Washington to the sound of thousands singing "Auld Lang Syne" for Harry Truman.

Friends say she spent many a worried day after the assassination attempt by two Puerto Ricans at Blair House. For many months, when cameras caught the Trumans walking through crowds, the two faces were a study—Truman with his usual broad smile, Mrs. Truman with a wary, closed-up look.

Bess Drives Better
She had a second worry about the White House job. The grind killed her husband's predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mrs. Truman wanted to be sure she got her husband home for a long and happy sunset.

Intimate friends say she insisted that he refuse to run again. Then she worried that the change from the tension of his office to the leisure of Independence would have ill effects. So she planned their trip to Hawaii. When they returned she told friends with quiet satisfaction,

"He made the adjustment easily." Bess Truman is happy in the big, white frame house which was

her family's home. She belongs to a bridge club. She drives her own car, and Secret Service men now admit she is a better driver than her husband. She is a baseball and basketball fan. Her husband likes music. Now they can slip off to games and concerts without fanfare.

Truman, when they are home, goes daily to his office in Kansas City, where he is working on his memoirs. Friends say Bess Truman is chief consultant on the project, as she often was on other problems in Washington.

Their recent trip to New York was a special delight because their daughter Margaret lives there. Each day mother and daughter lunched and shopped just like any other Midwestern women in the big city.

No Chicken, Thanks
At home Mrs. Truman has two servants. But she takes over the kitchen occasionally to turn out a favorite dish for her husband. One used to be chicken and dumplings.

Now the word "chicken" brings a quick grimace to her face. She has been to too many banquets in the last seven years.

The one ex-Mrs. President who has kept up the White House pace is Mrs. Roosevelt, who broke precedent as a first lady by taking an active, personal interest in public affairs.

Since May, she has been on a world tour, talking to schools, clubs, individuals. She spent six

Martin County Old Timers To Gather For Big Reunion

STANTON—Martin County "old timers" expect to have lots of time Tuesday to visit and relive many a "good old time" at the Old Settlers Reunion in Stanton City Park.

More than 500 persons are expected for the event, held especially for residents and former residents and their families who have lived in Martin County 20 years or longer.

Weeks in Japan, then headed home via Istanbul, Athens, Belgrade and Paris.

Mounds Of Mail
Mrs. Roosevelt has kept her old cottage at Hyde Park, N. Y. She also has a New York apartment. But her speaking engagements are so formidable she may have to spend most of next year on the road. Already she is booked solidly through March.

Her good health remains a byword. She frequently starts a day with a 9 o'clock appointment, goes straight through a dinner business meeting, then whisks off to see a new play on Broadway.

When she is at Hyde Park, she sometimes takes the one-time first lady—now a little stooped—walking alone down the hill to the cedar hedge which surrounds her husband's grave. She stays awhile then goes back to her desk, which is crowded with mail from all over the world.

"The big feed," said Mrs. Morgan Hall, permanent secretary of the Old Settlers Association, "will be served from a chuck wagon at sundown. Barrels of lemonade will keep throats workable during the reunion."

"There'll be special music throughout the day," Mrs. Hall continued, "and maybe a few speeches."

Other officers of the association include Mrs. O. B. Bryan, Mrs. F. O. Morrow, Hoot Tom and Bob Halelip, dedication; Edmond Morrow, James Jones, O. B. Bryan and Edmond Tom, finance; Mrs. Sam Wilkinson and Morgan Hall, special music; Bob Halelip, seating; Hoot Tom, Yuell Winslow, George Davis, and R. K. Rogers, lighting; Mrs. Flora Rogers, Horace Blocker, John Peters, Werner Haynie, Dan Saunders and Jack (Fiddler) Estes, welcome committee; George Shelburne, memorial; Miller Estes and Betty Houston, lemonade; and Mrs. James Eiland, program committee.

KADERLI TO ADDRESS MIDLAND ROTARY CLUB

HERE'S WHY ALLEN MILITARY ACADEMY AT BRYAN IS THE LEADING PREPARATORY AND MILITARY SCHOOL IN THE NATION

What Others Say About Allen...

The vision of J. H. and R. O. Allen in the establishment of Allen Military Academy at Bryan has given to Texas one of the nation's most outstanding preparatory and military schools. Their achievements in athletics, band, and education have brought them and Texas national recognition.

Allan Shivers,
Governor of Texas.

As my father and grandfather, I'm an ex-student of Allen Military Academy. As an Allen graduate, I'm now draft exempt until the completion of my education. When and if I'm called into service, I'll enter as a Second Lieutenant fully convinced that I've had the very best in military training.

Sam Houston, IV,
Senior, University of Houston.

I didn't have enough sense to finish school but due to the expert military training during my time at Allen Academy, I find what is a miserable Army life to others, a snap to me.

R. J. Matthias,
Private, U. S. Army.

For two years my son has been enrolled at Allen Military Academy. I recommend the Academy without reservations.

E. D. Richardson,
Vice-President, First National Bank,
Midland, Texas.

I fully realize what the Academy has done for my son and I wish to express my deep and warm gratitude. I can sincerely say that he loves the Academy and has affection and high respect for all the fine men and teachers who have devoted themselves to your school of admirable boys, and this most certainly goes for me, too.

Dr. Olan R. Hyndman,
Davenport, Iowa.

I cannot begin to tell you how much I appreciate the things you have done for me. I would not take a fortune for the year I spent at Allen. I'll surely see that my two smaller brothers will come and spend at least one year with you, if at all possible.

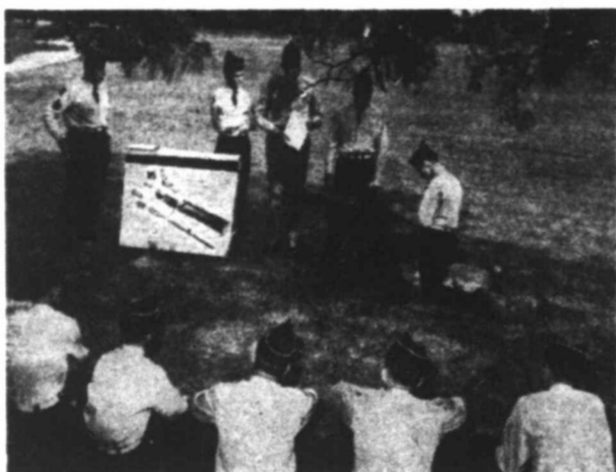

John Dubbs Halton,
The United States Military Academy,
West Point, New York.

Please be assured that we enjoyed having your boys and coaches here and they distinguished themselves as true sportsmen and a great football team. I hope that it will be possible to have the Allen team here again, as all who witnessed the game would like to see them play again.

Remember me with kindest regards to all the nice boys whom I met here.

John D. Odum,
Exalted Ruler, Elks Club,
Columbus, Georgia.

For your convenience there is a representative of Allen Military Academy in Midland. Mr. Paschal Price, Director of Public Relations at the Academy, can be reached at the El Campo Moderno Courts on West Highway 80. For information, call Mr. Price at 3-3375, today, Monday and Tuesday, or write directly to Allen Military Academy, Bryan, Texas, for catalogue.

When for thirty years a military school maintains an Honor Rating, friends and foes alike ask the question, "How can they do it?"

Allen Military Academy at Bryan, Texas' oldest boys' preparatory school, this past year was designated an Honor Military Academy for the thirtieth straight year, an unparalleled record for Texas preparatory schools and one that few, if any, other such schools can boast.

The old Lone Star adage, "What others have, Texas has better," is familiar to all of us. Officials of Allen Military Academy do not make this claim, but the school's record stands as a memorial to the integrity of its founders, J. H. and R. O. Allen.

These men, in 1888, established the Allen High School for boys. In pioneer fashion, they paved the way for private and independent schools in Texas. Since that time, others have pitched in to establish many fine and wonderful preparatory and military schools; but Allen Military Academy was, and is, Texas' first and now, of course, is the Lone Star State's oldest.

Age alone, however, isn't a true criterion of an educational institution; nevertheless, without lengthy and proved success, few educational institutions can guarantee their students will have all the advantages necessary in this modern age.

Moreover, a school which has gone through the experimental stage and which has become fixed in its policy and has virtually separated the good from the bad in its experiences should attract the attention of a prospective patron.

A school should have listed in its accomplishments national recognition in every phase of its work. Educational institutions are not built in a day, and the greatest joy that can come to a school man is that confidence and respect have been gained for his school project outside the confines of his own district or state.

A school with a national recognition must have national standards and should have international vision.

Another essential is the character of the men who are to teach your boy. In teaching boys, 90 per cent of the success lies in the personality of the teacher. In any good school what a boy gets from the text books is not half as important as what he gets from the lives of the men who teach him.

Thirdly, the moral and religious atmosphere with which your son is to be surrounded, is very vital. A good school should stand not only for moral purity, but for Christian ideals and standards of conduct. Out of the heart come the real issues of life.

The fourth essential of a good school is discipline—firm, kind, wise control. There must be unquestioned obedience to constituted authority. But obedience must be willing or it is none; it must come through loyalty rather than through compulsion.

The fifth essential is thorough instruction—sound mental training. This requires able and skillful instructors. "Master" is the old word. A teacher who is a master of his subject, master of himself, and master among boys is cheap at any price.

Finally, a good school will not neglect the health and the physical development of your boy.

The health record of the Academy has been remarkable. Wholesome food, proper exercise, regular hours, the careful attention of a competent school physician and nurse, who reside on the campus, together with vigilance with respect to sanitary conditions have made an excellent health record for the school. There have been only a few cases of serious sickness in the school's history. In fact, such a record over 60 years was so impressive that the late Robert Ripley requested its use in the famed column, "BELIEVE IT OR NOT."

HISTORY
Allen Military Academy was founded in 1888 by J. H. Allen, and has since been operated by the Allen family, the third generation of which now operates the school. The Reserve Officers' Training

Only those who are physically and morally fit are admitted. Only unmarried students, except in the case of veterans of our Armed Services, are admitted.

Fragrance in her home gives this girl background for her own well-groomed charm. She uses an atomizer on her bottle of cologne to give her bedroom a pervading odor of her favorite perfume. She sprays bulb of her dressing table lamp (left). When she switches on light, heat will send out scent. Utmost in luxury is achieved by spraying sheet and pillowcase (center). Her clothes will pick up fragrance as she sprays floor, walls, and ceiling of her closet (right). She uses her own personal scent in the bedroom. For other rooms of the house, she uses fragrance fresh and impersonal that can serve as background for her own and her guests' perfume.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK
BY NORTH CALLAHAN

NEW YORK—Four years ago a group of kindergarten children in a suburb here got their tiny but important thought together with the help of their teacher, Miss Alma Haring, and wrote a letter to the United Nations. The letter said, in part: "War is fighting. People hate and take people's clothes clothes away. They should think not to make war. The thing is to make people good by giving them good training in this world. The thing is to be very kind, and help everybody." This June the same children wrote another letter to the UN. It said: "Here we are ready for the Fourth Grade, and still we do not have peace. Why?"

One day not long ago, a one and one-half carat diamond slipped from a vice in a jewelry-repair shop on West 47th Street—and look for that corner drugstore, the quiet, wooded street and the little steeped church in the town where I grew up some thousand miles from here. The late Frank Craven again presented in a classic way the people and their joys and sorrows. He was sort of an average American anyway, at least he seemed to be. With all the problems of the world sitting too much on our shoulders, it gives one renewed faith in our own land to watch "Our Town" again.

Gothenburg's Grantland Rice went to a lot of trouble to help an old-time fan find a copy of his fine "out-of-print" poem: "Alumnus Football" . . . If you're in New York and need a check cashed on Saturday, there are several reliable agencies which will do it for 25 cents on checks up to $50, one and one-half per cent on those above that amount. Just be sure the agency visited is licensed . . . heard Hank Williams on a juke box record singing "You'll Never Get Out of This World Alive", he didn't.

When Mount Katmai blew off its top in 1912, the noise was heard 750 miles away from the Alaskan volcano.

Demand Is Growing For Three-Bedroom Houses, Experts Say

Three-bedroom houses are in greatest demand. Building materials industries report that the higher birthrate of the 1940's is showing up now, with families in the market for homes with more sleeping space. The result is that more three-bedroom houses are being built, and existing homes being remodeled to meet the needs of expanding family units. It is obvious that, when more bedrooms are added, two other factors must be considered at the same time: at least one, full extra bath or a half-bath and increased storage space all over the house. The clay floor and wall tile manufacturers, through the Tile Council of America, indicate that the well-equipped half-bath with a tiled shower stall, water closet and hand-bowl is sufficient for most families if the main bath is compartmented and has twin washing facilities. "Set With Adhesives" A considerable sum may be saved in remodeling installations if existing walls are in good enough condition to allow the clay tile to be set with adhesives. This makes it unnecessary to tear out structures and have the surfaces replastered. In the case of added storage facilities, most home planning experts recommend the "storage wall," with built-in cupboards, closets and other features, either exposed or behind sliding doors. Home owners should know that such units may be obtained in standard sizes ready to install. The larger the family, of course, the greater the need for adequate storage in the kitchen. Large refrigerators and home freezers are good investments in food preserved and because they allow buying in quantity lots when food sales are on. Every possible inch of the kitchen should be utilized for storage, including the space under the work surfaces adjoining major appliances.

A. T. Fleming Fills Martin Tax Vacancy

STANTON—Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders has named A. C. Fleming new deputy tax assessor-collector to replace Sammy Houston, who resigned to take a position with Wes-Tex Telephone Co-operative. Fleming, a graduate of East Texas State Teachers College in Commerce, has taught school 17 years, 10 of which were in the Martin County schools. Mrs. Fleming now is teaching in Grady. A son is serving with the U. S. Navy. Houston was with the Cap Rock Electric Co-op for six years before he joined the sheriff's department.

Seminole Residents Study Water Problem

SEMINOLE — Representatives of oil companies have been invited to meet with members of the City Council, trustees of the school district, and others to discuss and consider a solution to the problem of obtaining adequate water supply for the City of Seminole. The meeting will be one day this week, but the exact date has not been determined because it is necessary that the representatives of the oil companies determine the date when most of them can attend.
