

Beta Sigma Phi Chapter Plans Gypsy Jamboree

Plans for a Gypsy Jamboree were discussed when XI Theta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, held a Summer social Wednesday in the home of Mrs. A. H. Dimney, 110 East Cowden Street.

The chapter will sponsor the Gypsy Jamboree August 28 in Cole Park. Mrs. Arnold O'Neill is general chairman for the event, with Mrs. R. H. Frizzell, Jr., as booth chairman; Mrs. Dimney, food chairman; Mrs. Joe Mims, entertainment chairman; Maedelee Roberts, chairman of wares to sell; Mrs. John Rhoden, contact chairman, and Mrs. Lucille Johnson, chairman of prizes.

Members also discussed the cooperative project of the city's five Beta Sigma Phi chapters to assist with ticket sales for the "Help Save Baseball" game Monday between the Midland Indians and Rowell.

Others attending the Wednesday party were Mrs. Joe Henson, Mrs. S. R. McKinney, Jr., Mrs. Fields Childress, Mrs. W. Ernest Nance, Alma Heard, Mrs. Ray Phillips, Mrs. Leroy Butler, Mrs. Howard J. Atwater, Mrs. Otto Wink and Mrs. Charles Patterson.

Johnnie Stewart Is Guild Speaker

Johnnie Stewart gave the program, "Proclaim the Good News," when the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Asbury Methodist Church met Thursday in the church.

Mrs. Mary Harris gave the devotional and prayers were given by Mrs. J. L. Hudgins.

Others present were Mrs. Eva Tate and Mrs. Preston Purdie.

Methodist WSCS Circles Meet For Study

Circles of the St. Mark's Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service met Thursday.

Mrs. A. E. Patterson, WSCS president, presided when the Miriam Circle met in the home of Mrs. W. E. Hammit, Jr., 302 Kessler Avenue.

A program on "What Methodists Believe" was given by Mrs. Brandon Rea. She also gave a report on the Christmas fair.

It was announced that the WSCS will meet at 7:30 p.m. July 27 in the church. The next circle meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. August 6 in the home of Mrs. Roth LeMonda, 413 East Pecan Street.

During the social hour, the hostesses served refreshments to five members and one guest, Mrs. Patterson.

The Rebecca Circle met in the home of Mrs. Jack Keese, 612 West Nobles Street, with Mrs. Clarence Borland, chairman, presiding.

The meeting was opened and closed with prayers by Mrs. Keese, and a devotional was given by Mrs. J. B. Sharp. Mrs. John W. Young presented the program on "What Methodists Believe," which was followed by a group discussion.

Mrs. Glenn Edwards was appointed cookbook chairman for the circle. Mrs. R. R. Prantz, treasurer, and Mrs. Sam T. Crews, Fair chairman, gave reports.

It was announced that the next meeting will be held at 9:15 a.m. August 6 in the home of Mrs. Crews, 403 West Jax Street.

Present were Mrs. Prantz, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Borland, Mrs. Keese, Mrs. Young, Mrs. C. V. Thornton, Mrs. Crews, Mrs. Jack Collins and two guests, Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Jim Teddlie.

Interior and exterior of the home get design news in these two developments. Very first hand carved-in-order nylon carpeting (left) has great beauty and practicality. Designers are limited only by the imagination of the buyer. A restrained stylized leaf pattern is shown here. For the terrace (right), there's a wrought iron and woven chair. Flexible and light weight, it conforms to body lines for complete comfort, is supported by a wrought iron base.

Best Of Fashion Designers Favor Figure-Flattering Styles

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK — It has been said that most men fashion designers hate women, and therefore try to make them look grotesque in exaggerated fashions.

Be that as it may, some of New York's most successful designers, whose popularity continues year after year, are women. They are neither bizarre nor sensational, but for the most part highly talented, hard-working women who understand the average woman's wardrobe needs and figure problems and try to solve them. Their aim is to make women look pretty, and for that reason they have won the gratitude of a large and loyal following.

Among the hundreds competing for attention of press and buyers in New York's teeming garment district, I would pick half a dozen women on whom you can depend never to make you look ridiculous. Here is my list of selections:

Vera Maxwell — Her subtle colors in tweeds of her own design have made her famous among women who like to look their best without feeling "dressed up." She handles color with an artist's eye, keeps her clothes simple and uncluttered, spends months every year searching out unusual fabrics in odd corners of the earth and studying figure types. Lives in the country, commutes to New York, is proud of her handsome grown son.

Adele Simpson — Known for her ladylike clothes and her genius at flattering the feminine figure

Makes no compromise on quality, searches out the most distinguished fabrics, molds them with the hands of a sculptor. Is married to Wesley Simpson, successful textile manufacturer, maintains a perfectly appointed New York apartment and a country home in Greenwich, Conn.

French Designers
Lily Daché — A French woman and a born designer, who believes everything in life, from hats to garbage pails, can and should be beautiful. Famous as a milliner to most of the world's celebrities, she has turned her talents to other fields in the last two years, designing everything from bras to billboards, but continuing to lead the field in glamorous hats. Is married to Jean Despres, executive vice president of Coty, Inc., maintains a penthouse apartment atop her own building in New York and a country home in Round Ridge, N. Y., where she spends weekends as an avid gardener.

Hattie Carnegie — The dowager queen of the New York fashion business, with a sure eye for the successful silhouette of each season. Has been working since the age of 11, when she supported her widowed mother and numerous brothers and sisters. Now married to a movie magnate who was her first beau and carried her books home from school on New York's East Side.

Millinery Designer
Sally Victor — A millinery designer whose one aim is to make women look pretty, and who learned her trade in the department store business. Year after year turns out hats that women love, hats that sometimes change their lives. Frank and outspoken, puts on no frills, has deep and loyal friendships.

Emily Wilkens — Young, pretty, ambitious in every department of life. Started as the first designer of teenage fashions, now is doing clothes for young grown-ups in a contract with a leading New York specialty shop and a group of stores throughout the country. Is married to State Supreme Court Justice Irving Levy and took time out from her career to have two babies.

Seventh Day Adventists Slate Dedication For New Building

Dedication services will be held Saturday afternoon for the new building of the Seventh Day Adventist Church at 3114 West Travis Street, the Rev. Richard C. Barron, pastor, announced.

Construction was started in December and services have been held in the building for about two and one-half months.

The brick building, constructed at a cost of approximately $33,000, includes three classrooms and an auditorium with a seating capacity of 250 persons.

The special services Saturday will begin at 2:30 p.m. and the dedication address will be given by L. C. Evans, president of the Southwestern Union Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Mayor J. W. McMillen will give a brief address and other speakers will include Dr. Norman Maberry, who will give a history of the church; Elder M. D. Howard, president of the Texaco Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, who will speak on "The Mission of the Seventh Day Adventist in the World;" Paul James, chairman of the church's building committee, and Mr. Barron.

A tape recording will be made of the services from 3 until 3:30 p.m., to be used in a radio broadcast later in the afternoon.

Other services for Saturday in the church will include Sabbath School at 9:30 a.m. and morning worship at 11 a.m., when Evans will be the speaker.

'Voice' Has Laryngitis

With all the trouble the Russians are having in the satellite countries, they are getting one big break. But for an unfortunate set of circumstances, United States propagandists would be taking advantage of Russian hard luck in every part of the world.

And what of the subject peoples behind the Iron Curtain, sitting with their ears glued to their clandestine radios, waiting for a word of help and guidance from the voice of Uncle Sam? What are we telling them?

Nothing—or next to nothing. Right at the big moment when the Kremlin will begin springing cracks all over the place, we were caught without even a screw driver to widen them.

The Voice of America has an acute case of laryngitis. Harried by investigations and resignations, its morale shot, its personnel slashed, the State Department information program is in no position to speak out for America.

This hardly seems consistent with the hope expressed by some Administration leaders eventually to roll back the Iron Curtain.

The sad fact—from a propaganda viewpoint—seems to be that the uprisings of workers against Communist exploitation occurred while the Eisenhower Administration was in the process of trying to reorganize the foreign information program by taking it out from under the Department of State.

That could be a very good thing. The British Broadcasting Corporation, which does an effective job of selling the British viewpoint on the international airways, operates entirely apart from the British Foreign Office.

We do need a rehabilitated Voice of America—loud and clear and full of confidence—and we need it soon.

Excelsior!

As one unable to appreciate the lure of climbing a mountain, we nevertheless were relieved to learn that a British expedition finally has scaled Mt. Everest. What they proved up there almost six miles in the air is as much of a mystery as why they wanted to risk their necks in the first place.

Maybe it's things like this that convince the British there will always be an England. As fast as they lost India they go out and plant their flag on some unexplored mountain.

However doubtful the scientific benefits resulting from such an operation, now that Everest has been climbed maybe other men may be relieved of the compulsion to risk their necks at it. Which is something.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson
(Copyright, 1953, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Drew Pearson says: Republicans finally worry over McCarthyism; Cohn and Schine, McCarthy's two probers are as interesting as J. B. Matthews; Draft Boards are lenient with McCarthy's Junior G-Men.

WASHINGTON — GOP Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois paused by the Senate desk of Margaret Chase Smith of Maine the other day and remarked: "I don't like this a bit, Margaret. I don't like this a bit."

Dirksen's worry is typical of other related Republican concern over McCarthyism. Because for years the backbone of the Republican Party was Protestant votes in New England and the Middle West. As a result, GOP senators are even willing to take a closer look at other McCarthy Committee agents—especially the two slapdash young men, Cohn and Schine, who zoomed across Europe last winter exuding drama and headlines at every stop.

He went to Europe and took his mother with him. At that time he was not counsel for the McCarthy Committee. "Vaudeville" Partner David Schine, the other partner of the McCarthy so-called "vaudeville" team, is a handsome, haughty 35-year-old kid with a dreamy look in his eye, who sometimes slaps Cohn around as if they were dormitory roommates.

Schine also managed to escape the draft, and for a time made motions of being an essential business executive. His father owns the Schine hotel chain, including the Roney Plaza in Miami, where Walter Winchell spends his winters; the Boca Raton, also in Florida, and the Ambassador in Los Angeles. His father

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

Today's hand would be quite unimportant in a rubber bridge game. At a contract of two spades, South could well afford to draw trumps and give up three clubs, one diamond and one heart.

Bridge hand diagram showing North and South hands with cards and suits.

both tables was quite similar for the first few tricks, but then there was an important difference. West opened the four of diamonds, East finessed the ten, and South won with the king.

At the second table the declarer was my friend and associate, Alfred Sheinwald. He could see that he would run into a heart ruff if he led a second club, so he devised an unusual squeeze play to make the extra trick.

After winning the second round of hearts with the ace, he ran all five trumps, discarding dummy's last two diamonds. He saved two hearts and a club in the dummy, with the singleton jack of hearts and two clubs in his own hand.

Big Three Talk In A Vacuum Without Clear U. S. Policy

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—If ever a meeting of Big Three foreign ministers was held in a vacuum, the July 10 Washington Conference of American, British and French diplomats is it. The vacuum consists of a complete lack of clarity on what the American policy is, although the United States now is supposed to set the pace in the world rat race.

In his inaugural address, President Eisenhower declared that his Administration would develop a clear, consistent and confident global foreign policy through genuine, continuous cooperation with Congress in the spirit of true bipartisanship.

The President called for these specific foreign policy moves in his inaugural address: Withdrawal of U. S. Seventh Fleet from the Straits of Formosa. Increased assistance to Korea. American foreign aid to be matched by greater effort abroad for European unity.

Check off the list and see where it leaves you: The President had the power to order the Seventh Fleet withdrawn and did it. The psychological purpose of this was to free the Chinese Nationalist forces to move on the Chinese mainland.

Increased assistance to Korea is threatened by Republic of Korea's unwillingness to agree to truce terms without U. S. guarantees which the Administration is unwilling to give.

When Congress tried to write into the Mutual Security law a mandatory cut in foreign aid unless the Europeans agreed to more unity, the White House had to backtrack and ask that this be left to presidential discretion.

The trade agreements act has been extended for a year, but it settles nothing. The whole argument merely has been postponed.

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a revised customs simplification plan. But in the rush to adjourn, it would be no surprise if action on this proposal were also delayed a year.

Daddy Ringtail

Daddy Ringtail And Castles In The Sky

Daddy Ringtail, our monkey friend, lives in a monkey house, high in the top of a very tall tree, right in the middle of the Great Forest.

One afternoon he was standing out on the porch, looking out and across the tops of the trees, far away to the west where old Mr. Sun was going down the other side of the world to China. The clouds were blue from the sky, red from the sun, and purple from both of them put together. What a pretty thing to see! The clouds were like castles there in the sky.

"Daddy Ringtail! Scrambled coconut for supper!" Mother Ringtail was calling from inside the house, saying that a fine supper of scrambled coconut was ready on the table. "Daddy Ringtail! Scrambled coconut for supper!"

Mother Ringtail had always said that people should come to supper when supper was ready, and that no one ever should have to go after them. I mean that people should come to supper when they are called.

but Daddy Ringtail didn't go. He was busy with looking away and across the trees at the castles in the sky.

Mother Ringtail then came out the door. "Daddy Ringtail," said she, "you are always hungry for supper, and scrambled coconut is ready." Mother Ringtail stopped very still. She too was looking now, way across the trees of the forest. She saw the castles of cloud away there in the sky. Oh, they were giant castles of great beauty, but castles of a kind that no hand could ever build.

They are built of a sun that is gone, of a wind that is still, and of clouds as big as mountains. They really aren't built at all. I guess. They only happen sometimes when people have eyes to look and see.

Mother Ringtail watched the clouds. Daddy Ringtail watched them. The children too came out to watch until the night had pulled a curtain of black across the world.

Then the family had their supper. What a fine, happy supper with happy talk of castles in the sky. And a mother should maybe let supper wait sometimes for a happy thing like castles in the sky. I guess, don't you? Happy day!

Shivers Eyes 13 Ways State May Help Victims Of Drouth

By The Associated Press Governor Shivers had under study Friday 13 ways the state might help drought stricken farmers with a five million dollar relief program. The report was issued Thursday by Attorney General Shepperd.

The report of the attorney general told Shivers: "It is our opinion that... we are authorized to mobilize and utilize the manifold services, equipment, supplies and facilities of existing state agencies and political subdivisions to assist in a drought relief program."

- 1. Cheap feed and seed would be available if agreements could be worked out with the A&M College system and soil conservation districts. 2. Transportation could be furnished by numerous state agencies. 3. Relief on freight rates is possible. 4. Counties and cities could engage in raimaking projects. 5. Relief is possible in the field of water conservation. 6. Loans on livestock to sharecroppers on long terms and low interest are possible by relaxation of present state bank restrictions. 7. Soil conservation districts might be able to make long term loans. 8. A voluntary moratorium program could be provided. 9. A cooperative system on voluntary price support could be worked out. 10. Surplus commodities may be distributed. 11. Certain taxes may be remitted.
