Buffalo Trail Scout Leaders To Attend Training Meeting

At least 100 Boy Scout leaders are expected at the Scout Ranch this weekend for a combined commissioner and scoutmaster training meeting sponsored by the Buffalo Trail Council.

The course, which opens at 10 a.m. Saturday and ends at 2 p.m. Sunday, is open to every scoutmaster, assistant scoutmaster and commissioner. Facilities, however, will be available at the Davis Mountain camp for those who wish to get an early start.

Wayne Miller, council commissioner from Odessa, will direct the commissioners' course, while Newell Hughes of Midland acts as dean.

Subjects to be studied will include how to plan and operate roundtables, unit visitation and analysis, planning programs using the "three assistants" literature and participation in demonstrations of Scouting skills such as axemanahp, firebuilding, cooking and the like.

Hughes will conduct all skill demonstrations. He recently graduated from the "Woodbadge" course at the National Boy Scout Ranch at Cimarron, N. M.

Included in the scoutmasters' course, directed by James Hill of Wink, will be actual organization of a scout camp, planning of activities for the two days, and carrying out the program. The course members will cook all of their own meals in the open, learning new methods of cooking and firebuilding. The group also will conduct an actual Scout Campfire Saturday night and will study nature and "living off the land."

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

It is a well-known fact that the average inexperienced player makes too many defensive signals. This gives declarer too much information as to the location of the high cards.

A certain type of experienced player commits the opposite error. He tries to deceive declarer by making misleading signals. If the declarer is a good enough player, however, these signals are just as informative.

When today's hand was played in a recent tournament, West had two chances to hold South to the minimum. West could hardly be blamed for opening the clubs instead of hearts, but his later "misleading" signal was a serious error.

West opened the queen of clubs and declarer took the ace and ruffed a club at once. Declarer got back to dummy with a trump, ruffed another club, returned to dummy with a second trump, and ruffed a club for the third time. This established dummy's last club and left South with only one trump.

South had to lead out his last trump to draw the trump held by East. East had already discarded a heart on the fourth round of clubs, and since East was surely discarding from length, it was surely the seven of hearts at this turn. Instead, West discarded the deuce of diamonds in the hope of giving declarer the impression that West's diamonds were worthless.

South might have gone astray without this message, but West's discard made the situation clear. South led a low diamond from his hand and promptly put up dummy's queen when West played low. He could next cash dummy's last club, discarding a heart from his hand. His next step was to let the opponents win a diamond trick.

The defenders naturally returned hearts to dummy's ace, whereupon declarer could take the ace of diamonds and cash the eight of diamonds for his 12th trick.

If West had saved all of his diamonds, South would have made only 11 tricks even if he had guessed the diamonds correctly.

Luxembourg Reminds Midland Traveler Of Hans Christian Anderson's Fairyland

By JUNE HAZLIP
Reporter-Telegram Special Correspondent

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY — Luxembourg is a fairyland of castles and tiny villages. Here we felt that at any minute we might turn a corner and run into a character from Hans Christian Anderson. Once one of the most highly fortified countries in Europe and thus the apple of many a conqueror's eye, the tiny Grand Duchy nestles between Germany, Belgium and France. Its total population is less than half of Houston.

Despite its operetta-like setting and sleepy air, this little country boasts one of the finest civic records in the world. There is no illiteracy and at last count only about half a dozen unemployed. Poverty just doesn't seem to exist.

Through the center of the town of Luxembourg runs the Petrusse River spanned by a huge viaduct. Vineyards, farms, castles and houses and churches cling to the sheer banks of the river and parts of a great protective wall built in the 1500's encircle the whole.

Near the Grand Ducal Palace is the American embassy of Pearl Meata of "Call Me Madame" fame. It occurred to us that Luxembourg and Lichtenbourg might have been twins, for they certainly look alike! Just outside the city of Luxembourg we visited the American Military Cemetery which contains about 5,000 graves, including that of General George S. Patton, Jr. The white marble crosses bearing the names, ranks and serial numbers of men who fought and died in Germany during World War II cut a wide swath across the green plain. Only one grave is set apart. At the head of the cemetery under a plain white wood cross lies General Patton, who asked to be buried here with the men he led. Down one side of the cemetery is a section not set apart, yet very different. On these crosses are the words "... Known but to God."

After our crossing on a German ship we were anxious to get to Germany and the things we had heard so much about for nine days. Our entry was through the very beautiful Moselle Valley, noted the world over for its wines. From the river banks to the hilltops above are the vineyards. They cover every square foot and climb straight up in steep terraces.

Not until we reached Coblenz did we find any sign of the havoc wrecked here just eight short years ago. The mountainous country side and fertile valleys were green and perfect, but in Coblenz the picture changed abruptly. The scenes we saw were straight out of the war newscasts.

In other countries we felt pity and sympathy at the sight of bombed out buildings; here we felt only curiosity and depression. Life goes on as usual and the city slowly is rebuilding. A few factories have been rebuilt and one or two areas for housing. Coblenz was the only city we visited in Germany which still remained much as it was at the close of the war.

Boarding a steamer in Coblenz we proceeded on down the Rhine to Rudesheim. A trip down the Rhine is like suddenly stepping back through time to let history catch up with you. On either side of us mountains of rock, forest and farmland stretched straight up. Ancient castles top the mountains and tiny feudal-style farms, villages and churches cluster about at the bottom.

We almost expected to see a fusil-lord and his fully armored escort of knights come charging down the winding roads from the castle towers to the village. In the farms and vineyards the people worked much as they must have centuries ago. The wooden plow drawn by horse or man still is in use.

Not Designed For Tourists

During our last afternoon in Germany we came across something tourist, particularly American. In a tiny town we met two German men and through a fellow tour member talked with them.

Masons by trade now, both men were among the first to join Hitler's legions. Nazi to the end, they told us how much better things had been for them during Hitler's regime.

The march on Poland was "easily explained" and for the first time we really realized just how well Hitler drilled his ideas into his people.

"Poor Germany... All the French people are together, all the Italians are together, all the Russians are together but the German speaking people have always been separated," they told us.

They liked the United States where they were "wonderfully treated" as prisoners of war.

Their hatred of Russia and communism emphasized what we found on board our German ship. More than 200 refugees from East Berlin now are living in this village. These people firmly believe that Germany never again will be united unless someone fights the Russians to regain East Germany.

Although the conversation treaded heavily on still touchy ground at times, the Germans answered our questions directly and without malice. They still are bitter and discouraged. These things stare openly out of their eyes, but basically they are the same friendly, happy people we met on the boat.

Red Ox Inn

In Heidelberg we visited the world famous university and had lunch in the old Red Ox Inn. At the university one of the most outstanding sights was the old students' prison.

In these rooms, fun loving university men were "imprisoned" for too much carousing. It became an honor to be sent to the prison and students made quite an event of it. After the sentence was passed the offender's fraternity brothers formed a parade and with much revelry escorted their friends to his temporary "home." Once there his life was made comfortable by the brothers on the outside. Beer and food were smuggled in by means of a rope from the courtyard below and with it came pain.

Although the days of the "Student Prince" at Heidelberg are long over, students still flock to the school from all over the world. At present the town also is headquarters for the United States European Command and personnel.

As a passing thought... we always had thought the "little leather pants" worn in Alpine movies were just for "local color." They are not... in Germany everyone who is anyone wears "Lederhosen" and two pair will last a boy all his life!

PLAYING STORE IS BIG BUSINESS—Bobby Ramage, 12-year-old grocery clerk, of Memphis, Tenn., not only pushes the groceries over the counter to his customers—he runs a complete grocery store. Owner Fred Warren is hospitalized, and Bobby, who says he never before had $10 of his own, transacts all the business for Warren. It's fine practice for arithmetic classes when school opens, but Warren fears he'll have to close the store when Bobby returns to school.

Daddy Ringtail

Daddy Ringtail And Silly Business

Mugwump, Monkey, the monkey boy, was playing out in the Great Forest with his cousin Cashwaller. Cashwaller looked enough like Mugwump to be his twin, you know. At last the boys were tired of their playing together. Down they sat on opposite sides of the Elephant Path. They decided to try to find something to quarrel about. They were wanting to fuss and fight, but how can you fuss and fight when there is nothing to fuss and fight about? Maybe it can be done, but it's very hard to do.

"An elephant is bigger than a lion," said Mugwump, thinking maybe cousin Cashwaller would say it wasn't so. Mugwump hoped to start a quarrel about which one was bigger. But cousin Cashwaller shook his head from side to side. He had nothing to quarrel about yet. "I know an elephant is bigger than a lion," he said. "Everybody knows it. We can't quarrel about that." Mugwump put his chin in his hands and thought and thought, trying to think of something for a quarrel. Cousin Cashwaller did the very same thing. Those boys were wanting to fuss and fight sure enough, you see.

"I know," Mugwump suddenly shouted. "A lion is bigger than a tiger, and do you want to say it isn't?"

Cousin Cashwaller didn't know. He wanted to think about it first, and so he thought and thought. Was a lion bigger than a tiger? Really? Cousin Cashwaller decided yes, the lion was really bigger. They would have to find another something to fuss and fight about.

Ah me, unhappy day for both the boys, it seemed. There was simply nothing to quarrel about. Both of them tried to think some more, and they thought and thought as hard as they could until they did find something to quarrel about. They quarreled and fussed and fought. I don't remember what their trouble was. I don't know what they quarreled about, but it really was nothing important, and so they were silly to fuss and fight or say even one unkind word. But everything about a quarrel is silly, and the day it happens is silly too. Happy day to you at your house, and to the folks next door!

FATHERS OF FLIGHT—The Wright Brothers—(4)

Wilbur Wright wanted to give up the flying experiments after the discouraging 1901 and 1902 tests. But Orville, watching gulls fly, persuaded his brother to continue, using tricks of nature's feathered flyers.

At this time the Wrights thought of flying only as a rather costly sport. "It was something to spend money on, just as a man spends for golf, with no idea of making it pay," Wilbur Wright said. Fifty years later airplane-building was to be the second biggest manufacturing employer, surpassed only by the auto industry.

In our earlier frames, even after we had spent months of study, we were unable to get the airplane to fly. It was only a half century later that million Americans were making their night flights on commercial domestic airlines.

FBI Fraud Probers Make More Arrests

WASHINGTON—(AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Wednesday there was an alarming increase last year in attempted frauds against the government. His agents, he said, had been called upon to investigate 1,620 such cases during the 12 months ending June 30. Prosecutions resulting from these inquiries resulted in 202 convictions, up 96 from the previous fiscal year. The savings and recoveries resulting from the investigations amounted to about $3,243,000.

COMIN' OUTA IRON CURTAIN CHUTE NO. 1—

Communists Get To Heart Of Things In New 'Hate Texas' Propaganda Idea

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
BERLIN—(AP)—The Communist hate parade is about to get a new No. 1 refrain—Texas. It's rapidly overtaking the old Red whipping boy—"gangster Chicago." Kids in Communist-ruled East Germany are persecuted and even ostracized if they wear Texas shirts and cowboy hats. Anything plaid and loud, by the way, is a Texas shirt. Any rowdiness by American occupation troops is called "typical Texas stuff." American Western movies are condemned as "Texas Wild West barbarism." "Civilized World Revolts Against Wild West Films," headlines the Communist-edited National Zeitung. "Europe Boycotts Hollywood's Shameful Product." The article went on to say that many innocent kids the world over had been misled down the path of crime through "Texas films." It said not a word about how right and justice always triumph and how true love invariably wins the day in Western movies. The real tipoff on this Communist gripe is that they don't dare show a Hollywood Western for the East German public. If they did, they'd probably have a stampede like the rush for free American food parcels in Berlin. One of the most ridiculous—yet tragic—things, is the Communist campaign against the "Texas shirt"—popularized by Americans and ex-occupation civilians. German clothing manufacturers have copied the shirts, along with blue jeans, and any German kid loves them as much as American teenagers. The "Texas shirt" is a particular target of Die Junge Welt (Young World), newspaper of the Communist Free German Youth (FDJ). This paper wants young Germans to be "just like our Soviet brothers—good activists, good collectivists, good tractorists." It roundly condemns the "painted cowboy shirt" as the "uniform of terrorists and Fascist provocateurs." After the June 17 revolt and strikes, police arrested thousands of East German anti-Communists. Some were executed and others sentenced to long jail terms. Among the victims were youths who fought Russian tanks with sticks and stones. Die Junge Welt helped along this witchhunt by claiming that a series of confessions had been wrung from youngsters who like the American styles. It charged that they were "seduced on the path of Fascist crime by running around in these monkey shirts."

Recent Rains Help Range Feed Picture

AUSTIN—(AP)—Rains last week did the most effective job to date of breaking the extended Texas drought, but more are needed to overcome deficiencies, the U. S. Department of Agriculture said Wednesday. The weekly crop report said growing crops, range and pasture grasses and soil moisture for 1954 wheat seedings got a further boost in Low Rolling Plains and Northern High Plains areas. Showers were lighter and more widely scattered in South High Plains counties. The Edwards Plateau and extreme South Texas received much needed relief. The rains interrupted harvesting of cotton and sorghums. "Range and pasture feed prospects were much improved in most of the state. Exceptions were in some Western, South High Plains and Coastal Bend counties. Prospects for green feed are brighter, but feeding will continue in most areas until the badly depleted ranges can supply sufficient grazing."

Mystery Train Puffs Darkly Inside Iron Curtain Of Fear-Filled Balkans

Editor's Note—The Red Rumanian government recently permitted visits to that hitherto forbidden Balkan land by four American correspondents. This is another account by The Associated Press chief of bureau in Vienna.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUCHAREST—(AP)—The Airberg-Orient Express, Europe's train of international mystery and intrigue, today has become more sinister than ever.

Midland Resident Injured In Round-Up

Joseph S. Doakes, long-time resident of Midland, suffered minor injuries in the round-up this week. Doctors said his condition was not serious. Doakes' injuries were described as a series of bruises, contusions, and lacerations received when he stumbled over a lawnmower.

all that. International agents and spies use other means than the famous train to travel in and out of east Europe.

Mysterious Passengers
The train's new sinister nature has another character. As it crosses the Iron Curtain four times a week on its 1,000-mile run from capitalist Paris to Communist Bucharest, it takes on all the cold bleakness and concealed terror of a Red police state.

24 Hours Of Hunger
Meanwhile, additional cars are added and a dining car that goes only a few miles and then leaves you 24 hours without food unless you thoughtfully brought along sandwiches.

Crews Are Changed
Austrian conductors say that once in a while a Western businessman bound on a questionable deal with the East gets on. Then there are Western Communists, sneaking in and out of East Europe with Hungarian visas stamped on pieces of paper, instead of in their passports, so their governments will not know.

Watches Constantly
Hungarian border guards, tommy guns ready, post themselves at each car. Customs officials begin their search. They unscrow the lightbulbs, look behind mirrors, under seats and in every closet. Nobody knows what they are looking for. Baggage—except for diplomats, Communists and favored guests—is examined minutely. Passport officials take away your documents and the train waits four hours before you get them back.

Occasionally, there are "Peter Lorre" types whom the conductors guess to be Eastern Communists returning from making secret contacts in the West. But they are not many.

Wired For Sound
Western diplomats here rarely dare to hold an important conversation except by writing it down and then burning it. Some 85 concealed listening devices recently were found in the legations and homes of Western diplomats. Some are no bigger than a button and have no wires.

Every Westerner is followed and watched by a huge network of spies and informers. There is so much secret terror, so many informers and so much lack of faith that even frantic Communists go in two's and three's when they speak with a Westerner. Three "interpreters" assigned to watch you were constantly worried if they were left alone with us. Each apparently wished to be sure that nobody suspected him of telling too much.

Eyes In Back Of Head
A Russian officer, however, gets off and wanders around without Hungarians or Romanians disturbing him.

At Curtail, on the Romanian side, an armed guard stands high on a wooden watchtower—a symbol of Rumanian police state control far stricter, more all-embracing than can be found anywhere in East Europe outside of Russia.

To be a Western diplomat at the end of the line, in Bucharest, you need a plentiful supply of matches. If you are a Romanian, you need eyes in the back of your head.

Smuggled Lover From Italy Goes Astray, Gets The Boot

LONDON—(AP)—A British wife told a court here how she dressed her young Italian lover as her 12-year-old daughter to smuggle him into England.

Then, she said, he started running after other women so she told the police.

Leono Cireza, 31, pleaded guilty to breaking the alien law when he entered Britain.

Barbara Manckelton, 43, pleaded guilty to harboring him here. Mrs. Manckelton said she met Cireza when he was a prisoner of war in Britain.

She visited him in Italy in 1947 and 1948; and in 1949 they decided to return together. She has a passport for her daughter. When they got to Turin, said Mrs. Manckelton, Cireza dressed as a woman and traveled that way to Calais.

She put a traveling rug over his head and told anyone who asked that he was her daughter and that she was sick. Magistrate Geoffrey Raphael ordered Cireza to await an extradition hearing and fined Mrs. Manckelton $70.

Cooking Food Thoroughly Reduces Tapeworm Danger

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

"Please discuss worms in children," writes Mrs. M. T. "I know a three-year-old child who passes worms about 12 inches long and as big around as a pencil. What causes them? What kind are they and what can you do for them?"

This is a large order requested by Mrs. T. There are many kinds of parasites, or "worms," which can become established in the digestive tract of children—and grown-ups too—and almost all of them are caused by swallowing the eggs, or larvae, of the parasites in contaminated food.

It is, however, impossible to tell which particular kind of parasite is present in the three-year-old child to whom Mrs. T. refers, since the exact nature can only be determined by examining it with a magnifying glass of some kind or a microscope.

All of these intestinal worms are really small animals. Many, if not most of them, can live only part of their lives in a human body, and spend the rest of the time in varying forms in the ground, in the bodies of lower animals, or elsewhere.

Perhaps the most likely possibility in the child mentioned by Mrs. T. is a tapeworm, of which there are several varieties. This is likely to be somewhat flattened rather than round, but parasites of this family are widespread throughout the world and have to be considered if worms are expelled with the waste or a child is not doing well for some not-too-obvious reason.

Tapeworms enter the body in food which is contaminated and insufficiently cooked to destroy the parasites. In some cases, like that of the beef tapeworm, both the fully grown form of the parasite and the larva or young form, can become established in the human intestinal passageways.

The tapeworm has a head which hooks onto the wall of the intestines and then grows "sections" which form a sort of tail. The particular kind of parasite can be identified by finding these sections—or the eggs—in the waste. They have characteristic and different appearances when viewed under the microscope.

Drugs Poison Worm

So far as treatment is concerned the problem is to loosen the head and get rid of it. This involves poisoning the parasite without poisoning the person. It is a delicate job, but there are several drugs which do this fairly well though they may have to be given more than once. Sometimes one drug has to be substituted for another.

Part of the trouble which people have in ridding themselves of tapeworms undoubtedly comes from the fact that they reinfest themselves or get some parasites from other members of the household. Careful washing of the hands and sanitary methods of handling and cooking the food will reduce this danger.

For a party lunch, roll butter balls in poppy or caraway seeds and serve with crunchy hot rolls.

A total of 58 new locations for petroleum explorations in the Midland district were reported to the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas during the last week. Those projects were scattered among 18 West Texas Counties.

Included in the list were four wildcats.

The wildcat applications were distributed one to each of Garza, Howard, Terry and Winkler Counties.

Scurry County received nine new field locations and Andrews reported eight. Seven new drill sites were established in Pecos County.

Five new test sites were staked in each of Garza and Reagan Counties and three in each of Ector and Ward Counties.

Borden, Dawson, Gaines and Winkler Counties each gained two new explorers.

The remaining new test sites were divided one each among Hockley, Howard, Kent, Loving, Upton and Yoakum Counties.

Wartime Valor Shows Color Of GI's Flesh Not Important

By RELMAN MORIN
NEW YORK—There was a story in the papers the other day that set me thinking about that painfully familiar word, "minorities."

An American sergeant, freed in Korea, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. This is America's highest military decoration, and as you might expect, the citation reads: "His indomitable heroism and consummate devotion to duty reflect the utmost glory on himself and uphold the highest traditions of the military service."

The sergeant's name is Hiroshi Miyamura. Nobody will ever know how many guys named Smith, Jones, Brown, McLeod and O'Rourke alive today because he stayed behind, alone, blasting with a machinegun.

Nor can we ever estimate how much this country owes the 442nd Regimental Combat Team — although the Army tried by hanging more combat medals, per man, on that outfit than any other in the last war. It was composed exclusively of American-born Japanese. That's the good side of the picture. But there is another.

What Might Have Been
 How many potential medal of honor winners, how many artists and scientists, how many plain good citizens, have been lost to America because the concept of minorities still persists? What does it cost us, every day, to set people apart by reason of race or color?

Here is one case:
 During the last war, this writer was a prisoner of the Japanese for about a year. There was an investigation on charges of espionage.

The interpreter was a bright young fellow who spoke perfect English. One day, he took a ferocious risk. He told me he was an American, born in California. Two of his brothers were then serving in the American army. He had been impressed into the Japanese army.

Message For Folks
 "If you ever get home," he said, "I wish you'd deliver a message to my family. Tell them I'd like to be with my brothers—in the U. S. Army."

And how did he happen to be in the wrong uniform?
 "You come from California," he said. "You remember how it was."

I knew what he meant. There were the days of the "yellow peril," the Japanese "picture brides," and all the weird nonsense about how "the Japs" were all spies and planning to take over the Los Angeles city hall any minute now.

The fact that the Japanese were practically model citizens mattered not at all.

'No Use Trying'
 That didn't help much in those days. You see, the configuration of their eyes was different from ours.

"Finally, I couldn't take it any more," he said. "Especially in high school, I felt as though I didn't belong. I thought, 'Okay, if I'm not an American, there's no use trying to be one.'"

So he left this country, went to Japan, got a job. When the war came, the Japanese army grabbed him. He was especially useful because of his language—and there was nothing he could do about it.

"I'm sorry now," he said. "I guess I was pretty dumb."
 Who knows? He might have been another Sergeant Miyamura.

Spiced Peaches Spark Chicken

FRENCH FRIED CHICKEN served with spiced peaches and corn on the cob makes a good dinner the way it's served down South.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
 NEA Food and Markets Editor

Fried chicken with spiced Elberta peaches—there's a wonderful combination. Had it recently in the green dining room of the cool Cleveland Hotel in Spartanburg, S. C., center of the fresh-peach country.

Here's our own French fried chicken recipe. The pickled peach recipe comes from Bessie Grier, one of that gracious little city's better cooks.

French Fried Chicken
 Six slices enriched yeast-raised bread, 6 chicken parts (legs and breasts), salt and pepper, 1 1/4 cup flour, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon salad oil, 2 tablespoons milk.

Let bread dry out until hard. Cut off crusts and grate. Sift crumbs through strainer to remove any coarse pieces. Remove skin from chicken parts. Sprinkle parts with salt and pepper. Roll in flour. Mix together egg, salad oil and milk.

Dip floured chicken in egg mixture. Finally, roll chicken in the fine dry bread crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat (365 deg. F.), turning once, until golden brown.

Peach Sweet Pickle
 One peck peaches (2 gallons), 3 quarts sugar (5 pounds), 1 quart vinegar, 1 1/2 box stick cinnamon, 1 tablespoon cloves.

Bring syrup to boil, then drop in peaches a few at a time. Cook until soft and put in jars. Cook syrup until thick and cover fruit. Seal while hot.

 Dinner consisted of: melon cup with fresh mint, then the fried chicken and spiced peaches, Southern spoon bread, mixed green salad, French dressing, fresh fruit bowl (grapes, peaches, plums and apricots), cheese and crackers.

TOO OLD AND YET TOO YOUNG— Infant Teaches Self, Others In Own Independent Manner

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—When you try to educate a child it is hard to say who learns most—you or the child.

"Little Jughead," a tiny miss who came to our house recently for what we hope is a permanent visit, is right at the formative stage—too old to be kept in ignorance, but too young for college.

She is two months old. Operating on the theory that a girl can't start learning too soon, I have begun her formal education already.

The first thing I am teaching her are music and international affairs. I do this by playing the phonograph and reading her the newspaper.

Finer Things Of Life
 "You are positively crazy, Rover," said my wife, Frances. She has the feminine idea that just because a baby can't walk or talk it can't appreciate the finer things of life—like culture, and all that stuff.

I know better. Take music. Little Jughead and I are having a wonderful time exploring the world of music. She likes Beethoven, but he puts me to sleep. When I play I play Haydn, we both fall asleep. Mozart we both love.

Reading the newspaper to Little Jughead is a problem.

We both like the sports page. She gets restless when I try to read the comics. I like them, but they bore her to angry squalls so I read them real fast.

She Knows Better
 Nothing contents her more than the editorial page, which I sometimes find heavy going. The longer and duller the editorial the better she likes it. She lies there smiling, gnawing her hand with her gums, and nodding thoughtfully.

She is also keenly interested in foreign affairs, and really knows more about them than I do. Some time ago I read her about the Shah of Iran flying to Rome.

"How do you like that, kid?" I said. "I guess the Shah's had it. Old Mossadegh kicked him out to stay, eh?"

Little Jughead shook her head violently. She didn't agree.

Sure enough, a few days later old Mossadegh got bounced and the Shah started home. When I read that to Little Jughead, she leered up triumphantly, smug as any woman whom time has proved right.

One thing worries me about our mutual cultural program. The last couple of days she hasn't been listening to the phonograph or my newspaper reading. Just lies there on the floor flexing her leg muscles and doing pushups.

Maybe it's time for me to buy her a glove and a bat. What if Little Jughead doesn't want to become an intellectual. We could use a good lady softball pitcher in the family.
