One Year of NRA.

Not all of the tremendous gains of the past year can be attributed to NRA, of course. It is only a part of the President's recovery machine.

But NRA has been the main factor working toward restoration of a proper balance between the share of labor and the share of capital in the profits of industry.

Since the President signed the National Recovery Act last June, NRA has added billions of dollars to the industrial pay rolls of the Nation.

It has found jobs for at least 3,000,000 workers.

It has wiped out the evils of child labor.

It has shortened working hours. And it has bettered working conditions.

Such reforms are so great, the changes are so sweeping that it is difficult to recall fully the depths of depression from which they have dragged us.

They have transformed a nation—in a year.

The material benefits of NRA are themselves enough to justify its existence. But there are others.

Most important is establishment of the principle that labor has equal rights with industry—that industry cannot thrive unless labor also thrives.

NRA has made the Nation realize that prosperity of a nation depends upon the well-being of its workers. It has taught industry that it has obligations to labor.

It has shown that industries cannot work independently and selfishly for their own benefit. That every industry must sell to the workers in other industries if it is to survive.

That wages must be high enough to distribute purchasing power to all the people.

With concentration on the essential elements of NRA—higher wages, shorter hours, and better working conditions—there will be even further gains.

Proud today, NRA should be even prouder upon its second anniversary. — From Philadelphia Record, June 17,

When You're Dead.

It seems the deuce how the folks will weep as you lie in your coffin so fast asleep, and sing of your goodness in countless ways while the parson preaches and talks and prays. The queer how the public will eulogize and laud you up to the vaulted skies, when the undertaker has called your bluff and squirted you full of embalming stuff. But when you walked on the earth, I swear, you were nothing more than a plodder there, and you'd have fainted or dropped down dead at any praise that the public said. It's only when you're a lifeless mummy that the hapless public will sing to the deuce. — Los Angeles Herald

Shelby's Old Iron Brigades.

From his headquarters at Ozark, Ark., General Hindman sent Lieutenant Kearney to organize three Missouri regiments into one Missouri cavalry brigade. Four miles from Newton, Mo., the work of organization commenced, and at an election the Fayette County regiment elected Shelby as colonel, Gordon lieutenant colonel and Kerley major. The Jackson County regiment elected Hayes as colonel, Jeans lieutenant colonel and Gilray major; and the Southwest Missouri regiment elected Coffee colonel, Hooper lieutenant colonel and Nichols major. Thus the organization was completed and Colonel Shelby assumed command of that immortal brigade which carried its into a hundred desperate conflicts and poured out its blood like water from the Missouri to the Rio Grande.

Those three regiments were welded into a compact mass of dauntless men and were led by a young soldier whose name, then unknown, burst afterward into a brilliant light of glory. The old iron brigade never faltered in a charge when his clear voice urged it on. Many times naked naked, destitute, fighting, freezing, starving, and surrounded, it never surrendered; surprised, it never scattered. Its iron ranks were rent fearfully in many rugged fights the graves of its bravest heap the earth from Missouri to Mexico. Twice it saved a beaten army from destruction, standing like a living wall between pursuer and pursued. In its long and bloody career it fought Germans, Indians, Negroes, ironclads, alligators, rattlesnake fever, smallpox, starvation and wintry blasts. But we still hold the banner of the Bars proudly and defiantly to the breeze and when Kirby Smith surrendered Trans-Mississippi Department and the command separated at Gorsicana, Te., five hundred officers and men still held our old battleflag to the breeze and marched to Mexico. We buried our flag and Shelby's plume in the waters of the Rio Grande.

After the destruction of the Queen City, an ironclad of 13 guns, which took all the fight out of the Tyler, at Clarendon, Ark. Shelby sent Capt. Langhorne south toward Searcy to look after a Federal regiment from Little Rock, and was met near Searcy. The Federal regiment was the 12th Missouri, took but few prisoners. Although this made but little difference, there were four squadrons of Federals, and Langhorne, with 30 men, drove them back upon their main body killing 13 and capturing seven. Langhorne had to give ground, but it took a regiment to make him do it, and then he got three more and brought all ten of them to Shelby's camp at Jacksonport, Ark., losing only one man, his junior second lieutenant, Columbus, White, wounded and captured.

A week after Langhorne's foray, the 10th Illinois Cavalry came gayly up to Searcy, as it had been in the habit of doing for some time before Shelby arrived in the neighborhood, and sent a challenge for any regiment in Shelby's Brigade to come down and fight. The poor fellows were brave enough, but so unwise and so little used to warfare, it was the simplest and easiest thing on earth to be adjusted. One heavy night's march and no more was needed. At early daylight, and wholly unlooked for and terrible as a destroyer, we burst full upon the unwatched camp of the 10th Illinois. The four sleepy guards died at their posts like men, and other comrades, wrapped in their blankets, made scarcely any resistance, and it was so feeble that it called down destruction. Nearly every man, horse, gun, and pistol fell into our hands. It was one of the most complete surprises and captures of the war, and the poor Illinois men looked woebegone two days afterwards when they were marched under guard into Jacksonport, Ark.

The surprise gave the Federal commander at Duvall's Bluff the idea that his detachment had been betrayed by some of the citizens of the town of Searcy, and he threatened them with extermination, conflagration and many other horrible things, General Shelby informed him very coolly that "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" would be demanded for every injury inflicted upon those guiltless people. This threat had the desired effect, and Searcy escaped its promised fate.

Some time I may write how we surprised and captured the ironclad Queen City and took all of the fight out of the Tyler at Clarendon, Ark., I would like to hear from any old comrades who were with us when we accomplished that feat. — Joseph Pollock, Shirley, Ark., in Confederate Veteran.

On Texas Farms.

Many people think it funny that farmers and county agents work for bigger yields per acre or per animal at the very time that the government seeks to remove surpluses through reduction programs. Yet this is very logical, because big yields usually go hand in hand with efficient farming and profits. Low production per acre or per animal is unprofitable at all price levels [except] abnormally high ones. Acreage reduction is the cheapest way to reduce production. Poor farming is the most expensive method. Drouth is the most cruel method.

Six or more trench silos are to be dug in Waller county this year because Roy Chapman fed 392 head of cattle for market last season using for roughness 120 tons of seeded ribbon cane buried in a trench 120 feet long according to A and M College plans.

If you have extra good tomatoes it will be cheaper to save seed from your own crop than to buy it next spring, says J. F. Rosborough, extension horticulturist. Cut the best specimens in half, place in a barrel half full of water, and when the pulp separates, sours and comes to the top, skim off the pulp and scoop out the seed from the bottom of the barrel. Rinse and dry in the shade. Store in tight containers. One bushel of tomatoes will furnish enough seed for one acre.

Experiments in the culture of wild dewberries have proven profitable to Mrs. J. A. Turner-Barker Home Demonstration member in Harris county. She planted one row of wild berries in her garden last year and gathered enough in early season to can six gallons. She is putting out two more rows,

Austin, July 3—"Jobs for the many thousands of unemployed and rehabilitation of the other thousands on Texas relief rolls can be accomplished on a permanent scale only through the adoption of a recovery program in this State that provides an easy available credit and retains the profits of our natural wealth as a buying power for the people of Texas," Tom F. Hunter, of Wichita Falls, candidate for governor, declared here in outlining his program for a State recovery.

"In order to place money into circulation to finance employment in Texas, credit must be restored and the uncounted millions now being taken out of this State annually by the great special combines, never to return, must be kept here. Our great president is exerting every effort to bring about a recovery in this nation and it is the duty of the state and every county, city and town within the state to augment the national plan with recovery programs of their own.

"In order to restore an easy available credit it is necessary that the unfair tax burden now resting on real estate be relieved. While real estate bears 77 per cent of the ad valorem tax burden it brings us about 15 per cent of our income. The other 85 per cent of values in this state, representing income from sources other than real estate, is bearing only 23 per cent as contrast to real estate's load. A blended tax plan must be adopted in order that the tax burden may be reallocated, that all pay in proportion to their ability and that the interests which have been dodging their fair share of the taxes may be reached. An easy available credit cannot be restored until real estate, our basic wealth, is placed back on a paying basis. As long as it is cheaper to rent than to own a property or a home the safety of our state is endangered. Alone, of all candidates in the race, I am offering a plan to relieve this unfair burden on real estate. The other five known candidates all declared that they will not look to any tax sources, saying in effect that they will permit real estate to continue to bear its unjust share of the load. They offer no program which holds out any hope of jobs, or promise of rehabilitation.

The Fox Who Had Lost His Tail.

A fox caught in a trap escaped with the loss of his brush. Thereafter feeling his life a burden through the ridicule to which he was exposed, he schemed to bring all other foxes into like condition with himself, that in the common loss he might better conceal his own deprivations. He assembled a good many foxes and publicly advised them to cut off their tails, saying they would not only look much better without them, but would get rid of the weight of the brush, which was a very great inconvenience. But one of them interrupting him said: "If you had not yourself lost your tail, my friend, you would not thus counsel us." — Aesop's Fables.

Napoleon's Name.

A Greek scholar has called attention to a very curious coincidence about the name of Napoleon. If you take away the first letter of his name, you have "apoleon;" take away the first letter of that word, and you have "poleon;" do this successively down to the last syllable, and you have "leon," "eon" and "on." Put these several words together in this order, Napoleon on oleon leon eon poleon poleon, and you have a Greek phrase the literal translation of which is "Napoleon the lion of peoples, went about destroying cities." — Unidentified.

Except in the larger cities, electric service was rarely satisfactory before long-distance transmission of electric power was perfected.

Small local plants serving single communities generally lack the variety and volume of demand which enables a larger system, serving a wide area, to operate efficiently.

Not can small, isolated plants meet sudden new demands for more power nearly as readily as the larger system.

The transmission line can deliver larger amounts of power at once without the delay of installing additional equipment. Thus it clears the road for industrial growth.

The present-day industrial progress of small communities is based in a large measure on the ample and economical power supply which resulted when the transmission systems replaced small local plants throughout the nation.

With 2,608 miles of transmission lines, the West Texas Utilities stands ready to render satisfactory service to 159 prosperous cities, towns and communities throughout West Texas—"The Land of Opportunity."

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Preserving Canadian Fish.
In compliance with the new Canadian regulations, American fishermen must now obtain licenses, and the rule limiting the day's catch to eight black bass to a fisherman will be rigorously enforced. In the Bay of Quinte, Ontario, a small cruiser is to be duty in enforcing the laws. It is said that some yachts in past seasons took from 80 to 150 bass in a day's fishing.

Working Girls' Vacations
It is said that 4,784 out of the 308,000 working girls in New York get vacations through churches, social organizations and societies.

Old Settlers' Reunion Here August 2.

At a meeting held at the County Court room last Monday in San Angelo, Frank C. Van Horn was elected temporary chairman and Mrs. W. W. Carson was selected as secretary.

A collection was taken up among these present to buy about 300 post cards to mail to old settlers in Tom Green and surrounding counties asking them to be present at the meeting here on August 2.

This organization is only temporary as permanent officers will be named at the reunion.

It was thought best to have the reunion only one day, and if this meeting wanted it to last 2 or 3 days they could vote on it Aug. 2nd.

The question of the age of old settlers will be taken up also.

Those who were present at this meeting Monday were: Measmes Chas. B. Metcalfe and W. W. Carson of San Angelo, John P. Lee of Tankersly, Frank Van Court, Arch Benge, Tom Morgan, Mr. Massey of San Angelo and Frank C. Van Horn of Christoval.

In a letter to the Standard-Times Ira G. Yates expressed his pleasure at the action of the committee of pioneers in arranging for the Old Settlers Reunion at Christoval Thursday, Aug. 2. He suggested the appointment of Fayette Tankersly, Mrs. C. A. Broome and Will B. Hunter to plan the entertainment. He says: "I feel proud that I am honored with my name being on the general committee."

Going into the final stretch of the congressional campaign, Culberson Deal, assured of a large following in the new 21st district, is stressing his stand on issues vital to agricultural interests.

He has already covered the large 27-county district personally and will continue his intensive "hand-to-hand" campaign for these seats in congress between now and the July 28th primary election.

Deal, well known for his work in behalf of farmers and ranchmen of the district, is and has always been, a staunch supporter of President Roosevelt.

The candidate believes that the battles of the ranch and farm interests in West Texas may be fought as much before the AAA and FCA in Washington as before Congress in practical ways that will mean dollars and cents to this district.

These governmental facilities today are administering direct to the people, he has been telling audiences in the district, and the next congressman needs to know how to contact them.

For a profitable program, he said, he would work for a reduction in the 2 percent commission charge allowed eastern dealers on consigned government wools and would seek to abolish the bonding system of foreign imports which are landed in the United States duty free.

MRS. ADA DOUTHIT.

Comanche, July 3.—At least 10 bushels more oats will be made on the 40 acre field of Tom Homsley of Comanche county than would have been made if the land had not been terraced, according to an estimate made for the county agent.

He also states that he finds that the road water is an aid to his place for he has well run and constructed terraces that catch the road water and spread it over a large flat area and let it remain until a good bottom season is stored up.

"A large number of grain men who have gone over the oats say that they will make at least 15 to 20 bushels average per acre, and along where the extra road water was spread they will make from 80 to 90 bushels per acre," Mr. Homsley adds.

With over 50 hogs in cure in the vaults of the ice plant in Colorado, Mitchell county farmers are again stepping to the front in the summer curing of pork. As last year, they are using "The A and M Way" to kill, cure and cure.

Texas Industrial Activities

The Woodward Manufacturing Co., Austin, which used to manufacture truck bodies, for the past several years has been making bedroom furniture exclusively and is meeting a very fair demand for its excellent products from dealers over the Southwest.

Development of East Texas iron ore deposits is again being talked. Some of the handicaps to development have been disposed of, and others ultimately will be. The ore exists in rich and easily mined deposits.

Bell Rubber Co., Dallas, formerly known as the I. C. Bell Manufacturing Co., has developed a synthetic rubber known to the trade as "gilek," and manufactures oil field equipment rubber specialties of several types.

The Trucking Code.

Austin, June 30 — National Code Authority at Washington has notified the Texas code authority to certify to them all truck operators for hire who fail to register under the trucking code during this week, according to Col. Harry Stewart, chairman of the Texas authority today. After June 13 the full penalties of the National Recovery Act will apply to any operator of a truck for hire whose truck is not equipped with the insignia of the trucking code furnished only to those who register.

"The National Recovery Administration estimated at the time the trucking code was approved that it was capable of absorbing 11 percent of the reemployment expected under the entire national recovery program," said Colonel Stewart, "except in those states where restrictive tonnage laws tend to prevent the normal use of this transportation agency."

"According to Mr. Ted Rogers, chairman of the national code authority, who was in Dallas on a tour of some of the principal cities of the country," continued Colonel Stewart, "it is evident that the administrator for national recovery is determined to enforce the trucking code. It is the biggest code of all in its potential employment."

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chili Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chili Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any store.
