At, nightfall Saturday, San Angelo had taken on a coat of pure white, the thermometer had dropped to within 18 degrees of the zero point, and the people generally realized that the winter's icy grasp had them good and plenty. Overcoats offered no relief from the frigid atmosphere and piercing wind; only a red hot stove could do that. The old-timers say this cold snap breaks all previous records for snow, sleet and cold. Whether it does or not, it at least afforded the opportunity for that: "Let's see, I can recall worse weather, etc."

What I did say to the senate and house committees was that there were certain counties in West Texas, and particularly in Southwest Texas, in which, because of local conditions, the state could not reasonably expect to obtain justice in a suit brought in the district court there for recovery of public school lands because of the failure of the purchaser from the state to comply with the conditions of his purchase relative to settlement and three years' occupancy; and every one who is at all conversant with the facts knows that this is true.

May Choose a Tutor for One Son, But

Can't Escort Others From School. Paris, Dec. 18.-Count Bonit de Castellane, through his counsel, Maitre Bonnet, has made an application in the First Chamber of the Civil Tribunal for a final judgment relative to the selection of a tutor for his son, Jay.

The Count asked, in view of the decision for the Princess de Sagan, the mother, handed down eight days ago. that M. Boulet must be appointed, that if this choice is not ratified by the court the Princess shall choose another preceptor, who is to be subject to the Castellane agreement. The agreement is that the child shall receive instruction according to his age which shall enable him to recover the lost time in school attendance.

The Count in his application asked that every eight or fifteen days the tutor should be ordered to go and see him Count Boni) in order that he might be kept informed of the work of the child. The Count also demanded the right for himself or his mother, the Marquise de Castellane to take or conduct or have conducted from the lycee the two eldest boys on the days that they are allowed to go out.

Speaking for the Princess de Sagan, M. Clemenceau, her counsel, said that ne was prepared to accept the demand of the Count relative to the choice of M. Boulet as a tutor for Jay, but he opposed formally the demand that the father of the boy or his grandmother should take the children from the lycee on their days out. He declared that this would be contrary to the right of custody given to their mother and Winter Goods In Many Colors and Varied Styles. The new fall and winter goods have the old time body and richness, and the thin and shadowy stuffs are relegated to that limbo of out of style things. The always rich and fine silk warp henriettas are to be seen in the most elegant of new tailored suits, the stately folds which have always been the distinguishing trait of this material lending a grace not found in all goods. This is produced in black only, and, being half silk and half pure Australian wool, it has all the beauty of silk and the body of the wool, and it is woven "dead fine." Nothing falls, in more elegant and graceful lines.

I saw some lovely new things in colors, Leading them, I think, is the shantung royal, a soft and pliable material, whether of all silk or half silk it is difficult to say, but the soft richness of the ground of the goods is enhanced by broken lines in quite thick cording. This is extremely sumptious and makes up beautifully, particularly for dresses for ceremonious occasions. It has the richness of silk with the added heavy cord. This is in all, the season's colors and is desirable in any.

The standard tussah royal, which is very dressy material with the gloss of the finest silk and the draping qualities of wool, is really made of mobair and wool combined. It is made in diagonal, in wide and narrow wales, and has also been produced in the well liked bedford cord, with the cords running up and down instead of across as before. There is also a tussah royal made with regular ottoman cords running across every sixteenth of an inch. This makes the whote a thing of beauty, particularly when it is in soft, delicate grays or one of the exquisite new tints of the season. The ottoman royal is rich and costly enough to make it desirable to those who think nothing is good enough for them unless it is expensive, and yet any woman who can make her own gowns will find that she can easily afford it. It is the making that costs.

Among the other new and well proved materials for this season one finds brilliantine in more different varieties than the famous pickles, all with a new softness instead of the harsh cloth of other days and in all of the season's colors. Prunella cloth 1s still one of the good values; so are the satin faced cloths, the wool batistes, solils and siciliennes. Broad-cloths are as fashionable as before. In these days of competition every

and so it has come about that many of the woolen goods have been treated in a manner to make them shower proof, if not fully waterproof. Black crape for mourning and for trimming mourning goods is treated in this way.

The soft and dainty ottoman royal was employed to develop the elegant evening gown illustrated. The ground and cord being of the same shade of pearl gray, the whole is beautiful. A gown made of this needs little ornamentation. In this case none is used save a band of embroidery done on soft carmine velvet in silk of a shade of pale pink which harmonizes entirely. Kimono sleeves have not altogether gone out, as may be seen. A band of the velvet is drawn down the left side of the dress, defining in this way the outline of the figure. Soft cash- Do You Use Them? Ben Huston could dive deeper into questions and draw out more meat than any man I ever knew. He had a theory for everything and proved or disproved his theories by experiments.

When Huston became engaged he determined to test the good nature of the girl he was to marry. He would do things to ruffle her temper. If she showed self control he would complete the contract; if she gave way before his prodding it would indicate that she had not the equanimity necessary to bear the greater irritating trials of married life, and he would break the engagement.

Now, I am a bit of an experimenter myself-that is, when I can experiment on others. The failures of my acquaintances do not distress me nearly so much as my own. Ben and I were found her a friend indeed. For a week bosom friends. Lucy Benedict, his the mother remained ill—so Lucy said fancee, was my own cousin. The girl was very religious and wished to go to prayer meeting. Would "the dear, good boy" take her and on returning entertain her till after midnight? Lucy's father was out of town and would not return till 2 a. m. She did not dare be left with her mother without a man in the house. Ben submitted ungracefully, took the friend to the prayer meeting and was insufferably bored with her till 11 o'clock, when she went to bed. He remained alone in the drawing room till 2:45 in the morning, when the father arrived, his train having been late. Lucy came down to kiss Ben good night. He managed to get out of the house without a burst of temper, but on the street barely escaped being taken in by a policeman for talking to himself incoherently, his words interspersed with expletives.

I never knew whether Lucy asked her friend to visit her especially to use her in her tests or not, but she -and Ben was made to walt on a woman who bored him, escorting her to places he detested and at hours most inconvenient for him. TO THE GOOD FELLOWS OF SAN ANGELO:

You and I have had many good times together and have spent from 25 cents to $25 in having it. Now, we want to get together and have a time Christmas that will eclipse all of them. This good time will not only be a pleasure to yourself, but will make hundreds of others happy—that is, if "you're on."

All of us know what it is to be disappointed. All of us have felt the pain of disappointment and it has occurred to me, as it will to you, if you stop to think a moment—that while we were out last Christmas and spent from 25 cents to $25, hundreds of children awoke Christmas morning in the faint hope Santa Claus had stopped the night before; and all suffered the bitter disappointment of an empty stocking. Were we, in part, to blame? Did we think only of our own. and leave the less fortunate children to others? Did we expect others

Now, if you are ready to avail yourself of this opportunity, here is your chance:

Send your name and address to "Santa Claus," care The Press-News, stating how many children you are willing to provide with a 10cent doll or a 25-cent tin horn-the price of a bottle and a good cigar. Enclose a two-cent stamp. A list of one, two, three or more names, as desired, will be furnished, with all necessary information, such as age, sex and street address. List of names will be welcomed from all worthy causes, such as relief and aid societies of churches of all denominations. Send us your name, old man, and names of children whom you will protect from the grief of an empty stocking will be furnished you. -

I asked one of the leading Nationalists the other day for an explanation as to the action of the Irish members f parliament on these important divisions. He said: "It is very simple. The one object of the Irish parland; the establishment of an Irish parliament in Dublin with the same uthority over Irish affairs as the parament at Ottawa has over Canadian affairs. We would prefer to act with he Liberals in securing this. While there are some things in the budget we do not like, they are insignificant as compared to home rule. If Mr. Asruith can give us satisfactory assurances that in case of Liberal success he will give us home rule, not on the line of Mr. Birrell's Irish counsels bill, but real home rule, he can have Irish support in the general election in the British constituencies. If not, we are prepared to see what he can do with Mr. Balfour and the Unionists. By refraining from voting in the two divisions to which you allude, we are in setter position to deal with whicheveparty is prepared to give up what we want. We simply served notice on Mr. Asquith that he, as you say in the United States, will have to 'show us.'

An Old Idea About Oysters Exploded

An idea has existed for years among housewi ves that the "liquor" sold with tub oysters was a natural oyster liquid and should not be wasted. It is a popular fallacy. The Sealshipt System has exploded the idea and revealed the true facts.

SEALSHIPT OYSTERS

The True Flavor of the Oyster and Nothing Else

The "liquor" sold with ordinary tub oysters is nothing more than PLAIN WATER, which has been poured in with the oysters, either to increase the measure, or to bleach and make them ap-

Even if the oysters are not deliberately "watered," the ice which is put in with them while they are in transit to interior points is rapidly and continually melting. When they get to their destination, they are swimming in ice-water "liquor," and you are asked to pay OYSTER PRICES for it.

Haven't you ever bought tun oysters which appeared large and plump, and then seen them wizen or shrivel up until they were very small when they were cooked? When oysters act this way, they have been distended and bloated with water.

We sell only "SEALSHIPT" Oysters.

NO LIQUOR WITH SEALSHIPT. We buy them under a binding contract, that they shall not be watered and that they must be sealed at the seaside, and remain sealed until they reach our store. The SOLID MEATS are packed into airtight, germ-proof containers immediately after the oysters are taken from the shells. Ice is plentifully packed around the containers in an outer shipping case. No ice or water ever touches them.

The oysters reach us as firm, solid and fresh as the hour they were shucked—all the goodness and flavor saved—delicious mor-sels of genuine sea food. We buy only solid meats—we sell only solid meats to you. No need for watering to make our profit what it should be.

Sealshipt Oysters are honestly packed honestly sold Try them and be convinc
