Proposed budget

Tax relief for all

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's budget would bring at least some relief to every American taxpayer, but it could actually reshape the lives of some individuals such as aerospace workers, slum-dwellers or businessmen.

A teen-ager out of school and out of work might find employment in the expanded jobs program Carter proposed today.

An unemployed aerospace worker might get back on a payroll, if Congress agrees to Carter's increased spending for the space shuttle.

A slum-dweller might get the first chance to live in decent housing.

A businessman accustomed to the so-called "three-martini lunch" might find his company cracking down on such affairs if Congress goes along with Carter's plan to halve the amount that can be deducted.

For those who could benefit or suffer from Carter's budget, the impact is not yet certain. Congress must still accept, revise or reject Carter's plans and that could take until next summer or fall.

But it's possible to say what the impact would be if Carter does convince Congress to adopt some of his plans. For example, Carter wants to cut the rate of every American's income taxes.

Without any changes, a family of four with an income of $15,000 a year would face income taxes of $1,330. Under Carter's budget, their taxes would drop $258 to $1,072.

For the same sized family with a $30,000 annual income, Carter would cut federal income taxes a little bit more in dollar terms, about $322. But that cut to $3,910 would be far less in terms of the percentage decrease than for the less-well-off family.

Carter's budget is not all good tidings, though. Social Security taxes will go up between 1978 and 1979, chewing up $10 of the tax cut for the $15,000-a-year family and about $88 for the $30,000-a-year group.

THE BUDGET DOLLAR: THEN AND NOW — Chart shows comparison of federal spending, top, and federal income, bottom, for fiscal 1964 and fiscal 1979. Source is the White House.

Also, Carter's economic forecast predicts inflation of about 6 percent a year. That rate would steal $900 out of the buying power of $15,000-a-year family and $1,800 of $30,000 one.

Others changes are less clearly tied to Carter's budget.

The budget says that the average monthly welfare benefit will rise from about $250 a month to about $261. This change would reflect not only federal budget decisions, but individual moves by states to increase benefit levels of their needy citizens.

The aid to families with dependent children system — which is what many think of as welfare — is a joint federal-state system, subject to decisions on both sides.

And then there are large segments of the budget over which Carter exercises little control, thanks to previous decisions.

About one out of every five federal dollars will go out in Social Security checks.

About one out of eight federal dollars will go to pay for medical care for Americans and other health costs.

And one dollar in eight will go just to pay the interest on the national debt, which is projected to be about $4,007 for every man woman and child by Sept. 30, 1979.

But Carter's budget offers a wide range of new opportunities, affecting limited numbers of citizens:

—You might find it easier and cheaper to buy your own home in a city with help from a new program designed to provide assistance to moderate-income families.

—If you are a Vietnam-era veteran, the Veterans Administration would offer a new psychological counseling service.

—A low-income child would be more likely to see a doctor before health problems develop so that preventive care can begin.

—You might be more likely to get a federal rent subsidy or a place live in federally financed public housing.

—Birth control information and aid would be more available to teen-agers in some areas because of increased federal support for such work.

—If climate is your speciality, you would have a better chance of getting financial support from the federal government for research.

Two captured later

Ramada clerk gives robber a tough time

A feisty clerk at the Big Spring Ramada Inn gave an armed robber more trouble than he had bargained for, around midnight Saturday.

According to Detective Mike Kelly, investigating officer, the robber first asked the clerk, Marie Dunivan, 2009 Johnson, for change for a dollar. When she opened the cash register, the teenaged male drew a chrome-stainless .357 magnum pistol.

"This is a robbery. Give me all your money," he is reported to have said. "You've got to be kidding," Ms. Dunivan reportedly replied.

After telling her that he was not kidding, and that he still wanted all the money, the flustered robber reached over the counter and put his hand in the cash drawer.

Ms. Dunivan slammed it shut with his hand inside.

Apparently having met his match, the robber grabbed what he could, which amounted to 56 one-dollar bills and four fives, and ran out of the motel.

The clerk immediately alerted police, and the robber and a friend were spotted driving west just outside the city on IS 20. According to Kelly, the two fleeing suspects threw the money and the pistol out of the car window during the chase, and both cash and guns were recovered by officers later.

The suspects were arrested without incident by Officer Raymond Hall near the Stuckey's Store, approximately five miles west of Big Spring.

It was later discovered that the two, one 20, the other 17 years old, may have been responsible for an attempted armed robbery in Abilene and a successful one in Colorado City. According to reports, both men were on their way to California from their home in Indianapolis, Indiana, and had just run out of money.

Bond was set by Peace Justice Bob West of $75,000 apiece. Charges are expected to be filed here later today, after which Abilene and Colorado City officials may also file charges.

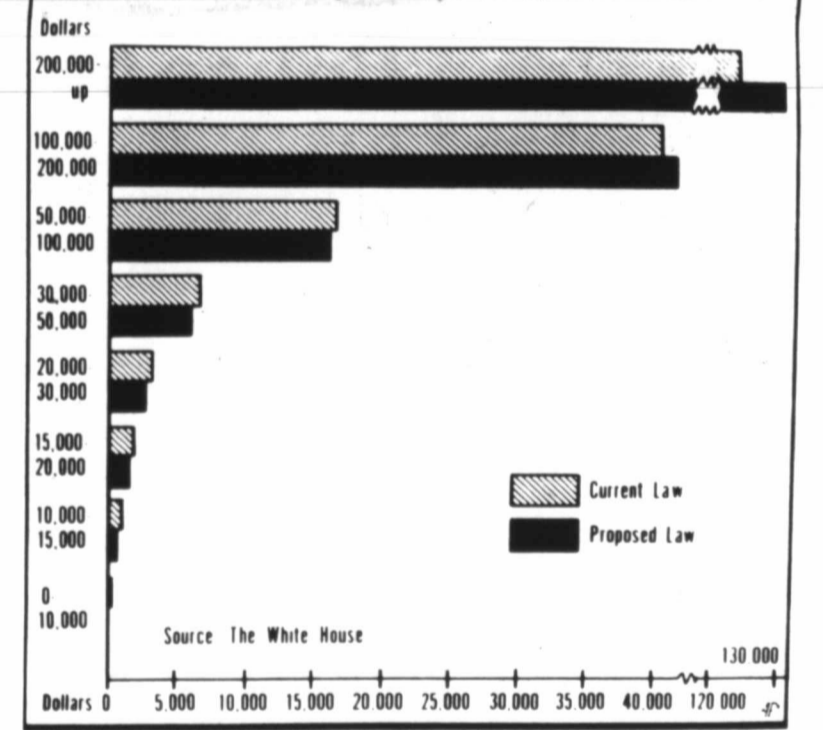

More bases may be closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown says the Pentagon plans to present a "base realignment list" in March, but he is not indicating a goal in numbers of bases to be closed or reduced in scope.

He said the Pentagon is "still developing a list."

At a briefing on the new defense budget, Brown confirmed reports that the Carter administration was preparing a base reduction plan, the first such move since 1976 in the Ford administration.

Odessa lawyer first traffic victim of '78

Raymond C. Stoker, 71, of Odessa, was killed when he was struck by a car after he apparently stepped out from behind a wrecker on to the North Spring Road six miles east of Big Spring Sunday afternoon.

The Odessa lawyer was struck by a vehicle driven by Clifford Holt Balzer, 16, of Rt. 1, Big Spring, who apparently served to try to miss the pedestrian, according to Davey Jones, state trooper who investigated the accident.

Stoker apparently had car trouble while headed west on IS 20 and a Mac and Sons wrecker pulled the car over to the service road.

It was in front of their business when Stoker stepped out from behind the wrecker and was hit by the car which was headed west toward Big Spring.

The accident occurred about 4:50 p.m. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

Jury selected for Rios trial

A jury was being selected this morning in the trial of Domingo Rios, 29, charged with involuntary manslaughter.

The charge is in connection with the death of Mrs. Maurine Ringener on May 14, 1977 when she was killed in a two vehicle traffic accident on E. 4th Street near Terry's Drive In.

She and her husband were in one vehicle and Rios was driver of the second vehicle.

Judge Ralph Caton is presiding over the case in 118th District Court. Rick Hamby, district attorney, is prosecuting attorney and Patrick Abeya of Lubbock is representing the defense.

FIRST FATALITY OF THE YEAR — Raymond Stoker, 71, of Odessa, was killed when he stepped on to the North Access road of IS 20 six miles east of Big Spring after having car trouble. A vehicle driven by Clifford Holt Balzer, 16, of Big Spring, was involved in the car-pedestrian accident. It was the first traffic fatality in 1978 in Howard County.

Two Webb buildings draw several bids

Only two of the five buildings authorized for lease by the Big Spring Steering Committee at Webb had inspired bids when the committee convened at City Hall this morning.

The 13,493-square foot building formerly occupied by the NCO Club and the Runway Inn, embracing 6,566 square feet, rallied interest among potential clients.

Named to a special committee to study the bids and check the financial statements of those making the tenders were John Currie, Harry Nagel and Bill Crocker. Their recommendations will be reviewed by the City Council Tuesday morning.

Jimmy Wilson submitted the apparent high bid for the NCO Club — $1,256 a month for a three-year lease. A $1,200 month lease offer came from Charley Wash. George T. Freeman offered $650 a month plus five per cent of the first $10,000 gross revenue and one-fourth of one per cent on all income exceeding that.

A fourth bid of $525 a month for a lease arrangement was also submitted by operators of the Wooden Nickel Night Club.

Wash also bid $1,200 a month for lease of the Runway Inn. Freeman's offer was $725 a month plus 4 1/2 per cent of the first $10,000 gross revenue, plus 1 1/2 per cent of the next $50,000 plus one-half of one per cent of all revenue in excess of $50,000.

Fred L. Green submitted a $250 monthly lease offer while another was received from Helen Waters in the amount of $200 a month plus two per cent of the profits. Bob Spears and Richard Thompson made no bid but said they would be interested in bidding for the property should Lockheed Aircraft Service Company locate here.

All leases would be for three years, carrying with them five-year options for renewal.

It was revealed by Harry Spannaus, airport manager, that the Air Force wants to retain a portion of the southern portion of the Runway Inn until its caretaker force leaves here later this year.

Webb buildings which did not bring bids include the Auto Hobby Shop, the base dining hall and cold storage area and the base commissary. It was revealed that some interest had been manifested in them by potential clients.

The city and the county will combine appropriated funds to relocate two of the T-hangers at Howard County Airport at the municipal airport at a cost of about $110,000. City engineer Roy Crim was authorized to begin ground preparations for the structures. Time has become the critical element in relocation of the structures, since Lockheed — should it win an Air Force contract to modify F-4C aircraft — plans to begin operations here April 1.

It was also announced that Lockheed wants to lease office space in the airport terminal building.

April 16 is the date now set for the grand opening of the municipal airport, though details for the occasion remain to be worked out. An air show and a fly-in will be held in conjunction with the grand opening.

Carter says budget is 'lean and tight'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent Congress the first complete budget of his administration, describing it as "lean and tight" but sufficient to meet the country's needs.

The president's proposed 1979 budget calls for outlays of just over $500 billion, making it the first half-trillion-dollar budget in the nation's history. Spending in the current fiscal year is projected at $462 billion.

The proposed deficit in the 1979 budget will be a near-record. Carter disclosed last week it would be almost as high as the $62 billion deficit in fiscal 1978, which would make it the third highest ever.

The record deficit for any single year was $66.4 billion in fiscal 1976. The 1979 fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The proposed budget includes Carter's plan to cut taxes by $25 billion beginning on Oct. 1, with $17 billion in tax cuts for individuals and $8 billion for business.

Carter's proposed budget reduces the federal share of the nation's Gross National Product from 22.6 percent in 1978 to 22 percent next year.

Carter said his goal is to reduce the federal share of GNP to 21 percent next year.

The defense share of the proposed budget increases somewhat more than the rest in terms of real purchasing power. Carter asked for future spending authority for defense of about $126 billion and somewhat less for actual 1979 outlays.

Defense outlays this year are projected at about $105 billion.

Action/reaction: Octane ratings

Q. What does an octane rating in a gasoline mean? Could that be how much power a gallon of gasoline produces?

A. The octane rating has nothing to do with the amount of power a given amount of gasoline produces. A high-octane gasoline simply has less tendency to pre-ignite in your engine than a lower octane fuel. The knock occurring in some engines is caused by the fuel igniting in the cylinder earlier than at the optimum time. Damage to your engine can occur in such instances. It can also foul up your engine's timing.

Offbeat: Stay in bed, buddy

WYOMING, Mich. (AP) — Ailing Wyoming police officers would be advised to stay home and in bed — not just for their health's sake, but to protect their paychecks.

A knock at the door or a ringing telephone might just be a supervisor checking to see if those who called in sick are really ailing.

Complaining that police department employees "are the most frequent users of sick time" in the Grand Rapids suburb, Police Chief Lowell Henline set up the departmental checkup policy.

The chief said anyone caught abusing the paid sick leave will be suspended without pay for the first offense and there will be "more severe discipline" for repeat offenders.

TAKING A CURE — Fred, a singing parrot who is a local celebrity at the Red Hart public house in Ruddington, England, takes a sip of rum recently while wearing a miniature muffler. Fred lost his voice, apparently due to an attack of laryngitis brought on by the cold weather, his owner Beryl Armstrong says. She prescribed the rum and muffler cure for the bird.

Banned editors lauded

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — South African editors Percy Qoboza and Donald Woods have been awarded the "Golden Pen of Freedom" award from the executive committee of the International Federation of Newspaper Publishers.

The editor of the Daily Dispatch of East London, Woods was placed on restrictive banning orders last October for criticizing South Africa's white government. He fled the country on New Year's Eve with his family.

Qoboza, who edited the black newspaper The World, has been in jail since the October security crackdown.

Alf Christensen, the federation's Danish vice president, said Sunday that Woods would receive the citation next May at the federation's annual meeting in The Hague, Netherlands.

The executive committee said it wanted to "pay tribute to the remarkable courage these two journalists have shown in their long struggle for the freedom of expression in their country — a struggle which was brutally put to an end on Oct. 19, 1977."

Mideast rift widens

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has matched Egypt's suspension of their foreign ministers' talks in Jerusalem by refusing to resume the Cairo parley of their defense ministers, but Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance expects negotiations to resume soon.

Vance returned to Washington Sunday a few hours after the Israeli cabinet voted not to send Defense Minister Ezer Weizman back to the Egyptian capital for the time being to resume talks on return of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt.

A senior member of Vance's party said the secretary expects Foreign Ministers Moshe Dayan and Mohammed Kamel to resume their negotiations on a declaration of principles for a peace agreement, which Egyptian President Anwar Sadat suspended last Wednesday, after a cooling-off period of a week or 10 days.

The official said if Dayan and Kamel don't meet in Jerusalem or Cairo, Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton Jr., who remained in the Middle East, will shuttle between the two capitals as messenger and mediator.

Vance advised the Israelis and Egyptians to keep quiet in the meantime.

Tax plan criticism mild

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are offering only mild criticism of President Carter's $25 billion tax cut plan, which is now before Congress.

House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., said Sunday the plan was a good start, but $51 billion in cuts is needed to fight inflation and overcome increased Social Security taxes.

Senate GOP leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said he is "pleased with the language" but added that, "so much depends then on the detail, how the tax cut, if there is a tax cut, is allocated."

Baker and Rhodes were on a television interview show as was Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, who predicted the plan would get through Congress.

He said it was premature to discuss any trade-offs the administration would make if compromise is needed.

It was not immediately clear how swiftly Congress would begin work on the tax proposals. The lawmakers begin their second week of the new session today.

The legislative calendar in the House this week is light, with only minor legislation on the schedule.

Senators are expected to spend the week debating the proposed revision of the ton's criminal code. Although Senate leaders had hoped to finish work on the measure in a few days, there could be scores of amendments.

Anti-abortion march today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-abortion demonstrators are marching past the White House to push for a constitutional amendment outlawing abortions and protest a 1973 Supreme Court abortion ruling.

Nellie J. Gray, president of March for Life, says she hopes today's march will duplicate last year's demonstration by some 100,000 persons.

This will be the fifth year of protests here against the Jan. 22, 1973 decision restricting the power of states to regulate or ban abortion.

For the first time, this year's program began with an allnight candlelight vigil at the White House. Stephanie Varga, the vigil coordinator, said more than 200 abortion foes participated, working in shifts.

President Carter, who won't return until tonight from a vacation in St. Simons Island, Ga., is missing the vigil and the march.

However, Ms. Gray said presidential aide Stuart Eizenstat has agreed to meet the marchers.

Ms. Varga, of the Ohio Right to Life Society, said the event demonstrated the willingness of the anti-abortion forces to give up their time to get the message across.

Terry Hanson enters precinct four race

Terry Hanson, a Howard County farmer, announced today his candidacy for the office of county commissioner, precinct four.

Hanson graduated from Angelo State University in 1974 with a degree in business administration and is a lifetime resident of Howard County.

Upon his graduation from Angelo State he became associated with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce where he was employed in an executive capacity two and one half years.

In January of 1977, Hanson resigned from his duties at the Chamber of Commerce to return to farming with his father, Leonard Hanson, who has farmed in the Howard County area for over 40 years.

In announcing for the office of county commissioner, precinct four, Hanson issued the following statement:

TERRY HANSON

"I have a sincere interest in the future of Howard County and I feel that we must have competent leadership on the Commissioner's Court. People I have talked to want a commissioner that is open to their thoughts and ideas and one that can deal with problems effectively and in a manner that reflects sound fiscal management. It is my intention to maintain an open line of communication with the taxpayers and represent their desires as best I can.

"We must work for the continued industrial growth and development of the area to complement our strong economic base of agriculture, oil and gas. These industries have recently come under a strain and we must coordinate our efforts to insure that they will continue to provide a sound economic base. I am in support of a sound program for the continued industrial growth of Howard County.

"We have been favored a very effective county law enforcement agency and with the future growth of Howard County imminent, we must take the necessary steps to insure that proper law enforcement will keep pace with the needs that this growth demands. This should be one of our top priorities.

"In summation, I feel we need to develop a system of priorities to effectively deal with the problems facing our county government. I believe that my educational background and my experience with the local business community qualifies me to deal with these matters in a competent and effective manner. I intend to devote my efforts towards insuring that our county government will be efficient and open to the taxpayers of Howard County.

"In the near future, I will be calling on the voters of Precinct four to get their ideas and thoughts and I will be most happy to meet with interested individuals or groups at any time to discuss any matters that may concern them."

Man burned in explosion

A mobile home fire at the intersection of Martin and Terry Roads sent Lester Rains, 91, to Malone-Hogan Emergency room with burns over 40 per cent of his body.

The hospital reported that Rains was in guarded condition this morning.

Loren Spenser, who lives a few yards south of Rains reported that he heard an explosion around 10:15 p.m. Saturday, and rushed outside to find Rains lying just outside the door of his mobile home.

Spenser told Sheriff's deputies Frank Corey and Bill Shankles that the fire seemed to be concentrated around a heater near the door of the mobile home.

Three volunteer fire departments went to fight the fire; units from the Wasson Road, Jonesboro, and Sand Springs fire departments responded to the fire.

The Big Spring YMCA began its annual membership drive today working towards a $27,500 goal, which will be revealed on Feb. 6. District leaders under the top leadership of Tito Arencibia and Frank Hardisty are Mrs. Paula Talbot, Jim Parks, Al Valdes and W.A. (Dub) Moore. There is a total of 114 men and women working in the drive.

There will be four report meetings, with the top producer at each meeting receiving a prize. An auction will also be held at each of the meetings, presided over by Dub Bryant, a professional auctioneer. The workers will be able to bid on various prizes donated by businesses in the community by exchanging membership money brought in for play money.

The YMCA is a non-profit, people serving organization which receives its operating funds from memberships, endowments, and the United Way. Programs offered include those for male and female, young and old, and

Be wary of 'free' credit ads

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers who did their Christmas shopping with credit cards are beginning to get the bills, and some may find themselves paying more than they expected.

You have to shop just as carefully for credit as you do for the items you buy with it. Such things as the type of charge card you use and the way in which the lender calculates interest can affect how much you pay.

Be wary of advertisements for "free" credit. The bank cards are "free" only if you pay your bill in full every month. And the so-called travel and entertainment cards like American Express and Diners Club charge an annual membership fee.

Credit purchases have become a way of life in the United States. Industry officials estimate that there were more than one billion credit card transactions in 1977, more than double the number five years earlier.

They also say that five out of every seven Americans who are eligible for a card have one. At the start of the final quarter of last year, consumers owed more than $207 billion in installment debt. That works out to almost $1,000 for every man, woman and child.

There are two basic types of credit. With closed-end credit, a specific amount of money is borrowed for and repaid in a specific time

Carter fails to hook fish

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — With the temperature just right for fishing and tennis, President Carter is paying little attention to this marshy island off the Georgia coast. And the island is paying little attention to the president.

"I felt more excited when King Hussein was down here," said real estate agent Glenn A. Lewis. "Jimmy? He's just another cracker."

Carter, winding up his fifth visit here since the 1976 primary election campaign, will return to Washington tonight after spending Sunday and part of Saturday fishing without much luck.

For Carter, the Musgrove Plantation is a perfect weekend resort, a secluded estate owned by Smith Bagley, grandson of tobacco magnate R.J. Reynolds. The manor house is set back two miles from Frecceria Road, well-hidden by dense shrubbery, towering live oaks, palms and palmettos.

Carter can go fishing in the stream behind the plantation. Or, as he did over the weekend, he can take a small boat through narrow channels to the mouth of Mosquito Creek, which opens into the ocean.

He can play tennis on the property and stroll around the 1,361 acres in privacy. He has little reason to leave its confines.

Such facilities, enjoyed last spring by Jordan's King Hussein, make for a quiet weekend.

It was so quiet, in fact, that Carter did not even venture from the plantation to go to church Sunday morning, although a church where the Revs. John and Charles Wesley preached in the 1730s is just down the road.

It was so quiet that Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, and congressional liaison chief, Frank Moore, spent Saturday with their wives in Gainesville, Ga., judging a beauty contest.

period. Car loans are a common example of closed-end credit.

Open-end credit, also called revolving credit, is more complicated. You can pay your bill at once or you can spread out the payments. If you pay at once, there is no interest charge; if you choose to "revolve," as most customers do, you pay a penalty.

An exception to this rule is Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, which charges a service fee to Master Charge holders who pay their bills in full before the end of the billing period.

Use This Method To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss and grow more hair.

Have you faced the fact that you have a hair loss problem? Hair loss occurs so gradually that men and women often ignore it. Until it's too late. Even though you see yourself in a mirror every day, many of you don't admit to abnormal hair fall.

If you think honestly, that you might be in this category, look at a picture taken a year ago — three years ago. Notice a difference? If so, now's the time to stop your hair loss. You could be going bald.

It appears that you are already losing hair, whatever your daily hair routine is. If you continue to follow it, your hair will probably gradually thin away to nothing.

But it doesn't have to happen. Often hair fall is NOT normal.

Now a firm of Laboratory Consultants has developed a treatment that not only stops hair loss, but actually grows hair. And you don't even have to take their word for it. You can try their treatment for 32 days, at their risk. Naturally they wouldn't offer this opportunity unless it worked. But it's impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," it's certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

If you have thinning hair, the Loesch treatment may be the answer for you. If you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair, do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc. will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk — if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially by mail. ADV.

Judge urges out-of-court settlements

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige has expressed the hope there will be more out-of-court settlements in a $2.5 billion suit against Westinghouse Electric Corp. before the uranium case resumes Tuesday.

"You all now what I'm talking about," Merhige said Saturday in recessing the U.S. District Court trial for two days and expressing the hope the top counsel for Westinghouse and the eight plaintiff utilities will be in court when hearings begin again.

"I desperately want them settled. I think that's the best way for justice to be served," Merhige told the attorneys.

Ten utilities originally sued Westinghouse, charging the firm reneged on contracts to supply uranium to fuel reactors it had sold utilities.

They are Texas Utilities, Houston Lighting & Power, Wisconsin Electric, Long Island Lighting, South Carolina Electric, Florida Power & Light, Alabama Power, Northeast Utilities, Virginia Electric & Power

Co. and Tennessee Valley Authority.

Merhige has approved an out-of-court settlement agreed to early in the trial by Alabama Power and Westinghouse. Texas Utilities and Westinghouse agreed on a tentative settlement in December which has yet to be approved.

The judge said he's not sure the remaining eight utilities know exactly how far apart they are in resolving their claims.

Merhige ordered all parties in the trial last November to file a settlement plan with William B. Spong Jr., dean of the College of William & Mary law school. But the judge said Saturday:

"I have come to no conclusions as to the results in this case. I have not decided this case at all."

In cross examination of A. L. Bethel, a Westinghouse vice president, Merhige prodded the witness on the settlement issue. Bethel had said the firm wants to stay in the uranium business.

Bethel, in charge of uranium resources for Westinghouse, was asked what logic there was to the firm's efforts in 1974 and 1975 to persuade utility customers to give up fixed-price contracts and sign costs-plus agreements.

"I can't assert that it was highly persuasive logic," he said.

But Bethel said Westinghouse was trying to offer a purchasing service to its customers. He added there might have been some utilities whose view of the uranium market three and four years ago wasn't as pessimistic as that of Westinghouse.

Disneyland of sex 'dims'

BOSTON (AP) — The Combat Zone, Boston's officially deemed Disneyland of sex, is withering in a blizzard of police sweeps, license suspensions and bad publicity.

The cluster of X-rated moviehouses, porno bookstores and topless-bottomless bars is only a tarnished memory of its once wide-open libido.

An area where hookers once elbowed for prime curb space and reached in car windows to fondle drivers is now often deserted of all but police officers, who sit in idling cars along Washington Street, the zone's main thoroughfare, or stride slowly past the bars.

Some of the bars, bookstores and theaters have closed. Two have been wrecked by suspicious fires.

In 1977, the liquor licenses of virtually every bar and strip joint in the two-block zone were suspended for prostitution, "open and gross lewdness" or other such transgressions. The suspensions lasted for one to four months.

"It's pretty much dead now," says Robert Walsh, head of the urban renewal agency that zoned the downtown section for sex-oriented businesses in November 1974.

The idea had been to keep the raunch from seeping into residential neighborhoods. But the aura of official approval made the zone a magnet for prostitutes, pickpockets and other unsavory elements.

Late in 1976, a Harvard football player was stabbed in the heart when he chased a prostitute who stole a friend's wallet. His death led to a swift, abrupt crackdown, and the Combat Zone has never recovered.

Last year, the police vice squad issued 843 complaints against bars for such alleged violations as allowing prostitutes to troll for customers and nude dancers to mingle with customers. The total was double that of the year before, and most of the offenses were in the Combat Zone.

"The police have really been giving them the business," said vice squad Lt. John Chalpin. "Regardless of whether there are nude shows down there or not, we're still not going to put up with larcenies or robberies or murders."

Nude dancing is legal in the Combat Zone as long as the gyrating dancers stay two feet away from the customers. At night, the bars are often half or two-thirds full, but owners complain that business is nothing like the old days.

"A lot of tourists and people from out of town who normally would sneak away to the Combat Zone don't do it because the police are there," said Walsh. "A night in the Combat Zone isn't what it used to be."

Anti-busing KKK target

LODI, Ohio (AP) — Members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan will travel to 16 state capitals this spring to demonstrate against forced busing for the integration of schools, a Klan leader said.

Dale Reusch, of Lodi, Klan imperial wizard, said Klan executive board members voted at a meeting in Columbus Sunday to hold the anti-busing rallies on the steps of the state capital buildings in the target states.

The kickoff rally will be April 29 in Baton Rouge, La., Reusch said.

The other target states are Ohio, New Jersey, Kentucky, California, Delaware, Maryland, Texas, Arkansas, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi.

Carr said one remark by one juror to the others about what he had read might decide the case.

Assistant District Attorney Phil Nelson said individual questioning would "unnecessarily strengthen the trial."

On the motion to quash the indictment, the defense contends Yarbrough was called before the grand jury for the sole purpose of setting him up for a perjury indictment. That is a denial of due process under the Fourteenth Amendment, the defense says.

After action on the motions, Yarbrough was arraigned. Asked how he pleaded, he said, "Not guilty."

Yarbrough is charged with forging an Alabama car registration certificate and lying to the grand jury about it.

"Did you ever tell me why it was deemed to be not good business to have back-up contracts before you made offers to utilities?" Merhige asked.

Bethel said that when he became general manager of the water reactor divisions in 1974, "the deed was done and I was focusing on what do we do now."

The price of uranium has risen to more than $40 a pound compared with about $12 at the time the contracts were being negotiated.

Such facilities, enjoyed last spring by Jordan's King Hussein, make for a quiet weekend.

It was so quiet, in fact, that Carter did not even venture from the plantation to go to church Sunday morning, although a church where the Revs. John and Charles Wesley preached in the 1730s is just down the road.

Weather East Texas shrouded in fog

By the Associated Press

East Texas was shrouded in fog today while the rest of the state enjoyed clear and partly cloudy skies.

The U.S. Weather Bureau reported that the fog ran from the upper coast to Tyler. The fog should lift this morning.

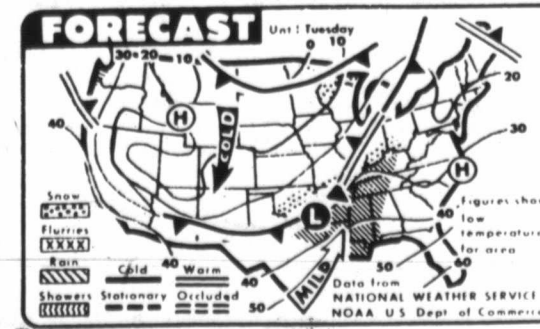

Those areas that received snow fall Sunday should get a chance to see grass again today as temperatures rise enough to melt the white stuff.

The thermometer is expected to rise to the 50s and 60s in west Texas, the 40s and 50s in south Texas and the 30s and 40s in North Texas.

The weather bureau said light rain and drizzle accompanied the fog but that too would subside when the fog lifts.

Temperatures ranged from 25 at Wichita Falls to 44 at Del Rio. Other temperatures reported at 4 a.m., included 32 at Abilene, 42 at Brownsville, 30 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 35 at Houston, 34 at Tyler, 29 at Amarillo, 39 at Corpus Christi, 40 at Galveston and 26 at Texarkana.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today from the central Gulf to the Ohio Valley. A belt of snow is expected from Oklahoma to southern Ohio. Milder weather is forecast for the Mississippi Valley and colder weather for part of the Western Plains but seasonal temperatures are expected for most of the country.

Yarbrough wins one, loses three motions

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough lost three motions and won only one this morning in his forgery and perjury trial.

District Judge Mace Thurman set jury selection for 2 p.m.

Thurman denied defense motions to question prospective jurors individually, to throw out the indictment and to keep the jury together after it has been selected.

The judge granted a motion to allow the jury to set, punishment in the event Yarbrough is found guilty.

Waggoner Carr, Yarbrough's lead attorney told the judge the individual questioning wouldn't take long because it would be made "on the one subject of the effect the news media might have had on them on the guilt or innocence of the defendant."

Carr said one remark by one juror to the others about what he had read might decide the case.

Assistant District Attorney Phil Nelson said individual questioning would "unnecessarily strengthen the trial."

On the motion to quash the indictment, the defense contends Yarbrough was called before the grand jury for the sole purpose of setting him up for a perjury indictment. That is a denial of due process under the Fourteenth Amendment, the defense says.

U.S. housewives could take lessons

American servicemen lucky enough to have served a tour of duty in Japan invariably came back with suggestions that American girls should profit by taking lessons from Japanese housewives.

In a sense, the GIs were saying that the Japanese women weren't into this emancipation thing like the Americans. Some of the servicemen were bold enough to say that American housewives, for the most part, were utterly spoiled.

The American housewife would, no doubt, gain through a practice started by the Japanese housewife, who has become a dedicated saver. More than 40 per cent of the Japanese wives make regular deposits in their own accounts.

Let it be added that the Japanese women are practicing such good habits clandestinely — their husbands know nothing about it. The husbands, by tradition, bring their paychecks home unopened. The wives take what they reason won't be missed and squirrel away the money.

The woman either has no faith in her man's ability to save money or else is providing the cushion she'll need in event her mate decides to take a powder. The emancipation movement is making considerable strides in Japan, too, you know.

Of course, a lot of American males have been bringing their paychecks home to their wives all these years. They would be surprised to know there was ever anything left over.

Would you say the Japanese woman had a yen to save a yen?

Environmental backfire

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — An angry counterattack against federal environmentalists is now being quietly planned by cabinet-level departments, led by the State Department, with indications of support in the White House itself.

The counterattack seems certain to modify drastically and could kill altogether new regulations proposed by the Council for Environmental Quality (CEQ) that would make Uncle Sam the environmental policeman of the world — particularly policing nuclear reactors. "Outrageous," one State Department official told us. "These regulations would impose American environmental standards on all our foreign friends and they would end up hating us."

THIS PLACES President Carter in a peculiar dilemma. While crusading against nuclear proliferation and environmental pollution, he is bound as President by the practicalities of international life. As such, he seems forced to disappoint his environmental constituency.

The proposed regulations were drawn secretly by CEQ planners with apparent help from the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), an environmentalist private action group. They would in effect require standard environmental impact statements (to be called "assessments" in the foreign field) for all exported material or technology sold abroad with some help — export licenses or loan guarantees — from the U.S. government.

The real target may be nuclear reactors, a prospect that has infuriated the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC). At a closed-door meeting called by CEQ Jan. 6, NRC assistant general counsel Carlton Stober said there is "no legal justification" for imposing U.S. environmental standards abroad. That brought objections from CEQ chairman Charles Warren and member Gus Speth, who showed reluctance even to discuss legal justification. But Stober insisted that neither the 1969 National Environmental Protection Act nor its legislative history in congressional debate could justify the new regulations.

AT LEAST AS upset as NRC and the State Department was Export-Import Bank president John Moore, who warned the Jan. 6 meeting that the proposed regulations would benefit Japanese and West German exporters at the expense of this country. The reason: endless delays and lawsuits against U.S. exports on often specious environmental grounds would turn impatient foreign buyers away from the U.S.

Moore, a former Atlanta lawyer close to Mr. Carter, strongly urged White House domestic policy chief Stuart Eizenstat to attend the Jan. 6 session at CEQ. Eizenstat stayed long enough to ask three questions: What is the cost to the federal government of the proposed regulations? What is their legal justification? To what extent would they impose American standards on foreign governments?

Speth, who took the leading role for CEQ in the acrimonious debate, gave uninformative and "fudged" answers, according to one participant. Eizenstat left the meeting before it ended, but those in position to know say he was unimpressed with CEQ's rationale and has strong reservations about CEQ's ambition to be top cop for global environment.

SPETH WAS legal counsel for the environmentalist NRDC before Mr. Carter put him on the CEQ. Last year the NRDC brought suit against the Ex-Im Bank to require it to meet CEQ's domestic standards in all its foreign lending operations.

That suit, while not directly related to CEQ's proposed new regulations, helps to explain why Moore and the Ex-Im Bank are so disturbed. The bank has provided more than $20 billion in loans and guarantees for U.S. exports since mid-1974, much of it for nuclear and conventional power facilities and offshore oil drilling. NRDC claims these have direct impact on the environment.

Headache often a puzzler

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been having several headaches a week for the past 12 years. I suspect sinus to be the cause of some of them. Pain medicine doesn't help, but sometimes a decongestant will. At times I get nauseated and weak and break out in a cold sweat. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. J.C.

The commonest headaches are the tension type and migraine. The sinus variety is less common. Any can be complicated by allergy. For these reasons headache is probably the most frequent complaint doctors hear, and often the most complex to unravel.

Your nausea and sweating suggests migraine. This is often one-sided. The typical migraine victim is tense, a perfectionist who is easily upset by reversals. For them the best approach is to reduce tensions and use medicine to head the migraine off "at the pass" at the first symptom. Investigate this.

Headache that is relieved by decongestant suggests that sinus involvement, so a nasal and sinus examination may be in order for you. It can be related to an allergy, perhaps to alcohol effects. Can you relate episodes to a cocktail? Some are sensitive to salicylates (in aspirin or certain foods). The foods are too numerous to list here, but Dr. Claude Frazier in his book, "Coping With Food Allergy," discusses this in depth. Your several headaches a week over such a long span suggests some basic cause, such as a food allergy. Chief offenders are milk, wheat, eggs, fish, fruits and vegetables, and chocolate.

With all this in mind, review your life-style, tensions, and your eating habits. Also, have that sinus check-up.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a difference between a pilonidal cyst and a pilonidal sinus? My 2-year-old daughter was born with a tiny hole through the skin at the base of the spine. The doctor called it a pilonidal sinus. Is it something that will cause trouble? — M.C.

The two are related. A sinus is a hollow space in tissue. A pilonidal sinus is an abnormal one in the lower spine area. When hair grows within it, a cyst often forms — a pilonidal ("hair nest") cyst.

There's danger of infection, so these developmental quirks have to be watched carefully. The sinuses may cause no trouble, but cysts can develop in later years from irritation. One of the phrases used to describe this is "jeep driver's disease," from the jouncing of the tailbone in rough terrain. Surgery can correct the problem. Watch for any drainage and keep the area clean.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother is 90 years old and very healthy. Last winter she complained of her feet being so cold. I took a look at them and they were purple. I took her to a doctor and he gave her circulation medicine and told her to wear heavy stockings. She did and it helped her some. Later she complained of her feet being tingly and hot. The doctor had no answer for this. Can you offer any help? — Mrs. P.H.

There could be a simple answer. The tingling could be related to her circulation problem. Perhaps the heavy stockings are too bulky for her old shoes. She may need larger shoes to accommodate them. This would account for the numbness. Too, material in the new stockings may be causing an allergic reaction.

All together now?

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The press has given wide recognition to the liberal-conservative split on the issue of the Panama Canal treaties, and there is something to it, but not quite as much as one would think. It is certainly true that right wing organizations have stimulated huge letter-writing campaigns opposing the Canal Treaty, and true also that there is great resentment over this. I don't see that this is justified. If Mr. Richard Viguerie stands to make a lot of money out of financing 50 million letters or whatever, I do not see that this is different from COPE professionals sending out their appeals to the voters to go for this or that candidate, or to write one's Congressman urging him to take a particular point of view.

WHAT IS NOT true is that the opposition to the revised Panama Canal Treaty is a deep symbolic attachment. It is a deep symbolic attachment, and that's different. It was so for a while with Quemo and Matsu, for which we were all prepared to die during a few hectic months in the summer and fall of 1960. Most of us are glad we didn't have to.

"What do you do," Senator Goldwater, who continues to be the most refreshingly candid man in Washington, "when you get 7500 letters saying 'Don't,' and one letter saying 'Do'?" What you do, if you are a politician, is vote in the direction that pleases the 7500. The other night Senator Sam Ervin, presiding over a debate on the Panama Treaty between Ronald Reagan and me, winked out the truism that it is more courageous for a politician to take an unpopular view than for a mere columnist, because it is easier to punish a politician.

That's true, though the example fits the fact here a little uncomfortably. Mr. Reagan is not running for reelection. This columnist presides over a journal of opinion which has had 500 cancellations since the editor showed his idiosyncrasy by judging that, on balance, Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, Nixon, Johnson, Carter, the joint Chiefs of Staff, General Westmoreland, Admiral Zumwalt, General Clay, and Ellsworth Bunker were not absolutely determined to damage the United States.

But it is still to call it an act of courage. In the first place, courage — as Sir Arnold Lunn once reminded us when he said he uses the word to describe taking positions that might end you up tortured or in jail — should be used sparingly in our air-conditioned age. And in the second place, when conservatives actually sit down and listen to the arguments — which with all due respect to my friend Richard Viguerie, is not quite the same experience as reading one of his letters — then tend to find that the Panama Canal treaties aren't really the equivalent of sending Mother off to Belsen.

My feel for the situation is that a good many conservative Senators, including Senator Goldwater (with whom I have not spoken on the matter) would like to vote for the treaty because, analyzing its terms, anticipating such elucidations as Senator Baker has thoughtfully midwived, they have come to the conclusion that it is not only a sensible way to go, but an honorable way to go. What they need is protective cover. The best kind of protective cover is given by men of absolutely commanding prestige. If, let us say, Senator Taft were alive and came out for the treaty, or if Douglas MacArthur were alive and came out for it, it would prove a great deal easier for John Tower to come out for it.

THE DEMOCRATS had the same problem in the fall of 1954. At issue was a question that divided America as passionately as any issue of the generation: Should the Senate of the United States censure Joe McCarthy? Senator McCarthy finally made it easy for the Senate by delivering one of the most gloriously maladroited speeches in the history of diplomacy. But even before that, the Democrats, chewing their nails over the lowering dilemma — many of them came from devoutly pro-McCarthy country — decided how to handle the problem. They would all vote to censure Joe McCarthy, from Senator Pat McCarran to Senator Hubert Humphrey. The other night Senator Strom Thurmond, ever the courteous southerner, asked me as he bade me goodnight after the debate if there was anything he could for me, and I replied, "Yes, Strom, you can vote for the canal treaties." He began, under the force of habit, to nod his head; then checked himself and laughed. But who knows. Why don't we make it unanimous?

One of my favorite newspapers is the San Francisco Chronicle. Not only is its sports section printed on green paper every day of the year ("The Sporting Green"), but the headline maker at that publication rivals the succinct success of the Herald's own Walt Finley (Oklahoma, Class of '66).

Here are some of the better ones from Friday the 13th's edition.

"Herring fishing turns ugly in Bay" — Angry fishermen scowled around in the rain yesterday, and told how the great San Francisco bay harvest of herring — so picturesque from shore — is virtually a war that has come close to bloodshed, turning decent men into vultures.

"CROWDS RIP up beached whale" — Sightseers tore away patches of flesh from a beached 50-foot sperm whale, children scrambled over its tail and teenagers tried to pull out its teeth before marine patrol officers chased them away.

By midafternoon Wednesday, the whale looked like a bloody rock. Under the Federal Marine Mammal Protection Law of 1972, it is illegal to take the teeth or otherwise molest such a whale. No one was arrested.

"Monkey bits boss to death" — A pet monkey, seemingly enraged by its owner's insistence that it take a daily swim, turned on him and bit him to death, police said yesterday. Neighbors who saw the attack killed the money with sticks.

"Huge tear gas explosion at police headquarters" — Tear gas, set off by an accidental explosion in a weapons storage room, swept through the District of Columbia's police headquarters yesterday, causing an extraordinary disruption of police and other city government operations.

And if Big Spring movie-goers think they have an over-abundance of racy films, check these San Francisco ads: — "Chinese girls in prison" — We sneak previewed this movie recently, and some viewers were offended. They said this film is too far out, too kinked. It goes beyond everything. A couple of viewers said this film is "strictly for kink freaks." So we hereby warn you — if you think you want to see "Chinese girls in prison" do so at your own risk. (Plus co-hit: "Pleasure Cruise")

"Foxy Lady: She plays audie" — Open 7:00 a.m. Featuring audience participation. (Plus co-hit: "Allegro Non Troppo", Swedish ecological comedy)

AND A COUPLE of selections from the Classified section for good measure:

"Henry, please come home. I don't love Ralph anymore. Maria."

—Chameleon escorts. Try something unique. Outcalls to all areas.

"Why be lonely? Call Karen and Liza." (All major credit cards accepted).

Going unchecked

WASHINGTON — We have uncovered evidence that the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) is plagued with corruption, and cronyism. Yet strangely, the importunities were overlooked by the House committee, which is supposed to oversee the agency.

The House Narcotics Committee criticized NIDA recently for spending $260 million a year on "fragmentary" and "wasteful" and a "serious deficiency" in the monitoring of grants and contracts.

But the committee completely missed the contracts-for-cronies and husband-and-wife deals that we exposed last week in a series of columns.

Nor does the committee plan to investigate the abuses now that they have been reported.

THE CHIEF COUNSEL, Joseph Nellis, told us he doesn't have enough investigators to pursue the allegations properly. It is an interesting coincidence that among the influential wives holding NIDA contracts we discovered Nellis' wife Muriel. She was awarded a fat $150,000 contract to study women's drug problems.

The big, gravel-voiced Nellis quickly explained that his wife won her first NIDA contract in 1975 before his committee was formed. "My wife's contract preceded my connection with this committee by almost two years," Nellis told our reporters Valerie Strauss and Howie Kurtz.

But Muriel Nellis is now working on a NIDA contract that was granted in March 1977. This was at the same time her husband was directing a House investigation of the agency — the same investigation that ignored serious irregularities.

The able Nellis said he sees nothing wrong with his wife's bidding for NIDA contracts while he was investigating the institute. "It's her business. It has nothing to do with me. She's an expert," he insisted. "I'm not very well-liked at NIDA. I can't imagine anyone giving her a break because of me."

But according to Mrs. Nellis' account, NIDA Director Robert DuPont tried to take advantage of her marital relationship. Shortly before the House Narcotics Committee held hearings last fall on NIDA's performance, she recalls being approached by the tall, smooth-talking director. DuPont asked her: "Hey, Muriel, what's your husband got in store for me?"

As Mrs. Nellis remembers the incident, "he wanted some information in advance. I told him never again to raise Joe's name or the committee's work in my presence."

DuPont denied ever seeking such information. "I've never discussed the committee with Muriel in any context in all the time she has dealt with NIDA," he said.

ALTHOUGH THE committee missed the mark and left the serious charges uninvestigated, DuPont was indignant over the lesser criticism of the wasteful bureaucratic deficiencies at NIDA. He marched up to Capitol Hill and complained bitterly to House Narcotics Committee Chairman Lester Wolff, D-N.Y.

The congressman has a reputation for his vigorous narcotics investigations, but he relied upon his staff to check out NIDA. He flatly rejected DuPont's protest.

We have already reported several improprieties that the committee would have discovered if it had dug a little deeper. Here are some more:

—Some NIDA officials flouted Civil Service regulations to give agency jobs to their friends. For example, NIDA official William Spillane tried to line up a high-paying job for his college chum, Paul Ryser, who also co-authored a book with him. When the Civil Service Commission ruled that Ryser wasn't qualified, Spillane hired him anyway as a consultant.

Ryser later went to work for Richard Katon, a private consultant who began getting several contracts from Spillane's division. "I had certain ignorance of the Civil Service regulations," Spillane explained.

—Some NIDA contract reviewers have been pressured to change the ratings they give to competing bidders. Eyewitnesses have told us that Spillane once urged reviewers to increase the scores of a firm that won a NIDA contract. This would head off a possible complaint from the runner-up, he said. But Spillane insisted to us there was "no way" he would pressure anyone to change their scores.

—The institute obviously is fighting the drug war on the wrong front. It spends 60 per cent of its treatment funds on less than 500,000 heroin addicts in the country. But only 5 per cent of NIDA's money is used to help the more than 5 million Americans who misuse barbiturates and tranquilizers.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I noticed something in your column about giving money to God. It's a nice idea, but I don't see how I could make ends meet if I gave anything to the church. Why not just let rich people take care of it? — K.T.

DEAR K.T.: You may be poor compared with other people, but I urge you to rethink this matter. The Bible gives us many examples of people who were very poor yet still gave money for God's work. The widow woman could only give two small coins, and yet Jesus told his disciples, "This poor widow has cast in more than they all" (Luke 21:3). Paul commended the Macedonians because "their overflowing joy and their extreme poverty welled up into rich generosity. For I testify that they gave as much as they were able, and even beyond their ability" (II Corinthians 8:2-3, New International Version).

I think the real question you must face is not about your money, but about your priorities in life. Why were the Macedonians generous? It was because "they gave themselves first to the Lord" (II Corinthians 8:5). They put God first in their lives. The Bible says "God loveth a cheerful giver" (II Corinthians 9:7), and we can only be cheerful givers when we love God above all else — above our comfort, our possessions and our money. After all, all we have and all we are have been given to us by God. "For all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee" (II Chronicles 29:14). I urge you to give your life to Christ and let Him rule every area of your life, including your money.

One of the wonderful things is that God has promised to bless us when we give to Him. God will not let you down, but will bless you. Jesus said, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matthew 6:33).

Farm Killer bees more buzz than sting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stories about ferocious killer bees making their way north from South America in search of victims in the United States are more buzz than sting, the Agriculture Department says.

"Don't worry," the department said. "The ferocious insects featured in magazines and newspapers, on television and in movies are fiction. The real bees behind the fiction are not that ferocious."

Moreover, the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said today that the bees "have not been seen closer than 2,500 miles" from the southern U.S. border.

Even so, at their present rate of migration the bees could arrive in the United States within 10 to 15 years, the agency said. Or sooner if some hitchhike by ship or airplane.

The super bee saga began after wild honey bees from Africa were introduced in Brazil for breeding with local honey bees in an experimental project. Swarms from 26 colonies escaped with their African queens, however, and thrived in the wilds of Brazil.

Officials said that the "Africanized" bees turned out to be "unusually aggressive" and required special handling.

"When they are disturbed, they attack in large numbers, keep up the stinging longer and chase the intruder farther than most domestic bees," the report said. "Although the sting of Africanized bees is no more venomous than that of domestic bees, the attack of an Africanized swarm is definitely more frightening and painful — but not more deadly."

Observers also found that the hybrid bees tend to migrate greater distances, perhaps 50 miles or more when they feel the urge.

"So far, absconding swarms of Africanized bees have moved northward as far as Venezuela and westward into Peru and Bolivia," the report said. "They also have moved south into Uruguay and Argentina."

Meanwhile, in an attempt to deny the insects a free ride to the United States, Congress in 1976 passed the Honey Bee Act "to prevent bees, including their eggs, larvae, pupae or semen from being imported." Bees from Canada were exempted.

The department said persons should "face all encounters with bees calmly and carefully" whether they are Africanized or ordinary domestic insects and offered this advice:

"If you are attacked, don't run, scream or slap at bees. That only stimulates their defensive instinct.

"Instead, stay calm and freeze. Bees tend to ignore motionless objects. Then look around for the reason behind the attack."

"If you spot their hive, slowly and gently move away, putting a building, bushes or trees between yourself and the hive. Once bees no longer feel threatened, they will cease their attack."

Red meat production

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of red meat last year totaled nearly 39.2 billion pounds, slightly more than in 1976, according to the Agriculture Department.

The production figures are based on meat output by meat packers and involve carcass weights before beef, pork, veal, lamb and mutton are carved into retail cuts. Production in 1976 was about 39.1 billion pounds.

According to the annual figures, beef production last year totaled about 24.9 billion pounds, down 3 percent from 1976; veal 797 million, down 2 percent; and lamb and mutton 94 million, down 6 percent.

However, those declines were more than offset by a 7 percent increase in pork production last year to a total of about 13.1 billion pounds against 12.2 billion in 1976.

Show scheduled at Garden City

The 41st Annual Glasscock County Livestock Show will be held on Jan. 29-30, 1978, with the swine division on Sunday, and the lamb and steer division on Monday. Both activities will be in the new school bus barn in Garden City.

A barbecue lunch will be catered by Al's Bar-B-Q and served in the school cafeteria at noon with the awards and an auction sale starting at 1:00 p.m. The judges for the event will be Joe Behrands, a swine producer from Voca, Tex., and Rex Jones, a County Extension Agent from Tom Green County.

The untaxed: 'Steps to reform'

EDITORS' NOTE — To change the laws regulating tax exemption require a long and politically difficult process. Here, in the last of a three-part series, is a look at what some states have been doing to make exemptions fairer, and what tax experts feel ought to be done.

By the Associated Press

The first step in reforming the laws governing tax exemptions is to keep up-to-date records on who is not paying taxes. Most states don't.

"The question of property tax exemption must surely set some sort of record for the paucity of current, comparable data," wrote L. Richard Gabler and John Shannon in a recent report by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Nearly everyone who has attempted to tackle the tax exemption problem has hit the same stumbling block: less than half the states keep current records of tax-free property.

In 1976, for instance, Stephen E. Lile of the University of Kentucky tried to explore the problem in his state, and found that "surprisingly little is known about the amount of tax-exempt property in Kentucky because few records are maintained on such things as name of owner, location, current use, and characteristic of exempt property."

Thus the scope and depth of the problem is hidden from public view in more than half the 50 states. The taxpayer only knows his taxes are going up, but not why.

"Tax exemption constitutes a subsidy by the tax-paying public to owners of exempt property. The public therefore has a right to know the extent to which it is engaging in 'tax expenditures,'" Lile wrote.

The Associated Press asked state tax departments which do not keep such records to explain the information gap. Several responded that such record-keeping was a city or county responsibility. Others said they saw no sense in wasting staff time and money to assess property which isn't going to be taxed anyway.

The North Carolina Department of Revenue said it doesn't gather tax-exempt information because "exemptions have a fairly low priority because very little can be done to reduce them."

The Michigan State Tax Commission, which also doesn't keep records said it was because of the "expense involved."

State officials in Tennessee, on the other hand, have decided to begin a statewide study of tax exempt rolls, but they appear to be an exceptional case among states that haven't kept records before.

Aside from the time and trouble of record-keeping, tax experts note that rocking the exemption boat — even with the simple act of keeping current assessments — is not something many state legislatures relish.

Those who receive exemptions frequently command votes and dollars, including churches, universities, clubs, wealthy landholders or veterans groups.

John Coleman of the U.S. Census Bureau, who compiles exemption records for the federal government every five years has tried with little success to get local governments to keep up-to-date assessments of tax-free property and make them public.

During the meeting, the airport development needs currently identified in the Texas Airport System Plan for area airports will be reviewed. Airport pavement maintenance and rehabilitation programs will be covered. The availability of state and federal funds for airport development will be discussed. Information on area economic development, community goals and objectives, and other factors that may influence the need for, or timing of, airport development will be requested.

The Texas Airport System Plan, developed for Texas and the Federal Aviation Administration by the Texas Aeronautics Commission, was published in January 1976.

Seedlings are available

COLLEGE STATION — A limited supply of seedlings for windbreak plantings are still available from the Texas Forest Service.

Tree species available for immediate shipment include Austrian pine, baldcypress, black walnut (stratified seed), catalpa, Chinese elm, cottonwood cuttings, green ash, mulberry, ponderosa pine, Shumard oak, and sycamore.

All species of southern yellow pine as well as Virginia pine for reforestation, Christmas tree and other commercial plantings have been sold. Orders received after January 16 will be returned.

Cost of windbreak seedlings is $10 per hundred; minimum order is 100 seedlings. Seedlings may not be used for landscaping or ornamental purposes.

For applications or additional information, write the Texas Forest Service, College Station, Tex. 77843. Applications are also available from Soil Conservation District and Area offices, County and Area Extension offices, or any Texas Forest Service office.

"I don't sense any response at all. It's so sensitive they're intimidated, I suspect," he says.

Thus, ACIR for the last 15 years has called upon states to take basic steps to keep better track of tax exemptions. They repeated those recommendations this year in a paper by Gabler and Shannon. Among them were:

—An annual review of exemption privileges. This would give local government a chance to see if a century-old exemption law still has merit, or whether it conflicts with current budgetary or social goals.

—Regular assessments of tax-exempt properties. Many states protest this is expensive and wasteful, but Coleman counters that in many states, the cost of assessments would be more than made up when states root out exempt properties that really should be paying taxes.

—A breakdown of exemptions according to taxing jurisdictions and publication of findings.

Very often, both government and private exempt organizations are centered in cities. Those organizations may benefit people all over the state, but only taxpayers in the city end up paying for taxes lost and municipal services provided.

To address that problem, 36 states either allow local governments to levy limited special taxes on tax-exempt state facilities, or else the state makes special "in lieu" payments or pays service charges.

Wisconsin, for instance, has since 1973 compensated local governments for state buildings. And Virginia allows municipalities to charge for services on tax-exempt state property, libraries, charitable organizations and cemeteries.

New Jersey this year has begun paying cities nearly $11 million to cover tax losses on state buildings.

Frequently, though, tax experts like Shannon feel these payments come nowhere near compensating local governments for the true cost of carrying exempt property on their rolls.

New York State, which has one of the worst problems with growing tax exempt rolls, provides a unique example of how timidly some state legislatures confront tax exemptions.

The state has had a law on the books since 1971 that would allow local governments to charge tax-exempt institutions — including the state — service charge fees.

But the legislature each year puts off the effective date of the law so that it will never take effect.

"State legislatures have a habit of passing laws that don't take effect for two or three years. That way they get the glory of saying they are 'doing something about the problem', but then they keep putting off implementation," says Humphrey Tyler of the New York State Board of Equalization and Assessment.

Rarely do even the staunchest critics of exemptions advocate abolishing them altogether.

In their favor, exemptions promote social goods — churches, schools, hospitals and a host of beneficial and fraternal organizations.

Federal land and facilities, the largest single category of exempt property, are constitutionally exempt from local taxation, and most tax experts don't even talk about changing that.

Tax-free organizations often perform services that government or profit-making organizations couldn't do as well. It has also been argued that the taxing power of government could be used to hinder the freedom of churches or universities.

And some places, particularly university towns or state capitols like Albany, N.Y. or Trenton, N.J., might be ghost towns if not for the jobs and revenues resulting from the presence of tax-exempt organizations.

But some tax officials remain deeply concerned about abuses, the virtual lack of current review of exemptions, and by the fact that once an exemption is granted, it is probably forever.

More than 30 states grant whole or partial exemptions to homeowning senior citizens, veterans or welfare persons, but even this tax break is criticized by some who ask why the state provides an added subsidy to the needy who own homes, but nothing to apartment dwellers.

Lack of clarity in the exemption laws in many states have opened the way to unintended loopholes. Philadelphia's tax board is concerned about universities that host professional theater groups that compete with the city's private theaters. Boston is concerned about hotels and restaurants that operate tax-free at Logan Airport.

The exemptions on religious property are probably the most controversial of all. In 1970, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against a taxpayer who argued that by granting exemptions government was forcing him to support churches he didn't choose to.

New religious groups such as Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church or the Universal Life Church have put tax officials and courts in the constitutionally difficult position of deciding whether they are genuine religions.

Stephen Lile, meanwhile, questions the fairness of state subsidies in the form of exemptions to organizations, no matter how worthy, simply on the basis of how much property they own.

Jonathon Whitehead of Colorado City has become quite well known in this part of the state as the March of Dimes Caprock District poster child each year.

But this year, he has been submitted as the possible national poster child for 1979.

While talking about six-year-old Jonathon, it's a good time to mention that the Mother's March for the MOD Birth Defects Drive begins today and is in progress all week.

Jonathon was born Nov. 12, 1971, with a spinal bifida, or open spine, which is the second most common birth defect with which children are born.

When he was four hours old, he underwent his first of six surgeries in Lubbock. He has had braces and crutches to aid him in walking since he was two.

He now has a wheelchair to help him get around school at Kelly Elementary in Colorado City where he is in kindergarten. He has occupational and physical therapy twice each week at the West Texas Rehab Center in Abilene. He has also been treated at the Dora Roberts Rehab here.

His father, Gary Whitehead, operates the Dairy Queen in Colorado City. His mother heads the Mother's March in that county for the Caprock Chapter of the MOD.

JONATHAN WHITEHEAD keeps plodding along

Jonathon was special guest along with Robert Newhouse of the Dallas Cowboys at a MOD talent show two years ago and Jonathon became a Cowboy fan.

Jonathon likes people and has a winning smile and a fighting spirit that endears him to all who meet him.

His parents point out that "It's hard for us to believe that over 200,000 children are born each year with a birth defect."

Jonathon is used to adults poking around because he has been surrounded by them at treatment centers all of his life.

He has already undergone more surgery than most people endure in a lifetime.

He knows that he will never run and play like his companions at kindergarten. He doesn't exactly understand it, but he accepts it.

Jonathon appears to be happy about whatever he does get to do and with each gain he makes.

He was especially thrilled over the wheelchair and getting to go to school. After all, he's been with lots of adults. It's time to be with kids.

Kids of course, without meaning to be, can sometimes be a little bit cruel, but Jonathon has learned to accept and has a smile and spirit that are probably going to carry him a long way.

He's not griping. What is that you were just griping about today?

I was complaining about a few little nothings like making ends meet and feeling topnotch myself.

And it all seems pretty ridiculous when you look at Jonathon's smile — out where I ride fence.

Hustle 3

First class affair

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

It appears that the real thrust of this week's "Hustle" should emphasize the annual meeting and banquet which promises to be another great occasion for the Big Spring area.

You know that anything that Joni Lou Avery sets out to accomplish will be a really first class affair. She has arranged for one of the finest entertainers in the business, engaged the top professional emcee in our area, contracted a catered ribeye steak dinner and organized the whole thing to run like a well coached football team.

There are still a few tickets available at the Chamber Office, so if you had hoped to attend this gala affair Jan. 30, be sure to call the office or stop by Monday or Tuesday.

Now labor reform is certainly needed and most everyone will agree that such reform is over due, but this particular bill is NOT reform — it is rather a rip off of the American working man and of the businessman that provides him a job.

We have detailed information available at the of meeting with our elected officials — local, state and national. They also authorized the board room for the use of candidates for state and national offices to meet the public, visit with our local citizens and conduct news conferences.

All such activities will be during regular Chamber office hours and at no expense to the Chamber.

The Governmental Affairs Committee plans to conduct several panel discussions during the coming months, in order to clarify candidates' positions on important issues.

Another action of importance is opposition to Senate Bill 1883 which is referred to as the "Labor Reform Bill".

Now labor reform is certainly needed and most everyone will agree that such reform is over due, but this particular bill is NOT reform — it is rather a rip off of the American working man and of the businessman that provides him a job.

We have detailed information available at the Chamber and we'll be glad to share it with everyone. In the meantime we will be contacting our senators and encouraging them to vote against this bad piece of legislation.

And finally, you've read about our stated agricultural policy and you addition is that agriculture the entire policy was published in the paper and provided to all four of our radio stations.

What needs to be said in addition is that Agriculture is America's largest industry and if you eat, it has to be our most important industry. Well, it's time we recognized that fact and stopped taking our food and fiber production for granted.

I've said before that we all need each other and together we can build a bigger, better Big Spring area.

I'm convinced that there is nothing that we can't accomplish when we pool our efforts, our resources and our ideas, and especially when we apply some good ole' HUSTLE! HUSTLE! HUSTLE!

Dr. Wallace: I really need help. My parents caught my boyfriend and I kissing in my bedroom after they left me alone in the house. They were really mad and restricted me from using the phone, seeing my boyfriend, and going places with my girl friends.

I have broken up with my boyfriend, but the incident happened a month ago and my parents still haven't eased up. I've tried to be patient but I can't take not being on my own.

I'm 14 and I've got rights and a mind of my own. Please help me.

New president is Al Scott

Jack Woodley, who has been serving as president of the Big Spring Art Association, submitted his resignation at the Jan. 17 meeting, stating that the pressures of his job no longer made it possible for him to serve the group as leader. Al Scott, first vice president, will assume the duties of president with Robert Von Rosenberg as program chairman, Elsie Merrell to be in charge of the newsletter and Terry Patterson as scrapbook chairman.

Other business included naming James Campbell as program chairman, Elsie Merrell to be in charge of the newsletter and Terry Patterson as scrapbook chairman.

An announcement was made that the "Big Country Traveling Art Show" will be at the Heritage Museum for one month beginning Feb. 2.

Warren Cullar presented a demonstration Jan. 21 at the planetarium in Midland to which several B.S.A.A. members attended.

The annual membership competition show will be at the Howard County Library Feb. 25 and 26 with Roberta Ross serving as show chairman and the following as committee members: Bob Von Rosenberg, James Campbell, Carol Strong, Arlys Scott, Joyce Sanford and Al Scott. Each member may enter three paintings in the show. A qualified judge will be chosen and named at a later date.

Roberta Ross presented the January program, consisting of a brief description of several new art books recently published. She also told the group about different reasons that artists paint and what they attempt to convey in their works of art.

"Tipping of the Brush" honors went to Martha Conway for her picture of a gulfcoast fishing shack. Runner-up was a picture by Linda Rupard of a girl in a sunbonnet. Martha Conway's (Dalmar's) painting will be at the State National Bank during the month of February. Currently on display is a painting by Ruth Sweet which won "Tipping of the Brush" at the December meeting.

Art Association secretary Elsie Merrell announced that the following became new members during December: Dr. W.A. Riley, Paul Warren, Sherry Dills and Lola Killman.

The next scheduled meeting of the B.S.A.A. is Feb. 21 at the Kentwood Center. All persons interested are welcome to attend and join the group if they wish.

Dear Abby

Who Should Hunt Missing Ducks?

DEAR ABBY: A group of us men were lunching together at our club when a man (I'll call him Mr. Duck Hunter) said, "I've had a fantastic season and have some ducks put away for all of you."

Another man (I'll call Mr. Big Shot) spoke up and said, "My wife is an expert at preparing wild duck, so why not send all the ducks to my house and she'll prepare a duck dinner for all of us?" Everyone agreed it would be great.

Months passed and no duck dinner. Finally, Mr. Duck Hunter asked me if I'd ever been invited to Mr. Big Shot's for that duck dinner. I told him I hadn't. Then he said he had sent 12 ducks to Mr. Big Shot's house as promised, and that's the last he heard of them.

My question: Shouldn't someone ask Mr. Big Shot what happened to the ducks? And if so, who should ask?

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Yes, Mr. Duck Hunter should ask him. Either the idea of the duck dinner was just ducky with everybody except Mr. Big Shot's wife, or the birds ended up in the craws of Mr. Big Shot and all the Little Shots.

In any case, let this be a lesson to you. A bird in the hand is worth two in somebody else's freezer, so next time someone offers you a gift, don't let a go-between fowl you up.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Lori, is not quite 16, but most of her classmates are 17, and some are 18. She has been invited to a boy-girl party next Saturday night at the home of a classmate (boy) whose parents are divorced. When we asked Lori who was going to chaperone this party, she said she wasn't sure, but it would be "well chaperoned." Abby, this boy lives with his father, who has the reputation for being quite a "swinger," and somehow we can't see this father staying home on a Saturday night and properly chaperoning the party.

When we told Lori that either she would have to call and find out definitely who was chaperoning that party or she couldn't go, she became furious and said we didn't trust her. We do trust her, but do you think we're wrong in our demands?

CONCERNED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: No! Stick with your guns. There should be more parents like you.

Getting married? No matter how little you have to spend or how unconventional your lifestyle, it can be lovely. Send for Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

ABWA sponsors Cinderella Girl

The annual Big Spring Cinderella Girl Pageant will be held March 4 in the Howard College Auditorium. The event will be sponsored by the Cactus Chapter of ABWA, with all proceeds to be used for scholarships.

All girls age three through 17 are eligible to compete in one of four categories: Cinderella Tot (3-6), Cinderella Miniature Miss (7-9), Cinderella Miss (10-12) or Cinderella Teen (13-17).

A contestant may have a business or personal sponsor whose only obligation is an entry fee of $20. Entry forms are available at The Kid's Shop, Laddie and Lassie, Tot 'N Teen, The Cottage and Grigsby's Rag Doll.

Trophies and Crowns will be awarded the winner of each category, trophies to the first and second alternates and talent winners, and certificates to the third and fourth alternates.

Master of ceremonies is Carl McMillen, local radio announcer.

Practice electrical safety, protect kids

COLLEGE STATION — Practice electrical safety and protect children from potential hazards, says Dr. Carolyn McKinney, a family resource management specialist.

Remember, small children live on or near the floor within easy reach of electrical outlets. Their natural curiosity leads them to explore many potential hazards in the home, she continues.

Dr. McKinney is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Put plastic safety caps in unused electrical outlets to prevent children from sticking something into the outlets — and being shocked, the specialist suggest.

Also, unplug appliances at the wall outlet rather than at the appliance so that a child cannot harm himself with

All entries must be in by Feb. 24. For more information please call Nelda Colclazer 3-6177, Vonna Lee Cederberg, 3-1825 or Ruth Manuel 7-2654.

Pupils learn about birds

The Oasis Garden Club showed films about birds to the exceptional children's classes at Moss Elementary School Jan. 18. The program included a study of birds, both wild and domestic.

The students were shown how birds build their nests, take care of and feed their young, and hatch from eggs. The migrating habits of birds from cold to warm climates in winter and then back up north in the summer were reviewed.

The program was conducted by Mrs. Thetus Dunagan, assisted by Mrs. Henry Schaefer.

In February a program on planting rooted carrot tops will be presented by Mrs. Charles Harwell and Mrs. C. B. Lawrence.

Old Dick Young

Don't know how many of you out there read "Young Ideas" by Dick Young (found on p. 3B of today's paper), but the number must be smaller than I thought, judging by the volume of mail received here "for" or "against" that vocal columnist.

Also, don't know how many of you saw some gray-haired individual on the tube Sunday, speaking of violence in sports. If you did, take a quick look at the picture on the masthead of his column.

Quite a difference, huh? That choleric sportswriter, known for "telling it like it will be," and loved and hated for firing straight from the hip, sends out a 20-year-old mug shot to use with his prose.

I was shocked. If you saw him on TV, you saw a man in his late 50's. The firebrand face that graces these pages looks no older than 40.

Might as well tell all on the "slasher" now. Personally, I like the guy. Never met him, but I hear he hates Cosell and those dancing girls at half time. So he can't be all bad.

He's wearing out his welcome in New York, though. His hassles with the Yankees and Mets have made him persona non grata in those camps.

Billy Martin, no pussycat himself (except on beer commercials), personally escorted Young out of the Yankees' dressing room last season, and probably refrained from action more animated because the room was full of other sportswriters.

Love him or leave him, Dick Young is a force to be reckoned with in the sports media. You may not like all that he says, and he may take a few shots in the dark (like saying Sonny Liston threw the second Ali fight because of pressure from the Black Muslims), but he gets into more nooks and crannies than anyone in his field.

And just remember that when all the other newspapers in the state start using him, you saw him here first (or in the Dallas Time Herald, the only other paper in Texas that I know of that runs his syndicated column).

Check it out. Page 3B that is. He speaks of Ali today, and whether it's the subject or the weather, Young always waxes poetic when speaking of the champ.

Also, as soon as I get the okay from the party involved, another special sports feature will start appearing on these pages. And this one will be exclusive. Hint: He's older than Dick Young but younger than Old Crow.

Floyd, Watson lead Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Ray Floyd has an opportunity to acquire an item that has eluded him for 16 long years on the pro golf tour — a victory in California.

"I've never won out here, and we plan an awful lot of golf in California," Floyd said after he and Tom Watson had emerged from a mad scramble over the last few holes in a tie for the lead Sunday after three rounds of mean a season as leading money winner or something like that. You check the record, you'll see the man that comes out of California as the leading money-winner often finishes the season as leading money-winner."

Last year that man was Tom Watson. And, going into Monday's final round — the entire tournament schedule was set back one day when Thursday's play was rained out — the 1977 Player of the Year, defending champion here and winner of the 1978 Tucson Open is the leading money-winner again.

And, although 13 players were locked within three strokes of each other at the top, Watson shared the lead and ranked as the man Floyd must beat. They had 211 totals, five under par after one round on each of three Monterey Peninsula courses.

Floyd had a wildly erratic round of par 72 and Watson struggled to a 71 at Pebble Beach Sunday. That's the site for the final round, too.

Very much in contention at 212, only one shot out of the lead, were Tom Weiskopf, Dave Stockton, David Graham and Mike Morley, who once held the lead alone before making double-bogey six on the 17th. Morley finished with 68. Stockton and Graham shot 69s and Weiskopf had 71.

At 213 were Andy North, Gibby Gilbert, Don Bies, Ben Crenshaw, Hale Irwin and Tommy McGinnis. North had a 69 in the mild, sunny weather, Gilbert 72, Bies and Crenshaw 73, and McGinnis and Prwin 74. U.S. Open champ Hubert Green was alone at 214 after a 74.

Jack Nicklaus had the day's best round, 66, but remained well back at 217. Arnold Palmer shot 73 and missed the cut for the final round at 225. As a team, he and his amateur partner, former President Gerald Ford, also missed. They were at 205, two shots over the cut.

Floyd had sole control of the lead until he reached the last six holes, which stretch over the picturesque cliffs of Carmel Bay. He made double-bogey six when he missed the green on the 13th and failed to get the next one up an embankment. He made par five on the next, then bogeyed three in a row, two of them with three-putts on bumpy greens. He birdied the 18th from six feet but had to have help from Morley and Watson to regain a share of the top.

Playing behind him, they obliged.

Watson bogeyed three in a row starting on 15. Morley had it alone at that stage but handed the lead back with his double bogey.

Reds are Blue sure

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have never lacked for confidence. Take their recently-published 1978 baseball media guide, for instance. It already has pitcher Vida Blue listed.

The three-time 20-game winner of the Oakland A's has been issued uniform No. 40, according to his biographical sketch. He won't be in his familiar No. 14. Pete Rose has worn that number since 1963.

Blue's status remains clouded. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has held up the December deal that was to send Blue to Cincinnati.

A hearing on the trade resumes Tuesday in New York. The Reds paid a reported $1.75 million and gave up minor leaguer Dave Revering to Oakland for Blue.

Howard College 5's host WTC tonight

The hottest rivalry in West Texas resumes tonight on the campus of Howard College.

The two junior colleges from Big Spring and Snyder collide in Hawk Gym in what should be fast-paced and closely-played game.

The Howard College Hawks, 3-5 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play, and Western Texas, 5-3, square off at 8 o'clock, immediately following the game between the top two WJAC women's teams, the

Thrill of Pro Bowl never wears away

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Ken Houston and Tom Mack each have a decade of All-Pro honors behind them. But they and other veterans of the Pro Bowl are as thrilled to be playing tonight's game as are the like Mack, a 10-time All-Pro. "The thing is, this is the game where the best plays, and you always want to gauge yourself, to see how you're doing, and you always want to do it against the best," Houston said. "If you can have a real good game against these guys, you know you've achieved something."

Mack, a guard with the Los Angeles Rams, recalled: "When I played in my first Pro Bowl, I was in awe of a lot of the other players. I mean, these were the stars, superstars, players I'd looked up to and sometimes only read about or heard about."

And how, Mack was asked, did he feel being at the other end, looked up to by newcomers to the Pro Bowl? "Aw, I don't think that's really the case," he replied. "I don't think I'm really in the superstar category. But I'll tell you this: it's a real honor to know that I've got more pro experience than anyone else playing here and that I'm still being picked,

Spurs losing tags

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Spurs slowly are losing their tag of "all offense, no defense."

Sunday afternoon, Portland became San Antonio's latest victim. The Spurs clipped the Trail Blazers 106-95 before a standing-room-only Arena crowd of 11,489 fans. It was San Antonio's fourth straight victory.

"Our defense was like a 60-point defense," said Spurs' Coach Doug Moe. "They had a hard time getting a decent shot in the first half."

Portland shot only 37 percent from the field in the first half and star center Bill Walton was limited to just four points. He finished with 14.

Meanwhile, the Spurs' George Gervin had 13 tallies in the second quarter on his way to 34 and San Antonio led 52-37 at the half.

"Their defense was outstanding," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "They forced us out of our game. They had control and we usually have to have control to win." "This is the best game I've seen San Antonio play," said Walton. "We didn't have it today." "The Blazers turned the ball over 25 times Sqnday compared to the Spurs' 17. San Antonio was 36 of 42 from the foul line, while Portland managed only 13 of 18." "It's a rhythm on offense and a rhythm on defense," said the Spurs' Coby Dietrick. "Right now, they're flowing together and we haven't had either dictated to us."

TO BE AIRBORNE — Six out of ten possible players on the floor take to the air for the rebound during basketball action in Los Angeles, Sunday. Players making the effort, left to right, are Houston Rockets' Dwight Jones (13) and Moses Malone (24), and Los Angeles Lakers' Kenny Carr (2), Rockets' Robert Reid (50) and Lakers' Abdul-Jabbar (33) and Tom Abernathy (5).

Irish strategy payed off

By the Associated Press
When the Notre Dame basketball team opened play against UCLA, two of the Irish's best players were on the bench.

Digger Phelps wasn't playing with a handicap — he thought it would be better that way.

"I felt they had the experience to observe what was going on and then come in to help us adjust," said the Notre Dame coach.

The move proved a worthy strategy. Don Williams helped the Irish "adjust" and Bruce Flowers helped them win, contributing key points and rebounds at the end for a 75-73 decision Sunday.

"I talked to Williams early this week and explained why he wasn't starting," said Phelps, whose strategy also included starting freshman Orlando Woolridge instead of Flowers.

Williams, a senior who missed one game with a sprained ankle and saw limited action in the Irish's last two contests, said: "Last year they (UCLA) came in here and we lost. I felt confident and thought the coach's idea would work. I sat down, observed and corrected some things we weren't doing well."

"I've learned more the last three games on the bench and in the long run it will pay off," said Williams, the team's leading scorer who had 19 points in Sunday's nationally-televised game.

Flowers was just as significant a factor for Notre Dame in the late going. He converted three foul shots and grabbed a key rebound in the last 55 seconds to preserve Notre Dame's second victory of the year over the Bruins.

In other games Sunday involving ranked teams, Florida State upset No. 9 Louisville 70-66 and the touring Russian Nationals beat No. 12 Providence 78-73.

Alexandr Salnikov scored 18 points to lead the Russian Nationals past Providence. The Soviets now are 3-1 on a five-game tour.

In Saturday's action, top-ranked Kentucky beat Mississippi State 75-65; No. 2 Marquette trimmed Washington 71-63; Illinois State upset No. 4 Indiana State 81-76; No. 5 North Carolina outscored Maryland 85-71; No. 6 Arkansas defeated TCU 43-35; No. 8 Kansas edged Kansas State 56-52, and No. 10 Michigan State whipped Iowa 68-58.

Borg wins 'modest' tennis clash

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — The $250,000 Grand Slam of Tennis doesn't have the tradition of Wimbledon or Forest Hills, but it does its bit to answer the question of who is the world's best male tennis player. For the moment, it appears to be Bjorn Borg.

The stoic Swede turned aggressive Sunday and whipped Jimmy Connors 7-6, 3-6, 6-1 on clay in a three-hour match that left 8,000 spectators and a national television audience applauding the numerous clean winners and crisp rallies.

"It's just the best tennis you'll ever see, win or lose," is the way Connors modestly assessed the clash.

Borg collected $125,000 for two days' work in the four-man event. Connors earned $60,000. Brian Gottfried won $40,000 by beating Vitas Gerulaitis 6-3, 6-3 in the consolation round earlier Sunday. Gerulaitis pocketed $25,000.

Borg credited a new game plan for his victory in the fastpaced final.

"Before the match, I said to myself, 'I'm going to play a little bit different,'" he said. "I said I was going to hit the ball hard and make him run after the ball."

"Before I have been pushing the ball more and slicing more. I kept him back and I kept him on the baseline. That's very important against Jimmy. This is probably the way I should always play against him."

But Connors disagreed, blaming the loss on his own aggressiveness.

"He wasn't forcing me at all. All he was doing was playing back and hitting a lot of topspins," he said. "I did most anything I wanted to, but I just missed the ball a few inches a couple of times."

"I'm not perfect — pretty close, but not perfect."

Connors started strong, running up a 3-1 lead in the first set. He broke Borg's serve to take a 5-3 advantage, but Borg broke back and saved two match points on his own serve to

Hawks file complaint

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks have filed a formal complaint with the National Basketball Association over an incident Saturday night in which Indiana's Ricky Sobers allegedly punched Atlanta's Tom McMillen.

Atlanta General Manager Mike Gearon filed the complaint Sunday after talking with McMillen and viewing a film of the game, which Atlanta won 111-100.

Gearon claims Sobers ran into a pick set by McMillen and punched him in the stomach. McMillen had to leave the game. Sobers apologized after the game and said he did not intend to hit McMillen.

Big noise from Miami: No noise from Ali

MIAMI BEACH — The champ walked slowly, head down, past the sign on the wall which reads: "Don't spit on the floor or you can lick it up—Sully," whoever Sully is.

Such is the elegance of the 5th St. Gym operated by Angelo Dundee long before he tied up with a kid called Cassius Clay. Angelo Dundee taught the kid about professional boxing, and now Angelo laces and unlaces his gloves because nobody can teach him anything any longer.

Up the few small steps and into the ring climbed Muhammad Ali, who has changed in so many ways, including his name. Now, the latest change — he's not talking. It's not that he's mad at anyone that I know of. He claims he's just tired, and that people are tired of hearing from him, which is true, but that never stopped him before.

A GIMMICK, A HYPE

It's a gimmick, pure and simple, a hype. On Feb. 15, in Las Vegas Hilton Hotel and over CBS at home, Ali fights Leon Spinks for the title, and what can you possibly say when you're fighting Leon Spinks, who has had eight professional fights.

Before Angelo laced on the gloves so that Ali could do five rounds of practice with Mike Dokes, there would be a ceremony. It was, after all, the champ's 36th birthday, and how many heavyweights on their 36th birthday still are champion. None who have had the title, on and off, for as long as Ali.

Ali cut up a big cake that the pastry chef at the Omni-International in Miami had baked for him, and offered the first piece to Mayor Leonard Haber, who gave him a golden key to the city and a police courtesy card, which Ali can pull out the next time he gets stopped for doing 100 in his Rolls on the Sunshine State Parkway.

Ali then banged with, and was banged by, Mike Dokes. Let me tell you something, the champ should only fight on Feb. 15 the way he opened up this time. Suckers who have paid $200 to see him rope-a-dope and Russian tank, and all the other euphemisms for loafing, should have seen the action some 100 gym visitors were treated to for a buck a head.

Ali was putting on a show for a handful of newsmen who had detoured from the Super Bowl, en route home. He wasn't talking, but he was fighting, and that's better. Dokes, 19, is a non-nonsense kid. He once fought Leon Spinks in the AAU Nationals. He was 15 then, and lost a split to Leon, who was 21.

"So," said Mike Dokes, and got hit by Dokes. They really banged it. The champ went into the ring with his body beautiful covered, neck to ankles, by a blue, wet-look shirt and woolen jumper pants. The original suspicion was that he was hiding a flabby body, but after three rounds he shed the shirt, and after four he took off the head-guard.

"Key-ripes, what's he doin' that for?" moaned Butch Lewis in the audience. Butch Lewis is part of the Top Rank promotion, and a fight promoter lives in dread of face cuts that can louse up the whole show. The Feb. 15 card already has lost its co-feature because Victor Galindez, the light-heavy champ, fell off his motorbike, canceling the defense against Jesse Burnett. Top Rank's deal with CBS calls for another championship fight, or a major heavyweight match, as substitution.

"I have to get on the phone soon as I get back to New York, and see what we can line up," said Butch Lewis. A Bobick-Young bout is attractive if it can be swung.

Ali finished his slam-bang sparring and was having the gloves unlaced. Jimmy Ellis who wasn't sparring yesterday, looked up at him. "That's putting it together," he told the champ. "You looked good."

"That's more action in five rounds than you did against Evangelista in 15," I said.

"You think so? Glad you liked it," said Ali.

He left the ring and went into hiding in the small room. "No interviews today," announced Jeremiah Shebaz. The press was disappointed.

NO PREDICTIONS THIS TIME

As part of the birthday scene, some 50 orphans were to have attended, each to receive a Muhammad Ali doll contributed by the manufacturer. Ali nixed it. The orphans were disappointed.

Veronica Ali, mother of his three-week-old daughter, appeared. She wanted to tell her husband something, but was not allowed in the room. She stood outside, disappointed. "Tell him I'll see him back in the apartment," she said finally. She had bought three birthday presents for him: A fountain pen, presumably for composing poetry, a rust-colored robe, for home; and something that is a secret.

After she departed, Ali walked across the gym in a white terrycloth robe. He was questioned on the fly. "What round do you predict?"

"I ain't saying," he said.

"Do you think Spinks can go 15 with you?"

"You be the judge of that."

He disappeared back into the small room. "How about that," said Irving Rudd, publicist. "Spinks against the Sphinx."

OUT OF ROOM — Golden State Warriors' Rick Barry (24) knocks Steve Mix off balance as Barry tries to get to the basket during Sunday's game in Philadelphia. Sixers won 99-87.

Porkers to face top-shot Bear Johnson

By The Associated Press

The sixth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks, one of the nation's hottest-shooting teams, get their first look tonight at Baylor's Vernie Johnson, the Southwest Conference's leading scorer and no slouch himself when it comes to shooting a basketball.

Johnson, a 6-3 transfer from McLennan Community College, pumped in 29 points Saturday night in Dallas to spark Baylor to a 75-73 victory over Southern Methodist.

The Hogs stumbled through one of their worst shooting performances of the season Saturday night in edging pesky Texas Christian 43-35 and travel to Waco tonight to meet Baylor.

"I don't think anyone is going to stop him one-on-one," Baylor Coach Jim Haller says of Johnson, a Brooklyn, N.Y., native who is averaging 23.8 points per game and hitting more than 50 percent of his shots.

"Vinnie Johnson just plays. It's not my coaching," he added. "A coach has to have a mighty big ego to say he coaches him. He does things you can't possibly coach and I haven't put the reins on him offensively."

The Hogs had averaged 56 percent from the field — hitting 58.5 percent in their one loss to Texas — before converting a mere 37 percent in the first half against the lowly Horned Frogs.

"Regardless of what you tell players, they read the newspapers and compare scores. We were flat," Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said after the win over TCU, which lost 90-41 to Texas earlier this year and has dropped 22 consecutive SWC games.

"When you aren't prepared emotionally, your shots don't go in, you don't get the rebounds, your defense isn't quite as sharp and you're a half step slow," said Sutton. "That first 20 minutes was about as bad as I've seen in college basketball since I've been at Arkansas."

TCU's delay offense and scrappy defense didn't help matters any for Arkansas. Ron Brewer and Marvin Delph, averaging a combined 36.5 points per game, were held scoreless in the first half.

"No one was trying to delay," said TCU Coach Tim Somerville. "I certainly didn't want to. Nobody could get an open shot. Our defense had to hurt them. They had problems getting the shot and our kids did a super job."

Navratilova rally defeats King

HOUSTON (AP) — There were a couple of strings attached to the singles finals in the $100,000 Women's Pro Tennis Tournament between top-seeded Martina Navratilova and former reigning queen of women's tennis Billie Jean King.

Now there is only one. Navratilova pulled off a stunning rally to beat the six-time Wimbledon champion

King, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2, Sunday and secure her third straight singles title in the Houston stop on the Virginia Slims tour.

But the former Czechoslovakian star now living in Dallas snapped King's string of four consecutive career victories to capture the $20,000 first prize.

"I wasn't even thinking about this being the finals, I was just thinking about beating Billie Jean," said Navratilova, who now has won two of the three Slims tournaments this year.

In the first set however,

King played as if she was fully recovered from her third knee operation and Navratilova appeared prepared to lose for the fifth straight time.

King broke Navratilova in the second and fourth games and held in the fifth after one break point.

It was not until the second set that Navratilova's devastating serve and volley game started clicking. She held service shakily in the first game but by the third set there was no doubt who was in charge.

"Every time I've lost the first set to Billie Jean," Navratilova said. "I was just trying to wake up in the first set and then I finally got going."

"After the first game of the second set when I struggled but held, I started to get confident," Navratilova said.

King continued to falter in the third set, losing her serve in the fourth game after three break points.

GOOD YEAR
NEW ALL TRACTION RADIAL
Tiempo Double Steel Belted Radial

A tire that's fun to drive because it gives you the right traction for any road, any weather. In the rain, Tempo helps you avoid hydroplaning — that dangerous loss of control that can occur on rain slick pavement. Yet Tempo steel belted radials also have the stamina to endure turnpike speeds, even under a scorching sun. Thanks to gas-saving radial construction, Tempo gives you responsive handling, good mileage, as well as economy. Tempo... a lot of radial for the money!

Scissor killings probed

CAMP PENDLETON. Calif. (AP) - A Marine accused of killing two patients and injuring a security guard with scissors will be hospitalized for a month to recover from gunshot wounds that ended the stabbing spree, authorities say. Lance Cpl. Armando C. Vasquez, 20, of El Paso, was listed in stable condition Sunday after being shot twice in his upper torso by a military policeman. Vasquez would not be charged until he recovered from his injuries, he said. Vasquez had been admitted to the Naval Regional Medical Center after a traffic accident Friday that killed one Marine and left seven others injured. The lance corporal was the driver of a three-ton truck that tumbled down a ten-foot drainage ditch, and he may have been upset over the accident, which killed Pvt. Henry Martinez, 21, of Los Angeles, said another base spokesman, Lt. Charles Owen.

It was the second time this month that a Camp Pendleton Marine reportedly went on a killing spree at the base, officials added. Sgt. Earl J. Holley, 24, was taken into custody by military police Jan. 3 following a shooting and knife incident that left two non-commissioned officers dead and four others wounded. Owen said that in the most recent incident, Vasquez became unruly at the hospital and allegedly charged a security guard who tried to subdue him with tear gas. The guard - Navy Hospitalman Second Class Ivan Blake, 35, of Chattanooga, Tenn. - was reported in satisfactory condition with scissor wounds in the back, the face, both arms and a leg.

Vasquez then purportedly entered the rooms of retired Chief Warrant Officer John J. Connolly, 63, and Janet S. Merriman, 62, widow of a retired army man, authorities said. The two Oceanside, Calif., residents were attacked and died from multiple scissors wounds.

A military policeman called by hospital personnel confronted Vasquez in a vacant room and shot him about 20 feet with a .45-caliber automatic pistol, Owen said. Of the seven other Marines injured in the truck accident, two have been released and the rest were reported in stable condition with a variety of fractures, Pestell said.

He identified the hospitalized as Pfc. John H. Hawkins, 19, of Everett, Wash.; Pfc. Richard A. Mangus, 19, of Worland, Wyo.; Pvt. Paul A. Muller, 18, of Rockland, Mass.; Pfc. James M. Parrish, 18, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; and Pfc. Nelson Patino-Martinez, 19, of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Carefree life in sun or mountains 'Sunbelt' states 'boom'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many Americans no longer are just dreaming about a carefree life in the sun or the mountains. They're going there at ever increasing rates, says the U.S. Census Bureau.

In addition to rapid growth in the "Sunbelt" states, the government agency said Sunday in an interim report, there has been significant population shifts into the western mountains and the more rural northern states of New England.

"We were surprised at the very strong growth of the mountain states," said Donald Starnic, of the Census Bureau's population division.

Workshops designed for chamber of commerce "office personnel" sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce have been scheduled for three locations across West Texas during February.

George M. Thompson of Sweetwater, chairman of the WTCC Local Action Committee, stated: "The workshops are designed as a refresher course for chamber secretaries and other office personnel who have the responsibility for daily in-office operations of local chambers of commerce throughout West Texas."

Workshops are scheduled for Feb. 8 on the campus of Tarleton State University in Stephenville, Feb. 15 at Midland College in Midland, and Feb. 16 at Wayland Baptist College in Plainview.

Leading the workshop sessions will be chamber of commerce volunteers and staff members. Topics to be discussed were chosen on the basis of a recent survey of chambers of commerce in West Texas, and include telephone and office contacts, work scheduling, meeting deadlines, and working with members, directors, committee chairmen and managers.

The one-day workshops will begin at 10:30 a.m., preceded by registration at each location, and will conclude at 3:30 p.m.

Drug abuse battle plans Drug abuse costs taxpayers approximately $10 billion and kills more than 15,000 Americans each year. Permian Basin community groups are joining a year-long nationwide effort to show the public what it can do to fight drug abuse.

"Stop Drug Abuse Before it Starts" is the slogan for the 1978 National Drug Abuse Prevention Campaign. Area residents will team with the National Institute on Drug Abuse, the Texas Department of Community Affairs, Drug Abuse Prevention Division and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission to acquire the Permian Basin with ways to prevent drug abuse.

A speaker's bureau sponsored by the Regional Alcohol and Drug Abuse Advisory Council will send authorities on drug abuse prevention to speak to local civic groups, clubs and students. Posters and pamphlets discussing drug abuse may also be obtained free of charge. The Advisory Council is composed of area residents. To obtain free information, contact Arlene Miller, Alcohol and Drug Abuse Coordinator, Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, Box 6391, Midland, Texas 79701, telephone number 563-1061.
