

Actor held for Hillside stranglings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A religious part-time actor first described by police as "just another nut" has been arrested for investigation of the murders of 12 women, the victims of the Hillside Strangler.

Police said Ned Terrence York, 37, was arrested Wednesday after telephoning police and claiming responsibility for the killings in a lengthy, rambling call.

But police Cmdr. William Booth refused to call York's statements a confession, saying the man was "probably suffering from exhaustion." Booth said officers had serious doubts about his story.

Immediately after York's arrest, officers said he was incoherent, prompting Booth to speculate that York's arrest "is rapidly developing into nothing."

"This is a real no-story deal," another officer said at the time. "It looks like just another nut."

"But then he began to talk," said Lt. Dan Cooke, a public information officer for the department.

Officers said that arresting York for investigation of murder was the only way they could hold him long enough to check out his claims.

Justice Dept. launches probe

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department has launched an investigation into the death of an Ector County jail prisoner who died in custody, The Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Dan Rinzel, deputy chief of criminal investigations in the Civil Rights Department said the investigation will be an attempt to determine if Larry Ortega Lozano, 27, died as the result of actions by Ector County officers and it will be an attempt to determine if Lozano's civil rights were violated.

The announcement by Rinzel came about 24 hours after it was revealed that an El Paso County medical examiner's report said that the bruises and other markings on Lozano's body indicate the death was a homicide.

Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught had said that Lozano's death was a suicide, that Lozano beat his head against a plexiglass panel in his padded cell.

At the request of Lozano's family, Dr. Frederick Bornstein, the El Paso County medical examiner in El Paso, performed an autopsy on Lozano. Bornstein said Wednesday he had not yet released his report but did make it available to Ruben Sandoval, lawyer for the Lozano family investigating the death.

The autopsy report said "It is my opinion that the man died from extensive blunt trauma, such as beating, hitting, kicking, as well as possible small wounds with sharp instruments."

Dr. Bornstein's report concludes "Therefore, I consider the mode of death homicide. The pattern is incompatible with suicide."

Ector County Medical Examiner Dr. Krishnakumari Challapalli also performed an autopsy but has not released her findings.

She told the Dallas Times Herald that she "didn't want to be pushed or led by others" and declined to support or disclaim Bornstein's findings.

The Times Herald and San Angelo Standard Times quoted from the Bornstein report in copyright stories in Wednesday editions.

The autopsy revealed that the body of the 27-year-old Lozano had 92 separate bruises on it, showed evidence of choking and revealed extensive distortions of the face and forehead.

Masked pair kills man

By JAMES WERRELL

Two masked gunmen shot their way into the home of Enrique Longorio, 311 N.W. 10th, and then killed the 69-year-old man in his living room.

According to reports, Longorio's wife, Ofelia, heard a knock at the front door around 12:30 a.m. today. She answered the knock, and saw two men wearing ski masks standing outside.

She then attempted to slam the door on them, but the men fired two shots through the door, and Mrs. Longorio retreated to the bathroom, pulling her 13-year-old son, Arnold, with her. She was followed into the bathroom by a 21-year-old woman friend, Arland Barrera of Lubbock, who was visiting at the time.

The three were locked in the room throughout the rest of the incident.

Meanwhile, Longorio, who had been drinking coffee in the kitchen, walked into the living room to confront the two masked men. The three in the bathroom heard Longorio and the intruders arguing sharply in Spanish, the sounds of a struggle, and then several shots.

The dead Longorio was found leaning against the south wall of the living room with six shots in him. Police guess that one of the pistols was of large caliber, such as a .38 or 357 magnum, while the other was of smaller caliber, such as a .25.

Investigators learned that the men had stolen Mrs. Longorio's purse, though she claimed it contained no money. In light of this, robbery has been named as the motive for the killing, but the three witnesses will be further questioned after the shock of the incident has subsided, according to Lt. Claude Morris.

Morris also explained that the victim had, just within the last few days, begun operating the KM Service Station on Lamesa Drive, and brought home a money bag from the station Wednesday night. The bag, which was hidden under a mattress, may figure later in the motive.

Officers Jimmy Hensley and Gene Alexander were the first on the scene, and further investigation will be headed up by Detective Tony Lujan. The victim was pronounced dead by Peace Justice Gus Ochotorena.

Services are pending at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Mail truck attacked by gunmen

By MARJ CARPENTER

TARZAN — Shades of the Old West prevailed as a mail truck and a dark car sailed down a rural road south of here side by side with the drivers firing shots at each other early this morning.

Andrew Ackerman, postal inspector in Midland, today called it "probable vandalism" but Sheriff Dan Saunders of Martin County, in whose territory the shooting occurred, is investigating the possibility of an attempted hijacking.

Steve Parrish, 19, of Lubbock, was driving the mail truck from Lubbock to Midland and the shooting occurred five miles south of the intersection of 176 near Tarzan and 349 which goes on into Midland.

Parrish said he passed a dark car that was parked on the shoulder of the road about 2 a.m. As he went by, it pulled in behind him and began to pick up speed.

He said about 3/4 of a mile down the road, the occupant of the car shot a bullet into his left rear tire. This startled him and he was fighting to keep the mail truck under control, when the car pulled right up beside his window.

The mail carriers are allowed to carry guns on back roads off the main track, according to Bill Jackson, mail processor in Midland. Parrish fired a shot into the right car door of the vehicle running along beside him.

At that time, Parrish told law officials, the car pulled back and then fired several more shots with one going into the left rear of the mail truck.

The two vehicles raced down the road, with occupants firing shots at each other. The other car suddenly turned around and went the other direction, and the mail truck driver proceeded on to the Midland Post Office where he reported the shooting.

One report indicated that there were possibly two men in the dark vehicle, while the statement to the sheriff did not mention whether there was more than one.

Ackerman said the reason he thought of vandalism is that "I believe he could have forced the truck off the road or killed the driver out there in that desolate area if he really wanted."

However, the driver told the Martin County sheriff that he was busily firing back, which may have hindered a possible hijacking.

Nobody could think of anything in a mail truck that a hijacker might want.

Since the incident happened in Martin County, the investigation is being conducted by the Martin County sheriff with postal inspectors also conducting an investigation.

Treaty rejection damage warned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said today that rejection of the Panama Canal treaties would "seriously impair" American foreign policy.

The West Virginia Democrat led off the second day of a debate that is expected to last several weeks.

"Rejection of the treaties would seriously impair our effectiveness in dealing with other nations and in undertaking important foreign policy initiatives," he said. "There can be no doubt that failure to approve the treaties would have serious repercussions for our overall foreign policy."

Noting that a number of amendments have been offered, Byrd urged his colleagues to view with great care those that are "superficially attractive" but which he said could undermine the pending agreements.

Meanwhile today, President Carter met separately with two senators in an attempt to get their votes for the treaties. Afterward, Sens. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., and John Melcher, D-Mont., both told reporters they still are not sure how they will vote.

Zorinsky said he was sympathetic to the president's view but would not vote for the treaties unless his constituents wanted him to.

Melcher said he would back the treaties "if they are in good shape," with amendments to insure the defense of the canal and to assure that it would be efficiently operated after the Panamanians take it over in the year 2000.

Byrd and other supporters of the treaties are concerned that opponents might succeed in amending the agreements and forcing a reopening of the negotiations by attaching provisions unacceptable to the Panamanian government.

Byrd said the canal debate "goes beyond the specific issue of the Panama Canal to the broader question of the effectiveness of United States foreign policy and this nation's image in the world."

He noted that several amendments to the treaties have been offered.

During the first day of debate Wednesday, Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., said that while he and other opponents have no plans to seek unnecessary delays, there are "dozens of substantive amendments" the opponents will present.

The debate began with a flurry of parliamentary maneuvering and a torrent of rhetoric — but with only a handful of members on the floor for much of the opening round of debate.

For the first time ever, the American people could hear live radio broadcast of Senate proceedings as National Public Radio broadcast the debate.

Allen and Byrd, the Senate's two most skilled parliamentarians, began by establishing ground rules for the debate and future maneuvering by both sides.

For Big Spring's recovery

Permian Basin council OKs $4.3 million grant

By MARJ CARPENTER

The board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council approved a request from the city of Big Spring for a grant of $4.3 million in Economic Development Administration funds aimed at negating the effects of the closure of Webb Air Force Base. They meet Wednesday at Terminal.

This was the amount in an alternate request by Big Spring, in case Lockheed Aircraft comes into Big Spring, and includes a new hangar to be constructed for Lockheed.

The initial plan lists the city supplying $953,750 for projects which would include a new entranceway into the airport terminal area, remodeling of the airport terminal building and headquarters building, improvements of streets in the area, and separating utility meters for each building.

The funds would also go for modifications of the current water and sewage treatment plant. This would be to bring the facility up to state requirements. The city is presently under orders from the state to complete this action in order to avoid a monetary fine or an injunction against connection of any additional businesses or industries to the system.

The city's portion of the grant is actually less than it would have had to come up with for the sewer modification alone, which is estimated at $1.8 million. And this was a project it was going to have to carry out.

City officials are in hopes that full approval and work on portions of the grants will all be under way within six months.

If Lockheed receives the contract, construction of that hangar will be the initial project.

Judge Barbara Culver, Midland, made the motion to approve the funds for Big Spring. Harold Hall, past president of the board of directors, and Judge Bill Tule, both of Big Spring, were present at the meeting.

A commissioner from Odessa asked the only question about the grant, asking why Lockheed could not pay for its own hangar? Hall explained that Big Spring had to compete with Selma, Ala., which also had a base close and were making all kinds of offers trying to get the firm there.

In other grants, approval was given to a request from Upton County on a water system pre-application which would fund a 14-inch pipeline from Big Spring to Rankin and a 12-inch pipeline from Rankin to McCamey in order for them to become customers of Colorado River

Municipal Water District.

The Upton County Water District contribution of $5,375,000, which represents half the cost, will be provided through sale of ad valorem tax-supported bonds.

Operation and maintenance costs of the system, including purchase of untreated water, will be passed on to individual water customers and will, of itself and exclusive of debt service, represent a cost for water which is considerably in excess of prevailing rates in other cities of the area and state.

Other grants approved the project priorities as set forth by the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee. Fifth on that list is a grant of $38,489 for a Big Spring Major Crime Task Force. On this list each project would have to go back for individual consideration as it arises.

Action/reaction: Must identify self

Q. Is there a state law which allows a person who fails to identify himself to be prosecuted? I thought an individual had a right to "remain silent."

A. Yes, there is a statute which says a person commits an offense if he intentionally refuses to report or gives a false report of his name and resident address to a peace officer who has lawfully stopped him. Beyond that, he can remain silent.

Obituaries are invariably well read

We notice that another of the metropolitan daily newspapers is discontinuing the old-fashioned form of obituaries and will substitute the short form for everyone excepting VIPs whose deaths are of general interest.

The news periodicals in the bigger cities are, of course, having such practices forced upon them because of the lack of news space.

It has been suggested that all newspapers start charging for such news. The people who print The Herald do not agree with that kind of rationale.

Many people get their names in the newspaper no more than three times — when they are born, when they marry and when they depart this mortal coil. No section of any paper is clipped more faithfully than the obituary section.

Such clippings provide proof in most courts of law that a person is deceased. Families of departed ones are prone to save faded, yellow clippings of death notices long after other memorabilia has been abandoned or disappeared. More than a few of those are stuck in family Bibles where notices of an individual's birth might also have appeared.

The obituary section of any newspaper, especially the smaller ones, is one of the best read sections in that periodical. There's much to be learned from the old man dies. We would be less than accurate if we did not say that many of the older people consult such items to see whom they have outlasted.

Good newspaper people invariably start in that business by learning to write an accurate, interesting death notice. It's acknowledged in every news room that there is a story in every life. If the reporter is lucky, he gets to print some of the insight into that life before it ends. He is derelict in his responsibility if he does not capture some of it after death occurs. No two obituaries should read alike.

More than a few people have approached news reporters volunteering information for their obituaries, fearful that they have about used up their allotment of years on this planet. Some people may feel awkward offering such data. They shouldn't. The writer benefits from knowing such facts when he sits down to write the story.

Granted, it's difficult to sum up a person's accomplishment in 25 or even 100 lines. Still, where else does a story have such impact and such a degree of permanence? May the time never come when a paper like The Herald has to deny its readers such a service.

So you are wild and crazy about trivia! Well so am I. I am a real trivial guy.

Please to let me give to you some trivial facts.

Experimenters at the Colorado State College in Fort Collins once fed to a pack of white rabbits what they'd determined to be the typical daily diet of the average coed. One by one the rabbits slowly died.

(Meanwhile, the coeds were fed on a diet of carrots and lettuce, and started to hop around on all-fours).

"Ho, ho, ho," laughed Albert's friend, "and how long have you played the violin?"

Holding up the fingers on both hands, Einstein replied, "Eleven years."

A Los Angeles hair stylist, now retired, says he doubled his own business some years ago by posting a sign in his window to announce that he'd thenceforward decline to cut the hair of any woman over age 35. He did it as a joke, he says, thinking numerous middle-aged ladies would enjoy being seen in an under-35 establishment, but it actually worked. A lot of more fortyish females started showing up.

What was the biggest metal coin ever made? The Swedish 10-daler piece, issued in 1644. It weighed 38.5 pounds, a rectangular cooper slab 12 by 14 inches.

Why aren't you supposed to drink wine with a vinegar-and-oil salad that contains hard-boiled egg slices? Because the egg slices contain sulphur. That dulls the taste. And the vinegar taints the flavor of any wine.

If one out of every 10 people get the flu, it's an "epidemic." If nine out of every 10 get it, that's a "pandemic." What happened in 1918-19 was a pandemic. More people died of flu — between 10 and 20 million — than were killed in WW I.

(If 10 out of 10 people get it, it's the Black Plague, and it's time to move to a new neighborhood.)

(But if you stay in bed too long, your brain will become gorged with blood, causing your head to hit the floor first when you jump out of bed.)

Poor bookkeeping

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — In quest of the millenarian utopia, the federal bureaucracy is constantly undertaking new enterprises of vast scope at flabbergasting cost. Viewed in the totality of its services, our clerical government poses as a majestic benefactor of humankind. But viewed up close in its particulars, it is often uninspiring and wasteful.

All government bastions, the Health, Education and Welfare Department is perhaps the most devoted to the utopian dream and the least concerned with mundane matters. We have seen evidence, for example, that the daydreamers at HEW have left $1.6 billion in medical research funds wide open to fraud.

THE EVIDENCE is spelled out in a confidential investigative memorandum prepared for Reps. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Paul Rogers, D-Fla. As one example, the memo summarizes the results of an FBI investigation of federal health research programs at Washington's Georgetown University.

Alleges the memo: "This 18-month investigation found that federal programs had been ripped-off to the tune of over $600,000 — which lined the pockets of Dr. Frank A. Finnerty, a professor at Georgetown and a world-renowned expert in hypertension."

Yet believe it or not, HEW audited Georgetown's federal programs last spring and was about to give the university "a clean bill of health — completely missing the widespread fraud."

The Finnerty scandal is complicated, but essentially it involves the use of federal funds to pay for private pharmaceutical studies he conducted for drug companies. Finnerty allegedly charged the companies for the services the taxpayers were already financing.

An internal Justice Department document summarizes the allegations: "The evidence shows that while Finnerty was conducting research for NIH (the National Institutes of Health), he also had his staff working on drug studies for private pharmaceutical companies. It is clear that Finnerty paid employees working on these private studies from the NIH grant monies."

Despite these findings, the scandal has been handled haphazardly. In the first place, the HEW inspectors who were supposed to guard the taxpayers against the fraud not only overlooked it entirely but claimed "that they were totally unaware of the FBI investigation."

The Justice Department, in turn, has ignored the FBI's findings and declined to prosecute the case. The department explained that Finnerty had informed the medical staff at Georgetown what he was doing, NIH, meanwhile, has demanded that Georgetown University return half-a-million dollars in "fraudulent charges to the government," and Georgetown has sued Finnerty to recover the funds. Another case of alleged fraud occurred at Stanford University. This involved Dr. Leonard Hayflick, a former medical professor, who became a candidate in 1975 to head the federal National Institute on Aging.

He abruptly withdrew from the running after a confidential HEW investigation discovered that "from 1968 until March, 1974, Dr. Hayflick sold cell cultures" which belonged to the U.S. government. He allegedly "charged most of the costs associated with these sales to NIH research agreements and deposited most of the receipts from these sales in his private bank account."

IN 1974, HAYFLICK "continued the sales of the cell cultures" through a company he formed. The confidential investigative report again alleges: "The costs of these sales were charged to NIH agreements and the receipts were deposited in the corporate bank account."

Still another alleged fraud was discovered at Philadelphia's Albert Einstein Medical Center. NIH investigators discovered that in 1972 a doctor had defrauded NIH for a quarter-million dollars.

Concludes the memo: "There is this unending blind trust that permeates the health research system that is not only unbelievable but has been demonstrated time and time again to be unjustified."

Footnote: Dr. Finnerty told us that Georgetown, not himself, was responsible for any misuse of federal funds. The university administered and monitored the research grant, he said. When the federal authorities descended upon Georgetown, he said, the university passed the buck to him. "Georgetown is making me a scapegoat," he charged. He claimed that he had done no wrong and had hidden nothing from his superiors.

Dr. Hayflick is suing NIH under the privacy act. He claimed that he, too, is completely innocent. But he would not comment further because the case is under litigation.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: On the eve of 1978 legislative drive, President Carter gave his Cabinet a rousing pep talk. According to the confidential minutes, he warned that "our work will continue to be difficult" and that "tenacity will be required to get our programs through." But he declared that he's pleased "with the harmony that prevails among the Cabinet; between the Cabinet and him; and between the Cabinet and White House staff."

—President Carter has turned out to be his own lobbyist. He got on the phone to key members of Congress, for example, during the showdown over Social Security reforms. His calls helped push the comprehensive legislation through Congress. In the privacy of the Oval Office, he now regards Sen. Russell Long, D-La., as his most formidable adversary on Capitol Hill.

Cost of Star Wars

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — We are now entering a new phase in military expenditures. Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has just testified that the Soviets are making so much headway in space technology that the United States may have to allocate twice the money it spends now to develop its own outer space weaponry.

It appears that while the United States has been spending billions on earth-flying missiles, the Soviets have been concentrating on antisatellite missiles that can knock our satellites out of space. We have no choice, says the secretary, but to develop our own antisatellite weapons to knock down their satellites.

IF YOU think conventional and atomic weapons cost money, wait until you get the bill for America's defense of outer space.

Why do we need it? This is the question I asked a friend of mine who runs the Threat of the Month office at the Pentagon. My friend's job is to come up with a new Soviet threat every month to justify the spending of more money on military hardware. It was he who came up with the "missile gap," the "Anti-Ballistic Missile System" and the "Backfire bomber."

"The concept of space warfare," he said with a certain amount of pride, "is so big that you can't even put a price tag on it. Knocking down the other fellow's satellite has been the dream of military men since Sputnik. It makes war on earth almost obsolete."

"That," I said, "is not a bad thing. I'd rather fight the Soviets outside the Van Allen belt than down here on the ground. Nobody can get too shaken up over a dead satellite."

"Don't kid yourself. We would take a very dim view of the Soviets blowing up one of our satellites in space."

"But you could always send up another one," I said.

"That's not the point. There's a question of pride at stake. How would we look in the eyes of the world if we permitted the Soviets to shoot down one of our satellites, and we didn't shoot down one of theirs? We can't permit the Soviets to have a dominant position in the antisatellite realm."

"Why not?"

"BECAUSE WE'RE becoming more and more dependent on our space systems to be able to conduct warfare down here on the ground. We can hardly navigate a tugboat any more without first checking it out with a communications satellite."

"I thought everyone agreed we would only use space for peaceful means."

"We did. But the Soviet military couldn't stand the idea of sending things into space just to see what was there. So they came up with a killer satellite, which leaves us no alternative but to develop our own interceptor to blow up their satellites. Two can play the space game."

"Why do you think the Soviet military decided to go into space warfare?" I asked.

"I would imagine because they were sure we had already gone into it."

"Had we?"

"Well, we certainly were giving it some thought. When you see the other guy's satellite orbiting around you night and day, you get fed up after a while and start wondering if you can knock it down."

"So you figure we're in a whole new ball game and if we want to play, it will cost us at least 40 billion bucks."

"That's true. But don't forget that space defense has its advantages."

"What are they?"

"Well, for one thing, it takes people's minds off the threat of the Soviet's Backfire bomber."

"And I find my Attorney General... and this gentleman, innocent of any wrongdoing!"

Too much iron can cause problems

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 23-year-old son has hemochromatosis. At present, his doctor tells me he is 95 per cent cured. I have been unable to find information on this disease. Can you discuss it? — Mrs. J. P.

HEE-mo-KRO-ma-tosis is not very common. It does illustrate a broad group of diseases — the so-called "inborn errors of metabolism." Also called "iron storage disease" or "iron overload," it is the body's inability to metabolize (use) iron properly. It can occur in families, often becoming evident only after many years, usually after 30. It's more common in men than women.

Many factors contribute to it besides the usual intake of iron in the diet. Multiple blood transfusions, too rapid breakdown of red blood cells, excessive amounts of iron supplements, all contribute. But the basic problem is that the body cannot eliminate iron satisfactorily. As a result it accumulates in tissue and in organs. Problems arise.

The liver becomes enlarged, and diabetes may result because of a disturbance of the pancreas's ability to produce insulin. The skin takes on a bronze cast, hence another name for it — "bronze diabetes." Other symptoms are tiredness, loss of hair, and decrease of sexual potency. The ankles may swell if iron is deposited in the heart or liver. Iron overload knows no bounds.

Bloodletting (phlebotomy) is standard treatment, often as much as a pint a week. When a mild anemia (the reverse situation) is reached, the symptoms improve. The word "cure" is used cautiously. Further treatment is needed as the iron-overload problem reemerges. Improvement is perhaps a better word. The diabetes is treated with insulin and a high-protein, low-carbohydrate diet, as in any other form. If there is heart involvement, digitalis is used.

Because it does tend to run in families, your other relatives should be checked.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have arthritis and was taking medicine to relieve pain. After awhile it upset my stomach. I was switched to another, which was not nearly so effective. I don't know what is worse, the stomach upset or the joint pain. What should I do? — Mrs. J.S.

Some medicines that upset the stomach won't if taken after a meal or with a snack or a glass of milk. There are several anti-inflammation drugs available, and one might be easier on your stomach and as effective for the arthritis pain. When you try a new medicine, ask the doctor to prescribe a small amount so you can measure the effects. This can save waste.

Are you trying non-drug treatments, such as heat therapy exercise? Compresses, soaks, paraffin dips can help complement the medicine, and you may not need so much. Following certain rules (listed in my booklet on arthritis control) can make living with it a bit easier. If you want a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald and I'll send you one.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My little boy will be eight soon. I am concerned about his development. It's his penis I'm worried about. It just doesn't look much bigger than our three-month-old baby's. I don't know how little boys that age are and I'm so worried that he isn't developing. If he isn't, is there anything that can be done to help him? — D.B.

Calm down.

Penile sizes vary considerably and there is nothing you can do at his age to help — if, indeed, he needs help, which I doubt. Sexual growth is ahead of him yet, and you can expect normal changes at puberty. If your son is on the chubby side, that can give the illusion of smallness. If he is healthy and his "machinery" is in good order, at this point I would not be concerned. Nor would I show concern about the matter to him. His pediatrician, who you tell me you are going to consult about it, will ease your mind. I think you are suggesting hormone therapy. This would not be considered at his age. The events of puberty should be awaited.

Dear Editor:

On the agenda for the Thursday night (Feb. 9) meeting of the Coahoma school board, it is understood that the extension of the superintendent's contract will be voted on.

All interested taxpayers should attend this meeting to see how each school board member votes. This will tell you which ones condone this kind of inefficient operation.

There is no one as far as we know accusing anyone of misappropriation of funds. In reading the audit we can only see poor management and a lack of communication.

Dear Editor:

In reference to the article in your paper of Jan. 29, "Adult Mag Featuring Anita Bryant Interview," by Walt Finley:

Quote: "Miss Bryant is quoted as saying that it is not homosexual rights she battles, but a very carefully disguised ordinance (in Equal Rights Amendment) of special privilege, that would allow homosexuals to become role models in private and religious schools."

Mr. Editor, I would like very much to see this "carefully disguised" ordinance in print in your newspaper.

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Where in the Bible does it say that "cleanliness is next to godliness"? — D.M.

DEAR D.M.: You will not find this saying in the Bible, although it has been traced back to an ancient Hebrew philosopher.

While it does not occur in the Bible, the Bible does have much to say about such things as personal hygiene and the way we treat our environment. Many of the detailed laws in such books as Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy deal with matters such as personal cleanliness and responsibility. Some of these laws are amazing in light of modern scientific research because they had such sound principles behind them to keep individuals and communities free from disease.

The Bible teaches that we are to have a proper respect for our bodies, not just in terms of cleanliness but in such things as diet and exercise. Our bodies were given to us by God, and when we come to Christ we know we have a responsibility to God to use our bodies for His service. "Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your body" (I Corinthians 6:19-20, New International Version).

At the same time, there is a tendency today to glorify the physical body, as if physical beauty were the most important thing in life. If you belong to Christ, you should avoid this idea because you know that physical beauty will not last. The Bible tells us, "Train yourself to be godly. For physical training is of some value, but godliness has value for all things, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come" (I Timothy 4:7-8, NIV).

Three ex-cops could be sentenced to life in prison

HOUSTON (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Torres, the mother of a young Mexican-American who drowned while in police custody, says the conviction of three former Houston officers on civil rights violations "will not bring back my son, but may keep some other son from being hurt."

Convicted Wednesday by an all-jury of seven men and five women were Terry W. Denson, 27, whose file contains numerous citations for outstanding police work; Stephen Orlando, 22, whose father and two brothers are city policemen; and Joseph Janish, 22.

They will be sentenced March 28 by U.S. District Court Judge Ross Sterling.

The three officers were convicted on charges of conspiracy to injure and intimidate Joe Campos Torres, 23, a laborer who claimed his service training had made him an expert in karate. The policeman could be sentenced to a maximum of life imprisonment.

They also were found guilty of violating Campos Torres' rights by slapping and assaulting him, punishable by one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The jury said the officers were innocent of two other charges — that Denson, aided by the other officers, pushed Campos Torres into the murky waters of Buffalo Bayou; and that Denson and Orlando conspired to obstruct justice. Janish was not named on this count.

Denson and Orlando were tried last October in state court on murder charges. The jury in Huntsville, a town about 70 miles north of Houston where the trial was moved, rejected the murder charges and convicted the two of negligent homicide. The jury, given the right to set the penalty, gave Denson and Orlando one-year probation sentences.

Mike Ramsey, defense attorney for Orlando, said he would appeal the federal court verdict. The other two defense lawyers, Mike Andrews and Bob Bennett, said they would discuss appeal with their clients.

The body of Campos Torres was found May 8 in

Net weight changes backed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown says he approves of proposed new federal regulations on the net weight of packaged goods sold in grocery stores.

"The proposed changes in regulations will permit our weights and measures officials to return to the business of assuring customers that they are getting exactly the amount they have paid for, not 'more or less' as federal agencies have allowed," he said.

Brown said he would approve the net weight guidelines in testimony submitted Thursday at a final hearing before the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Brown said the challenge to Texas' strict laws on net weights and measures came last summer when the U.S. Supreme Court held that state regulations could not be stricter than those required on the federal level. "The court's decision had virtually put a stop to package inspections by our weights and measures personnel," he said.

Brown said Texas laws require an accurate net weight at the time of purchase while federal regulations allowed a net weight at the time of packaging.

"We feel that the latest revisions (in federal regulations) being discussed Thursday are for the good of every Texas customer," he said.

the bayou — a dirty, trash-filled stream that flows through a section of downtown Houston.

Campos Torres had been arrested three days earlier during a disturbance at a Houston tavern.

Ramsey said the conviction on the conspiracy charges, but acquitted on the count of pushing the prisoner into the bayou, "probably indicates the jury's attempt to compromise. But it sure as hell puts us in a jam."

Six officers originally were involved in the incident.

Trial testimony revealed that Campos Torres was taken from the tavern to an isolated area where he was struck and slapped. The policemen said the prisoner was shouting obscenities, attempting to kick them and claiming he could "whip all of them" if his handcuffs were removed.

Campos Torres then was taken to jail, but officials there refused to admit him, saying he should be transported to a hospital because of numerous bruises and cuts. The officers, however, admitted they took Campos Torres back to the isolated area, where he went into the bayou off a 16-foot high wall.

Carless Elliott, a rookie officer at the time of Campos Torres' death, revealed details of the case and was never charged. He testified for the prosecution in both the state and federal trials.

Glenn Brinkmeyer, a five-year veteran of the force, pleaded guilty to a civil rights misdemeanor charge in exchange for his testimony.

Louis Kinney, 27, the sixth officer involved, had his federal trial severed from his three former colleagues because he had testified against Denson and Orlando in state court.

Federal prosecutors said Kinney would stand trial within 90 days.

When the verdicts were read, all three officers stood erect and at first showed no emotion. Then as they turned to leave the courtroom, Denson began to sob.

Andrews, attorney for Janish, said, "He was crushed and I am disappointed. We will discuss an appeal later."

Bennett, a former Harris County assistant district attorney who represents Denson, said, "We will talk of an appeal. I am disappointed and although the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled otherwise, it still seems to be double jeopardy."

Chief of Police Harry

Caldwell said he was happy in the case and rendered a verdict and so be it."

And, Mrs. Torres said, "I never asked for revenge, just for justice."

The three convicted officers are free on personal recognizance bonds.

$5.75 million asbestos suit settlement

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The federal government has agreed to offer 445 East Texas asbestos workers $5.75 million, culminating what a federal judge called "the largest out-of-court settlement ever in this kind of case."

The employees filed suit in 1974 claiming they were unknowingly exposed to a form of asbestos called amosite, which has been shown to cause lung cancer in humans.

A medical study, started in Tyler to determine the asbestos effects on the employees, reports 86 of the plant's 1,081 workers have died, some of them from asbestos-related illnesses.

U.S. District Judge William Steger of Beaumont said offers from the government and private firms would total $20 million. He said he received confirmation of the government's offer in a telephone call from the U.S. Department of Justice Wednesday.

"The asbestos case has been settled. The only thing that was outstanding was the government's agreement on their part," said Steger.

A timetable to determine how the money will be paid will be worked out at a hearing next Wednesday in Steger's court. The judge said all but two of the plaintiffs had agreed to their individual settlements "and those two are in jail."

"Some have died. Some have gotten cancer and some may get it," he said, noting that some of the employees worked at the Tyler plant many years while others worked only a few months. "The lawsuit is not worth as much in those instances as in the others."

The settlement was thought by some federal attorneys to be setting an expensive precedent for the government in future asbestos actions.

However, Jeffrey Axelrad, chief of the tort section of the Justice Department, said, "It obviously settles a major piece of litigation, but we don't see it as having a precedential effect on other litigation, particularly other asbestos litigation...This should not be considered a precedent."

A 16-year plant veteran, one of many who suffers from a non-fatal breathing disease called asbestosis, said, "I would give every penny of the money back if I could have my capacity back to work again."

Computation by IRS offered

The Internal Revenue Service will compute the income tax for single taxpayers having an adjusted gross income of $20,000 or less and married taxpayers filing jointly with an adjusted gross income of $40,000 or less when deductions are not itemized. Taxpayers can use either the Form 1040A or Form 1040 to request the tax computation by the IRS.

The taxpayer's income must be solely from wages, salary, tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities for the IRS to compute the tax.

To take advantage of this IRS service, the taxpayer need only complete certain portions of his or her tax return, attach all W-2 forms, sign the return, and mail it by April 15 to the address listed in the tax instruction booklet.

The tax will be determined from the proper tax table and the taxpayer will either receive a refund for any overpayment or be notified of the amount of any tax due.

Exact details of which portions of the return must be completed in order to have IRS compute the tax appear in the tax package instructions mailed earlier to each taxpayer.

Russian flu socks cadets, midshipmen

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — In the East Coast's first suspected outbreak of Russian flu, three-quarters of the midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy have reported to sick call in the past week with symptoms that doctors say fit the pattern of the contagious viral illness.

In addition to more than 3,000 midshipmen here, several hundred people in the Washington area have come down with flu symptoms that hospital officials here say are "very likely types of A-USSR-77," the formal name for the Russian strain.

The only cases of Russian flu that have been confirmed in the United States this season, all since last month, have been in Wyoming, Colorado and Michigan. The Colorado outbreak involved cadets at the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs and recruits at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver.

All classes and military training at the Air Force Academy were suspended this week due to the outbreak, which since early last week has afflicted up to 70 percent of the 4,300 cadets there.

Only two cases were reported in Michigan, involving a 19-year-old student and a 20-year-old factory worker.

Medical authorities here are awaiting the results of blood tests, due by Friday, before confirming this new outbreak as Russian flu. But "the chances are pretty good, based on the symptoms and the age group affected," Dr. James Hodges, chief medical officer at the Naval Academy, said Wednesday.

A spokesman at Children's Hospital National Medical Center in Washington said that after taking virus samples from two outpatients, "we are 99 percent sure they have the Russian flu."

Student aid proposal weighs family's income

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many middle-income families strapped to help their children get through college would be eligible for the first time for federal grants and loans under President Carter's proposed student aid program.

Students from families making $16,000 to $25,000 a year would be eligible for outright grants of $250 under the proposal Carter is sending Congress.

The president also wants to raise the eligible family income limit for low-interest student loans from $30,000 to $45,000.

The bulk of the $1.46 billion Carter is seeking for the 1979-80 school year would go for $250 grants handed out under the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant program, which now provides annual stipends averaging about $850 to 2.2 million students, primarily from families earning less than $10,000.

The president also wants Congress to approve adding $327 million to the $540 million appropriated for federally guaranteed loans made by private lenders and $165 million to a $435 million work-study program.

Federal grants and loans can be used to cover room and board as well as tuition and other costs. The Carter administration estimates that a full school year at an average private college now costs over $4,800, a typical year at a state-supported university more than $2,500.

Here is a rundown of what each major program now offers and what Carter is seeking:

BASIC GRANTS — Stipends this school year run from $50 to $1,400, with most going to students from families earning under $10,000. The lid jumps next school year to $1,600.

Carter wants to raise the maximum to $1,800 by the fall of 1979, with a flat $250 going to students from families making $16,000 to $25,000.

Next fall, a student from a family earning $12,000 could get up to $716. If Congress approves the Carter plan, he would qualify for $1,030 the following year.

Only students who have high educational expenses and come from poor families qualify for the maximum.

The grant program weighs a family's income and assets against college costs using a complicated formula to determine how much it expects the family to contribute to the student's education.

Basic grant application forms, which are available at high schools and colleges, are reviewed by federal officials. Students can have their eligibility checked automatically by filling out Fowler show annual event?

The Big Spring Police Association hopes to make the Wally Fowler Gospel Singing Show an annual event, according to John M. Burson, association president.

With the help of local merchants, policemen are distributing a drug abuse booklet entitled, "The Community Drug Scene". Some of these books are still available at the police station.

Life PAC's basic goals

Life PAC of Texas, a newly formed pro-life political action committee with headquarters in Austin, has announced plans for supporting candidates for state office in all parts of Texas.

According to Darryl Pool, treasurer, Life PAC's basic goals are three-fold: one, to get the issue of abortion before the people; two, to get the issue before candidates and office holders; and three, to help pro-life candidates with significant financial and other support.

"There are many political action groups in Texas," said Pool, "but none dedicated to protecting the rights of the unborn. A state like Texas with strong traditional family values needs more force to oppose the 'abortion on demand' movement that tears at the fabric of our home and family values. We plan to be that force."

Pool praised the pro-life stands taken by State Sen. Walter Mengden of Houston, Rep. Clay Smothers of Dallas, and Rep. Tim Von Dohlen of Goliad. He added that life PAC of Texas will also be studying candidates' stands on issues such as ERA, pornography, homosexuality, and education.

standardized financial aid forms that many colleges require.

GUARANTEED STUDENT LOANS — Students at eligible colleges or vocational schools can borrow $2,500 an academic year — up to a maximum of $7,500 — directly from private lenders. The government guarantees repayment and, in most cases, pays the 7 percent interest until the student has been out of school nine months.

Graduate students can borrow twice as much.

Carter's proposal would make students from families with incomes of up to $45,000 eligible for this interest subsidy. Currently, only students from families making less than $30,000 can qualify.

WORK-STUDY PROGRAM — Students can apply through their college's financial aid office for jobs under this program, which uses federal aid to pay 80 percent of the salaries for part-time student workers.

Students usually earn the minimum wage. There is no income limit which families must fall under for their children to qualify.

Carter did not ask for additional funds for two other aid programs that also help students pay for their college education:

NATIONAL DIRECT STUDENT LOANS — These are the cheapest loans available to students, if they can obtain them through their schools. The interest rate is only 3 percent, with no interest charged until a student finishes school.

President Carter tried last year to kill this loan program, saying the money could be better spent under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, but was rebuffed by Congress.

SUPPLEMENTAL EDUCATION OPPORTUNITY GRANTS — These can run as high as $1,500 a year, but recipients must be in "exceptional" financial need and the college must put up enough money to match the federal grant.

$2.5 million suit lost by GM

DETROIT (AP) — Damages totaling $2.5 million have been awarded to the parents of a Detroit man who was killed when the fuel tank of his 1972 Chevrolet Chevelle exploded after it was struck from the rear.

The plaintiffs argued that the rear-end location of the fuel tank on the General Motors Corp. car was inherently unsafe.

Virtually all U.S.-built cars have fuel tanks in the same place.

It was the second major jury verdict in three days awarding damages because of explosions of rear-end fuel tanks. An Orange County, Calif., jury awarded nearly $128 million Monday to a teen-ager who was burned and disfigured in the 1972 crash of a Ford Pinto. Ford Motor Co. has said it will appeal that decision.

A Wayne County Circuit Court jury took just 3½ hours after a 3½-month trial to reach a verdict Wednesday in favor of the parents of James Marcelle Cash, 20, who died after the 1972 accident in Pensacola, Fla.

Donald Shely, the attorney for GM in the case, said GM would appeal.

"There is no vehicle in the world that could withstand a crash of that impact," Shely said. He also said there was an 800-pound difference in weight between Cash's car and the other one, a 1959 Oldsmobile.

Defense lawyer Peter Barbara said the jury apparently accepted his argument that all cars with fuel tanks in the rear are unsafe. The verdict sets no legal precedent, however, he said.

The jury award for compensatory damages goes to James and Ernestine Cash of Detroit, parents of 11 children. James, their oldest son, was in the Navy stationed in Pensacola when he was killed.

Testimony showed young Cash was traveling 15 miles per hour in the Chevelle when it was struck by a car going 70 mph. Barbara said Cash suffered third-degree burns over 60 percent of his body.

GM argued that the high speed at impact caused the explosion, not the location of the fuel tank.

Attorney Barbara said he had proven in court that positioning the fuel tank above the rear axle would be safer, and that GM had not done so because it would add $10 to the cost of a car.

Gatesville school being phased out

AUSTIN, Texas — The Gatesville State School For Boys — the involuntary home of countless Texas juvenile offenders since the 1880s — is being phased out, according to Texas Youth Council Director Ron Jackson.

"This means little Johnny will stay home," Jackson said Wednesday, referring to the various community-based rehabilitation programs now handling juveniles.

"I'm sure this is not going to go over with a lot of police and juvenile officers but you must remember, we are still operating four other institutions," he added.

The TYC board gave Jackson permission Wednesday to contact two other state agencies regarding taking over the facilities for their own use. Gatesville is the oldest juvenile facility in the state.

The other state schools are located in Crockett, Giddings, Brownwood and Gainesville. All are co-educational. Only Gatesville, since the late 1880s, remained an all-boys facility.

"In the last four years, the state has begun funding various community-based programs," said Jackson. "Five years ago, we had 1,000 boys at Gatesville. We are down to 300 now."

Jackson said he plans to contact the Texas Department of Corrections and the Texas Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation about taking over Gatesville and using the beds for their own programs.

If the TYC timetable is kept, he said the last busload of problem boys will leave Gatesville by September Winding down...

Post-season play has been spread out among the local and area schools rather well this year.

Big Spring fans were fortunate enough to see their volleyball team journey to state, the Forsan girls will be going to bi-district, and chances are that teams from Stanton, Coahoma and Sands will be seeing gray action.

Rounding up the situation:
—The Forsan girls have clinched their title in the 9-B south district. The Buff boys, winners of second half action, must still play a very strong Greenwood squad, first half victors, this Friday night in Garden City to determine the boys' bacon-takers.

—It's not official yet, but count your chickens that the Sands boys will win the 9-B north title. That might set up a repeat of last year's bi-district clash in Steer Gym between Sands and Forsan. Forsan is a much better ballclub this season, and both teams have only lost one game each. The Buffaloes are now 24-1, and the Mustangs sport a 29-1 slate.

That would be a most interesting matchup, and one that years truly wouldn't try to pick the winner in 4-3 light years. A Sands-Forsan meeting, girls' style, would also be a fans' delight. Would hate to see a loser in that one, that'll probably be played Feb. 28.

The Sands girls undoubtedly will be in a district playoff game with Klondike to see who will face the Forsan Queens. Even though the Fillies still have a couple of games to go, they are prohibitive favorites in those meetings.

—In yesterday's paper I scooped everyone with the news that the Stanton girls had won the second half championship in 5-A play.

Stanton Superintendent Russell McMeans told me he appreciated the thought, but it was a bit premature. You see, the girls still have to play Seagraves on the road Friday and O'Donnell back home next Tuesday. I guess I just became over-excited when they beat Shallowater.

The Big Red Buff boys are also undefeated in second half play, and if they can survive Seagraves in its own backyard, a tough chore, then Stanton will probably have its share of post-season teams. O'Donnell is not expected to put up much of a fight.

Coahoma's boys were also bridesmaids in football this season, and their girls still have a chance for the district bouquet in basketball. The girls lost their first game of second half play Tuesday and must win their remaining three to have a chance for the title.

Standing at 4-1, they must beat Stamford, Wylie and Ballinger, and hope that someone else knocks off first half winner Wylie along the way. They still have a chance, and that's what counts.

The poor Garden City Bearkittens. If they'd been in any other district, they would've undoubtedly won it. As it was, however, they had the unfortunate luck of being in a league with the Fearsome Forsan Queens. Garden City won all of its conference encounters, except the two with Forsan.

SORRY GIRLS!

I am a sports writer, not a photographer. Accepting the fact that I am indeed the former, by no means does the affirmation help in the endeavors of the latter.

What I'm trying to say is this, Forsan Girls basketball team: You know when I lined you up for a victory picture after the game, when you won the district championship? The flash may have gone off, but the picture, she go boom. Nothing. Zilch.

Will do better when you play Sands in bi-district, I promise... (maybe).

EQUAL TIME!

A call came into the office Wednesday afternoon concerning the report in yesterday's column about the foul in the Steer girl's game.

Not wanting to be a "Ref-downer", I always want to be known as an "equal-opportunity" sports writer. Refs are human too, you know folks.

"The referees realize they miss some calls being only human," said the caller. "They are blocked out on some situations, and sometimes a call looks differently the closer you are too it."

"But there are a lot of fouls the fans can't see that the refs can because of their viewpoint." I'll accept that, even though I would like to be the perfect stands referee in the sky.

P.S. The caller also said that the foul was a foul. Oh well, just goes to prove what I've always said... "Never say what you've always said."

THIRD BEST! — Forsan sophomore Valerie Stevens is shown here driving towards the basket during Tuesday night's 66-35 victory over Garden City that clinched the district title for the Queens. Valerie is the third-leading scorer on the team with 456 points. Julie Poyner leads the team through 30 games with 595 points. Jaylene Saunders is second with 505.

UT wins recruiting war again, best since '67

Longhorns had their finest day in the recruiting wars since they signed the Steve Worster bunch back in 1967. Akers started his day by signing Donnie Little of Dickinson. He was rated the No. 1 quarterback in the state.

There was no comment from Akers and two other SWC coaches kept a code of silence about their SWC signings until after the national letter of intent next Wednesday.

Little is a 6-foot-1, 190-pound quarterback who completed 91 of 172 passes for 1,478 yards and 19 touchdowns and rushed 128 times for 1,174 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Dickinson coach Teddy Gray said, "I told Donnie I wanted him to make up his mind and just sign with one school, that was the right way to do it. And he told me that's what he'd do."

Asked if he thought Little could start as a freshman, Gray said "I think he's got the ability to take care of himself in any situation. He'd have to learn the system. Maybe he'd be ready halfway through next season. It would just depend on how things fall."

The Texas Aggies signed what Coach Emory Bellard described as a "good crop" which included bluechippers Milton Collins, a 230-pound running back from Blooming Grove, tackle Kevin Kennedy of Conroe, and Roger Wilely of Humble, a running back rated highly by Texas Football Magazine. "Everyone we signed we feel are good football players who will be assets to our program," said Bellard.

Texas signed seven of the 15 players in the Dallas Times Herald bluechip list. Besides Little and tight end Lawrence Sampton of Seguin they included back Brad Beck of Perryton, lineman Joe Sharin of Dallas Wilson and Mike Baab of Euless Trinity, defensive back Adrian Price of Galveston Ball and Charles Brooks, a quarterback from Andrews.

The Longhorns also signed two Sillsbe players listed on Texas Football Magazine's honor roll.

Cowboy scouts packing guns now

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are packing a new sidearm aimed at prolonging their reign at the top of the National Football League.

The Super Bowl champions have their field scouts using a radar speed gun to determine how fast a quarterback throws the football.

"This is our first year of using it," Gil Brandt, the Cowboys' vice president for personnel, said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "We just bought it last summer and used it in training camp and are using it now."

The handheld gun has been used in two other sports — baseball to clock the speed of pitches and tennis to time a player's serve. But the Cowboys are believed the first to use the gun to gain information useful in drafting college football players.

The gun is also used extensively by law enforcement agencies to catch speeding motorists.

Brandt said the Cowboys purchased the gun — which is about eight inches long and weighs five pounds — from an Illinois firm for about $1,000.

The Commercial Appeal, a Memphis newspaper, reported Wednesday that Lide Higgins, a former University of Tennessee assistant coach now scouting for the Cowboys, used the radar speed gun to test quarterbacks Tim Ellis of Mississippi and Bruce Threadgill of Mississippi State.

Ellis, from Louisville, Miss., said he threw the football five times at a distance of 20-25 yards while Higgins clocked his passes.

"He held the gun and I threw right at it," Ellis told the newspaper. "My worst time was 46 miles per hour and my best 51, so I felt good because he told me that (Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach averaged between 42 and 52."

Brand, credited with being the first in the NFL to use computers to evaluate player talent, said the electronic gadgetry wouldn't replace traditional recruiting methods.

"What it's going to do is to speed up your operation and take a lot of guess-work out of it," he told the Associated Press.

Rhodes files damage suit

CHICAGO — Former Chicago Bulls player Rich Rhodes filed a $3.75 million damage suit against Lucius Allen and the Kansas City Kings claiming his National Basketball career was ended when Allen punched him.

Rhodes suffered a broken jaw and soft tissue injuries when Allen hit him in the face during an exhibition game last Sept 30 in Champaign, Ill.

O'Brien suspended Washington for 60 days and fined him $10,000. Washington was traded by the Lakers to the Boston Celtics and is scheduled to return to action Friday.

David Stearns, the NBA's regional counsel, advised the Rockets that O'Brien would not enter into the dispute.

Patterson said attorneys for the Rockets are determining when and where the suit will be filed.

Tomjanovich has filed a suit against Washington and the Lakers in state district court here.

Atlantic Coast Conference keeps college ranks hopping

By the Associated Press

One thing you can tell about the Atlantic Coast Conference is... you can never tell about the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The most unpredictable of basketball leagues, the ACC lived up to its zany reputation Wednesday night when two of its ranked members were defeated within the conference and a third almost lost its footing.

Duke surprised 13th-ranked Virginia 100-75, Clemson shocked 14th-ranked Wake Forest 91-81 and Maryland threw a scare into No. 7 North Carolina before succumbing 66-64.

"I was glad to see us break out shooting," said Duke Coach Bill Foster after watching his Blue Devils make 61 percent of their floor shots. "I can't say an awful lot. We did it all."

So did Clemson, apparently. The Tigers made the league's other Bill Foster happy.

"I thought the seniors really did a job for us," said the Tiger coach, especially impressed with Jimmy Howell's 12 rebounds. "But we still have a way to go. I hope this will help to build our confidence more."

North Carolina just got by with the help of its notorious Four Corner Offense, which Phil Ford directed for the last 14 minutes, and Al Wood's field goal with 35 seconds left.

Elsewhere in college basketball, No. 8 Kansas routed Missouri 72-52, 15th-ranked Illinois State stopped Western Illinois 97-79 and No. 19 Nebraska whipped Kansas State 63-50.

Three other games involving ranked teams weren't played because of bad weather conditions — Holy Cross at No. 4 Notre Dame, CCNY at No. 17 Detroit and Boston College at No. 20 Providence.

In other games, Kurt Kanaskie's jumper with one second left led La Salle to a 64-62 victory over American University; Larry Harris scored 27 points as Pitt trimmed West Virginia 87-76; Rick Swing's 26 points led The Citadel to an 85-82 decision over Furman; Wayne Abrams' jump shot with four seconds remaining provided Southern Illinois with a 60-58 triumph over St. Louis University and Dave Broadus fired in 18 points as Drexel upset St. Joseph's 88-77.

Fast-pitchers to meet

The first organizational meeting for the Big Spring Church Fast Pitch Softball League will be held Feb. 16 at 7 p.m. in the Evangel Temple Assembly of God Church, 2205 Goliad.

Any church interested in having a team this season should have a representative in attendance.

The league, one of the last, if not the only, fast-pitch church league in the state consisted of nine teams last year and had its best season in its history, according to spokesman Terry Wilson.

The league winner last season was Midway Baptist, managed by Don Ritchey, and the tournament winner was Nazarene, managed by Cotton Mize.

TSU cutting coaches

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University President Dr. Granville Sawyer Wednesday terminated the contracts of seven of the 10 assistant football coaches at the Southwestern Athletic Conference school in a move to bring spiraling costs under control.

"We had to invoke a program of austerity, and the only place that there was any possibility of reducing the cost was at the level of assistant coaches," Sawyer said.

The only football coaches remaining are Head Coach Wendell Mosley, who has one year remaining on a three-year contract at $300,000 annually, and two assistants, Audrey Ford and Jim Sorey, who earn $13,000 annually.

Under terms of the cut-back, Ford and Sorey must earn part of their salaries by teaching classes.

"We went into a deficit situation in athletics extending back a couple of years," Sawyer said. "And at our budget hearings this past spring we made it clear to the athletic director (Dr. Rod Paige) and all of the coaches what our position was."

Sawyer said athletic department salaries were cut from $167,600 to $119,533 prior to the start of the 1977-78 season.

The present football budget provides for two more assistant coaches at an annual salary of $7,708. Those positions have not been filled.

Henry Harvey, one of the assistant coaches released, said the timing of the announcement came at a bad time, with the NCAA national letter of intent signing day only eight days away.

Graham leads Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — David Graham, playing in only his second tournament of the year, shot a 6-under-par 66 to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Playing what is considered the toughest of the four courses being used for the tournament, Bermuda Dunes, the 31-year Graham shot a 34-32 to take the lead over Peter Oosterhuis, Dave Eichelberger, Vic Regalado and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Women's softball meeting planned

Carolyn Yeager, president of the Big Spring Women's Softball Association, announced today that the association will hold its seasonal organizational meeting Feb. 28 in room 219 of the VA Hospital.

Any woman 18 years old or older, interested in joining the league, should be in attendance.

Top racquetballers named

The Big Spring YMCA held the City Racquetball Tournament the past weekend. Three divisions were being played at this time. In the novice division, Tom Balderach defeated Donnie Hughes for consolation. Roddy Caffey defeated John DeNardo 21-7, 21-16 to claim first place.

In the B Class, Terry Newman defeated Lenny Prudhome 21-8, 21-10 for the consolation trophy. Roy New defeated Bob Anderson 21-8, 21-13 to win the number one trophy in that class. In the Open Class, Gary Goswick defeated Pat Weaver 21-17, 21-15 to claim the consolation.

E. C. Roberson seeded number one, defeated the number two seeded Louie Smith 21-4, 21-20 to claim first and second respectively.

The Racquetball League of Big Spring is planning to have tournaments every three months. An Invitational Tournament will be held at a later date, so all men and women should start playing if they are interested in playing in these upcoming tournaments.

4-H Food Show winners share prize recipes

If you missed the Howard County 4-H Food Show held Feb. 4 at the First Methodist Church fellowship hall, here's a second chance to taste those award-winning recipes.

There were 18 juniors and 4 seniors entered in the four classes of breads and desserts, main dishes, side dishes, snacks and beverages. Pictured here are those who will be going on to attend the District 6 Food Show to be held March 4 in Crane. Senior winners of the district competition will compete in the statewide competition at College Station in June.

Judging the Senior Division was Ruby Butts, retired County Extension Agent of Snyder. Juniors were judged by Mrs. Cliff Hazelwood, accompanied by Marcia Martins, an exchange student from Brazil who is staying with the Hazelwoods, and Amy Hazelwood of Stanton.

Barbara Williams, Assistant County Extension Agent of Colorado City and Mrs. James D. Johnston, chairman of the Home Demonstration Council, presented each Food Show participant with a gift set of wooden utensils, provided by the Home Demonstration Clubs, along with their ribbons. Seniors were also given awards from the Morrison Milling Company.

If you weren't one of the 80 guests who sampled the food at the Tasting Tea which followed the competition, try some of the following recipes out on your family and find out for yourself why 4-H produces some of the best cooks around.

slightly and barely coats a spoon, about 12 minutes. Cool to room temperature.

4. Combine fruits and marshmallows, mix gently with sauce.

5. Whip cream with rotary beater; and 1 teaspoon of vanilla, and about 6 tablespoons sugar to whipping cream.

6. Fold whipping cream into combined fruit mixture.

7. This could be chilled for 24 hours or served soon after preparation.

8. Before serving: If desired, top with orange sections and mint leaves; Serve the Hawaiian Fluff with freshly baked Date-Crumb Gems.

DATE-CRUMB GEMS
 1/4 cup shortening
 1/4 cup sugar
 1 egg
 1 cup sifted flour
 4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 1 cup graham cracker crumbs (about 11 crackers)
 1 cup milk
 3/4 cup chopped dates

1. Cream shortening and sugar until fluffy in a large mixing bowl; add egg and combine thoroughly.

2. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, and nutmeg. Add graham cracker crumbs.

3. Add flour mixture to shortening mixture alternately with milk. Stir in chopped dates.

4. Spoon batter into greased custard cups, filling them about half full. Bake until nicely browned.

5. Time: bake 25 to 30 minutes; temperature: 350 F. moderate oven; amount: 12 muffins; dishes: 12 5-ounce custard cups.

dishes. Place eight rolled manicotti, seam side down, in a single layer; top with five more, cover with 1 cup more of sauce; sprinkle with Parmesan. Bake, uncovered, 1/2 hour or until bubbly. (Microwave cooking: 5 minutes uncovered).

To Freeze: Line baking dish with large piece of foil, assemble as directed. Fold foil over to seal, and freeze in dish. When frozen, remove dish. To serve: unwrap; place in baking dish, and let stand 1 hour to thaw. Bake, covered, 1 hour in 350 oven.

Note: I have found that stacking the five manicotti over the eight can cause problems with serving. Although the recipe advises doing this I try to keep the manicotti in one layer, especially for freezing. They freeze very well.

How To Select A Lingerie Gift

If you'd like to buy a Valentine's Day lingerie gift for the woman in your life, here are a few tips that will help you select something both of you will enjoy:

- Try to find out her bust, dress or panty size before shopping. You don't have to tip your hand by asking her directly; look at the labels in her clothes.
- If you're embarrassed, clear the air by admitting your embarrassment to the salesperson.
- Try expanding her wardrobe by giving her some of the new sleepwear that also can be worn for lounging or entertaining at home.
- If in doubt about color, think of what colors she prefers in other kinds of clothing.
- Get hints by asking her what she thinks of styles of lingerie you see in magazines, movies or store windows.

TWEEN 12 and 20 Getting high won't solve problem

Dr. Wallace:
I'm 16, a girl, and I smoke marijuana. I started smoking pot because my mom is always yelling at me, so I went out and bought a bag and got high. Now, just to escape from hearing her, I get high before I come home.

Tonight she said I could go out until 8:30 so I'm having my girlfriend write this because I'm too high. I hate my mother because to her everything I do is wrong.

Please don't answer my letter by mail because if it's addressed to me, I find it in my mom's room. I need help!

T.C., Sacramento, Calif.

Dear T.C.:
Getting high is not solving your problem. It might make you forget for a short time, but after your high is gone the problem still exists.

Why is mom always yelling at you? Is it possible that you do aggravate her?

Regardless of why, you can help matters. Go to her and tell her you love her and that you want your relationship with her from now on to be positive and happy. Do it! It could change your life.

Dr. Wallace:
I need your help. You see, I'm 14 and met a guy two months ago. We were just going out, but I loved him a lot and I thought he loved me. Well — when I found out he was using me, I told him off. He got mad and refused to talk to me. After a lot of my tears, we became friends. Then one of his friends told me he was spreading rumors about me.

Now I'd like to ignore him but I like him too much. I just can't forget him.

The reason why it's hard to forget him is that I made love to him and I'm sorry that I did. It meant a lot to me, but it wasn't anything to him.

Sue, Longview, Wash.

Dear Sue:
I'm printing your letter so other girls might learn from this very typical situation. Needless to say, don't date this guy again. If you should, you're asking for trouble!

Dr. Wallace:
I'm 16 and I've got a problem — girls, three of them. There is this girl at school who is nice looking and I like her a lot but I don't know if she likes me.

I met another girl at a school dance and I call her often, but I haven't met her parents even though her mom seems to like me. I can tell by talking with her on the phone. I met girl No. 3 at a New Year's Eve party and I've been seeing her once a week. I really like all three of these girls but I don't know what to do. Can you help me?

Danny, Michigan City, Ind.

Dear Danny:
First of all, let me assure you that you don't have a problem. There is no law that says that you can't date all three girls.

Be in no hurry to tie yourself down with a steady girlfriend, for when you do it could last for a long time.

A GREAT BOSS — Scenic Chapter ABWA member Delores LaVier nominated her boss, Mike Paul of Gamco Industries Inc., as the 1978 Boss of the Year due to the great respect he shows for his employees. ABWA agreed that Paul was the perfect boss to receive the 18th annual award, presented to him on Bosses Night, Tuesday.

ABWA elects Paul 1978 Boss of Year

By EILEEN McGUIRE

Mutual respect was the main reason given by Delores LaVier for nominating her boss, Mike Paul, as the 1978 Boss of the Year at ABWA's annual Bosses Night Tuesday.

The letter nominating Paul was read to ABWA's Scenic Chapter members and their guests following a banquet held at the Big Spring High School cafeteria. In her letter, Mrs. LaVier said, in part:

My boss came to our company (Gamco Industries, Inc.) as a staff illustrator and with his background in photography and audio-visuals has risen to the position of manager of the Graphics Art Division which includes the departments of art, photography and printing.

When my boss was given the opportunity to manage the print shop, he decided to learn the shop from the ground up by learning to operate every machine himself so that he could understand the problems of printing from the point of view of his employees. This he has accomplished and today, those employees respect his opinions and in return, he has respect for them.

Further attributes listed were Paul's participation in the YMCA Gray-Y Football program, team pictures of which decorate the walls of his office, and his contributions of time and talent to the city of Big Spring, such as producing several brochures including "Historical Big Spring" and "Birds of Howard County."

Community contributions also include designing the Seal of the City of Big Spring during the bicentennial celebration for which he received a certificate of award from the Bicentennial Committee and the Key of the City from Mayor Wade Choate.

During 1977, Paul served as co-chairman for the first Annual Arts and Crafts Festival and played an active role in promotion and restoration of the Potton House.

Paul and his wife, Hallie, are the parents of a daughter, Kris, 13, and son, Bill, 12. They moved to Big Spring in 1966 after a term in the Air Force where he served as illustrator in Texas and at the European headquarters of the U.S.A.F.

Prior to his enlistment in the Air Force, he graduated from the American Academy of Art and worked for the National Safety Council for several years.

Paul was presented with the Boss of the Year award by Ray Lawlis recipient of the 1973 Boss of the Year honor.

The guest speaker of the evening, introduced by Shirley White, was William L. Albright, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce. During his talk, he reviewed Big Spring's achievements during 1977, which he termed as "one heck of a year," and presented "Big Spring Update '78" in which he listed 1978 goals of the Chamber of Commerce for the city.

How is Big Spring recovering from the loss of Webb? According to Albright, "Big Spring ain't even going to get sick!"

Lou Thompson led the invocation and pledge of allegiance which preceded the program part of the evening and all were welcomed by Scenic Chapter ABWA president Geraldine Dietz.

Serving as toastmistress was Joyce Moore.

Kay Winn presented a history of ABWA which begins their membership drive in March. According to Ms. Winn, ABWA was begun back in 1949 by a St. Louis Mo. man who had the notion that business women could benefit from each other if such an organization were available.

Today, in its 30th year, ABWA claims 1300 chapters and 96,000 members in all fifty states and Puerto Rico.

One of its most noteworthy projects is its scholarship program for women, including a $5,000 Founders Scholarship and $2,000 Presidents Scholarship in addition to scholarships on local levels.

A vocational talk was given by Deloris Albert, a professional figure consultant, who is filling a community need with her attempt to open a Spencer Medical Support garments shop in Big Spring next month, particularly beneficial to mastectomy patients.

Bosses Night was brought to a formal close with a benediction given by Nancy White.

Chairman of Bosses Night was Billie Barron and serving as publicity chairman was the Scenic Chapter's "Woman of the Year," Zenia Haston.

Speech Team acts for club

The Big Spring High School Speech Team entertained members of the 1955 Hyperion Club at their meeting Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Walter Ross.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. H. C. Ernsting and Mrs. James R. Watson.

The program was presented by the team, which is sponsored by Janice Cook. They explained that their impromptu group acting as exercises is designed to make people more extroverted.

Among theatrical techniques performed were "Street Interviews" before make-believe TV cameras, with the subjects of the interviews proposed by members; "Word Life," a game in which each student said a different word in his character, developing a continuous plot on a subject supplied by the women; and "Action Transmission" and "Entrance Makes an Exit," other dramatic exercises.

With a little encouragement some of the braver women joined the young people in their exercises, and club members were impressed with the talent exhibited in the program.

The speech team has had an exciting year, winning 15 first-place trophies, eight second places, two third places and six fourth places. Among those performing for the club were juniors Joe Edwards and Carol Morehead and sophomores Chris Smith and Sandy Kuykendall.

Blum's gives buying tips

Jerry Thurman and Ralph Brooks of Blum's Jewelers were guest speakers at the Thursday morning meeting of the 1970 Hyperion Club, which was held in the home of Pat Anderson.

Mrs. Anderson and Barbara Hull co-hosted the meeting.

Brooks gave tips to members on buying jewelry. He explained that it is a good idea to know with whom you are dealing before buying anything. He talked about carat weight, color, cut and clarity of diamonds and how no two diamonds are alike.

Brooks also bought samples of such gems as diamonds, garnets and topazes.

The door prize, contributed by Brooks, was a silver chip and dip dish won by Elizabeth Brown.

The next meeting will be Mar. 7 in the home of Yvonne Ivie.

Arranging flowers shown

"Flower arranging for the Spring Flower Show" was the program presented by the program presented by Edna Womack at the Tuesday meeting of the Big Spring Garden Club.

The group met at Dora Roberts Community Center with Mrs. G. M. Anderson and Mrs. Robert Stripling serving as hostesses.

Mrs. Womack displayed many beautiful flower arrangements on segment tables, and explained how line, form, pattern, texture and color are important in displaying segment tables.

She showed three types of segment table flower arranging: free form, abstract and Japanese.

Mrs. Womack said that in free form, color is most important; in abstract, voids are most important; and in Japanese, following through with the curves of the container is most important.

Guests at the meeting were Vera Grows, Jane Johnson and Mrs. Guil Jones.

Iva Lou Parker and Mrs. Bill Sanders will host the next meeting which will be in March.

Coming events announced

The Home Demonstration Council met Feb. 6 at the Howard County Extension Office with Coahoma Home Demonstration Club members as hostesses.

Pat Johnston, council chairman, called the meeting to order. A devotional on time, how it is used and what it means to the individual and the community, was given by Mrs. A. C. Hale.

Girl Scout cookies make great desserts

By EILEEN McGUIRE
On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to obey the Girl Scout Laws.

The above Girl Scout promise, together with the ten laws of honesty, loyalty, helpfulness, friendliness, courtesy, humanity, obedience, cheerfulness, thrift, and cleanliness in thought, word and deed, comprise the Girl Scout code expressed through word and action by four million girls throughout America as well as girls in 87 countries around the world.

The Girl Scout motto "Be prepared" and slogan "Do a good turn every day" are further reminders to each Girl Scout of what Girl Scouting is all about.

First brought to this country by Juliette "Daisy" Low in 1912, the purpose of Girl Scouting is to join the church, home and school in inspiring girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service. The organization strives to help a girl to be first a good member of her own family, then of her neighborhood, community and nation, and finally the world.

As a member, each girl learns skills in homemaking, arts and crafts, music and dancing, literature and dramatics, health and safety, sports and games, and out-of-doors, community life and international friendship.

The program is geared to the needs and interests of four age levels, beginning with Brownie Scouts, for ages six through eight. Brownies are off to a good start in their development through the use of the three B's — be discoverers, be ready helpers, and be friend-makers.

COOKIE TIME — Kathryn Burrow of Brownie Troop 340; Nancy Haridson, Brownie Troop 290 and Lois Haridson, junior scout troop 77, are among the many Girl Scouts selling cookies this week in Big Spring. Lois was top salesman here last year, selling 298 boxes.

through 11, introduces the girls to a wide variety of interests and provides them with the opportunity to try new skills and by doing so, to earn badges. Cadette Scouts, for ages 12 through 14, strives to give scouts a sense of pride in their work accomplishments and a desire to build for themselves a meaningful place in life. Senior Scouts, for ages 15 through 17, further develops a girls sense of civic responsibility, poise and greater selectivity of interest. Vocational exploration is one of the features of this group as each prepares to leave high school and make her place in the world.

According to Kitty Reynolds, a Girl Scout from second through ninth grade and now serving as Field Executive of West Texas Girl Scout Council, Inc., for local troops, Big Spring troops number 18 with a total membership of 218 girls, 32 adults.

"Many more girls want to join, but we don't have enough leaders," she said.

In addition to producing good citizens, Girl Scouts also produce good cookies, as anyone who has tried them can attest. This week, the local Girl Scout troops are carrying on the tradition of Girl Scout Cookie Sales, proceeds of which go toward a variety of projects, but in particular, improvements of Camp Boothe Oaks in Sweetwater where Junior, Cadette, and Senior Scouts spend one to two weeks each year learning out-of-doors skills in the forty wooded acres.

According to Ms. Reynolds, Girl Scout cookie drives have been going on year after year since it was begun shortly after the founding of the American program. Back then, mothers of scouts made cookies for their daughters to sell.

Ms. Reynolds said they still have some Girl Scout calendars left from the November sale. If you're interested in being a badly needed Girl Scout leader or missed out on the calendar sale, contact Ms. Reynolds at the local district office, 2005 Gregg, or call her at 263-1364.

And for those of you, who think you bought too many cookies this year, do not fret. Ms. Reynolds said you can do almost anything with the shortbread cookies and the thin mints are excellent crumbled over or layered with ice cream. In addition, all Girl Scout cookies freeze well.

Whether you bought too many or too few cookies, here's some dessert recipes that'll make them go a long way as well as give you some new ways to enjoy them. You might even discover a special dessert or two of your own.

ORANGE BALLS
1 pound Girl Scout shortbread cookies (rolled fine)
1 stick margarine (melted)

1 (6 ounce) can orange concentrate
1 box powdered sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 can coconut or toasted slivered almonds.

Put all ingredients in mixing bowl, except coconut. Mix and knead until smooth. Roll into small balls, then roll in coconut or almonds. Place in refrigerator to keep. Makes six dozen.

COOKIE SOUFFLE
1 cup scalded milk
12 cookies-broken
4 egg yolks
½ teaspoon vanilla
4 egg whites
pinch of salt
Pour milk over cookies, add well beaten yolks and cook in a double boiler until thick, cool. Add vanilla and stiffly beat whites & salt. Put in pudding dish, set in pan of warm water. Bake 325 degrees for 35 minutes. Good served with chocolate sauce.

BANANA-COOKIE-PUDDING
Place layer shortbread cookies in dish, add layer pudding, layer of sliced bananas. Repeat layers. Chill before serving.

STRAWBERRY WHIPPED CREAM-COOKIE COMPOTE
(Using shortbread cookies)

Layer cookies in dessert dish, add layer of chilled strawberries and top with whipped cream.

APRICOT WHIP
(Using stewed dried fruit sweetened to taste)
½ tablespoon plain gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup hot apricot syrup
¾ cup crumbled shortbread cookies
1 cup whipping cream
12 stewed apricot halves

Soften gelatin in cold water; add to hot syrup and stir until dissolved. Cool and chill. When slightly jellied & beginning to set, whip until light and fluffy. Fold in crumbled cookies and whipped cream. Place the apricot halves in bottom of mold and stand shortbread cookies around the edge. Pour in gelatin mixture and chill until firm.

DATE & NUT ROLL
(Using shortbread cookies)

1 dozen Girl Scout Cookies — broken but not too fine
¾ cup chopped dates
4 marshmallows — cup
1 cup chopped nuts
½ cup whipped cream
Combine the above — saving ½ cup crumbs. Mix well and roll up with ½ cup crumbs on the outside. Wrap in waxed paper and put in refrigerator at least 5 hours. Cut in slices and top with whipped cream.

Thinks It's Time For Dad To Move

DEAR ABBY: One year after Roy and I were married, his father, a 68-year-old widower, came to visit us for "a few months." That was three years ago, and he's still here.

He's a nice enough person, but Roy and I have no privacy in this one-bedroom apartment. Dad sleeps on a sofa bed in the living room and comes with us wherever we go. I'm 30 now and Roy is 32, and we want a baby, but until his father leaves it's out of the question.

Dad has three other children (all married) who have invited him to live with them, but he prefers living with us because we live in California and the others live in New Jersey. He's in good health for his age, but all he does is eat, sleep, read and watch daytime TV. (We can't watch TV after 10 p.m. so he can sleep.)

Forget about letting Dad live alone. His family wouldn't hear of it.

I hate to complain to Roy because he's such a sweet guy and thinks it's his moral obligation to look after his father. But I just want to be alone with my husband, Abby. Am I being selfish? Our marriage is beginning to suffer from this arrangement? Is there a solution?

THREE IS A CROWD

DEAR THREE: Yes. Tell your husband that it's time for "Dad" to divide his time among the other children. You are not selfish; it's a matter of survival. And if your husband is the "sweet guy" you say he is, he'll see it your way.

DEAR ABBY: Am I wrong for objecting to the following idea? My daughter-in-law wants to give a baby shower for her niece, who has been living in Alaska for two years. This niece is 14-years-old and is not married.

My daughter-in-law says her niece's school chums OWE her that. She says nobody has to know that the girl is not married.

Maybe I'm old-fashioned but it looks like greed to me, and I can't see where anybody "owes" this kid anything.

I realize this girl is in a tough spot, but I just don't feel like going along with this kind of shower.

If you say I'm wrong, I'll send something for the baby.

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: The only reason to send a gift is because you WANT to. It's not "wrong" to send a gift under any circumstances, but nobody "owes" anybody anything.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23 and Peter, the man I'm engaged to, is 32. I love him very much and he says he loves me, and I guess he does, but I don't know why.

Peter is an engineer and he's had a very good education. I never went beyond the seventh grade. When we are with his friends, I'm always afraid I'll say the wrong thing, then everybody will know how dumb I am and Peter will be ashamed of me.

He says I am fine and I shouldn't worry about what to say, but by the end of the evening I'm so nervous and tied up in knots that I'm trembling. How can I get over this feeling? Folks tell me I'm pretty, but that's not enough. Can you help me?

SICK WITH FRIGHT

DEAR SICK: If you can write, you can read. And if you can read, you can learn. Read your newspaper and keep up with the current events. That's a beginning. And don't be afraid to speak up.

If Peter were "ashamed" of you, he wouldn't introduce you to his friends. Even with your limited education, you are probably a lot brighter than you think you are. Look into taking some classes in adult education. It will do wonders for your confidence.

Do-it-yourself pregnancy test may cause problems

The Texas Medical Association says the new at-home pregnancy test ultimately may either help or hurt a pregnant woman's health.

Assuming the test is somewhat reliable (the manufacturer claims 80-97 per cent accuracy depending on the situation), the new kits could give women advance notice so they could begin proper prenatal care quickly. Doctors believe the early months of pregnancy can be the most critical in a baby's development so a woman needs to take good care of herself in order to have a healthy baby.

But some women are not convinced about the importance of prenatal care. When a woman goes to a medical facility to get a pregnancy test, personnel there have an opportunity to explain risks and benefits of prenatal activities ranging from sexual relations to taking aspirin. Now some women may never seek medical care at all during pregnancy.

TMA says all women need prenatal care so they will be aware of the dangers of certain drugs and viruses during pregnancy. Even healthy women may have pregnancy complications or dietary deficiencies detectable only by medical examination.

Since many factors can influence the outcome of a pregnancy test, women may want to see a physician to confirm or deny the kit's results. Especially if a woman is considering an abortion, pregnancy should be absolutely confirmed before she undergoes the risk and expense of a procedure that might be unnecessary. Manufacturer's data say there is a 97 per cent chance the new test is accurate if it is positive. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration says it will monitor the test for accuracy and other factors.

Some physicians fear a false negative result on the at-home test could disguise a condition called ectopic pregnancy. This false pregnancy occurs when a fertilized egg lodges anywhere besides the uterus, the normal place where a fetus develops. Cramps and bleeding eventually occur. Doctors can detect this condition very early and take steps to remedy it before risks increase even more.

The company that manufactures the kit says a woman should repeat the test a week after the first negative test if she still is not menstruating. If the second test is negative, the woman should see a doctor immediately.

TMA says several circumstances should trigger a visit to a doctor: 1) if the at-home test is positive; 2) if the test is negative and menstruation does not occur soon; 3) if the results are negative and a woman wants more accurate confirmation at a physician's office.

The manufacturer says there is a 20 per cent chance the new test is wrong if it reads negative. The manufacturer then advises buying a second test a week after the first one if menstruation does not start soon. If that test is negative, the manufacturer says there is little chance of pregnancy but a woman should see a doctor because a medical problem may have made her miss her period.

Agricultural Problems?

The Public Is Invited To See A Free Film

Produced by Jerry Litton, the late Congressman from Missouri who was killed in an airplane crash along with his wife and son.

The film, 30 minutes in length, was made for an address to the White Farm Implement Convention. It has been shown to agricultural groups every night since then. It is of interest to farmers, landlords, businessmen and the consumer.

Snowiest winter ever?

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Winter of '77 was one of the coldest on record for the eastern half of the United States, the Winter of '78 may be remembered as one of the snowiest ever.

Forecast Center in Kansas City. "This year we are running way ahead of normal for blizzards," he said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "These have been terrible blizzards....

For the handful of Easterners who may not know, it's been a bad year for blizzards, says Allen Pearson, director of the National Severe Storms

January was the snowiest month ever for Cleveland, where 42.8 inches of the white stuff piled up. South Bend, Ind., was blanketed with a record 86.1 inches.

A story to tell

with Marj Carpenter

Artists hunt everywhere for scenes like the one above. They like to paint them. And the reason they are popular is that so many people look at them and make up stories about what happened there.

LIKE AN OLD WEST PAINTING...northwest of Coahoma

I started out with a slim lead hunting down the people who lived in this house and ended up with about a four generation story on the McGregors.

George married Lelia Echols when he was young. They also had a home north of Coahoma and it was brick. Another McGregor home was where the mother and Laura lived when they moved into town. That McGregor home still stands in Coahoma.

Now the McGregors that lived in this particular house out near the R-Bar School off Salem Road were the Virgil McGregors. Mrs. Gladys Keith of Big Spring, Virgil's daughter lived there five years while she went to R-Bar School and then the family moved closer to Coahoma where she finished school. She still owns the nearby farm land and looked at the house the other day, but decided she didn't want to go in and rummage around.

Gladys said she remembers well her days in the R-Bar school, which was from 1920-25. She said that when the McGregor family bought an old homestead when they first came out, they were three miles southeast of Coahoma. They lived in a dugout the first year and then built a home which later was remodeled and bricked. Nearly everybody that settled around Coahoma appeared to have come in the first quarter of the 20th Century. There was a lot of stirring around then. The old West frontier was gone and people were hunting for a place they could have a little land of their own.

But the McGregor family just seemed kind of interesting — so I went to asking around a little bit. There was a Grandpa who was killed while fighting for the Confederates in the Civil War and then his son later died in Jones County and is buried there along with his

WTCC opposes canal treaty

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has voiced strong opposition towards possible ratification of the Panama Canal Treaties pending before the Senate.

Joe A. Kloesel, Chairman of the WTCC National Affairs Committee stated, "that the Chamber's Executive Committee at its regular quarterly meeting held in Odessa adopted the position firmly believing that proposed ratification would not be in the best interest of the United States."

In a resolution the WTCC called attention to the fact that the Panama Canal has provided and continues to provide a significant service to the United States, Panama and countries throughout the world. The Canal, since its completion, has been vital to the security and economy of the United States.

The Chamber pointed out that a valid concern regarding ratification is the question of Panama's ability to properly manage and maintain the Canal.

The WTCC resolution questions the contentions of some treaty proponents that giving up the Canal would promote great improvements in goodwill towards the United States.
