Ruling may mean $150 million for state

Hughes' home was Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — A probate court jury needed only 30 minutes and one vote to decide that the late Howard Hughes was a legal resident of Texas and that the so-called Mormon will was a fake.

After 10 weeks of testimony and the introduction of more than 1,000 documents, the three-woman, three-man panel met for about 90 minutes, including the time needed to get administrative matters out of way, to check briefly the evidence, and to announce its verdict.

Jurors said the vote was unanimous on the first ballot, and another legal step was taken to solve the puzzle of where the millions of dollars in the vast estate should go.

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill said he doubted if the case would go through the federal courts because "all our evidence indicated that Hughes, if asked where his legal residence was, would have said, 'Houston.' That's where he was raised, that's where he made his fortune, that's where he paid his federal taxes, that's where he registered for the draft, that's where he was headed when he died and that's where he is buried."

Frank Davis, chief attorney for the temporary administrators of the estate, was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

Contacted later at his Houston law office, Davis said, "I was no present when the jury reported, but I am disappointed because I feel the evidence shows strongly that Mr. Hughes was not a legal resident of Texas."

The verdict by the jury, which included two persons who were not native Texans, could mean millions in inheritance taxes for the state.

Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock said he was pleased with the outcome and "there is no doubt that it will mean many millions of dollars."

He said the Hughes estate is now being audited by a private appraisal firm hired by the Internal Revenue Service.

"Obviously, this matter is going to be litigated some more. But there is no question now that Texas stands at the head of the line."

Hill said the inheritances taxes would be between $25 million and $150 million.

The co-administrators of the estate, William Lummis, 38, a cousin of Hughes; and Annette Gano Lummis, 89, an aunt, wanted Nevada ruled as the legal residence of the late eccentric recluse. There is no inheritance tax in that western state.

Frank Dallas, a member of the jury and a native Texan, told newsmen, "There just wasn't any evidence to prove that Mr. Hughes was not a Texan. There was too much testimony from the top people in Summan Corp., and all had something to gain. "I would say that Howard Hughes was a man without a country, but the evidence showed us he was one of us (Texans)," he said.

Another member of the jury, Barbara Weil, a native of Chicago and now a Houston real estate salesperson, said, "We listened to all the evidence and we were convinced that Mr. Hughes was a legal resident of Texas. There was nothing to prove it otherwise."

Military could dig coal if needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has broad emergency powers to ease the coal strike's impact, ranging from having the military dig coal to giving Americans free firewood.

But government sources say Carter is not yet ready for any such dramatic role, opting instead to let the states set power curtailments while encouraging negotiators to break their deadlock.

Energy officials, who asked not to be named, said Carter probably will take no major action as long as he believes the negotiations that resumed Wednesday night at the White House might settle the coal strike which began Dec. 6.

The officials also said the federal government would not impose emergency measures until the states have a chance to do all they can.

Carter was meeting with the governors of 12 states today. The officials said it was possible he would urge them to curtail all non-essential electric consumption, a move that could stretch coal supplies substantially.

But, should the situation worsen, the president does have powers to provide at least emergency relief. Here are a few:

—He has legal authority to impose mandatory electricity saving on the states.

—He can seek a court injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act requiring striking miners to go back to work for an 80-day cooling-off period.

However, that would involve a substantial chance of failure. Union leaders say miners would refuse to work without a contract settlement, even under court order.

—He can declare a national or regional energy emergency and use his authority under the National Energy Act to allocate available coal supplies to areas most in need.

If coal shortages eventually force widespread power reductions, industries and businesses may start shutting down, putting hundreds of thousands of employees out of work.

The latest federal survey, not yet made public, reported that as of Feb. 11, the east-central states had coal stockpiles adequate to meet requirements for anywhere from 47 to 110 days.

Ohio reported only a 47-day coal supply, and Tennessee and West Virginia reported 51 days each. Missouri reported a 53-day coal supply; Illinois, 54 days; Maryland, 64 days; Virginia, 67 days; and Indiana, 69 days.

However, supplies also vary between companies. Indiana's largest utility says that at midnight Monday it will drop to a 40-day supply, a level that will trigger the first mandatory power cutbacks, covering nonessential commercial lighting. Partial cutbacks will be extended to schools, businesses and homes when supplies reach a 30-day level.

After negotiators reach an agreement, the pact must go to the union's bargaining council for acceptance, which could take a number of days.

Approved there, it goes to the rank-and-file, where a ratification election would take about 10 days. And miners say it will be about two weeks after ratification before coal is moving in substantial quantities.

PIPELINE HOLES HIS SPECIALTY — John Roberts prepares to install a sleeve over a hole in the trans-Alaska oil pipeline. Roberts had previously plugged the gash with a temporary patch. The Alaska State Troopers say the hole was caused by an explosive charge, and that it was the result of a sabotage attempt. See story, p. 3A.

Carter urges special effort to end strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is prodding negotiators and meeting with a dozen governors in a double-barreled effort to deal with the increasingly disruptive 73-day coal strike.

Carter called bargainers from both sides to a rare White House session Wednesday night in an attempt to get the strike settled before it seriously harms the country.

Officials said the session, which lasted slightly more than an hour, went smoothly and that talks would resume today at the Labor Department. However, sources who asked not to be identified emphasized that large differences remain.

The session, the first nighttime labor talks at the White House in a decade, established ground rules for today's bargaining.

That session was expected to focus on narrowing union-management differences. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said the talks will be "almost continuous."

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller also expressed satisfaction and said he was "most anxious to get down to business." Asked whether he believes industry bargainers are ready to do the same, he replied, "they don't have any choice."

Industry officials left the meeting without talking to reporters.

Carter, meanwhile, called in governors from the states most directly affected by the strike for a late afternoon discussion of measures to alleviate hardships. Officials said the talks would range from moving coal into areas of shortage to lifting environmental curbs on use of some fuels in certain areas.

Governors from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Wisconsin were invited.

Although Carter has broad emergency powers to deal with the strike, ranging from sending the military to dig coal to giving Americans free firewood, energy officials said the president prefers to let negotiations continue and urge the states to take what action they can, such as curtailing non-essential electricity usage.

Carter personally kicked off the negotiating session in the Roosevelt Room, telling bargainers for the union and Bituminous Coal Operators Association that the nation is "looking to you men" to find a quick settlement in the longest continuous coal strike in history.

RARE SUNSETS — Scenes like this one, with the sun setting behind a West Texas windmill, are usually commonplace around Big Spring, but not so during this February. The sun has rarely been out from behind clouds enough to be visible as it drops below the horizon, but Monday, when this picture was taken, skies were clear. According to the U.S. Experiment Station, the Big Spring area has seen totally overcast skies for 14 of the sixteen days since the beginning of February.

Young farmer cheered in ag panel hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young farmer from Mississippi brought hundreds of protesting farmers to their feet cheering at a congressional hearing today when he declared they want to improve their economy "the American way."

"We want to do it without violence, we want to do it the way it is supposed to be done," said tall, 27-year-old Albert Datcher Jr., who grows soybeans and cotton on a farm his great-grandfather started in Harpersville when he was freed from slavery.

He was one of two blacks among the 300 or so supporters of the American Agriculture Committee hearing.

When they sat down again, Datcher said, "I told them I might get carried away today, I have such anger and such fear in me that it won't be done that way."

He said he wouldn't cite pages of statistics about the farm situation in his Shelby County or the nation. "You already know this. We trusted you to help us out ..."

"You know, you don't pay our salaries. We pay yours ... You are supposed to represent us. It doesn't appear that way."

"You're smiling. You know, it seems that what we say goes in one ear, you smile and it slides out the other ... If you're going to do something, do it now!" Datcher said, to more cheers.

Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, sitting in for Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., abruptly noted that Datcher's panel's time was up and called the next witnesses from the Colorado-based group.

State court upholds local man's sentence

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday against an appeal by W.J. McNew Jr., Big Spring, and upheld the district court's right to deferred adjudication.

McNew had originally been placed on five years probation in 118th District Court on charges of stealing a cow. His probation was revoked in connection with a robbery and he was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

McNew appealed on the grounds that the 10-year term was unlawful, but the state upheld the sentence, saying that the deferred sentencing procedure was constitutional.

According to Assistant District Attorney Don Richard, the result was welcome. "We worked very hard on preparing our brief for this," said Richard, "and we believed we were right."

"If this ruling had gone against us, we would not have been in trouble, but it would have meant that our farms were unusable and some of our other deferred adjudications would have to be reexamined."

Mexican journalists strike to protest reporter's death

CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — The assassination of investigative reporter Roberto Martinez Montenegro, who exposed drug trafficking and government corruption in northwest Mexico, set off a journalists' strike here and a protest from the national journalists' union.

Martinez Montenegro, a 32-year-old reporter for El Noroeste, was shot as he sat in his car Monday. He died Wednesday, and 150 journalists on 20 papers in Sinaloa went on strike.

The strikers said they were stopping work "because of the climate of insecurity and the lack of guarantees in Sinaloa, which have given rise to a wave of crimes which include among their victims journalists Mario Carlos Falcon, Jose Guadalupe Mendivil Payan and Roberto Martinez Montenegro."

Five juveniles arrested for $5,700 house burglary

Five male juveniles have been arrested by Big Spring Police in connection with the burglary of the home of Lawrence Oliver, 400 N.W. 9th.

On Feb. 7, burglars swept through the Oliver home, stealing over $5,700 worth of merchandise. The intruders snatched a .357 magnum revolver, a color television set, a 12-gauge shotgun, six boxes of bullets, three watches, three rings, two antique gold pillboxes, three beer steins, a set of china plates and $20 in pennies.

According to investigating detective Avery Falkner, the suspects range from 12 to 15 years of age. Two have been released to their parents, while the other three will probably be released later today, said Falkner.

The only item so far recovered from the burglary was a watch.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Tax on labor

Q. Is there a state tax on labor as well as on the sale of an item? What's this world coming to, anyway?

A. The state comptroller's office says that sometimes a tax should be applied to labor. Labor and services in their purest forms, like carpet cleaning and haircuts, are not subject to the sales tax. The services of a lawyer or doctor are not taxed. However, the cost of labor involved in installing or altering an item (such as an automobile muffler) are taxable.

Offbeat: Repo baby sale

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—For Sale: One Baby, repossessed because of non-payment.

It may be a joke, but state health officials claim that's what a woman's letter indicates happened.

For eight years now, the health department has contacted parents of all newly-born children to encourage them to start immunizations.

One mother replied: "I had to go to the state hospital to have (baby's name). They kept dunning and we couldn't pay so they repossessed her. Check with them on her shots.

"Thank you."

TV's best: John Denver

John Denver will host an all-star cast in a musical special filmed outdoors in Australia. Guest stars include Robby Benson, Debby Boone, John Newcombe, Susan Saint James, and Lee Marvin. The special airs at 7:30 p.m. on channel four.

Inside: Health plan skirmish

Bumped family sues

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Austin family wants $50,000 for the way it was treated when "bumped" off a Braniff Airways flight and then bused from Dallas to Austin.

In a suit filed Wednesday in an Austin district court, Thomas E. Manley said he, his wife and four sons were returning Nov. 27 from a Thanksgiving holiday trip in California. When they reached Dallas, the suit says, they were told they were not guaranteed seats on a flight to Austin "since Braniff was overbooking all of its flights that day." Manley said his reservations had been confirmed for three months.

When the family reached the boarding gate, they were told they could not board the flight. The suit says the Manleys remained in the boarding area but did not get on the plane. A Braniff representative asked them to follow him to another area where they were confronted by two Dallas police officers who advised Manley he would be arrested if he attempted to board the flight.

Manley says passengers who arrived after the Manley family were put on the plane.

The family was given seats on a Braniff bus that took them and about 20 other "bumped" passengers to Austin.

Fifth suspect caught

HOUSTON (AP) — The FBI reported today the arrest of a fifth suspect in connection with an alleged plot to kidnap the son of Houston business magnate Kenneth Schlitzler.

Robert R. Frank, special agent in charge of the Houston FBI, said authorities have arrested Armando Luna, 51, of Houston, aboard the commercial vessel Valley Forge in Sewaren, N.J.

Frank said Luna had been charged with conspiracy to kidnap Douglas Schlitzler, 21, a student in Tucson, Ariz. Frank said Luna would appear before a U.S. magistrate at Newark, N.J.

Authorities earlier announced the arrest of four other men in connection with the alleged kidnap attempt.

Kiss, Caddy stolen

AUSTIN, Texas (A) — The operator of a women's dress shop in northwest Austin lost more than money to a knife-wielding bandit.

The thin, spectacled blond also stole a kiss and Marge Bradley's new Cadillac.

Mrs. Bradley said the man came into her store in midmorning Wednesday and bought a sweater for his girl friend. When the sweater was wrapped and the sale rung up on the cash register, he pulled a knife.

"Don't move and don't make any noise," he said. Then he made the store owner and her mother, Lydia Thompson, crowd into a dressing booth. Before rifling the cash register, he planted a kiss on her forehead and made her kiss him on the cheek.

Then he drove off in her 1978 Cadillac.

Insurance company cleared

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — American National Insurance Co. did nothing improper in the denial of health coverage to Mrs. Ricky Goforth of Borger, the State Insurance Board said Wednesday.

The board had ordered an investigation following reports that Mrs. Goforth was denied coverage after she suffered a heart attack and gave birth while in a coma.

The Goforths had applied for insurance before she had the heart attack, and notice of rejection came after she was hospitalized in December.

Mrs. Goforth, 18, remains in a coma.

"Investigators went to Borger, Amarillo and Galveston to interview those connected with the case, and found nothing to indicate that the company had acted improperly," the insurance board said.

Truck driver struck blind

EL DORADO, Kan. (AP) — A truck driver suddenly struck blind while driving on the Kansas Turnpike was "CB talked" to a safe stop by another trucker whose name he never learned.

Francis Gilmore, 43, of Grand Rapids, Mich., said he went blind as his 40-ton rig, carrying eight new cars, sped along the turnpike east of El Dorado.

"I knew there was a box (tractor-trailer) behind me," Gilmore recalled Wednesday night. "I started hitting my brakes, I was all over the road. He kept saying 'Take it easy, take it easy.'"

As the two trucks sped along, the other driver kept feeding instructions to Gilmore, who admitted he was panicky.

"I owe my life to that man, he was really calm, really beautiful," Gilmore said. "Get calm, just get calm. Go to your right, go to your left...you're getting up to the edge, you're on the shoulder," Gilmore recalled the trucker telling him.

Then the comforting words, "You're okay now. Just shut it down."

Gilmore asked the trucker to go ahead for help. That was the last Gilmore heard of him.

A Kansas Highway Patrol trooper took Gilmore to the office of an El Dorado eye doctor, Dr. K.B. Dellett.

Dellett said Gilmore had "a very uncommon" condition, but that an examination of his eyes

FRANCIS GILMORE showed nothing permanently wrong. He would not comment further on possible causes of the condition.

Dellett also said he believed Gilmore's sight might be restored in a week or a month, but there was no way of knowing. He added that Gilmore would likely undergo further tests.

Gilmore spent the night at a local motel, awaiting the arrival of his employer, Terry Keiger of C and J Transport, Lansing, Mich., who was to fly to Kansas today to return Gilmore to Lansing.

He said he knew cars were headed toward him on the four-lane turnpike, which is separated only by a grassy median.

YOUNG READER — Arthur (Tooter) Trevino, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. (Tito) Trevino reads the Herald daily — or what part of it that he can with the vocabulary of a kindergarten student. And, almost every day since November of last year, he has waited the daily arrival of the newspaper, many times waiting outside by the paper box. He regularly asks how people like himself got their picture in the paper, and wished he could "see myself" in the paper. So, Tooter, this is for you.

Deaths

Jerry Neely

LAMESA — Jerry Neely of San Marcos, one of two Southwest Conference basketball officials killed in a light plane crash Tuesday, was the son-in-law of a Lamesa family.

The Rev. and Mrs. Alvis Cooley, minister of the First United Methodist Church in Lamesa, are the parents of Mrs. Ruth Neely.

Neely was an associate professor at Southwest Texas State and his mother is associated with McMurry College.

He had filled the pulpit at the Methodist Church in Lamesa several times last spring.

Danny Birdwell

Services are pending for Danny Birdwell, 38, who died suddenly in Huntington Beach, Calif. on Tuesday.

A former pro football player with the Oakland Raiders, Birdwell was a native of Big Spring.

An autopsy is being performed in connection with the sudden death. It has not been determined whether burial will be in California or Big Spring.

Survivors include his wife, Diane, three children, his mother and three brothers.

Louise Morris

Mrs. Oscar (Louise) Morris, former Big Spring resident, died in LaMarque Wednesday.

She lived for many years in Big Spring and recently moved to LaMarque to live with her daughter, Mrs. Siverine Kirschner.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Friday at the James Crowder Funeral Home in LaMarque. Other services are set for 10 a.m. Monday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Benningfield

Mrs. C.G. (Velma) Benningfield, 71, died at 7:05 a.m. today in a local hospital.

Services are set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with Byron Corn, minister of the 11th and Birdwell Church of Christ, and Bill Yasko, minister of the Sunset Church of Christ in Lubbock, officiating.

Graveside services will be at 4:30 p.m. at the Resthaven Cemetery in Lubbock.

Born Aug. 22, 1906 in Coleman County, Mrs. Benningfield married C.G. Benningfield on June 16, 1923. They came to Howard County in 1967 from Lubbock.

Judge snags demolition

A temporary injunction signed Monday by District Judge Ralph Caton has halted the City of Big Spring's demolition project in at least one instance.

The injunction was signed under a $300 bond posted by Guy Heffington, who alleges that the city's action to tear down his building at 1506 West 3rd is unfair.

Heffington alleges in his suit, which was filed Feb. 10 in the District Clerk's office, that he has made improvements on the property recently, and that he houses tools, automobile parts, and antique cars in the building.

A hearing to consider whether to make the injunction an order is scheduled for Feb. 23 in 118th District Court.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Siverine

Frank Marin

Frank Marin, Sr., 68, died at 4:55 a.m. today in a local hospital after a sudden illness.

Services are pending at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Survivors include her husband, C.G. Benningfield of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Harvey (Dorothy) Lacy, Lubbock, and Mrs. Jett (Sue) Hoggard, Big Spring; five grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Grandsons will serve as pallbearers.

She was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include her husband, C.G. Benningfield of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Harvey (Dorothy) Lacy, Lubbock, and Mrs. Jett (Sue) Hoggard, Big Spring; five grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Truancy problems aired in Stanton

STANTON — The problem of truancy was brought to the Stanton Independent School District board of trustees by a group of citizens.

Lupe Hinojosa and five other spokesmen from the southside Community Action Council asked for action on truants.

Hinojosa presented a list of over 30 names of students enrolled in school not attending classes. He seemed to believe it was the responsibility of the school rather than the parents to force children to attend.

Russell McMeans, superintendent, pointed out, "The school would like to see all children in school. We have written letters to some threatening legal action and in some cases have gone to their homes to check on them. But the situation is a losing battle if the parents are not concerned."

The board agreed to meet with the county commissioners and the county attorney and see if they can use legal force to make children attend school.

In other action, the board discussed microfilming school records, named James Jones as election judge for the school trustee election and voted to extend the contracts of Wayne Mitchell, high school principal; Bill Young, junior high principal and J. M. Yater, elementary principal.

They also extended David Thompson's athletic director contract for another year and voted to purchase a new 59-passenger bus.

Barbecue sale Saturday

A barbecue will be held Saturday at the Baker A.M.E. Church at 10th and Lancaster.

They will serve beef, pork ribs, and chicken, along with potato salad and beans. Plates are $2.50 or the barbecue sells for $2.75 per pound.

Call 7-2940 for orders to go or lunch will be served at the church.

Sands FFA rope awards

The Sands FFA took five steers to the San Antonio livestock show over the weekend, and had several in the show.

Steve Parker exhibited a third place medium-weight Angus steer and a fifth place lightweight Maine-Anjou steer. Jackie McDonald exhibited two seventh place steers, a lightweight Angus and a lightweight Simmental.

Debra Shortes also exhibited a medium-weight Maine-Anjou steer at the show.

For the record

An account of circumstances surrounding the emergency landing of an aircraft on IS 20 east of Coahoma Saturday night, which was carried in Monday's edition of the Herald, was not complete in that it did not give proper credit to members of the Coahoma Police Department.

Coahoma Police Chief Joe Corey assisted in the operation, helping to secure the Cessna 1 aircraft after it had landed. Corey later drove the two occupants of the plane, Robert Lukens and Ralph West, to Stanton.

Lukens and West were later able to get the airplane air-borne and return to their home in San Angelo.

Harris Lumber plans renovation

The Harris Lumber and Hardware Company, 1609 E. 4th, will soon be 29,000 square feet larger, according to owner Bert Harris.

"It will be a complete renovation of the yard and the store. Weather permitting, the work should be completed by the first of April," he said.

When completed, the lumber yard and store should cover nearly the whole block bordered by Third, Fourth and Franklin. Total area will be enlarged from 40,000 square feet to 69,000 square feet.

A new 40-foot by 100-foot steel building will be constructed at the rear of the yard for storage of a variety of building materials. In addition, the storage building now used will be moved to the front of the lot to enlarge the yard itself, which will be completely repaved.

The store building will be enlarged by 3,220 square feet, and more shelving and display aisles will be added. The store will feature pre-cut lumber and plywood inside the store after renovation.

Two races spotlight Glasscock primary

GARDEN CITY — Two contested races highlight the Democratic primary in Glasscock County this year.

The longtime county and district clerk, Mrs. Vena Lawson recently resigned for health reasons and the office is run by Betty Tate, deputy.

Mrs. Katherine S. Wheat and Mrs. Mary Lou Overton are the two candidates for this position.

In precinct four, Commissioner Curtis Palmer is opposed by Jerry Robinson.

The district judge's race also has a contest there with James Gregg and George Thomas, both of Big Spring, as the two candidates.

In the county commissioners race for precinct two, G.R. Pearce is unopposed and Mrs. Johnnie L. Cyfert is unopposed for county treasurer.

J.E. Woolen, who replaced John Robinson as justice of the peace on Feb. 1 is unopposed for that office.

Police beat Music lovers strike

Burglars hit two homes in the city Wednesday.

An eight-track tape player and two stereo speakers were stolen from the home of David Scott, 555 E. 7th, sometime between 6 and 9 p.m. Wednesday. Loss was estimated at $250.

Intruders used a pitchfork to pry open a kitchen window at the home of Rosalinda Brown, 315 N.E. 10th, and gain entry. Stolen were a combination tape recorder-radio, a cassette tape recorder and $40 worth of frozen food.

Reports also stated that $1,000 worth of damage was caused to belongings in the home. Total loss was estimated at $1,149.

Someone absconded with $1,523.80 worth of receipts from the Kent Oil Co., 902 Lamesa, Monday. According to reports, it could have been an inside job.

An angry man made a mess at Charlie Brown's Lounge, 1214 W. 3rd, 10 p.m. Wednesday. According to reports, a man inside the lounge was drinking, became enraged, flipped over a pool table and knocked a panel from the front door. He then disappeared on foot.

Damage has not been estimated.

Vandals cut two tires on a car belonging to Dave Grayson, Palmer House, while the car was parked outside the Tap Room, 8 p.m. Wednesday. Damage was estimated at $80.

Four mishaps were reported Wednesday.

A vehicle driven by Elva B. Lollar, 1312 Elm, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at the intersection of FM 700 and West Highway 80, 9:03 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Alex R. Castillo, Plainview, and Jamie C. Armstrong, 1816 Benton, collided at West 17th and S. Gregg, 1:56 a.m.

Vehicles driven by Joe Bond, O.K. Trailer Park, and Steven Ayers, Sterling City Route, collided at 100 W. 4th, 3:30 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Ba Mai, 1101 Ridgeroad, and Donna Dugger, 106 B.E. 15th, collided at 1100 Goliad, 5:20 p.m.

C-C directors okay ag resolution

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors met Wednesday and approved an agriculture resolution suggested by the agriculture and business committees jointly.

The resolution, which came out of a meeting of the two committees, was drafted after discussion with a number of area farmers who attended the meeting. The resolution read: "The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce supports agricultural producers in their pursuit of more appropriate production limits in conjunction with supply and demand principles and urges the United States Department of Agriculture to work toward more realistic loan prices and departmental loan rates."

Johnnie Lou Avery made a report on the annual banquet on Jan. 30. Such banquets are notoriously known for finishing in the red financially, but the Chamber did show a profit in this year's banquet.

The Chamber also published a 1977 annual report handed out at the banquet; the report includes the Chamber's accomplishments in 1977, as well as its program for 1978.

Bill Albright, executive vice president of the Chamber commended Mrs. Avery on the smoothness and efficient organization of the banquet, saying it was the best banquet of the 60 or more such Chamber functions that he has ever attended.

Albright reported to the board on the recent attempts to obtain the Texas Tech Medical facility which was awarded to Odessa.

"I was extremely dismayed over the selection of Odessa as the site for the facility," said Albright. "I felt we made the best presentation and had the best offer, and the choice made by the Tech Board of Regents made no sense to me."

"In the same vein, however," Albright continued, "I would like to express my appreciation to Winston Winkle for the fine presentation he made to the Tech regents, and I want to thank Barry Callen for the slide presentation he put together."

The Chamber Board consensus concerning the matter, was to put it behind them and continue onward.

"That is water over the dam," said Albright, "So now we are going to concentrate our efforts to assist Dr. P.W. Malone as he works to get a cancer research and therapy extension of the M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston to locate here."

The Chamber Board finalized the dates for the annual membership drive as March 20-24 and made one change in the way the drive will be conducted.

The membership committee, under direction of chairman Martha Cohorn will plan and coordinate the drive, with the Ambassadors executing the plans and doing the footwork, rather than the Ambassadors having to carry the total burden of the coordinating and executing the whole program alone.

Top prize for the high member-gainer will be a trip to Acapulco or the cash equivalent, with the Chamber and various businesses donating other prizes.

Currently the Chamber has some 850 members, and they expect to break 1,000 by the end of the drive.

The Chamber Board approved the appointment of Ralph McLaughlin as a new director to serve on the board.

Also approved was entering into a contract with the Howard College Coliseum director to reserve Oct. 21-22 for the Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival, and the splitting of the cultural affairs committee into two sub-committees to provide more efficiency.

Dr. Hal Hansen was approved as the chairman of the cultural development subcommittee which will coordinate with local clubs and organizations to promote religion and cultural activities in Big Spring. Mel Prather, chairman of the cultural affairs committee, will serve also as chairman of the arts and crafts subcommittee that will work directly with arts and crafts groups who are interested in not only the annual Arts and Crafts Festival, but also the other art displays and publicity of them; the subcommittee will also support the Heritage Museum.

The beautification committee submitted proposal to the board concerning its 1978 campaign to clean up and beautify Big Spring.

The Chamber approved the proposal, which will allow the committee to help the City of Big Spring in enforcing its city beautification ordinances, sponsor a spring clean-up campaign, and study the feasibility of implementing dumpsters in small project areas where trash eyesores have been a problem.

In final action, the Board approved action to try to get the National Junior College Athletic Association Girls' Region Five Tournament for 1979 played in Big Spring.

Coming committee meetings include the tourist development committee at 3 p.m. Thursday, and the industrial team and beautification committee meetings at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., respectively, Friday.

On Tuesday, the Ambassadors will meet at noon, and the membership committee at 4 p.m.

Dayan protesting warplane sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, in a tightly planned one-day visit, is registering his country's protest over proposed U.S. warplane sales to Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Dayan also is promoting peace negotiations during a nine-hour schedule that crammed in talks with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, a brief courtesy call on President Carter, a news conference and a meeting with members of Congress.

Israel is hoping its friends on Capitol Hill will block the arms sales.

Israeli parliament on Wednesday that there was "a crisis" in U.S. relations, but he reaffirmed his support for a peace settlement.

The State Department, meanwhile, reaffirmed "enduring and strong ties" with Israel and insisted that peace prospects were enhanced by the arms sale decision.

"Clearly, Israel and we differ on some issues," said a statement read by spokesman Ken Brown, "Part of that relationship, as is always the case between close friends, is a frank airing of differences.

"But these differences do not in the least detract from our common search for peace and the lasting commitment of the United States to the security of Israel.

Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton, who soon may be endowed with the title of ambassador-at-large, will return to the Middle East next weekend and stay "indefinitely," according to U.S. officials.

His assignment is to foster agreement on a "declaration of principles" that can serve as the basis for a peace treaty — and also draw Jordan into the negotiations.

STREET BROADCASTER — Gene Looper, man-on-the-street broadcaster, may be establishing some sort of record for a type interview that was universally popular a few years ago. He has conducted more than 8,000 of the programs in nearly 27 years in Corpus Christi.

He's downtown, downtown isn't

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Going on 27 years Gene Looper has been on the job, never deserting his post. Now, after all those faithful years, his post has deserted him.

Gene Looper is the man-on-the-street interviewer on the radio.

Every morning during the quarter hour before noon, six days a week, he shows up on a downtown sidewalk, microphone in hand, asking passersby their opinions on current topics.

He has done this over a span of time ranging from: "Should General Eisenhower return from Europe and run for president?" (14 yes, four no, two no opinion) down to: "Should the Senate ratify the Panama Canal treaties?" (four no).

Gene Looper is nothing if not loyal to his task. Counting this morning's broadcast, he has been out on that sidewalk 7,866 times.

The irony is that while

Looper is still downtown, downtown isn't.

Downtown has moved to the suburbs. What used to be downtown in the Sparkling City by the Sea, as the postcards call Corpus Christi, has become a lusterless landscape of empty buildings. In the block where Looper does his broadcast all but one storefront is boarded up.

Alas poor Looper, the man-in-the-street has become as rare a species downtown as the whooping cranes that winter nearby.

"I used to have people lined up to get on the air," Looper said wistfully. "Now I'm lucky if I can snag three or four. I've had to make do with as few as two. It's sad, really, to watch downtown just die."

Sad, and a shame, because Corpus Christi still is a sparkling, breeze-caressed city, a city festooned with spires and palms and beaches washed by royal blue waters.

Like other cities its size across the nation, though, downtown yielded inexorably to the big shopping malls which are out where the people and the parking spaces are.

"I'd like to move out to a shopping mall myself," Looper said. "It's been talked about, but so far the station has been reluctant. It would be sort of admitting that downtown is dead. You've got to admit it sooner or later."

Meanwhile, Gene Looper has become a past master at filling what the radio people call dead air.

Waiting for somebody to wander by on the deserted street, he tells his listeners what the weather is like downtown. He tells them what the responses were to last week's question. He tells them what's on at the movies. "After so many years, you get the knack of it."

Looper gets nostalgic when he thinks about the days when dead air was no problem.

"It was a lively show. I had regulars who would come by all the time."

Energy Pipeline shut down

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A 20-foot length of fuse and a black stain on the snow are evidence in what state troopers say is the second attempt to blow up the trans-Alaska pipeline.

A sabotage attempt last summer did not even dent the $7.7 billion pipe, but on Wednesday a hole was blown in the 48-inch steel line.

Thousands of barrels of thick Prudhoe Bay crude oil — no exact figure was available — gushed over the tundra for hours. The 800-mile-long pipeline was shut down shortly after the spill was reported, and the flow was slowed to a drip late Wednesday.

An Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. spokesman said the line should be operating again in 24 hours. A "sleeve" was being welded over the hole in the half-inch-thick steel.

Asked whether he would describe the explosion as sabotage, state police Sgt. Larry Mix said, "I would describe it as somebody using an explosive device to blow a hole in the pipeline."

Morris "Jack" Turner of the Interior Department's Alaska Pipeline Office had said shortly after the leak was spotted: "There are some indications that it is sabotage. You have to suspect foul play."

No arrests were reported.

The oil was contained in an area 600 feet in diameter around an above-ground section of the pipe about six miles east of Fairbanks, Alyeska reported.

Wildcat venture in Howard County

Fisher-Webb, Inc., Abilene, will drill a 7,900-foot wildcat in Howard County, one location east-northeast of the depleted one-well Nearco (Pennsylvanian reef) field 1 1/2 miles east-southeast of the depleted Luther, East (Reef) field and 2 1/2 miles southwest of the Vealmoor, East (Reef) field and four miles east of Luther. It is the No. 1 Anderson.

Location is 1,800 feet from the south and 467 feet from the west lines of 13-31-2N-T&P.

The Nearco opener, Eugene E. Nearburg No. 1 W. D. Anderson Estate, drilled to 7,800 feet, was finished May 4, 1972 for 162 barrels of 46 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 1,494-1, through a 16-64 inch choke and perforations of 7,691-93 feet.

A. K. Guthrie Operating Co., Big Spring, will drill the No. 1-E Fern Winters as a location east stepout to the current nine-well Sara-Mag (Canyone reef) field of Howard County, 1/2-mile north of Vincent.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south and 467 feet from the east lines of 9-25-H&TC. Contract depth is 7,700 feet.

A discovery was indicated in Glasscock County. A wolfcamp discovery is indicated with the recovery of 7,263 feet of gas, 122 feet of oil and gas cut mud and 337 feet of very heavy oil and gas cut mud, along with 40 feet of drilling fluid, on a drillstem test at Florida Gas

Exploration Co., Midland, No. 1-49 Foter Ranch in 49-30-W&N, 2 1/2 miles north and slightly east of Wolfcamp production in the Clyde Reynolds multipay field, 3/4 miles northeast of the Garden City (Fusselman, Strawn and Pennsylvanian) field and 10 miles northeast of Garden City.

Tool was open 18 minutes later on the test taken at 7,768-870 feet. Flowing pressure was 97-127 pounds; one-hour initial shut-in pressure, 3,205 pounds and two-hour final shut-in pressure, 2,964 pounds.

Drilling continued below 8,284 feet on a 10,000 foot contract.

The administration, having proposed for the first time to sell jets to Egypt and to equip Saudi Arabia with 60 of the world's best fighters, now appears eager to paper over Israeli vexation over Carter's decision.

But even if administration minds are made up, Dayan is still conveying his government's concern that the sale of 50 F-5E Tigers to Egypt and F-15 Eagles to Saudi Arabia would pose a peril to Israel's security and threaten to tip the Mideast arms balance in the Arabs' favor.

Adult Ed workshop Saturday at HC

An adult education workshop will be held Saturday at Howard College. Jeannette Brooks and Josie Salazar will present the program.

Ms. Brooks will present the DART (Development of Adult Reading in Texas) program which originated at North Texas State University. She attended a workshop which outlined the program's techniques at North Texas this past summer.

Josie Salazar will present an ESL (English as a Second Language) module which was produced by the Texas A&M Adult Education Department. Ms. Salazar will describe ESL techniques which can be integrated into classroom instruction.

The workshop participants will be teachers, teacher aides, and Big Spring State Hospital volunteer teachers in the Howard College Adult Education Co-Op.

Freezing drizzle spreading in WT

By the Associated Press

Dense fog, drizzle and freezing drizzle spread across a vast area of West Texas early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue travelers advisories.

Dense fog reduced visibility to less than a mile over much of West Texas from the Pecos Valley eastward into the Concho Valley and northward through the Panhandle. Some fog also developed in the Lower

Offer thanks for those giving service

We're prone to grouse if we have to venture out in bad weather to replenish the family larder, mail a letter or take the kids to school. At the same time, it increases our regard for those intrepid individuals who undertake their tours of duty, no matter how the elements are acting up. Include in that group members of the police force, the firemen and the street crews. Their work either continues despite the weather or increases because of it. If the streets get icy, the street crews have to sprinkle salt or gravel or both on the thoroughfares to improve our chances of getting anywhere—invariably called upon to work in the mid-watches of the night or long before the sun comes up. The incidence of automobile wrecks increases in stormy weather. One of the first on the scene after a mishap is invariably the policeman, who must always strive to restore order and direct the traffic away from the problem area. Ambulance drivers and wrecking services don't noid any picnics at such times, either.

The people who collect the garbage take a lot of slings and arrows. In fact, though, they are pretty reliable, working whenever the alleys are firm enough for vehicles to use. The people who spring into action when water mains break, whether it is day or night, shouldn't be overlooked. Water flowing from the lines can be ice-cold yet such public employees must wade in and find the source of trouble, then correct it. If you live near a highway, you become conscious of the fact that a lot of truckers are busy at night, working to deliver food and other commodities on time. The power and telephone linemen are among others called upon to work in the worst kind of weather. And they're asked to shinny up poles that not even birds would land on in rough weather. Home deliveries are rare in this day and time, so don't leave out your paper boy among those who make an extra effort to see that you don't miss your paper. It takes a lot of people to sustain your way of life and a good portion of those work under more trying conditions than others. Hats off to them.

What role?

Around the rim

James Werrell

When is one unjustly manipulated by the federal government. It is a question often asked, and one, I presume, that is on the minds of most people a lot of the time. It is also a question that is fundamental to many of the issues that plague this country. One such issue is that of smokers' rights vs. the rights of non-smokers. Though this ongoing battle between smokers—and the non-addicted may pale before more important issues of human rights, it presents a good example of how good-intentioned legislators run the risk of becoming meddlers.

AS AN ex-smoker, it is easy to see both sides of this dispute. I know what agony it is to "need" a cigarette, but I can also see, as a non-smoker, what smokers subject the rest of the world to with their habit. But what role do our legislators play here?

Smoking is unique in that it is a form of injecting a poison into the body that is packaged, advertised and sold to millions of Americans, creating livelihoods for thousands, with little or no regulation by the government.

It is hard to believe that the government will spend so much time, energy and money to see that U.S. citizens are denied laetrie, and allow the smoking of cigarettes at the same time.

But I don't want to be misunderstood. I am not campaigning for stiffer governmental controls. On the contrary, I would like to see fewer governmental intrusions in this area: One has the right to choose his own poison.

I find it grossly unfair that the government should propose prohibitive taxes on the sale of tobacco in an effort to cut its use. Why should the smoker be singled out to be penalized?

On the other hand, the government is right in continuing its educational campaign against smoking. Educating the public about the possible risks involved in puffing the evil weed is one of the government's valid functions.

Once it has done this job as well as it can, it is the privilege of every citizen to decide whether he wants to smoke or not, without the imposition of exorbitant taxes.

SOME HAVE argued that the government is at cross purposes when it both spends millions of dollars to educate the public as to the danger of smoking and spends equally large sums to subsidize tobacco farmers.

But both are actually valid functions and not exclusive of each other. In the one case the government is warning the public of a possible danger it faces, in the other it is allowing the production of a product that the public has every right to consume.

It should also be said, however, that though one has the right to smoke, he has no right to inflict its dangers on those who choose not to. The new law making it illegal to smoke in an elevator is a good one: The smoke from a cigarette is harmful whether it's yours or being blown in your face.

It is, however, a tough question of when to draw the line (in airplanes? in restaurants?) on smoking in public. It is an issue that will probably be battled for a long time, and may bring up some fundamental questions about human rights in this country in the process.

Coping with snow

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — How did people cope when they were stuck in their homes during the blizzard? In order to find out I made several telephone calls to friends in New York during last week's snowstorm.

The first call I made was to Bob Simon who lives in Monsey.

Mrs. Simon answered the phone. "He's outside. I'll call him."

TEN MINUTES later, Simon got on the phone huffing and puffing.

"What are you doing?" I asked him.

"Shoveling the driveway so I can get the car out."

"You're not going to drive today?"

"Got to. Got to get to the store if it kills me."

"What for?"

"My wife's out of cigarettes. She's afraid she's going to die if she doesn't get a cigarette."

"That bad, huh?"

"She's sucking on a strand of raw spaghetti now, but she says it isn't the same thing. She tried to make a cigarette out of oregano leaves, but they wouldn't stay in the newspaper."

"Suppose the store isn't open when you get there?"

"She told me to smash the windows and loot."

"But you could get prison for that."

"SHE SAYS it doesn't matter. She says she'll bring the kids up every Saturday to visit me, as long as I get her the cigarettes. I've got to go. She's rifling through the garbage compactor to see if she can find a butt."

"Let her do it," I said.

"This is the third time she's gone through it. She found all the butts on the first go-round. She won't believe there aren't any left."

"Okay," I said. "And have a nice day."

The second call I made was to a friend on Long Island. His wife told me he didn't make it home and was stuck at the Waldorf Astoria. I called my friend at the Waldorf Astoria.

"Are you all right?" I asked.

"It's terrible," he said. "I tried to make the 3:45 from Penn Station but it was canceled. So I had to get a room here. I never lived through anything like this. Wait a minute, there's room service." He went off the phone and I heard him say to someone, "Honey, did you want red wine or white wine with your chicken?" Then he came on again. "So like I said, no one can move. All we can do is wait it out. I could be here for days. Hold it will you?...Honey, turn down the TV set, will you?...You're lucky you aren't here. I wouldn't wish this on anyone...Not too much ice, Sweetie...I'll never forgive the Long Island Railroad for what they did to me last night."

"IF YOU CALL sharing a room at the Waldorf Astoria with a salesman from Syracuse during the worst blizzard in 20 years 'being safe,' then you don't know anything about snowstorms. Listen, I have to go now...my turtle soup is getting cold."

The last call I made was to my sister in Kew Gardens.

"Edith, are you all right?"

"I'm fine."

"How's Harold?"

"I wouldn't know."

"Why, where is he?"

"If he's right there how come you don't know?"

"We haven't been talking for two days. As long as you're on the phone tell him that dinner is ready if he wants some."

Harold came on the phone. I said, "Edith says dinner is ready."

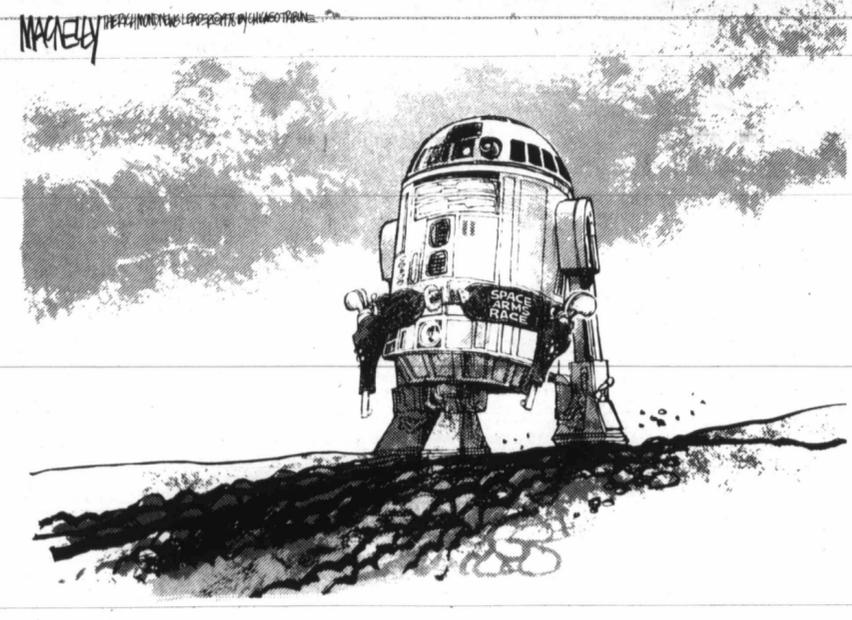

"Tell her I'm not hungry," he replied.

Edith came on the phone. I told her, "He says he's not hungry."

She said, "Tell him that's too damn bad."

"Hey, listen, I'm calling long distance. I just wanted to find out how both of you were."

"Wonderful," she replied. "Being stuck in your apartment for two days in a snowstorm with your husband is the next best thing to having a second honeymoon."

Athlete's feet can affect hands, too

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About a year ago my right hand started cracking and itching. I went to a dermatologist. He told me it was athlete's feet and gave me ointment to put on my feet and hands. The condition still exists, and a few days ago my fingers started cracking and itching again. What can you suggest? — W.L.

These fungus infections can easily be transferred from one part of the body to another, in your case apparently from the foot to the hands. Clearing up the foot fungus infection should end the hand problem. Keep your hands away from your feet during treatment. Anti-fungal powders should reduce the foot itch, the chief reason for the foot-to-hand transfer.

I have found a foot soak in Burrows solution or a potassium permanganate to be effective. Your doctor can suggest the strengths needed. There are other steps you can use to avoid the infection in the future. See my booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet." Send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald. Finding the specific organism causing the problem (from scrapings) can allow use of specific applications effective against it.

Another thought: You may be dealing with a contact dermatitis from household or other materials, particularly considering the hand symptoms.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 35-year-old mother of three. I usually spot intermittently two to four days before my period. Then I have six-day periods, of which four days are very heavy. This is followed by another two days or so of spotting. My Pap tests are normal.

I have noticed certain changes since the birth of my last child five years ago. I feel tired and out of sorts more than usual, and my blood pressure ranges between 96 over 64 and 100 over 68. Do our menstrual cycles change during these 30 or 40 years from our younger womanhood? — V.J.

Cycles can and do vary within normal ranges easily. Because your spotting is closely related to your period, and your Pap tests negative, I am not too concerned. I am, though, about your fatigue and low blood pressure. Either can be due to a low thyroid function. Often, when needed, thyroid medicine can improve menstrual patterns. Because of the heavy flow, you should check out anemia as a cause of your fatigue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My back problems seem to just get worse. It started as a pain in my left leg that went from my hip down to my foot. Occasionally, my right leg gets some pain, but it's mostly my left one. My back in the lower section gives me pain also.

I have seen two doctors. One says I should have an operation, the other, a neurosurgeon, has me on physical therapy. I had X-rays that showed a nerve being pressed by a lower disc. Isn't an operation risky? — D.W.O.

It sounds very much like a disc-nerve problem. The disc surgery is quite effective, when needed. The problem is finding out if you need it. The results of the therapy should provide that answer. Traction and braces often serve the purpose of relieving the nerve pressure satisfactorily. Give it a chance.

NOTE TO MRS. L.A. — By 14 year daughter has established the bowel patterns that serve her. So long as she has been examined and found physically sound, you need not be concerned about the once-a-week BMs. I do think, though, that the diet you describe could bear some improvement. Her sparse eating is contributing to the fact she needs so few movements. More fruits and vegetables would provide more bulk.

NOTE TO J.K. — Look for something beyond allergy in your case. You give a very wide variety of foods as suspected allergy producers. While it's possible, it is doubtful that you would be allergic to each and every one. You need a thorough examination of the digestive tract to determine other possible causes of your continuing diarrhea.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had an ulcer on my ankle that didn't respond to treatment. I started taking Vitamin C

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a widow and I have fallen in love with a widower friend. We are talking about getting married, and I wonder if you think there would be anything wrong with us having sexual relations now, since we have both been married before? — Mrs. M.G.I.

DEAR MRS. I.: Yes, it would be wrong. The Bible sets a very high standard for us in relationships with members of the opposite sex, and part of this is the Bible's command that we are to "flee fornication" (I Corinthians 6:18). The fact that you both have been married before in no way alters the situation.

Why is the Bible so strict on this matter? It is because God has ordained the marriage relationship and given it to us as something that should be wonderful and lifelong. Sexual looseness only destroys the marriage relationship. Sex is something God has given us as an intimate means of expressing love between husband and supplements. Within a few months a healthy scab appeared and finally fell off. There has been no recurrence. Did the Vitamin C help? — Mrs. D.W.

Possibly. Vitamin C promotes formation of fibrous (scar) tissue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is an allergic reaction something one is born with that may go undetected, or is it possible to develop an allergic reaction, say to eggs, later in life? — Mrs. D.M.

Allergies do tend to run in families, which is as close as we can get to saying they are inherited. They can develop later in life; also they can subside.

Dear Editor: The greatest opinion yet on the farmer's plight was expressed by the female bus driver — her facts, her concern are completely accurate inasmuch that the farmer himself has put much of his difficulties on his own head.

He deserves what he can work for and afford, buying new homes, new cars, and new equipment each year just to out-do the "Jones". No one forced this or the free handout from the Government on land banks on the farmer.

It was his choice. I too am a farmer's child (daughter) and was raised the baby of 13 children on an 80 acre farm. We survived and asked no one for anything; but, we lived within our means.

I have yet to see a "poor farmer" in West Texas.

Follows tradition

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — President Carter assaulted the oil conglomerates last year with the same results he could have expected if he had pelted the Washington Monument with snowballs.

For the president never backed up his words with the action that would demonstrate he meant what he said. Despite his brave rhetoric, he continued to follow the bipartisan tradition of upholding oil privileges.

His criticism of the oil industry had scarcely faded from earshot than Robert Strauss appeared quietly at his side, ostensibly as his trade ambassador. But White House sources tell us no one does more whispering in Carter's ear than the suave Strauss. He speaks the oil language, with a soft Texas accent.

Then the president selected Lynn Coleman, another amiable Texan, to run the Energy Department's legal staff. The general counsel is in a unique position to influence energy policy.

YET COLEMAN came out of Houston, a city spawned by oil fortunes. He was a law partner of ex-Treasury Secretary of John Connally, the darling of the oil industry. Coleman refused to give the Senate a list of the firm's clients, but we can report it represents the giants of oil, including Exxon, Mobil, Shell, Texaco and Union Oil.

We can also reveal his law firm not only litigates but lobbies for its oil and gas clients. Coleman was a registered lobbyist himself. Nor did the firm merely represent oil companies; it got into bed with them.

One partner is a director of Tipperary Company, a $19.2 million oil and gas firm in Texas. Another partner is on the board of Austral Oil, a company that tried to win a backdoor price deregulation case a few years ago.

Coleman's law partners are also involved in several interlocks with the First City Bankcorp of Texas, the big Houston holding company that often bankrolls the oil industry. John Connally, for one, is a director of the huge multi-billion-dollar holding company. He sits on the board with representatives of such oil consortiums as Exxon, Superior and Quintana.

AN ALARMED Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, has raised conflict-of-interest questions in a private letter to Senate Energy Chairman Henry Jackson, D-Wash. "Mr. Coleman's longstanding ties with the oil and natural gas industry will raise continuing questions about conflicts of interest and favoritism within the new Energy Department," wrote Metzenbaum.

He noted that the United States has 315,000 lawyers, many of them qualified to serve as general counsel of the Energy Department. "Surely," he wrote, "The president could have found one attorney who does not have the marks and identification of oil and natural gas interests for such a sensitive position."

Footnote: Coleman told us that he disagrees with Metzenbaum's criticism. He said he has represented many small companies against larger ones. He also told us that he's confident the Senate will approve his nomination.

AUTO CRACKDOWN — The Federal Trade Commission is quietly preparing to subpoena a mass of documents from the Big Three automakers, a dredging operation intended to uncover evidence of possible price rigging.

The commission wants to determine whether General Motors, Ford and Chrysler have grown too fat and inefficient, thus restraining competition in the auto market. The investigators will also examine why the major car companies blindly follow GM's lead in announcing price increases.

Because the auto trioka packs a big political wallop, the inquiry is highly sensitive. The commissioners, therefore, must approve each subpoena personally before it is issued.

The commission has also requested information from such foreign importers as Toyota, Volvo, Fiat, Volkswagen, Mazda, Renault and British Leyland. They have been asked whether they have encountered any barriers in entering the U.S. market, what factors affect their prices, repairs and marketing strategies and what would be the ideal size for an efficient auto manufacturer.

If the commission concludes that the Big Three are stifling competition, it could move to break them up. General Motors, for example, could be ordered to divest its Chevrolet division.

The auto companies are expected to challenge the subpoenas, thereby precipitating a legal battle that could drag on for years.

TEXAS BOONDOGGLE — The taxpayers are about to spend $11 million to benefit some Texas fatcats, including the billionaire H.L. Hunt family which has always decried federal spending.

The $11 million has been earmarked by the Army Engineers to improve the east fork of the Trinity River in Kaufman County, Tex. The project would reduce the periodic flooding of 13,866 acres of farmland.

It turns out that more than a third of the acreage is owned by the heirs of the late oil curmudgeon, H.L. Hunt, who preached loudly against government spending. His son, Nelson, is a chip off the old block.

"My property doesn't flood," he grumped. "As a taxpayer, I hope they save our money and spend it somewhere else."

Footnote: Another third of the land is owned by the Southland Land and Cattle Company, a subsidiary of the Southland Financial Corporation, which has assets of more than $800 million. Company officials did not return our calls. There is no evidence that Southland or the Hunts did anything improper.

BARNEY'S BEEF & BEER STEW

My stew recipe will take the chill right out of your bones on a cold winter's eve. Now, the beef is the main ingredient - so be sure you get the best (at Piggly Wiggly, of course). The beer will add gusto and bring out the superb flavor of the beef. You'll find this recipe tastes even better the second time around.

2 lbs. boneless stew beef	1 clove garlic, finely chopped
cut into 1 inch cubes	1 12-oz. bottle of beer
flour for dredging	1 T chopped parsley
salt & pepper to taste	1 bay leaf
¼ cup vegetable oil	¼ t thyme
6 medium onions, sliced

Combine flour, salt & pepper. Dredge the meat in seasoned flour. Heat oil in skillet; add onion & garlic. Cook until tender but not brown. Remove onions from skillet. Add meat & brown, adding a little more oil if necessary. Return onions to the skillet. Add the remaining ingredients. Cover and cook over low heat until meat is tender, about 1½ hours. Serve hot with boiled potatoes and a salad.

Many of them think death is reversible

Child suicide emerging mental health problem

STRAIGHTEN THAT COLLAR — In the behind-the-scenes flurry of last night's "We're Movin' On Up" production, co-director Arva Jones helps Debra Green prepare for the choir scene. The Black History Week variety and style show paid tribute to such notable blacks as Benjamin Banneker, the first black to receive a presidential appointment. Appointed by George Washington, Banneker was responsible for laying out the territory which is now Washington, D.C.

EDITOR'S NOTE — How many children killed by cars run into traffic on purpose? How many kids who "fall" from windows, actually mean to? Very little is known about child suicides, but experts agree that youngsters, even infants, suffer the same deep depressions and melancholia that drive adults to death.

NEW YORK (AP) — Suicide by children of kindergarten and grade school ages — from 5 to 14 — is an emerging problem in the field of mental health. Some experts believe that even infants can intentionally kill themselves.

In New York City a 10-year-old supposedly ignored by his family put a noose around his neck, stood on a chair and asked his brother to pull away the chair. The brother refused, so the 10-year-old kicked it away and strangled.

The National Center for Health Statistics reported 170 confirmed child suicides in 1975, the most recent year for which data are available.

"That figure is demonstrably inaccurate," says Dr. Ari Kiev, developer of the Crisis Intervention Clinic at Cornell Medical College.

"There has always been a stigma attached to suicide, particularly child suicide. As a result, it is concealed and it is not accurately reported."

There also are suicides that go undetected. Deaths that appear to be accidental, particularly traffic accidents.

Dr. Joaquim Puig-Antich, chief of the Child Depression Clinic at Columbia-Presbyterian's Psychiatric Institute in New York, said: "Children commit suicide for many of the same reasons as adolescents and adults, mainly while in deep depression, which may take many forms and come from many causes. Some may kill themselves in the hope of rejoining a parent who has died. In achievement-oriented families, children have tried to kill themselves rather than come home with poor grades.

"One of the most debated elements of child suicide is whether children recognize that death is final."

"Children do not develop mature ideas about death until middle childhood," says Dr. David Shaffer, formerly of the Institute of Psychiatry in London, where he conducted a "psychological post-mortem" of 30 child suicides.

"Half the children in the 6 to 11 age group in one study believed death to be reversible. In the 11 to 13 group, 13 percent still believed this."

Dr. Daniel Casriel, founder of New York's Casriel Institute, has reservations about whether children and adults with emotional problems understand death.

"It isn't so much that the suicide wants to die, but that he doesn't want to live anymore. A child who is severely depressed feels as though he has an emotional spear in his belly. It isn't that he feels he would be happier dead, just that there would be less pain," he says.

Frequently they feel guilty about things they haven't even done," says Dr. Puig-Antich. "They also think frequently about suicide and they express this desire in many ways, and some of them attempt to kill themselves."

The phenomenon of possible infant suicide is seen in a wasting-away condition called "marasmus."

"It was first discovered in an orphanage in South America," says Dr. Casriel. "Here were infants apparently given everything essential to their biological needs, yet they seemed to curl up and die. It was found that these infants were never picked up, never cuddled. I think there are babies who want love and refuse to live without it. That is certainly seen in older children."

A number of experts believe there would be more child suicide if young children had the skill to carry them out. For example, one child thinking he was eating poison consumed a bowl of sugar; another tried hanging himself with a light string.

Experts agree that the child whose suicidal tendencies remain untreated may carry them out in later life, especially during the high risk ages of 15 through 24. This age group accounted for 4,736 suicides in 1975 — a rate of nearly 13 a day.

"The way to reduce that incidence is to provide treatment as soon as the problem is discovered," says Dr. Puig-Antich. "There are three rules of the thumb that anyone can use to detect a potentially suicidal child:

— "Does the child look sad frequently?"

— "Does the child say, or make statements, that he feels sad?"

— "Does the child say, at some point, that he wants to kill himself, or do something to harm himself?"

"If any one of those three things happens frequently, help should be sought."

Spring fabrics offer varieties to suit all

Spring fabrics will offer a wide variety of colors and textures to suit every taste, says Margaret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Fresh and exciting textures range from suedes to linen gauze, from towelling to seersucker, and from satin to silk tweed, she continues.

Damask and shot taffeta are the newest look for day wear, with silk jersey seen at night.

Combine fabrics and textures-surprise combos are the newest, such as velvet with cotton knit, silk with leather, or cotton tweed worn with linen gauze and silk clip-dot shirting.

Try unusual color combination for fun and fantasy, the specialist suggests.

True blue, white-white, and many shades of brick, rust, wheat, mushroom, and ginger provide an interesting contrast for plum, tea rose, bluish, saffron, and willow.

Use one color from head to toe or layer several. For example, pink, blue, violet and blue-green over bronze are a color-clashing bid for attention.

'Fashions of '78' previewed tonight

The Four-County Young Homemakers are sponsoring a style show to introduce the public to the "Fashions of '78."

This event will take place at 7 p.m. tonight in the Sands High School Cafeteria, Ackerly.

The public is invited to attend, and admission is only one dollar per person, which includes refreshments for everyone and babysitters for children.

At this time, the club anticipates showing about 25 spring and summer fashions for women and a few for men.

Several stores in Big Spring are participating in the show; among them are The Cottage, Margaret's Maternity Fashions, Swartz Jr. Shop, Dunlap's and Thornton's. Door prizes were also donated by these stores, and the club thanks them for their generosity and support.

For further information about the show, call 353-4419, 353-4724 or 353-4739.

VENA LAWSON

Garden City clerk resigns

Vena Lawson, Garden City, resigned as County and District Clerk of Glasscock as of Feb. 13, and she would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for the privilege and pleasure she has had in serving them for the past 37 years.

She appreciates the confidence, cooperation and kindnesses shown her during her tenure of office, and says she has a mixture of emotions in leaving the office, among them joy, sadness, pride and much gratitude.

Adults need immunization

COLLEGE STATION — Adults need immunization, too, says Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Adult Texans who will get special emphasis during August — Immunization Action Month — are:

- 1) Prospective mothers who need rubella "screening" to determine if they are susceptible to rubella. If they are susceptible, an immunization will safeguard their unborn children against possible birth defects.
- 2) Young adults who were vaccinated against measles on or before their first birthday.
- 3) Older persons who need protection against certain diseases, particularly tetanus.

These defenses against disease should be promoted year-round, says the specialist.

Check with your doctor or health department to see if you and your family are protected against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), tetanus (lockjaw), polo, measles, mumps and rubella (German measles).

"Make sure...today," urges Ms. Shearer.

Message was no joke

WASHINGTON (AP) — No candy or flowers came with the Valentines sent by Zero Population Growth, a group of birthcontrol crusaders.

Instead ZPG adorned its cards with a pink, plastic-wrapped condom, which it said was "the necessary equipment" to carry out its message for this Valentine's Day to "love carefully."

The two panels on the pinkhued card show a young Victorian couple wooing on a loveseat, then, on the inside, sitting ruefully with the young lady obviously pregnant.

"While we hope this Valentine draws a smile, its message is no joke," a statement on the back of the card said. "Last year an estimated one million teenagers became pregnant, and 600,000 bore children."

Sandy Schline, a spokeswoman for ZPG, said 5,000 of the special Valentines were sold to affiliates and individuals at 50 cents apiece over the last month, and more than 600 were sent to the news media.

"There were three or four negative reactions, usually people offended by the condom," she said. "There's a stigma attached to the condom, and we think that's unfortunate because it's one of the best birth-control methods for a sexually active teenager to use."

"There are no side effects, it's easy to carry, they can use it spontaneously and it prevents venereal disease. But there's such a taboo on that method of birth control," she lamented.

The group sent out similar Valentines last year to mark "Love Carefully Day."

Think twice about meat

Think twice before bypassing boneless meat because of its higher price advises Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

With no excess fat or bone in boneless meat, every bit of meat adds up to more servings from each pound, so it may be a thrifter choice, even though it costs more per pound, she adds.

TWEEN 12 and 20 Try slimming down to attract neat guys

Dr. Wallace:

I have a problem meeting guys. I'm 19 and love dancing but I'm not old enough to go to nightclubs.

The guys at church seem uninterested in me, and while I have a lot of male friends at college, it's not the same as having a boyfriend. Guys say that I have a pretty face and a good personality but the fact is, I'm heavyset.

I even bought a CB to help me meet guys but they only try to take advantage of me. Please tell me where I can meet decent guys.

Jane, Sacramento, Calif.

Dear Jane:

It appears that you have been to the right places (namely college and church) to meet decent guys.

Since you have a good personality and a pretty face, why don't you change your eating habits and trim down our weight? I know it takes lots of willpower and many, many weeks but the end result will be well worth it.

Just think of all the neat, decent guys who will be dying to get your phone number.

Dr. Wallace:

I'm troubled and don't know how to tell my parents. I'm not quite 18 and I'm gay. If they should kick me out, I wouldn't have any place to go.

Is there any place that I could go to meet young people like myself? Please print this because I need help.

No Name, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Dear No Name:

Unless you so desire, I see no need to tell your parents that you are gay. When the time comes for them to know, let them ask you, then tell them the truth.

I feel that the best person to talk to at this time would be your school counselor. Make an appointment, and be honest and open with him or her. You, at this time, need a friend and someone you can confide in. Your counselor should be that person.

Dr. Wallace:

My sister and I live next door to a 10-year-old girl and we think she has a problem. Her dad smokes pot and is not a good influence on her. In fact, sometimes her dad allows her to smoke pot. She is an only child and watches too much television and eats too much food.

We would like to be her friends but we don't like going to her house because it always smells like pot. What should we do?

Enclosed is 25 cents. Please answer our letter in your column.

Neighbors, Seattle, Wash.

Dear Neighbors:

You made me an offer I could not refuse.

Since you want to be friends with this girl and since you don't want to smell pot in her house, why don't you invite her over to your house for something other than watching television and eating. She might just like the chance to breathe some fresh air. The American Cancer Society thanks you for the 2-cent donation.

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Anti-abortion coalition urges abortion ordinance

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A woman shall be shown that the fetus growing inside her can squint, frown, swallow and make a fist. She shall be told that aborting that fetus may make her feel depressed and suicidal.

These are among detailed provisions of a proposed abortion ordinance now under consideration by a committee of the Akron City Council. The ordinance would regulate three abortion clinics and a fourth family clinic that sometimes performs abortions. There were 5,574 abortions performed at those facilities last year.

The proposed ordinance, written by an anti-abortion coalition called Citizens for Informed Consent, also dictates how the remains of an aborted fetus would be disposed of, requiring they be taken to a licensed funeral director.

Public hearings on the ordinance last week included testimony from supporters, who say it would serve as a model for other cities, and opponents; who say it demeans and aims to intimidate women.

Robert Goehler, chairman of the city council's health and safety committee, said a recommendation on the ordinance to the full council would come before the end of February.

Details of the proposed ordinance include:

— Any woman seeking an abortion would have to give 24-hour notice of the operation either to the father of the fetus or, if she is younger than 18, to her parents. A girl younger than 15 must have the written consent of her parents.

— Abortions would be prohibited after 22 weeks of pregnancy except to save a woman's life. The presence of two physicians would be required if the fetus might survive — one to perform the abortion, the second to care for the fetus.

— A woman seeking an abortion would have to be informed "that her unborn child can squint, frown, swallow, move the tongue, make a fist and is sensitive to touch, if more than nine weeks have elapsed since the time of conception...

"That abortion may leave essentially unaffected or may worsen any existing psychological problem she may have, and can result in severe emotional disturbances, including depression and suicide."

Rivas family welcomes addition of daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Juan Rivas Jr., Box 61, Lenorah, announce the birth of a daughter, Belinda, at 5:10 p.m. Jan. 27 in Medical Arts Hospital. The infant weighed 6 pounds 12 ounces.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. R.N. Del Bosque of Big Spring, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Juan Rivas of Lenorah.

Maternal great-grandmother is Juanita S. Reyna of Stockton, Calif.

Belinda was welcomed home by her brothers Henry, 5, and Rudy, 3.

Newcomer tells what native country is like

By DUSTY RICHARD
Traveling Helen Gutteling has made an extended stop in Big Spring, and the town is all the better because of it. Miss Gutteling, a native of Johannesburg, South Africa, has been in the United States for about nine months after touring Canada. She is presently employed at Hall-Bennett Hospital as a graduate nurse, although in her own country she is already a registered nurse and registered midwife. She said that after taking the Texas State Board exams in July, she will be certified as an R.N. in Texas. As talented as she is pretty, 22-year-old Miss Gutteling lists her hobbies as traveling, painting, composing music, playing the guitar, writing poetry, singing, writing letters to friends all over the world, designing ceramics and playing racketball. Displaying a painting that she did on a piece of styrofoam, she said, "I didn't bring any of my canvases with me so I've been painting on anything that I can find." In her travels, Miss Gutteling has seen all of South Africa, spent five weeks in Europe, three months in Canada, and has visited various places in the U.S. including New York and Florida, not to mention Texas. She said that the main difference she's seen between the people of Texas and those of South Africa is that Texans are not as reserved and conservative as South Africans. "Of course, it's more expensive here — that's one big difference. Clothing and food are much more expensive, but gas is cheaper." She did not want to talk about the politics of the two countries, but said that most differences are because South Africa is still a young country, and contains 18 million blacks compared to four million whites. She will take a five-week psychiatric nursing course beginning in March for which tuition is $259. She had a definite opinion on American education. "American education is disgusting! You have to pay a fortune to go to school here, and in Europe, England and South Africa, the standard of education is much higher. For example, on tests here, they have multiple choice questions, which are so easy, but in South Africa, where I went to college, all the questions required essay answers. Not just a line or two, but a couple of pages." She said that the climate here isn't much different HARMONY AND ME — A few of Helen Gutteling's pastimes center around music. The South African says she likes to compose her own songs, adding that she hasn't had time to copyright them because of her busy schedule of traveling. She also likes to play the guitar, sing and listen to her stereo, favoring folk music and Kris Kristofferson.

from that in South Africa, since she was born. "It is 7,500 feet above sea level in Johannesburg, and is cold during the nights and mornings in winter, warming up in the day, and it rains a lot in the summer. It is warm, more or less, all year round."

Miss Gutteling said that the usual idea of Africa being all jungles and wild animals is a fallacy.

"The jungles are in some parts of Central Africa. In South Africa, it is very rugged and beautiful. They have many beautiful beaches, especially in Capetown, and lots of flowers, fruit and wine!"

She said that the hardest thing that she has had to get used to is the different accents and terminology used in America.

Speaking in her soft English accent, she said, "For example, here you call a dustbin a trash can; the boot of a car you call a trunk; and you call the bonnet of a car a hood."

Cooking is another of Miss Gutteling's pastimes, and she said that she had learned many styles of cooking because South Africa is so international.

"We have the South African Indian cooking, the Afrikaaner style, which is much blander than continental cooking, and the English style, among others."

She said that barbecues are a favorite event in South Africa, except there they are called "braaivleis." At them, you can expect to eat many different meats, along with mealie (foil-wrapped corn), baked potatoes and fruit salad, since fruit is a favorite dish of South Africans.

She says that she hasn't had much trouble adjusting to the American system of measurement using pounds and ounces, because she was 15 before South Africa converted to the metric system.

Although she likes Big Spring and the people here, saying that people have been right to her and made her feel right at home, she doesn't know how long she will live here.

"I don't like to plan too far ahead."

OBJET D'ART — Helen Gutteling of Johannesburg, South Africa, says that since she did not bring her canvases with her to Big Spring she paints on anything she can find. Here she displays a sort of surrealistic landscape using the sun and a couple of apples, which she painted on a piece of styrofoam. Behind her are two smaller "original Guttelings."

Cottage Cheese, born in the desert

Legend has it that cottage cheese was discovered thousands of years ago by an Arab trader traveling through the desert on camel back. Stopping to eat, he found his animal skin bag of milk had turned to curds and a watery substance. And, it was tasty.

Modern cottage cheese is a far cry from the early desert discovery. Yet its manufacture still requires heat, mixing and a small amount of rennet, all of which, by chance were combined in the Arab's discovery.

TWO-STEP ITALIAN MACARONI
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup diced celery
1 clove garlic, crushed
3/2 cups water
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste

1/2 pound macaroni, broken in 2 inch pieces
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon sweet basil
1/2 cup chopped parsley
3 cups cottage cheese
3/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a large skillet melt the butter; saute onion, celery, and garlic until tender. Stir in tomato paste and cook a few minutes. Add water, macaroni, salt, sugar and sweet basil. Cover and simmer, stirring constantly, about 25 minutes, or until macaroni is tender.

Mix parsley and cottage cheese. Put one-third of the macaroni mixture into a 2-quart baking dish. Cover with half the cottage cheese mixture and sprinkle one-fourth cup of grated Parmesan cheese over top; repeat layers, topping with one-fourth cup Parmesan cheese. Bake in 350 degree oven 20-25 minutes or until bubbly. Makes six servings and provides 1 of 4 servings from the bread and cereal groups, 1 of 2 servings for children from the milk group, 1 of 3 servings for teenagers from the milk group, and 1 of 4 servings for adults from the milk group.

Take a trip to Africa without leaving home

Here are some recipes indigenous to South Africa. Miss Gutteling said that South Africans prefer spicy dishes rather than the sweet dishes that Americans seem to eat a lot.

BOBOTIE TART

(A south African Indian dish)

Plain pastry recipe prepared but uncooked

3 medium onions, sliced thinly

10 teaspoons cooking oil

10 teaspoons curry powder

1/2 pound raw ground meat

1 teaspoon salt

5 teaspoons vinegar

5 teaspoons hot chutney

2 1/2 teaspoons smooth apricot jam

10 teaspoons sultanas (white raisins), chopped

5 teaspoons almonds, chopped finely

1 slice bread

1/2 cup milk

2 extra-large eggs

Salt and pepper to taste

A few bay or lemon leaves

Preheat oven to 400 degrees, and grease a 10-inch pie plate. Fry onions in oil until they are light brown; add curry powder and fry one minute. Stir in ground meat; add salt, vinegar, chutney, jam, sultanas and almonds. Mix well together. Remove crusts from bread and soak in 1/4 cup milk. Mash it up with a fork and add to the meat mixture. Cook meat mixture gently until tender; stirring all the time. Beat one egg and add to meat; then remove from stove and allow to cool immediately. Roll out pastry and place in pie plate. Trim and decorate the edges. Turn cooled meat mixture into pie shell. Place bay or lemon leaves in the mixture. Beat remaining egg and add 1/4 cup milk. Season with salt and pepper and pour gently over meat mixture. Bake for 10 minutes at 400 degrees until pastry is set; then reduce oven to 350 degrees and bake a further 20-25 minutes until filling is light brown and firm. Serve in wedges, hot.

BANANA AND ONION SALAD

3 medium onions, sliced

2 teaspoons butter or margarine

3 cups boiling water

4 teaspoons flour

2 tablespoons curry

1 teaspoon dry mustard

3 tablespoons brown sugar or 2 tablespoons golden syrup

1/2 cup water

1/2 cup vinegar

Salt and pepper

Cut up the onions and fry in the butter or margarine. Add 3 cups boiling water and cook until soft. Mix all other ingredients together and add to boiled onions; cook about 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from stove and cool. Slice 6 to 8 bananas and add to sauce.

MILK TART

(Makes two)

Pastry made of these ingredients:

2 cups flour

2 tablespoons baking powder

4 ounces margarine

1/2 cup sugar

Pinch salt

1 egg

Filling made of these ingredients:

1 pint milk

2 eggs, separated

2 tablespoons butter

1 teaspoon vanilla

4 tablespoons sugar

2 tablespoons flour

1 tablespoon corn starch

1/4 teaspoon salt

Pastry directions: Cream margarine and sugar well; add egg and stir. Add sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Press into greased baking dishes; bake 10 minutes at 375 degrees.

Filling directions: Boil milk and butter together; sift together dry ingredients. Beat egg yolks; add a little cold milk and mix together. Add vanilla. Beat well and add to milk mixture. Cook for 5 minutes, stirring continuously. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into pastry shells. Bake at 425 degrees until lightly browned. Sprinkle with cinnamon.

SAVOURY TART

1/4 pound ham, chopped

1/4 pound cheese, grated

1 onion, grated

1 tomato, chopped

Parsley, chopped

Pepper

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 eggs

Milk

1 cup flour

A little less than 1/4 pound butter

2 teaspoons baking powder

Beat eggs; add all ingredients except the butter; then mix the butter and milk alternately till butter is used and a soft mixture is obtained. Bake about 20 minutes at 400 degrees.

BACON AND CHEESE TART

Pastry: Mix together:

1 cup cooked mashed potatoes

1 cup flour

2 ounces butter

1 teaspoon baking powder

1 beaten egg yolk mixed with a little salt

Use this mixture to line a pie dish, then fill with sauce made of:

1 cup milk

2 tablespoons butter

2 1/2 tablespoons corn starch

Mix together and add:

1 cup grated cheese

1 cup bacon, chopped fine (raw)

Mix in saucepan over low heat; when cool add:

2 eggs

Parsley or gherkins, chopped

Salt and pepper

Add this filling to baked pastry and bake for 1/2 hour at 375 degrees.

PUMPKIN CRITTERS

3/4 cup cooked and mashed pumpkin

Pinch salt

1 egg, beaten in 1/4 cup sugar

4 level tablespoons sifted flour

1/2 teaspoon baking powder

Mix all ingredients together; taking spoonfuls, cook in a little oil or butter until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper; sprinkle with a mixture of powdered sugar and cinnamon on either side. Eat while hot.

BRANDY TART

(1 large or two small)

2 tablespoons butter

1 egg

1/4 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon baking soda

1 1/4 cups sifted flour

1/2 cup sugar

1 cup dates, chopped

1/4 teaspoon baking powder

1 cup boiling water

1/4 cup pecans or walnuts

Mix together dates and soda and pour over boiling water; stir and cool. Add sugar, egg and salt to mixture and beat well. Sift flour and baking powder and add to mixture. Then add nuts. Bake in greased cake pan for 25-30 minutes at 350 degrees.

SYRUP

1 1/2 cups sugar

3/4 cup water

Pinch of salt

1 teaspoon vanilla

About a half cup of brandy

Cook all ingredients together, add brandy. Mix well and pour gradually over the cake until all is soaked up. Serve with whipped cream and extra walnuts to garnish if desired. (Note: I usually add the last bit of syrup just before serving. Also, let the tart cool before putting cream and nuts on top.)

BURGER BUSINESS SIZZLES IN HAMBURG — A Burger King franchise operates from this building, which was once a Hamburg City library. The American hamburger, legendary descendants of what was once Hamburg's traditional chopped steak dish, has taken the old county by storm as U.S. fast food firms cash in on West German affluence. And, despite some German critics, the burger business is really sizzling.

Kennedy wins health plan fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a longtime champion of national health insurance, appears to have won a behind-the-scenes battle with the Carter administration to get the president's health care plan before Congress this summer.

April 1 date of election

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City city council has set April 1 as the date for an election to name three members of the council to two-year terms. Members whose terms expire in April include Marion Bassham, Larry Hamner and J. Lee Jones.

The latter two have indicated they will not seek reelection but Miss Bassham will campaign again. In other business, the council voted to spend $1,500 requested by the Chamber of Commerce for publication and distribution of a brochure advertising Colorado City and environs.

In the process, Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, was undercut by the White House. Califano "got sandbagged in the service of the president," as one of his aides put it.

The Massachusetts Democrat drew the skirmish lines more than a year ago at Califano's confirmation hearings in the Senate. At the time, Kennedy extracted from the incoming secretary a schedule that put national health insurance on the administration's agenda early in 1978.

Less than four months later, in May 1977, the senator thought he detected some slippage in the schedule and told a United Auto Workers convention in Los Angeles that health insurance was "in danger of becoming the missing promise in the administration's plans."

The forum had been carefully chosen. The UAW had founded the Committee for National Health Insurance and had been a key supporter of Kennedy's far-reaching national health plan, under which the federal government would pay for health care for all Americans.

The day after Kennedy's appearance, Carter flew to Los Angeles to address the UAW convention and restated his plan "to submit legislative proposals early" in 1978. Kennedy said he was pleased with Carter's statement, and the issue faded into the background while the administration struggled with other issues, such as an energy policy, welfare reform, tax revision and the Panama Canal.

At an Oct. 27 news conference, Carter said, "I was thinking the other day about what new major innovative proposals might be forthcoming next year and the year after. I can't think of any. I think we have addressed all of the major problems already."

Then, in December, Califano began sending out subtle signals that the health plan might have to await more guidance from the states.

Instead of complaining again publicly, Kennedy sought out UAW President Douglas A. Fraser, and together they called on Carter to tell him privately that they wouldn't stand for further delay.

The president, apparently realizing that national health insurance legislation had little chance of passage without labor support, reaffirmed his commitment. Kennedy apparently was promised that the principles of the administration proposal would be completed in March and specific legislation would be submitted to Congress in time for Kennedy to hold hearings on it before adjournment in the summer or autumn.

Last week, Kennedy reportedly was getting a bill before his subcommittee by then. British Foreign Secretary David Owen, who with Young has been trying to unite all the black Rhodesian factions in support of a British-American peace plan, had no comment on Smith's breakthrough. But Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government faced the certainty of intense pressure from the opposition Conservative Party to accept Smith's formula, and the prospect of a national election within the next 20 months will increase that pressure.

Smith's eight-point agreement with Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau calls for universal suffrage, 28 of the 100 seats in the future parliament to be reserved for Rhodesia's 263,000 whites for 10 years, a veto for the whites for the same period to protect constitutional safeguards for their rights, a bill of rights, a guarantee of compensation in case of nationalization or seizure of white property, an independent judiciary, a non-political police, armed forces and civil service, and guarantees for pensions for minorities.

The negotiations between Smith and the three black leaders stalled for weeks over the prime minister's insistence that the white members of parliament be elected by white voters only. They finally agreed that 20 members would be elected by the whites and the other eight by an electoral college of black and white members of parliament.

'Toothache' nets double transplant

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas oil field worker was reported in critical but slightly improving condition today after receiving Houston's first heart transplant in eight years.

The 21-year-old man also received a kidney in the four-hour double transplant operation early Wednesday. The Texas Heart Institute and St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital would not reveal the name of the recipient whose medical problems were said to have started with an abscessed tooth.

The name of the donor was not released by the hospital but the Houston Post identified her as Leona Singleton, 38, of Houston who died in nearby Methodist Hospital from severe brain damage.

It was the 22nd heart transplant to be performed at St. Luke's but the first since Sept. 25, 1969. None of the recipients lived more than 16 months. Since then Dr. Denton A. Cooley, head of the Heart Institute, has concentrated on the development of a mechanical heart.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey headed teams that performed 12 heart transplants at Methodist Hospital between 1967 and 1970. All recipients died and DeBakey also has concentrated on mechanical heart projects in recent years.

Lois Hill Pearson, director of public relations at the hospital, said the gift heart was "beating beautifully" and required no electrical stimulation after the operation. Mrs. Pearson said events leading to the transplant began a few weeks ago when the patient developed an abscessed tooth.

She said she was told that the man could not obtain prompt dental attention since he was at work in the oil field and that his tooth problem turned into a massive bacterial infection which caused endocarditis, a severe inflammation of the valves or lining membrane of the heart.

He was referred to the Texas Heart Institute where last Thursday where an aortic valve replacement procedure was performed, she said. It was similar, she said, to dozens performed at the specialty facility each month.

"He could have died on the table then if doctors hadn't assisted his circulation with a mechanical left ventricular assist device," Mrs. Pearson said. She said surgeons later sought to remove the assisting device but the heart would not operate without assistance.

"The only alternative to letting him die on the table was to seek a donor for a human heart," she said. During the wait for a donor heart, she said, kidney failure developed, and, after the heart transplant was completed the decision was made to transplant one of the donor's kidneys. In an interview with the Houston Post, members of the donor's family said they had a hard decision to make. Kay Singleton, 14, a daughter, said, "I feel like part of my mother is still alive."

"At least something meaningful has come out of this senseless tragedy," said Kathy Elliott, the dead woman's sister. The family said Mrs. Singleton, whose husband, Marshall Singleton, is an auto glass installer, was in critical condition with massive brain damage from a self-inflicted gunshot wound that occurred Sunday night.

Doctors told the family there was no brain activity and very soon she would die. "We were all devastated and completely at a loss, no one could think," Mrs. Elliott told the Post. "Then we were told there was a young man in great need. A doctor talked it over with us and made us feel there could be a purpose to what had happened."

She said her sister had mentioned the possibility of donating her body to science but had made no definite plans.

derful husband and I didn't want to hurt them," she said. Police said Mrs. Wojtaszek implicated herself in a string of robberies beginning Feb. 2 — three clothing stores in Detroit and five in the suburbs — and they believe her.

After each of the eight cases, police said, store clerks noted how friendly, even apologetic, the woman was. Mrs. Wojtaszek, 39 and the mother of five, said she was addicted to gambling and hated robbing stores. She said she wanted to be caught. She was last Saturday, police said, after a woman wearing a red wig walked up to a clerk at a cash register in Fuhrman's Apparel Shop, pulled a gun and said: "My baby died. I need money."

The woman took $46, then demanded several articles of clothing, including three fur coats. While she gathered the clothes, a clerk called police. Mrs. Wojtaszek was arrested as she walked out the front door, police said.

On Sunday she was arraigned for the Saturday crime. On Tuesday, after talking to police, she was arraigned for the Feb. 2 robbery of a dress shop — the first of the "Friendly Bandit" incidents. Police said they may charge her in the other robberies, and she was being held in Wayne County jail on $150,000 bond.

Friendly Bandit' glad she was caught

DETROIT (AP) — She apologized to clerks for robbing their stores — she'd been beaten, she said, or her baby had died. Afterward, she called to make sure everyone was all right.

Police called her the "Friendly Bandit," and the woman they arrested says she is glad she was caught. Rosemarie Wojtaszek, weeping while awaiting arraignment, said she resorted to robbing clothing stores because a bookmaker threatened her family over a $6,000 gambling debt.

"See, I got these beautiful kids at home and a wonderful husband and I didn't want to hurt them," she said. Police said Mrs. Wojtaszek implicated herself in a string of robberies beginning Feb. 2 — three clothing stores in Detroit and five in the suburbs — and they believe her.

Music on the wagon

with Marj Carpenter

CLARA PAGE PARKER ...circa 1920

One of Clara Parker's early memories was riding on the back of a wagon coming out of Big Spring, playing the piano all the way out to Brown where the family had settled.

But this was after they had first arrived in 1915 and lived for a while in a tent. She was the daughter of G.T. and Frances Page and recalls that they were known around the community as Uncle G.T. and Aunt Fannie.

Actually her father had been named Adjutant General Talbert Page, for a general in the Civil War but he shortened it to G.T. She recalled that her father bought land from Johnny Shortes and their nearest neighbors were the Albert Shortes.

They lived in a tent until a four-room bungalow was built. It is still standing after 62 years. It was after the house was complete that she recalls they moved the piano.

A few years later, when her brother Henry was in Europe in World War I, she recalls that her father and her other two brothers, George and Oscar drove three Grant Six Cars out to the farm. Her father had very little experience driving and she remembers that it was a "wild ride."

Her sister, Dora and Clara attended the Stork school. She said that her sister and all her brothers are now dead. Mrs. Parker went through the seventh grade and because they were so far from school, she had to quit and didn't go back for four years.

She said that they stopped in Abernathy and spent nine months living in a one-room cabin "that you could throw cats through the cracks."

She said on New Year's Day in 1918, the man they worked for moved them into a big six-room house. "It was just in time because on Jan. 10, we had a big ice storm that killed several people and dozens of cattle. We lost some. We put the young calves down in a cellar and pushed feed down through the top. They got water from the ice and they survived."

She said that she was almost 17 years old when the drought ended and they returned to East Knot. She started back to school at West Knot in 1921 and she graduated when she was 20 in 1924.

"Some of these young folks think they have hard times. They should have caught and eaten those young rabbits and fed those calves in the cellar during an ice storm," she added.

Her former Knott and Brown community friends are important to Mrs. Parker and she still keeps up with them. She, like many of the other senior citizens in the community, enjoys the Western Music and singing and other programs at the Senior Citizen Center at Kentwood.

"I still have my friends and my memories and I've had a good life." And her life is fairly typical of the people who moved to the Brown, Knott, and Ackerly communities in the early 1900s. And I'm getting where I have more and more respect for those pioneers who settled in this area — out where I ride fence.

Letting off steam...

I may have been the first sports writer in the world to predict the Spinks win over Ali.

If you'll recall, before the Shavers fight in 1977, this column reported that no one would stop Ali until Leon Spinks did.

Most of my tongue was tucked away with the rest of the acorns for the winter, however, as I seriously doubted at the time that Spinks would ever meet the champ. But he did. Did he ever!

Ali was my fighter. Those of you out there in various stages of age older than myself had your fighters. Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey, Rocky Marciano and others.

A heavyweight champion makes an impression on a teenage mind. Many youngsters this morning have found themselves a new hero.

I hated to see Ali lose, but I couldn't have picked a better guy to do it to him. Spinks is one spunky fighter. Looking more like a young Joe Frazier in style, he has the heart of an Ali.

The vast majority of WASP boxing fans must be celebrating today. I didn't talk to too many people who cared much for Ali's big mouth, color, religion or political views.

He was a boon for boxing though. Rank him alongside Joe Louis as the two boxers most influential in the furtherance of the sport. They both fought the same number of years (counting Ali's forced inactive period), and they both went out fighting.

For those of you that hated his guts and said so, glory in his defeat. But just don't come around here later saying "he wasn't so bad after all." That two-faced mush will get my mouthpiece spit at you.

NOTHING BUT GRAY SKIES

Shortly before the start of the roundball Steers' final game of the season Tuesday night, double-coach Tommy Collins talked both his sports, basketball and baseball.

"Two things hurt us more than anything this year," Collins said, reflecting on the gray record the locals compiled this season. "I was in the baseball program last year and not in off-season basketball. We could've covered so much more."

Collins' "back-to-basics" mode of coaching, which promises to have more meat on it next year after a premiere season of trial and error, gave the fans their money's worth Tuesday in good ol' fashioned man-on-man defense.

And in a related second reason: "I misjudged some of our personnel," Collins continued. "Some of the kids did better than anticipated in certain positions, and others didn't do as well as expected in others."

"Heck, we spent half a season figuring out who goes where and what to do?" Collins concluded.

The subject then switched to diamond-matters.

"The weather is killing us," Collins commented, keeping the mood of the conversation constant. "We've only had three days of hitting because of the bad weather."

Collins also expressed concern over lack of participation among the younger athletes. "We expected maybe 40 kids to try out for the JV's, and so far only 14 have come out."

The coach theorizes that many of the younger athletes are going out for track. "If that trend continues, it'll kill us," said Collins.

This year's batmen are loaded with big sticks, but there does seem to be a lack of relief pitchers.

The Steers, who open March 1 against Lamesa, are allowed two scrimmages a week after Feb. 15, and will probably have four of same. Practice sessions with Permian and Ector have already been set up.

I KNOW. BEATING A DEAD HORSE

A recent story out of Colorado City reminded me of the mud track at rickety Memorial Stadium.

Cee City is still trying to get its stadium renovated, and a brand new track installed. Estimates of the undertaking have run more than $90,000.

Colorado City School Superintendent Lloyd McKee has indicated that due to the condition of the present track, no Lone Wolf Relays would be held this year.

The "Lone Wolf Relays" have enjoyed notoriety in recent years, much like the "ABC Relays" of Big Spring's past. When Olympic runners participated. When Sports Illustrated, the Dallas newspapers and all sorts of national press attended. When "The Race of the Century" occurred here, featuring Dave Sime, Bobby Morrow and Bill Wodehouse.

Ol' Buck wasn't there mind you, but the stories I've heard sound unbelievable.

And then, what happens last year? The ABC Relays are reborn, and then drowned out on the same day by the poorly-drained, outdated cinder (mud) track here. It also rained on the day of the Optimist Relays if you recall.

Very embarrassing. In many communities in these modern times, communities smaller than Big Spring (e.g. Forson), track meets can continue no matter how hard it rains.

Looking down the road, Big Spring hosts the District 5-4A track meet in 1979. Before that happens, the track must be converted to the metric system, and adequate lighting system must be installed and something must be done about the pitiful marsh surrounding the football field (sometimes known as a track).

If Big Spring expects to hold up its end of the bargain in being a viable member of the District 5-4A community, and if we ever expect to get any respect from the other towns in the league, it is vital that Memorial Stadium be restored.

I know. I'm just flapping my gums in the wind. Nonetheless, this will be continued.

WHAT FOOTBALL GAME?

For those of you planning a weekend trip to Dallas in April. Do!

Preliminary tryouts for the 1978 Dallas Cowboy Cheerleader squad, which attracted some 600 hopefuls a year ago, will be held during those April weekends.

Semifinals and finals will continue on weekends in May, with final dates and times to be announced once all applications have been received at the Cowboy offices.

Requirements include: 18 years of age or older; high school graduate; good dancer. Applicants should submit a hand-written letter telling why they aspire to be a Cowboy Cheerleader. Also send a current photograph and some background scoop.

Any takers? If so, write: Dallas Cowboys Football Club, Inc., Cheerleader Tryouts, 6116 N. Central Expressway, Dallas, 75206. Deadline is March 15. Don't go Pearl!

REMARKABILITIES

Angelo Dundee: "Muhammad is so much taller, he can block the kid's (Spinks) shots. I figure the guy's gonna blow up in the late rounds. I honestly feel Ali will stop him then, in round 11 or 12." Said a week before Wednesday night's fight.

My favorite spotter, following the heavyweight fight Wednesday night: "Well I hope he buys himself some teeth now that he's champion."

Spinks is new heavyweight champ

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I'll be back. I'll be the first man to win the world championship three times," said Muhammad Ali, today a 36-year-old challenger for the heavyweight title.

Ali has backed up his boasts many times. But maybe an era really has ended.

Leon Spinks, the 24-year-old with just seven previous pro fights, stripped the title from Ali Wednesday night after applying pressure for 15 rounds. Ali was reeling at the final bell and Spinks gained a split decision.

It was a stunning upset matching Ali's triumph over Sonny Liston when he won the heavyweight title for the first time in 1964 and his knockout of George Foreman when he won it for the second time 10 years later.

"I tried hard," said Spinks and he certainly did, overcoming Ali's advantages in size and experience with grim determination. He never lost his cool as so many of Ali's opponents did in the past. He never was awed.

"I thank God," the new champion said. "God's the main man. Lord knows I tried hard."

"I'll give Ali another chance."

Already, promotional infighting — often more vicious than the fighting in the ring — is under way.

Jose Sulaiman, president of the World Boxing Council, said Spinks, along with Ali, made an agreement that the winner would sign by April 7 for a defense against No. 1-ranked Ken Norton within 90 days of that date. The Norton people know about such an agreement.

"Are you kidding?" said Bob Arum, who promoted Wednesday night's fight and has a promotional contract for Spinks' next six fights.

"Sulaiman is a joke. Spinks will fight somebody respectable next and then fight Ali again. Spinks hasn't agreed to anything."

The battle to provide Spinks' next opponent, if it is not Norton, should be royal. Possible opponents include Bernardo Mercado of Colombia whom Ali might have fought in defiance of the WBC edict, and South Africans Kallie Knoetze, who recently knocked out Duane Bobick, and Gerrie Coetzee.

It is not considered likely that No. 2-ranked Jimmy Young or the winner of an upcoming fight between Larry Holmes and hard-hitting Earnie Shavers will be in the running as Spinks' next opponent.

"I gave the zest I could," said Ali. "I knew he was a good fighter. It was a close fight. He was the aggressor."

It could have gone either way.

Judge Art Lurie scored it 143-142 for Ali under the 10-point must system and when his decision was announced, Spinks' handlers looked stunned. But then the announcer read off the cards of Harold Buck, 144-141, and Lou Cabat, 145-140, and announced, "the new heavyweight champion of the world, Leon Spinks."

The Associated Press scored it 143-142 for Ali, but gave Spinks the last three rounds.

The question mark before the fight was Spinks ability to go 15 rounds against a man of Ali's size and vast experience. The longest Spinks had fought previously was 10 rounds and one of those fights, against Scott LeDoux, ended in a draw.

"What surprised me was his strength and stamina," said Ali, who wilted before the brawling Spinks in the final three rounds and who looked much older than 36 at the end.

Ali, trying to make Spinks punch himself out in the early rounds and picking his spots with jabs, hooks and an occasional right lead, still was in the fight after 12 rounds — he was leading on one card and even on another.

But then Spinks who weighed 197 1/4, 27 pounds less than Ali, and who was at a four-inch reach disadvantage, landed several good hooks and left-right combinations to the head in the 13th round. Spinks' trainer Sam Solomon said he thought Spinks had Ali going in that round but that he was foiled by his inexperience.

CASSIUS CLAY, 1960

After winning Olympic gold

(Louis lost a 15-round decision to Ezzard Charles in 1950).

Look for Ali's influence to hang around for a couple of more years, then boxing will fall back into the infrequently publicized, listless sport it was before a brash Cassius Clay came along in 1960.

For those of you that hated his guts and said so, glory in his defeat. But just don't come around here later saying "he wasn't so bad after all."

That two-faced mush will get my mouthpiece spit at you.

'He surprised me!'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Leon Spinks surprised a lot of people, including Muhammad Ali.

"Hell yes, he surprised me," Ali said following the loss of the heavyweight boxing title he had held for the past 14 years.

"You know he surprised me, and I'm in there," Ali said following the 15-round bout he lost by a close decision at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel Pavilion. "You're sitting over there drinking beer and you're shocked, and I'm in there getting my butt kicked."

By all accounts, the 24-year-old ex-Marine and Olympic gold medal winner shouldn't have gone the distance. The fight was only his eighth professional bout.

"That man was the most aggressive," Ali said. "He threw the best punches."

Spinks, though taking the title from Ali, showed a low profile at the post-fight news conference, leaving most of the talking to the former champion.

"It feels good, very good," Spinks said. "I was really ready for him. I had to train hard to beat a great man."

Spinks allowed as how the win was "my second goal — my first was winning the Olympics."

Spinks had been the new champion for only a few minutes before the action began.

Bob Arum, head of Top Rank Inc., which promoted the Ali-Spinks fight, announced that he had a contract with the new champion "for his next six title defenses."

Arum wouldn't say how much money was involved but said it was in "a very good neighborhood...it starts at seven figures."

And Larry Holmes, a ranked heavyweight contender who faces Earnie Shavers next month, said he felt he was "the only man in the world who deserves a shot" at Spinks.

Ali made a mistake and "sold Spinks a little short," said Holmes, adding that Spinks had "beat the shell of Muhammad Ali."

"He sure proved you all wrong," Ali told the assembled newsmen. "I'm glad of that."

Archer ready for LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Now the kids play the game so much longer," observed George Archer, slouching on a bench in the locker room. "Tons of kids come out and hit the ball 30 to 40 yards longer than people used to play."

"But don't forget, putting and chipping are as important as they always have been. You've got to have the whole game."

The 6-foot-5 Archer shot a 2-under-par 69 in Wednesday's pro-amateur prelude to the $200,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament, which starts today at the demanding Riviera Country Club course.

Pate and Lyn Lott each shot 68 to lead the individual pros in the pro-am, with three others grouped with Archer at 69.

Archer was virtually overlooked even though he'd won the tournament in a three-way playoff with Tommy Aaron and Dave Hill in 1972 after capturing the Masters in 1969.

Now there are both the kids and the veterans such as Jack Nicklaus, Gene Littler and Hale Irwin on the Riviera scene bidding for the $40,000 first prize. Both Littler and Irwin have won the tournament in the past. Littler in 1955 and Irwin two years ago.

Even though he is tall and weighs close to 200 pounds, Archer depends on his putting stroke for low scores, and he terms the younger golfers with their greater power "something you have to deal with."

SWC teams find fertile recruiting grounds

By the Associated Press
Ohio, Colorado, New York, Kansas, Alabama, and Oklahoma proved fertile recruiting grounds Wednesday for Southwest Conference teams — particularly the University of Texas — on national letter-of-intent signing day.

The only bluechipper that remained unsigned in the state of Texas was massive 280-pound lineman Maceo Fifer of Kerrville, who failed to sign with West Texas State as expected, putting the Longhorns and Southern Methodist back into the picture.

Texas Coach Fred Akers, seeking to replace Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell at tailback, flew to Youngstown, Ohio to sign Anthony J. Jones, who rushed for 1,200 yards and was named to four different high school All-American teams.

Jones was in Austin last weekend where he met Campbell.

Southwest Conference champion Texas overcame pressure from Gov. David Boren and Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer to sign speedy running back Rodney Tate of Beggs, Okla.

Switzer went on a statewide radio show Monday night to encourage Sooners fans to send Tate telegrams. He got 40 to 50 mailgrams.

"He (Boren) called me last night and asked me how was and encouraged to play at OU," said Tate.

Texas outlasted Southern California for Jones.

Texas Tech signed Randy Page, a 58 per cent passer from Oklahoma City Southeast. Tech Coach Rex Dockery was on hand personally to do the honors.

Arkansas went to Littleton High School in Colorado to sack Chip Beard, a wide receiver, and lineman Steve Korte. Alfred Mohammed, a 240-pound lineman from Youngstown, Ohio also signed with the Razorbacks.

Coach Lou Holtz outbattled Bear Bryant for the services of highly regarded running back Thomas Brown of Montgomery, Ala.

Willie Wright, a 185-pound running back who had signed an SWC letter with Texas Tech, was signed by the Sooners. Wright, who also had been recruited by Texas, rushed for 1,490 yards last year for El Paso Burgess and averaged 22 yards on punt returns.

Wright, who was voted the most valuable high school player in El Paso, brought to five the number of Texans on the Sooners roster.

Others signing were linemen Elbert Graham of Greenville, Texas, 6-foot-4 and 255 pounds; Herman Williams of Dallas Lake Highland, 6-foot-3 and 230 pounds; Jerry Sanders of Garland, Texas, 6-foot-3 and 210 pounds, and end Steve Holms of Yukon, 6-foot-5 and 230 pounds.

End Robert Dewberry of Tyler, Texas, 6-foot-3, 220 pounds, also signed early with the Sooners.

Southern Methodist landed an Ohio quarterback, Bill Price of Centerville.

North Texas signed another highly regarded running back, Carl Mitchell of Pasadena, who had considered Texas A&M but never signed a letter of intent with the Aggies.

Coach Emory Bellard of the Aggies bounced back by signing John DiGirolamo, a 240-pound lineman from Elmont, N.Y. and lineman Lynn Maughmer of Houston Milby.

Tech invaded Kansas to sign 260-pound offensive guard George Smithman of Independence Community College and swift defensive back Ted Watts, who has been timed at 4.4 in the 40.

Texas Christian's only new signee was Kevin Haney, a running back from Decatur.

Texas kept everyone of the bluechippers it had signed a week ago on SWC letter of intent day, including quarterback Donnie Little of Dickinson, the No. 1 quarterback in the state.

The biggest announcement to come out of Houston, which kept its signings secret, was the return of linebacker David Hodge to the team. He left a year ago to go into business.

THE NEW AND THE OLD — The newly designated World Heavyweight Champion, Leon Spinks, places his arm around Muhammad Ali after beating Ali in a split decision Wednesday night in Las Vegas.

UT, Tech lose tilts

By the Associated Press

There is no need to fret anymore about having to use a coin flip to determine whether Arkansas or Texas gets the bye to the finals of the Southwest Conference post-season tournament, says Texas' Abe Lemons.

The Baylor Bears took care of that Wednesday night by stunning 12th-ranked Texas 79-77 in Waco and giving top-ranked Arkansas sole possession of the SWC lead for the first time this season.

"It solves a lot of problems for Arkansas," said Lemons. "It had to end sometime. It's too bad the Baptists don't drink in public. It'd be a nice night for them to celebrate."

But the Razorbacks, who have a 12-1 SWC mark compared to Texas' 12-2 slate, aren't home free. They must travel to Dallas tonight to play Southern Methodist, journey to Houston Saturday to take on the hot Cougars and host third-place Texas Tech next week.

The Hogs and the Longhorns had traded losses to each other and appeared to be headed for identical 15-1 SWC ledgers this season. SWC officials voted to use a coin flip as the method to decide which team got a free trip to the finals.

Both Lemons and Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton claimed it would be unfair because the losers in the coin flip would have to win three games to get back where they started.

Jim Vaszasukas calmly canned two free throws with eight seconds remaining and Vinnie Johnson, the SWC's leading scorer, collected 29 points to spark Baylor's upset.

Baylor took a 74-69 lead with 5:20 remaining in the see-saw game and held a 75-73 margin when Texas' Ron Baxter tipped in what appeared to be the tying basket. Baxter, however, was called for interference.

The Bears held a shakey 77-75 margin with eight seconds remaining when Vaszasukas went to the line for a pressure-packed one-and-one situation, sinking both shots to put the game out of reach.

"I have never had a feeling like this before. This is the greatest thing to happen," gushed Baylor Coach Jim Haller, whose Bears are battling SMU for fifth place and the home-court advantage in the tournament's first round.

"I didn't have them ready to play," said Lemons. "I don't know what I did wrong. When your team takes the floor and is not ready, that's the coach's fault."

Also Wednesday night, Cedric Fears and Cecil Rose combined for 37 points, including the final five points of the game, to propel Houston over Texas Tech 81-77 in Lubbock.

U.S. terrorists seem to lack death wish

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There's something different about America's handful of home-grown terrorists, says the FBI's chief of South Texas operations.

Joseph O'Connell, agent-in-charge at San Antonio, said Wednesday that American terrorists differ from those who kidnap and skyjack overseas because they "lack a death wish" and respect life.

O'Connell, whose previous assignments included intelligence duty at FBI headquarters in Washington, addressed a conference on emergency preparedness.

O'Connell spoke of the technological means by which international terrorists can wreak havoc.

He said one is the Precision Guided Missile (PGM), with which a single terrorist can shoot down aircraft in flight.

Unsuccessful attempts to shoot down airplanes with PGMs have been made in Greece and at Rome, O'Connell said.

"They (PGMs) are not hard to come by because thousands were left behind when the United States pulled out of Vietnam,"

O'Connell said.

He said home-grown terrorism in this country has consisted mainly of bombing unprotected targets.

And 60 percent of the bombs were placed outside of targets, such as at windows or doorways, he said.

O'Connell said domestic terrorists have tended to avoid armed confrontations. Of 4,500 incidents recorded before December 1976, none occurred where more than two or three guards armed with pistols were on duty, O'Connell added.

"A characteristic of groups operating in the United States is they seem to lack the death wish of groups in other countries," he said.

He said professional law enforcement "makes it difficult for terrorists to operate with impunity in the United States," and that is one reason why incidents are comparatively rare in this country.

Another thing that seems to have minimized terrorist acts in this country, he said, is "the sanctity that most of us hold for human life."

"In order to be a successful terrorist, one must be able to kill without compunction, and this does not seem to be part of the American psyche," O'Connell said.

He said "experts in the field" do not foresee a rise in domestic terrorism in the near future but vigilance is necessary.

"If we detect it in its beginning stages, innocent lives can be saved. . . An effective, well governed intelligence capability is of the highest importance in prevention," O'Connell said.

Preparedness also involves training of persons responsible for responding to terrorist acts and pinpointing possible targets, evaluating their vulnerability and protecting them, he said.

Author wins libel suit

TYLER, Texas (AP) — "Blood and Money" author Thomas Thompson says he's "as happy as I can be" with a jury's decision Wednesday to reject a $1.5 million libel suit against him.

"I always felt it would happen this way. I always felt I was in the right," said Thompson.

Longview policeman John Raymer had claimed a chapter in the best-selling nonfiction book subjected him to ridicule. He said he was portrayed as forcing people out of town without due process.

The jury unanimously decided after almost 30 minutes of deliberations that Raymer was not defamed.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice had asked the jury to decide if the passage in question was defamatory, then if it was the truth and if it was written with malice.

Since the jury did not find in Raymer's favor on the first point, the suit was thrown out without proceeding to the other points.

Before making its ruling, the jury asked the judge to repeat the first point and to read aloud a definition of the word, "defamatory."

The judge read the charge to the jury and then excused the panel because he anticipated objections from both sides.

The prime objection from Frank Supercinski, Raymer's attorney, concerned the judge's earlier ruling that the jury should consider Raymer a public official.

In libel actions, a defendant is allowed more latitude in error if the subject is a public official, and malice, as well as error, must be proved.

BSHS will host contests

Big Spring High School will host two solo and ensemble contests during the next month.

On Feb. 25, the Big Spring schools will participate in a special preparatory contest. David Fennel, Harris Brinson, both of Angelo State University, and Mike Acord, of the Odessa School District, will judge the event. It is hoped by high school directors Bill Bradley and Steve Waggoner that the contest will help prepare the students for UIL competition.

The East Zone of Region VI-A will participate in UIL contest on March 4, also at BSHS. Entering schools include high schools from Midland, San Angelo, Fort Stockton, Big Lake, and Big Spring. The solo and ensemble contest will allow superior students to advance. Students making a "1" ranking on a Class I solo will be allowed to participate in the State Solo and Ensemble Contest held in June.

Gem show dates listed

The Big Spring Prospectors Club set March 4-5 as dates for the annual Gem and Mineral Show to be held at the Dora Roberts Exhibit Building at the fair grounds.

There will be a special meeting Feb. 23 at Cokers Restaurant to finalize plans for the show.

The club met last week in the club room with Joe Mitchell presiding over the business session.

Anyone planning to attend the meeting Feb. 23 should contact Virgil Perkins for reservations.

At the regular meeting of the club, hostesses were Mrs. Donna Murphy and Mrs. Mary Samuel with Frances Loftis winning the door prize.

Nixon tried, but failed, to erase tape?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon's one-time chief aide, H.R. Haldeman, says in his new book he believes the former president "caused those burglars to break into" the Democratic Party's Watergate offices, and later personally tried — but failed — to erase an incriminating tape recording that became known as the "18½-minute gap," the Washington Post reports.

One of the White House tapes that was subpoenaed during the Watergate investigation contained an 18½-minute gap, which became a major issue during the trials and congressional hearings. Haldeman's book, "The Ends of Power," is scheduled to be published Feb. 27. It provides an inside account from Nixon's most powerful lieutenant on the events that led to the only presidential resignation in American history.

Haldeman, formerly Nixon's White House chief of staff, is in prison for his Watergate crimes. The Post said in Thursday's editions that according to Haldeman's account, Nixon was determined in the spring of 1972 to strike back at political foe Lawrence O'Brien — then Democratic Party chairman, with offices in the Watergate complex. Haldeman said it was public knowledge that O'Brien, a lawyer, was getting a large retainer from millionaire recluse Howard Hughes, "which leads me to my own theory of who initiated the Watergate break-in," the Post quoted from Haldeman's book. "Richard Nixon, himself, caused those burglars to break into O'Brien's office," Haldeman said he believed that Nixon passed the word to White House adviser Charles W. Colson to "get the goods" on O'Brien, the Post said.

On the 18½-minute gap, the Post quoted Haldeman as saying: "My own perception had always been that Nixon simply began to erase all of the Watergate material from the tapes when he started to worry that they may be exposed.

"But Nixon was the least dextrous man I have ever known: clumsy would be too elegant a word to describe his mechanical aptitude... so I believed that Nixon had started trying to erase the tape himself, but realized — at the rate he was going — it would take him 10 years."

Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, has said she may have accidentally erased four to five minutes' worth of the tape containing the 18½-minute gap while transcribing it, but she said she had no explanation for how the remaining minutes were erased.

The Post said it based its report on the latter two-thirds of the book, which the newspaper said was made available to it. The Post did not elaborate on how it obtained the book.

The book will be serialized next week in newspapers that include The Washington Star, The New York Times and The Los Angeles Times. Newsweek magazine plans to publish excerpts.

Haldeman, 51, was convicted in 1975 of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury. He was sentenced to 2½-to-8 years in prison, but U.S. District Judge John Sirica, who presided over the Watergate trials, reduced his sentence late last year to 1-to-4 years.

Haldeman, who will be eligible for parole June 20, is serving his sentence at a minimum security federal prison camp at Lompoc, Calif., where he performs clerical work in the camp's sewage treatment plant.

Disbarment removes DA from his job

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for deposed District Attorney Bill Green say they'll fight their client's disbarment in both federal and state courts.

State District Judge Donald Carroll Jr. revoked Green's law license Wednesday after earlier granting an instructed verdict against him.

The disbarment also automatically removes Green from his job as district attorney for the 3rd Judicial District — Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties. Gov. Dolph Briscoe must appoint a successor.

Green, 30, was convicted last April in Austin of public lewdness charges, fined $400 and assessed a 10-day probation jail sentence. The State Bar of Texas disciplinary suit alleging professional misconduct was based on circumstances surrounding the Austin incident.

Defense attorney Waggoner Carr said he'll file a federal court suit alleging that the Texas law calling for immediate loss of a law license — even while the disbarment is being appealed — is unconstitutional.

Carr also said Green's disbarment will be appealed in the state courts.

Green was arrested after allegedly performing an oral sex act on another man in an Austin peep show booth. He then allegedly broke and ran from police and was arrested in a nearby hotel. The arrest came during his first month as district attorney.

Green, who is appealing his public lewdness conviction, claims the arrest and conviction was a conspiracy by his political enemies. He has maintained he was in the peep show to research community standards on pornography.

"I feel no hesitation in determining the only proper discipline to be assessed in this case is the judgement of disbarment and it will be so ordered," Carroll said in assessing Green's sentence.

"The defendant, William Ray Green, is from this moment enjoined from holding himself out as a legally licensed attorney of this state and from doing and performing any services for which a license to practice law is required," added Carroll.

Carroll could have assessed Green a reprimand or a temporary suspension.

Jerry Calhoun, co-counsel for the plaintiff, presented the motion for instructed verdict Wednesday morning after both sides had rested their cases.

Carroll then withdrew the case from jury consideration and granted the motion for judgement based on the undisputed evidence presented by the plaintiff.

A similar disbarment proceeding against Green ended in mistrial last October because of a deadlocked jury.

Earlier Wednesday, Green appeared briefly at the trial for the first time.

He was hospitalized Sunday night for treatment of what he said was a peptic ulcer. His lawyers sought a continuance, but the judge denied the motion after consulting with Green's doctor.

In his two brief appearances in the courtroom Wednesday, Green coughed a number of times and rested his head on the table. He held his side and walked in a halting manner.

Green, who wasn't present when the punishment was assessed, did not testify in his own behalf.

Tower to spend $7 million?

HARTS-HANKS AUSTIN BUREAU
AUSTIN — They may just be crying "wolf" but some Democratic party leaders claim Republican John Tower will put $7 million into his race for re-election to the U.S. Senate.

Ben Reyes of Houston, treasurer of the State Democratic Party, says there's no wolf or bull in the claim.

"We expect him to raise $7 million," Reyes said recently.

"Tower's people aren't giving the exact figure they expect to spend, but they say Reyes' projection is 'totally unrealistic.'"

The senator says he spent about $2.3 million in his successful 1972 re-election effort. Take that amount, add in an inflation factor and you'll be pretty close to the target amount, according to Tower campaign worker Tabor Ward, that comes to $3 million or $4 million.

Ward says new federal laws limiting family campaign contributions make 1978 "a different ballgame," from 1972.

There's a rumor going around that Gov. Dolph

Jim Davis

Briscoe has developed a severe case of acrophobia. He breaks into a rash reportedly, at the mention of certain words from the first letter of other words.

Sources of the problem include the scandal-scared Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs (GOMA), investigations into Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds and nepotism problems involving a Briscoe appointee and the Houston Employment Area Redevelopment and Training Corp. (HEART).

The rash disappears, however, when the governor hears TGIF-NWCGTTR (Thank God It's Friday — Now We Can Go To The Ranch).

Charles Meadows, beleaguered State Fire Marshal, says he is resigning as of May 1 to make way for a younger and more aggressive man.

If Meadows' replacement actually fits that description it will surprise many state employees. The appointment will be made by State Insurance Board Chairman Hugh C. Yantis Jr., at 64 a longtime skillful swimmer in the bureaucratic stream of state government.

Briscoe discounts GOMA impact

By MIKE LEGGETT and SCOTT CARPENTER
AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says the state auditor's report on the investigation of the Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs will be completed within two weeks.

The auditor's office said that time frame is possible, but the audit more likely will take longer.

Briscoe still is discounting any political impact of the GOMA mess.

The special audit was requested by Briscoe after he suspended Rogelio Perez, GOMA director, and Joaquin Rodriguez, its chief of programs. They have been indicted for forgery in connection with operations of their office.

While the auditor's report may be completed in two weeks, the special task force operating out of the Travis County district attorneys' office will take substantially longer to complete its work.

Scott Carpenter

"Huge" was the word used to describe the workload of that group by Margaret Moore, assistant district attorney.

The task force includes two attorneys chosen by Briscoe, two assistant attorneys general picked by John Hill and two assistant district attorneys from Austin.

Briscoe said at a Huntsville Rotary Club luncheon there has been no erosion of his South Texas political support.

South Texas has been the foundation of Briscoe's earlier races.

The increased benefits migrants derive from GOMA programs have kept the base investigations became public.

But Briscoe said, "We find better support in South Texas now than ever before."

While Briscoe's political advisors have charged that a "dirty tricks" campaign is being waged against the governor, Briscoe only wants to discuss his "positive campaign" based on his record while in office.

Speaker provides landscaping tips

"I remember the first time trying to put out landscape plants here," Johnny Johansen told the Ladies Day crowd of Downtown Lions at Howard College Wednesday noon. "It took three of us — one to hold the plant to keep it from blowing away, another to pour the water, and the third to fill the hole. But you know, those things lived!"

Recalling his visit here, he observed that "Big Spring is greening up." He had come out from Shreveport, La. to interview with a small nursery and after seeing the sand blow, he went back home to find a wire from the nurseryman: "Please come back."

"I'm glad I did," said Johansen, who for many years was head of the city's parks department. He traced briefly the history of landscaping from the early castles. Then, as now, those clearing the site will skin it unless restrained, he said. Gradually, the art of screening and decorating with plants caught on. In contrast to the hard, fixed lines of architecture, landscaping has living lines. Italians early mastered the art with the chief virtue: "They knew when to quit." That's still a good rule, he observed, for "the object is to highlight, not hide your home."

Plants should be picked for specific purposes — screening, accent, decorative. Also they should be picked as whether they are evergreen deciduous (drooping leaves in winter), indigenous (native), dual purpose (fruit or flowers and shade). Another tip is to check soil for degree of alkalinity and treat or pick plants accordingly. Still another is to plant to the soil line — not too deep, not too shallow. Also, experimentation is fine, but it should be done first on a small, inexpensive scale.

There are, said Johansen, over 100 plants which have been proven highly successful in this soil and climate. Finally, he recommended gardening and landscaping as a form of relaxation.

Wives were welcomed to the meeting by Harold Raines, chairman of the special events committee. John Bagnell urged the women to help their husbands locate children who might be guests of Lions to the crippled children's or diabetics' camp. Invitation of John F. Smith to meet at High School March 8 during Texas Public School Week was accepted. Guests included H.B. and Alice Brancel, also Clarence L. Geistmann and Jimmy Smith of the San Angelo Sundown Club, and Russell Devore, immediate past district governor. Brancel is a candidate for District 2A-1 governor.

'Phone Center' plan saves money

Southwestern Bell customers in Big Spring can now save on telephone installation charges when a home or apartment is equipped with prewired modular receptacles, according to Robert Hurt, manager for Southwestern Bell.

"We call this plan 'Phone Center,'" said Hurt.

"Here's how it works. Say, you're moving across town $90,000 estimate tracked

COLORADO CITY — The school board received an estimate of more than $90,000 to improve the existing stadium and track or to build a new track.

Larry C. Donham, architect, presented them with the report. The existing stadium and track is situated where additional drainage is needed to preserve and protect the structures, Supt. Lloyd McKee told the board. Donham presented a renovation plan which included retaining walls and walks, concrete drainage flumes, conversion of existing track to metric which will be required by 1980 and new all-weather surface totaling $92,211.66.

A proposal for a running track at a new location was estimated at $95,980. However, McKee warned the board that something would have to be done at the stadium due to erosion under the bleachers to keep it safe, even if the track is built elsewhere.

The board tabled action on the matter. They were also told there would be no Lone Wolf Relay this year due to the condition of the present track.

Girls athletics was also discussed at length.

The board also heard a request from teachers for additional help on health insurance. The request was tabled until another poll could be taken by the teachers on the subject.
