WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter threatened Saturday to "intervene personally" in the record 75-day-old coal strike but stopped short of direct action even though Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said there was no immediate basis for a negotiated settlement.

"If a good night's sleep doesn't do the trick, then we'll go on to our next options," Marshall said. The labor secretary said none of the options, known to include federal seizure of the coal mines, is preferable to a negotiated settlement, but "all are preferable to a prolonged stalemate."

The coal strike, which began Dec. 6, has forced power cutbacks in several states and is threatening mass industrial layoffs.

Carter on Saturday spent more than 90 minutes with Marshall, whom sources said had a list of options. The list included proposals requiring special legislation, such as federal takeover of the strikebound mines and binding arbitration, as well as seeking an 80-day back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Act, the sources said.

Another option called for Marshall recommending contract terms rather than acting strictly as a mediator between the two sides, the sources added.

Marshall, declining to say which option he favored, told reporters, "Right now, my next option is a good night's sleep."

Marshall said he would keep in contact with representatives of the United Mine Workers union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to determine if further talks are possible.

Marshall said he would return to the White House on Sunday afternoon for another meeting with Carter.

The labor secretary called on representatives of both sides to "reflect on the undesirable but probably necessary alternatives" to a negotiated settlement.

During a stopover in Nashua, N.H., Carter said, "I will intervene personally if necessary" in the negotiations. He also said he was prepared "to take drastic action," such as invoking the Taft-Hartley Act if talks failed.

Carter acknowledged that "the prospects right now are not particularly encouraging" for a negotiated settlement that would return the 160,000 striking miners to their jobs.

In a predawn meeting here Saturday, the union bargaining council voted unanimously to reject the latest offer from the BCOA. Union president Arnold Miller later described the situation as "kind of grim."

Marshall, working day and night to produce an accord in the increasingly disruptive strike, said the proposal "seemed to be the industry's final one."

But he added: "We must resolve this dispute and we will take appropriate action in the immediate future."

Later, in a harshly worded statement, the coal industry said the union was responding in an "incredible" way to management's new offer. The union's response "inroduced a shopping list of items that were settled weeks ago," complained industry spokesman Morris Feibusch.

"Management's improved offer made last night included a reluctant dropping of the single most important objective it had gained in these negotiations — a requirement that wildcat strikers make a financial contribution to the union's own welfare plan," Feibusch said.

Carter described the negotiations as difficult and said, "If no agreement is reached, it would be a severe blow to miners, to owners, and to the collective bargaining process."

But later, when asked about the possibility of a Taft-Hartley move, Carter said, "If I have to, I will take such drastic action if the collective bargaining process breaks down." The president said he felt confident the two sides were bargaining in good faith.

IRA activists arrested for bomb deaths of 12

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops and police hunting terrorists who killed 12 persons in a firebomb attack on an inn swept through Roman Catholic areas of Belfast Saturday and arrested a score of top Irish Republican Army activists.

Police, appealing for information on the Friday night bombing in a Protestant suburb, passed out flyers topped by the headline "Murder, Murder" in blood-red type and showing a picture of the charred body of a woman victim.

The roundup of suspected guerrillas of the IRA's violent Provisional wing was the biggest in months.

Britain's Northern Ireland

Secretary, Roy Mason, flew here for emergency sessions with security chiefs. Police Chief Sir Kenneth Newman assembled a task force of 100 detectives — the biggest unit formed to tackle a terrorist crime since sectarian fighting began here in August 1969.

Protestant militants are putting increased pressure on British authorities to smash the mainly Catholic IRA, which is fighting to end British rule in this Protestant-dominated province.

Police said those arrested Saturday included "members believed to be prominent in the IRA command structure." Police sources said one was Gerry Adams, reputed Belfast commander of the "Provos."

Action/reaction: Rural delivery

Q. Are the carriers on rural routes for the Herald supposed to put the newspaper in the paper boxes? In bad and rainy weather, how are they supposed to fix the paper to keep it dry?

A. The rural carriers are independent business people who 'purchase' the paper from the Herald and 'sell' it to subscribers. As a courtesy, most of them put the papers in boxes especially set up for that purpose. In order to keep the paper dry during wet weather, plastic bags are made available to be used for delivery.

"There were chunks out of it," said one bystander. "It was pretty battered out."

Americans faulted

with Tommy Hart

An Australian bearing down on 60 who likes to compete in marathon races says the Americans' disregard for physical fitness shocks him. He is particularly critical of professional athletes.

"It's a bloody crime the way most athletes refuse to take care of themselves," he laments. "Baseball players, especially, are the worst conditioned, although they are the most overpaid athletes in the world. Most of them jog around with rolls of fat hanging from their bellies. They ought to be ashamed of themselves."

"And professional football players are a disgrace. They're fair game for heart attacks. They're not in decent condition to begin with, and then when they quit the sport their weight instantly blooms and they've got to tote around an extra 50 or 60 pounds. It's no wonder most of them die young. Most American housewives are in better physical shape than professional athletes."

If the Aussie had his way, coaches also would whip themselves into acceptable physical condition. They become prime candidates for strokes, he says, because they drive themselves too hard and don't practice what they preach.

Reds can win French elections

AP news analysis

PARIS (AP) — A three-week election campaign opens Monday to determine whether France, with its nuclear arsenal and vast industries, will be governed by Socialists and Communists.

For most Frenchmen, the question is whether their society of two-class suburbs and Normandy mansions is to be revamped with nationalization and a reduction in the inequality of wealth.

But the outcome could have a resounding impact on politics in Western Europe, on the Western defense alliance NATO and in much of the Third World where France exerts a major influence.

Voting on March 12 and March 19 is to fill all 491 seats in the National Assembly. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, whose office is not at stake in the balloting, is obliged by custom to name a premier approved by the majority party in the National Assembly.

Opinion polls predict that a shaky alliance of the Socialist and Communist parties, with a third moderate leftist group, will win up to 55 per cent of the popular vote in the first round of voting.

But the second round is the crucial one, and bitter quarreling among the leftist partners has thrown the outcome into doubt.

All candidates in each district — sometimes up to a dozen — run in the first round. Those who win at least 12.5 percent of the vote either appear on the second-round ballot or drop out to avoid splitting votes with like-minded candidates who stand a better chance.

If the Communists drop out in districts where they place second to the Socialists, the left is likely to win. If they don't, political analysts say, the center-right government will keep a slight margin.

"Together the left will win. Disunited, we will lose," said the Socialist Party leader, Francois Mitterrand, in a televised interview.

But Communist Party leader Georges Marchais contends the Socialists do not want enough reform and will sell out to big business once the Communists help them win. "Mitterrand," said Mar-chais, "wants a blank check."

Although the campaign officially begins this week, Frenchmen have talked of little else for months. Each evening, television viewers watch candidates' faces, already haggard from whistletop tours.

Jacques Chirac of the neo-Gaullist Rally for the Republic, spoke to more than 60,000 voters Feb. 12 at an indoor rally and is reported to be spending $3 million for 57 special trains, 1,000 buses, 30,000 meals and publicity.

Premier Raymond Barre, helped by election marketing consultants, selected a stylized oak as his symbol, and it appears along the Champs d'Elysees on posters reading, "Confidence-Barre."

Chirac and Barre, ostensibly partners in the present majority coalition, are at odds. Chirac, elected mayor of Paris last March after resigning as premier, charges the government is not trying hard enough to win.

But analysts expect the majority to settle their differences before the second round, when the left's problems could begin.

Fleeing with 15 hostages

Terrorists kill Egyptian editor

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP) — Two assassins gunned down a prominent Egyptian editor in a hotel lobby Saturday and then flew from this Mediterranean island aboard a Cypriot jetliner with 11 male hostages and a four-man volunteer plane crew.

An airport source said the medium-range Cyprus Airways DC-8 jet could stay aloft for no more than six hours with a light load. But an official at the Larnaca air control tower said the plane had enough fuel to stay in the air until 3:30 a.m. local time (8:30 p.m. EST).

As that time passed there was no word on the fate of the plane.

The plane had approached Greek air space and was refused permission to land. Airport officials in Greece and Larnaca said the plane apparently was headed toward Aden, capital of South Yemen.

South Yemen is a small country under left-wing rule at the tip of the Saudi Arabian peninsula on the Gulf of Aden. The distance between Cyprus and Aden is approximately 1,700 miles.

A spokesman for Cypriot President Spyros Kyprianou said the president appealed in urgent telegrams to South Yemen and surrounding countries to let the jet land "for humanitarian reasons." He quoted the president as saying if the plane is not permitted to land it "will crash because it will run out of fuel."

Libya had announced earlier the plane could not land there. Hostages freed in Larnaca said Kuwait had been mentioned as a possible destination, but officials in that Persian Gulf state told reporters the plane would be barred from landing.

Cypriot Interior Minister Christodoulos Benjamin said the gunmen, who shot and killed Egyptian editor Youssef el-Sebaei in the lobby of the Hilton Hotel in Nicosia, called themselves Palestinians. Benjamin was one of the last hostages released before the plane took off.

In Beirut, Lebanon, a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization denied PLO involvement in the raid.

The executive committee of the PLO, led by Yasser Arafat, denounced the assassination as a "cowardly aggression on all peoples of Asia and Africa." It called the incident "treason against the Palestinian cause" and warned the terrorists not to harm any of the hostages.

Another freed hostage, George Batal of Lebanon, said the terrorists told their captives, "Everybody who went to Israel with Sadat will die, including Sadat."

Sebaei, board chairman and editor-in-chief of the Cairo daily Al-Ahram, accompanied Sadat on his epic peacemaking journey to Jerusalem last November. The 60-year-old editor was cut down by gunshots to the head and chest fired from point-blank range as he walked across the hotel lobby.

Sebaei, a former information and culture minister, was in Cyprus to lead an Afro-Asian conference.

The terrorists then seized 30 hostages, many of them conference delegates. Most were eventually freed at the hotel or airport.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Stuntman Evel Knievel says he met the man who helped him beat up his former publicist, Sheldon Saltman, in a hotel bar, but he never knew his name. Knievel testified Friday that even if he did know the name, he "would rather go to a penitentiary" than reveal it. Knievel was ordered to testify in pretrial proceedings in a damage suit filed by Saltman, whose wrists were broken with a baseball bat wielded by the stuntman, while Saltman was pinned by Knievel's companion.

Corn killer to baby powder

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Gerhard Mennen opened a small drug store in Newark and began mixing his own concoctions on Feb. 15, 1878. Now the company he started is doing a $100 million-a-year business in 90 countries. Mennen's first product was a foot preparation hawked as a "sure-fire corn killer" at traveling minstrel shows. But the pharmacist turned from medications to baby powders soon afterward. "My grandfather invented the use of talc for powder," said George S. Mennen, board chairman of the Mennen Co. here. "Before that most baby powder in use was chalk or cornstarch, which is a good fungus-breeding medium. He also invented the sprinkler top can for baby powder."

Strangler strikes again

LOS ANGELES — The Hillside Strangler has struck again, police say, leaving the nude body of a 20-year-old bank clerk stuffed into the trunk of a car. And the Los Angeles Police Department, desperate for leads to the killer of 13 young women, has thrown its entire Hillside Strangler Task Force into a search for a yellow van. Cynthia Lee Hudspeh of Glendale was found Friday in the trunk of a car that apparently was pushed over a cliff in the Angeles National Forest. An autopsy began Saturday, but deputies said there were marks around her neck and she "is definitely one of the Hillside Strangler victims." A preliminary coroner's report showed that Miss Hudspeh had not been sexually molested, as were many of the other victims. Except for the fact that she was found in a car trunk instead of dumped along a hillside, "the pattern is exactly the same, it has the Strangler's signature," a police source said.

Arrests clear robberies

EL PASO (AP) — The arrest of two men Friday night in El Paso may clear up a rash of convenience store robberies, police said Saturday. El Paso officers said they saw the two men in a 7-11 store and thought them suspicious. Minutes later, they confronted the two outside the store. At police headquarters, victims of at least two robberies identified the two men, police said. They also are wanted for investigation of auto theft and armed robbery in Fort Worth. The two men were jailed in lieu of $40,000 bond.

Blacks don't want stooge-run government

SOWETO, South Africa (AP) — Most residents didn't bother to vote Saturday in the white-minority government's elections for the first community council in this huge black township, and one black explained: "We don't want Soweto run for us by stooges." The national government had described the elections as "probably the most crucial ever held in Soweto." But black rejection of the council as a white tool was reflected not only in the turnout, but in remarks of passersby and the fact that races were contested in only two of the 30 voting districts. Midway through the day, about 100 of the 8,000 eligible voters in the two districts had cast ballots. In one of the two, Orlando East, hundreds of blacks walked past the polling place under a steady rain, ignoring old women chanting political songs in Zulu. "The people who know what's happening aren't here," said a young woman.

"Only the old people are here." Asked if he planned to vote, one man said, "What for?" Others dismissed the question with snickers. None would give his name. "Basically, we don't want Soweto run for us by stooges," said a well-dressed man. "All the organizations which were really working for the betterment of Soweto are banned. Why?"

The council elections had been billed as a test of government authority in Soweto, a township of 1.5 million blacks near Johannesburg, in the wake of the bloody summer rioting of 1976 and the nationwide crackdown last October against foes of apartheid — the government policy of racial separation. The crackdown swept away virtually every leader of Soweto, including the influential "Committee of 10" led by moderate physician Nthato Motlana, who called for full autonomy for the township. # Boyle found guilty of ordering murders

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — W.A. "Tony" Boyle was found guilty Saturday of ordering the late-night murder of Joseph Yablonski, the United Mine Workers union dissident who tried to push Boyle out of the union presidency. Boyle became the 9th person convicted in the murder plot. Three triggermen were employed to kill Yablonski. They also killed his wife and daughter in the Yablonski family home in 1969. Boyle looked straight ahead. His blue eyes twitched for a moment, but he said nothing and showed no emotion as the jury foreman completed delivering the verdict — guilty of three counts of first-degree murder. It was his second conviction on the charges. His 1974 conviction was voided on appeal. Leon Yablonski, brother of the slain UMW insurgent, told a newsmen after the verdict: "We've all heard the verdict. Justice has been done." "Get away from me," Joseph Yablonski Jr. barked at a newsmen who approached him for comment. His brother Kenneth told another reporter: "I don't have anything to say." The ailing 76-year-old Boyle declined comment and was placed in his wheelchair and rolled into a small anteroom behind the court. Chief defense counsel A. Charles Peruto told Delaware County Judge Francis Catania he intended to file an appeal for a new trial. Catania agreed to continue Boyle's bail at $250,000 until Feb. 24. The jury got the case at 5:30 p.m. Friday and deliberated a total of four hours, 50 minutes — 20 minutes longer than a jury in the same courthouse deliberated in 1974 before reaching an identical verdict. Prosecutor Richard Sprague said of the verdict, "When those killers pointed their weapons... it was Mr. Boyle who was doing it, and that's what this verdict said.... It represents to me a showing that juries will not be led astray."

West said that he was acting in accordance with the autopsy report which he received Friday. Mrs. Logan was discovered by her husband lying face down in their home January 30. Despite artificial respiration attempts, she was pronounced dead at the scene by West. The autopsy was performed by Dr. B. A. Campomanes at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

JURY SAID "GUILTY" — Newsmen thrust microphone toward former United Mine Workers president W.A. "Tony" Boyle, but Boyle refused comment Saturday after a jury found him guilty of ordering the 1969 murder of a union rival. Boyle continues to be free on $250,000 bail at least until next Friday.

Horse race betting referendum on ballot

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Voters in the May 6 Republican primary will get to express their views on legalizing horse race betting in Texas. The State Republican Executive Committee voted Saturday to put the issue on the primary ballot as a non-binding referendum. GOP national committeeman Ernest Angelo of Midland said the referendum might draw more voters to the Republican primary, which usually gets a sparse turnout.

Rates go up at hospital

ODESSA — Ward, semi-private and private room rates at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital have been boosted $10 a day but hospital administrator Sam Glenney said such charges are still below those charged by most hospitals in Abilene, Big Spring, El Paso and Midland. The new rates increase ward fees to $65, $68 and $69 for semi-private rooms and $70 and $80 for private rooms. Intensive care and coronary care rooms go to $150, up $15 a day. The increases, first implemented by Medical Care Center since May 1975, will produce $557,505 annually for the hospital, Glenney said.

Trial only first step in Hughes case

HOUSTON (AP) — Despite a jury decision and an large investment of time and money, the legal residence of the late Howard Hughes remains still very much a major legal question.

YMCAs spring events announced in brochure

The spring schedule of activities at the YMCA has been slated. The YMCA will be mailing the spring brochure to all members of the Y, but non-members may participate in some of the classes by paying a nominal fee.

The YMCA is expanding the women's morning schedule. From 9 a.m. to noon, a woman can get fit and keep fit by enrolling in classes in exercise, aerobics, racquetball, water exercises, and swim lessons.

The Women's Health Club is open from 9 to 11:30 each weekday morning, and from 10 to noon on Saturday morning. "After the morning's schedule, relaxation in the heated swimming pool could top off the exercise activities, and leave a woman refreshed, relaxed, and feeling fit," according to Jan Smith, program director.

For working women, the Y has evening classes in aerobics and exercise, and evening hours for the Women's Health Club. There is also a women's exercise class on Saturday mornings.

Marrieds will be honored

The "hearts and flowers" month of February marks the beginning of registration for a special program honoring married couples at three Dairy Queens in Big Spring.

Whether they will be marking a first anniversary, a 75th, or any year in between or beyond during the next 12 months, couples can register now at Dairy Queen for a free wedding anniversary dinner.

The dinner — to be provided by DQ any day during the anniversary week to couples who have signed up for the program — will begin with a toast.

Dairy Queen will present each participating couple with a bottle of "champagne," actually sparkling apple cider, and two champagne glasses so that they can toast each other and their wedding anniversary.

They will be served at a special table, which will be covered with a white table cloth and special white napkins to create a festive atmosphere for the anniversary dinners.

The anniversary program, believed to be the first of its kind for Dairy Queen, will encompass almost 50 DQs in Central and West Texas that are a part of the Chapman Fast Foods organization.

I. B. (Barney) Chapman II of Fort Worth, the nation's largest operator of privately-owned Dairy Queens, is the creator of the anniversary dinner treats, which will be in effect in all of the Chapman DQ restaurants.

DAV, auxiliary meet Monday

The local chapter of the Disabled American Veterans and the DAV Auxiliary will host both Region I commanders in their regular monthly meeting Monday evening in the VFW Hall.

Special guests will be Gene Roberts, Region I commander, and Mrs. Gladys Miller, Region I DAV commander.

Other regional chapters have been invited to attend the meeting, which will get under way with a 6 p.m. supper. All members of the two organizations are being urged to attend the meeting.

Christie plans Tuesday visit

Joe Christie, a Democratic candidate for the office of U.S. Senator, will visit the Howard County courthouse from 9 to 10 a.m., Tuesday.

Christie, former state insurance commissioner, will contest Cong. Bob Krueger in the First Democratic Primary election Saturday, May 6, for the right to oppose the Republican winner in the General Election in November. The senate seat currently is occupied by John Tower.

Following the courthouse visit, Christie will go the Pioneer Gas Company Flare Room where a reception will be held in his honor. The public is invited to meet Christie at the reception.

A probate court jury needed only 30 minutes of deliberation and one vote to decide that Texas was Hughes' legal domicile at the time of his death in April 1976.

And, the jury, in that same half hour, ruled the so-called Mormon will was a forgery. Despite all the expenses, the trial was only the first legal step in the long journey leading to a solution to whom receives how much of the vast Hughes estate.

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill said he doubted if the case would have to go through the federal court, because "our evidence indicated that club Hughes, if ever asked where his legal residence was, would have said, 'Houston.' That's where he made his fortune, that's where he paid his income taxes, that's where he registered for the draft, that's where he died and that's where he is buried."

Frank Davis, the attorney who represented the temporary administrators of the estate, told The Associated Press in an interview, "To lose to Texas doesn't hurt us one bit. Texas had the homecourt advantage. It is like a basketball game. If the trial had been in California, the verdict would have gone to California."

"We want it in a neutral court, the U.S. Supreme Court. Once there, we will get a fair decision on what 1922, died in April 1976 while on a flight from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston for medical treatment.

He had lived the past 50 years of his life in California, Nevada, and several foreign countries. A trial is underway now in Las Vegas, Nev., to determine the validity of the Mormon will, a hand-written document left in the Salt Lake City headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Should the Nevada jury decide the will is valid, the Texas action will tie a tighter knot in the legal ropes binding the Hughes estate.

Open house, dedication planned by Jack & Jill

An open house and dedication ceremony will be held at the new Jack and Jill school complex starting at 3 p.m. next Sunday. The school is located at 1708 Nolan.

Presiding at the ritual will be Truett Thomas, president of the school's board of directors. The Ambassadors Club will participate in the ribbon cutting ceremony.

Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery, assistant to the president at Howard College, will unveil the builder's plaque.

The dedication ritual will get under way at 3:15 p.m., in the gymnasium, at which time special guests will be recognized. The welcoming

Weather

Sunshine breaks winter's spell

The sun shined brightly over much of Texas Saturday, sending temperatures upward and melting the snow from what was a record snowfall in some portions of the state. The temperature dropped to minus 2 Saturday morning at Lubbock, breaking the old mark of 6 degrees set in 1942 for a Feb. 18. Weather officials said it was the coldest temperature for the city since a minus 4 reading on Jan. 5, 1971.

It did not approach the alltime mark, however, of minus 17 set on Feb. 8, 1933. Wichita Falls also set a record for the date. Its reading of 4 degrees bettered the old mark of 8 degrees in 1936.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts an area of rain in the Pacific Northwest and an area of snow in the Northeast. An area of showers is predicted for parts of southern Florida.

BORN AGAIN VILLAGE — When Interstate 35 by-passed the village of Salado, Texas it appeared that the small village would become another casualty of progress. However, a group of citizens were determined that the 19th century town would be born again. Art galleries, antique shops and other speciality shops now make the town a stopping place off the main highway.

19th century village lives again in Texas

SALADO, Tex. (AP) — All along the fringes of today's mobile society lie the desiccated remains of once-thriving towns. Pruned from the interstate highway system vine, they are now no more than a memory and a passing blur. That makes this little central Texas village an American rarity. In the popular phrase, Salado is a born-again town. "I remember when we were down to one store and one filling station and about 250 people," said Ernest Guess, who ran the one filling station. "Now look at us."

To look, you have to slow down and get off I-35, then go far enough so that you are well removed from the six-lane rush and roar. What you will find is a 19th century village come back to life: Old stone buildings shaded by antique oaks, huge pecan trees lining a bubbling creek; no neon, no plastic, no smog. "I would say we have, oh, 1,000 or 1,500 people here now," said Ernest Guess, who today runs a newer and far busier filling station, "and there are seven housing developments going up around about. I don't know what happened."

What happened was that Salado got "discovered." In its first lifetime, Salado was a stop on the north-south stage road in Texas between Dallas and Austin. A man named Armstrong built an inn here and it never lacked for customers. Sam Houston signed its register and so did the outlaw Sam Bass. By the turn of the century a college flourished here as well as a prestigious prep school. Also a mill. Later, alas, Salado Creek went on an unlikely rampage and washed away most of the town. As if that weren't tragedy enough, a fire burned down much of what remained, including the college.

By the time of the Great Depression Salado was as Ernest Guess remembered it, a little country store and a filling station. The old inn was standing though, empty but still sturdy. In 1941 an optimistic woman, Mrs. Dion Van Bibber, took a liking to it and decided to reopen it as a restaurant. She shored up its cypress beams, polished its oak floors and announced her menu: whatever was in the kitchen. When the interstate arrived in 1961, rendering the narrow road that passed through Salado obsolete, it didn't faze Mrs. Van Bibber. After all, wasn't Salado itself obsolete? Her optimism undaunted, she added a motel. The inn was the nucleus. One by one, others with an eye for history and a taste for quality got off the interstate and found Salado. Gradually the old native stone buildings empty beside the creek became shops and galleries — not dressed-up souvenir stands but, like Salado itself, the real thing.

VA Hospital to train doctors

A new program to train experienced physicians in caring for the special medical problems of the aging population was announced recently by Jack D. Powell, hospital director, Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital. The first 12 physicians to be trained under the program are already board certified as specialists in internal medicine, family practice or psychiatry. They will be given two years of additional training in geriatrics and gerontology at six Veterans Administration hospitals beginning July 1, 1978. Twelve more physicians will be added to the program each year. "We are initiating this program to develop a cadre of physicians who will provide badly needed leadership in geriatrics," Powell said. "VA is taking this action because of our concern for the increasing age of the veteran population in this country, in the face of an almost complete lack of training elsewhere for specialists in the specific health problems of the older age group. The largest segment of the veteran population, the 13.3 million who fought in World War II, will reach an average age of 65 by 1984. "Nationally, the over-65 age group constitutes only ten per cent of the total population, but it uses 25 per cent of the nation's health resources and requires the largest fraction of all governmental health expenditures." The hospital director said that a National Academy of Sciences study, "Health Care for American Veterans", issued in June 1977, called for the VA to take a leadership role in creating systems for providing good quality long-term care, such as aging persons often require. The NAS report noted that most

WTCC adventure map has been released

Bob Corkins of Alpine, chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Tourist and Travel Development Committee, has announced that the fifth edition of the WTCC "Wonderful West Texas" Fun and Adventure Map has just been released. The Fun and Adventure Map is the feature travel publication for West Texas providing information for the 132-county WTCC service area. Quantity production of the map enables a mass distribution program to be carried out utilizing direct mail, State Tourist Information Centers, participants, auto clubs and other interested travel related groups. Corkins, president of Gem Wholesale Company, Inc., of Alpine, explained: "All inquiries received by the WTCC Travel Development Department receive a copy of the Fun and Adventure Map along with any specific information requested." Corkins noted that a minimum of 100,000 copies of the publication are distributed annually. Sixty-nine points of interest are highlighted in the 1978 edition, which is number-keyed for the visitor's convenience on a colorful map of West Texas. The Fun and Adventure Map calls many fine attractions to the visitor's attention that might otherwise be overlooked. Use of the map in vacation planning can save time, fuel and money. The publication features attractions and areas of interest, museums, colleges, and universities, and a list of state and national parks located in West Texas, along with other interesting travel information. A free copy of the "Wonderful West Texas" Fun and Adventure Map can be obtained by writing: West Texas Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 1561, Abilene, Texas 79604. Advertising rates are also available upon request. Attractions and areas of interest include Heritage Museum and Howard College, both of Big Spring.

March 1 is deadline for mail registration

AUSTIN — Texas motorists have been advised that the deadline for renewing 1977 motor vehicle registrations by mail is March 1. R. W. Townsley, director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, pointed out that it is taking longer to register vehicles this year because of the new staggered registration system. As a partial offset of slow moving registration lines, county tax offices began accepting registration applications January 1 this year instead of February 1, as in previous years. Many motorists have taken advantage of the earlier registration date to avoid waiting lines. Renewal by mail offers a very convenient method of obtaining registrations

Hill caravan to stop here

State Rep. Luther Jones, El Paso coordinator for the John Hill for governor campaign, will stop in Big Spring at 2:30 p.m. Monday on behalf of the campaign. Jones will begin a 600-mile caravan on behalf of Hill at 9 a.m. Monday and will work eastward. He will take lunch in Midland, go to Stanton at 1:30 p.m., and pause at Colorado City at 3:30 p.m. He will stop overnight in Sweetwater before working his way eastward toward Fort Worth and Dallas. Four members of Hill's family, including his wife, Betsy, and Jones will leave from five extreme parts of the state at the same time bound for Dallas to carry Hill's campaign message in three days. In all, stops are planned in 102 cities.

Free prescription program saved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Cutbacks in free prescriptions for the poor were avoided Saturday when the State Board of Human Resources voted unanimously to shift $4 million to the program. The board ordered its staff and Medical Care Advisory Committee to come up with methods for curbing the program's cost without penalizing needy people. Commissioner Jerome Chapman said funds would be unavailable in 1979 for another money transfer to the drug program, so cost-cutting was essential. The $4 million was transferred from funds appropriated for nursing home care for the mentally retarded — an area with a large amount of unspent money. Chapman listed several cost-cutting methods that would be studied. These include token payments — such as 25 cents or 50 cents for each prescription — by welfare recipients. But he said he wants to delay a pilot program until new food stamp rules come from Washington. "As long as they have to pay for food stamps, co-payment for drugs would put too big a squeeze on the recipients," Chapman said. He said price increases by some manufacturers were partly responsible for overspending in the $50 million per year program of medicine for the poor. Welfare recipients can receive up to three prescriptions per month at state and federal expense. Beyond that, they must pay for them if they have the money. Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, sent a message endorsing the fund transfer and saying the Legislature wanted each welfare recipient to be eligible for three prescriptions monthly. Frank Dannelley of Austin proposed requiring manufacturers to rebate the difference between what the human resources department pays for drugs through pharmacists and what other agencies pay. He said the department pays $8.13 per hundred for Valium obtained by welfare recipients, while the State Board of Control buys the same drug for $3.80 for use in state hospitals. Dannelley, a member of the advisory committee, said the total difference for all strengths of Valium amounted to more than $1 million a year. Adding up 11 different "single source" drugs, he projected a saving of $3 million per year. Dannelley said that with

Among other awards to be presented at this time, will be the Eagle Award to Larry Turk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Toni Turk of Snyder. ## Alcoholism in industry seminar set for Friday

A seminar on alcohol in industry will get under way starting at 9:30 a.m., next Friday at the Detox Center, located at 2906 W. 13th St. (formerly Fire Station No. 6).

There will be no charge for the seminar and the public has a special invitation to be in attendance. In the event any employer or member of his organization is interested in attending the program, he can call the Detox Center, phone No. 263-4021, and so advise the person who answers.

It is estimated that six percent of the labor force in the Permian Basin has a drinking problem, and that the cost to industry is $9 million annually — from absenteeism, poor workmanship, poor employee relations and, most important, lost orders.

The seminar, which continues until noon, will include literature, information, slides and a film which will help the employer or supervisor detect alcoholism in the employee in its early stages; and to advise him in a dignified way of the services available in the Big Spring community.

The seminar will be conducted by Ed Mitchell, director of the local Detox Center, who spent two years working with industry in the field of alcoholism. Ray Plumlee, Industrial Consultant for the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, and the balance of the Detox Center staff, as well as professional people from the VA Hospital and the State Hospital, will also be in attendance.

National health insurance planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is considering a national health insurance plan that would require all Americans to carry basic health coverage, which could be obtained from the government as well as from private insurance companies.

Under the plan, private insurance companies would set their own rates in competition with the government. But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare would regulate the industry to insure that people choosing private companies over the federal plan would still be getting adequate insurance.

The concept is described in one of several option papers prepared for the administration by HEW planners. It is getting official attention because it is "newer and sexier than some of the ideas that have been kicked around for 10 years," administration sources said.

The sources said President Carter's eventual national health care proposal to Congress later this year likely will contain elements of several plans now being developed and tested at HEW.

The plan presently receiving the most attention would establish a federally run insurance program and require all U.S. residents who can afford it to pay premiums calculated on the basis of actual health costs in their area.

Welfare recipients and others now covered by Medicaid programs would have their premiums paid by the government out of general tax revenues. Those eligible for Medicare would pay the same premium share as they do now.

But in an important departure from earlier proposals for "federalizing" the health insurance system, the "publicly guaranteed" plan would permit groups and some individuals to opt out of the government plan if they could do better dealing with private insurance companies.

"Employers who opt for private sector coverage would have to provide this insurance for all their employees," the outline said. "Individual members of an employee group could not choose to opt out on their own. The self-employed or others not connected to an employee group would have the same opportunity to opt out to the private sector as the employee groups."

No justification for belt spanking

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
A.C.S.W., Director
Howard County Family
Service Center

"My father beat me with a belt. I hated him for it but now I see that it helped me turn out all right. I think he did right." The tone was angry, defiant. Harry was justifying his actions in using a belt to punish his two sons, Jerry and Derry, aged 8 and 7 years respectively. The actions had brought accusations of child abuse. The child welfare worker produced snapshots that showed breaking of the flesh and welts on the backs of both boys above the buttocks in the area of the kidneys.

Not only had Harry's method of punishing his children been dangerous, but my observation of the boys' behavior showed the complete ineffectiveness of the ways that he so vehemently defended. When Jerry and Derry came to the office they were completely out of control. Not having a play therapy area which would have tolerated their wildness, we had to restrain them. On one occasion I saw them in a store. They raced through the store slamming into people and knocking merchandise off the shelves. What constitutes good parenting? What punishment of children is needed, is justified?

Parenting should be regarded as a system in which two parties operate and interact — the parent and the child.

Each party needs to be seen and understood. The parent and child, representing the highest form of life, each merit respect. The parent needs to respect himself as a person with the capacity to be a competent individual. When he understands himself and accepts himself he sees himself as the logical repository of parental authority. He sees his child, even as the tiniest infant, as a whole human being capable of full growth into individuality. He sees himself as a teacher and his child as a disciple. This concept underlies the understanding of discipline as a learning process through which the child learns to be a human-being. The wise parent distinguishes between his child and the actions of his child. He may condemn the actions of his child but he does not condemn the person of the child. "I like little boys. I don't always like what little boys do." The parent needs to teach his child to control his actions.

The only justification for punishment is that it be a part of the disciplining — the teaching process. Any activity that goes beyond that is invalid, unjustifiable and harmful. There is no way to justify the use of the belt in disciplining children. Use of the belt meets the needs of the parent, not the needs of the child.

Heart month activities: door-to-door fund drive

The Howard County division of the American Heart Association will conduct the door to door fund-raising campaign from February 25 to February 26.

Volunteers will call to distribute Heart Association literature and to collect donations for heart research and public service programs. Please welcome them when they call, officials of the drive urge.

On February 25, as part of the campaign program, a free blood pressure screening clinic will be held at Highland mall from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Student nurses from Howard College will be present to take blood pressures for anyone who stops by the booth.

Blood pressure screening will also be held on Saturday at the North Side Fire Station from 2-4 p.m. and at the Barcelona Apartments Club House from 2-4 p.m.

On Sunday February 26, volunteers will staff blood pressure booths at the Quail Run Apartments and at the Ponderosa Apartments laundry room from 2-4 p.m. at both locations.

"Perform a death defying act, have your blood pressure checked," local heart officials stress.

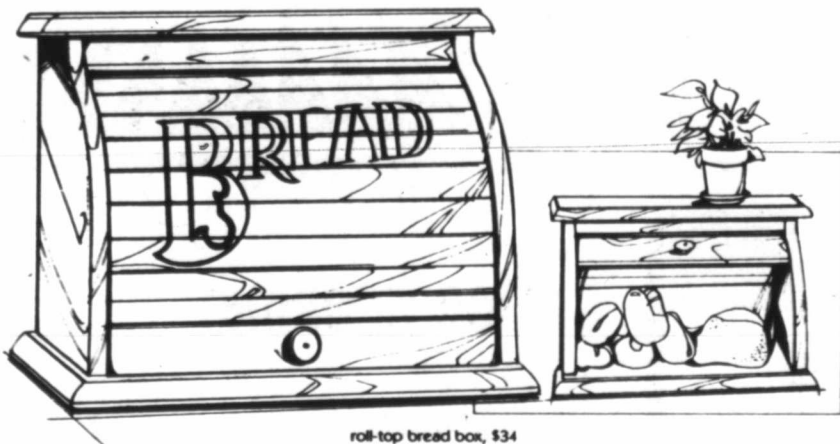

February has been designated as heart month.

O'Shaughnessy shines, Coogs win track title

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Arkansas' premier distance runner Niall O'Shaughnessy was named outstanding athlete of the Southwest Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships, but the Houston team captured the title.

The Irish Olympian won the 1,000-yard run and anchored Arkansas' distance relay and two-mile relay victories Friday night.

O'Shaughnessy's performance outshone the brilliant 60-yard dash win by Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey, a newcomer to indoor track who came within two-hundredths of a second of matching the world indoor mark.

Dickey, an Aggie football running back, clocked a 6.13 in the preliminaries and ran a 6.15 to win the title over Texas Christian's Don Collins. Dickey, however, had problems at the starting block and believes he can knock off more than two-tenths of a second with a good start.

The world record is 6.11, set by Houston's McTear. Dickey ran the indoor 60-yard dash for the first time in his life last week and clocked a 6.17, the third best recorded time in the 60-yard dash. He took the finals medal with a 6.18 clocking.

After the meet, Dickey said he has one goal in track this year. "McTear. That's all I want, a chance at McTear. It's hard to say how I might do against him. He's just as fast as I am but at the end I think I can get him," Dickey said.

Houston rolled up 93 points to outdistance Baylor's 87. Arkansas finished third with 68½, while Rice was fourth with 66½ and Texas A&M was fifth with 54.

The Houston victory was greatly aided by a 1-2-3 sweep in the shot put.

The two-mile relay by Arkansas was a new SWC record, 7:42.30.

O'Shaughnessy ran the final 890 in 1:50.8, having to make up about 50 yards in the process.

O'Shaughnessy captured the 1,000-yard run in 2:08.69, just less than two seconds slower than the 2:06.75 time he had in the same event at the SWC meet a year ago.

"I went out to take the pace. I wanted to make it hard enough that some guys in the back wouldn't be in contention," he said.

O'Shaughnessy had earlier anchored the Razorback distance medley team, which won in 10:07.24.

Competition better'n speed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — What does the International Race of Champions series prove? "I think it proves that people don't come to a race track to see speed. They come to see competition," said Al Unser after winning the 1977-78 IROC championship and $50,000. "It doesn't matter if you're going 200 miles an hour or 20. The level of competition makes it a race."

Facts would seem to support out. The final of four races in the IROC series, which pits top international drivers in identically prepared Chevrolet Camaros, was sandwiched Friday between two Grand National stock car races and a NASCAR modified show.

Although the stockers and the modifieds were 20-25 miles per hour faster than the Camaros, the IROC show was just as good, and sometimes superior, to the other events.

"We were racing just as hard out there as the stock cars. We didn't need to go any faster to make it a better race. They could make the cars go faster, and we could drive them faster. But it wouldn't improve the racing. It would just mean we hit the wall harder when we crash," said Unser, one of three drivers to wipe out in the IROC final.

Stock car king Richard Petty received a mild concussion, and was confined to a hospital overnight after the crash with Unser and Johnny Rutherford.

Unser apparently touched wheels with Mario Andretti, the leader and eventual winner, precipitating the crash, which sent Unser vaulting over a six-foot embankment and nearly into the infield lake.

Unser, the point leader coming into the final race on the strength of two earlier victories, still had enough points to win the title while watching the finish on the sidelines.

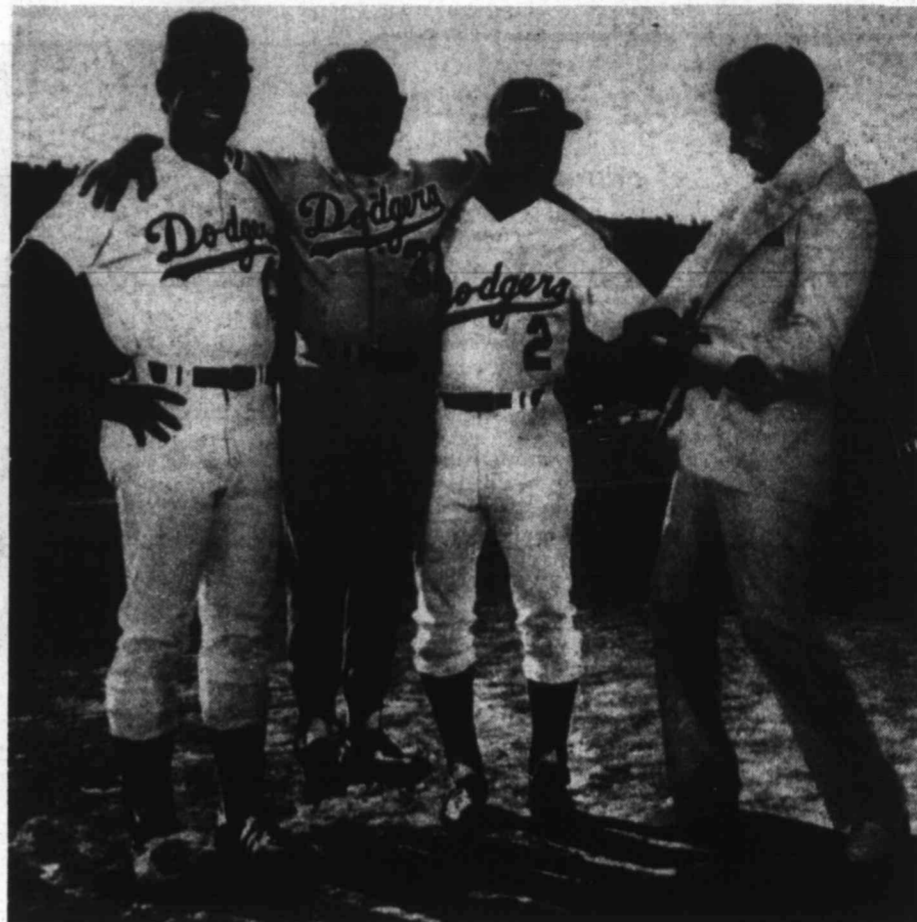

"I've never won anything that way before," Unser quipped after watching former Indianapolis car teammate Andretti run away for a 7.8-second victory over Darrell Waltrip and Gordon Johncock.

Wall contacted on Evansville job

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Dan Wall, head basketball coach of Southwest Texas State University, confirmed Saturday that he has been contacted about the head coaching job at the University of Evansville, whose entire team was wiped out in a Dec. 13 plane crash.

The Evansville, Ind., Press lists Wall as one of eight finalists for the job.

Wall, 33, said after the school contacted him, he sent in an application, but has not been to Evansville for an interview.

RISE TO THE MAJORS — Actor Gary Burghoff is given a boost by Los Angeles Dodger Steve Garvey and Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda as actor Ricardo Montalban grabs a bat during the taping of an episode "Superstar" of the ABC TV program "Fantasy Island." Burghoff plays character Dolery whose fantasy to become a big league pitcher is fulfilled on the island.

ONE-ON-ONE — Big Spring Steer senior Del Poso and San Angelo Bobcat Leonard Lambert bring the basketball game back to basics as they fight head to head against one another in last Tuesday's game in Steer gym. Del played his last basketball game for the Bold Gold, but expects to try out for baseball this season.

Red Heads! Thursday

COAHOMA — Moore's All-American Red Heads, billed as "America's Favorite Basketball Team," are returning to the West Texas area, and will offer an exhibition of their skills in Coahoma's Bulldog Gym Thursday, at 8 p.m.

The World Famous Girl Basketball Team will be appearing in more than 600 cities, towns and communities throughout the sports world, and play men's teams only.

The Red Heads will play a collection of Coahoma coaches, and the event is being sponsored by the Coahoma Booster Club.

Red Heads are known for their famous wheel pattern offense and humorous antics on the basketball court.

The professional women's squad was originated in 1936 by C. M. "Ole" Olson of Olson Terrible Swedes, and they hold many all-time attendance records in arenas throughout the sports world.

Advance tickets are $2 for adults, and $1.50 for students. Those prices go up 50 cents at the door, and fans wishing ducats can contact members at the Coahoma Booster Club.

McGinnis runs Spur clinic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Billy Cunningham described it best.

"George McGinnis ran a clinic in the fourth period," said the Philadelphia 76ers' coach.

The 6-foot-8 McGinnis scored 15 of his game-high 36 points in that final 12 minutes. He collected seven in a Sixers surge of 13 consecutive points that wrapped up a 125-116 National Basketball Association triumph over the San Antonio Spurs.

"George simply played great," said Cunningham, as his team won its fourth straight game, 14th in a row at home and eighth of the last nine. "He was aggressive in every phase. He just put everything together, hustled on both boards and just got out and ran on the break."

McGinnis' line in the box score read just that way. He shot 16 for 27 from the floor, four of five at the foul line, handed out three assists, made one steal, and grabbed eight rebounds.

But McGinnis didn't do it alone. Doug Collins, who averaged 32.3 points in the last four games, contributed 24. Lloyd Free collected 20, and Darryl Dawkins, starting in place of the flu ailing Caldwell Jones hooped 19 and took down 13 rebounds.

San Antonio coach Doug Moe was impressed with the 76ers, one of only two NBA teams his Spurs haven't been able to beat. Denver is the other.

Reflections of sadness and beauty on Ali's defeat

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—
There are times when one realizes that he is sitting in on a transcendent moment in history — even if it be something as inconsequential as sport.
There sat the man the world for 14 years had hailed as "The Champ." It was almost as if there would never be another Muhammad Ali seemed blessed with some magical power. Boxing's ebony jewel was destined to shine forever.
Ali himself must have thought so. So did his legion of fanatic followers.

Yet here he was slumped in a chair in the upstairs dressing room of the Hilton Pavilion, his lower lip pursed with blood, a nasty knot over his right eye, ugly bruises blemishing what he always called "the prettiest face that ever was."
At his feet sat his slim, beautiful wife, Veronica. She stroked his robbed, tired muscles. She said nothing.
Bundini Brown, a long time aide, cried unashamedly.
All of us knew it had to come sooner or later. More recently there had been tell-tale signs. But who dared believe the magnificent era would end with such suddenness.
Ali, the Champ, was beaten by a tough, 24-year-old ex-Marine, Leon Spinks, only seven pro fights under his belt, less than two years out of amateur ranks.
Even as the savagely fought 15-round battle neared its close, the rafters of the gilded casino arena rocked with familiar shouts. "Ali! Ali! Ali!"
The fight was close. The kid was tough. But everybody at ringside knew that, as he had done so many times in the past, the great Muhammad would call upon some invisible reservoir of strength and rescue the decision in the final round.

Ali recognized the possible consequences. His 36-year-old legs tiring, his body surrendering to aches and pains, he plunged headlong into the fight — jabbing, lashing out with his lightning rights, hanging on.
This time, as so many others had done, his young adversary didn't fold.
Instead, Spinks lashed back, giving two punches for every one he absorbed, backed Ali into his own corner and almost finished him before the final bell.
Indisputably, it was Spinks' fight. Boxing had a new heavyweight champion.
In the fourth row, Kay Spinks, raised a red-covered Bible and said, "Hallelujah, God be praised."
There was a sadness about the scene — and a beauty. "Surprised you, didn't he?" Ali needed the few reporters who crashed his dressing room. "Surprised me, too. I underestimated his will to win and his stamina.

"I thought I could tire him out in the early rounds and then beat him. My plan didn't work. Next time I'll be in better shape. I will be down to 215 (he weighed in at 224 1/4), I'll stay in the corners and I'll come out fast in the first round like I did in the 15th."
Next time, Ali? Will there be a next time?
"I will be back," the deposed champion promised. "I will be the first heavyweight champion to win the title three times."
The old order passeth, making way for the new.
Muhammad Ali has given us many memorable moments and unending entertainment, not only with his remarkable boxing skills but also with his fourth-grade poetry, boyish charm and ability to mesmerize peasants and potentates alike.
Spinks, a bearded youth with two big gaps in front of his mouth where teeth used to be, bull stubborn and bulldog tough, is the new champion.
He took the fight to the champion, a great but aging champion, and made the The boast seemed to float king eat leather. Long live away with the smell of ar-nica.

The boast seemed to float king eat leather. Long live away with the smell of ar-nica.

ONE HIS WAY TO BANGLADESH — Muhammad Ali, who lost his heavyweight title to Leon Spinks in Las Vegas Wednesday night, is seen at London's Heathrow Airport Friday where he made a brief stopover on his way to Bangladesh.

U.S. jr. netters win team trophy

TORQUAY, England (AP)—
The United States, which had finished second the past four years, won the women's team trophy in an under-21 international tennis tournament Saturday when Zenda Liess and Barbara Jordan scored singles victories over British opponents.
Liess, 18, of Daytona Beach, Fla., clinched it when she beat Anne Hobbs 6-7, 6-4, 6-3 in an hour and 45-minute battle.

Crappie bite at Spence

Big news at Lake Spence last week was that the crappie are biting. Numerous large strings were reported, along with some white bass, several striped bass, and a few channel catfish and an occasional black bass.
Five fishermen reported an aggregate of well over 200 crappie. One striped bass was weighed in at 17 lbs.
Here are some of the reports:
Hillside Grocery & Bait — Don Baker, Midland, 7-lb. striper and four blue catfish to 6 lbs.; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Page, Dale Reber and Dair Sherrell, 40 crappie to 2 lbs.; Y. J. Sherrell and Bill Schwager, Robert Lee, three black bass to 4 lbs. and 20 crappies to 2 lbs.
Y. J.'s Marina — Roger, Jerry and Roy Culwell, Jal, N.M., 20 crappie; Harold Butler, Mike Huntington and Johnny Oldham, and Joe Barrett, Robert Lee, 78 crappie and 39 white bass; David Waldrop and Lloyd McMann, Midland, 61 crappie; Al, Jake, Lynn and Connie Routh, three strippers 10, 11 and 12 lbs.

Pancho's good driving still nets the winners

CARLSBAD, CALIF. — The room in the rear of the tennis pro shop is small, but so is Pancho Segura, and that never cramped his style. The first thing you see, coming through the door and into the office is a framed color photo on the wall, Jimmy Connors, with that fraudulent choir-boy grin of his, holding aloft by both ears a large trophy.
"Wimbledon," says Pancho, catching you looking. "Jimbo was great that day." He reached for the phone on the desk. "That reminds me, I have to call him."
He dialed a number and listened to the ring. "Not home," he said. "I try the club." He dialed again, quickly, powerfully, so that the phone jumped around the desk.
"Mr. Jeemy Connors please . . . Segura . . . Pancho Segura . . ." There was a long wait. "Okay, tell him to call me . . . Segura . . . S-E-G-U-R-A. Pancho Segura."
It annoyed me that an attendant taking a message at a tennis club didn't know the name. It didn't seem to annoy Pancho Segura one bit.

into the desk drawer and pulled out one of those magic pads with the waxen surface, that wipes clean simply by lifting the top sheet. On it are the permanently-drawn boundaries of a tennis court.
To this day, there are things in tennis that annoy Pancho Segura. When Jimmy Connors plays one of those winner-take-almost-all TV challenge matches at Caesar's Palace, Pancho is permitted to sit on the sidelines and map strategy with his prize pupil between court changes. But there is no coaching allowed in tournaments.
"Why not?" asks Segura. "Why shouldn't you be able to have a coach during a match? There are certain key points during most sets. You win them, you win the match. A coach knows what to look for in those cases."
With sideline coaching, Evonne Goolagong would have beaten Chris Evert at Wimbledon two years ago, Segura claims. "She should have beaten her," he says angrily, as though some injustice were done. "She won more games than Chris, won more points. She just didn't win the key points. A coach can help with that during the match." His voice booms off the walls in the small office. When he gives a lesson on Court One at LaCosta, you can hear him six courts away. He moves on those bowed legs and pigeon toes as he did on his greatness, as though riding some invisible burro from his native Ecuador.

It was so different then, when he played the big ones, back in the mid-40s and early 50s. Tennis was the national pastime of snobs, and he was the peon with the temerity to invade their snooty clubs. He was different. His skin was Inca-dark and when he hit the ball back-handed, he hit it with two hands.
"They tried to pass a law that it was illegal to do that," he says, still enraged at their bigotry. "I was playing for nothing, and they wanted to kick me out, those Wasp SOB! And when I joined the pros, they wouldn't let us play our tournaments at Forest Hills. They were afraid we would turn their grass brown."
AMBIDEXTROUS SERVERS COME NEXT
Now so many hit the two-handed backhand, including Jimmy Connors and Chrissie Evert. Soon, says Pancho, kids will come along serving ambidextrously, "left-handed to the left side, right-handed to the right side," to sharpen the angle.
The straight black hair is glistening white now, beautiful against the bronzed skin, but nothing else seems changed. He has the same bold confidence of the man who played Budge and Hoad and Gonzalez and Kramer, and the same irreverence. At the rear of his desk is a printed motto: "It is hard to be humble when you are as great as I am," and nearby is a picture of Pancho alongside a young man a head taller.
"My son, Spencer," he says, trying not to sound too proud. "He's in the second year of law school at Loyola. He's going with Elizabeth Taylor's daughter. That's his claim to fame. With that and 25 cents, he can get a cup of coffee."

"YOU MUST GIVE SOMETHING BACK"
"I want to tell Jimbo he should go in a tournament he turned down," said Pancho. "He ticked off at the American Tennis Association. He says they take too much money out of the purses. I tell him we need them to keep things going. You can't just take from the game. You must give back something. That keeps the game going for those who will be coming along."
Pancho Segura teaches those who are coming along. When Jimmy Connors was coming along, Pancho Segura taught him. A doctor from Connecticut moved his practice to Southern California so that his three sons could take lessons from Segura. One of them, says Pancho, shows promise. Recently somebody in Greece sent a youth to LaCosta for Segura to take under his wing.
"There was only one trouble," says Segura. "He didn't speak English. I had to teach him on this." He reached

Baseball camps opening away from snow

The brutal winter still hasn't finished with much of the country, but in Florida and Arizona the rites of spring begin this week. A host of major league teams will shrug off the chills of winter by throwing open their spring training camps to early arrivals this week. Or will they be late arrivals?

The world champion New York Yankees have been running an informal, unofficial camp at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., since Feb. 8, the day after 20-odd inches of snow fell on New York City. Chicago White Sox pitchers and catchers went to work at Sarasota, Fla., last Wednesday, the earliest official opening date.

Trout fishing in Texas?

AUSTIN — Texans have five areas where they may fish for rainbow trout. And trout fishing is a pretty good deal for people who like winter fishing, but refuse to suffer like black bass and striped bass in open reservoirs to catch fish. Although trout like icy waters, most trout streams usually are in protected stream bottoms, where fishermen can keep fairly comfortable when they are dressed properly.

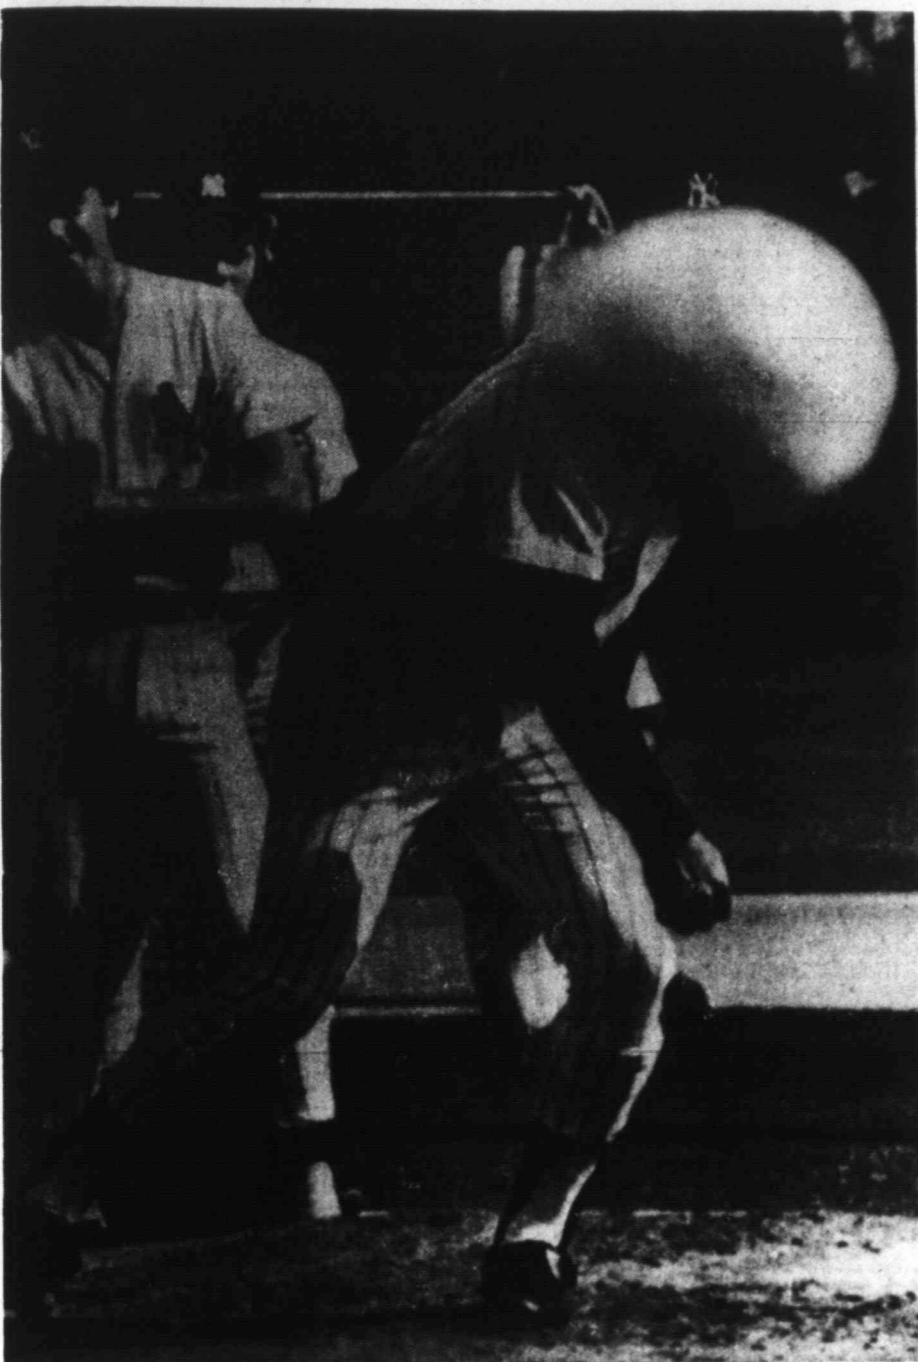

This year be particularly cautious with fires because of dry conditions. Make doubly sure your fire is out before you leave. A winter day in the creek bottom is a nice thing to remember, particularly if it included a meal of rainbow.

Umps will organize

An organizational meeting of the Big Spring Empire's Association will be held Saturday, Feb. 25, at 10 a.m. in the back room of the Western Sizzler restaurant. Anyone interested in umpiring Little League, slow pitch, fast pitch or fast pitch softball needs to be in attendance.

Cedeno's big buck pact inked

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston centerfielder Cesar Cedeno agreed to terms of a 10-year contract for a reported $3.5 million today that Astros President Tal Smith said made Cedeno the first major league player to receive a lifetime contract.

No one wants free agent Tolan

CINCINNATI (AP) — Not everyone has found a pot of gold in baseball's free agent re-entry draft. Bobby Tolan, once one of baseball's most promising stars, has found himself out in the cold.

He took his case to arbitration and was cleared, with the fine returned. "I won the court case but I lost the battle. I picked up a tag that has followed me everywhere. I can't shake it. If only all the club owners would listen to the testimony in that case. They would see it was the Reds who were at fault, not me," Tolan said by telephone from his home in Texas.

market for a veteran player, what with recent expansions diluting the big league talent pool. "San Diego released me because I was too old and making too much money. So this year they go out and trade for Gaylord Perry and sign Mickey Lolich."

Scuba classes form at 'Y'

The YMCA offers a certified course in basic scuba diving, beginning Thursday evening, March 23, 1978. Classes will meet every Monday and Thursday from 7:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. at the "Y" through May 15, 1978, including a trip to Possum Kingdom Lake, scheduled May 20 and 21 for required open water diving.

He can't believe there is no Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Tony Smith and Earl Evans combined for 47 points to lead Nevada-Las Vegas to an 82-80 non-conference college basketball victory over visiting Pan American University Friday night.

Smith scored 24 points and Evans added 23 points and a game-high 11 rebounds as the Rebels raised their record to 17-6. Jackie Robinson contributed 19 points for UNLV.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Strive to live the Golden Rule by doing unto others as you would have them do unto you. Forget self in doing for others and in so doing increase your own happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Losing your temper over minor matters is most enviable at this time. Concentrate on the pleasant side of life and be happier.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Attend to your duties and responsibilities and express love and happiness. View the future with more courage.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Engage in spiritual affairs today and raise your level of consciousness. Make plans for more abundance in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Concentrate on the more pleasant aspects of life. Forget any slights others have given you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A good day to reflect your philosophy and to be inspired to make the future brighter and more idealistic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your friends are likely to be too demanding, but do only what you can for them and look on the good side of their nature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may want to engage in a new interest but study it well first, otherwise you could get into trouble. Use good judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may want to engage in a new interest but study it well first, otherwise you could get into trouble. Use good judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Study promises you have made to others and do your best to keep them. Strive for harmony with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't let a civic matter get you down, since there is nothing you can do about it yet. Use your intuition for best results.

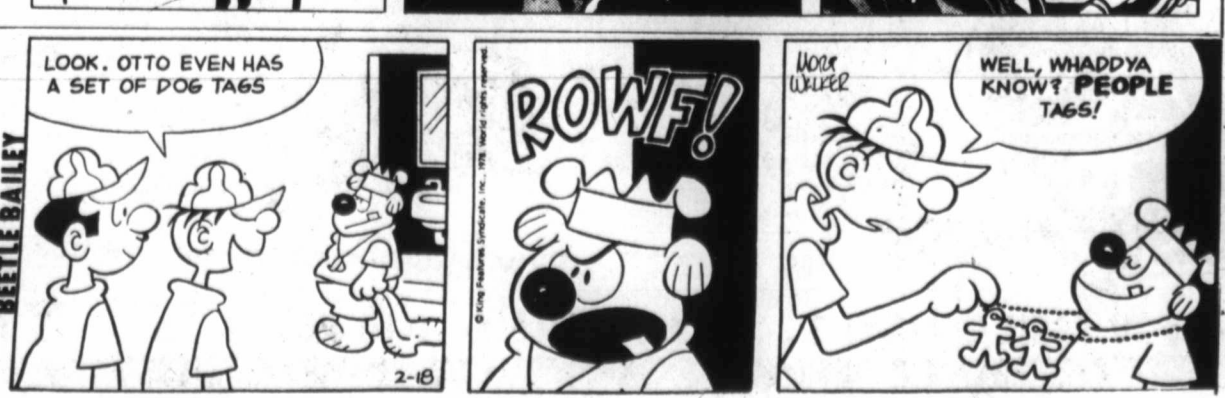

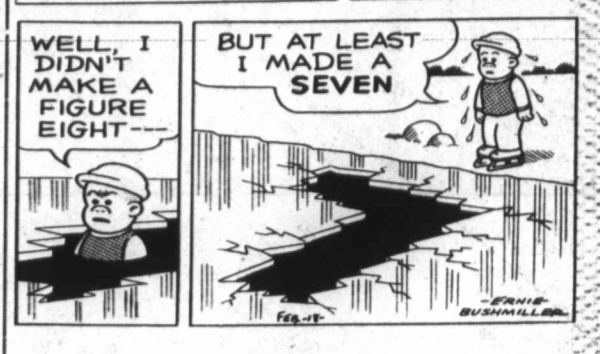

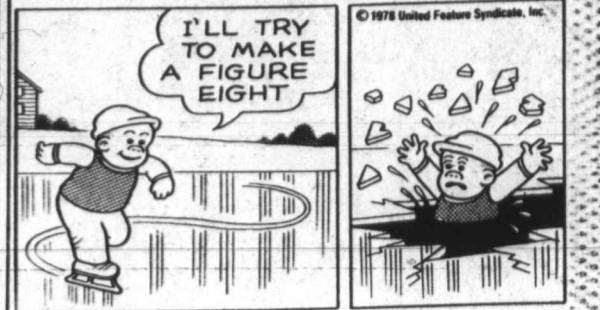

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Handle routine duties in a poised manner and please others. Do something thoughtful for those who have been good to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Express devotion for those who are in need of help. Make plans to be more objective for best results. Working with the public in a fine outlet provided the right education is received.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she may want to shun away from anything unpleasant because the sensitivity here is high, so teach early in life to be more objective for best results. Working with the public in a fine outlet provided the right education is received.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will require encouragement and praise when something particularly fine is accomplished. Then there can be much success during the lifetime, especially when work with the government is concerned. Large corporations are also good, so give as fine an education as you can.

NSF approved grant for math workshop

ABILENE — The National Science Foundation (NSF) has approved a $12,820 grant to finance a mathematics workshop for high-ability high school students at Hardin-Simmons University this summer. This is H-SU's seventh NSF grant since 1970.

This year's program, according to Dr. Charles Robinson, will be conducted June 11-July 21. Robinson, chairman of H-SU's science division and head of the mathematics department, said that enrollment will be limited to 25 students, all of whom must have completed their junior year in high school by June.

The project will be conducted by Robinson and Dr. Edwin Hewett, associate professor in mathematics at Hardin-Simmons. Courses offered will be Foundations of Geometry, Linear Topology and Mathematical Modeling. All work in the project will be aimed at substantially increasing the students' ability to do creative mathematics.

The participating students will live in campus residence halls during the program and will have use of all recreational facilities. For a student to be accepted he must be recommended by his teachers as a mathematics student of high ability.

"Ours will be one of 150 projects sponsored throughout the country by the National Society Foundation," Robinson said. "The total outlay this year by the Foundation is about $2.3 million, to accommodate 5,450 outstanding high school students in various science projects conducted in colleges and universities throughout the nation."

The first two NSF summer projects sponsored at Hardin-Simmons were in biometrics and mathematics. The last four have been in mathematics. Robinson said that brochures will soon be mailed to high schools in

Local D.A.R. honors Washington's memory with tea

By EILEEN MCGUIRE

The local Captain Elisha Mack Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has its own special way of celebrating George Washington's birthday.

Chapter members have been busy planning and preparing for their fourth annual George Washington Tea which takes place today from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Community Center. According to Mrs. William Riley, chapter regent, about 75 guests are expected to attend. Members will be attired in formals.

Hostesses for the occasion are Mrs. J. W. Tipton, Mrs. John Key, Mrs. Jack Thomas, Mrs. Curtis Driver, Mrs. Carl Barnett, Mrs. L. J. Jeter and Lola Kilman. Mrs. Jack Alexander is chairman of the tea, assisted by Mrs. Jason Crutcher and Barbara Martin.

Organized April 19, 1974 by charter regent Mrs. Helen Dawson Cobean, the local chapter is but a small segment of the National Society of D.A.R. whose founding dates back to Oct. 11, 1890. In 1896, the National Society was incorporated by an Act of Congress, lending an aura of high esteem to those who qualify for membership.

In order to qualify, each member must be a descendent of a man or woman who loyally served as a sailor, soldier, or civil officer in one of the colonies or states during the American Revolution, or was a recognized patriot or rendered material aid to the cause of American independence.

The National Society publishes a series of lineage books containing the ancestry record of each D.A.R. member.

Some interesting stories are told by Captain Elisha Mack Chapter members about their own ancestors. One in particular is the story of Samuel Weir, Mrs. Barnett's ancestor.

According to a court document signed by Weir's widow on Jan. 31, 1838 in order to obtain her late husband's pension, Weir of Milford, New Haven served as a private in the army of the Revolution.

He entered the service at age 14 as a substitute for John Downs to whom Weir was an indentured apprentice. Downs, who had been drafted, agreed to split the bounty with Weir, but later refused.

The court document reads, "He was the youngest person in the regiment and when the troops were reviewed he stood on tiptoe, fearing he should be rejected or discharged on account of his age and size."

Weir's youth was no measure of his bravery. He served in the war until the end and at age 19, received a written discharge commending him as "a faithful soldier in the war," signed by George Washington.

An interesting note in the court

record is the fact that outlaws and renegades were called "cowboys." Weir's life was spared on one occasion when the gun of a "cowboy" misfired, giving Weir time to kill his assailant with a shot through the heart.

Mrs. Cobean's ancestor, for whom the chapter was named, is Capt. Elisha Mack who served with Col. Ashley's regiment militia at Keen, N.H. in 1776. He was promoted from lieutenant to captain in 1777 when sent to reinforce the continental army at Camp Ticonderoga, N.Y., aiding in the surrender of Burgoyne and capture of the fort which can be visited today.

The ancestor which qualified Mrs. J. L. Jeter for D.A.R. membership was John Bradford who served under Gen. Francis Marion, the famous "Swamp Fox," a nickname earned by his having to take refuge from enemy troops in the swamp and forest and his cunning elusiveness.

When "Marion's brigade" wasn't at home planting and harvesting crops, they were known as the terror of the British regulars and Tories. Bradford was present at the famous "Sweet Potato Roast."

Being the youngest of a large family, Mrs. Stanley Reid is only four generations removed from her qualifying ancestor, Sgt. William Redford who served as a soldier in the American Revolution. According to Mrs. Reid, the military records she has access to tell how Redford fought in such famous battle places as Valley Forge and Trenton.

After the war, Redford settled in Tennessee where he later died and was buried, leaving behind a large family who migrated to Alabama in a covered wagon.

One of Redford's sons, Mrs. Reid's great-grandfather, brought his family to Texas in 1847. At that time, her grandfather was only four years old. It must have taken them a long time to get from Alabama to Texas as the family was so large, they had to take turns walking alongside of the wagon.

Mrs. Bob Wren's ancestor, Capt. William Jared, was the descendant of the Jareds who came to America with the Virginia Company of London in 1607, settling in Jamestown, Va., the first permanent English settlement in America.

Jared served with George Washington during the American Revolution and later battled in the war of 1812 for which his bravery and dedication to the fight for independence was honored by the D.A.R. with a memorial marker at his grave site in Virginia.

Mrs. William A. Riley and Mrs. Lola Kilman, sisters, share

Capt. William Bryant as their ancestor. He served for a little more than two years in the continental forces, during which time he was captured by the British and placed on board a prison ship in Charleston Harbor. One night he dropped silently into the harbor waters, swam ashore and returned to the American lines.

During the Revolutionary struggle in Kentucky, he served, under Col. Daniel Boone.

Another of their ancestors who served in the American Revolution was George Willcockson Jr., whose brothers, David and John, each married a niece of Daniel Boone.

These are but a few of the noteworthy ancestors who aided George Washington and other leaders in the struggle for American independence, the descendants of whom form the Elisha Mack Chapter of D.A.R.

Headquartered in Washington, D.C., the D.A.R. lists as its objectives the perpetuation of the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence, the upholding of the freedom they fought for, and the fostering of patriotism.

Another objective is to carry out the injunction of Washington in his farewell address to the American people "To promote, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge."

One way in which the D.A.R. is carrying out Washington's legacy to the American people is through their annual recognition of top American history students through essay contests on local, state and national levels.

The essay topic this year, selected by the National Society of D.A.R., was "Growing Up in Colonial America." Students were to write about all aspects of colonial life, including religion and what colonial life was like for children and adolescents.

The local winners were chosen by a panel of judges. Because of a deadline set close to Christmas, this year only Stanton entered the competition.

The three winners, all eighth grade students, include Michelle Fisher who will go to the state competition. Michelle is the daughter of Drs. Mike and Sue Fisher, Stanton, and she was the contest winner for 1976.

D'Awn Kelly entered the contest a second year and came out a winner. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Kelly, Stanton.

Winning for the second consecutive year is Gregory Graves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Graves, Stanton.

According to Mrs. Reid who will be presenting certificate awards to the three at the George Washington Tea, the purpose of the contest is to keep interest in American history alive.

Wouldn't George be pleased?

BIG SPRING, TEXAS.

HOME AND COUNTRY — is the motto of the National Society of the D.A.R., incorporated by an Act of Congress in 1890. The local chapter has adopted the Texas state motto of "Where, there is no vision, the people perish." Before the hearth, in their colonial dress, from left, Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Riley and Mrs. Barnett are themselves a vision of home and country.

IN HONOR OF GEORGE — Cherry pie may have been George's dish but it's chocolate cake that Miss Ewing is about to serve Mrs. Wren. This afternoon, the local D.A.R. chapter will pay tribute to Washington at their fourth annual George Washington Tea.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 Wants to escape world of fantasy

Dr. Wallace:
My problem is that I daydream. It might not seem like much of a problem, but I'm almost 17 and I still like to get lost in my own world of fantasy.

I think I daydream because I love my boyfriend beyond belief except he lives 1,000 miles away. Many times I dream that we are together and it only makes me miss him more.

Is there any way I can stop daydreaming?

M.A., Livermore, Calif.
Dear M.A.:
I'm much older than 17 (actually, I'm 40) and I still like to get lost in my own world of fantasy.

Daydreaming is natural and positive. Everyone daydreams. There is no way you can stop so sit back and enjoy it.

If you want to control it, stay active. It's very difficult to daydream when you are busy.

married three months now and I have no regrets.

I know you always say don't go steady or even think about marriage at such a young age but you are wrong in some cases.

As I said, this probably won't be printed but thanks for your time anyway. By the way, my wife and I enjoy your column.

Dennis Dodson, Purcell, Okla.
Dear Dennis:
I guess you learned that if you want to see your name in print, start your letter with "you won't print this."

I'm glad it is working well for your bride and you, but yes, I feel that 15-year-old girls should not take on the responsibility of a husband.

I do agree that there are a very few exceptions.

it's going to happen to me. Also, my mom doesn't like my friends even though they don't take drugs or drink alcohol. The boys all respect us girls.

I'm seriously thinking about killing myself because of my parents and their thoughts about my relationship with boys. I thought liking a boy was just a part of a girl growing up. Please help me by answering this in the newspaper because my mother reads your column.

Confidential, Radcliff, Ky.

- Your parents should not treat you like you were your sister.
- It is natural for 15-year-old girls to like boys.
- It is important for parents to know who their children's friends are but many times parents are overly critical.
- I hope Mother reads this column.
- Write to me again and let me know how things are progressing.

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Wallace:
I'm quite sure you won't print this letter even though I wish you would.

I'm 19 and happily married to a sweet and mature 15-year-old girl. We were going steady for over a year before we married. My father-in-law said we could marry when she was 15 if we were in love.

Well, we were and we were married in a big church wedding. We've been

I can't get along with my dad, my sister and I are constantly fighting and my parents hardly talk to one another.

My mom thinks I'm too young to like boys. I try to talk to her about this but she only tells me to keep quiet or go to my room. When my sister was 18, she got pregnant so my mom thinks

Conaways visit Smiths' new daughter

Mr. and Mrs. William Conaway and sons, Jeffrey and Greg, were in Andrews Sunday to visit her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are the parents of a new daughter, Cynthia Gayle, born Feb. 11, weighing 6 pounds 12 ounces. The Smiths have two other children, Todd and Shana, who have been in Colorado City visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Oyler and Mr. and Mrs. Odis Wise.

Salaries of missionaries are paid through the cooperative program, the Annie Armstrong Easter Offering and state mission offerings. Indian churches contribute to the cooperative program and the special offerings; they call their own pastors and pay them themselves. They receive no mission money, says Ada Pickup of her Oklahoma church, which was founded in 1880 and is independent as are many white churches. This church has a full program, Sunday School, Training Union, music, brotherhood and women's Missionary Union.

About 400 Indian congregations are related to Southern Baptist. Some of these churches began before the Southern Baptist Convention, and about 250 have Indian pastors.

Plans were made for the mission study book "Leaven and the Salt" to be taught Feb. 22 or Mar. 1. This book will be taught by Mrs. Manning, and plans for a church-wide supper on that night were discussed.

Valentine cake, punch and red-hot were served to those present. Mrs. Shaw presented the call to prayer

Hostesses were Mrs. Earl Stoval, Mrs. Charles Lusk, Jane Lusk, Mrs. L. D. Spradling, Grace Kinney, Mrs. Noble Kenemur, Mrs. Olen Puckett, Mrs. Pete Hull and Mrs. Paul Soldan.

They presented the honoree and her mother with blue silk corsages. Hostess gift to Dr. Johansen was a decorator bedspread.

Ceremony to dedicate Jack and Jill school

Arah Phillips, principal of Jack and Jill School, announces the dedication of and open house for the new building complex at 3 p.m. Feb. 26 at 1708 Nolan.

The grand opening marked the culmination of the building construction that began with groundbreaking ceremonies June 19, 1977. The school was officially moved from the old location at 2009 Main in December with the finishing touches continuing to the buildings and grounds through early February. The school moved to the new location as soon as classrooms were complete.

The new building contains 15,000 square feet, and the playground consists of 18,060 square feet.

Truett Thomas, chairman of the board of directors, said that the $250,000 facility is one of the finest in the nation serving children age 2 through first grade.

The school was established almost 17 years ago by Miss Phillips and has grown consistently through the years.

Participating in the dedication will be many out-of-town as well as local dignitaries. Coming from Milwaukee, Wis., to give the dedicatory address will be the Rev. Ward Jackson. Making a response to the dedication will be Esther Bauer from Anderson, Ind., and Roy Cline, vice president of the Gulf Coast Bible College in Houston, will give the dedicatory prayer.

Special music will be presented by the Rev. and Mrs. George Golden from Odessa.

Thomas will serve as emcee, and serving as hosts will be other school board members, the staff and the Chamber Redcoats, officially named The Ambassadors.

After the ribbon-cutting, Joni Lou Avery, assistant to the president of Howard College, will unveil the builder's plaque before the dedication ceremonies begin in the school's gymnasium.

Miss Phillips will give a special welcome. Following the ceremonies, mini-tours will be conducted and refreshments served.

Because of the large crowd of visiting dignitaries, the expected turnout of interested citizens and space limitations in the gym, small children are being discouraged from attending. A special tour of the new facilities and a program is being planned strictly for children at another date.

Miss Phillips said, "The culmination of this building project has been a great dream which has turned into a reality. I'm grateful to the building contractor, Paul Shaffer, who worked with us to construct the most energy efficient, educationally convenient school so that we truly have the highest quality child care and educational facilities (sic)."

Miss Phillips urged the community to come out and inspect this new complex that is open to all pre-school through first-grade age children in the Big Spring area. She is especially hopeful that ex-students and parents of ex-students will come to the open house.

Fashions contain more soft, feminine lines, are loosely constructed with dolman and puffed sleeves, frilly blouses and drawstring blouses, and skirts are fuller, longer and frillier.

Clothing costs can be cut by recycling. Minor or major changes can be made by using some imagination and planning. Some recycled garments were shown by Mrs. Stretcher.

Boyd tells Texas story

The ten year existence of the Republic of Texas (1836-1846) was the subject covered by Ernest Boyd in his program presentation to members of the 1948 Hyperion Club on Feb. 16. The club met in the home of Mrs. Robert Whipkey, with Mrs. John Hodges serving as co-hostess.

Sam Houston had been a power in the politics of the State of Tennessee and had much experience living among the Indians before he migrated to then Mexican territory of Texas. He became the hero of the Texas Revolution when his troops defeated General Santa Anna at San Jacinto, after having opposed the stands made at the Alamo and Goliad, both disasters.

No political parties existed in Texas at the time of the Revolution and results of the election held on the first Monday in September, 1836, were determined by the popularity of the candidates and the prejudices of the hour. On this basis, Houston was elected as the first President of the Republic, with Mirabeau B. Lamar as vice president.

The Constitution was accepted overwhelmingly. Stephen F. Austin was made secretary of state and William H. Wharton was sent to represent the Republic at Washington.

From the very beginning almost all Texans were anxious to be annexed as a state, but the government of the United States was not very enthusiastic about annexing another state where slavery existed.

Many problems faced the young Republic—what to do about the defeated Santa Anna, what to do about the Indians, how to maintain an army, how to finance a government, among others.

The capitol was originally at Washington on the Brazos, then at Houston and finally to where Austin now is. Statehood was always the aim of Texas during Houston's first term, the term of Mirabeau B. Lamar, Houston's second term and the term of Anson Jones, when it was finally achieved. President James K. Polk on Dec. 19, 1845, signed the act that made Texas one of the United States of America.

It was felt that the possibility that Texas might align itself with England influenced the United States acceptance of Texas. There has been much speculation as to the course of history had Texas remained a Republic.

After a brief business meeting, the club adjourned. Mrs. Rollin Bishop and Mrs. Charles Tompkins will be hostesses for the March meeting.

Focus on family living Stress affects everyone

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

How often have you started a day feeling fresh and vital only to feel tense and exhausted by noon because of some stressful situation that popped up?

At one time or another we are all confronted by some stressful event, often without warning.

Before a person can evaluate or do something about a crisis situation, he must know what a crisis is. A crisis is defined as an emotional state or a reaction to an event that threatens a person's family or individual stability.

Crisis is not the event itself, but a personal reaction to an event. A crisis usually presents a turning point, depending on the decisions an individual makes in the dealing process. One's response to a crisis is affected by the severity and suddenness of the blow, the type of crisis and whether one is hit where he is most vulnerable.

There are innumerable events that create stress. Some of the most common ones that families encounter are: serious illness, accident, loss of job, divorce, separation, premature birth, unwanted pregnancy, death and fatal illness.

There are positive steps to take that help conquer crisis: face up the crisis; get the deepest and darkest feelings out in the open; look at the crisis realistically. These steps make your problem specific, and it can be solved that way.

Having made the problem tangible, focus on appropriate actions for a solution. If the crisis is too big to handle alone, seek help. This may come from professionals, friends or family.

Relief comes when you know that you have done all you can about your crisis and that you are finding a way to live on with a purpose.

Pregnant clerk wins suit; county judge blocks payment

MAUSTON, Wis. (AP) — A judge who fired a courthouse clerk who was pregnant is trying to block payment of the settlement she won from the county after alleging sex discrimination.

Kristy Gwin, 19, of Mauston was fired from her job as the county's register in probate by Juneau County Judge William Curran last summer when he learned she was pregnant.

He said her pregnancy proved she had violated a

Wisconsin law prohibiting sexual intercourse by an unmarried person.

Miss Gwin told The Associated Press last week that she was out of work for several months, but finally was given another clerical job at the same pay in the county's Child Support Agency.

However, she said, she filed a sex discrimination complaint with the state last summer, seeking back pay. The resulting out-of-court settlement with the county amounted to $2,000.

But the judge has asked the County Board's personnel committee to withhold the payment. In a letter to board members, Curran said the county should not pay the settlement because that could make the county liable for taxpayer suits.

"She knew she was discharged because, as a single girl, her pregnancy was obvious evidence to the public that she had violated the laws of the state of Wisconsin by sexual misconduct and her conduct made it impossible to retain her in the office of register in probate," Curran said in the letter.

Valentine divorce

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — "I couldn't get over it," Judge Philip Elliott mused about a divorce he had granted "Valentine vs. Valentine on St. Valentine's Day."

Luella Mae Valentine, 59, told Elliott on Valentine's Day that she wanted a no-fault divorce from her husband of 4 1/2 years, Donald Valentine, 61.

The judge ordered the marriage dissolved and approved a property settlement that gave Mrs. Valentine the house and a 1966 Cadillac and Valentine a 1967 Buick.

Should One Forgive Spouse Who Cheats?

DEAR ABBY: Frequently you have expressed the opinion that if a man cheats on his wife, she should "forgive and forget," and take the unfaithful husband back.

Obviously you do not uphold the traditional Orthodox Jewish view that states once the sacred trust has been broken by either husband or wife, the only solution is divorce!

YALE

DEAR YALE: To "forgive and forget" is an old Jewish custom. In fact, the theme of the Yom Kippur service stresses that we are all human, and it urges forgiveness and reconciliation. ("It is human to err, and it is in the spirit of the Divine to forgive.")

The prophet Hosea was actually commanded by God to accept Gomer as his wife even though it was public knowledge that she was a harlot.

God further commanded the prophet Hosea to "bring the family together in acceptance and compassion." Shall we do less?

DEAR ABBY: Recently I moved into a small apartment building—with paper-thin walls.

A male tenant (single) lives next door. Everything he does—and I do mean EVERYTHING—can be heard through the walls.

Late at night, and especially on weekends, he carries on a very noisy love life.

I am not an eavesdropper. What he does is his own business, but how do I keep his private life from ruining my sleep and embarrassing me and my guests?

I have met him only once, and he seems nice. For that reason I am unable to bring myself to tell him that I can overhear everything he does.

Is there some way I can let him know that he is disturbing me and embarrassing me?

THE GIRL NEXT DOOR

DEAR GIRL: Yes. Make sure he reads "Dear Abby" today—if you have to slip this under his door. It beats the alternative.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the church wedding photographer who took pictures for five hours and "starved" while everybody was enjoying the wedding dinner:

I remember our church wedding some 20 years ago. For all I know, the preacher said "The Pledge of Allegiance," the organist played "The Little Brown Jug," and all the guests wore flannel nightgowns!

What I'm trying to say is this: Brides are usually so nervous, preoccupied and dazed at their own weddings that they can't be expected to remember to invite the photographer to join in the wedding feast.

Assuming the photographer is a grown man, why couldn't he just speak up and say, "Is it okay if I have a bite to eat? I'm starving."

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: He could, but most photographers stay in the dark until something develops.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Male scientists ignore facts, says woman doctor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prehistoric women may have provided most of their families' food, invented tools and shared equally with men in making decisions, according to a University of Wisconsin scientist.

Dr. Ruth Bleier said Thursday that male scientists have ignored valuable information about the historical role of women to satisfy preconceived notions about male dominance.

Science is largely a male institution, and investigators use themselves and their values as the yardstick for evaluating those they are studying.

"He and his fraternity become the norm against which all the others are measured and interpreted," Ms. Bleier said. "Within that context, everything relating to women comes out in men's culture in footnotes to the main text."

Scientists look at lower animals, primates and primitive people for indications of the evolutionary beginnings of human traits. But selecting these behavior models and interpreting the observations can be influenced by cultural prejudice, she said.

Ms. Bleier noted that the gatherer-hunter tribes of today, such as East Central Africa's Mesai, are studied by scientists who assume they are somewhat like people who lived three million to five million years ago. But male scientists don't pay enough attention to tribes like Southern Africa's Qung in drawing evolutionary parallels, she said.

Among the Qung, who were not "civilized" until about 15 years ago, women have the detailed knowledge of 300 plants, the edible parts and fruiting times, she said. The women supply and distribute 50 to 90 percent of the food, and do not tend children at home any more than the males.

"Since it is likely that the earliest woman was like her gatherer-hunter sister of today, she probably invented agriculture itself, along with the first diggers, levers, choppers, food containers and pottery," Bleier said.

Since the Qung stopped their nomadic life, the society has changed from one in which males and females split decision making and many duties.

Men were taught farming, technology and commerce and the women stayed at home. In just 15 years, women got heavier, started having children earlier and more often, and lost much of their equal say in family affairs.

"This example makes you think carefully about what are 'natural' women's roles and the effects of environmental influences."

Lived with the Indians

with Marj Carpenter

Bryant N. Boroughs, who resides on Clanton Street on the eastern edge of Big Spring, had a grandmother who was a Cherokee Indian — but a lot of folks claim Indian grandparents.

But Bryant Boroughs ran off on two different occasions when he was growing up in Oklahoma and lived with Indians. He didn't live with his grandmother. He moved in with strangers.

His knowledge of Indians is therefore, far above average. Boroughs ran off the first time when he was about 12 years old. His father was a minister for the Baptist Church and they lived in Tennessee, Mississippi, and Fannin County in Texas prior to moving to Oklahoma.

"We had a disagreement one day and he whipped me with the staff of an umbrella. That night, I put my few belongings in a pillow case and took off up Devil's Mountain," Boroughs recalled.

He remembers that he wandered around several days eating berries, nuts and persimmons before he came to a one room house up in the mountains where an old Indian couple lived.

He told them his name was John Gilmore and he stayed around there a couple of years. He had an envelope in his belongings with his parents name and address which the old Indian woman kept.

One winter he got pneumonia and she showed the envelope to her husband and they sent for his parents. They had treated him with herbs to no avail. It turned out that he had wandered as far away as 96 miles from home. His parents came and took him home. He stayed until he got well and took off again.

This time, he said he found out later they didn't hunt him. He wandered up to a community of Indians headed by one named Pony Starr. He said that got pretty scary. "Starr was notorious and had shot several people. I got shot at once while I lived with them," he added.

ANNIVERSARY OF DISCOVERY — It was 48 years ago, Saturday, Feb. 18, that Clyde Tombaugh, then a Kansas farm boy, discovered the planet Pluto, the ninth and last planet to be found in our solar system. The discovery came after 7,000 hours of carefully examining photographic plates of some 30 million different stars. The discovery by Tombaugh, now an emeritus professor of astronomy at New Mexico State University, was voted one of the top 10 news stories of 1930 by the Associated Press. The 72-year-old astronomer is still very active with the NMSU Astronomy Dept.

Pair tell of kidnap, beatings in El Paso

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Texas man and a New Mexico woman were abducted and periodically kicked and beaten for five days in what they believe was an El Paso, Texas, apartment before being driven to Tucson, Pima County sheriff's deputies report.

Deputies are searching for the three men who abducted Billy C. Brown, 39, of Lubbock, Texas, and Karen L. Young, 32, of Hobbs, N.M., last Friday from outside a Carlsbad, N.M., bar.

Brown was robbed of $2,600 and the woman lost $50 to their abductors, deputies said. Brown was identified as a salesman for Phoenix-based Whitfield Tank Lines, Inc., and the young woman as a businesswoman.

Brown, deputies said "was worked over pretty good" when he tried to resist.

Center at Kentwood. "We like the Western music nights and other activities there — and the meetings of retired railroaders."

She said they took their honeymoon about 40 years after their wedding, going back to Memphis and the areas he lived when a child. "I'd never lived anywhere but West Texas and I wanted to get out of those hills and back where I could see a few miles," she recalls.

They've had an interesting life and are enjoying it still. "We like to make something pretty — visit the children and grandchildren — and visit friends. It's a pretty good way to live."

And as I stepped out of their home and looked at the view from their front yard, I realized — that they definitely have a lot of blessings — out where I ride fence.

Monkey business at Alice ranch

ALICE, Texas (AP) — Dr. Dale Boyd's job is to make sure that the animals on a South Texas ranch reproduce.

For the most part, he said, it's not too difficult. It's a case of monkey see, monkey do.

"If you had boy monkeys and girl monkeys around, you'd have a hard time not having baby monkeys," Boyd said.

And the veterinarian does have boys and girls around — roughly one male for every eight females in a population of about 2,700.

The monkey business, owned by Hazleton Labs, was spurred by India's decision to halt the export of rhesus monkeys to the United States. Indian leaders claim U.S. researchers have mistreated the animals.

For 40 years the rhesus monkey has been a vital cog in research. The forecasted shortage of the small apes will hurt scientists' efforts — particularly in the polio vaccine field, Boyd said.

The Hazleton facility, one of about a dozen across the nation, got its first monkeys in February 1975. Working under contracts from the National Institute of Health and the Food and Drug Administration, the goal is to produce 500 offspring by the fifth year of the contracts.

The ranch is on an isolated parcel of land just east of Alice.

The monkeys are distributed among 220 cages. The cages, in neat rows and looking like metal igloos, are corn cribs shipped from the midwest and modified for use here.

Each enclosure (about 12 feet in diameter) houses seven to nine animals. One male and the rest female.

Boyd said it doesn't take long for a pecking order to be established in each unit.

"The females are very prone to arguments," he said, adding that jealousies flare when the male opts to mate with a female who is low in the pecking order.

In most cases the male sits by himself while the females scurry about. If the man of the house chooses to sit in a corner, he can have the area to himself. If he decides to relax on one of the wooden perches, no one will interfere.

"It's usually easy to pick out the animal who will have the problem of being chewed upon," said Boyd, who has set broken monkey arms after fights.

On one end of the spectrum is a ten percent group of animals who tend to be aggressive. On the other end is ten percent who will refuse to defend themselves for physical or psychological reasons.

Handling the monkeys for testing and tattooing is a tricky matter. A crew of a half dozen employees stands around the inside perimeter of the cage and tries to pick off the quick critters as they flee.

"They make very poor pets," Boyd, a former air force veterinarian, said. "They think if you catch them you are going to eat them."

Several monkeys have made temporarily successful escapes.

In a couple of cases the apes simply played Empire State Building and climbed to the top of their cages. On other occasions, however, the monkeys headed for greener pastures and took out across the flat terrain. But Boyd said the monkeys were easily corralled. The facility borders on the King Ranch and neighbors have had no complaints about the new settlers.

"There's one nice family over there that was glad to have neighbors of any kind," Boyd said, pointing out across the wide open space.

The ranch also breeds cynomologous monkeys. The southeast Asian breed is almost as useful as the rhesus in research.

The Indian ban against the exporting of rhesus monkeys is to go into effect on April 1. Boyd said the breeders in this country will be hard pressed to produce the needed animals that have been imported from India since a 1955 agreement between the two nations. The U.S. had been getting some 15,000 monkeys per year from India, according to officials in Washington.

Although Hazleton's contracts will expire in a few years, Boyd said he thinks the Alice facility will be a permanent one.

Black History Week recalls long list of achievements

Black America recorded in library

By ANNE SMART
Children's Librarian

Last week was Black History Week. There are many books at the Howard County Library that describe the past and current achievements of Black Americans.

"The ABC's of Black History" by Deloris L. Holt describes the accomplishments of Black Americans from Ira Aldridge, the 19th century Shakespearean actor to Henry Zino, a jazz drummer from New Orleans. Some of the most interesting entries discuss Matthew Alexander Henson, who was the first man to reach the North Pole. Louis Howard Lattimer, who improved Edison's light bulb by placing the filament inside the bulb and improving the socket, and Norbert Rilleux, who invented the vacuum pan and the vacuum chamber which simplified the refining of sugar.

"In Their Own Words: A History of the American Negro, 1619-1865" edited by Milton Meltzer is the story of the lives of Black Americans in their own words taken from letters, diaries, journals, speeches and other documents. Some of the chapters describe a captured African's trip across the Atlantic in a slave ship, a lynching in Alabama, Nat Turner's story of his revolt, written on the eve of his execution, stories of the lives of slaves on Southern plantations, the lives of free Northern Blacks, and the jubilant reaction to the Emancipation Proclamation and the end of the Civil War.

"Roll of Thunder, Hear My Cry" by Mildred D. Taylor is the 1977 Newbery Award Winner "for the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children." It is set in Spokane, Mississippi in 1933 and is about the Logans, the only Black landowning family. They face a difficult struggle, as a neighboring white plantation owner is determined to take their land. The story also concerns young Cassie's struggle to retain her dignity in the face of racist attacks.

"The Life and Death of Martin Luther King Jr." by James Haskins is a new biography of Dr. King. It describes his early life in Atlanta, his discovery of the teachings of Mahatma Gandhi and Henry David Thoreau, his first church in Montgomery, Alabama and his accomplishments as a non-violent Civil Rights leader. This book also discusses Dr. King's assassination, the lengthy search for the fugitive suspect James Earl Ray, possible reasons for the assassination and FBI and CIA involvement in investigating Dr. King while he was still alive and their search for his assassin(s).

"Barbara Jordan" is also by James Haskins. He has written other biographies of notable Black Americans such as Shirley Chisholm, Kareem Abdul Jabbar and Stevie Wonder. "Barbara Jordan" describes her early life in Houston where she articulated her dignity, her articulate and powerful speaking style and her ambition. After law school, she returned to Houston and got involved in local politics. From 1966 until 1972 she was the first Black woman in the Texas Senate. Since 1972, she has been the first Black woman to represent a Southern state in the U.S. House of Representatives. While in Washington, she served on the House Judiciary Committee during the impeachment trial of President Nixon and was the keynote speaker at the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

Some other new books which have been received at the Howard County Library include:

"Walk in Beauty: the Navajo and Their Blankets," by Anthony Berland and M. H. Kahlenberg. This is more than a pictorial essay, although there are many fine color photos to illustrate the wide range of designs and styles of the blankets. The emphasis is on how the weaving of utilitarian blankets evolved into a fine art. The Navajo borrowed techniques from the Pueblo Indians, wool from Spanish sheep, and tapped their own innate abilities. Weaving is related to the historic, social, and economic factors underpinning Navajo society.

"Dropshot: the American Plan for World War III Against Russia in 1957," by Anthony Cave Brown — the hitherto classified document which the Joint Chiefs of Staff drew up in 1949 under Truman's direction to prepare for the "inevitable" war by 1957. Now obsolete, the plan details for initial air defense, counter-offensives, and expected deployment of troops and hardware in distinct phases of the conflict. One revelation in "Dropshot" is that continental Europe was expected to have fallen in twenty days, and an American victory was considered highly questionable.

"The Victorians: a World Built to Last," edited by George Perry and Nicholas Mason — a giant book which captures the spirit of the grandiose age of Queen Victoria and the peak of the British Empire. The contributions of artists, scientists, men of letter, and statesmen provide a framework for this highly stimulating work.

"The Whale: Mighty Monarch of the Sea," by Jacques-Yves Cousteau — one more book in an ever-popular series offers expert witness to all aspects of the lives of many species of earth's largest mammal.

Kristofferson recalls football salad days

"At one time, football was the most important thing in my life," confesses Kris Kristofferson. That feeling explains the star's enthusiasm for his latest motion picture role — that of the professional football star, Shake Tiller, in "Semi-Tough," the United Artists release based on Dan Jenkins' outrageously funny best-seller about the colorful people who populate the world of pro football. Burt Reynolds, Jill Clayburgh and Robert Preston also star in the David Merrick presentation of a Michael Ritchie film. The screenplay is by Walter Bernstein. It starts playing at the Ritz Theatre Friday.

"I didn't make sports my life's work primarily because I didn't have the tools," admits the artist who did have the equipment and talent to become a show business superstar. "Semi-Tough," produced by Merrick, and directed by Ritchie, marks Kristofferson's ninth film role, following the phenomenally successful "A Star is Born."

His acting debut was in "Cisco Pike," followed by two Sam Peckinpah films, "Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid," and "Bring Me the Head of Alfredo Garcia." Paul Maxursky's "Blume in Love," Martin Scorsese's "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" and most recently "Vigilante Force" and "The Man Who Fell From Grace With the Sea." He is now starring with Ali McGraw in UA's "Convoy," also directed by Peckinpah. His impressive list of musical compositions include "Sunday Morning Comin' Down," "Help Me

Make It Through the Night" and "Why Me, Lord?"

"He's a walking contradiction, partly truth and partly fiction," Kristofferson wrote in one of his songs. The line in some ways reflects the artist himself. He covers so many facets of the human spectrum — the scholar who easily quotes Blake and Yeats, the international movie star, the poetic wandering minstrel-songwriter, the good of country boy, the introvert, the sex symbol who earns such tinsel tags as "One of the World's 10 Most Watchable Males."
