Marines storm complex; 70 hostages released

ASSEN, Netherlands (AP) — Under covering fire from nearby rooftops, 60 Dutch marines stormed a local government complex in this northern Dutch city today and freed 70 hostages held by South Moluccan terrorists since Monday, a government spokesman reported.

Three hostages were slightly wounded during the attack and another was badly wounded by terrorists, the spokesman said. A 40-year-old man, first thought to be a woman, died when the terrorists seized the building.

The spokesman said three young Moluccan gunmen were captured in the 20-minute operation, triggered when the terrorists made what proved to be a false report that they had executed a male hostage. Earlier accounts had indicated five or six terrorists in the building.

"They're free! They're free!" a marine officer yelled into his radio as the marines secured the four-story Trente provincial government headquarters in wooded suburban parkland of southwest Assen.

The marines went in after a shot was heard inside the concrete-and-glass building and the terrorists telephoned the government crisis center and claimed they had killed a hostage, the spokesman said.

"As soon as we heard that, the marines were ordered to attack," he said. But he said when the marines reached the top floor where the hostages were held, the man the Moluccans had reported executed was in fact only wounded.

The crack anti-terrorist unit of 100 marines, the same one that broke a siege by South Moluccan terrorists last year, was airlifted in transport helicopters to the siege scene Monday night.

The spokesman said 60 of the marines attacked from two sides, under a covering barrage from marine sharpshooters.

One group which had hidden in an adjacent building under cover of darkness was the first to reach the front door of the blue and grey building. Nearby lay the body of a woman killed in the initial terrorist assault Monday.

The second unit was hidden on the other side of the building and raced across open ground to reach the complex, the spokesman said.

The Moluccan militants seek Dutch intervention to obtain the independence of their home islands from Indonesia. Both the South Moluccas and Indonesia are former Dutch colonies.

The terrorists had threatened in a letter to the Justice Ministry to start killing their captives at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) if the government did not meet their demands for the release of 21 comrades jailed after the terror action last summer and one in 1975, a plane out of the country with some of the hostages and a $13 million ransom.

The deadline passed with no sound of gunfire from the building, but just after 2:30 p.m., the shot was heard that sent the marines into action. As they moved in, a fleet of green army ambulances drove through the cordon of 400 police and troops to pick up the wounded.

"There were fewer casualties than we expected," a police officer reported. "I think we were all very lucky, especially the hostages."

The injured hostages, shaken but smiling, were herded out of their prison by troops and police and taken in ambulances to an emergency aid center set up at a skating rink several hundred yards away.

About 3½ hours before the assault, the gunmen had released a woman hostage — Mrs. M. de Reeper — after talks with Moluccan community leaders invited by the terrorists to act as go-betweens with the government.

"They gave no reason for releasing this woman," a government spokesman told reporters.

The raid Monday began at 10 a.m. when a lone gunman rode up in a taxi, marched in with the driver at gunpoint and was joined by other Moluccans, their guns blazing.

As those in the building were herded upstairs, about 175 of the estimated 250 persons in the building escaped. Some jumped from upper story windows or scrambled down firehoses.

The terrorist demands were similar to those made by the Moluccan extremists who held more than 150 hostages for 20 days in a train and a schoolhouse last summer, until the marine commandos stormed the train and the school. Prime Minister Andries Van Agt was justice minister then and took a no-deal stand, and official sources said there was no indication he was ready to make any concessions this time.

The gunmen were members of an independence movement who have terrorized Holland periodically for a decade in search of independence from Indonesia for the South Moluccas, also known as the Spice Islands. The Dutch government says it can't compel the Indonesians to do anything.

DOLPH BRISCOE (CENTER) WITH WIFE AND JACK LITTLE
Governor scores a few points against challenger John Hill

Says Briscoe of Hill

Teachers promised too much

By MARJ CARPENTER
The largest crowd that has attended any reception for any political candidate in Big Spring this year greeted Gov. Dolph Briscoe at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce this morning.

Gov. Briscoe, seeking nomination for re-election to the post of Governor in the Democratic primary in May, again pointed out that he will continue to stand on the platform of "no new taxes."

He commented on the industrial growth in Texas during his administration and pointed out that "We are the only Sun Belt state obtaining this much industry that has not resorted to some form of state income tax. We don't need another form of tax."

Gov. Briscoe also again challenged the Texas State Teachers Association to make public their tapes of interviews of all candidates in regard to raises and taxes. Briscoe claims that Atty. Gen. John Hill has promised the teachers a $1,350,000 salary increase during the next session when there is only $750,000 available.

The governor also pointed out that there has been over 53 per cent increase in teacher pay raise and benefits during the five years he has been in office. He related that during his term, teachers have received the biggest increase in benefits since the Gilmer-Aiken Bill in 1949.

The governor also discussed the farm issue, pointing out that agriculture and individual farmers are in the "worst price squeeze since the dark days of the Depression."

He said he had met with the farm movement leaders, and that he was backing the Benson-Dole sliding scale of parity bill. "I also am working toward opening up additional markets for the Texas farmer, which are desperately needed. He said that the farmers had gotten the attention of the administration and that the President should make some decision in regard to a farm bill this week.

"It's planting time now in Central Texas and soon will be here, and the farmer needs to know where he stands," the governor added.

He also praised Big Spring's efforts in recovering from the closure of Webb AFB and urged local leaders to continue to work toward trying to obtain a diagnostic cancer and treatment center at the former Webb AFB.

He said that local leadership needs to continue to work through the University of Texas Board of Regents toward obtaining that center.

Jack Little, local campaign chairman, pointed out, when he introduced Gov. Briscoe, that he had worked with Big Spring leaders in attempting to locate Lockheed here.

The governor commended citizens for their "progressive attitude and your battle to recover here in Big Spring after losing the base. You have a non-fearist attitude that is great."

He also commended on the fact that Texas must continue to lead in the field of energy and develop new energy sources, pointing out that one-third of all the energy products produced in the world have come from Texas.

The governor is making a swing through West Texas and began his day here this morning. The reception included refreshments of doughnuts and coffee with Mrs. Jack Little, Irene, Carrie and John assisting with serving and registration.

Mrs. Janie Briscoe is accompanying her husband on the campaign swing through this part of the state.

Crewmen escape; hijacker nabbed

DENVER (AP) — The quick thinking of three crewmen who leaped from the cockpit of a United Airlines jet to the runway 15 feet below was credited with aborting a hijacking by a man who said he had terminal cancer and wanted to fly to Memphis or Cuba.

"We did not know that the crew was going to escape," said Ted Rosack, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office. "They did it on their own. Their actions ended what could have been a tragedy. I think it's extremely commendable. We were prepared to refuel the plane and let it continue on."

Clay Thomas Jr., 27, of Mountain View, Calif., surrendered shortly after the crewmen jumped from the aircraft, leaving him alone in the plane with a red-and-white flight bag which he said contained a bomb.

The bag contained some books and papers and a lollipop. "There was no bomb," said Rosack.

The crewmen escaped about an hour after the plane, flying from San Francisco, landed here at Stapleton International Airport. Thomas had gone back to the passenger compartment, apparently to see if his demand that the plane be refueled was being met.

As agents converged on the Boeing 727 and lowered its rear stairway, Rosack used a car loudspeaker to call for Thomas to surrender.

Moments later, as it was growing dark, Thomas threw the bag off the plane and walked down the stairs with his hands over his head.

"I surrender," he was quoted as saying.

Thomas was arraigned Monday night before U.S. Magistrate Royce Sickler for aircraft piracy, which carries a maximum 20-year prison term, and held under $250,000 bond.

When told of the amount of his bail, Thomas cried, "You'd think I was the killing, criminal type."

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Why in club?

Q. Why are the Jaycees issuing invitations to the Miss Diamondback Pageant and then requiring payment at the door? Why is the pageant being held in a nightclub, excluding brothers, sisters and parents who are not members?

A. The Miss Diamondback Pageant has always been held in a "nightclub" atmosphere, and was previously held in the Officers Club for many years. This year it is at the Brass Nail. Invitations have been issued. There is no charge to see the pageant, but due to state liquor control laws, members of the club and guests of members are the only ones admitted to the club free. Other adults entering the club must buy a $2 temporary permit. Anyone under 18 attending will not be charged and will be stamped and cannot be served alcoholic beverages while in the club. The pageant is not primarily a children's program, although some brothers and sisters of contestants do attend.

Offbeat: A word to the wife

REEDS SPRING, Mo. (AP) — J.T. Williams, an evangelist who helped in an unsuccessful attempt to resurrect the frozen body of a woman this weekend, was telling reporters how he raised a woman from the dead about five years ago.

As he spoke, his wife walked by and told the cluster of reporters: "You print his name or one word he says, and I'm going to sue you."

Williams, who describes himself as a "reborn" gambler and tavern owner, appeared embarrassed.

"She's a Methodist," he said.

CLAY THOMAS JR.

Sickler he was an unemployed, disabled Army veteran and did not have enough money to hire an attorney.

Thomas described himself to Sickler as "a psychiatric case" and asked to see a psychiatrist. Sickler told him to take that up with his court-appointed attorney.

No mention of Thomas' alleged cancer was made during arraignment. When he first commandeered the flight the hijacker told the crew he suffered from terminal cancer and needed treatment.

He initially demanded to be flown to Memphis, Tenn., then changed his destination to Cuba.

The Seattle-bound jet was diverted to Oakland, Calif., where all 68 passengers and the four flight attendants were allowed to leave. A refueling stop was planned at Denver because the plane did not have enough to reach Memphis.

Pilot Al Grout, 54, and co-pilot Jack Bard, 40, broke bones in the jump from the cockpit. Flight engineer Louis Warfield, 34, was not injured. Grout had his leg placed in a cast and was released. Bard remained hospitalized overnight with a broken left heel.

Bus hijacked; boy is shot

WALLED LAKE, Mich. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy who was reportedly having problems with his girlfriend commandeered a school bus with a shotgun in a Detroit suburb today and was shot and wounded by police, authorities said.

The youth, whose name was withheld by authorities, was undergoing surgery at a hospital in nearby Pontiac and was expected to recover, said Janet Acker, a spokeswoman for the White Lake Township police.

Neither the driver nor any of the five Walled Lake Central High School students aboard the bus was injured in the incident, Miss Acker said.

Chamber membership drive gets under way March 20

He said that the Ambassadors will be calling on prospective new members during the week of March 20-24. Farmers, educators, businesses, and professionals will be called on to join and have a hand in building a better Big Spring area.

Atkins pointed out that every citizen in the community is eligible for chamber membership as long as he or she is interested in, and prepared to work for, the growth and development of the community.

The Chamber of Commerce is simply people working together to solve the economic and socio-economic problems of a community and the Big Spring area needs every potential member contributing to the efforts toward this broad objective.

Rebellion crushed; 40 die, 30 hurt

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Several hundred prisoners clashed with police at a prison housing many political inmates here today, leaving 44 dead and 30 seriously injured in one of the worst prison riots on record. Police said they crushed the uprising at Villa Devoto prison 10 miles from the center of Buenos Aires after about 2½ hours. Both guards and inmates were reported among the casualties. No cause was given for the outbreak.

A total of 43 guards and inmates died in rioting at New York's Attica prison in 1971.

The Villa Devoto outbreak started at about 6:20 a.m. (8:20 a.m. EST). Area residents told reporters they heard shouting and explosions inside the high-walled facility and then saw smoke pour into the sky.

The prison is meant for about 2,500 inmates but local human rights groups claim the population has increased to between 4,000 and 5,000 because of political prisoners sent there since the military junta seized power in a 1976 coup.

"There was pandemonium," said one resident who didn't want to be identified. "People were screaming inside and there were sounds like gunfire."

The independent news agency Noticias Argentinas said the rioting started in a wing housing nonpolitical prisoners. Federal police riot squads armed with automatic weapons and supported by helicopters cordoned off the prison.

Ambulances were seen going in and out of the prison, which houses male and female inmates.

There's hope for agreement Low-key approach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite striking miners' overwhelming defiance of a back-to-work order, federal officials are trying to avoid a coalfield confrontation in the hope that negotiators are nearing a contract settlement that could end the 99-day coal strike.

"We don't plan any hasty or ill-conceived actions... We don't seek any confrontation," said Justice Department spokesman Mark Sheehan. "What we don't want to do is create any situation... that could interfere with the collective bargaining process."

Meanwhile, bargainers for the United Mine Workers and the coal industry planned to resume negotiations today amid hints they were closing in on a new agreement.

The two sides, which held intensive talks over the weekend, did not meet Monday but remained in telephone contact.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said some officials involved in negotiations were "at least cautiously optimistic" about putting together a settlement.

But a United Mine Workers spokesman said Monday that UMW President Arnold Miller had not yet summoned the union's bargaining council to Washington. The council must approve any contract settlement before it can be submitted to the rank-and-file for ratification.

The Carter administration obtained the back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Act last week, hoping it would allow at least some mines to resume production while bargaining continued.

Monday was the first real test of the court order, as strike-bound mines stood ready to reopen and federal marshals completed serving copies of the order to more than 800 UMW districts and locals.

The heir to the British throne told reporters during his visit here Monday that "if I did get married, I could not do the samba the way I did the other night" at a British Embassy party in his honor.

Charles also said he is looking forward to an apprenticeship of "at least 30 years" because his mother will not abdicate.

Earlier Monday the prince lunched with Brazilian President Ernesto Geisel.

Lillian on metal

ROME (AP) — Lillian Carter will be struck in metal.

A United Nations medal will honor President Carter's mother for her civil rights militancy and her Peace Corps work.

The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization has released gold and silver medals featuring her as Ceres, the Roman goddess of agriculture.

FAO has been issuing so-called Ceres medals annually since 1971 to highlight the role of women in agriculture and world development.

A portrait of Mrs. Carter, her name and the name Ceres appear on one side of the medal while the reverse bears the inscription "Human kindness and caring — heal beyond any wall."

The medal, sculpted by Frank Gasparro, chief engraver of the U.S. Mint, and struck in Italy, is available in gold at $140 and sterling silver at $25.

Previous American women honored on Ceres medals include Coretta Scott King, Margaret Mead, Shirley Temple Black and Gloria Steinem.

Ski run gets name

GOVERNMENT CAMP, Ore. (AP) — "It's the same old Pucci Glade, but I'm afraid it's not the same old Pucci," said Emilio Pucci after skiing the run named for him.

Pucci, a fashion designer and Italian nobleman, made the run at Timberline ski area during the weekend with two members of the Reed College ski team he captained and coached 40 years ago.

One of them, Portland architect Neil Farnham, said, "Despite a pulled muscle in his back, he led the pack."

Pucci, who developed the Portland college's first ski team in the winter of 1936-37, was honored by a marker placed at the upper terminal of the Pucci chairlift.

Privilege removed

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov will have to find some way other than the telephone to coordinate his activities.

Soviet authorities have disconnected his home telephone, the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize laureate said Monday.

Many other dissidents previously have had their phone service abruptly cut off.

The move came one day after Sakharov and his wife joined more than 20 Soviet Jews in staging a demonstration in downtown Moscow to protest against Kremlin support for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The protest was prompted by Saturday's Arab terrorist attack in Israel.

Arkansas names stretch of highway for Martha

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — A stretch of U.S. 65 Expressway that runs from the western to the eastern city limits has been renamed after one of Pine Bluff's favorite daughters — Martha Mitchell.

The City Council on Monday night approved the name change by adopting a resolution drafted by the Southeast Arkansas Jaycees.

Jim Burns, president of the Jaycees, said the highway will be known as the Martha Mitchell Expressway.

One of the reasons for wanting the name change was the affection Pine Bluff residents felt for the late Mrs. Mitchell, who was born in Pine Bluff, and the affection she had for her hometown, Burns said.

The resolution said Mrs. Mitchell "will be remembered by future generations as a person whose actions were historically significant."

It says she deserved recognition because of "her courage and integrity for speaking out for the things she believed in in the face of adverse reaction and even public ridicule."

Mrs. Mitchell was separated from her former husband, former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell, in 1973. She died in 1976. She became well known for her outspoken comments about the Nixon Administration during the Watergate scandal.

"We felt Mrs. Mitchell had shown character by standing up for what she knew was right. A person with that strength of character deserves to be honored," Burns said. "And she let everybody know that Pine Bluff was her home."

He said he believes it is appropriate that the expressway should take her name, since it is "the symbol of progress in Pine Bluff."

The wind apparently was a factor in one minor accident Monday, as it blew a car door out of the hand of Sandra B. Stone, 3203 Cornell. Forsan schools start meal programs early

The Forsan Independent School District, faced with the same order as other schools to begin a breakfast program in school cafeterias by September, is beginning its program early.

The breakfast program begins March 29 in the school cafeterias in Forsan and Elbow with buses running ten minutes earlier starting on that date.

The board met Monday night and set fees at 25 cents for students, 50 cents for adults and 10 cents for reduced lunch students.

The menu will include milk, juice or fruit and a main item alternating from such items as eggs and toast to French toast to cereal on a changing daily basis.

The board also approved the contracts for all of the teachers and approved the textbook committee report.

They awarded the low bid of Wet Builders Supply of Amarillo for reflooring the lobby and some other areas of the gym. The firm bid $5,994.

The board agreed to cooperate with the Elbow PTA and Forsan Booster Clubs in a meet the candidate forum for the seven school board candidates at 7:30 p.m. March 21 in the Elbow School cafeteria.

The board also approved medical insurance with Blue Cross and Blue Shield for their employees for the coming year.

Revival opens this evening

A revival begins at the Salvation Army 4th & Aylford streets at 7 p.m. today.

Major James Hylton, director of men's services of the Southern Territory is the speaker. He is a good preacher and Bible teacher.

He also served several years on the staff of Officers Training School in Atlanta, Ga.

The meetings will conclude next Sunday. No service will be held Saturday. The public is invited to attend.

The Salvation Army advisory board will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday at 7:45 a.m. breakfast at Coker's Restaurant.

Vehicle orders are OKed here

Howard County Commissioners accepted bids totalling over $62,000 in purchasing six items for the county Road and Bridge Department.

Bids on two dump trucks were awarded to Treanor Equipment Co. with a bid of $27,013.58. The Treanor bid was followed by Bob Brock Ford at $29,898.38 and by Broughton Equipment Co. at $30,000.

A bid on a tractor truck was awarded to Treanor also at $15,654.76. That bid was followed by Broughton Equipment at $16,745.85 and by Bob Brock Ford at $16,758.81.

Bids on two pickups were split between Pollard Chevrolet and Bob Brock Ford, the only two bidders, after the bids were discovered to be separated by less than a dollar. Pollard bid $10,540 while Bob Brock bid $10,541. The auto to be traded in on one of the pickups will go to Pollard.

Hobbs Trailer was awarded a bid on a 3500 gallon water tank trailer at $11,706. Downs and Clark followed with a bid of $9,288, but which did not meet the specifications.

In other action, the commissioners passed a resolution supporting the Colorado River Municipal Water District in their efforts to obtain a permit for Stacy Reservoir.

The court also heard a presentation from Joe Baucum of the State Guard.

Baucum reviewed the nature of the State Guard, and asked the court to consider funding the local unit at a maximum of $100 per month.

"We received our first uniform issue in November last year. We have received no boots and very little equipment.

It is hard to run a volunteer unit when the first thing you ask a member is 'Can you donate anything?'" The Guard officer told the court.

On the recommendation of Commissioner Bill Crooker, the matter was tabled for next year's budget which will be under discussion in June.

The court will be taking bids on venetian blinds for the Sheriff's Department and the County Clerk's office, as well as getting specifications for repairs on the fairbarns and construction of an equipment shed for the Road and Bridge Department.

They considered a proposal for monthly service on radio equipment, and designated two dates for use of the fairbarns to Amado Molina and Gloria Rodriguez.

In a brief conference with Librarian John Deats, the court discussed reclassification of a position in the county library. No salary change was involved.

Zone change approved for three more blocks

Initial approval was given by the Big Spring City Council for a change of zone for three more city blocks at today's regular meeting.

The property, located between Gregg and Lancaster from 15th to 18th Streets, was rezoned from Parking to Retail. No one appeared to object to the change, and two residents of the area appeared to give their approval of the rezoning.

Council members went on to instruct City Attorney James Gregg to send notices to all residents along Lancaster of another possible zone change. If approved, the entire area between Gregg and Lancaster from Fourth to 23rd Streets may be rezoned from Parking to Retail.

Bids on two projects to improve the appearance of the City Auditorium were approved today. Low bid of $10,500 was accepted from the Barber Glass and Mirror Company to replace the auditorium's glass windows with opaque panes.

The panes will block light from the sun and passing cars which have been a distraction in the past.

The council also awarded a bid of $9,460 by the D.D. Johnston Company for painting the inside of the auditorium. The budget is presently $3,100 short for these projects, but the balance will come from the Revenue Sharing Fund, according to Tom Ferguson, city finance director.

The suggestion by the Tourist Development Council that a professional tourism study be undertaken in the city was okayed at the meeting. Bids will be sought from a variety of qualified firms to do the study.

Cost of the project will be shared equally by the city and the Federal Economic Development Administration.

Council members approved the minutes of the Feb. 7 meeting of the Big Spring Structural Standards Board which included 18 new actions. These included demolitions at 16 locations.

Buildings scheduled for demolition are located at: 111 N. Benton; 1105 W. 6th; 1901 W. 1st; 404 N.W. 3rd; 506 N.W. 3rd; 508 N.W. 3rd; 907 N.W. 5th; 700 N.W. 5th; 607 N.W. 5th; 601 N.W. 5th; 408 N.W. 5th; 404 N.W. 5th; 1110 E. 5th; 606 Nolan; 502 E. 12th; and 1412 W. 15th.

Board members also agreed to rescind a demolition order for a garage at 1000 Lamesa, if a number of improvements are made on the structure.

Bids for two city automobiles were awarded; both to the Bob Brock Ford Dealership. In both cases, Brock submitted low bid.

The city agreed to purchase a Ford LTD II at $5,194.72 to be used by the Community Development Office, and a Ford Pinto at $3,478.92 to be used by meter readers in the Water Department.

The council also gave its unanimous approval of the construction of the Stacy Reservoir by the Colorado River Municipal Water District. The reservoir to be constructed near the community of Stacy will be used to answer anticipated water supply needs in the future.

In other business council members:

—Accepted minutes of meetings of the Planning and Zoning Committee, the Big Spring Steering Committee and the Traffic Committee.

—Approved a second and final reading of a resolution authorizing Mayor Wade Choate to enter into a utility easement presented by J.W. Pursler.

—Appointed election judges for the upcoming April 1 city election.

—Gave permission to advertise for bids for the city depository.

Anti-inflation strategy is not working

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief inflation watchdog, warning that the administration's anti-inflation strategy is not working, is recommending stronger action to avert significant price increases, government sources say.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, recommended that Carter take actions that are "immediate in their impact and not just a request for restraint by the private sector" to keep prices from increasing at a faster pace.

Bosworth, in an internal White House memorandum last week, maintained, for example, that contracts coming out of the current coal industry dispute have the potential of causing "inflationary damage." A spokesman for the council, Tom Joyce, confirmed the memorandum, but emphasized that it reflected only one point of view within the White House, has not yet been debated by key economic advisers and has not been seen by the president.

FACING FIRING SQUAD — The warden of Utah State Prison, where Gary Gilmore was executed 14 months ago, says he is going ahead with plans for the simultaneous firing squad execution on March 22 of William Andrews, left, 23, of Dallas, Tex., and Dale Pierre, 25, of Brooklyn, N.Y. Lawyers for the men, who were convicted of murder during a robbery in 1974, said they were confident the executions would not be carried out.

Pothole battle is stepped up

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Some 500 men and women who normally design new highways will be pushing asphalt instead of pencils in a stepped up battle against potholes on Pennsylvania's battered roads.

Most of the white collar workers who volunteered to join regular road crews filling the holes were among 1,105 employees who had been threatened with layoffs because of a budget crunch in the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

Gov. Milton Shapp canceled the planned March 1 layoffs under legislative pressure. Although it was not clear whether the pothole program was an offshoot of the layoff cancellation, the legislature agreed quickly Monday to shift $10 million to the road maintenance fund to pay for pothole repairs.

Shapp called the extra money "an emergency shot in the arm."

"I think it's a great gesture on their (the employees') part and on the department's capacity to get more people out to fill potholes," said Lt. Gov. Ernest Riffe, who announced plans for the pothole offensive. "I thought it was silly for PennDOT to be laying off people with all those potholes to be filled."

Eileen Carroll, a typist in the transportation department's Philadelphia office, was among the handful of pothole volunteers not in the design department where the cutbacks had been planned.

"I think it would be a change," she said. "They explained in a meeting they didn't want to discriminate and would offer the job to women. I was thinking maybe I'd lose some weight. From what I understand it will be hard work."

Most of the volunteers have been working on designing construction projects, which for the most part were halted last June for lack of money. The design division employees who did not volunteer for pothole duty will work on design projects which are continuing for safety reasons.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees agreed to have white collar workers step from behind the drawing board to trudge along the highways doing maintenance work.

"It demonstrates a large measure of good will," said Gerald McEntee, executive director of state employees' union. "We are attempting to cooperate with the state in a limited program of four to six weeks to fill those potholes."

Site near Edinburg is chosen for new prison

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — The $8 million purchase of a 6,741-acre site for a new 2,000-inmate prison in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, approved Monday by the Texas Board of Prisons, has been delayed for at least two weeks.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Board Chairman James Windham and General Land Office Chief Clerk Jack Giberson, who comprise a panel that must give final approval to such transactions, decided here Monday afternoon to delay action on the transaction until March 28.

The panel said another appraisal of the land and more title information is needed.

The purchase was approved Monday morning in Palestine by the board of prisons before the panel's decision.

The tentative purchase agreement includes an option for the board to acquire an additional 7,851 acres adjacent to the other tract at a price of $6 million. The board must exercise the option before Dec. 31, 1979.

The site is nine miles north of McAllen and three miles west of Edinburg and is

An agency that takes care of its own

The United Nations, which has always been guilty of a lot of wasted motion, acts positively when it comes to rewarding its own.

The Associated Press reported recently that 75 officials within the UN organization, including nine Americans, are each now being paid more than $75,000 a year. Needless to say, the United States antes up most of the money to support the United Nations.

There has long been a doubt in the minds of many people that delegates to the United Nations do much of anything to merit pay.

"Ignoring demands for belt-tightening from the United States, which pays more of the UN costs than any other member, the world organization has promoted six assistant secretary-generals to undersecretary-generals," the AP reported.

"Their new titles carry raises of $10,000, making their annual salaries about $86,000," the wire service added, "bringing to 35 the number of UN officials earning more than $85,000 a year."

US cabinet members are paid $60,000 each a year, so that puts the UN honchos considerably above that level. Even the government bureaucrats, who pretty much dictate to Washington what they want, aren't quite in that league.

The Soviet minister in charge of financial affairs concedes that United Nations salaries are "unjustifiably high."

The new arrangements smack of collusion somewhere. It is a mystery to all of us how the UN can get away with paying such salaries when those who pay the bill are opposed to such extravagance. We think the identity of those granting the raises should be made public and that they should be called to account for their unusual generosity.

United Nations employees pay almost no income tax. They enjoy health and retirement benefits that are generous beyond belief. Their plan for vacation and sick leave would be the envy in any business in the private sector.

Our congressmen and senators should be looking to the UN excesses with some consternation. Instead, they seem to take some pride in the fact that someone else has become a little more gluttonous than they are.

Like some dead star that is still shining from the heavens, the system may be dead and nobody knows it.

Never took dare

Around the rim

Dusty Richard

When I was younger, I used to ask my father what he had done during the three wars in which he participated as a Marine. He never answered. To this day, I don't know if my father ever actually killed any Japanese, Koreans or Viet Cong, but I do know that he won't ever go deer hunting because of his aversion to killing.

Instead, when I asked him, he'd tell me about the funny things that inevitably happen to young men, single, on their own for maybe the first time in their lives.

LIKE THE TIME he was aboard a ship going somewhere in the South Pacific, I think. Dad and all the other grunts were bored, and someone challenged him to drink some pure rubbing alcohol. Other guys told him he'd better not, but "Blackie" took the dare and filled his mouth with a large swig. My dad still laughs when he recalls the numbness that started in his mouth and gradually extended down into his stomach. He told me that he was unable to speak for an hour, but at least it relieved some of the ennui inherent to long sea voyages with members of the same sex.

In the late 40's or early 50's he was stationed in London, and one of the first things that the other Marines told him was never to go down to Chelsea Barracks, home of her Majesty's Royal Navy, because they hated Marines there.

Well, "Comanche Poulk," as he was called then because of the dark hair and red complexion betraying his Indian heritage, would not let a little thing like that stop him, and down to Chelsea Barracks he went. He entered a bar and ordered a drink, and was immediately floored by one of the biggest guys he'd ever seen. The bartender leaned over the bar, looked at my dad, and said, with a strong Cockney accent, "Don't get up, Yank; he'll only hit you again!"

During the same tour of duty in London, he went out one night carousing with his two best friends, Mac and Caldwell. My dad is a well-built six-footer but Mac and Caldwell make him look little. He used to tell me of all the fights he'd pick because he knew those two monsters were right behind him to back him up.

Anyway, there was Mac, Caldwell and Comanche (the rumor was now circulating that he had been an Indian chief in the states because of the bloodcurdling war whoop that he let out when at the point of having had one too many) were out on the streets looking for a taxi. Finally one came by and they flagged it down in the rain. They were all three a bit drunk, and a man rudely pushed them aside to get into the stopped cab. Comanche didn't like this a bit, and let the poor man have it with a powerful right to the jaw. The man dropped like a ton of bricks, and my dad looked first at Mac and then at Caldwell.

"Hey, see what I did?" he bragged.

"YEAH, POULK, we saw it! You really gave it to him. Come on, get in the cab," they replied, literally pulling him inside the taxi to take him home.

The next day, he sobered up and kept bragging about how he hadn't needed any help from his big friends, no sir, he just let that guy have it! Of course, after a while of that, they finally had to tell him that Mac had been standing behind my dad and had socked the guy, right over my dad's shoulder, but dad had been so drunk that he thought he did it.

Korea was a cold and boring hell of a war, and few things interrupted the monotony. One thing that interrupted the monotony, however, were the rats. Big ones.

One night my father was trying to sleep in his foxhole and a large persistent rat kept running across his face, disturbing him slightly, to say the least. My dad couldn't stand it any longer and picked up his rifle, fired a few rounds into the darkness, and fell back asleep undisturbed.

The next morning he found the dead rat, got to thinking about its family and how it had died in action just like the men, and decided to give it a military funeral with full honors. The guys got a box to put the rat in and dug a hole. My father eulogized the poor rodent, saying how war is a strange thing, and an innocent rat is as likely to be killed as a man.

"This rat had a home and family, just like we do, and I think we should stop for a moment of silence."

After that, they fired off a 21-gun salute before lowering it to its earthy resting place.

Men at war will do the weirdest things to keep their minds off of it, and with my father — Blackie or Comanche or Poulk, as he has been called — around, I'm sure that many guys laughed their way through tours of duty in strange places.

Why Siegel is leaving

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — While Dr. Mark A. Siegel's split with President Carter's even-handed Mideast policy was probably inevitable, a troubling question persists: why must this talented young man now be entirely lost to a beleaguered White House in desperate need of talent?

The indistinct answers probe into murky corners of life in the Carter administration: continued suspicion of outsiders by the President's campaign operatives; an ambiguous role played by Vice President Walter Mondale's office; the Democratic party's old "regulars" vs. "reformers" feuding carried on within the walls of the White House.

WHOLLY APART from the Mideast, Siegel's loss ought to be cause for White House mourning; instead, the enemies he has there have been congratulating themselves that the wicked witch is dead. That is ironic because Siegel has been more devoted to Jimmy Carter's real political interests than some of Siegel's foes on the Vice President's staff. So, a few thoughtful Carter insiders, while disagreeing with Siegel's emotional Mideast position, see in his departure a poor reward for loyalty.

But unfounded suspicion about Siegel's loyalty has plagued him since Jan. 21, 1977, when he entered the White House as an assistant to Hamilton Jordan. As executive director at the Democratic National Committee, Siegel had been part of the Washington establishment, a key strategist for the party "regulars," and a protégé of Hubert Humphrey's who urged Humphrey to run against Mr. Carter in 1976.

Nor was that all. Siegel knew entirely too many reporters, nearly as bad a stigma at the White House now as in Nixon days. Press secretary Jody Powell unjustly suspected Siegel as a source of embarrassing leaks. Carter campaign veterans, led by appointments secretary Tim Kraft, refused to accept him.

Early last year, a reporter who had written critically of the Carter administration (and had not seen Siegel in weeks) bumped into Kraft in a corridor of the Executive Office Building next to the White House. "Can't you find Mark Siegel's office?" Kraft asked sarcastically. Like Nixonian predecessors, Siegel feared being seen in restaurants with newsmen not on the Carter friends list.

IN TRUTH, Siegel was scrupulously loyal to the President in word and deed. Furthermore, his political contacts were a rare and essential commodity in the Carter White House — an underutilized commodity. Early in 1977, Siegel was assigned the secondary and frustrating task of shepherding the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) through state legislatures.

Gradually, however, he grew closer to Jordan, who convinced Powell of his dependability. Siegel was given the task of protecting the President's interests at the Democratic National Committee. They needed protection because of the unfortunate choice as Democratic national chairman of former Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine, who viewed big-time party politics as a New England town meeting.

This brought Siegel into confrontation with Richard Moe, the Vice President's formidable assistant and an ally of the national committee's "reform" element. While Siegel was carrying out Jordan's desire for rules changes to make more difficult a 1980 insurgent challenge against Mr. Carter, Moe was sympathizing with "reformers" and Chairman Curtis in their crusade for internal democracy within the party.

Curtis was eased out as national chairman, but it was a pyrrhic victory for Siegel. Angry "reform" members of the national committee were placated by Moe's assurances that Siegel no longer would handle party affairs for the White House.

Asthma personality? No such thing

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can emotions cause asthma? My youngster, a well-adjusted boy, suffers from severe asthma. After reading that emotions can be a cause, I began to worry that we were not treating the problem correctly and that maybe there was some mental factor we were ignoring. Please enlighten us so we will do what's best. — Mr. and Mrs. H.S.

Emotions won't "cause" asthma initially, if that's what you mean. The so-called "asthma personality" is a myth. Asthma is a definite physical lung problem involving the inability to breathe properly. Where psychological factors enter the picture, they do so after the fact. That is, the asthmatic child can become emotionally unstable. Much of this may be due to unwisely overindulgent parents.

For this reason, it is important for parents of an asthmatic youngster to be well-instructed in handling the problem sensibly without producing over-dependence on his part. I'm sure you are doing everything you can for your boy medically, and, from your letter, I assume otherwise as well. Forget about psychology and continue as you are.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I want to know if it's possible to have the same cold almost all winter. Once I get one I never seem to get rid of it. I also have a sinus condition. Is it possible to actually feel dizzy from this? I'm getting fed up. I'm not on any medication. I'm 31. Also, the rest of the family seems to get colds frequently. — Mrs. L.B.

You would not have the same cold all winter. The virus infection (which is what a cold is) usually runs its course in no more than 10 days. However, there are nearly a hundred viruses that cause colds. If you are from a large family, the viruses other family members are getting are probably reinfecting you. Persons with certain sinus problems are more prone to being infected, especially when indoors and close to other cold victims. This may give the impression of having a cold "all winter." Actually, it's several colds in succession.

You say you are not on any medication. This can be either a proud blessing of the healthy or an empty boast of the sick. You need to have your sinus situation evaluated. Allergy is often involved. If others in the family are bothered with colds, it could be a matter of improper humidity in the house, either too much or too little. Sinus infection ordinarily is not a cause of dizziness. See my booklet on sinus problems, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble." For a copy, send $50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of this newspaper.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This is about a lady of 26 who had a hysterectomy. When she returned home she was grumpy and very depressed. How can we help her? — A.M.

Depression is common to some extent after surgery or illness. There may be feelings of not being whole or normal, and this, too, is common. It is particularly true in a young woman of 26 who has lost her childbearing potential.

Your patience, reassurance and time are valuable assets for her now. Make sure you continue to show love and warmth toward her and make her feel she is still beautiful. A simple gesture such as getting together and buying her a pretty bathrobe or some frilly slippers would be appropriate.

If she hasn't been back to her doctor since her surgery, she should. If she had her ovaries removed at the time of the hysterectomy, she may need hormone supplements.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

THE PIPELINE SYSTEM, unfortunately, has been flagrantly neglected by the U.S. Department of Transportation, which is charged with keeping it safe. The problem starts at the very top. The Transportation Department's office of Pipeline Safety, for example, has had no permanent director for seven of the last 10 years.

Safety standards for many pipelines have never been issued. And the standards for such hazardous substances as liquefied petroleum gas and anhydrous ammonia are totally inadequate. Although the department can slap fines on those who violate safety regulations, it has ordered only 14 penalties totaling $12,000 over the past 10 years.

In the field, some regional offices have only two inspectors to cover as many as 14 states. Investigators from General Accounting Office have found that serious defects are often missed because of quick and superficial federal inspections. Even when safety defects are discovered in the pipelines, we have learned, the federal authorities often fail to check whether corrections have been made.

The available manpower, furthermore, is often used inefficiently. While the tremendous danger of explosions in heavily populated areas have been largely ignored, eight inspectors have been assigned to monitor the gas pipeline in the frozen tundra of Alaska.

AN OUTRAGED Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., complained about the official laxity in a confidential letter of Transportation Secretary Brock Adams. "It is not necessary for this

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I used to believe, but a few years ago I decided to tell God to let me alone so I could enjoy life a little. Now I want to return to God, but I feel like my heart is calloused and indifferent. Do you think I can have any hope? — J.C.

DEAR J. C.: Your story is similar to the parable that Jesus told in Luke 15 about the prodigal son. The son decided he did not want to stay at home, and he went "into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living" (Luke 15:13). As time went on he became miserable, and eventually he returned home. You will notice that the father accepted him back joyfully.

Yes, there is hope for you. God still loves you, just as the father in Jesus' parable still loved his son in spite of his rebellion and sin. God wants you to return to Him, and He is waiting to forgive you and receive you back. One of the greatest promises of the Bible is found in 1 John 1:9: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." This is God's promise to you.

Frankly, it is there really any reason for you to remain the way you are? You have found out by now that the devil always promises us happiness and joy if we will follow him instead of Christ, but the devil is a liar. You can know true joy and peace only in Christ. You were foolish to turn your back on God, but it would be even more foolish for you to remain out of fellowship with Him. It also would be dangerous.

You worry now about the hardness of your heart. But the Bible warns us too far away from God, and we will never turn back because of sin's hold on us. "He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy" (Proverbs 29:1).

Your letter is also a warning to many who may be tempted to turn their backs on God. It is a dead-end road, as you have discovered. "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Proverbs 14:12). Christ wants to give each of us a full and satisfying life, if we will let Him be Lord of our life.

Farm

Rural power cutback looms

Bound to have effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prolonged coal strike could have a severe impact on farm production and the food processing industry, mostly because of its effect on the generation of electrical power, according to an Agriculture Department paper.

As a fuel, however, coal plays a slight role in farm production and it would be relatively easy to replace it temporarily with other types of fuel, the department said. The analysis was in an affidavit prepared by USDA and sent by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to the Labor and Justice departments as part of the procedure used by President Carter to invoke back-to-work orders under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Area farmers to lobby for bill in capital

Some 27 farmers from the Big Spring-Ackerly area left for Washington today to lobby in support of the Dole-Talmadge bill which will supply emergency aid to farmers for one year only.

be returning Saturday, after adding their voices to those of the AAM groups nationwide.

"The bill is based on the principle that the more acreage a farmer cuts in terms of production, the nearer his price will be to parity when he sells," says Roger Coates at the Big Spring strike office.

"Implementation of this bill could be a problem, considering all the red tape that is required in any government problem," says Coates, "but it is the best proposal so far, and we'll have to work on the problems later."

"It will really help some of the farmers who are in a bind this year, if it goes through fairly intact," said Coates. "Of course, if it gets butchered and changed too much during passage, American Agriculture Movement could very likely withdraw their support of the bill."

Among the area farmers going to Washington will be Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lee Snell, Billy Reed, Lloyd Zant, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pitts, Bonnie Sowell, Bruce Parker, Wimp Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hughes, and Joe Don Zant.

AAM supporters nationwide will converge on Washington for the second time this year in order to make their voices heard. "We should be there when the bill is introduced, debated on, and, if we're lucky, we will be there when it is voted on," said Coates. The Big Spring group will

Also, Bill Hambrick, Bob Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Donny Reid, Roger Coates, David Barr, Jack Wolf, Butch Hodnett, and Lois Ray. Thirteen farmers from Seminole will also be going to Washington, so the West Texas cotton farmers will be well represented at the gathering, according to the Big Spring AAM office.

Reversing trend in stores

Coffee prices dipping

By the Associated Press
Most supermarket food prices keep climbing, but coffee is dropping and apparently will go even lower.

The idea of cheaper coffee may be hard to believe for shoppers who watched prices rise over two years from $1.27 to nearly $4 for a pound of America's most popular beverage. But the latest federal figures show the average retail price down 12 percent, from a record $3.93 1/2 a pound last June to $3.47 in January.

The price now is down to about $3.40, and last week Folger's Coffee Co., the second-largest U.S. processor, cut wholesale prices by 15 cents, to $3.03 a pound. This foreshadows a further retail drop since store prices usually follow wholesale prices by three or four weeks.

Most coffee analysts think the price will continue to fall. Fred Gray, a U.S. Agriculture Department economist, says the retail price might be $2.25 a pound next winter.

Six flee jail in Oklahoma

As analysts explain it, the price increases for coffee resulted from fears of a world shortage after a severe frost in Brazil in July 1975, when Americans were paying an average $1.27 a pound. Prices shot up, and then two factors set in to bring them down.

The first was consumer reaction. Last year, U.S. per capita coffee consumption dropped 27 percent — from 12.8 pounds to 9.4 pounds of beans — as many people switched to tea or soft drinks.

The second was that the predicted coffee shortage never occurred, and analysts now see prospects for a substantial recovery in world production, already up 11 percent from last year.

At first, Brazil and Colombia, the largest coffee-growing nations, tried to hold the price of green beans above $3 a pound. But then they saw the trend and let go. Beans now sell for under $2 a pound.

Last week, Central American coffee-producing nations tried to again boost prices for beans by withholding them from market. But importers said these nations do not have the storage facilities to continue this and will back down as they see Brazil and Colombia making money.

"What was a seller's market has turned into a buyer's market," a New York coffee trader explained. "And most roasters aren't buying, which indicates they think they can get a better deal."

"It's essentially a question of supply and demand," Gray said. "Americans are drinking less coffee, mainly because of the high prices. As a result, domestic roasters aren't importing as much."

Symposium lures BS students

Not to be outdone by all the other groups in schools, French students now compete in prose, poetry, speech preparation, listening comprehension and other events.

The state French symposium was held at Midland College over the weekend with Mrs. Nancy Koger taking a group of Big Spring High School students to participate.

Jan Hoover placed second in modern costume; Elaine Brown, third in folk costume and Forrest Pabst placed fourth in projects with original films.

Statewide contests include listening comprehension, vocabulary, grammar and civilization on four levels. Other contests in poetry recitation, prose reading, prepared speeches, and extemporaneous speaking, all in French.

Among the entrants from Big Spring were Gloria Hammon, Kerry Simpkins, Jeff Hunter, Marta Whitten, Paula Witte, Brenda Lewis, Janie Butler, Sam West, Pat Gonzales, Julie Munoz, Debbie Dallafeld, Richard Burrow, Regina Hamby, Susan McMurray and Chris Williams.

Rep. Fred Richmond, chairman of a subcommittee that has investigated coffee prices, believes lower consumption will force lower prices.

"There's a national trend away from coffee consumption," the New York Democrat said. "The roasters are painfully aware of that trend. And it should be obvious to coffee-producing nations that they have a stake in reducing prices. Because once people get out of the habit, it's not so easy to attract that business back."

Children Won't Share Grandma

DEAR ABBY: I have three adorable grandchildren, ages 6, 8 and 9. I love them all dearly (and equally) but they are extremely jealous of each other, and there's always a fight for my attention when I visit them. I am careful never to bring one a gift (even on birthdays) without bringing a gift for the other two. I am also very careful not to praise one too much in the presence of the others, and I never make comparisons. However, the rivalry and jealousy persist. I'm sure other grannies have the same problem. Have you any suggestions?

TORN IN THREE

DEAR TORN: Sibling rivalry has been with us since Jacob and Esau (not to mention Cain and Abel), but you can minimize the competition by spending time with each child individually—instead of trying to divide yourself into three parts, like Gaul.

DEAR ABBY: It's getting so I hate to go out with my husband. He's 32 and I'm 31, and all he wants to do is go to X-rated movies and look for girls to pick up on the way home. He says he gets real turn-on thinking about being with me and another woman. We never have actually picked up a girl, but after every movie we just drive around, wasting baby-sitter money, looking for one.

I hate to say no to him because that gets his "poor me" attitude going and then he is unbearable. He is a college-educated man working in a respected field. Does he need help or do I?

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED OFF: He definitely needs help. And if you go along with his kinky ideas, you do too.

Women Rotarians may cost chapter its charter

DUARTE, Calif. (AP) — Some 818,800 men around the world belong to Rotary Clubs. So do three women, and the tiny maverick club that broke the rules to admit them vows it will keep them, even if it loses its charter. With 23 members, the Duarte Rotary Club is not exactly a giant among Rotary International's 17,530 affiliated clubs worldwide. But the Duarte chapter, which admitted the three women last April, is contemplating legal action to try to persuade the organization's Illinois-based governing body to allow the women to stay despite an all-male membership provision in the Rotary International constitution. "We have already made a decision to keep the women," club secretary Bill Brooks said Wednesday. The governing body has threatened to revoke the local charter unless the club kicks out its female members by March 27. "I do think that there are some people who feel that someday there may be lady members. But that change would not be possible before the next legislative council meeting in 1980," said Paul Bryan of Pasadena, the international's district governor. But even in 1980, he acknowledges, sexual integration may not be possible. "Many countries outside the United States feel more strongly about keeping it all male," he noted. "The basic issue is that Rotary is a service club, organized for the purpose of bringing the business and professional community together for fellowship and service," said Brooks. "Now a significant portion of that community is women.

Rotary cannot be effective and continue to exclude women." The Duarte club, now 25 years old, is the only one which has ever admitted women, according to records at Rotary International headquarters at Evanston, Ill.

Fashions from Swartz

Longer hems featured at style show

By MARJ CARPENTER
A flowing soft look, scoop necklines, ruffles and skirt lengths between the floor and the knees are all back this spring.

This was pointed out to a room filled with close to 400 women Saturday morning at a very successful Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary Style Show at the Brass Nail.

Eight models showed a stream of fashions from Swartz and shoes from Barnes Pelletier to the large crowd at the spring show.

Pastel colors, such as celery green and mint green and shades of peach and icy blue were featured in the assortment of fashions modeled during the morning.

The models include Marilyn Newsom, Jan Iden, Ann McCann, Carol Hunter, Ann Turner, Claudie Patterson, Cheryl Lane and Madelyn Schwartz.

Jean Kuykendall served as narrator in a clever presentation which pretended to be a trip, with appropriate musical background and even a pilot's voice in the wings.

Plants for the Puerto Rican atmosphere were donated by Johansen's Nursery. Coffee and sweet rolls for the guests were donated by pharmacies including Carver's, Gibson's, Wright's, Professional, Leonard's and Leonard's Clinic.

The parade of dresses featured that loose, comfortable flowing line with a new length, a new relaxed look, and very often ruffles at the edge of the skirt.

The style show was for the benefit of the Boys Club. Mrs. Jim Cowan, general chairman of the event, presented four door prizes including three floral arrangements and a $50 gift certificate to Swartz. Special guests included Mrs. Ed Black, Mrs. Fred Hyer and Bessie Love, all members of the Boys Club board of directors.

There was a definite spring feeling in the air as the new spring line paraded by the group, with each model presenting four selections for their viewing.

WACO, Texas (AP) — The emotional issue of legalized horse race betting in Texas — the subject of three bitter past battles — goes to the starting gate again May 6 as a referendum in the Democratic and Republican primaries.

The Texas Democratic Executive Committee, presented with a petition signed by 96,000 supporters, gave its approval here Monday for the non-binding referendum on its party's ballot.

Texas Republicans have already authorized a betting referendum for their primary.

If results are favorable, supporters will present them to the 1979 Texas Legislature as ammunition in their fight for parimutuel wagering on horse races.

Racing supporters presented the executive committee's legal affairs subcommittee with the petition. By law a referendum has to be placed on the ballot if more than 74,000 thousand signatures are presented, according to Mrs. Susan Allen, subcommittee chairman.

The referendum will ask:

"Do you favor the proposition that the next session of the Texas Legislature should enact a law to permit the parimutuel wagering of horse races by local county option?"

State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest of Bryan said the executive committee's certification of the referendum cannot be considered a party endorsement because of the mandatory submission.

Tom Russell, executive secretary of the Texas Thoroughbred Breeders Association, said legalized betting on horse racing over a five-year period would provide the state with $100 million in direct tax money and an additional $100 million in indirect taxes, such as on admissions, motels, and liquor.

This time, the horse race referendum includes a local option clause not included in three past referendums.

In 1974, the Democrats' referendum on legalized betting failed by two per cent, Russell said, but he predicted the 1978 issue will pass by 10 per cent.

Russell said a recent poll showed 67 per cent of Texans interviewed favor parimutuel wagering on a local option basis.

A second non-binding referendum on whether the 1979 Legislature should authorize higher interest rates on loans under $5,000 was also certified, along with the slate of statewide and multi-county candidates for the primary ballot.

Carrin Patman, a committee member from Ganado, presented the referendum on interest rates to try to curb so-called loan shark bills. Her proposal was accepted by voice vote without dissent.

Mrs. Patman opposes increased rates. She explained that a $300 loan now carries an interest of about 32 per cent, and a $1,000 loan, 19.7 per cent.

Since 1960, out-of-state lending companies have been after the legislature to increase loan rates, and the companies plan to do so in 1979.

In 1960, voters approved a constitutional amendment removing a 10 per cent ceiling and allowing the legislature to set maximum interest rates on loans.

"If they (the lending companies) have such a good case for an increase, let the people decide on it," Mrs. Patman said. "This issue affects all voters of the state."

Tennessee duo wins

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe and Mary Louise Steuer, Memphis, Tenn., won a Central States Open Pair Championship here Monday night in an unusually scored contest at the 1978 Spring Championships of the American Contract Bridge League.

The Steuers compiled a score of 2029.19 to win over the 239 other pairs of finalists as computer compared results of play of identical hands by all 240 pairs.

The across-the-field score comparison was being used for the first time in such a large contest by the American Contract Bridge League. In most bridge competitions, score comparisons are made for sections of 56 to 68 players only, and major contests have involved comparisons of scores of 100 players.

The Monday scoring compared results of play by 480 players in the finals of a contest that began with 1,052 competitors.

Fourteen teams were peeled from the Vanderbilt Trophy Race in Monday night play and a team of women led by Gail Moss of New York City remained in the contest.

AFA chapter builds anew

A 7 p.m. cocktail hour will precede the prime rib dinner scheduled by the Perman Basin Chapter of the Air Force Association next Tuesday at the Big Spring Country Club. The meal will be served at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the program, which will be highlighted by a talk by Gen. John Roberts, commander of the Air Training Command, are being sold for $7 each. AFA officials are hopeful a banner turnout will be in attendance.

Roberts' talk will be about the West Texas Influence on National Defense. The general will explain how the chapter can contribute to national security objectives.

Roberts will be introduced by Winston Wrinkle.

Efforts are being made throughout the area to rebuild the membership rolls of the AFA which, at one time, approached 200.

Tickets can be obtained through Jack Alexander, AFA chapter treasurer. His business phone is (915) 263-6211. He can be reached at home at night by dialing (915) 267-7295.

The name of the chapter was originate Big Spring AFA but that was changed to encourage more participation from throughout the area.

Col. Harry A. Spannaus, USAF (Ret.), and chapter coordinator emphasized that the chapter is engaged in an all-out canvas to increase its membership. With the closure of Webb AFB, many members have departed the area. Spannaus relays that the AFA is not just a military organization, but a civilian association as well which is dedicated to support the nation's need for airpower to keep the peace and security of our nation.

Chapter president is General Edwin White of Midland.

SURVIVED MONTH-LONG ORDEAL — Laurence Shannon, 82, is pictured with his daughter, Mrs. George Spurr, and great granddaughter, Kimberly Bailey in Modesto, Calif. over the weekend. Shannon, his wife, Emma, and their dog Andy, center of the picture, were on a tour in their motorhome when they became snowbound. It was 31 days later that Shannon and the dog were rescued. Mrs. Shannon died after the third day.

'Even in death, my mother saved my father's life'

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — An 82-year-old man who survived nearly a month after his wife died in their snowbound motor home says he was determined to live long enough "to make sure that she was buried properly."

"I did everything I could to survive," said Laurence Shannon, whose 80-year-old wife, Emma, died three days after they became stuck on a back road in the high Sierra Nevada on Feb. 7.

The Shannons, from Grand Rapids, Mich., had been on their way from Southern California to visit their daughter here when they took a wrong turn. Their efforts to free the motor home failed.

The vehicle was spotted Friday in a remote section of Sequoia National Park by a man flying to a nearby Boy Scout camp. Shannon was soon rescued, and his wife's body was flown out by helicopter.

His daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Spurr, picked him up in Visalia Friday night and brought him to their home.

"If my mother hadn't died, he would have tried to walk out of there," Mrs. Spurr said. "Even in death, my mother saved my father's life."

Shannon explained that had he set out for help, he would have walked the wrong way — toward an empty Boy Scout camp. His daughter said he probably would have died in the snow.

After Shannon's wife of 52 years died, he wrapped her in a blanket and kept her in the motor home with him. He said he kept the gas heat off, staying warm by wearing two sets of union suits, shirts, sweaters, coats and pants.

Shannon had stocked up on rice, macaroni, spaghetti, canned goods, bread and milk but still lost 16 pounds during his ordeal.

"It was like a dream," he said. "I didn't believe it was happening."

He kept snow cleared from the top of the motor home, an effort which helped the airplane spot it on Friday.

Shannon said he would stay with his daughter long enough to make funeral arrangements for his wife.

"Then I want to go back home and sell my house," he said. "I have made no plans. I don't even want to think about it."

"Saving hot water is one of the best ways to save energy in the home."

"Whether you wash once a week or once a day, there are lots of ways you can save energy in the laundry."

It's not necessary to wash everything in hot water. Most loads will come clean in a warm wash and a cold rinse.

Sort laundry according to type of fabric, color-fastness and garment construction. When possible, wash full loads or use your water level selector for smaller loads.

Use hot water only for heavily soiled items. When drying clothes, you can increase efficiency and save energy by cleaning the lint filter after each load. Select the dryer time according to the type of fabric in the load.

For more ways to save, send for our free energy tips booklet. Or simply request it on the comment portion of your electric service bill."

Great tax debate: Drink to me only with thine ayes

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The consumption of strong spirits and the moral implications thereof have been much in the news of late, what with the presidential assault on the three-martini lunch and White House denials of a story that a key staff member disposed of a toddy down the bodice of a female taxpayer.

In the same week that all this was coming to pass a friend asked me if I would like to contribute to a home recently established for alcoholic nuns. At first I thought it was a joke, and a terribly bad one, but it turned out he was deadly serious and sincere in his fund raising. It seems that in some of the more liberated convents across the land, and for all I know abroad, too, the community life style under the new rule includes a cocktail hour. Sadly, some problem drinkers already have cropped up in the ranks of the sisterhood.

All of this probably would not have come as a shock to St. Benedict, the sixth century abbot of Monte Cassino, who founded Western monasticism and wrote a very tough rule of life for members of religious orders. St. Benedict's Rule, however, did not deter his followers in France 1,000 years later from concocting an excellent liqueur called benedictine in the cellar of one monastery and another called chartreuse at a separate monastic distillery, both containing more than 50 per cent alcohol.

So perhaps even at the end of the Dark Ages, there was an Abbot James preaching the evils and inequities of the three-benedictine collation in the refectory while his Brother William went about peddling the stuff wholesale.

And back then, as now, people of a reform turn of mind were going around saying that there was entirely too much drinking going on in the world. They were saying it long before the Anti-Saloon League went around banging on the doors of America's quaffitoriums with fire axes.

In Samuel Johnson's day, London had no swinging singles bars for off-duty members of the establishment to douse drinks down the decolletages of the citizenry. But, by actual count of the Lord Mayor's census in 1778, the city did have 447 taverns, 207 inns, 5,875 beer halls and 8,659 brandy shops.

Even so, Dr. Johnson thought there was less drinking going on than when he was a boy and "all decent people in Litchfield got drunk every night and were not the worse thereof."

Besides, George III was busy losing the American colonies about then and people on that side of the ocean probably thought they had reason enough to drink. The price was right, anyway. A pub on Bow Street had a sign "here you may get drunk for a penny, dead drunk for two pence, and get a straw for nothing."

So who worried about deducting it from their income tax? Certainly not Horace Walpole, a keen chronicler of those times, who reported on one business lunch in which he and his tablemates "drank 32 bottles of wine and finished the entertainment by pelting the mob in Pall Mall with bottles and glasses."

It will be recalled that the Charles Townshend who introduced the Stamp Act that led to the Boston Tea Party had the nickname of "Champagne Charlie" because of his drinking habits in government circles, so gossip about administration figures was part of the American experience even before the Revolution.

However, Georgian drinking habits in the great houses of the day rarely inspired the Upstairs-Downstairs class jealousies of the later Victorian Age or even the scandal-mongering so in vogue in Washington today, because, as another chronicler explained, "it was then considered common etiquette for the visiting servants to be made as drunk as their masters." Strong waters have always had their strong defenders throughout history, particularly among the poets who often have been very hard on ordinary water.

"No poems can please or live long which are written by water-drinkers," wrote the poet Horace in 65 B.C., anticipating W. C. Fields by a few millennia.

H. L. Mencken, a three-martini man, put it even stronger: "All the great villainies of history from the murder of Abel onward have been perpetrated by sober men, and chiefly teetotalers. But all the charming and beautiful things from the Song of Songs to bouillabaisse, and from the nine Beethoven symphonies to the martini cocktail, have been given to humanity by men who, when the hour came, turned from tap water to something with color in it, and more in it than mere oxygen and hydrogen."

Or as a tax lawyer told me in the station bar the other night, trying to be impartial about it all, "I don't care what they say about this fellow Carter, I still like him, even if his brother is president."

Double murder

SUGAR LAND, Tex. (AP) — A Louisiana man and woman have been charged with capital murder in the Jan. 3 deaths of her father and stepmother.

Police Chief J. E. Fendley identified those charged as Mary Lou Anderson, 34, Lake Charles, and Farrel J. Granger, 29, Lafayette.

Fendley said Miss Anderson is being held in a jail outside Sugar Land "for her own safety" and that Granger was being held in Lafayette pending an extradition hearing.

The bodies of Steve Anderson, 58, and his wife, Marjorie, 54, were found Jan. 3 in their Sugar Land home. Investigators said Anderson had been shot three times in the head, Mrs. Anderson five times in the head. Their eyes and mouths had been taped.

At that time Fendley termed the slayings as executions because Mrs. Anderson's purse contained $69 and there was no sign of a struggle.

Fendley said a .25 automatic was recovered in Lafayette.

Mrs. M.C. Lindsey is a Lamesa legend. Back when I wrote the Friday column, "They Call it Lamesa," Mrs. Lindsey, who is near 90, was the one to talk to because she knew how Lamesa got its name.

She recalled at that time that her husband, the late Judge M.C. Lindsey and five others were there the day they all put names in the hat and drew them out to see what to name the town. She said that a "Mr. Wasson from Big Spring was the one who put in the name La Mesa and when that name was drawn out, the rest of the group ask him to anglicize the name a bit.

This past Sunday, Beth Patterson over at the Lamesa Press-Reporter brought forth some more interesting tales on Mrs. Lindsey — and a lot of them would be of special interest

with Marj Carpenter

to Big Spring. She said that Mrs. Lindsey, whose maiden name was Tommie Smith, arrived by train in Big Spring in 1908 and awaited the departure of the mail back to Lamesa.

Miss Smith was going to teach at Lou, one of the many rural schools in the area. It was a cold February day with sand blowing that she thought was awful — but she learned later that it was actually blowing only lightly in comparison to some of the storms she was to see later.

The Big Spring station master's wife advised her to crouch on the back's floor and cover herself with blankets, but she did not heed that advice. She wanted to see where she was headed.

She had to travel from Lou to Lamesa once a month to have her paycheck voucher signed by the school superintendent for the county — who was Judge M.C. Lindsey. He signed checks from February to October when they were married and they built a home in Lamesa with lumber shipped by rail to Big Spring. It was then carted by wagon to Lamesa.

The home is still standing in Lamesa and is marked with a historical medallion.

I recall Mrs. Lindsey telling me of her book, "The Trail of Years in Dawson County". One of the things she pointed out in her history was that when the U.S. Government in 1874 authorized the wholesale slaughter of the large herds of Buffalo in the area, the Indians soon left.

In retrospect, that's kind of a sad part of this area's history, but to those living at the time, it was a way to make a living for the Buffalo hunters and it wasn't a particularly easy one.

Mrs. Lindsey points out that the 1900 census showed only 36 persons in Dawson County — and they were all cowpunchers. There wasn't a woman in the county. So young Miss Tommie Smith was really an early female in Dawson County in 1908.

Shortly after 1900, four sections of land were put up for sale. It included acreage which had been school lands and had been leased to ranchers. But a decision to put them on the market at $1 or $2 an acre with 40 years to pay at three per cent interest brought a land rush to Dawson County.

Judge Lindsey's father and a Frank Conner selected 160 acres and platted streets. The first people that looked at the settlers that it was "Bare — ugly — sun-baked and knee deep in sand."

But in July 1903, the group voted out the rollicking saloon town of Chicago and moved the post office into Lamesa. It was officially incorporated in 1917.

Mrs. Lindsey has a lot of great memories including the fact that the first electric power company served 75 subscribers until 10 p.m. At that point, you either lit a kerosene lantern or went to bed. I just couldn't resist writing a little bit more about that vicarious little lady called Tommie Lindsey — a real pioneer. Hats off to you Tommie — out in an area where it's now cotton fence to fence.

Rich get fatter, poor hungrier

ROME (AP) — The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization reported in a global survey Monday that the rich are getting fatter and the poor hungrier. It found both trends troublesome.

The 130-page World Food Survey, based on reports from 161 countries, also estimated the world's undernourished at about 450 million, or a quarter of the underdeveloped world, and likely to increase.

"This review is disquieting," FAO said. "Firm evidence of any significant progress being made since (1974) in reducing the numbers affected by inadequate supplies of food is not yet available."

Hertz, Ward's in agreement

The Hertz Corporation and Montgomery Ward have entered into an agreement which will permit Hertz Car Leasing's customers to have repair and maintenance service performed at Montgomery Ward's automotive centers.

The agreement will give Hertz maintenance lease customers an additional 700 locations at which to have their vehicles serviced. The Ward automotive centers are also open on Saturdays which provides the lessee — who generally uses the car for business — with flexibility in having the vehicle attended to.

The addition of the Ward locations brings to over 10,500 the number of service centers where Hertz leased cars may receive service. The lessor also has agreements with independent service stations, tire manufacturers and retail automotive stores. Hertz lessees will identify themselves at Ward stores via a national account credit card issued by the car leasing company or by a purchase order, depending on the type of work to be done.

In the rich and industrialized countries the FAO found "excessive food intake or improper diets" leading to "the steadily rising prevalence of diseases" as daily calorie intake per person soared to 3,380. In the 32 poorest countries, calorie consumption is on the decline with the figure now around 2,000, according to the study.

As a result, the percentage of the malnourished in the developing countries of Africa rose from 25 percent of the population in 1970 to 28 per cent four years later. A similar increase was noted in Asia.

The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington estimates that the average U.S. male between the ages of 23 and 50 should consume 2,700 calories a day. American females of that age bracket should take in 2,000, according to the board's 1974 figures, the most recent. For U.S. residents older than 50, the figures are 2,400 calories daily for men and 1,800 for women.

American children between four and six years old should have 1,800 calories a day and those between seven and 10, 2,400 daily, the board said.

The FAO study found that in the poorest countries close to one-half of all children can be classified as underfed. It said about 22 million babies a year, one-sixth of all births, weigh less than 5.5 pounds at birth, 95 percent of them in developing areas.

Because of malnourishment, the study said, about 40 percent of adult females in the developing countries are anemic, up to 100,000 children go blind each year and 200 million suffer from goiter. In Latin America, more than half of all deaths during the second year of life are attributed to nutritional deficiency.

While the industrialized nations record a steady increase in food production — 1.4 percent a year — production growth in the developing countries declined from 0.7 percent in 1970 to 0.3 per cent in 1974. In the "most seriously affected countries" there actually is a drop in food production, averaging 0.4 percent a year. FAO analysts called this decline "a new and most serious phenomenon."

Deadline nears for auto tags

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If you don't have your 1978 motor vehicle registration stickers, you'll probably be standing in a long line shortly.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation said Friday that as of March 1, about 8.5 million vehicles remained unregistered in the state. The deadline is April 1.

NFL to open up offense in 1978

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Defense may be the way you win games — but it's also a pretty good way to lose fans. So the National Football League plans to open up the offense a bit more in 1978.

The league's 28 owners were expected to vote today on a package of proposals to give quarterbacks more protection by slowing down the defensive charge and to give him better targets by limiting defensive tactics against his receivers.

To get these and other rule changes in the books, 21 owners have to approve. Commissioner Pete Rozelle repeatedly stressed to newsmen Monday that the changes were only proposals — but it seemed unlikely they would be rejected.

Here, basically, are the proposed changes: —Offensive linemen may lock or flex their elbows and open or clench their hands when fending off players. Previously, the locked elbow and open hand were prohibited.

All-American Larry Bird leads Indiana State against Rutgers tonight in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament, and both coaches are looking forward to it.

"We feel that Larry is the most complete player in the country," says Indiana State Coach Bob King. "He's not just a scorer. He does it all." "It should be a super game," says Rutgers Coach Tom Young. "Bird's appearance at the Athletic Center will surely create added excitement."

The 6-foot-9 Bird leads Indiana State, 23-8, with averages of 30 points and 11 rebounds per game. He's shooting 53 percent from the field, 80 percent from the free throw line. He also leads the team in assists with 122 and is second in steals with 28.

Rutgers, 22-6, has a 6-9 star of its own in James Bailey, who, like Bird, has one year of college eligibility left.

Bailey tops the Scarlet Knights with averages of 24 points and 9 rebounds per game and totals of 110 dunks, 64 blocked shots and 50 steals for the season.

The two will probably not go head-to-head very often, however, as Bird plays forward while Bailey is Rutgers' center.

Indiana State, which uses a one-guard offense, will have a size advantage with Bird, 6-11 DeCarsta Webster, 6-7 Harry Morgan and 6-8 Brad Miley. Rutgers has Bailey in the middle with 6-6 Hollis Copeland and 6-7 Abdel Anderson at the forwards.

BRAND NEW SPRING, BRAND NEW TUNES.—Yankees catcher Thurman Munson, right, is congratulated by teammate Reggie Jackson in 1977 after hitting a two-run homer against the Kansas City Royals. Last year, it would not have been a good idea to invite the two to a cocktail party together. But this is a brand new spring, and Munson and Jackson seem tuned to the same wavelength — at least to the extent of mutual respect for each other's abilities on the baseball diamond.

William Blake, it's not, but certainly more applicable for Monday's game with Snyder than "Tiger, tiger burning bright." The Big Spring Steers and Snyder Tigers locked horns and stripes for three innings Monday with little more than sandblasted faces to show for their efforts. And then, with cotton fields from as far away as

Lubbock swirling about their bats, "Collins' Mixers", in a now-characteristic trait, ignited their mid-game afterburners, and exploded for seven runs in the 4th frame and a gravy six in the 5th. When the smoke had cleared (but not the dust), the locals had taken a 13-4 victory, their sixth of the season against only two setbacks. Snyder had ridden the winds to town flaunting a respectable 5-1 record which included two wins over Odessa High, and decisions over Midland, Ector and Seminole. Using a shuffled lineup and a rookie pitcher, the locals produced 11 hits and a highly-energized defense, breaking out of slumps in both departments.

Junior Ricky Myers hurled consistently from the mound, and in his first start ever from there, (he ordinarily plays third base), Myers gave up six hits, two runs, three walks and struck out two batters in five innings of action.

Senior Charlie Vernon was the local lumberjack for the day. In four times at bat, he produced three hits (one a three-run homer), scored one run and had five RBI's. Shortstop Kevin McLaughlin also had one of his better days from the box. He popped a single and triple, scored two runs and had a pair of RBI's. First baseman Johnny Mize also went two for two from the plate with two runs scored.

Larry Smith, Tony Mann, Ricky Myers and Mike Evans tagged one-baggers for the locals.

The Steers' blitz began with two outs in the fourth inning, and was aided by three hits, five walks, a hit batter and a gust of dust-filled wind which caused the Snyder rightfielder to miff an easy pop-up.

The fifth frame produced five hits and six runs for the home team, including Vernon's homer and McLaughlin's triple. Collins' crew appeared to be on its way to even more before David Manley hit into a double play which suddenly ended the inning. The Steers are in Lamesa today for a 4 o'clock rematch of both teams' season opener, a contest which the locals easily won 10-4. Action resumes at Steer Park Friday when Lubbock Coronado arrives for a 4 p.m. encounter.

The Steers round out a busy week Saturday when they host Lubbock Monterey for a double-header beginning at 1 p.m.

"THINK THE WIND'LL BLOW GUYS?" — Steer Head Baseball Coach Tommy Collins might be saying to his battery Monday afternoon during fifth inning action against Snyder in Steer Park. At the time his charges led 7-2. Junior Ricky Myers (12), in his initial start from the mound, garnered his first career victory, as he went the first five innings for the Steers. The Bold Gold, involved in a Lamesa rematch today, beat Snyder 13-4 Monday. Catcher Tony Mann is the other local pictured.

Local girl tracksters finish 2nd, 3rd place

The BSHS varsity girls' track team took 2nd place honors in the Lubbock Invitational Girls' Track Meet held Saturday.

The local fems finished with 77 points, behind Amarillo Palo Duro's 161 1/2 first place total.

"Although we're short in numbers, we're very long on heart," said coach Jeannie Hester of her charges' performance. "There was a super effort on the part of every girl."

Kathy Birdwell set a new school record with her 38'7 3/4" put of the shot for a 2nd place finish in the meet. Also breaking BSHS school records were Pam Banks third place clearance of 4'11" in the high jump and Donna Diliberto's second place mile run of 5:51.3.

Other varsity finishers included Connie Jackson, 2nd place (15'5 3/4") in the long jump; Selesia Harris, 3rd place (15'5 3/4") in the long jump; the 440 relay team of Harris, Jackson, Doris Mitchell and Tammy Woodard, 2nd place (50.1); the 880 relay (same people), 2nd place, 1:49.1.

Also, in the 100-yd dash, Connie Jackson finished 4th at 11.7 and Mitchell took 5th with an 11.8 time. Jackson and Harris also tied for 5th in the triple jump.

The BSHS junior varsity captured third place in their division with 59 points.

Finishers there included Cay Luedecke, 6th in discus, 64'7 1/2"; Toni Pettit, Debra Ausbie, Zelma Collins and Jana Wegner, 440 relay, 2nd, 57.4; Tammy Cole, 4th in 880 run, 3:01.2 and Ausbie first in 220 yard dash with 29.4 time and Zelma Collins 5th with a 31.4.

Jana Wegner took 4th in the hurdles with a 14.6 time; Pettit, Ausbie, Collins and Wegner took 3rd in the 880 relay with a 2:04.9; and in the mile run, Cathy Weeks was 2nd, (6:52.1) and Cherie Martin was 5th with a 7:37.

Wildcats finish 1st

By the Associated Press
Kentucky and UCLA, who had to come from behind in the second half to win their first-round games in the NCAA playoffs, wind up one-two in the final weekly Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Wildcats, who rallied to beat Florida State 85-76 on Saturday, received 29 of 43 first-place votes and a total of 828 points in the poll announced Monday to retain the top spot which they have held for most of this season.

UCLA got 11 first-place votes and 790 points after struggling to get past Kansas 83-76. The Bruins, also 26-2, have drawn Arkansas as their second-round opponent on Thursday.

Marquette, the defending NCAA champion, was upset by Miami 84-81 in overtime in the opening round and plunged from third to eighth.

Another team with a 26-2 mark, DePaul, moved up one spot to third place in this

NCAA restructuring is failing miserably

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A plan to segregate big-time college football schools from the game's lesser lights is failing, the Associated Press has learned, with potentially ludicrous results.

Today marks the end of the 60-day period of the NCAA's football-playing schools had for declaring a three-year commitment in divisions I-A or I-AA, which were created at the NCAA's convention in January.

A check by the AP discovered the five conferences and perhaps all 17 independents being urged to comprise the bulk of I-AA, the "minor league," are adamant in their decision to opt for big-time I-A.

Designers of the restructuring plan hoped for roughly 80 members in I-A and 80 in I-AA. But now it appears I-AA will contain as few as 28 or 30 members — comprised mostly of the Big Sky, Yankee, Ohio Valley and Southwestern athletic conferences. And a bulky I-A will contain as many as 130.

A spokesman said the NCAA would have no anouncement of the divisional breakdown for several days. And after the results are announced the schools will have another 30 days to change their minds.

But confusing Roman numerals aside, if they stick by their decisions several things are likely to happen:

—A relatively handful of small football programs will begin reaping windfall television profits while another, larger group faces dwindling finances and uncertain futures.

—The 60-member College

Football Association can be expected to discard its low profile. The CFA, chief spearcarrier for the big-time powers, may become more aggressive, launching renewed efforts to gain a measure of autonomy within the NCAA membership for the Notre Dames, Oklahoma, Penn States, etc.

The four-year, $118 million contract the NCAA signed with ABC-TV last spring lies at the heart of the issue.

Busy Busby shows post-op strength

By the Associated Press
If they gave an award for Comeback Player of the Spring, Steve Busby of the Kansas City Royals would have to be considered an early favorite.

The 28-year-old right-hander, coming off rotator cuff shoulder surgery in 1976 and a knee operation last year, pitched two strong innings Monday as the Kansas City Royals edged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 in an 11-inning exhibition baseball game.

That was one inning less than all last season, when Busby made one lone appearance for Daytona Beach in the Florida State League and was tagged for 11 hits in three innings. Quite a comedown for the only pitcher in baseball history to throw a no-hitter in each of his first two seasons.

Now, Busby is trying to go from comedown to comeback, although it didn't seem that way when Cincinnati's Pete Rose rapped his first pitch for a single.

"I said to myself, 'Welcome back,'" Busby said with a smile.

But he went on to retire the next six batters, notching one strikeout.

"I felt pretty good, but I'm not back where I want to be," Busby said. "However, I do see an improvement each time I pitch. This is step 'A' and step 'B' is more consistency. I didn't know what to look for when I went out there. I was just trying to find the plate."

After the New York Yankees' Dick Tidrow and Rich Gossage hurled eight hitless innings against Texas, the Rangers scored 3 runs in the ninth against Ken Clay on two infield hits, an error, two walks and a passed ball and defeated the Yanks 3-0.

Lee May and Carlos Lopez homered while Jim Palmer pitched three scoreless innings, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 9-3 victory over Atlanta.

The Los Angeles Dodgers bowed to Minnesota 7-5 as Twins rookie Dan Graham homered and Dan Ford stole home.

Philadelphia's Bake McBride cracked his third spring homer as the Phillies blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0.

Home runs by Steve Dillard, Jason Thompson and Tim Corcoran powered the Detroit Tigers to a 9-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox and Joe Ferguson's 2-run homer in the seventh — Houston's second and last hit — lifted the Astros over the Montreal Expos 2-1.

Stephen F. looking again

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Stephen F. Austin State is again searching for a new basketball coach after Henderson STATE Coach Don Dyer decided not to accept the job, say school officials.

Dyer had agreed verbally last week to replace retiring Marshall Brown, who had coached the Lumberjacks for 19 years.

But Dyer and school officials said Monday that both parties had agreed to dissolve the arrangement after Dyer and his family visited the school last Thursday and Friday.

"Verbally, I had accepted the job, prior to me and my wife and son visiting the campus," Dyer said Monday in Arkadelphia, Ark. "I asked them to hold up on a news release. But that release was sent out to several places before I had signed any contract."

"I think it would be a good opportunity, but a few things have come up in the past week and a half," added Dyer, who did not elaborate further on his reasons for declining the job.

Stephen F. Austin President Dr. William Johnson said other candidates will be interviewed for the job. Brown coached the Lumberjacks to a 9-17 record this season.

62 Greyhounds die in fire

LUTZ, Fla. (AP) — Sixty-two greyhound racing dogs valued at an estimated $200,000 have perished in an electrical fire at a kennel north of Tampa, police said.

Officials said 28 dogs were pulled to safety during the Monday blaze, which investigators said was traced to an electrical short in the wiring of a plug.

Many of the dogs that burned at Hoffer's kennel were retired, police said. Several had been prized champions.

The kennel had been converted from a house recently, and the loss was not insured, according to kennel owner Mary Hoffer.

Crouthamel given desk

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — John "Jake" Crouthamel, who gave up coaching after taking Dartmouth to three Ivy League titles in seven football seasons, has been named athletic director at Syracuse University.

Crouthamel was scheduled to assume administrative responsibilities for Syracuse University's 11-sport program here effective April 3, Syracuse University officials said Monday.

Crouthamel played football for Dartmouth and later for the Boston Patriots and Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. He succeeds Lester Dye, who served as dean of admissions here before becoming athletic director. Dye has been athletic director since 1973 but is retiring to live in Virginia.

Crouthamel, 39, resigned as Dartmouth football coach at the end of last season. He had compiled a 41-20-2 record.

(AP WIREPHOTO) THE ASSOCIATED PRESS COLLEGE BASKETBALL PLAYER OF THE YEAR — Butch Lee of Marquette holds the Adolph E. Rupp Trophy Monday after being presented with that trophy as The Associated Press college basketball player of the year. Lee was a landslide winner in the voting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

'In a class by himself'

NEW YORK (AP) — He reads books like "The Power of Concentration" and authors like Ralph Waldo Emerson, thinks about life in metaphysical terms and uses phrases like "positive thinking" and "mind power is the only power."

If you think that Butch Lee is not your ordinary "jock" basketball player, you're right.

"I'd say he's in a class by himself," says Marquette Coach Hank Raymond.

Along with this intensified intellectual drive, Lee also can hit the open man, blitz the baseline and shoot the middle out of the basket.

That has put him in a different athletic class as well. On Monday, his stock shot even higher with the announcement of his selection as The Associated Press college basketball Player of the Year.

"You couldn't have chosen a better person for this award," said Raymond after his straight-shooting guard collected the Adolph Rupp Trophy in special ceremonies at a midtown New York hotel. The award is presented annually by The AP and the Commonwealth Athletic Club of Kentucky.

"The AP chose a man for what Coach Rupp stood for: a winner," added Raymond. "Lee is a fine human being whom Adolph Rupp would be proud of."

Lee's parents would have had to be as proud, too. Alfred and Gloria Lee beamed as their son lifted the hefty bronze trophy with his name engraved on a gold plate.

"I guess dreams do come true," said Lee, who has been dreaming about this big prize ever since he won a "little wooden trophy" as a New York schoolboy.

Captivated by the New York Knicks and enthralled by Earl Monroe ("I always wanted to create the excitement he does"), Lee vowed to leap out of the ghetto through athletics.

"I set a very high standard for myself," Lee said. "I wanted to be the Player of the Year in the country."

Although shy when he first arrived on the Marquette campus in Milwaukee, he eventually came out of his shell for good as an upperclassman.

He looked inside himself and found unique possibilities.

"The mind," he says, "is the source of everything. People don't know what they're capable of. I believe we have tremendous power flowing from our minds. You can do anything you want if you THINK you can."

Lee's scoring average was down a couple of points from last year, at 17.3, but his overall game picked up. He wound up as Marquette's second leading scorer in history.

The nationwide balloting gave Lee a 2-to-1 margin over his nearest competitor, North Carolina's Phil Ford. Lee received 121 votes to 62 for Ford.

Larry Bird of Indiana State was third in the voting with 44 and Minnesota center Mychal Thompson was fourth with 33 ballots.

Whitmer gets Duer Award

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas A&I junior lineman Wade Whitmer, a two-time academic All-American, was named Monday as the 1978 recipient of the NIAA's 12th annual A.O. Duer Scholarship Award.

The award, a $300 scholarship and a trophy, is given annually to a varsity junior athlete who has excelled in scholarship. It will be presented Thursday.

Whitmer, the first honoree from a Texas college, has a 3.819 grade point average as a pre-med student at Texas A&I. A three-year letterman, he was a starter in the defensive line two years ago and started at offensive guard last year.

Whitmer, an honor graduate at Houston North Shore, was a unanimous choice for the Lone Star Conference all-academic team last year.

The award is named in honor of A.O. Duer, the NIAA's executive secretary from 1949-75.

'Spinks exploited' — Norton

ATLANTA (AP) — Ken Norton, who apparently has been shunted into the background in the heavyweight boxing picture, says new champion Leon Spinks is confused and being used by the people around him.

"I think he (Spinks) is being used, exploited. He's around devious people," Norton said in an interview Monday night with WXIA television sportscaster Steve Sommers.

"He's going to end up with no money," said Norton.

"Leon is a nice individual. I've met his mother and she's a God-fearing woman. I hope he has somebody watching his money. If not, he's in trouble."

Norton, a top contender since defeating Muhammad Ali in 1973 in a non-title fight, said he was promised a title fight with the winner of the Ali-Spinks fight but now it appears that the two will have a rematch.

"He (Spinks) signed a legal statement, saying he would fight me if he won," Norton said. "Ali said he would fight the winner of the Norton-(Duane) Bobick fight," which Norton won. "It didn't happen."

"He (Ali) said he would fight the winner of the Young-Norton fight (which Norton won). It didn't happen. He then said after this fight, he would fight me but he lost."

Brooks may inherit mantle

HOUSTON (AP) - One more victory and Democratic Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont will become the death of the Texas congressional delegation.

There appears little doubt at this time, but that Brooks, in Congress since 1952, will sent back for another two-year term.

He faces heavy primary opposition from Alan Verret of Beaumont, and then will face off with Ed Falk of Forest Cove or Randy Evans of LaMarque, the Republican candidate.

With his long stay in Congress and his chairmanship of the House Government Operations Committee, Brooks seems untouchable at the polls.

He never overwhelms a challenger, be it in the Democratic primary or the general election, but always gets enough votes from the residents along the eastern segment of Texas' Gulf Coast to go back to Washington year after year.

The district includes a sliver of populous Harris County (Houston) and then reaches out to embrace the resort island of Galveston and east to the petrochemical and shipping lanes of Beaumont and Port Arthur.

Political experts in the district said Democratic candidate Verret, 32, an oil refinery employee, and the two Republican hopefuls, Evans, 50, a senior clerk with an oil firm, and Falk, an economist and writer, have neither the money nor the organization to run a successful campaign.

The two Republicans and Verret are singing the same campaign song - Brooks has become too rich and too powerful and is failing to represent the district.

Verret came in at the last minute as a Democratic opponent and Falk, a native of New York, also was a late entry in the campaign.

Brooks gained considerable publicity as a member of the House Judiciary Committee during the hearings on the impeachment of former President Richard Nixon.

He also is chairman of the Committee on Governmental Operations, a body of vast jurisdiction, including President Carter's proposed resort island of Galveston and east to the petrochemical and shipping lanes of Beaumont and Port Arthur.

Water customers may douse city dads with complaints

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (A) - City officials Monday began their tedious task of checking through records to locate persons who paid their water bills by check more than $31,000 from an unprotected storage room.

A city hall spokesman said about $31,827, including about $28,000 in checks was discovered missing late Friday. The money was in locked money bags kept in an unlocked area of a storage room at city hall.

A city spokesman said persons who paid their city water bills by check will be asked to stop payment on the checks to prevent the thief or thieves from cashing the checks. The city will pay the fees banks charge for stopping payment on a check, the spokesman said.

A police spokesman said the theft is under investigation.

A city spokesman said more strict security precautions will be used in the future.
