

Italy's most influential politician feared shot

Five guards killed during kidnapping

ROME (AP) — Aldo Moro, considered Italy's most influential politician and probable next president, was kidnapped today off a Rome street by gunmen who killed all five members of his protective escort. Police said they feared the 61-year-old former premier was shot in the attack.

Telephone calls to the Italian news media said the abductors of the Christian Democrat leader were members of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared urban guerrilla group. Witnesses said some of the gunmen wore uniforms of the Italian air force band.

The government threw an estimated 50,000 police and army troops into the manhunt, and some time later police said they found the kidnap car, with bloodstains on a back door and the back seat.

They said they found a bullet inside with fragments of Moro's suit, indicating he may have been wounded.

The kidnapers had abandoned the car and transferred to another, and police said this second auto may have been spotted by a low-flying helicopter on Rome's outskirts. The crew reported seeing a car speeding down a country road with five persons inside, one of them held down on the floor.

Police converged on the area. Roadblocks were particularly tight between the city and Leonardo da Vinci Airport at Fiumicino, west of Rome.

Fifteen leaders of the Red Brigades, a group police say numbers no more than several hundred, are on trial in Turin, and the organization has vowed to force cancellation of the trial by terrorist attacks.

The Italian news agency ANSA said it received a later call from another extremist group, the Armed Proletarian Groups, claiming responsibility and threatening Moro's life. But police discounted this call.

President Giovanni Leone called the abduction "a challenge to the state" and said "the state must give the firmest reply with every measure. We must adopt every necessary measure to counter this situation."

The attack shocked political leaders throughout Western Europe.

The kidnapped man has been premier of Italy five times and is now president of the Christian Democrats, Italy's largest party and its dominant political force since World War II.

He was considered a leading candidate for the presidency of Italy when the post becomes vacant next December, and he is generally credited with masterminding the compromise by which Italian Communists will have a greater say in government policy-making in exchange for their support of Premier Giulio Andreotti.

The kidnapping occurred as Moro was being driven to the Parliament building for a speech by Andreotti unveiling the program of his new Christian Democratic government.

Witnesses said about four men in a car bearing diplomatic plates blocked Moro's car in the Trionfale section of Rome, near the Hilton Hotel, then opened fire with submachine guns and killed Moro's police driver and a bodyguard riding with him. All the windows in the car were shattered.

Then the gunmen turned their fire on a police escort car, killing two officers and seriously wounding the third. The wounded man died a few hours later.

As police scoured the kidnap scene later for clues, they found a time bomb rigged to a nearby parked car. The device apparently had been placed there to kill investigators crowding around the site, police said.

Andreotti met with Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer, whose party is supporting his government, and other leading politicians in an emergency session at the Parliament building.

Telephone calls to ANSA and local newspapers, purporting to come from the Red Brigades, said: "We have carried an attack to the heart of the state. Moro is just the start."

Warplanes attacking

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes swooped into southern Lebanon today aiming to knock out Palestinian artillery firing on Lebanese Christian villages in Israel's new six-mile-wide security strip along the border.

The Lebanese government, meanwhile, announced it would call for an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council.

Lebanese Prime Minister Selim el Hoss told reporters after a parliamentary session in Beirut that the government is preparing to call on the council to "take the necessary measures that would guarantee a cessation of the aggression and ensure withdrawal of Israeli forces."

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat condemned the Israeli attack and said he was watching closely "to make our plan."

Sadat told visiting African parliamentary leaders he would convene his national security council, which meets only in the time of crisis, to decide the next step. But he said he would continue the search for a peaceful solution.

"We thought we had reached a point when we were about to solve the whole problem peacefully and (then) Israel resorts to the use of force again," he said in his first public comment on the attack.

The jet fighters roared across Israel's northern border as the guerrilla shells crashed around roads leading to Marjayoun and Kleia, Lebanese communities held by Israel just beyond the frontier.

The Palestinians said the warplanes were striking hilltop positions from which the guerrillas were harassing the Israeli invaders, and that one plane was shot down and fell on the Israeli side of the border.

The Palestine Liberation Organization released its first official casualty count today from the first day of hostilities, reporting 79 of its fighters were killed or wounded. Israeli officials say about 100 guerrillas were killed and hundreds more wounded.

The PLO claimed the Israelis lost 350 killed or wounded, but the Israeli military command said only 11 of its soldiers were killed and 57 wounded.

Action/reaction: Why not us?

Q. If Stanton rates a postmark, why does Big Spring mail get postmarked in Midland?

A. According to Big Spring Postmaster Frank Hardesty, local mail is still regularly postmarked "Big Spring," but normally out-of-town mail goes to the Midland section office where the equipment is more sophisticated, and postmarking is less time-consuming. "If a customer wants the Big Spring postmark on out of town mail, there is a special slot in the Post Office where they need to mail such letters," said Hardesty. "We haven't lost our identification, and if a customer will put the mail in that slot, we will postmark it Big Spring."

Offbeat: Uniforms made for walking

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Georgia prison officials may have outsmarted themselves a few years ago when they decided inmates should wear blue jeans and cotton work shirts.

Now many prison visitors are wearing the same thing and its causing a problem. Corrections Commissioner David Evans says too many inmates are mingling with visitors and walking out of the state prisons.
Inmates who escape "don't even have to go to the trouble of finding other clothes," said another corrections official. "They fit right in."

Evans told the Board of Offender Rehabilitation at a meeting Wednesday that inmates will have to switch back to more distinctive garb. He suggested white uniforms with a blue stripe down each pant leg.

Ex-convict cuts trail in crime prevention

HOUSTON (AP) — Ray Johnson, an ex-con who now advises the nation's largest convenience store operators how to cut down on holdups, thinks better crime prevention rather than stepped-up law enforcement may be the answer.

"Law enforcement alone will not deter crime, and statistics show precautions taken by the private sector to reduce robberies can be very effective," said Johnson, who has spent 25 years behind bars for armed robbery and burglary.

The Southland Corp. of Dallas, which runs 6,400 7-Eleven stores in the U.S. and Canada, has begun a program to reduce robberies developed through a study of selected stores in five southern California counties.

Johnson, who lives in San Diego, and several other ex-convicts furnished the robbers' point of view to the Western Behavioral Sciences Institute of La Jolla, Calif., which conducted the study.

"Overall robberies dropped 30 percent and violence during holdups that did take place fell by 50 percent during the study period," Johnson said. Among factors the study found that could be altered to reduce robberies were parking lot lighting, visibility through store windows, amount of cash accessible and attentiveness of clerks.

Still in its infancy, the program will team Johnson with some former police officers who now serve as security managers for Southland's district operations.

Fleener is convicted of extortion in Vegas

A guilty verdict was returned Wednesday afternoon against Richard Fleener, ex-Howard County Tax Appraiser, in a Las Vegas Federal Court. Fleener was convicted of extortion, after his indictment on the charge by a December, 1977 Clark County grand jury.

The verdict came after brief deliberation, and convicted Fleener of an offense which could carry penalties up to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

According to Geoffrey Anderson, attorney in charge of the U.S. Department of Justice's Strike Force in Las Vegas, Fleener was convicted under the Hobbs Act of extorting money from merchants in Clark County and using his position as deputy county tax assessor to lighten their assessments and smooth their way with other regulatory agencies, including the IRS.

Chief witness against Fleener was a Las Vegas rug merchant who owns, among other businesses, a rug store in the MGM Grand casino. The merchant testified to details of payment.

Fleener had been employed by Clark County for 22 months, or approximately since he was dismissed from his Howard County post in October, 1975.

Big Spring's sales tax rebates rise

Big Spring's sales tax rebates continued to rise in February.

The city received a check for $156,979.79, more than $1,366 over the rebate received for February of 1977. According to Tom Ferguson, director of finance for the city, total rebates for the first five months of this fiscal year come to $387,733.82.

The five-month total for 1977 came to $354,089.38, $33,644.44 less than this year's total.

"We had always expected a drop after Webb (AFB) closed. But the economic situation just keeps increasing. I can't explain it," said Ferguson.

People were pouring into the facility this morning to meet a Dallas

Cowboy, Bob Breunig; two Dallas Cowgirl cheerleaders, Pam Davis and Debbie Wegner, and to sign up for prizes, including a $1,000 savings account.

Added to this were refreshments of cookies, punch and coffee, balloons for the children, beautiful floral arrangements and pot plants all over the building and a staff decked out in matching uniforms complemented with corsages or boutonniere.

The new furnishings, in teakwood and selected fabrics by Boris Kroll, were in complementing colors in both the lobby and the new kitchen and clubroom.

First Federal, established back in 1935, now has a branch office in Snyder and 23 employees in the two locations.

Officers include Charles Beil, president; W.A. Moore, Jr., senior vice president; Dave Morrison, vice president and controller; Lu Norris, assistant vice president and Margie Hill, assistant secretary.

Its total assets in the Dec. 31 statement were listed at $64,583,596.

The staff includes Mariene Bohannon, Karen Croft, Fran Farmer, Oakey Hagood, Lela Hardy, Elsie Harvell, Brenda Hedges, Frances Hendrick, Carla Henry, Susan Lawlis, JoAnn Loudamy, Christie Ray, Cindy Rodriguez, Barbara Terpening, Pat Weaver, and Kenny Kay Young. Custodians are Jesse Ramirez Jr. and Doyle White.

A record crowd is expected to attend the open house during the day.

RECOVERED GUNS — Texas Ranger Eddie Almond (left) and Big Spring Police Detective J.D. Carter (middle) recovered 25 guns stolen in the December burglary of Fox's Pawn Shop, 911 W. 4th. In that burglary, 52 firearms, and several CB radios and eight-track tape players were stolen after intruders tore a hole in the wall of the shop. The guns, mostly rifles and shotguns, were recovered from a San Angelo man who has been charged with receiving and concealing stolen merchandise. "We would like to get the people who busted into the shop, too, and we have a good chance of doing that now," said Lt. Claude Morris (right).

ARE YOU KIDDING? — Mrs. Walter Mondale, wife of Vice President Mondale, suppresses a giggle at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts Wednesday as she listens to Museum Director Harry S. Parker. ## Drug busts in Aggieland

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A three-month undercover investigation in the Bryan-College Station area has resulted in 80 drug charges against 41 persons — 20 of them still at large, the Department of Public Safety said today.

The DPS said three women and 18 men were arrested Wednesday night and jailed under bonds totaling $545,000.

It said 29 persons were named in sealed indictments returned by the Brazos County (Bryan) grand jury while the remaining 12 were named in arrest warrants from Travis, Brazoria, Burleson and Robertson counties.

Four persons were arrested in Brazoria County when they delivered 150 pounds of marijuana to undercover narcotics agents, the DPS said.

One person was arrested in Brazos County when he delivered 73 pounds of marijuana to an agent, and another was taken into custody when he delivered three ounces of cocaine, the DPS said.

The statewide police agency said the charges and arrests resulted from joint operations involving the DPS, Bryan and College Station police, the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, the Brazos County sheriff's department and Texas A&M campus police.

Pot conspiracy arrests

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — Authorities were planning to continue their search today for 21 persons named in a Muskogee federal grand jury indictment that alleges a multi-state marijuana conspiracy.

The indictment named 37 persons. Officers arrested McCurtain County residents in raids that commenced at about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday.

McCurtain County Sheriff Paul Stewart was scheduled to appear before the federal panel in Muskogee today as part of its continuing probe into alleged drug operations in Arkansas, Texas and the southeast part of Oklahoma.

Earlier, Stewart had been indicted by a McCurtain County grand jury on allegations that he neglected "to act on information about the whereabouts of marijuana."

Stewart was removed from office following the indictment, but was returned to duty when a judge granted the prosecution a delay in the case.

Federal authorities said Stewart and his deputies "weren't invited" to participate in the drug bust Wednesday, an investigator said.

Carried out by officers headquartered at the National Guard armory here, the raid was the culmination of an investigation headed by the Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. Federal and state officers, including the Choctaw County sheriff's office, also participated in the raids centered on the Idabel area.

U.S. Attorney Julian Fite said there was no way to tell how long the arrests might take to complete.

Fite said two persons named in the conspiracy indictment, James Earl Cook and Ralph Patty, were slain at Cook's Idabel home Dec. 2.

A third person close to the alleged marijuana smuggling ring has disappeared, Fite said.

Fite identified the missing man as a close associate of Anthony Pond, Idabel, who was among those taken before U.S. Magistrate Jim Payne in Hugo.

Begin wins support

JERUSALEM (AP) — By ordering the invasion of southern Lebanon, Prime Minister Menachem Begin may have lost some sympathy in the Carter administration, but he won valuable support on the home front. All political factions in the Jewish state except the tiny Communist Party approved of the raid and newspapers often critical of Begin's policy have united behind him.

Soviet backfire bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only three major items separate the United States and Soviet Union in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, informed sources report. The sources said the unresolved issues involve the right of the two nations to develop new intercontinental ballistic missiles, the number of strategic weapons to be allowed in each arsenal and the status of the Soviet Backfire bomber under the proposed treaty.

Hubenak takes stand on top farm issues

Joe Hubenak, candidate for Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, subject to the May Democratic Primary in May, visited with friends and supporters in Big Spring this morning at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Having served six years as House Agriculture and Livestock committee chairman, he claims to be the foremost authority on agriculture in Texas.

He lists as major issues facing Texas agriculture the need for qualified agricultural leaders, the need for additional research, taxation of farm land on production, an increase in markets and the availability of adequate farm credit.

He said if he had been governor and known of the proposed strike on the international bridge in McAllen, he would have gone down and asked the McAllen mayor to go with him to the bridge and then said to the farmers, "We understand your problems, but we need to address ourselves to Washington where the real problem is and I will go to Washington with you."

Hubenak said that he has appeared twice recently in Washington in behalf of Texas farmers both on the House agriculture and Senate agriculture workshops.

He expressed concern for a federal farm bill which will address the issues and needs of agriculture. He also said he preferred to call the present crisis a farm movement rather than a farm strike.

Hubenak pointed out, "What's good for agriculture is good for the country and that is why the current farm movement is so important."

A resident of Rosenberg, Hubenak was reared in Brazoria County, graduated from Alvin High and Alvin Junior College and received his BBA in accounting from the University of Houston.

Hubenak was selected as the 62nd legislature's Outstanding Representative by the Texas Lawman, official publication of the Sheriff's Association of Texas. He received the distinguished legislator award in 1973 from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association.

Drill bits recovered

Howard County deputies and Texas Ranger Eddie Almond recovered five drill bits Tuesday and Wednesday valued at $5,000.

The bits had been taken September 13, 1977 from Service Drilling Company in Gray County. They were recovered from a drilling company in the Forsan area.

"Deputies Eddie Owens, Buster McCartney, and Milton Kirby provided the information and cooperation instrumental to this investigation," said Almond.

The drill bits were apparently resold to the local firm, which was unaware it was using stolen property. According to Almond, the investigation is continuing, and Gray County authorities are working with Texas Rangers toward an arrest.

TEA speech results

Big Spring High was one of 29 schools in Texas that had qualified ten or more speech students for the Texas Forensic Association State Tournament last week.

Debaters Donny Knight and Hardy Wilkerson were defeated by the national qualifying team from Lubbock Coronado at the TFA tourney in Abilene.

The two youths also competed in boys exempt with Wilkerson placing first in the finals. However, a San Antonio student qualified for nationals because he had a lower total score from all rounds at the tournament.

In the tourney the previous week in Waco, Big Spring entered Wilkerson and Knight, Robin von Rosenberg, Joe Edwards and Chris Smith in humorous interpretation; Larry Wheat and Edwards in duet acting; Shannon Mullen in girls extemp and student congress.

PAY PUZZLE — Map shows salary level ranges provided by different states for their legislators. Salaries range from the more than $20,000 per year provided by Michigan, New York, California, and Illinois, to no salary at all — provided by seven states.

State legislators Sharp salary contrasts

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

Michigan, New York, California and Illinois are the only four states that pay their legislators $20,000 or more a year in salary.

The four stand in sharp contrast to a national picture which shows that even though legislative salaries in many states have gone up sharply in the past two or three years, members of many statehouses still get a pittance compared with many others in government.

In particular, salaries at the state level are still sharply lower than U.S. congressional salaries, which now stand at $57,500.

This is also despite the often ingenious ways legislators have found to supplement income with privileges, expense allowances, so-called "perks."

An Associated Press survey of all 50 states shows that in only 15 have voters permitted legislators annual salaries of $10,000 or more.

The AP tally showed 28 states offer legislative salaries of less than $10,000, and the remaining seven give no salary, but provide various expense allowances.

And in only one state — Wisconsin, where the $18,736 salary ranks fifth nationally — are legislative salaries permitted to rise automatically each year without requiring special legislation.

In terms of salary alone, Michigan's $24,000 salary is tops among the nation's state legislative houses. New York follows with $23,500, California with $23,232, and Illinois with $20,000.

The ranking changes when items like daily pay during sessions (known as per diem allowances), and unitemized expense allowances are tallied with salaries. A 1977 Council of State Governments survey which made that calculation ranked California first in overall annual compensation at $30,799. New York, Michigan and Illinois were ranked a distant second, third and fourth.

The lowest state legislative salaries are concentrated in the Rocky Mountain and Midwest prairie states like North Dakota ($5 a day), Montana ($7,200 a year in salary and expenses during a regular session), and Wyoming (no salary, but about $2,300 expense allowance).

Salaries also rank among the lowest in New England states, and getting pay raises there hasn't been easy. Rhode Island legislators, who get $300 a year for two months' annual sessions, haven't had a raise since 1900. New Hampshire lawmakers got their last pay increase in 1889 — to $100 a year.

At least a dozen states make it difficult for legislators to receive pay hikes, because salary levels are written into the state constitutions. Changing salaries thus requires constitutional amendments and voter referendums. In some states that have removed legislative salaries from the constitution, pay in recent years has shot up.

Nebraska's voters, for instance, permitted their legislators a salary hike from $2,400 to $4,800 a year in 1969, but since then have defeated three attempts to increase salaries.

Eight states also offer no pensions for legislators: Alabama, Iowa, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont and Wyoming.

Legislators in some states have garnered side benefits to augment salaries, often including large expense allowances that don't have to be itemized, free insurance policies, liberal pensions, and telephone and travel privileges.

Colorado legislators who earn $12,000 a year also get free passes to ski areas and membership in Denver clubs.

Louisiana legislators do not get salaries, but they do receive a $12,000 a year expense allowance, plus $50 a day for the 85 calendar days the Legislature is in session each year.

Illinois legislators get, among other things, free tickets to University of Illinois football games.

Wyoming lawmakers are charged half-price at some Cheyenne hotels and, like legislators in several other states, are immune from speeding tickets received while on state business.

In Oklahoma, the $12,948 salary is sweetened with free health and accident insurance, office supplies and stamps, a telephone credit card and a $12,000 life insurance policy.

Perhaps most unusual is Indiana, where each legislator gets 100 free trees from the state Department of Natural Resources to distribute within his or her representative district.

In New York, 156 of the 210 state senators and assemblymen are entitled to "leadership allowances" for being ranking members of various legislative committees. They range from $1,500 extra to $21,000 a year for the Senate Majority Leader and the Assembly Speaker.

Minnesota's current legislative pay of $8,400 a year will increase to $16,500 next year, and Missouri's salary of $6,400 will go to $15,000 in 1980. Maryland's legislators now collecting $12,500 will get step increases that will reach $18,500 by 1982. And New Jersey's $10,000 a year salary will increase to $18,000 by 1980.

As the average length of legislative sessions has increased and state business has become more demanding, a number of states previously offering very low salaries are permitting some dramatic pay boosts.

Local police spent a relatively quiet Wednesday. Duwayne Murphree, 2609 Wasson, reported the theft of a 1978 Harley Davidson Superblade motorcycle sometime between 9 and 11:15 p.m. The bike was valued at $4,000.

Burglars broke into the Gandy's Dairies Inc. building, 3210 Marcy, sometime Tuesday night. After breaking through the glass door at the company, the intruders pried open several desk drawers inside.

Total loss has not yet been estimated.

Sneak thieves snatched 400 blank checks from Randy Pittman's mailbox at 2005 S. Monticello, Wednesday afternoon. The checks were valued at $8.

Six fender benders were reported Wednesday.

Vehicles driven by Edna Ballard, Route 1, and Hoyt Roberts, Westbrook, collided at Third and Birdwell, 10:16 a.m.

Vehicles driven by Kenneth Hewett, Route 2, and Daniel Adamson, 1807 N. Monticello, collided at 5th and Main, 1:20 p.m. Vehicles driven by Richard Fullen, 700 Willis, and David C. Hatch, 1510 A. Wood, collided at 13th and Gregg, 3:43 p.m.

A vehicle driven by James R. Watson, 2401 Marcy, struck a parked police patrol car at 400 Main, 2:47 p.m.

A vehicle driven by Jay Dement, 1605 B. Lexington, struck a parked vehicle belonging to Danny Stevens, 2911 West Highway 80.

Vehicles driven by Donald Roberts Midland, and Lenora Craft, San Angelo, collided at 2300 Scurry, 8:45 a.m.

My Lai massacre

By the Associated Press
On a grassy knoll overlooking the scene where 10 years ago today U.S. troops committed the My Lai massacre, an orange-roofed hospital is being built with private American contributions.

Recent visitors to Vietnam report there are more direct reminders of the morning of March 16, 1968, when Lt. William L. Calley Jr. led his infantry platoon into My Lai and an adjoining hamlet and killed "at least 175, and the number may exceed 400," unarmed men, women and children, according to an official U.S. Army report.

A small building at My Lai has been turned into a grisly museum with relics such as spent bullets, U.S. Army gear, the personal belongings of some of the victims and pictures of stacks of bodies. A headstone with the names of 504 people said to have been killed in the massacre has been erected beside the ditch where Calley was convicted of killing "at least 20" people.

Nearby, Vietnamese sculptor Chau Dinh Du has constructed a monument in the style of socialist realism that portrays a woman with upraised fist holding a dead child, with wounded people at her feet.

Americans who have visited My Lai since the war ended in 1975 hope the new 100-bed hospital will project a positive image of the United States. "Nothing can eradicate the horror of the past," said Cora Weiss, a consultant to the World Church Service who first suggested that the hospital be built during a visit to My Lai two years ago.

"But the hospital will be a symbol of friendship of the American people, the thousands who contributed $5 and $10 each to raise enough money," Mrs. Weiss said.

Nearly 13,000 Americans gave $190,000 to the hospital fund, most of which has been spent on the construction of the main building. The hospital will serve the 130,000 people in the My Lai area and will provide primary medical treatment.

Mrs. Weiss said the hospital will be opened sometime this year.

The Vietnam News Agency said today that "the Son My village, to which My Lai belongs, once a symbol of annihilation, is...a source of inspiration."

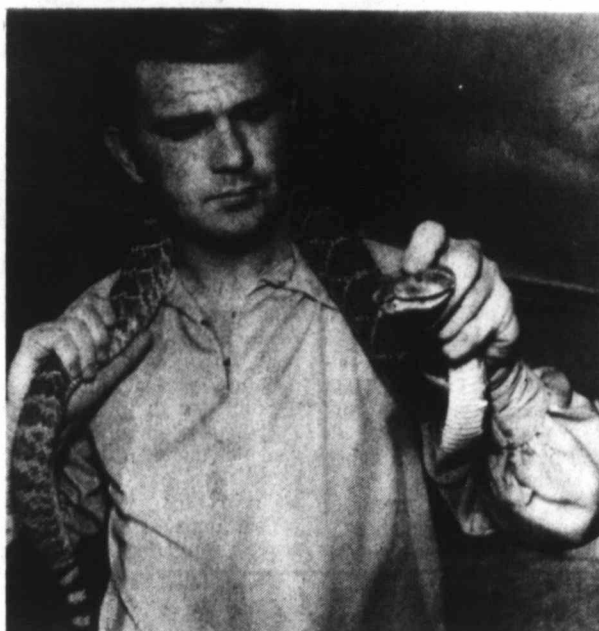

American visitors to My Lai note that the Vietnamese government is making the massacre scene a focal point, somewhat akin to the Israeli shrine of Yad Vashem on a hilltop in Jerusalem that commemorates the Jews killed in the Nazi holocaust.

In addition to visiting the monuments, My Lai visitors usually get to meet with the few survivors, including Mrs. Nguyen Thi Doc who tells of the deaths of all 11 members of her family that morning.

The government is giving My Lai priority in development projects. A new dam and irrigation canal have been built, and most of the houses flattened in the war have been replaced.

Gardens are growing in filled-in bomb craters. Buffaloes graze along the roadsides and ditches that were far less tranquil 10 years ago today.

NOT A HANDLER — Delbert Hutchinson in his early years a snake handler at the Big Spring Jaycee Roundup will be a visitor to the show this year. He will not be the handler because he was struck last year in the hand and was in critical condition for several days. An announcement at the Miss Diamondback Pageant included the information that Donny Anderson may be one of this year's snake handlers. The annual event will be Saturday and Sunday at the Howard County Fair Barn. The weigh-in starts Friday morning.

Scouts look to environment

BALTIMORE (AP) — These days, there's more to Scouting than learning how to tie a double-sheep-shank.

For a group of young men and women students in Baltimore, the Exploring division of Scouting has given them hands-on experience in environmental control, and an award.

The organization is an offshoot of Scouting devoted to career development. Each Explorer post is sponsored by area corporate volunteers — in this city by Koppers, Inc., a Pittsburgh-based industrial firm. This year, the company and its subsidiaries will work with more than 40 Explorer groups in the United States.

The goal of this liaison is to help the students explore the technical and social aspects of pollution and its control. The Explorer post of Baltimore received a special citation of recognition from the Boy Scouts of America for exceptional work in environmental control and for its exhibit at the Annual Explorers Exposition in 1977.

USS Texas makes first visit to state

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — The USS Texas, one of the nation's newest nuclear-powered cruisers, docked on a windy, cool morning today, making its first visit to the state for which it was named.

A few city dignitaries, a band, and many relatives of the 36 native Texans aboard were dockside when the 11,000-ton vessel eased into Pier 33.

The big doings are scheduled Friday, when Gov. Dolph Briscoe and his wife, Janey, who christened the USS Texas, will come aboard for an official visit.

Saturday afternoon, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the only enlisted reservist in Congress, will tour the vessel. Tower was recently promoted to chief boatswain's mate in the Naval Reserve.

Capt. Peter Fielder, a veteran of 20 years service, said the trip from the Virgin Islands had been a smooth one "except we had to run through about 100 miles of heavy fog."

The last time a ship named the USS Texas visited the Galveston port was in 1898, the day the USS Maine exploded and led to the Spanish-American war.

There have been other USS Texas ships in service, one for the Republic of Texas, and one for the Confederate Navy, and three others under the Stars and Stripes of the United States.

Pistol whipped man awarded $4,100 by jury

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A Shreveport man who claimed he was pistol whipped by a city policeman has been awarded $4,100 in damages.

Bennie Lee Baker sued, claiming that officer Marshall Nelson falsely arrested him on charges of criminal mischief and drunkenness in 1976. He testified that Nelson hit him in the head several times with his gun.

The defense contended that Baker resisted arrest and had to be subdued.

Although the city of Shreveport was dismissed as a defendant in the case, the payment will come from the city's general fund. And city attorneys represented the policeman.

Baker had sought $154,000 in damages. His attorney said he thought the jury would have made a higher award if they had known the city would pay instead of the policeman.

Don't take chances while traveling

Pinkerton's, the security firm which was big when highwaymen were making life miserable for stage coach patrons in the old west, offers some common sense measures to people planning on traveling.

If you follow the firm's advice, your trip will be safer and your return home happier.

Consolidate your luggage, suggests Pinkerton's. Take as few pieces as possible. The more you take, the more you're apt to lose count.

If you must take expensive jewelry with you, carry it on your person, says a spokesman for the detective firm. After you arrive at your destination, lock it in your hotel or motel office safe rather than leave it in your room—that is, if you don't wear it.

A LOT OF small-time hoodlums make cozy livings snatching purses. The experts invariably operate on a crowded street and can gain possession of a bag in a matter of seconds. Pursuit of the miscreants is often impossible. Woman should, if they can, carry small amounts of folding money in a pocket and not carry a purse. If you have lipstick and Kleenex you need, stuff them in your husband's pocket—he's grown to expect it.

Never flash a thick roll of bills anywhere. Figure out what you'll need during the day, add a little extra for impulsive buying, and hide the loot away in a deep front trouser pocket. Leave your wallet in the motel or hotel safe. Consider how much trouble you're in for if your wallet is lifted. The credit cards and the identification data are likely a lot more valuable than the money you have in the wallet.

Travelers' checks, it goes without saying, are much better and safer to handle than large amounts of cash, although the pickpockets will gladly take those, too.

DON'T SEEK out ingenious places to hide valuables in hotel rooms. The practiced professionals zero in on those first.

If you go out at night, leave a light burning and the shades drawn in your room. While on the street, confine your movements to well-frequented, well-lighted areas. Crowds are always safer. Try to remain in sight of other people at all times.

If you leave your car, even if it is a rented vehicle, always lock the doors. Always check the back seat before re-entering it. Don't hitch rides. Don't offer rides to strangers.

Some guides in other countries are untrustworthy. Check their credentials first. Your hotel usually can recommend one, and agree on a fee to begin with.

Before leaving your home, disguise the fact that the place is unoccupied. Perhaps a neighbor can leave a car in your driveway. Halt deliveries of all kinds. You can tell the newspaper about your trip when you get back.

Your odds to escape damage improve if you'll take time to plan.

Whoopers warning

Around the rim

James Werrell

With reports cropping up in the Herald every so often about whooping cranes spotted in the area, Big Springers might be interested in how the majestic bird is holding up in its war against extinction.

According to the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife, the outlook is brightening.

ODDLY ENOUGH the whooper flourished as long as 500,000 years ago, but with the onset of "progress" the bird now teeters on the brink of extinction.

At last count, there were less than 100 birds in Texas, but hopes are high that they will be fruitful and multiply.

One of the most popular vacation spots for whooping cranes in Texas is the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge near Corpus Christi. This season, 70 birds, 61 adults and nine young, winged their way to the refuge.

Besides this wild population flying the traditional migratory route, there are additional whoopers elsewhere in the country. The turnaround in the species' status since a low point of only 14 on the Texas coast in 1939, is a fine example of cooperation between man and nature.

SEVERAL METHODS have been used to keep the whoopers among us. One involved hatching baby whoopers in incubators, which resulted in 24 in captivity in Maryland, two in San Antonio and three in Baraboo, Wis.

A much more interesting method was successful when biologists sneaked a few whooper eggs under some unsuspecting sandhill crane mothers. The sandhills proved to be excellent foster parents, raising the youngsters and guiding them on the winter migration to New Mexico.

This season, the third of the sneaky-hatching program, three young survived the hatching and the journey to wintering grounds, along with four adults from the previous two years.

WHOOPEERS ARE unlikely to suffer the same fate as the U.S. red wolf that is effectively extinguishing itself by interbreeding with coyotes. Whoopers differ from sandhill cranes in appearance, breeding behavior, calls, and food preference, so it is not expected that they will interbreed.

Adult whoopers are all white with black wingtips, and grow to a height of some four and a half feet, with a wingspread of seven feet. In flight, their long legs are extended and easily visible.

They will be in Aransas until mid-to-late April, and, according to the parks service, the best time to view the cranes is right now at the start of their breeding season. During this time, the males get a bird version of Saturday night fever, bowing, twirling and making jumps five feet straight up.

One note of warning: Hunters should make a genuine attempt to distinguish between whoopers and otherwise. The results could be disastrous.

A NEW MEXICO MAN who attempted to kill two whooping cranes near a federal wildlife refuge last fall was sentenced to 30 days of a six-month sentence in jail. In addition, he was prohibited from hunting or using firearms for three years.

And you think he was mad, you should have seen the birds!

Hard at work

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — President Carter has warned his Cabinet in no uncertain terms that "the vote on the Panama Canal treaties is critically important to the Administration." Like a schoolmaster riding herd on his errand charges, the president has kept several Cabinet members in his office after regular meetings to instruct them on how to sway key undecided senators' votes for ratification.

Vice President Walter Mondale also cautioned the Cabinet that the issue is "fundamental to the Carter presidency" and that "losing would be a disaster." Mondale urged each Cabinet member to check with congressional liaison Frank Moore to see how they could help persuade the fence-sitters. Remembering his experience in the Senate, Mondale predicted that "the fight may be long." Unfortunately, he said, "the Senate procedures for ratifying the treaties are archaic and give every advantage to opponents."

Still, according to confidential White House minutes, the president has been pleased with his Administration's progress. He boasted to the Cabinet that "we have climbed from a position of virtually no support for the treaties to a slight plurality."

CARTER HAS attended more than 20 briefings at the White House with various groups from around the country and has enlisted the aid of such big names as former President Gerald Ford and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. But despite these efforts, the president lamented, "there are still too many undecided votes." It will be difficult, he continued, "to get the last 10 to 12 votes needed to assure Senate ratification."

Carter has candidly admitted that he uses specialized arguments with Democrats and Republicans. He has outlined these tactics at closed-door meetings with his Cabinet.

With Republicans, the president said, he "stresses the need for bipartisanship." He cites the support of Ford, Kissinger and former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, all of whom were commended by Carter for their efforts in swaying members of their party toward ratification.

The president points out to the undecided that the Joint Chiefs of Staff support ratification. To strengthen this argument, Carter notes that the Joint Chiefs were all "appointed by a Republican administration." Carter also tries to appeal to the Republicans' sense of world order. He tells them that there is an advantage in "taking a worldwide perspective as against pursuing parochial interests."

When President Carter lobbies Senate Democrats, he takes a decidedly different approach. He appeals to their sense of partisan politics and "underscores the importance of party unity." And finally, in the strongest possible language, Carter tells his party politicians that the defeat of the treaties in the Senate would have "a devastating effect on the administration."

Carter said he has been buoyed by the fact that "public opinion polls are slowly turning in our direction." But the president complained that "those who are opposed to the treaties are more vocal than those who support them."

FTC FUSS: Business lobbyists and consumer groups have locked horns over a forthcoming appointment to the Federal Trade Commission.

Many business and legal groups are backing Robert Pitofsky, a scholarly Washington lawyer who compiled a moderate record as the commission's consumer protection chief.

The same faction is fiercely lobbying against Willard Mueller, a liberal economist with a strong antitrust record.

Mueller once wrote a study blaming the concentrated power of super-market chains for inflated food prices. "Mueller is a real fighter who believes in taking on the big corporations," one observer told us.

MUELLER IS BEING pushed by labor, consumer groups, small businessmen and several liberal congressmen. The commission's activist chairman, Michael Pertshuk, is also said to have recommended Mueller to the White House. Our sources say that the president's choice will be a signal as to whether he wants to appease the business world or continue to fight for consumers.

TRUANT TEXAN: As House majority leader, Rep. Jim Wright is supposed to wage floor fights for Administration-backed legislation during crucial votes. But he occasionally turns out to be an absentee shepherd of the Democratic flock.

The bill to establish a federal consumer protection agency, for example, came up for a life-or-death vote on Feb. 8. It went down to defeat despite the backing of both President Carter and Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill. At the time of defeat, Wright was en route to balmy Hawaii to appear at a fundraiser for fellow Democrat, Rep. Cecil Heftel.

A spokesman for the majority leader, who is second in command among House Democrats, argued that he had already lobbied his colleagues on the bill and was fulfilling a long-standing commitment to his Hawaiian colleague.

But Wright headed for Hawaii on Wednesday, the day of the vote. Heftel's fund-raiser wasn't until the following Friday. And Heftel himself managed to remain in Washington to cast his vote in favor of the defeated measure.

Wright's office pointed out that the majority leader had arranged for a "live pair" to register his support for the bill. This is a convenient parliamentary device which allows an opponent to nullify Wright's affirmative vote.

Meanwhile, Rep. Phil Burton of California, who lost the majority leadership post to Wright by one vote, is reported ready to mount a new challenge to the Texan. Congressional insiders anticipate another close contest.

Must be winter!

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — "I saw my first robin the other day—it was dead."

This sentence has been in my typewriter for two weeks. I was hoping that, like winter, it would go away. But it wouldn't. I read it to my secretary, Jeannie, who told me it would be a mistake to use it. She said I'd only be contributing to the depression the country is already in because of the weather.

"You should write about spring," she told me.

"What's spring?" I asked her.

"YOU KNOW, when the buds show up on the trees and the grass turns green, and people throw off their overcoats and start mulching their lawns."

"I think I remember it," I said. "Isn't that the time when windows are opened and girls and boys fall in love, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land?"

"And birds sing," she said, "and dogs romp, and children daydream, and they pick up the garbage on the days they're supposed to."

"It's coming back to me," I said excitedly as I sat at the typewriter. "I can almost smell it. I can smell... wait... I can smell cherry blossoms."

"Of course you can. And you also can smell roses and hyacinths and clover."

"Clover," I cried. "How could I have forgotten the smell of clover?"

"It's been a long time," she said. "Anyone who has lived through this winter would have forgotten the smell of clover."

"QUIET," I SAID, playing my fingers across the typewriter. "I think I hear the sound of a babbling brook." "You do, you do," she said. "It is a babbling brook beside a waterfall." "Are my ears deceiving me? Is that the buzz of a bee?"

"Of course it's a bee. A beautiful honeybee alighting on a flower. Close your eyes for a moment and think back, back."

"It's so hazy. How far back should I go?"

"Go back to last April."

"I can't go back that far. There's too much slush and ice."

"Concentrate. Concentrate on last April."

"The ice and slush are melting. Yes, I see a bush."

"A lilac bush—a white lilac bush."

"Write it down before you forget it."

I typed it out. Then I said, "There's a dew on the hedges. Silver droplets of fresh morning dew."

"Are the dogwoods in bloom?" she asked me.

"What color are dogwoods?"

"White, pink and red. Don't forget the dandelions."

"IT'S ALL THERE. It's coming back to me. I see virgin forests wearing their new spring colors. And over there is a host of daffodils."

"That's spring," Jeannie said.

"You haven't lost it. You've still got it in your breast."

"There's more," I told her. "I see girls in skirts and blouses strutting in high heels and silk stockings along the nation's byways."

"That's lust, but it's also spring," she said.

"Can I write it down?" I begged.

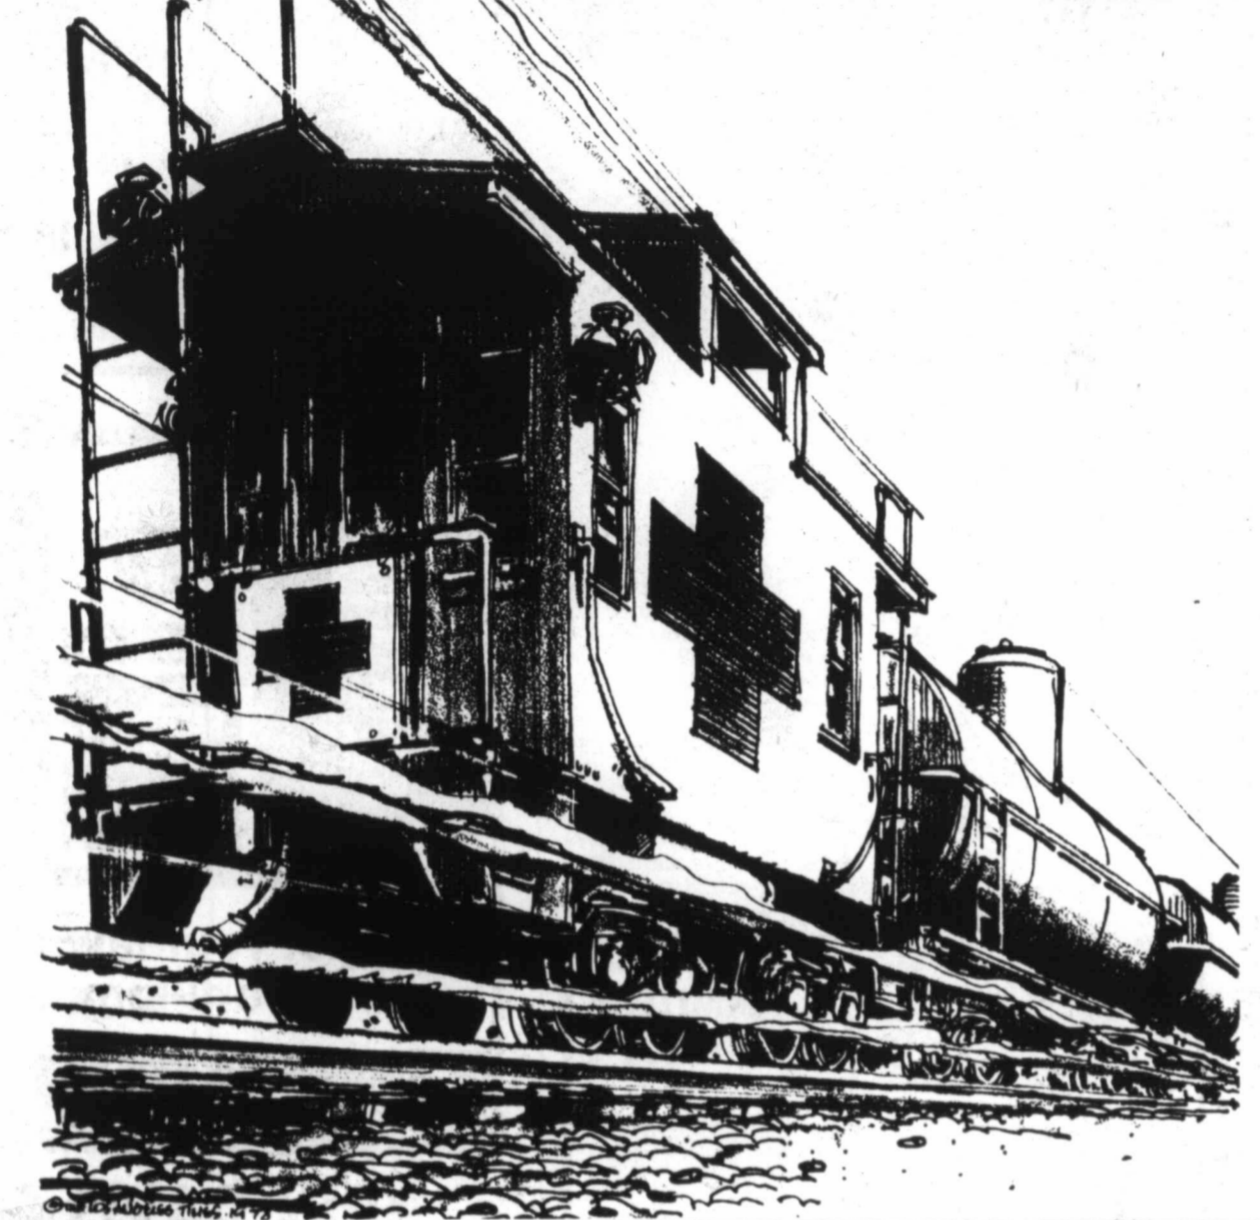

"Yes," she said, "because it goes with spring."

I finally opened my eyes and looked out the window. Wet globs of snow were falling outside, and the cold wind was whipping them around in a whirling dervish.

It was Washington's tenth snowfall of the year.

The spell was broken. I ripped out the paper from my machine, put in a fresh piece and started out all over again. The first sentence came out automatically.

"I saw my first robin today—it was dead."

Artery 'clean out' may prevent stroke

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Have you ever heard of a doctor wanting to clean out the vein going to the brain to supposedly clean up the cholesterol in it? Can this prevent a stroke? — G.H.

The procedure you prescribe roughly (very roughly) is what is called an endarterectomy (EN-dar-ter-ek-to-mee). Veins aren't involved. Arteries serving the brain are. These are the carotid (kah-ROT-id) arteries. They are large vessels that arise in the neck. Each divides into two branches, one supplying the outer head and face and an inner branch supplying the brain. It is the latter section that is opened so that plaque material can be removed from the inner walls to allow a free flow of blood.

The best candidates for his surgery are those who have had transient ischemic attacks (TIAs). Those are brief, mild symptoms of stroke—vision problems, headache, dizziness and the like.

For properly selected patients, the success rate is high. In one study, of 75 endarterectomy patients checked five to nine years after surgery, only five had subsequent strokes.

The plaque (material buildup) is often limited to a small section of the carotid arteries just beyond the branching, making it usually accessible to the surgeon.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor says I have diverticulosis. He wants me to go on a high-fiber diet, including two teaspoons of fiber with water before each meal. He says this will control my condition, and that I don't have to worry about coming back for a checkup or anything.

I still bleed and have some discomfort. I am 26. Should I get a second opinion? Also, please send me the booklet on diverticulosis. I enclose the 35 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope. — Mrs. P.L.E. I do suggest another opinion, at least further attention to this bleeding. The bleeding indicates an infection or ulceration, more serious than the mere presence of diverticula (the intestinal pouches of diverticulosis). You'll find a distinction made in the booklet between pouches and infected pouches (diverticulitis). Diet is discussed (pages 6 to 9). Bulk is probably not helping matters for you

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: Several years ago a minister was pouring his heart out delivering a sermon. A man three seats up from where I was sitting stood up and broke in on the sermon, giving his own interpretation on the subject. The interruption put a chill on the service that night.

No one went to the altar. No one was saved, not one soul. All because that man sidetracked the audience attention with his own ideas.

I thought of that incident as I read Wiley Madewell's letter criticizing what I had written a few weeks ago about what could happen before the year 2000. People can think what they may, but we are living in a time when things could suddenly explode into something just as destructive as the flood in the days of Noah—or, even worse.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Does the Bible say anything about when the Holy Spirit comes to dwell within us as believers? — V.B.

DEAR V. B.: Yes, it does. The Bible teaches that the Holy Spirit comes to dwell within us the moment we accept Christ as our personal Lord and Savior. In fact, if the Holy Spirit is not within us, we have not really been born again. The Bible tells us, "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Romans 8:9). On the Day of Pentecost, Peter told his listeners, "Ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." He went on to say, "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call" (Acts 2:38-39).

There are two things to warn against, however. First, we must not depend on our feelings in this matter but on the fact of God's promise. The now. It does help control the out-pouchings, but not when they become inflamed or infected, as yours may be. If you didn't have bleeding before, report it to the doctor. If you did, then you should seek the second opinion. At any rate, I advise cutting out coarse bulk diet until more is known. Bulk-producing medicine might be substituted.

Dear Editor: On Sunday, March 12, just outside Big Spring, I had the misfortune of having trouble with my car. I still had 50 miles to go and my car would not run. I made it to a station just off interstate 20 and the attendant there advised me to see a mechanic. I contacted a man just down the road who only worked on large trucks, but called a mechanic for me for which I was most grateful.

This nice young man left his home, came after me and led me to his garage. He found my problem, made the repair, and for a reasonable fee, even though it was on Sunday.

I wish to thank this gentleman from Frank's Garage, located at 406 Goliad in your city. I recommend him to you people in Big Spring. I was so happy to know there are still good people who will help people in distress, even though it is on their day off.

Recipes to fete St. Pat's day

Isn't everyone just a little bit Irish on St. Patrick's Day? Even if you trace your ancestry to lands far from the Emerald Isle, you're entitled to the "wearing of the green" and a toast to the Old Sod on this early spring holiday.

As they say in Ireland, "Laughter is gayest where the food is best." And here is an Irish recipe to guarantee a full complement of merriment March 17.

The Irish are known for a slight tendency to exaggeration, especially in their flattery. But it's no blarney we're giving you when we say how popular your Malarky Stones will be. These charming cupcakes couldn't be easier to make either. All the honorary Celts in your household will gobble them up — and that's no malarky!

MALARKY STONES

1 package (18.5 ounces) yellow cake mix

1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Fresh orange juice

Prepare cake mix according to directions on the package, adding orange rind to the dry ingredients and substituting orange juice for the amount of milk called for. Grease 1 3/4-inch muffin cups. Fill each cup two-thirds full. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 10-15 minutes or until cake springs back when pressed lightly with finger. Cool on wire racks and frost with orange icing. Yield: 8 dozen cupcakes.

ORANGE FROSTING

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened to room temperature

1 egg

1 tablespoon grated orange rind

4 cups confectioners' sugar

3 tablespoons orange juice

3 cups flaked coconut,

tinted green
In a medium bowl, combine butter, egg, and orange juice, beat until light. Beat in sugar. Gradually add enough orange juice to make a smooth frosting of good spreading consistency. Frost each cake on top and sides, then roll in coconut. To tint coconut, drop 2 or 3 drops of green food coloring in medium bowl, add coconut and toss with fork until desired color is obtained.

Not all of us can manage a visit to Ireland, but nearly everyone can afford a corned beef dinner. It evokes the flavor of the Emerald Isle, and for lovers of this robust cured meat, it's the ultimate trip.

You can serve this old-fashioned favorite in a new-fashioned way when you buy corned beef for oven roasting. By oven roasting, you can trim as much as an hour from the time it used to take to simmer. Oven roasting gives more versatility, too, as now you can glaze the corned beef as it cooks by sifting with brown sugar or drizzling with honey during the last half hour of the roasting time.

When shopping, look for the "corned beef for oven roasting" on the label. This version of corned beef comes with either the mild cure or with garlic and spices. Get a generous size when you buy, because follow-up meals and sandwiches of corned beef are always welcome, and make one roasting do double duty.

Naturally, corned beef will be your choice for St. Patrick's Day. Team it with another old Irish specialty, Colcannon Potatoes. Cabbage is the traditional partner for corned beef, and in this recipe, shredded cabbage is cooked with onions, and added to mashed potatoes.

Corned beef and Colcannon Potatoes; they're a winning combination for your salute to the Irish. But don't hold the corned beef for reserve for holidays; it deserves to be served and savored the rest of the year, too!

High prices don't mean better meat

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — "Paying a higher price for meat doesn't necessarily mean you're buying better meat," says James J. Pilcher, who began learning the meat business 42 years ago in his father's meat and produce market.

During the day Pilcher works as a supervisor at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., but he has maintained his knowledge of the meat business by working as a butcher at a local grocery store on some nights and weekends. "Using my hands to work with meat relaxes me after a day in the office," says Pilcher, who is responsible for supplying maintenance parts for cigarette production equipment at R.J. Reynolds.

During his years behind the meat counter, Pilcher has observed many common mistakes people make. He offers the following suggestions for making wiser meat purchases:

"People are convinced that certain cuts of meat are the best, so their demand for those meats has driven the price up — even though other cheaper cuts are sometimes better quality. For instance, a rump roast is more expensive than a shoulder roast, but the shoulder roast is more flavorful, juicy piece of meat. An eye of round, although higher priced, is no more flavorful than a chuck roast. Most people also think that a center cut is the 'Cadillac' of pork roasts, but an end cut pork roast is just as good and more economical than the center cut."

Many people believe they are getting a bargain when they buy a quarter or a side of beef, but it's often not practical. "When you buy a side of beef, you are buying many cuts that you normally wouldn't purchase," says Pilcher. "You'll find that the steaks run out fast, and you are loaded with chuck roast, bone, beef stew and hamburger. Furthermore, most sides of beef contain 30 to 40 percent fat and bone."

Pilcher advises thrifty consumers to purchase whole chickens rather than cut-up chicken parts. "If you purchase a whole chicken and throw away the back, neck and even the wings, that's cheaper than buying the same amount of cut-up choice pieces because labor cost is not included in the price you pay for a whole chicken."

Although many people always look for lean meat, certain cuts should contain a little fat, notes Pilcher. "A ribeye with a little marbling of fat will be juicy and flavorful. A piece of meat with no fat in it will be dry and tough. When buying a steak with a bone in it, there should be about 3/4" of fat on it. Also, when purchasing a sirloin steak, look for one with a long bone, because that sirloin will usually be very tender."

"Ground beef is cheaper and has more fat than ground chuck — but the beef is more flavorful than the chuck. The fat disintegrates when cooked, so just make your beef patties a little larger to allow for shrinkage." Even though you may have to purchase a little more beef than you would chuck, Pilcher explains, the beef's flavor and lower cost make it the best buy.

Dear Abby

Must He Call Wife If He'll Be Late?

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for 15 years and have three children. I'm under a lot of pressure at work, and when I'm finished (at 3:30 p.m.), I sometimes go to a bar to unwind and talk with friends. I get home anywhere between 8 and 10 p.m. (Only occasionally do I stay until the bar closes at 1 a.m.).

Sometimes after work I stop and visit my mother, which ties me up until 9 or 10 p.m. My wife always has dinner on the table at 6 p.m., and more often than not, I'm there. I can't understand why she insists that I should call her after work to let her know where I am and whether I'm coming right home or not. She doesn't object to my having a few drinks; she knows I'm not seeing other women, and she certainly can't object to my seeing my mother. Nevertheless, she gets mad and says she has a right to know as soon as possible which nights I'll be home later than usual.

How can I get her to grow up and realize that mature adults do not need to check in like children?
NAGGED TO DEATH

DEAR NAGGED: Why don't YOU grow up and behave like a responsible adult? Your wife has a right to know which nights you're going to be late, and if so, how late. Few things are as unsettling to a wife as waiting indefinitely for her husband to show up for dinner. So when you know you're going to be late, give her a call.

DEAR ABBY: At the age of 51, my husband sent a dollar for your booklet "How To Be Popular," and he's been swinging ever since. Up until then he was a very reserved person. But lately he's been trying to make himself more "charming," and develop the art of being a good conversationalist, and he seems to be succeeding. Now I've got to know how to cope with a swinging husband. If you have a booklet on that, I'd like to have one. If you don't, please write one and I'll be your first customer.

REJECTED IN IOWA

DEAR REJECTED: I don't have a booklet on that subject, but you've given me an idea.

DEAR ABBY: While in Munich, Germany, recently, I was shown through a brewery, and I noticed that the English-speaking tour guide carefully enunciated "you know" after each sentence.

After the tour, I asked her if she had been instructed to say "you know" so frequently. She replied, "No, but I have heard you Americans speak, and that's the one thing I noticed you say very often."

DELORES

DEAR DELORES: Yes, I know. And until it was called to my attention, I was not aware of how often I used that superfluous little filler.

'Mulligans' help kids learn about nutrition

By DUSTY RICHARD
 "Hey gang, the circus is in town and they need help from the Mulligans. The animals, ringmaster and performers feel terrible. Your assignment, Mulligan Stews, is to find out what is wrong and 'fix it' so the circus won't close down."

What's this? Sounds like a scene from a wacky "Mission Impossible," and that's exactly what it is. For the past six weeks, about 500 fourth and fifth grade students in local elementary schools have been participating in a program on good nutrition sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service of Texas and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is presented locally through the County Extension Office as part of the ongoing 4-H program.

Each week, children learn about good nutrition by observing the "Mulligan Stews," a rock group who chase down offenders of the rules of health and nutrition, such as "The Flim Flam Man." Schools participating in the "Mulligan Stew" program are Bauer, Coahoma, Elbow, Kentwood, Immaculate Heart and Sands Elementary.

The series, according to Sandy Stretcher, Assistant County Extension Agent, has a two-fold purpose: to build on the natural curiosity of children about foods and to use food as an avenue for youngsters to develop a better feeling about themselves.

The plan to achieve this purpose has five major objectives, she said. First, to help the children to acquire and apply nutrition knowledge helpful in becoming healthy, productive individuals; to gain personal satisfaction through developing curiosity and awareness about information presented; to accept themselves and others through recognizing similarities and differences which influence food habits; to learn more about family members through interactions when participating in food experiences; and lastly, to recognize the importance of relating to peers.

Among the varied activities in which the children have been participating in this program are viewing six thirty-minute films and reading comic books portraying the exploits of the "Mulligan Stews"; playing nutrition-related games, singing songs about good nutrition, performing experiments with foods, making cookies and taking quizzes on what they have learned.

Films include "The Great Nutrition Turn On" which deals with the four food groups, the basic nutrients and what food does; "Look Inside Yourself," a film on the proper servings of each food group to be consumed each day, why breakfast is important and the digestive process; "The Flim Flam Man" about fad diets and quick diets, additives, and the nutrition possible in a balanced diet; "Getting It All Together," about how plants and animals become food, foreign foods, and planning, buying food for and preparing a nutritious menu; "Count-down...4432" which explains about new foods that have been developed, such as food for space travel, production meeting demand, and processing, packaging and transporting food; and "The Racer That Lost His Edge" a film about calories, how empty calories affect health and snacks that can be nutritious.

Each week the students learned about a phase of were also given recipes for nutritious pizza and mulligan stew to make at home.

For children (and parents) who would like to learn about nutrition, here are four quick and easy recipes used in the "Mulligan Stew" program.

NO-BAKE COOKIES
 2 cups sugar
 1/4 cup cocoa
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 pound margarine
 1/2 cup chunky peanut butter
 3 cups quick cooking oatmeal
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1 pinch salt
 Mix in pan sugar, cocoa, milk and butter; put pan on medium heat and cook mixture until it starts to boil. Remove from heat and cool for one minute. Add vanilla, salt, peanut butter and oatmeal; stir well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on wax paper. They're now ready to eat!

PAT-A-PIZZA
 Half of an 8-ounce can of tomato sauce
 1 can refrigerated biscuits
 1/2 pound ground beef
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 1/2 teaspoon oregano
 10 small slices of cheese

Pat and push the biscuits into circles about 4 inches across on a baking sheet. Put about 1 tablespoon of tomato sauce on each. Bake at 400 degrees until lightly browned (about 10 minutes).

While pizza bakes, crumble meat into a hot skillet and brown over low heat. Pour off grease and add salt and oregano.

Turn down oven to 325 degrees. Put some meat, then cheese, on each pizza.

Heat pizzas in oven until cheese is melted. Makes 10.

MULLIGAN STEW
 1 tablespoon shortening

1 pound of beef, cubed
 1 teaspoon salt

1 can tomato soup (10 1/2 ounces)

2 soup cans of water
 3 carrots, sliced

3 potatoes, cut into 4 pieces each

2 onions, cut into 4 pieces each

In a heavy pan or skillet with lid, melt the shortening and add the beef. Brown over medium heat. Add salt, soup and water. Cover tightly and cook slowly until tender, about an hour. Add carrots, potatoes and onions. Cover and continue cooking slowly, about 30 minutes. If there is not enough liquid, add more water during cooking. If stew is too thin, remove lid and cook until thickened. Makes 4-6 servings.

COTTAGE CHEESE SOUP

1 10 1/2-oz. can condensed cream of celery soup
 1 soup can milk
 2 tablespoons chopped onion

1 tablespoon butter
 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper

1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
 1 cup cottage cheese
 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Combine soup and milk. Heat. Saute onion in butter 5 minutes. Add to soup. Add remaining ingredients and heat but do not boil. Serves 4.

nutrition. Some subjects studied were the four food groups (meat, breads and cereals, fruit and vegetables and milk), the basic nutrients (proteins, vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates and fats), the digestive process, fad diets, foreign foods, new foods such as foods from the sea and synthetics, calories and food additives.

One phase of the program that was particularly fun for students was making "No-Bake Cookies." Children

"WHAT WILL THOSE MULLIGANS DO NEXT?" — is the question that Felicia Valencia, sitting, and from left, Chris Hill, Randy Ramirez and Marjorie Alvear seem to be asking as they read the latest installment of their comic book on nutrition in Maxine Zant and Lillian Wheat's fourth grade classes at Bauer Elementary School. The fifth grade, taught by Sam Dawson and Dorothy Good, are also participating in the 4-H affiliated program.

Club samples foreign food

The 1941 Study Club met Monday in the home of Mrs. Don McKinney with Mrs. Rob Ethridge as co-hostess. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Quail Dobbs, vice president, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Jack Cauble. Fourteen members were present and the minutes were read by Mrs. Lawrence Davis. It was announced that there would be an area convention April 7-8 at the Midland Hilton, and that new officers would be presented and voted on at the April 10 meeting in the home of Mrs. W.A. Wilson.

The annual party for high school seniors will be May 11 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Justiss.

The program was presented by Mrs. Charles Murphy on "Ethnic Images." After some introductory remarks by Mrs. Murphy on the different customs of food preparation and consumption in foreign lands, each member reported on a country and its people, and described the dish she had prepared.

The delicacies included Russian fried pastry prepared by Mrs. Carroll Choate; mild Italian salad by Mrs. W.A. Wilson; rice curry from India by Mrs. Davis; salade de poulet boulestin from France by Mrs. Bill Read; Polish sausage and potatoes by Mrs. Phil Winn; Osage Indian fried bread by Mrs. Dobbs; Hawaiian fruit and macadamia nuts by Mrs. Justiss; and Korean vegetables and potatoes by Mrs. Dwayne Clawson.

Other items on the menu were Canadian meat loaf by Mrs. Ray Swann; pastisio from Greece by Mrs. Wendell Shive; dessert fondue by Mrs. Ethridge; breads by Mrs. McKinney; Swedish tea ring and meat balls by Mrs. Paul Allen and hamen tashen from Israel by Mrs. Murphy.

The party was concluded after members had sampled each of the foreign dishes.

Diet, disease topic of talk

Janet Rogers, County Extension Agent, presented a program on diet and disease at a recent meeting of the City Home Demonstration Club.

Mrs. Rogers illustrated her discussion with a film, and stressed the importance of good nutrition for good health, saying that many diets may need to be modified for health reasons.

The group, which met in the home of Mrs. Gene Turner, was presided over by Mrs. Waymon Etchison.

Mrs. Etchison announced that a leader training meeting would take place April 10 in Mrs. Roger's office, and a district meeting would be held in Fort Stockton April 6.

Twelve members attended, and the next meeting will be Mar. 31 in the home of Mrs. Etchison.

Food club plans sale

The Fairview Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Bernice Micallef at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. C.A. Smauley, president, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Howard Awtrey gave the devotional, and Mrs. Micallef gave the program on "Making a Will." She also gave each member material on "Setting Your Household in Order."

Seven members and one guest, Mrs. S.R. Marion of Idalou, were present. The next meeting will be Mar. 21 in the home of Mrs. Awtrey.

AAUW to hear tension talk

Dr. David Rickey will speak to the American Association of University Women Mar. 20 at the Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

The talk, which will start at 7 p.m., will be entitled "Hypertension? Change!" Fran Riley and Mary Crawford will host a salad supper for members and their guests.

All interested women college graduates are invited to attend.

Mistaken identity sends man to jail

BOSTON (AP) — Prosecutor Frances Burns listened to the detectives' story and feared the worst: a classic case of mistaken identity that sent the wrong man to prison for rape.

The conviction had been routine. A middle-aged woman testified that Shon S. Simmons, 25, a construction worker, broke into her apartment, robbed her and raped her in June 1976. He was convicted six months later and sentenced to 10 to 15 years in prison, where he has remained.

But doubts began to surface last May after detectives investigating two other rapes at the apartment complex found circumstances almost identical to those reported in the Simmons' case. Miss Burns recalls: "The police came by my office and told me that Simmons' photograph had been picked out by a victim who had said he looked like the man who had raped her. So I checked to see if Simmons was possibly out on furlough when these new rapes had occurred. We found out he was not."

The prosecutor called Simmons' lawyer, William Homans. "I told him that I found it disturbing and gave him all the information I had."

In the meantime, another man, Joseph Powell, 23, of Boston, was arrested in connection with the two new rapes. He is awaiting trial.

Rice-n-spice fetes Holcombe

Miss Holcombe and Luce plan to wed March 18 in the First Baptist Church, Ackery.

Tween 12 and 20 Mom should pay debt with interest

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: I'm 14 and my mother borrowed from me $409.92 to be exact, and I have the feeling she doesn't have any intention of paying me back. I want the money because I'm saving for a car.

My mother is inheriting $25,000 shortly and I was wondering if I have the right to ask her for my money or if I should forget it.

Jerry, Fort Smith, Ark. Dear Jerry: Ask mother to repay your $409.92. It's your money and mother owes it to you.

In fact, she should pay you all the money she owes you plus a little interest!

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and there are nine children in the family and I am the second oldest. I've written to two women who write advice columns and I never heard from them. Please publish my problem.

My dad has been drinking ever since he was released from the Navy. At first, it wasn't much, but as time went on it got worse. Everyone in the family has been on his case, but it seems the more we talk to him, the more he drinks.

We asked him to go to a rehabilitation center, but he says that they don't help. What should we do?

Donna, Petaluma, Calif. Dear Donna:

First of all, let me introduce you to ALA-TEEN and your mother to ALANON. This organization is fantastic. It will help your family cope with your dad. Look up the telephone number and address in the phone book.

Also at these meetings you would meet people with similar problems who could offer valuable suggestions.

Of course, let's not forget Alcoholics Anonymous. They do fantastic work with those who have a drinking problem. Stop by their offices with mother and again they will give you excellent direction.

Dr. Wallace: I've gotten to the point that I want to run away from home.

Every day when I come home from school, I am greeted with complaints. It seems everything that I do is wrong and I get yelled at.

My parents yell so much that I can't study, then they yell because my grades are not good.

Is there any way that I can be placed in a foster home. I don't want to ruin my clean record by running away.

Janet, McAllen, Texas Dear Janet:

Running away from any problem only makes things worse. If things are totally impossible for you at home, a possible solution would be to live with a relative for a while to see how things work out. I doubt if the county would place you in a foster home, but you could contact your county juvenile division for information.

Booms theory probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is investigating a scientist's theory that the supersonic Concorde airliner caused some of the mysterious booming sounds heard over the East Coast this winter.

The theory differs from a report made two weeks ago in which the Naval Research Laboratory attributed the sounds to a strange atmospheric effect upon sonic booms caused by military aircraft.

Dr. Jeremy J. Stone, director of the Federation of American Scientists, told a news conference Wednesday that military planes undoubtedly generated some of the booms, but he said he believes most were created by the British-French Concorde.

He cited several reasons for his theory, including the fact that reports of the booms and unexplained lights at night began in December, shortly after the Concorde began passenger service from Europe to New York's Kennedy International Airport.

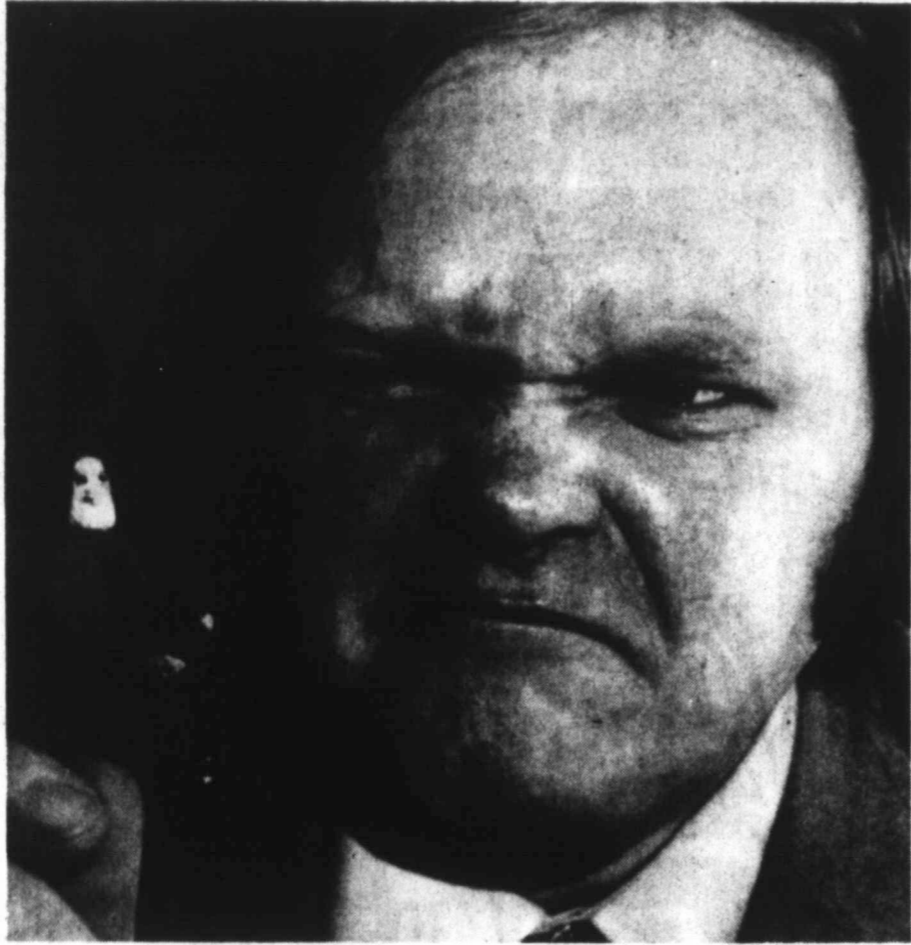

Stone also said he has correlated many of the booms with the times of arrivals or departures of Concordes at Kennedy and Dulles International Airport near Washington.

He said there have been reports of similar booms in Europe since 1976, the year the Concorde began flying there. And he noted the military aircraft cited in the NRL report had been flying in the same areas for years without causing unusual sounds or lights.

The scientist last week briefed Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and presidential science adviser Dr. Frank Press on his idea. Adams on Wednesday announced he had asked Dr. Alan Berman, who prepared the NRL report, to examine Stone's theory.

"In addition, Dr. Press has agreed to give me a recommendation as to how the scientific community might assess Dr. Berman's findings," Adams said.

Stone said NRL personnel were being very cooperative. He said he believed the Concordes were creating "superbooms" which travel at the speed of sound for hundreds of miles under certain atmospheric conditions.

LEPRECHAUNS? BAH! — Frank Kinahan, University of Chicago professor and expert on old Irish fairy tales, shows his disdain for leprechauns — and just before St. Patrick's Day, too. Kinahan says Americans think of them as small, cute imps, as depicted in the doll he's holding. Actually, he says, they are bad-tempered, mean and nasty, and they dress shabbily.

Kentucky Demo still uncommitted

Panama lobbying pressed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wendell H. Ford arrived at the Dirksen Senate Office Building at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday to work on the speech announcing he would vote against the Panama Canal treaties.

The Kentucky Democrat was one of the last of the holdouts, still uncommitted as the tally sheets showed the totals edging toward the numbers essential to approve or defeat the treaties.

But most of those sheets listed him as expected to vote against the treaties.

At 7:15 a.m., Walter F. Mondale, vice president of the United States, popped unannounced into Ford's office for a chat. The two men talked privately for about 30 minutes.

Then Ford's old friend Bob Strauss showed up with White House aide Hamilton Jordan and Lee Kling. Ford had been one of the strongest promoters of Strauss when the Texan became Democratic national chairman. Kling is a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

They were followed by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who also was publicly uncommitted but who would announce a few hours later that he would vote for the treaties.

After all the visitors had gone, Ford cancelled his request for time to make a speech. He cancelled his appointments and told an aide he needed more time to think.

Later, Ford laughed when asked if the administration had corralled another vote and said he was back working on the same speech.

The activity by the administration raised questions whether deals were being struck: a vote for the treaty in exchange for a water project, support of a farm bill, a decision to buy copper for the nation's strategic stockpile and, of course, the president's power to fill thousands of jobs in the executive and judicial branches.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., looking weary and resigned after bucking the kind of power a president can bring to bear, said, "I don't want to appear crass, but our side can't buy copper. Our side can't appoint any judges. Our side can't promise a senator he won't have an opponent."

Helms added that the Carter administration probably hasn't done any more than its predecessors in similar situations.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., heard all the stories about deals and issued an

For the record

Reina Hamby, winner of Tuesday's Miss Diamond-back Pageant, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lanny Hamby. Her parents were incorrectly listed as "Bonny Hamby in yesterday's paper. Our apologies.

Also, Suzanne Bowers, Miss Dixie Deb of 1977, was listed as being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bowers. Miss Bowers, one of three local girls to win last year's state-national Miss Southern Belle Pageant, is the daughter of Marise Bowers and Jack Bowers.

In addition to winning the Miss Dixie Deb title, she was also a national talent winner for a song and tap-dance routine.

angry blast at the administration in which he said, "The president shouldn't be the host of 'Let's Make a Deal.'"

Packwood said he was so upset by the alleged wheeling and dealing that he was considering voting against the treaties. But by Wednesday, Packwood had talked to Mondale and Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and was convinced decisions to buy copper and not to oppose a Talmadge farm bill were not related to the treaty fight.

All the lobbying wasn't from the pro side.

Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., regarded as uncommitted, was visited by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His office also was the target of hundreds of calls from treaty opponents who, after expressing their opposition, asked to be transferred to the offices of other wavering senators.

Now both behind bars

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A woman who went to the Bryan County jail to visit her husband also was jailed Wednesday, when authorities allegedly found three marijuana cigarettes among items she had brought with her.

Mary Maines was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute following her attempt to visit her husband, 23-year-old Charlie Maines.

Maines is being held in Bryan County pending sentencing for his manslaughter conviction in connection with the ambush slaying of two men at Lake Texoma.

Bryan County Deputy Sheriff Doug Clark says he found a small bag containing the cigarettes concealed in the bottom of a paper soft drink container when he searched Mrs. Maines.

A spokesman for the Bryan County District Attorney's office said Mrs. Maines was arraigned on the charge and held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Dickenson seeks votes for justice position

Bob Dickenson of Abilene visited in Big Spring Wednesday in connection with seeking election as justice to the 11th Court of Civil Appeals of Eastland.

Dickenson is one of three candidates seeking the nomination in the Democratic Primary in May for the position vacated by the resignation of Esco Walter.

Dickenson said, "I think I am by far the best qualified person to serve, as has been evidenced by the fact that I am supported by many West Texas attorneys."

"I think it is a position in which I would serve and I would enjoy serving in the court which handles appeals for this vast district from Mineral Wells to Lamesa."

Born at Santa Anna in 1933, he was raised in Cross Plains, Albany, Cisco and Stamford and graduated from high school in Stamford in 1951.

He graduated from Texas Tech with honors in 1954 and attended SMU law school, graduating in 1957.

He was assistant professor of law at Baylor in 1959-60 and has done full-time general civil law practice in Abilene since 1960, including trial work and appellate

Americans making fewer mistakes

IRS paying average refund of $489

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are making fewer mistakes on their income tax returns this year than last, and most are getting refunds, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The IRS said it found mistakes on 11 percent of the 1040A short-form returns last year but is finding errors on only 4 percent so far this year.

By mid-March, the IRS was paying an average refund of $489, an increase from the $454 average at the same time last year. About 75 to 80 percent of taxpayers will get money back.

The IRS said the accuracy rate has improved because more taxpayers can use the tax tables provided with their forms.

Taxpayers last year had to use math to figure their taxes if they made more than $20,000 a year or had a lot of deductions. This year, they can use the tax tables if they made less than $40,000 and are married and filing jointly.

The IRS estimates 96 percent of all taxpayers can figure their taxes from the tables provided.

A new problem is that some taxpayers are using the wrong table. This year there are three tables instead of one, and many people use the first one they come to, said Ellen Murphy, an IRS public affairs officer.

But the IRS says mathematical errors are still its biggest problem in handling returns.

The errors turned up so far are running 2-to-1 in favor of the government, but the IRS returns excess money taxpayers have sent in.

The agency has asked for comment on the new tax forms, which it tried to simplify this year. Officials said they got some complaints, but that others reported difficulty in changing to a new format.

The IRS cautions people still preparing taxes: —They can get their refunds back faster if they use the self-addressed envelope in the booklet for mailing their returns.

—Those filing for an earned income credit should make sure they have computed the credit correctly and have entered the name of the dependent that makes them eligible. Many people are applying who are not eligible. Taxpayers should not bother with it unless they earned less than $6,000 last year.

—The location on the form has been changed for dividends and interest, so taxpayers should make sure they are filling in the right blank.

Sweetened coal pact advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed contract, sweetened by bargainers and narrowly approved by the United Mine Workers' leadership, is heading to the coalfields, where it faces uncertain chances of ending the miners' 101-day strike.

The union's bargaining council endorsed the tentative agreement by an unexpectedly close vote of 22-17 Wednesday as some council members expressed concern the 160,000 striking miners again would vote for rejection.

Despite key industry concessions concerning health benefits and anti-wildcat strike provisions, the new settlement won less support from the council than an earlier contract that was soundly defeated by the rebellious rank-and-file.

Before the vote, several dozen striking miners picketed UMW headquarters in Washington to protest the agreement. The protest forced the bargaining council to abruptly move its meeting to the Labor Department.

The tentative agreement is the third reached between union and coal industry bargainers since the strike began on Dec. 6. The bargaining council rejected the first; the rank-and-file members turned down the second.

The members are scheduled to vote on the accord a week from Friday.

"I don't think it will pass my district," said Joseph Phipps, president of District 19 in Kentucky. "It's a better contract, but it still doesn't satisfy what the members wanted."

The principal objection to the new agreement, said Phipps and other council members, is the provision calling for company-run health insurance plans instead of the existing independent fund set up 28 years ago for UMW members and their families.

In addition, the proposed contract would require miners to pay for some health care benefits they had been receiving at no cost under the expired 1974 contract. However, the maximum payments are several hundred dollars less than under the pact rejected by the rank-and-file.

U.M.W. President Arnold Miller, who said before the council's vote that he "just couldn't imagine the rank-and-file turning it down this time," left immediately after the meeting and was unavailable for comment.

The union leadership scheduled the ratification vote for a single day, in contrast to the three days allowed last time.

During the previous vote, opponents to the pact piled up a lopsided lead after the first day.

Panama Canal tussle Senate opponents all but concede

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate opponents all but conceded that the first of two Panama Canal treaties would be approved today, as intense public and private attention was focused on a tiny handful of still-uncommitted senators.

An Associated Press count today showed 66 votes for ratification, one short of the necessary 67 for ratification if, as expected, all 100 senators vote.

"I think they've got it," said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a leader among opponents of the proposed pact guaranteeing the canal's neutrality after Panama assumes control of the waterway in the year 2000.

A vote approving the treaties would mark the first major congressional victory for President Carter in several months.

The AP count showed only four remaining uncommitted senators, including Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., who met early today with Carter at the White House.

Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, previously uncommitted, announced today he will reluctantly vote for the neutrality treaty, and for a second agreement turning over the waterway to Panama by the year 2000.

Democratic Sen. Wendell Ford of Kentucky said, as expected, that he will vote against the treaties. Ford said the treaties "neither reflects the will nor satisfies the best interests of the United States and its people."

Zorinsky said Carter pressed him for a decision. But Zorinsky said he asked Carter to give him until noon to make up his mind.

The other uncommitted senators are Democrats Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, Quentin Burdick of North Dakota and Paul G. Hatfield of Montana.

This is a chain "No Rain" column. Everyone who reads this should have someone else read it as well (use force if necessary), and they in turn should give it to someone else to read... ad infinitum.

The purpose? To secure a dry March 25. Why? Because that is the day on which the annual ABC Track Relays will be held in Big Spring's "Old Memo." Because why? Because, whenever rain falls from the sky, the outdated track which circles Memorial Stadium resembles a quarter-mile long parabolic mudpie.

And usually, whenever local clubs and thinclads try to organize a track meet, rain falls from the sky.

In West Texas, it's considered bad manners to bad-mouth the rain, or pray for no rain. That's not what I'm proposing, though. What we need here is a "postponement" of the rain on March 25 from 9 a.m. until the conclusion of the Meet, say about 6 p.m.

That's not so much to ask for, is it? Okay, all you sports fans begin working on that right now. There's not much time left before those exciting Relays begin.

ONE OF MANY METHODS USED TO PREVENT RAIN

It must not rain on ABC Relays this year. Send in your preventive ideas today.

I'd also like to put a P.S. in there about the duststorms, but we better take care of the rain first.

Speaking of the ABC Relays, the American Business Club of Big Spring and Co-Meet Directors Jerry Carter, Tom Koger and Oakie Hagood have put together quite a package for this year.

Teams from Big Spring, Lamesa, Brownfield, Odessa High, Lubbock High, Lubbock Estacado and Sweetwater will be entered in the boys' division, and girls' teams will compete from Big Spring, Brownfield, Lamesa, San Angelo, Estacado, Dunbar, Monterey, Lubbock, Coronado and Odessa Ector.

Admission is $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for students, and tickets can be purchased in advance from any ABC member.

Can't wait to see the action myself, especially since the local squad has shown early promise. Please remember to hope for "postponement" of rain, and attend the meet itself to lend support for the local thinclads.

Who knows, a good crowd may hasten the vastly-needed improvements to the ancient facility.

LITTLE LEAGUES ATTENTION!

This Saturday, all the many aspirants for Big Spring Little League teams register (watch Friday's sports section for map and times).

Despite the closing of Webb AFB, the league will reportedly be even bigger and better than last season. Lots of fine entertainment there, folks.

FVI: The Sixth Annual Summer Camp Program of Little League Baseball begins June 18, the first of three two-week sessions on the campus of Baylor University.

Basic and advance training is given in all baseball skills, for boys ages 9 through 15 years, in junior and senior divisions. Applicants need not be Little League members, and more information can be obtained by writing Little League Baseball, 1612 S. University-Parks Drive, Waco, Texas 76706, or by calling 817-756-1816.

INDISCRIMINATELY SPEAKING

Recent ratings for some of Sunday's standard sports programs show that ABC's "Wide World of Sports" is down slightly from last year but still leading the pack. NBC's college basketball is up slightly and CBS' NBA games have dropped off somewhat.

—An angry fan who threw a bottle at a referee but struck a woman in the stands was sentenced to a year in jail and a $250 fine by a Kentucky judge. The judge waived the fine and granted probation from the jail sentence if he would: 1) pay the victim's medical expenses, 2) not attend a sporting event of any kind in or out of Kentucky for two years, and 3) he must be held in detention while football games are played in his home stadium, but must help clean up the stadium afterward.

REMARKABILITIES

"Aluminum bats are the worst thing to use for young people learning to hit. It gives them a false sense of ability. A ball off an aluminum bat, bouncing off an artificial turf, could kill an infielder." — FRANK TORRE, a Rawlins official who sells wooden bats.

"Hiring Bud Wilkinson to coach the football Cardinals was a public relations stroke of genius by Bill Bidwill. Bud has the personality to win back the fans, press and players overnight." — DICK YOUNG.

"I'd rather the younger official made the call on the technical. The best way for any man to survive in any business is to do it himself. A younger man is so more vulnerable and he has to extricate himself." — RICHIE POWERS, NBA referee.

"Television's lightened grasp on sports is almost inevitable. Money produces power. And as the networks increase their coverage, they tangle more with each other." — JACK CRAIG, sportswriter.

"It's easy to dislike the NCAA." — TOM SILER, sportswriter.

WBC orders Spinks

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The World Boxing Council says world heavyweight champion Leon Spinks must agree to defend his title against Ken Norton before anyone else or lose his title.

WBC President Jose Sulaiman noted that Spinks and former champion Muhammad Ali agreed to that stipulation before they met for the title in Las Vegas last month.

Sulaiman sent a telegram to Spinks Wednesday telling him he must negotiate with Norton before March 17 or "the WBC hereby withdraws its recognition of you as the heavyweight champion of the world."

Sulaiman said he is smarting from Spinks' announcement he will give Ali a rematch.

"Both Ali and Spinks agreed that after their Las Vegas fight either would agree to defend the title against Ken Norton with no intervening contests," Sulaiman said.

"Both gave us a letter complying with that," Sulaiman said.

"Now they are saying they didn't agree to the rules, but they did," Sulaiman said. "I have the letters."

Sulaiman said the WBC required the commitments from Spinks and Ali last December in Madrid, during an annual meeting.

The WBC further required that purse offers be made by fight promoters by April 7. The bids must be made in writing, with a guarantor and a 10 percent down payment, Sulaiman said.

Lemons squeeze Cornhuskers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While Nebraska was needing Abe Lemons all week, he was badgering the worst offensive player in his lineup into his best game of the season.

Senior Gary Goodner, a 6-foot-7 center most noted for fouling out early, hit six of eight field goal attempts, made four of five free throws and collected seven rebounds Wednesday night to ignite 17th-ranked Texas to a 67-48 National Invitation Tournament quarter-final victory over the Cornhuskers.

"I had been badgering Goodner all week," said Lemons, whose sharp tongue so infuriated a Nebraska regent that he wanted all athletic ties with Texas severed. "This had to be his best game of the year. You can see what a pivot man can do for you."

Texas sailed into the NIT semifinals against Rutgers this Sunday night in Madison Square Garden in New York City. The other semifinal game will pair Georgetown against North Carolina State.

The Longhorns, 24-5, moved into the semis with the greatest of ease, hitting a sizzling 61 percent from the field Wednesday night.

"They (Texas) just keep giving you a reprieve," said Lemons. "Just about the time you think you are going and are gasping for the lung machine, somebody plugs it back in."

Lemons had held firm in a debate with Nebraska over who would have the homecourt advantage after both teams won first-round games. At one point, Nebraska Coach Joe Cipriano even called Lemons

"a loud mouth."

But all was forgiven by game time. The public address announcer even exhorted the 13,000 fans to give Nebraska a rousing round of applause when the Cornhuskers were introduced.

Jim Krivacs scored 18 points, John Moore added 13, and Ron Baxter had 10 points and 13 rebounds as the Cornhuskers, Big Eight runnerup, finished the year 22-8.

Carl McPipe, with 16 points, and reserve Andre Smith, with 14, paced Nebraska, which shot only 34 percent from the field.

Meanwhile, Georgetown, North Carolina State and Rutgers took care of their NIT business Tuesday night to advance to the final four of this venerable tournament. The Hoyas defeated Dayton 71-62, the Wolfpack whipped Detroit 84-77 and the Scarlet Knights topped Indiana State 57-56.

But television also gives the league one of its biggest headaches — the blackout. The NFL faces the threat of congressional legislation which would take the current voluntary and temporary lifting of blackouts of home games sold out 72 hours before kickoff and make it an enforced, permanent lifting with the waiting period cut to 48 hours before kickoff — and 24 hours before playoff games.

Few things get Rozelle as agitated as the blackout. Asked if congressional involvement bothered him, he snapped: "Sure, you get frustrated, but you have to accept it. When you see that since 1973 the 26 clubs (Seattle and Tampa Bay excluded) have lost 185,000 season tickets, I would have to think at least in part it's due to lifting the blackout... That figure scares me."

Sparky says Reds can win

COCOA, Fla., (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson says he believes the Houston Astros can win the National League West.

Anderson and other Cincinnati players expressed their opinion of the Houston team shortly after the Astros edged the Reds, 3-2, Wednesday in an exhibition game.

"Houston didn't even use to act like a major league team, much less play like one," said Anderson. "Now, I think they can win it. I honestly do."

A two-run homer by Jose Cruz in the first inning and a two-out run scoring single by Dennis Walling provided Houston with the victory.

Cruz' home run came off Cincinnati starter Tom Seaver, who already had yielded a single to Jimmy Sexton.

The Red scored a run in the second on Junior Kennedy's sacrifice fly and tied it at 2-2 in the second on a walk and Don Werner's groundout in the seventh.

Oscar Zamora won the game in relief for Houston and Tom Hume was tagged with the loss.

"I think Houston has the best pitching in our division," Anderson said. "They could definitely win it. Houston's problem will be overcoming both the Dodgers and us. If they just had to beat us, I'd say they might win it. If they just had to beat the Dogs, I'd say the same thing. But they have to beat both of us and that won't be easy."

"I'm not trying to hedge on what I said, but realistically, it would take every break imaginable for them to win it. You could never have (Cesar) Cedeño or (Bob) Watson or (Joe) Ferguson or (Jose) Cruz or (Enos) Cabell hurt. And you never know just how many injuries you will have. But it would not shock me if Houston won. Improbable over the long haul, but certainly not impossible."

Two other Reds had nice things to say about the Astros.

"They're a good hustling club," said Dave Concepcion. "Did they really beat us 13 games last year? Damn, Houston is sneaking up on everybody."

"Everybody is giving consideration to the Reds and Dodgers and none to Houston," said Pete Rose. "That's a mistake. If Cedeño and Watson have good years, look out."

Anderson feels Houston lacks one main ingredient. "They've never been a winner and until they do, it will be tough in this division," he said. "We play them seven of the first 10 games and that could be a big factor."

Anderson feels Los Angeles will jump out again. "They play San Diego and Atlanta early," he said. "I look for them to have a three to five game lead by the end of May."

Miami, Kentucky highlight NCAA's

Since beating Marquette, it's been tough for Miami or Ohio to keep a low profile. The Redskins have caught Joe Hall's eye, for one.

"They're a team that's developed a gunfighter reputation," notes the Kentucky basketball coach. "They've knocked off the top gun and showed they're capable of beating a better ballclub on any night."

Which means that the nation's top-ranked team will have to try harder to stay No. 1 when the Wildcats meet the Redskins tonight in the Midwest Regionals of the NCAA playoffs.

Hall was critical of some of his seniors after Saturday's 85-76 victory over Florida State in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

"We've got four seniors," Hall pointed out. "Basically, they're the ones who should be giving us the leadership — and they're not."

The Wildcats, of course, won't be able to merely pull rank against Miami, a team which has proven itself able and unpredictable. The Redskins lost eight games and were nowhere to be found in the Top Twenty all year until knocking off the defending NCAA champions last Saturday. Now they're No. 19.

"The Marquette victory shows our kids what they can do," says Miami Coach Darrell Hedrick. "We've prepared for Kentucky the way we did for Marquette. They're an outstanding team with great depth and quickness."

In the other game of the Midwest semifinals at Dayton, Ohio, Michigan State will play Western Kentucky. UCLA faces Arkansas and San Francisco meets Fullerton State in the West regionals tonight at Albuquerque, N.M.

The East and Midwest regionals will be played Friday night. In the East semis at Providence, it's Duke vs. Penn and Indiana against Villanova. The Midwest regional at Lawrence, Kan., features Notre Dame against Utah and DePaul meeting Louisville.

Michigan State finds itself in a position similar to Kentucky's—a consistent, highly-ranked team against an unpredictable, less glamorous foe. Western Kentucky has already lost 13 games this season, but had a hot hand at the end of the season to win the Ohio Valley Conference playoffs.

And Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote is as concerned about Western Kentucky as Hall is about Miami.

"Any team that gets this far can beat you," notes Heathcote.

As if Western Kentucky doesn't have enough incentive, the Wildcats would seem to have a little more with the sentimental touch of Coach Jim Richards' retirement after this season.

It's done wonders so far.

"Strangely enough, I think my retirement announcement at midseason worked in our favor," said Richards. "We came on strong late in the season to win our conference when just one game would have knocked us out. We won our last four. I think maybe the kids are trying to win a few for the old coach."

The UCLA-Arkansas game matches a team with a rich basketball tradition against a team with new-found riches. UCLA's Pac-8 champions have been used to this sort of thing for a couple of decades now, while Arkansas is just getting used to the NCAA playoffs under vibrant Eddie Sutton.

Sutton's Southwest Conference power is led by a brilliant triumvirate of Sidney Moncrief, Ron Brewer and Marvin Delph. UCLA's leading man is David Greenwood and the All-American forward teams with a strong backcourt of Roy Hamilton and Ray Townsend.

FLYING HIGH — Big Spring long jumper Kenneth Coffey takes a practice leap during a picture session Wednesday at Memorial Stadium. Coffey is currently the third-leading long jumper in District 5-4A with a 21'5 1/2" leap. Permian's Danny King has the best effort so far with 23'4". Coffey and the rest of the Steer thinclads will be in Snyder Saturday for the Canyon Reef Relays.

Park estimates he gave congressmen $750,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Korean President Park Chung Hee and his aides set up a board to try to coordinate U.S. lobbying by Tongson Park and others under the president's personal control, according to a summary of U.S. intelligence reports.

That plan was developed at a series of meetings in the South Korean president's Blue House in Seoul in 1970 after he rejected a plan to put Tongson Park in charge of all U.S. lobbying, ac-ording to the summary. The summary of U.S. intelligence reports was publicly released by Chairman Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., Wednesday at the start of his House international relations subcommittee's hearings on alleged South Korean influence-buying in Congress.

Fraser gave no details on whether the Korean president approved, or even knew that the lobbying would include, giving money to more than two dozen congressmen.

Tongson Park estimates

he gave congressmen $750,000 in political contributions and business deals

Bing's barber inks franc note

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Bing Crosby called Claude Vancleave the best barber in France in 1944, and the Memphis man has a signed franc note to prove it.

Vancleave, 64, had been a barber here for more than a dozen years when he trimmed the singer's hair in Normandy shortly after D-Day. He was a medical corpsman working with an Army field hospital when but denies he did it as an agent trying to buy influence for Seoul.

Crosby came to entertain.

"Bing came through the hospital, and the boys were joshing him about how badly he needed a haircut.

"So they called me up there and I gave him a trim. When he was through, he gave me a 50-franc note and I asked him to sign it. So he wrote on it, 'To Vancleave. The best barber in France, 1944.'"

There has been speculation that U.S. intelligence got its information by bugging the presidential mansion in Seoul.

But documents released by Fraser's subcommittee show at least one of the CIA's sources was "a casual informant."

William Porter, who was the U.S. ambassador in Seoul at the time, told the subcommittee the intelligence reports could be accurate but said he is skeptical the Koreans would accidentally let such information slip out.

"They knew how to keep secrets from us," Porter said. "I would not bet on that, necessarily, as a useful report on what went on at those meetings."

Porter, who became the State Department's No. 2 man after he left Seoul, told the congressmen he believes now that Secretary of State William P. Rogers or later Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger could have summarily ordered the South Korean operations halted.

But Porter said he does not remember considering the Korean lobbying extraordinary, even though he had known Tongson Park had intelligence contacts and was "being lavish — cutting an ever wider swath."

"I don't recall having been troubled greatly," Porter testified. "I don't recall this assumed very great proportions in 1973. I don't know why; maybe I was just too busy with other things."

Production increase recorded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite restraints from the coal strike and severe winter weather, the nation's industries managed a respectable 0.5 percent increase in production in February, partially reversing a big January slowdown, the government reported today.

The Federal Reserve Board said the weather and the coal strike probably kept the increase in production about 0.2 percent lower than otherwise would have been. Production had declined by 0.8 percent in January, one of the biggest declines since the 1974-75 recession.

The pace of production by the nation's mines, factories and utilities is an important indication of the relative health of the economy. If production increases, it means more jobs for American workers.

Automakers accounted for a substantial portion of the February gain as auto assemblies increased by 3.8 percent to an annual rate of 8.2 million units. While that is below the auto industry's projections for the year, it followed a substantial decrease in January.

Auto assemblies in January had fallen to a 7.9 million level, down from 8.9 million in December.

Also increasing in February were production of consumer durable goods, such as appliances and furniture, which advanced 2.7 percent, and business equipment, ahead 0.9 percent during the month. Output of construction supplies also increased.

Partially offsetting those gains was a 1.8 percent decrease in production of energy materials, largely due to the strike-induced cutback in coal-generated electric power.

BEVERLY CARLILE

Downtown Lions pick new queen

Downtown Lions chose Beverly Carlile to be their queen as a result of a presentation by eight pretty Big Spring High School coeds at the Wednesday meeting in the Howard College Cactus Room.

First runnerup was Diana Dominguez.

Miss Carlile, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Carlile, will represent the club in the District 2A-1 queens contest here at the district convention April 28-29.

She is 17, a senior at BSHS, active in band, and had a singing role in Campus Review, is a member of the varsity tennis team, has art for a hobby, plays the piano and guitar, and is president of her church (Highland Church of God) youth group, also reporter for its state youth organization after having been state secretary-treasurer for a year.

Diana is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jose F. Dominguez.

The selection event Wednesday was presided over by John Latham. Each of the young women introduced themselves by number and gave a brief biological sketch and detailed interests and activities.

Lebanese hardly ruffled by Israel's invasion

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hardened by 19 months of civil war, Beirut's Lebanese population seemed hardly ruffled by Israel's invasion of the southern part of their country. Moslems and Christians showed more concern about a strike of gasoline delivery drivers. Shouting motorists quarrelled as they tried to get their tanks filled in both the Moslem and Christian sectors, paying scant attention to the explosions from the Israeli air force's attack on a Palestinian refugee camp on the city's southern edge.

Children playing soccer on empty parking lots pointed at the planes, then resumed the games. The attitude seemed to be: "What's a 10-minute air strike after months of round-the-clock shelling and the loss of nearly 40,000 lives? Others interrupted their afternoon siestas and climbed to the roofs of their apartment houses to watch the attacking planes. The only visible impact of the invasion was a rush on bakeries and supermarkets and a slight rise in foreign currency rates.

"It's just a precaution," said housewife Ismet Ezel. "The war has taught us a lesson — never forget foodstocks."

Otherwise, it was business as usual, with banks, restaurants, government departments, cinemas, shops and coffee houses operating normally.

"Why worry?" said barman Joseph Shia. "The damage from this new invasion is like a drop in the bucket of violence." Official estimates put Lebanon's losses at $10 billion in the civil war between right-wing Christian forces and the alliance of Palestinian guerrillas and leftist Lebanese Moslems.

But the mood was different in the refugee camps that are the Palestinian Liberation Organization's main power base in the Middle East.

In the Sabra camp at dusk, women and children stood on balconies scanning the skies for the return of the Israeli jets.

Guerrillas rode through the camp in jeeps camouflaged with leafy branches and bearing .50-caliber machine guns.

Teen-agers and old men moved through the cluttered streets wearing fatigue uniforms and armed with Russian rifles.

It was difficult to distinguish the damage done by the Israeli planes. Like much of Beirut, the camp still bears extensive scars of the civil war.

Pancake event Friday at HC

The Kiwanis annual Pancake Supper will be from 5-8 p.m. Friday at Howard College cafeteria.

Cosmonauts complete space trip

MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko returned safely to Earth today after 96 days, completing the longest manned space flight in history, Tass announced.

The Soviet news agency said Romanenko, the 33-year-old flight commander, and Grechko, the 46-year-old engineer, landed in the Soyuz 27 spacecraft at 1:19 p.m. Moscow time (6:19 a.m. EST) in Kazakhstan, in Soviet Central Asia.

Both men were reported in good condition.

On March 4, they broke the 84-day record for continuous time in space set four years ago by U.S. astronauts Gerald Carr, Edward Gibson and William Pogue aboard Skylab 4.

The new record is 96 days and 10 hours.

Before leaving the Salyut 6 space station, where the cosmonauts spent most of their time, they put it on remote-control status. Other Soviet cosmonauts are expected to go aloft later in the year, taking East German and Polish cosmonauts with them, and they may also use the station.

The United States has not made a manned space flight since the 1975 joint Apollo-Soyuz mission with the Soviet Union. Flights in the U.S. space shuttle are to begin in 1980.

The Romanenko-Grechko flight set a series of space firsts. They included the first linkup of three separate orbiting spacecraft, forming an elongated "space sausage"; the first space refueling mission, using the "Progress 1" robot supply ship; and the first launching into space of a cosmonaut from any country other than the Soviet Union or the United States.

Vladimir Remek, a 29-year-old air force captain from Czechoslovakia, spent a week along with Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Gubarev as guests of Romanenko and Grechko earlier this month.

In January, Soviet cosmonauts Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Oleg Makarov were guests aboard the Salyut 6.

General Telephone Company of the Southwest has filed tariffs with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to implement the Federal Communications Commission's telephone equipment registration program (FCC Docket 19528). The tariffs have an effective date of April 15, 1978. The proposed changes will reduce rates for extension telephones and 25 foot long cords; will restructure one-time charges for service connection, moves and changes, increasing some and reducing others; and will offer reduced monthly rates for one-party business and residence customers who provide their own primary telephone instrument. The proposed changes in rates, with some increasing and others decreasing, will reduce General's gross revenues from its Texas operations by $2,565,000.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Matters that are of basic importance in your life such as family, property and possessions can be properly safeguarded by being alert to problems associated with them. Plan for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Don't lose your temper at home with family members just because you are not feeling up to par. Take more time for recreation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Gather all the data you need from an expert but use tact for best results. Try not to be too forceful with others at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A personal problem will cost you less money if you handle it wisely. Try to cut down on expenses and build a greater reserve.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Harden your sensibilities so you are not hurt by the careless manners of others. Take any health treatments you may need.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): If you feel limited in some way, clear away obstacles one by one, and all works better for you. Go to an expert for the advice you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Be sure to obtain the data you need from the right sources, but don't be too forceful. Make long-range plans for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Be careful not to jeopardize your prestige and good name. Take no chances where your health is concerned at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You are bored and want to run off to new activities, but it's best you stick to work you have to do. Take it easy tonight and rest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Know what your true position is with others and then go after personal aims with confidence. Make plans for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Your intuition is not working right at this time so use good judgment in all your dealings. Don't overlook an obligation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can make a good impression on higher-ups at this time and get the backing you need. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You have creative ideas that need some revision if they are to work out successfully. Think constructively.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do well in work that has to do with troubleshooting, be it with the government or with private organizations. Teach early to be objective for best results and not to stir up trouble just to show ability to overcome it.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Child killer seeks stay of execution

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge today is studying a request for a stay of execution by the first Texas prisoner sentenced to die by lethal injection. Kenneth Granviel, scheduled to die April 7, was the first person condemned to die by lethal injection after the Texas Legislature changed the method of execution in the state from death in the electric chair. He was convicted in Fort Worth in 1975 of the 1974 knife slaying of a 2-year-old girl.

He argued before U. S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Wednesday that his rights were violated because persons who opposed the death penalty were allegedly excluded from jury duty. Granviel, imprisoned at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, also claimed that he was denied effective assistance of counsel, due process of law and equal protection when the testimony of his psychiatrist that he was not

Police chief: 'I don't like it' Valley prison prospects

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — An influx of 2,000 new residents to the Rio Grande Valley would help the local economy—even if the new neighbors spend their time behind bars, according to local officials. "If there were no Bess Myerson, I'd be addressing you as congressman Koch," he said. Koch, a bachelor who often has escorted Miss Myerson, reminded the 400 persons attending the dinner that the guest of honor served as a co-chairman of his mayoral campaign. "We've been called to the county jail. We've had shootings at the county jail, disturbances at the county jail and farmers at the county jail," he said. "But other local officials think the advantages of the proposed facility outnumber the potential pitfalls. Russell Willis, executive vice president of the Valley Chamber of Commerce, said the new jobs might dent the 10 per cent local unemployment rate. "Our industrial efforts have always resulted in jobs for females. This would create jobs for males," Willis said.

Changing flight schedules 'Air mail trucked to San Antonio'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Flight schedules for Laredo are changed so frequently and service is so inconsistent that "air mail is trucked to San Antonio," says the president of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce. Dennis Longoria, portrayed Laredo as a booming border city that needs numerous commuter flights as well as service from larger jetliners. He told a Texas Aeronautics Commission hearing examiner on Wednesday that Laredo is the No. 1 port of entry between the United States and Mexico, that more than 157 oil and gas companies have located there in the past 3 1/2 years and it ranks 13th among Texas' 254 counties in tourism. Longoria supported a proposal by Texas Airlines, Inc., to provide passenger and cargo service between McAllen and Brownsville, Laredo-Corpus Christi and San Antonio and Austin. Texas International Airlines, Inc. is opposing the application, and its lawyer, James Wilson of Austin, told Longoria if Texas gets a Laredo route, Texas International may halt its service. "The Laredo market at the present time is at best marginal," said Wilson, and the entry of Texas might "force Texas International to take their marketing plans

Oil allowable

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' average calendar day oil allowable as of March 1 was 3,508,992 barrels, a decrease of 6,554 barrels from Feb. 15, the railroad commission reported Tuesday. The legal rate of flow was measured from 180,077 wells, which is 1,219 fewer than in mid-February, the commission said. The commission said there are 8,896 oil fields in the state.

Seven Oklahoma jail escapees captured

All seven prisoners who escaped from the McCurtain County jail in Idabel Monday night were back in custody early Wednesday ending a multi-state manhunt. The far southeastern Oklahoma jailbreak was discovered during a mid-night Monday bedcheck. At about 10 p.m. Tuesday, two of the men, Charles Ray Giddens, 18, and Roy Gene Roddy, 23, both of Idabel, turned themselves in to McCurtain County authorities. Giddens was awaiting the outcome of an appeal of his murder conviction last month. His father apparently talked him and Roddy into surrendering, sheriff's deputies said. At about 11:15, three more of the escapees were apprehended in Marietta, in south central Oklahoma. The 1974 model car they had allegedly stolen was also recovered. Love County authorities were holding Eddie Clay Lambert, 18, of Marietta; Kenneth Billy, 21, of Broken Bow and Alberto Flores Ortiz, 20. The sheriff's office refused to provide details of the arrests. Ardmore authorities reported they apprehended the remaining two escapees early Wednesday. They were holding James Larry Claborn, 19, of Wright City, and Stanley J. Williams, 21, for return to Idabel.

Rattler in Gibson's decision

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The last thing Gerald Overstreet of Del Rio expected to find in the grocery section of the local Gibson's discount store was a 4-foot 8-inch rattlesnake. Overstreet didn't exactly find the snake. The rattler found him. It didn't even buzz before striking Overstreet on the leg while he reached for a jar of jelly on Oct. 12, 1974.

The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday, without writing a new opinion, that it wasn't Gibson's fault a snake was slithering around on Aisle 7. Overstreet's lawyers convinced a jury that Gibson's owed him $17,500, plus medical expenses totaling $2,820. But the trial judge ruled that the jury verdict went against Texas law and threw it out.

The San Antonio Court of Civil Appeals agreed the law was on Gibson's side, not Overstreet's, and the Supreme Court upheld its decision. Overstreet's lawyers said he spent 10 days in the hospital, had a "hideous scar" and has nightmares about snakes. Witnesses for Overstreet testified Gibson's had a door that would not completely close. They said mice entered and the opening was big enough to admit rattlers, who eat mice.

But the appeals court said a store owner's duty to protect his customers from wild animals does not begin until he knows of their presence. "The ordinary person does not launch a snake hunt every time he sees mice...There is no evidence indicating that snakes will enter a building in search of mice, nor can it be said that man's experience has been such as to induce a reasonable belief that they will," the court said.

What goes up must come down

with Marj Carpenter

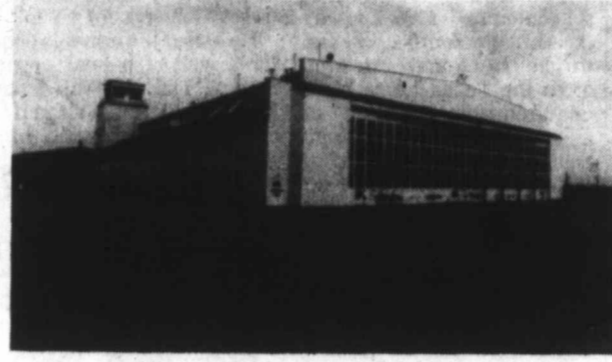

Hangar No. 1 is to be demolished. It has to come down fast to make room for a new hangar if Lockheed Aircraft comes to Big Spring.

Denver Pettitt, well known in Big Spring for his craftsmanship and artistry in building violins, also helped put up that hangar. In fact, he and Johnny Green are the only ones left around here that were supervisors when the hangar was built during World War II.

Pettitt still has the check stubs from the time when payments were made to workers on the projects. The hangar was constructed between June and Sept. 11, 1942. The old Bombardier School was being built in Big Spring and it was the first hangar. It was war time. Security was tight. Nobody got into the base unless they belonged in there. Time was short. In 1942, America was behind and trying to get men trained quickly for the war in progress.

The hangar had French plans for a steel building. It had to be changed to wooden and American fabric materials. There was no time to get the plans translated. Pettitt chuckled and recalled, "Green said this may have been a Frenchman's dream but it's an American builder's nightmare. We'll be lucky if it stands three weeks." Here it is 36 years later and it's still standing and having to be torn down.

HANGAR NO. 1 AT WEBB AFB

He said it was constructed for bomber overhaul...and he recalls that there were about 100 men working on the project. "It would be hard to get 100 men together today to construct anything," he laughed. He said when they turned it over to the painters in September, Green quipped again, "Well, maybe it will stand more than three weeks — how about three years?" But the hangar has seen lots of duty and lots of interesting occasions. In recent years, the big beer busts for the non-coms were held there by a group of local citizens.

There were a lot of people and they had a lot of room in that hangar to stand around and visit at those parties. Nobody speculated about when it was built or when it would be gone. It was just a part of the Big Spring scene. And it's a part of the Big Spring scene that will soon be gone — out by the old Webb Air Force Base and the old Bombardier School fence.

Did Jesus have to do homework? Will there be TV in heaven?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Every Thursday it is my exquisite delight to lurk in the afternoon shadows of my den and eavesdrop on some of the great philosophical questions of our time. "Will there be television in heaven?" "How many channels can we get?" "Did Jesus have to do homework?"

life's imponderables would delight an Augustine or an Aquinas. Like Kipling's "Kim," they are "bound upon the wheel of things," searching out the great river of truth, and the originality of their thinking never fails to amaze. Their answers would keep the learned elders in the Temple firing questions all day long. "What did Jesus do when he returned with Joseph and Mary to the carpenter shop at Nazareth?" "Well, he kept out of the way and didn't touch any of the tools."

A little after three o'clock, seven little 7 year olds, four girls and three boys, come thundering off the school bus into our house heaven-bent on learning why God made them. My wife is preparing them for their First Communion, and some weeks I can hardly wait for them to get here. The level of discussion beats any TV talk show around the dial. At first glance these tiny seekers after truth might appear to be only rice Christians, since the sessions always begin with cookies and fruit juice and a few of them seem hungry enough to push the miracle of the loaves and fishes to the limit. But once the lesson gets started, their enthusiasm for the same wonder and awe of the sacrament, even if, born into the Watergate era, their idea of confession is telling all they know about the other guy. But unfettered by dogma or mechanical teaching techniques, their thoughts often soar where angels only tread. "Holy Orders," defined one tiny theologian, "is the orders Christ read out when he sent the Apostles out to work." The missionary role was rarely better expressed. As Sean O'Faolain, the Irish writer, once put it: "There's a lot to be said for illiteracy. It teaches a man to think for himself."

One day my wife was explaining to them that the essential message of religion was love and charity and kindness. "Now what would you do, Kelly," she asked one of the girls, "if you saw your little brother carrying a heavy package?" Kelly has a little brother, 5 years old, and she was ready for that one.

"If my little brother was carrying a heavy package," she answered, "without batting her long eyelashes, 'you can bet your life I'd be carrying a heavier one.' Saturdays at the supermarket had taught her a lot about life's inequities.

I'm intrigued by the determined little feminist who insists on signing off her prayers "alady" instead of amen, and the boy who wanted to know, out of the mysteries of creation, how God made bones. "Pretty much all the honest truth telling in the world," said Oliver Wendell Holmes, "is done by children," which is why it is dangerous to discuss sin and human frailty with them. In a trice, they'll give you the complete dossier on the family and its drinking habits, leaving no skeletons uncollected.

All those involved in teaching the very young the profundities of existence have tales to tell out of school. A nun in Brooklyn once wrote an article for Catholic Digest about children who pray "Hail Mary, full of grapes" and "lead us not into Penn Station" and sing the hymn "Gladly, the cross I'd bear" as if it were about a Muppet character called "Glady, the Cross-eyed Bear." Kids somehow think that the ascension into heaven was accomplished with the help of Pontius the pilot, who also may have been on the flight deck for the flight into Egypt.

An AP editor told me his wife teaches a religion class and one day she asked a little boy what the apostles were given at the Last Supper. "Well," he gave it the old college try, "first they had a salad..."

One day on Elba the captain of the guard asked Napoleon what he looked back upon as the greatest day in his life. Without hesitation, the prisoner replied, "The day I made my first Holy Communion." Kids today seem to have
