By narrowly approving Panama Canal treaties

Senate gives Carter major victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — By narrowly approving the Panama Canal treaties, the Senate has handed President Carter a major foreign policy victory whose domestic political impact may be felt at the polls in November.

By a vote of 68 to 32, the Senate on Tuesday accepted the second and final treaty setting forth the terms by which the United States will relinquish control of the canal to Panama by the year 2000.

Under the treaty, the United States reserves the right to use military force if necessary to keep the canal "open, neutral, secure and accessible," while forbidding any attempt to interfere with Panama's "political independence or sovereign integrity."

Moments after the Senate acted, Carter telephoned Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd and congratulated him on a "beautiful vote."

While thousands of jubilant Panamanians danced, drank and sang in the streets, Panama's strongman,

Gen. Omar Torrijos, told his countrymen in a televised address: "This treaty ends colonialism. I feel proud that I have accomplished our mission."

Ronald Reagan, a leader of conservative opposition to the treaties, said the Senate vote was "a very extreme case of ignoring the sentiment of the people of our country. They were overwhelming in their disapproval of the treaties."

The political repercussions of the Senate vote may be seen before the year is over. Sixteen of the 68 senators who voted for the treaties in the toughest congressional battle of Carter's 15-month old administration are up for re-election in November.

Many senators face uphill political campaigns as a result of their support for the agreements, which stirred broad public opposition in most parts of the country.

Among them are Democrats Sam Nunn of Georgia and Paul Hatfield of Montana and Republicans Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Clifford Case of New Jersey.

Within an hour of the dramatically close vote Tuesday night — the identical vote by which the Senate on March 16 approved the first treaty guaranteeing the canal's neutrality — Carter acknowledged the political risks of supporting the agreements.

The president appeared in the White House press room to express his special thanks to senators "who have done what is right because it was right, despite the tremendous pressure and in some cases political threats."

The 67th and deciding vote for the second treaty was cast by Majority Leader Byrd, who said: "I wanted to take the heat if anybody had to for the 67th vote."

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, who is running for re-election in Tennessee, was asked about the impact of his role in helping guide the treaties to final approval.

"The votes are good for my country, good for my party," he said. "If they are good for the country and the party, I can't help but believe that they are good for me too."

AFTER THE VOTE — Panama's leader Gen. Omar Torrijos, left, holds a cigarette Tuesday while talking with Panama Canal treaty negotiator Romulo Escobar Betancourt in Panama City after the U.S. Senate voted to ratify the final Panama Canal treaty. Torrijos, in a national television broadcast, said after the vote, "We were going to take the route of violent liberation," had the treaty been rejected.

Free beer, dancing in streets

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanians danced in the streets long past midnight, celebrating the U.S. Senate's approval of the treaty giving them control of the Panama Canal in 22 years. A brief protest by about 200 treaty opponents failed to dampen the fiesta mood.

Several thousand people drinking free beer jammed into Cinco de Mayo Plaza in downtown Panama City after the Senate's 68-32 vote. The crowd danced under Christmas lights while smaller groups gathered on street corners singing and swaying to bonzo drums.

Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian strongman who once called his country's desire for a new canal treaty "the only religion uniting all Panamanians," laid on the free beer and declared today a national holiday. He said now that Panama has a sense of national unity, all political exiles will be allowed to return "without strings or conditions" and political parties soon will be allowed to resume normal activity.

Leftist students from the University of Panama tried to demonstrate in protest against the treaties, demanding that the canal be turned over to Panama immediately, but attracted little support. They clashed briefly with pro-treaty students, but the fighting was broken up quickly. Many drifted away to join the celebrants.

On the Atlantic side of the country, President Demetrio B. Lakas led a happy parade through the streets of Colon.

Following the Senate vote, Torrijos told a news conference he had been prepared to sabotage the canal if the treaty failed to pass.

"The armed forces had decided that if the treaty was not ratified, or if it was amended in an unacceptable manner, then we would not negotiate," Torrijos said. "We would have started a struggle of liberation. Possibly by tomorrow the canal would not have been in operation."

"We have the capability to destroy the canal despite all the (U.S. military) commands.... We have had 10 years of preparations."

Torrijos also warned the United States against trying to intervene in Panamanian affairs after Panama takes over the canal.

"If they invade," he said, "they will find a canal destroyed. If they try to invade, we will destroy the canal."

The general said in a TV address that he never considered renegotiating the treaties, which were approved by the Panamanians two-to-one in a plebiscite last fall.

Meanwhile, there was gloom and anger among the 10,000 Americans in the Canal Zone.

In from 30 to 60 days

Coliseum finish foreseen

By MARJ CARPENTER

"The coliseum should be completed within 30 to 60 days," Daryl Hohertz, architect, told the college board of trustees at its regular meeting Tuesday.

"The contractor said probably within 30 days, but so many things have happened along the way that I'm almost afraid to set a date," the architect added.

The most recent bit of bad luck was that the seats arrived with 40 short and they had to send for the additional seats prior to changing a railing to meet fire regulations.

At the present time, the finished floor is being placed over the base floor. Electrical installations have also delayed them in recent weeks.

"When one thing is delayed, it slows down other things," the architect added. "For instance if you don't have a light in a room without windows, there's no way to paint it."

There was no penalty clause in the contract, but the board has held up final payments until completion. At this time 84 per cent has been paid. The college still owes approximately $321,000 on the facility.

Don McKinney, formerly vice president of the board of trustees, was officially sworn in as a new board member and then elected president of the group.

College turning all Webb property back to city

Howard College board of trustees voted to turn all Webb AFB property designated for the college back to the city when they met at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Reason for the action was that the trustees had not obtained all of the property they requested originally in connection with the motor pool. Part of it was saved for Lockheed and now was being saved for other possible industry, according to Dr. Charles Hays, college president.

The action also included the hospital and dormitories which the college had hoped to utilize if it obtained the medical school from Texas Tech. The school would have then shared the cost of insurance on the building and other items.

Dr. Hays said insurance had already cost them $5,000 and they could not keep holding the facility.

The possibility of a regional cancer diagnosis center is apparently "way off in the future" according to a report by Dr. P.W. Malone, college board member.

The hospital could only go free to an educational or public medical facility such as the college of Veterans Administration Hospital.

It will probably now go back to the Department of Housing, Education and Welfare which will turn it back to the General Services Administration.

It might then be available for rental although details of the status of the building are not available.

The item was brought up at the college board meeting under proposals and discussions.

Harry Nagel, city manager, said here today, "We knew nothing about it. This is the first I have heard of it. I am surprised that the college does not want to utilize any of the facilities out here for possible future growth."

"They were advised from the start that part of the facilities, or the main part, would have to be used for obtaining industry to make the park a paying proposition."

"I do not know what this does to the future of the hospital building — or whether we could ever obtain it back for a cancer center, or what would happen to it. It's something we will now have to go back and look into."

Dr. P.W. Malone said here this morning, "I did not realize when we voted that it had not been discussed with the Steering Committee. We do face a lot of tight budget problems on the college board and were greatly disappointed when Texas Tech refused to consider the facility as a branch."

"We would have then placed our nursing school at the facility and shared cost with Tech. I don't know what the answers are. There would be a good use for that wonderful facility. Everybody knows I am also interested in obtaining some type of cancer branch here if possible."

Nation's economic output sags

More bad news for jobless

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economic output dropped for the first time in three years in the first quarter of 1978 as businesses and consumers curtailed their spending, the Commerce Department said today.

The report was bad news for businesses and unemployed workers, who are counting on economic growth to provide jobs and stimulate purchases.

The nation's gross national product, or output of goods and services, declined at an annual rate of 0.6 percent in the first three months of the year, the department said. That was the first drop since a 9.6 percent slide during the first quarter of 1975, at the end of the recession.

Severe winter weather and the coal strike held the economic output down by about 2.5 or 3 percentage points, the department estimated. That means that even with mild weather and no coal strike, the economy would have grown by only about 2 to 2.5 percent.

Economists say it takes a growth rate of about 4 percent a year to keep unemployment, which is now 6.2 percent, from worsening. Contrasting with the latest decline, McKinney commended Dr. Charles Warren for his four years of service as president.

Harold Davis was elected vice president of James (Buddy) Barr was named secretary-treasurer of the board of trustees.

The board made a study of the preliminary budget and also went into executive session to discuss personnel considerations.

The only announcement made following the session was to accept the resignation of Mrs. Johnnie Amos, longtime head of the LVN program with deep appreciation for her years of service.

Other items discussed will be brought forth at the time of the public hearing on the budget at the regular meeting May 16. There is some indication that at least one administrative position will be cut and there will be some shuffling of teaching assignments and administrative load at that time.

The board had already agreed that new teachers would not be hired where there are to be two retirements and there is a possibility that one teacher will be changed from full-time to part-time basis.

All of this is in connection with tightening of the belt until more full-time students can be obtained to bring the college back up to its previous level. Adult education programs are showing high enrollment.

Mike Bruner, business manager reported on the tax appraisal board activities, telling them that the aerial photographing has been completed and mapping will follow. He asked for additional direction in determining what would be done next by the board.

All board members were present including Jimmy Taylor, Dr. P.W. Malone, K.H. McGibbon, Dr. Warren, Davis, Barr and McKinney. Dr. Charles Hays, college president and other administrators were present.

VAVS seeks funds for patients' van

The Veterans Administration Volunteer Services have announced a new project for the VA Hospital.

The group has formed a committee to raise funds for the purchase of a vehicle similar to the GMC modified trans-mode van to be used for transporting wheelchair and ambulatory patients from the Big Spring VA to other hospitals for special tests and to special activities in the community.

Chairmen Pete Evans and Ken Cooper say that all possible resources for obtaining the money have been exhausted, "but we learned that several other VA hospitals have obtained one through the efforts of VAVS committees who accepted this challenge, and we decided that if they can do it, we can do it!"

The cost of the van is estimated at approximately $30,000, and the committee will welcome not only local donations, but any fund-raising ideas. All donations will be acknowledged, and a plaque placed in the bus will list the contributors who "made this dream a reality for our veterans in Big Spring."

Any donations may be made payable to the VAVS Bus Project, and should be sent to the VAVS Bus Project Committee (125), VA Hospital, Big Spring, Texas, 79720.

Other committee members are: Mrs. Kathryn Thombs, Elton Carlie, Mrs. Charlotte Young, Capt. Bill Woodard, Bill Martin, Leroy Holloman, Mrs. Mildred Sterle, Mrs. Lois Meiselman, Mrs. Gladys Millers, James G. Morrow, and Marion B. Ireland.

Action/reaction: Vital groups

Q: Why are local police reserves so often ignored when praise is passed around?

A: Volunteer groups such as the police reserves or the volunteer firemen often get the short end of the stick when accolades are handed out, but they are both vital groups to the community and county.

Offbeat: Bridge 'steal'

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — FOR SALE: One do-it-yourself steel bridge, 216 feet long, slightly used but suitable for small creeks, $15,000 minimum.

Show up here at the Chelan County surplus equipment auction May 13 and it could be yours. County Engineer Lloyd Berry says it's a steal.

The steel truss bridge, built in 1911, is in pieces now. But, Berry says, they're all numbered and coded for easy re-assembly.

However, Berry warns, prospective buyers must supply their own wooden decking for the span, which is 24 feet wide and has a 14-foot height clearance.

The bridge originally carried traffic over the Spokane River near the Idaho border, but in 1950, Chelan County bought it from Spokane County and placed it about four miles up the Entiat River.

The structure was replaced in 1974 because the county got a federal grant for a wider, concrete span, Berry said.

Tops on TV: Take pick

Those who have been following it won't want to miss the final episode of "Holocaust," which airs at 7:30 p.m. on NBC. Others should tune in to the offbeat Western, "Posse," starred in and directed by old cliff chin, Kirk Douglas. The flick also features the ever-talented Bruce Dern. Watch it at 8 p.m. on CBS.

REASONER LEAVING ABC — Barbara Walters will stay, Harry Reasoner will go, is said to be the gist of a planned announcement by ABC news chief Boone Arledge, today. Reasoner has asked to be let out of his five-year contract, complaining that his role had been reduced since Miss Walters joined the network 18-months ago.

Homosexual rights hassle

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — It will be the "Bible-believing preachers" vs. the "people-loving people" tonight when opposing camps vie for voter support in a fight to repeal protection for homosexual rights. The politically liberal but religiously traditional people of St. Paul go to the polls next Tuesday to vote on whether to scratch gay rights from a human rights city ordinance.

Charitable contributions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal Treasury could lose up to $4 billion a year if Congress approves House committee action to let taxpayers who use the standard income tax deduction take an additional write-off for charitable contributions. The change was approved in committee Tuesday.

Slick is giddy but alive

OAK PARK, Mich. (AP) — Slick the garter snake is giddy but alive, thanks to his owner who held him by the tail for three hours after Slick slithered down an auto dashboard vent. "He was halfway into the windshield defrosting vent before I grabbed his tail," said Leonard Schiffman. "If I had let go he would have crawled in further and probably have died." Slick, though, apparently didn't realize the jam he was in and fought Schiffman's gentle tugs on his tail. "I couldn't pull too hard or I would injure him," said Schiffman. Police and gas station attendants also tried their hand, but to no avail. A veterinarian arrived and gave Slick a tranquilizer shot. Schiffman then pulled the limp snake from the vent.

Mayor fulfills wish

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The mayor of Amarillo has fulfilled one of his childhood wishes, but he may have lost a vote from the local high school principal. Mayor Jerry Hodge, an alumnus of Tascosa High School, returned to the campus Tuesday morning to dedicate a park. The students turned out and the mayor cut the ribbon. Then, about 11 a.m., Hodge made an announcement he said he had been told not to make. "Class dismissed," the mayor said. With that, the students scattered. Principal Gerald Nipp said the mayor had no authority to send the students home. He warned that no absences would be excused. A check after lunch revealed that about half the students had returned to class.

Teach a Yankee to Drive

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — This Atlantic coastal town doesn't want tourists to go home, despite what some local automobile bumper stickers say. A student at New Smyrna Beach High School, apparently upset about weekend traffic jams, sold the stickers until Principal William Pickhardt ordered a halt. The stickers have sayings such as "Save the South: Teach a Yankee to Drive" and suggesting to visitors from Orlando: "O'villes, Go Home."

Frogmen scour lake for body of Moro

ROME (AP) — Searchers for the body of former Premier Aldo Moro dynamited the icy cover of Lake Duchessa and drained a quarry today but found no trace of the kidnapped political leader. Speculation grew that the Red Brigades' announcement of his execution was a ruse. Divers, trained mountain dogs and hundreds of others continued searching in and around the snowbound lake 72 miles northeast of Rome, where a communique received Tuesday said the body would be found. Experts said the message appeared to have been written by the terrorists who grabbed Moro March 16 and killed his five bodyguards. But no trace of the body was found, leading officials to speculate that the communique was a trick to lull police away from the hunt for the kidnappers or a hoax to further the terrorists' psychological warfare against the "bourgeois" state. The search was widened under floodlights during the night to a flooded stone quarry beside a highway six miles from the lake. Investigators said the metal fence between the road and the quarry had been cut, and there were signs of automobile tire tracks on the ground. However, the search turned up nothing. Doubt of the message's authenticity also was cast when the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera quoted a

Police beat Till-tappers arrested

Police arrested two men just after they dipped their fingers into the till at the Quality Glass and Mirror Company, 1001 11th, Tuesday. According to reports, the men walked into the company around 1 p.m. and, noticing that no one was behind the desk, grabbed a tray full of money from the cash register. But they were spotted by employees who took the license number of their getaway car as they sped off. Detective J.D. Carter caught up with them at the intersection of Highway 350 and the South Service Road of IS 20. With the help of Detective Avery Falkner, Officer James Nettles and Sgt. Jerry Pruitt, the two men were arrested, and the cash register tray containing $94 was recovered. It was later learned, however, that the two suspects had thrown about $600 worth of checks into a dumpster behind a local Seven-Eleven Store. Unfortunately, police arrived at the dumpster just after the garbage truck, and even after scouring the city dump they were unable to find the checks. Both suspects face charges of felony theft. Other than this incident, officers spent a relatively quiet Tuesday. David Campbell, 1506 E. Cherokee, reported that while his car was parked at Denny's Restaurant, burglars ripped off an eight-track tape player and eight tapes from inside. Loss was estimated at $100. Minnie Hernandez, 1406 Virginia, reported that burglars broke into her home, and stole an unknown amount of cash and checks. The incident occurred sometime between 5:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. Two were injured in an auto accident, that took place 7:35 p.m. Tuesday, at the intersection of Highway 87 and Driver. Vehicles driven by Marion M. Ricketts, 2503 Rebecca, and Sylvan B. Grover, Forsan, collided as Ricketts attempted a left turn from Highway 87 onto Driver while Grover travelled north on 87. Ricketts was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he is reported in excellent condition and is expected to be released today. A passenger in the Grover car, Mary Grover, was taken to Hall Bennett Hospital where she was treated and released. Five other mishaps were reported Tuesday. Vehicles driven by Austin M. Evan, Steeles Hotel, and Samuel H. Mesker, 1812 Main, collided at 18th and Main, 3:14 p.m. Vehicles driven by Rose Bass, 636 Caylor, and Charles M. Havens, 616 Tulane, collided at 600 Tulane, 5:19 p.m. Vehicles driven by Myrtle P. Squyres, 1005 Bluebonnet, and Robin L. Walker, 1904 E. 25th, collided at 24th and Johnson, 12:35 p.m. Vehicles driven by Kenneth A. Born, Route 1, and Agapito M. Cerda, 1414 Wood, collided at Third and Main, 7:32 a.m. Vehicles driven by Kenneth F. Matthews, Route 3, and Lonnie E. Melton, Ackerly, collided at Sixth and Owens, 10:11 a.m.

Perrin says Hill can build pride in state

Mike Perrin, campaigning for governor for his father-in-law, Attorney General John Hill, said here Tuesday Texas needs a governor who can make Texans proud of their state government again. "The Dolph Briscoe administration has been a series of embarrassments," Perrin said during stops on a 675-mile Hill for Governor campaign caravan from Pecos to Austin. The caravan is one of 10 being led by Hill family members and supporters April 17-21 throughout the state. They will converge Friday in Austin, where the candidate will speak at a San Jacinto Day Caravan Party (noon, April 21, Waterloo Park, 11th and Red River). The caravans will cover 6,500 miles and will stop at 225 cities. "First, there were those painful scenes on national TV when Gov. Briscoe fell flat on his face at the 1972 National Democratic Convention and tried to cast Texas' votes for George Wallace and George McGovern both. "Then there was the dead man he appointed to a state board. Then there was the story of the Mexican consul who started trying in July, 1976 to pay a courtesy call on the governor and couldn't get in for six months. "Then he got city-slickered by the President with a letter promising to

Rumors of Goodfellow closure arouses group

SAN ANGELO — Rumors have been multiplying that Goodfellow AFB of San Angelo will be included in the next round of military base closings planned by the Pentagon. For that reason the Political Affairs committee of San Angelo Chamber of Commerce is making plans to send a special committee to Washington to seek help in keeping the facility open. In a special called meeting held here Tuesday, Chamber President Billy Willig revealed that congressional confirmation had been sent to San Angelo that Goodfellow is on the list. The announcement of new Pentagon cutbacks likely could have already been made but for the fact that the U.S. Senate has been engaged in debate and reaching a decision over the Panama Canal Treaty. The Senate voted affirmatively on the treaty Tuesday.

Midwife clinic debated

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Dr. James Clark believes low-income residents of this border city should have an alternative to the sometimes questionable services of a lay midwife and an expensive trip to the hospital for maternity care.

But the Brownsville obstetrician's answer to the dilemma has sparked questioning from a state agency.

Clark recently opened the private Brownsville Women's Clinic. The plan is to utilize a certified nurse midwife — a specially trained registered nurse — to deliver babies.

An expectant mother will pay $400-500 for complete medical care through the clinic. Lay midwives charge about $200 here while a trip to the hospital runs to $1,000.

Clark's problems, however, began last week with a phone call from John Sartore, chief investigator for the Texas Medical Examiners Board. The board had received a copy of the clinic's proposed procedures. Included was the possible use of prescription drugs in some cases.

"He said if we opened up there was a possibility they'd take away my nurse's license and my license," Clark said.

While there is apparently nothing wrong with delivering babies at the clinic (a 1956 state court decision says the delivery of a child is not the practice of medicine), Sartore said the use of drugs not prescribed by a doctor "could" constitute improper practice.

"The problem in Brownsville is that more than three-fourths of the deliveries are performed by lay midwives who are completely untrained," Clark said.

But since the delivery of a baby is not the practice of medicine, the state has no control over the lay midwives, Clark said. The city of Brownsville does require lay midwives to register and take a test.

And while the lay midwives are not supposed to use drugs, they can slip across the border and obtain medication without prescriptions.

Sartore, who said he could not talk about the matter, confirmed that board and clinic representatives were to meet in Austin Wednesday to discuss the situation.

The clinic has not delivered any babies yet, but Clark anticipates a brisk business. In two weeks an average of three new patients a day have come in.

Clark added that while untrained lay midwives do not seem to be the answer, costly hospital stays also do not meet the needs in the impoverished barrios.

"There are two main reasons why people go to midwives. One is financial. The other is cultural. Latin males don't want their wives going to a male doctor," he said.

Sartore said no decisions were to be made at Wednesday's informal meeting.

However, when and if a decision is reached it could have an effect on other midwife clinics in the state.

Dr. Stanley Fish, medical director of a federally funded clinic in the Rio Grande Valley, said rulings against Clark's clinic "could then be applied to us."

Su Clinica Familiar has been using certified nurse midwives since 1972. Many of Clark's proposed procedures are designed after Su Clinica's programs.

Clark and Fish agreed that new legislation aimed at keeping up with the changing role of the nurse is needed.

"The whole tragedy about this," Clark said, "is that the nurse midwife is being hindered in what she's trained to do while the lay midwife is being encouraged in what she's not trained to do."

Sherman gains $11,450 grant

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The city of Sherman has been awarded an $11,450 state contract for its day care center, the Texas Department of Community Affairs announced Monday.

The grant will be used to develop a personnel management and training system for the center staff.

The Sherman day care center is licensed to care for 57 infants and preschool children of economically disadvantaged families. The city provides 30 percent of the center's funding, and the Texas Department of Human Resources pays the rest.

Farm Soviet grain 'deal' mullied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although an agreement with the Soviet Union committing it to purchase U.S. grain on a regular basis still has more than three years to run, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is giving thought to the possibility of seeking its extension.

However, he says it may be some distant time in the future before a renewal is negotiated.

The agreement, signed Oct. 20, 1975, committed Russia to buy a minimum of six million metric tons of wheat and corn annually for five years. The first year began Oct. 1, 1976 and ended last Sept. 30 with the Russians buying about the minimum quantity.

But so far this year the Soviet Union has bought about 12.8 million tons of wheat and corn for delivery through Sept. 30, the end of the pact's second year. That figure including 121,958 tons of wheat announced Tuesday by the Agriculture Department.

The agreement will expire Sept. 30, 1981, or, as it specifies, "unless extended for a mutually agreed period."

"I don't believe that either they or we are ready to consider an extension of the understanding we have with the Soviet Union," Bergland said in an interview earlier this week.

However, Bergland is scheduled for a six-country overseas trip May 6-26, including a visit to the Soviet Union. Other countries to be visited are Norway, Poland, Hungary, Romania and the United Kingdom.

"I think so, provided it's negotiated within the framework of a successful International Wheat Agreement," Bergland said.

statement, the proposal includes a definition of "unfair practices" in the buying and selling of farm commodities and "prohibits both handlers and associations of producers from engaging in such practices."

The proposed legislation would replace the Agricultural Fair Practices Act of 1967 and would "improve prospects for raising farmers' incomes, stabilizing prices and supplies for consumers, and increasing the efficiency of the marketing system."

Bergland looking over proposed legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he is looking over closely legislation to be proposed by four major farm organizations which would set up a new federal program for collective bargaining between producer associations and those who buy farm commodities.

The legislation has been drafted by the National Grange, National Farmers Union, American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

A statement issued this week by the four groups said that they support "federal legislation to require handlers of agricultural products to bargain in good faith with associations of farmers for prices and other terms of sale of farm commodities."

Bergland said in an interview late Monday that he met with representatives of the four organizations and received a proposed bill which they intend to have introduced in Congress.

"I neither reject the notion nor do I endorse it in its entirety," Bergland said. "I think it's a legitimate notion which should be explored seriously, and we're doing just that."

Bergland said that he turned the material over to USDA analysts who will draft their opinions of the proposed legislation and make suggestions, if any, for modifying it. After that, a decision may be made on whether the proposal fits in with Carter administration policy.

The four-group coalition said that several other agricultural organizations also are in support of the proposal.

More reliable instruments developed

Those who endured what they considered a hard winter may want to spend part of the summer in cold storage units, getting ready for future onslaughts by Mother Nature.

The National Ocean and Atmospheric Administration, which concedes that the 1977-78 winter was one of the most frigid ever, suggests that even more severe weather is ahead.

Some experts in the field of weather are forecasting that the world is entering a prolonged period of severe weather after a number of years of comparatively balmy worldwide conditions.

One respected authority, Dr. Reid Bryson of the University Wisconsin (where the elements can really be brutish), believes the weather patterns of the last few years will hold for the Northern Hemisphere in particular for at least the next five years.

Coincidentally, some of our energy experts are predicting that our fuel supplies, at least gas and oil, will begin playing out before that time.

LONGER SIEGES of frigid weather can mean a lot of things. For one thing, if the winters start earlier and last longer, the growing seasons will be reduced considerably. If rainfall isn't normal during the growing seasons, and some are predicting droughts in the Midwest, Southeast and on the Pacific Coast, the storage of food could easily become a crisis.

Bryson's gloomy report is a product of his experiments with a new forecasting system, an activity in which he has plenty of expert company.

The U.S. Weather Service is deeply involved in upgrading its forecasting techniques, primarily through technology. A new generation of weather-tracking satellites, computer advances and sophisticated new ground-station equipment are expected to greatly increase during the next few years.

The weather people track the movements of great air masses in the atmosphere before making their predictions. For over 40 years, meteorologists have been relying on balloon-carried instruments to identify movement and measure humidity, temperature and pressure.

THREE SATELLITES now circling the earth keep orbital eyes on earth's weather patterns but lack the precision of instrumentation and accuracy to do much more than supplement the balloon readings.

Four new, greatly improved satellites will go into service during the next ten years, each with the potential capability of replacing the balloons.

Radar is also being defined as a weather tool, to gauge winds and to warn of impending disasters such as tornadoes and floods.

If man has developed better instruments to track the weather, he has done little, if nothing, to try and control it. That likely will remain beyond his capability for a long time, if indeed it ever comes.

Armed with the information he's capable of getting with his instruments, he can, however, prepare the use and reduce the casualties of severe droughts, tidal waves, hurricanes and frigid weather, by preparing for them in advance. The mere fact that he has perfected such equipment must bring great comfort to a lot of people.

Change in attitude

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

I had never seen a plateau, a yucca tree, prairie, an adult wearing a cowboy hat, except in the movies, or a cactus larger than one planted in a six-inch pot before I came to Texas.

My pioneer spirit of venturing into a land so far from my Michigan home was slightly dampened by my father's tales of a boyhood spent in what he called "that God-forsaken land" and later soaked when my first friend here informed me that I had come to a town where there was nothing to do.

"Watch out, it'll grow on you," the natives told me. "Ha, not me!" I'd reply.

MY MID-WEST accent served as an immediate introduction to others who, for one reason or another, had ended up at the crossroads of West Texas.

"Where are you from?" was always followed by "But, why Big Spring?"

In the beginning, it was simple. "The Air Force," I'd say. That explained it all. I didn't choose Big Spring; I was forced here.

Now, three years later, Webb is gone and I'm still here. The natives were right, it grew on me. And recently, when asked where I was from, I forgot to mention Michigan. I said Big Spring.

In order to explore this phenomenal change of attitude, I have been secretly conducting a scientific experiment for the past few weeks.

I began with the hypothesis that Big Spring is a nice place to raise a family, but I wouldn't want to be single there. Next, as a "control", I sampled Big Spring's night life.

So as not to jump to conclusions, this part of the experiment required several weekends of "research." Not bad, I finally concluded.

OUT OF A SINCERE desire to put my conclusions to a test, I then went in search of a night life in Midland. Because Midland is larger, I assumed that the experiment would not be completely accurate, but despite Midland's size, there was no competition.

In my evaluation, Big Spring has the best and biggest night spots of the two cities and the judgment that there is nothing to do in Big Spring is completely unwarranted.

In order to be fair, I suppose I will have to extend my experiment to other parts of the Permian Basin but I have already gathered enough evidence to conclude that Big Spring is not only a nice place to raise a family, it's a fun place to live.

This in addition to Big Spring's well-deserved reputation of being a town full of friendly people plus my admiration for the way these people have stood the test of this past year, has given me a new answer to the question "Where are you from?"

I'm from Big Spring.

Party-splitting

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Republican national chairman William Brock, serving notice he will not tolerate sanctions imposed by right-wing Republicans against ideologically impure party leaders, is preparing a symbolic reprimand against Texas Republican chairman Ray Barnhart aimed at state party purse strings.

Barnhart boycotted the "Republican jubilee" dinner in Houston April 6 because Sen. Howard Baker, the Senate minority leader, was the main speaker. Furious at Baker's support of the Panama Canal treaty, Barnhart went instead to the party's dinner in Dallas the same night (addressed by Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a leading conservative).

The reprimand of Barnhart is being worked out privately by Brock and national finance director Theodore Welch. They intend to cut Barnhart out of control over some $300,000 in campaign funds raised at the Houston dinner. Those funds are divided 50-50 between state and national parties.

IF AS IN MOST other states the Texas state party itself controlled use of the state's half of the $300,000, Brock might have given the Houston dinner committee sole power to allocate the money — cutting off Barnhart entirely. But in this case, the legal instrument for handling the money is a special candidates committee (including Barnhart) that cannot be excluded. So, control of the state's portion will be divided between this committee and the Houston dinner committee (which does not include Barnhart).

Barnhart's decision to go public against Baker's appearance at Houston angered all kinds of Texas Republicans, not just moderates. "The Reaganites and everyone else in the Texas party say, off the record, that Barnhart was just plain stupid to air his grievance against Baker in the press and then boycott the Houston dinner," one Republican insider told us.

Many Republican elected officials and 1978 candidates are pleased by the decision to make an example of Barnhart. For a dwindling party plagued by ideological differences, disciplining Barnhart serves notice that efforts of one wing of the party to impose sanctions against another is a luxury Republicans cannot afford.

SOVIET NEUTRON 'NYET'

WITHIN MINUTES of President Carter's decision not to produce the neutron "bomb" at this time, a high official in the Soviet embassy here are ridiculing any chance Moscow would reciprocate by stopping deployment of the dread SS-20 mobile ballistic missile.

The SS-20, based in western Russia and targeted on Western Europe, has been picked by the administration as just the ticket for a Soviet response to Mr. Carter's kindness on the neutron warhead.

When we asked the Soviet official's reaction over Mr. Carter's surprising decision, he said he was delighted. Would the Soviets respond in kind? Certainly, he said: "We, too, will forgo the neutron bomb if the decision of your President really means the bomb will not be produced."

But the Kremlin's military plans do not even contemplate the neutron warhead, a defensive weapon, with little offensive capability.

WHEN WE POINTED that out to the Soviet official and asked whether ceasing deployment of the SS-20 would not be a fair exchange for the neutron warhead, he ridiculed the idea. "The SS-20 has nothing to do with the neutron," he said. That statement should surprise nobody except those who close their eyes to Moscow's drive for military supremacy.

"MEN, IN A FEW MINUTES YOU'LL BE GOING INTO BRUTAL, HAND-TO-HAND COMBAT WITH INFLATION. WE...ER, WILL BE RIGHT BEHIND YOU...OF COURSE."

Seven-year itch? Which one?

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there such a thing as the seven-year itch? I think I have it. — A.B.

There are two possible definitions of the seven-year itch and I am at a loss to explain how either originated. One is related to scabies, presumably where the itching lasts for seven years. With modern treatment any case of scabies should be cleared up in a couple of weeks, so that definition appears dated.

The second type is not a skin disease, but a psychological disturbance affecting males chiefly after seven years of marriage. It is featured by the tendency to wander from home plate to test their virility in other parts of the ballpark.

Which fits your ailment? If the former, see a dermatologist. If the latter, a marriage counselor would be in order.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We are high school girls who want to know about shaving the legs. If you start, does that mean you always have to do it? — No Names, Please.

If you prefer the appearance and want to maintain it, yes. That doesn't mean the shaving changes the way hair grows back. You'll always have the same hair follicles, and they dictate their growth and regrowth. It won't grow in thicker, stiffer or darker, if that is what you mean.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My blood sugar reading in a recent physical was 120. My doctor wasn't concerned. Is it good? What is a low reading? I have read a lot about low blood sugar of late and would like you to tell me all you know about it. — Mrs. H.C.

Your reading sounds fine. Anything below 50 is considered dangerous and requires action. A good normal reading can range between 80 and 130. That refers to the milligrams of glucose for each 100 cubic centimeters of blood. There's too much to be said about low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) for me to tell you all I know about it. See the booklet, "Help for Hypoglycemia." To get a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter and I have a disagreement about her 17-month-old son. Could you please comment on whether breast-feeding a child of this age can be psychologically damaging? She feels the baby will wear itself in time, which I feel is absurd. — E.B.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor: In reply to H. M. Underwood's letter to the editor on Sunday, April 14:

First of all, the American farmer doesn't want sympathy. We have had just about all of the sympathy we can stand. Especially from the Congressmen in Washington. We have seen where that got us. We want the American people to wake up and help the farmer fight a battle that is not only the farmers' battle, but the consumers' too. During the last four months, I have been in Washington three times, thrown in jail once, and all of this was done to try and make this a better country. What are you doing for your country?

In the last two months my wife and I have sent between 40 and 50 letters and telegrams to Washington, urging Congressmen and Senators to pass the farm bill and to not ratify the Panama Canal treaties.

If respecting our American flag and what it stands for is considered radical, then I am a radical. If wanting a government that is supposed to be of, by, and for the people is considered radical, then I definitely am a radical. If wanting our country to remain free and be a better place for my kids to grow up in is considered radical, then once again, I am a radical. If it had not been for those radical farmers who threw the tea in the Boston Harbor, we would probably still be paying taxes to the Queen of England.

Concerning the 30 per cent increase in salaries: this is the raise that President Jimmy Carter gave his staff members. This, on top of what they were already receiving, is somewhat staggering. Then, on top of this, they receive another seven per cent and five per cent increase.

Freight rates (rail, truck, ocean and river freight), utility rates (gas, electricity, telephone and oil rates), insurance rates, Postal rates, and air transportation rates are all protected, and more besides. But, the farmer can only ask "What will you give me?" for his product, if he is lucky enough to produce one.

But, for the farmer to ask for a chance to make a reasonable profit, above his cost of production, that would be too inflationary. The nation couldn't stand it. This is sheer stupidity. Help everyone else that asks for it, at the taxpayers' expense, but for God's sake don't help the farmer who produces the cheapest food and fiber in the world, feeds and Breast-feeding is "one of nature's great comforts for both mother and child, a fact you should be aware of if you ever did any of it yourself. I doubt that going beyond the first year will affect the child's psyche. You do not mention practical factors to consider. Have soft or semi-solid foods been introduced yet? If not, the mother may have some difficulty in getting him to accept this later.

clothes this nation and two-thirds of the rest of the world, all at below his cost of production.

We, the American farmers, don't blame Mr. Carter for all of our problems. We blame ourselves for sitting back and hoping things would get better.

We can blame Mr. Carter and his administration for what he has not done, since he has been in office. We realize that the problems we are facing today didn't just happen overnight, nor since Mr. Carter became president.

The things that farmers are trying to achieve today are the exact things Mr. Carter promised the American farmers when he was campaigning for the presidency.

I voted for Mr. Carter, although I'm sure not boasting about it. Therefore, I feel that I have the right to talk about him. The people who sit back and do nothing and don't exercise their right to vote have no complaints coming.

Travis Reid
Box 384, Coahoma

Dear Editor: In response to the letter Mr. Underwood had in the Herald, I am glad he's in sympathy with us, but sympathy won't help.

We need those who will help to write letters to Congress and push American products to show the Government we mean business. He said Travis Reid was "out of hand" on one of his statements to the Herald; Mr. Underwood, Travis left here with ice on the roads and came back from a nightmare called Washington, D.C. in blowing dust and 90 degree temperatures and still didn't get enough accomplished to even wipe the sweat from his brow. After that, I think he's entitled to one mistake.

I work on a farm north of Coahoma and I know the problems faced by farmers each year. Farmers have been treated as a second class citizen for a long time and I'm very proud to be a part of the American Agriculture Movement.

My hat goes off to all the people involved with this long-awaited showing of pride and guts by the American farmer and rancher.

A special thanks to Travis, Donnie, Randall, and Clay Reid who have dedicated a lot of time and money to help the nation, and who have restored my faith in farming.

Links affirmed

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — A secret intelligence report, filed last month by U.S. agents in Italy, reads like an episode from the "Godfather" movies. But it has far more significance than a mere crime story; the report reaffirms the deadly link between the Sicilian Mafia and organized crime in the United States.

According to this secret account, a swarthy visitor from New York City turned up recently in Palermo, Italy. He was identified by the Italian carabinieri (police) as John LiVoti, who is listed in U.S. files as a Mafia figure with a nasty reputation.

He did not go to Palermo, apparently, to see the sights. The carabinieri have linked his visit with a violent reorganization of the Mafia in Palermo. A local Godfather, named Ignazio Selta, was removed from power on Feb. 15.

IT HAPPENED QUITE abruptly while he sat in his automobile with two bodyguards, Girolamo Sino and Rosario Vitale. The car was ventilated with bullets, killing all three. The Italian authorities, according to the intelligence report, believed "LiVoti was involved in the murders."

Two days after the killings, LiVoti appeared in Legnano, Italy, for a Mafia meeting to readjust the line of authority and settle differences out of Selta's demise. Apparently the mediator was supposed to be Girolamo Alberti who is described in the intelligence report as the Naples "comorra boss." Explains the report: "Comorra roughly translated means quarrel, which in effect means one who settles or arbitrates quarrels."

The carabinieri disrupted the meeting, however, before Alberti showed up. All the assembled Mafia dons, including LiVoti, were arrested and charged with "criminal association."

Footnote: The intelligence report ties LiVoti to Tommaso Buscetta, a fugitive from the United States, who fled to Italy and wound up in Palermo's Ucciardone prison where he is "awaiting trial for murder." The report also alleges that "Buscetta was a major white heroin trafficker and moved narcotics through...Mexico to the United States."

KNDNAPPERS' CABLE — We have an urgent message for the kidnapers of William Neihous, an Owens-Illinois executive who was seized by masked guerrillas from his Venezuelan home more than two years ago.

At the suggestion of those close to the case, we offered to serve as intermediaries in any negotiations. Now we've received a dramatic response from the kidnapers, who demand to know through our internationally syndicated column if our offer to meet with them "anywhere in the world" is valid. We want them to know that it is.

The terrorists' communique, neatly typed in Spanish and addressed to our office, asks "whether you are really willing to serve as negotiator between the company and us. A satisfactory solution to this case," warned the kidnapers, "can be found only through negotiation."

The note is signed ominously by the "Argimiro Gabaldon Revolutionary Command," the Venezuelan group claiming responsibility for the Neihous kidnaping.

In an earlier column, we reported how a secret ransom attempt by the kidnapers last year through Owens-Illinois European offices failed because of a tragic mishap. Until now, not another word has been heard from the terrorists.

Neihous intimates are desperate to learn the fate of the missing businessman. Once again, we are willing to serve as intermediaries in any negotiations.

TAX CUTS — In past columns, we have described the quiet tax revolt that is spreading across America. Middle-class Americans, who bear the brunt of the tax burden, will express their anger at the polls in November, we have predicted.

The message has gotten belatedly to Capitol Hill. Suddenly congressmen are scurrying to rescind the Social Security tax increases they voted only four months ago. They are anxious to get the higher taxes off the books before they are deducted from the voters' paychecks.

THIS HAS THROWN President Carter's tax program into disarray. Earlier he had introduced a $25 billion tax cut that would become effective next Oct. 1. But he needs the scheduled increases in payroll taxes to keep the Social Security funds from going bankrupt.

The huge drain has been caused by Medicare and disability payments, which are drawn from Social Security taxes. The president's chief economic adviser, Charles Schultz, has recommended confidentially that these payments should be taken for Social Security," he told the Cabinet behind closed doors. But any revision of the Social Security taxes this year would compel the president to revamp the tax program he already has introduced. So Schultz recommended that "the matter be reconsidered next year."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I love God very much and I am a new Christian. But if I love God, how can I still ignore Him and do things that I know are wrong? — D.S.

DEAR D.S.: Often when we first come to Christ we think that everything will be smooth for us, and that we will no longer have any problems with sin. When we find this is not the case, we wonder why.

The Bible tells us that when we come to Christ, God gives us a new nature within. This nature is from God, and comes to us by the Holy Spirit Who is given to us when we accept Christ. However, the old, sinful nature is still with us also. There is conflict and struggle, because the old nature wants to live for self, while the new nature calls us to live for God. "For the sinful nature desires what is contrary to the Spirit, and the Spirit what is contrary to the sinful nature. They are in conflict with each other, so that you do not do what you want" (Galatians 5:17, New International Version). This is why you find it easy sometimes to ignore God, and even do things that you know are wrong in God's eyes. You might read Romans 7:14-25, in which Paul recounts this struggle in his own life.

Is there an answer to this problem? Yes, there is. God has given us His Holy Spirit, and one of the reasons the Spirit has come to dwell within us is to empower us and help us overcome the old sinful nature. It is important for you to know that you cannot resist sin just by resolving to try harder; your old nature can have a powerful hold on you. But the Holy Spirit can help you. As we yield up problems and situations to Him, we find He actually gives us wisdom and strength.

'Troubled about children,' says mom dying of cancer

FREWSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — "It isn't the idea of dying that bothers me. It's what I'm going to miss when my children grow up, helping them through problems. The thought of Bob going through this alone tears me apart."

Sandy Spencer, a 36-year-old mother of three, is dying of cancer. Last October, she was given three-to-nine months to live.

"If the kids are talking about going on a picnic this summer, I think to myself, 'I probably won't be here,'" she said.

But she added, "I might outfox them all and still be here when they graduate."

The trouble began about 2½ years ago. Doctors discovered breast cancer and performed a modified radical mastectomy.

Then last year, after suffering a recurrence and undergoing chemotherapy treatments, Mrs. Spencer's heart failed. She was hospitalized for almost seven weeks, barely clinging to life at one point.

After doctors found cancerous fluid in her pericardial sac, part of the heart, Mrs. Spencer was told that statistics indicated she could expect to live less than a year.

She admits that her greatest concerns revolve around her immediate family — her husband Bob, 35, a seasonally employed bricklayer, and their three children, Robin, 13, Bobbie Jo, 6, and Kenny, 3.

"I'm worried that I'm hardly going to be a memory," she confided. "Life does go on and people have to make a new life for themselves."

She feels Robin is her link to the younger children, that Robin will pass on to her sister and brother memories of her closeness to her mother and the fun times they shared.

In a cruel irony, Mrs. Spencer has had to worry about medical problems of her two younger children — Bobbie Jo's epilepsy and Kenny's serious heart condition.

"In one respect it's been good that they've had these problems," she said. "If they had been completely healthy, there would have been more self-pity. It's given me something else to think about."

Child studiers elect officers

The Child Study Club met Apr. 12 in the home of Fran Riley with the Meistersingers opening the meeting with renditions of songs from "The Sound of Music."

Pat Moore, president, called the meeting to order.

An announcement was made that Barbara Donaldson and Ms. Moore went to the Big Spring Alliance of Clubs Tea.

A motion to join the alliance was tabled until the next meeting.

Janet Wolfe reported on the progress of the School Textbook Committee.

A representative of the D.A.R. Textbook Committee will be in Big Spring May 2 for a dinner in her honor at the Big Spring Country Club at 7 p.m. It will be sponsored by the D.A.R. and anyone wanting to attend the dinner should make reservations with either Ms. Riley or the country club.

New officers elected at the meeting were Londa Henry, president; Ms. Wolfe, vice president; Gail Berringer, secretary; Kay Fraser, treasurer; Mattie Watson, librarian; Ms. Moore, parliamentarian.

These officers will be installed at the next meeting which will take place at noon May 10 in the home of Ms. Moore, 528 Scott. Margaret Baum will install the officers at this luncheon meeting.

She says it's faster than a bike, slower than a car, safer than a motorcycle and feels great. The only time you'll see her in a car now is if she's running late or West Texas dust got in her way.

Altar society makes plans

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Altar Society met at the pre-school building Monday with 16 members and Father Bernard Gully present.

Plans for attendance at the Big Spring Deanery meeting Friday at St. Thomas Church was discussed. Wanda Anderson and Jewel Hyer were elected voting delegates with Vada Perring and Mildred Ward as alternates.

Also discussed were plans for attendance at Church Women United May Fellowship Day May 5 at Wesley Methodist Church.

The Golden Jubilee of Bishop Steven A. Leven will be celebrated with a mass at the cathedral in San Angelo June 7; a barbeque will follow at the coliseum. Plans are being made for members to attend en masse.

The next meeting will be at 3 p.m. May 15 at La Posada Restaurant. At that time new officers will be installed for the coming year.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 A booklet just for you, teens

The writer of this column can't begin to tell you how thrilled I am to be allowed to write "TWEEN 12 and 20." The self-satisfaction, knowing that I assisted a teen, is what life is all about.

As you know, if you have written to me, I answer every letter personally if I can't get it in the newspaper. Because of my volume of mail, I sometimes am a little tardy in responding, but I do respond.

If I haven't responded it means that you did not give me your address. Many forget.

The responses and letters I receive have inspired me to write a booklet that will appeal to teen-agers. It is written for teens, not parents. The booklet is called "Teen Years: Happiness or Despair."

I started writing it in June 1977 and because of my busy schedule, finished it about three weeks ago. I never dreamed so many people had to be involved such as artists, proofreaders, typists, printers, binders, etc.

In "Teen Years," I attempted to cover some of the more important issues and problems confronting teens in a professional manner, yet in language you will understand.

The booklet discusses dating, personal hygiene, going steady, sexual identity, smoking, drugs, venereal disease, getting along with parents, complexion, and a few more topics.

The booklet cost the author 97.5 cents each (somewhere in the back of my mind I thought I could get by with a 25-cent booklet, but those days are gone forever), and contains 32 pages. I spent a little extra because I wanted it to look attractive so if it is used in schools, it would encourage teens to read it.

My informing you about "Teen Years" is twofold. First, I want to tell you that the booklet can be ordered by sending $1 and a stamped, addressed, large envelope (24 cents postage) to me in care of this newspaper. And second, if you for some reason cannot afford the $1 but want the booklet, just write to me and say that things are a little tight, and I will see that you get the booklet free.

I encourage all of you who do read the booklet to critique it and let me know your feelings.

Peace and Happiness,
Dr. Robert Wallace

Carriers, to the head of the Class!

Big Spring Herald

IT'S SMART to be a newspaper carrier!

We always knew it. A new study of our schools now tells you why.

It's not that youngsters aren't learning today. It's just that they don't know how to use in every-day life what they learn in the classroom.

That is the conclusion of the National Assessment of Educational Progress after a massive study of schools. It is the problem every parent must take seriously. But less so the parent of a young newspaper carrier.

A carrier applies the knowledge and skills he or she gains in the classroom every day on the route.

One example, arithmetic. The youngster who makes change and keeps records and does the bookkeeping for the thriving business which a newspaper route can be, knows how to use arithmetic.

And a carrier makes practical use of other classroom studies. Writing orders, communicating with customers, reading instructions from the office. Which may be the basis for the conclusion of another survey we have seen. Successful carriers do better at school.

Learns Business Methods
Your carrier has another advantage. This young person gets guidance from specialist people in this newspaper's circulation department and the benefit of their knowledge and help. In short, a course in business practice. Which can be useful all through life, whatever field the young person enters.

Almost nowhere else we know of, except in managing a newspaper route, is such an opportunity for training with profit (which can be saved for college tuition) available to a youngster today. It makes today's carrier brighter. And sharper. A special youngster, whom we salute on International Newspaper Carrier Day, this Saturday.

Dear Abby

Can't Stand Son's Wife or In-Laws

DEAR ABBY: When our son David was 15, he gave a 16-year-old girl (I'll call her Dolly) a "promise ring" against our wishes. When she turned 16, he gave her a $150 sewing machine with money he had earned and saved. Her parents let her accept it, which we thought was wrong. They also let David stay at their house until 2 and 3 in the morning knowing that we disapproved.

Well, Dolly and her family accomplished what they set out to do. She ended up pregnant and insisted on marriage. (We got stuck with all the bills for the wedding.)

Now, I have bitter feelings about Dolly and her people, and have chosen not to be around her. That's the problem. I still love our son, and want to keep in close contact with him in case he needs me, but I cannot stand his wife or her family! I want to be close to my grandchild, but under the circumstances it's very difficult.

My husband says we'll lose our son if we don't break down and accept his wife, but I know being around her would make my blood pressure rise to unsafe heights. Help me.

STILL BITTER

DEAR STILL: Your husband is right, and if you don't want to lose your son and have a stranger for a grandchild, you will go along with him. Even though your resentment is justified, remaining bitter and unforgiving will cause you more pain and unhappiness than changing your tune. So change it.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't take this lightly, but my husband and I have a rather prickly problem. His face. No matter how closely he shaves, his beard grows so fast that the result of our shared affection is a rosy red rash on my face.

We haven't been married long, and I have suffered so much pain as a result of our love-making that it's beginning to make me frigid.

We've even considered letting his beard grow, but we don't want him to look like a scruffy, hippie type. Also his supervisor at the bank would never understand.

CHAFED CHEEKS

DEAR CHAFED: This may not fit in with your love-making schedule, but tell your husband to shave first.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a man with four children. His wife walked out on him and plumb deserted him and the kids, who range in age from 4 to 12. When she left, she gave him custody of the children, saying motherhood was a bummer.

Well, motherhood is no bumper for me. I love these kids. Now, the problem: I don't know whether they've been immunized against all the childhood diseases. Their father isn't sure, and I can't locate their mother.

OKIE

If I just go ahead and have them immunized for all the common childhood diseases, will it do them any harm if they've already been immunized?

DEAR OKIE: Have them immunized again. It won't hurt them, even if they've already been immunized.

DEAR ABBY: We have a wedding invitation with a smaller card included that reads as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. _____ will attend. Number of guests _____"

The outer envelope was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith," and the inner envelope was the same.

Is it proper to fill in, "Mr. and Mrs. Smith plan to attend, and the number of guests is FIVE"? (This includes our two children and my husband's mother, who makes her home with us.)

NUMBER, PLEASE

YOU MEAN THIS IS A MOBILE HOME — Mobile homes are changing from the cramped little trailers into the more spacious models resembling site-built homes. Joe Rhodes, Quality Control and Engineering Manager at Berkley Homes, has just designed a new line of homes of which he is proud. He said that besides being the designer of the homes, he is also proud that these homes are being built here in Big Spring by Big Spring citizens. It is another example, he added, of the way that Big Spring is making out on its own with jobs for its own people.

New concept in housing Getting away from image

By DUSTY RICHARD
Getting away from the traditional "mobile home" image is what Joe Rhodes, Sand Springs, and other manufactured-housing designers are trying to accomplish.

Rhodes had just designed a new line of manufactured housing for Berkley Homes, a Big Spring industry. His job title at Berkley is Quality Control and Engineering Manager, and he says that his job consists mostly of drawing the necessary floor plans and making changes in those floor plans when needed.

"We need something to enhance the Graham line of our homes. This is a little costlier and more exclusive model."

The home features three bedrooms and two baths; all furnishings, including major kitchen appliances; vaulted ceilings, real fireplace, bookshelves and reading nooks on either side of the fireplace; 28 feet of counter place in the kitchen; walk-in closet in the master bedroom and a lot of storage space in all parts of the home. The total square feet of the home is a little over 18,000.

Rhodes said that all these features were designed with the consumer in mind. The effect, he said, is to look like a site-built home while costing half the price.

"Per square foot, site-built homes cost twice as much." More people are buying mobile homes these days, he says, because of the lower price and because the homes are of such good quality.

"The government has set up a code of standards for us to build by; if we don't measure up to those standards, we can't sell the homes."

One misconception some people have about manufactured housing is its supposed fragility, he said. However, he added, governmental standards state that mobile homes must be built to withstand winds of 298 miles per hour when tied down properly. This is hurricane force.

"Berkley builds homes that are in the top two per cent of the nation in quality of and price," he emphasized.

"We don't build trailers." Most mobile home buyers fall into two categories, Rhodes said. One category is the older couple whose children are grown and the other is the young couple who are just starting out and cannot afford to buy a site-built home yet.

"Then the rest of the people are the transients. The military, the oil-field workers and the construction workers. They just move from town to town and have no reason to buy a site-built home."

Besides the fact that this new line was designed by List dispatched to White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has sent a list of about 12 names to the White House as potential candidates to be his top assistant.

The vacancy was created two months ago when John C. White resigned as deputy secretary of agriculture to become chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Bergland said in an interview here that he sent the list to the White House for overall review. He did not speculate when a final selection would be made.

'Madhouse Brigade' will make you laugh

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You might call "Saturday Night Live Meets Ernie Kovacs." The actual title is "Madhouse Brigade." It's a new syndicated comedy series offering such bent bits as these:

— A leather-clad sadist, whip in hand, sits laughing. Suddenly, he looks up and says: "Hi. Would you believe I'm cleaning my stove?"

— An inventor is amazed at the invention of the thermos jug. He points at said jug and murmurs: "You put cold in, cold comes out. You put hot in, hot comes out." A pause. "How does it know?"

Both were in a sample of quick, unrelated skits executive producer Jim Larkin showed last month to prospective "Brigade" buyers at a national convention of station program executives here.

With a seven-member troupe of players, it was the only offering of that satire at a busy bazaar of network reruns, game shows and such things as "Bonkers" and "The $1.98 Beauty Contest."

Marshall, 32, seen in the sample as a bogus Brando in a wild "Godfather" takeoff.

The show's writer, he's been making ends meet the past 10 years doing weird voices for films and commercials in New York. His credits range from the movie, "Lennie," to an ad for "Meow Mix."

He's never written for a network comedy show, he said by phone from Fun City. Marshall says his show's aim "is to put American satire back on TV. I think it's been lacking for too many years."

"Yeah, we've had 'Saturday Night' and 'Laugh-In.' But they're comedy, not satire...satire is different in that it's like a punch in the nose. But it can make you laugh instead of cry."

The New York-based "Brigade" comes in two versions: Toned down for early-evening display, and no-holds-barred for airing late at night, when America's impressionable tykes are theoretically abed.

Producer Larkin says there'll be an initial batch of 13 "Brigade" shows made and the caperings will commence next fall.

"You go in and ask for the ceiling, they offer you the basement. And eventually, you compromise on the first floor, I guess."

He spoke while awaiting word on final negotiations with various stations for the show.

'Liberal with communist support'

Rep. Gonzalez insists files reflect corruption of FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez has told the House that the FBI has files concerning his activities in the late 1950s and early 1960s and which refer to him as a "liberal with communist support."

As promised, Gonzalez reported back to the House Monday on his lengthy efforts to obtain the FBI files. More than a year ago the San Antonio Democrat filed a Freedom of Information Act request with the agency to obtain files pertaining to death threats on Gonzalez's life he had reported to the FBI.

During a late Monday afternoon speech, Gonzalez told the House he had found "a file that reflected the insidious corruption of the nation's most powerful and most respected police agency. The FBI became more concerned about its image than its deeds."

"It's topmost officials concerned themselves more with making (J. Edgar) Hoover happy than in keeping the country safe from crime and foreign agents," Gonzalez said.

The files given to Gonzalez contained material dating back to the congressman's unsuccessful bids for the U.S. Senate in 1961 and Texas governor's chair in 1958.

"In its treatment of me, the FBI was no different than the Russian KGB," Gonzalez charged. "If you were to read from the 'Gulag Archipelago' and read from my own FBI file, you would see no difference in values or judgment. That is the most terrifying thing of all, an American police agency with the same mindless preoccupations and judgements and base values of the KGB."

In a letter accompanying the files from FBI Director William H. Webster, Gonzalez was told the origin of comments made in FBI files referring to Gonzalez as being "a liberal who has received communist support."

In his letter, Webster wrote, "A review of our files indicates no participation or knowledge whatsoever on your part regarding receipt of communist support."

CONSERVATION AWARD — Mrs. Leora Flanagan (center) receives an award from the Howard Soil and Water Conservation District for outstanding conservation cooperation. Wade Choate (l), manager of the oldest ranch in the Permian Basin, shared in the award which is being presented by J.M. Sterling, district chairman.

Owner of first ranch in basin is honored

By MARJ CARPENTER The outstanding conservation cooperator's award given annually by the Howard Soil and Water Conservation District banquet went to the owner and operator of the first ranch established in the Permian Basin.

The ranch is owned by Mrs. Leora Flanagan and operated by Wade Choate. Mrs. Flanagan is the daughter of the late W.T. (Uncle Bud) and Mary Roberts, the first settlers in the county.

Mrs. Flanagan and her husband operated the ranch from 1931 until his death in 1973. Since then, her nephew, Choate, has helped operate the ranch.

In 1974, they decided that improvements were needed so they entered into the Great Plains Conservation Program. To date, they have completed 600 acres of root-planting and seeding rangeland where the grass had been depleted.

They have aerial sprayed 1100 acres of brush, constructed five miles of cross fence and have installed five miles of pipeline for livestock water.

By doing this, they have been able to start a grazing program where all the cattle are combined into one herd and they graze one pasture at a time. This allows plants in the ungrazed pastures to recover and improve.

The presentation was made by J.M. Sterling, chairman. Other awards were presented at the banquet at La Posada Tuesday night.

First place team award for plant identification went to the Coahoma FFA including Bryan Neff, Daron Moore, Douglass Fortenberry and Kim Boertson. Instructor is George Byrd. Second went to Sands FFA including Scott Robinson, Dennis Matin and Bill Wigginton. Instructor is Lon McDonald.

High individual was Bryan Neff, Coahoma FFA, second was Sammy Don Buchanan, Howard County 4-H and third was Fortenberry from Coahoma.

Poster awards went to Stephanie Stevens, Washington Elementary, first grade; Elizabeth Rodriguez, Immaculate Heart of Mary, second grade; Darek Chojnowski, Immaculate Heart of Mary, third grade; Diane Simpson, Marcy Elementary, fourth grade; Belinda Hatler, College Heights Elementary, fifth grade and Wendy Bussell, Coahoma Elementary, sixth grade.

Conservation essay winners included Donna Camp, Coahoma High winner and over all high school winner; Melody Choate, Goliad, over all junior high winner; Gloria Mendoza, Runnels Junior High winner and Jackie McDonald, Sands High winner.

Lyle Grantham, Howard County 4-H won land judging with Bill Kothmann, Big Spring FFA, second and Leland Warren, Big Spring FFA, third.

Mike Ezzell, state representative from Snyder, presented a slide presentation on how a bill becomes law in the legislature.

Special guests were introduced by Neal Fryar, including board members, Lawrence Davis, Bobby Cathey and Sterling and Bill Wilson, chairman of the Upper Colorado Soil Conservation District.

Other special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Olan Puckett, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Archer, Tim Hall, Bruce Griffith, Andy Vestal, Mrs. Bill Albright, Jack Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Ronny Woods, Winston Wrinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Baum and Mrs. Marj Carpenter.

'95 percent' certain Two LaSalle ships in Matagorda Bay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State archeologists are "95 percent" certain they know where two ships from LaSalle's 1695 expedition sank off the Texas coast and plan to spend $70,000 to find out.

"We're 95 percent sure they're in Matagorda Bay," state marine archeologist Barto Arnold said Tuesday. Arnold will head a 12-member crew that will use two 17th Century maps and other period information to locate the historic sites, believed to be just off Matagorda Island near Port O'Connor.

Some archeologists believe the French explorer came ashore further south, near Port Aransas, but Arnold says there's no question one map describing the landing refers to Matagorda Bay.

"The Cardenas map was drawn by the engineer of the Spanish expedition sent to find LaSalle," the archeologist said. "It shows the site of Fort Saint Louis and there's no doubt it's Matagorda Bay. The Spanish recovered a fleur-de-lis from one of the ships."

LaSalle's settlement had been wiped out by Indians and disease before the Spanish, anxious about rival French settlements, arrived. LaSalle's venture led to stepped-up Spanish settlement north of the Rio Grande.

A second map of the site was sketched by LaSalle's engineer, Minet, and shows a shipwreck at the bay's entrance, Pass Cavallo.

"The captain apparently got lost and didn't know where the entrance was. He went aground on a sandbar and the ship broke up in a storm. This is a treacherous pass where many ships have gone down," Arnold said.

Two endurance race deaths investigated

POST, Texas (AP) — A justice of the peace said Tuesday that it might be several days before he rules on what caused the deaths of two participants in the grueling Texas Enduro Motorcycle Race.

The victims, believed to have died from heat prostration during the 130.4 mile contest Sunday across 55,000 acres of West Texas ranch land, were found near their motorcycles.

They were identified as 31-year-old Ron Paulson of Lakewood, Colo., and 33-year-old Mike Payte of Odessa, Texas.

Justice of the Peace Racy Robinson ordered autopsies and said it might be several days before he makes a ruling.

Unseasonably high mid-April temperatures, soaring to 93 degrees, apparently with Marj Carpenter

It's funny the things you remember. The other day I got into a conversation on telephone calls and the conversation started out very seriously.

We were discussing the shock that calls such as a person dying suddenly, or somebody killed in an accident can be. We even discussed the suddenness of the calls in comparison to the war days when the arrival of a telegram brought fear to parents as soon as the telegraph deliverer came up the walk.

But we went from there to humorous calls received through the years. And we started discussing the funniest call we ever received.

But I recalled, instead, two of the funniest telephone calls I ever made. Both of them were during the newspaper war days in Pecos and they were made two weeks apart.

Billie Sol Estes had put in a newspaper in that town whose sole purpose was to drive us out of business. And we had a no-holds-barred news war that sometimes was funny and sometimes was tragic.

But when I found out that the rival paper was taking telephone calls from friends who would accidentally dial the number of the wrong paper and say, "Is Marj there?" I became rather indignant. I had heard that they were answering, "No, she isn't here right now, but we'll take the news for her." I was furious. Technically, they were not lying because I wasn't there and had no intention of ever being there.

But one particular day, I had taken pictures of the fish lying on the banks of the Balmorhea lake after the game commission had poisoned some fish. They missed the picture and the story and I knew they were angry.

So I chose that time to call. "Is Marj there?" I queried. "No she isn't," said this sweet voice, "but we'll be glad to take the news for her."

"Just tell her," I said breathlessly, "they have just brought a fish out of Balmorhea Lake that looks like a dragon."

Well, we had a news office in the same block as the Estes paper and we watched their photographer. He ran out of their office and jumped into the car and drove 38 miles as fast as he could go to the lake. I heard later that he ran up to the lake screaming, "Where is the dragon? Where is the dragon?"

My funniest calls

Two weeks later, we had one of those typical West Texas sandstorms. I chose that time to call again and ask for Marj.

I got the same answer so I said in a hurry, "The Barstow water tower just blew down." And I hung up.

Well, that also proved to be interesting because Barstow gets their water by underground pipeline and has no water tower. But as I understood it, their photographer went from door to door in the Barstow business district screaming, "Where is the water tower?"

And when those dear old souls in that very old town would answer, "We don't have one," the reporter is said to have screamed, "You're a liar!"

Well, I didn't have to make any more calls because one of my friends visited in their office shortly after that and she said there was a notice on the bulletin board, "Do not take any more calls for Marj Carpenter."

Smoke signals

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Cigarette tax collections totaled $24.3 million in March, a $4 million increase over the previous month, State Treasurer Warren G. Harding said Monday.

Harding also said liquor tax collections rose from $146,340 to $212,208.

Gandy's wins four awards

Gandy's Dairies, Inc. of San Angelo won four national awards at the Quality Chek Dairy Association's annual production and marketing meeting in Dallas. Gandy's received one production award for ice cream quality and three marketing awards for excellence in advertising and sales promotion.

John Gandy, president of Gandy's Dairies; Alfred "Squirrel" Williams, sales manager; Taylor Harris, Midland-Odessa branch manager and Myrph Havins, production manager accepted the awards from Quality Chek's executive director, Harlie Zimmerman.

Gandy's became a member of the 100 member Quality Chek Dairy Association in 1976. Since that time Gandy's has received two awards for ice cream quality, ten marketing awards and one first place national marketing award. Gandy's marketing awards included a second place finish in both 1977 and 1978.

The H. F. Zimmerman Marketing Awards Program was initiated eleven years ago to make Quality Chek member companies more marketing conscious and to stimulate additional interest in advertising and sales promotion activities. Entries are judged on the basis of advanced planning, the establishment of promotional goals, the actual conduct of the promotion, the advertising and merchandising support rendered, and the overall creativity shown throughout the activity.

Danny Reagan Foreman's experience

Did you catch the "now-then" picture of ex-heavyweight champion George Foreman on Sunday's Sports Personalities page? Quite a change, what? That's him again a few paragraphs down here.

The dramatic change is not only physical but mental and spiritual, as well. This self-proclaimed "rottenness of God's people," and teenage wine and mugger underwent an "experience" recently that challenges the most noteworthy of transmutations.

The "experience" came about a year or so ago when the Houston product was outboxed by Jimmy Young in San Juan. As you remember, Foreman was taken to the hospital "suffering from dehydration and heat exhaustion."

That was what the press was told at the time. Here is, in fact, what really happened in Foreman's dressing room after the fight. I'll quote from Foreman's talk with New York's Bob Waters.

"What happened in the dressing room was this," he said. "It was like I woke up from a bad dream; I felt like the air was clean. There were no smells in the room and I felt maybe 10 feet tall and everything was clear, maybe for the first time in my life."

"I put my hand on my forehead and there was blood there. The palms of my hands had blood and my feet were covered with blood and there were no cuts."

"All of a sudden I was fighting about seven or eight guys. They thought I was crazy. They finally got me on a stretcher and got me to the hospital. I was sweating real good and my body felt fine—is that what a man acts when he's dehydrated?"

"And I insisted upon getting into the shower to wash off the blood—no cuts, remember? Does a man do that when he's dehydrated? But I don't blame anybody. How can you explain to people that you've had a brush with God?"

"Most of what we believe has to do with theories, right? When I was a kid growing up the worst way possible, I knew there were churches around, but I always felt that they were ripoff places, places where people preached high and mighty just to get pennies from the poor."

"I would have been ashamed if any of the guys I went around with thought I believed in Jesus; Jesus was a hoax. That was my theory. But, I had an experience with God. That's no theory. Jesus is no theory. Jesus lives."

Foreman is a completely different person now. He has divested himself of his ownings, a thriving Houston business, three large houses, a ranch, three deluxe automobiles and a host of pets, pedigreed dogs and a half-grown lion.

He married five months ago to a former Miss Black Teenage of America who he says "is full of the Holy Ghost."

There's no set date for a Foreman re-emergence into the fruit-basket turn-over heavyweight scene. But...

"A lot of promoters are trying to get me. I talked with Don King and he said he believed in Jesus, too. He said he would put a large cross on my robe if I fought for him. I told him, 'Jesus ain't no cross. Jesus is love.' I hope he understood," Foreman said.

I just hope Foreman is sincere.

INDISCRIMINATELY SPEAKING

By now you know that Houston Wheatley, the 4A state basketball champion, may forfeit his title, because the UIL has learned that the team may have violated the rule which limits a team to no more than two games a week, (excluding tournaments).

Somehow, that just doesn't seem to ring mellow at this late date. Probably more at issue here is the fact that a few Houston team members admitted they shoplifted $150 worth of jewelry from an Austin store during the state tourney.

The nine-member UIL executive committee, which meets Thursday to rule on this, will no doubt have "white-washing" more on its mind than the alleged rules infraction.

Poor UIL director Bailey Marshall... not only does he have this dumped in his lap, he'll probably have to decide who to give the title to if Wheatley does forfeit.

—Bob Hayes, the former all-pro wide receiver for the Dallas Cowboys, was indicted on three drug charges Monday.

In the case of celebrities, the public prefers to assume guilt until proven innocent, rather than the old Perry Mason addage "innocent until proven guilty."

Whether he's innocent or guilty, his reputation is ruined. If the charges are dismissed, or if he is proven innocent, look for him to file suit in the six figures category. That's standard practice now for those who can afford it.

REMARKABILITIES

"This is where I'm going to stay as long as the Cowboys make that possible. Man, I love it here. This is my kind of town, and I'm happy here." — TONY DORSETT.

"Their starting pitching could be a strong weakness." — KEVIN SLATEN, St. Louis sportscaster on the Cardinal baseball team.

"Why does the umpire time every batter?" — GRETCHEN "MOUSSE" WERRELL, mistaking the ump's ball and strike counter ("indicator") for a stop watch during Monday night's Reds' blitzing of the Dodgers.

"In basketball, playing at home has all the advantages of dealing with a shaved deck. Basketball should be called Homeball, or Referee Ball, which really is the same thing. It's just more so in some towns than in others, depending upon the ferocity of the crowd, and on how intimidation—prone the particular referee happens to be." — DICK YOUNG, on recent game between Knicks and Cavaliers.

"There is one thing, though... we are the hunted. Not a day goes by that Billy doesn't remind us of that in one way or another. He'll say they're after us. They want to get us." — REGGIE JACKSON.

"I read somewhere that somebody referred to me as a 'Jesus freak.' It's like I had three heads and dressed in sackcloth and ashes and went around kissing Oral Roberts' rear end. It ain't nothing like that. I had an experience and I have to tell the world. That's it. Nothing more." — GEORGE FOREMAN.

Astros 'knuckle' down and keep winning

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe Niekro of the Houston Astros says his brother Phil, who pitches for Atlanta, throws a knuckleball that "is the best in the big leagues."

But Joe's similar pitch is good enough. His own knuckler held the San Diego Padres to four hits in a 5-1 Houston victory Tuesday night, and the pitcher added to his laurels by driving in two runs.

"I throw mine a little harder," Joe said in comparing his knuckler to that of brother Phil, who is 0-2 for Atlanta this season while Joe is 1-1. Joe struck out five Padres. He walked three before retiring the last 12 Padre batters in order.

"I was overthrowing it in the first four innings, but finally I slowed it down and things started falling into place," Niekro said.

Things also have fallen into line for the Astros. They had a horrendous start to the season, 0-5. At the same time Cincinnati and Los Angeles teams favored to battle for the National League West title romped off to fast starts.

"We just didn't play well the first five games. It wasn't any one thing, but rather a combination of things," Houston Manager Bill Virdon said. "It's tough to think we're as good as the top two clubs, but I think we're close enough that we can stay in the race if we play like we're capable of playing."

The Astros' offense in the opener of the week was led by Bob Watson, who had three hits.

"My timing still isn't quite right yet. I'm a little lazy with my top hand. But I can feel it starting to come around," Watson said.

Red skies in sight, Steers' delight

By DANNY REAGAN
Sports Editor

"Dust to dust, and ashes to ashes."

Or is it dust to ash and horsehide to dust? At any rate, dust was everywhere Tuesday afternoon as the Big Spring Steers and Midland High Bulldogs scrapped about in a "class six" sandstorm that surrounded Steer Park.

The throat-clogging red particles may have coated the lungs of the fans who braved the sand-blasting, but for the Steers... a ton of bricks couldn't have thrown them down in their determined 11-2 win over the visitors.

The locals have now totalled 31 runs and the same number of hits in their past three outings, and the fire that someone lit under senior Tony Mann during that same time (two homers, two doubles, and a 545 batting average) can only mean that more league clubs should be prepared to join Midland in the "scorched-fingers" department.

The Steers not only looked at their seasonal best offensively (13 hits), but the defense resembled a force field. Junior Ricky Myers did a perfect imitation of Dodger third-sacker Ron Cey in the second inning by snagging a bullet on a perfectly-timed dive. And he recovered to make the play at first as well.

Tony Jacobo was a maniac in centerfield, making three spectacular running catches after subbing for an injured Larry Smith. Smith left the game in the third frame when he twisted his ankle sliding into second base after a double. (He also had a single.)

Shortstop Kevin McLaughlin was "6-3ing" all day long, combining with second sacker Tony Rubio for a double play on one occasion. The "Rube" garnered the locals' second double play in the sixth inning with the bases loaded by tagging out a runner and throwing a strike to first baseman Johnny Mize (three singles and a sacrifice).

Senior pitcher Charlie Vernon also played on stilts, going the distance, striking out five enemy batters and mailing out two one-baggers. His curve ball had the Bulldogs looking most of the game.

Other Steers hitting safely with singles were Rubio, David Manley and McLaughlin.

The locals scored two runs in the opening frame on three walks, a hit batter, sacrifice and Mike Evans' stealing of home plate. After that, Midland had very little chance. The Steers batted around the order in the third, scoring six runs on six hits, and then grabbed three more in the sixth on five hits.

Tommy Collins' charges, now 1-1 in second half play and 9-14 on the season, travel to Odessa Permian Saturday in their next outing.

Player gets set for three in a row

HOUSTON (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa, seeking a rare third consecutive victory, heads the foreign entries who hope to extend their domination of the American pro golf tour this week in the $200,000 Houston Open.

With Player's last-round heroics setting the pattern, foreign players have won the past three major events on the American circuit and have led or shared the lead in nine of the last 12 rounds.

Although holding the hottest hand on the tour, Player wasn't about to predict a continuation of that string in the

Blazers, Bucks fall

By the Associated Press

Bill Walton is back in the Portland lineup, but his presence didn't seem to bother the surprising Seattle SuperSonics.

Walton, the Trail Blazers' allstar center, scored 17 points Tuesday night in his first game since being sidelined by a broken bone in his foot Feb. 28. But it was not enough to stop the surprising Seattle SuperSonics, who beat the Blazers 104-95 at Portland in the opening game of their National Basketball Association quarter-final playoffs.

The second game of the best-of-seven series between the Sonics, who have been one of the league's toughest clubs since recovering from a 5-17 start, and the defending champion Trail Blazers will be played in Portland Friday night.

Walton hit his first five shots and played well, but so did Seattle's young Marvin Webster, who led all scorers with 24 points, including 17 in the second half.

In other NBA playoff games Tuesday night, the Denver Nuggets won the opener of their series with the Milwaukee Bucks 119-103, the Washington Bullets (See "NBA..." p. 2B)

72-hole test that begins Thursday on the 6,997-yard, par-72 Woodlands Country Club course.

"Golf is the hardest and the most unpredictable sport in the world," Player said. "When Rod Laver was at his peak, he was winning every time he played. It was predictable. Golf is never predictable."

"I'm playing very, very well right now," said Player, who has come from seven shots back in each of the last two weeks to win the Masters and the Tournament of Champions. "But," he said, "there are so many things that can enter into it in golf, no one can really say, 'I'm going to win this tournament.'"

"Three weeks ago, I lost by five shots in Greensboro. But I probably played as well there as I did the last two weeks."

Spain's Severiano Ballesteros won that tournament and led or shared the lead for three rounds before Player broke through in the final round last week. Ballesteros returned to Spain, but the remaining foreigners in the 156-man field offer a decided threat to the $40,000 first prize.

Among them are former American title winners George Knudson of Canada, Victor Regalado of Mexico, John Lister of New Zealand and the very dangerous David Graham of Australia.

Others include Argentina's Florentino Molina, who led most of the way at Greensboro, Cesar Sanudo and Tony Cerda of Mexico, Vicente Fernandez of Argentina and Bob Shearer of Australia.

Lanny Wadkins, the current PGA champion, and Lee Trevino, currently on a hot streak and a runnerup last week, lead the Americans.

Some other standouts include Ben Crenshaw, Arnold Palmer, Johnny Miller, Jerry Pate, Bill Kratzert, Bruce Lietzke, former Houston winner Lee Elder, defending titleholder Gene Littler and Barry Jaeckel, who won last week in Tallahassee.

NBC-TV will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

FIRST RUN — Steer outfielder Mike Evans sneaks by Midland's battery, pitcher Ricky Goode and catcher James Allen, during first inning action of the locals' 11-2 victory Tuesday afternoon. Evans stole home on a squeeze play. The Steers scored two runs in the first frame without a hit, and went on to blast 13 hits and score nine more runs.

Bullets bite Spurs, get even

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Washington Bullets traded muscle for speed Tuesday night and left the usually streaking San Antonio Spurs coughing in the dust on their way to a 121-117 National Basketball Association playoff victory.

"Now we have the home court advantage and it's up to San Antonio to take it away," said Bullets Coach Dick Motta after Washington evaded the best-of-seven series at 1-1 by winning its first game ever here.

In a seven-game series, four games would be played at San Antonio because the Spurs would win their three home games.

San Antonio will try to avenge the home loss when the visit the Capital Centre at Landover, Md., Friday night.

The Bullets, who were sluggish and shot poorly in losing Sunday's series opener, gunned out to a 21-point lead by the third period and Motta gave much of the credit to 6-foot-6 forward Bobby Dandridge.

Dandridge, a regular starter who missed Sunday's game with a pinched nerve in his neck, ignited the Washington running game.

"When we don't have Dandridge, we can't run," said a smiling Motta after Tuesday night's game.

"This was the best running game we've had all season," said Dandridge, who scored 16 points.

The Bullets, who hit only 39 percent of the field goal attempts in Sunday's loss, canned 57 percent Tuesday night as guard Kevin Grevey led the charge with 31 points, most (See "Bullets..." p. 2B)

Navratilova is still waiting for papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martina Navratilova, one of the top women tennis players in the world, will have to wait at least two more weeks before learning whether she can become a U.S. citizen without waiting the full five-year period.

In a parliamentary maneuver, the House declined Tuesday to take up a private relief bill that would have permitted the 21-year-old Navratilova to gain citizenship immediately, without waiting until Oct. 6, 1980, the date she would normally become eligible.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., one of three Republicans who screen private bills before they reach the House floor, asked that the measure be passed over without prejudice, thus keeping it alive on the docket and eligible to be acted on within two weeks.

It is doubtful, however, that the bill will come up for vote in the near future because of opposition to shortening the waiting period.

Rep. Jim Collins, D-Tex., sponsor of the bill, said he was disappointed that Bauman had asked that the bill be passed over, a maneuver which normally indicates that the "objector" wants more time to study the measure.

"Their idea is to object to anything that is unusual," said Collins of Bauman and his two colleagues, Reps. Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, and John Rousselot, R-Calif., who blocked the bill two weeks ago. "They come out here every Tuesday and decide what bills they don't want any action on."

"It really hurts me that a Communist defector wants to become an American and can't," he said.

Navratilova also was upset. As soon as Bauman made his motion, she left the chamber and was seen crying in the hallway.

Navratilova defected from Czechoslovakia and applied for U.S. citizenship Oct. 6, 1975.

Collins said if she could become a citizen by July she would be eligible to play on the U.S. team in the Federation and Wightman cups. She also would be able to receive a visit from her parents who remain in Czechoslovakia, he said.

In the report's dissenting view, Eilberg said Congress would have difficulty defending passage of the bill in the future.

SENDING IT BACK — Chris Evert is seen here returning a serve to little Tracy Austin during her recent victory. May 9-14, Evert and all the big name tennis stars (excluding Jimmy Connors) will be in Dallas for the World Championship Tennis tournament.

Net faves fall at River Oaks

HOUSTON (AP) — Underdogs Dick Saviano and Terry Moor provided the upsets and Ilie Nastase's racket provided the controversy at the $175,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament at River Oaks Country Club Tuesday.

Saviano, who only six months ago considered giving up the game entirely, upset defending River Oaks champion Adriano Panatta of Italy 6-1, 6-4 in a first round match.

Fleming, a former UCLA star, put a crimp in Australian John Newcombe's comeback attempt with a 6-0, 6-4 first round victory.

Nastase, who normally provides controversy with his antics, defeated Mike Fishback 6-3, 6-4 with a specially strung racket that allowed him to put extra spin on the ball.

While other favorites fell, fourth seeded Harold Solomon beat Paolo Bertolucci of Italy 6-0, 6-0 in only 42 minutes. Solo lost only seven points in the first set and 22 in the match.

"I almost quit six months ago because my heart really wasn't in it," said Saviano, a two-time All-American at Stanford. "Since then I've brought my ranking from about 130 up to 53rd."

Saviano, who broke Panatta in the seventh game of the second set to take control, said he had always had a mental block against playing the top players until he worked last week in Florida with Harold Solomon, Brian Gottfried and Eddie Dibbs.

"That helped me break the image that they were invincible," said Saviano, who faces Solomon in the second round. "I just tried to block it out of my mind today."

Moor said Newcombe never really got started in their match.

"He missed a lot more than I thought he would," Moor said. "I'm not real sure of my game right now but I do know he didn't play his best today."

Nastase played his match with a racket that had the four middle strings strung straight across the frame rather than woven as on conventional rackets.

Nastase said the unorthodox stringing gives him more spin on the ball but is hard to control.

"It's better for the ground strokes," Nastase said. "I have to play a different game though. I have to stay back and play like Solomon. But I enjoy it it's so easy to play."

Fishback said the racket was a definite advantage to Nastase in their match.

"I think they should either ban everything (all unconventional rackets) or make everything open," Fishback said. "He gets more spin and power because the strings are looser and put more spin on the ball."

Third seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico withdrew because of back problems and Australia's Charlie Fancutt, his replacement, lost to Chile's Hans Gildemeister, 6-3, 6-2.

Congress may pass 'NCAA' laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been asked to pass legislation that would subject NCAA policies and procedures to judicial scrutiny and attempt to assure that its reforms be instituted fairly.

Burton F. Brody, a law professor at the University of Denver, on Tuesday asked the House committee investigating NCAA policies and procedures to make participation in intercollegiate athletics a property right to be protected for universities and their students. He also asked the committee to insure that the NCAA reform its enforcement procedures.

Brody, who appeared before the House investigations subcommittee Tuesday with former Denver hockey coach Murray Armstrong, said the National Collegiate Athletic Association should not be able to get away with its past practices.

"On the one hand, the association creates millions of dollars of television and tournament income; and on the other hand, it maintains that participation in intercollegiate athletics is not a property interest so that its governance of them is not subject to judicial scrutiny.

"Such legislation is not only fair," he said of his proposal to make participation a property right, "it is necessary to assure the nation that the reforms adopted by the NCAA will grant those individuals and institutions subjected to its enforcement program the fair treatment they deserve."

Brody, Denver's faculty representative to the NCAA, was special counsel to the school in 1974-75 when the school was placed in a two-year probation by the NCAA because of violations in its ice hockey program.

He suggested that the Congress use its authority to assure that NCAA reform of its enforcement program be undertaken by a truly representative cross section of its members.

Coahoma places 2nd in 'Big Red'

COAHOMA — The Coahoma High School track team, in preparation for this Friday's District 6-AA meet, took second place in the "Big Red Relays" held Saturday.

Coahoma's 102 points were only seven behind winner Colorado City. The Relays were originally scheduled to be held in Cee City ("Lone Wolf Relays") but the track was in such poor condition, the meet was moved to Coahoma.

Gary Gee and Tim Greenfield were the top point-men for CHS. Gee took first in the high jump (6-0) and fourth in the 120 high hurdles (15.6) and 330 intermediate hurdles (42.2), while Greenfield topped first in the 220-yard dash (23.3) and second in the 100 (11.2).

Second place finishers included Billy Higgins in the pole vault (12-6), Ronald Sundry in the 220 (23.6) and the 440-yard relay team (44.8).

Third places went to Tracy Frazier in the shot put (44-8), James Wallace in the pole vault (12-0) and Cecil Walker in the 440-yard dash (52.6).

Ambrosia Uranga took fourth in the long jump (20-2), Raver was fifth in the discus (125-8 1/2), Newton was fifth in the 100 (11.8) and Uranga was also fifth in the 330 IH (42.7).

Rounding out the varsity point-getters were Sundry, 6th, pole vault (11-6); Walker, 6th, 120 HH (16.9); Newton, 6th (220), Myers, 6th, mile (5:08) and mile relay, 6th, (3:39.9).

The Coahoma freshman finished fourth in their division with 69 points. Darrell Douglass took third in the 330 (40.5), Jay Hall was third in the discus (128-4 1/2) and Clint Elliot cleared 10-6 for second in the pole vault.

Cards split opener

The Big Spring Cardinals split a double-header Sunday with the Midland Lions, losing the first game, 10-9, and winning the night-cap, 4-2, after 5-2-3rd innings.

A disturbance in the stands caused the second game to be short-lived.

In the first contest, the Cards managed six hits, two by Andy Gamboa, and one each by Felix Martinez, Charlie Rodriguez, Tommy Arguello and Lupe Perez. The first game was lost when the winning run was walked in with the bases loaded.

In the second game, the leading hitters were again Gamboa, (double) and Tony Fierro and Perez, each with singles.

This Sunday, the Cardinals host the Kermit Merchants in a double-header beginning at 1 p.m. at Steer Park. Spokesman Andy Gamboa urges local fans to support the Cards on their way to the West Texas-New Mexico semi-pro league championship.

Round-trippers

Tips for young baseball players

MORE CONDITIONING TIPS

2. PUSH-UPS

a. Lie face down with hands outside the shoulders flat on the floor, weight on balls of feet.

b. Straighten arms keeping shoulders back, hips and knees in straight line.

c. Slowly return to starting position.

d. Start with 10 and add 1 every day until doing two sets of 20 with a short rest between the sets.

e. An alternate easier exercise is doing the same movement as above but keeping knees on floor so straight line is from knees to shoulders.

2. PULL-UPS

a. Grasp a horizontal bar at a height slightly taller than reach standing on tip toes. Take an over-grip.

b. Hang still and pull body up so chin is over bar.

c. Slowly lower body back to starting position.

d. Do as many as possible until you can do two sets of eight.

e. An alternate easier exercise is the bent arm hang. In this exercise, the body is held in place with the grasp as in the pull-up but holding still with the chin above the horizontal bar for as long as possible.

4. SWING A BAT — Use a bat 8 to 10 ounces heavier than you normally use. Start with 10 swings and build up to 40 swings at a time. Practice good hitting, stance and swing.

5. BUILD A WRIST ROLLER — Out of a 15-inch broomstick or a broken bat handle, a rope and some weights. Tie the rope on the weight and on the stick so it is about the distance from shoulders to the ground. Perform the exercise by holding the arms parallel with the ground and straight to the front; grip the stick with one hand on each side of the rope; roll the weight up to the stick and down (this is one repetition).

Use a weight that permits three repetitions, rest and do three more repetitions (this is two sets). Gradually build up the weight and the number of sets until 6 sets can be repeated.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to get rid of lots of uninteresting but necessary details. A bigwig you want as an associate does not approve of a standpoint you have. Be clever and eliminate such opposition and achieve much of value.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of minor chores and then get into discussions with associates regarding mutual ventures. Take needed health treatments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take exercise, other treatments, that make you more magnetic, charming. Handle important tasks first. Be more cooperative with fellow workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle domestic affairs first and later you can enjoy the amusements that appeal to you most. Make a good impression on higher-ups with your fine talents. Be a friend to all.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Analyze just where you and your associates are going in your joint ventures and how to get there faster. Be wiser to the ways of others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care of monetary matters before going out for social fun with good friends. Seek ways to become more financially independent.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) First handle personal affairs and then get down to the practical. Use intelligent methods to improve property. Avoid one who could get you off the beaten track.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get personal affairs in fine shape and then carry through with business duties intelligently. Take time out for recreation also.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to the advice of a good friend then decide what you will do in the days ahead. A good adviser can give solid suggestions, also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care of a civic problem before joining friends for fun. Know what it is you want and decide how best to attain it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have ambitions that require the assistance of a bigwig, so be sure to get it. Don't wait until the last minute finalizing plans for a trip you have in mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of chores early and spend some time with a new friend. New and interesting activities can bring advancement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to come to a better understanding with a partner before tackling other work. Get involved in community work and gain the prestige you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will work along with others in a most cooperative way. Give as fine an education as you can since there is fine ability at precision work, neatness, thoroughness. Sports are a must to build up the rather frail body. Give courses in psychology, too, in order to understand the thinking of others better.
