Derailment sparks three explosions

Evacuation order lifted

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — About 3,500 persons evacuated when railroad tank cars carrying volatile chemicals derailed returned to their homes today in this East Texas town, police said.

An evacuation order was lifted at midnight Sunday, a police spokesman said, about eight hours after 16 cars of a 117-car Southern Pacific freight train went off the track. Eleven of the 16 burned following three explosions, Southern Pacific spokesman Joe Bart said, and nine were still smoldering today.

About 180 persons evacuated from two nursing homes were not brought back until this morning, the spokesman said.

Firemen kept watch on the smoldering cars.

About 35 persons — mainly law enforcement officers and firemen — were treated for smoke inhalation and released. The four train crewmen escaped injury.

Some of the cars were known to contain highly corrosive acetic acid and butadiene, a flammable chemical used in making rubber.

There were three explosions after the derailment, witnesses and officials said, and black smoke billowing upward could be seen for miles.

The evacuation order covered a two-mile radius of a business-residential area on the southeast side of the city, whose population is 24,000.

Eyewitnesses Capt. Rusty Sanders of the fire department and Officer Joe Owens of the police department, who were off duty, had parked their car about 150 feet from the track Sunday afternoon to go snake hunting in nearby woods.

"I heard the train making more noise than it usually makes," Sanders said. "I turned and saw a big boxcar rolling side to side and I noticed its wheels were wobbling."

"I saw the car start to derail and I knew what was going to happen. We turned and ran."

Owens lost a boot and Sanders his rifle as the pair fled.

"I looked back and saw the cars rolling off the track. I turned around and we jumped across a branch (stream) and we could feel the heat on our backs."

The heat from the explosions melted the plastic lights on Sanders' car.

Cause of the derailment was not known immediately.

Meanwhile, 90 miles to the northwest, still more East Texans were awaiting word on whether a poison gas well capped Saturday night would allow them to resume their daily schedules.

Firefighter Red Adair's crew capped the well after the deadly hydrogen sulfide fumes had caused a 300-square mile weekend evacuation. No one was injured in that incident.

Some officials have expressed concern over the reliability of the cap, and said Sunday it could be two or three days before residents could return to their homes to stay.

Patricia Hearst prison bound

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst, who lost appeals to the nation's highest court, is returning to prison today to serve the remainder of a seven-year sentence, according to U.S. Attorney G. William Hunter.

Hunter said the newspaper heiress would go to the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton, 30 miles east of San Francisco, under terms of an agreement between U.S. District Court Judge William H. Orrick Jr. and her attorneys.

She has been free on $1 million bail while her attorneys exhausted legal appeals of her 1976 conviction for joining her terrorist kidnappers, the Symbionese Liberation Army, in an armed San Francisco bank robbery.

Dennis Harvey, executive assistant to the Pleasanton warden, said this morning the prison had not been notified of Miss Hearst's arrival, the standard procedure with most surrenders.

Miss Hearst, 24, has already served 14 months of the sentence, part of it at the campus-like minimum security Pleasanton facility. She would need to serve another 14 months before becoming eligible for parole.

Miss Hearst lost her last chance to remain free when the U.S. Supreme Court refused on March 24 to review her 1976 conviction for an April 15, 1974 bank robbery.

Since her release on bail, Miss Hearst has been living with her parents in a San Francisco apartment and recently in a home in suburban Hillsborough. On her rare public appearances, she has been accompanied by bodyguards, as specified in the court order setting conditions for her bail.

Owner attempted to block drilling of leaking gas well

WALTON, Texas (AP) — Thoughts of easy money may have swayed some of the backers of an exploratory well that spewed out poison fumes last week, according to the man who owns the land on which the drilling rig sits.

C. B. Dedmon Jr. said Sunday he fought to prevent the hole being drilled because he considered it a safety hazard.

Red Adair and his crew of oil and gas well firefighters capped the runaway well Saturday night but some officials have expressed concern over the reliability of the cap.

More than 400 residents in a 300-square mile area had to be evacuated beginning last Thursday because of the lethal hydrogen sulfide gas leaking from the well. Most were reported still in motels or at neighbors' homes Sunday morning.

Dedmon said he sought an injunction last December to keep N.F.C. Petroleum Corp., an Oklahoma City-based company, from drilling "Rig

No. 12" on his property.

"There had been another well about 3,000 feet away that had leaked and people had to be evacuated that time, too," said Dedmon. "I own some other land near that well (No. 12) and they're not going to drill on that."

State District Court Judge Tom Crofts of Terrell said he denied the injunction "on the basis of the evidence presented." An N.F.C. attorney said testimony from the witness stand indicated the well could be drilled safely provided "every precaution" was used.

Dedmon, who said he owns part of the mineral rights to the affected land, likened the hearing to a "Chinese fire drill" and said a chance for some easy money may have swayed the thinking of some of the proponents of the venture.

"I may get shot for saying that, but this morning I don't much care," he said. "Everybody likes to make money, but when you have human lives involved it's another story."

Jack Fontaine of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration said he was told the hydrogen sulfide content from the leaking well was about 600 parts per million, "way above the fatal dose."

Ray Miller, district manager of Texas Railroad Commission — the agency that regulates oil and gas production — said the well was inspected last April to insure specified safety measures were being maintained. He said another well 3,000 feet from No. 12 suffered pipe failure due to the corrosive effects of hydrogen sulfide and could not be completed.

Miller, however, pointed out that proximity is no way to gauge what might happen at another well.

"You can't take two holes and even come close to having the same thing in them," he said.

Meanwhile, some residents of this oil-rich, East Texas area said the evacuations are getting to be a regular, if wearing, routine.

"This is the third time, in the last year, we've had to evacuate, and I'm getting damn tired of it," said Henderson County Attorney Bill Bandy, a former oil driller. "There's just no sense in it."

"I think they're moving in people from other states who are not familiar with what we've got here (hydrogen sulfide gas). We've got a unique situation — they don't have anything like this in Louisiana or Oklahoma."

"They're going to have to be a hell of a lot more careful than they've been being. If they're not, I'm going to consider a class-action suit against them. They're going to keep jacking around up here until somebody gets killed."

Authorities began permitting farmers and ranchers to tend livestock within a two-mile, cordoned-off area Saturday. However, Bill Egg, N.F.C.'s chief engineer, said it will take two or three days for workers to install a system of surface valves intended as a "blowout preventer."

Police said it may be that long before residents can return to their homes permanently.

Stockstill still free

Jerry Don Stockstill, 20, of Lamesa, is still on the lam, after law officers failed to apprehend him in the mountainous area of Arizona last week.

The man, who had escaped from the San Angelo jail on Monday night, jumped out of a stolen car and fled on foot to the hills in Arizona Wednesday. He apparently escaped into a wooded thicket. The car he was driving had been stolen in Lamesa Monday night.

Stockstill had been awaiting trial in San Angelo for aggravated robbery and escaped from the second story exercise yard of the Tom Green county jail.

Local police officers believed Stockstill broke into both Roy Motor Company and Etheredge Cowboy Supply Store in Lamesa making off with a set of western clothes and the vehicle later found in Arizona.

Law officers are taking seriously the reported threat in which Stockstill said he'd "kill a cop" before being taken prisoner again.

Who went where in that car?

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa police responded to reports of a two-car wreck and found no drivers to question.

After a brief search of the neighborhood Friday, police found witnesses who said both drivers scrambled from their cars immediately after the crash and fled the scene.

When officers made a routine owner-registration check, they found both cars had been stolen earlier in the day.

Police then began a search for two car thieves and two car owners without cars.

MAN-EATING HOUSE? — Some firemen are foot-firsters. This Port Huron, Mich., firefighter obviously prefers going head first, into a burning house. There were no injuries to inhabitants or firefighters in the blaze.

Race in Dawson decided by narrowest of margins

By MARJ CARPENTER LAMESA. — A good example that every single vote counts in an election came to light in Dawson County during the Democratic primary.

A. B. Furlow, who had served as precinct two commissioner for 24 years lost by two votes on election night. A careful recount by election judges showed that he actually lost by only one vote, but he still lost.

Furlow said this morning, "I just got beat. I have no ill will toward anyone because we have really fine election judges in this county."

The contest was finally won by Ken Pearson by a one-vote margin on a total count of 319 to 317. During the recount, one vote was found which had not been counted because the counters could not determine whose name the check mark was by.

They agreed with both candidates present, that the check was nearer the name of Furlow so it was applied to his total closing the gap to one vote.

One other vote was found for Furlow which had to be discarded when it was determined he had attempted to vote in both the Republican and Democrat primaries.

The vote added for Furlow did not subtract one for Pearson because it had not been originally counted. Leon Cohorn, Democratic chairman for the county and the two candidates met with the recount committee which included Shirley Stephens, Pauline Newbrough and Nita Mathis.

Incumbent commissioner Furlow received 210 votes in box two compared to Pearson's 157 but the boxes at O'Donnell and the Precinct Two shop on the Lubbock highway went to Pearson.

Furlow had 45 ballots compared to Pearson's 28 from absentees. At the show, Pearson had 62 votes with Furlow collecting 35 and at O'Donnell, Pearson was strong with 72 votes to 27 for the incumbent.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: No sales tax

Q. Are tips offered to waitresses in restaurants subject to the state sales tax?

A. According to the way the law is interpreted, they are not. Gratuities given voluntarily by the customer over and above the price of food in an eating establishment are not subject to the sales tax, according to Bob Bullock, Comptroller of Public Accounts in Austin. Neither are meals furnished free by the eating establishment to its employees without charge. Tips and gratuities should be reported to the Internal Revenue Service as income, however.

Offbeat: Real skinny estate

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — A stripe of land three-quarters of an inch wide has come between Concord and plans to renovate its downtown shopping area.

Ownership of the spaghetti-like property remains a mystery, because county land records show the lot but not the owner.

Nobody knows why surveyors shaped the lot three-quarters of an inch wide by 500 feet long.

The only certainty is that the parcel of land must be condemned to make way for a 103,000-square-foot business.

If the owner is found, city officials will have to bargain with him over value of the land. Some say it's worthless.

But City Councilman Richard La Pointe said, "You could make it a laser beam testing ground."

Victim was his brother

SEATTLE (AP) — Firefighter Ed Shaw saw the dead man in the bedroom and realized he was beyond help. He went on to fight the blaze. Later, Shaw learned the victim was his brother, Robert.

"And just then I ran out of air for the mask and I had to go out," Shaw said.

He said he didn't know the fire was at his sister's house until he arrived.

"When I realized it was my sister's house, I worried about my sister's children, Julie and her sister, Laurie," Shaw said. The girls, it turned out, were away.

When Shaw searched the house, he found the victim, whom he did not recognize. "I went right to my brother, but I didn't know him. I thought maybe it was my niece's boyfriend," he said.

The captain said his brother, 39, had been living in California with his wife and children and had come to Seattle for a visit.

Officials estimated damage at $30,000. The cause of the blaze was under investigation.

Okie fugitives long gone

Grayson County, Texas, Deputy Jerry Wiggins said today that two Oklahoma prison escapees may have left the Oklahoma-Texas area.

The escapees, Claude Eugene Dennis, 35, and Michael Lancaster, 25, are wanted for questioning in the slaying of Bobby Spencer, 28, a Denison, Texas, convenience store operator, and the abduction of Spencer's wife, Loretta, 24.

Mrs. Spencer managed to flee the two men who abducted her while they were attempting to ford the Red River in a stolen raft.

Wiggins said the active search for the two escapees has been abandoned, but a general alert has been issued in a nine-state region including Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana and Utah.

Wiggins declined to say why authorities believe Dennis and Lancaster have left the area.

Before their April 23 escape, Dennis was serving a 50-year term for manslaughter and Lancaster a 25-year term for armed robbery.

Lear jet inventor dies

RENO, Nev. (AP) — William Lear, whose inventions included the Lear jet and who was known for his parties, his gambling binges and his flamboyance, has died of leukemia here at age 75.

Lear, who died Sunday and whose fortune was estimated at $75 million, pioneered the small corporate jet which took his name. He also invented the car radio, the eight-track stereo and the autopilot, which enables an airplane to fly a set course without the manual steering of a pilot.

Still $499 million shy

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — They're still $499 million short, but community leaders are "guardedly optimistic" about their plan to win back $,000 jobs by taking over the idled parts of a steel mill.

"We need money," said the Rev. Edward Stanton, a leader of the self-help corporation formed when the steel works closed last fall. The corporation is trying to collect enough money to buy, restart and maintain the Campbell Works of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. on the outskirts of Youngstown.

Killed in one-car crash

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (AP) — The driver of a truck that collided with an Austin church bus in 1972, killing 19, has died in a one-car crash 32 miles from the site of that accident.

State police said Erby G. Wilmuth, 64, died of massive internal chest injuries Saturday night after his car missed a curve on U.S. 60 near Yeso, west of Fort Sumner, and plowed head-on into an abandoned building.

Wilmuth was driving a cattle truck Dec. 26, 1972, when it collided on a narrow bridge with a bus carrying mostly teen-age members of the Woodlawn Baptist Church in Austin.

Wilmuth and another 15 persons aboard the bus were injured in the crash.

The truck driver told police his tractor-trailer rig was already on the bridge, 11 miles east of Fort Sumner, when the bus started across. State police said Wilmuth's truck followed the bridge railing until it hit a support post, causing the trailer to swing into the bus's path.

Authorities blamed inadequate warning signs and the antiquated 19-foot bridge for the accident.

Twenty-seven court suits were filed in federal court in Austin against the manufacturer of the bus in which the church group was riding. The manufacturer won those cases.

Russian ready to talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Zbigniew Brzezinski is ready to discuss expansion of Soviet influence in Africa and the Soviet arms buildup in Eastern Europe when he visits Peking this week.

The president's national security adviser arrives in China Saturday morning for a three-day visit.

Administration officials say Brzezinski, who leaves the United States on Thursday, also is prepared to talk about a possible exchange of ambassadors between Peking and Washington, although no breakthrough on this point is likely.

Evans to campaign for Rhodes

Evan Evans, Howard County Democratic chairman and campaign manager for former congressional candidate Jim Baum has joined the campaign efforts of A. L. "Dusty" Rhodes, wealthy Abilene attorney.

Evans listed three reasons why he will be actively working to help Rhodes win the Democratic nomination in the 17th District.

"First," said Evans, "having been on the inside of a congressional race for the last nine months, I got a chance to know all the candidates, and I feel that Dusty and his people have run the cleanest campaign. This is something that I feel very strongly about."

"I think that things should be honest and above-board, and I believe that Dusty is one that has provided this factor in addition to Jim Baum in this race."

"Secondly, Dusty has the widest background of any candidate remaining in this race. He has not only a good and successful legal background, but he appreciates retail sales, he appreciates the problems of the small businessman, he has farming interests, he has a diverse background that I feel strongly parallels the diversity of the district."

"And number three, strictly personally, I have gotten to know Dusty, and even in the short time I have known him, I feel he's my friend. I believe that if this kind of thing could happen to me, a man who represented one of Dusty's former opponents, and I come away with that kind of feeling, I think it can happen to everyone in the district. I think we need our next congressman as our representative, but our friend... somebody with whom we can closely relate, and someone within whom we can have some faith. My faith is deeply in Dusty Rhodes."

Come 7 p.m. Saturday, June 3, it'll all be over in the runoff.

The oratory will end. The posting of campaign messages and the tearing down thereof will come to a screeching halt. Candidates will no longer have to drag themselves to public meetings at which those outnumber those listening to their speeches.

The airlines will experience a sudden dropping off of business as statewide candidates and backers stay home for a couple of weeks. Plugs for detergents will resume their rightful place on TV, in lieu of political commercials. Babies will remain unknissed by vote-seekers. Doorbells will fall silent, as campaigners quit the trail.

The voters will have spoken, and the clerks will start tallying the votes. The runoff election will be over.

And a good thing, too.

Life, it seems to me, is one damned election after another.

Nine days ago we voted on a whole flock of primary state, district and local contests. In November we'll vote in the general elections. And already there's speculation about city elections to come.

I'm getting too old for this

SALES ARE SLUGGISH — A browser looks at a copy of Richard Nixon's book "The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," in a New York bookstore Saturday. Sales of Nixon's book are sluggish, with the $19.95 pricetag and public animosity toward the former president apparently major factors, an Associated Press spot check of bookstores shows.

Supreme Court lets sodomy law stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let North Carolina's sodomy law stand by refusing to hear arguments that the law violates the constitutional rights of homosexuals.

The court, which has not granted full review to a case involving the rights of homosexuals in more than a decade, let stand the conviction of a Jacksonville, N.C., man for an "abominable and detestable crime against nature."

Today's action is a significant setback for civil liberties forces who had urged the justices to use the case to reach a major decision on the rights of sexual privacy.

"This case involves the question whether the government may constitutionally prohibit private consensual homosexual activity between adults," the court was told by lawyers for Eugene Enslin.

Enslin, owner of a combination massage parlor-adult bookstore in Jacksonville, was convicted in 1974 of having oral sex with a young U.S. Marine from nearby Camp Lejeune. He was sentenced to one year in prison.

Enslin was freed after serving some nine months of his sentence, one of his New York lawyers reported.

The North Carolina law states: "If any person shall commit the crime against nature, with mankind or beast, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court."

Here is a summary of other cases before the Supreme Court today:

—The justices rejected a legal challenge to how Better Business Bureaus and similar organizations protect consumers against allegedly deceptive advertising. The court refused to review an appeal by a California corporation and a now-defunct Englewood, Colo., figure salon.

—The court let stand a Texas law making it a crime for debt collectors to repeatedly use telephone calls to spur consumers to pay their debts.

—The justices left standing a decision forcing a Des Moines news reporter to disclose confidential information in a civil lawsuit in which she and her employer are not involved.

—The court rejected a fourth attempt by 60 members of the U.S. House of Representatives to scuttle the Panama Canal treaties.

Justices to review bad loans ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to hear an appeal seeking to make it easier for the federal government to recover bad loans.

The justices said they will review a ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that federal liens placed on debtors do not take precedence over earlier-filed private liens.

In urging Supreme Court review, government lawyers argued that the controversy could affect more than $1 billion in defaulted loans owed to the Small Business Administration and all other federal agencies which make loans.

In 1969, OK Super Markets Inc., a Dallas grocery store chain, borrowed $300,000 from the Republic National Bank in Dallas. The SBA guaranteed 90 percent of the loan.

OK Super Markets used some $25,000 of the loan to pay off an existing debt owed to Kimbell Foods Inc., but it still owed Kimbell a substantial sum of money on an open account for inventory purchases.

OK continued to make purchases from Kimbell, and to pay off some of its existing debts. But in early 1971, Kimbell successfully sued the grocery chain in state court to collect more than $18,000 in back debts.

The state court ordered OK Super Market to pay Kimbell a total, with principal, interest and attorneys fees, of more than $24,000.

Soon thereafter, OK sold its three Dallas stores and the $96,672 in proceeds from the sales were held in escrow by Republic National.

President could set good example

Granted they are ranked on a level somewhat below the angels, members of the legal profession probably didn't deserve that broadside delivered recently by Jimmy Carter.

Mr. Carter got the attorneys in his gunshots while unveiling his proposals for upgrading the American criminal justice system, itself a noble crusade. After he warmed to the task, however, the president also blamed the legal profession for much of what he termed unequal justice.

THE GENTLEMAN from Georgia contends the wealthy can buy all the legal help they need while the majority of us find it impossible to receive adequate representation in the courts.

Mr. Carter scored a point when he called for fewer and shorter lawsuits. He said he would like to see a system which encouraged more women and minority federal judges and more legal aid for poor and middle-income families.

The chief executive also pointed out that America has the heaviest concentration of lawyers on earth, one for every 500 Americans. Ninety per cent of those, however, serve only ten per cent of the people.

"We are over-lawyered and under-represented," was the way Mr. Carter put it.

Perhaps the lawyer colony has grown so thick, they need badges to distinguish them from one another. Still, the government is not without blame because it has issued an over-abundance of directives, edicts and regulations that seep out of the bureaucracies of Washington into every city, town and hamlet of America. Carter's people have been responsible for their share of the blizzard of material that must be read, interpreted and invariably answered.

Very few of the lawyers elected to serve in Washington ever leave there, even though they might be ousted from office somewhere along the way. The pickings are simply too lush for them to walk away. The nation's capital is, in a sense, over-lawyered, and yet it is not. The intricacies of government encourage them to stay.

The President scolded those attorneys who dared to represent school districts in desegregation cases, implying that few such suits are ever turned around. Attorneys in such cases, he seemed to be saying, are merely attempting to thwart civil rights and economic justice and are doing it exclusively for mercenary reasons.

No one would quarrel with Mr. Carter for proposing that court dockets could be unlogged by removing such crimes as drunkenness and vagrancy from an over-burdened court system, suggesting that no-fault auto accident insurance might work and for wanting to revise divorce laws.

Lawyers are vulnerable to criticism, but so are chief executives of countries. Let him set an example for streamlining a profession by doing something about the bureaucratic morass in Washington.

Rare Exception

Around the rim

Carla Walker

It's nice to know there are some "plain old folks" left among the entertainers.

At most live performances or concerts, the stars don't appear until after an opening act of usual unknowns has bored the audience to tears. Then, when the star does go to the stage, he or she usually totally avoids contact with any of the crowd.

The star usually then sings for a short time, leaves the stage for a rather long break, and comes back on stage to sing for a short time.

Not so John Denver. I went to a JD concert in Lubbock and he wasn't like anybody I've ever seen or heard about.

The crowd was orderly, something fairly uncommon at concerts. Perhaps that shows something about the type of audience Denver draws. The drug trafficking and use, obvious at most concerts, was not in the least visible in the coliseum.

FROM THE moment he walked out, going through the aisles down to the state in the center of the Lubbock Coliseum, he began to establish a casual harmony with the audience.

Anyone who likes JD's singing (and there are a lot who do) will agree with me that his singing would have to be a hit with the audience, even if his attitude was rotten (which it wasn't).

Between songs, Denver would make casual conversation with the audience, intermingling, cutting remarks aimed at his band or the audience in his own particular brand of dry humor.

Each funny line, although it received generous laughs from the audience, only got a short Paul Lynde-style "ha, ha, ha" from Denver himself.

Breaks between songs, however, were very brief, and the free, easy listening singing of JD kept the audience always wanting more.

He sang a lot of past hits — I had forgotten how many hits he has had — but he mixed in a little new material, too. The songs that received the most enthusiastic audience reaction were the foot-stomping and hand-clappers like "Thank God, I'm a Country Boy" and "Grandma's Feather Bed." The coliseum roof was almost raised by the volume of sound coming from thousands of clapping hands.

About an hour or so into the concert, JD gave his band a break, but he never left the stage. While the audience stood up momentarily to stretch, Denver sat down long enough to tune his guitar, then stood up and started singing again, with only his own guitar as back-up.

After 15 or 20 minutes, the band rejoined JD, and they continued the concert, sounding remarkably like a studio recording.

WITH MODERN recording techniques, it is often hard for a live concert to match up to the quality of a studio recording, where many things like a slight flat tone on the part of a singer can be corrected mechanically. But, Denver and his band, which consisted of seven or eight people, most of whom played one more or more instruments and/or sang harmony, sounded as good as any studio album I've heard.

And, after two hours of steady singing, Denver's voice never faltered, even on "The Eagle and the Hawk," a song which no singer has ever tried to re-record. Unlike most of his other songs — "Country Roads," "Fly Away" and others — "The Eagle and the Hawk" has never been re-cut by another artist because the song requires such a wide voice range from low to high on the scale.

The total concert lasted about two and one-half hours, and Denver — a Texas Tech student in the mid 1960s — never seemed to lose touch with the audience, or get at all tired. The singing never seemed to strain his voice, and he never had to use theatrics to keep the audience watching him.

HE STOOD and sang, and his very attitude seemed to show that he was singing honestly and from the heart. Most of the songs he releases are his own compositions, and his contentedness with life and his love for it show in the lyrics and the music itself.

For listening pleasure alone, the concert was worth seeing. But, it was refreshing in another sense — to learn that not everybody famous feels compelled to act like a snob.

Put him down as a goody-goody, overly optimistic, sentimental, head-in-the-clouds guy who sings about an unrealistic fairy tale if you want to. I'll agree, but I call it a compliment. I'm glad there are still a few songwriters and singers who don't think words of a song have to be vulgar, suggestive, cynical, or tear-jerkers to sell.

And, if John Denver comes again to do a concert in West Texas, I'll be going.

Post Bakke

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Professor Morris Shanker of the Law School at Case Western Reserve University makes a point which is at once shrewd, frustrating, and hilarious. Any day now the Supreme Court is going to hand down its decision in re Bakke. Alan Bakke is probably the most written-about American mixed up with the law since Dred Scott. No less than 50 briefs amici curiae have been filed with the Supreme Court on the question whether the State of California can, under the Constitution, deny Bakke admission to a state-financed medical school in order to admit a member of a racial minority less qualified than Bakke by all the relevant indices.

The legal and educational journals of the country groan under the weight of Bakke stories, arguing both in favor of Bakke, i.e., insisting that no state-funded education can discriminate on the grounds of race; and against Bakke, i.e., insisting that affirmative action is the only means of historical counteraction against past discrimination.

PROFESSOR SHANKER has been discussing with some of his lawyer friends the question: What might be done in the event the Court rules against Bakke? Most of his colleagues, Mr. Shanker reports, "seemed amazed that this critical legal point has not been emphasized, or, perhaps, not yet been raised." And he illustrates by fantasizing one or two post-Bakke headlines. Here is the first:

Conference Works Out Amendment Overturning Bakke Decision
April 12, 1980. Philadelphia, Constitutional Hall. For two years, the Constitutional Conference has been working diligently on a proposed constitutional amendment designed to overturn the Bakke decision. The conference was convened after the U.S. Supreme Court, in May, 1978, issued its landmark decision in the Bakke case. In that case, the court ruled against Mr. Bakke and upheld the preferential admission program of the University of California in favor of "minorities" (meaning, really, blacks, Chicanos, American Indians and certain Asians). After draft after draft had been considered and rejected, the Conference today finally adopted the following as the proposed Constitutional amendment:

No state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

But then, writes Professor Shanker, what would happen? He fantasizes the ensuing headline:

Constitutional Conference Embarrassed

New Proposals Offered
April 14, 1980. Philadelphia, Constitutional Hall. To its embarrassment, the Constitutional Conference discovered that the constitutional amendment it proposed two days ago is exactly what the Constitution already says. Yet, Mr. Bakke, despite that language, had lost his case; and none at the convention now could explain how that was possible. (None, that is, except Delegates Lewis and Carroll who could not understand the confusion of their fellow delegates.)

IN AN anguished session, the Conference debated just what kind of language was needed to overturn the Bakke decision. Two new proposals were suggested to the Conference and will be voted on tomorrow:

Proposal 1: No state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws (AND WE REALLY MEAN IT);

Proposal 2: Section 1. No state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Section 2. Person is hereby defined to include white persons named Bakke.

Drug effective against Trichomonas

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please write what you know about trichomonas? What is it exactly? I have a stubborn case and my vaginal discharge seems worse during menstruation. Why? Should my husband be checked? I have heard it called a venereal disease, which naturally disturbs me. — K.A.

Trichomonas (TRY-kih-MOAN-iss) is a one-celled parasite that comes in three varieties. Two are common in the mouth and in the large bowel of humans. The third (the one involved in your vaginal discharge) is "trichomonas vaginalis," possibly the most common cause of this. The other varieties do not cause diseases. The vaginalis type may be found in as many as a third of normal females. The discharge is usually a distinctive foamy type. It becomes more bothersome during menstruation because the organism thrives in the alkaline environment during menstruation.

I presume you have been or are being treated for this. Until the advent of Flagyl (metronidazole) little could be done for it besides vinegar douches (or acidity). The drug is quite effective, and best taken during the ten days surrounding menstruation. It is also available in suppository form. That can be tried if the oral medicine is not effective. It's best to avoid douching during treatment.

The organism can be found in the urinary tract and prostate of males, but it doesn't produce the symptoms it does in women. For this reason, your husband should be checked and if necessary treated along with you. The organism can be detected in male secretions.

The problems occurs frequently in sexually active females, but it is not technically a true venereal disease. It can, for example, be found in virgins. Types found in the mouth and bowels are not factors in vaginal discharge.

Hygiene can be a factor. Women bothered by recurrent trichomonas infection should take care to wipe from the front to the back.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told that when a can of concentrated orange juice has been opened and mixed with the right amount of water the potency of the orange juice is interfered with and there is less vitamin C. In other words, I assume that after mixing it should all be used up and not held over because it cannot be depended on for adequate vitamin C. Is this true? — M.M.M.

Not true. Vitamin C in orange juice is remarkably stable when stored in a closed container. Fresh juice and the reconstituted kind have been stored for eight days with very little loss of vitamin C. When stored in an open container, the C does deteriorate.

Even the vitamin capsules lose potency if not stored in a sealed container.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have asked Jesus into my life and am trying to put Him first in everything, but I do not feel His presence with me. I need to feel the power of Jesus in my life. How can this happen? — C. J.

DEAR C. J.: You have taken the first step in the Christian life by inviting Jesus Christ to come into your life as Savior and Lord. How did you do that? You did it by faith, not just by feeling. By faith you have accepted God at His Word — that you are a sinner and that God's Son Jesus is your only remedy for sin. "For by grace are ye saved through faith" (Ephesians 2:8).

The Bible tells you that God is with you right now. He has promised to come into your life, and He cannot lie or go back on that promise. "If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me" (Revelation 3:20). The important thing is that you learn to trust God's promises, not your feelings. Feelings come and go, but you have been born again "by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever" (1 Peter 1:23).

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor: I wanted to share some thoughts with you on the recent recommendation by Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams that several long distance passenger trains — heavily subsidized by the taxpayer — be eliminated. One of the trains proposed for elimination is the Inter-American, which travels from Chicago to Laredo.

In 1971 Congress set out on a great adventure to bring back passenger rail service in this country. I shared that dream with many of my colleagues, and worked hard to see that Texans could participate in the rail renaissance.

Since then, I have watched Amtrak's appetite for federal subsidies grow out of control. In 1971 the taxpayer was asked to cover a $22.7 million operating deficit for the infant system; last year that deficit had reached $52.6 million — an increase of 2300 per cent. In '71, Amtrak passenger revenues covered almost 50 per cent of total operating costs; today revenues cover only 37.4 per cent of costs.

You don't have to be an accountant to see we are rapidly losing ground. With 7 years of experience under our belt, it is time to re-examine the program and put a stop to the seemingly endless spiral of increasing federal subsidies. Unless we have the courage to trim back on deficit spending such as this, there is no hope that Congress will ever be able to balance the federal budget.

Sec. Adams has proposed a restructuring of Amtrak routes, eliminating those that represent the biggest drain on the federal treasury. I support this approach, and therefore much also support the termination of the Chicago-Laredo route. Over the past several years, this run has consistently been among the least productive in the Amtrak system. According to the Department of Transportation, last year's operating losses allocated to this route came to nearly $10 million. For every $1.00 paid by Amtrak passengers on this route, taxpayers paid an additional $3.72.

Members of Congress are expected to, and should, fight for projects in their state. But I believe they should also have the judgment and courage to oppose those that clearly run counter to the broader interest of the nation and the taxpaying public. Although I worked hard to secure this route for Texas, our experience has clearly demonstrated that the revenue customers simply are not there. The only responsible action is to put an end to the enormous taxpayer subsidy of this and other unsuccessful routes.

So few people want to ride a train from Chicago to Mexico City or from New York to Los Angeles these days that it would be easier on the taxpayer if we gave them all a free plane ticket.

Unions infested

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Two decades ago, the late Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., the embodiment of righteous wrath, held hearings that shook the labor movement. He exposed links between labor bosses and crime lords. His investigation led to the conviction of Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa.

The flamboyant Hoffa has been liquidated, according to underworld informants, by the mobsters he befriended, and McClellan has succumbed to old age. But little else has changed. The labor racketeers still infest the unions.

WE HAVE sought to bring the story of labor racketeering up to date. The Teamsters, for example, brought in the former All-American football player, Daniel Shannon, to clean up its Central States Pension Fund, which allegedly has made illegal loans to gangsters.

Last year, he testified before the Senate Investigations Committee about the mobsters he had discovered in the shadows. He blasted Allen Dorfman, a convicted racketeer, by name. Intelligence documents in our possession describe Dorfman as "the man to see to get a loan."

Shannon was forced to resign as a pension fund trustee, say our sources, because he dared to stand up to the mob. Now we have learned that Shannon has received death threats. In view of Hoffa's experience, these cannot be dismissed lightly.

The Justice Department and Senate Investigations Committee are conducting a low-key investigation of the death threats. The federal authorities will try to determine whether they are related to Shannon's previous testimony and are intended to prevent him from testifying again.

Since he is still under Senate subpoena, it would be a federal crime to prevent him from testifying. Our sources believe this should deter any underworld hit men. But as a precaution, the government is protecting him.

WE HAVE ALSO been checking into Local 210 of the International Laborers Union, a brass-knuckles local, which controls the construction industry in Buffalo, N.Y. We have identified Local 210 as the power base of the late Stephano Magaddino, who has been named in Senate testimony as the former boss of Buffalo's "powerful, well-entrenched organized crime syndicate."

The syndicate's "principal remaining source of power," according to the Senate testimony, "is complete control of a single, though important union local." We have determined this is Local 210. It was run by Victor Randaccio whose brother, Freddy, is listed in federal records as a Mafia boss.

A Mafia killer, whom our sources have identified as Dan Domino, is carried on the union payroll as a "custodial" worker. "He specializes in enforcer-type activities, and he is believed to have been responsible for some four unsolved murders," testified Robert Stewart, who heads the federal organized crime strike force offices in Buffalo and Newark. Earlier, Domino was convicted of bank robbery in 1968.

LABOR DEPARTMENT records show he started out as a "business agent" for the notorious Local 210. But the Labor Department forced the union to oust him after he was convicted of "making a false loan application to a federally insured bank."

The local immediately rehired him for two "custodial" jobs, paying him a combined annual salary of $18,500.

A companion local in Niagara Falls, according to Senate testimony, is also dominated by an organized crime figure. Without naming the union, Stewart testified: "There have been persistent rumors over the past five years of extortionate demands upon industry, acts of property destruction and assorted misconduct."

"Authorities have found it impossible, however, to develop a viable prosecution because the atmosphere of intimidation is so complete that no one is willing to testify." We have identified this racketeer-ridden union as Local 91, which is run by Michael "Butch" Quarinci.

Stewart summarized the problem in urgent language. "Unless there is a drastic improvement in the enforcement capabilities of the federal government," he declared, "the trend created by the labor racketeering problem cannot be reversed."

Footnote: Our associate Marc Smolonsky tried without success to get comments from the two locals. An attorney for Local 210 said only: "They didn't know what Stewart was talking about." An official of Local 91 said: "There is no one here, and I can't talk to you." He refused to put Smolonsky in touch with anyone else who could speak for the union.

ANSWER TO MARCOS: We recently reported that Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos had secretly started to recover the World War II booty that the Japanese buried in the Philippines. The treasure allegedly was stolen by Japanese conquerors when they occupied China, Burma and other Asian countries.

MARCOS'S FORMER ambassador to the United States, Amelito Mutuc, admitted to us over the trans-Pacific telephone that he had participated in the fabulous treasure hunt. But Marcos denied our story, calling it our own "concoction."

Grand Central Station

with Marj Carpenter

I never turn on any news media machines in the morning. This includes both television and radio. I admit I usually watch TV the last thing at night and often fall asleep with it droning on and have to get up and turn it off.

But in the morning, I firmly believe that I'll hear enough bad news when I get to the office, so I just get up and stumble around the house getting dressed and drinking a cup of instant coffee and then go to work.

However, on Wednesday morning last week, I had been having trouble with my television set the previous evening so as I stumbled through the living room, I turned on the set to see if it worked.

IMMEDIATELY, Ethel Merman was there in the room singing "Wonderful." Now Ethel Merman and Kate Smith were my dad's favorite singers. He liked loud-singing women. Back in 1946, he took me to see "Annie Get Your Gun" on Broadway in New York and kept raving about Ethel Merman. "Now there's a woman who can belt a song," he would say admiringly.

So I quit stumbling around the house and sat down on the arm of the chair to listen to the amazing Ethel. The commentator then said they were tributing Irving Berlin who was to be 90 the following day. I love Irving Berlin songs, so I sat and listened a little more.

The next thing they mentioned was Grand Central Station and the controversy about whether it is to be torn down. The newsman said Jackie Kennedy Onassis is against the destruction of the building, which is part of America's history.

Well, I was horrified over two things. One was to discover there were interesting morning programs, because I don't want to listen to morning programs. The other was to find out I was agreeing with Jackie Kennedy Onassis. This is surely a first for me.

IN 1964 when Sarah McClendon got me a chance to cover a bill signing at the White House, I was thrilled because it was going to be in the "Rose Garden" at the White House.

I had been cleared by the White House press corp. I got there a few minutes late. I rushed into President Johnson's press office and they said, "Mrs. Carpenter," and I nodded hastily. They looked over my credentials. Then they said, "Go right through that door and right through that room to the 'Rose Garden.' (I capitalized it because everybody pronounced it like it had capital letters.)

I rushed into the room and through the first door I saw. As I opened the door, everybody jumped back in a fan-shape honor guard style. I stood clutching the door handle to keep from fainting. I had stepped out on the porch where they were waiting for the President. The press and the television cameras were all down in the garden below.

I began to stammer. I saw a flicker of recognition in Congressman-at-large Joe Pool's eyes with the home that I wouldn't let anybody know that he knew me. I apologized and got hasty instructions on how to get to the Rose Garden.

I went to the Rose Garden and began to look around and was horrified to see there were only sunflowers and petunias. There was not a single rose. I nudged Nancy Dickerson, the television commentator and asked "Where are the roses?" She whispered back, "There aren't any. Jackie Kennedy dug them up." I said "Ohhhhh." I disagreed heartily with Jackie then and on most other occasions.

But as for the Grand Central Station, Yes, on yes, Jackie Onassis. It is part of America. I remember going there as a child when everybody in the country was headed either for New York or San Francisco. It was 1939 and that's where the World's Fairs were located.

I WENT BACK alone in 1946 right after the war and met my dad in Grand Central Station. I was just out of college and 19 years old and trying to be very adult. I had gotten off the train in Chicago and calmly caught a ride down to the Loop where I darringly went in a cocktail lounge. I was really feeling adult, but when I hit Grand Central Station and didn't immediately see my father, I felt a little bit lost.

But my favorite Grand Central Station story occurred in 1964. My three children and I were making a trip to New York, Washington, Philadelphia and other points. The red caps were all on strike and I decided that day that I didn't blame them.

We had way too much luggage. We were not seasoned travelers. Among the four of us we had eight suitcases. That was two each. I took the two largest. Cathy was 14 and took the two next largest. Carolyn was 12 and took two equally large. The other two were left for Jim Bob, who was eight. He still swears we gave him the biggest two suitcases. They were large for him.

We started up those steps from the trains to the main floor of Grand Central. They look like Jacob's ladder to heaven. We started climbing.

I heard Jim Bob say, "I can't." I looked down. He stood at the bottom of the steps between two suitcases. I was tired. I was in Grand Central Station trying not to be scared. I said two words, "Goodbye, Jim Bob," and I turned back to the steps. I heard him coming behind me with the suitcases. And we all made it to a cab. Jim Bob still claims that we were going off and leaving him with the two biggest suitcases in the world.

But I agree with Jackie Kennedy Onassis — even with Jackie Kennedy Onassis — even in the morning on television. Let's keep Grand Central Station — which is out by a very old American fence with a lot of America's memories.

Hustle 3

Prepare for visitors

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

Get Ready! Get Set!... Here they come! It's time once again for the influx of visitors to and through our Big Spring area.

Actually, it will be a seasonal increase which will include the summer travelers and vacationing visitors.

And it's big business for our Big Spring Area. In 1975, the visitor contributed $40 million dollars to our local economy. In 1976, that amount increased by almost 16 per cent to $47 million. The figures are not yet released for last year — but every thing was up substantially, so if the amount increased only 10 per cent, our share of the visitor industry will have registered $52 million.

And that's a whole lot of dollars by anyone's definition. Another plus from the industry was noted in a recent study performed by Texas Tech, which says that out of every $100 spent in our community $12 is collected in state and local taxes. And those are tax dollars that you and I would otherwise have to pay. Also the turnover factor, 6.9 (usually rounded up to 7) circulates that money throughout the community, so that every sector of our economy benefits.

It's interesting to know how the travel dollars are initially distributed. The Food and Drink Industry and the Hotel-Motel Industry each accrued 25.5 per cent; next highest direct benefactor is gas, oil and automotive, receiving 21 per cent; ranking fourth is Entertainment and Recreation with 10 per cent. The final 18 per cent is classified "other" and includes Retail Stores — Clothing — Gifts — Services — Drugs — Miscellaneous. The point to remember is that all the businesses that receive these dollars, employ a large number of local people.

In 1976 there were 1856 travel generated jobs (direct) in Howard County. Surprising? It should be — because that makes the Visitor Business the largest single employer in the area. There's another point to be made here — The Visitor Industry has a great undeveloped potential in the CONVENTION BUSINESS. It is estimated that we can add another $25 million per year if we get busy and attract the conventioners to Big Spring — Let's get to Hustle!

SHOP BIG SPRING FIRST

In line with the preceding remarks, the Chamber's Convention and Visitors Bureau will kick off the 1978 season with the first Big Spring "Hold-Up" on Tuesday, May 16.

In cooperation with our State Highway Patrol, our news, media and area business men, we'll be extending some West Texas Hospitality to some unsuspecting out-of-state family.

That hospitality will include a nights lodging at the Ramada Inn — plus breakfast in the Ramada Dining Room. Dinner will be courtesy of Water Hole No. 3 Steak House in Coahoma;

Kent Brown's Gulf will provide up to 20 gallons of gasoline; Bob Brock Ford will furnish a van for touring the Big Spring Area; Jane's Flowers & Gifts will provide an arrangement of flowers; a basket of fresh fruit will be waiting at the motel, courtesy of Little Sooper Market in Coahoma; Baskin Robbins will provide ice cream and Ike Rovid — RRR Theatres — will supply tickets to the movies.

There will be selected items from various other businesses which will advertise Big Spring. The "victims" are sure to echo the words that will be on the T-shirts from the T-Shirt Factoree, "It Pay to Be Held Up in Big Spring!"

They might also add — That community sure has a lot of HUSTLE! HUSTLE! HUSTLE!

ONE MADE IT — Pat Phillips (l) was the first, and still the only, woman Florida Highway Patrol trooper. Sandra Jones (r) quit the patrol's academy Monday claiming she was punished unfairly for seeking medical attention after boxing training. Phillips said that she got her ears boxed off but she stayed with it.

Her Mother's Day Was No Big Deal

DEAR ABBY: It's that time of year again. The day after Mother's Day, and I'm writing in behalf of "overworked mothers."

Even though we never fail to remember our husbands, sons and daughters with gifts on Father's Day and birthdays, what do we mothers get on "our" day?

We get to prepare a big dinner for all our children and their children. Then we have the mess to clean up alone after they have enjoyed themselves and said, "Goodbye, and Happy Mother's Day," until next year.

We're lucky if someone sends us a plant.

Why doesn't someone realize that a nice Mother's Day gift would be a chance to get out of the kitchen and be taken to a nice restaurant for a change?

Maybe a word from you on the subject would help, Abby. I am thinking of taking a trip out of town on Mother's Day next year. What's your opinion?

DISAPPOINTED AGAIN

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: If you let your children trap you into preparing a dinner and cleaning up the mess alone, you have only yourself to blame. You should know your children well enough to speak frankly with them, and if you don't, it's time you did.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for many years. I have a son and a daughter who are as different as night and day. Both are married and have families.

My son has always been a very selfish person, and his wife is just like him. They never have time for me. I hear from them only when they want something.

My daughter has been wonderful to me. She's always calling me, inviting me to be with her and her family, and she lets me know that she is there should I ever need her.

When my husband died, he left everything to me. I am not a millionaire, but I do have a sizable estate. My lawyer is after me to make a will, and that's where I need your help, Abby. Should I divide what I have equally between my son and my daughter? I wouldn't totally ignore my son, but I don't think he's entitled to as much as his sister. If you think I'm being petty and small-minded to want to punish my son for treating me shabbily, let me have it. I can take it, and I've been wrong before.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: An inheritance is a gift. You need not apologize for deciding against giving your son a gift you feel he's not entitled to. Use your own judgment, and don't feel guilty.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

'Flower lady' still selling PTA corsages

CHICAGO (AP) - Lillian Glover is back for her 24th year at the state PTA convention, once again selling the handmade corsages that have raised $100,000 to send kids to college.

"It just wouldn't be a PTA convention without one of Lillian's corsages," one delegate said, pinning a corsage on the shoulder of her dress as the Illinois PTA opened a three-day session Thursday.

Mrs. Glover has 1,800 of her creations on sale this year - at $2 for the large ones and $1 for the smaller clusters and boutonnières.

She said the price has not changed since she started selling them in 1954. All the proceeds go to a PTA college scholarship fund.

"Sure, I could use the money," says Mrs. Glover, a widow who declined to give her age. "But I just think it's much nicer this way. I like young people and feel that education is the best way for them to improve themselves."

"I know some youngsters go to college and play around," she said, "but I don't think the students we send on scholarships do that. I'd be awfully disappointed if I thought they did."

Mrs. Glover makes the flowers by folding, crimping and twisting florist's ribbon. The PTA donates the materials. Some years she has made as many as 3,000.

"No one helps me," she said. "Two years ago I was in the hospital for a month with arthritis and could hardly move, but I still got the flowers done on time. I learned to make them from my mother when I was just a little girl. I can almost do it in my sleep. I don't even have to look at what I'm doing."

Mrs. Glover changes the color of her flowers from year to year. This year's crop was rose-colored, but she refuses to make blue roses.

"They wanted me to make blue roses for the Bicentennial so we could have red, white and blue. But I just wouldn't do it. Who ever saw a blue rose?" she said. "We compromised. I made a white bloom and three red buds and put a blue bow behind them. It turned out very nice."

Showdown vote scheduled late today in Senate

Carter predicting arms victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, after talking with several senators, is predicting that the Senate tonight will refuse to block his plan to sell sophisticated U.S. warplanes to Israel and two of its Arab neighbors.

The Senate vote this evening will come after 10 hours of debate today that includes a two-hour closed-door meeting of the Senate to discuss classified aspects of the pending sale.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., who asked for the closed session, said he wants the lawmakers to discuss the security implications for "the entire Middle East" of the presence in the area of Soviet-backed Cuban troops.

Even if the Senate should vote to kill the sale of planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia, the proposal would survive if the House refuses to block the sale, too.

Such proposals are automatically approved unless both the Senate and the House vote to reject the sales.

On the eve of the Senate showdown vote, Carter lobbied his $4.8 billion plane sale proposal with several senators.

He telephoned them Sunday from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., where he spent the weekend.

Then, in a statement issued before he returned to the White House, Carter said he thinks the Senate will approve the proposed sale to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

The president said he had been "impressed by the sincere desire of senators I have talked with this weekend to rise above partisanship and political concerns."

He called the sales "crucial to our efforts to secure a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia also foresaw victory. "I think we have the votes to allow the sales to go forward," he said.

Two opponents, meanwhile, predicted a close vote. Republican Sen. Jacob Javits of New York said the resolution to disapprove the sale would be decided by "one or two votes on either side."

And the assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, said the situation in the Senate was "extremely fluid."

Cranston broke with the administration on the warplane deal, saying the White House offer of 20 additional planes later on for Israel was "insufficient."

He also said the assurance that the planes sold Saudi Arabia would not be used against Israel was "undependable."

Carter wants to sell 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia, 50 less advanced F-5Es to Egypt and 15 F-15s and 75 F-16s to Israel.

Meanwhile, in a letter to Carter released Saturday, King Khalid of Saudi Arabia said he wanted "to emphasize that the planes are being acquired for defense" and that his country urgently needs the planes "because of the continuing, and recently stepped up, communist expansion in the area."

His remarks came shortly after Carter told a group of editors that Cuban military forces are operating in South Yemen.

The House International Relations Committee votes on the warplane sale Tuesday. Unless both houses disapprove the sale by May 28, however, Carter is free to go ahead with the sales.

In other action in Congress this week: — House-Senate energy conferees may vote on Tuesday on a proposal to deregulate natural gas prices by 1985.

Conference leaders said last week they still needed on vote from the House conferees for approval. Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicted the compromise will pass, ending nearly six months of stalemate on Carter's energy bill.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee scheduled a vote today to formally reject Carter's plan to lift the three-year-old arms embargo against Turkey.

Defense situation assailed by Tower

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Carter administration has made "several extremely serious mistakes" concerning the national defense of the United States, according to U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Tower said Sunday in remarks prepared for an Armed Forces Week speech at Randolph Air Force Base here that the mistakes "if not corrected, will decidedly affect the future ability of our armed forces to maintain the peace and stability which the United States enjoys today."

The Texas Republican said the government must recognize the "growing seriousness of the Soviet military challenge."

Tower urged Americans to speak out for "increased support of our national defense in the administration and the Congress."

"Among the most damaging and ill-advised decisions which the administration has made are the cancellation of the B-1 strategic bomber, the delays in modernizing our strategic deterrent forces, the dramatic cutbacks in naval shipbuilding and the baffling refusal to proceed with production of the enhanced radiation weapons so desperately needed by our NATO forces in Europe."

"These decisions and other unwise reductions in spending for military programs will inevitably have a detrimental effect on the readiness of our forces in the 1980s," said Tower, the ranking GOP member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

He said the Carter administration has repeatedly "subordinated" military requirements to the cost limitations of important weapons systems.

"While it is true that modern weapon systems are very expensive to develop and produce, we can ill afford to restrict our spending on vital defense programs at a time when the Soviet Union is continuing to expand and improve its impressive arsenal of strategic and conventional weaponry."

Tower, who has served in the Senate since 1960, is seeking re-election this year. U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger has won the Democratic nomination to challenge Tower.

Recycled monkeys

SEATTLE (AP) — Want to buy a Rhesus monkey, slightly used: Or perhaps a new one?

If you are a scientist, you might find an experimental monkey in a "new and used monkeys" bulletin published weekly by the Primate Supply Information Clearinghouse at the University of Washington.

Maryeva Terry, manager of the animals are "used" but some are "new," having been bought but not included in experiments.

The clearinghouse does not physically transfer animals from one laboratory to another, she said, but makes contacts and follow-up inquiries.

Funded by the National Institute of Health, the bulletin, which goes to about 2,800 subscribers nationally, provides a way of using available primates rather than going to the expense of purchasing and importing more. It also helps conserve the world's supply of primates used for research, she said.

'Rested' Vitas takes WCT

DALLAS (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis, the newly-crowned World Championship of Tennis titleholder, had a message for one of his teammates on the World Team Tennis New York Apples: Take that Billie Jean King.

"I know this will show Billie Jean, because she says I never work hard enough," Gerulaitis joked Sunday after quickly dispatching a ragged and struggling Eddie Dibbs 6-3, 5-2, 6-1 for the WCT crown.

"I'm gonna go back and tell her, 'I'd like to see you go out and win that tournament,'" quipped Gerulaitis, who's never been known as a hard worker on the practice court, perhaps because of his conscientiously-groomed playboy image.

The well-rested Gerulaitis got into the finals on a default Friday by injured, top-seeded Bjorn Borg and hadn't played since Wednesday night. He needed only an hour and a half to overwhelm Dibbs with his deadly volleys and newly-strengthened serve.

"I was never in the match with the guy," said Dibbs, who played Thursday and Friday night. "I couldn't get going. The racket felt like it was dead or the strings were dead. My forearm was really bad. It was usually my big shot in the last two matches."

Dibbs, who had won all four of his previous matches against Gerulaitis, had swept into the finals without losing a set, largely on the strength of his hypnotic baseline game.

But Dibbs' game was riddled with errors Sunday, many of them forced by Gerulaitis' whistling serves and crisp net play. Dibbs lost 55 points on errors.

"I knew what I had to do. I just played a sound game. I didn't do anything spectacular," Gerulaitis said. "Eddie didn't play well, but I didn't give him a chance. There's not much he can do if I'm serving and volleying well."

Dibbs agreed, "He Gerulaitis was exceptional. He's very quick, very tough to pass. He comes to the net very well. His serve got better, especially his first serve. It was very tough."

Apples Coach Fred Stolle told Gerulaitis last month he needed a stronger serve to become one of the world's top three players. Gerulaitis has been developing the serve, and he defaulted 14 times in his Wednesday day night quarter-final victory over Raul Ramirez.

He trimmed that to only three against Dibbs and didn't double-fault in the final two sets. The victory was worth $100,000. Dibbs got $40,000.

LEE TREVINO
"A Fantastic Week!"

'Craftier' Lee wins Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "Golf is a crazy game," says Jerry Pate, and along comes Lee Trevino to prove it.

With his lead in jeopardy, Merry Mex chipped in from off the green for a birdie, swept in with a sparkling 66 and won the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation Sunday in a runaway record 268.

"A fantastic week," said Trevino of his 12-under-par performance and its $40,000 reward. "I love it."

Trevino abandoned his swash-buckling, go-for-broke style and said it was a craftier Latino who fired rounds of 66, 68, 68, 66 to capture his second Colonial crown by a comfortable four shots.

"I just kept jabbing away," he said. "I think I played it very smart."

Pate knifed through the pack with a closing 5-under-par 65 to tie Jerry Heard at 272 for second place. The consolation prize was $18,000 apiece.

Heard, the only serious challenger in the stretch run, slipped in with a 68 after a bizarre turn of events at the 14th and 15th holes that ended a tense duel in the Texas sun.

"The turning point was the 14th," said Trevino, who was nursing a 2-shot lead, flirting with a bogey five and looking at Heard's second shot resting 10 feet from the cup.

"Everything was up for grabs until the 14th hole," he said. "It looked like Heard was going to get even and instead he went three down."

Trevino holed out from 30 feet and Heard, the 1972 Colonial champion, missed his 10-footer.

A double bogey at the par-4 15th ended the Heard threat.

"I looked at the board when I stepped out he 16th tee and I had a 6-shot lead," Trevino marveled. "That was it. I put my marbles away . . . I bogeyed the 17th but by then it was all over."

What does one think about with a 6-stroke lead?

"You just hope to hell you run out of holes in a hurry," said Trevino.

Pressure?

"Pressure's playing for $10 when you don't have anything in your pocket," said Sullivan, "I felt sorry for him sitting . . . on the sidelines. We just hope he can play."

The Bears pounded three Houston pitchers for 12 hits and Mike Breslin was the loser.

The SWC announced that slightly over 7,000 fans attended the tournament, which was down from the 12,000 last year when Texas was in the final four.

Indy vet finds car

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Lloyd Ruby, a veteran of 18 consecutive Indianapolis 500-mile auto races, has finally found a ride for this year's race.

The 50-year-old Wichita Falls, Texas, native did not have a car waiting for him at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway this year and was not listed among drivers who would be attempting to qualify.

But Ruby's longtime friend Gene White bought a car from Parnelli Jones on Sunday, and Ruby may attempt to qualify it next weekend. The racer is a Cosworth-powered Parnelli chassis similar to one being driven by Danny Ongais. Ruby's best finish here was third in 1964.

Qualifications were rained out Saturday and Sunday.

Storybook Baylor captures SWC title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Baylor's storybook Bears don't like to mess with a good plot, so they won the Southwest Conference baseball tournament Sunday night similar to the way they did it last year.

Finishing third behind Arkansas and Texas A&M in the regular season, Coach Mickey Sullivan's crew swept through the tournament without a defeat, clinching the championship with an 11-3 rout of the Houston Cougars.

"We sure enjoy this tournament," smiled Sullivan after the Bears had clinched a trip to Arlington this weekend to play in an NCAA regional tournament for the right to go to the College Baseball World Series in Omaha in June. Houston ousted Texas A&M 17-10 Sunday afternoon to get a shot at Baylor in the double elimination tournament. The Bears, who had defeated Houston in an earlier game, scored eight runs in the first two innings, and it was turned out the lights.

Manuel Ordonez cracked a three-run triple and Jaime Cocanower, who had been struggling all year, went seven innings and permitted only three runs and seven hits.

"Cocanower sure came through at a good time," said Sullivan, who had seen the ace of his pitching staff, Burl Coker, felled by an injury Saturday night. Coker was hit in his pitching arm by a wild throw as he beat out a grounder and his status for the NCAA regionals in questionable.

The four teams for the tournament have yet to be announced, but Louisiana Tech is expected in the field along with possibly Pan American, a top independent, and an at-large team. Miami of Ohio was an at-large team last year.

Baylor, a slugging club, is 29-17-2 for the year, while Houston finished 29-21.

Texas A&M, the regular season champion, still has a chance to get into the NCAA playoffs as an at-large team in the Tulsa, Okla., regional.

"We dedicated the game to Coker," said Sullivan. "I felt sorry for him sitting . . . on the sidelines. We just hope he can play."

The Bears pounded three Houston pitchers for 12 hits and Mike Breslin was the loser.

The SWC announced that slightly over 7,000 fans attended the tournament, which was down from the 12,000 last year when Texas was in the final four.

YMCA tourney termed success

The Arenibia-Hardesty Invitational handball tournament held this past weekend at the YMCA was a success according to tournament director, Herb Shipp. Handballers from Dallas, Lubbock, Odessa, Midland, San Angelo and Carlsbad, N.M. all came to contend for the prizes.

In the Masters Doubles, the winners were Tom Heiting and Ken Wyatt from Odessa. Locals Tito Arenibia and Frank Hardesty were runners-up and locals Reeves Moren and John Preston took third place.

In the "A" singles division, two locals battled for first place with A. J. Pirkle besting Bill Arenibia in a hard fought match. Pat Dearen of San Angelo took third.

The "B" division championship match was also between two local handballers with Herb Shipp taking the championship and Ben Danley finishing second. Third place was garnered by Richard Arthur of Colorado City.

In "C" class, local Jim Moss won first place over Joe Davila of Odessa, and local Sandy Sandlin placed third.

Change in Nuggets extends season

DENVER (AP) — Some minor adjustments, such as a switch in defensive assignments, and one major change, an effort to set picks for superstar David Thompson, helped extend the Denver Nuggets' season at least another game.

With Thompson regaining his shooting touch and his confidence to score 35 points, the Nuggets held off a second-half Seattle comeback and beat the SuperSonics 123-114 Sunday in their National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series.

The triumph reduced the Sonics' lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven Western Conference finals. Game 6 will be played Wednesday night in Seattle. Game 7, if necessary, would be played Friday night in Denver.

The winner of the series meets the Washington Bullets in the championship round, which begins next Sunday at the home of the Western champion.

"Now the monkey's on their back," said Thompson after the Nuggets bounced back from three straight defeats to stay alive in the series. "Seattle has to win up there. I'm sure they don't want to come back here for the seventh game. We can go up there Wednesday and be loose, just play our games."

From a historical standpoint, Denver's task would not appear to be quite that simple. Only two teams in NBA playoff history have rallied from 3-1 deficits to win a series. In addition, the Sonics were no pushovers at home, having won 19 straight games at the Coliseum.

"They're still in the driver's seat," admitted Denver center Dan Issel, who scored 27 points and pulled down 10 rebounds as the Nuggets held a 55-40 rebounding edge Sunday over the SuperSonics. Issel said winning the sixth game "is a pretty good size hill to climb, but stranger things have happened."

Aggies take track title

DALLAS (AP) — The same fluid stride is still there, but where has Olympian Johnny "Gold Medal" Jones' closing kick gone?

Curtis Dickey believes Jones is still suffering from the effects of a hamstring muscle pull that occurred against Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl disaster for the Texas Longhorns.

But Jones won't alibi. And his track coach, Cleburne Price, says all Jones needs is to work on his start.

Dickey, a sophomore halfback for the Texas Aggie football team and a tremendous competitor, uncorked his powerful stride to cruise the 100-meter dash in 10.05 seconds to capture the blue ribbon event of the 63rd annual Southwest Conference track and field meet Saturday night.

Jones, who got out of the blocks late, could never catch Dickey and finished second. Jones came in at a faltering fifth in the 200-meter race won by A&M's Ray Brooks. The Aggies bagged the SWC track and field title to end a string of six straight championships for Texas, which finished an embarrassing six.

Jones, a member of the victorious U.S. 400-meter team in 1976 in Montreal, said after the race, "My hamstring feels fine. It didn't bother me at all. I didn't think my start was abnormally slow. I always start slow, or at least that's what they tell me."

Dickey said, "Jones' leg is not 100 per cent and I'm looking forward to running him again when we're both 100 per cent."

Dickey ran what could have been a world record 9.4 in a triangular meet earlier this year, but there is no wind gauge at the Aggie track so the mark could not be submitted.

For Texas, it was the first time the school had gone without a team spring championship since 1931.

Kingman towers over Dodgers

By the Associated Press

At 6-foot-7, Dave Kingman is a giant among baseball players. Whenever he visits Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, he looks even taller.

As a member of the New York Mets two years ago, the hard-hitting outfielder smashed three home runs and drove in eight runs in his favorite hitting park.

As a member of the Chicago Cubs Sunday, he did the same thing.

"I consider this my home," said Kingman after leading the Cubs to a 10-7, 15-inning victory. "I can recall a lot of times coming here to end a long drought."

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Cincinnati Reds 7-4; the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the San Diego Padres 1-0; the Atlanta Braves edged the Montreal Expos 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants took a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4 in 12 innings and then 4-3 in 10. A doubleheader between New York and Houston was rained out.

Phillies 7, Reds 4

Home runs by Mike Schmidt, Richie Hebner and Greg Luzinski carried Philadelphia over Cincinnati. Schmidt's solo home run and Hebner's two-run blast highlighted the Phillies' three-run sixth and Luzinski's bases-empty shot in the eighth provided the Phillies with their final run and a safe 7-1 lead.

George Foster drove in three runs for the Reds, one in the first with a single and two in the eighth with a triple.

Pirates 1, Padres 0

Rookie right-hander Don Robinson hurled a four-hitter to pitch Pittsburgh over San Diego. The 20-year-old Robinson struck out seven and didn't walk a batter in improving his record to 3-1. Randy Jones took the loss.

Braves 2, Expos 1

Dick Ruthven scattered eight hits and Atlanta Braves scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning on Rod Gilbert's double to beat Montreal.

Brian Asselstine gave the Braves a 1-0 lead with a homer in the first inning. But the Expos came back with a run in their half of the inning on Gary Carter's sacrifice fly.

Giants 5-4, Cardinals 4-3

Terry Whitfield's two-out homer in the bottom of the 12th inning led San Francisco to its first-game victory over St. Louis and then Whitfield doubled and scored the winning run in the 10th inning of the nightcap to complete a doubleheader sweep for the streaking Giants.

The dramatic victories gave the Giants a five-game winning streak and improved their lead in the National League Western Division to 1½ games over the Cincinnati Reds and two games over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Watson, in addition to quarterback Jim Brown, has dropped the program since the picture was taken, and other quarterbacks, Ricky Myers, Gilbert Rubio and Kevin McLaughlin were still involved in the Steer baseball program at the time. Football, blue chips, new cars and NCAA DALLAS (AP) — Last August before he reported to preseason football practice at Oklahoma State, Houston blue-chipper Dexter Manley stopped off in Pryor, Okla., and picked up a new Mercury Cougar.

Manley, listed as first-string linebacker at the end of spring practice April 29, claims he bought the car in Houston with money earned from a hometown summer job and from insurance benefits resulting from his father's death last June.

However, he said he doesn't remember the name of the construction company or the name of the Houston car dealer. His mother said she has no idea where he got the car. She said the insurance settlement was a "very small amount" and added that Dexter's summer job was news to her.

The Oklahoma motor vehicle records show the car was bought from Jim Phillips Ford in Pryor — 120 miles from Stillwater, home of the university. Last Jan. 9, Oklahoma State was placed on two-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for recruiting violations.

Phillips said Manley came into the dealership alone Aug. 19, 1977 and paid for the car with a $6,850 draft from the First National Bank at Stillwater.

"I've never heard of Pryor, Okla.," Manley said. "I don't know who is saying I bought the car there. I bought the car in Houston and I paid cash money for it. I worked for a construction company last summer, but I can't remember the name of it. But I made good money, $9 an hour."

Part of the NCAA's report included five charges that athletes were driving cost-free automobiles furnished by various university backers and representatives.

A Dallas Times Herald investigation reported the following:

At least six Oklahoma State athletes are driving late model Cutlasses, all bought from Jackie Cooper Oldsmobile in Yukon, 80 miles from the school.

Three of the Cutlasses are financed at Yukon National Bank, whose president, Clarence Wright, is one of 19 OSU "representatives" restricted by the NCAA from recruiting athletes.

Two of the Cutlasses are financed with "balloon loans" where athletes only pay on the note during the summer.

Asked about the loans, Wright said, "I am going to give a loan to anybody I want to give a loan to. The NCAA is not going to stop my business."

Jim Stanley, OSU head coach, said he spoke with Manley about the car but did not ask him where he got it. Athletic Director Floyd Gass said he doesn't believe the school or its representatives are buying cars for football players.

Sykes in 4-hit shutout 'rut' . . . which ain't bad

By the Associated Press Detroit from the minors, the 23-year-old left-hander has made two appearances eight days apart with similar results. He blanked the A's 6-0 with a fourth hit in Oakland on May 6 and Sunday he repeated, this time by a 15-0 score as the Tigers pounded out 20 hits.

In other American League action, the Kansas City Royals outslugged the New York Yankees 10-9, the Boston Red Sox downed the Minnesota Twins 6-2, the California Angels edged the Cleveland Indians 4-3, the Baltimore Orioles shaded the Texas Rangers 3-2 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4. The Seattle-Toronto game was rained out.

sacrifice. Otis' double was the 10th of the game and followed an intentional walk to Darrell Porter, who homered earlier. Hurdle and Porter drove in three runs apiece. Red Sox 6, Twins 2. Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and Dennis Eckersley won his third consecutive game as the redhot Red Sox posted their 10th victory in 11 games. With the score knotted 2-2 and one out, Lynn lined Minnesota reliever Mac Scarce's first pitch into the right-field bleachers for the decisive three-run blow. Carlton Fisk also homered for Boston while Willie Norwood and Mike Cabbage connected for Minnesota.

Rain fires tempers at Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — If Mario Andretti had his way, the washed-out weekend for Indy 500 qualifications would have been extended to today. He'll be in Belgium when the time trials begin next Saturday morning.

"I don't see why no one is willing to yield in any way," the former Indy champ said Sunday, after rain ended any chance of qualifying before next week.

"One thing would benefit everyone," he said. "Why couldn't they extend the weekend, say, to Monday or Tuesday, so you get at least one clear day of qualifying in?"

Andretti is committed to driving in the Belgian Grand Prix next weekend, so it's a good possibility his Penske racer — which has run 203,482 miles per hour in practice — the fastest lap in the history of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway — will start the May 28 Indy 500 at the back of the pack.

Team owner Roger Penske has asked stock car driver Bobby Allison, who has driven in two previous Indy races, to qualify the car for Andretti next week. But regardless of how fast Allison qualifies it, it would start 33rd if Andretti takes over in the race. But that's just a contingency plan if Andretti cannot make it back here in time to qualify himself.

"There's no question, I'll break my back to get here," said Andretti, who will try to qualify in Belgium Friday or Saturday, fly back here to qualify late Saturday afternoon and then return to Belgium for the Grand Prix on Sunday.

Penske said he approached U.S. Auto Club and Speedway officials on Saturday, asking them about the possibility of extending the qualifications to today or, if necessary, Tuesday because of the weather.

"They said no," Penske said, "the schedule was fixed." As it stands now, the normal four days of qualifications will be condensed to two days — next Saturday and Sunday. That's not an impossible task, though. In 1953, a record 27 cars were qualified on the second day.

One driver who was not disturbed by the rainout Sunday was defending champion A.J. Foyt, who gambled on the weather would not improve sufficiently to qualify and headed south for the Winston 500-mile stock car race.

Shot put mark dries tears

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The tears in Michael Carter's eyes after the schoolboy discus throw turned to stars after he uncorked a mighty, record-breaking shot put heave.

Carter, a 235-pound Dallas Jefferson junior, was short of 170 feet on his best throw in the discus Friday even though he had thrown over 192 feet prior to the state schoolboy track meet.

He failed to place among the top six in Class 4A. On Saturday, however, with several hundred spectators jamming the fence around the shot put ring, Carter broke the state shot put record of 68-5 1/2 on four of his six throws, including a winning toss of 71-1 1/2.

A final throw sailed out of bounds, but officials measured it and announced that Carter had thrown the 12-pound ball 73 feet, which would have broken the national schoolboy record of 72-3/4, set in 1968 by Sam Walker of Dallas Samuel. Walker also held the state record.

Handicapped Awareness Week being observed

National Handicapped Awareness Week, May 14-20, will be sponsored locally by the Howard County Easter Seals Board to focus public attention on the abilities of handicapped persons as well as their problems in coping with architectural and attitudinal barriers, according to Gertrude McCann, president.

For many years, the National Easter Seal Society has been a leading advocate in the campaign to eliminate barriers which infringe upon the rights of physically handicapped persons.

National Handicapped Awareness Week was launched in 1975 by the Society and its affiliates throughout the country as an intensified, one-week effort to heighten public awareness of the barriers problem as the first step toward achieving public commitment necessary to solve the problem.

Since that modest beginning four years ago, other community service organizations and self-help groups of disabled persons have cooperated in Awareness Week activities planned to demonstrate the discriminatory impact of barriers in their communities. The need to change attitudes towards disabled persons is an integral part of Awareness Week programs.

"Able-bodied members of society tend to see only an individual's disability rather than recognize that person's ability, training and experience," according to Gertrude McCann.
