Panhandle damages might reach $10 million

Floods claim four lives

CANYON, Texas (AP) - Trying to find the body of a suspected fourth drowning victim from the weekend floods that hit the Texas Panhandle "would be like finding a needle in a haystack," officials of the normally drought-plagued region said early today

The Canyon area includes scenic Palo Duro State Park about 10 miles east of this college town of 9,610. The area, which has a flat terrain broken by the canyons, has an average annual rainfall of 20.16 inches but received 7 inches on Friday and Saturday alone.

Officials estimated the storm damage may reach $10 million, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe is expected to ask that the county be declared a federal disaster area. An estimated 400 persons were left stranded or homeless by the storm.

Two victims of the flooding which began Friday were found Saturday morning and a third was found Sun-

Mae Zachry, 43, left Amarillo - 18 miles to the north — in a torrential rain for Canyon but never showed up at her home. Her submerged car was found late Sunday in swollen Palo Duro Creek about a half mile east of Canyon.

"We're not looking for her right now. We've checked out all the cars submerged and everything. As far as a search, that's like looking for a needle in a haystack right now," said Terry Morrison, dispatcher for the Randall County sheriff's office in Canyon. "We don't have any idea where she could be. There's 20 miles between where her car was found and where she was supposed to be. The keys were not in the car, so she might not have even been in it" when the flood waters swept it into the creek, he said.

The National Weather Service said there was a 20 percent chance of more rain today, but officials considered the worst behind them.

"All the water has gone down, but it will probably be two or three days before a fullscale cleanup can be completed," a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Heaviest hit by the flooding were two housing developments situated in low-lying areas. An 18-year-old boy stood on the knobs of a bedroom door from 3 a.m. until 7 a.m. Saturday, with six inches of breathing space from the top of the water to the ceiling, before being rescued about sunrise Saturday by a rescue worker in a boat.

Ruth Booch, executive director of the Red Cross in Amarillo, said a preliminary damage survey indicates at least 15 homes and cabins and 14 mobile homes along Palo Duro Creek were destroyed. Eight more mobile homes and 50 additional houses suffered major mud and water damage.

The rains cut off weekend campers in Palo Duro Canyon State Park National Guard trucks went into the canyon Sunday to remove stranded campers, but most elected to stay where they were. An estimated 150 persons were in the canyon when the flood waters hit, sending a 12-foot wall of water crashing through picnic and camping areas. But higher ground was available to them.

About 30 persons were airlifted from the park Saturday by helicopter. Among the ones rescued was an elderly man with a heart condition. He was perched in a mesquite tree near a power line.

Park rangers said the waters should have receded enough in the park by this afternoon to allow campers to drive out. Flood crossings were still under 6 feet of water Sunday afternoon

Offbeat: Alone but lovely?

MARRERO, La. (AP) - Although Darrell Domingue says he felt a little left out when the other members of his senior class began discussing leadership for women, it's hard to feel too sorry for him. That's because he was the only male among 462 graduates Sunday at

John Ehret High School. Despite the 461 distractions, Domingue graduated 11th in his class with an average of 3.9 on a 4.0 scale. Domingue became the only male in a woman's world after Ehret - a girls' school until courts ruled sex segregation unconstitutional — merged with previously all-male West Jefferson in grades nine through Domingue had transferred from another school as a junior, but earned enough credits by mid-year to move up to senior status. He elected to stay at Ehret, rather than transfer to West Jefferson, and the administration backed him. "It was easy," said counselor Esther Reinhardt, "We had fewer problems with him than we had with some of the girls.

Dad tosses 7-month-old twins to neighbors while fire rages

BOSTON (AP) - A young father tossed 7-month-old twins safely to neighbors waiting below when fire trapped the family in their secondstory apartment.

'The fire was all around us," said William Sheridan, 25. "There were a lot of people down on the street yelling for me to toss the kids. I figured the chances were good so I did it.

Neighbors Jimmy Madden and Tom Connally had shouted to the trapped young couple to throw the babies to safety, but Mrs. Sheridan hesitated. Her husband took Nicole from her mother and tossed her to Madden.

"When that kid hit my hands, it was a great feeling," Madden said later. Sheridan then tossed his son, Billy, to Connally.

Holiday traffic

toll tops 350 mark CHICAGO (AP) - The death toll on the nation's highways passed the 350 mark today as motorists began returning from the long Memorial Day weekend.

As of 11 a.m. EDT, 374 fatalities had been reported.

The highest Memorial Day total was 629 in 1968, but that was during a fourday period.

Minutes later, firefighters rescued Sheridan and his wife Kathleen, 24, from the burning building. The blaze broke out about 3 a.m. Sunday in a first-floor apartment in the wooden building, according to Deputy Fire Chief Leo Stapleton. Stapleton said the fire apparently started by a cigarette that set a mattress ablaze.

No 'hot leads'

in jail break

BERLIN (AP) - The two women who faked their way into West Berlin's maximum security Moabit Prison and freed a terrorist suspect carried a submachine gun as well as a pistol, West Berlin police said today.

The women freed Till Meyer, on trial for the 1974 slaying of Judge Guenter Drenkmann and the 1975 kidnapping of politician Peter Lorenz.

Twelve shots were fired from the small Polish-made submachine gun before Meyer and the two women fled the prison Saturday, police said. Three female accomplices were waiting in several minibuses outside.

The women gained entry to the prison by flashing fake cards identifying them as lawyers for jailed terrorist suspects.

Congressional District race. It seemed like a reasonable request. But it was bad timing. It was nearly 4 o'clock in the morning.

Abilene's Mr. Baum, not shy like his son, let Mr. Rhodes know later in the day that he didn't appreciate the political waker-upper. Then when "Dusty" showed up in Big Spring in search of votes, Jim casually mentioned the call received by his dad.

Rhodes denied involvement in the calls. So did his Democratic run-off opponent Charles Stenholm.

WELL, SOMEBODY made them. Republican candidate Bill Fisher, who tests the Rhodes-Stenholm winner in November solved the mystery. Fisher dismissed a volunteer who admitted placing some latenight and early morning phone calls while claiming to be calling for Rhodes.

The volunteer was dismissed Fisher emphasized.

THE PHONE CAPER is marked "closed." However the egging and defacing of Rhodes campaign headquarters Sunday May 14 in Abilene keeps investigators sniffing.

 Rhodes stresses, apart from "trick" callers and vandals, he still is concerned about "last minute distortions and half-truths" contained in letters printed in several weekly newspapers shortly before the May 6 primary.

INACCURACIES in the letters included assertions that "got High-way Patrolman Al White off" in 1967 in the slaying of White's wife; that he was defense attorney for "the man who shot the Cisco police chief;" that he defended former House Speaker Gus Mutscher in his 1971 bribery trial in Abilene and that he usually has "been on the "liberal-loyalist" side in intra-party Democratric squabbles, contends Rhodes.

Rhodes contends the following is the truth:

White was convicted and sentenced to five years in prison; he (Rhodes) did not defend anyone who shot or killed a Cisco police chief; he was not Mutscher's attorney, although he defended Mutscher aide Rush McGinty and his past record within the Democratic party has been one of support of the conservative Democratic governors the state has elected during his adult lifetime.

Jana Jae and Tweed, a singer and four-piece band from the television show "Hee Haw," will also perform at the rally.

Supporters from all 33 counties in the 17th district are expected to attend the rally. It will be spiced with free barbecue

COUNTY CLERK RAY also reminded voters that those who took part in the Democratic or Republican primary election on May 6 may not switch to another party's runoff election on June 3. However, anyone who did not vote on May 6 may cast a ballot in either party's runoff.

dropping up to one inch of rain on eager farmers and their cottonfields. With the recent rainfall, including the heavier showers May 20, some farmers are planting their cottonseed, hoping that more rain in the next few months will keep the new plants going.

Heaviest rain reports came from Sand Springs, where up to one inch was recorded. Other reports of accumulated rainfall were: Lomax .5, Forsan .4, east Big Spring, .12; Fairview .7, south Big Spring .4, Luther .2, and Grady .24.

The rainfall lifts Big Spring's total to over 4.5 inches for the year, but still leaves the area a good one and one-half inches behind the yearly average.

Other rain reports include: Gail .6. and Lamesa .3. A tornado was also sighted east of Post, but it did no reported damage.

Jane Doe' mystery

CHICAGO (AP) - The body of the young black woman was found at the foot of a housing project building nearly three months ago. She had plunged 15 stories from a hall window, but police do not know if she fell, jumped or was pushed. They still don't know who she was.

"We must bury her ourselves. She died here," says Dolly Gill of the city Department of Human Services who lives a half block from where the woman was found. "She belongs to us."

The woman, in her late teens or early 20s, died March 5. Her imported black leather boots were left neatly lined up next to the window. Police said the woman was dressed expensively in designer slacks, a silk blouse and a leather coat.

"I can't stand the thought of some pauper's burial for such a young lady as this," said Ms. Gill, referring to the dead woman's clothing and appearance - 5-foot-10, model-thin with a finefeatured face.

The woman did not live in the building, and Ms. Gill has helped police canvass the south side neighborhood in a futile search for someone who might help solve the mystery of what she calls "the death of Jane Doe.'

Publicity about the case brought dozens of calls, some from the parents of runaways from other states. Some who were interested came to Chicago - one from as far away as Arkansas - but as of Sunday she still had not been identified, and police say they are at a dead end.

Ms. Gill has opened a special bank account as a burial fund and has gotten a promise of a free casket from a funeral home.

To collect the $500 she says is needed for a proper funeral, Ms. Gill is distributing flyers around the neighborhood where the death occurred. If enough money is collected, she said, the body will be buried June 5.

"Someone knows her," she said. "But we may never find them.'

Four children die in fire

SAN ANTONIO. Texas (AP) — Four children died in a two-alarm fire, believed purposely set, that raged through their home early today on the city's west side.

Their mother, Mary Villarreal, 35, and three other children escaped. Mrs. Villarreal suffered an injured leg when she jumped from a second-story window at a housing project known as the Casiano Homes

The dead were identified as Mary Jeanette Villarreal, 13; Julia Ann Villarreal, 10; Jesse Villarreal, 9: and Edward Villarreal, 6.

Firemen said they found an empty gasoline can nearby

The fire started downstairs and went up to a second level where the family was sleeping, fire officials said. Nearby residential units suffered smoke damage, but the fire was confined to the Villarreal home, authorities added.

ODESSA Approximately 156 students from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa completed degree requirements during the 1978 spring semester.

The entire class of 1978, about 400-strong, including 242 graduates who received degrees during the summer or fall semesters of 1977, was invited to participate in commencement ceremonies at UTPB.

Seven residents of Big Spring were among the 156 UTPB students to receive degrees upon completion of the 1978 spring semester. From the College of Arts and Education, Douglas E. Franklin received a BA degree in physical education as well as teacher certification in secondary education; Carl E. Johansen gained a BA in psychology, while Jo Ellen Smith received a BA in sociology and a minor in psychology, and Sue T. Burnett completed requirement for a Master of Arts degree in counseling.

From the College of Management, Albert W. Grindstaff received a BA in criminal justice and Barbara J. Hill gained a BBA in management. From the College of

People in communities served by railroads, such as ours, tend to get jittery when they read and hear about derailments involving chemical cars - for a very good reason

Train pileups can happen anywhere along railroad lines and they occur not infrequently in congested areas.

The safety record of the railroads is excellent. The carriers transport lots of hazardous cargo and the train crews generally exercise every precaution in doing it.

Blooper at the Fed Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON - William Miller, the widely praised new chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has made a potentially serious tactical blunder by seeming to reverse his stand on a touchy tax question because of Carter administration pressure.

At issue is Wisconsin Republican Rep. William Steiger's popular proposal to roll back capital gains taxation to 1969 levels, now the business world's No. 1 legislative target. In private sessions with Republican congressmen and business representative, Miller gave the distinct impression of supporting the Steiger amendment or at least its concept. Soon afterward, following arguments by Treasurey Secretary Michael Blumenthal, Miller publicly opposed it.

Miller's position on the Stieger amendment is scarcely a matter of life or death, either for him or the amendment. What could be deadly are doubts Miller has generated among congressmen and businessmen about his own credibility, an indispensable asset for the nation's central banker

EQUALLY IMPORTANT is what the incident shows to businessmen, here and abroad, about Miller's ability to run the Fed independently of administration pressure. Since taking over from Dr. Arthur Burns March 8, Miller has energetically demon-strated independence of President Carter by word and deed. Those demonstrations are now undercut by Miller's handling of the Steiger amendment. On April 21 Miller received James Davidson of the National Taxpayers Union at the Fed's marble palace on Constitution Avenue. With Davidson was Richard Rahn of the American Council for Capital Formation, an organization beating the drums for the Steiger amendment. The two lobbyists pushed Miller to get behind the amendment.

Without flatly endorsing the proposal, Miller left little doubt with Davidson and Rahn that he liked the idea and believed it would generate more tax revenues by stimulating economic activity. "I was sure he would give it favorable consideration," Davidson told us. The happy word sped through business

ONE OF THE most recent pileups occurred in Nacogdoches, Tex., where about 3,500 people had to be evacuated after derailed tank cars exploded, sending smoke and fumes over the town.

Trainsmen can observe every safety rule in the books but a pileup can occur because of a broken rail, a faulty switch or a weather-weakened road bed.

As long as dangerous chemicals are necessary to industry, they will have to transported in some way and it's obvious the people who make them think the railroads are about the best way to send them to other locations.

The fact that they are handled by railroads dictates the regular inspection of rail systems and rail car fitness. Safety is vital. Speed must be controlled. Rail officials must remain acutely aware of where the dangerous cargo is at all times.

INDUSTRIAL CHEMICALS are essential to our economy but careless movement of such chemicals poses a danger to those people who live close to tracks. Most are made aware that such a threat exists only after an accident has occurred.

Disasters in Florida and Tennessee earlier this year only brought into sharp focus the dangerous potential a chemical car damaged in a wreck

There will be more such accidents, no doubt, but practically all can be charged off to something beside And the mess created by all those human negligence.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor

At one time I was in agreement with a large group of voters who were of the opinion that we had too many lawyers in Washington, however I was involved in an effort that lasted over a period of several years that forced me to reevaluate my thinking.

I am in the sheep business and predatory animals are a major problem. The environmentalists and ecologists began to move in on Washington to protect these predators and through their powerful per-suasion, laws began to be made that were a disaster for sheep and goat people from one end of the nation to the other. Farmers and ranchers were trying to plead their own case before hearing committees on state and federal levels in person and also by letters. We were continually defeated and the predatory program continued to decline. The harder we worked the worse things got. I began to wonder why we kept losing. Laws were being passed that were absolutely ridiculous

Finally, I came to understand that our opponents were using pro-fessionally trained people, both congressmen and lobbyists, to argue their case. They were represented by some of the more eloquent speakers in the Halls of Congress. One of their powerful persauders made the statement: "I am going to take the guts out of the predatory control program," and he did. We lost this effort because we didn't have enough people who were trained in the art of persuasion. We were a minority, but I see minority groups win through good representation.

I took the job as wire editor here. That meant moving 400 miles from my home and friends. And it meant moving all the belongings that were essential and non-essential

But I survived the move. And I like it here. It is considerably larger than the town I came from, but it's not too large. It's small enough for the people to be friendly. Small enough to meet lots of nice people. Small enough to make new friends.

He blew his cool when some people wrote letters criticizing his law practices and he made some wild, unfounded charges when his headquarters were vandalized. I doubt this letter will do his balance any good either but even if he don't think I am worth a letter I think he is worth several stamps from me.

Dear Editor: With the people of the 17th District going to the polls in about a week to decide who will probably be their next congressman, I would like to say something about one of the candidates that has yet to be brought to light.

Many people have been critical of Dusty Rhodes because he is a lawyer. Well, I for one, thank God not only for this man's legal abilities but for the ways in which he has many times used those abilities.

and congressional grapevines for two weeks, leading to Miller's May 3 appearance at the weekly off-therecord breakfast of the S.O.S. Club, a potent group of Republican congressmen. Steiger himself asked about the capital gains question, and others chimed in.

Again, those present got the distinct impression that Miller was backing lower taxation of capital gains in general and the Steiger amendment in particular.

It was, therefore, with some shock, that Rep. Barber Conable of New York, the Ways and Means Committee's senior Republican and present at the S.O.S. breakfast received a letter from Miller dated May 5 unequivococally opposing the Steiger amendment. The conclusion among the S.O.S. members, quickly spread by word of mouth, was that the administration had talked the chairman of the Fed into opposing what the president regards as a cancer on his tax program.

THROUGH A spokesman, Miller informed us he never endorsed the amendment and was never even called upon to discus that specific proposal - a claim at variance with several other accounts of the April 21 and May 3 meetings. Miller also said, according to the spokesman, that he had not discussed the Steiger amendment with "anybody in the government other than congressmen.

In fact, however, Secretary Blumenthal and Miller have talked over the Steiger amendment definitely at their weekly breakfasts and perhaps on other occasions. While bending over backwards to insist he did not turn Miller around. Blumenthal acknowledges he argued against the Steiger amendment over the breakfast table - tacit admission that at one point Miller was much friendlier to the proposal than he is supposed to be a day to remember the men who have faced enemy fire to defend America. This will make it all the more lonely for the forgotten GIs who battled grimly in the steaming rain forests and leech-infested rice paddies of Vietnam.

No one wants to remember the Vietnam war nor the unhappy men who fought it - not the government that drafted them, not the neighbors who sent them off, not the troubled society that failed to welcome them back.

A peanut farmer named Jimmy Carter, campaigning for president in 1976, promised he would remember them. The government must help the Vietnam veterans, he said, find "an honorable and worthwhile place in our society." Carter was elected to the White House. Then Carter forgot them too.

HE WENT through the motions, of course. He established a program, called HIRE, to find jobs for the vets. A respectable $140 million was earmarked for the project, but only about $10 million was spent. The jobless for war veterans, meanwhile, doubled last year.

The president also announced a $33 million program last year to help disabled veterans. First 2,000 vets were supposed to be trained in placement techniques. Then they were going to use their new skills to find jobs for 40,000 disabled vets. But this program, too, has failed. In fact, the Labor Department seems to have lost track of what has happened to the program.

Carter also decided grandly to give 35 per cent of the jobs under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act to veterans. But it looks as if more than 75 per cent of the vets may be ineligible under the provisions of the act.

Also last year, the Labor Depart-ment inactivated the job applications of 43 per cent of the 2.2 million Vietnam veterans on its job service rolls. The department also set regulations that allowed state employment offices to inactivate the applications by at least 50 per cent. Yet a federal law requires the Labor secretary to insure that all eligible veterans receive assistance.

THE PRESIDENT, moving against discrimination, has proposed that women and minorities should be given 20 per cent of the jobs in federal offices now dominated by white males. But again, it's the veterans who take the lumps. For this worthy proposal would set aside existing veterans preference laws, which give vets an advantage over other applicants for government jobs.

The Labor Department has tried to cover up its failure to help Vietnam definition Under the ridiculous new definition, only vets who were discharged from the armed forces four years within the date of their employment application can be defined as Vietnam veterans for statistical purposes. It doesn't change the danger and hardship they endured in that thankless jungle war. But it lowers the veterans jobless rate and reduces President Carter's embarrassment.

There are other signs that the peanut farmer from Plains, Ga., has forgotten the men who fought in Vietnam. He's the first president in memory to turn down a request to speak at the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention. He has no one at the White House to handle veterans' groups. An aide to Presidential Assistant Midge Costanza used to do this. But no longer.

Perhaps it isn't surprising, therefore, that Carter's budget office has been late with the last six studies sted by the House Veterans Affairs Committe

MISSING HERO: One of the unsung heroes of the Nazi holocaust, a man who saved over 10,000 Jews from the unspeakable horrors of the concentration camps, may himself still be a faceless prisoner of the grim Soviet archipelago. A 30-year in-ternational effort to learn the fate of this brave World War II crusader has been rebuffed by the Kremlin.

Raoul Wallenberg, a distinguished Swedish diplomat and scion of a wealthy Stockholm family, organized a courageous campaign to save the lives of thousands of Jews who were to be deported to Nazi death factories from Budapest, Hungary.

To thwart the determined Gestap the young diplomat invented a "protective passport" with the triplecrown seal of the Swedish king, which put thousands of Jews under the wing of the Swedish government.

THEN, USING little more than his wile and diplomatic bluff, Wallenberg obtained housing for his Jewish charges inside Budapest. When antisemitic hooligans tried to attack the hastily constructed Jewish refuge, were confronted by Wallenberg and his friends who threatened international retaliation if the Jews were harmed.

Eventually a fanatic, anti-semitic band known as the Arrow Cross overthrew the Hungarian government and moved upon Wallenberg's fragile community. The Arrow Cross leader, Ferenc Szalasi, consented to the Nazi's demands that the Jews be rounded up as slave labor. A forced march to Austria was ordered.

Undaunted, Wallenberg and his aides traveled the highway daily, intercepting the death march and flashing diplomatic papers.

If a farmer has a case in the county courthouse, he will hire the best layer he can afford to persuade the judge or the jury in his favor. The truth of the matter is that the people of the 17th Congressional District have a case in court in Washington every day. Farmers and ranchers, educators, the oil and gas industry and everybody who makes a living in the district needs a powerful persuader to represent them in their efforts to acquire justice and equality.

As a farmer and rancher, I am supporting Dusty Rhodes because he is well trained in the art of persuasion and also has a good working knowledge of agriculture. I feel he is by far the better qualified candidate and that he is capable of representing all of us well.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What biblical authority is there for worshipping in a church building and on a Sunday? Surely Christian fellowship is worship whenever and wherever it takes place. - M. L.

DEAR M. L.: Worship takes place on a fixed day of the week because there is something special to commemorate on that day. In the Old Testament, people worshipped on the last day of the week so as to mber the completion of the work of creation. Today, most Christians worship on the first day of the week because that was the day on which Jesus rose from the dead. "Upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them' (Acts 20:7).

Worship is something that we owe to God, and we must be careful to insure that we never deny God what is His due by turning our worship into something else. One of the last commands in the Bible states simply: "Worship God" (Revelation 22:9). Church buildings were erected because the number of Christians desiring the worship was too large to fit into homes. Churches are not essential, but they provide a common meeting place, are designed to inspire worship and are set aside for that purpose. In many parts of the world, church services are not permitted, and homes and fields do very well instead.

Christian fellowship is good and can be very helpful, as well as enjoyable, but it is not necessarily worship. The central part of worship is the Lord's Supper of bread and wine. It is this that inspires praise, adoration, confession, thanksgiving and the search for truth through the teaching of the Word.

because his natural parents were unable to provide him the care, love and attention that a 4 year old needs.

For the information of those who have never adopted or even considered adopting a child, the legal red tape of such an action is unbelievable To hire an attorney to take care of all the legal requirements can often cost more money than many prospective parents can afford.

Anyway, to make a long story short, Dusty Rhodes and his firm took care of many of the legal barriers for my wife and I, making it possible for Kelly to become a part of our family. Mr. Rhodes did not charge for his service. Upon checking with Christian Homes, a church related foster care agency, you will find that Dusty Rhodes and his law firm has to date placed more than 400 children with Christian families and charges no fee for this service.

I know there are a lot of issues to be considered in this race to replace Mr. Burleson, but one thing I really believe will add a lot to that office is compassion, desire to be of service to fellow human beings, and the ability to get things done.

I hope the voters will consider this when they go to the polls June 3. Kelly, his mother, and I will never forget what Dusty Rhodes did for us. I am writing this letter without Mr. Rhodes knowledge or permission. Gus & Marie Cowart
