

Three dead, 12 injured

Texas City refinery explodes

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Three persons are known dead and 12 others were injured early today in a series of explosions that rocked a Texas City refinery.

At least 15 persons were on duty when the first of about a dozen blasts occurred at 2 a.m., said Texas City Refinery, Inc., spokesman Rick Sherman.

One of those reported dead was a guard working under contract at the refinery. He had not been considered when company officials were trying to account for its personnel.

The two dead were first listed as being unaccounted for.

Two 55,000-gallon gasoline tanks were among the first to explode. The first blast was followed by about 10 others in rapid succession over the next 35 minutes, and then by another explosion about 90 minutes later.

A burn victim taken to Houston's Hermann Hospital by helicopter was in grave condition in the surgical intensive care unit. Two men and two women were at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, two in critical condition and two in serious condition.

Eight others were taken to Texas City hospitals, where three were admitted, one was undergoing treatment in the emergency room and three were treated and released.

"The fire is under control. The only thing burning is kerosene and fuel oil, with no chemicals involved," a company spokesman said at a 6:30 a.m. news conference.

Rick Sherman, manager of industrial and public relations for the refinery, said there was little danger of future explosions, although residents in the southern part of Texas City were being evacuated as a precautionary measure. About 100 families were evacuated, and many others left the area voluntarily.

The plant was running normally when a tank erupted, Sherman said. Company officials said they didn't know what caused the blasts.

"We still don't know what exploded. However, there are gas storage tanks in the area where the fire is. The main fire is in the central production area," he added.

A huge swirling black cloud drifted over most of Texas City at daybreak. A fireball with flames reaching 200 feet in the air was visible for several hours after the early morning explosion.

Fred Gross, supervisor for the Texas City Ambulance Service, said he was in bed when the first explosion rocked the ambulance service building a mile from the refinery.

"I thought at first it might be a tornado, then I looked out the window and it was as if it were daylight. I thought I was engulfed in a fireball," Gross said.

Gross arrived at the scene even before firemen.

"The heat was so intensive that it was difficult to get close to those injured. It was like an inferno all around you. We managed to get three persons out then went back and got a few more. I counted nine separate blasts. Talk about being scared, I ain't lying. I was scared to death and I think everyone in the ambulance service with me was just as frightened."

A.B. Cole, a Coast Guardsman stationed at Galveston, witnessed the blast.

He said the series of explosions began with what appeared to be two "blowoffs," or venting procedures.

"But a couple of minutes later there was one large explosion and a series of four or five smaller ones. And then a couple of big ones again, and then one huge one at least twice as big as any of the other explosions. Then in another couple of minutes there was a smaller one, and it looked like the smoke was getting so bad we couldn't see the flames," Cole said.

Marathon Oil Co. across the street from the Texas City Refinery, shut down its facility as a precautionary measure.

It was first thought by some that the explosion had occurred at Marathon.

Company officials in Columbus said the facility suffered some broken windows but a spokesman added, "Marathon has not been substantially affected; our operations are normal. A lot of windows are blown out at our administrative office but the fire has not extended to our facility."

REFINERY CONTINUES TO BURN — Three persons are known dead and 12 others injured after a series of explosions rocked the Texas City Refinery Inc. early this morning. Shown in an aerial view photographed during mid-morning, the refinery still continues to burn out of control.

Supreme Court to hear case against alimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether state laws providing alimony payments for women only foster unconstitutional sex discrimination.

The justices said they will study a challenge to Alabama's alimony laws. Thirteen states award alimony to women only. In addition to Alabama, they are Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Nevada, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wyoming.

In a case that may become a rallying point for the women's rights movement, William Orr, now a San Francisco resident where he is president of the Orrox Corp., says Alabama's law discriminates against men.

Orr and his wife Lillian, still a resident of Opelika, Ala., were divorced in 1974. Orr agreed to pay Mrs. Orr $1,240 a month in alimony.

In July 1976, Mrs. Orr charged that her ex-husband was almost $3,000 in arrears in his alimony payments, and Orr was ordered to show why he should not be held in contempt of court by disobeying terms of the divorce decree.

Action / reaction: Blankety-blank caps
Q. Arthritis is something I have to live with and living wouldn't be quite the ordeal it is if I could get the blankety-blank caps off some of the medicine bottles. They're put on there, I know, to keep the children from getting into them. There are no kids at my house, however. Isn't there any aspirin I can buy that doesn't come in those type containers?

A. Most drug stores have a simple form you can sign which enables pharmacists to put prescription drugs in vials and bottles with regular caps. The druggist is required by law to use the safety cap bottles unless they are instructed in writing to the contrary by the customers.

Council nearing goal for pool

The Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Services Council is within $7,000 of reaching its goal to begin construction of a therapeutic swimming pool for the patients thanks to recently-added sizeable contributions from Lamesa Circuit Riders and Mrs. Velma Bartlett also from Lamesa.

The on-going newspaper collection is continuing each weekend at Highland Shopping Center parking lot, proceeds from which are added to the fund. The City of Big Spring has been instrumental in making this project a success by providing a city-owned trailer to be placed in the parking lot to serve as a receptacle for the newspapers. Everyone is urged to continue to save their papers for for the VSC.

Upon entering the count-down phase of the fund-raising campaign, swimming pool chairman Jack Y. Smith commented, "We are near the point of actual construction, but according to State of Texas policy, we must have money in escrow to cover the entire project before digging can begin."

"We are asking all of Big Spring and the surrounding area to pitch in and help us come up with this $7,000," Smith continued. "Many times the last few dollars are the hardest to obtain, so we are making an all-out effort to bring this campaign to a successful close."

"We would like to thank everyone who has been supportive of our swimming pool project. It shows again that West Texans are generous and concerned about their neighbors," stated Smith.

Anyone interested in contributing to the swimming pool fund may contact the Volunteer Services Office, Big Spring State Hospital, 267-8216, ext. 308 or mail contributions to P.O. Box 231, Big Spring, TX 79720. All contributions are tax deductible.

Politicians need face lifting, according to City Manager Nagel

The faces of Congressional candidates Dusty Rhodes and Charles Stenholm should be lifted, according to City Manager Harry Nagel.

In this case the faces adorn scores of signs and placards which Nagel says have been hung illegally.

"It's against the city ordinance to display campaign signs or placards on any property without the permission of the owner or the person in charge," said Nagel. "There are signs on telephone poles and a lot of other city property. Why, a sign for one candidate even ended up on the strip of grass in front of a fire station," he added.

Nagel assured that the city has not singled out either candidate because both are equally guilty. "We have notified campaign managers in writing that those who hang the signs will face a maximum $200 fine," he said.

13-cent letters still accepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although postal rates went up Monday to 15 cents for a regular letter, the Postal Service today was still accepting letters that only had 13-cent stamps.

Those letters will be handled as if they had the proper postage and they won't be "returned to sender" or marked "postage due."

Postal Service spokesman Michael T. McManus said that "no matter how hard we try to get the word out and how many news stories there are, some people just don't get the word that they have to use more postage."

"For that reason, we are going to be flexible the first day or so," he said. "We think everybody will catch on to the new rates within a day or so."

TESCO files request for 24.4 percent hike

Texas Electric Service Company today filed a request for a 24.4 per cent system-wide increase in revenues.

The request, which was filed with the cities of Big Spring, Ackerly, Coahoma, Forsan and the Public Utility Commission in Austin, would provide the company with an additional $110 million in revenues.

"The increase is needed because Texas Electric must continue changing to cheaper, more plentiful fuels to generate electricity," TESCO manager Jack Redding said.

Redding explained that the company's program of changing from expensive natural gas to lignite coal and nuclear fuels is holding down the price of electricity and also providing a reliable supply of energy.

Last year, the company's fuel-changing program saved customers more than $48 million on their electric bills.

"But our fuel-changing program is in serious trouble because our rates are not adequate to offset the sharp increases in our construction costs," he said.

Texas Electric's request for a 23.6 per cent increase last year was cut almost in half by the Public Utility Commission.

"Our revenues have to be sufficient to encourage people to invest the hundreds of millions of dollars needed for our fuel-changing program," Redding said.

"But our ability to attract people's investment has deteriorated sharply in the last year, and we cannot continue our construction program without these people investing in our company."

Visitors crowd mountain

SEATTLE (AP) — Visitors are crowding the world's tallest mountain range, so an American expedition planning to climb K2 in the Himalayas this summer will be delayed two weeks.

Seattle climber Jim Whittaker, the team leader, said Monday that the shift in dates was ordered by the Pakistani government to avoid conflict with a British expedition planning the same climb. Several other expeditions will be in the same area during the summer.

Casino saves weekend

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Casino gambling saved this seaside resort from what otherwise would have been a disastrous Memorial Day weekend, the city public commissioner says.

Commissioner Edwin Roth said gambling at Resorts International Hotel Casino drew many people who otherwise would have stayed away from the shore because of gray skies and cool temperatures. Police Chief William Ten Brink said more than 183,000 vehicles and 300,000 people traveled through the city during the weekend. He estimated more than 100,000 people visited the casino.

No 'Tail-End Charlie'

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — The Air Force Academy's 20th graduation ceremony will be the first without a "Tail-End Charlie." Officials have decided to hand out diplomas in alphabetical order this year after naming the top 65 graduates, instead of in the traditional "graduation order of merit."

Capt. Ron Bell, duty information officer, said Monday that in the past, the lowest-ranking, last-named cadet was given a trophy and, occasionally, a silver dollar from each classmate. Bell said the order of merit was determined primarily by grades, but included athletic performance, military accomplishments and the like.

Owner shares profits

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A 42-year-old Vietnamese refugee says business has been so good he wants to give his customers some of his profits. Nguyen Huy Han is distributing $10,000 to about 1,500 steady patrons by granting rebates when they order.

"This is my way of saying thanks to the community," said Han, who was director of taxation for South Vietnam in 1973 and 1974. He and his sister, who does most of the cooking for rotating menus of Vietnamese, Japanese, Chinese, Indian, Philippine, Mexican and American dishes, each draw a salary of $150 a month.

Prince slashes wrists

CHICAGO (AP) — An Arab prince slashed his wrists with a steak knife and collapsed at his hotel's registration desk, then muttered "Life is more than hamburgers and rhetoric" as he was carried to an ambulance, police said.

Police said Prince Abdul Rahman Bin Jassem Al-Thani, a sheik from Qatar in the Persian Gulf, had opened a $5,000 bank account Friday. Seven thousand dollars more was found in his room at the Oak Brook Terrace Holiday Inn after he collapsed Saturday. Hospital officials would not comment on his condition Monday.

"But our ability to attract people's investment has deteriorated sharply in the last year, and we cannot continue our construction program without these people investing in our company."

Because of TESCO's deteriorating financial situation, the company canceled plans to issue bonds in January to avoid losing its top credit rating.

"If our credit rating is downgraded, we'll have to pay higher interest rate on the money we borrow. And that means higher costs for our customers."

Residential customers will see a 24.8 per cent average increase if the full amount of the request is approved.

However, small users of electricity would see a smaller increase than large users. Under the proposed rates, a customer with an average bill of $10 would see it go up to about $11 per month. And a bill averaging $40 would be $52.

The rate increase request was filed with the PUC and all the cities served by Texas Electric. While the increase could take effect July 5, in the past the PUC and city councils have postponed the effective date to further study the request.

Stewards to preside over dancers meeting

Frenchie and Erma Steward of Big Spring will lead the Grand Entry and preside over the state meeting of Square and Round Dancers Texas Federation when they meet Friday and Saturday in Lubbock.

The Big Spring couple are state presidents of the organization which is holding its annual festivities in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center with a rail End Dance Thursday night as kick-off for early arrivals.

Dancers from New Mexico and Oklahoma are expected to join square dancers from all over Texas with approximately 8,000 expected to attend.

The kickoff dance will be in the Lamb County Ag Building in Littlefield with Chuck Bryant and Bailey Campbell as callers.

The pre-festival dance Friday in the Lubbock Civic Center will feature callers from the West Texas Callers and Teachers Association.

Saturday will include a coffee, informative panels, followed by a style show.

THA elects Norman Knox

Norman Knox, administrator of the Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring, was elected to the Texas Hospital Association board of trustees during the 49th annual convention and exhibit show in San Antonio.

Knox replaces George Fleming, Baytown, on the board. Fleming, executive director of the San Jacinto Methodist Hospital in Baytown, was elevated to the position of treasurer.

Installed as chairman of the THA at San Antonio was Roderic M. Bell, administrator of the Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas.

Carter calls for military build-up of NATO power

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the NATO alliance must bolster its military power to meet a communist buildup that "far" exceeds their legitimate security needs.

Addressing the opening session of a two-day NATO summit meeting, Carter pledged that the United States "will play its part" in supplying conventional, tactical nuclear and strategic armed forces.

"The United States will maintain strategic nuclear equivalence with the Soviet Union," Carter said in his remarks to the gathering at the Kennedy Center.

Carter's appearance before the 14 heads of government or state followed a rapid acceleration in anti-Soviet rhetoric on the part of top administration officials.

His comments did not match the stridency of statements Sunday by his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, but they were a far cry from Carter's remarks a year ago that the United States no longer need have an "inordinate fear" of communism.

"The Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries pose a military threat to our alliance which far exceeds their legitimate security needs," Carter said.

"For more than a decade, the military power of the Soviet Union has steadily expanded, and it has grown consistently more sophisticated. In significant areas, the military lead we once enjoyed has been reduced."

He expressed confidence that NATO can meet the military challenge but "we cannot be sure of countering the future military threat unless our alliance modernizes its forces and adds additional military power."

The NATO meeting was convened to consider a long-range program to bolster the organization's defense structure, which now finds itself outmanned and, in some respects, outgunned by the Warsaw Pact nations.

Carter said the vigilance of the alliance cannot be limited to Europe.

"As I speak today, the activities of the Soviet Union and Cuba in Africa are preventing individual nations from charting their own course. As members of the world's greatest alliance, we cannot be indifferent to these events — because of what they mean for Africa, and because of their effect on the long-term interests of the alliance."

Luns of the Netherlands said in a news conference Monday evening that no such step is contemplated.

In his remarks Sunday, Brzezinski said that Moscow, through "unilateral exploitation of the world's troubles," had violated "the code of detente."

Only last week, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said that Soviet development of the SS20 nuclear missile "is a new departure in destructive power and represents a substantial increase in the nuclear threat of the Soviet Union."

Luns said Monday that Soviet military expenditures have increased 5 percent a year over the last decade — 10 times the pace of the NATO increase.

McLaughlin attends forum on security

Ralph McLaughlin of 112 Cedar Rd., Big Spring, was one of 83 civilian leaders from around the country who recently attended the Silver Anniversary of the annual National Security Forum at the Air War College, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Attendees represented a cross section of business, industry, labor, education, news media, law, medicine, religion and government of the United States.

Maj. Gen. Richard H. Schoeneman, commandant of the Air War College, pointed out that the purpose of the forum was to increase the understanding of national security issues confronting the United States and the influence of aerospace power on the formulation and education of national strategy.

General Schoeneman also stated that the Security Forum was designed to expose the 262 Air War College students to the viewpoints of the representative civilians on the fundamental issues of national security. It is considered the "capstone" of the 10-month academic year at the Air War College. Opening remarks on May 15 for the four-day forum were given by Lt. Gen. Raymond B. Furlong, the commander of the Air University. Gen. John W. Roberts, commander of the Air Training Command, was the featured speaker at a dining-in for Security Forum guests on Tuesday evening. Air University was recently assigned to the Air Training Command.

Deaths

'Boots' Nelson
Funeral services for Lester T. (Boots) Nelson, 69, who died at 4:35 a.m. Sunday, are at 4 p.m. today in the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel, with Rev. Copeland, of Stephenville, officiating.

Burial will be at Trinity Memorial Park.

Pallbearers are Lorin McDowell III, Jerry Pike, Wayne Stalcup, Dale Nelson, Terry Nelson, and Festus McElreath.

W.H. Johnson

William Homer Johnson, 88, died Monday morning in El Paso after a long illness. Services will be Wednesday in El Paso with the body arriving in Big Spring Thursday afternoon for a second service Friday morning at River Welch Funeral Home. Time for the Big Spring service is pending.

Mr. Johnson was a former Big Spring resident and a retired Texas and Pacific Railroad engineer.

Survivors include a sister-in-law, Mrs. Stella Johnson of Big Spring.

Janet Ellison gains degree

Janet Marie Ellison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ellison of Vincent, graduated cum laude from Tyler Junior College.

Miss Ellison received her degree, an Associate of Science in dental hygiene, in graduation exercises May 16. She will take her State Board exam June 23, and plans to find a job as a dental assistant.

Garden City teenager hurt in motorcycle-truck mishap

Marshall Lister, 16, of Garden City, is in a Big Spring hospital with serious injuries received in a motorcycle-truck accident in Garden City Monday at 11:55 a.m.

Lister is in Cowper Clinic with multi-fractures to a crushed right foot and other cuts and bruises.

Lister was driving his new motorcycle across Highway 158 in the center of Garden City, headed south. A transport truck driven by Radolfo Balentin Gonzalez, 25, of Edroy, was headed west going to Odessa.

The motorcycle apparently slipped and stalled in a slight rain, according to some witnesses at the scene. The truck was apparently slowed down in the town and tried to stop, according to the same witnesses.

The youth and his motorcycle were hit by the truck wheel and as the cycle went off the wheel of the truck, Lister's leg and foot were under the motorcycle as it slid across the highway.

Glen Redmon, state trooper from Big Spring, was investigating officer.

Tax payments information

Taxpayers making estimated tax payments on their 1978 income must pay the second installment by Thursday, June 15. The tax installment should be paid using declaration-voucher 2 from the Form 1040-ES package, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income during 1978 has changed may have to file an amended declaration. Space appears in the estimated tax package to compute an amended estimate, the IRS said.

For more detailed information, taxpayers can obtain IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," available free from local IRS offices. Supplies of the Form 1040-ES package are also available from these offices.

Free classes are offered for adults

During the month of June, the Homemaking teachers of Big Spring High School are offering free classes for adults. Courses this summer include classes in Budget Decorating and Christmas in June.

The Budget Decorating class is designed to teach homemakers to make the best possible use of those things which must continue to be used, and to add to the decor by way of an organized plan. These classes will be taught in Room 115 in the high school, June 12-16, 9-12 a.m. and June 19-23, 9 to 12 a.m.

The Christmas in June classes will include construction of Christmas decorations such as tree skirts, tree ornaments, stockings, wall hangings, and gifts. Orientation for the Christmas in June classes will be Friday, June 2, 9 to 12 a.m. June 19-23, 9-12 a.m. and June 26, 27, 28, 9 to 12 a.m.

For more information of these classes you may call the high school Homemaking Department, 267-7461 ext. 48.

Police beat Van stolen from car lot

A 1972 Ford van was ripped off from the lot of Bill Chrane's Auto Sales, 1300 E. 4th, sometime Sunday night.

According to reports, it was noticed that the van was missing, 8:10 a.m. Monday. Loss was estimated at $2,950.

A woman did more than use the phone at the Mobil Service Station on the corner of 11th and Settles. After the woman, who had said she only wanted to make a call, left the station, the owner noticed an extra charge on the cash register tape. The phony phoner had lifted $30.

Moore faces burglary rap

Ricky Gene Moore, 18, 602 Caylor, is in custody at the Big Spring municipal jail after failing to post $11,400 bond on assorted charges.

Moore was arrested by police Wednesday in connection with a May 23 burglary of the YMCA.

Bond was set on the youth by Municipal Judge John Coffee. Charges were filed Friday in Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena's office by Detective Tony Lujan.

Loss was estimated at $50. Four mishaps were reported Monday.

Vehicles driven by Jess Slaughter, 610 Baylor, and Jack Fletcher, 1702 Runnels, collided on the 700 block of Tulane, 10:47 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Gregory L. Cole, 608 Runnels, and Cheryl R. Sparks, 1314 E. 17th, collided on the 1200 block of Scurry, 1:42 p.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Betty Pearson, 1806 Owens, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at 1808 Owens, 12:58 a.m.

Vehicles driven by Lorance Harvey, Walker Apartments, and Linda Green, 1004 N. Main, collided at Second and N. Gregg, 5:50 p.m.

McLaughlin attends forum on security

Ralph McLaughlin of 112 Cedar Rd., Big Spring, was one of 83 civilian leaders from around the country who recently attended the Silver Anniversary of the annual National Security Forum at the Air War College, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Attendees represented a cross section of business, industry, labor, education, news media, law, medicine, religion and government of the United States.

Maj. Gen. Richard H. Schoeneman, commandant of the Air War College, pointed out that the purpose of the forum was to increase the understanding of national security issues confronting the United States and the influence of aerospace power on the formulation and education of national strategy.

General Schoeneman also stated that the Security Forum was designed to expose the 262 Air War College students to the viewpoints of the representative civilians on the fundamental issues of national security. It is considered the "capstone" of the 10-month academic year at the Air War College. Opening remarks on May 15 for the four-day forum were given by Lt. Gen. Raymond B. Furlong, the commander of the Air University. Gen. John W. Roberts, commander of the Air Training Command, was the featured speaker at a dining-in for Security Forum guests on Tuesday evening. Air University was recently assigned to the Air Training Command.

First Mexican-American priest installed Monday in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The son of a Ganado farmworker who was the first Mexican-American bishop in the Roman Catholic Church was installed Monday night as bishop of the Diocese of El Paso.

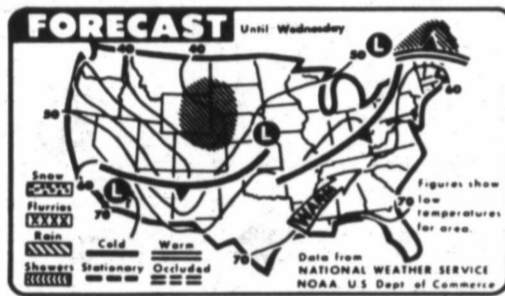

Thousands packed the El Paso Civic Center as Bishop Patrick Fernandez Flores was installed as the spiritual leader of the 250,000 Catholics who live in the 59,000-square-mile diocese that includes 18 counties in Texas and New Mexico. Flores was named auxiliary bishop to Archbishop Francis J. Furey of the San Antonio Diocese in 1970, making him the first Mexican-American to attain the post. About two thousand persons attended ceremonies earlier Monday at St. Patrick's Cathedral where Flores presented his credentials to retiring Bishop Sidney M. Metzger and received the keys to the cathedral. More than 30 other bishops from the U.S. and Mexico, as well as civic officials, leaders from other churches and representatives of the Diocese of El Paso also attended.

Acts of vandalism invariably senseless

It's not easy to understand the rationale used by the vandal. Some learned people have said he does what he does because he is a deprived individual, one who envies the substance accumulated by others.

Still, many vandals come from homes which have never known deprivation. That kind is explained away as a person who reacts through boredom.

There must be many contributing reasons because the incidence of vandalism is growing and is a cause of worry to us all.

THE VANDALS HARDEST to understand are those who would desecrate a work of art. One such incident occurred in Amsterdam recently where a Van Gough painting was damaged. Van Gough was one of the aristocrats of the art world. He brought a vibrant quality of aliveness to his canvases.

The vandal's destructive act was carried out against Van Gough's "Self Portrait in a Gray Hat." The malevolent deed is only one of several reported within a month's time. Others have occurred in Frankfurt and London. Some people think that one such act of barbarism inspires another. That may be the case, though museum officials and the news media feel little would be accomplished if they were not reported.

As far as is known, very little is done to safeguard the treasures against such threats. Perhaps little can be done. If the paintings are displayed to the public, as indeed they should be, they become vulnerable to such despicable offenses.

COULD THE PAINTINGS be covered? Of course, they could and the time may come when they have to be. However, a painting behind glass often presents an intolerable distortion.

Barriers could be erected to keep all viewers at a distance but space always comes at a premium in a museum. Too, such a thing would serve to spoil the feelings of communion with the works on display.

Officers assigned to duty at museums can't conduct patdown searches of all visitors, so some people bent on mischief can conceal knives or chemicals or other items and never run the risk of being caught until after their acts of outrage.

Security arrangements can be increased but the cost often becomes prohibitive.

We can only hope that the upsurge in violence will, by lack of inspiration, die down again.

Obnoxious few

Around the rim

Perhaps as another Herald reporter recently commented, the "cloak of cynicism" is beginning to settle about me, or maybe I'm just now beginning to notice what I once chose not to see.

People are rude! (Granted not all of them, but it seems I've seen more, during the past two weeks, than my share of ones who do fit that description).

It is almost impossible to go to the grocery store or a variety store and not have someone cut in front of you in the check-out line.

THE COMANCHE Trail Park, a place I once enjoyed going to eat my sandwich outside on the grass at lunch, has become a place I avoid whenever possible simply because of some of the people who frequent it. The last several times I took my lunch to the park, I was harassed by individuals who seemed to have nothing better to do than to circle through the park in loud cars exceeding the speed limit, slowing down to make obscene comments directed toward anyone within hearing range.

And, I strongly suspect that those same individuals are among the ones who make it almost impossible for city work crews to keep the park clean and keep litter in the barrels where it belongs.

After having problems in the City Park, I moved my lunch site to Birdwell Park, only to discover that it was nicknamed "Marijuana Park" because of the general practice of certain individuals who use the park to sell drugs to high school students. And, city clean-up crews have steady work picking up trash there, also.

So much for eating outside. As much as I hate staying inside all day, I'd rather eat inside than be harassed in either park, or watch city crews have to clean up other people's messes.

THE AMOUNT of vandalism — not theft by someone who needs the money for whatever reason — shows the lack of respect for individuals and personal property. While I don't condone theft in any form, it angers me less than vandalism — destruction for destruction's sake.

There are still many who are nice — in fact, I hold to the belief that the majority of people do not fit in what I categorize as rude, totally disrespectful individuals. However, I seem to see more of the rude ones daily.

Perhaps if we had more respect for ourselves, we would have more respect for others — whether it means not cutting in line, not vandalizing personal or public property, or simply allowing others to enjoy a little peace in a public park.

Bypassing the military

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Just two days after secret testimony by the new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) reaffirmed the military's opposition to a total nuclear test ban, President Carter ordered U.S. negotiators to press for precisely such a deal with the Soviets.

Mr. Carter's propensity to take military decisions against the military's advice has never been clearer. On May 18, at closed-door Senate hearings on his nomination as JCS chairman, Air Force Gen. David Jones unequivocally opposed, in the interests of national security, a "zero-yield" ban (prohibiting even low-yield explosions) of all underground tests. He was patently unaware that a "presidential decision memorandum" taking the opposite position was being readied for Mr. Carter's signature May 20.

After the fact, the joint chiefs met on blue Monday, May 22, with a majority opposed to the president's decision. The choices before them now are agonizing. Should they loyally back their president to support what they consider a hazardous course for the nation? Should they fully express their misgivings but only in congressional hearing rooms? Or should they go to the nation, either directly or indirectly?

THE UNIFORMED military's concern over the test ban treaty surpasses earlier chagrin over removing troops from Korea, cancelling the B-1 bomber and suspending neutron warhead production. Jones, criticized by fellow officers as overly pliable to civilian politicians, made no fuss about such earlier Carter moves as Air Force chief of staff.

Consequently, defense-oriented members of the Senate Armed Services Committee pounced on JCS chairman-designate Jones when his confirmation hearings began May 18. These senators were particularly concerned about the test ban treaty. Paul Warnke, chief disarmament negotiator, that week was pressing for a U.S. Soviet moratorium on all tests prior to negotiations for a "zero-yield" treaty.

Answering questions from Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, the general declared: "I could not recommend a comprehensive test ban... in the context of zero testing." The secret transcript reveals Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia asking whether Jones agreed that any treaty must permit testing in the 3 to 5 kiloton range, below which tests cannot be verified. "Yes, senator, I do," the general answered.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson pointed out that the joint chiefs previously opposed a zero-yield treaty. "I subscribe to that," Jones responded. "... We don't see any capability to verify the Soviets with any assurance down to zero yield." Pinning Jones down to zero yield, Jackson asked whether "this is still the JCS position." The response: "Yes, it has not changed."

Jones refused to alter this stance despite prodding by Sen. John Culver of Iowa, battering ram of the arms control bloc. "Isn't it true," asked Culver, that the treaty "will provide us with a fair degree of confidence on compliance and provide a low incentive for Soviet cheating? The general stood his ground: cheating "may not be quite that difficult... I am not assured that we would have confidence the Soviets couldn't cheat."

Culver persisted, suggesting that a treaty lasting five years or less would not threaten reliability of the U.S. nuclear stockpile. Jones replied that "something unexpected" can always effect "reliability," adding: "You just may not find the problems if you don't do testing."

Some tips on sunbathing

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can I prevent sunburn this summer? When is the best time to take sun, if any, for a person sensitive as I am? What is the best lotion to prevent sunburn? How long should a burn last normally? — R. K.

If you live in the temperate zone, the best time to sun yourself is before 10 a.m. and after 4 p.m. In those periods the burn-producing wavelengths of sunlight are largely filtered out. If you are extra-sensitive use caution even during those hours.

Avoid sunning by a body of water. The reflections can be quite damaging, especially since the coolness can appear deceptively benign.

An initial exposure of no more than 20 to 30 minutes keeps most sunbathers safe, although this is a matter of common sense. You know from your own experience how much sun it takes to turn you into a broiled lobster. Brunettes burn less than blondes. As you tan, the exposure may be increased by 10 minutes per exposure.

There are many effective sunscreen lotions and other preparations to choose from. Effective ingredients to look for include paraaminobenzoic acid, benzophenone, or titanium dioxide. Preparations should be applied 30 to 60 minutes before exposure because the protective chemicals take about a half hour to bind to the skin and be effective. Remember they can be washed away by swimming and perspiration.

A burn takes from an hour to a day to develop, and usually subsides within 72 hours. The skin may remain sensitive to future exposure for several weeks after that.

The best way to alleviate symptoms? Dousing with cold water. Beware local anesthetic ointments. Serious complication occur when extensive areas of the body are affected at once.

Common sense will keep you sunburn-free more than all the lotions you can buy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a prostate operation a few weeks ago and have had urination problems ever since. I still have to get up at night to urinate (a little at a time). I thought the surgery was to correct this. How come? Can you explain? — M. A.

This is not unusual. Some lack of control may be expected, but it should correct itself in time. There may be some infection. I haven't space to go into this in great detail here, but it is explained, along with methods of relieving it, in my booklet "The Pesky Prostate," which you can order by sending 35 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Big Spring Herald. Control is usually regained within six months. You should have been told to expect this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had the mumps when small on one side only.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: The campaign for Congress from the 17th District for the Democratic nomination is coming to a close. I have been solicited by each of the candidates and have made a personal effort to meet and question each of the candidates as well as listening to their speeches and answers to questions.

I have not heard Mr. Stenholm belittle Mr. Rhodes in any way, but Mr. Rhodes seems to be attempting a Richard Nixon type of campaign by making allegations against Mr. Stenholm of an uncompromising nature, none of which I have found to be correct. Rhodes claims to know all about everything, banking, farming, ranching, oil and gas, and cites his profession as a lawyer as another reason why he should be elected.

I am firmly of the opinion our Congress now has too many lawyers and that is why the small business man is burdened with all the paper work he has to comply with and which is getting to be more of a burden than he can stand. The U.S. News World Report states that there are now 213 lawyers, 82 business men, 43 educators and 14 farmers in Congress. This over supply of lawyers would tell us why government is so complicated and continues to get more so. We need some one who can talk the language of the people to serve the people rather than the people serving them.

Each of the candidates says inflation is our number one problem even though Rhodes misquotes Stenholm by alleging Stenholm says farm income is No. 1. Stenholm actually says if we can solve the energy problem it will greatly help control inflation and help the farmer. He takes a positive position on better control of farm exports, to require the export price return a profit to the farmer and thus improve the entire economy.

Voters were fast switching to Stenholm in the first primary and deserting Rhodes. Many feel we already have too many lawyers in Washington and others were fast losing faith in Rhodes as he bragged about knowing it all in so many fields, probably recalling the old saying, "Jack of all trades and master of none." He merely wants votes any way he can get them. His own town and county failed to give him a majority. Rhodes only received 6,903 votes to Stenholm's 6,017 in Abilene, Jim Baum about 2,500 and others combined for a total of about 16,000 votes cast. Stenholm carried his home town by 85 per cent. his county by 65 per cent, and Avoca, where he taught school after receiving his masters degree from Texas Tech, gave him over 90 per cent. The people who lived near Stenholm and knew him best gave him the strongest vote. This should tell us something about Rhodes' weakness in his home town. Jim Baum carried Howard County by about 65 per cent. We know him best. Is Abilene telling us not to vote for Rhodes??

Howard County and Abilene and Taylor County were in the same Senatorial District a few years back. Howard County could never get a man in office in the Senatorial District even though Abilene promised us one the next year, but the next year never came. Dusty Rhodes was a part of the crowd that lied to us for years. If you doubt this, ask any of the Howard County delegates and county chairmen. Rhodes admitted that to me personally. Why should we believe anything Rhodes tells us now?

Rhodes calls himself an Independent Democrat. A real Democrat needs no prefix and that's what our deceased Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn always said. I don't believe Howard County will support a man who was, by his own statement to me, a part of the group from Abilene, who, under the old Unit rule system, pushed us around and laughed at us in Democratic Conventions and denied us proper representation.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Is there a final judgment that newborn Christians have to face, or do they escape all forms of judgment? — R. M.

DEAR R. M.: Yes, there is a judgment that the Christian has to face, but it very different from the judgment that awaits the unbelieving world. The Christian will not be judged for his sins, because that judgment was faced at the crucifixion when Christ paid the full penalty for our sins. It is our faith in His death that makes us Christians and saves us from that judgment.

Paul writes of the Christian's judgment: "We must all appear

Who's buying it?

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Madison Avenue hucksters are trying to improve the image of the military dictatorship of Argentina with the same flair they use to sell deodorants and cigarettes.

In past columns, we have reported how Argentina has become one of the most dangerous, chaotic countries on earth. Kidnappings, killings and torture have become daily occurrences. "More people are killed in one year in Argentina," a State Department source told us, "than in five years in Northern Ireland."

But this is not the image that Argentina's handsome, mustachioed military dictator, Gen. Jorge Videla, would like to project the world.

HIS GOVERNMENT, therefore, hired a high-powered New York public relations firm, Burson-Marsteller, to help improve the image of the Argentine dictatorship. The firm conducted an exhaustive study, which cost the Argentinians $1.2 million.

In the most explicit of public relations styles, the Madison Avenue imagemakers proposed a wide-ranging, image-building program involving eight countries. A key part of the program was an extensive media campaign, aimed at producing more favorable publicity for the Videla regime.

"Many reporters," the study acknowledged, "consider the Argentine government oppressive and repressive, a dictatorial institution which deserves little more than condemnation." To dispel this impression, the Videla regime should "project a new, progressive and stable image throughout the world."

This can be achieved, the public relations experts concluded, only "through a highly controlled program of communications."

A key part of any public relations program, the experts acknowledge, "is the generation of positive editorial content in newspapers, magazines and business and financial publications."

The Argentine government, therefore, should invite "leading journalists" to Argentina so they can rub elbows with government officials. States the report: "During each well-known journalist's visit, a specific Argentine editor would act as host... Each Argentine editor will be furnished beforehand with information about the individual he will be hosting, the main questions on the journalist's mind, and the best approach for creating a positive and lasting impression for his guest."

Burson-Marsteller representatives in several countries, the report notes, "have taken great care in the preparation of working press lists to maximize the chances of getting good coverage... Where political writers are included, they are of conservative or moderate persuasions."

The report, which was translated from Spanish to us, lists 21 separate American journalists, complete with credentials. It also names a total of 32 members of the press corps of Mexico, Great Britain, Japan and Canada, whom the firm considers the best candidates to approach.

The study provides a sample itinerary for each reporter's visit, which would be best designed to impress them favorably. "Planning a brief, to-the-point informal reception first, it will be possible to overshadow the traditional points of view many reporters have toward military governments."

BURSON-MARSTELLER also proposes providing training seminars for government officials who have contact with the media, so they will know how to respond to "politically sensitive" topics like terrorism and human rights.

States the report: "This seminar will involve simulated situations which will make dramatically clear to the embassy personnel what they ought and ought not to do in various communications-related situations."

For example, government officials would be taught "how to deal with local, national, or international groups such as Amnesty International which carry out local anti-Argentina campaigns."

The public relations experts also suggested an advertising program. Their reason: "We can never be certain that important business and financial publications will print news about Argentina along agreed-to lines." Advertising, on the other hand, "eliminates the risk of influential readers missing the message."

The report also recommends a favorable television special, aimed at media markets in the United States and other participating countries. Concludes the report: "Studies have shown that people believe what they see on television."

Burson-Marsteller has now received a follow-up contract, worth $948,000 to continue advising the Videla regime.

Footnote: A Burson-Marsteller spokesman told us the purpose of the study was to promote foreign investment and exports. "We have implemented a number of the programs," the spokesman told our associate Larry Kraftowitz. But he denied there was any attempt to manipulate the media. Journalists who have gone on the tours of Argentina, he said, "were given as much free time as they wanted."

Medical histories kept

By the Associated Press
Just as your financial history is probably on file with a credit bureau, your medical history — or part of it at least — may be on file with a different kind of fact-gathering organization.

The agency is the Medical Information Bureau (MIB), with headquarters in Greenwich, Conn. Founded in 1902, it is a non-profit membership organization of about 700 life insurance companies.

William R. Swarts III, the bureau's associate general counsel, said the group has computerized files on about 11 million persons.

Swarts said the files do not contain complete medical histories on the individuals involved. "No one's interested in the flu you had last October," he explained. The only information entered is that "which is of underwriting significance," Swarts said. If you had a heart attack, for example, it might be listed under a code for cardiovascular diseases. Other codes cover gastrointestinal, nervous and respiratory illnesses, Swarts said.

Nonmedical information that could affect your life span — a history of reckless driving, for example, or participation in a potentially hazardous sport like skydiving — also is included in the file.

The information is available only to companies which are members of the MIB and it cannot be provided without a signed authorization from the individual involved.

Where does the bureau get its information? From you. Here's how it works:

Suppose you take out a life insurance policy with Company A, an MIB member. You provide certain information and the company forwards it to the bureau. Later, you apply for another policy with Company B, also an MIB member. With your permission, Company B asks the bureau for your record.

Concerns over individual rights and privacy in the past decade have led the MIB to eliminate certain types of information from its files and to make changes in the way it operates. Codes for "sexual deviations" and "social maladjustment" were eliminated, for example, and bureau members were required to tell applicants about MIB and the possibility of a report being made to it.

Prison escapee body unclaimed

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Officials say they may go ahead and bury the body of one of the two state prison escapees killed along with three Oklahoma Highway Patrol troopers last week if it is not claimed today.

The remains of Michael Lancaster, 25, were taken to a funeral home here, but state prison officials say the inmate's family members have not contacted them about burial arrangements.

EL KHIAM, Lebanon (AP) — Norwegian peacekeeping troops are fortifying their base camp, expecting a new outbreak of fighting in explosive south Lebanon.

"We think something may happen soon," an officer said as squads of blond soldiers dug trenches in 88-degree heat Monday and roofed them with metal arches covered by layers of sandbags.

The U.N. troops feared they might become targets of the shells which generally fly over their heads when the Palestinians to the north and Christians to the south shoot at each other.

Three civilians were killed and three wounded Sunday night in the Palestinian town of Nabatiyeh. Reporters said the firing seemed to come from the Christian stronghold of Marjayoun, five miles north of the Israeli border and two miles east of the Norwegian base outside El Khiam.

Three weeks ago Norwegians at one of their five outposts several miles from the base camp fired on Palestinian infiltrators and killed at least two. The Norwegians set up telephone links with the Palestinians to try to avoid misunderstandings.

"We have conversations with them two or three times a week," said Lt. Per Jevne, the press officer of the Norwegian battalion.

Israel is scheduled to withdraw the last of its forces from southern Lebanon on June 13. Israel invaded March 15 after a guerrilla raid in which 35 Israelis were killed, and Israeli soldiers still hold a six-mile-deep strip along the border.

After the Israelis withdraw, 4,600 U.N. troops will be responsible for peacekeeping in southern Lebanon, from the border to the Litani River, 15 to 20 miles north of the frontier.

Some French women are staying in Zaire

LUBUMBASHI, Zaire (AP) — Some foreign women and children have fled from the capital of rebel-threatened Shaba province, but others say they'll stay as long as Belgian troops are here to protect them.

Several dozen French women and children were flown out Sunday, a day after 500 Belgian paratroopers arrived from Kamina, 300 miles to the northwest.

But most of the estimated 4,000 whites in Lubumbashi went about their business calmly Monday, confident the Belgian army would prevent another massacre of whites like the one during the occupation of Kolwezi, 150 miles to the northwest, by Katangan exiles from Angola two weeks ago.

Children went to school, their fathers went to work and their mothers went marketing.

Zairian soldiers stood guard at street corners and Belgian troops patrolled the city in jeeps.

"Now that the Belgian soldiers have arrived we feel much safer," said Anita Davingnon.

China is interested in disarmament talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — After years of boycotting disarmament negotiations, China showed an interest in them in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly that predicted the Soviet Union will start World War III.

Speaking Monday at the assembly's special session on disarmament, Foreign Minister Huang Hua condemned the 31-nation Geneva disarmament negotiating committee because the Soviet Union and the United States are its co-chairmen. He called for new machinery "truly free of superpower control."

A U.S. disarmament official, declining to be quoted by name, termed Huang's statement "significant" and a "hopeful sign" that China wanted to participate in arms negotiations.

Huang complained that in the Geneva committee, the Soviet Union and the United States "talk sham disarmament and obstruct genuine disarmament."

"This state of affairs must be completely changed," he said.

The assembly's main political committee now debates disarmament questions for three months each fall, and the Geneva committee negotiates on them intermittently the rest of the year.

Huang, apparently envisioning a similar two-tier system, said:

"Questions of disarmament and international security, which concern the interests of all countries, should be deliberated by an international organ with the participation of all countries under the auspices of the United Nations...The items and procedures of disarmament negotiations should be decided on by this organ.

"Machinery responsible for disarmament negotiations should be truly free of superpower control and should be set up through consultations by the governments in the deliberative organ."

You can do it!

Weatherstripping and caulking around doors and windows stop energy leaks.

In time, even tiny air cracks can add up to large heating and cooling losses. But sealing those energy-robbing cracks isn't all that hard. You can do it yourself with Texas Electric's free booklets on caulking and weatherstripping. They're part of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. Using basic tools and readily available materials, even unhandy people can caulk and weatherstrip their own homes to keep energy costs down.

Other booklets in the series cover insulation, storm windows, ductwork, and general maintenance. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. See how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

Higher prices, lower incomes are expected

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the items you may expect to hear about over the next few weeks and months are these:

—Higher food prices. In the first quarter of the year they rose at an annual rate of better than 16 percent, and the Agriculture Department concedes that the yearly increase might be 6 percent to 8 percent.

A better idea of what's in store will come Wednesday, when figures for the April consumer price index will be released, perhaps shocking some economists whose research is conducted in labs rather than stores.

We know that beef prices will be higher. The National Cattleman's Association has informed us that in the month to May 11, the national average of five beef cuts was $1.89 a pound, up 11 cents from April 11.

Some non-governmental forecasters are now saying that food prices for the entire year could inch into the double digits, although barely so. But even the minimum double digit, 10 percent, is extraordinary.

—A slowdown in the strong first-half increases in personal income. It was these increases — 1.4 percent in both March and April, adding more than $40 billion to incomes — that staved off consumer bitterness.

With such increases unlikely in the second half of the year, and with prices rising, consumers are likely to become more vocal, especially since many of them already are borrowed up to their limits.

—Rising interest rates. The prime lending rate for most banks is now up to 8.5 percent and rising. While the prime does not directly affect consumer rates, it is an early indicator of general market pressures.

Eventually, these pressures affect consumer loans and home mortgage rates, and could force the latter up close to double-digit levels later this year. While this isn't certain, mortgage lenders are worried.

—More corporations are likely to announce they will cooperate with the Carter administration and hold executive salary increases to 5 percent. But they'll be less likely to offer cooperation on prices.

—Recession. Many independent economists are already raising the odds for the beginning of one very late this year. But while the amount of discussion will increase, it does not mean recession is inevitable.

In fact, one of the most positive statements about the economy, that there wouldn't be a recession this year, was issued a few weeks ago by the National Association of Purchasing Executives.

The executives even extended their forecast into the very early part of next year, based on the strength of orders at the nation's factories. After that, it seems, the possibility might increase.

—Considering the negative aura of business news, you'll probably hear little about the economy's pluses, such as the greatest number of workers, and the greatest number of homeowners and homebuyers ever.

Colorado man wants to reclaim title to record

SEATTLE (AP) — A Colorado man whose round-the-world flight record for a single-engine airplane was broken last week says he and his partner may try to get it back.

Jack Rodd, of Cortez, Colo., said "it's quite possible" that he and Hal Benham might try to regain the record they set last November.

Seattle attorney Robert S. Muckelstone landed his Cessna 210 at Boeing Field last Friday, after circling the globe in seven days and about 14 hours. The earlier record, set by Rodd and Benham, was just under 10 days, 22 hours.

"We still have the airplane we used last year," said Rodd, a retired automobile dealer. He said he would talk to Benham, an airport manager near Houston, Texas, next weekend.

In finding new roles

Center aids displaced homemakers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Many need money, yet find they are not eligible for unemployment compensation, pensions, Social Security or other federal aid provided for welfare mothers and young persons, said Cynthia E. Marano, the center's director.

Mrs. Urban, 43, is an alcoholic who two years ago left her husband of nine years when she decided to do something about her drinking problem.

After the first of this year, she decided to do something about another problem — finding a career.

Her search led her to the Maryland Center for Displaced Homemakers, which was set up to help women — male or female age 35 or older — who, through death of a spouse, divorce or separation, are forced to become the breadwinner.

Most of the women who walk through the center's doors had not held jobs while they were married. Without skills, an employment history or youth, these women find it difficult to get back into the work force.

There are an estimated 268,000 displaced homemakers in Maryland. Nationwide, some 3 million persons fall into that category. Rep. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, D-Calif., told a hearing last summer on legislation calling for funding 50 displaced homemakers centers around the country.

The Maryland center, which receives $190,000 a year for three years, was the second of its kind in the nation. At least 15 states have enacted some sort of legislation dealing with displaced homemakers, according to Laurie Shields, coordinator for the National Alliance for Displaced Homemakers in Oakland, Calif.

Though it may seem an awkward title, "displaced homemaker" appears to describe aptly the feelings of many women who suddenly find themselves without a husband, income and the niceties that defined their lives.

"I have heard a lot of women say they have lost their role and their identity because much of their life has been tied up being somebody's wife and somebody's mother," said

Ms. Parr, who returned to college to get a degree in education shortly before separating from her husband of 23 years.

"But the displacement is more than just a role. Everything that was comfortable and settled in the past, the fact that you were set for life, is gone," the Annapolis resident said. "You have to do something about it. You're forced to get out then and make your own way."

(AP WIREPHOTO)

PERKING UP BROADWAY — The landmark billboard on New York's Times Square, which for years puffed out smoke rings, now lets off steam from a giant cup of A&P coffee. More than 840 man hours have gone into building the 5-foot-high billboard with its extensive plumbing, steam ducts, special carpentry and intricate painting. The original Camel cigarettes advertisement went into operation in 1941.

Identity search peaks during middle years

COLLEGE STATION — Couples in middle age might try the following guideposts to renew their secure, old marriage rather than going middle-age crazy trying to recoup their lost youth:

- (1) Achieve a new intimacy. Openly declare and share love and devotion for your spouse.
- (2) Learn to enjoy the other person's interests. Sharing roles or responsibilities of a spouse provides more time for togetherness.

Dear Abby

Teens! Here's How To Apply for a Job

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a newspaper clipping that appeared in a section of the paper that very few teenagers read.

I think it should be in YOUR column — or maybe in the comics, where teenagers would be sure to see it. If you agree with me, please reprint it. Thank you.

MRS. E. B. CLINGER, COVINGTON, KY.

DEAR MRS. C.: The piece appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer, in William Raspberry's column. It was written by Karen Rak, who teaches English to students at the Center Junior High School in Strongsville, Ohio.

Ms. Rak composed a letter (ostensibly from an employer) designed to let her youthful job seekers see themselves as they are seen. With so many young people looking for jobs now, I think this piece deserves all the exposure it can get.

"DEAR KID: Today you came to me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you believe by now that kids your age can't find jobs."

"But I hired a teenager today. You saw him. What was so special about him? Not experience; neither of you had any. Attitude, son. A-T-T-I-T-U-D-E. He did his best to impress me. That is where he edged you out.

"He wasn't dressed like Easter Sunday, but then that wasn't necessary. His clothes were clean, and he had gotten a haircut. He filled out the application form neatly and completely. He did not ask to borrow a pen. He carried his Social Security card, had basic identification, and did not ask, 'What's a reference?'

"He didn't have two friends waiting for him by the pop machine. He didn't start to chew gum or smoke while interviewing. He didn't keep looking at his watch, giving me the impression that he had something more important to do.

"He took the time to find out how we operate here, and what his day-to-day tasks would be. I think he'll keep his eyes open and work for me like he'd work for himself.

"He was willing to start at that point where I could afford to pay. Someday, perhaps, he'll get to the point where he'll have more authority over others and a better paycheck.

"You know, kid, men have always had to get a job like you get a girl: Case the situation, wear a clean shirt, and try to appear reasonably willing.

"Maybe jobs aren't as plentiful right now, but there are jobs. You may not believe it, but all around you employers are looking for young men and women smart enough to go after a job in the old-fashioned way.

"If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you ask for a job. You will be head and shoulders above the rest.

"For both our sakes, get eager, will you? — THE BOSS"

How to restore wood finish

Alcoholic drinks can cause serious damage to the finish of your wood furniture, but the problem can be avoided by protecting the finish with wax and promptly wiping up any drinks that may be spilled, according to Pat Porto, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax.

However, even if you have not taken these precautions and spilled drinks have been allowed to stain the finish, all may not be lost. Here is the procedure Ms. Porto suggests: put a few drops of salad or lubricating oil on the stain and sprinkle on enough rottenstone to make a paste. Rub the paste briskly with the grain using a clean, soft, dry cloth. If more abrasion is needed to remove a tough stain, substitute grade 3-F powdered pumice for the rottenstone. (The rottenstone and pumice can be bought at a paint or hardware store.)

The pumice treatment, if you use it, should be followed by a rubdown with rottenstone and oil. The final step is an application of a furniture polish.

From the depression days

with Marj Carpenter

When George Archer, who just retired as an administrator in the Big Spring School system, got out of high school in Canyon in 1930, the Depression had just arrived.

He was one of eight children, so his dream of college was a tough one. He worked his way through, going to school part time and it was a happy day in 1937 when he received his Bachelor of Science degree from West Texas State.

He wanted to be a teacher and his first assignment was in the elementary grades at McAadoo. After two years, he was assigned the high school principal post and was football coach on the side.

That was a six-man team and he still boasts of his record of 32 wins out of 34 games. With a record like that, you know he stayed around five years.

The next six years included a brief assignment in the public schools of Amarillo before going into a Civil Service assignment at Keesler AFB in Biloxi, Miss. He was later transferred to the Amarillo AFB where he remained until 1946.

He and his wife and son, George Mack, moved to Paducah where he was self employed until September 1948 when he decided to go back to his "first love" — school teaching. He was principal of Delwin School, then superintendent of Guthrie School in King County. They then moved to their farm in San Saba County and he continued to teach in Cherokee.

They came to Big Spring in 1955 where he stayed until he retired this year. His first assignment was at Midway where he was classroom teacher and basketball coach. He was then named principal at Gay Hill and held that position until the school was annexed by Big Spring. He was assigned as principal of Park Hill Elementary until it closed in 1977. During his final year, he was assistant principal at Marcy Elementary.

Along the way he earned his master's degree at the University of Texas in 1957. He has also done graduate work at the University of Wyoming and North Texas University.

In addition to his professional organizations, he also was active in the local Lion's Club. He was a charter member of the first Howard County PTA Council, serving as its first president and holds a life membership in the PTA presented by the Gay Hill PTA.

They are active members of the 14th and Main Church of Christ. They now have two granddaughters of whom they are extremely proud. From those eight children in the Archer family, seven of them became school teachers. Four of them have died, one is retired in Austin and Dr. Cass Archer heads the math department at Angelo State.

Their mother, who was an early day teacher in Hansford County, is still active at the age of 89 and lives in Austin.

Through the years, Archer's favorite expression about students he has taught was "angels and others." On his farewell cake, they placed those words, which they had heard him affectionately call his boys and girls all these years.

A lifetime of dedication to youth went into the life of George Archer and the "angels and others" know that — out where I ride fence.

300 gather for weekend

Ex-POWs show few scars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite predictions that the lives of Vietnam prisoners of war could be left in shambles by bad memories, bitterness and anguish, the 300 POWs who gathered over the weekend showed little evidence of psychic scars.

The only noticeable scars were physical — a limp, a twisted hand, a large blotch of scar tissue from a bad burn.

However, the POWs generally remain bitter about the way the war was fought — not vigorously enough, they contend — and about those who protested the war.

"We had all these forecasts from the doctors and the head shrinkers about how bad we'd turn out because of the deprivation, the isolation, the bad food, the malnutrition and so forth," said former Air Force Col. George Day, who won the Medal of Honor while in a prison camp. Day, 53, is now a lawyer in Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

"The truth is, I think I'm white bread 12 cents more report shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A one-pound loaf of white bread costs nearly 12 cents more than in 1971 — the year before grain exports to the Soviet Union and other nations sparked large price increases for bread, the Agriculture Department says.

The department also said the cost of a loaf of bread is at its highest in three years.

A one-pound loaf cost an average of 36.2 cents in stores in March, the latest month for which figures are available.

The 1971 price was 24.8 cents while the 1975 cost reached 36 cents a loaf before dropping slightly, department figures show.

better off because of what I went through," said retired Air Force Lt. Col. Don Odell, 47. He wears a permanent collar brace because his neck was broken by his captors, who were trying to extract an antiwar testimonial from him. They did not get it.

"I have a better understanding of myself and my fellow man. You learn how much you need other people to survive," Odell said.

Most of the POWs — more than half of the 556 freed by Hanoi in May 1973 — talked freely and matter-of-factly to reporters during a two-day convention marking the fifth anniversary of their release. With many of them were wives and girlfriends.

Most were near middle age and graying. A few were paunchy, but most seemed in good shape physically. All had been fliers and officers.

Most still believed the war was right and had praise for former President Richard Nixon, whom they credited with forcing Hanoi to free them by deciding in 1972 to bomb North Vietnam by B-52s.

Highlight of the convention was a party given by Nixon at his Casa Pacifica villa in San Clemente on Saturday. Once before, shortly before resigning the presidency in 1974, Nixon held a similar party for the POWs.

Memorial Day: A time for fun, sales, confusion

By the Associated Press

Many celebrated Memorial Day in the traditional manner, paying respect to the 700,000 Americans who died in wars. For some, it was a day to frolic outdoors or take advantage of a holiday sale. And for others, it meant sheer confusion.

While most of the nation followed the federal government's lead and observed Memorial Day on Monday, residents of six states — Illinois, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, Vermont and West Virginia — officially observed the holiday today.

In New York, the nation's financial center — Wall Street — seemed to be operating in slow motion Monday. The stock exchanges were closed, but banks were open.

One of today's scheduled marches, in Great Neck on New York's Long Island, has been the focus of a court suit.

U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein ruled Monday that the North Shore Right-to-Life Committee had a right to march in the parade, sponsored by American Legion Post 304. The Legion had said its march to honor war dead would be overshadowed by controversy if the anti-abortionists participated. Elsewhere, traditional Memorial Day observances caused little stir Monday.

In Arlington, Va., Secretary of Defense Harold Brown presided over the laying of the wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery. He said the country should rededicate itself to preserving the strength of its armed forces "so that it need not be proved in combat."

In the Detroit suburb of Troy, 23 of the last survivors of the Army's "Polar Bear" unit staged a brief ceremony at a cemetery where 50 of their compatriots are buried. After the World War I armistice was signed, about 4,000 "Polar Bears" were shipped to the Russian port of Archangel near the Arctic Circle, where, for nearly a year, they fought against the Bolsheviks.

The surviving "Polar Bears" say this year's reunion may have been their last.

The long holiday weekend took its toll in traffic deaths. More than 450 people had died on the nation's highways by early this morning.

Dock, Roger, Billy and Grumpy. Who has the poison apple?

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — There was Dock Ellis, issuing a press release one moment, pitching a one-hitter the next, and defying his manager again, and again.

There was Roger Moret, last month locked in a catatonic state so severe he stood transfixed like a statue for an hour, buzzing his fastball past the Minnesota Twins in a triumphant comeback.

There was Texas Ranger Manager Billy Hunter telling the press never to talk to him again about the recalcitrant Ellis.

There was former Ranger Mike Marshall, accused by his old mates of using sandpaper under his fingernails, chopping Texas to pieces with his screwball.

It was a memorable Memorial Day doubleheader at Arlington Stadium Monday.

Ellis, who has clashed with Hunter over rules limiting when and where the team can drink, sent a handwritten notice to the pressbox announcing his resignation as player representative and then took the mound.

Texas waltzed to a 7-1 victory, with Ellis going seven innings before he retired with a blister on his pitching hand. Moret made a dramatic entrance replete with a standing ovation from the 28,000 fans.

Roy Smalley touched Moret for a home run, but he went two innings. There had been predictions he would never pitch again for the Rangers.

The Twins took the nightcap 7-2 behind starter Roger Erickson and Marshall, who handcuffed the Rangers for the last four outs.

"Anything now is individual. ... It is between Hunter and me," Ellis said. "I didn't want to put my teammates in the middle."

Ellis' "press release" said he will not change his "outspoken ways ... as long as I can breathe."

Ellis said "the issue is not the rules. The issue is he told my ass to sit down."

The Ranger righthander was referring to an incident on a bus during a recent road trip when Hunter told Ellis: "Sit up and sit down!"

Hunter was livid in the Ranger dressing room between games, telling writers in a breaking voice, "I've heard enough Dock Ellis stories."

After the second game, Hunter declared, "All I want Ellis to do is pitch. Don't come ask me about what he says."

Moret was chirping like a bird over his comeback. He had spent several weeks in a psychiatric hospital in Arlington before obtaining his release. He pitched batting practice on the Rangers' last road trip.

"The ovation made me feel comfortable," Moret said. "I knew I would come back. The team needed me. I just wanted to throw strikes. Smalley hit a high fastball. I didn't want to take a chance walking anyone with a six-run lead."

Al Oliver delivered four RBIs in the opener with two sacrifice flies, a homer, and a run-scoring single.

Jose Morales' two-run double keyed a big first inning for Minnesota in the nightcap as the Twins chased Jim Umberger with four runs.

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch was impressed by Ellis, saying, "He knows an awful lot about pitching. I remember him as a power pitcher when he was in the National League. Know he knows it all."

Mauch asked Hunter before the game "What do you plan to do about Ellis?"

Hunter said "Nothing."

Mauch smiled and replied, "I love those groundball pitchers."

Hunter replied "Yeh, and I love those Panamanians."

Hunter, of course, was referring to the Twins' fabulous Rod Carew.

Oliver said he hopes the dispute between Ellis and Hunter can be resolved because "Dock really wants to stay in Texas. He was the first player I met in professional baseball at Daytona Beach in 1965. The man can pitch."

Oliver said the dispute over the rules had "become funny to the other plays. I don't drink, so I'm not worried."

But Oliver added "You have to give credit to Dock. He can handle the heat. He stands behind what he says."

The Rangers' new player rep is first baseman Mike Hargrove.

And where was he after the Rangers' mandatory 15-minute cooling off period following the second game?

Gone.

Astros still stuck

HOUSTON (AP) — Over the past two seasons, San Francisco right-hander Ed Halicki has been turning Astro bats into toothpicks.

Halicki, who compiled a 0.63 ERA in his last 43 innings in the Astrodome since September 1976, scattered seven hits and drove in a pair of runs with his first hit of the season as the Giants battered Houston, 8-1, Monday night.

"Every time I have faced the Astros here over the past couple of seasons, I've had good stuff," said Halicki, 2-0. "And I feel that I can beat anybody when I have good stuff."

"Each game is another adventure. I gave up a lot of hard-hit balls tonight, but the guys came up with the big plays behind me when we needed them."

Bill Madlock jumped on the third pitch of the game, delivered by losing pitcher Floyd Bannister, 1-3, for his fifth home run of the season to stake San Francisco to a 1-0 lead.

The Astros tied the score in the bottom of the first inning on a double by Enos Cabell and a two-out single by Jose Cruz.

The Giants, who have won 14 of their last 17 games, came back with a pair of fourth-inning runs on singles by Willie McCovey and Mike Ivie, a walk to Mike Sadek and Halicki's two-run single to center.

Jack Clark, who collected two singles to extend his hitting streak to 19 games, drove in a fifth-inning run for the Giants with a single that followed a lead-off double by Darrell Evans.

Ivie padded San Francisco's lead with a seventh-inning run-scoring triple and a ninth-inning RBI single on his way to a 4-for-4 performance.

Evans' sixth-inning single and a ninth-inning base hit by Larry Herndon accounted for the other two Giants' runs as San Francisco sent the slumping Astros down to their seventh loss in eight games.

Ivie, who raised his average to 3.91, says things are falling into place for him.

"I feel like I'm hitting the ball better this year, but about at the same pace," said Ivie, traded from San Diego in early March for Derrel Thomas.

"Compared to last year, this club is so far ahead both on and off the field in every department. I'm glad to be in San Francisco."

BUNT BACKFIRES — A fouled ninth-inning bunt flies into Bob Randall of the Minnesota Twins in the second game of Monday's doubleheader at Arlington Stadium. Randall was uninjured and hit a sacrifice bunt moments later. The Twins split the doubleheader with the Texas Rangers, losing the first game to Texas, 7-1, and winning the second, 7-2.

Chicago 'Ads' paid off

By the Associated Press.

These have not been the best of times for Chicago White Sox fans. And that's putting it mildly.

No team has won fewer games this season than the heroes of Chicago's South Side and it took three straight over the last two days to reach 15 for the season. What makes that even tougher to take is the fact that across town, the North Side Cubs are sitting in first place in their division.

Have the fates no mercy? If they are nothing else, White Sox fans are loyal. They remember the glory days of Jungle Jim Rivera, Barry Latman, Jim Landis, Dave Philley and the others who made rooting for the Pale Hose something of a religion.

So it came to pass that during the current crisis last week one of the loyalists felt compelled to step forward and take action. The Sox were in the throes of one of their frequent throwing slumps when an anonymous fan decided the pitching staff needed immediate help.

That was before substitutes Sunday and Monday by Francisco Barrios and Pablo Torrealba lent some respectability to the Chicago mound situation.

The media message says it pays to advertise and the fan did just that — paid to advertise for pitchers.

Working through Shaker Advertising, an Oak Park, Ill. agency, he took out a classified ad in the Chicago

Old Leftee signed the letter: "Your pennunt insurancz."

Speaking of old, another reply came from Ricardo Jorge Bourjailio who offered vast experience, saying he had pitched in Venezuela for 42 years. He started, explained Ricardo, when he was six.

By the Memorial Day holiday, 67 replies had been received at the Tribune box number. Four of every five were serious responses from arms anxious to help the White Sox out of their pitching dilemma. One ex-batting practice pitcher offered his services and so did a youngster who pointed out that he had received a college pitching scholarship.

But sprinkled throughout the serious replies were some that offered comic relief. The White Sox, of course, can use any kind of relief they can get right now and if Bill Vecek and Co. care for a few smiles to interrupt the frowns this season has produced, they might consider those other responses.

There was, for example, the one from "Leftee Go

NBA game 4 tonight

SEATTLE (AP) — Game 4 of the National Basketball Association championship series will be played in Seattle tonight, but it won't be on the SuperSonics' home court.

Instead, the Washington Bullets and the Sonics will meet in the Kingdome before what could be the largest crowd in NBA history.

Leading 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, the Sonics are talking confidently about winning the title. Three of the four remaining games will be played in Seattle.

The switch to the Kingdome was the result of a scheduling conflict at the Coliseum, where the Sonics have won 21 consecutive games.

There is no clearcut consensus on whether the Kingdome is a neutral court:

—"The next game's (tonight's) really a neutral court, in the Kingdome, but we'll still have 40,000 fans rooting for us," said Sonics guard Gus Williams.

—"I don't see how anything in Seattle can be considered neutral," said Washington Coach Dick Motta.

—"Every court is the same, we'll actually be using the same floor as we normally use," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "But instead of 14,000 fans screaming for us, we'll have 40,000. Tell me that's not going to get a team up."

The Sonics move to the Kingdome on a permanent basis next season, but tonight's game will be the first basketball game ever in the domed stadium. Game 5 Friday night will be in the Coliseum.

Fans hungry for the first NBA title in the Sonics' 11-year history gobbled up the first 29,000 tickets for tonight's game. An additional 15,000 "distant viewing" seats are on sale for $3 apiece.

Present NBA attendance records are 21,564 for a playoff game in Cleveland, 35,077 for a regular season game in the Louisiana Superdome and 41,165 for a doubleheader at the Houston Astrodome in 1969.

The Bullets now are in the same position the Sonics were when they headed east — they need a split on the road.

Seattle managed the split with a 93-92 victory over the Bullets Sunday at Landover, Md.

"When we came back (to Washington) we wanted at least a split," said Wilkens. "We did what we had to do, and now we have to feel very confident going home."

"The most important thing is we have to go out there (Seattle) and at least split," said Bullets forward Elvin Hayes.

Bullets center Wes Unseld agreed. "They beat us here, we got to beat them out there."

Winkles' dad blames Finley

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — Bobby Winkles' father thinks he knows why his son resigned as manager of the Oakland A's last week, although his son has remained close-mouthed about the matter.

"Bobby's staying out of sight and avoiding old (Charles) Finley's mouth," Clifford Winkles said Monday.

"I imagine Finley rode him until he just had enough of it," he said. "But he won't rip Finley back. Bobby was raised to respect older people, and that even includes Finley."

Finley, who owns the Oakland team, called Winkles "gutless" and ungrateful after the club manager's resignation.

The elder Winkles said he hasn't spoken with his son since he resigned. "He'll surface when everything dies down," he said.

KSU slap was toughest

KANSAS CITY — The Big Eight Conference jolted Kansas State with a four-point penalty believed to be the toughest ever slapped on a major college football program.

Big Eight Commissioner Charles M. Neinas said a conference investigation revealed that Kansas State had awarded 20 illegal football scholarships over a period of three years.

The penalties, as voted Thursday by Big Eight officers and announced Saturday, included an indefinite probation in football for the next two years, a limit on scholarships and a reduction in conference money shared.

Holmes ready for Norton

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight contender Larry Holmes is in top shape already, according to manager-trainer Richie Giachetti, for his June 9 World Boxing Council title fight against champion Ken Norton.

Giachetti gave the undefeated Easton, Pa., boxer Sunday off from training and the 6-foot-3, 210-pounder also skipped sparring Monday.

"Larry is in shape now," Giachetti said Monday night after Holmes trained for 10 rounds on the heavy and light bags and skipped rope. "I'm worried about him peaking too soon. There will be no sparring until Thursday, but he'll keep running his 3½ miles, including wind sprints, every morning."

Norton is a 7-5 favorite to successfully defend his title against Holmes. Norton moves from his Gilman Hot Springs, Calif., training camp to Las Vegas Thursday.

Barazzutti wins opener

PARIS — Italy's Corrado Barazzutti survived an early scare from South African John Yuill and went on to a 3-6, 7-6, 6-3 victory on the opening day of the 50th annual French Open Tennis Tournament.

Yuill had to retire after the third set because of a leg injury.

Americans Dick Stockton and Tim Gullikson also scored first round victories in the $400,000 tournament. Stockton ousted Robin Drysdale of Britain 4-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1, while Gullikson eliminated Cliff Lecher of Australia 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Sudden death playoff decides city champion

Don Osborne became Big Spring's Men's City Championship late Monday in a two-hole sudden death playoff with Big Spring High School Golf Coach Howard Stewart.

The bid for top honors drew a large gallery on the back nine of the Comanche Trail Golf Course, as the group of Osborne, Stewart and David Howell were tied through 16 holes.

Howell bogied number 17 and had to settle for third place as a result. Osborne and Stewart remained tied until Osborne sank a birdie putt on the 20th hole.

Junior golfer Bruce Carroll of BSHS showed his elders a few pointers by having the low gross score for the tournament with outstanding rounds of 67, 69 and 76 for a three-day total of 212.

Both Osborne and Stewart, as well as the entire field, expressed their admiration for Carroll's golfing ability and agreed that he will be the leading contender in the West Texas Junior Tours this summer.

HIDDEN — No ball bag for Murphy, just a sleight of hand in the style of a conjuror, as she takes a ball from under the folds of her dress, during Monday's Women's Singles second round game with Australia's Mrs. Evonne Cawley who beat her 6-0, 6-1, in the Surrey Grass Court Championships at Surbiton, Surrey.

"I was shooting for the top five, but I got the top 10 and I'll take it," Guthrie said, moments after easing out of her Wildcat racer and into the arms of her ecstatic crew.

Guthrie endured a hairline fracture in her right wrist — sustained Friday in a charity tennis match — and a cockpit to short for her lanky, 5-foot-9 frame. She pushed her four-cylinder car to an average speed of 152.965

Lopez is the LPGA

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Nancy Lopez smiled when it was suggested that the Ladies Professional Golf Association should change its name to the Lopez Professional Golf Association.

The rookie sensation of the tour captured her third consecutive title Monday by shooting a course record 65 for a 72-hole total of 277 in the $100,000 Golden Lights championship at the Wykagyl Country Club.

Lopez, who has won five tournaments this year, collected $15,000, boosting her earnings to $96,448. She has earned $126,826 since turning pro last July.

"Now it's time to take a rest," she said. "I'm skipping next week's tournament (the Peter Jackson Classic in Toronto). I know how much golf I can play."

"My body says no. The rest will do me good. I'll be ready for the LPGA championship the week after that (June 8-11 at Kings Island, Ohio). No question, I'm very happy and it's not because I'm winning."

"I'm healthy, I'm out in the sun playing golf and I enjoy the people."

Heard about Atlanta winner

ATLANTA (AP) — Jerry Heard called it "almost a miracle." Winless since 1974 when he was one of the most promising players on the Professional Golf Association tour, Heard captured the $200,000 Atlanta Golf Classic Sunday, firing a 67 for a record-setting 19-underpar 269 total.

"A year ago, I would have given you $40,000 to just play again," Heard said.

Instead, he won that amount in the hot, humid weather on the rolling hills of the 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

It proved he was, indeed, back. Heard was struck by the same bolt of lightning that hit Lee Trevino during the 1975 Western Open.

Heard elected not to undergo surgery. Suffering from an ailing back, he played poorly in 1976 and was bed-ridden for eight weeks of the 1977 season.

"I really felt like I was going to win," he said. "It was almost like being overconfident. I felt good. My nervous system was good. Everything was right. I was very fortunate."

The 31-year-old Californian, who had three 67s and a 68 in the tournament, won by two shots over leading money winner Tom Watson, Lou Graham and Bob Murphy, the only player seriously in contention on the finishing holes.

Murphy bogeyed the 17th to fall a shot back, got even with a birdie on No. 17, then had his tee shot on 18 roll dead near a tree. It left him no shot to the green and he ultimately bogeyed the hole, which moments earlier Heard had birdied from four feet.

"There were a couple of lame ducks creeping around out there today," Murphy said, alluding to the back problems that plagued him, as well as Heard.

It was a tournament in which the pros ripped apart a course that really wasn't considered easy. Playing in ideal weather throughout, it took a one-under-par total to survive the halfway cut.

"It was really nerve-racking," said Heard. "You make two or three pars and you're losing spots. I don't like shootouts," he said. "I like them when you win with an 8, 9 or 10 under."

Guthrie will take 9th

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After fighting three years to prove herself behind the wheel, Janet Guthrie hopes her ninth-place finish in Sunday's Indianapolis 500 will leave her just another driver with a satisfied sponsor.

"I was shooting for the top five, but I got the top 10 and I'll take it," Guthrie said, moments after easing out of her Wildcat racer and into the arms of her ecstatic crew.

Guthrie endured a hairline fracture in her right wrist — sustained Friday in a charity tennis match — and a cockpit too short for her lanky, 5-foot-9 frame. She pushed her four-cylinder car to an average speed of 152.965

Farm Middleman causes cost increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail bread prices are edging up again, along with most other food costs, but an increase can be traced to rising middleman costs for making flour, baking and selling the familiar loaf. The Agriculture Department says that in March, when a one-pound loaf of white bread cost an average of 36.2 cents in stores, the farm value of wheat used to make it was 3.1 cents.

According to department records, the March price of a loaf of bread was the highest for a single month in three years. A new report, being issued later this week by the Labor Department, will then be used by USDA to examine what happened to bread prices in April.

Wheat prices have risen appreciably since their low marks of last fall, but the history of bread prices shows that rising middleman costs for turning grain into the finished loaves have played a much more important role.

According to information provided by staff people in the office of Henry T. Badger, who is an expert on food marketing costs and prices in USDA, retail bread prices since 1971 have risen about 46 percent while the farm value of wheat used to make bread has gone up 19 percent.

Here are annual average figures provided by USDA illustrating what has happened: In 1971, a one-pound loaf of white bread cost consumers an average of 24.8 cents a loaf. It contained 2.6 cents worth of wheat, based on its farm value. The national average price of all wheat — regardless of type or quality — was $1.34 a bushel in 1971.

The cost of bread in 1972 declined slightly as middlemen tightened their margins to 24.7 cents, while the farm value of wheat in a loaf rose to 2.9 cents. The average farm price of wheat that year was $1.76 a bushel.

It was in 1972 that grain exports, triggered by large sales to the Soviet Union and other countries, began soaring. This helped push wheat prices up rapidly, beginning an unprecedented three years of high prices for farmers.

Bread prices rose in 1973 to an average for the entire year to 27.6 cents, including 4.1 cents worth of wheat. The annual farm price of wheat soared to $3.95 a bushel. Still superheated by demand and diminished U.S. reserves, wheat prices continued to climb for a while, reaching a monthly record high of $5.52 a bushel nationally in February 1974.
