Urgency of application to be stressed

Large delegation to attend lake hearing

An application by the Colorado River Municipal Water District to build a reservoir on the Colorado River near Stacy will likely be supported by upwards to 200 people from ten area communities.

The hearing before the Texas Water Commission is scheduled for 10 a.m. The various delegations will file statements attesting to the urgency of the application.

At stake is a lake designed to impound more than 554,000 acre feet of water, which would make it far larger than either of the two CRMWD lakes now in existence, E. V. Spence near Robert Lee and J. B. Thomas, located in Borden and Scurry counties.

Such a reservoir would provide an annual yield of 113,000 acre feet of water for municipal and industrial needs

Included in the latter is water for a major coal-fired electric generation plant when and if the permit becomes a reality.

O. H. Ivie, general manager of CRMWD, said the water district's officials are gratified by the area's wave of support "because it affirms that this is a project that serves an urgent regional need and is not merely another lake on a district system.

"If anyone has the idea that we are asking to impound water that we do not need, these community leaders and officials will put the record straight," Ivie said. "Our current supplies will not long maintain the present level of economic activity in the region.

"To sustain growth patterns and orderly development of the region, we must have this new source of water. For more than two decades every state and federal long range study has resulted in recommending for development of this region."

An application for a permit for the reservoir, which would be located on the Concho-Coleman county line some 20 miles southeast of Ballinger, was filed last October because of the acceleration of water demands. Ivie said

Since the CRMWD last appeared before the water commission a dozen years ago, the number of cities and towns dependent upon the district for supplies for all or part of their water has doubled, and so has the volume of water delivered. The number of industries looking to the district for water has almost tripled.

According to Ivie, four other cities have asked to execute water purchase agreements with the district, and so have two local water supply districts. Two other cities have petitioned CRMWD to include their future water needs in planning for the new reservoir.

The hearing could extend through Thursday, if attorneys for the water district carry out plans to introduce testimony and statements by city and county officials and civic leaders within the area. Most members of the water district's board will be in Austin for the hearing. "It's evident we have a unity of support," Ivie stated. "This deepens our already keen sense of responsibility to look out for the water requirements of this region from Ballinger and Coleman to Sweetwater and from Midland-Odessa to San Angelo.

"We welcome any delegation and individual from this area who can reassure the Texas Water Commission on the utter necessity of developing this source of supply as soon as possible.

Among individuals and delegations due to attend the hearing or whose resolutions of support will be heard

Members of the Big Spring City Council, members of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Howard County Judge Bill Tune, Eb Grandstaff, Ballinger, chairman of the Upper Colorado River Authority; Mayor Tom Parrett, San Angelo; Ross L. Jones, attorney for the Central Colorado River Authority; board of the Central Colorado River Authority; and the board of the Upper Colorado River Authority.

Q. It's hard to open canned milk today with an electric can opener. Why?

Action/reaction: Why so hard?

A. Probably because there are no rims on them. When they started making commercial cans in 1889 they did not have rims on them. Manufacturers have stayed with basically the same type of can since then. The conversion cost would be too much, canned milk company officials say.

Offbeat: Bellydancing mother

MELROSE PARK, Ill. (AP) - At the end of a great navel battle, a 30year-old Peoria mother had belly danced her way to the Midwest championship and the first prize of $150, a trophy and entry into the national meet in San Francisco next year.

For five hours, until midnight Saturday, 17 professional belly dancers from eight states rung out their rubbery torsos to exotic taped music in a motel banquet hall while 100 spectators made sounds of approval like hog calls.

Six judges, including the great Sula of San Francisco, author of five belly dancing books, scored points for appearance, poise, dancing ability, originality, music interpretation and personality.

The winner was Pava Vance, mother of a 5-year-old son and wife of a lithographer. Pava performs at Peoria functions and teaches a class of 30 aspiring belly dancers.

Outside: Chance

Partly cloudy skies and a 50 per cent chance of rain is forecast through Tuesday for Big Spring. The rain is expected in the form of severe thundershowers, and will likely come late tonight. The chance of precipitation lecreases slightly Tuesday. High today is expected in the upper 80s, low tonight in the mid 60s, high Tuesday in the mid 80s. Winds will be southeasterly as 10 to 20 mph.

relied on the familiarity of his name, spending about $6,500 for the entire campaign.

The outcome was a replay of Sadler's 1976 railroad commission race, when he also finished first in the primary without a majority and then lost in the runoff to Jon Newton.

Voters in six Congressional districts Saturday also selected one Republican and five Democratic nominees for the U.S. House of Representatives.

U.S. Rep. John Young D-Corpus Christi, lost the nomination for his seat to State Rep. Joe Wyatt of Bloomington. Accusations made two years ago that Young was keeping a secretary on his payroll partly for sexual favors apparently hurt his chances for re-election.

Two Democratic nominations for the state Senate and 13 for the Texas House were also decided Saturday.

After Poerner learned of his victory, he promised to "make everybody a good hand" at the railroad commission. He said he felt humble because so many people had a part in his victory.

"First of all Speaker Billy Clayton organized the House and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby organized the Senate," Poerner said. "Then county governments organized the minorities and the local people.

'And last of all the press shouldered their responsibility and laid the record before the people and when that happened we could feel it turn around almost overnight."

"Just tell everybody that I will make a good hand," he said.

The Railroad Commission regulates the oil, gas and trucking industries in Texas.

During the campaign, Sadler charged that Poerner was "in the pocket" of those industries. Saturday he said, "Oil is king, and the kingmust have his clowns Poerner called Sadler a "disgrace."

He claimed Sadler's age made him an unsuitable choice and said Sadler had a history of absenteeism as land commissioner.

Former senator dies today in New Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, a member of the Senate panel that investigated the Watergate scandal, died today from what hospital officials said was liver and kidney failure.

Montoya, 62, a Democrat from New Mexico, entered Georgetown University Medical Center May 4 complaining of stomach discomfort. His family was with him when he died this morning. Montoya was first elected to Congress in 1957 and then to the Senate in 1964. He came to national attention when he was named to the Senate Watergate Committee in 1973. That panel conducted hearings that figured prominently in the eventual unraveling of the Watergate cover-up. He was defeated for re-election in 1976 by Sen. Harrison Schmitt, a Republican, a former scientistastronaut.

Montoya was known in the Congress as a hard-working liberal.

He also was interested in consumer legislation. Among the legislation he sponsored were bills calling for truth in advertising and proper labeling of consumer products.

During the debates over the Vietnam War, he voted for legislation calling for an end to the war.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Bandleader Xavier Cugat has returned to his home after a week of treatment for high blood pressure at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

Hospital spokesman Larry Baum said Cugat, 78, returned to his Wilshire District home Sunday.

The Spanish-born Cugat, dubbed the King of Rumba by his fans, was taken to Cedars-Sinai last Sunday by fire department paramedics after he complained of breathing difficulty.

Gives to campaign

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Former Navy Secretary John Warner, who unsuccessfully sought the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate at a weekend party state convention, has donated $500 to the campaign of the man who defeated him.

'I'm putting my money where my mouth was'' Warner said Sunday in presenting a check to the campaign of former Virginia GOP chairman Richard Obenshain.

Warner was accompanied to the convention rostrum Saturday night by his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor, when he asked the delegates to join me in making this great convention unanimous on behalf of Richard Obenshain."

ambassador to festival

SAN ANTONIO - Mrs. Harold Talbot of Big Spring has been named an ambassador for the seventh annual Texas Folklife Festival. Aug. 3-6 in downtown San Antonio. Mrs. Talbot is one of 90 Festival Ambassadors who serve as the direct contact between their community and the Festival. They distribute posters and information, serve as media contacts and make speeches on the Festival throughout their area.

The Ambassadors are people from all parts of the state who support the noncommercial concept of the multicultural celebration of Texas.

The Festival, sponsored by The University of Texas at San Antonio's Institute of Texan Cultures, is a four-day showcase of the theme of the Institute's main floor exhibition — a vast display of the histories of 26 nationalities, cultures and races identified in the Texan population. E. L. Short of Tahoka, a former state representative, upset opponent Don Workman of Lubbock in Saturday's run-off election by 1,015 votes to take the Democratic nomination for the 28th State Senatorial District.

Short, who was the underdog in the May primary election which forced the runoff, carried nine of the 13 counties in the senate district with a total of 14,166 or 51.86 per cent of the vote. Workman, the top votegetter in the primary last month, carried only four counties for a total of 13,151 votes. Workman is on the board of directors of the Texas Tech medical board which made the recent decision to place the training center in Odessa.

Short, however, attributed his victory to the support from Ector County, which went for Delwin Jones in the May primary. The nominee will face Republican Joe Robbins of Lubbock in November.

Mayer said Laine was in satisfactory condition Friday night and was released Saturday. No other details were made available.

Seattle woman takes President at his word

SEATTLE (AP) - Mrs. D took Jimmy Carter at his word when the president said he wanted his White House to be "in close touch" with citizens. But the Seattle woman now isn't sure anyone at the White House can read.

Mrs. D. who said she did not want her full name used turned over to The Seattle Times copies of letters that illustrate her experience.

Oct. 15, 1977 - Mrs. D wrote to the White House, saving she and many of her friends were opposed to Jack Tanner being named a federal judge. She asked Carter not to nominate the Tacoma, Wash., attorney.

Oct. 28, 1977 - A White House letter, signed by James F Gammill Jr., director of the presidential personnel office, was sent to Mrs. D. It thanked her for her recommendation of "Warren D. Riebe for a position in this administration.

Nov. 17, 1977 - Mrs. D wrote to the White House again, repeating that she opposed Tanner's nomination and that she could not understand the White House letter. "Your letter," she wrote, "states that you received my letter in which I 'recommend Warren D. Riebe for a position in this administration.' Who is Warren D. Riebe?

Nov. 24, 1977 - Mrs. D received another letter from Gammill. "In response to your letter of November 17, 1977, please excuse the mixup that occurred in responding to your earlier correspondence," it said. "We appreciate your recommendation of Jack Tanner.

Dec. 12, 1977 - This time Mrs. D wrote directly to the president.

"Since October 15, 1977, I have been trying to get someone in your office to understand that a number of friends and I are disenchanted with the selection of Jack Tanner.

'For some reason my letters are not comprehended Is it too much to expect someone in your office to really read the letters?

"I have tried to make excuses for this inability to read. Perhaps your employees have all had speed-reading courses. Perhaps they are all drunk. Perhaps they just read what they want to read

Mrs. D sent no more letters, but the non-communication over Tanner continued.

Last Jan. 19, the White House sent Tanner's name to the Senate for confirmation. But on May 4, Carter, while in Portland, Ore., said the Tanner recommendation had not reached him yet.

The next day, the president's press secretary acknowledged Carter did not know about Tanner's nomination going through the White House earlier. But a vexing question still remains for Mrs. D: Who is Warren D. Riebe?

By the Associated Press Heavy thunderstorms roared across Northwest Texas Sunday night and started reading into Southwest Texas early today.

Moderate rain and strong, shifting winds were part of the thunderstorm activity. Rainfall amounted to about an inch at Childress, one-half inch at Amarillo and one-third inch at Lubbock.

Flash flood watches were posted for portions of the Panhandle and South Plains because the forecast said additional heavy showers were possible.

'Ain't Misbehaving' wins three Tonies

NEW YORK (AP) - This year's Tony Award for the best musical of the Broadway season went to "Ain't Misbehavin'," a sassy Harlem jazz revue, while "Da," a gentle Irish memory play, took the best drama prize.

Besides getting the top silver medallions Sunday night, announced at the end of a CBS telecast that as usual ran overtime, "Ain't Misbehavin" got two other awards, for outstanding musical direction by Richard Maltby Jr. and for the featured performance of Nell Carter.

"Da," written by Hugh Leonard, also won the drama director award for Melvin Bernhardt in his Broadway debut, the star actor prize for veteran Barnard Hughes, and the featured actor citation for Lester Rawlins.

Both of the winning shows originated in off-Broadway theaters, and both previously won the annual citations of the New York Drama Critics Circle.

Ironically, another nominated musical, "On the Twentieth Century," got more Tonys than "Ain't Misbehavin'," scooping five for actor John Cullum, featured actor Kevin Kline, scenic designer Robin Wagner, best score by Cy Coleman with lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, and best book, also by Comden and Green

Under regulations established by the League of New York Theaters and Producers, which administers the awards, "Ain't Misbehavin"' was not eligible for either score or book nomination because it uses the music of the late Thomas "Fats" Waller and has only a fragmentary story line.

Liza Minnelli was picked as top musical actress for "The Act." The other individual honors in musical categories went to Bob Fosse as choreographer of "Dancin"' and to Jules Fisher, the same show's lighting designer

Imagine life without credit cards

Americans could, no doubt, endure for an extended period of time without hamburgers, mascara, paper bags or mail order catalogues - even if begrudgingly

We might all go crackers in a very short time if our credit cards were taken away from us, however.

According to a survey reported by the Christian Science Moniter, the average consumer carries about his person an average of 5.2 credit cards.

MORE THAN 700 million slips of plastic credit certification are universally in use. Of that number, more than 80 per cent - in excess of half a billion - are stuffed into American wallets

The Canadians, who rank second to the Americans in the use of credit cards, aren't even close. There's 34 million in use in that nation.

The majority of cards are issued by retail firms. Department firms have the greatest number in circulation, followed by oil companies.

Sears Roebuck alone has placed 47 million such cards in the hands of customers, most of whom obviously make regular use of them. Bank cards have printed up 92 million, or one for roughly every 2.3 persons in the country

The survey, conducted by Spencer Nilson of Santa Monica, Calif., publisher of a credit card newsletter, covered 49 countries and suggests that on a world basis the card market has just begun to be tapped.

NORTH AMERICA and Europe may be approaching saturation, but there are less than four million cards in the whole of South America and a minuscule 12,500 all those Middle Easterners in disposing of their oil riches

many of the Middle Easterners pay cash even for things like gold-plated Cadillacs and mink stoles, thus would have no use for credit cards, outside of the fact that they might be status

Around the rim

According to comedian Bill Cosby, no one in his family would drink the last bit of water from the jug in the refrigeratorybecause whoever did had to reful the bothe. My family was much the same way; we'd all die of thirst before we'd drink the last bit of water and have to refill the jug. And as with most families, it was always Mom who finally had sympathy for the thirsty bunch and refilled the bottle.

We always seemed to have a lot of odds and ends and unused portions, that, like the last of the water in the jug, never got consumed.

FOR EXAMPLE, the last quarterinch of milk in the bottom of the jug (we bought it by gallons) would never be drunk. Perhaps it was because we knew that whoever drank it had to wash out the jug, or maybe we all looked at it with suspicion that it was a little blinky (meaning on the verge of sour).

Simply opening the door of the refrigerator furnishes numerous examples of unconsumed last portions:

-A coke that someone couldn't finish which became flat (no fizz) and got pushed to the back of the fridge;

The last of a jar of jelly that wasn't quite enough to spread across a piece of toast, so the next guy just opened a new jar; A chicken wing;

-Lettuce, always down near the core, that stayed so long it turned vellow on the ends of the leaves;

-The last slice of a pizza: -A small bit of mustard too elusive

(watery) to be caught with a knife and spread on a sandwich. -The bottom of a bottle of ketchup that had been sitting so long (after someone too lazy to beat the bottle and get the last drop opened a new bottle) in the refrigerator that it took on the consistency of glue:

-A half-serving of tomato soup with a film across the top; and any number of other types of leftovers that never taste as good re-heated.

Unused portions

Also around the kitchen, but not necessarily in the refrigerator; -The heel of a loaf of bread, with perhaps one slice of slightly stale bread; and shrivelled apple -A blackened banana;

In the bathroom, it never fails that one or two squares are left on the toilet paper rack because no one wants to change the roll, and in addition, there are always; —A squished, rolled, mangled tube of toothpaste with too much left to throw away, and too little to bother fighting the tube over; —Slivers of the last used-up bar of soap underneath the fresh new bar sitting in the soap dish (The only purpose of the slivers is to scoot out of the dish and into the bottom of the bathtub and leave slick spots for the next person who showers to slip on;

-A couple of extra shampoo or creme rinse containers with, again, too much to throw away and too little to stand and shake out of the bottle.

LEFTOVERS, BOTTOM of the lot. and dregs are only three of the uncomplimentary terms used to describe the scum at the bottom of the jar, bottle or tube.

One thing good about technology it did solve the "don't drink the last of the water 'cause ya' gotta fill up the jug" problem. I guess my mom got tired of filling the jug, because the last refrigerator she bought had the water line to the spout in the refrigerator, eliminating the ever-low water bottle. But, she still has to wash blinky milk out of the bottom of the jug, squeeze the toothpaste tube, and change the toilet paper.

contract expired in 1974 and was awarded to another firm, Dogoloff returned the favor to Katon for hiring his fiancee. Dogoloff extended Katon's contract for 15 days and gave him a dozen new work orders. "All of the work, amounting to about $118,000, was assigned to Katon Associates," declares the report. The other firm, which had won the contgact, got no work for months

-NOT LONG afterward, Katon hired another NIDA insider, Paul Ryser, who had been a consultant to NIDA official and college chum William Spillane. After Ryser joined Katon's firm, it "received three contracts which were administered by (Spillane's) division, totalling $1,976,670." Spillane, meanwhile, "dined with Katon personnel on at least 13 occasions, and the cost of those meals ... was charged ... to the NIDA contract." The cozy relationship between NIDA and Richard Katon Associates, adds the report "is of continuing concern." Some NIDA officials, it says, "express skepticism about the legitimacy" of the arrangement. -NIDA official Laurence Carroll helped establish a Miami consulting firm called Social Systems, Inc. When he joined NIDA, "he transferred his stock to his wife." Inspectors found that "six states had awarded contracts to Social Systems" financed "through the use of NIDA funds." These contracts, totaling $215,000, 'accounted for about 80 percent of Social Systems's total receipts." The official also "failed to include his interest in Social Systems in his confidential statement.

Fear of crowds a common phobia

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem with dizzy spells and nervousness. My heart starts beating fast and I get all sweaty and nervous. It happens mostly when I go places. It is especially bad when I am on high places. I've had this since I was 12 and I'm 24 now. It doesn't seem to be getting any better. Sometimes I feel like I am losing my mind. Everytime I go someplace or am around people, it starts, but as long as I'm home I'm fine. I've been to doctors but that doesn't help. Any suggestions? Please send your booklet on reducing. - G.

This sounds like one of the commonest of phobias - agoraphobia, anxiety caused when leaving familiar settings, such as the home. It is most often seen in women between the ages of 20 and 30.

few would dismiss as President Carter's inordinate fear of Communism, a few observations:

1) It is a tribute to the discernment of the American people that they have shown a greater penetration than our leaders in assessing the meaning of international developments. The Wall Street Journal, with its characteristic acuity, remarked recently that the United States Senate was divided, in the issue of planes to the Middle East, between those senators who desire to take a stand against the Soviet Union through the arming of Israel, and those other senators who wish to take a stand against the Soviet Union through the arming of the Arab states. What they had in common - most of them - was the gradual recognition that the Soviet Union is up to something. At the rate at which knowledge of this is spreading, news of it might reach even Andy Young before the decade is out.

2) THE TRIAL of Yuri Orlov was not designed by the Soviet Union as merely a means of dispatching the noble Orlov to a Siberian camp. That could have been done with the secrecy with which, for instance, the Soviet Union planned its invasion of Czechoslovakia ten years ago. No, the trial of Orlov was designed to advertise to the world the contempt the Soviet Union feels for that feature of the Helsinki agreements that called for such human rights as Orlov undertook to monitor the continuing Soviet violation of. Mr. William Safire has astutely called in his column for a complementary gesture by the United States Congress, namely the recision of those features of the Helsinki Accords beloved of the Soviet Union. to wit the de jure recognition of the Soviet presence in East Europe. However, the Soviet press should not be barred from any deliberations by Congress of this proposal. We should continue, even while dismantling the first of the Helsinki Accords, to observe the human rights enumerated in Basket Three. As it stands, the only official gesture by the United States Government in protest against the victimization of Yuri Orlov has been to postpone the visit to the Soviet Union of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano. This is all very well, but leaves us with the correlative disadvantage of keeping Mr. Califano in Washington.

3) The emergence of Zbigniew Brzezinski as the Bad Man of international politics is the best thing that has happened to Brzezinski in years. A Bad Man in international politics is one who is prepared to reason from Soviet activity to Soviet intentions. For instance, if the Soviet Union devotes a significant amount of its military budget to weapons whose only use is offensive, then Bad Men like Brzezinski, and the elders of the Committee on the Present Danger, and bright people like me and the American people, deduce that the Soviet Union is interested in offensive capability.

By the same token, if the Soviet Union deploys Cuban troops to Africa. Bad Men read into such maneuvers a desire by the Soviet Union to subvert any possible progress in Africa toward independence, economic health, and such bourgeois liberties as are countenanced here and there in Africa. All of this is transparent to most people, the most conspicuous exception being.

4) Senator Lowell Weicker. Senator Weicker desires to become president of the United States, which recalls the explanation, recently given over television, of the meaning of the royal succession by British comedian Dudley Moore appearing with his partner, Peter Cooke, on the Dick Cavett Show. Asked to explain that British institution, Dudley Moore said: "Well put it this way, Dick. if tomorrow 55 million Britishers were suddenly to die, Pete here would be Queen.

For most people normal anxiety subsides after repeated exposure to cause of the phobia. In others, like yourself, it becomes chronic and, indeed, may tend to become more exaggerated with time. The person may eventually withdraw and become more or less a prisoner in the home. Studies have uncovered some interesting and instructional facets to the problem. For example, one anxiety may reinforce another. Thus, a domestic disturbance will tend to make the primary phobia more pronounced

Early diagnosis is important. In single phobias the outlook is usually good. The person learns to adjust lifestyle to either avoid the cause (heights, animals, etc.), or to live with Physical symptoms, like palpitations and sweating, are not uncommon. Sometimes, actual physical causes can be found, such as hyperthyroidism or tachycardia (rapidity of heartbeat).

It is revealing that you have had this since childhood. The onset of such phobias is often gradual, and may begin with something as seemingly innocent as extreme blushing in youngsters. I might also speculate on the significance of your asking for my reducing booklet. An anxiety about an unattractive figure can lay the groundwork for unrelated phobias.

But it serves no purpose for me to attempt to psychoanalyze you long distance. A psychologist or psychiatrist should be able to help you. Often, understanding the problem is sufficient to allay the fears. Psychotherapy techniques have been used successfully. One of them is a kind of desensitization, the purposeful exposure to feared situations on a controlled, gradual basis. Group therapy organizations, where you will

On May 12, 1978 a letter I wrote to the Editor appeared in the Big Spring Herald. I wrote the letter in reference to the blocking of Main Street for a local show. I am not going to rewrite the letter which I wrote because I felt I made my opinion on the subject. However, a friend of mine came in today and asked me if I had seen the article that was written on May 16, 1978 in the column "Ridin' Fence." I had not and so I obtained a copy of that days newspaper and read the column. I believe that there is some misunderstanding as to the reason I wrote the letter.

Apparently, after reading Ridin' Fence, my sentiment on the issue was not understood. I was not complaining about the fact that a show was held for the population. Also, I was not criticizing the people because they wanted to help Big Spring. The only thing that I was complaining about was the fact that a city street was blocked off for a show. As I stated in my last letter, a city street should not be blocked off for a show. The event should have taken place at a more appropriate place. For example, the city park or the amphitheater. There are facilities in town which are never used such as the auditorium or the city park, which would be better than blocking city streets. Also, in Ridin' Fence, it was pointed out that in case of an emergency one could go around the block or a way could have been cleared. However, in an emergency minutes or even seconds counts. Time detour or the time it takes to clear a path

It was also mentioned that the Brown Berets did not impede anyone's progress for a long period of time. It seems funny to me that my wife went downtown that day and found Main Street to be blocked off by the Brown Berets during their rally To me that is constricting traffic. However, I am not criticizing the Brown Berets for their rally since they have a right to voice their opinion and rally.

I was not criticiznig the events that take place in Big Spring. It is good for a town to have local shows. The only thing that I was pointing out was that a city street should not be blocked off for a show. As stated before, a show should be held in a more appropriate place such as the park.

The professional entertainment I mentioned was professional entertainment to come in from other places.

In regard to the people who just moved to Big Spring, I do not consider myself to be a sorehead or kill joy. Even though the shows are announced ahead of time, emergencies still happen and it is still inconvenient to a motorist. If this only happened once in a great while it would be OK. However, this blocking of city streets happens too often in Big Spring. I am not trying to wage a battle over this.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I tend to worry a lot, and when I worry I eat and eat. I am getting so fat that I'm ashamed of myself. Do you have any suggestions? - E.G.

DEAR E. G.: It's good to recognize a problem when you have one. You already know that your behavior not only harms your appearance but also is damaging to your health. More than this, it is wrong in the eves of God. In fact, the Bible sees gluttony as a sign of undisciplined living, and puts it on the same level of seriousness as drunkenness. "For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty" (Proverbs 23:21). The apostle Paul warned of people "whose end is destruction, whose God is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, and who mind earthly things" (Philippians 3L19).

Yours is a rather common problem today, but that does not make it any less serious. Unfortunately, most people in your situation attempt to treat the symptom rather than the deeper problem. They go on all sorts of diets - some of which may be harmful - but they never attack the real issue. You have put your finger on your deeper problem: If you didn't worry so much, you probably would not eat so much. The solution is not simply to stop eating so much; the solution is to learn the secret of not worrying. How can you do this? I believe the only answer is to turn your life over to Jesus Christ and learn to trust Him for every problem you face. When we come to Christ, we become His children in a special sense. He loves us, and when we really understand that fact, it gives us great security and confidence about the future.

Government contracts and fees were parceled out to close associates. And nusbands began overseeing contractors who employed their wives. It was all very cozy

OUR STORIES were read with special fascination by Joseph A. Califano Jr. who presides over the sprawling Health, Education and Welfare Department but can't watch everything that goes on in the great marble maze. He instructed his inspector general to investigate our charges.

The inspector general has now submitted his findings. "We have conducted a review," he reported, "of the allegations contained in certain Jack Anderson columns relating to improper conduct by the staff, management, grantees and contractors of the National Institute on Drug Abuse...

"The Anderson allegations are, in large measure, based on fact ... With few exceptions, our review has disclosed a substantial appearance of impropriety but no provable violations of law." Then point by point, he confirmed our charges. Califano immediately fired off a sharp memo to his subordinates who are supposed to oversee the drug abuse program. "I am distressed," he wrote, "with the loose management practices and evidence of cronyism which (the) report reveals.'

The secretary demanded an evaluation of excessive travel by top officials and approved several suggested reforms. Most important, he agreed to adopt a contracting system "in which no single individual can unduly influence an award."

OUR REPORTERS Howie Kurtz and Valerie Strauss spent months digging into NIDA. The inspector following in their tracks, general. covered the same ground. Here are highlights from his report:

-White House aide Lee Dogoloff used to be a high NIDA official. His wife, according to the inspector general, "received a total of $46,900 from NIDA contractors." We had traced $15,000 in such payments to Mary Lou Dogoloff. On some contracts, her salary "was reported to NIDA under her maiden name" but the checks were made out to Mrs. Dogoloff. Before the couple was married, while the romance was still blooming, Mary Lou was assigned to 16 task orders "which were signed by Mr. Dogoloff." One of the 16 was signed after the marriage, but "she did not work on the order.

-Lee Dogoloff helped to award this contract to an old friend, Dr. Richard Katon, who hired Mary Lou. When the -Muriel Nellis was awarded a $150,000 NIDA contract last year to study women's drug problems. Her husband, Joseph Nellis, is chief counsel of the House Narcotics Committee, which is supposed to oversee NIDA. Significantly, the report reveals he "serves as secretary" of his wife's firm. Adds the "The contract was awarded report: on a sole source basis without screening other qualified contractors to determine their interest." Although there's no evidence Nellis used his congressional clout to help his wife land the contracts, "the appearance of favoritism is present."

-NIDA Director Robert DuPont was found to have traveled for 201 days over a three-year span, costing the taxpayers over $27,000. His trips took him to such faraway places as Bangkok, Honolulu, Nigeria, Paris and Rome. Other junkets, which we had reported, were confirmed. But the inspector general added: "Our review established that all the trips were properly authorized and were in line with both the agency's mission and the traveler's duties

-The inspector general is con-tinuing to probe a NIDA grant to an unnamed hospital. "We do know that a (NIDA) project officer" who awarded the grant "had a close personal relationship" with a top official in the group that received the money Footnote: In the past, those NIDA officials and contractors cited in the report have strongly denied any improprieties in their conduct.

"After all," says William Wray who's on the board of the National Crime Prevention Association and vice president of Honeywell Protection Services, "it's the women who have the fur coats, jewelry, sterling flatware and other easy-tocarry and highly negotiable knick-knacks. It's simply good economics for a burglar to seek out the homes of women alone.

And nowadays there are more women living alone. In the past 10 years the number of women under 35 who live alone in their own apartments or homes has increased by 114 per cent. The number of divorced women head of households has more than doubled in the same period.

Wray points out that women with husbands who are away all day are also, for all practical purposes,

A burglary occurs every 13 seconds. In the time it takes you to read tercom box to class and plug this article 15 burglaries will take place. Somebody is held up every 68 seconds. Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd is expected to file the first motion to limit debate on the Republican-led labor law talkathon today, setting up a vote on Wednesday.

Other votes are likely later in the week, as even backers of the measure concede they don't have the strength to cut off debate on the first or second try. Today is the 10th day of the filibuster against the controversial measure.

Bean burns

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) on the second, third and Bean passed up the Atlanta Classic golf tournament to go fishing.

This past weekend, he was back on the PGA tour - and he landed a big one.

Burning up the front nine, Bean finished with a fourthround 66 Sunday for a 5stroke victory in the $300,000 Kemper Open, only his second win in three years on the tour.

"You might say I got off to a fast start," said Bean, whose sizzling final round gave him a 15-under-par 273 for the tournament and the $60,000 first-place check.

With his muscular 6-foot-4 frame, Bean gets off some of the longest drives of any pro putting - "I think I'm probably one of the better nine putters on the tour" - for his seven birdies on the final 18 holes at Quail Hollow Country Club.

Starting the day with a 9under-par 207, 1 stroke behind third-round leader Alan Pate. Bean fired birdies

- A weekend ago, Andy fourth holes, then eagled the par-5 fifth hole. "I think that's the first time I've ever jumped right off the ground," Bean said. From then on, the rest of the field could only look helplessly at the leader boards.

doing

"If someone had put some heat on him, he might have shot 62 or 63," said Andy North, who roomed and played with Bean at the University of Florida and was paired with him Sunday. "He was going for 60 after about the sixth hole. You know you're in trouble when you're playing with someone who's talking about a 60." North and Mark Haves finished in a tie for second at golfer. But he credited his 278, but there was little suspense down the back

"You hate to admit you're playing for second place with seven or eight holes left." said Hayes, "but that's what Andy (North) and I were

Bean, 25, said his respite from the tour a week earlier helped him prepare for the Kemper, even though he played little golf during his week off.

Alan Pate, although losing Dandridge and Hayes also his third-round lead, finished praised the Bullets subhigh enough in the money here to avoid losing his PGA tour card. He tallied a 74 in the final round to finish with an 8-underpar 288 and a check for $9,525 - more than tremendous job on the twice as much as he needed by the end of next week to retain his tour privileges.

Before Sunday, his career earnings in two years on the tour totalled $528.

Arnold Palmer, who faded from a second-round lead to wind up 10 strokes in back of Bean at 283, finished with a flourish nonetheless. He knocked in a 25-foot chip shot from the fringe to birdie the final hole.

ſ'S to be a newspaper carrier!

We always knew it. A new study of our schools now tells you why.

It's not that youngsters aren't learning today.

It's just that they don't know how to use in every-day life what they learn in the classroon

That is the conclusion of the National Assessment of Educational Progress after a massive study of schools. It is the problem every parent must take seriously. But less so the parent of a young newspaper carrier. Lessons on Route

A carrier applies the knowledge and skills he or she gains in the classroom every day on the route

One example, arithmetic. The youngster who makes change and teeps records and does the bookkeeping for the thriving business which a newspaper route can be, knows how to use arithmetic.

And a carrier makes practical use of other classroom studies. Writing orders, communicating with customers, reading instructions from the office. Which may be the basis for the conclusion of another survey we have seen: Successful carriers do better at school

Learns Business Method

Your carrier has another advantage. This young person gets guidance from specialist people in this newspaper's circulation department and the benefit of their knowledge and help. In short, a course in business practice. Which can be useful all through life, whatever field the young person enters.

Almost nowhere else we know of, except in managing a newspaper route, is such an opportunity for training with profit (which can be saved for college tuition) available to a youngster today. It makes today's carrier brighter. And sharper. A special youngster, whom we salute on International Newspaper Carrier Day. this Saturday.

who run too long, too fast and too often and occurs because the body tissues do not get enough rest. If you start suffering, consider changing your schedule. "Someone who runs seven miles every day might be better off running 15 miles every other day," Gladieux said. You also can lessen your chance of trouble by doing a series of long, slow stretches before and after you jog. The only equipment you need for jogging is a pair of shoes, although many people buy special clothing as well. You don't necessarily have to spend a lot of money; the jogging association recommends a shoe that sells for just under $20. The main thing remember, Gladieux said, is to get a shoe with plenty of cushioning in the heel. Look for shoes with soles of a tough outer layer of rubber and a softer mid-sole that runs the full length of the shoe. Soles should be flexible, but the section under the arch should provide firm support. The sole should be about half an inch thick and both the arch supports and the uppers should be smooth, soft and non-irritating. Make sure the heel is wide and stable and provides a slight lift - about half an inch - similar to the lift given by heels in street shoes. What is known as the toe box — the space for the toes — should be rounded and about one inch deep. Further information on jogging is available from the National Jogging Association, 919 18th St. N.W., Washington, D.C., 20006

rescues mother

FRUITLAND, N.M. (AP) - A 14-year-old Navajo boy helped save a woman being swept along by the rushing waters of the nearby San Juan River, then discovered she was his mother.

San Juan County Sheriff's deputies said the youth, Willard John, and two other teen-agers, Priscilla Jim, 13, and Leo Hoskie, 15, were crossing a bridge Saturday when they saw a body pass beneath the structure.

Priscilla ran for help while the other two rode their bicycles along the river for almost a mile trying to catch up with the woman.

Leroy Duncan of Farmington joined the two teenagers, and the three waded into the river and pulled the woman to shore.

"It wasn't until I was face to face with her that I realized it was my mother," Willard said. "I was surprised and scared.

"When I first entered the water I was only thinking about trying to save the woman.'

Deputies said Rose Marie John, 39, was treated at the San Juan Medical Center then transfered to the U.S. Health Service hospital in Shiprock. A hospital spokesman said Sunday that Mrs. John was in stable condition.

"I didn't talk to my mom and she didn't talk to me,' Willard, who speaks in broken English, said through an interpreter. "I was just hoping she would be okay. I had just seen her in the afternoon.

Mrs. John was dazed by the incident and unable to tell officers how she ended up in the river. However, Willard said later that "some drunken people pushed her into the water,' but did not elaborate.

State police said they were not investigating the incident, but Navajo police were looking into it. Willard and his mother live in this Indian community near the Navajo reservation.

Bess Truman

is hospitalized

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Former first lady Bess Truman was hospitalized Friday for what a hospital spokesman said was "neuromuscular deficit with overriding arthritis. Hospital spokesman Gordon Thomas said Mrs. Truman was in satisfactory condition. Her physician, Dr. Wallace Graham, was not immediately available for comment. The widow of Harry S.

Truman was admitted to Research Medical Center at mid-afternoon. Mrs. Truman, 93, was hospitalized at the same facility in late April for her annual physical checkup.
