Briscoe, Hobby, Clayton to meet with staffs Wednesday

Details of special session unknown

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton get together this week to decide what tax relief measures have the best chances of passing the Texas Legislature.

Briscoe called the session for noon July 10, but, with one exception, he put off detailing the session's work schedule until later.

The session will be almost exactly one year since Briscoe's last special session, on July 11, 1977, when legislators met for 11 days to act on school financing.

Briscoe said the three top state officials probably would meet with their staffs on Wednesday, after the July 4th festivities, but he may wait to announce the session subjects until the opening date.

The only session subject mentioned by Briscoe was his often repeated proposal that no tax bill be approved by the Texas legislature without two-thirds vote of each house.

Only a governor can call a 30-day special session and it is up to him to limit it to certain duties.

"It will be a limited call to the extent possible," Briscoe told a news conference Friday.

Within minutes after Briscoe's announcement, Texas senators began prefilling tax-relief measures in hopes they would be considered later.

Democratic gubernatorial nominee John Hill immediately applauded the call and said: "I endorse the governor's call for a special session to give relief to Texas taxpayers."

Clayton has ordered the House Ways and Means Committee and the Constitutional Amendments committee to begin public hearings Wednesday on possible legislation for the session.

"I have concluded that our best hope for real tax relief for our citizens requires action now," Briscoe said Friday in the announcement that ended several weeks of speculation over a possible session that arose after approval of Proposition 13 in California.

Briscoe said that "as a practical matter" he expected the session to last at least two weeks. This means the Senate will be asked to confirm the long list of appointments Briscoe has made since the Senate was last in session. If a special session lasts 10 days or longer, the governor must submit his appointments for confirmation.

Briscoe said the call would include essentially the items he supported in his unsuccessful primary campaign including:

—Repeal of the 4 percent sales tax on utility bills.

—Increasing the inheritance tax exemption from $25,000 to $200,000.

—Reducing property taxes in school districts, probably with a mandatory $5,000 homestead exemption for local school taxes.

He said the "main decision" to be made next week likely would be "if tax limitation is to be a part of the call."

He said proposed repeal of the 10-cent state property tax used for state college construction was "another decision to be made next week."

Briscoe stressed to the Friday news conference that he, in effect, limited taxation by a two-thirds rule. He threatened to veto any new or additional tax bill and it would have taken two-thirds of the legislature to overrule him.

"During the past five and a half years, Texas has developed the most attractive business climate in the nation, and the major reason has been that we have one of the best tax climates. We have the lowest per capita tax burden of any state in the union except New Hampshire and we are the only major industrial state with neither a personal nor corporate income tax," Briscoe said.

"Thus, we have taken that first step. We have limited state taxation and proven that at the same time state services can actually be improved through the exercise of sound management and fiscal responsibility."

Briscoe said he still does not like special sessions. "I have refused to call such sessions absent a compelling reason to do so and the likelihood that the people of Texas will reap a significant benefit," he said. "Both I and my staff have consulted at great length with Lieutenant Governor Hobby, Speaker Clayton and others.

After careful study and analysis and much reflection, have concluded that our best hope for real tax relief for our citizens requires action now."

He said the "single objective of this session will be to construct a tax reduction and limitation program consistent with the long range best interests of Texas. The session will be conducted with the same attitude of fiscal responsibility which over the last five and one-half years has made this session possible."

He said by acting within the next 30 days, the legislature could provide tax relief in some quarters by the first of September.

Battered witness recalls fight

Transient is killed here

By MARJ CARPENTER

A transient died a violent death in Big Spring early Saturday morning, victim in an apparent battle of the vagabonds near the T&P Railway tracks.

"What a way to die — that's bad," said Henry Hubbard of Hillsboro, who was one of the transients questioned in connection with the death of Avote Allen Alsop, 58 of 408 Taylor, Fort Worth.

Hubbard jailed the night before on public drunkenness charges, was himself beaten by who he claimed was "four white males who jumped on me behind the grain storage tanks." He had bruises and a cut on his forehead.

Hubbard was talking about his grain storage area behind Kimbell Warehouse, adjacent to the railroad at the northern-most end of South Lancaster Street.

Clyde Eager had come to work Saturday morning and apparently cleaned up the murder scene without realizing he had done so, because the body was found about 20 minutes later.

In front of the Kimbell headquarters there were what Eager called "wine bottles, a two-by-four, and a place where somebody had vomited."

He set about cleaning it up and then "two winos told me there was a dead man across the street." Eager said he followed them over to the warehouse across the street from Saunders Company and the body was lying there, face up. It apparently had been dragged from at least the middle of the street, where there were blood-stains.

"The dead man had apparently been severely beaten around the head and suffered internal bleeding. The contents of his billfold, except for any cash, were scattered around and under his body. There was a Social Security card and a driver's license which had apparently been cut in half.

His billfold was later found north of the Kimbell Warehouse and was "empty and completely torn apart," according to Det. J.D. Carter of the city police.

An immediate alert was signaled by police after finding the body around 9:20 a.m. to search a westbound train in Midland.

Another wanderer, Brice Pickel of parts unknown, said he had seen at least two men boarding the train headed west. Three vagrants were pulled off the train in Midland and DESCRIPTS BEATING — Henry Hubbard of Hillsboro at the left and Price Pickel, both transients, tell Police Det. J.D. Carter of a beating received by Hubbard in the area of the railroad tracks. A man identified as A.A. Alsop of Fort Worth was found dead in the area Saturday morning.

Det. Jimmy Hensley, accompanied by another officer brought them back to Big Spring for questioning in the homicide.

Police officers refused to release the names of suspects taken off the train in Midland until they could determine whether charges would be filed.

However, a spokesman in the office of Sheriff Dallas Smith of Midland said the three suspects were arraigned before a Midland justice of the peace, advised of their rights and charged with suspect of murder in Howard County.

The three men are Dudley Brewer, Miami, Ark.; Ricky Dale Mullins, Dalton, Ga.; and Eugene Fred Davidson, Baker, Fla.

The train was halted a mile east of the Fairgrounds before it got to the depot. Sheriff's officers pulled two of the men out from under a gondola car and a state trooper arrested the third walking away from the train. They searched the Missouri Pacific Train and there were no more suspects aboard.

Two other transients, Otha Lee Gilley, Okla. City and Ira Lee Reel, Chattanooga, Tenn. were rounded up by police this morning in the railroad yards. All seven men were held for questioning, including the two men already jailed, two more found in the railroad area plus the three arrested in Midland.

Det. Carter said they had footprints of cowboy boots near the scene. The other man, who had been beaten, described two of the attackers and said one of them wore a "cowboy hat and boots and had a moustache."

Police collected several items in the area of the apparent murder to check for fingerprints. A spokesman for police said, "We are a little more suspicious of the four who fed."

The railroad area and the viaduct over Highway 87 is a haven for men who ride the flatcars and they often sleep in the high grass at that location. Several old shirts were picked up in that area by police. Hubbard and Pickel, brought from the jail to see if they could identify the dead man, both shook their heads when they saw the body.

"I don't know him, do you?" Pickel asked. His hand shook visibly as he brought out a package of cigarettes and offered one to his buddy.

They smoked in silence as they watched the officers taking pictures and picking up evidence in the vicinity of the crime.

Justice of the Peace Bobby West came to the scene, pronounced Alsop dead and ordered the body sent to Malone-Hogan for an autopsy. The body was to be transferred to River-Welch where services are pending.

The two men stood smoking quietly. It was then Hubbard reiterated, "What a way to go." He stomped out his cigarette butt and turned his head aside to contemplate the railroad tracks — which for the transient — is often a way to the next town.

McKee successor sought by C-City

COLORADO CITY — The board of trustees of the Colorado Independent School District will meet in a called session at 7:00 Monday night to set employment criteria for two administrative positions within the school system.

To be filled is the position of Superintendent Lloyd McKee, who resigned two weeks ago to accept the deputy superintendent's position with the Odessa school system. McKee had served 10 years as administrator of the Colorado City schools.

This week, Charles Spieker, principal of Kelly Elementary School, resigned to accept a similar position in San Angelo. Spieker's wife, Thomasine, Librarian at the Colorado Middle School, will also be leaving.

According to McKee, who will continue as superintendent until Aug. 1, the deadline for applications for the superintendent's position is July 14. Interviews for applicants will be held from July 8 through 20, at which time a decision will be reached.

At Monday night's meeting, the school board will establish criteria for administrative employment and set screening procedures. Two months ago, Middle School Principal Jerry Reynolds was appointed to the high school principalship to replace Bill Everette, who resigned to accept the superintendent position for the Sands School District. Reynolds was replaced by the employment of Doyle Lowrance from the Pecos School system.

Syrian attack leaves 35 dead, 88 wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Syrian peacekeeping army launched a furious tank and mortar assault Saturday on Christian positions in Beirut, setting more than a dozen apartment buildings ablaze. At least 35 Lebanese were killed and 88 wounded, preliminary hospital reports said.

Right-wing Christian militiamen of the Phalangist Party, entrenched around the bombed Ein Rummaneh district, returned fire with machine guns, mortars and rocket-propelled grenades, but there was no immediate word on Syrian casualties.

"The shelling is indiscriminate," the Christian Phalangist Voice of Lebanon radio reported.

Veteran observers said they believed the Syrians, angered by months of tension and skirmishes with Christian gunmen, might be preparing to crush Christian strongholds.

Syrian troops ringed the district and blocked all access to the area. Reporters were not allowed to enter.

"The Syrians are hitting us with all kinds of weapons," said a resident of Ein Rummaneh reached by telephone during the bombardment. "They are using rockets, mortars and tank shells against us."

Residents scurried for cover, hiding in basements, bomb shelters and ground-floor apartments. The Voice of Lebanon reported that "non-Lebanese elements" tossed a grenade at the Empire Theater, near a downtown shopping center, killing one person and wounding four.

Bachir Gemayel, military commander of the Christian Phalange Party, had been detained by Syrian troops in the heart of the Christian community before the fighting began. He was released after 30 minutes and the Syrians opened fire when Gemayel's supporters took to the streets in protest.

When the barrage began, residents of the Christian sector were staging a general strike to mourn 36 Christians killed in east Lebanon three days ago. Some Christian leaders have implied that the Syrians helped carry out the massacre.

Syrian troops dominate the Arab League peacekeeping force in Lebanon and police the armistice that ended the 1975-76 civil war that pitted leftist Muslims and Palestinians against Lebanese Christians.

At the height of Lebanon's civil war, Syrian troops helped the Christians against the leftist Muslims and Palestinians. But Christian-Syrian relations deteriorated. In February, Christian militiamen and Syrian troops battled for five days, killing more than 150 civilians and soldiers.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Higher

Q. I understand that the Texas Electric Service Company rates are higher in the summer than in the winter. How much is the difference and why?

A. According to TESCO manager Jack Redding, equipment has to be built to meet the peak demand period, which is the summer air conditioning season. "By charging more during the peak time, we encourage conservation — people can set their thermostats at 72 degrees or 74 degrees rather than 68 degrees if they don't wish to pay such high bills. We put the cost to pay for where the cost is made, as the federal government suggests," Redding explained. "For example, a small system might only need 400 megawatt capacity in winter, but 1,000 megawatt capacity in summer, but we have to construct to meet the peak period. We put the cost of building for the extra 600 megawatt capacity on the people who use it, making the winter rates almost a discount type rate, rather than the summer a rate hike." Bob Goodwin, division customer service operations manager for TESCO said that the customer charge and fuel charges, which remain fairly regular on a month to month basis, are figured separately from the per kilowatt hour charge. It is the kilowatt hour charge that changes from winter to summer. "Winter rates are 1.31 cents per kilowatt hour, while summer rates — from May 1 through October — are 70 per cent higher at 2.23 cents per kilowatt hour," Goodwin said, explaining that the change in methods of itemizing charges was the result of State Utility Commission requests.

Offbeat: Can't have it all

Now that's what some people call service. Howard County Deputy Charles Johnson responded to a call from a resident of South MacGregor Road, Thursday who told him about a car abandoned near there. Johnson located the 1964 Chevrolet, and checked it out as a stolen car, but did not receive confirmation. In fact, it wasn't reported stolen to the Big Spring police department until 20 minutes later, when Walter Little, 802 W. 17th, reported it missing from Bowl-A-Rama. Of course, it was missing three tires and rims and the seats had been removed, but you can't have everything.

Fireworks banned in city limits

It is against the law to fire off fireworks inside the city, according to Julius Ryals, city fire marshal.

Ryals reminds parents that they can be held responsible for children setting off fireworks and damages which may result. Fines can be up to $200, depending on circumstances and damages, according to the Marshall.

He said there were a number of calls during the 4th of July holiday last year in which fires were apparently started by fireworks and he reminded persons to be especially careful of dry grass if fireworks are set off outside the city limits.

Parents are also warned of injuries to children which can result from careless handling of fireworks.

Fireworks in Lamesa

Barbeque, parade on 4th

A barbeque will be held in Comanche Trail Park Tuesday, July 4 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. sponsored by the Evening Lions Club. Tickets for the barbeque are $3 and may be purchased from club members or at the park.

The Highland South Parade has been revised and will be held at Highland South at 10 a.m. on the Fourth of July. The public is invited to attend. This is a neighborhood parade, a tradition for the eighth year with neighborhood children and youth participating.

The All Veterans Council will sponsor a brief parade at 8 a.m. on Tuesday morning from the Post Office to the courthouse where a wreath will be placed at the veteran's marker there.

Mrs. Mamie Lee Dodds expressed regret that she was unable to sponsor the "Let Freedom Ring" pageant single-handedly this year, having recently been hospitalized.

There were no plans for community fireworks this year, previously sponsored jointly by the local Chamber of Commerce and Webb Air Force Base.

There will be fireworks Tuesday night in Lamesa in Forest Park where they will hold a 75th Birthday party for the city of Lamesa complete with a "shoot-out" between Lamesa and Chicago, community games and barbeque.

At Colorado City on the Fourth, events begin early with a Fly-In breakfast and an air show that will last until afternoon. The event is being held ten miles from the city at the former Webb AFB auxiliary landing strip which is being turned into a municipal airport.

Mrs. Geri Atwell, museum curator at Heritage Museum here, said it will be open today, but closed on Tuesday, July 4.

Hearts 'n flowers

The tart lip

With Tommy Hart

Accumulatively, the stories some salespersons tell on customers would make the best sellers' lists anywhere. Considering the fact that the buying public can be both provoking and petty, it's a wonder the clerks remain as pleasant and courteous as they are.

A noteworthy few may be into witchcraft. That kind would spend much of their free time sticking pins in dolls shaped in the general image of people who approach them with perpetual scowls).

Some who serve the public laugh to keep from crying, so waspish and despicous are a few of the people with whom they deal.

Those customers who would try the patience of Job sweep into a business establishment, examine every piece of merchandise and then, likely as not, leave without buying anything. If a salesperson hovers close, the visitor surveying the scene dismisses him or her with a wave of the hand. If the clerk doesn't immediately come over, the tyrant grumbles about the lack of amenities in the business world today.

Then there are those who buy a piece of merchandise, only to return it the following day. Some customers can never make up their minds about any purchase. For that reason, they bring their own cabinets with them, consisting either of family members or friends or both.

In an abundance of cases, clerks have had to serve as referees where two or more shoppers coveted the same piece of merchandise.

Salespersons who have had a difficult day at the store need more than tea and sympathy after arriving home, maybe two fingers of the cooking sherry or a dram of the old man's cough medicine.

Colorado City Fly-In is scheduled Tuesday

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce has scheduled their annual July Fourth Fly-in for Tuesday. The annual event is to be staged at the former Webb AFB auxiliary jetstrip located nine miles northwest of the city which was recently designated by the city council as the new municipal airport. About 3,000 pilots and spectators are expected for the all-day event which draws pilots flying their private aircraft from all over Texas and surrounding states.

Breakfast, at a cost of $2.50 per person, will be served at the airport hanger from 7 a.m. til 10 a.m. The meal is served free to pilots.

The Lew Sparks sky-diving team from Abilene will perform four parachute-jumping exhibitions. Sparks said, "Our team will jump every hour on the hour from 8 a.m. til noon."

Van White, a pilot from Lubbock, will be featured in the aerobatics airshow which begins at noon Tuesday. White will be flying his home-built Vertigo II craft to entertain spectators with aerobatic flying tricks, including loops, rolls, hammerhead stalls and inverted low-level passes over the runway. Following the airshow, there will be a number of pilot contests, including spot landing, balloon bursting and flour sack bombing. These contests are open to all pilots.

According to J.O. Dockrey, co-chairman of the aviation committee of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, the traditional public airplane rides will again be offered. The plane rides, at $4 per person, fly over Colorado City and the county's two lakes on a 15 minute flight. "Waiting lines should be shorter this year due to the convenience of the longer runways and taxicabs at the new airport," noted Dockrey.

Several vintage military aircraft will be on display along the 9000 foot runway. Trophies will be presented to the pilot flying the greatest distance to the event, the oldest and youngest pilots, the oldest airplane and the most unusual airplane. Joe Marshall of Abilene will judge the most unusual airplane.

Chamber of Commerce

president Jerry Putman has said, "Attendance has grown each year for the July Fourth Fly-in since the chamber instituted the event five years ago. Last year we had about 2,500 persons to attend. This year we expect at least 3,000. We plan to use the profits of the fly-in to promote the new jetstrip airport as one of the few fueling stops capable of handling cross-country flights of private and company-owned jets."

Admission to the fly-in is $2 for adults, with no charge for children.

Belated honor awarded girl killed in wreck

By MARJ CARPENTER
"Dear Sarah: Congratulations. We are pleased to inform you that because of your fine academic achievements, you have been nominated for honorary award recognition and to have your biography published in Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1977-78 edition."

What's so unusual about that? Thousands of these are sent throughout the nation between high school graduation and July 10 of each year.

But this particular letter brought tears of pride and loss, and feelings of heartache because the letter was addressed to Sarah Edwards in El Paso.

The young woman, an outstanding student in high school, had begun to make plans to attend Harvard University. She was a high school junior, and most of the students selected as merit achievement award recipients for the Who's Who are seniors, but a few outstanding juniors are selected each year.

Sarah was killed in a car wreck in El Paso in early May.

Daughter of Stormy Edwards of Ruidoso, N.M., and Mary Ann Edwards of El Paso, she has many relatives here including a grandmother, Mrs. Maurine Nugent; and two great-grandmothers, Mrs. Travis Reed and Mrs. Ova Mae Edwards. Her other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Sunny Edwards, Ruidoso, formerly of Big Spring.

Col. Speir: 53 may die in Texas

AUSTIN — Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today estimated that traffic accidents during the 102-hour July 4th holiday weekend will claim 53 lives in Texas.

"July 4th is traditionally one of our more dangerous driving periods, and I am hoping that all Texans will do their best to prevent accidents," Speir said.

The DPS director asked that motorists join DPS Troopers in burning their low-beam headlights during daylight hours throughout the holiday period as a safe driving reminder to others.

"There was widespread citizen participation in this 'Light the Way for a Safe Holiday' program during the Christmas and New Year weekends, and we believe it had a very positive impact," Speir added.

Sniper kills one, wounds 5

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 200 persons were caught in a crossfire of bullets in a restaurant parking lot early Saturday in what police said was a sniping incident. One woman was killed and five persons were wounded.

Homicide Sgt. Thomas Rowane said the shooting occurred about 1:15 a.m. in a parking lot of the Red Barn Restaurant used by patrons of two nearby cocktail lounges. The restaurant was closed at the time.

"We don't know what happened," Rowane said. He said that no arrests had been made by Saturday afternoon and that police knew of no motive for the shootings. Police said, however, they were working on the theory the shots were fired at random.

Rowane said shots were fired from M&M Garage, a towing service, and from another direction, possibly J.C.'s Lounge, which he described as a local haunt for drug-dealing and the scene of numerous arrests in the past.

Sandra Porter, 21, of Pagedale, Mo., died of gunshot wounds to the head, police said.

Deaths

R.A. Roberts
Raiford A. Roberts, 74, died at 4:50 a.m., Saturday in a local hospital following a brief illness.

Services will be at 4 p.m., Monday in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Harland B. Birdwell, pastor, officiating. Burial will occur in Trinity Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Mr. Roberts was born Nov. 10, 1903, in Clinton, Ky. He moved to Big Spring in 1905. He graduated from Big Spring High School, received his B.S. degree at Texas A&M University in 1926, his MD Degree from Iowa State University in 1928. He took graduate courses and medical zoology at Cornell University.

He served in World War II as a lieutenant colonel and medical inspector on the Headquarters staff of Gen. George Patton in Africa and with Gen. Mark Clark in Italy. He received the Bronze Star Medal for work on malaria and typhus control. He also earned a campaign medal with five bronze stars for service in North Africa and the Italian campaigns.

He retired in 1963. He was a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. He served on the church vestry and on the church school board.

Mr. Roberts is survived by a great-nephew, Jason R. Harper, Big Spring.

Ben Cason
LAMESA — Services for Ben Cason, 68, Lamesa, will be at 2 p.m. today in First Baptist Church here, with the Rev. Bill Hardage, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park under direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Cason died at 11 a.m. Friday in Medical Arts Hospital after suffering an apparent stroke.

The Bono native had lived in Lamesa 42 years. He was a retail groceryman and former manager of Claiborne's Super Market here.

He was a naval veteran of World War II and is a member of the Lions Club, the Masonic Lodge, and the Shrine.

Cason married Pearl Strickland Nov. 2, 1930, in Marietta, Okla. He was a member of the First Baptist Church 42 years.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Cynthia Agee of Richardson; a son, Benny of Midland; three sisters, Leda Cason, Grace Roberson and Mrs. Willie Goen, all of Lamesa; a brother, Guy of Corpus Christi; and five grandchildren.

Memphis firemen on strike

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — About 400 National Guardsmen joined Fire Department supervisors Saturday to operate fire stations in Tennessee's largest city after firemen went out on strike.

The strike, called at midnight after a contract with the firemen had expired, ended a decade of occasionally strained peace between the city and its municipal employees unions.

"If one life is lost, the union and its membership must live forever with that death upon their hearts," Mayor Wyeth Chandler said after members of the International Association of Fire Fighters Local 1784 left their posts.

Union vice president Sam Posey said the union had established 11 emergency units — vehicles equipped with radios but no life-saving equipment — to help rescue persons who might be trapped in burning buildings.

"Anywhere there's a fire where people's lives are involved, we will respond," Posey said. "But we aren't lifting a finger to help fight any fires otherwise."

The mayor fired union president Kuhron Huddleston and members of the local's executive board, and threatened similar action against other striking firefighters — virtually all of the force below the rank of captain — are union members. City officials said about 175 firefighters, mostly supervisory personnel, were not covered by the union contract.

Contract talks broke off Friday when city negotiators refused a union demand for shift differential bonus pay. Base pay for a fireman is $1,108 a month.

Maryland has new death penalty law

A new death penalty law went into effect Saturday in Maryland, coincidentally on the same day Gov. Milton Shapp vetoed a similar measure for Pennsylvania.

Maryland thus became the 32nd state to impose a death penalty law while Shapp became the third Northeastern governor this year to either block or veto to block legislative efforts for such a law.

Gov. Hugh Carey of New York vetoed a death penalty bill April 11 and Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has said he will veto a similar bill passed by the New Jersey Legislature.

The new Maryland law permits the death penalty for murders committed during a robbery, rape or kidnapping, for mass murder, contract murder or the murder of a policeman or prison guard.

After finding a defendant guilty, the trial jury, or possibly a second sentencing panel, will be asked to consider a list of potentially mitigating circumstances and then decide whether the defendant should be sentenced to life in prison or sent to the gas chamber.

The 12-member jury verdict on the death sentence must be unanimous or the life sentence is automatic.

The Pennsylvania death penalty bill was included in a package of legislation sent to Shapp, who is on an industry-hunting trip in Europe, for action. Shapp's decision was relayed by press spokesman Peter Donnelly at Harrisburg, Pa.

The bill had passed earlier this week by a vote of 174-19 in the House and 42-6 in the Senate. The Legislature has since adjourned and will have no chance to override Shapp's veto.

Shapp has pledged that no one will be executed in Pennsylvania while he is governor and vetoed another death penalty measure in 1974.

The latest Pennsylvania version was patterned after death penalty laws that have been upheld as constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court. It would have provided death sentences for killing a fireman, policeman, prison employee or witness, or in other cases when there were no mitigating circumstances. As of Jan. 10, 1978 there were 421 persons under death sentence in 22 states. Maryland did not have a death penalty at that time and nine states that did had no inmates on death row.

The last execution was Jan. 17, 1977 when Gary Gilmore was shot by a firing squad after a much-publicized fight on his part to see that the sentence be carried out.

Education Association to meet in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The National Education Association opens its annual convention in Dallas this week with competency testing, the Bakke decision and the money troubles of the nation's public schools expected to dominate debate.

About 9,000 educators from across the United States will attend the 116th annual gathering of the 1.8 million-member organization, the nation's largest professional group.

Kicking off the week-long convention Sunday will be release of a study by the Florida State Department of Education evaluating a pioneer program which sets minimum learning standards for public school youngsters.

The program is being watched by legislators and educators across the country.

Florida was the first state to implement a statewide minimum competency program through its 1976 Educational Accountability Act. The legislation was designed to insure that students attain a certain level of achievement before being promoted or graduated.

The U.S. Supreme Court's decision last week in the Bakke case was not on the official agenda, but it was certain to be a topic of discussion.

"It certainly is going to be discussed in the corridors, if not on the floor," said NEA spokesman Phil King, noting that the organization supported the University of California and its affirmative action program in the case.

The association, he explained, favors such programs and was disappointed that the Supreme Court ruled last week that Allan Bakke must be admitted to the University of California's medical school at Davis.

However, Bob Chanin, NEA general counsel, pointed out that although the court denounced rigid quotas for minority admissions, the justices clearly ruled that race and ethnic background may be considered for admission.

"In that sense, the court endorsed NEA's position," Chanin said. The NEA itself has quotas for minority representation among its officers.

Federal grant is cancelled

LUBBOCK — Claiming the district's bilingual program violates civil rights laws, the U.S. Office of Education has announced it won't renew a desegregation assistance grant for the Lubbock Independent School District.

Supt. Ed Irons said Friday the allegation is not in keeping with the facts, but the government won't listen to reason.

Irons said the school district had one of the best bilingual programs in the state, one considered a model for other districts.

Changes mind

SUNDOWN — Jack Gothard of Crane has changed his mind about accepting the position of superintendent of schools here, a development which caused the school board to go into executive session Friday.

At 1:03 a.m. Saturday, a Laverne Chrane of the same address on Allendale reported to officers that she was struck in the face by an unknown assailant at a vacant lot next to 2102 Allendale.

At 5:30 p.m. Friday at 90 Circle Drive, two cars were involved in a collision. Drivers were Evelyn Delator, Gail Route and Mitzi Simpkins, 1503 Kentucky Way.

At 5:35 p.m., at the intersection of Calvin and Wasson, a wreck involved vehicles driven by Wretha Speer, 3615 Calvin and Marilyn Corington, 3704 Boulder.

At 5:51 p.m. at 907 Lamesa Drive, a vehicle driven by Emilio Molina, 1103 N. Scurry was struck by a vehicle that left the scene.

Alvie Harrison, fire chief, 1804 Young, reported to police that a glass window was broken in his camper parked at his home address.

Memphis firemen on strike

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — About 400 National Guardsmen joined Fire Department supervisors Saturday to operate fire stations in Tennessee's largest city after firemen went out on strike.

The strike, called at midnight after a contract with the firemen had expired, ended a decade of occasionally strained peace between the city and its municipal employees unions.

"If one life is lost, the union and its membership must live forever with that death upon their hearts," Mayor Wyeth Chandler said after members of the International Association of Fire Fighters Local 1784 left their posts.

Union vice president Sam Posey said the union had established 11 emergency units — vehicles equipped with radios but no life-saving equipment — to help rescue persons who might be trapped in burning buildings.

"Anywhere there's a fire where people's lives are involved, we will respond," Posey said. "But we aren't lifting a finger to help fight any fires otherwise."

The mayor fired union president Kuhron Huddleston and members of the local's executive board, and threatened similar action against other striking firefighters — virtually all of the force below the rank of captain — are union members. City officials said about 175 firefighters, mostly supervisory personnel, were not covered by the union contract.

Contract talks broke off Friday when city negotiators refused a union demand for shift differential bonus pay. Base pay for a fireman is $1,108 a month.

Screwworm woes plague county

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Screwworm larvae were positively identified this week in a sample taken from the O.R. Carpenter herd located 18 miles northwest of Colorado City, making the fifth case of screwworms reported in the county this year.

Mitchell county has the dubious honor of leading the state in number of confirmed screwworm cases.

Mrs. Mary Evelyn (Hanson) van Seenburgh, 40 of Ackerly, was arrested by police officers here Saturday afternoon on a possible charge of forged prescription. Her bond was set at $2,000 by Judge Bill Tune.

The woman was charged in connection with telephoning Mort Denton Pharmacy and using the name of a woman doctor in Lamesa to obtain a prescription for valium. She began to renew it every few days and the pharmacist checked and learned that the doctor had not called in the prescription, according to the police report.

A rash of accidents Friday afternoon included one at 1:10 p.m., on the parking lot of the Sonic involving vehicles driven by Ruth Allen of Sterling City Route and Loretta Madigan at Sterling City Route.

Another accident occurred at 4:20 p.m. just as the shower began. The address was 18th and Lancaster and it involved three vehicles driven by Terry Freeland,

Twenty persons injured

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — An aerial ride with about 40 persons aboard spiraled out of control when its hydraulic lift mechanism malfunctioned Friday. Twenty persons were slightly injured.

Most of the persons treated at North Kansas City Memorial Hospital were sprayed with hydraulic fluid that apparently burst from a pipe on the 100-foot central column supporting the ride.

Buyers would pay

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Liquor buyers would start paying to rehabilitate alcoholics under legislation which has cleared the Michigan House.

The bill would increase the tax on liquor by slightly less than 1 percent, generating an estimated $2.5 million a year to finance alcohol and drug rehabilitation programs. The House approved the measure by a 74-18 vote Friday and sent it to the Senate.

Airline pilots still strike

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Some 1,500 pilots head into the third month of a strike against Northwest Airlines with no further talks scheduled between the union and airline management.

Federal mediator Joe Smith said Northwest rejected the pilots' offer for a settlement when negotiators for Northwest and the Air Line Pilots Association met Friday. "Each party is going to have to think about its position and somebody will have to indicate willingness to make a move before we meet again," he said.

Dispatcher hit twice

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — For the second time in eight days, taxicab dispatcher Robert Jackson, 25, has been shot and robbed. He walked to a hospital for treatment last Friday and drove in early Saturday after the second robbery.

Each time, he told police, a gunman came into the Yellow Cab office during the early morning hours, demanded his wallet, and shot him in the leg with a small-caliber handgun before fleeing. Jackson said he lost a few dollars — his own money — each time.

Police charge 18-year-old

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Nassau County police arrested Albert Pinnetti, 18, of Port Washington early Saturday and charged him with the knife murder 2½ weeks ago of a 13-year-old girl.

The body of Sompog Nu Kooomwong, also of Port Washington, was found June 13 in a sandpit that was a favorite shortcut for students from the junior high school which she attended.

200 guests are present for party

By MARJ CARPENTER
Fourth of July weekend picnics are a way of life for Americans and the Big Spring area weekend was kicked off with a big one held Friday night.

Mrs. Dorothy Garrett, assisted by her two daughters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Turner and Mr. and Mrs. Stan Partee, were hosts for the event. It was the first time in many years that a big barbecue was held on the Garrett Ranch, the former Dora Roberts Ranch Home.

Over 200 persons gathered from 8 p.m.-1 a.m. for what the invitations called "visiting and vittles."

Barbecue was served from tables on the porch east of the spacious old ranch home. The tables were laid in red checked cloths and centered with chrysanthemums. Barbecued beef and sausage, beans, salad and all of the trimmings were served.

People ate under the 40-foot trees surrounding the yard. The old trees, planted about 1930, have grown to great heights and made a circle of shade in the area.

A few of the guests reached back in their memories and recalled the housewarming held at the ranch around 1930 when "large wind chargers provided the only electricity on a rural home in this part of the state."

There were around 200 guests, with some coming from Lubbock, Austin, Dallas, Houston, and as far away as North Carolina. Part of the group, who were to attend the 1968 class reunion Saturday night at the Big Spring Country Club, also attended the event.

Don Tolle and Dr. Gale Kilgore provided country western music from a bricked-in area near an outdoor fireplace. Melodies such as "Cotton-Eyed Joe," "Please Release Me" and "Meaner Than a Junk Yard Dog" provided a variety of songs as three generations of Howard County residents danced into the night.

The historic Ranch House was lighted, decorated with potted white chrysanthemums at vantage points throughout the home and held an aura of Howard County history as it overlooked the crowd.

A shower around 6 p.m. gave the yard a special glow under the outdoor lights.

It was Fourth of July weekend and the "picnic" at the Garrett Ranch held all the elements of the old-fashioned picnics — food, visiting and a country hoedown.

'The times, they are a changing'

"We've had it. We're mad as hell." — Howard Jarvis, leader of the tax revolt.
"I fear that we have come full circle." — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall.

Winds of change are blowing in America. The sands are shifting at both edges of the country, and in between, among the voters of Florida, the scholars of California, the legislators of Illinois, the wise men in Washington.

Some signs of these times:
—The taxpayers' revolt, surfacing in California with an overwhelming vote of "Enough!" to property taxes; now breaking out in more than half the states, and serious talk in Washington of big federal income tax cuts.
—The proposed Equal Rights Amendment, rolling along for a while, now struggling to win approval in those last few, required, legislatures.
—The first over government-paid abortion, with opponents seeking ever-tightening restrictions.
—Opposition to homosexual rights laws, articulated by Anita Bryant in Miami, spreading to Minnesota and Kansas and Oregon, repealed gay rights ordinances strewn in its wake.
—The Supreme Court decision in the Bakke reverse discrimination case, that a white man was a victim of discrimination, that affirmative action is okay, but rigid quotas are not. Learning what this means could take years.

More signs: Widespread, openly declared suspicion of big government, big business and big labor; the growth of the consumer movement; cries for law and order and return of the death penalty, back to basics in education.

Subtler, telling signs: The hypnotic appeal of messageless disco music, a nostalgia for the simpler existence of the 1950s, best-seller popularity of selfhelp books like, "Looking Out for Number One."

It is clear the pendulum of American sentiment is swinging. The direction in which it swings is less clear.

Outward to inward? Perhaps. Americans reached out to respond to President Kennedy's famous challenge: "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country." That was 18 years ago, and today it rings hollow for the millions caught in the vise of inflation and unemployment.

Making ends meet for one family leaves little time to worry about the poor and downtrodden when inflation is measured in double digits and jobs are hard to find.

Just last week, 24 years after the country's landmark desegregation case, the U.S. Supreme Court decided that a man, a white man, Allan Bakke, was a victim of race discrimination when he was denied admission to a medical school which had reserved for minority applicants 16 of its 100 places.

Dissenting, Justice Thurgood Marshall, who is black, said the decision may have set blacks back to Civil War days.

"I fear that we have come full circle," Marshall said.

One day later, the Supreme Court ruled in another case, unanimously widening the defenses an employer may use when charged with discrimination.

Prof. Ralph Smith of the University of Pennsylvania and chairman of the legal education task force of the National Conference of Black Lawyers, said:
"Rising from the ashes of the 1960s, affirmative action was the embodiment of an understanding that this society could survive only so long as the poor and powerless in this bounteous and powerful land could hope for a better day."

Smith said the court was moving toward retrenchment rather than progress and warned of "the malignant retreat from the concessions extracted at such great cost in the 1960s."

"There is a swing of the pendulum in which values are established, reacted against and corrected," said Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, interreligious affairs director of the American Jewish Committee.

He sees in the 70s a reaction to the social change of the 1960s. "There were very powerful demands for social justice and the whole civil rights revolution which turned society on its head," he said.

"Now there is a swing away from activism, sacrifice and larger causes to a much greater preoccupation with one's own personal welfare."

Americans find the generous cloak of the 1960s uncomfortable in the 1970s. Now it must fit sterner economic realities. The American Dream is being scaled down to size — economy size.

This spirit of the 70s feeds the taxpayers' revolt, a grassroots middle class rebellion by both Democrats and Republicans who feel the government takes too much and does too little.

About 4.2 million angry Californians approved Proposition 13, a 57 percent meat cleaver property tax cut. The price: fired employees, closed parks, reduced services. They talk of selling the Palo Alto city hall.

Howard Jarvis, author of Proposition 13, says: "We're mad as hell. We're not going to permit the people to go broke while the government gets rich. It's them or us and we're for us."

The tax revolt has spread, even to Massachusetts, where Americans discovered tax revolting 200 years ago with the Boston Tea Party.

Ohio taxpayers rejected 86 of 139 school tax levies, including emergency aid for Cleveland and Columbus schools. For the first time in a quarter-century, Dallas taxpayers rejected bond issues — for a fine arts complex, a lake and a pedestrian passage.

A recent Associated Press poll found that 60 percent of the public cites government waste as a reason for a tax cut. About half think taxes at all levels can be cut one-third without reducing services. If services must be cut, they prefer to reduce federal aid to cities, national defense and federal aid to the poor.

Beyond the pocketbook, other emotional issues have roused traditionalists. There is ferocious opposition against the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, against abortion and against ordinances granting equal rights to homosexuals.

Many give heroine status to Anita Bryant, who invokes God, country, family and children in her campaign against gay rights ordinances, and to ERA foe Phyllis Schlafly, who says "women are better on the telephone and men are better climbing telephone poles."

The ERA is in trouble. Time is running out for ratification and it has been approved by 35 of the required 38 states. Four of the 35 have tried to rescind their approval. Illinois has turned it down again and again, but supporters will try again.

Anti-abortion groups are pressing for a Constitutional amendment to overturn the legal right to abortion granted by the Supreme Court. They have entered politics, trying to elect friends and defeat foes.

After bitter debates, gay rights ordinances were repealed in Dade County, Fla., Wichita, Kan., Minneapolis and Eugene, Ore.

Labor unions are having trouble organizing workers and union membership is steadily declining. A recent Patrick Caddell poll shows that Americans want to curb union power, not expand it.

After six vain attempts to break a filibuster, the labor law revision bill is all but dead in the Senate. It would have permitted union organizers onto company premises, but business said it would be inflationary and cause a surge of unionism. Last year, Congress rejected the common-site picketing legislation labor wanted badly.

The cry for law and order has returned the death penalty to some states, and has increased concern for the victims of crime as well as society's victims who commit crime.

The 1960s clamor for socially relevant education has quieted, replaced by demands for back-to-basics teaching from grade school to college. As reading and math skills decline, many high schools are making it tougher to graduate.

The state of Florida now requires high school students to pass a basic competency test in order to graduate. Harvard University has introduced a new core curriculum required of all undergraduates.

Old labels don't fit the new mood.

Some describe it as a new conservatism, a liberal-conservative synthesis, a new populism, an age of "me," not "we."

Harvard sociologist David Riesman, author of "The Lonely Crowd," says: "Today there is a further movement toward populism but it should not be interpreted as a swing to the right."

"It is not led by big business, the intelligentsia or the media as in the traditional swing to the right. Today, they are the villains."

"It is an agrarian populist movement. We are back in the days of William Jennings Bryan and Andrew Jackson where the little man opposes the Bank of America as well as the teeming poor of the cities. He justifies his lack of compassion by complaining about his own miseries."

Reich, the author, says now, eight years after his bestseller about the revolution of the new generation: "America is still greening. The big picture is change, not backward or to the right but forward."

Of today's anti-movements, Reich says: "It is only when reform begins to make substantial progress that the other side begins to feel threatened enough to come out shouting."

Can of gasoline cause of explosion

NEW YORK (AP) — Chief of Detectives James Sullivan said Saturday a can of gasoline in the cab of an ice cream vending truck caught fire and caused a chain reaction explosion that injured more than 100 persons at a crowded pedestrian mall in New York's financial district.

Sullivan said the police bomb squad working through the night eliminated the possibility a bomb might have caused the blast.

There was no immediate explanation of how the can of gasoline sitting to the right of the driver caught fire and sparked the explosion shortly before 2 p.m. Friday.

The driver of the truck had been quoted by police sources earlier as saying he had been having mechanical problems with the truck all day. Other persons interviewed by police corroborated the driver's claim, the sources said.

The driver, Lee Butler, 23, leaped from the truck and was treated at the hospital for minor injuries.

Beekman-Downtown Hospital reported treating 114 persons. Six of the critically injured were there; eight were transferred to other hospitals. Most of the remainder of the 131 persons injured had cuts and bruises.

Several persons were blown through the windows of a Chock Full O' Nuts restaurant when the truck turned to rubble at the intersection of Nassau and Fulton streets shortly before 2 p.m.

Nassau Street is closed to traffic and serves as a shopping mall during the day, and its shoppers were showered with a hail of flames. Some of their clothes were torn and shredded," said Fire Battalion Chief Frank D'Amico.

Time James Madison feared is here

This country is very nearly at the state which then president James Madison warned about nearly two centuries ago, if indeed we're not already there.

It was Madison who wrote: "IT WOULD BE of little avail to the people that laws are made by men of their own choice if the laws be so voluminous that they cannot be read, or so incoherent that they cannot be understood; if they are repealed or revised before they are promulgated, or undergo such incessant changes that no man, who knows what the law is today, can guess what it will be like tomorrow."

Since that time when we took our place among the nations of the world, and especially in the past three decades, Americans have managed to accomplish the very obfuscation against which Founding Father Madison warned.

We have arrived at a condition where the average layman must consult an expert in the bureaucratic language in order to fathom the language in government documents.

The experts, in turn, sometimes have to go to court for interpretations of the interpretation. It all adds up to a process of regulatory drag that is estimated to sting the economy upwards to $65 billion a year, not to mention the hidden costs of frustrations, delays, lost opportunities and an ever-deepening distrust of the very government that is supposed to be working on our behalf.

Recently, President Carter followed the example of his predecessors and ordered that government regulations be written in plain English, signed by the author.

AS POINTED out by James Kilpatrick, the noted writer, the Carter directive was sprinkled with gobbledegook and imperfect English. So much for reform.

Even should the chief executive by some miracle achieve clarity and simplicity through Executive Department regulations, congressional gobbledegook will continue.

Two suggestions have been made for getting around the laborious legalistic interpretation of the interpretation problem. One is to push the informal plain English through court tests and establish that words mean what they say. The other is to accompany legalistic documents with a plain English translation.

Emerging from the mists of baffling terminology could be the establishment of a James Madison School of Government Language, more popularly identified as a Return to Sanity in Government Correspondence. Or would that be too much to ask?

Battle of Hood

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Some people were a little upset when the U.S. Army put on a large-scale battle for President Carter at Fort Hood, Texas, last week. When it was first announced that the President was going to visit the base, the Army figured it would shoot up $2 million worth of ammunition to impress its Commander-in-Chief.

It seemed just a drop in the bucket, but when the cost of the Battle of Fort Hood became public knowledge, there was an uproar.

The point is that people who criticize expenditures of this kind do not know how Washington works.

THE REAL BATTLE for military supremacy is not between the Soviets and the United States, but between the U.S. Army, the U.S. Navy and the U.S. Air Force. Each service is fighting for the same defense dollar and constantly trying to impress the White House that they, and they alone, can do the job of providing for the nation's security.

President Carter has seen the Navy in action, and he has witnessed the military miracles of the Air Force. But until his announced visit to Fort Hood, the U.S. Army had never had a chance to show what they could do.

Therefore, the Army brass decided to go all-out to give Mr. Carter something he would tell the folks back in Plains, Ga., about for years to come.

The first thought was to put on a parade for Mr. Carter and have all the troops at Fort Hood march by the President's grandstand in splendid review.

But then a general in plans and operations suggested:

"WHY DON'T WE shoot off every gun we have? Carter has seen lots of parades but he's never seen the Army fire its weapons in anger."

"That will cost at least $2 million," another general said. "Where are we going to get that kind of money?"

"We'll take it out of petty cash," a third general said. "Hell, when are we going to get the Prez to visit one of our bases again? If he sees those guns and tanks and flame throwers in action, he'll finally know who can give him the biggest bang for the buck."

"Then it's agreed. We'll put on the greatest mock battle in U.S. history. But it must be a military secret. I have to be a surprise attack or the swabbies and flyboys will do us in. We'll call it 'Operation Lance.' The President will like that."

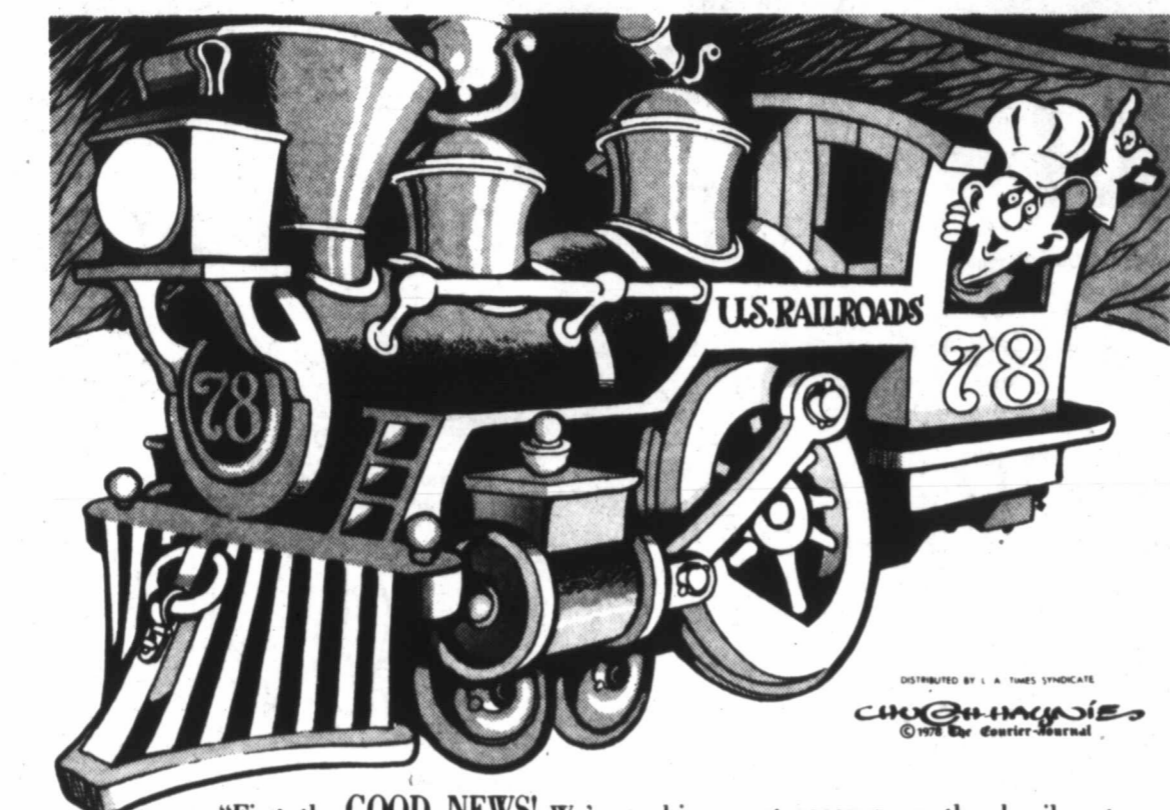

Unbeknownst to the Army planners, an Air Force U-2 plane was circling the Pentagon and picking up every word the generals were saying.

A U.S. Naval Intelligence officer confirmed what the U-2 pilot had reported by bugging a bar girl's hotel room just off the Fort Hood base.

REALIZING WHAT THE Army was up to, high Navy and Air Force officers, working together for the first time, decided to launch a preventive strike, so that their 1980 budget targets could not be knocked out by "Operation Lance."

They leaked the cost of the firepower display to the press, knowing that, with taxpayers' revolt going on in this country, the Army would have to cancel its show.

The strategy almost succeeded. What saved the Battle of Fort Hood from being lost was that, as soon as the story broke, the Army announced it was cutting back the exercise. Instead of shooting off $2 million in shells it would only fire a lousy $950,000 worth — a sum so trifling, militarily, that even the people who voted for Proposition 13 wouldn't quibble about that.

"First the GOOD NEWS! We're making great progress on the derailment problem. The bad news is: This picture is upside down."

She flip-flops with thyroid medicine

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking pills for thyroid for the past five years. It is a lifetime thing. I have put on as much as 45 pounds and no matter how little I eat I cannot lose any of it. I started with a pill a day, then it was raised to three a day. I dropped back to one a day on my own. The choking feeling I have in my throat remains with or without the thyroid pills. What would happen if I just quit taking the pills altogether? — Ms. R.E.J.

I haven't the foggiest notion what would happen. There are confusing elements in your letter, such as your self-adjusted thyroid medicine doses. Then there is your 45-pound weight gain. You may have gained because of overeating and under-exercising. The need or lack of need for thyroid medicine should not account for this amount of weight gain.

But nothing I say would help you at this point, because you obviously are confused and are flip-flopping around in medical ignorance. Trained endocrinologists (gland specialists) have a hard enough time, tailoring thyroid medicine dosages to the individual patient's needs. How can you expect your hit-and-miss program to work?

It goes without saying that you need a reevaluation of your thyroid state, including a barium swallow to determine why you have the choking sensation. If the gland has enlarged, that might be a cause, but so might your sudden gain of weight. Level with the doctor about your practice of adjusting your own dosages. The dosage is for him to decide.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15 years old (female). I weigh 90 and 95 pounds and am 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and feel I can carry more weight. I am very self-conscious of my thin frame. My doctor's only advice is not to worry, and just eat more. I was a preemie twin, weighing only 3 pounds, 4 ounces, at birth. My sister was stillborn. I have heard that preemies tend to put on weight quickly and have an overweight problem.

My parents tell me I am better off this way and that I will put on weight in the years ahead. I don't want to wait. Isn't there something I can do? I've tried eating rich foods, but I have to be careful not to flare up my acne. Can you help me put on some pounds? — T.B.S.

I doubt that your being a preemie has anything to do with your present slenderness, but you are pretty thin for your height if one believes the weight-height charts (which are not infallible). Most preemies take their time catching up with their full-term brothers and sisters in weight. You probably did within a few years of birth. After that, heredity takes over and the preemie grows up to be what his or her genes dictate. Famous examples of history's preemies include Napoleon, Isaac Newton, and Charles Darwin, so you are in pretty fair company.

You don't have to eat rich foods to gain weight, just more of all types of food. I agree that nature, time, and a wholesome diet will accomplish whatever heredity had in mind for you. Incidentally, you may have some oversimplified notions about acne and what needs to be done about that. See my booklet, "Controlling Acne, Pimples, and Blackheads." For a copy, send a quarter and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald. Diet does not seem to be the factor once thought.

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

Recently a brush fire broke out across from Hilltop Road. My home, my grandmother's and several of our neighbors', were in the path of this fire. Two men and a woman came to our aid from the Jonesboro Fire Department. These volunteers fought the blaze for several hours until their firetruck broke down. The fire began to spread rapidly.

At this time, no response came answering our calls to local area fire department. To our surprise, a local trucking company assumed the fight. H.W. Smith Transport Co., sprayed a load of water on the fire and on our street to keep the fire from coming across.

Our homes, families and livestock were saved by the bravery and the quick response of these people. When these people went so much out of their way to help as they did; it reminded us all that there are still people who care what happens to others.

We would like to thank everyone who was connected to the community response, including the Big Spring Fire Department, Sand Springs Fire Department, Coahoma Fire Department, Marj Carpenter and Carla Walker.

After such an awesome experience we hope that these "brush fires" behind irresponsible businesses can

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a Christian, but I find life very dull and boring. Sometimes I think it would be more exciting to live the way my non-Christian friends do. Can you help me? — L.H.

DEAR L.H.: Boredom is one of the most common problems today. Oftentimes it occurs because people have little meaning or purpose in their lives. I suppose all people experience some boredom from time to time, but I also believe boredom for the Christian is a sign that something is wrong.

Let me stress two things. First, don't think for a moment that it will be more exciting for you to give up your faith and live like your non-Christian friends. In the short term they may appear to have fun, but in the long run they will become bored and jaded. You might read the book of Ecclesiastes in the Old Testament, which gives the testimony of a man who tried to find satisfaction by every kind of pleasure. His conclusion — which has been proven over and over again in countless lives — was that "all is vanity and vexation of spirit" (Ecclesiastes 1:14).

The other thing is that God has a plan for your life, and the most exciting thing you can do is seek it out and follow it. Think of it — the God of the Universe loves you and has a plan specifically for you! God's plan is not boring — anything but that! I urge you to study God's Word and pray for the Holy Spirit's direction in your life. Look at the life of Paul, for example. Things were not always easy for him, and yet never once was he bored — not even when he was in prison for his faith. He was always seeking ways to serve Christ.

Have you ever really asked God to show you how you can be used by Him in the lives of others? All around you are people who do not know Christ in a personal way. God wants to use you in their lives, and that can be the most exciting adventure of your life as you seek to follow Him each day.

I think very much the same way about Cassius Clay, he is a traitor to this nation and cares nothing for it. I have thought that Clay was a Communist for several years, and his latest trip (to Moscow) pretty well bears out that assumption.

I think that Clay should be denied re-entry into the United States. He likes the Communies so much why don't we just let him stay there. With friends like him we don't need any enemies.

I have read several of Mr. Knightstep's articles and think that the Herald should print more of them. I appreciate a person who is not afraid to speak out for a better and stronger United States. That is the way we become informed, and more information is what we desperately need. Bring on more of Mr. Knightstep's articles.

Around the rim

Walt Finley

It used to be that honesty was the best policy.

Now the best policy is a million dollars.

Some 200,000 enlisted personnel in the Army use marijuana and about 49,000 use hard drugs, such as heroin and LSD, according to the survey. That's what the recruiters keep telling us:

You can go as high as you want in the Army!

I'm probably bigoted but I can't get used to people over the age of 18 saying:

"SUPER!"

Health authorities say it soon will be necessary to institute a national training program for restaurant managers and employees to insure cleanliness in eating places. Things are pretty bad when we have to have a training program to teach people to wash.

It ain't those parts of the Bible that I can't understand that bother me. It's the parts that I do understand.

That's Mark Twain as quoted by the great "actor" Al Scott.

The Food and Drug Administration has recalled two products — some breakfast bars that "may contain varying lengths of wire" and a beauty shop product that could cause permanent hair loss.

The FDA notes the products are not likely to cause "adverse health effects."

"Of course not," remarked Herald ad-visor Don Ferguson, a frequent dance judge at Bogart's. "Everybody wants to be bald headed and full of wires."

That travelin' man, Kenneth Hart, rolls out a quick one:

HE: I put an ad in the paper for our lost dog.

SHE: What good will that do? He can't read.

Joan Sanders, wife of ex-Alpine cowboy Jay, says Spring begins when children slam the door they left open all winter. The Sanders are living it up in Brady this weekend.

Backshop boss Bob Rogers, now known in newspaper circles as "gramps," since the birth June 21 of Shannon Dianne Crow, says we deserve Jimmy Carter.

"That's what we get for electing a do-gooder to a job that requires a tough old no-holds-barred fighter."

"What we need is a good hockey coach."

Intrepid reporter John Edwards, El Paso Herald-Post, sent me this menu special he saw in a Juarez restaurant; Monday, beef hearts; Tuesday, liver and onions; Wednesday, beef hearts.

WASHINGTON — Desperate heroin addicts, who sought help at drug treatment centers have charged they were coerced into serving as guinea pigs to test a new heroin substitute.

The addicts, according to sworn affidavits in our possession, allegedly were pressured into signing consent forms without a full understanding of the drug's risks. Then they were harassed, they claim, if they tried to back out.

THE NEW DRUG, a heroin substitute called L-Alpha-Acetylmethadol but popularly known as LAAM, is being tested at 50 clinics around the country. The testing is sponsored by the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA), a federal agency that we have exposed as being plagued with conflicts and cronyism.

LAAM may be more effective than methadone in helping addicts kick the heroin habit. But some officials at drug clinics may be trying a little too hard to push LAAM on their reluctant patients.

We have examined the situation at two clinics in Los Angeles — the West Los Angeles Drug Treatment Center and the Sepulveda V.A. (Veterans Administration) Methadone Clinic — whose patients were urged to participate in the LAAM experiments.

Several patients have sworn they were subjected to harassment and coercion. Some said they reluctantly signed up for the program only after they were given a choice of LAAM or no treatment at all. Subjects who have asked to stop the experiments said they encountered resistance.

One patient who tried to back out of the program was told he would have to wait until certain laboratory work was completed. He swore in an affidavit: "I was questioned, harassed and felt a complete shift of attitude towards me from the staff and doctor. I felt threatened." Only after he started to contact a lawyer was the addict allowed to stop taking LAAM.

ANOTHER PATIENT tried to withdraw from the experiments after becoming ill. He alleged: "I was duped, lied to and used for their experimental study in a way that was unethical and degrading."

Another addict on probation feared he would be jailed if he didn't get into

Former women's editor of the Herald, Candy Smith Smothers, who is contemplating a divorce, Thursday noticed this sign on the wall of a cafe in London:

A Single Girl's Evening Prayer
Now I lay me down to sleep,
I wish I had a man for keeps,
Should there be a man beneath my bed,
I hope he's heard each word I said.

The Carter administration has announced it has initiated new procedures to regulate the flow of cash into and out of the treasury.

Does that mean they're giving up on their old policy of:

Easy come, easy go!

One of my favorite detectives, Telly Savalas, says:

"I keep waiting for the perfect woman to come along. Meanwhile, I'm having a lot of fun with the imperfect ones."

The Price of Beef Is Going Up —Headline

Beefing about it is free.

Former Tulsa Mayor George E. Norvell writes a Tulsa attorney accompanied his client to court to get a divorce.

The judge in the case sternly admonished the client to be sure to wait six months, as provided by law, before remarriage.

The attorney thought the warning was somewhat superfluous since his client is 85 years old, George disclosed.

Robert W. Tufts, Oberlin, Ohio, complained because when the stamps he bought didn't stick to the envelopes, the postmaster suggested he use Scotch tape.

Tufts thinks the post office should follow the lead of auto manufacturers and recall defective stamps in exchange for new.

Somehow, I don't think the post office is going to go for a sticky proposal like that. They don't want to do something that might gum up the works. Ain't that right, third baseman Hardisty?

This is from Boyce Hale, who has refereed basketball for 38 years and played softball 44 years and who celebrated his 58th birthday Saturday:

Sniffly woman on the phone: "Doctor, I know you don't make house calls but could you meet me halfway, say on Third and Main?"

Guinea pigs

Jack Anderson,

a methadone program. Yet he swore he was given the choice of experimental LAAM or no treatment. Unhappily, he signed the consent form.

Recalled another addict: "(The doctor) gave me a consent form and told me to sign at the bottom. I said I wanted to read it... He told me it was a standard form and that I didn't need to read it... I felt him hurrying me through it, so I only scanned it."

When the patient became ill and tried to drop out of the program, "the doctor tried various tactics to convince me to stay on the program." Similar allegations are repeated in several other affidavits.

But there's another twist to the LAAM story that shouldn't surprise anyone familiar with our past exposes of NIDA. The awarding of the LAAM contract apparently was another insider deal typical of so many NIDA contracts.

John Whysner helped to develop the LAAM program as a consultant to the drug abuse agency. Then he formed his own consulting firm to bid for the contract. This gave him an inside track, which only one other firm bothered to contest. Its proposal was thrown out, and Whysner Associates was awarded the $1.5 million plum.

Already, the contract has doubled to $3.2 million. Whysner, meanwhile, has also been granted the exclusive patent rights to LAAM for eight years, even though it was developed at the taxpayer's expense.

FOOTNOTE: A NIDA spokesman said he was unaware of the allegations of coercion. Drug clinics, he stressed, have no financial incentive to recruit addicts for the LAAM tests. A spokesman for the V.A. Clinic told us there had been no coercion or harassment. Our calls to the Los Angeles Drug Treatment Center were not returned. Whysner declined to comment. The Los Angeles-based Institute for the Study of Medical Ethics, meanwhile, is preparing to file a formal complaint with NIDA about the coercion charges.

CUBAN SANCTIONS: The dialogue between Washington and Havana has been heating up, but it hasn't affected the economic detente.

Gets happy welcome from Golda Meir Mondale sampling Israeli opinions

JERUSALEM (AP) — An evening reception hosted by U.S. Ambassador Samuel W. Lewis and the Israel-America Friendship Society was to honor this year's 30th anniversary of Israeli statehood.

During his four-day visit, which began Friday, Mondale is emphasizing the strong American commitment to Israel, but there was controversy over his unofficial side trip Friday to the Old City of Jerusalem and the Wailing Wall, Judaism's most sacred shrine.

Before Mondale arrived there had been some doubt he would visit the Old City, which was captured from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war.

The United States does not recognize Israeli control of the area. Mondale made the visit "unofficial," because to do otherwise might imply American recognition of Israel's claim.

When he reached the wall demonstrators shouted, "Mondale go home" and "Don't sell us like you sold Vietnam." Others applauded him.

Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, a relative "hawk" in the Israeli Cabinet, told reporters in the northern Israeli coastal city of Haifa, "There is a witch hunt around (Prime Minister Menachem) Begin in Israel and the American media. This raises the thought that there is an American plan to overthrow the prime minister. But I don't think it will work."

The Carter administration has been critical of Begin's hard-line stance in the peace talks, stalled since January, but Washington denies trying to oust him.

The United States wants Begin to make some new concessions on the return of captured Arab lands, which the Israeli Cabinet said two weeks ago it will not give back for at least five years. Weizman was joined by a minority of other Cabinet ministers in opposing that stand.

An American source said Mondale would sound out Israeli leaders on the strength of Begin's hold over his divided Cabinet.

On Sunday, Mondale will meet with Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan. It will be the first high-level American-Israeli meeting since the Cabinet decision on the occupied lands.

Mondale, Mondale goes to Alexandria, Egypt, for a three-hour meeting with President Anwar Sadat.

HAPPY TIME — Vice President Walter F. Mondale and former Israeli Premier Golda Meir laugh after embracing and kissing following a one-hour meeting at Mrs. Meir's Tel Aviv home Saturday. Both Mondale and Israel's elder stateswoman refused to discuss the meeting with reporters. Also attending were Mondale's wife, Joan and the couple's 18-year-old daughter, Eleanor.

U. S., S. Africa may be making arms deal

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—In a secretive deal the United States may be preparing to swap nuclear fuel for South African uranium guarantees not to produce atomic weapons.

A week-long visit by America's top nuclear negotiator, Gerard Smith, has been kept so quiet that the U.S. Embassy only grudgingly admitted he was here.

The talks are believed to be the result of negotiations that began in August 1977 after the Soviet Union raised an international alarm by claiming South Africa was about to test an atomic bomb in its western Kalahari Desert. South Africa denied the claims.

South Africa's signature on the international nuclear nonproliferation treaty would be a major

Several Big Spring and area officers graduated Friday from the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy's 14th session of basic law enforcement training.

Those who graduated were Danny O. Wilson, William W. Price, Neil R. Ford, all of the Big Spring Police Department, and William F. Decker Jr., Glasscock County Sheriff's Department. The school was funded by a criminal justice division grant through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

SCS is seeking water comments

TEMPLE — A public meeting will be held in Austin July 10 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service to solicit public comments on the Rural Clean Water Program, according to George C. Marks, state conservationist for SCS in Texas.

The Rural Clean Water Program, authorized by the Clean Water Act of 1977, provides assistance to farmers and ranchers in establishing soil and water management practices to control pollution.

Written or oral statements on the program's proposed regulations and the draft environmental impact statement may be presented between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. in Conference Room 2.104, Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs (LBSA Library Complex), 2313 Red River, Austin, Texas.

For further information about the meeting, write Soil Conservation Service, Box 2890, Room 5119-3, Washington, D.C. 20013, telephone number (202) 447-2771.

Loan rate is upped 10 cents

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland has raised the 1978 wheat loan rate by 10 cents to $2.35 per bushel.

According to Mr. Bergland, the increase will not only provide farmers additional interim financing but will also automatically raise the "release" level for wheat in the farmer-held grain reserve from $3.15 to $3.29 per bushel. The increase in the release level assures farmers of eventually receiving a higher price for their reserve wheat.

The "release" level for reserve wheat is 14 percent of the current wheat loan rate. Thus the 10-cent loan increase translates to a 14-cent release level increase.

"With domestic prices well above the loan level and our wheat exports in better shape, we feel we can now provide farmers additional price support without disrupting any markets," said Mr. Bergland. "The increase also assures that reserve wheat will not be sold back to the market in the near future," he said.

Wheat prices have strengthened in recent months. For the month of May, the department reported that farmers received an average of $2.80 per bushel for their wheat, up from $2.19 a year earlier.

The 1978 wheat crop year began June 1. Farmers who have already taken out loans at the old rate may apply for the increase at their county agricultural stabilization and conservation service offices.

As of June 23, farmers had placed over 351 million bushels of wheat in the reserve.

achievement in President Carter's campaign to stem the spread of nuclear arms.

But reviving the dormant U.S.-South African nuclear cooperation program, even to supply enriched uranium to South Africa for peaceful uses, would anger international opponents of South Africa's policies of racial segregation.

The South Africans, too, are saying little about the visit.

A.J.A. Roux, president of the country's Atomic Energy Board, said the talks were too important and sensitive for comment. But he described them as "very constructive."

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha said the visit was part of continuing negotiations on "matters of mutual international concern" in the field of nuclear energy.

South Africa badly needs a stable supply of enriched uranium for its billion-dollar nuclear power plant being built by a French consortium at Koeberg, outside Cape Town. The plant, to begin operations in 1983, needs an estimated 850 tons of nuclear fuel to start and another 240 tons a year to run.

The United States reportedly signed a contract to supply the start-up fuel, but the shipment was frozen, apparently over demands for safeguards that it would not be used for weapons.

Carter would like to see South Africa sign the non-proliferation treaty, which bars the spread of atomic arms, and Prime Minister John Vorster indicated last year he may agree to the pact.

South Africa insists its nuclear plans are peaceful, but many believe the country has the expertise to build a bomb and say a pilot uranium-enrichment plant at Valindaba, near Pretoria, could be geared up, but at great expense, to enrich uranium to weapons strength.

South Africa is the West's No. 3 producer of raw uranium, behind the United States and Canada, and has a quarter of the West's known reserves.

If denied outside supplies, South Africa has threatened to build its own enrichment plant and to export enriched uranium — the basic fuel of nuclear plants.

Signing the non-proliferation treaty could give South Africa a needed public relations boost before world opinion, and could be a reasonable price to pay for nuclear fuel. Whether President Carter could afford the political cost is another question.

Criminal would reconsider if knew punishment. Krueger says

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — If every criminal knew he would face punishment, regardless of how lenient a jury or judge might be, he probably would reconsider, U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger says.

Speaking before the Texas Bar Association in one of the concluding sessions of its convention, Krueger said Friday that studies show people are less likely to commit crimes as the proportion of crimes resulting in imprisonment increases.

He called for mandatory minimum sentences for persons convicted of serious crimes and urged the state lawyers and judges to do their part in bringing about such sentences.

Earlier, Robert Strauss told the lawyers that every time a tariff has been proposed on imports, President Carter has asked what the effect on inflation would be.

Strauss, who is Carter's trade ambassador and his chief inflation adviser, said the president has avoided some courses that would have been politically wise for him. Any time relief has been granted in the way of protectionism, "it was tailored for the least possible inflationary impact without being unfair to American industry."

Krueger, a New Braunfels Democrat challenging Republican incumbent

John Tower for the U.S. Senate, told newsmen in a prelude to his address that it is unfortunate that "in many instances, crime pays."

"Lighter sentences could be imposed upon first offenders," he said. "But the common practice of allowing mature adults to 'take a walk' ... is often not only unfair to the defendant ... but is ludicrously unfair to the victims of crime."

He praised adoption of a recently-passed Speedy Trial Act which sets time limits between indictment and trial. But he urged attorneys to continue to police their own profession to prohibit unnecessary delays built into the legal system.

"Hopefully we will see the day when persons are not arrested for their second offense while free on bond or awaiting trial for their first," he said.

Krueger urged the lawyers to monitor the use of plea bargaining so it does not extend "special privilege to the career criminal."

Crane's murder planned

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — The bludgeon murder of actor Bob Crane was not a crime of passion, but a "well-planned" killing, the Maricopa County medical examiner says.

"In my opinion, he was asleep; he didn't know what hit him," Dr. Heinz Karnitschnig said Friday.

Police are concentrating on the final hours of Crane's life in their investigation.

Among those interviewed Friday was Los Angeles businessman John Carpenter, a longtime friend. Police said he was with Crane much of Wednesday night and early Thursday morning. He is not a suspect, police said.

Police Lt. Ron Dean, who heads the murder investigation, said the killer "could have been someone he (Crane) knew since there were no signs of a struggle ... or forced entry." The actor's apartment door was unlocked, although acquaintances told police Crane was known to bolt it. Police said they have ruled out robbery as a motive.

Fingerprints were found, but none has been identified in connection with the slaying, Dean said.

Crane, 49, former star of the long-running television series, "Hogan's Heroes," was discovered Thursday murdered in his apartment, his skull fractured by two blows to the head and an electrical cord around his neck. The murder weapon, police said, was "of the shape and size of a tire iron" but no such instrument has been found. The cord did not contribute to his death, Karnitschnig added.

Dean said Carpenter, who returned to California Thursday — before the slaying was discovered — telephoned police Friday and provided valuable information on the actor's last movements.

Crane had been appearing in "Beginner's Luck" at the Windmill Dinner Theater in Scottsdale and was living in an apartment leased by the theater. He was scheduled to close Sunday and take the show to Dallas.

Carpenter said he last saw Crane about 3 a.m. Thursday at a nearby restaurant, and others said they witnessed the men together there.

LAST MOMENT — Mrs. Raleigh Rutledge holds a program autographed by Bob Crane, the actor who was found murdered earlier this week in Scottsdale, Ariz. Mrs. Rutledge and her husband saw Crane perform June 23 in Scottsdale, and remember him as more than an ordinary actor.

Local couple in audience

At least two people here received news of the death of actor Bob Crane with a shock of personal recognition.

Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Rutledge, Rt. 1, Box 145, saw Crane perform in Scottsdale, Ariz., June 23. He performed "Beginner's Luck", the same show he was to perform until Saturday at the Windmill Theatre.

"We were visiting my daughter, celebrating our 39th wedding anniversary," said Mrs. Rutledge. "We've been a fan of his for many years, especially 'Hogan's Heroes'."

She remembers particularly Crane's warmth with the audience after the show, unusual for a well-known actor.

"He came out to sign autographs, gave me a kiss, and wished us good luck," she recalls. "He was very clean-cut and appreciative of the audience, and he would explain acting techniques and tricks of the trade to us. It was a very good show."

For correctional institution

More acreage granted to bureau

The Big Spring Steering Committee Friday approved a request by the U.S. Bureau of Prisons for additional acreage in the Big Spring Industrial Park for the minimum security correctional institute which probably will open here sometime after Oct. 1.

Originally committed to provide the bureau with a 33-acre tract, the steering committee acceded to a request to supply an additional 14 to 17 acres for the institution.

Officials of the bureau returned here recently to inspect the building which formerly served as base headquarters at Webb AFB, the base theater, the base exchange and the gymnasium, along with other properties, all of which would be included in the package.

The bureau had also requested use of the building which formerly housed the Webb Federal Credit Union but the city's Industrial Committee has had several offers for that structure and withheld it from consideration.

The correctional institution will center around the 500-bed airman's barracks which were not completed until after it was announced that Webb would be closed.

A cyclone fence will encircle the entire compound.

Harry Spannaus, manager of the Industrial Park, said that none of the structures requested by the Bureau of Prisons was considered 'marketable,' meaning he had had no offers for them from potential lesors.

A motor home manufacturing firm based in Edwardsburg, Mich., called George Boy, has sent a two-man team here to look over the base as a possible site for an assembly plant. Big Spring is one of several sites in the Southwest considered by the firm.

The industry, which would complement the work at Berkley Homes Inc., here, manufacturers mobile homes up to 42 feet in length.

Upwards to 100 persons would be employed by the firm in its initial phase of operation here.

A company now based in West Texas which has already outgrown its present quarters has first option on the property initially eyed by the Michigan firm.

Spannaus told members of the steering committee that chances appear good that Big Spring would be able to retain the radar equipment which is used to coordinate the weather-making effort being made by the Colorado River Municipal Water District. Spannaus said, however, that a final decision probably wouldn't be made on the equipment until around the first of the year.

It was also announced that the Federal Aviation Administration had sent an inspector here to investigate an alleged flight violation by R.E. McClure following complaints initiated locally.

Mobile missile could have adverse effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development and deployment of the proposed mobile missile by the United States could have destabilizing effects on the arms race and might increase the chance of nuclear war, a Carter administration study says.

Nometheless, the study recommends continuing research and development on the missile, known as the MX, pending a final decision in the early 1980s on its deployment by the Air Force.

The assessments were contained in the administration's "arms control impact statements" for weapons systems it wants funded in the fiscal 1979 budget. The statements were released by the congressional committees which received them.

The MX — which stands for "missile experimental" — is the missile the Air Force wants to replace the Minuteman class which is now the mainstay of American land-based missile capability. It would incorporate at least two major improvements over Minuteman.

In the first place, it would be mobile. Minuteman missiles are housed in underground silos which become increasingly vulnerable to a first strike as the Soviet Union increases the accuracy of its missiles and the number of warheads each can carry.

The original MX scheme called for placing the missile launcher on tracks in underground trenches 12 miles to 14 miles long. Thus, attackers would never know exactly where the missile was, and presumably could not realistically expect to wipe it out in a surprise attack. But recent studies have indicated that the trenches, in addition to being expensive, would be vulnerable to attack.

Currently, the Air Force is leaning to a "shell game" form of deployment. In this scheme, the Air Force would have as many as 10 silos at random, and an attacker would be unable to destroy enough of them to make a first strike feasible.

But the MX would also be significantly more lethal than the Minuteman. It would carry as many as 11 warheads, compared to three for Minuteman; each warhead would be more powerful, and its guidance system would be so advanced that it could drop each warhead within 100 yards of its target.

With the deployment of such a weapon, the study says, "the United States will have acquired an apparent capability to destroy much of the Soviet intercontinental ballistic missile force in a first strike" — a capability the Soviets are also moving toward with development of their new generation of missiles.

That capability could be destabilizing in a time of crisis between the superpowers, the study says. "Soviet leaders, concerned that war was imminent and fearing for the survivability of their ICBMs if the United States struck first, might perceive pressures to strike first themselves," it adds.

The study notes that "only the mobility and concealment characteristic of the MX — not its greater payload or accuracy — are needed to reduce the potential vulnerability of existing U.S. ICBMs."

The study says that ultimately, the effect of the MX on the stability of the strategic balance would depend on the Soviet response to its deployment.

A beneficial response might be for the Soviets to step up their own mobile missile production and to put more of their missile forces into submarines.

This would be regarded as stabilizing by military planners because it would decrease Soviet fears that they might be vulnerable to a first strike. It would also decrease the chances that the Russians might launch a first strike, because submarine-based missiles are less accurate and powerful than land-based missiles.

Congress makes warning

Pension plan may fold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was warned Saturday that pension plans covering 1.3 million persons could fold in the next 10 years because of financial problems, forcing a government insurance program to assume liability for billions of dollars in unpaid benefits.

In a report to Congress, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. called for major changes in private pension plans operations and the way government regulates them.

The corporation also urged Congress, in a separate report, to abandon a proposed insurance program that would protect employers from obligations they might face if their pension plans folded with insufficient assets to pay benefits to all workers and retirees.

The pension corporation, created by the pension law of 1974, has established an insurance plan guarantees benefits for 33 million workers and retirees who participate in about 80,000 private plans.

The law also forces employers to eventually build a fund sufficient to pay pensions for present and future

Three prisoners escape from Collingsworth jail

WELLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Three prisoners escaped from the Collingsworth County Jail Saturday and fled in a car stolen from a used car lot.

"They asked the used car dealer if they could test drive a car, and then left," said a spokesman for Sheriff John Raney of Collingsworth County, which is in the Texas Panhandle bordering Oklahoma.

The jailbreakers were identified as William Earl McClendon, David Cleve Lawson and Irwin Craig. McClendon was being held on charges of writing hot checks and jailbreaking, and deputies said the other two men were being held on unspecified charges for authorities in nearby Hall County.

The inmates sneaked out of the jail before lunch, but deputies said they don't know how the men got out. A trusty who saw them leaving the building summoned authorities.

Deputies from Collingsworth and Hall counties and Department of Public Safety patrolmen set up roadblocks and used an airplane in the search, and Oklahoma authorities were asked to be on the lookout.

The jailbreakers were not believed to be armed.

Disarmament assembly ends

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly ended its special session on disarmament early Saturday with approval of a revamped Geneva disarmament committee but without what the assembly president called a "major breakthrough towards halting the arms race."

"We were not able to agree on new and meaningful disarmament measures," Assembly President Lazar Mojsov of Yugoslavia said in a final speech at the 40-day session. "What we have done is to finally chart a new course and open new channels for further negotiations."

On Friday night, the 149-nation body approved without a vote a final document calling for expansion of the Geneva committee and termination of its Soviet-American co-chairmanship in an attempt to get France and China to work on it. The document also included a disarmament declaration and program of action.

French delegate Pierre-Christian Tatitinger said France would review the session's results and then "have its word to say about its participation" on the committee. France has boycotted it since 1961 over the co-chairmanship issue.

Chen Chu of China, which has never been on the 19-year-old committee, called for Third World efforts "to make the new negotiating body a better one." He said the two superpowers could control it because it need not be based on fair geographical representation and is not directly responsible to the U.N. Disarmament Commission.

Thunderstorms hit south, west Texas

By the Associated Press

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for scattered areas of south, west and extreme east Texas today.

Most of the state, however, was expected to have continued clear to partly cloudy skies and hot temperatures as the July Fourth holiday weekend got under way.

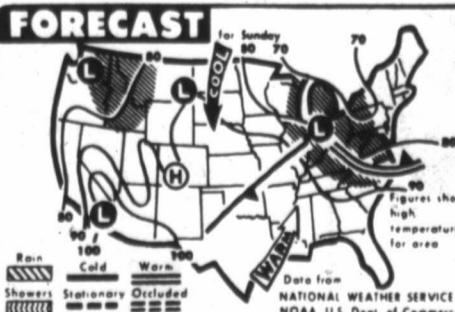

Highs today were expected to be mostly in the 90s with readings in North Texas expected to reach 100. The Big Bend area of Southwest Texas could expect readings approaching 105, forecasters said.

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy through Sunday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms most sections this afternoon and tonight and mainly southern portions Sunday. Highs mostly in the 90s except near 105 Big Bend. Lows 63 to 73.

Some scattered shower activity was reported in West Texas and East Texas Friday night. Rainfall amounts ranged from .53 of an inch at San Angelo to .01 of an inch at Wink.

The thundershower activity had stopped by morning and most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies with temperatures mostly in the 60s and 70s. Extremes ranged from 65 at Dalhart to 81 at Del Rio.

Early morning temperature readings included 66 at Amarillo, 75 at Wichita Falls, 74 at Texarkana, 76 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 74 at Austin, Lufkin and Houston, 79 at Corpus Christi, 76 at Brownsville, 74 at San Angelo and 69 at El Paso and Lubbock.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is predicted today for parts of the Northwest and for an area extending from the Great Lakes to the mid-Atlantic Seaboard, according to the National Weather Service.

As every housewife knows, coupons are used by manufacturers to convince shoppers to try new products, change brands or squirrel away more than one of what they need. Last year, more than 50 billion coupons were redeemed.

The savings offered can range anywhere from a few coppers to $1 or more. The stores, of course, send the coupons to the manufacturer for reimbursement.

A conspicuous few of the profane herd have been known to hand the checker a fistful of coupons, some of which are for items they have not purchased. The store attendant cannot always take the time to check each coupon against each purchase.

Abusing the use of coupons, now referred to as 'misredemption,' is becoming a serious problem around the country. Four employees of a newspaper in the Midwest were arrested recently for clipping coupons from all the paper's unsold copies and selling them to a fence at a reduced rate.

Some shoppers show an astonishing amount of cheek. They redeem coupons when they buy merchandise, then return the merchandise at a later date to demand money back at the regular shelf price.

People who have designs on visiting Spain had best take advantage of the opportunity this year. This will likely be the last year many can afford it.

By the time next summer rolls around, hotel rates are almost sure to be up by 60 percent.

Even now, some of the hotel help there has been staying away from their jobs, forcing thousands of visitors to make their own beds and serve themselves cold food.

The Spanish tourist authorities complain that hotel prices in Spain have been unrealistic for years, that any increase will just bring Spain into line with the rest of Europe.

The Spaniards get more visitors from England than any other country, about four million annually in all.

A 13th Century tutor offered advice that sounds pretty good even today:

"Study as if you were to live forever," he suggested, "live as if you were to die tomorrow."

The pet population is exploding, no matter what methods you might be using to shortstop such blessed events. No fewer than 500 dogs and cats are born in this country every minute of the day, first to captivate the children and then to disrupt the entire household.

Shed a tear for the British couple who, anxious to have a child, hired a prostitute to be artificially inseminated by the husband.

When the child arrived, the experience reformed the soiled dove and she decided to keep the baby. A judge took the case under consideration and ruled in her favor.

The jurist came to the conclusion the woman was no longer a lady of the evening, that the baby had made her an honest woman.

In the Scotland of old, the prefix "Mac" meant the "legitimate son of" while the prefix "O" referred to the "illegitimate son of."

Needless to say, such references were abandoned a long time ago.

I've seen more cotton in the top of some aspirin bottles than there is in the bathing suits of some mermaids this year. Mind you, I'm not trying to make a federal case out of this.

The Italian Communist party today is probably more alien to its own revolutionary Marxist heritage than to the Western democratic values that the Carter administration fears are in jeopardy.

The turbulences of Italian politics will almost certainly continue because the Italian Reds, though coveting the ways of the west, are not prepared to put up with all the encumbrances that go with those mores.

Italy is regarded as a breeding ground for terrorists because 1.6 million people are unemployed (including 200,000 university students, whose minds are ripe for exploitation), there is an onerous burden of public debt, the country's runaway inflation can't be controlled, the public services range from poor to wretched, there is a predatory upper class, the country is full of corrupt politicians and the bureaucracy is unresponsive.

At least 200 jockeys in this country earn more than $50,000 a year and 25 of those are paid more than $100,000 annually. Few sports do as well by their talent.

You'd have to describe as an optimist the man who marries his secretary thinking he will still be able to dictate to her.

Referee Mills Lane espied Larry Holmes taking liquid refreshment from a bottle during Holmes' recent Las Vegas fight with Ken Norton and snatched the container away. It contained nothing more than lemon juice and honey, with a shot of some kind of elixer added for taste.

Modern fight rules make it illegal for a fighter in the ring to drink anything but water. Not so with the old warriors.

In John L. Sullivan's famous pier 6 brawl with Jake Kilrain, Sullivan was sampling mountain dew (tea and bourbon) throughout the 75 rounds of one of history's bloodiest bouts.

Kilrain almost caved in the fifth round. When he was dragged back to the corner, his trainer revived him by bending his little finger back double and spitting whiskey into his face.

Each round thereafter, Kilrain's corner would ply him with French brandy. It deadened Jake to intolerable pain.

I sometimes wonder what the Ten Commandments would look like if Moses had had to run them through Congress today.

(AP LASERPHOTO) DESIGNED TO UNBUTTON MEN'S THINKING — Model wears outfit designed by Lee Wright, during showing at Spring Lake, N.J. "Men's clothes are losing their uptightness as men begin to feel more creative," says Wright, who calls the new style "facile" — Italian for easy. He is among the new designers who are attempting to loosen men's collars, and unbutton their thinking.

Men's clothing loses caution

SPRING LAKE, N.J. (AP) — Change is the nature of fashion. Caution is the nature of men. And so men have clung, some say unfashionably too long, to sober suits and flannel apparel. But wait.

Stylish winds are blowing into boring closets. Fashion-wary men are becoming as fashion-wily as women, and fall will herald a striking change in what the gentlemen wear.

"Men's clothes are losing their uptightness as men begin to feel more creative," says Lee Wright, a new guard designer who calls the new style "facile" — Italian for "easy."

"Men are conditioned to be the navy blue suit in the corner and not to care how they look. That is changing," said Wright, who designs subtle, relaxed, richly textured clothes.

The loose, easy look. The traditional tailored look. The tight-fitting disco look — all are competing for a corner of a man's wardrobe and piece of his pocket-book.

Men's wear is becoming as dynamic as women's wear as designers try to loosen men's collars and unbutton their thinking.

New guard designers, like Wright, want to dress men in soft, "unconstructed" — or slightly lined — clothes. It is the first major silhouette change in 10 years and it is slimmer and less macho.

While padded shoulders are back for women, the new men's look calls for trimmer, realistic shoulders. Lapels are narrower, ties are skinnier and looser, collars are slight, even round. Pants are straight and pleated at the waist.

The flowing neck scarf is almost a standard accessory.

"I think that changing styles definitely reflect changing sexual images," says Wright, one of many designers at the recent fall preview here of the Men's Fashion Association of America.

It is not just high fashion for the few, although sweatshirt blazers, round collars and stringy ties will probably not abound.

But Sears and Montgomery Ward, longtime dressers of the man in the middle, will be stocking up on looser and more relaxed clothes that can be layered and combined.

The traditionalist need not fear. The old guard, like designer Donald Brooks, still opts for classic tailoring, refuses to bend to trendy breezes and says today's unconstructed jacket looks like tomorrow's laundry bag.

Advancement occurs when Democrats in

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce later Saturday.

"I don't pretend that everything that my party has done has been right," Krueger said. "But it took the moral force of the Democratic party in the 1960s to open up opportunities for people who had been denied those opportunities in the past."

The New Braunfels congressman assailed his opponent's civil rights voting record, including the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the 1965 Voting Rights Act and the 1968 fair housing bill.

"He called the 1964 Civil Rights Act unconstitutional," Krueger said. "Suppose he had had his way."

Affirmative action programs must not be jeopardized by the Allan Bakke decision from the U.S. Supreme Court, he said of the court's ruling last week.

Bakke was ordered admitted into a California medical school, which the court said had discriminated against him because he was white. However, the court said race may be taken into account in future admissions policies.

"I think it's a helluva lot more important to get minorities into the mainstream than say to get a football or basketball player in," Krueger said of treatment given sometimes to athletes.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements also was scheduled to address the group following talks by Krueger and Tower. Clements' Democratic opponent, Attorney General John Hill, spoke Friday.

Officials take 3 children found in chicken-wire cage

HOOKS, Texas (AP) — County welfare officials have taken away three of James "Chief" Williston's children because they found them naked, covered with dirt and excrement and penned in a chicken-wire cage behind his shack.

The children range in age from 1 to 2.

"I had them back in the pen. I made me a little, old pen to keep the babies in, so they wouldn't get out on the highway," said Williston, 57, a full-blooded Choctaw Indian who says he has two wives, both retarded, and four other children living at home.

Williston said his two previous wives — those were monogamous marriages — both died. He had a total of five children by them, all grown and now living on their own.

"If I could get hold of the Indian nation in Idabel (Oklahoma), it would be all right, but I can't do that. I don't know what to do. I want to get my babies back," he said Friday in an interview.

Bowie County Sheriff Earl Sabo said the pen was about 4 feet by 6 feet, and about 3 feet high. "Just tall enough for them to stand in," Sabo said.

Williston said his two wives, age 22 and 20, are sisters.

"They're mentally retarded, both of 'em, and I take care of 'em. They do all right. They can cook, take care of the babies. And they are pretty good for digging potatoes. We manage," he said.

They live on U.S. 82 west of this northeast Texas community. The four other children range in age from 11 months to 5 years.

The welfare officials, accompanied by sheriff's deputies, drove 18 miles from Texarkana Thursday afternoon after a call from a woman who lives near Williston.

"She turned the kids in about being naked and in the pen, starved to death and no water. She told a big story, because those kids were well fed, and I kept them in there because I didn't want them to get on that Highway 82 and get run over," Williston said.

Williston said he brought the children inside his house each day at nightfall.

Florence Kay, 2; Andy, 1; and Dorothy, 1, were taken to a hospital, where doctors said they were in reasonably good health.

State District Judge Bun

L. Hutchinson of Texarkana granted a petition Friday to place the three children in a foster home until a full hearing before him July 14.

"They told me they were going to take them to the hospital and have them tested out and checked out, to see if they had a cold or anything. They said they'd have them back in two hours. I haven't seen them since," Williston said Friday night.

Williston said he makes about $100 a week hauling scrap iron and picking up old ice boxes around town.

"They told me if I would kinda clean up around the place, they'd let me keep the kids. That's what a lawyer said. The judge didn't say that. The health department came out and saw a bunch of junk on the top of the roof and said I'd have to take that all off, put the chickens back in the corner and get rid of our cow and calf," he added.

Collision kills five, injures five

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — A station wagon returning blind students to school after a picnic, smashed into a truck parked on Interstate-20, killing five and injuring five.

State police said the tractor-trailer was stopped on the road shoulder, apparently out of fuel or broken down, when the station wagon rammed into it.

The unidentified truck driver was relaxing in the shade next to the vehicle at the time Friday, police said, and he was unhurt.

The station wagon was driven by Virginia L. Trumbower, 34, an instructor at the Shreveport Vocational Evaluation and Adjustment Center for the blind, police said.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Trumbower and blind students Robert Broussard, 34, of Glenmora; Vernon Hicks, 54, of Serepta; Robbie McClain, 19, of Baton Rouge; and Donald Kirk, 20, of Houma.

The injured were identified as Rosie Pope, 19, of Amite, in serious condition; Mary Johnson, 49, of Baton Rouge, critical; Charles Wallace, 18, of Zachary, critical; Sammy Brooks, 30, of Hammond, critical; and Augustine Fernanda, 22, of Mansura, satisfactory.

Castro responds to Atlanta councilmen

Other races sent to Africa

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro expressed high regard for Andrew Young and Cyrus Vance but some disdain for Zbigniew Brzezinski in a private session with two city councilmen from Atlanta.

And, responding to concerns raised by the two black city officials from Atlanta, Robert Pitts and Morris Finley, the Cuban leader said his country is sending other races as well as blacks to Africa with the Cuban army.

The private 45-minute session came at the end of an evening-long reception here on Tuesday for a group of 100 U.S. mayors, city councilmen, their wives and aides. During the evening, Castro met privately with the 18 mayors, then with the 15 councilmen and the staff of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which sponsored the group.

As the entire group was leaving the government's Protocol House, an aide to Castro beckoned Pitts and Finley to return for a separate session with the Cuban leader.

They said the Castro made a spirited defense of his country's intervention in Africa and offered his assessments of U.N. ambassador Young, Secretary of State Vance and presidential national security adviser Brzezinski.

"He spoke very highly of Young," Pitts said. "He said Young is sensitive to and understands Third World problems and that Vance understands the complexity of these issues, but that Brzezinski was another story."

They declined to repeat exactly how Castro had described Brzezinski, but made clear he was not complimentary.

The councilmen said Castro was very interested in the attitudes of American blacks toward his country's African intervention. The State Department estimates that Cuba has 38,000 to 39,000 troops and 6,000 civilians stationed in 13 African nations.

"We tried to be very cautious and respond personally and in no official way," Finley said. "We told him that pictures we had seen of the Cuban army showed only black soldiers and asked if he was sending only blacks to Africa."

Profs withdrawn from program

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Forty-eight Northwestern University professors have withdrawn from a joint doctoral program with a seminary in protest against the expulsion of two homosexual ministerial students.

Faculty at the Garrett-Evangelical Theological seminary in Evanston voted May 15 to expel the two students after they announced their homosexuality in letters to seminary officials. The Northwestern professors, who supervise the Garrett students' doctoral studies, said they believe homosexuality is irrelevant to a student's academic credentials.

GOP candidate with good credentials

Baker needs to roll out major issues

AUSTIN — Texas Republicans think they have a good shot at winning the attorney general's race this year.

Republican Jim Baker is an attractive candidate with good credentials. So is Democrat Mark White, the favorite in the race.

Specialists fail, too

BEVERLY HILLS, Mich. (AP) — A New York psychic and a university team specializing in cult murders were used last year in attempts to solve the slayings of four Oakland County youngsters, authorities have revealed.

None of the efforts was successful and the man thought to be responsible for the killings is still at large, said state police Lt. Robert Robertson, head of a task force probing the deaths.

Works of Lola Myers displayed at Chamber

Mrs. Lola Myers was named artist of the month for July, with her paintings on display at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office.

Mrs. Myers began to paint about four years ago, as an outlet for her frustrations after she had a son die.

Suddenly, her works began to be "very good" and she was more surprised than anyone. She took art from Mrs. Virginia Whitten.

Prior to that, she had concentrated her efforts on knitting, crochet, ceramics and macrame and other arts and crafts, having won many ribbons at fairs on her crafts.

She was an expert on afghans and had made a number of big ones and seven baby afghans prior to becoming interested in painting.

She was born in Johnson

City and lived in Arizona prior to moving to Martin County in 1926 and on to Howard County in 1933. She has lived here ever since.

She is a member of the Big Spring Art Association. For many years, she was active in Home Demonstration work and became interested in arts and crafts at that time. She also is a member of Rebekah Lodge 284.

She has worked as a volunteer at both the Big Spring State Hospital and the Veterans Administration Hospital and also had been active in garden club work.

She had two children, prior to the death of her son and has seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The public is invited to view her paintings at the chamber during the month of July.

Both are moderate conservatives with sound legal backgrounds. Both have administered governmental agencies. White is a former Texas Secretary of State. Baker is former U.S. Undersecretary of Commerce.

Were all things equal, the Republicans would be correct. The attorney general's race would be a real horse race.

But things are never equal in Texas politics. Only U.S. Sen. John Tower has overcome the Democratic hold on state wide elections in the past century.

Republicans believe a major reason for their poor showings in the state wide races has been inadequate financing of their candidates. Tower's successful races were well financed.

Baker says he can raise sufficient funds to finance his race and that gives him a good shot.

So far, Baker's campaign has focused on one issue: his proposal that Texas go to a fixed sentencing system of incarcerating criminals.

He admits that the attorney general has little to do with criminal law, but he says the state's chief legal officer should propose legal improvements.

Fixed sentencing provides a formula for assessing criminal penalties. The formula includes characteristics of the crime, such as whether a deadly weapon was used, and characteristics of the criminal, such as whether it is a first offense.

The central issue of White's primary campaign was his proposal that Texas sue Montana to stop a high tax on coal exports that would mean higher Texas utility rates.

Both are issues close to the hearts of voters — one to deter crime the other to hold

Dallas attorney says

Lawyers, newsmen should join to fight high court

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A renowned Dallas attorney says lawyers and newsmen should join forces to combat an unlikely adversary: the U.S. Supreme Court.

His target, contends Emmett Colvin, is "law without reason." Specifically, Colvin, president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, is disturbed over the high tribunal's "assault upon the Fourth and Fifth amendments."

In one of the most provocative statements emerging from the recently concluded State Bar of Texas convention, Colvin criticized both the court and the press regarding the controversial Zurcher ruling.

He said "human freedom" is at stake in that case, citing the Fourth Amendment protection against search and seizure and the Fifth Amendment safeguard against self incrimination.

The only expressed concern of the media was a selfish one dealing with the invasion of the newspaper office under a search warrant, Colvin asserted.

"The impact goes well beyond that," he argued. "Now law enforcement can execute an affidavit for a search warrant using an undisclosed informant (often fictitious) find a friendly justice of the peace, get a warrant, execute it on a lawyer's office, and rummage through every file he has, despite the wholesome attorney-client privilege. "It takes little imagination to realize that this could extend to doctors, psychiatrists, accountants, and in fact, any representative or individual.

"Under Zurcher ... the representative, be he a lawyer or someone else, need not reasonably be suspected of any crime himself."

Colvin said the high court brushed this aside by saying the "hazards of such warrants can be avoided by a neutral magistrate carrying out his responsibilities...."

This, the attorney contended, "is unmitigated hogwash."

He said police officers know that when they don't have good grounds for a search they must avoid the neutral magistrate and find one who will sign any search warrant presented, even a blank one that could be filled in later.

"Actually, the press has little to fear from this decision," he said. "For law enforcement is also political in nature, and those in power will not normally break down the door of many newspaper offices with a search warrant and still stay in power."

"The press has a political defense which is not available to the patient of a psychiatrist or the client of a lawyer. These persons are denied the effective assertion of any privilege, where normally applicable."

Calling the Zurcher decision a "weapon for political oppression," Colvin said the full impact is yet to be felt.

"How is the citizen to feel when he realizes that his private papers in his lawyer's office may be perused by a police officer under a search warrant even though he and his lawyer may be completely innocent of a crime and in fact, not even suspected of a crime?" Colvin said.

"It is high time the media face their responsibility to the public and vigorously attack the real impact of this horrible decision. "We know as a historical fact that government agents will break into the office of a psychiatrist illegally to obtain and peruse private files. With this decision, the stamp of illegality has been removed. "I fear the press has become so calloused, so sophisticated and so aloof to the rights of others that it can only be shocked when its own office door is opened. Even then, it would appear the shock extends only to that particular door." Colvin said the Fourth and far from an amateur in a political race. He was national campaign manager for former President Gerald Ford in 1976.

If Baker is to have a real shot at being the first Republican Texas attorney general, he needs to start developing other major issues. Merely buying more television ads than previous Republican candidates won't overcome the Texas habit of voting Democratic.

Baker knows that. He is

Rain is spotty; winds acts up

A selective shower aided some farmers looking to the sky for moisture and ignored others as scattered showers jumped across West Texas Friday from Lubbock to San Angelo and Andrews to Abilene.

Rainfall in Big Spring around 7 p.m. measured .3 of an inch, with the Sand Springs area receiving .4, the area between Big Spring and Forsan getting .5, the southeastern portion of Borden County with .45 and around three inches at Tahoka in a 45-minute period, a heavy rain of 1.5 in Andrews, .2 at Luther, and light showers in Tarzan, Lenorah, St. Lawrence, Forsan and Garden City.

The heavy rainfall in Andrews hopped over the big farming area around Tarzan and Lenorah where they reported only a sprinkle.

Just north of town, farms received the needed moisture up to the Fairview area and then skipped across a big cotton farming area coming down again at Brown with .3 of an inch in that portion of the farming area.

In Borden County, Rich Anderson reported a small twister on the southeastern portion of his ranch where an old barn was picked up and set down at a new location.

The rainfall around Tahoka between 4 and 5 p.m.

heavy in a short period of time, but fell off as it came southeast.

Lamesa reported .3 in some portions of Dawson County while others had only a sprinkle and the area toward O'Donnell received heavy rainfall.

Farmers have their young cotton up and have been "hoping for a shower by the Fourth of July."

Some got that needed shower and some did not. And many of the farmers were left still watching the sky to see if "the clouds are gathering in the west" which is a hopeful sign for rain during summer months.

Ranches in the Moss Creek area received close to a half inch and ranches north of town got up to .3 with a few spotted areas getting almost an inch.

There was no measurement yet on rain in the watershed for area lakes although Moss Creek apparently caught some of the rainfall.

Another shower fell Saturday afternoon dropping about .6 of an inch in Big Spring and rainfall measuring from .1 to .3 in the surrounding area.

A strong wind accompanying the mid-afternoon shower blew the camper shell off a pickup while it was traveling down FM 700 during the shower.

Farm Hot, dry weather hastens harvesting operations

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Hot, drying winds — which boosted temperature readings to 100-plus degrees in much of the state this past week — have hastened hay harvesting operations and general crop maturity. The extreme temperatures also scorched young crops and ranges and further depleted soil moisture in many areas.

Hay baling activities have accelerated in areas that have had sufficient moisture to produce a crop, reports Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Baling wire for the hay harvest is in short supply in South Texas, he said.

Ranges and pastures, along with many dryland crops, are showing moisture stress as a result of the searing temperatures. Irrigated crops, on the other hand, are making good progress. Stock tanks are dangerously low, with some already dry, in west, central southwest and southern areas, the Extension Service reports. Cattle are in generally good condition.

The watermelon, cantaloupe and onion harvests are continuing in the Rio Grande Valley, portions of the Winter Garden and Coastal Bend. At Presidio, the cantaloupe harvest has just begun, with the quality reported to be "excellent."

Gillespie County's peach harvest also is under way, with both the quantity and quality reported to be outstanding.

Insect problems in cotton are causing grower concern in several areas, and mosquito problems are reported in the Coastal Bend and along the upper Gulf Coast. Jefferson County reports a heavy infestation. Grasshoppers also are damaging pastures and crops in some high-moisture areas.

District Extension agents reported the following specific conditions.

PANHANDLE: Hot, dry winds reduced soil moisture in many counties. Much of the dryland wheat crop is now harvested. Corn is making adequate progress. Much of the cotton has been replanted, but stands are late. Cattle markets continue to decline, and pastures are showing stress from drying winds.

SOUTH PLAINS: Irrigated cotton is growing well as a result of extreme heat, and insect activity is minimal. Pastures and ranges need moisture. Sunflowers are being planted on hauled-out cotton acreage.

ROLLING PLAINS: Surface moisture has been depleted by hot, dry winds. Cotton, home gardens and pastures need moisture. A grasshopper buildup is becoming a problem, and a case of screwworms in cattle has been confirmed in Motley County. Wheat harvesting has moved into final stages, and pecans continue to make excellent progress.

NORTH CENTRAL: Moisture is short and flea-hoppers are showing some buildup in cotton. Most wheat and oat crops have been harvested, with yields generally good. Hay crops, cotton, corn, home gardens and pastures all need moisture. Cattle are in good condition with the market continuing strong.

NORTHEAST: All field crops, gardens and pastures need rain, as hot winds further deplete moisture. The hay harvest continues with low yields. Peas, pinto beans and peaches are being harvested, and the pecan crop looks good. Grasshoppers and other insects are causing some problems. Livestock prices are down.

FAR WEST: Extremely hot, dry weather is depleting soil moisture. The heat is causing cotton to make fast growth, although there are some insect problems. Ranges are beginning to brown due to dry conditions. Irrigated crops are growing well. The cantaloupe harvest is under way at Presidio with the quality excellent. Some feeding of livestock is continuing.

WEST CENTRAL: Range and crop conditions continue to deteriorate with the onslaught of hot, dry winds. Cotton and sorghum show moisture stress. Stock tanks are low some already dry — in Runnels, Coleman, Callahan and Taylor Counties, forcing producers to haul water or market livestock. Peaches are being harvested in Gillespie County with excellent quality and quantity being reported.

CENTRAL: Small grain harvesting is complete, with light yields reported on fewer acres than normally harvested. Extreme temperatures and drying winds of the past week have resulted in short moisture supplies.

For AJRA competitors Rodeo finals Aug. 8-12

The American Junior Rodeo Association National Finals Rodeo will be held in Snyder, at the Scurry County Coliseum Aug. 8-12 at 8:00 p.m. each night sponsored by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and Scurry County Board of Development. AJRA was founded 26 years ago by Alvin Davis of Post, Texas. Secretary-manager of the association is Leslie McFadden of Rankin, Texas.

The AJRA continues to grow this year. There are 758 members this year, which is the largest membership in the history of AJRA. The members are under 19 years of age, with some as young as eight. In order to be eligible to compete at the finals, a member must place in the event he wishes to enter sometime during the year.

Approximately 30 AJRA shows are held throughout the season. Some members have taken a good lead in certain events before arriving for the finals, and others are still competing so close that only a few cents could keep them from winning the championship.

This situation keeps the finals quite thrilling and exciting until the very last night. Yearly awards will be presented at the end of Saturday night's performance.

The AJRA National Finals is a week of competition the young members and their parents look forward to all year. They travel long and hard all year competing and building their points to the possibility of winning for themselves a little of "Junior World Champion."

Stock producer for this year's finals is Burrell Markum, Valley Rodeo Company, of Valley Mills, Texas. Rick Chatman of Snyder will be the clown.

Jim Miller of Rapid City, South Dakota, and Marv Pierce, with K-Bob's Steak House of Sweetwater, will be announcers.

Cheryl Kiner and her "Texas Fiddle Band" will be featured at the performances and will play for the dance to be held following the performances on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday at the Ag Complex adjacent to the coliseum.

The National Finals Queen will be chosen on Friday, Aug. 11. She will receive a $200 trophy buckle made by Gary Gist of California. The queen will be chosen by the most advance tickets sold in her honor. Queen candidates are: Tammy Bruns, Snyder; Marcie Wagner, El Paso; Christie Adams, Big Spring; Sissie Doss, Big Spring; and Laurie Sharp, Kermit.

Miss AJRA will be crowned Saturday, Aug. 12 by Mandy Tubb, the reigning Miss AJRA. She will represent AJRA for the 1978-79 season. She is chosen by the members of AJRA from a field of six nominees, to be named at a later date.

Some of the awards for the AJRA National Finals include 36 trophy saddles; 60 trophy buckles; 30 awards jackets; $3,000 added to the short-go by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and Scurry County Board of Development; High Point Calf Roper bronze by Dubb Tubb; High Point Bull rider bronze by Dr. Robert Taylor; All-Around Champion bronze by Terry Gilbreth; Joe York "Rookie of the Year" award (to 12 and under age group); Sportmanship buckles to boy and girl of 16-19 age group; PRCA Award-All Around Cowboy; Alvin Davis Founders Award; and George Paul Bull Riding Trophy.

Tickets for the five night's performances may be purchased through the finals queen contestants or at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce. Advance tickets will be sold as follows: Adults, $2 and children, $1. Tickets sold at the door will be $2.50 and $1.50. All box seats will be sold at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office only and are $3.50 each.

The gun that won the west

with Marj Carpenter

Here it is nearly the Fourth of July and it seems an appropriate time to mention something that would make a loud bang.

In West Texas, in a location which I do not plan to divulge, is the biggest collection of Winchester and Winchester products that I have ever seen.

It is not a public collection but a private one and includes almost every Winchester rifle ever invented from the first model in 1866 and 1873 model which was called the rifle that won the EST.

But amazingly, Winchester invented a lot of other things that were put out by his company, other than the rifles for whom the company is best known.

Just for starters, there were many different kinds of Winchester knives. This particular collector has trays filled with them and has won awards at knife shows for his collection.

But the Winchester company also made tools and things like food grinders and carving sets. The collector has some beautiful ones.

That's not all — they made ice skates and roller skates. They made clocks and for awhile, they even made prints of paintings.

They also made ammunition. They made a few clocks. The Winchester Company used to put out fancy calendars advertising all of their products and the collector has a couple of those.

He also owns an Indian silhouette which had been shot into a piece of metal with a Winchester gun in a special demonstration.

The same familiar Winchester stamp that is on the rifles is on every one of their products. The Winchester Company was typical of the inventors and businessmen during the 1800s after the Civil War, who really attempted to please the customer and make and sell whatever the market seemed to need.

The commemorative Winchester guns put out 100 years later are also part of the collection. Winchester, of course, also manufactured ammunition.

WINCHESTER RIFLES ...in a private collection

If you look at encyclopedias, the name Winchester is one used over and over. There was a Winchester, England and a Winchester College there. There is a town named Winchester in Massachusetts, Virginia, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky. It must have been a well-loved town in England because so many named a new American town after it.

Two of the main battles of the Civil War were at Winchester, Va. There was an early printer named Winchester and also an early American author.

A lot of Winchesters made their mark. But when you mention Winchester, very few people remember the towns, or the college or the printer or the author, or even the Civil War battles.

When you say Winchester, people don't think of skates or food grinders or tools or even knives. They think of the Winchester repeater rifle that won the West. "Load up and shoot all week."

And there is a West Texas collector who has loaded up a private collection with Winchesters. And I enjoyed getting the opportunity to see it while out ridin' fence.

Odessa Cultural Carnival nears

ODESSA — A flurry of exciting and interesting events will begin July 1 when the Odessa Cultural Council Kicks off the 1978 Cultural Carnival.

Theatrical features will include productions by the Shakespearean Globe of the Great Southwest the Permian Playhouse, and the Mansion Dinner Theatre.

Local artists with the Odessa Art Association will be displaying their work at the Permian Playhouse. U.T.P.B. will be hosting a month-long folk arts and crafts exhibit from the Smithsonian Institute. The U.T.P.B. library will be displaying senior student work during the first week of July.

The Odessa Cinema Society will be presenting a Garry Cooper film festival at the Permian Playhouse. Entertaining and interesting exhibits will be shown at the Presidential Museum, and a historic exhibit at Winwood Mall will be sponsored by the Ector County Historical Commission.

All of these events round out the first week of the Odessa Cultural Carnival Group rates, and package tours for any organization, schools, city or church group can be arranged with advance notice. For further information regarding the activities of "Cultural Carnival '78" contact Ellen Taft, Executive Secretary for the Council at 337-1492.

Fredericksburg program is set

The public is invited to Night In Old Fredericksburg July 15, in Fredericksburg. This annual old-time German celebration will be held at the Gillespie County Fairgrounds with the gates opening at 4:00 p.m. and entertainment beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Recording artist Mel Street and The Borrowed Angels Band will be performing for a dance from 9:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. Pehl's Oompah Band, The Little Fishermen of Texas, Cactus Rose, The Poverty Playboys, and the Texas National Guard 49th Division Band will also be on hand to furnish fine entertainment.

AJRA show begins Wednesday evening

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Wednesday night will mark the beginning of a four-day American Junior Rodeo Association-sanctioned event to be staged at the Western Riding Club arena located on the western outskirts of Colorado City. According to Larry Windors, Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce manager, sponsor of the event, about 400 entries are expected.

Entrants will compete in barrel racing, pole bending, bull riding, tie-down roping and bareback riding. Contestants in the junior rodeo are aged 12 through 19, and any points earned will be added to their national point standing for qualification to participate in the National American Junior Rodeo Association finals later in the year.

Performances of about 2½ hours each are scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. Most of the contestants are from out-of-town. However, several local youngsters have registered. The nightly performances will be spiced with local citizens competing in calf-dressing contests. Teams of three, including one all-girl team, representing churches and civic clubs, will attempt to catch a calf and dress the animal in a pair of bloomers. Nightly winners will compete for a trophy at Saturday's final performance.

The Rodeo Queen will be announced Saturday night. The queen candidates are Marjori Maddox, Jana Shackelford, Tracy Rees, Christi Swann and Jana Bruce. The Colorado City chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Club is sponsoring the queen's contest.

Mrs. L.L. McFadden of Rankin is serving as rodeo secretary, assisted by Colorado City's Kathy Bowers.

Marv Pierce of New Mexico is the arena announcer. Mitchell County Sheriff Bill McGuire, himself a professional rodeo bulldogger, will be joined by Squirrely Northcutt as judges for all events. Other rodeo officials are Joe Anderson, arena director; Betty Wilson, timekeeper; Stan Hackfeld, flagman; and Bimbo Stewart, barrier judge.

Center planning move to Webb site Aug. 1

The Westside Day Care Center will be moving into its new facility, which is the refurbished former youth center building at the former Webb AFB, about Aug. 1.

The new facility will allow the center to handle 55 children instead of 29. Budget for the facility will include $172,000, with two-thirds of it coming from federal funds and the other one-third, or $54,000 from the West Side Community Center.

The community center is the sponsoring agency and the facility will be contracted under the Department of Human Resources out of Odessa.

There will be room for additional children. They currently keep 29 and have a waiting list, according to Mrs. Patricia Lawlis, director.

Those who want to register children for the new facility should do so as soon as possible, she pointed out.

The Westside Day care center is open 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily. Registrations may be taken between 11:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Children whose parents are on welfare, or a low income due to a single family income or other problems help qualify them for the day care center.

The center is also available for mothers who are training for instance on a Licensed Vocational Nurse program or others. Sometimes, if there is a low income, they can be kept there two weeks while the Summer youth program offers chance to learn

By MARJ CARPENTER
When the federal government originally began a summer youth work program, it simply meant hiring a few youth to paint curbs and dig a few ditches. But the Comprehensive Employment Training Act changed all of that. Nabar Martinez, program director for the CETA Summer Youth program here, points out that it now includes many separate projects.

There is a pre-vocational program which is headed by Alice O'Brien. This pre-employment program trains youth to apply for jobs and offers them information needed to develop job skills.

They have some 28 boys and girls involved in that unit, with half of them attending a class in the morning and the other half during the afternoon. They work on the alternate half of the day at various jobs.

They attempt to teach the youth how to fill out job applications, problems they might encounter and distribute valuable information.

Among their speakers have been a representative from the Social Security office, the Army recruiter, the Southwestern Bell Telephone office and the food stamp office.

The field trips have included the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, the Big Spring Herald, the local radio stations, the Veterans Administration hospital, Malone-Hogan Hospital and Howard College.

All youth involved in the summer program are selected on a wage scale chart, including income, number in the family and other factors. They must be 14-21 years of age.

A second summer program is called youth tutoring and is headed locally by Janet Lane. She has 23 students and 11 tutors. Local youth who qualify for the CETA program are selected as tutors. They work with some of the slow learners from the grades in such basic fields as math, spelling and reading. This program is in its second year and has been highly successful for the pupils and the tutors.

The two separate groups work from 8-11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. There is also a journalism project including four persons working under the direction of Donna Goolsby, who will write and put out a special newspaper section during the summer months. This will again be a second-year project. This unit also helps put together a printed program which wraps up the whole summer as it discusses the CETA program.

The entire program this year is under the U.S. Department of Labor rather than through state agencies. A drama program in the CETA overall program is headed by Ken Sprinkle at Howard College. He spends two hours a day with some of the youth putting together a puppet show and background music which will be shown at the Veterans Administration Hospital, as well as local nursing homes.

There are around nine students in this program for two hours daily from 8-10 a.m.

There are another 90 youth working in regular jobs. These include jobs at the Big Spring State Hospital, with the county road and bridge crews, with the city, the Glascock Independent School District, the city of Coahoma and others.

Martinez said that "All public officials have been very cooperative. The Big Spring schools allow us to use Bauer Elementary faculty for the program. The county, city, college and the city and school officials in other communities have really helped us in the success of the program here."

Seismic-computer aids in search for oil wells

HOUSTON (AP) — Oilmen are drilling deeper and deeper these days in the search for new reserves and Max G. Pitcher says a seismic-computer technical revolution is a major factor behind such operations.

Pitcher is vice president for North American explorations for Continental Oil Co.

Continental has earmarked $45 million for exploratory drilling this year, more than 70 percent above 1977 and nearly four times such 1976 expenditures.

The 1978 program includes 30 wells to be drilled in excess of 15,000 feet and 10 that are programmed to reach 20,000.

nearly two times that of 1976, is designed to insure adequate prospect generation for future years."

Fisher said Continental's history of developing new geophysical acquisition and interpretive systems is now being brought to bear on high potential oil and gas provinces where acquisition of good data has been a problem for the industry.

Included are the Thrust Belt of the Rockies, the Delaware-Val Verde basins, South Louisiana, and the extension of the Mills Ranch-Mayfield trend along the Anadarko Basin margin in Texas and Oklahoma.

In early June, Continental shut down as a dry hole its first test in the Baltimore Canyon off the New Jersey coast. Drilled to 12,000 feet, the test on Block 590 cost an estimated $4 million. The Continental group paid a $17.7 million bonus for the tract.

The New Era semi-submersible used on Block 590 now is drilling a wildcat for Gulf Oil Corp. but Pitcher said it will return later to continue evaluating Continental's acreage.

Pitcher said Continental has 85,000 gross acres and 36,400 net acres in the area 75 miles east of Atlantic City.

"Even though the government has extended all Baltimore Canyon leases seven months due to the drilling injunction, we will need to remain active to get our leases evaluated during the remainder of their term," he said.

Pitcher said data obtained from a stratigraphic information well drilled in the Baltimore Canyon by industry participants was encouraging.

"As we interpret the data, mature source rocks and good reservoirs were encountered in this well which was drilled in 1976," he said.

Pitcher said Continental followed its technology and spent $58 million to gain majority lease ownership on the largest structure in the sale.

"Our leases" in the Baltimore Canyon are not on top of the Enterprise structure, it is flank acreage, and while we are optimistic for the province as a whole, finding commercial hydrocarbons under a specific drill site is risky," he said.

Fort Stockton Water Carnival Scheduled

FORT STOCKTON — The 1978 Fort Stockton Water Carnival will hold its audience captivated while colorful musical acts take place on stage and in the water. This year's production is entitled "Showbiz", directed by Georgianna Lewis, who is being assisted by Sandy Jensen. The dates for the annual show are July 13, 14 and 15.

The 1978 show will be presented in the 42nd year following the founding of the Water Carnival in 1936. The show has been presented almost continuously since then and is centered around historic Comanche Springs Swimming Pool in Rooney Park.

The Fort Stockton Water Carnival Association, whose president is Rob Dunagan, produces the annual show. The production includes a five-division beauty revue in which Miss Fort Stockton, Myra Urias will crown her successor on the evening of Saturday, July 15. Gail Lain is this year's beauty pageant chairman.

Each night will see the show open with a different beauty revue. On Thursday the Wee Miss and Sub-Teen younger girls will compete; on Friday the Junior Miss and Miss Teen Divisions will be in view; and the crowning of Miss Fort Stockton will climax the Saturday evening performance. Bill O'Banion and Alice Duerksen are the master and mistress of ceremonies for this year's beauty revue.

Theme of the performance "Showbiz" is a variety of acts taking place on an elaborate stage surrounding the pool. A giant marquee highlights the theme of the show. The main speaker and announcer is being played by Shane Bradshaw. The show also includes a young man who has traveled to Fort Stockton to break into show business. He tries his very hardest to become a part of the acts.

This production will cover everything from country and western songs to modern dance acts and fascinating water ballets. The comedy acts will keep you laughing while songs of the children will keep you entertained for a big evening of enjoyment.

The scenery for each act is made locally by the prop crew, which is directed by Dennis Card. Professional-quality lighting, an additional plus for the audience of the Water Carnival, is being directed by Jimmy Hoffman.

Gates will open at 7:30 p.m. each night with show time at 8:30. The beauty revues will precede the Water Carnival performances, with the winners to be announced at the end of each night's show.

Tickets are available now, at both Fort Stockton banks and the Chamber of Commerce. Gate tickets are $2 for children and $2.50 for adults for Thursday and Friday nights and are $1 per ticket higher for Saturday night. The Fraternal Order of Eagles will serve a barbecue prior to Saturday night's show.

The annual Water Carnival Parade, scheduled for 10 a.m. July 15, is being sponsored again this year by the Fort Stockton Jaycee-Ettes. The Jaycees are sponsoring a dance which will follow the final performance on Saturday evening.

King of gambling empire dies of heart surgery

RENO, Nev. (AP) — William Fisk Harrah, who started with a dimly lit bingo parlor and created a $100 million-plus Nevada gambling empire, is dead after undergoing heart surgery. He was 67.

Harrah died Friday of heart failure at St. Mary's Hospital, part of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. He had undergone surgery Wednesday for repair of an aortic aneurysm, hospital spokesman Norman Nelson said. Harrah had a similar operation in 1972 to repair what amounts to a weakness in an artery wall.

The tall millionaire was founder and principal stockholder of one of the biggest hotel-casino operations in Nevada, employing about 6,500 people at hotel-casinos here and at Stateline on the edge of scenic Lake Tahoe and at other holdings.

Other properties include a famed auto collection, with about 1,400 classic, carefully restored vehicles. He also had extensive real estate holdings in Idaho.

Danny Reagan
Tom Landry

While the rest of us were back in the 100 degree bakeoff of the West Texas plains, Herald big shot Harold Canning was basking in the balmy skies of Miami this week.

And while the rest of us were patiently waiting the start of NFL pre-season madness, Canning was within spitting distance of the biggest name in football... and a Dallas Cowboy to boot, Tom Landry.

Both men were in the Florida sunspot to be on hand for the Kiwanis International Convention at the Miami Beach Convention Center Tuesday. Landry was there to accept the group's annual decency award. Canning was there to join in the applause.

"They really liked him down there," said Canning. "The standing ovation went on so long, he (Landry) had to motion for the crowd to be quiet so he could speak."

The award is symbolic of its recipient's contribution to decency in America. Past winners have included Shirley Temple Black, Walt Disney (posthumously), Raymond Burr, Art Linkletter, Pat Boone, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. Disney is heavy company, and I'm not trying to be funny.

In a five-minute speech, which was delivered with a forceful voice and occasional smile (yes, smile), he condemned pornography, obscenity, gay rights and a lot of other stuff. The Kiwanians loved him.

He showed a side of him few people see. "During the late '50s I found that I had basically little patience with people, especially people who could not excel or do their best on the football field. And I'd handle them all the same."

"Then came the great revolution of the '60s, and here were so many negative aspects to the '60s. But the kids, I think, taught us one very important thing. They taught us to look at ourselves and recognize each person as an individual, handle each person as an individual."

Landry grew up during the depression. "Everyone was treated equal then... badly" one person remembers. Perhaps this is why Landry has learned to regard everything with uniformity and an analytical preciseness.

Landry admitted that the Depression helped him personally. "We had to learn the humanistic approach to football and it helped me in my basic approach to life."

Can't wait until I meet the guy personally. I have a hundred questions to ask him.

SPEAKING OF TOM

The New York Times took a recent poll of the 28 NFL football coaches. Question? Who is the best coach in the NFL? Bud Wilkinson, Bud Grant, Walt Michaels and Chuck Noll abstained from voting. Their names were too short anyway.

Tom Landry received an even dozen votes, the winner by a large margin. Several coaches suggested that Landry is a genius, as Big Blackie Sherrod from Big "D" says — "not especially for his football knowledge, but in his ability to keep the same job for 18 seasons without owning the team."

Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins was second with seven votes, followed by George Allen with four and Bud Grant with one. By the way, all four of Allen's votes came from former assistants — Dick Vermeil, Ted Marchibroda, Pete McCulley and Mary Levy. Who else would vote for Nixon... I mean Allen?

REMARKABILITIES

"Landry is a great organizer. He is innovative with all his multiple formations and the flex defense. It takes guts to be innovative. And he's also had the longest tenure."

—CHUCK KNOX.

Half the 16 are Americans U.S. dominates Wimby

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors, top seeds in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, had to fight long and hard Saturday before getting through to the last 16.

Borg, the defending champion, overcame Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-4, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4 and confessed he is not playing as well as last year.

"I want so badly to win this title three times in a row, and I am thinking about it on the important points," the Swedish star said.

Connors was on court for nearly 3 hours before wearing down 32-year-old Tom Gorman 6-4, 8-6, 8-9, 6-3.

Eight American men will line up in the last 16. Because bad weather this week has put the tournament behind schedule, they will have to play singles matches Monday and Tuesday in their bid for the first prize of $34,000.

Around 30,000 people milled around in the grounds of the All-England club and many struggled in vain to get a glimpse of the stars on the outer courts.

Connors and Chris Evert, top favorite for the women's title, both had to push their way through dense crowds to play on these courts. Evert dropped a set before defeating Laura Dupont of the United States 6-1, 4-6, 6-0 and admitted that playing away from the center court upsets her.

"I never concentrate so well on those outside courts," she said. "I keep looking across at the big scoreboard and seeing how the others are doing."

Gorman served well against Connors.

Connors, and the left-hander had problems on a damp, uneven grass court. Gorman led 3-1 in the second set, but could not hold on. Both Americans broke service twice in the sea-sawing third set, and Gorman had a set point at 7-6 before going on to win the tiebreaker.

Besides Connors, five other Americans won third-round matches Saturday. Two others — Tom Leonard and Vitas Gerulaitis — advanced Friday.

Roscoe Tanner's cannonball service took him past Fred McNeil of the United States 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. Sandy Mayer outlasted 36-year-old American Marty Riessen, who is competing in his 15th Wimbledon, 8-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Brian Gottfried was kept at full stretch for two sets but then pulled away to eliminate Allan Stone of Australia 6-8, 9-7, 6-2, 6-1.

Tim Gullikson, the righthander of the Dayton, Ohio, twins, whipped fellow-American Billy Martin 6-3, 9-7, 7-5.

Californian Hank Pfister needed nearly 3 hours to crack Nick Saviano, officially No. 51 in the United States, 9-7, 8-9, 6-2, 6-2.

Ilie Nastase put out the other Gullikson twin, left-handed Tom, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3 but had a hard time doing it. The Romanian entertained the center court crowd by clowning and arguing with the umpire occasionally, but he won the match by sheer artistry.

Two Australians eliminated two South Africans. Geoff Masters downed the white-capped Frew

McMillan 6-3, 7-5, 6-3. John Alexander won the first set 8-6 against Bob Hewitt, who then limped off with an ankle injury.

Monday's fourth-round lineup: Borg vs. Masters; Wojtek Fibak, Poland, vs. Mayer; Tom Okker, the Netherlands, vs. Leonard; Nastase vs. Tanner; Gottfried vs. Gullikson; Pfister vs. Gerulaitis; Raul Ramirez, Mexico, vs. John Newcombe, Australia; Alexander vs. Connors.

In other action Saturday, Tracy Austin, 15-year-old prodigy from Rolling Hills, Calif., downed American Barbara Hallquist 6-3, 6-3 and reached the last 16 of the women's singles.

America's other high school starlet, Pam Shriver of Lutherville, Md., almost sprang the sensation of the day against British Wightman Cup star Sue Barker on the center court.

Pam had three match points in the second set and led 3-0 in the third before bowing to greater experience. Barker won 6-2, 6-8, 7-5.

Virginia Wade, defending champion, had her British fans on tenterhooks before edging past Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Billie Jean King, a six-time Wimbledon singles champion, trailing by one set and 0-3, came back in true professional style and defeated Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Martina Navratilova, the exiled Czech, also came from behind to eliminate American Barbara Jordan 3-6, 6-1, 6-4. Evonne Goolagong of Australia, seeded third behind Evert and Navratilova, beat Janet Newberry of the United States 6-4, 6-3.

Who'd you say's ahead?

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Sandra Burns, who has never led an LPGA event since joining the tour in 1975, took the first round lead of a $75,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament with a 3-under-par 69 Saturday for a 1-stroke advantage over Laura Baugh and Joyce Kazmierski.

Burns, a 27-year-old Villanova College graduate from Pittsburgh, shot her 69 on the 6,044-yard, par-72 Harbour Trees Golf Course Saturday, while battling rain which delayed play for a total of nearly 4½ hours.

Twenty-four of the 79 competitors in the tournament were unable to complete their opening rounds due to the delay and will resume play at 9 a.m. EDT on Sunday.

Unknown leads Western 3rd round

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Bill Rogers carded a three-under-par 69 Saturday and grabbed a two-stroke lead at six-under-par 210 after three rounds of the $225,000 Western Open golf tournament.

Rogers, who missed the cut in five of his last eight tournaments including last week's Canadian Open, shot a 33 on the back nine. He finished with a bogey on the 18th hole where he had to chop the ball into the fairway after nearly hitting his tee shot into the water.

Mac McLendon, winner of the Florida Citrus Open earlier this year, broke free from a pack at par for a 68 and a four-under-par 212 total. He was tied with 1975 Western winner Hale Irwin, who shot a 71 Saturday.

For the second straight day, rain soaked the par-72, 7,083-yard Butler National course, causing a 15-minute delay in the start of the third round and a 20-minute suspension of play late in the morning. Three rain delays totaling 2 hours, 54 minutes marred Friday's round.

Defending champion Tom Watson, tied for the second-round lead with Forrest Fezler at four-under-par, shot a 74 and was four strokes back at 214. Fezler came in with a 78 and was eight back.

Watson, this year's leading money winner on the tour and winner of three tournaments, experienced his usual third-round woe at Butler. When he won the Western in 1974 and 1977, he suffered through 75s in both third rounds before rebounding with 69s on the final days.

Watson took sole possession of the lead when he went five-under-par with a birdie at the fourth hole. But he had three bogeys, the last on the par-4 10th.

Friday, he birdied the first three holes on the back nine. Saturday, he had a bogey and two pars.

Bob Gilder, who was one stroke back after the first round, shot a 70 Saturday and was alone at 213. Tied with Watson at 214 were Phil Hancock and Graham Marsh, who both had 70s Saturday, and Craig Stadler who shot a 72.

Saturday baseball

A's start coming back
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Rookie left-hander John Johnson pitched a five-hitter as the Oakland A's won their fourth straight game, 4-2, over the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

Johnson, recording his first victory in over a month, struck out nine in improving his record to 5-4. The A's scored all their runs off Kansas City starter Dave Leonard, who gave up 10 hits as he lost his record dropped to 7-11.

Oakland took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning. Mitchell Page and Dave Revering led off with singles and advanced to second and third on a sacrifice by Taylor Duncan. Page scored on an infield out by Glenn Burke and Revering came home on a single by Jeff Newman.

Oakland scored its other two runs in the sixth inning on a lead-off single by Duncan, a sacrifice by Burke, a run-scoring double by Newman and a single by Mike Edwards.

Astros wallop Padres
HOUSTON (AP) — Mark Lemongello allowed only seven San Diego hits and singled in a run in Houston's six-run fifth inning as the Astros routed the Padres 9-2 in the first game of a Saturday night doubleheader.

Houston sent 12 men to the plate in the fifth inning. Runscoring singles by Lemongello and Louis Pujols and a two-run double by Wilbur Howard highlighted the Astro uprising as Houston broke a six-game losing streak against San Diego.

Terry Puhl's sacrifice fly and Enos Cabell's run-producing double tallied two more Astro runs in the fifth as Lemongello evened his record at 7-7.

Bob Watson drove in Houston's first run of the game with a fourth-inning sacrifice fly. The Astros added two more runs in the sixth on a triple by Puhl, Howard's single and Padre shortstop Ozzie Smith's fielding error.

A third-inning sacrifice fly by Gene Richards and a fourth-inning solo homer by Oscar Gamble produced the two San Diego runs.

Bob Owchinko, 7-5, allowed Houston's first six runs.

Martinless, losses multiply
NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub had four hits and drove in three runs and Lou Whitaker drove in three more Saturday as the Detroit Tigers pounced on ineffective New York pitching and trounced the Yankees 8-4.

Staub had RBI doubles in the second and third innings, a single to center in the sixth and a run-scoring single in Detroit's two-run seventh as the Tigers staked Jack Billingham, 6-5, to an 8-0 lead.

Whitaker delivered a second-inning run with a single to center and drove in two more with a single to right in the third. Detroit scored six runs in the first three innings with the help of eight walks from New York hurlers Andy Messersmith, 0-3, and Ken Clay.

Messersmith, still coming back from a spring training shoulder separation, was asked by the Yankees to spend some time in the minors early in June but denied the team's request. His performance Saturday left him winless since June 25, 1977, when he defeated the San Diego Padres while pitching for the Atlanta Braves.

Manager makes no difference
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Dave Goltz fired a six-hitter and Hosken Powell doubled twice and scored four times as Minnesota spoiled the managerial debut of Chicago's Larry Doby by beating the White Sox 10-0 Saturday.

Doby, who replaced Bob Lemon as Chicago's manager on Friday, saw the Twins hammer White Sox pitching for 15 hits, including five doubles.

Goltz, 6-5, was in command all the way, striking out seven and walking three in pitching his fourth complete game of the year.

The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the first when Powell led off with a double, took third on Chevrolet's error and scored on a grounder by Rod Carew.

The Twins knocked out White Sox starter Francisco Barrios in the third when they scored three runs on four walks and two hits.

Phillies topple Cubs
CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Boone's home run and a run-scoring single by Ted Sizemore carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday, boosting their lead in the National League East to four games.

Randy Lerch, posting his first triumph in two months, limited the Cubs to five hits in the six innings he pitched and raised his record to 4-6. Ron Reed finished up and pitched three perfect innings to earn his fifth save, striking out five.

The Phillies scored an unearned run in the second when Richie Hebner singled, went to second on an error and scored on Sizemore's looping single to left.

Boone clubbed his seventh homer of the season to lead off the fifth inning off loser Dennis Lamp, 2-10.

Toronto takes Cleveland
TORONTO (AP) — Designated hitter Rico Carty drove in four runs Saturday to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to a 9-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Tom Underwood, 5-7, got the victory with relief help in the eighth inning from Victor Cruz. The loss went to Don Hood, 4-4, who left the game in the third inning after allowing five hits and four runs.

The Blue Jays went ahead 3-0 in the first. Rick Bosetti and Bob Bailor hit infield singles. Roy Howell walked and Carty hit a sacrifice fly to score Bosetti. Otto Velez followed with a double down the leftfield line, scoring Bailor and Howell.

Toronto added a run in the third inning when Howell walked, moved all the way to third on a wild pitch by Hood and scored on another sacrifice fly by Carty.

Expos-are hot, top Cards
MONTREAL (AP) — Del Unser homered off reliever Mark Littell in the ninth inning to give the Montreal Expos a 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Steve Rogers, 10-7, went all the way for the victory, allowing seven hits, walking one and striking out four. It was his sixth complete game triumph in a row.

The homer by Unser, his second of the season, came on a 1-1 pitch from Littell. Unser had been inserted into the game in the top of the eighth inning for defensive purposes, replacing Tony Perez at first base.

Montreal opened the scoring in the third. Gary Carter was hit by a pitch by John Denny, moved to second on a single by Chris Speier, took third on a sacrifice bunt by Rogers and scored on Warren Cromartie's sacrifice fly.

Pirates eke out Mets
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell's pinch-single with two out in the eighth inning broke up a tight mound duel and drove in Manny Sanguillen with the only run of the game to give the Pirates a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets Saturday night.

Sanguillen beat out an infield single which shortstop Tim Lincecum couldn't handle, went to second base on a wild pitch by Skip Lockwood. Two outs later, after Duffy Dyer had walked, Stargell batted for pitcher Jim Rooker and drove a single into center field.

Kevin Kobel started for the Mets and gave up only three hits in seven innings before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the top of the eighth. Lockwood, 7-7, succeeded him and was charged with the run.

Jim Rooker, 3-5, held the Mets hitless for 51-3 innings and surrendered three hits. Kent Telvick picked up his ninth save by pitching the ninth inning.

Watson vacuums the pole

LE CASTELLET, France (AP) — A psychological battle for pole position for Sunday's French Grand Prix was cut short by rain Saturday, with Britain's John Watson holding the coveted starting spot in his Brabham.

None of the Grand Prix field headed the times set Friday by Watson and Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., in his Jvs-Lotus 79.

Watson's teammate, Niki Lauda of Austria, reigning world champion, slightly improved on his Friday time but remained on the second row of the grid, and Britain's James Hunt in a McLaren sped his way on to the second row alongside Lauda.

With 15 minutes of the final hour of qualifying to go and the top drivers ready to try for their fastest laps, rain started falling on the Paul Ricard circuit and the cars were wheeled away.

After their controversial "vacuum cleaner" car was banned following Lauda's victory in the last race in Sweden, the Brabham team was determined to show they could win with their regular cars. Watson's pole position was a major victory in the psychological battle with the other team owners who had the new Brabham banned.

Andretti, with three wins, a second and a fourth for 36 points in the eight races this season, is leading the world championship. Whatever his result here Sunday, he can lose the lead only to his teammate, Swede Ronnie Peterson, second with 30 points from a win, two seconds, a fourth and a fifth place.

Lauda is third with 25 points and France's Patrick Depailler in a Tyrrell fourth on 23 points.

Peterson was on the third row of the two-by-two grid inside Hunt's French teammate, Patrick Tambay.

Highway 80 begins here Monday

McLaughlin, Aubrey Weaver, Lori Hicks, Jamey Easterling, Sherrill Easterling and Barry Stephens are only a handful of local hopefuls who have more than a realistic shot at taking the top trophies.

Dana Cannon, a talented 7th grade student at Forsan, should win the 12 girls singles here. Already this season she has captured three first place trophies and a second.

Dana won first place in the Abilene Open Tournament held recently, as well as first in the Andrews Highway 80 singles and first in the Midland Highway 80 girls doubles. She also took runner-up singles honors in the Odessa Highway 80.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cannon, 2204 Grace, Big Spring, and her coach, Barry Stephens, Figure 7 Tennis Center pro, feels that Dana has an excellent chance at another first place trophy.

Stephens also has a shot at three trophies himself. He and Sherrill Easterling took first place in Mixed Doubles in the Andrews tourney, and Stephens and Jamey Easterling also took the top trophy in Men's Doubles in that tourney.

Stephens and Easterling also won second place in the Odessa Highway 80 tournament. Sherrill Easterling has also taken runner-up trophy in women's singles in Andrews, and Jamey was second in mixed doubles there.

The 14 Boys' doubles team of Kip McLaughlin and Aubrey Weaver are favored to go all the way on their home turf. The dynamic duo has advanced to the semifinals in each of the Odessa, Midland and Andrews tourneys, and captured first place in the Abilene Open.

"I wouldn't be surprised if those two won state," said Stephens of the talented local pair.

Another local who is destined to finish high in the standings is Lori Hicks, who, in her first tournament ever, won second place in the Andrews Highway 80 16 Girls' Doubles.

Local tennis buffs, who find the televised Wimbledon matches a little lacking for live action, can travel only a short distance throughout the city to see West Texas tennis at its very best.

There may not be any Chris Everts, Jimmy Connors or Bjorn Borgs on the courts, but the competition will be just as keen.

Where Are They?

1. He was the greatest athlete of the first half of the 20th Century. After winning both decathlon and pentathlon in the 1912 Olympics, he returned to Carlisle and rushed for 1,869 yards in 10 games. During four years at the Indian School, Carlisle carved a 43-5-2 record and he scored 53 TD's in 44 games. His Olympic medals were taken away from him because he had competed in a track meet where pay was involved. He died in the 1950's.
2. This popular Steer quarterback graduated from Big Spring High School in 1967. He was also an infielder on the Bold Gold baseball squad. He graduated from dental school two years ago, and even though he currently resides in Crockett and is preparing to move to Arlington, he's still an avid fan of Big Spring sports and follows the locals' endeavors in Sunday's edition of the Herald. "He was a real smart ball-handler," remembers former Coach Don Robbins.
3. This vintage shot portrays a teenager with baby fat who has probably done as much for women's tennis as Nancy Lopez has done recently for women's golf. Only Helen Wills Moody has won the women's singles at Wimbledon more times than she (8-6). She is trying for another title there right this moment.
4. Locals fans were cheated out of seeing this top-notch defensive cornerback perform his senior year, because of a knee injury suffered prior to his final season with the Steers. One of the all-time top competitors in BSHS history, he currently works for a local car dealer.

Mike Coleman wins National Junior Championship

By the Associated Press.
Mike Coleman of Ackerly, Texas, competed in the 18th U.S. International Championships of Clay Pigeon in San Antonio, Texas, from June 21 through the 24th. This competition was by invitation only. That is, a person had to participate in a Zone Shoot of five, or six states grouped together and win one or more of these Zone Shoots to receive an invitation to the final tryouts in San Antonio.

Mike won the National Junior Championship again this year. This makes three years that Mike has earned this title. He has one more year that he will be eligible to compete as a Junior. This is the first time in the history of the event that one person has won Junior Championship for three years.

Mike qualified for the Open Team in Clay Pigeon in 1976 as well as claiming the Junior title. This was the youngest age that anyone has ever qualified for the open team in this event.

This year, Mike missed the open team by two targets. The competition was very strong this year. The shoot was a hundred targets a day for four days. On the second day of the match, Mike shot 100 out of 100 clay pigeons. This was the first time for a Junior to break a 100 straight. Not very many 100 straights have ever been broken in the open competition. The fourth day, the 100 competitors were cut to 48. Mike shot a total of 389 out of the 490 targets.

Mike tied the existing Junior World Record in Clay Pigeon at the Confederation of the Americas in Mexico City, Mexico, with a score of 192 out of 200. He holds the National Junior Record in the U.S. with a score of 195 out of 200 clay pigeons.

The 5th of July, Mike is supposed to return to San Antonio for ten days of Olympic training. The 24th of July through the 30th, he is to go to the Olympic Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, Colorado, where he will compete again. Then in the spring of 1979, he will be going back to Mexico City to compete in the Benito Juarez Championship Shoot.

In the news...

JIM BROWN, former pro football great turned actor, was sentenced to a day in jail and fined $500 Wednesday for beating and choking a golfing partner on a South Los Angeles course last October.

Inglewood Municipal Judge WARDELL MOSS placed Brown on two years' probation in suspending a 90-day jail term.

The 6-3, 230-pound Brown got into an argument with golf pro FRANK SNOW, 33, over the placement of Snow's ball on the ninth hole at the Western Avenue Golf Course last Oct. 18, Jordan said.

Brown slapped the 185-pound, 5-foot-11 Snow and punched him in the ribs, then grabbed him by the throat, Jordan said during the trial.

Brown denied it on the witness stand, and defense witnesses claimed Snow had threatened Brown first with a raised golf club and that Brown had only pushed Snow away from him.

The two men had been golfing partners for years.

On May 10 in a non-jury trial, Moss handed down a misdemeanor battery conviction against the 42-year-old movie actor, formerly a Syracuse University All-American and the star fullback for the Cleveland Browns pro football team.

Former Baltimore Colts star quarterback JOHNNY UNITAS lost a court bid Wednesday to stop distribution of a book he claims is being promoted through unauthorized use of his portrait on the dustjacket.

Unitas, now living in Lutherville, Md., claimed his civil rights were violated by Hawthorn Books, Inc., which put out the book entitled, "The Thrill of Victory: The Inside Story of ABC Sports."

In denying a request by Unitas to enjoin distribution of the book, U.S. District Judge ROBERT SWEET ruled that its subject matter was one of "public interest" and therefore did not violate his rights.

"The use of the portrait of Unitas on the dustjacket did not seek to capitalize on his name," the judge said, "but rather was illustrative of a major portion of the subject matter of the book."

TOMMY'S REPLAY

By Tommy Hart

Q. How many of the Dallas Cowboys attended Texas colleges?

A. According to the 1978 Cowboy roster, three Pokes went to Texas schools. Linebacker Guy Brown and running back Robert Newhouse are Houston University products, and defensive end Harvey Martin came out of East Texas State six years ago.

For your information, the state of Tennessee dominates the Cowboy roster with four. There are three Stanford graduates, which leads the individual school total, and as a sidelight, Larry Cole and Golden Richards came the greatest distance to play for the Pokes. They are Hawaii products.

Stones suspended

Former high jump record holder Dwight Stones, Kate Schmidt, Francie Larriue and Jane Frederick may never compete again as amateurs.

Schmidt, a javelin thrower; Larriue, a middle distance runner; Frederick, a pentathlon competitor, and Stones were suspended indefinitely from amateur competition for accepting prize money, the Amateur Athletic Union announced Thursday.

In making the announcement, the Southern Pacific Association of the AAU said the four violated the national AAU code of contracts in accepting a total of $56,000 in prize money for their participation in the ABC television Superstars show. Seven members of the association's nine-man registration committee voted June 23 to suspend the four athletes.

"We sent the athletes and TWI contracts prior to the competition," said Ken Worthen, chairman of the SPA's Registration Committee. "However, TWI and the athletes altered the contracts by adding an amendment which said they maintained the power to give the money they won to the organization of their choice."

Non-conformity will cost Martin his job

NEW YORK (AP) — That was no vote of confidence bestowed on firebrand Billy Martin in his 2½-hour confrontation with his Yankee bosses last Monday. It was a moratorium.

It was a decision by all principals to "cool it" for the remainder of the season. Win, lose or draw in 1978, the Yankees will have a new skipper in 1979 by mutual agreement.

Owner George Steinbrenner and President Al Rosen would like to have Dick Williams. He fits their mold. The question is: How are you going to get Williams away from Montreal without inviting tampering penalties?

There were two keys to the formal 150-word announcement relating to Martin's latest reprieve.

One was the opening sentence: "Billy Martin will remain as manager of the Yankees this year." What about next year? He has another year to go on his $100,000-a-year contract. What if Billy rallies his forces and pulls off another World Series coup?

No matter. He is out. He hinted an out for himself — the second key — when, in discussing his future, he confided to reporters: "There is a health matter. I will have something to say about it later." Next October, maybe?

Martin is a scrappy, highly efficient field general — an ability proven with three other teams which fired him before he came to the Yankees. If his security depended on his managerial genius alone, he could have the New York job for life. It's in other areas — his brawling instincts, a tendency toward arrogance, open defiance of his bosses and sometimes a failure to communicate with his men — that has alienated him with the people who pay his salary.

Martin has been constantly involved in feuds with his players as well as his bosses. There was the almost-coming-to-blows dugout incident with Reggie Jackson a year ago, the quick freeze put on Ken Holtzman and later Rawly Eastwick, the harassment of Mickey Rivers, the airplane tirade against Rivers, Holtzman and Thurman Munson.

Billy's career, both as player and manager, is something that should be preserved in Ring Magazine instead of the Baseball Register.

A cursory perusal of his diary:

Putt Choate: SMU's 'Old Man' (part II)

(Cont. from last week)
"Putt" Choate, the senior linebacker from Southern Methodist University, talked about his past glories and current endeavors last week in this space.

This week, the All-State product from Coahoma explains his good relations with the Dallas press, gives advice to the young football player, discusses his post-college plans and furnishes a few other personal insights in the conclusion of this revealing interview.

SPEAKING of Sports
with Danny Reagan

REAGAN: Offensive players usually get the headlines. Was it much of an ego buster going from offensive glory in high school to relative defensive anonymity in college, although the press around Dallas has given you quite a bit of coverage for a defensive player? Also, why do you think that is so?

CHOATE: "It was a letdown at first because I had planned on going to college and being an offensive player. That's why I went to SMU, because they told me I would be a wishbone fullback. And I got there, and before I ever hit the field, I was moved to defense.

"That was a big letdown. But as far as most defensive players go, linebackers and defensive backs nowadays get the majority of publicity, and at SMU, on the defense, I do get the most. Mainly because I have been there for a while and I have good relations with the press.

"I'm not afraid to speak out, and I've said a few things to the press that I've gotten in trouble for later on. I've been called on the carpet for it, but like I said, I'll tell you if I hate somebody, I'll tell you what I think, because I'm my own man, and I guess they sense that.

"And I'd like to think that I'm a half-intelligent football player, who is a little more interesting to interview than someone who sits there and goes 'duh.' And there are a lot of those guys around.

"Also, I want my actions to speak for me. I'm not ashamed to say I'm a good weight-lifter. I'm a very good football player. And I'm a hard worker. And the hard work is why I've gotten where I am."

REAGAN: Do you have any interests outside the athletic world that occupy your free time... like reading, writing, stamp collecting, whatever?

CHOATE: "Besides weight-lifting, which is my biggest hobby, which I spend most of my time doing... (a total of two hours a day after work), I like to read... novels, paperbacks, anything like that.

"I like to read a good book at home at night. I also go to movies to relax. Just anything that can take my mind away."

"I'm not afraid to speak out, and I've said a few things to the press that I've gotten in trouble for later on."

"They can't dedicate themselves to going out and getting drunk every Friday night."

"There's never been a time when I thought 'Now, I wish I was doing something else.'"

REAGAN: Has there ever been a time in your life when you've regretted pursuing an athletic career that requires so much physical exertion, and is time-consuming as well?

CHOATE: "There's never been a time when I thought 'Naw, I wish I was doing something else', because all of my life, from the first time I saw a professional game on TV, I told my parents, 'That's what I want to do.' And it's stuck with me.

"Time-consuming... in college, it puts a big burden on you for your grades, because you're tired... you're beat when you go home, you don't want to study. And that's the only burden it's placed upon me.

"Other than that, it's my chosen profession and I love it. There's nothing else I can say."

REAGAN: For the young football player coming up from elementary or junior high, who is sincerely interested in becoming a top-notch player, what bit of advice do you have for such a youngster?

CHOATE: "Hard work is the biggest factor. I guess you've noticed that I'm a big believer in hard work. You have to decide what you have to do. Maybe not that young, but for instance, I started really dedicating myself to football when I was a sophomore in high school.

"I played in junior high on my physical ability because I was bigger than everyone else. But when I got into high school as a freshman, I got killed, and I decided to do something about it."

"They should also listen to people who are older, listen to advice, and work. Most high school coaches know what they are talking about, a lot of them don't, but what can you say about that?"

"As a matter of fact, I'm working with some high school kids in the afternoons. They come out to my house and lift weights with me, because they want to learn, so I'll teach 'em. And they have to dedicate themselves to it.

"They can't dedicate themselves to going out and getting drunk every Friday night. They have to dedicate themselves to lifting weights when everyone else is out raising hell. Or running, when everyone else is out raising hell."

REAGAN: What are your plans after college?

CHOATE: "As of right now, I have an excellent chance of playing professional ball. I've been in contact with several teams. Of course, all the scouts have come out, and I've run for them and weighed and that kind of thing.

"And there are a few that have been in a little bit closer contact. If I half get the chance, I'm going to play pro ball. Like I told you earlier, that's been my life's ambition... for the pleasure of it, the prestige, as well as the monetary gains.

"If something happens though, and that doesn't come about, I'll graduate from SMU with a bachelor's in Business Administration, with certificates in Finance and Real Estate. And I'll at least have a 3.2 when I graduate, so I'll probably be on the Dean's list.

"I know I can do something. I can get a job. And I grew up on a ranch. I know I can work with my hands. I'm not going to starve."

"I know I can do something. I can get a job. And I grew up on a ranch. I know I can work with my hands. I'm not going to starve."

Changeless Wimbledon, the dowager Queen

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Wimbledon, dowager queen of all tennis tournaments. Austere. Changeless. Stuffy. Proud. A green-carpeted anachronism.

Now she reels from the heady wine of the modern boom. The question everyone asks: can she maintain her dignity? Can she survive?

She is choking from the glut of success.

The aisles dividing her 15 lush grass courts are now clogged with humanity. Every day it's wall-to-wall people on the rich acres along Old Church Road.

Thousands queue up for tickets, wait patiently in all kinds of weather, pay $2.50 to get into the grounds and never see a ball hit with a racket.

"It's like trying to stuff a quart into a half-pint bottle," said one blue-coated committeeman of the All-England Tennis and Croquet Club, shaking his head. "I don't know what will be the outcome."

On Wednesday, the third day of the tournament, 38,290 poured through the gates. With less than 25,000 seats in the center court (priced at $9, sold out for months), stadium and field court areas, more than 10,000 were immobilized.

Many of them stood — packed like sardines — just outside the southwest hall, blinking at changes on an electric scoreboard.

They cheered wildly as the scores changed. They strained for a look at one of the stars — a Bjorn Borg, an Ilie Nastase, a Chris Evert or Billie Jean King — elbowing their way into the dressing rooms.

"I touched him — I touched Vilas," a teen-age girl screamed in delight after Guillermo Vilas, the popular Argentine, lost a third-round match to Holland's Tom Okker. Giggling, stampeding teen-agers infest the place.

This week there have been queues of anxious spectators stretching for more than a mile and half. Scores of them spent an all-night vigil.

On Thursday, 27,000 fans battled their way into the premises only to be drenched by an all-day rain. They never despaired. Not a shot was played. There were no refunds.

One man spent close to $12 in cab fare, waited for hours and finally got into the premises around 6 p.m. "I just hoped to see Borg hit a shot," he said. He didn't begrudge the taxi fare or the $2.50 admission, on which there was no rain check.

"It's the English syndrome," said Ted Tinling, noted designer who has seen every Wimbledon since 1927. "This is an excursion for them. The punishment they take is part of the excitement."

"It's three things for them — a picnic, an event and an excursion. The pain they endure is part of the package."

The picnic is the traditional strawberries and cream, served on the lawns beneath thatched umbrellas.

Tea and strawberries have been as much a part of Wimbledon as the tightly strung rackets, constantly in the process of evolution, and the tennis ball, forever white.

The rest of the world, Australia a faraway exception, has turned to clay and a variety of artificial surfaces but Wimbledon has stuck steadfastly to grass.

The surface on center court is like a luxurious carpet used only two weeks in the year.

There has been little change in the game here since an English major named Walter C. Wingfield invited some guests over for a lawn party and unveiled a new game which he called "sphairistiké," later to be known as lawn tennis.

The rest of the tennis world has converted to tennis balls of "optic yellow" — one can see them better — but staid old Wimbledon still adheres to the traditional white, in balls and in apparel.

Rule 10 specifies that "except for a cardigan pullover sweater or headwear, competitors must be dressed predominantly in white throughout. Should they appear in unsuitable attire they will be scratched."

The rule has been a source of controversy between Wimbledon and Tinling, now of Philadelphia, who has designed most of the dresses for the women players, for decades.

In 1949 Teddy outfitted "Gorgeous Gussy" Moran in sexy lace panties. Wimbledon's hierarchy was thrown into panic. The panties were white — there was no rule against lace.

Gussy played and became a household word. In 1955, Tinling introduced Italy's Lea Pericola in a pink petticoat and two years later designed gold lame panties for Florida's pretty Karol Fageros.

Britain's vigilant press raised a voice of indignation. Tinling discreetly covered Karol's gold panties with white lace. He left Signorina Pericola's pink petticoat showing.

Wimbledon's straight-laced brass acted in predictable fashion, saying stiffly: "The All-England Club does not concern itself with ladies' underwear."

Hot air does rise

DALLAS (AP) — Like ideas drifting through an open mind, 13 hot air balloons floated effortlessly across the Dallas sky Saturday in what had been billed as the "Great Dallas Balloon Race."

But for the pilots, who came from as far away as North Carolina, the race was simply another opportunity to navigate their brightly colored crafts above the envious looks of the spectators.

"It's like being able to walk across the sky," said Portis Woolley, a former member of the U.S. team that captured the World Championship in 1975.

Woolley, a Dallas native who now makes his home in Statesville, N.C., said it's the peacefulness and the camaraderie of ballooning that attracts new participants to the sport.

Mariners on a sea of air, pilots navigate their balloons by choosing different wind speeds and directions at various altitudes in order to steer toward their target.

The huge balloons, some stretching 75 feet, dance soundlessly on the wind, with only the occasional roar of burning propane to break the silence.

To a very large degree they are hitchhikers on the wind with only limited control over their destination.

As Woolley guided his craft across the skies of north Dallas he explained the skill involved in that little bit of control is what sets balloonists apart.

"It's accuracy, not speed that counts in balloon racing," said Woolley.

The lead balloon, called the hare, lifts off first. The other balloons, the hounds, then chase the lead balloon and the winner is the pilot who lands closest to the hare when it sits down.

Ronny Long, an aeronaut from Grand Prairie, says ballooning is a rapidly growing sport in Texas. He said there are now about 10 balloonists in Dallas and perhaps 50 in the state.

For Long and Woolley ballooning is both fun and profit. Woolley spends five months each year traveling to races around the country. He also works for a company that specializes in advertising with balloons.

"A lot of people are attracted to ballooning because it's a sport in which the average man can go out and fly," said Woolley.

All-American center joins the Hawks

Howard College Hawk Coach Harold Wilder today announced the commitment of another top Texas high school basketball to the Hawk program next season. Charles Long, 18, out of Pinkston High School in Dallas, is the latest addition to the Hawk armament for next year, and he promises to be a sizeable addition. Long stands 6'5" and weighs 185 pounds. He averaged 25.2 points per game for his alma mater, including 12 rebounds per game in those total stats. Long and his team went 25-3 last year, defeating the likes of state champs Houston Wheatley 97-82 and Houston-Kashmere on the following night.

CHARLES LONG

Long has played against the best talent in the state, including one matchup against James Griffin of Ft. Worth-Dunbar. Griffin was considered the best center in the state, and went to Illinois, but on that night Long held him to six points while scoring 43 of his team's 56 total.

Other accolades for the youth include being named Sophomore of the Year in his

Saturday baseball

McCovey continues rampage

ATLANTA (AP) — Willie McCovey smashed his 501st career home run and Terry Whitfield had a three-run double in an eight-run fifth inning outburst as the San Francisco Giants downed the Atlanta Braves 15-4 Saturday night.

Jack Clark hit his fourth home run in two nights, a three-run blast in the eighth inning, when the Giants scored five times. It was his 13th of the year.

McCovey, who cracked his historic 500th homer Friday night, hit his eighth of the season in the first inning, a two-run shot over the right field fence after Whitfield had walked. It came off Atlanta started Adrian Devine, 5-4.

The Giants put the game out of reach with the fifth-inning rally when they sent 12 batters to the plate, collecting six hits and three walks.

Orioles beat BoSox

BALTIMORE (AP) — Larry Harlow's single drove home Terry Crowley with the winning run as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Boston Red Sox 3-2 for their second consecutive 11th-inning victory Saturday night.

Mike Torrez, 11-4, who went the distance for Boston, battled back from a 3-0 count with the bases filled before Harlow lined a 3-2 pitch to center field.

Doug DeCinces, who cracked a two-run homer in the fifth after contributing to a Boston run with a bobbled in the top of the same inning, drew a walk to open the inning.

Terry Crowley then hit a bouncer through the middle and Torrez shied away from the ball, apparently thinking that second baseman Jerry Remy could convert it into a double play. But the ball got thru for single, sending DeCinces to third, and an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Ellie Hendricks loaded the bases. Pinch-hitter Lee May then hit into a force at the plate.

YOUNG IDEAS

Clubhouse Confidential

MARVIN WEBSTER could be Knicks' center soon. Sonny Werblin met Tuesday with agent Larry Fleischer and 7-footer to see what it will take to get Webster to depart Seattle... Yankee payroll now $3.7 million. In 1955, total salary of defending champion Indians was $445,000—and that included likes of Lemon, Wynn, Garcia, Feller, Rosen, Vic Wertz, Larry Doby, Ralph Kiner.

Catcher Earl Williams, out of job, puts ad in N.Y. Times saying he's available, and dedicated. Expos, desperate for backup catcher, send him three wires. Charley Fox dispatches Kevin McHale to talk to Williams' mother, who relays interest of Expos to her son. Montreal doesn't hear word; signs Ed Herrmann to catch. What's with this Earl Williams?

Rod Carew so upset by contract difficulties, he's batting mere .350 or so... AL West looks like division that will go begging, like 1973 NL East, when Mets won by playing three games over 500... Shouldn't somebody give lots of credit to Spec Richardson, who rode out rough times in San Francisco, but built pitching staff that is surprise of bigs... Lee Mazzilli really creamed homer off Don Robinson. "Did you hit it good?" Doug Flynn asked him. Said Lee: "If there had been anybody in the seat where it landed, I'd been arrested for manslaughter"...

Swedes Popular in Europe
Here's why Rangers won't sign Rogie Vachon for goal. He's type of free agent who'd require compensation to L.A. team he's leaving. If it goes to arbitration, Rangers might lose Anders Hedberg. They don't care to risk that... Since signing their two Swede-hearts, Hedberg and Nilsson, fan mail has been pouring into Rangers' office from Poland, Finland, Czechoslovakia and, of course, Sweden, requesting souvenir pins and medallions, which go big in Europe. Rangers don't deal in such items, so are shipping decals and team pix instead.

I haven't noticed that Ed Bell and Les Hudson, new advisors to Leon Spinks, have changed anything, except he's getting arrested more often. Charged that he was being harassed in St. Louis is shot down by fact Leon is busted wherever he goes. I find it hard to believe entire nation is conspiring against him.

Yankee-Boston games must be the living end. Most of them have been ending ten-four lately... Til Ferdenzi, leaving NBC publicity, will handle consultant work in all sports... Reggie Jackson growled loudly at some crowd-jacking newsmen in clubhouse after game. Sparty Lyle smiled at the histrionics and shouted, "Hey, Reggie, what time does Act Two go on?"... Gerry Cooney, now 12-and-0 with 12 kayoes, ready to move into tougher competition among heavyweights. He turns off many experts because he looks flashy, but he sure can wallop. If his hands hold up he'll be contender.

Instead of loading up L.A.'s Olympic organizing committee with politicians and Hollywood movie types, Mayor Bradley should appoint bright ex-athletes like Rafe Johnson and Glenn Davis... Nancy Sciaccia, first woman to be licensed as boxing promoter in N.Y. State, trying to get 69th Reg. Army on Lex for July show... St. John's returns to varsity football for first time since 1931 (Div. III level, no scholarships), and who do you suppose will do announcing honors on opening day? Bob Shepard, Yankee P.A. man who quarterbacked that '31 team.

Catfish Frustrates Thurman
Thurman Munson, on failure of Catfish Hunter's comeback: "I get so frustrated, I wonder if I'm calling the right pitches for him"... When he heard of Pete Rose filing for divorce, Ralph Kiner, who lived it, exclaimed: "Cripe, another fortune split in half"... After blasting grand-slam homer that saved Yanks from being blitzed in Boston, Fred Stanley said: "I love to beat Zimmer. He was my manager in San Diego. Good guy. I respect him." I suppose that makes sense if you read it three or four times.

Carl Yastrzemski, a guy who never lost his style, still crashing walls, still making diving catches at 39. Why? "You never know in Fenway Park. You have to go for the outs. If you don't, if you play it safe, first thing you know, they got a big inning started."

Trouble with heavyweight division these days, they're either driving without a license or shooting without a license... King-Arum-MSG thing is this: King and Arum have best fighters tied up on long term contracts. Garden, with prime arena, will co-promote with both men. Teddy Brenner remains as prez of MSG Boxing. Given big raise... Hilarius bit with Boomer Scott and ump Tom Haller. Scott beefed on what he thought was ball 4, then blasted 3-2 pitch for homer. Touching home, he said, "Take that, Haller!" Ump followed him a few steps past plate, called him a "hot dog." Says Scott: "I wanted to turn and say that makes two of us, but I know if I did, I was gone"... See you in two weeks.

McCovey hits 500th homer; just relieved

ATLANTA (AP) — Willie McCovey joined an elite corps when he smashed the 500th home run of his career, but expressed only a feeling of relief, not elation, over the feat.

"I'm glad it's over," the 40-year-old San Francisco Giants' slugger said Friday night after becoming baseball's 12th player to reach the 500 homer plateau when he connected on an 0-2 slider from Atlanta's Jamie Easterly in the second inning of the opener of a two-night doubleheader.

"It was more of a relief than a thrill to get it over with," McCovey said in a soft voice that showed no emotion.

"I was kind of anxious to get it behind me so we can concentrate on a more important thing — the pennant race," he added.

The Giants took a blow in that regard Friday night as the Braves swept the doubleheader 10-9 and 10-5, overcoming a 6-1 deficit in the opener.

McCovey's seventh homer of the year was an opposite field shot for the left-handed hitter, a 350-foot blow over the left field fence.

"I wasn't sure until it went out," he said. "I knew I hit it pretty good but the fact I hit it to the opposite direction, I just wasn't sure."

His Giant teammates poured out of the dugout to greet him at the plate, but there was only a brief ovation from an Atlanta crowd accustomed to milestone homers, having witnessed in previous years the 600th, 700th and record-setting 715th by the Braves' Hank Aaron.

Colorado City tourney pends

COLORADO CITY — An area slow-pitch softball tournament, sponsored by the Jaycees, will be held in Colorado City August 4, 5 and 6. According to Jaycee Woody Anderson, any team in this West Texas area is invited to participate, however, "we will be limited to 15 out-of-town entries on a first-come, first-serve registration basis."

Anderson said, "There will be one team from Colorado City. Players in our Local Church Softball League will vote on an All-Star team to fill the final slot in the 16-team double-elimination tournament."

Games will be played at Hertenburger Field, considered to be one of the best softball facilities in West Texas, and at the new softball field just completed by the Jaycees adjacent to Hertenburger Field.

Team trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers, with individual trophies for the individual members of the championship team.

Deadline for entries is July 21st. Information on the first annual Jaycee Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament is available from Woody Anderson, (915) 728-5720, Colorado City.

'Little Flyin' at Ruidoso

"Little Flyin", a filly owned by Tom S. Neff of Colorado City, will race in the 14th running of the 1978 Rainbow Derby to be held at Ruidoso Downs Race Track Monday.

"Little Flyin" is a 10-1 shot, and finished 2nd in the 10th Division.

Aaron is the game's all-time home run leader with 755. Others with 500 or more are Babe Ruth at 714, Willie Mays 660, Frank Robinson 586, Harmon Killebrew 573, Mickey Mantle 536, Jimmy Foxx 534, Ted Williams 521, Eddie Mathews and Ernie Banks 512 each and Mel Ott 511. Mays and Ott also played for the Giants.

Robinson was the last to reach the 500 mark, belting his on Sept. 13, 1971.

"It was a slider, high and away," said Easterly, a southpaw. "The 500th really didn't bother me. It didn't matter whether it was his first or his 341st or 500th."

Aeros' future still shaky

HOUSTON (AP) — The World Hockey Association Houston Aeros have been cliff-dwellers since the close of the 1978 season, hanging onto life by their finger tips. The financially strapped franchise likely would have been a bleach-boned carcass at the bottom of the canyon by now had it not been for the tireless efforts of Kenneth Schnitzer, the majority owner. The death knell was forecast once again Thursday when Schnitzer called a news conference one day after the WHA and NHL broke off merger talks and a move by Schnitzer to bring the NHL Colorado Rockies here had failed. Since all efforts to enter the NHL had apparently failed and Schnitzer had said many times he would not be a part of the WHA next season, speculation was high that the two-time WHA champions would fold. Instead, Schnitzer announced the Aeros had applied to enter the NHL as an expansion team and if that failed, there still was a remote chance of getting the Rockies here and if that failed, they might even play in the WHA next season. The Aeros offered the NHL $2.5 million plus an indemnity against any possible litigation from the WHA to let them compete in the NHL next season. The NHL Board of Governors has not acted on the application, Schnitzer said. Although the Rockies reportedly have been sold to a New Jersey group, Schnitzer feels there still is a chance the Rockies could come to Houston. The NHL Board of Governors must approve any sale of the Rockies. The Rockies apparently were headed for Houston on Monday when Schnitzer called a news conference and then suddenly canceled it. "We obviously thought we had a deal, but it never got to the point of signatures on the dotted line," Schnitzer said. Schnitzer said the Arena Operating Company, which operates the Summit, had made the Rockies "an outstandingly attractive offer for a lease in the Summit, as well as an option to obtain an interest in the Arena Operating Company."

Carner praises Lopez

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The success of 21-year-old rookie Nancy Lopez is the greatest thing that ever happened to women's golf, tour veteran JoAnne Carner said Friday during practice for Saturday's start of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Carner, the winner of 20 official LPGA tournaments since joining the tour in 1970, is the tour's second-leading money winner this year. But her $57,493 is less than half the earnings of Lopez, who has claimed $131,128 in prizes with victories in seven tournaments.

"She (Lopez) is doing what every rookie dreamed of doing when they joined the tour," said Carner, the winner of the Peter Jackson Classic in Toronto, Canada, in June.

Rangers are tight; give Angels a tie

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The American League West baseball race can't get much closer. The way things are going, the leader may soon have lost as many games as it has won.

Lyman Bostock drove in two runs with a pair of singles off Bump Wills' glove Friday night to give California a 4-2 victory over Texas and move the Angels into a virtual tie for the top spot with the Rangers.

It was California's fourth straight victory, coming on the heels of a five-game losing streak, and left the Angels with a percentage of .526 compared to the Rangers' .527.

With the season approaching the halfway mark, both teams are just four games above the .500 mark.

Kansas City is only a game out of first place and Oakland is in fourth place, just two games back, despite a .500 record.

"I got used to this kind of race at Minnesota," said Bostock, who signed with the Angels during the off-season after playing out his option with the Twins. "It's a lot easier to come to the park when you're fighting for the lead."

Bostock, who raised his average to .287, singled in a run off second baseman Wills' glove in the second inning. Rick Miller came home to score when the ball rolled into right field.

Texas tied the score in the fourth when an error by third baseman Dave Machemer permitted Mike Hargrove to score after a single and Bert Campaneris' sacrifice bunt.

Bostock hit another run-scoring single off Wills' glove in the seventh, putting the Angels ahead 2-1. Brian Downing scored the run that put California ahead to stay when Bostock's hit deflected off Wills' glove into center field.

The Angels put the game away with two more runs in the eighth inning in a rally keyed by Miller's RBI single.

There were some scary moments for California in the top of the ninth. Richie Zisk led off with a single, but Angels' starter Don Aase, 5-4, then retired Bobby Bonds and John Lowenstein on fly balls. However, Texas loaded the bases on walks to Jim Sundberg and Toby Harrah.

Dyar Miller replaced Aase at that point and John Ellis hit his first pitch for a run-scoring single, making it 4-2. Dave La-Roche then came on and struck out Hargrove to end the game.

Ferguson traded to LA

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros traded catcher Joe Ferguson to the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday. The Astros said in return, they would receive two unspecified players from Los Angeles at a later date.

with the Astros since November 1976 when he came from the St. Louis Cardinals.

He began his career with the Dodgers in 1968 and played seven years with Los Angeles before being traded to the Cardinals midway through the 1976 season.

Ferguson plans to fly to Cincinnati Friday night to join the Dodgers in time for Sunday's game there.

Ferguson batted .207, had seven home runs and 22 runs batted in this year, and last year averaged .257 with 16 homers with 61 RBIs.

Chi Sox get a new manager

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Larry Doby has found both pleasure and pain in being named manager of the Chicago White Sox.

"It's so nice to work for a man like Bill Veeck," Doby said after being named by the Chicago owner to replace Bob Lemon at the helm of the White Sox Friday.

"You just work as hard as you can, and if the opportunity arises, you will certainly get the opportunity to fulfill your dreams."

Doby, a friend of Lemon's since the two played with Cleveland in the late 1940s, said he had mixed emotions about taking over the club.

"I was surprised and saddened to a certain degree," said Doby, 53. "Bob and I have been friends for quite a number of years. Although it's a happy moment for me it's still not as happy as you would like for it to be."

Only hours after Veeck had dismissed Lemon, the two sat in the press room at Metropolitan Stadium, drinking beer and chatting as they waited for the White Sox to meet the Twins.

July fishable

By Danny Reagan

Saying goodbye to June may be the same as saying hello to better fishing in area lakes.

Believe it or not, fish like to be out and about during the same time of year that it's most pleasant for human beings to be on the water. I guess that's why early fall is so good for black bass. How many people do you know that think Indian Summer is the best time of the year?

Summer is a little too hot for a lot of people and a lot of fish. But you have to hide behind a tree to bait a hook early in the morning during July when the weather's good. Otherwise, they'll be jumping out of the water to grab it.

I'm not saying it's going to be easy in July to bring in the big ones, but the first rule of thumb is to fish those same early and late hours. That doesn't come from any fishing bible. The blacks do bite in the heat of the day.

Remember, most of what you've read about bass fishing came from guys on the east coast or crackers from the deep south. You and I know that bass fishing in West Texas, just like anything else, is very different from everywhere else.

We live in the Sun Belt. Those solar flares seem to zero in on this small area of the country, playing havoc with everything from CB reception to black bass fishing. And wind? Who can ignore the wind?

Rick Clunn's book, "World Championship Bass Fishing" is still the best book I've seen that best describes the conditions in Texas.

High winds and sudden thunderstorms in July can drastically affect the surface temperatures of lakes. And surface temperatures that can vary several degrees accordingly, are what turn bass on and off. And as I've mentioned before, there's nothing that bugs a bunch of bass more than water that raises or drops quickly in level or temperature.

You gotta hang loose in July. Fish every spot that you find. Throw everything in the book at them. Look for a pattern for the time you are on the water. If you're lucky, you'll hook into enough fish to find this pattern. With diligence, you can find one.

Start in the shallows with crankbaits, smarties, topwaters. Then move out. Try some deep divers, not too long though. Then, to go spinnerbaits, leadheads, and for me plastic worms as a last resort.

Make sure you have a lot of time to spend on the lake you choose in July. The gray days of spring spawning and not so hot June (hah!) are gone. From now on, you have to work hard for your fish until autumn gets here.

MOSS CREEK

The hot weather and wind is keeping many fishermen away, according to LaVerne Byers. "Friday was the first nice day we've had all week," she said.

Two big six-pound catfish were pulled in Thursday night on big minnows, though, and there have been a few walleye caught. "But the bass are still not hitting," LaVerne explains.

The big news out there is that the City has been making improvements all week — "It's really looking good out here" — and the Texas Parks and Wildlife people came by Thursday and said they would stock the lake with 50,000 more walleye in October.

LAKE SPENCE

Striped bass were by far the most numerous in catches reported at Lake Spence last week. Some channel catfish and a few white and black bass were reported. Stripers ranged up to 14 and 15 pounds, but most were in the intermediate range.

Reports from various concession points included:

Paint Creek Marina — Ronnie Burrow, Denver City, and Bob Sparks, Brownfield, and party, 24 strippers up to 5½ lbs.; Matt Levassens, Odessa, a 5½-lb. striper; Roy and Edith Rowe and party from Lubbock, 28 strippers to 15 lbs.; Charles Vansickle, Snyder, a 3½-lb. black bass; Gary Etkinson and party from Lubbock, five strippers to 5 lbs.; Lonnie Nuse and family, Midland, 23 strippers to 5½ lbs.; Brad Schoel, Westminster, Colo., a 6-lb. striper; Charles McCain and party from Midland, four strippers to 5 lbs.; Manuel Reyes and party, Bronte, 17 channel catfish to 2½ lbs. and 6-lb. striper.

Wildcat Fish A Rama — Cecil Sudduter and party, Winters, 35 strippers to 14 lbs.; eight white bass to ¾ lbs.; Harry London and party, Winters, 40 strippers to 8 lbs.; Dr. Robert Hampton and Brully Hampton of Sweetwater, nine strippers to 6¼ lbs.

JUST HANG LOOSE July 15 'Catchable'

JUST FISHIN' — Daniel Sanchez of Midland finds the restful waters of Moss Creek to his liking recently as he put out a few lines from the shores of "The Valley" on the south side of the lake. Picknickers and campers, as well as fishermen, are finding the full lake a source of holiday pleasure. Large crowds are expected at the lake during the July Fourth long weekend.

Cats can cure 'slump'

AUSTIN — Baseball players aren't the only ones who go into a "midsummer slump."

Fish do, too. As the dog days of summer arrive, largemouth bass which were so robust and rambunctious for the spring spawn seem to become reclusive, seeking cool refuge in deeper holes and usually sneering at proffered lures.

Bass, walleye, crappie, striped bass and a number of other fish seem to get lazy when water temperatures soar, but one species seems to revel in the balmy, soup-warm summer waters.

Channel catfish can put some pep into a dull summer fishing program for the fisherman who gears up properly to catch him, in the opinion of Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Paul Seidensticker of Jasper.

The best part about channel catfishing, Seidensticker believes, is that they are easy to catch if you bait a "hole" properly and fish with a sufficiently smelly bait. "Catfish are omnivorous, which means they eat just about anything they can find or catch," said Seidensticker, "and they locate their food primarily by their sense of smell."

To take advantage of this characteristic, you first should accumulate some milo, cottonseed cake, blood, soured corn or canned dog food with which to bait a hole.

Be sure to "sour" any grain or corn you intend to use as bait or chum, because if not soured the grains will swell in the fishes' stomachs and cause them to stop biting.

Changes in Warden training

AUSTIN — When about 25 new Texas Parks & Wildlife Department game warden cadets report for training school here this September, they will encounter vastly different conditions from the first school assembled in 1946.

A new air conditioned training-dormitory complex awaits this year's class, and while not hotel-plush, the rooms are double-occupancy and attractive.

The cadets earn $906 per month plus meal allowance while in school for the four-month course, and upon graduation they will receive a fully equipped car with full complement of communications and law enforcement equipment.

They will start their careers as game wardens at $936 per month salary, and get $1,068 per month after six months of field service.

When the first official warden school convened at Texas A&M College, the cadet recruits had to come up with the same tuition as other A&M students, although some had their tuition paid under the G.I. Bill.

Can of worms

Outdoor shorts

Water temperature plays an important role in fish behavior. Because they are cold-blooded creatures they are more sluggish and feed less frequently when water is cold, becoming more active as water temperatures increase. Water that is too warm, however, has an opposite effect. Many species seek deeper water and are more difficult to locate and catch.

The largest poisonous snake is the Indian king cobra. This critter can attain a length of 18 feet and when angered can be a formidable adversary. Snake charmers make a living wooing cobras with dulcet flute music and end up their acts by kissing them on their flat heads. But Cobras are as tone deaf as a rock.

Every person on board your boat must have an approved personal flotation device (PFD) within easy reach or be wearing it. In 1971, 1,472 persons drowned in the United States and 46 percent of those had PFD's on board but not in use.

Public views sought

AUSTIN — Public agencies, organizations and individual citizens will be receiving questionnaires in the next few weeks asking for their opinions on the state's outdoor recreation problems, issues and needs.

The Comprehensive Planning Branch of the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department stresses that response to the questionnaires from the public is a vital part of formulating the 1980 Texas Outdoor Recreation Plan (TORP).

Charles Branton, branch head, said the TORP guides the expenditure of federal, state and local government funds as well as money from private enterprise in providing parks and recreation areas throughout Texas.

"Since 1965, the plan has guided the expenditure of $144 million for acquiring and developing over 500 parks in Texas, and this year TORP-guided expenditures should exceed $25 million," Branton said.

Branton said three main groups will receive the questionnaires:

—Private citizens selected at random from drivers' license records.

—Agencies which received the 1975 TORP.

FOUR FISHING TIPS

Here are some proven ideas from Mercury outdoors' outdoor recreation department that will be helpful to any angler.

1. Many boats have live wells with a self-draining feature to circulate fresh water.

That's fine until you move the boat, and then all the water is siphoned out of the well. End this problem by whittling a cork plug to fill the drain hole.

Push it in place when you're ready to move to a new spot; pull it out when the boat is not moving.

Leave the plug in the live well and it'll never be lost.

2. Small jars of fingernail polish can make a difference in your fishing luck.

Carried in a tackle box, various colors of nail polish can be applied to a lure to change its appearance and make it more appealing to fish.

The Mercury fishing staff has a selection of silver, red, white and several other shades which they frequently use.

3. Small boat fishermen are often forgetful and start running while a stringer of fish is still over the side.

Cure the memory lapse by tying an extra length of cord to the end of the stringer and then attaching the line to the tiller handle of your outboard.

You'll be reminded of the stringer each time you touch the tiller handle.

4. If you like to keep a variety of lures handy in a small boat, cut a 12-inch-square of rubber-backed, all-weather carpet and glue it to the inside hull near your seat. You'll be able to push hooks into the fabric and remove them without difficulty.

Before You Invest
The Big Spring Herald does everything possible to keep those columns free of misleading, unscrupulous or fraudulent advertising. When a fraudulent ad is discovered in any paper in the country, we usually learn of it in time to refuse the same ad in our paper. However, it is impossible to screen all ads as thoroughly as we would like to, so we urge our readers to check THOROUGHLY any propositions requiring investment.

Howard Hughes' Goose

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Howard Hughes' Spruce Goose is being evicted from its air-conditioned roost in Long Beach Harbor to make way for a marine fuel operation, a port official says.

Long Beach Harbor chief James H. McJunkin said over the weekend that Summa Corp.'s $100,000-a-year lease on the specially built T-shaped hangar would be continued on a month-to-month basis for up to a year while a new home is found for the flying boat — the largest plane ever built.

The 220-foot-long plywood plane designed by Hughes has flown only once — with Hughes at the controls. It rose to an altitude of 70 feet for one mile over Long Beach Harbor in November 1947.

Satellite to eye oceans

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A satellite that will provide detailed surveys of nearly all the world's oceans every 36 hours is to be launched tonight from Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Alan Wood, spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory, described the $95-million Seasat A as a new breed of satellite, the first to take measurements exclusively with remote microwave sensors.

Wood said the experimental project, funded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will measure winds, currents, temperatures, water vapor in the air, and ice in the water and on the coasts of Greenland, Canada and Alaska.

Former manager of teamsters found convicted

CHICAGO (AP) — Alvin Baron, former assets manager of the Teamsters Central States Pension fund, has been convicted of taking $200,000 in payoffs to arrange a $1.3 million loan from the fund.

A U.S. District Court jury found Baron, 56, of Las Vegas, Nev., guilty on Friday of receiving kickbacks, failing to report bribe money on his federal income tax form and five counts of wire fraud.

Judge Hubert Will set Sept. 15 for sentencing

Baron is subject to imprisonment for up to 31 years and a fine of up to $10,000.

Lawyers for Baron said they would appeal the decision. Baron had no comment.

The prosecution's case in the month-long trial centered around the testimony of California cemetery owner Foy Bryant.

High demand for milk boosts prices in Hopkins County

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — At 4 a.m., Gary Odom's 80 head of dairy cattle strolled across the meadow to the milking barn, their udders filled with milk that would probably bring about $10.71 per 100 pounds on the day's market.

The scene is repeated every day at Hopkins County's 520 dairy farms, although the times may vary a little.

The $10.71 figure is the result of high milk demand and exceeds the federal floor of $9.44.

Because of this improvement, farmers in the nation's largest milk-producing county are smiling a lot. The lunch crowd at the lone barbecue restaurant in downtown Sulphur Springs is jovial — swapping jokes and speculating between mouthfuls of beef, potato salad and, for the adventurous, jalapeno pepper.

Things are good in Hopkins County. But it wasn't always thus.

Shift the scene south a few miles, and turn back the calendar to 1974.

Dairy farmers leveled rifles at calves and shot them, burying the carcasses in bulldozed ditches in a grandstand media play protesting low milk prices. The price back then was around $8.50 per 100 pounds.

"That was just a few guys," Odom said. "Most of us thought it was wrong and still think it was wrong. Management was and is the key to operating a dairy, and if a man is not a good manager he has no business being a dairyman."

The thirtyish Odom is a casting director's stereotype of an East Texas dairy farmer.

His jeans, work shoes, shirt and hat complement red, nearly curly hair. His speech is open and friendly and he drives the required air-conditioned pickup truck, riding high above the ground for easy clearance of obstacles encountered on his 300-acre spread.

"I've been milking cows since I was 2 1/2," Odom said. "I was raised on a dairy and I wouldn't do anything else. It's like being paid to have fun. I drove back and forth to East Texas State University at Commerce (about 50 miles to the north) and milked every day then, too."

Odom paid $134,000 for his land and dairy equipment, more than $70,000 for necessary farm machinery and up to $1,000 for each head of cattle. "I figure that note will be paid when my son is 25," he said. "He's 5 now."

He has a hired hand to do the actual milking, and a high school student helps out. After each milking, the barn must be cleaned and other chores fill in the time until the 3 p.m. milking.

"There's always plenty to do around here, from cutting and baling hay to scraping manure," Odom said.

He belongs to a cooperative that picks up his milk daily, processes it and sells it. He is advanced some money each two weeks, with the rest paid after the milk has been paid for, some 45 days later. "I really couldn't tell you how much I get for a given load of milk on a given day," Odom said.

Inevitably, the discussion turns to the increase in milk prices at the consumer level.

"I really couldn't put my finger on any one thing that's causing that," Odom said. "I think it's probably a matter of everyone involved along the line getting a little bit more money, and I don't think that's wrong either." When the point was pressed, he said the biggest increase is probably at the handler level, which is the super-market or other retailer who sells to the consumer.

"I really didn't even know it had gone up that much," he said. "But people have to understand that the dairy farmer has to work hard and long to get that milk. They have to understand that milk doesn't come from Safeway."

Milk pricing is a maze that originates in the Wisconsin-Minnesota region. Average prices increase with mileage from there, so that milk would cost more in Houston than in Dallas.

Nor is milk sold as a single entity.

Fluid milk is called Class I and fetches the highest price. Milk made into ice cream, condensed milk or other confections is Class II and milk used for cheese is Class III. There is about a $2 per hundred-pound difference in Class I and Class III milk.

Farmers normally grow their own hay, but their cattle's diets must be supplemented with other feeds which are bought, a fact that makes dairymen keep at least one eye on grain markets and futures.

"We have no control over what price we get for our milk," Odom said.

At the co-op plant, office manager Bill White said that the consumption of fluid milk is up. He and Odom agree that school lunch programs and advertising have played a big part in the milk boom.

But with school out, both also expect consumption to decrease.

Odom has a year contract with the co-op and can't sell his milk to anyone else.

He admits that a shortage of raw product is possible, and that could spark a bidding war.

While the government guarantees a minimum, there is no ceiling on how much a handler can pay for milk.

"But there are so many things to consider," Odom said. "A buyer shops around for price, sure, but he has to make sure he's going to get quality product and that he will have a continuing supply of that product."

Health inspectors may drop in at Hopkins County dairy barns at any time, checking items from a three-column, full page of items that must meet standards. State inspections and, in the case of Hopkins County, city of Dallas inspections are also parts of the routine.

Farmers in the county use all five of the milk cow breeds, selecting according to characteristics such as quantity and butterfat content. The higher the butterfat content, the more money the raw milk brings.

You can't judge a book by its cover

By JOHN W. DEATS, COUNTY LIBRARIAN
 "What's in a name? that which we call a rose
 By any other name would smell as sweet."
 —Shakespeare, Romeo and Juliet, Act II, sc. 2, l. 42.
 I sometimes wonder just how much the "packaging" of a book influences its sales success. No doubt, the author's reputation, apparent subject, and eye appeal all contribute, but surely the book's title is important, whether clever or routine, interesting or flat.

Consider a sampling of these recently published books lately added to the library shelves. "One Honest Man: George Mahon," leaves little room for doubt that the book is a biography of the prominent Texas legislator. A more challenging title is "Hermit of Peking: the Hidden Life of Sir Edmund Blackhouse," enough to intrigue many a browser to read on about the famous scholar, forger, and swindler. Some other titles which lure the reader, or so the publisher hopes, are "Shame, Exposure, and Privacy," "Computer Capers," and "Fifth Avenue: a Very Social History," all works of non-fiction. On the other hand, "I Gave Them a Sword" is fairly ambiguous, until one realizes that David Frost is craftily using a direct quote to capture the essence of his interviews with Richard Nixon, for a title which is hard to resist. However, it is in works of fiction that the author has license to startle, scintillate, or seduce the unwary. Few readers of light romance can resist the likes of "New Love for Old," "Wayward Heart," or "Wicked Loving Lies." How about "A Glimpse of Paradise," or do you prefer Capers," and "Fifth Avenue: a Very Social of Apples"? The psychology of the good title fits no formula, for who can say whether "The Second Deadly Sin" became a best seller strictly because of content, or with a little help from a provocative title? Similarly, the mystery novel is a perfect vehicle for the title that foreshadows suspense, surprise, and intricate plot. "Trent's Last Case," "The Anxious Conspirator," and "Or Was He Pushed?" seem restless and need to be resolved. A classic mystery of 1915, "K," utilizes much the same strategy to entice the reader as did Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter."

Regarding other best sellers of the past, we find that Rudyard Kipling's first work to achieve popularity in this country was the innocuous sounding, "The Day's Work," published in 1896. In contrast is the much brighter "When Knighthood Was in Flower," at the top of the sales charts at about the same time. Later, "Over the Top" became the popular World War I account which sold over 350,000 copies in 1917. "Gone with the Wind," a title that almost sings, achieved great success in 1936 which continues to the present day. It is debatable whether it would have retained the same magic had it been published as "The Saga of Scarlett." This is all to say that I would agree with the spirit of Shakespeare's sentiments, "Top" became the popular World War I account which sold over 350,000 copies in 1917. ## Andy Gibb wants his fame "to go on forever"

NEW YORK (AP) — Andy Gibb is proud that he's a success as a solo singer while his three older brothers, the Bee Gees, are riding a high wave of popularity, too.
 "We're both peaking. I couldn't think of anything nicer than this forever," he says.
 Even so, he concedes, he admires them so much that if they asked him to join them, he probably would give up his personal fame and do it.
 "A lot of people thought I was going to join them when I grew up," says Andy, who's 20. "I'm happy to stay as I am. But if they asked me, I would probably jump at it."
 The Bee Gees when the Bee Gees began mounting an international following. "I had a terrible time in school after that," Andy says. "I couldn't get on with anyone, the kids more than the teachers, because I was brother to the Bee Gees. I found that at every school I went to, I left school very early."

 When he was growing up and his brothers were away from home and famous, Andy hardly knew them, felt a generation removed from them. Now, he says, he feels they're alike in several ways.
 "I like ballads, but romantic and energetic. I don't like dreary tear-jerker ballads," he says. "We have similar attitudes in our song writing. We like uptempo things, positive energy."
 The Bee Gees — the name stands for the Brothers Gibb — Barry, 31, and twins Robin and Maurice, 28, spent a number of years in Australia, getting their act together. Andy was 6 months old, in 1958, when the Gibb family moved to that country from England.

 Andy started performing at 13, in tourist bars on the island of Ibiza, where the family was living then, and it looked like he was a prospect for show business. The Bee Gees advised him to do what they had done: get seasoning in Australia.
 "I planned to stay five years but I just stayed two," Andy says. "I never had a hit single there. I put one out but it never did anything. I was known there, though."
 "No matter how big you become, you never get heard outside Australia. The Bee Gees became the No. 1 Australian band but they had to leave in 1967 to get internationally known."

Dallas Festival promises varied entertainments

In the spirit of a 16th century rout, the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts will join the Dallas association for avant-garde and neo-impressionistic music (daagnim) and the Shakespeare Festival of Dallas for a summer celebration of the arts.
 Each of the three weekends of the Shakespeare in the Park series, July 7-8, 13-14 and 21-22, various jazz groups will perform near the lagoon entrance to the museum from 6 until 8 p.m. The Museum of Fine Arts will remain open until 8 on those evenings, and before The Tempest or The Comedy of Errors commence under the stars will sell sack dinners from 6 to 8 near the music. The sacks will contain fried chicken, a sandwich, brownies, fruit, cheese, wine or soft drinks for $3.50.
 The music festival, called the Third Ear Festival of Music, is being sponsored by one of the nine jazz groups to perform, daagnim. One member describes the group's music as improvisational and impressionistic, but not chaotic.
 The initial band, to play Friday, July 7, is Mainstream, a progressive jazz group. Such musicians use synthesized keyboards, synthesizers for horns and a diversity of percussion instruments to produce, with craftsmanship, music with great rhythm and depth, often approaching symphonic music.
 Another progressive jazz group, A. Robert Sanders Sextet, will perform Saturday, July 8. Sanders is well known in Dallas for his finesse at the piano. The Beledi Ensemble, an Arabic dance and music group, will also perform that evening.

Rehab center offers summer play-therapy program

"We hope to combine more play into therapy, as well as help the kids learn about themselves and their relationship to the world around them," said program head Susan Hoerth about the six week summer program offered by the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

The program includes swimming, arts and crafts, music, skills for daily living, and music along with the physical therapy and play. Each week of the session, which began June 19 and goes through July 28, has a particular theme dealing with the individual or their surroundings.

The first week was "Me and My Body," while following weeks considered such topics as "Me and My Feelings," my family, community, animals, and food.

"The program is not new, we've had it in past years although not in 1977," said center director Larry Bristow. "However, this year we rejuvenated the program under an entirely different structure."

Part of the reason for that change lies in the person who heads the program. "I am a strong believer in play-therapy," says Hoerth. "The kids need to be with other kids, and they need a break from the regular therapy structure."

"It is hard for you and I to stay on a regular, regimented exercise program for more than a few weeks, so you can imagine how some of these kids who have been in a therapy program since before they can remember must feel."

"This program gives them a different view of therapy, allows them more contact with others near their age, and it also gives them a chance to take a few risks," Hoerth continued.

"For some, the swimming provides a new dimension of freedom where they are able to move much more fluidly than they are on land," said Hoerth. "For them and the others, the water provides a risk — a new challenge to their abilities."

"We do some run-and-tumble stuff, and they get in the water, perhaps getting a mouthful when they try to dunk one of the volunteers," the physical therapy assistant explained. "Without taking some risks, it is impossible to grow and gain any degree of independence."

Volunteers, mostly from 15 to 16 years of age, aid with the program, which Bristow says is designed to "enrich the total rehabilitation process and provide a structure for language and physical development catered to individual capabilities.

"The volunteers really add an enthusiasm and energy to the program that helps it get off the ground," said Hoerth of the four volunteers who help with the 12 children enrolled in the summer session.

"There is just about a full load of kids enrolled — six for the 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. session, and six for the 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. session — but I would love to have more volunteers," Hoerth said. "It is all we can do to keep up with the kids this week, and we have a couple who are on vacation with their parents."

The four volunteers presently working are Kerry Simpkins, Cindy Bagwell, David McCutchen, and Randy Samuels. Linda Lara, physical therapy aid at the center, is also helping with the sessions.

"I think it is better, for the program as it now stands, to have the young volunteers helping rather than parents, Hoerth stated. The kids and parents sometimes need a break from each other. They have already had — and will continue to have — a long road of working together, and we hope the program gives everybody a refreshing change of pattern and a good outlook toward the future."

LOVES CHILDREN, WORK — Susan Hoerth, director of the summer program loves her job as a physical therapy assistant because she can be with the children. Here, she encourages Jason Sims to "take the plunge," and is delighted at the boy when he jumps into the Rehab center pool.

BARELY ENOUGH AIR — This tube had barely enough air to support both Jason Sims and Ginger Atkinson, but it didn't turn over, despite a couple of near dunkings. And, with the help of Linda Lara (far left) and Susan Hoerth, it made an excellent see-saw with water to cushion the bumps.

tight. The box in which they are seated spins rapidly with a little push, taking the occupants for a dizzy ride.

LAUGHTER, FUN PART OF LEARNING — Linda Lara laughs with summer session kids Jason Sims and Ginger Atkinson as they learn about the body. Aids used to illustrate the lesson include a felt stick-board and cardboard figures which the children place in their proper positions on the board. An arm, which Linda placed upside-down on a figure, brought this hysterical reaction from the children.

DOWN THE RAMP — "To grow up, all children have to take some risks and meet challenges," is one of the themes Hoerth has tried to emphasize in the program. Bobby Miller prepares to go wheeling down the ramp and across the room, braking with the use of the hand brakes on the chair. Standing behind the chair is volunteer David McCutchen and physical therapy aid Linda Lara.

EYES STRAIGHT AHEAD — Mark Roberts finds it easier to keep his eyes straight ahead while walking on the balance beam as long as volunteer Cindy Bagwell offers a steady hand to hold on to. Mark and the others in the afternoon session seem to find a special kind of fun in dunking the volunteers, including Cindy, who said her hair was "still wet" from the swim session almost two hours before this picture.

Program goes beyond exercise

YMCA Health Center keeps members fit

By EILEEN McGUIRE
Family News Editor
(EDITOR'S NOTE:)
Despite America's wealth, or perhaps because of it, we have a large obesity and poor health problem in this country. Over the last several decades, we've become increasingly more aware of the value of good health and many of us patronize the thousands of health spas that have sprung up throughout the country. Meanwhile, the YMCA had adopted many health programs of its programs that work at reasonable prices. This is the first of a three-part series, to be continued on Tuesday and Wednesday, about some of those programs.

How do you spend your leisure time? If you're a typical American, you probably have good intentions of spending a portion of it on self-improvement, with physical fitness ranking high on your list of priorities.

Whether you need to get back into shape or would like to maintain the good shape you're in, the YMCA has the equipment, knowledge and the right plan for you.

Don't let the "M" in YMCA deter you. What used to be the Young Men's Christian Association is now a family physical fitness and recreation center. In fact, Mike McCracken, director of the YMCA on Owens Street, says there's talk of changing the name to the YFCA.

"Originally, the Y was geared for me," said McCracken. "But over the past 15 years, we've become more family oriented. We have programs and rates for individual men, women and children and we have family memberships plus some special times set aside for family recreation — swimming, for example."

One of the YMCA's fastest growing programs is the Health Center, reserved exclusively for men and women who hold Health Center memberships. The memberships are available for individuals and families and entitle the holder to use any of the facilities at the Y as well as the center.

Added to the Y four years ago, the center includes a sauna, steam room, whirlpool bath and massage. There's also an exercise room, one for men and one for women, where muscles can be firmed and toned through progressive resistance equipment.

Men and women have separate dressing rooms, complete with blow-dryers, and members are entitled to a locker and free towel service.

Men and women use the same sauna, steamroom, whirlpool and massage facilities, but at different times. This part of the center is open to women from 9 to 11:30 a.m. weekdays and from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Men take advantage of this area of the Y from 12 noon to 8 p.m., Monday and Friday and until 7 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Men's hours are from noon until 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Those hours may not seem quite evenly divided between the women and men, but there's a reason for it.

"That's just the way the hours worked out," said McCracken. "A lot more men are using the facility right now than women."

According to Linda Swinney, the women's attendant, the benefits received from the sauna, steamroom, whirlpool and massage are total relaxation of the body and mind, and conditioning and increased circulation of the body.

The first step is the sauna, preceded by an application of baby or mineral oil to condition the skin. The individual, preferably wrapped only in a towel, relaxes on a wooden bench in a temperature of 180 to 200 degrees. Beginners start with three to four minutes, enough time to feel tension leave both muscles and mind.

A traditional part of Finnish life, for over a thousand years the sauna has become an important part of the lives of the men and women who take advantage of the Y's center. Its greatest benefit is relaxation but Linda said it also aids women who have a problem and water retention and it's one of the most effective methods of getting rid of cellulite.

The sauna is followed by another cold shower and then the steamroom for another three to four minutes for the beginner. The individual will probably feel more perspiration here, when in fact the temperature is only 110 to 120 degrees.

"Many of our patrons use both the sauna and the steamroom, though some prefer one over the other," said McCracken. "The sauna is dry heat while the steam room leaves more moisture in and on the body. We have two older gentlemen, ages 88 and 75, who come here at exactly 3 o'clock every afternoon for the steamroom."

Though the gentlemen were friends before they began coming to the Y

together, the sauna and steamroom, believe it or not, is a great way to meet other people, perhaps because you already share something in common and because of the intimate environment. A sign on one wall of the sauna says that any friend made in the sauna becomes a friend for life.

The steam room is followed by another cold shower and further relaxation in a sunken whirlpool bath. The bath with its constant motion of water, kept at 104 to 106 degrees for women and 106 to 110 for men, further relaxes the body and quiets the mind. It's greatest health benefit is increased blood circulation which helps to eliminate varicose veins. The beginner remains in the bath for only a short period of time.

All members who are out of shape, getting on in years, or have a heart or other medical condition are urged to consult their physician before embarking on the health program. And, like all newcomers to the center, they begin slowly, working their way up according to individual tolerance.

A trained assistant is on hand at all times to acquaint members with the equipment and procedures and to make sure no one overdoes it.

"Part of our health program is a blood pressure check," McCracken pointed out. "We ask all Health Center members if they'd like this free service."

Another cold shower follows the whirlpool bath. It's the alternating cold and hot that makes the whole process effective.

If desired, the individual may repeat the hot and cold relaxation, but there are other side benefits including better circulation, better skin tone, softer skin, and a general sense of physical well-being.

The process has become so valuable to those who use it that many of Big Spring's men are giving up lunch in favor of an hour at the center and some of Big Spring's working women are trading their traditional noon lunch hours for an hour off in the morning. Even some of the Y's female staff are attempting to get an hour off in the morning so that they, too, can participate.

It's estimated that the United States, which is rapidly catching up with the Finns in their use of the sauna, will eventually have 200 million saunas. But a whole health center! According to McCracken, that's almost unheard of in a YMCA located in a town the size of Big Spring.

"The ideal setup," McCracken said, "is a workout in the exercise room followed by a steam or sauna bath, then the whirlpool bath and a rest, but the program really depends on the individual. We'll be glad to help them decide on the best program for them."

If Health Club members take advantage of the health center, perhaps twice a week in the sauna and three times a week in the exercise room, that's only a little more than 40 cents a day for women, a little more for men, since they have longer hours. Or there's a family membership available as well as an executive membership in which a discount is given if four or more employees of the same firm sign up under one membership.

In addition, McCracken says there are discounts for the single parent with a family and several payment plans.

What are the advantages of joining a health program at the YMCA rather than embarking on your own do-it-yourself program at home, without cost?

Besides the equipment available at the center, McCracken says that by signing up and paying for a membership, an individual makes a commitment which will help him or her, stick with it. And according to some of the women who use it, fellowship—seeing others stick with it—helps where will power and self-discipline previously failed.

The glowing feeling which results from an hour at the center makes it a health regimen that is looked forward to, rather than dreaded. And that feeling keeps Health Center members coming back for more.

ONE MILE TO GO—Ellen Coots, one of the Women's Health Center's regular members, has gone from one mile a day to 15 since she started riding this bicycle. Ellen says she's getting the results she was after when she joined the center. Her routine includes a workout, a swim, a sauna, a whirlpool bath and a daily ride around the odometer.

Photos by Danny Valdes

IN HOT WATER—Facilities at the YMCA's Health Center include a steamroom and whirlpool bath. A cold shower follows each. Relaxing in 106-degree whirling water, are Ellen Coots, left, and Irma Ross. The whirlpool aids in relaxation, increasing circulation and aiding varicose veins.

TRAINED HANDS—Left, Linda Swinney demonstrates the art of giving a proper massage to Health Center member Geri Karvedsky while Steve Fine works on Baptist youth director Herb Shipp in ship-shape. The massages are given free, by appointment, to Health Center members though they can also be received by regular and non-members for a fee.

MRS. DENNIS DOTSON

Miss Byrd, Dotson repeat wedding vows

Denise Darnell Byrd and Dennis Dotson exchanged wedding vows June 24 in the Mt. Bethel Baptist Church with the Rev. Paul Dade officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Byrd, Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. John Dotson, Flint, Mich.

The couple was wed before an altar decorated with a bridal arch with blue and white carnations and five candelabras.

Chester McCree Jr. was organist. Garland Green Jr., was vocalist.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with white lace around the neck and sleeves. Flower appliques accented the sleeves and bodice.

She carried white carnations with small blue flowers.

Maid of honor was Evelyn Williams, cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Sherry Byrd, Rose Mary Garcia, Big Spring, Connie Jackson, San Antonio, and Ester McCree, Breckenridge.

Charlie Lee Smith, Midland, was best man. Groomsman were Chippo

Wright, Hjinio Morina Jr., Big Spring, Lawrence Byrd, Dallas, and David Davis, Odessa.

Candlelighters were Selena Jones and Ronnie Forman.

The couple will reside in Big Spring. The bride graduated from Big Spring High School. The groom graduated from high school in Flint, Mich. He attended Saints College in Mississippi. He is employed with Gibson's Discount Center, but is planning a job transfer to the Big Spring State Hospital.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the Mt. Bethel Fellowship Hall.

Howard County jail is home

By CAROL HART
Taking up residence in a county jail without being forced to was the choice of the R.T. Bell family.

Bell, his wife, Adella, and son Kelly recently moved to an apartment on the fourth floor of the Howard County courthouse. Within a few steps of their front door are the prisoner's cells.

From the apartment, Bell can coordinate his duties as jailer-administrator for the county.

Jailers are required to live in the apartment, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard. Standard added that it was hard to keep jailers because they must be on call for long periods of time. He added "the Bells are nice people. I hope they stay awhile."

Bell said his day starts at 7 a.m. when he prepares breakfast for the inmates. He is also in charge of distributing medication to the prisoners who require it.

At 8:30 a.m., Bell begins preparation for the noon meal, which is the largest meal served during the day. At 5 p.m., he prepares supper, and at 9 p.m., a snack for the prisoners.

Between preparing meals and handling medication, Bell must also keep records on jail activities.

Bell has been employed at the jail since June 19. His interest in law enforcement developed while in the service. Bell's association with the Marines and Army took him to Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, Okinawa, Vietnam, Egypt, Italy and Spain. He was a corporal upon his discharge.

In the military, Bell explained that he was at one time shifted into military police work. "I didn't like it" at first, he said, but gradually began studying law enforcement courses and developed an interest in it. He recently completed several courses in law enforcement at Western Texas College in Snyder.

Both Bell and his wife are long-time residents of Snyder. While in Snyder, he worked for the police department as an animal control officer, and was employed with the Snyder Security Company.

He said he applied for a position in Big Spring at the first of this year. He wanted a job as a deputy, but there were no openings at that time.

"This job was coming available, so I took it," he said. "I knew I could take being enclosed," Bell said, "I have worked at this type of job before. I had to make sure my wife could take it. It took three months to decide that she could take care of herself."

Mrs. Bell said that the jail house apartment is "pretty nice and quiet." The apartment includes a living room, bedroom, bath and kitchenette. Bell said that, for a young couple, the arrangement was "fantastic. There are no bills, everything is furnished. We can plan for the future."

The Bells are not isolated in their top floor courthouse quarters. "We're not locked in," Bell said. "We can go out anytime." Both Mr. and Mrs. Bell have keys to the jail access points.

Bell is on call 24 hours a day, but is relieved at various times when he needs to leave the building. Deputies handle the jail during the hours of 9 p.m. until 7 a.m.

"Friends can come up here," Bell said. "We have to go down and let them in." The practice doesn't bother the Bells because "we understand that's part of security measures."

The Bells have not had much time to acquaint themselves with Big Spring, but said they like the city so far. Their son, Kelly, is a little over one month old, and he keeps both Mr. and Mrs. Bell busy.

The Bell relatives don't mind the fact that they live in the jailhouse apartment. Bell said their relatives wanted him to take care of his family. "I assured them that there was nothing to worry about."

Children aid in planning

TWEEN 12 and 20

Girl on the pill is living a lie

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Hoping to cut waste while making school lunches tastier, dieticians sought help on planning next fall's menu from a panel of experts — seven elementary school children.

Armed with rating forms, sharpened pencils and their appetites, the youngsters sat in the school system's central kitchen recently, eagerly eyeing a 25-foot-long table laden with fruit juices, coleslaw, potato salad, vanilla pudding, sandwiches, plate lunches and their favorite — pizza.

Meatloaf No. 5 drew an "ugh" and the green beans were described as "icky," while Salisbury steak and pizzaburgers drew raves.

"They were not very happy with the barbecue beef," said Mary Filko, director of the schools' kitchens. "So I don't think I'll use that one at all."

The youngsters' opinions will help Mrs. Filko decide which bids from food contractors to accept.

A few years ago, she said, the low bidder on the pizza concession came in about a penny a slice below the competition. That penny represented big money, because the system serves pizza as often as once a week.

But Mrs. Filko was not sure the children would like the less expensive pizza, so she arranged a pizza eating contest among some youngsters. They refused to eat the less expensive variety, and the company offering the higher-priced pizza got the contract.

She also hopes the taste tests will reduce "plate waste," a polite term for the mounds of food that children refuse to eat and must be thrown away each day.

The final ratings showed the youngsters preferred the pizza served last year to that provided by any of the competitors seeking a contract with the schools this year.

They turned thumbs down on last year's orange juice, saying it was too watery.

The experiment could rebound on some of the testers, however. Scott Harter said he liked nearly everything he sampled at the test, even though his mother said he often grumped about the fare last year.

"You won't be able to complain next year," she told him.

Dear Doctor:

I am writing to you for advice because I deeply respect your opinion.

My boyfriend (19) and I (16) have been seeing each other for eight months. We are not officially going steady but neither of us is seeing anyone else. We love each other very much and I'm not pushing him to make any commitments.

I have been taking birth control pills for the last two months under a doctor's supervision. I need the protection and got it without my parents knowing about it.

The problem: My boyfriend is moving out of his parents' home in two weeks and into an apartment with a friend. My parents are aware of this. The present rule is that I am not allowed to go to a guy's house unless one of his parents is home. So far I haven't broken this rule and I don't plan to.

My question is should I explain to my dad what the real situation is with my boyfriend and if so what should I say to him.

Please help me. I want very much for my dad to keep trusting me and I want to continue my relationship with my very special guy.

Wants Both,
West Covina, Calif.

Dear Wants:

Let's face it. The rule of not being in a boy's house when a parent was not present was set down to keep you pure and innocent. It didn't work.

Don't tell your parents that you are intimate with your boyfriend. It won't help the situation any and it would probably cause your parents mental pain and anguish. If you plan to continue your relationship with your boyfriend, what difference does it really make where it takes place?

You are already living a lie when you say that "daddy trusts me."

Dear Doctor:

When are students going to have a say on what happens regarding our education? It seems that people who are never around schools or who have no kids are the ones who are planning our future. Is it always going to be like this? Will adults ever let us have the right to plan our own destiny or will it always be the same old story, of "children should be seen and not heard?"

Yvette, Columbus, Ohio

Dear Yvette:

You bring up a good point. I agree with you; progressive school boards do too, and include student advisory groups to implement and formulate school policy. All school boards should have such groups.

Dear Doctor:

I read in your column where you advised unwed pregnant girls to go to a family planning clinic.

Several years ago I got pregnant and went to a clinic for counseling. They quickly pushed me into an abortion telling me that I didn't have to tell my parents. This was the biggest mistake in my life!

Recently I learned what my unborn baby looked like, how well-developed he was in just 11 weeks. I now feel guilt because of the abortion.

I wish I had told my parents and carried my baby to term and given it away to a loving family. Please don't tell unwed pregnant girls to visit a family planning clinic. They will only advise to kill your baby.

GUILTY at 18,
Sacramento, Calif.

Dear Young Lady:

It would be ideal if every unwed pregnant young girl had understanding, loving, caring parents who would aid their daughter in making the best decision for her. But this is not the case.

When a young girl writes to me because she is unwed and pregnant, for one reason or another, she cannot or will not tell her parents. For a girl in this position, the two major concerns are medical attention and whether or not to have the baby. What I care about are these concerns. I want what is best for the girl. My answer was to contact a family planning clinic and a member of the clergy.

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MRS. BENNETT LYNN ISHAM

Sharon Baker weds Bennett Lynn Isham

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Lynn Isham are on a wedding trip to the Dallas-Fort Worth area following their wedding ceremony Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Baker, 2612 Lynn Dr., and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Isham, Miles.

Chaplain Clayton Hicks, V.A. Hospital, officiated during the ceremony, which was conducted in front of an altar decorated with spiral candelabras and tree candelabras with a center bouquet of mixed flowers and two matching side bouquets. Aisles were marked with matching bouquets.

Mrs. W.W. Grimes was organist. Carrie Wheeler, Midland, was vocalist.

Candlelighters were Kim Manning, and Courtney McCoulskey, Richland, cousin of the bride.

The bride's gown was of chiffon and Venice lace. The bodice and bishop sleeves had lace flower appliques, and featured a slit neckline and deep scalloped yoke edged with Venice lace and seed pearls. The hem of the dress was edged in Venice lace and swept into a chapel-length train. The floor-length mantilla veil was purchased by the bride in Belgium.

The bride carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis, snowshoe poms and baby's breath on a white Bible, which had been carried by the bride's mother and sister-in-law. Inside the Bible were two handkerchiefs belonging to her maternal and paternal grandmothers.

Melissa Baker, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ricky Baker, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Weldon Hartley, Ellen Cooley, Huntsville and Zana Salsman, Hunt.

Best man was James Calcavecchia, San Angelo. Groomsmen were Ralph Smetana, Miles, Darrell Freeman, San Angelo, Jim Elliot, San Angelo, and Michael Isham, brother of the groom, Miles. They also served as ushers.

D'Amberly Baker, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Ring bearer was Jeffrey McCoulskey, Mertzon.

The couple will reside in Dallas. The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Angelo State University. She is employed by the University Computing Company, Dallas.

The groom graduated from Miles High School and is attending Dallas Institute of Mortuary Science in Dallas.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were registered by Brenda McCoulskey, Lewisville, cousin of the bride. The bride's cake was five tiered and featured live flowers and a fountain between tiers. A large table, draped in floor-length lace, was centered with a bouquet of mixed flowers and candles on a silver candelabra. Crystal and silver appointments were used.

Linda Elaine Batla and Joe David Schwartz exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in the St. Lawrence Catholic Church with the Rev. Bill deHaas, cousin of the bride, officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Delmer W. Batla, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Schwartz, all of St. Lawrence.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with two columns holding an arrangement of tall peach tapers. In the background was a 15-branched, arched candelabra holding votive cups. Spiral candelabras and palm trees held tall peach tapers. A unity candle completed the altar decorations.

The middle aisle was accented with pew markers of greenery and peach flowers.

Mrs. Billy Eggeneyer, organist, and Mike Hillger, guitarist, provided the music.

Jacque Frerich, Lani Kay Frerich and Andrea Frerich, cousins of the bride, were vocalists.

The bride wore a formal-length dress of white organza, trimmed with Chantilly lace and pearls. Pearled lace scalloped the Queen Anne neckline. The three-tiered bouffant skirt was trimmed with Chantilly lace. The gown featured a cathedral train. Her walking veil of illusion fell from a headpiece bordered with Chantilly lace.

The bride carried a cascade of peach and white sweetheart roses and carnations interspersed with lilly of the valley, stephanotis, and English ivy. The bouquet was tiered with peach and white satin ribbons.

Nancy Batla, sister of the bride, St. Lawrence, was maid of honor. Matron of honor was Mrs. Steve Livingston, sister of the bride, Garden City. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Floyd Schwartz, sister-in-law of the groom, St. Lawrence, Mrs. Roger Battle, Big Spring, Mrs. Mike Batla, sister-in-law of the bride, St. Lawrence, Brenda Schwartz, Mary Kay Schwartz and Lynette Schwartz, sisters of the groom, St. Lawrence.

MRS. JOE DAVID SCHWARTZ

The attendants wore formal-length dresses of peach eyelet lined with a peach cotton lining. Their three-tiered skirts were gathered into a straight waistband, accented with flat, beige lace around each tier. The fitted, sleeveless tops featured a square neckline, princess seaming, and front button closing. The gowns were trimmed in pre-gathered beige, cotton lace.

They carried colonial nosegays of peach carnations and roses, accented with stephanotis. The bouquets were also trimmed with peach satin ribbons.

Lynn Halfmann, St. Lawrence, was best man. Groomsmen were Floyd Schwartz, brother of the groom, St. Lawrence, Mike Batla, Kenny Batla, Larry Batla and Garry Batla, brothers of the bride, St. Lawrence, Steve Livingston, brother-in-law of the bride, Garden City, and Larry Wheat, Garden City.

Ushers were Allan Gully, Wall, Douglas Plagens, St. Lawrence, Chris Hirt, St. Lawrence, and Guy Newell, St. Lawrence.

Richard Batla, St. Lawrence, brother of the bride, and David Frerich, Garden City, cousin of the bride, were altar boys.

Following a wedding trip to Corpus Christi, the couple will reside in Garden City.

The bride is a graduate of Garden City High School and Howard College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Garden City High School and is a farmer in St. Lawrence.

Birth of girl announced

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Condra of Houston announce the birth of their first child, a girl, born at 4:25 p.m., June 23, at Houston Northwest Medical Center.

Christie Lynn weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces at birth and measured 20 inches long. Her mother is the former Debbie Stallings of Houston and her father is a former Big Spring resident.

Maternal grandparents are Mrs. Chuck Allan, Alvin, and Don Stallings, Del Rio. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Condra of Austin, formerly of Big Spring, are the paternal grandparents.

The child's paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. A.D. Brown of Austin, is also a former Big Spring resident.

"Extras" costly

When purchasing a new car, keep in mind that "extras" can add a lot to the price, operating expenses and repair bill, cautions Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Spicy oat cake offers changes

This Spicy Oat Cake has several things going for it. It can travel to a picnic right in the pan in which it was baked and frosted.

The recipe's use of oats along with flour makes a welcome change in texture and flavor.

The cake's texture stays moist and its topping crisp even after an overnight stay.

Cooks who like honey will favor its addition.

SPICY OAT CAKE

1 cup boiling water
1 cup quick-cooking oats
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cloves
3/4 cup butter or margarine, at room temperature

1/2 cup firmly packed light or dark brown sugar
1/2 cup honey
2 large eggs
Topping, see below

In a small bowl pour the water over the oats and let stand for 20 minutes. On wax paper stir together the flour, soda, salt and spices. In a large bowl beat together the butter, sugar and honey until blended; add the oat mixture and the eggs; beat well; add the flour mixture and beat gently but well. Turn into a greased and floured 9 by 9 by 1 1/4-inch cake pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—50 to 55 minutes. Spread the Topping over the hot cake in the pan; broil about 5 inches from heat until golden brown—2 or 3 minutes. Place on wire rack to cool completely before cutting in squares and removing from pan. Or loosen edges of completely cooled cake, turn out on wire rack and turn right-side up; topping will stay intact.

Topping: Stir together 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine, 1-3rd cup honey, 1/4 cup loosely packed shredded canned coconut and 1/4 cup coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans.

Rules aid shipped pet

COLLEGE STATION — When shipping the family dog or cat by air, follow the Animal Welfare Act rules and plan ahead for a safe trip, advises Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

First, check with the airlines well ahead of the trip to make a reservation for the pet. Ask about state requirements for a health examination, she suggests.

Second, make sure the container will meet federal standards.

—It must permit the animal to stand up, turn around and lie down with normal posture and body movements.

—Provide a container that is strong enough to withstand shipping, free of interior protrusions that could cause injury, and has adequate access to the animal.

—Select a container that's constructed with a solid, leakproof bottom, and provide litter or absorbent material unless a wire or other nonsolid floor separates the animal from the bottom.

—Choose a container that's ventilated adequately on at least two opposite sides so that the air flows through both the upper and lower parts of the walls with projecting rims or knobs on the outside so that adjacent cargo will not block ventilation.

—The container must be fitted with handles for proper handling and be marked "Live Animal" with arrows indicating the upright position.

Dogs and cats must have food at least every 24 hours and water at least every 12 hours, Ms. Kerbel points out.

Also, dogs and cats must be at least eight weeks old and have been weaned for at least five days before shipping.

Baptist Church of Westbrook, accompanied ten girls from the church group to the Permian Basin Baptist Encampment near Stanton. The group left June 26 and returned June 30.

Those attending the camp included Stephanie Pierce, Anglea and Cherri Lentz, Jennifer Beasley, Dawn and Rebecca Kelly, Jessie Fventes, Danna Pennington and Lydia Vigil.

Mr. and Mrs. Connally Rice and Kristy Rice of Georgia were recent houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar McBride of Fort Worth have been visiting his mother, Myrtle Birdall.

Mrs. Max Richards and daughter Malinda of Lamesa have returned home after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Henderson.

Mrs. J.D. Iglehart is a patient at Root Memorial Hospital, Colorado City.

Mrs. Johnnie Shackelford returned home June 25 following a Business and Professional Women's meeting in Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Moore and their children vacationed the week of June 18 in the Colorado mountains.

Shower fetes bride to be

A bridal shower honoring Jamie Thomas, bride-to-be of Jim Connell of Phoenix, Ariz., was held June 27 at the home of her aunt, Mrs. D.G. Thomas, 1907 Mittel Ave.

Other hostesses were Mrs. Bill Sledge and Mrs. Donald Anderson.

The bride's chosen colors of blue and beige were used. The table was laid with a hand-crocheted cloth and blue candles and flowers were used as a centerpiece.

Mrs. Lester Anderson, grandmother of the honoree was a special guest.

Miss Thomas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas of Big Spring. The couple plan to be married Aug. 5 in Big Spring at the First Presbyterian Church.

Dear Abby

Love's Got To Be A Two-Sided Thing

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a 32-year-old man for the last 10 months. I am 23. He's nice-looking, well-mannered and can afford to show a girl a good time. He has brought me some rather expensive gifts (a stereo for my birthday and a color TV for Christmas). He tried to give me a diamond for St. Valentine's Day, but I wouldn't accept it.

I just don't love him and he knows it, but he says he's desperately in love with me. I never tried to lead him on. I told him from the beginning that I didn't love him and didn't think I ever could. I've even asked him to quit calling me, but he calls anyway, and if I have nothing better to do, I go out with him.

I have acted bored in his company, and I've even been rude to him, but he can't be discouraged. Any suggestions? BORED IN BURLINGAME

DEAR BORED: If you really don't see any future with this man, don't go out with him again. The more you see of him, and the more you accept from him, the harder it will be to get rid of him. He plans to "wear you down." And if he succeeds, you'll both be sorry. A one-sided "love" doesn't last long.

DEAR ABBY: Elaine (not her real name) and I have been married for 14 years and have five children. We are both 36 years old.

A while ago Elaine joined a therapy group. (You know, they just sit around and talk about sex. Well, Elaine is the only married person in the group.)

One evening a fellow from the group picked Elaine up and drove her to one of the meetings. He brought her home at 1:30 a.m. Elaine said they stopped for a drink on the way home. Another time Elaine accepted a dinner invitation with another man from the group.

She says she is innocent of any wrongdoing. I believe her, but I feel her conduct is a potential threat to our marriage. Am I wrong to object? OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: No. Every therapy group has a "therapist." Talk to Elaine's and ask him how you should handle this problem.

DEAR ABBY: Saw the enclosed in a Knights of Columbus newsletter and thought, "How true it is." If you think it's good enough for your column, be my guest. DANIEL H. MILITELLO, WESTFIELD, N.Y.

DEAR DAN: I do, and here it is: "Someone has said that there are four kinds of 'bones' in every organization. There are the WISHBONES, who spend their time wishing someone else would do the work. There are the JAWBONES, who do all the talking, but very little else. Next, there are the KNUCKLEBONES, who knock everything anyone ever tries to do. And finally, there are the BACKBONES, who get under the load and do the work."

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

SUN VALLEY CEREMONY — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford I. Balzer, Rt. 1, Big Spring, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Janet Lucille, Los Angeles, to Steven Henry Smith, also of Los Angeles. The couple will wed July 15 in the garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Pobjoy, Sun Valley, Calif., with the Rev. Darrell Smith, pastor of the Cresanta Valley Methodist Church, Montrose, Calif., officiating.

Tour includes visit to dad

Mr. and Mrs. David Balkus of Lincoln, Neb., have made Big Spring their last stop on a tour of the country. They are here visiting Mrs. Balkus' father, Julian Fischer.

Other stops on their tour included Las Vegas, Nev., and Los Angeles, Calif. They will return to Lincoln soon where Balkus is majoring in electronics at South East Community College.

Bridal tea, shower given

Marylynn Rich, bride-elect of David Crooks, was the honoree of a L-ideal tea and shower at the home of Mrs. M.W. Griffice, 1400 E. 18th, June 22. The come-and-go affair was held from 7 to 9 p.m.

Hostesses were Mrs. Griffice, Kay Shaw, Shirley Sliwinski, Martha Hall, Betty Leugold, Barbara Fryar, Marie Walls and Maugarette Bryant.

Corsages were presented to Miss Rich and mothers of the couple, Mrs. Lynn Rich and Mrs. Ray Crooks.

Cookies, tea, coffee and a sherbert compote were served from a table covered with white lace and centered with a blue flower arrangement in a brass vase.

Miss Rich and Crooks will be married on July 29 at the First Methodist Church at Sterling City.

'Secret remedy'

Suspect any "secret remedy" that is available from only one source, advises Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Focus on family living Quality carpets shade

By JANET ROGERS, County Extension Agent

Expect carpet to develop shading — it's a characteristic of plush carpeting regardless of quality or cost.

Shading occurs when carpet traffic areas take on a different appearance from the unwalked-on areas.

Because plush carpets are constructed by placing cut pile yarns very close together, when the yarns are tightly packed, they help hold each other erect. When walked on or compressed, the pile breaks down.

As the direction of pile changes, the sides or the yarns are viewed and more light is reflected. This area appears lighter than the ends of the yarn, thus creating a shading effect. Areas in front of chairs, television sets or where traffic turns a corner will also become shaded and very little can be done to help this condition.

Brushing and vacuuming the pile in one direction and professional cleaning improve shaded areas only temporarily. These methods change only the top portion and soon shading will occur again. So, enjoy shading as a characteristic which occurs in good quality carpet. If shading is not appealing, select another type of carpet.

Source of excess

Leaking seals around bathroom fixtures are a common source of excess moisture in a house, reports Glenda Moore, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Tereasa Armstrong, Denson wed in Church of Christ

Tereasa Diann Armstrong and Kerry Lee Denson exchanged wedding vows June 17 in the Cedar Ridge Church of Christ. Rick Denson, brother of the groom, Main Street Church of Christ, Midland, officiated. The couple stood before an archway decorated with blue carnations and greenery centered with blue satin bows. Candelabra's decorated with greenery and ribbon also accented the altar. Bonita Witt, Anna Higgins, Randol Morton and Terry Kiser were vocalists. Gale Bonner was organist. The bride wore a gown of white chiffon and schiffli embroidered with silk. The embroidered bodice featured a cameo neckline and bouffant sleeves, with wide embroidered cuffs. Venice lace detailed the gown at the neckline, the transparent yoke line, cuffs and hemline. A wide band of Venice lace encircled the high-rise waistline. The bride carried white roses and carnations surrounded with baby's breath and greenery. Mrs. Robby Furlow, Lamesa, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mike Collins, Levelland, Mrs. Byron Hill, Stanton, and Leola Jones, Knott. Kevin Evans was best man. Groomsmen were Terry Brumley, Byron Hill, Stanton and Dennis Armstrong, brother of the bride, Ackerly. Ushers were Pat Armstrong, Odessa, and Stan Smith, Ackerly. Twila Pounds was flower girl. Whit Armstrong, Odessa, was ring bearer. The couple is now residing at 1002 E. 16th, following a wedding trip to Six Flags. The bride is a graduate of Sands High School. The groom graduated from Big Spring High School, attended Howard College, and is employed at Gibson's. A reception honoring the couple was held in the church following the ceremony. The wedding cake centered a large table. It was trimmed with blue roses and a blue water fall. The groom's cake was in the shape of a horseshoe.

MRS. KERRY LEE DENSON

BEST CAMPER — Penny Moore, a member of the Salvation Army sponsored Girl Guards, returned home from summer camp June 26 wearing a crown and necklace and carrying a trophy and bouquet of red roses. While attending Camp Midholathin near Fort Worth, she was crowned Miss Hoblitzelle at the camp's pageant. Judging criteria included camping abilities, poise, personality, friendliness and talent, for which she sang "The Way We Were". Penny, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Moore, Gail Rt., won two other honors during the week-long camp — induction into the Princesses Corp and an award for her leather crafts. She'll return to Camp Midholathin next year to crown the 1979 Miss Hoblitzelle.

Follow few easy tips to avoid snarls, knots

COLLEGE STATION — To help prevent snarls, knots or breaks in thread while hand sewing, follow a few easy tips, suggests Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Cut cotton and silk threads no longer than 24 inches for ease in handling. Cut polyester and cotton-covered polyester strands 18 inches or less — they may snarl more easily because of their elasticity, she recommends. Thread the needle so the thread is used in the same direction it comes off the spool. An easy way to remember this is to thread the needle and then cut the thread. Knott the end just cut.

When a double thread is needed for sewing on buttons or reinforcing corners, cut off one length of thread, the specialist says.

Using the cut length and thread from the spool, thread the needle with two threads so both will be used in the direction they come from the spool. This puts the twist of the two threads in the same direction and reduces knotting and snarling problems. Sew loosely, pulling thread through the fabric smoothly. Jerking and pulling too tightly causes thread to snarl or break, she adds.

Use tender touch

Use a tender touch when selecting fresh fruits and vegetables, suggests Mrs. Gwendolyn Ciyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In the long run, the consumer pays for bruising and damage, she explains.

Fight for opportunities

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — The way to get jobs for the handicapped is to play on people's sympathies, right?

Wrong, say officials of Precision Processors — Mankato Rehabilitation Center, Inc., a multimillion-dollar business sometimes called the General Motors of therapy-vocational rehabilitation facilities.

"We try to forget we are a company with a mission for the handicapped," says Marlin Amos, one of Precision's salesmen, who ranges across the state looking for jobs for the employees.

"We're out in the open market place. You can't sell hardosed business people on hearts and flowers by twanging violin strings," Amos says, adding, "You have no idea how many people like us are bidding for work at places like General Mills or 3M."

The Mankato company is pitted against scores of other rehabilitation, handicapped and senior citizen, workshops, all competing for subcontracting jobs.

"In fact, the name Precision Processors was coined to erase, obliterate, the label 'handicapped' and any suggestion that our sales pitch was one of sentiment and for charity," says marketing director Michael Heim.

But the sympathy and determination to rehabilitate the handicapped are there. People with brain damage, mental retardation, cerebral palsy and other physical disorders work for Precision Processors. So do alcoholics and drug addicts.

Five days a week, 350 of them come by van and bus to a building near the Mankato State University Highland Campus in Mankato. Another 150 do the same at satellite buildings in towns in southern Minnesota.

For eight hours they assemble microwave ovens, hand puppets, games, packets of lemon bath oil and shampoo, terminals and A-tracks and other items.

Last year they fitted, packaged and assembled millions of items for major corporations throughout the United States, completing subcontracting jobs for industry giants.

Martin Klein, production director at the center, says employees are paid on piece rates and all jobs are bid on the minimum wage scale so that some of the employees "can make up to $3 an hour and some only make 50 cents...it's their ability, talent and concentration that count," Klein says.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JULY 2, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JULY 2, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: By your own ingenuity and cleverness you will be able to take a tense situation and work out such an annoyance so that it is resolved to your benefit and satisfaction. Your mind is alert and active and you need only to use your best intelligence to make this a memorable time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Use utmost care in any kind of motion. Think out how to solve problems wisely. Be sure to stick to facts in any setting you want to do.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Study money matters well and be sure of what you are doing, otherwise you get into further trouble. Plan repairs that need to be made and then get to work on them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): The present situation is not to your liking and begetful and all ways out to your benefit later. Forget the social for now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You must use diplomacy and tact in handling current affairs or you could get into trouble. Take good care of your health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Forget a recreational plan for the time being. Give more attention to financial affairs. Use your wits when dealing with others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may want to run away from your obligations but it is better for you in the long run that you meet them boldly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may think the one you love is not attentive but it's only because this person is now preoccupied with other matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Try to reconcile with one who has opposed you in the past, since it is nothing serious. Civic matters should be handled efficiently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Use a different method at your regular work and get it done more efficiently and profitably. Convince a co-worker that it is best to do so. Think along more social lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Go ahead with recreational plans, even though you may run up against a small snag. Find a better way to make use of your talents and faculties. Get your ideas across to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Try to have more harmony at home by using more tact and good sense there. Get everything in good order and then entertain good friends there. Impress them with your geniality.

YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be good at meeting emergencies, and should be given as fine an education as you can provide. Find the forte here early and concentrate on that.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Carrollton Baptist Church site of Saturday ceremony

The wedding vows of Kay Ellen Newman and Dwayne McMeans were solemnized Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church in Carrollton.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Don Newman, Carrollton, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell McMeans, Stanton.

The Rev. Wayne Allen, First Baptist minister, officiated.

The bride wore a formal gown designed by Piccione of white silk chiffon. The gown featured a scoop neckline, flowing butterfly sleeves with lace cuffs, and ended in a chapel-length train. Her bodice was accented in pearl and French Alencon lace. The head piece was a Juliet head band of matching lace attached to a veil of cathedral-length silk illusion.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk orchids, roses and baby's breath.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Steve Carrigan, sister of the bride, Richland, Wa. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rick Wilson, Brownwood, Mrs. Craig Peery, Austin, Holly Hughes, Dallas, Sheridan Lindsay, Farmers Branch, and Mrs. Bob Jones, Wichita Falls.

Best man was John McMeans, brother of the groom, Georgetown. Groomsmen were Rick Wilson, Brownwood, Mike Cloud, Plano, Tommy Deavenport, Austin, Rusty Hicks, Slaton, and Bobby James, Brownwood. Ushers were Steve Carrigan, Richland, Wa., and Steve Moore, San Angelo.

Following a wedding trip to Acapulco, the couple will reside in Temple, where he will coach and she will teach.

MRS. DWAYNE McMEANS

Turner High School, Carrollton, and Baylor University. While in college, she was named Baylor Beauty of 1977.

The bridegroom graduated from Stanton High School in 1973, and was named best all-around athlete. He graduated from Howard Payne University where he lettered in football.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted in Carrollton by the groom's parents.

MRS. DON WRIGHT

Melody Murphree weds Don Wright

Melody Murphree and Don Wright exchanged wedding vows Friday evening in the Trinity Baptist Church with the Rev. Claude Craven, pastor, officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Vandoyl Murphree, 2515 Broadway, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnie Wright, Coahoma.

The couple stood before an altar which featured an arch decorated with greenery and bows. A multi-branched candelabra also adorned the altar.

Jay Phinney, Coahoma, was vocalist. He accompanied himself on the guitar during the ceremony. Lila Atkins provided music at the organ.

The bride wore a candlelight colored Victorian-style gown of taffeta with overlaying organza. The gown was trimmed with satin ribbon at the waist, and was accented with Nottingham and Chantilly lace.

Her matching candlelight colored veil was trimmed with Nottingham lace.

blue carnations, pink daisies and white baby's breath.

Deborah Allen was matron of honor. Denette Wright, sister of the groom, Coahoma, was candlelighter.

Danny Thomas, Coahoma, was best man. Earl Thomas and Jason Moore, Coahoma, were ushers.

Sherida Smith was flower girl. Ring bearer was Michael McElreath.

Following a wedding trip to Del Rio, Mexico, the couple will reside in Big Spring.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. She is employed at Malone-Hogan clinic.

The groom is a graduate of Coahoma High School and is employed by Charles Dunnam.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the fellowship hall following the ceremony. The bride's table was decorated with yellow and white net, and was centered with blue and white daisies.

Serving were Susan Hull and Sharon Chrane.

The groom's table was decorated with beige lace. Cheryl Reed, Ackerly, was server.

Liza Minnelli takes role

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Graham, who has often made dances of serious Greek legends, had some rare good fun Monday night with a children's nonsense poem, "The Owl and the Pussycat."

Liza Minnelli recited the poem — and moved around the stage in what was also really a dancing part.

The Martha Graham Dance Company, becoming the first modern dance troupe to perform in the Metropolitan Opera House, opened an engagement there to run through Saturday.

"The Owl and the Pussycat," 25 minutes long, has a gentle charm. And Miss Graham obviously took care with it, not just tossing it off because it was lightly amusing.

The stage setting, by Ming Cho Lee, looked like a playground.

The curtain rose on Yuriko Kimura, the pussycat, in black with a black ponytail acting as a tail, reclining on a slide. Tim Wengerd, the owl, in brown with fringed sleeves, was up on a ladder. A green peapod, its superstructure making it look like a sailboat, was center stage.

After the pair goes to sea, a school of dolphins swims by — bringing spontaneous applause from the audience with their smooth "swimming" movements.

Mermaids swim in, too, and the couple is married by a turkey, really strutting Peter Sparling. The music was commissioned from Carlos Surinach.

Miss Graham, who spoke from the stage before the dancing began, said that she grew up with poems like "The Owl and the Pussycat" — "so I treasure them. They create an impossible world. So why not put it on the stage — the area of man's imagination."

She also said that when she first came to New York, having no dancing school to go to, she went to the zoo and tried to walk like the lions. "I wanted to learn that walk, the weight and importance of every step." She only stopped, she said, when the zoo guards looked at her questioningly.

Miss Graham did not say whether she ever learned the lions' walk. But she has the locomotion of the owl, the pussycat, the turkey, the piggywig, the dolphin and the mermaid down perfectly — to delight the child in everybody.

Miss Minnelli's part will be taken, in the three upcoming performances this week, by dancer Janet Eilber. The opening night program also included "Seraphic Dialogue," "Night Journey" and "Diversion of Angels."
