Negotiate demands with police

Armed Puerto Ricans hold 4 persons hostage

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Four armed persons holding four hostages in the Chilean consulate here softened their demands today after FBI agents negotiated with them through the night.

The quartet had demanded the release of four Puerto Rican nationalists from U.S. prisons and cancellation of the island commonwealth's Fourth of July celebration today in exchange for freeing the hostages.

The new demands were for a statement from the Puerto Rican government urging Puerto Ricans not to attend the celebration and for a statement from the White House promising to start work toward release of the nationalists, the FBI said.

Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo and his government went ahead with plans for the big military and civilian parade this afternoon.

Police isolated the block in San Juan's old quarter where the consulate is located on the fourth floor of an eight-story bank.

"All we can do is wait," said an FBI spokesman.

The three men and a woman invaded the Chilean office Monday afternoon, taking Consul Ramon Gonzalez Ruiz, one of his staff and two unidentified persons in the office on business as hostages. Ruiz, allowed to speak to reporters by telephone, said they were being treated well.

One of the gunmen told The Associated Press the seizure of the consulate was also intended to express "reprobation of the representatives in Puerto Rico of the killers of the Chilean people," meaning the military junta that overthrew the late President Salvador Allende in a bloody coup in 1973.

The man spoke in Spanish and identified himself and his companions as Puerto Ricans although he did not appear to have a Puerto Rican accent. FBI spokesman Gordon McGinley said he talked by telephone with one of the men who "said they had no political connections. He sounded like a South American, but I couldn't tell from what country."

The gunman who talked to the AP said the group telephoned the state Department in Washington and dictated a letter to President Carter demanding the "unconditional release of our political prisoners, now," cancellation of the July 4th celebration in Puerto Rico and that Carter not permit the exchange of the prisoners for "spies."

This last demand apparently was a reference to recent reports that the U.S. government was considering exchanging the four imprisoned Puerto Ricans for U.S. citizens imprisoned in Cuba.

"We are not connected with any political or guerrilla group," the spokesman for the group said. "We are doing this because we want the freedom of our national heroes."

The FBI said the prisoners whose freedom was demanded were Lolita Lebron, Rafael Cancel Miranda and Irvin Flores, who were imprisoned for the attack in March 1954 in the U.S. House of Representatives in which five congressmen were wounded, and Oscar Collazo, who was convicted of attempting to assassinate President Truman in 1950.

Veterans remember meaning of holiday

By MARJ CARPENTER

A handful of veterans and their families remembered the real meaning of the Fourth of July here this morning with a brief and quiet parade down Main Street to the courthouse.

The group carefully went about their business of praising the American flag, praying for the veterans who have died, and placing wreaths by the veterans memorial by both the All Veterans Council and the Gold Star Mothers.

M.H. Spivey, active in Veterans of Foreign War circles, was master of ceremonies at the event. The short address on the meaning of Independence Day was given by Jim Baum.

Out at Highland South at 10 a.m., the neighborhood children held their traditional parade with decorated vehicles and children in patriotic costumes. Main speaker at this event was Winston Wrinkle.

A large crowd watched the fire truck and Boy Scouts lead the parade down Highland Drive. This year, neighborhood residents also decorated their mailboxes in patriotic colors.

At noon, the Evening Lions held a barbecue at Comanche Trail Park, open to the public.

There were no plans this year for public fireworks. They had been sponsored in former years by Webb AFB and the Chamber of Commerce, but for the past two years there have been no fireworks.

Plans announced by Jaycees at the time they put the new playground equipment at the park were for a day of games and activities in the park but these failed to materialize this year.

The youth at Highland South showed a lot of enthusiasm for the patriotic holiday as they walked proudly down the street with winners collecting the traditional silver dollar in prizes at the end of the event.

This strictly-neighborhood parade has now lasted eight years and their challenge to other neighborhoods to hold a similar event have never produced a rival to the Highland South parade.

TAKING THE TIME — This group of veterans and auxiliary members, assisted by boy scouts, took the time to pay tribute to Independence Day while the sign in the background proclaims "Holiday". Most people only use the holiday for rest and relaxation, but this group of veterans were led up the street by M.H. Spivey, Y.J. Luna and Grady Rhone to tribute the memory of war veterans.

Subpoenas served in Lozano inquiry

ODESSA — An additional 17 subpoenas were served Monday for a federal grand jury investigation into the Jan. 22 death of Larry Lozano, an Ector County Jail inmate.

Numerous Ector County law enforcement officials are included among the 70-plus subpoenas served since it was announced a federal grand jury would look into the death of the Mexican-American.

Among peace officers who will testify in the case are sheriff's deputies Lee Roy Murphy and Eugene Ray Kloss. A subpoena was also served to Robert M. Lovinggood, who authorities said helped Murphy and Kloss subdue Lozano when he was originally arrested Jan. 11.

The grand jury investigation will get under way at 8:30 a.m., July 17, in Midland.

Rain storm reminds Lenorah resident of shotgun story

Lenorah resident Grover Springer said Monday's rain storm reminded him of the story about a hunter from the east who propped his shotgun on a fence and went walking to look at West Texas scenery.

"While he was walking, a little shower passed over and when he got back to his gun, one barrel was plum full and the other hadn't caught a drop," Springer related.

Springer said that only a trace of moisture fell at Lenorah, but only a few miles away toward Tarzan, .5 of an inch was measured. Fairview got about .7, but the heaviest rain, along with light hail, was in the east part of the city and county.

Near Howard College, .5 of an inch of precipitation fell, accompanied by high winds and light hail that seemed to get worse to the east.

Syrians resume fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian guns opened up again on the Christian sector of this embattled city today, ending an 18-hour truce between Arab League peacekeepers and rightwing Christian militants.

The thud of artillery shells were heard through the stricken eastern sector and residents reported sniper bullets hitting windows and cars. The U. S. Embassy canceled a Fourth of July reception for Americans in Beirut because of the risks of attending.

The guns had been silent overnight after three days of the bloodiest fighting here since the Lebanese civil war ended in November, 1976.

Police reported 132 Lebanese killed and 517 wounded since the new fighting broke out late last week. Property damage was estimated at upwards of $10 million.

in town, but further east, one mile from town, only 4 of an inch fell. South and west of town cotton was damaged by the hail and high winds which may have been the result of a tornado spotted at Tye near Abilene. The tornado damaged carports and porches east of Tye.

Moss Creek Lake reported the most rainfall, with two heavy showers passing over the lake Monday afternoon and evening. Over 1.5 inches was measured at the lake, and water in the lake rose about 18 inches.

Lake Thomas caught some flow from the river, and O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District said the lake would rise from 4 to 5 inches from the rainfall.

To the south, rain was almost nonexistent with a few spots reporting traces of rainfall, and Garden City not even getting a sprinkle.

RING THAT BELL — Christopher and Ricky Hamby are climbing upon and looking over the mailbox decorated by Mrs. Jimmy Morehead, who was chairman of this year's parade and urged that all residents decorate their mailboxes. Ricky was trying to figure out what was inside the Liberty Bell.

Action/reaction: Re-evaluated

Q. Why is the mail being delivered in some areas later and later? In the 1600 block of Settles, the postman used to come by at about 10:30 a.m. Now it is often 3:30 p.m., and later. In the 2400 block of Runnels, deliveries used to be made at 1 p.m. Now it's often 4 p.m., and later. Have they cut down on manpower?

A. In accordance with a nationwide program aimed at making the U.S. Postal Service more efficient, local mail delivery routes were evaluated after Webb Air Force Base to see if rearranging the routes could allow more efficient operation. Prior to the evaluation, according to Big Spring Postal Superintendent John Gee, there were 21 routes covered by local carriers. The number was cut to 20 and one-half after the evaluation, conducted by district postal authorities from Midland. Then, in March, the routes were re-evaluated, and cut to 19. "Actually we are making more deliveries than we were when Webb was here," said Gee. "and we are carrying more mail to more people with less hours on the time clocks. No one was laid off, since, by coincidence, two carriers had already announced intentions to retire before the cut-backs. All routes should be concluded by 4 p.m., or 4:30 at the latest. Four or five of the longest routes are being checked to see if it is possible to even the burden a little, and we regret any inconvenience the change may have caused mail patrons, but it has been necessary to tighten our belts and work toward more efficient operation."

Court teaches people how to become Texans

HOUSTON (AP) — One lady wanted to know what Texas hero Sam Houston said following his baptism in a river when asked if his sins had been washed away.

The lecturer replied without hesitation "He said 'I hope so, but if they were, Lord help the fish down below.'"

Another speaker destroyed the myth of the tall, muscular Texas cowboy of the 1800s by telling an audience the average cowpoke was merely five feet, five inches tall.

Even the Texas longhorn, usually portrayed with its majestic horns turned gracefully upward, is no longer sacred. Another lecturer noted the longhorn's rack more often was twisted and uneven, occasionally with one horn pointing up and the other one down.

Newcomers (and some native Texans) to the state might not have a forum to ask such questions if it weren't for a course called "Living Texas" created this year at Rice University.

With more than 1,000 "foreigners" immigrating to Houston weekly, its founders felt there was a need for a course to teach people how to be Texan.

"We were afraid all these people would come to Houston and become isolated in apartment complexes and would not take part in community life," said Mary McIntire, who along with Linda Driskill, started the series of mini-courses through the Office of Continuing Studies at Rice.

The first series of minicourses included lectures on accounts of early Texas settlers, Texas banking and international trade, 20th Century Texas Politics and a popular course called "Is Anybody Running Metropolitan Houston?"

Other courses will teach outsiders how to talk Texan, cook Texas chili, eat jalapeno peppers and hunt, fish and sightsee through out the state. Others deal with Texas music, heroes, architecture and the first Texans.

"There is so much myth about Texas that we wanted to establish a course where newcomers to Houston could separate the fact from the fiction," Ms. Driskill said.

Jean Hardin, who moved here from Shreveport, La. last September, took the course on Houston politics and found that someone does run the city.

"I was amazed at the amount of money spent by the city and the complexities of running a city government that size," she said. "I've always known that Texans were good at tall tales and this course did nothing to dispell that."

"I always like to start out with a couple of wild stories," said lecturer John L. Davis, director of research at the Institute of Texas Cultures in San Antonio. "They seem to expect it."

Louis lectured in the Living Texas series recently on the history of the famed Texas Rangers and again had to separate some of the myth from fact.

"They weren't really as fierce looking as they often looked in early day pictures," Louis said. "Some of them actually wore suits when they were working in towns."

The most famous Texas Ranger story deals with a call for the Texas Rangers to help quell a riot. Only one Ranger showed up and announced "Well, there's only one riot isn't there?"

Unfortunately for the legend of the Texas Rangers, Davis has been unable to confirm that specific incident. "But I've come pretty close," he said. "There are many confirmed instances of similar Ranger actions."

McIntire says the lecture presented by Rice political science professor Gilbert Cuthbertson on Texas politics is one of the most entertaining in the series.

Rather than clearing up any misconceptions newcomers might have about Texas politics, Cuthbertson says "I think more of them think I have the misconceptions. A lot of the people in the course have known some of the politicians involved in Texas scandals so I try to be careful with my antiodotes."

Cuthbertson said one woman objected to his light treatment of the George Parr political machine in South Texas. "She lived in South Texas during those days and she said it wasn't too funny if you had lived through it," Cuthbertson said.

Cuthbertson also gives a few examples of the flavor of lively language used on the floor of the Texas Legislature.

He usually gets laughs when he relates how one legislator described another as being so ugly "when he was a little boy his parents had to tie a pork chop around his neck so the dog would play with him."

History shows tax bill impossible, Hobby says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says history shows that it would be virtually impossible to enact a tax bill if Gov. Dolph Briscoe's two-thirds proposal were written into the Texas Constitution.

Hobby told an impromptu news conference Monday he had "serious doubts" about the proposal.

Briscoe wants the special session starting next Monday to approve a measure requiring a two-thirds vote of the Legislature to enact a tax bill. The measure would have to be submitted to the voters.

Hobby said past House votes indicate that if the two-thirds requirement had been in effect over the past 20 years, no tax bill would have been passed.

"I think it is an unnecessary tying of the hands of the Legislature," Hobby said.

He said the most votes a tax bill had received in the House over the past two decades was 74.

Hobby said however, he thinks the special session beginning next Monday can accomplish some "useful things" — such as repealing the state sales tax on residential utilities and abolishing the 10-cent state property tax.

Order may mean statewide changes

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — An Austin tax expert says a judge's order blocking approval of Grayson County's 1978 property tax roll may spawn a statewide call for what amounts to revamping the form of personal property taxation.

Adrian Overstreet, an Austin tax expert hired by the Grayson County Taxpayers Association, said the group actually isn't advocating anything more than a return to assessing property taxes according to constitutional guidelines.

"This is nothing new," said Overstreet. "What we're shooting for is a return to the uniform method of assessing property."

District Judge Will Boyd Monday granted a permanent injunction preventing commissioners in this North Texas county from approving their tax roll until "all" personal property as described in the state constitution is placed on the roll.

The taxpayers' group, which consists mostly of farmers mad about having their lands reevaluated, brought their case to court after raising $25,000 for the legal battle.

After the ruling, there was evidence that similar court fights may be forthcoming.

E.D. Glass, a spokesman for a Brown County taxpayer's group, was in this North Central Texas town watching the proceedings.

"We're up here on a seek and find mission," said Glass, who added that his group hopes to challenge the method of assessing personal property in Brown County.

"What this (Boyd's) ruling does is shift the tax burden from the property owners," said Overstreet. "The way it's done now, if I had a million dollars in land and you had a million dollars in jewels, I'd have my land taxed but you wouldn't."

The state constitution provides that all household property over $250, stocks, bonds and bank deposits shall be included on the tax rolls. Overstreet said the practice was adhered to prior to World War II. However, he said assessors now days make little or no effort to determine the monetary worth of taxpayers beyond what is rendered.

"People used to take their money out of banks back then and put it back in after Jan. 1 when the assessing was done," he said. "We

Court battle not over in shrimp boat case

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Kerry Dancer, a beached shrimp boat that has survived court orders and attempts to burn it, will soon be hauled from the waters off South Padre Island.

But court battles concerning the 65-foot vessel are apparently not over.

The boat has been the scene of death and injury since it beached May 4.

State District Judge Filemon Vela Monday ordered the Cameron County Sheriff's Department to arrange for the removal of the boat. The salvage operation will be paid for by the county. The parts will be sold to defray the costs.

Any difference in the sale of the parts and the cost of the operation will be covered by the boat's owner.

Assistant District Attorney Jim Mardis anticipated a big difference in the two amounts. He said a recent estimate showed the parts may bring up to $2,500.

A local salvage company official testified Monday it will cost up to $10,000 to bring the boat—or its pieces—to shore.

Ownership of the boat will be decided in the courts, Vela ruled. Elizabeth Pierson, who the county took to court in an effort to have the boat removed, claims she sold it for $1 to Coastal Diving.

But Jim Landin of Coastal Diving testified Monday his company felt no responsibility for the boat. He told Vela the firm decided the salvage operation was "economically unfeasible." He also denied that the company signed a bill of sale with Mrs. Pierson.

Mrs. Pierson was ordered Friday by Vela to have the boat removed by July 4. She tried to burn it Saturday but was stopped by a deputy sheriff.

"That might not have been such a far-fetched idea," Vela said Monday.

But Landin testified that using a winch to break up the boat and haul it in was the only feasible salvage method.

Sunday, a second youth drowned near the Kerry Dancer. Officials said the death was probably not related to the vessel—but Vela cited the death in ordering 24-hour guard at the scene.

Landin said crowds near the boat have been "unruly."

"I've never encountered a mob like this in my life," he told the judge.

Officials at the sheriff's department said Monday the salvage efforts would not begin until after the July 4 holiday.

ENERGY EFFICIENT

Texas Electric Service Company

Look for this sign. It can help you save on energy costs in a big way.

Whether you're going to buy a new home or build one, you should know about E-OK. It means that the home has been thoroughly checked and certified as energy efficient by Texas Electric.

An E-OK home has more insulation, sealed windows, weather-stripped doors, and more efficient heating and cooling equipment. Living in an E-OK home means lower energy bills year round. And with the extra insulation, it's quieter, too.

Should you later decide to move, the lower energy bills from an E-OK home could help sell the home faster. Potential home buyers are increasingly concerned about what your bills have been.

Ask your builder about the added features of an E-OK home, or get your free E-OK booklet from Texas Electric. Just call us, or ask for the book on the comment section of your electric bill.

Striking firefighters will obey order

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Tues., July 4, 1978 7-A

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Striking firefighters said they would reluctantly obey a court order today and end a three-day walkout that spawned a state of civil emergency and saw hundreds of fires set by arsonists in this Mississippi River city.

"We're going back to work," yelled a fireman Monday night as he left a noisy meeting in an overcrowded auditorium where union President Kuhron Huddleston outlined the court order.

But Huddleston warned that the strike over wages could be resumed if his 1,400 members were dissatisfied with the way contract talks with the city were going.

"The men are going back reluctantly," Huddleston told reporters after the meeting.

"The executive board recommends these men return back on the job."

Earlier Monday, Chancellor Robert Hoffman issued a temporary injunction ordering an end to the strike. The order, which permits minimal picketing only, came after a brief hearing in which City Attorney Cliff Pierce and union attorney Allan Blair were finally able to reach agreement on the injunction.

Hoffman did not specify a penalty should the injunction be disregarded. However, in similar cases, judges have ordered union officials back into court to answer contempt citations when their orders have been ignored.

More than 1,100 National Guardsmen, Navy and Marine volunteers and Forestry Service firefighters were on duty to provide fire protection for the city of 800,000 people. Mayor Wyeth Chandler said a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew imposed Sunday would remain until the firefighters returned to work.

Fire Department officials said the number of fire alarms had dropped considerably since Saturday, when the strike began. At least 220 fires broke out Saturday night, mostly in abandoned buildings.

The city normally experiences eight fire alarms on a Saturday night.

"It's fairly quiet," Mike Kuykendall, an administrative assistant to the fire director, said late Monday. "In fact, fire calls have been slightly below average."

4 JULY 4

Supreme Court decision makes states look again

WASHINGTON (AP) — For numerous lawyers and state legislators across the nation, the Supreme Court's latest capital punishment ruling means new required reading.

For 99 Ohio death row inmates, the decision carries far more drama — a reprieve from the electric chair.

In invalidating Ohio's death penalty laws Monday, the nation's highest court reduced the death row population nationwide by one-fifth. It also gave all states a clearer look at what the justices will require of death penalty laws.

"This was an important case, not only because of the numbers involved, but for future litigation," said Jack Boger of the New York-based Legal Defense Fund, one of several organizations waging a national battle against capital punishment.

In a pair of Ohio cases, the court ruled 7-1 that the state's capital laws do not permit "the type of individualized consideration of mitigating factors" to escape being ruled unconstitutionally cruel and unusual punishment.

Although the seven justices voting against Ohio's sentencing procedures did so for varying reasons, only Justice William H. Rehnquist would have preserved the state laws.

Rehnquist was the only justice to disagree with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's hopeful assessment that Monday's decision would provide "the clearest guidance."

"The signals from this court have not always been easy to decipher," Burger said in discussing past death penalty rulings.

Rehnquist agreed, adding, "I am frank to say that I am uncertain whether today's opinion represents the seminal case in the exposition ... of the 8th and 14th Amendments as they apply to capital punishment or whether instead it represents the third false start in this direction within the past six years."

In 1972, the court struck down all existing death penalty laws, ruling that they had been applied capriciously and arbitrarily.

Four years later, the justices ruled that the death penalty may be a constitutional punishment for convicted murderers but struck down several state laws it said were too inflexible in considering life and death.

Now, the court has attempted to hone its 1976 rulings, but in so doing has left unanswered capital punishment questions that likely will return:

—Whether the death penalty is constitutional for convicted murderers who took no part in the actual killing or those who never intended to kill their crimes' victim.

—Whether recent bans on all mandatory death sentences should make room for an exception for murders committed by prison inmates sentenced for life or by escaped inmates who had been serving lifeterms.

—Whether the death penalty is permissible for minors, and whether death penalty laws that preclude jury participation in sentencing are constitutionally valid.

Acting without explanation, the justices also cast doubt Monday on the validity of Arizona's death penalty laws.

They sent back the case of a condemned murderer to the Arizona Supreme Court for restudy in light of the Ohio rulings.

Boger said the high court had found Arizona's law similar to Ohio's in that it precluded consideration of all mitigating circumstances and therefore was invalid.

Wimby faves still in command

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert defeated Billie Jean King 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 today and swept into the semifinals of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships and a Wednesday showdown against defending champion Virginia Wade of Britain.

Wade, the No. 4 seed, beat Yugoslavia's Mima Jausovec 6-0, 6-4. In today's two other women's quarter-finals, second-seeded Martina Navratilova of the United States beat Marise Kruger 6-2, 6-4 to set up a semifinal match against third-seed Evonne Goolagong of Australia, a 7-5, 6-3 winner over Romanian Virginia Ruzici.

In today's men's quarter-finals it was Bjorn Borg vs. Sandy Mayer, Jimmy Connors vs. Raul Ramirez, Vitas Gerulaitis vs. Brian Gottfried and Tom Okker vs. Ilie Nastase.

The Evert-Wade match is a replay of last year's semifinal, when the British ace upset the American en route to the championship.

The Evert-King match was mostly a tame one in which both women were on the defensive. Evert lobbed and drove deep to keep her older opponent away from the net, and when the fifth-seeded King did go forward, her volleying lacked consistency.

After losing the first set, King grew in confidence and came back to win the second one. It appeared she might take another step toward a seventh Wimbledon singles crown.

With Evert leading 3-2 in the third set, King led 40-0 on her own service. Suddenly, the match swung away from her. Evert hit a fine return down the line and one point later raced across her baseline to hit a spectacular forehand pass for deuce.

King next knocked up a fatal half-court lob and a smash by Evert sent her to advantage point. Evert wrapped up the game for a 4-2 lead by hitting a strong backhand return, her fifth point in a row. King scored only two more points in the last two games and Evert finished off the match with one of her best shots, a cross-court backhand which flashed past King as she came forward in a last futile bid to stem the tide.

In the Wade-Jausovec match, the Yugoslav had to wait until the second game of the second set before she won a game to level at 1-1. She won it with the help of a fine lob that landed inches short of the baseline, and used the same shot for a break on Wade's service to get level at 3-3 then hold service for a 4-3 lead.

With those two games out of the way, Wade pulled herself together, took the next two games, then closed out the match with a cross-court volley and a service that Jausovec could only dump into the net.

Kruger, the 12th-seeded South African, was plagued by inconsistency and, with her service invariably weak, she was unable to extend Navratilova, the former Czech now based in Dallas.

Navratilova got the break she was looking for in the very first game, and she broke Kruger again at 3-1. Kruger then broke back to 4-2 but Navratilova quickly regained the upper hand, broke again and held her own service for a 6-2 victory in the first set.

BALANCING ACT — Romania's Ilie Nastase draws smiles from gallery at Wimbledon's Center Court Monday as he balances on edge of spectator's enclosure during his match against Roscoe Tanner of the U.S. Nastase almost ended up in the crowd, after chasing across court to reach a shot by Tanner in Men's Singles match. Despite the clowning, Nastase went on to win 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 to advance to the quarter-finals.

Highway 80 continues

Approximately 300 West Texas tennis players are currently utilizing every court in the city as second day action of the Highway 80 Tennis Tournament continues here.

Monday, local star Dana Cannon won both of her matches in the 12 girls singles, and was favored to take the finals in that division this morning.

Kip McLaughlin reached the semi-finals in the 14 boys singles, and Barry Fish advanced to the 18 boys singles quarter-finals today with his efforts Monday.

Barry Stephens and Jamey Easterling, seeded second in the Men's Doubles, begin competition today, and should wind up in the finals Wednesday against the number one seeded duo from Lubbock.

Other doubles action begins today, and McLaughlin and Aubrey Weaver are expected to breeze through the 14 boys action in that category. Weaver was cut down in a Monday's 14 boys single match.

Today's early play was enhanced by near perfect weather conditions, and court conditions were not affected by a few scattered showers throughout the city Monday evening.

Final matches in most divisions will take place at the Figure Seven Tennis Center in Comanche Trail Park beginning Wednesday afternoon. Local and area tennis fans are invited to attend. There is no charge.

Whisox erase Ranger leads twice

CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Doby, making his managerial debut at home, was grinning from ear to ear and cracked "What was it Shakespeare said? The whole world is a stage? Well, you couldn't stage it any better than that."

Indeed not. The Chicago White Sox appeared destined for defeat Monday night when they went into the ninth inning trailing the Texas Rangers 6-4.

Chet Lemon homered, Lamar Johnson singled and Jorge Orta followed with a dramatic home run to give the White Sox a 7-6 victory. A crowd of 42,231 refused to stop cheering until Orta came out for a curtain call. Then the real fireworks began in celebration of the Fourth of July.

"It was a great finish," said Ranger Manager Billy Hunter, who, after hesitating, added "for them. The fireworks started a little early."

Hunter saw two Texas leads fashioned on homers by Mike Hargrove in the first inning and John Ellis in the second inning quickly erased by the White Sox.

But Toby Harrah's run-scoring double in the seventh inning snapped a 4-4 tie and the Rangers added an unearned run in the eighth to take a 6-4 lead.

Len Barker, in relief of starter Doyle Alexander, had blanked the Sox from the second inning until the ninth when Lemon led off with his 10th homer.

"Len told me he was getting tired so when Lemon hit his homer I went to my ace," said Hunter, who then called on Reggie Cleveland. Cleveland retired Claudell Washington but Johnson reached on an infield hit before Orta unloaded his 12th homer.

"It wasn't the homers that beat us," said Hunter. "we'd still be playing if we had run the bases better."

Hunter was referring to Bobby Thompson who led off with a double in the fourth inning but failed to tag up and advance to third on a deep fly by Hargrove before Bert Campaneris fled to center.

Also to Harrah, who after breaking the tie with his double, overslid third base on Richie Zisk's fly to center and was thrown out by Lemon for an inning-ending double play.

Orta, ever low-keyed, was positive only in saying "It was a fast ball and I knew it was gone when I hit it. I hit it good. No, I wasn't trying for a home run but I was trying to hit it as hard as I could."

Lemon, whose No. 10 homer triggered the ninth-inning rally, said "I was just trying to get on base and that's when you usually hit them out. It was easy for me but the pressure was on Jorge and you saw what he did."

The loss knocked the Rangers out of first place in the American League West, one game behind the California Angels who defeated Kansas City 7-4.

Bean's sudden death talent takes Western

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Andy Bean has rushed into the spotlight of the professional golf tour at the age of 25. Two of his three victories this year have come in pressure-packed playoffs.

With Monday's sudden-death victory over Bill Rogers in the Western Open and last month's similar conquest of Lee Trevino in the Memphis Classic, Bean has shown an ability to excel in head-to-head play.

"I used to get really excited and I've calmed down a bit. Not a whole lot of things bother me," said Bean, who is the leading money-winner in his third year on the pro tour.

"I'm learning patience more and more each year. That comes through experience and waiting. I'm two-for-two (in playoffs). I guess I've got the best average on the tour."

The final round of the $225,000 event was postponed by rain Sunday and when play began Monday, Bean's name was behind 14 others on the scoreboard and alongside another six who were at even-par 216 after three rounds on the par 72, 7,083-yard Butler National course.

Rogers, winner of this year's Bob Hope Desert Classic, led all the names at 6-under-par 210, two strokes better than Hale Irwin and Mac McLendon, who were tied for second.

But Bean mounted a furious charge of nine birdies in 13 holes and finished with a 66 for a 282 total. That's what Rogers had when he made an outstanding recovery after putting his tee shot in a water hazard on the 18th hole to make a bogey and drop back in a tie with Bean. He had a 72 for the round.

"A man came out and won the golf tournament today. He shot a round on a golf course that doesn't yield many rounds like that," said Rogers. "I have nothing but respect and good feelings for Andy winning the tournament."

The playoff lasted only one hole, the par-4, 381-yard 16th. Bean hit his tee shot into the right rough but made an excellent shot to within 5 feet of the cup.

Rogers followed a drive down the middle with a shot that sailed past the green. He chipped the ball about 10 feet past the hole and two-putted for a bogey. Bean then took two putts to record his par and supplant 1977 Western champion Tom Watson as the

IT'S HIS — Andy Bean proudly holds his Western Open trophy aloft at Butler National Golf Club, Oak Brook, Monday. Bean won the Western Open by one stroke when he parred first hole of sudden death playoff in duel against Bill Rogers. Bean went into Monday's final round trailing 14 golfers, but blazed to a 66. It was Bean's third pro tour victory in five weeks.

Reds edge Astros

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds say they have seen the worst of times this season and now they hope to see the best of times.

After losing six straight games, the Reds have come back to record victories against the Los Angeles Dodgers and Houston Astros.

"You can't keep this ballclub down for long," said Pete Rose, who extended his own hitting streak Monday to a club-leading 19 games.

The victories over Los Angeles and Houston both have been won in dramatic fashion, with the Reds outlasting the Astros in 11 innings Monday night to post an 8-7 victory.

The Reds beat the Dodgers Sunday with a seventh-inning come-from-behind 7-6 win.

"There are just too many good hitters on this club. It is always only a matter of time before we come around," Rose said.

Against the Astros, George Foster slammed his 18th homer of the season, scoring three runs in the first to take over the National League RBI lead with 60 and tie Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski for the home run lead.

Ken Griffey slapped his 100th and 101st hits of the year to secure his hitting lead in the league.

"We are coming around," Rose said. "We may have been down for a while but we are a good hitting ballclub. We'll get the runs."

Against the Astros, the run that counted came in the 11th inning after Johnny Bench doubled with one out and the score tied 7-7.

Junior Kennedy singled with two out in the 11th to score pinch runner Rick Auerbach and give the Reds the victory.

"It's a big lift for us when you can get hits like that," said Kennedy, substituting at second base for Joe

Bosten bats pound Yanks

By the Associated Press

Together, they have appeared in nearly 5,000 major league baseball games and collected more than 4,700 hits. Though separated by the breadth of a continent, Boston's Carl Yastrzemski and California's Ron Fairly have a lot in common.

Each reached a milestone Monday night. The 38-year-old Yastrzemski collected the 2,800th hit of his 18-year career as the Red Sox demolished the New York Yankees 9-5 at Fenway Park. Fairly, just over a week away from his 40th birthday, managed his 1,900th hit as the Angels topped the Kansas City Royals 7-4.

And there was something else. The Boston victory strengthened its solid first place in the American League's East Division while the California triumph returned the Angels to the AL West top spot they held for a few days in April and a few more in May.

"Statistics don't mean a thing at this stage," said Yastrzemski, who had a double, two singles and three RBI in Boston's victory. "Even though I'm hitting about .290, I really haven't felt comfortable at the plate this year. The big thing is we're winning. That's what counts."

The Boston victory was its 34th in 40 games at home this year and improved the major leagues' best record to 53-24. The Red Sox got seven doubles — two of them from George Scott — and one triple in a 12-hit assault on three New York pitchers.

"I'm just waiting to get 2,000 now," said Fairly, a 21-year veteran who plans to play until 1980 in order to have played major league ball in four decades.

"If I don't do it this year, I'll do it next year," said Fairly, who has batted just 161 times while appearing in 53 of the Angels' 79 games. "I probably won't get enough at-bats (this year), unless I go 100-for-100, and I don't think anybody's done that."

In other AL games Monday night, the Chicago White Sox nipped the Texas Rangers 7-6, the Cleveland Indians clouted the Baltimore Orioles 9-0, the Detroit Tigers trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5, the Minnesota Twins bombed the Milwaukee Brewers 7-2 and the Oakland A's bested the Seattle Mariners 5-3.

Padre Fingers scratch Giants

By the Associated Press

You really have to hand it to Rollie Fingers. Actually, that's just what the San Diego Padres did Monday night.

Just as he has done all season, the relief pitcher had his busy hand in another San Diego success — helping the Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

"We're playing good ball and getting outstanding pitching," said San Diego Manager Roger Craig. "We've been scoring some runs and over the last month we've had the best pitching in the league."

Fingers has been one of those mainly responsible for that. Another one has been Randy Jones, who started Monday night's game and gained his sixth victory with Fingers' 19th save, high in the majors.

Playing their best ball of the season, the Padres have won 11 of their last 14 games and at last climbed to the .500 level with a 40-40 won-lost record.

"It all turned around about 3½ weeks ago," said Jones, who not only pitched well but triggered a decisive four-run, sixth-inning rally with a double off loser Jim Barr.

"All of a sudden, we've just jelled. I've felt all along this is the best club the Padres have ever had. There's no telling what it's capable of doing."

Jack Clark, who hit his sixth homer in the last five games for San Francisco, seemed somewhat discouraged despite a batting binge that earned him National League Player of the Week honors earlier in the day. The loss was the seventh in the last 10 games for the slumping Giants.

"Maybe we're not giving 100 percent lately," said Clark. "We're giving ball games away. We should be winning. We're in a team slump and we're flat out there."

"We can't be lackadaisical and let other teams win it for us. We've got to go out and do it ourselves. Maybe we should stop looking at the scoreboard to see what the Cincinnati Reds and the Los Angeles Dodgers are doing."

Actually, the Dodgers weren't doing too much Monday night. They lost 4-2 to the Atlanta Braves. The Reds, meanwhile, beat the Houston Astros 8-7 in 11 innings to move past Los Angeles into second place. Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 and the Montreal Expos beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0. Rain postponed the Philadelphia-New York game.

The Giants took a 2-0 lead into the sixth. But then Jones led off with a double and scored on a triple by Gene Richards. Ozzie Smith followed with a single for a 2-2 tie.

Fernando Gonzalez sacrificed and Oscar Gamble was walked intentionally with two out. Rick Sweet then belted a run-scoring single and the final run scored on a fielding error by third baseman Darrell Evans.

Treat your body to a better shape

By EILEEN MCGUIRE
Family News Editor
(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second installment of a three-part series dealing with physical fitness programs offered by the YMCA, located on Owens Street.)

"We're in the people business." That's the message on a sign prominently displayed in the gameroom of the Owens Street YMCA. And being in the people business, the YMCA is concerned with the physical fitness of its community.

A body is physically fit when it's operating at its peak efficiency. A physically fit body is the most important possession that a person has. When you're in top condition, it's going to show up in other areas of your life.

Good health, which is what physical fitness is all about, begins in childhood. The Y recognizes that by offering exercise to children as well as adults. There are also special classes for the adult who may have some remedial work to do in getting his or her body in good shape.

If you're out of shape and want to get back in, there are several different routes to choose from. In addition to a regular fitness class featuring good old calisthenics, there's an aerobics class and water exercise class.

"The aerobics class is an hour of dancing," explained Linda Swinney, staff member. "It's exercise that doesn't feel like exercise. When the hour is up, you can't believe you've been dancing for that length of time. You stick with it because you enjoy it and that's what makes it work."

The classes are offered at different times to make them more accessible to members. If none are convenient for you, you can exercise as a class of one in the women's or men's exercise rooms from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

STOP THINKING ABOUT IT and do it was the advice Mike McCracken, YMCA director, gave Eugene Boadle, Big Spring High School junior and track team member, shown here getting ready for a workout. According to McCracken, the high school coaches often send their teams to the YMCA Health Center which includes a men's exercise room equipped with this Universal Gymn and plenty of weights. Boadle has been working out at the Y every day for the past three weeks.

The rooms are equipped with universal gyms that exercise every part of your body through resistance or weights. Wall charts offer a routine and counts that are begun slowly and worked up to. Another chart shows which exercises to concentrate on to improve your golf game while another set of exercises are geared for tennis players.

If you don't need to get into shape, you can use the room to keep your shape or to advance yourself in your favorite sport.

"You don't have to be fat to be a member here," said Executive Director Mike McCracken. "We have both reducing and maintenance programs. If you are a reducer, you have to get your diet from your physician, but the diet alone won't be enough. While you lose on your diet, you tone up with exercise."

While exercises won't get rid of unwanted pounds without a proper diet, there are plenty of activities at the Y that will help burn up excess calories, thereby speeding up weight loss. McCracken recommends about 30 to 45 minutes of workout in the exercise room for the reducer in good health plus another outside activity such as handball, racquetball, volleyball, basketball or jogging on the high school track, conveniently located next to the Y.

If you want to take up one of the games seriously, classes are taught to children and adults. There are also classes in gymnastics, which includes ballet and tap, for beginners and advanced.

"Every body is different," said McCracken. "The amount of exercise and type of exercise depends on the individual's current condition. A person who has been out of shape for years or has special health problems won't be able to do as much as the person who just wants to lose ten pounds."

"We can help each person come up with a plan that's right for him or her. It's up to them to stick with it." The Y combines fun with health in their summer program for children, grades one through six. On Monday and Wednesday, the children enjoy arts and crafts while the Tuesday and Thursday lineup features outdoor recreation, including T-ball, dodgeball, soccer, nature walks, games and special trips.

That's a nice alternative to seeing a formerly active youngster spend his summer planted in front of a television set. The activities begin at 9 a.m. and end at 12 noon.

In addition to separate programs for youth, women and men, the whole family can get in on the act together during family gym.

Rates are geared for families also. A summer youth membership is $9. Yearly memberships are youth, ages 6-17, $15; college student, $15; adult, 18 and over, $45; man and wife, $55; and family, $65.

There are also health club memberships — individual, man and wife, family or executive.

Another type of membership is the Friend of Youth Sustaining Membership. Under this program, the YMCA is able to carry out its "No child shall be denied because he can't afford it" policy.

Under the sustaining youth plan, an adult can join the Century Club for $100 or more a year. He receives a plaque and membership and his contribution helps pay for youth memberships. According to McCracken, $100 will buy seven youth memberships.

"The recipient of the youth membership has to pay something, whatever he can afford. The reason we charge him something is so that he'll not waste the membership. By paying what he can, he makes a commitment on his own that will keep him coming back to the Y."

"The facilities in Big Spring are not only better than most in communities of this size, but the rates are lower here than in other parts of Texas," he said.

"One man who moved here from Ft. Worth said an adult membership there, for the same type of facilities, was $111 a year. It's only $45 here. In Wichita Falls, it costs $25 a year for children. Here, it's only $15."

Whatever your goal — to get in shape, to stay in shape, to make the track team, to improve your golf swing, or to do something worthwhile as a family, the YMCA offers the means of reaching your goal.

The Y cares about people. Isn't it about time you started caring about yourself?

Find new girlfriend

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dear Doctor:

I never thought I would ever write to someone for help but the time has come.

I am 20 and am going with a girl 19. We have been together 16 months and I love her very much and I'm sure she loves me.

Lately, she met a guy where she works. First, she started going out to lunch, then she started to see him occasionally after work. The thought of her with another guy blows my mind.

I've decided to meet this guy and mess up his face. I'm not sure it will solve the problem, but it will give me great satisfaction.

Lovesick, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Dear Lovesick:
Don't do it. All this boy has done was to date a girl. If your girl friend didn't want to see him, she wouldn't have.

If she really loves you, things will work out if you keep a cool head. Continue to see her, and don't mention this other guy.

While she is dating him, find yourself another girl to date. Don't sit at home and feel sorry for yourself.

Dear Doctor:
I have been suspended from my high school basketball team because my hair was too long to suit our coach.

I never caused any trouble and never missed a practice. My hair in no way hinders my performance. I watch television and many college and professional players have long hair and they are allowed to play.

I want to keep my hair long but I also want to participate in athletics. How can I convince the coach that my hair has nothing to do with my ability?

Suspended, Tacoma, Wash.

Dear Suspended:
Knowing how certain coaches feel about long hair there is probably nothing you can do to convince him that long hair is permissible.

What is more important to you — your hair or your team? Don't forget that your hair will always grow back.

Mother Fears For Daughter's Safety

DEAR ABBY: I am a 38-year-old widow with three children. The oldest is a 14-year-old girl. There is a man I know who I thought was a really nice guy. He's divorced and has grown children. He seemed to like me and the children.

Last week he offered me money to let my 14-year-old daughter go to bed with him. I told him he was crazy. I told a policeman about it, and he said there is nothing anyone can do unless the man commits some kind of crime.

Abby, I am terrified that he might catch my daughter somewhere and rape her. (Maybe even kill her.)

I know he's a sick man or he wouldn't have asked me something like that. What should I do?

UPSET IN IOWA

DEAR UPSET: Don't wait until this man commits a crime. You don't say where in Iowa you live, but I advise you to immediately alert your chief of police, sheriff or county attorney. Let them know about this sick and potentially dangerous man and what he has in mind. Alert your daughter, too. And let me hear from you again. This situation should not be ignored.

DEAR ABBY: All my life my parents have taught me to be courteous and to respect my elders, but it's getting harder every day. I will give you an example.

Last week I went to a baseball game with two of my friends. They left their seats in the stadium for a few moments and while they were gone, a man about my father's age moved in and signaled another man to come join him. I told him those seats belonged to my friends, who would be back any moment. He said he would move when my friends returned.

Well, when my friends came back, this man refused to move. I reminded him that he had given his word, but he said, "Listen, kid, I'm 30 years older than you. You kids go find other seats."

Not wanting to start trouble, my friends and I left and sat somewhere else.

Now why are kids expected to show respect and be courteous to adults when adults act like this to us?

LOVES BASEBALL.

DEAR LOVES: Teenagers complain (and justifiably so) that they are individuals and want to be judged by their own actions—not by what their peers do. The same goes for adults. The men were rude, but they, fortunately, do not represent ALL adults. Be fair.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are middle-aged and we're watching our weight. We do all right at home, but our troubles begin when we're guests in someone's home—especially when they serve midnight "snacks" after cards, etc.

We count our calories all week, and then the hostess puts all this stuff on the table and pushes it onto our plates, saying, "I've worked so hard, you've GOT to eat this!" Or, "If you don't eat it, I'll have to throw it out!"

We have come home stuffed and uncomfortable because we couldn't get out of eating. We tell ourselves, "Never again," but the next weekend it's the same story. Any suggestions?

KICKING OURSELVES IN HINSDALE

DEAR KICKING: Don't blame your hostess. Tell her in advance that you're dieting and ask her to please have some carrots, celery or fresh fruit for you to nibble on. (Or you could bring your own.) No one is forced to eat anything he doesn't want.

DIFFERENT KIND OF LUNCH — Giving up their lunch hour in exchange for some vigorous exercise in the handball court are, from left, Travis Hunter, Herb Shipp and Tito Arencibia. McCracken encourages this type of activity in addition to workouts in the exercise room to stay physically fit. Handball and racquetball, popular among adult Y members, is also taught to children, ages 11 and up, by Shipp.

Automation hits henhouse

SALISBURY, Vt. (AP) — The box may say "farm fresh eggs," but the chickens have never seen the farm.

They spend all but a tiny fraction of their lives indoors, tens of thousands of living "parts" on a single assembly line.

The machinery feeds them, waters them, controls the light. It regulates the temperature and humidity. And it carries away the eggs on constantly moving conveyor belts to automatic grading and packaging lines.

George and Lois Devoid have what state extension officials call a "moderate size" egg business in Salisbury.

"Moderate" means they have 25,000 birds, housed in two automated barns. The larger of the two measures 300 feet by 42 feet, home for 14,000 chickens under a single roof.

Marketing may still demand the image of a fresh-faced farm girl returning from the hen house with a basket under her arm. But the market itself has demanded mechanization.

"There wasn't much choice. The people who don't want to make changes in housing and production techniques are out of business today," says University of Vermont poultry adviser Len Mercia.

The trend was nationwide, he says. "The signs were there in the '50s, but the big change came about 10 years ago when most supplies took the birds off the floor and put them into cages."

Now, he says, the business of supplying Americans with their daily breakfast ration is becoming the province of enormous operations.

"One California company, called Egg City, has 6 million birds by itself," he says.

But in Vermont, at least, the independent producers have held out. Mercia says that although "hundreds" have folded in the last 15 years, almost all of Vermont's remaining 35 egg businesses are still family-owned.

The Devoids, one of the survivors, made the switch in the late 1960s.

"When the new barn goes up and you know you've only got a few years go pay off an $80,000 mortgage, you realize that things have changed," she says.

Friends of Joe Angel Martinez, 1007 N. Gregg, threw him a combination birthday and farewell party to remember on Monday. About 160 people attended.

Martinez, who will be 26 years old on July 11, will soon leave Big Spring to sample life in California.

The party took place from 9 p.m. to midnight at Comanche Trail Park. Mickey Mouse dominated the Disneyland theme decorations and was featured on a cake made by Charlotte Winters and served by Rosemary and Gloria Garcia.

Hosting the bash were Nora Valles, Sandra Fierro and Mr. and Mrs. Andres Gamboa.
