FLOOD — A shopping center east of downtown Rochester, Minn. shows the flooding of the Zumbro river this morning. The flood resulted from an overnight 6-inch down-pour. Five people are known to have died and four are still missing. More than 4,000 persons were forced to evacuate their homes.

Nine believed dead Heavy rainfall floods Southeast Rochester

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Seven inches of rain in less than six hours sent flood waters six feet deep swirling through southeast Rochester. Police said at least nine persons were believed drowned and several others were missing.

The bodies of three wheelchair patients and a nurse's aide were recovered from an elevator in the flooded basement of the National Health Enterprises nursing home. Later, the body of a woman whose car had plunged into the swollen Zumbro River near Rochester was recovered. The five had been included in the count of nine feared dead.

Witnesses said two other cars, carrying an undetermined number of people, also went into the river. Two boaters also were reported missing.

Flash-flooding knocked out power and telephone service to parts of Rochester, blocked roads to the city and forced the evacuation of more than 4,000 persons. The famed Mayo Clinic in downtown Rochester was not affected, however.

"We have some real concern about how many we're going to find dead," said Olmsted County Sheriff Charles Vonwald.

Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich called out the National Guard to assist in rescue operations.

Names of the victims whose bodies were recovered from the nursing home elevator were withheld until relatives could be notified.

Witnesses told police the four were trying to go to higher floors to escape rising water. County Deputy Coroner Paul Belau quoted witnesses as saying the nurse's aide pushed the button to go up but the elevator went down to the flooded basement instead.

The swollen Zumbro continued to rise at the rate of one foot an hour today as volunteers and police used boats to search house to house for people still stranded. Private homes and hotels were reported filled with evacuees.

As rain continued to fall, although not as heavily as Wednesday night, the National Weather Service said the Zumbro stood at 20 feet today, 8 feet over flood stage. Forecasters said the river would continue rising today, although at a slower rate.

Police Sgt. Orrin Knutson said one of the cars which reportedly plunged into the Zumbro carried a woman, another car had two to five passengers and the third an undetermined number of people. The woman's car went off a flooded bridge. It was not known immediately what caused the other cars to go into the river.

The State Patrol recommended no travel whatsoever to Rochester, a city of 58,000 people about 90 miles southeast of Minneapolis.

Authorities evacuated dozens of campers at nearby Whitewater and Beaver Creek state parks as well as several hundred residents of nearby Hayfield and Elba. Rural areas reported baseball-size hail.

The flooding hit less than 24 hours after two tornadoes killed eight people in Minnesota and neighboring North Dakota.

Late Tuesday, a tornado hit the farming and ranching community of Elgin, N.D., killing five people and injuring 35 to 40 people. A few hours later, another twister tore through Gary, Minn., leaving three dead and 39 hurt.

'Proposition 13' won't work in Texas, legislators told

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators looking for a magic tax-relief remedy have been told that what worked in California won't work in Texas.

Joint meetings of two House committees on tax relief legislation resumed work today as they awaited Gov. Dolph Briscoe's formal call for a special session opening Monday.

Most of the House committee talk Wednesday concerned Proposition 13, the state constitution change voted in California to limit taxes and spending to certain levels.

"It was a great thing in California but I would hate to see it in Texas," James McGrew, executive director of the Texas Research League, "I'd prefer almost anything to Proposition 13."

He said California has only 57 taxing units in the state while Texas has 2,241. Texas's property taxes are much lower than California's.

McGrew estimated that if the Proposition 13 theory was applied to Texas, more than half of the benefits would go to businesses instead of homeowners, farmers and others who could not pass the taxes on.

"The overall impact in California is devastating," said Walter Lillie, assistant state comptroller, of Proposition 13. "Texas is immensely ahead of California in terms of having a reasonable tax burden on our citizens."

He said Texas taxpayers would stand to lose half a billion dollars in property tax deductions on federal income tax if a Proposition 13 type measure is passed here.

"Let's stop talking and fighting Proposition 13. That's not an issue in Texas," protested committee member Rep. Brad Wright, R-Houston. "Let's get on to some talking about a meaningful tax limitation plan."

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, committee chairman, said the purpose of the Wednesday session was to discuss Proposition 13, "so we will know why it won't work in Texas." He said detailed plans for legislation would be presented at the Friday hearing.

In opening the Wednesday session Speaker Bill Clayton said he hoped they would make "sensible" suggestions for tax relief to the special legislative session and avoid "drastic approaches."

He said testimony before the committees on ways and means and constitutional amendments would show that a California Proposition 13-type proposal would not work in Texas.

Earlier Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, questioned the governor's power to control the special session. He cited an 1886 Texas Supreme Court Ruling that a tax levied in an 1882 special session was constitutional even though it had not been included in the governor's call.

"I think this session will be open to virtually every matter in the tax field. Personally, I would like to see it limited as tightly as it could be," Hobby said.

Clayton said 40 tax proposals already had been filed or were being drafted for House members, but he said, "I do believe the governor has the prerogative to narrow the call."

"If the session is opened to all tax issues, it certainly will take longer," he said. "This is an emotional issue, and you have a lot of people who want in on the act."

Head of FBI in New York has been fired

NEW YORK (AP) — J. Wallace LaPrade, former head of the FBI's New York office who was accused of failing to cooperate during the agency's investigation of a radical group in the early 1970s, said today he has been fired.

LaPrade, an assistant FBI director and a 27-year veteran, declared that the agency was making him a scapegoat and said he would appeal his dismissal by Attorney General Griffin Bell.

LaPrade's firing stemmed from the FBI's handling of an investigation of the Weatherman, a radical underground group active in the 1960s and early 1970s.

In Washington, the FBI confirmed that LaPrade had been fired on Bell's order but said that the agency would have no further comment.

A federal grand jury's probe of the case led to the indictment of former FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III and two once high-ranking administrators.

LaPrade, 51, said today that Bell had prevented him from discussing top-secret foreign intelligence information, leading to the departmental charges against him.

"I'm being fired for refusing to discuss this information with the civil rights division of the Justice Department," LaPrade said, with his attorney, Roy Cohn, at his side. "If I had discussed it I would have been fired for revealing it."

LaPrade had been removed from the New York post in April.

Police, firefighters in Houston, San Antonio negotiating pay raise

Houston to lead negotiations between their departments and the city.

Contract negotiations with firefighters broke off last Friday when the firefighters rejected a 3.5 percent wage increase and asked for a mediator. The city agreed.

Police officers also had rejected a 3.5 percent wage hike last Wednesday and asked for a mediator.

"There's no way we can accept 3.5 percent. We would like to request a mediator to try to clear the air," Joe Kirstead, president of the San Antonio Professional Firefighters Association, told city officials.

The firefighters are asking for a raise of 7.5 percent. The police of-icers want at least 9.5 percent and originally asked for 13.3 percent. The San Antonio City Council has set a lid of 5 percent on all offers, originally offering a 3.1 percent hike to the firefighters and a 3.3 percent increase to the police.

Work and wage contracts with the two groups expire July 31, when the city's fiscal year expires. Council members are in the midst of budget discussions to try to come up with a balanced document by July 31. At this point, the budget is badly out of balance and the council is reviewing possible personnel reductions and service cutbacks for some city departments.

Action/reaction: New London tragedy

Q. A lot of Texas school children died in a school explosion sometime in the 1930s. Can you supply details as to the place, the number of victims and the time?

A. The explosion occurred March 19, 1937, and the tragedy that took place in New London, Tex., made headlines all over the world. A total of 455 people died in the blast. Ninety-four others were injured. Eight were listed as missing and three were unidentified. The school's heating system had recently been converted from a boiler system to a gas steam system and gas is believed to have accumulated inside a hollow tile wall of the school. The blast completely leveled the building.

Offbeat: Officially Quail

Quail Dobbs' pigeons have come home to roost. The popular Coahoma rodeo clown has been called Quail by all who knew him for many years. Not so many knew his name was actually Marvin Gene Dobbs.

But last week, after filing a petition in District Court here, Marvin's name was officially changed. No longer will he have to sign checks that way. No longer will his driver's license read that way. No longer will people ask, "Is that your real name?"

Marvin Gene Dobbs is now Quail Marvin Dobbs. Congratulations, Quail, now you can quit clowning around and get on with business — clowning around.

Tops on TV: 'Ash Wednesday'

There are those who will argue that they missed a few spots when Elizabeth Taylor undergoes plastic surgery in the soapy "Ash Wednesday," appearing at 8:30 p.m. on ABC. A better bet is the always excellent "Nova" which begins, 8 p.m., on PBS. This episode deals with the question of civil defense and whether we can survive a nuclear attack.

Deposits in county's four banks decline

Deposits in Howard County's four banks were down seven-tenths of one per cent from the preceding quarter at the close of business June 30 but the $129,776,395 on account here still represents the second highest figure in history.

Deposits were up over $800,000 at Security State and over $600,000 at Coahoma State but show a 2.2 per cent decrease at State National and were down by 2.4 per cent at First National.

In a year's time, deposits showed a 10.2 per cent increase at all four banking institutions. Loans were up by ten per cent for the quarter, indicating that the farmers have been in their fields planting. Loans totaled $82,886,817 and all four banks showed loan increases.

In a year's time, loans made by the four institutions showed a whopping 28.4 per cent gain.

All-in-all, the banking figures indicate that the Howard County economy continues healthy, despite dire predictions that it would suffer badly after Webb AFB closed.

Leader of 'protest against prejudice' Jury finds man insane

Johnny Raymond Sanchez, 26, Abilene, who was examined at the Big Spring State Hospital, was found to be insane by a 42nd District Court jury Wednesday.

Based on the finding of the jury, Judge Don Lane ordered Sanchez committed to Rusk State Hospital for the Criminally Insane until such time that he is found to be competent to stand trial.

If and when Sanchez is determined by Rusk hospital officials to be sane again, he will be returned to Abilene for trial by another jury which would determine if he is sane before the state could proceed with a motion to revoke Sanchez' probation.

LUNCH AT THE PARK — July puts us right at the peak of picnic season. Some couples, like Essie and Jo Ann Arnold of Sand Springs, enjoy picnics so much they don't even wait for the weekend. Summer tradition

Picnic recipes may add to fun

By EILEEN McGUIRE
The picnic season begins with Memorial Day, peaks around the Fourth of July and unofficially ends with Labor Day.

There's plenty of summer left for family reunions, camping, backpacking, bicycling and lazy afternoons in the park — activities that just naturally go well with outdoor barbecues and picnics.

Picnics are a traditional part of summer and so is the usual picnic food fare. If your picnic doesn't revolve around hamburgers, hotdogs and potato chips then it probably features fried chicken with potato salad.

Without tampering too much with tradition, here's a fresh way to feast on old picnic favorites.

Fried Vinegar Chicken

This recipe, developed by the National Broiler Association, combines the flavors of fried and barbecued chicken by simmering it first in a vinegar-based liquid and then browning it. For even more "twang", marinate the chicken before cooking.

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
1 cup white vinegar
1 cup chicken broth
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1/4 teaspoon tarragon
1 bay leaf
1/2 cup vegetable shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
In large saucepan, combine vinegar, broth, garlic salt, peppercorns, tarragon and bay leaf. Add chicken parts, placing dark meat on bottom and white meat on top. Simmer 30 minutes. Remove chicken to rack to drain. In large skillet, heat shortening over high heat. Add simmered chicken, browning well on all sides. When thoroughly browned, remove chicken to rack and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Refrigerate until picnic time or serve at once hot. Makes 4-5 servings.

Fresh Corn Salad

If you're accustomed to cooking your corn, you may be tempted to turn thumbs down at this recipe, but raw fresh corn is a refreshing salad ingredient. As long as the corn has been properly refrigerated, it will be plenty tender. Moreover, the flavor is sweeter than that of cooked corn.

1/2 teaspoon powdered mustard
1/2 teaspoon water
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon onion powder
1-16 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 cup salad oil
8 ears fresh corn
1 large green pepper, diced (1 cup)

1 4-ounce jar pimiento, diced
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
In advance: Combine powdered mustard with water; let stand 10 minutes for flavor to develop. Stir in salt, paprika, sugar, onion powder, black pepper and oil; let stand 1 hour. Remove husks and silk from corn. Cut kernels off cob (makes about 4 cups). In a bowl mix corn, green pepper and pimiento.

Just before serving: Add vinegar to oil and spice mixture and beat until creamy. Pour over corn mixture and mix well. Yield: about 6 cups.

IF YOUR IDEA of a picnic is a backyard barbecue, here are a couple of recipes developed especially for covered-kettle type grills. The entire dish may be prepared on the grill or prepared in the kitchen before cooking outside.

Cranberry Glazed Sweet Potatoes

2 1-pound cans sweet potatoes, drained
1 cup whole cranberry sauce
1/4 cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons grated orange peel
3/4 teaspoon salt
Arrange sweet potatoes in shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients in saucepan and bring to simmering stage. Simmer 2 or 3 minutes. Spoon sauce over sweet potatoes and cover with aluminum foil. Center dish on cooking grill. Cover kettle and heat about 30 minutes or until piping hot. Garnish with orange slices and cherries if desired. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Stuffed Mushrooms

1 pound medium mushrooms
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1-3rd cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 teaspoon salt

Dash of pepper

Wash, dry and steam mushrooms. Melt butter or margarine over low heat; add crumbs and cheese and brown lightly, stirring constantly. Stir in salt and pepper. Stuff mushroom caps with crumb mixture and arrange on cookie sheet.

Center on cooking grill. Cover kettle and cook 10 to 15 minutes or until mushrooms are tender. Yield: about 6 servings.

Variation: Cooked mushroom caps may be filled with cooked peas and garnished with pimiento strips.

FOR THE BACKPACKER

here are some high-energy take-along snacks made from cocoa and peanut butter. Eat them when hunger strikes in the woods or serve them as desserts on your next picnic.

Peanut Cocoa Bread

1-3rd cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
2 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

1-3rd cup Hershey's Cocoa
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk
1 cup Reese's Peanut Butter Chips

1/2 cup chopped peanuts
Cream butter, sugar and eggs until light and fluffy. Combine flour, cocoa, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg, baking soda and salt; add alternately with milk to creamed mixture until well blended. Fold in peanut butter chips and peanuts.
Pour batter into well-greased 9x5x2 3/4-inch loaf pan; bake at 350 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pan; cool completely on wire rack. Slice and serve with cream cheese or butter, if desired.

Hi-Protein Energy Bars

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1-1-3rd cups brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1-3rd cup Hershey's Cocoa
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup non-fat dry milk crystals
1/4 cup wheat germ
1 cup unsifted whole wheat flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda

2 cups (12-ounce package) Reese's Peanut Butter Chips

1/2 cup raisins
Cream butter, sugar, eggs, milk and vanilla until light and fluffy. Blend in cocoa and milk; add dry milk crystals, wheat germ, flour, baking powder and baking soda. Beat until ingredients are well combined. Fold in peanut butter chips and raisins. Spread mixture evenly in greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Cut into bars. Wrap each bar separately.

Sara Thixton honored with bridal shower

A bridal shower honoring Sara Thixton, bride-elect of Randy Hull, was held Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Bill Draper, 2400 Cindy.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Lorman Rainey, Mrs. Preston Adams, Mrs. R.W. Blasingame, Mrs. Ernest Welch, Mrs. Bob Zellars and Mrs. Noel Hull.

Others were Mrs. Bill Blalack, Mrs. Jane Upton, Mrs. Joe Fortson, Mrs. Harold Hicks, Mrs. Shirley Walker, Mrs. Cecil Suttles, Mrs. Lacombe Draper, Mrs. J.C. Gross, Mrs. H.C. Blackshear, Mrs. D.L. Stephens and Mrs. Cliff Balzer.

Corsages of blue and yellow daisies were presented to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Garner Thixton, and Hull's mother, Mrs. Pete Hull. Grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Cecil Thixton and Mrs. Earl Hull, were special guests.

The refreshment table was covered with an ecru lace cloth and was centered with an arrangement of yellow daisies and blue spider mums.

Hostesses presented the honoree with an electric skillet. Miss Thixton and Hull will be married July 21 in the College Baptist Church.

Buyers may get eye strain, altered depth perception, a distorted view of surroundings, and a chance for physical injury if they purchase the wrong kind of sunglasses. The American Society for the Prevention of Blindness recommends holding the sunglasses at half an arm's length and looking at an object with strong horizontal and vertical lines. If the lines waver when you move the glasses sideways, up and down, then the lenses are distorted. Also check to see that the lenses are of equal color and density or they can cause eye strain due to altered depth perception. Any altered view of surroundings could contribute to accidents.

Consumers purchasing sunglasses may be blinded by fashion and price appeals. But overlooking safety considerations could damage their eyes, the Texas Medical Association says.

Traits revealed in Zodiac

If you're about to send a birthday greeting card to a friend or relative born in July and usually find the signs of the Zodiac helpful in selecting a card that best suits its recipient, then the month may present a special problem.

Astrology, that ancient ritual of divining human relations, could have a bearing on the type greeting you send. The signs of the Zodiac offer a profile of personality traits and this knowledge could influence your choosing a greeting that is "exactly right". But according to the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers there are two quite different types of persons born in July.

Persons with birthdays between June 21 and July 20 were born under the sign of Cancer; those between July 21 and Aug. 21 under the sign of Leo.

domestic. Their homes are usually comfortable with tasteful decor. To the Cancerian, the sense of home represents security.

There is generally a strong tie of the Cancerian to his or her mother, usually lasting a lifetime. The maternal tie is often reflected in protective family relationships.

Women born under the sign of Cancer tend to be attentive hostesses, delighting in entertaining guests at home. They are often sentimentalists who cherish love notes, faded photographs and nostalgic memories.

Mothers born under the sign of Cancer tend to be more devoted to their children than mothers born under any other signs. Cancerian fathers tend to be affectionate with and occasionally possessive of their offspring.

confidence and command respect. Most are exceedingly independent and many assume responsibility at an early age. They tend to attack problems with vigor, as though welcoming the challenge.

The Leo person tends to be highly-motivated in work situations. He or she is generally considered a "born leader", aspiring for success. Leos are usually good administrators, fair in their dealings with subordinates, although occasionally resentful of those above them.

The Leo man or woman generally quests after "the good life." Men, in particular, are often lavish in the spending of money for entertainment. They also ingratiate themselves with friends through extensive gift-giving.

The Leo woman tends to be charming, physically attractive and extremely fashion-conscious.

We still have a long way to go

If all the manhours needed to fill out the paperwork required by the government in a year's time were used in one project, Rome could be rebuilt in little more than a day.

The Federal Office of Management and Budget (OMB) estimates that more than 785 million hours are consumed yearly in completing the forms government requires of industry and individuals.

THE COST OF such exercise is truly shocking. It's estimated that the expense of completing the forms exceeds $100 billion — which figures out to $500 for each man, woman and child in this country.

If the Union and Confederate forces were lined up to fight each other at Manassas today, it would be six months before a shot could be fired — the paper work being what it is today.

One of President Carter's prime goals has been to cut the Gordian knot of bureaucracy, that by eliminating much of the paper work that is strangling the operation of government.

Limited success has been experienced by the administration. The OMB reports that the war on paperwork during the first nine months of the Carter Administration resulted in the reduction of 9.6 percent in the estimated time it took the public to deal with the forms.

Carter's plans experienced problems after that, however. During the next three months, the reduction slumped to three tenths of one percent.

While government paperwork will never be cut to zero, it would be encouraging to keep the pace above the one per cent level, at least.

Even though it originated the requirements, the government isn't to blame for all the paperwork. Some of the special interest groups have insisted that some of the paperwork be continued.

For example, the American Meat Institute resisted an attempt to change a meat-processing report from a weekly to a monthly update.

THE INSTITUTE maintained the weekly information was necessary for future planning of meat processing. Only through constant monitoring can much headway be made to contain and perhaps reduce the problem.

Much has been made of the fact that the Indians couldn't take pride in their antecedents because they never had a written history, but the early Americans obviously were smarter than we give them credit for.

They likely tried a civilization demanding paperwork, found they detested it and junked the whole plan. It would be a lot more fun to hunt the buffalo and go on to other things without having to write a report in triplicate about it — what dictated the desire for the hunt in the first place, what route was followed to get to the happy hunting grounds, how many arrows were expended and what disposition was made of the carcasses.

Let White Eyes choke on the glut of paperwork.

Benign neglect

Around the rim

James Werrell

Most of the reams of stuff written about the movie "Pretty Baby" and its young star, Brooke Shields, have explained that the movie is not pornographic. Most have neglected to point out that the movie is also not very good.

The plot, as if it were possible not the know of it already with the overkill coverage the film has received, is about life in a whorehouse. What distinguishes this movie from others that deal with the same subject is that the whorehouse is tenanted by Violet (Miss Shields), a child who is born there, trains to be a prostitute, and becomes one at the age of 12.

THE ENTIRE MOVIE hangs on director Louis Malle's thin conceit that Violet can function and even flourish in this atmosphere and emerge emotionally unscathed. As it turns out, that is not enough to make a compelling movie.

As in Malle's past efforts, "Pretty Baby" relies heavily on the juxtaposition of an outrageous situation with the usual moral consequences of an action are not brought to bear.

His 1971 film, "Murmur of the Heart," for example, chronicles the coming of age of a middle-class French boy who is seduced by his own mother. The boy comes away tainted by this incident and promptly has an affair with a girl his own age. Malle thus created a charming, guiltless situation out of a Freudian nightmare.

In neither film are the sexual scenes explicit or shocking to the eye. As Malle said about pornography in an interview printed in April's "Rolling Stone," he has "nothing against it on moralistic grounds at all, it's just that it's much more interesting to steal the imagination of spectators by not showing the thing."

What he does show us in "Pretty Baby" is a visually stunning glimpse of turn-of-the-century New Orleans. The colors are earthy and rich in an atmosphere that seems enveloped in a lushness verging on decay.

UNFORTUNATELY THE richness of what meets the eye is not matched by the movie's characterizations. Keith Carradine in the pivotal role of Belloc, the photographer who falls in love with Violet, marries her, and is eventually broken by his love for her, is wooden and stilted.

His bloodless portrayal consists mainly of staring at objects or people for long periods of time. He is an empty spot on the screen when his obsessed presence is essential to the development of the film.

Brooke Shields gives a fine, un-mannered performance as Violet, never sounding strident or awkward. Susan Sarandon, Violet's prostitute-mother, also does an excellent job.

Many of the minor characters, such as the house madam, a young boy who lives there, another young prostitute and a ragtime piano man get by because of an inherent oddness in the characters they play.

The film's major problem is that Malle is too successful in getting the audience to accept the naturalness of Violet's life. Once we have done so, our fascination with her and with Belloc's predicament vanishes.

But though the film is ultimately unsuccessful, see it for its visual beauty, its evocation of a bygone era, and because it is a daring attempt by a man of singular vision.

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The headline read "U.S. Law Barring Bribes Blamed for Millions in Lost Sales in Asia." This should not come as a big surprise to anybody. Even a Harvard Business School professor will tell you what payoffs for large contracts are the milk of commerce in 99.9 percent of all the countries in the world.

AN AMBASSADOR from one of the Third World powers stationed in Washington told me over lunch the other day: "The trouble with your law is that you consider it a bribe when a payment is made to someone in order to get a contract. In our country it is a gift of friendship that cements the ties between the company in question and our leaders."

"Our SEC always sees the dark side of every issue," I told him.

"It isn't as if this gift is going to be president of our country, who is considered a most honorable man. It goes to his wife for her charitable foundation."

"What does the foundation do?"

"It gives out contracts for schools and hospitals and orphanages."

"Who builds them?" I wanted to know.

"The president's brother-in-law. He is the largest contractor in our country."

"There doesn't seem to be anything wrong with that," I told him.

"Does the charitable foundation do anything else?"

"It invests its surplus money in bottling plants, fisheries, real estate and hotels. The profits from these enterprises are then distributed to the wives of cabinet members and high-ranking military officers who have their own charitable foundations."

"THEN AS I see it, the bribes — I mean gifts — that an American company is expected to donate to your officials are just part of your method of raising money to provide for the poor people of your country."

"That is what we've been trying to explain to your Commerce Department, but to no avail. Let me give you an example. Suppose our country wants to order 1,000 bulldozers at a cost of $50,000 each. We have our choice of buying French bulldozers, British bulldozers, Italian bulldozers or American bulldozers. As you know, there is no difference in bulldozers. If you've seen one, you've seen them all. The French will offer to sell them to us and set aside $5,000 per bulldozer for our president's children's education. The British might sell them to us and donate $7,000 per bulldozer to the president's sister, who lives in Switzerland. The Italians will say they'll give us the bulldozers and allot $10,000 on each one to build a summer palace for our president in Liechtenstein. But the Americans will tell us they don't want to give us anything but the bulldozers. What kind of way of doing business is that?"

"It's a stupid way," I said.

"OF COURSE, we'd rather have the American bulldozers, but if we bought them under those conditions our president would become the laughingstock of Asia, and his wife would be ridiculed by everyone in our country because her charitable foundation had no funds."

"What is the solution?"

"Your Congress must amend its ridiculous law and exempt American companies from your law barring cash gifts for charity to foreign cabinet ministers, military officials, blood relatives of heads of state, designated agents of ruling political parties, and first ladies whose husbands are presently in power."

"That doesn't seem unreasonable when you're talking megabucks."

"We have a saying in our country: 'Nrum ephern lajai rahamh.'"

"Which translates?"

"Never do business with a man who says, 'I gave already at the office.'"

Earwax deficiency can cause problem

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write about swimmer's ear — its treatment and how to avoid it. — K.S.

Swimmer's ear is known medically as "external otitis" and it is painful evidence that the human ear was not intended for long periods of immersion. It is also a miserable hazard for anyone trying to enjoy water sports.

It's an infection of the outer ear canal, usually associated with insufficient cerumen (earwax). The purpose of this waxy substance is to keep the ear membranes healthy. When there isn't enough of it the membranes become dry and crack, providing ready entry to bacteria or fungus infections. In swimmer's ear, the culprit is usually a bacteria.

When infection develops it can be treated with antibiotic drops. For swimmers prone to this problem the best preventive (for those who can use them) are the glycerine or mineral oil drops. They are placed in the ear canal and retained with earplugs. I say "for those who can use them," because drops should not be used if a person has a perforated eardrum or even suspects he has.

In explaining swimmer's ear to a patient of mine, I mentioned the earwax problem and the fact that the moistened ear canal can be an invitation to infection. A sufferer from athlete's feet for years, he caught on, and commented, "Oh, sort of athlete's foot of the ear?" A good description. Some other thoughts: allergic persons may be more susceptible to swimmer's ear. Also, it is thought that the stage may be set by getting foreign material (such as hair sprays) into the canals. Dry heat can be used to ease the pain. The chief signs are itching and pain.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that one's blood pressure can rise or fall as much as 20 points in a half hour? How high does one's pressure have to get before you get a stroke? — I.M.

Yes, fright, anxiety or strenuous exercise can cause a 20-point rise or more in blood pressure. There is no fixed point at which a stroke occurs. As you know, stroke is brain damage related to faulty blood circulation. This depends on other factors, including the condition (fragility) of tiny blood vessels nourishing the brain, also on the length of time pressure is elevated. Age is also a factor. See my booklet, "Stroke: Hope and Help," for a fuller discussion of the various kinds of stroke. Many readers are surprised to learn they can be prevented. For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain gluteal bursitis. — Mrs. C.M.

"Gluteal" (GLOO-tee-u) bursitis is bursitis occurring in the buttocks area. Bursitis is inflammation of the bursa, the tiny fluid-filled sacs that allow muscles and tendons to slide easily over joints. The hip area contains some large and important muscles to allow us to stoop and to keep our bodies erect. These structures in the hip tend to be close to the surface and thus are easily injured.

Bursitis in this area is particularly unfortunate because it may limit general activity for long periods. So it is well to have it treated promptly to avoid the complications that can come with prolonged inactivity, especially in older persons. Drugs, either by injection or orally, are effective.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I just found out I have a chemical imbalance. What is this and how can I get it equal again?

Dear Editor:

The "Around the Rim" should be totally eliminated. It is usually "the blahs" for your staff assigned to write it, and whenever I do read it, sure enough it is the blahs for me too. Still no improvement, no information worth wasting eye-sight on, just a spacefiller.

I do not advocate replacing it with something that mentions "sports" ... you cover that quite extensively with more than one-half the space in Herald.

It is easy to be negative; I'll attempt a 180 degree turn. Which it seems might be used by a staff that is already pre-occupied with "regular news gathering assignments" ... Use some sketches, and-or facts from current publications and books on facts which have relationship with day-to-day living. NO reviews of antique classical literature, etc.

Some examples: this is my attempt to think positive:

A homemade water filter which used only 1 cup of activated charcoal which one replaces every 3 weeks to assure that the charcoal is still effective and has not become a breeder or undesirable organisms through being "aged" ... Made from such scraps as 30 inches of 3/4" copper tubing, 8 feet of 1/4 inch copper tubing, a dripping faucet, and a glass jug to catch the filtered drip...source ...Pages 67 through 72 in July issue of Organic Gardening...Incidentally their reference of a source of $2 activated charcoal is in error...Here, one can buy activated charcoal from a local water treatment plant at 50 lbs. for $50.

—J.B. A meaningless term unless you know what chemicals are involved — sugar, minerals, hormones, what? Find out and write me again if you have questions.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My right eye has been tearing so that frequently tears roll down my cheek. Is this serious and will drops help prevent it? — R.M.D.

You probably have a plugged tear duct. It may be obstructed so tears back up and spill over into the eye rather than into the nasal area. Drops won't help. Simple surgery can unplug a duct. It is not serious.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: On orders, I gave up my seven cups of coffee a day (bad kidneys). Since, my asthma has been relieved greatly. Any connection? — A.B.

Probably. If you were allergic to it, it could have been a factor in your asthma. A bit of serendipity from your kidney treatment.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

DeBach...such gems, as the lacewing predatorizes many garden and farm insects as the cotton boll weevil...but it has to have a humid shelter in the heat of the day...and lacking insects to predatorize it needs nectar from garden flowers...

That recent report in Time...Re New Orleans discovery of an over-size native mosquito wiggler which predatorizes the kind that develops to bite people and livestock...they say it is an American native species, and so presumably we could propagate it in our own playas and puddles...Senior or Junior high school students could begin to study some of this environment and alter it for the community.

"Green Medicine" Margaret B. Greig...relates a worldwide search of commercial pharmaceutical companies for useable herbs...In our own environment we have several useful ones. But these are not usually mentioned in published (English language) herbals because those relate to the New England and Southern climate and flora...This could become a profitable business for some youngster, a fascinating hobby for some gardeners. Varieties with potential: Chaparral, Euphorbia, Agave, Aguerita (for jelly that rivals the scarce May-apple).

Back to the water filter...and a carp...How does 'Hustle-Hustle-Hustle' Chamber of Commerce dare to have the gall to urge more people to move into here while we still lack decent water to drink for the people we already have...Why not a little 'Hustle' to develop a local farmer's market. Big Spring surely depends upon the farmer's money being spent here...and should help the farmer make a living by a better price for a locally marketed farm produce.

Payola raging

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The nine Supreme Court Justices ran off in all directions like the proverbial Chinese fire drill team in handing down their momentous reverse-discrimination ruling. Their miasma of legal language will be studied intently by school administrators and attorneys for its implications on race questions.

Unfortunately all the verbiage from the high court ignored much more important factors that figure in medical school admissions; economic and political payola.

While Allan Bakke was waiting for the Supreme Court to decide whether he would be admitted to a California medical school, we conducted a special investigation of how money and connections influence the selection process in some of the nation's most prestigious medical schools.

WE FOUND that qualified candidates are being discriminated against in favor of two other groups: the sons and daughters of wealthy families who are accepted because their parents made large monetary contributions to the schools, or those favored because powerful politicians pulled strings on their behalf.

"While the middle class and the minorities are fighting it out with Bakke who should be admitted to medical schools," a Health, Education and Welfare Department official told our reporter Murray Waas, "nobody seems to notice that the rich are still being assured of their quota."

Our investigation uncovered evidence of payoffs and political influence in more than a dozen medical schools, including the University of California, Davis campus, where Bakke was rejected.

Officials at Davis have conceded they admitted students because their parents were political bigwigs, prominent doctors or influential attorneys. In one instance, a female applicant was accepted at Davis because her father was a former chancellor at a California university.

Several officials at Davis ruefully note that Bakke would have been accepted, with no historic appeal to the Supreme Court, had not at least five other less qualified white applicants been accepted ahead of him because of their family clout.

IN PENNSYLVANIA, two powerful state politicians have been sent to jail for accepting money to wangle state medical and dental school admissions for children of the wealthy. Herbert

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why is it ministers never say anything about kindness to animals? I am deeply hurt by the way some people abuse their pets. — S.A.R.

DEAR S.A.R.: I don't believe I have ever heard a sermon on this subject, but the Bible does make some clear references to the treatment of animals (particularly domestic animals). It is clear from these passages that a person who is concerned about God's will also will be concerned to treat animals well.

You should remember several things the Bible says about animals. It says that God created them, and after looking over His creation of all kinds of animal life, "God saw that it was good" (Genesis 1:25). The Bible also tells us that God is concerned about the animals, and He takes care of them. God's mercy to the people of Nineveh, who repented of their sin, also extended to their cattle (Jonah 4:11). Jesus said, "Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from the will of your Father" (Matthew 10:29, New International Version).

If God cares for the animals this much, so should we. In the Old Testament, for example, work animals were to be allowed to rest one day out of seven, just as man was to rest (Exodus 20:10).

Syrian gunners step up firings

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian gunners gave the Christian half of Beirut one of the heaviest poundings in the war-battered city's history today, and a few hours later seven Israeli warplanes flashed across the Lebanese capital, breaking the sound barrier.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the planes were on a reconnaissance mission. They "took no action and carried out no attack," a spokesman said.

The show of Israeli support for the Christians, their allies against the Palestinians in southern Lebanon, came after a seven-hour Syrian barrage during which the Voice of Lebanon, the Christian Phalange Party's radio station, said more than 1,260 Soviet-made Grad and Katyusha rockets smashed into six residential neighborhoods and the port area.

The outgunned Christians replied with machine guns and armor-piercing rockets. The Syrian bombardment subsided at daybreak, but the police reported snipers kept up their fire through the morning.

A police spokesman said 17 Lebanese were killed and 36 were wounded in the bombardment, raising the reported Lebanese casualty toll since the start of Syrian-Christian fighting Saturday to 184 killed and 15 wounded. Most were Christians.

Syrian casualties are not known.

State board meets to decide on home insurance increase

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Insurance Board meets today to consider increased rates for homeowner's insurance in Texas.

The last increases allowed by the regulatory body was in July 1976.

This year the board staff has recommended a statewide increase of 13.1 percent in homeowner's insurance and 9.4 percent for separate fire policies.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association, an industry group, said earlier it wants rate hikes averaging 14.1 percent statewide for homeowners.

There was no action on the rates last year because the industry filed for a rehearing after the board allowed only a two percent increase on homeowners.

After Joe Christie left office as State Insurance Board chairman to make an unsuccessful race for U.S. Senate, his successor Hugh Yantis decided not to act since the regular property rate hearings were set for February, 1978.

Rainfall expected for parts of Texas

By the Associated Press
Scattered thunderstorms were expected to roam sections of Northwest and Southeast Texas today, but most Texans could expect only more clear to partly cloudy skies and hot temperatures.

Thunderstorms roared across western sections of the Panhandle Wednesday night, but mainly they produced vivid lightning, gusty winds and only light rainfall.

Forecasts called for continued clear to partly cloudy skies today with highs over most of the state to reach the 100-degree mark.

Skies were mostly clear to partly cloudy early today and temperatures remained quite warm during the pre-dawn hours. Temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s with a few readings in the mountains of Southwest Texas in the middle 60s.

Some early morning readings included 76 at Amarillo, 79 at Wichita Falls, 78 at Texarkana, 81 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 75 at Austin, 76 at Lufkin and Houston, 78 at Corpus Christi, 79 at Brownsville, 81 at Del Rio, 79 at San Angelo, 81 at El Paso and 80 at Lubbock.

Teachers give accounts of student violence

DALLAS (AP) — After Hank Springer turned in a student who tried to rape a colleague, the 6-foot, 200-pound former teacher was hit over the head and knocked unconscious by three of the students' friends. He needed surgery to restore hearing in one ear.

"I wish I could tell you it was an extreme case," Springer said Wednesday during an interview at the National Education Association convention. "But it's just not. There's another Los Angeles delegate here who was raped last year."

Springer, head of United Teachers of Los Angeles, was one of many teachers at the gathering who said violence and vandalism in the schools has been increasing at an alarming rate.

In a survey released today, NEA estimated 3 percent of public school teachers were attacked by students this year — about 60,900. Most serious physical attacks on teachers occur in junior high and high schools, but elementary schools are not immune, statistics show.

However, teachers said the violence problem has not been acknowledged by many superintendents and school boards who believe admitting the problem will reflect poorly on their abilities.

And the teachers claim their districts refuse to allocate the necessary funds to develop effective programs to combat violence and vandalism.

Jackie Barrineau, a staff member of the Classroom Teachers Association in Orlando, Fla., said her school board rejected scientifically compiled CTA statistics showing that the number of violent incidents this year was three times higher than what the board reported. The teachers came up with 100, the board 33.

"When you've got a district like ours that won't face the problems, you can't solve them," she said.

Frustrated by the lack of district support, Orlando teachers are creating a community "discipline council" to deal with those problems, Ms. Barrineau said.

John Ryor, NEA president, agreed that official district reports often seriously misrepresent the violence and vandalism problems.

"Their extent is greater than ever imagined because of a massive cover-up by administrators who don't want a blot on their records or a police report and consequently treat teachers as if they are the problem," Ryor said. "But what 10 years ago were scattered schoolhouse pranks and disturbances today have evolved into serious violent crimes of crisis proportions."

Although the causes of violence vary from district to district, most teachers believe that a lack of discipline at home is the major factor, the NEA survey said.

"The permissive society is a big reason — as students lost respect for their parents, respect for teachers eroded," said Springer. "And kids aren't worried about being punished. The three students who assaulted me were right back in school after that."

Other teachers attributed the rise in violence to increased television viewing of violent programs and family patterns in which youngsters go unsupervised for long periods of time. Overcrowded classrooms also contribute to an unruly atmosphere, they said.

Rapes and assaults are more common in large cities like Los Angeles, the teachers said, but they stressed that vandalism is a universal problem.

"The major problem in our area is acts against property-like smashing windows, but there are isolated assaults, too," said Lisa Kulcsar, a kindergarten teacher in Ogden, Utah.

Mrs. Kulcsar, who participated in a national NEA conference on school violence this spring, noted that many teachers believe incidents in which they are involved are unique, so they don't report them.

Other teachers don't report attacks on themselves because they fear retaliation, said Springer and others. But in California, failing to report assaults is a misdemeanor and Springer said his group is emphasizing that to teachers.

To solve the problem, he said, schools need to design special classes or programs for the problem youngsters. "But the money isn't being given for those programs," he said. "It's easier just to kick them out of school."

Former Manson follower found guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Charles Manson follower Leslie Van Houten was found guilty of first-degree murder Wednesday in the 1969 killings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca.

The verdict ended a bizarre crime story that began nine years ago when Manson and his hippie cult came to Los Angeles preaching love and peace.

Miss Van Houten was 19 then, a slender beauty who had reigned as homecoming princess at her high school in suburban Arcadia.

A broken love affair and experimentation with drugs brought on her decision to leave home and drop out of society. "I was more comfortable on LSD than when I was off," she recalled at her third trial. "The more I took of it the more I couldn't relate daily to regular kinds of people... the stranger they looked to me."

When she met Manson, she was in love with one of his followers, Robert Beausoleil, who is now serving a life term in prison for murder.

Miss Van Houten said later that Manson used drugs to hypnotize his followers and she was powerless to resist his orders.

On Aug. 10, 1969, Manson, Miss Van Houten and other followers piled into a car for a ride that ended with murder. The night before, actress Sharon Tate and four others had been killed in a bloody rampage.

On the second night, Miss Van Houten said, Manson chose market owners Leno and Rosemary LaBianca as victims, tied them up and left his followers to kill them.

In 1971, at the end of a 10-month trial, Miss Van Houten was convicted of murder and conspiracy along with Manson, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel. They were condemned to die — a sentence which was commuted to life imprisonment when the death penalty was outlawed.

In 1976, a California appeals court reversed Miss Van Houten's conviction and ordered a new trial. The court said she had been denied adequate legal representation when her attorney, Ronald Hughes, died on a camping trip just before final arguments.

'Fly me, Cane and All'

Blind persons protest FAA rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Hey, hey, whatta you say? Please don't take our canes away!" That was one of many chants raised by about 1,000 blind persons on Wednesday as they demonstrated outside Federal Aviation Administration headquarters against a regulation that requires blind passengers to surrender their white canes during airliner takeoffs and landings.

The demonstrators, some led by guide dogs, others helping one another, marched in a orderly circle, tapping their canes on the pavement and carrying signs proclaiming: "FAA Unfair to Blind Travelers," "Fly Me, Cane and All" and "Canes Are Not Baggage."

The marchers came by bus from Baltimore, 40 miles to the north, where the National Federation of the Blind is holding its annual convention. They returned to Baltimore after demonstrating for two hours.

"We think the FAA is overregulating," said James Gashel, chief of the federation's Washington office. "It should stick to regulating on the more important issues and let blind people have their canes on airliners."

"A cane is part of us and would be our means of getting out of an aircraft if there is an accident," he said.

FAA spokesman Pete Clapper defended the rule that requires flight attendants to stow long rigid canes during takeoffs and landings. He said that if there were turbulence or an accident, canes could be a potential hazard as projectiles, and that they could block exits or puncture escape chutes during an evacuation.

"Our complete sympathy is with these people," Clapper said. "We want to seek an accommodation that will meet their needs as well as the safety of all aboard an aircraft."

Representatives of seven organizations of the blind met last week with FAA Deputy Administrator Quentin Taylor, who said the agency would consider alternatives such as providing sightless airline passengers with folding canes or with safe storage places for rigid canes near their seats.

Reports on water management released to thirty counties

Three extensive reports concluding the Upper Colorado River Study Area's water quality management plan are being dispatched to officials in some 30 counties in this region.

A series of meetings of the Planning and Advisory Committee has been scheduled to discuss the reports. The first will be July 18 at 9:30 a.m. at the Colorado River Municipal Water District headquarters in Big Spring; the second at 2 p.m. that same day at the city council chambers in Odessa; and the final one at the First National Community room in Ballinger July 19 at 10 a.m.

The report, called the "208 Waste Water Management Study," is the result of work conducted by the CRMWD for the Texas Department of Water Resources. It satisfies requirements for planning as set out in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act as amended in 1972. The area involved is in the Colorado River watershed above Stacy (near the Concho-Coleman County line) except for the Conchos, according to Rodney Lewis, who coordinated the project for the CRMWD. The technical date was prepared by Freese & Nichols, engineers.

Vol. II is the backbone of the study and addresses itself to water quality problems, also to waste water systems. There are only nine local areas cited as having current problems, and more than half of these have projects or plans underway for solving or mitigating the problems. Also is contained a survey of wastewater situations at Blackwell, Ballinger, Big Spring, Brownfield, Denver City, Lake Colorado City, Midland, Oak Creek Reservoir, Midland, Snyder, Stanton, Wellman and Westbrook.

Appendix II contains the supporting data, including inventory of disposal systems, projections and plans (and alternate plans), financial resources and cost estimates. Appendix A contains the environmental assessment of the impact of waste water management upon air, water and species.

During progress of the report, CRMWD conducted several hearings to obtain views of various officials and citizens in addition to working closely with cities and counties. The study is designed to be an over-view of waste water management to the year 2000 and is a prerequisite to obtaining grants for facility planning and construction. Lewis said anyone is welcome to the July 18 and 19 meetings.

Meteorites prolific in area

West Texas is one of the best places to find meteorites, says a University of Houston Central Campus geologist, Dr. Elbert King, and he is requesting assistance in collecting more samples from this area.

"Meteorites have been recovered from the high plains area and the panhandle and they are better preserved than most because the rainfall is low," he says.

King, who examined lunar dust while a curator for the lunar science facility at the Johnson Space Center, says that very little is known about meteorites and that something new is learned from each sample found.

Only some 3,000 meteorites have been collected for study, according to King, though more than 1,000 tons of meteorite debris fall on the earth every year.

"This early record of our solar system can show when solid materials came into being, the results of impacts of stars and allows for studying chemical species which are not of biogenic origin," King projects.

With the recent findings of meteorites in Antarctica, King thinks the meteorites in west Texas are just as important scientifically.

"There just hasn't been much effort to recover meteorite samples locally," he added.

King is asking that anyone in the west Texas area who has a rock that could be a meteorite to send a walnut-size piece of it. Then using a petrographic microscope, King will determine if the rock is from outer space.

One of the most common ways of finding these samples is just noticing a rock in an unusual location or where there wasn't one last year, such as in a plowed field.

The best samples are obtained when a meteorite is observed falling from the sky and it is collected right away, King muses. "The only danger involved in collecting meteorites is if one hits you on the head as it falls."

Samples can be sent to Dr. Elbert King, Department of Geology, University of Houston, Houston, Texas 77004. Analysis of samples is free of charge.

Boston subway, bus drivers go on strike

BOSTON (AP) — Some 4,200 Boston-area subway and bus drivers walked off their jobs today, forcing the area's mass transit system to a standstill and leaving a half million Boston-area commuters wondering how they would get to work.

"Nothing is running. Absolutely nothing," said Renato Sanchioni, a spokesman for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

MBTA spokesman Don Eagles said the authority would seek a temporary restraining order in Suffolk Superior Court this morning to force the drivers back to work.

Meanwhile, Eagles said, "private bus lines will be running, commuter rail trains will be running, taxis have been asked to permit multiple passengers. Other than that there's not a darn thing we can do."

Politicians rush to jump on tax-relief bandwagon

AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who was sawed off a limb while parroting "no new taxes" last spring, now is a soaring lame duck quacking about "tax relief for Texans."

His song is a popular one, as evidenced by the rush to jump on the tax-relief bandwagon in this 1978 election year.

Many legislators cheered Briscoe's announcement of a special session on tax matters. They say this will allow them to focus on tax matters and give taxpayers some relief.

Others are left with uneasy feelings about rushing into complex problems on short notice. They say most of the tax-relief proposals have been around for years and can wait until the 1978 regular session.

Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor, publicly supports the special session call. Before Briscoe's announcement, however, Hill questioned whether there was time to prepare for a productive session this summer.

Briscoe says proper preparations have been made. That seems incongruous, however, with his June 30 announcement that he didn't know what specific proposals would be laid before the legislature.

Briscoe said at that time he knew what the various proposals were, he just didn't know which ones would be submitted.

Critics say the information delay presents two great dangers: That legislators will adopt anything labeled as "tax relief" or that they will be so confused and suspicious that the session will deteriorate into shouting matches.

Briscoe and Legislative leaders say the session will allow concentration on tax relief without all the distractions of a regular session — and that it will return millions of dollars to Texas taxpayers.

Bill Clements found out last week what it's like to be a Republican gubernatorial candidate in a Democratic-dominated legislature.

Clements testified before a special legislative committee on property taxes, championing the causes of tax relief and local control of tax assessment.

Several committee members — all Democrats — skillfully and politely pointed out weaknesses in Clement's knowledge of state taxes.

A couple of times the Republican had to say he would study something further and make a written report.

Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene tried to point out difficulties in taxing intangibles. "I understand you own a ranch," Jones said, wondering whether Clements thought taxes should be paid on the land and the mortgage.

"I don't have a mortgage on my ranch," The wealthy Republican replied.

In politics, it seems, everything is relative.

In a fund-raising letter for Republican Jim Baker, conservative spokesman Ronald Reagan predicts Baker has an excellent chance to become attorney general of Texas.

"He's a conservative who's running against a liberal," Reagan's letter says.

Democratic AG candidate Mark White would cringe on hearing such a description.

When he was secretary of state under Gov. briscoe, White had a reputation as among the state's most conservative officials.

Banking in the Central Texas community of Schwertner could be made into a television show called "Almost All in the Family." The First National Bank of Schwertner would be converted to Schwertner State Bank under a proposal now before the Texas Department of Banking.

The application lists Jim Schwertner as chairman and chief executive officer, W.J. Schwertner as president, Melba Schwertner as a vice president and cashier.

All of the above plus Thelma Schwertner, Mrs. H.W. Schwertner and three non-Schwertners from the nearby town of Bartlett make up the board of directors.

Convict released to die at home

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Covello was rebuffed at every turn in trying to end his four-year prison term for manslaughter early, but Gov. Hugh Carey stepped in and sent the convict home — to die.

The 34-year-old Covello is expected to die of stomach cancer in a matter of days, doctors say.

The Democratic governor, up for re-election and under fire for his opposition to capital punishment, drew sharp criticism from one of the city's leading conservative Republicans, who said Covello had a long criminal record relating to drugs.

But the convicted killer expressed gratitude for the prison furlough and shame for the actions that sent him to jail.

Speaking haltingly in a barely audible voice at his home on the Upper East Side on Wednesday, Covello expressed remorse for the killing, adding, "I wish I had more time to change my life and my actions."

"I hope Michael Covello receives spiritual comfort and that he reconciles himself to his maker, but I do not believe his record warrants any extraordinary consideration," Republican State Sen. John Marchi said in a letter to the state Board of Pardon.

'Protected' area attracts weevils

When traps were put up to check on boll weevil infestation in a research area near Sand Springs, a funny thing happened.

More weevils showed up in the "protected" area than in the untreated control area.

That, said James Underwood, Texas A&M entomologist for Martin, Howard and Glasscock Counties, called for some head scratching. A tentative conclusion is that unusual weather conditions of the past two years may have produced abnormal conditions, also that during light infestations, weevils are more attracted to the trap baits in the protected area.

At any rate, Underwood who was speaking to the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday noon, said he felt some progress is being made in obtaining awareness of the weevil problem. More farmers are taking action toward destroying litter in which weevils can hibernate during the winter.

He said that in the Sand Springs area two sections

Consumers warned of increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says Americans should brace themselves this year for the biggest consumer price increase in four years — a 7.2 percent boost sparked by higher food prices and the decline of the dollar.

The cost of living projection released by the administration today is about 1 per cent higher than the official forecast of last January.

If it holds, Americans would feel the worst bite in their wallets since inflation pushed consumer prices over 12.2 percent in 1974.

were in the research project — one is having the shinnery hummocks denuded and ridged the ground litter; the other is left with pastures and hummocks in native state. The theory, Underwood explained, is that if the cover is denied the weevils for a distance of 1½ miles, it will lessen the field infestation.

Damage to the 1977 crop, one of the largest in the county's history, was minimal because of the weevil infestation came after the time that cotton put on squares — when the plants are most susceptible to weevil damage. This year, the weevils appear to have emerged before the squaring period, and that should minimize damage, he added.

Most big name sports stars, in any sport, have little to worry about after the knees have gone, or the throwing arm is shot or the hockey stick has slapped its last hockey puck.

There's always show business to fall back on...for the intelligent ones, that is...or, for the guys who don't look too bad (scars you know), even though they may not be as intelligent as the 17-year locust.

I like watching these guys on the big screen or boob tube at home. Those who are good-looking and not so bright, wind up on the entertainment end of the biz...kung fu fighting with the late great Bruce Lee, as Kareem Abdul Jabbar did, or playing a bad guy with a good heart (Dick Butkus et al).

The sport exes who have neither the inclination nor looks for the flicks, usually turn to broadcasting or color-commentating. Those with the good voice and experience to go with it (Don Drysdale) are a big hit. Borderline cases (e.g. Alex Karras) leave that line of work and play big dumb guys on TV movies.

Jocks like O.J. Simpson, Reggie Jackson and Muhammad Ali have little to worry about. "Juice", who's still playing football, can act, commentate or whatever he wants to do. He's by far the best actor of the crop of "Jock Stars".

Joe Namath, perhaps the worst actor of the scores of athlete performers, gets his own television series this season. Who says there's no justice in America?

I said Ali had little to worry about. Let me clarify that. I didn't mean in the acting department. His mouth may run 90 miles an hour, but his acting hits a brick wall. The preview of his movie, "The Greatest", was El Stinko Mundo...the pits. Despite that, his voice and visage will be prominent on screens of all sizes for years to come.

What brought this all up was Tuesday night's "Man From Atlantis", which featured Kareem Abdul Jabbar as a nine-foot tall alien creep who was draining the earth's oceans. Sounded like a good story line. It was a pig, of course.

One word of advice...and jeepsers Kareem, you're a nice guy...but, stick to basketball, or at least, don't accept any scripts except those that call for big tall alien creeps. Otherwise, the critics will pan you. Fer sure!

Reds, Phils, Dodgers dominate NL All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Led by Philadelphia teammates Greg Luzinski and Larry Bowa, the Phillies, Cincinnati Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers dominate the National League All-Star squad.

The three teams were so popular in fan balloting that they took all the starting and runners-up spots with the exception of outfielder Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Parker, however, is injured and will miss the All-Star Game, scheduled for Tuesday at San Diego, even if he were to be named as an alternate.

Leading vote-getters Luzinski, named to start for the National League for the third consecutive year, and Bowa will be joined on the starting team by Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, second baseman Joe Morgan, third baseman Pete Rose and outfielder George Foster, and Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey and outfielder Rick Monday.

It is the first time that Monday has been named to a starting berth, while Bench, Garvey, Morgan and Foster joined Luzinski as starters on the 1977 NL All-Star squad. Luzinski polled slightly more than 3.5 million votes to lead the National League team while Bowa polled 3,396,054 votes, second-highest. Luzinski's 3,503,738 votes outdistanced Foster's 2,543,815 and Monday's 2,234,763. All three led the outfielders at one point or another in the balloting.

Like Luzinski, Foster will be making his third All-Star appearance, all as a starter. The slugging Cincinnati outfielder has 18 home runs, one behind NL leader Luzinski, and has been among the leaders in runs batted in all season.

An 11-time All-Star selection, Bench was a comfortable winner for the catching position. With 2,442,201 votes, he won his 10th straight starting role. Bench and Minnesota's Rod Carew in the American League are the only players to be elected to a starting position each year since the fan voting began in 1970.

The NL pitching staff, announced by the league Tuesday, includes Cincinnati's Tom Seaver, Vida Blue of San Francisco, Steve Rogers and Ross Grimsley of Montreal, Bruce Sutter of the Chicago Cubs, Rollie Fingers of San Diego, Pat Zachry of the New York Mets, Los Angeles' Tommy John and Phil Niekro of Atlanta.

The American League starters are catcher Carlton Fisk of Boston, Minnesota's Rod Carew at first base, Don Money of Milwaukee at second base, shortstop Fred Patek and third baseman George Brett of Kansas City and outfielders Jim Rice of Boston, Richie Zisk of Texas and Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees.

DOUBLES' WINNERS — Kip McLaughlin and Aubrey Weaver of Big Spring, foreground, are seen in Wednesday morning action as they breezed to a finals' victory in a Boy's 14 Doubles duel. The pair, destined to make waves statewide, were competing in last day action of the Annual Highway 80 Tennis Tournament held here.

Highway 80 was successful

The Annual Highway 80 Tennis Tournament which ended here Wednesday was a highly successful one for local players. Four first place and four runner-up trophies were captured by Big Springers.

Barry Stephens, Figure 7 pro, and Terri Neutze of Uvalde combined for the top spot in the Mixed Doubles, while Stephens and Jamey Easterling took second in Mens' Doubles. Easterling also finished second in Mens' Singles.

Don Couvillion of Big Spring and Bryant Harris of Brownwood won the second place trophy in Mens' 35 Doubles Wednesday.

Earlier, Kip McLaughlin and Aubrey Weaver won the Boys' 14 doubles, and Dana Cannon grabbed first place in the Girls' 12 singles, as well as combining with Wichita Falls' Kelly Tomlinson for the Girls' 12 Doubles title.

Sherry Walker of Big Spring and Angela Wilson of Grand Prairie were runners-up in the Girls' 12 Doubles division.

Zisk sees, then saws single

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When Texas outfielder Richie Zisk came to bat in the eighth inning, he saw a gap in the right side of the infield between Yankee first baseman Chris Chambliss and second baseman Damaso Garcia.

Yankee Manager Billy Martin saw it too.

"We were trying to yell at him (Garcia) to move over, but we couldn't get his attention," Martin said.

Zisk sawed a broken-bat single off reliever Rich Gossage through the opening, scoring Toby Harrah from third and providing the Rangers a 3-2 victory over New York before 37,702 fans.

Jeff Matlack, 7-8, pitched his ninth complete game in taking the victory over Don Gullett, 4-1. Both struck out three and yielded no walks. Matlack gave up seven hits, and Gullett gave up eight before yielding to Gossage in the eighth with runners on second and third and nobody out.

Matlack, winless on the road, is 7-2 in Arlington Stadium.

"I felt confident at home. On the road I would have been scared to death," Matlack said of a ninth-inning threat, when heads-up play by Harrah at third base and Bert Campaneris at shortstop kept the Yankees from tying or going ahead.

Thurmon Munson singled in the ninth for his third hit of the night, but Harrah backhanded Lou Piniella's smash down the third base line and forced Munson at second.

Campaneris made a diving stop of Chris Chambliss' grounder to the middle, throwing while on his stomach to second baseman

Kurt Bevacqua in time to force Piniella.

Then Graig Nettles hit one through Matlack's legs.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Moskau finally won a game, beating the Houston Astros 2-1, and the Cincinnati Reds got into a crucial series with the San Francisco Giants trailing the division leaders by only 2½ games.

"I didn't know if it was ever going to come but I'm glad it did because we are on a winning track now," said Moskau, 1-2. He has started nine games and outdueled knuckleballer Joe Niekro, 5-2.

The Reds took the series 2-1 over Houston but not without a super relief effort by Doug Bair with nobody out in the ninth inning and the bases loaded.

Jose Cruz and Bob Watson singled to open the ninth trailing 2-1 when Reds Manager Sparky Anderson lifted Moskau for Bair.

NBC Wimby coverage termed 'pot luck'

By the Associated Press

There's something in the nature of a back-handed compliment in NBC's coverage so far of the tennis championships at grand old Wimbledon.

It isn't surprising that NBC adheres to the unproven premise that viewers want glitter and glamour with their sports. It's gratifying to tennis fans that the network is devoting so much time to the event — 10½ hours — at a time when TV tennis coverage has shrunk.

But what's been intended as reverence for a hallowed event isn't coming out that way.

The producers have tried to titillate us with unimaginative, trying-to-be sexy interchanges between Jimmy Connors and platform tennis champion Hilary Hilton, a member of the network color team. And they tried to charm us with a dashed-together account by John Newcombe of his 1971 Wimbledon victory. Newcombe is part of the network team, too.

On Saturday, nearly an hour and a half were devoted to highlights of the first week's events. Granted, because of a telephone company strike in London that prevented satellite transmission, the network was left to pot luck. Instead of telecasting that day's major match, the producers had to cut and paste a tape package and fly it home the night before.

But we saw as much of Hilton discussing the effects of Wimbledon on her diet and of Newcombe's reflections as we did of this year's contestants.

The matches shown — featuring Connors, defending champion Bjorn Borg, Guillermo Vilas, Chris Evert and Billie Jean King — were much abbreviated, of necessity. Each segment picked up well into the final set.

Super relief nudges Reds past Astros by one

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Moskau finally won a game, beating the Houston Astros 2-1, and the Cincinnati Reds got into a crucial series with the San Francisco Giants trailing the division leaders by only 2½ games.

"I didn't know if it was ever going to come but I'm glad it did because we are on a winning track now," said Moskau, 1-2. He has started nine games and outdueled knuckleballer Joe Niekro, 5-2.

The Reds took the series 2-1 over Houston but not without a super relief effort by Doug Bair with nobody out in the ninth inning and the bases loaded.

Jose Cruz and Bob Watson singled to open the ninth trailing 2-1 when Reds Manager Sparky Anderson lifted Moskau for Bair.

"I didn't consider taking Moskau out even after he had thrown 115 pitches, because when Cruz singled he became a base-stealing threat if I had put Bair in then," Anderson said. "Bair is a high kicker and I didn't want Cruz on second base."

Astros Manager Bill Virdon sent Art Howe to bat and he singled but Cruz was held up at third.

"He waited too long at second base to see whether or not Howe's ball would fall in," said Virdon.

"When he didn't get the jump there was no way he could have beaten the throw home," Virdon added.

Reds third baseman Pete Rose, who had increased his hitting streak to 21 games, then threw Cruz out at home after fielding Luis Pujols' grounder. Wilbur Howard grounded to Dave Concepcion at shortstop for a game ending double play.

"To tell you the truth, I was trying to strike him out," said Bair, content with the grounder.

"That was a good series against Houston," said Anderson. "They're a very tough team."

Bird bout no bombshell this time

By the Associated Press

Last week, Mike Flanagan and Joe Kerrigan were for the birds. Wednesday night, they gave the bird to the Toronto Blue Jays and pitched the birds of Baltimore — alias the Orioles — to a 3-1, 8-6 doubleheader sweep.

Flanagan and Kerrigan were the principal victims June 26 as the Blue Jays shelled the Orioles by that incredible 24-10 score in Toronto.

This time, the scene was Baltimore. Flanagan pitched a five-hitter in the opener and Kerrigan notched his first victory of the season in the nightcap with 31-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Oakland A's downed the Seattle Mariners 5-3 and regained first place in the West, the Texas Rangers edged the New York Yankees 3-2, the Kansas City Royals trounced the California Angels 10-1, the Boston Red Sox drubbed the Chicago White Sox 9-2, the Minnesota Twins shaded the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and the Detroit Tigers crushed the Cleveland Indians 13-3.

A's 5, Mariners 3

Mario Guerrero slammed a tie-breaking two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning off Shane Rawley following Dave Revere's infield hit. Jeff Newman also homered while All-Star selection Matt Keough was the winner, with help from Dave Heaverlo in the ninth.

Royals 10, Angels 1

Hal McRae rapped a two-run triple and a solo home run for his 1,000th major league hit. Darrell Porter singled home two runs and every Kansas City starter collected at least one hit as the Royals bombed Nolan Ryan and two relievers. Amos Otis also homered.

Red Sox 9, White Sox 21

Fred Lynn drove in three runs with a pair of homers and Carl Yastrzemski capped a six-run seventh inning with a two-run blast as the Red Sox increased their AL East lead. Bill Lee pitched six innings for his ninth victory.

Twins 3, Brewers 1

Rod Carew went 4-for-4 and Mike Cuddage 3-for-3 while Dave Goltz scattered eight hits. Trailing 1-0, the Twins scored all their runs in the sixth against Larry Sorensen on singles by Carew and Cuddage. Butch Wynegar's sacrifice fly, Dan Ford's triple and Rich Chiles' sacrifice fly.

Tigers 13, Indians 3

Lou Whitaker, Rusty Staub, Jason Thompson and Steve Kemp drove in two runs each while Jack Billingham scattered 10 hits. The Tigers, trailing 2-0, erupted for seven runs off Rick Wise in the second inning on four hits — including a two-run homer by Staub — three errors and a sacrifice fly.

Bulletin

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors, his confidence growing with each set, beat Vitas Gerulaitis 9-7, 6-2, 6-1 today to gain the final in the Wimbledon tennis championships.

The victory marks the fourth time the 25-year-old Connors has made it into the final. He won the title in 1974 over Ken Rosewall.

Connors will meet the winner of a later semifinal between defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden and surprising Dutchman Tom Okker, who could become the only unseeded man since 1967 to reach the final here.

WAITING GAME — Chris Evert of the U.S. looks up, waiting for high shot from defending champion Virginia Wade of Britain Wednesday during their Ladies Single semi-final match on Wimbledon's Center Court. Miss Evert won the match, 6-6; 6-2, and will face Martina Navratilova in the final match on Friday. (See story on p. 2B)

Longley inks with Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League announced Wednesday the signing of 10 free agents, including former Abilene Christian University and Dallas Cowboys quarterback Clint Longley and veteran wide receiver Tom Geredine.

Longley, who gained fame as the "Mad Bomber" during the 1974 season for the Cowboys, later played in 1976 for the San Diego Chargers and in 1977 for the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

McCovey: 'Have Homer will travel'

By the Associated Press

When you need a home run, Willie McCovey will certainly do in a pinch.

The biggest giant of the San Francisco Giants was called on in another clutch situation Wednesday — and as he has done so often in the past, came through for the National League West leaders.

McCovey belted a dramatic game-tying home run with two out in the ninth inning, allowing the Giants go on to beat the San Diego Padres 5-4 in 10 innings.

"It was gone the moment I hit it," said the jubilant San Francisco Giant veteran. "I got all of it."

McCovey, whose 425-foot blast was the 14th pinch-hit homer and the 502nd of his career, could hardly contain his exuberance while helping the Giants win only their second game in the last eight.

"It's a good feeling to battle back after almost blowing the game," said McCovey.

The Giants had a 3-0 lead after seven innings behind right-hander Ed Halicki before the Padres caught the Giants and rallied to go ahead 4-3 in the top of the ninth.

Then McCovey did his thing, victimizing San Diego relief ace Rollie Fingers, who gave up both the Giants' tying and winning runs.

In other National League action, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Houston Astros 2-1; the Atlanta Braves defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-8; the Philadelphia Phillies stopped the New York Mets 7-5 and the Chicago Cubs regained first place in the West, the Texas Rangers edged the New York Yankees 3-2, the Kansas City Royals trounced the California Angels 10-1, the Boston Red Sox drubbed the Chicago White Sox 9-2, the Minnesota Twins shaded the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and the Detroit Tigers crushed the Cleveland Indians 13-3.

A's 5, Mariners 3

Mario Guerrero slammed a tie-breaking two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning off Shane Rawley following Dave Revere's infield hit. Jeff Newman also homered while All-Star selection Matt Keough was the winner, with help from Dave Heaverlo in the ninth.

Royals 10, Angels 1

Hal McRae rapped a two-run triple and a solo home run for his 1,000th major league hit. Darrell Porter singled home two runs and every Kansas City starter collected at least one hit as the Royals bombed Nolan Ryan and two relievers. Amos Otis also homered.

Red Sox 9, White Sox 21

Fred Lynn drove in three runs with a pair of homers and Carl Yastrzemski capped a six-run seventh inning with a two-run blast as the Red Sox increased their AL East lead. Bill Lee pitched six innings for his ninth victory.

Twins 3, Brewers 1

Rod Carew went 4-for-4 and Mike Cuddage 3-for-3 while Dave Goltz scattered eight hits. Trailing 1-0, the Twins scored all their runs in the sixth against Larry Sorensen on singles by Carew and Cuddage. Butch Wynegar's sacrifice fly, Dan Ford's triple and Rich Chiles' sacrifice fly.

Tigers 13, Indians 3

Lou Whitaker, Rusty Staub, Jason Thompson and Steve Kemp drove in two runs each while Jack Billingham scattered 10 hits. The Tigers, trailing 2-0, erupted for seven runs off Rick Wise in the second inning on four hits — including a two-run homer by Staub — three errors and a sacrifice fly.

Sports Digest

Blue, Guidry honored

NEW YORK — Vida Blue of the San Francisco Giants, who recorded a 5-1 mark and a 1.26 ERA, has been named pitcher of the month and slugging outfielder Dave Winfield of the San Diego Padres, who batted .333 and belted eight home runs, has been named player of the month, the National League announced.

NEW YORK — Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, who was 5-0 in six starts and had a 1.46 ERA, was unanimously named the American League's Player of the Month for June, league President Lee MacPhail announced.

Lemons will relax this time

MALLEN, Texas (AP) — The eighth annual National Basketball Coaches Golf Classic started today with University of Texas basketball Coach Abe Lemons, the winner for the last two years, denying he is out to capture the title again.

"I'm not here to win it again," Lemons said Wednesday. "This year I'm here to relax and have a good time."

Lemons is one of 21 basketball coaches at the tournament.

Challengers to Lemons' title include Billy Tubbs of Lamar University, Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas and Tom Davis of Boston College.

Dawkins faces knife today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia 76ers' center Darryl Dawkins was scheduled to undergo surgery today at Temple University Hospital to repair a shoulder separation suffered during the 1977-78 National Basketball Association season, a team spokesman said.

Dawkins, 21, was treated during the season, but team orthopedist Dr. Michael Clancy decided to remove a disc from his right shoulder that was injured when he fell.

Kilgore AD dead at 58

KILGORE, Texas (AP) — Kilgore College athletic director Joe Turner died Wednesday night after a lengthy illness. He was 58.

Turner was head basketball coach at Kilgore for 18 years, and led the school to a 387-124 overall record. During that time, the junior college cagers won nine league titles and two National Junior College Athletic Association titles.

He retired as coach in 1971 to become the school's athletic director.

Lopez rests, Blalock the fave

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — With Nancy Lopez taking a week off, consistent Jane Blalock looms as the favorite this week in the Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Not only has Blalock played well recently — she won last week's tournament at Noblesville, Ind., after second-place finishes in her previous two tournaments — she has been one of the most consistent players since the ladies pro golf tour began playing in Wheeling in 1974.

Riggs is Connors' secret ploy

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors has a new secret weapon in his tennis arsenal — a counselor and confidante, half court jester, half Merlin the Magician. Don't faint now. The name: Bobby Riggs.

"I like having Bobby around," Connors said as he prepared for his Wimbledon semifinal match today against Vitas Gerulaitis. "He keeps me loose. I learn a lot of tennis just sitting around bulling with him."

Riggs, 60, the inveterate hustler, has moved into the Connors entourage and taken position closest to the ear of the United States' combative No. 1 player, usurping a post long delegated to Pancho Segura. Pancho isn't around this year.

"I'm not taking Segura's place," the bouncy, bespectacled Riggs insisted. "Gloria, Jimmy's mother, invited me to see if I could help him. I'm not a coach. I'm just one of the gang," Jimmy agreed.

"I don't need a coach," Connors said. "Bobby is a riot. We play golf and backgammon together. Then we sit around and talk tennis."

"He was a great player in his day, a great strategist. He looks at tennis the same way my mom does. He is always relaxed — a lot different than Segura.

"Pancho was very intense, always looking and scouting. When I finished a match I'd feel very relieved and Pancho would rush up and tell me I had to play so-and-so in the next round."

Riggs says his association with Connors dates back to the days when Gloria brought her precocious 16-year-old son from Belleville, Ill., to the West Coast for expert tutoring.

She sought out her old friend, Segura, rated one of the world's best instructors. At the time, Riggs was busy successfully hustling the world.

"Gloria was on the circuit when I was No. 1," Riggs explained. "She knew I was a good player, a heady player. She respected me. It wasn't unusual for her to ask if I would help Jimmy. I've only been doing it for the last couple of years."

Connors has moved from Belleville to Beverly Hills, Calif. — "I wanted to be around guys," he says, leaving mother Gloria back in Illinois to oversee Jimmy's vast enterprises, which earn $1 million a year.

Milwaukee Open is ego-builder

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament, while perennially put down for its lack of big names, has become a favorite confidence building stop for the game's fringe players and future stars.

Just ask veteran Art Wall Jr., whose 1975 victory in the GMO snapped a 10-year drought. Or Dave Eichelberger, whose only victories in 11 years on the tour have been in the GMO in 1971 and last year. Or Andy North, the 1978 U.S. Open champion from Madison, Wis.

One attraction of the GMO for struggling pros is a chance to compete without the likes of Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson or other tour giants, who usually skip this tournament in order to prepare for the British Open the following week.

DIFFERENT DIRECTIONS — Texas Rangers second baseman Kurt Bevacqua finds himself sailing through the air as New York Yankees Mickey Rivers slides into second base safe during sixth inning action Wednesday night. Rivers went on to score the tying run in that inning but the Yankees still found more troubles down the road as the Rangers won the game in the eighth inning 3-2.

WHA may be only 6 teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Gordie Howe played 25 years in the National Hockey League. Most of that time, the NHL was a six-team league. Now, at age 50, Howe and the New England Whalers again could be operating in a six-team league — the World Hockey Association — this fall.

"If this really becomes a six-team league, it will be like old times for me," said Howe. "When there are so few teams, rivalries build up and I think the fans enjoy it a bit more because they get to be familiar with the players on all six teams."

The probability of the six-year-old WHA functioning in 1978-79 with only six teams seemed likely in the light of developments Wednesday at the WHA's Board of Trustees meeting.

Is Chris No. 1?

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Who's No. 1 will be decided, at least for the moment, on Friday when Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova meet in the finals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

Evert reached the finals for the fourth time in six years by defeating defending champion Virginia Wade of Britain 6-6, 6-2 Wednesday while Navratilova wore down an injured, limping Evonne Goolagong of Australia 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Navratilova, a Czechoslovakian who defected to the United States three years ago, is appearing in the finals at Wimbledon for the first time.

While Evert took a vacation at the beginning of the past indoor season, Navratilova established herself as the game's top player, crushing any pretender to the crown worn for the last several years by Evert.

Then Evert returned and beat Navratilova in their first meeting.

But two weeks ago, in the Eastbourne International, Navratilova defeated Evert in a marathon three-setter.

"The match at Eastbourne should give me confidence," said Navratilova, the No. 2 seed, of Friday's pending battle. "I can win if I can produce my best."

Top-seeded Evert feels she could be just reaching her peak.

"I still haven't reached top form," she said after disposing of Wade, who won last year. "I hope it will happen in the final — it's leading up to that."

"Martina is playing awfully well. I think the only vulnerable part of her game is her backhand."

Navratilova has lost only three matches this year while Evert is a two-time Wimbledon champion.

The men's semifinals today sent defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden against unseeded Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Jimmy Connors, the 1974 champion who lost to Borg in the finals last year, against fellow American Vitas Gerulaitis.

Stanton counts heads

with Marj Carpenter

Saturday is Old Settlers Day in Stanton and they have a big celebration over there. They start Saturday morning with a parade at 10 a.m. and they celebrate all day ending with a barbecue that night.

You might enjoy going over to hospitable Stanton Saturday and enjoying some of the festivities. They lock the soreheads up on Old Settlers Day.

Stanton came into being around 1880 and was originally begun by a group of Catholic priests, including Father P.A. Peters and Father Boniface Peters. Their cousin J.J. Peters came later and was one of the first residents.

He came with his four sons, Chris, Joseph, Godfred and Leonard. Ish Peters was a direct descendant and had taken part in every Old Settlers Day parade. This year he died and he will be missed.

Other early Marienfeld (because that's what Stanton was called in those days) residents included the Stoegers, the Holts, the Toms, the Seifs, the Flanagan, the Houstons, the Glasscocks, the Lewises, the Ingles, the Vances and many more.

The very first census taken in the Martin County area was taken by Hamilton Foster, enumerator for Supervisor's district 3, Enumeration District No. 202, U.S. Government.

There were 12 names on that census, all white males. Four of them were listed as herdsmen, meaning ranchers. The others were all listed as servants, meaning cowpokes.

Bud Roberts, who was then 30 years old was one of the 12. His family was over here in Howard County where he had taken up a homestead.

He was camped over there working cattle at the time the census was taken. He was listed on the census as married and all of the other 11 were listed as single.

In addition to Bud, they included Cub Roberts, J.C. Holder, George Warnick, J. Higgins, George Prior, G. Johnson, P. Smith, George Hilborn, Eph Jones, P. Owens and J. Stokes. Hilborn at 33 was the oldest of the group. They were all apparently young and venturesome.

They were counted up at three different cow camps located by the horseback riding census enumerator.

The post office in Marienfeld was established in 1882. The 1890 census showed a population of 264 persons. The area had shown rapid growth right after 1880 but the 1886 and '87 drouths took their toll and a lot of folks left.

The first marriages recorded in the 1880s started with J. Jacob Peters and Margaret Mundloch, July 24, 1885 followed by T.M. Hunter and Bertha Mansfield, A.D. Gerhard and Ada Vetter, James H. Barkley and Minnie Martin, Maurice Lacy and Rosa Roshe, Jacob Vettes and Mary Mantz, E.E. Vineyard and Annie Fitzgerald, A.P. Hardin and Sarah Ann Nelson and T.C. Estes and R.E. Dearmore, all before 1890.

A lot of the early German settlers left around 1887 and came over to Big Spring. The original families who hung on through the drouth were J.J. Peters, Joseph Stoeger, John Wolf, the Koenig family, John Schaffer, the Schmidt and Sommers families, Mike Waskoski, Peter Gordon and a family called Macek.

They used to count them at the census, but now they count the old Settlers on Old Settlers Day.

The town was almost all German Catholic, called Marienfeld and an early convent and school started.

Later, a Protestant element changed the name of the town to Stanton and buried the original name of Marienfeld, digging a hole and burying it in a box like a corpse.

But Marienfeld was a pretty name — meaning field of flowers and a lot of the early Catholic families that originally named it Marienfeld hung on and have descendants there to this day.

And this week they again hold Old Settlers Day in a town that is fun to visit and tell old tales about — out where I ride fence.

Carters enjoy fishing for bream

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter, spending a long holiday here, can pursue virtually all his recreational interests within walking distance of his luxury lodge. But he can't fish.

The lack of a fishing stream or pond at this Marine-guarded mountaintop retreat is a bit ironic since Camp David is surrounded by public parklands that offer some of the best angling hereabouts.

And Carter, who shares an avid interest in fishing with wife Rosalynn, never has ventured outside the camp gates to fish, although he's made a couple of dozen visits.

The reason may be that Carter, used to the relatively flat turf of Georgia, isn't accustomed to slogging in waders over wet rocks in swift-flowing mountain streams.

The president does most of his fishing in ponds and quiet coastal waters, venturing into the Atlantic for deep-sea fishing about once a year. For instance, he and his wife and daughter Amy put to sea a week ago off the Virginia shore in search of tuna, king mackerel and bluefish.

More commonly, the Carters enjoy Tom Sawyer-type fishing for bream, the southern name for bluegill.

"They're probably the first fish a kid catches," an outdoorsman volunteered, "and the last for an old man."

The Carters go after bream, a member of the sunfish family, more like kids than senior citizens.

There are no bream at Camp David. But there are fine facilities for swimming, tennis, bowling and hiking — all activities that Carter enjoys.

Carter is the first president since Dwight D. Eisenhower to have more than a passing interest in fishing.

During one trip to the Colorado Rockies, Ike landed so many trout he began frying them on the spot for his Secret Service bodyguards and White House reporters.

A newsman, as a joke, told Eisenhower that a particular bodyguard was inordinately fond of trout, so Ike heaped his plate high.

Once the fish had been consumed, the reporter informed the president that the Secret Service agent would enjoy more but was too shy to ask. So another heaping plate was forthcoming.

After the third serving, the bodyguard disappeared behind a bush to relieve himself of his distress.

President Coolidge was something of a gentleman fisherman. He wore gloves while wielding a pole and relied on the Secret Service to bait his hook and remove his catch. He used worms for bait.

When Coolidge headed for a holiday in the Black Hills of South Dakota, local residents dumped 1,500 trout into a stream outside the "Summer White House." Nets were deployed to keep the fish confined to a 500-yard stretch of water.

Asked how many fish were in the river, Coolidge estimated 45,000.

"I haven't caught them all yet," the president announced, "but I've intimidated them."

Fire guts building in Ranger

RANGER, Texas (AP) — Fire gutted a 60-year-old building covering half a block in the central part of town early Wednesday. Firemen from Ranger and three surrounding West Central Texas communities battled the blaze for more than three hours before bringing it under control.

No one was injured.

The fire in the four-story Marston Building broke out about 4:45 a.m., and about 35 firemen including some from Eastland, Olden and Gorman helped extinguish the flames.

The building housed a department store, a dance studio, a real estate office and several apartments.
