

NOT EXACTLY THE PRIDE OF THE FAIR — Dallas, Texas resident Martin "Farmer" Brown looks at just one of a very poor crop of corn ears that he has grown this season during a very hot year in the Dallas area. Brown's corn had reached heights of 12-feet and was forming well until hot dry weather hit the area. With 18 days of above 100 temperatures recorded in the metroplex area, there have been at least 12 deaths attributed to heat related problems in the last 17 days.

LULAC makes last try for indictment

WASHINGTON (AP) — With two strikes against them, Mexican-American leaders are launching a last-ditch attempt to have civil rights indictments returned in the Santos Rodriguez case.

The 12-year-old boy was killed July 24, 1973, as he sat handcuffed in a patrol car. Former police officer Darrell Cain was convicted in state court of murder with malice for the slaying and was sentenced to a five-year prison term.

Friday, the Justice Department announced it had decided against a request by Mexican-Americans for dual prosecution of Cain and initiation of proceedings against Ray Arnold, Cain's partner at the time of the shooting.

The statute of limitations on the case runs out Monday.

But Ed Pena, the national League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) president, said Tuesday that the Justice Department had given "such strange, such feeble reasons," for not prosecuting Cain that other avenues had to be tried before the Monday expiration date.

The proposed legal avenue involves presenting the case to a federal grand jury in Dallas later this week, according to Pena and Ruben Sandoval, the Texas legal advisor for LULAC. Normally, a U.S. attorney presents cases to the grand jury.

"We're saying that a federal grand jury has the authority to initiate an investigation on its own accord and can return an indictment," Sandoval told The Associated Press in San Antonio on Tuesday. "That indictment is not active, of course, until the U.S. attorney signs it."

Tuesday, U.S. Attorney Ken Mighell in Dallas threw them another curve. He cannot sign it.

"The attorney general... denied me that right," Mighell said, when the Justice Department ruled that the case would not be prosecuted.

Mighell, acknowledging that anyone can petition to appear before a grand jury, said it would take a judge to call the body into session before Tuesday, which in itself "is not an easy thing to do."

"Some of these people live 100 miles away. We normally give them a month's notice" before they have to convene, Mighell said.

"We are not trying in anyway to influence the grand jury," stressed Sandoval who would be one of the LULAC lawyers to present a plea before the grand jury. "This is merely a request for an appearance for a plea. Whether or not the grand jury undertakes anything is strictly under their discretion."

Four members of the Texas House — Democrats Ben Reyes and Craig Washington, both of Houston, plus Matt Garcia and Joe Hernandez, both of San Antonio — are also backing the effort.

Reyes said Tuesday from Houston that the United Nation's Human Rights Commission will be asked in August to investigate "violations of human rights in Texas."

Pena said Tuesday that the Justice Department had already "made up its mind" concerning the Rodriguez case long before Hispanic leaders were able to meet with Carter and Bell. "The announcement Friday was just a defense of a decision it had already made rather than examining the facts."

Texas' summer: 'Ain't never seen it so bad'

DALLAS (AP) — Ervive Brown sits on her front porch fanning herself, waiting and wondering: "How long Lawd? 'How much longer?"

At 64, and on Social Security, the widow Brown is scared. Among the horror stories she remembers hearing recently involves an old couple found dead in their air-conditioned home last week.

A small fan battles feebly to stir the 101-degree air coming into her empty living room through an open window.

It was Tuesday afternoon, the 17th consecutive day of 100 degrees or worse in Dallas.

Since July 2, 14 people have died of heat-related illnesses in Dallas, another seven in Fort Worth, 25 miles to the west.

People suffering from the heat continued to straggle into Dallas and Fort Worth emergency rooms, but no heat-related fatalities had been reported in the area since Monday when two women died at a Dallas hospital within five minutes of each other.

From where she sits, Mrs. Brown can hear her TV blaring out the latest heat casualty report — 20 or 21 dead, depending on who you talked to — and no relief in sight.

"Sure I'm worried," she said. "Most of those folks who died are older. But I guess all I can do is trust in the Lawd. I been here most all my life and I ain't never seen it so bad."

At least 12 heat victims were hospitalized in Dallas Tuesday night and three more in Fort Worth. Bob Clark, assistant administrator at Dallas' Parkland Hospital, said, "We have not experienced anything like this year before."

Dr. Jack Oliver, director of emergency services at Fort Worth's Peter Smith Hospital, added, "We're seeing heat syndromes on a daily basis. We average one or two cases of heat exhaustion a day."

Across town from Mrs. Brown, Ken Graves took a break. It was 5 p.m. He had been at work since 8 a.m. and probably wouldn't crawl into bed before midnight again.

Graves' 3-year-old, one-man air-conditioning business has been catching considerable overflow from larger companies that can't handle the demand. Last month, he was averaging 10 to 12 service calls a day. Now it's in excess of 20.

"It's usually feast or famine in this business," he said. "Right now, it's a feast. I've even had to turn down some people because I can't get them."

The area forecast indicated Graves would spend another 16 hours today servicing overworked air conditioners.

What the city dwellers couldn't get fixed, they were buying new. One hurried air conditioner salesman estimated window unit sales were up 65 percent in Dallas alone.

"We're selling just about all we can get our hands on," said Sear's department manager Barney Taylor. "Some people are buying window units to supplement central systems that were designed for use in 95-degree temperatures and just can't cool under these extended temperatures... We're trying to shift air conditioners from other parts of the nation to this area."

What may become the deadliest of Texas summers, however, is not yet the longest when 100-degree readings are discussed.

Federal agency probes postage American Indians upset with Carter's absence

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency wants to know if it illegally provided postage to American Indians for mailings used to ask support for their "Longest Walk" protest which now is focusing on alleged violations of their human rights.

The Indians, from more than 80 tribes, planned to meet today in LaFayette Park across from the White House. They have criticized President Carter for being out of the country when their protest march from California arrived in the capital on Saturday.

Russell Means of the American Indian Movement that helped stage the 3,000-mile trek said on Tuesday that Carter "has met with women's groups, Chicano groups, Appalachian groups and others. He refuses to meet with Indians."

Meanwhile, Sam Brown, director of ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, ordered an investigation into whether his staff broke the law by using government-paid postage to help the Indians.

A July 5 letter asked 1,000 VISTA and Peace Corps volunteers to help provide food, housing and transportation for the Indians. Enclosed in a government-printed envelope marked "Penalty for private use $300," the letter said the request for support for the demonstrators "is not an official agency function."

The author of the letter was Lynn Miller, coordinator of ACTION's former volunteer project. The letter said a number of ACTION staffers would work on their own time over the weekend to help the Indians.

Pennington said it was possible the letter violated no laws or rules, even though he acknowledged that the activity was not official business. He cited a previous statement of purpose of the agency's special volunteer programs, saying they should support human, social and environmental needs by encouraging volunteer service in "agencies, institutions and situations where the application of human talent and dedication may help to meet such needs."

Earlier Tuesday Means had gotten into a loud disagreement at the Washington Monument grounds with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., over a Kennedy-sponsored bill.

During the dispute, Kennedy took the microphone to denounce an Indian pamphlet that said his bill would deprive the tribes of their treaty rights.

"I want to read you what is in the bill, not what is suggested in your pamphlet," he said. "Then if you're not satisfied, I'll be glad to have you come up and sit down and... work out any particular problems you have in mind."

But Means said the bill would turn reservations into state or national parks in which Indians would be subject to state and local rather than tribal laws established by treaty. He said Indians were "being sacrificed to the state court system, with large bonds and long jail sentences."

On Tuesday, the Indians rallied at the Washington Monument, showed up an hour late for a meeting with Vice President Walter F. Mondale and scheduled a march to the Supreme Court but instead went to the FBI Building.

On Capitol Hill, the House adopted 377-81 a resolution declaring that national policy is to protect the rights of Indians and other native peoples "to believe, express and exercise the traditional religions..."

Weather Panhandle has some scattered rainfall

By the Associated Press

Scattered showers and thunderstorms drifted slowly eastward across the Texas Panhandle early today, dumping small amounts of rainfall in the Amarillo area.

Forecasters said more widely scattered shower and thundershower activity was expected today in sections of the Panhandle and in Southeast Texas.

Most of the state, however, could expect little relief from the continued heat. Highs were expected to range mostly in the upper 90s to near 110 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Rainfall during the night in the Panhandle amounted to about .21 of an inch at Amarillo and 1.24 inches at Palo Duro.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Fair with hot afternoons and warm nights. Highs 95 to 110. Lows 67 to 78.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy with widely scattered afternoon and nighttime thundershowers mainly north through Thursday. Highs upper 90s Panhandle and mountains to 110 along the river in the Big Bend. Lows in the 70s except near 60 mountains.

Water system in Rio Grande Valley falters

SANTA ROSA, Texas (AP) — The faltering water system in this Rio Grande Valley town is operating only 23 hours a day and may be getting worse.

"It could cave in any day, any minute," water board member George Cavazos said of the 216-foot deep well that supplies the water.

The long simmering water problem reached crisis stage this week. There is not enough water and officials are closing down the system every day for an hour at 2 p.m.

"If there's a major house fire, all our volunteer fire department could do would be to sit there and watch it," Cavazos said.

City Manager Fermin Aguirre said officials here have known for several years that the 16-year-old system is inadequate for the 1,700 residents.

But there is not enough city money for a new system.

Three months ago the city applied, under an "imminent threat to public safety" heading, for a Housing and Urban Development grant. The $660,000 was sought to build a pipeline connecting into the Harlingen water system.

But now Harlingen officials say the plan is not feasible.

The water crunch here is being complicated by the recent opening of a 53-family housing project. Officials from HUD, which subsidized the project, were eager to have families move into the new facilities. About eight families have moved in.

"We just don't have the water for them or us," Aguirre said.

The hour shutdown each afternoon is aimed at allowing the tanks to fill in time for the evening demand. On a recent blistering summer day the water pressure was down to 10 pounds by 7:30 p.m., Cavazos said.

A HUD official in San Antonio said Harlingen's decision may delay federal aid. Frank Buie, program manager for community programs and development, said Santa Rosa's pending application is largely obsolete now.

"We've asked their engineer to estimate the cost for their own treatment plant and another source of water," Buie said.

The HUD official added that his department has yet to decide whether the situation here poses an "imminent threat."

DREAM MACHINE — Unidentified barefoot man takes advantage of parked car to catch a few winks in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, recently. The unorthodox napping arrangement was apparently to the man's liking, who only nodded his head groggily and returned to his dreams when passers-by tried to rouse him. It is a common sight to see poor people sleeping on the streets at any time of the day or night in the port city of five million inhabitants.

Not much to happen in talks

LEEDS CASTLE, England (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met separately with the Israeli and Egyptian foreign ministers today in a last-minute effort to narrow the gap in their conflicting peace proposals before the ministers resumed bargaining later in the day.

Informed sources at this castle southeast of London reported that the only likely outcome of the two-day conference would be an agreement to go on talking.

The deadlock centers on the future of the West Bank, the Gaza Strip and the Palestinian population.

The sources said negotiations may continue through Vance's Mideast trouble shooter, Alfred Atherton.

Assistant Secretary of State Atherton is scheduled to fly to the Middle East after briefing NATO representatives in Brussels

Thursday, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter reported.

Enough common ground to justify a scheduled morning negotiating session appeared to be lacking, so Vance called in Foreign Ministers Moshe Dayan of Israel and Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel of Egypt separately for a total of 2½-hours.

The second and final day of the conference opened in a gloomy atmosphere with the two sides virtually deadlocked.

In Jerusalem, Israel's Parliament erupted in a shouting match between Prime Minister Menachem Begin and opposition leader Shimon Peres.

Peres accused Begin of "filling a prescription for Israel's isolation."

Begin countered by asking Peres, who met with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat last week in Austria, if the Labor leader had discussed territorial compromise between Israel and the Arabs.

"You believe it is the high road, the only way to peace and there is no other," Begin shouted from the rostrum.

Begin refused to debate the peace strategy and said the Knesset would hold a debate on the Mideast situation after next Sunday's cabinet session.

The first day of discussions ended with Egypt and Israel agreeing only that "a very wide gap" still existed between their peace proposals.

Both Kamel and Dayan dined with Vance in the tightly guarded castle and sources said the three men continued informal talks late into the evening Tuesday.

A joint statement said Tuesday's talks were "serious and straightforward," which in the language of diplomacy means each side made its position clear and there was no significant movement toward agreement.

Vance was going ahead with preparations for further negotiations within a month in the Sinai-Negev desert areas. He planned to send Alfred Atherton, his Middle East trouble shooter, to Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia this weekend to do some groundwork.

But Sadat told a news conference in Khartoum: "We have a precise plan for discussion and if there are no new elements, no response, there's no need for further discussion."

Sadat suspended negotiations between Dayan and Kamel in January because Israel would not budge from its refusal to evacuate all territory it occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Since then each side has made new proposals, but basic positions remain the same.

Contract expires Thursday

Postal workers warned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General William F. Bolger is warning each of 554,000 postal employees that they could be fired if they strike when their contract expires at midnight Thursday.

In letters delivered to postal workers across the country Tuesday, Bolger warned that striking employees would also be committing a felony and could forfeit paid health and life insurance coverage.

Bolger, who has so far kept out of the negotiations with four employee unions, said, "I want you to be personally aware of the grave consequences of strike participation."

His letter came as the contract talks deadlocked over management efforts to eliminate a no-layoff clause the unions insist on retaining in the new contract.

Postal management says it needs the right to improve worker productivity and shrink its workforce faster than could be done through attrition.

But the unions say that without job security thousands of people would be laid off. One union official, asking not to be named, said management had indicated it plans to eliminate more than 100,000 jobs by the early 1980s.

So bitter is the no-layoff issue, one source close to the negotiations said, that it may "blow this thing sky high."

"It might be the issue that one side will strike over and the other might take a strike over," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

President Emmett Andrews of the American Postal Workers Union said management refuses to budge on the no-layoff provision, creating a "stone wall" for the union negotiations.

Andrews notified the union's board members that the Postal Service "refuses to negotiate any of the remaining priority items unless the unions are willing to consider giving up the no-layoff clause."

In a separate message to his union's 299,000 members, Andrews charged the Postal Service strategy is "to keep the negotiations at a boil right up until the deadline."

But he added that the unions had told management "there would be no contract which did not contain" the no-layoff clause.

Postal Service spokesmen had no comment on the negotiations.

Both sides met separately with federal mediators Tuesday. The mediators, who asked for the separate sessions, communicated positions between the two sides.

Although about 20 secondary points have been resolved, said James LaPrenta of the Laborers' International Union, "the hard issues remain to be settled." He said these include mechanization, overtime and sick leave.

Other major sticking points include pay, work rules and health and safety issues.

Records ordered surrendered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. has ordered Texas abortion clinics to surrender patients' medical records to a state judge, providing the patients' names are deleted from the documents.

Brennan's order came Monday from his summer home in Massachusetts.

Reproductive Services Inc., a Dallas-based firm that operates a group of abortion clinics, had asked that it be allowed to withhold the medical information pending a formal appeal to the full Supreme Court.

Reproductive Services had argued that an order issued last month by Judge Dee Brown Walker of Dallas has the effect of invading its patients' privacy rights.

The controversy stems from a May 15 lawsuit filed against the firm by a Dallas woman, Claudia Lott. She sued for $1.5 million for injuries allegedly suffered in an abortion she underwent last September.

Mrs. Lott suffered a perforated uterus and was hospitalized briefly after her abortion.

Her lawsuit, now pending before Judge Walker, seeks records of five patients other than herself who are not parties to the lawsuit. In addition, it seeks medical records of all other patients at Reproductive Services clinics who had any major or serious complications and records of all patients who received certain types of medication.

The firm's emergency request seeking to set aside Judge Brown's order was turned down by Justice William H. Rehnquist on June 30, and Reproductive Services then turned to Brennan.

In a two-page order, Brennan said in essence that the firm's fears were unfounded.

Tween 12 and 20 — Teen poets invited

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens: I received a letter from a teen in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, who said she enjoyed writing poetry and asked if I would put her poem in this column. While it would be impossible to print every teen poem in Tween 12 and 20, it did start my vivid imagination to wandering a bit.

There was a time when I did not enjoy poetry but that time is gone. I do enjoy reading and writing poetry ... So, this is what we will do. If you enjoy writing poetry, write a poem about anything and send it to me. Being an "ex" college English teacher, I will be happy to read and evaluate it for you.

Those poems that I feel merit printing I will get into my column, especially those that would be applicable to various holidays; days such as Mother's Day, Independence Day, Valentine's Day, Christmas, Thanksgiving, etc.

I'll do my best to print a poem, or segments of various poems at least once a month.

Please remember that this is an experiment. I don't know what to expect so I'll just wait and see.

When you do send your poem to me, do these few things: Include your name, address and age.

If all goes well, I will ask Copley News Service to print some of the more interesting poems in a booklet. These would be teen poems from the United States, Canada, Barbados, Puerto Rico and Jamaica. I will see that you have a chance to receive this booklet at a minimal cost; somewhere around a dollar.

I'll do my best to make this teen poetry book a reality.

I'm really excited about this venture so, all you teen poets, get with it. Please let me hear from you.

Lets Friend Make Passes at His Wife

DEAR ABBY: Charlie and I have been married for 16 years and have had a fairly happy marriage. Charlie never was the jealous type, but I think he carries it to the other extreme.

We've become friendly with a rather odd couple who live in the same "condo." Izzy is 55, short, fat and generally unattractive. Suzy (his third wife) is cute, sexy and about 25 years younger than Izzy. She obviously married him for his money.

Lately Izzy has been getting much too friendly with me. He's forever putting his hands on me. Once he suggested "switching" and when I looked shocked, he laughed and said he was "only kidding."

It seems the four of us are spending more and more time together. Last night during a foursome of bridge at our place, Izzy tried to play footsie with me. He slipped off his shoe and practically had his foot in my lap. I loudly told him off while Charlie and Suzy just sat there.

I get the impression that Suzy doesn't care who Izzy plays footsie with as long as it isn't her. (I think she must have something else going for her.)

Anyway, Suzy suggested that the four of us vacation somewhere together. I made excuses why we couldn't, but Charlie was all for it.

Is our marriage sick? I don't care to spend so much time with this couple. Why should my husband want to? And why shouldn't he be annoyed that another man makes passes at his wife?

Help me.

CHARLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Charlie that if he enjoys Izzy's company, he should see him without you because that foursome has become boring.

(P.S. You could be right about Suzy's having something else going for her. Just make sure it isn't Charlie.)

DEAR ABBY: The wife who said her husband smelled because he seldom bathed, reminds me of a story they tell about Samuel Johnson, the noted English lexicographer of the 1700s.

Johnson was a "purist" where words were concerned, but when it came to his personal hygiene, he was a notorious slob who seldom bathed.

A woman sitting next to him on a coach train said: "Sir, you smell!" Whereupon Johnson replied: "Madam, you are wrong. YOU smell, I stink."

Perhaps the husband who was accused of "smelling" would like to show this to his wife.

LEE IN DELAWARE

DEAR LEE: Samuel Johnson was wrong. If he gave off an offensive odor, he "smelled" and stank as well. Or should Shakespeare's immortal line in "Romeo and Juliet" have been: "A rose by any other name would 'stink' as sweet?"

Gold Star Mother's attend convention

Mrs. Truett Thomas, president of the local Gold Star Mother's Chapter, and Mrs. Huey Rogers, treasurer, returned from Washington, D.C. recently, where they attended the National Convention and observance of the Gold Star Mothers 50th anniversary July 9-11.

Highlights of the convention were bus tours of Washington, and a reception at the National Headquarters of the American Gold Star Mothers. The event was hosted by the Grace Darling Seibold chapter.

Convention members also attended special church services at the Calvary Baptist Church.

Emogene Cupp was elected the 1978-79 president of the group.

Jack Anderson gave special recognition to the convention on "Good Morning America" July 4. He discussed several requests that have been made by the Gold Star Mothers Organization during the past years, all which have been refused.

Among requests refused was one for a brief meeting with President Carter at the convention. Another involved a tax exempt status, and a request for a stamp to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Gold Star Mothers.

Rainbow Assembly meets

Big Spring Assembly 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, held a business meeting recently in the Masonic Temple with Cindy Roberts, worthy advisor, presiding.

Mary Jane Wright, past junior member of the Grand Music Committee of the Grand Assembly of Texas, was introduced as a special guest. Other guests were Emily Boyd and Kenda Born, past worthy advisors, and Mrs. Adele Tibbs, past mother advisor of the local assembly.

Dana Hodnett, charity, told the assembly that the group will meet Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot at 3rd and Scurry and go to the Westside Center to visit the Day Care Center. At 10 a.m., the group will go with children from the center to Comanche Trail Park.

The group discussed the Grand Assembly in San Antonio, which was held in June. Robin von Rosenberg, was named to represent Big Spring in the Grand Assembly. Her title is Grand Representative from New Mexico to Texas, Grand Assembly of Texas, Order of the Rainbow for Girls.

It was announced that study classes will be held from 2-4 p.m. Saturday at the hall. The next meeting is July 25.

City's odds even for hitting well

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Crystal City's odds of hitting a wildcat gas well are "50-50" — better than normal in the risky business of wildcatting, says the consulting engineer in the gas-starved city's proposal for a federally-funded drilling project.

"I can't overemphasize the risk," said San Antonio petroleum engineer George Ozuna Jr. "Any well drilling operation is risky. But this is less risky than most."

"This is no pie in the sky proposal. This is a project supported and recommended by people who are specialists in their field. This is a virgin gas field and not too many people know about it. I'm very confident," he added.

Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. shut off the natural gas supply to the city-owned gas system last Sept. 23 because of an unpaid $800,000 debt.

Most of the town's 8,100 residents, many of them poor Mexican-American migrant workers, have been forced to use wood for heating and cooking. Others have turned to butane and propane.

Ironically, Crystal City sits in the middle of Zavala County's rich natural gas fields. That's why the city is seeking a $650,000 federal grant to acquire gas leases and drill six wells. Crystal City would provide another $318,000, borrowed against the producing wells, to build a pipeline.

The local office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved the preliminary application. The Middle Rio Grande Development Council, which oversees disbursement of federal grants, has approved the full application. The final decision will be made in Washington.

Ozuna's geologists have pinpointed 17 sites in the county where geological formations indicate possible gas deposits. None of those are inside the city limits, the nearest being about five miles away.

Geologists estimate that a successful well would produce up to 15 million cubic feet of gas per month for 22-55 years. City officials hope to hit two wells in the six attempts, which they feel would make the city energy self-sufficient. That's considered vital in this Raza Unida Party-controlled county.

"A few inches either way could make all the difference. I didn't neglect to tell the city fathers they could drill six dry holes," said Ozuna. "But if they use seismic exploration, it should bring the odds to 50-50. I'm almost confident enough to say the odds are even better. One outfit has hit eight of nine wells in Zavala County by using seismic exploration."

A San Antonio oil and gas geologist said statistics have shown the odds of hitting a wildcat gas well are three out of 10.

The unique concept of federal dollars financing a city's risky search for natural gas might cause problems, said Frank Bowie, program manager for HUD's local community development division. Other officials say the Raza Unida connection will not help either.

"It's an unusual case from the standpoint that we've never had a city request something of this nature. Since it is the first one, I would suspect there would be some problems," said Bowie.

Bowie's office provides recommendations on the application before sending it to Washington.

First part of energy plan awaits approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first part of President Carter's 15-month-old energy plan, designed to conserve dwindling petroleum and natural gas supplies by forcing industries to burn more coal, awaits House action after winning lopsided Senate approval.

The bill has broad support in the House, but other, more controversial parts of Carter's plan remain in serious trouble — raising doubts that Congress will supply much help in meeting the energy conservation goals Carter promised in Bonn, West Germany, at the end of a seven-nation economic summit on Monday.

Both Carter's proposal for a domestic crude oil tax and a proposed compromise on natural gas pricing — the two major parts of the energy package — still face major opposition in Congress.

Tuesday's 92-6 Senate approval of the broadly supported coal conversion measure would prohibit most new power plants from burning natural gas or petroleum and give the government the power to order certain industries to switch to coal. The bill also would ban residential outdoor gaslights by Jan. 1, 1982.

House leaders say they don't plan to call a vote on the measure immediately. They will await the arrival of at least three other parts of the energy package — dealing with natural gas prices, energy conservation and electric rates — before acting.

The fifth section, which includes Carter's controversial proposal for a crude oil tax that would add about seven cents a gallon to the price of gasoline, remains stalled in a House-Senate conference committee.

Few observers expect that the tax portion can be revived before Congress recesses for the November congressional elections — although sources, asking to remain anonymous, said on Tuesday a "lame duck" session after the elections to deal with the tax measures is a growing possibility.

And the natural-gas compromise, calling for deregulation of gas prices in 1985, may never make it to the House if it can't survive a possible Senate filibuster expected to begin later this month.

Skylab's orbit close to normal

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — America's 85-ton Skylab, wobbling in a dangerous path around the earth since July 8, may be a step closer to getting back into a minimum drag attitude that will keep it from prematurely plunging back to the ground.

Scientists at Johnson Space Center were continuing a series of maneuvers today designed ultimately to return the huge satellite to the orbital attitude or position it held prior to July 8 when a power failure on board caused it to spin out of control.

Controllers have tried since then to stop the giant space lab from its erratic movement.

JSC spokesman Charles Redmond said an overheating problem aboard the craft caused one of two sets of batteries to lose power, shutting down the three gyroscopes.

Scientists hoped to complete starting up the gyros today and prepare for the first of several commands designed to return the craft to proper attitude.

When the gyros reach 80 per cent full power, Redmond said, and the space lab becomes properly aligned with all solar panels facing the sun, controllers will give the craft a command to hold its position.

Controllers then plan study to behavior of the craft before making the final adjustments to cut down the atmospheric drag that is forcing the Skylab toward a potentially hazardous return to earth.

JSC controllers changed Skylab's attitude on June 11 to put it in a more favorable drag position.

Returning it to that position is necessary if the satellite is to remain in space until a Space Shuttle crew can boost it into a higher orbit late next year.

NASA officials say if the maneuvers are not successful, more than 400 pieces of Skylab could plunge back to earth as early as next spring. Space officials say there is a remote possibility some of the wreckage could come down over inhabited areas.

A booster rocket would keep the space lab in orbit another five years, officials said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Some upsets could occur today if you overlook conditions around you. But if you are alert, there could be beneficial results. A time to put your affairs on a more solid structure.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Relieve tensions at home and you can handle business matters wisely. Take advantage of your ability to organize.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Rid yourself of obstacles in the path of your progress and gain the success you seek. Strive for increased happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you improve conditions around you instead of wasting time with unimportant matters. Be more active.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you are sensible in the handling of monetary affairs and get ahead instead of behind. Use right principles.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your past actions so you will know what is standing in the way of your getting ahead. Take needed health treatments.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget all those details you are fussing over and get down to the important matters that can lead to advancement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You could be quite demanding of others at this time, so postpone plans to another day for best results. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do nothing that could upset a higher-up today and avoid trouble. Take no chances with your fine reputation now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Those new ideas you have need more study before you set them in operation. Know exactly where you are headed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Listen carefully to what a close tie has to suggest but don't act on it at this time. Don't neglect an important bill.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your intuition is not accurate at this time, so use your good judgment for best results. Be active and more cheerful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study every phase of a new plan you have, but don't confide in others, since you may have to make changes later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be friendly toward others and a true humanitarian. The personality in this chart is excellent and a power for good in the world. Be sure to give good spiritual training early in life. There is much happiness here.
