SUSPICIOUS MOTHER — Danny Valdes, Herald photographer, moved in close to take this picture of two baby humming birds in a nest built in the Kentwood area. The mama bird, pictured in the inset, was very curious about the presence of Valdes and acted as if she were going to dive-bomb the photographer several times.

'Believe It or Not'

He's had hiccups for past 56 years

ANTHON, Iowa (AP) — Charles Osborne has had hiccups for 56 of his 84 years, but he hasn't given up hope of finding a cure.

"I'd give everything I got in the world if I could get rid of them," says Osborne, including the notoriety that sprang from a 1936 appearance on Robert Ripley's "Believe It or Not" radio show and put him in the Guinness Book of World Records.

"I don't know what it would be like not to have them," Osborne said. "I get so sore jerking all the time."

A veteran of many tries at a cure, Osborne is now being treated by Dr. Terence Anthony, an associate professor at the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine who has been interested in hiccups since he was a medical student.

Osborne's hiccups began on a farm near Union, Neb., in 1922.

"I was butchering hogs and hauling a 350-pound hog... While I was hanging the hog up I started to hiccup," he said.

He was taken to Omaha, Neb., for treatment by his employer. They stopped only to start again once he got home.

"I made four trips back home. But every time I got back home they would start again. I've had them ever since," Osborne said.

Ambushed by five assailants Country music exec slain, another wounded

RICHMOND, MO. (AP) — A Sunday predawn ambush left one country music promoter dead and another wounded, and ignited a search for five assailants.

Dead with a small-caliber bullet wound in the back is George Barnett, 49, who police said moved into a trailer in rural Ray County less than a month ago from Richardson, Texas.

In stable condition at Ray County Memorial Hospital with a wound in the ribs is Donald D. Crumpley, believed to be in his late 30s. The police said Crumpley, who lives in Warrensburg, is a music promoter with Heritage Records and may have planned promotions with Barnett, who had country music ties in the Southwest.

George McBroom of the Missouri Rural Crimes Squad said the shootings may have been drug related. He said a substance believed to be marijuana was found in the trailer where the shootings took place.

PUPPY LOVE — Margaret Howell and this puppy found instant affection when she sought to rescue it from the city pound in McAlester, Okla., where it was abandoned.

'War' in Beirut subsides

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The latest outbreak of Syrian-Christian warfare in Beirut subsided into an uneasy lull at dawn today after nearly 36 hours of firing.

Christian spokesmen reported nine Christians killed and 62 wounded in 48 hours.

Traffic between the Moslem and Christian halves of the city resumed cautiously. But the Syrians' chief target, the Christian Hadass neighborhood in southeast Beirut, remained shuttered.

The firing started a few forest fires in the pine woods between the presidential palace and the residence of U.S. Ambassador Richard Parker, five miles east of Beirut. But a police spokesman said the fires were quickly extinguished, and neither the palace nor the embassy mansion 500 yards away were damaged.

The fighting began Saturday night in Hadass, subsided briefly at daybreak Sunday and erupted again in the afternoon. Shortly before dusk it spread to the Ashrafiyah and Ein Rummaneh districts and the port area.

The Syrian command reported early today it was pounding Christian neighborhoods because militiamen were firing mortars from concealed positions.

The Syrians accused Christian militiamen of starting the trouble Saturday by shooting two Syrian soldiers on patrol. The Christian commands said their forces came under unprovoked fire from the Syrians.

One Christian spokesman said the Syrians were "fomenting the clashes on threadbare pretexts." Al Amal, the Phalange Party newspaper, said the Syrians "invented the sniper story, then shelled residential quarters indiscriminately."

The Syrians also accused the National Liberals and the Phalangists, the two biggest Christian parties, of "deliberately provoking Syrian forces as part of rightist plans to partition Lebanon" into Christian and Moslem states.

President Elias Sarkis contacted the commander of the Syrian forces and demanded an immediate ceasefire. The Phalangist radio station reported.

Christian civilians moved mattresses and other household items into basements and other shelters Sunday night, and some residents were reported taking refuge in northern

Patty Hearst feels like 'professional prisoner'

CHICAGO (AP) — "I just try not to be bitter," the young inmate said. "I try to look at the good side of this."

"... A lot of things have happened to me that I don't suppose will ever happen to anyone else. And because of that, I've grown. I'm in prison now, but I'm still learning and I'm still growing and I just try not to let it get me down."

The words were spoken by Patricia Hearst, who entered Federal Correctional Institution last May to complete a seven-year bank robbery term.

To the American public, she says, "Patty" is the heiress who joined up with her symbionse Liberation Army kidnapers, robbed a California bank and tried to get off the hook by hiring hotshot lawyers.

But to prison authorities and to herself, Patty is "just one of the people in prison," she says.

Her remarks were published in the Chicago Tribune's Sunday editions in a copyrighted article by columnist Bob Greene.

"When it was all happening to me, it was hard for me to accept that there were so many people who didn't care. And yet if I take myself back to when I was 19, maybe I wouldn't have been much different from them."

"... I guess maybe I'm trying to figure out a way to see why people didn't care about me. ..."

"Part of it had to do with my grandfather (publisher William Randolph Hearst). A lot of people just hated the man, and because of that, the hatred carried on to me."

Rodeo tickets on sale here

Tickets for the annual Howard County Junior Rodeo, scheduled to get under way in the Rodeo Bowl at 8 o'clock Thursday, are available through the County Agent's office here. Prices are $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

No entries will be accepted after 5 p.m., today. A total of 340 had registered early this morning, with indications the show would have one of the best fields in history.

Furnishing the stock for the three-night event is Bobby Kelly of the Kelly Ranch in Stanton.

Lebanon.

"We are bracing for a hot night," said one man in Ein Rummaneh. "This time we will be much better off than last time. We have replenished our stocks of food and fresh water."

The Syrian army, which intervened in the Lebanese civil war to save the Christians from defeat, now is trying to bring them under its control and end their cooperation with the Israelis in southern Lebanon.

Nearly 200 Christians were killed in Syrian-Christian fighting in Beirut in the first week of July.

By commissioners court

Several bids accepted

By CARLA WALKER

Howard County Commissioners accepted a $14,235 contract with DoRite Business Service of Midland for a Lektrivier files and folders for the County Clerk's office.

The bid, accepted this morning during a special commission meeting, includes $8,835 for the file unit and installation, as well as $5,400 for 12,000 folders to be used in the unit. The unit will have a complete one-year warranty with service out of Midland, and will be used to store probate, pending misdemeanor and pending civil cases and help remedy a growing problem of compact storage of records in the County Courthouse.

Commissioners also accepted a $9,300 bid from General Service and Supply Co. of Midland to remove and replace the boiler in the basement of the County Library. The bid includes complete installation and meets all specifications, with installation to be completed by Sept. 30. Of five companies that were sent the specifications, the Midland firm was the only one which submitted a bid, but commissioners still felt the bid was "lower than expected" by a considerable amount.

Bids were opened on sale of several county vehicles and pieces of equipment, but only two were accepted. A 1974 Ford two-door hardtop car was sold to high bidder Averitt Auto Sales of Coahoma for $1,260.

A Trojan 164 Loader was sold to Sam Trojan, high bidder on that piece of equipment, for $3,550. Not sold were a 12-ton pneumatic roller, drag broom, J&L Water Tank, and 1971 1/2-ton Dodge Crew Cab. The items are tentatively scheduled to be auctioned off Aug. 26.

John Arrick, local banker, was approved for appointment to the Veteran's Land Board, and a right-of-way was approved for Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

John Deats, County Librarian, made a request for Commissioners to consider future remodeling of the County Library to provide additional space. The project proposal would utilize space in the basement as the children's library, and almost double the amount of space available to shelve books in the adult collection.

The Friends of the Library Association made an offer of $1,000 to be used in the hiring of an architect to formulate definite plans for the proposed remodeling and give cost estimates, with the Commissioners Court to use the plans and cost estimate to decide whether to undertake the project.

"We are rapidly running out of space on the main floor, and feel that the remodeling will be absolutely necessary if the Library continues to grow," said Deats. "Our budget is sufficient to keep purchasing books to improve the library, but it will do no good if we have to box older volumes to make shelf space for new ones."

Commissioners decided to go to the library after lunch to examine the potential for remodeling before voting on whether to use the Friends of the Library Association funds to hire an architect.

The County will advertise for bids on construction of 48 shelves to be added to existing shelving on the main floor.

Other business to be considered this afternoon are a request for bids for a typewriter for the County Judge's office, and an adding machine for the office of the Tax Assessor-Collector, as well as emergency permission for replacement of air conditioners at the Howard County Fairbarn and other possible work to be done on the building prior to the County Fair in September.

Action/reaction: Fishing for info

Q. Where does the 50 cents entry fee and the 50 cents fishing fee charged at Moss Creek Lake go? What is the money used for, and how much of it is taken in?

A. This question has been answered twice before in this spot, but once again... according to Assistant City Manager Jerry Foresyth, the car fee is used for lake improvements, and the fishing fee goes straight to the general fund for salaries, upkeep and maintenance of city parks.

"Money taken in depends upon the size of the crowd," said Foresyth. But he indicated that from Oct. 1 through July 1 of this year, total income from Moss Creek fees was $10,773.50.

"Right now we are rebuilding every barge and fishing pier at the lake," said Foresyth. A new filter system, a $1,300 swinging gate, and lights on all fishing piers will be installed soon. In addition, "$3,000 worth of elaborate playground equipment" will be purchased to provide a playground for children on the south side of the lake.

On the north side of the lake, a 20-spot camping area for recreational vehicles, including showers, washers-dryers and plug-ins will also be built, according to Foresyth. Fifteen huge pavilions staggered all over the lake with new barbecue pits will be constructed soon, as well.

"And I am personally going down to the bottom of the lake tomorrow to place stanchions so that the swimming area can be roped off so people will know where the shallow part ends," Foresyth said.

All of this is paid for by the people who visit the lake, no one else, Foresyth concluded.

Offbeat: Rotten Ralph returns

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Although organizers of this year's All American Glamour Kitty Contest don't know it, the stepyear of the dastardly Rotten Ralph is competing incognito.

Rotten Ralph is the frightening feline from Philadelphia who never won a glamor contest but did win a lot of attention by clawing cat owners and biting judges during the past three contests.

The Fort Lauderdale News reported that Lil' Rotten is entered in the contest under the name Cactus Kitty. And his owner is listed as Ruth Manning, who admits being Ruth Polsky, the daughter of Mrs. Lee Polsky, owner of Rotten Ralph.

"We just hoped that Cactus Kitty (alias Lil' Rotten) could come to the contest and win on his own without anyone knowing who he actually was," says Ms. Manning, alias Ms. Polsky.

New York Times 'guilty'

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber was sentenced to six months in Bergen County jail Monday after he and the newspaper were found guilty of contempt for refusing to turn over notes in the Dr. X murder trial of Dr. Mario Jascalevich.

The Times was fined $100,000 and Farber was fined $1,000 by Superior Court Judge Theodore W. Trautwein, who ordered payment within 24 hours. Attorneys for the newspaper and Farber asked for a stay of sentencing pending appeal.

There was no immediate comment from the Times or Farber.

Trautwein earlier had said Farber and the newspaper both were guilty "beyond any reasonable doubt."

It was the reporter's 1975 investigation of five deaths at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell between 1965 and 1966 that led to Jascalevich's indictment on five counts of murder.

Mick Jagger sued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mick Jagger, lead singer of the Rolling Stones, has been hit with a paternity suit by a woman who claims he fathered her child and has been paying her a weekly $175 stipend in child support.

The suit, filed Friday in Superior Court, seeks $2,200 a month in child support for the daughter of Marsha Hunt, 31, and asks that Jagger be declared the girl's father.

Ms. Hunt, an English actress, claims she met Jagger in 1969 when she was touring with the musical "Hair," and said her daughter, Karis, now 7, was born the following year. She currently is receiving welfare payments in addition to the weekly payments, she said.

Political prisoner?

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray says he is one of the "political prisoners" Andrew Young had in mind, and he wants the United Nations ambassador to help him win a new trial for the killing of Martin Luther King Jr.

Ray sent a letter to Young after meeting Friday at Brushy Mountain State Penitentiary with four congressmen on the House Assassinations Committee.

"Since Memphis is a lot closer than Moscow, I ask you to meet with President Carter and ask him to request that I be given a new trial," Ray wrote. "Those trials in Moscow may be unfair and completely political but at least the defendants there have a trial. For 10 years, that is all that I have asked for."

Young recently aroused the ire of Carter and many of the nation's political leaders when he said the United States has hundreds of its own political prisoners. Young later said he did not mean to imply a similarity between the level of political freedom in Russia and the United States.

She admits affair, denies murder rap

NEDERLAND, Texas (AP) — A date as the defendant at a September murder trial has not isolated Linda May Burnett from family and friends.

"They know me and know I didn't have anything to do with it," the woman said in a Beaumont Enterprise copyright story.

Mrs. Burnett and Joe Dugas are charged with capital murder in connection with the slayings of Bishop and Ester Phillips of Winnie and their son, daughter-in-law and grandson from Woodward, Okla.

Their bodies were found in a single grave in Jefferson County earlier this month.

"I'm not guilty. I don't believe in violence," Mrs. Burnett, 30, told The Enterprise Friday.

She admitted to an affair with Joe Dugas, but said it was over and her 6-year-old marriage is now in good shape.

"I hope I will have common sense enough to never get into that kind of situation again. Once is enough," she said. "I learned that a woman's place is in the home and with her husband."

Leo Burnett, 53, said he was shocked by his wife's arrest. "I've never once doubted my wife's innocence."

Hardeman in hot water, Sen. Schwartz claims

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, said today former Sen. Jesse Hardeman should not accept his reappointment to the Texas Water Commission because he lives in Austin but claims to be a resident of San Angelo.

Chairman Peyton McKnight of the Senate Nominations Subcommittee told Schwartz the subcommittee would not take up Hardeman's appointment until Schwartz has checked an affidavit he has requested from Hardeman.

Hardeman is scheduled to appear before the subcommittee on Tuesday.

Schwartz said he had asked Hardeman to say whether he has a home in Travis County (Austin) and whether he voted in Travis County. He said he had not yet received the affidavit.

Schwartz also raised the question of Hardeman's recent refusal to disqualify himself in a case before the commission. Schwartz said he did not know the details, but it presumably involved the proposed Stacy Dam hearing which would affect San Angelo, as well as Austin.

Hardeman's home county is listed as Tom Green, which means Sen. W.E. Snelson, D-Midland, would be Hardeman's home senator.

If Hardeman's residence were Travis County, Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, would be the home senator.

Schwartz said Hardeman's apparent "willingness to come here under false colors should disqualify him."

Officials of the Immigration and Naturalization Service issued the instruction to all of its field offices. Unauthorized "arrests" of alleged undocumented aliens by Klan members are to be reported to the U.S. Attorney having jurisdiction in the area.

"The order has been issued to demonstrate that we do not condone, and will not allow the Ku Klux Klan to make so-called citizen's arrests," said INS Commissioner Leonel J. Castillo.

"Where it is appropriate, charges will be filed against such persons," he added. In addition, the order said that "every effort shall be made to ensure the availability of such an individual for interview by the U.S. Attorney."

Police lauded for assistance

LAMESA — A 16-year-old Lamesa girl who threatened to jump from her perch on a city water tower approximately 80 feet above the ground was talked to safety by members of the Lamesa City Police Department here Friday.

Police Chief Lee Bartlett Jr., lauded the actions of Sgt. Mike Adams, Investigator Fred Vera and Officer Terry Hadley, who talked with the distraught girl for an hour before he agreed to come down.

At one point, the girl acted as if she were going to hang herself. A crowd estimated at 1,000 gathered at the scene to watch the drama. The suicide attempt apparently stemmed from a family problem.

According to Midland Department of Public Safety Officers, Guadalupe Marquez, age and address unknown, may have fallen asleep at the wheel of the car. The accident occurred 3.6 miles north of Stanton on Highway 137.

Police beat Three peppered by shots

Three men were peppered by shotgun pellets during a fight in the parking lot of Bogart's Club, early Sunday morning.

As J.D. Carter, investigating detective, has pieced it together, the incident began when two women assaulted another woman inside the club's restroom, and tried to steal her purse. The victim reported the attempted theft to the club owner, Jim Wilson, and the two assailants were ejected.

As the two culprits were given the boot, two of their male friends waiting outside got into a scuffle with Wilson. Bouncer Donald Bussell separated the three, but was hit from behind when he turned to walk back into the club.

At this, said reports, Bussell took off after the man who had hit him. Waiting ahead was a friend of the fleeing man who fired a pistol at Bussell.

Fortunately, the bouncer had slipped on gravel just as the shot rang out and narrowly missed taking a bullet.

Meanwhile, Don Reynolds, 2206 Alabama, Steve Foster, 607 Goliad and David S. Brooks, who recently moved to Big Spring and has no permanent address yet, joined the fight near the door of the club. Reynolds' report to police states that another pistol shot was fired, striking the ground near his foot.

Also, after rummaging around in the trunk of a reddish colored Cadillac, one of the men who had started the fight produced a shotgun which he fired into the crowd. All three who had joined the fight late were hit with pellets, but none required medical attention.

Officers will continue the investigation, and may make arrests later today.

Again, the police activity sheet was filled with reports of vandalized vehicles.

A pickup belonging to Tommy Billalba, 4210 Dixon, was smeared with shoe polish, Saturday night.

The same thing happened to a Firebird belonging to Mrs. Raymond Bedford, 1101 Grafa, while it was parked in the College Park Shopping Sunday. The incident occurred sometime between 7 and 9 p.m. Sunday.

James Griffin, 3613 Calvin, reported that his 1976 Corolla was egged by a group of vandals, 11:15 p.m. Sunday. Griffin saw four males drive off from the scene in a green 1965 Chevrolet four-door.

A rock was thrown through the back window of a car belonging to Mary Rosser, 1404 Park, while it was parked on 11th near Malone-Hogan Hospital, 11:10 p.m. Sunday. Damage was estimated at $40.

A battery was stolen from a car belonging to Ray Jones, 604 N. San Antonio, sometime Saturday night. The battery was valued at $33.

Vandals smashed the right window of a 1978 Buick belonging to Fred R. Parsons, 618 Caylor, while the auto was parked at 14th and Scurry, Saturday night. Damage was estimated at $175.

Manpower trial begins

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Brownsville insurance salesman Robert Massey, charged with stealing $10,000 from a Harlingen-based union fund, went on trial today.

Massey is the second of several Rio Grande Valley defendants whose trials were moved to Corpus Christi following a court of inquiry into the misuse of federal manpower funds. Last December in Brownsville.

The charges center on Massey's involvement with Don and Clarence Gray. Don Gray is the business manager of a Harlingen plumbers union. His brother is the director of a Harlingen trade school. Both men have pleaded guilty here to charges of stealing manpower funds.

According to testimony at the court of inquiry, Don Gray gave Massey $32,000 in union certificates of deposit to establish a union health and welfare fund. Massey told the panel all but $10,000 was spent administering the program.

Farm Loan services explained

Cong. Omar Burleson advises that although nearly 2,400 Texas farmers have either interviewed or filed drought loan applications totaling approximately $28 million the SBA Regional Office announced the opening of six more offices to serve those Texas farmers who have not yet applied.

For farmers who suffered drought damage and resultant financial hardship, the filing deadline is Oct. 11, which is unchanged from the original date established when the disaster was declared. "Before the deadline occurs doubtless there will be more applications filed and the SBA is therefore moving some of the existing offices and opening new locations as well in an effort to be as accessible as possible to the 220 counties that are eligible for drought disaster loans", said Burleson, "including 29 in the 17th Congressional District".

The Disaster Offices will be located in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Harlingen, Lubbock, Temple, Laredo, Amarillo, Pecos, Marshall, and Abilene. The Laredo, Pecos, and Abilene Offices opened July 5. Each office will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily, Monday thru Friday.

SBA Disaster Office Managers are recommending that the farmers come in person to pick up an application and then return it in person. This assures that the application is complete, which in turn expedites processing of the loan.

The following information should be submitted with applications for drought loan assistance.

(1) A copy of the legal description of land, i.e., deed, mortgage, real estate contract, etc., (if real estate is to be offered as security).

(2) Copies of tax records. The applicant should keep the originals as file copies.

(3) A copy of the latest ASCS notice (Form 476) for allotments and yields.

(4) If claiming a loss on pasture, indicate type of pasture (timber, grass, good improved, or excellent improved) and the number of months of normal grazing and pasture produced.

(5) If land is rented crop share, indicate percentage division (i.e., 50-50, 60-40, etc.) and list only your share among the share of the acres.

Burleson explained that there are other items required if the applicant is in a partnership or corporation which is another reason why coming in person to the office to initiate the loan application is recommended.

The Physical Disaster Loan Program for farmers will include unrecovered production costs on 1977 crops at 3 percent for the first $250,000 and 6 percent thereafter.

Eligible Texas counties within the 17th District:

Baylor, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Cooke, Crosby, Dawson, Eastland, Erath, Fisher, Floyd, Garza, Haskell, Jack and Kent.

Also Knox, Lynn, Montague, Nolan, Palo Pinto, Parker, Runnels, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Taylor, Throckmorton, Wise and Young.

Glut of oil stops price increase

Imagine a consumer rejoicing after the price of a product has increased 500 per cent in as many years.

The fact that the price of a commodity rose so dramatically in so short a time is the bad news. The good news is that the price of oil on the world market is going to remain, at least for a time, at $12.70 a barrel. Our glutty will continue for a time, because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will not change the price structure at least until 1979.

AN IMPATIENT ELEMENT within OPEC wanted to take the lid off prices immediately but Saudi Arabia and Iran held out against it, arguing that the increase would only add to the world's monetary problems.

Iraq, Libya and Algeria pushed vainly for an immediate price boost to counter the erosion of oil income which is blamed on the continuing depreciation of the dollar — a situation, it should be remembered, to which ever-higher oil prices have made their very substantial contribution.

The Saudis and Iranians are recognized as friends to the West but there's something more than friendship involved in the decision to freeze prices. There is currently a glut of oil on the world market, which means it is not a sellers' market.

Even the OPEC zealots realize this is no time to try to squeeze more out of the buyer.

The Saudis are reported to believe that curtailed production should take care of the surplus problem in half a year or so, and judging by the manner in which the United States wastes fuel that may well be the case.

Once supply and demand are back in balance, consuming nations will hardly be in a position to refuse to pay the higher prices demanded by the oil producing countries.

STEEPED-UP PRODUCTION in Alaska and the North Sea helped contribute to the current over-supply of oil, that and over-production by the OPEC nations.

Both Alaska and the North Sea wells produce Western oil, something that should improve the West's position in dealing with OPEC. Production costs escalate in the West as elsewhere, however. It is economic in very great part due to the artificially high price OPEC countries have placed on their product.

If OPEC is in a position to raise prices when supply and demand are in balance, it conceivably could also drop them in a price war that the new Western producers would quickly lose (because of sheer numbers).

It is a situation replete with possibilities, none particularly encouraging for Western economies.

Strange regimen

Around the rim

Carla Walker

People will do the strangest things when they are trying to lose weight, and I'm the epitome.

I periodically decide I'm overweight and thus begins the battle. Invariably, there is a reason that I must be around huge quantities of food while I am "cutting back," and it is a battle of will more than a battle of hunger.

IT IS AMAZING to realize all of the excuses I can come up with to overindulge at a relative's house, to eat homemade ice cream and cake at a birthday party or to munch on cookies at home.

The mind is a cunning, conniving self-betraying thing when it comes to trying to lose weight with will power as weak as mine.

For example, suppose I have to make cookies to serve at a get-together. It is so easy to bump the plate on the edge of the table, and darn if a few of those cookies don't break in half or crumble a little. Well, everybody knows you can't serve broken cookies, and it would be wasteful to throw them away, so I just HAVE to eat them — or so goes the reasoning in my head.

Perhaps my mom has cooked a strawberry cheesecake (my favorite) but I remain firm in my determination to eat only one small (calories galore) piece. That lasts until I notice that the cut edge where the last slice was removed is crooked.

It just doesn't look right, and it is all too easy to convince myself to use the knife to straighten the edge. Needless to say, I eat the uneven portion rather than waste it.

Visualize a huge, three layer chocolate cake with pecans or walnuts scattered across the top of that generous, thick, fudgy icing. (I don't know about you, but my mouth is watering.)

NOW, TO CUT a piece from that cake, everybody knows you just can't cut right through the nuts. That just pushes them ahead of the knife and messes up the cake and leaves an uneven edge I'd have to straighten up later.

The solution? Simple — just make the piece wider so none of the nuts get in the way. Or, scoot all the interfering objects onto (never off of) the piece you are cutting.

I guess I'll always find an excuse to eat a little more than I should — it all tastes so good. I'll just have to keep reminding myself — "Once on the lips, forever on the hips."

NOTE TO BOB ROGERS — I hope you're happy. I was doing pretty good until I made that cake. The first try didn't rise, and I made a second one so you wouldn't tease me and now there is squatty but still good three-layer chocolate cake at home to tempt me. I can't let it go to waste...but it looks like it may soon go to waist anyway — mine that is.

How to pressure

William F.

Late in the fall of 1967, driving through Central Park on the way back from a television studio late in the evening, my guest reminisced. "Only people who have had daily access to the reports of the CIA and of the National Security Council (he said) can understand the range of pressures available against the Soviet Union. Oh, it may be a little thing on Monday, say an application for an air route, Moscow-New York. On Tuesday, something else: they want to purchase grain. On Wednesday, something else. But it adds up, and if you are in the cockpit, you know what buttons to push, and you can orchestrate virtually unbearable pressures — that's how the Truman people beat the Berlin blockade. And that's how I'll end the Vietnam war."

RICHARD NIXON didn't end the Vietnam war in quite the way he anticipated in 1967, and indeed he did not orchestrate any noticeable pressures on the Soviet Union, choosing instead to chase the rainbow of détente. But his analysis survives. There are, surely — though outsiders are not privy to them all — pressure points, changing every day, which give us leverage on Soviet activity. The most obvious is the pressure we all agree to exclude: making war. What sort of that?

The morning's news is that President Carter has decided to put on the list of items requiring executive authority for export some of the paraphernalia associated with oil exploration. These, apparently, the Soviet Union greatly desires and are not easily acquired elsewhere. It is of course hard to know just what the conditions are that President Carter will put on releasing these items for export. That the Soviets reduce the trial of dissidents to, say, not more than one a week? That political prisoners be allowed to double the number of letters they are now allowed to receive, from one to two a year? Or is President Carter going to ask the Soviet Union to take its medicine cold turkey: Abide by the commitments of the Helsinki Conference.

On the other hand, is there anyone in town who believes the boycott of the oil equipment will alter Soviet policy? What other pressures are handy?

James Burnham has suggested a boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games in 1980. There is no questioning that a U.S. boycott would have the effect of collapsing these games, and there is no doubt that Moscow is poised to transmute an athletic celebration into an orgy of self-apotheosis, with its athletes trained like Strasbourg geese and a press intimidated into sycophancy — led, with wonderful irony, by the National Broadcasting Company, a capitalist-roader.

Still, Mr. Burnham's suggestion miscarries. It does so because it conscripts, as the hitmen of our foreign policy, the nation's athletes, young men and young women who have trained four, eight, ten years for the event. To deprive them of the single opportunity to achieve the ultimate experience of a biological lifetime is to ask too much. A nation, in distress, can take its young men and send them out to die. But it oughtn't to take its young athletes and consign them, in behalf of our foreign policy, to the benches.

THE OBVIOUS MEANS of applying pressure — a commercial boycott — is always dismissed on the grounds that it is impractical given the high technological resource of other western countries. If we refuse to participate in the building of truck plants in the Soviet Union, or in selling it heavy machinery (they tell us), Italy, West Germany, France, and Japan will simply get the business. One wonders why the subject did not arise at the summit meeting in Bonn.

Post-heart attack infection painful

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had an acute heart attack, and about five weeks after I started having fever, chest and shoulder pains, and shortness of breath. It was called Dressler's syndrome. Please explain what this is. I was put on aspirin and water pills, which worked for a while. Then I was given cortisone. How long should this continue? — A.R.

Dressler's, also called post-myocardial syndrome, is not common. It is found sometimes following a severe heart attack, and may appear a few weeks following heart surgery. The problem occurs in the very important period when heart tissue is healing after damage, a time when the heart muscle and the pericardium (an "envelope" around the heart) are subject to infection. Fever is the first sign. The doctor can hear a characteristic friction "rub" as the heart expands and contracts. This indicates inflammation. There may be pleurisy, which is inflammation of the pleura, the envelope around the lungs. This would account for your chest and shoulder pains as the lung expansion causes a similar friction.

Aspirin and diuretics (water pills) are helpful. The diuretics help remove fluid that accumulates from all of the inflammation and the reduced heart efficiency during this time. For most this is sufficient. In other, cortisone may be needed to assist repair of tissue damage.

So you may be in for more prolonged rest and recovery than the normal post-coronary patient. With careful monitoring and your medicine you should respond as your heart and lungs gradually recover function.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Every other week I get a sty on my eyelid. Could you tell me what it could be caused by? — Mrs. R.V.

These are infections by the staph germ. Repeated sties can mean blepharitis, a more generalized staph infection. It requires special medicinal ointments and warm compresses. With blepharitis you get a feeling of graininess under the lids and there would be overnight seepage of a sticky substance that leaves the lids sort of stuck together upon arising.

I suggest you have your eyes looked at. Even a simple sty can require expert attention, including the use of ointments until it "points" and eventually breaks open. Avoid squeezing or probing, which can worsen matters.

I hope the following letter writer is reading this. She says:

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 55. My eyes hurt at night when I lie down. They seem very dry and when I close the lids over them it hurts underneath. In the morning they are crusty and the lids hurt. — Mrs. M.M.

This sounds like the typical case of blepharitis, and you, too, should be examined. Infections in this area may spread elsewhere or be very persistent locally.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a hysterectomy three years ago. On my last medical exam my doctor told me I have a floating kidney. Can this be caused by slacked muscles? Could my hysterectomy have caused it? I feel fine, except I have a bloated feeling on my right side. The doctor doesn't seem too concerned. Can you comment? — Mrs. E.B.

Normal kidneys can shift two or three finger breadths when a person rises to a standing position. A floating kidney has greater mobility. The kidneys rest in nests of fat. Those that move more than normal have a smaller amount of this fatty padding. It is not really due to slacked muscles. The hysterectomy wouldn't cause this. Ordinarily, the floating kidney causes no symptoms. I would look elsewhere for the cause of your discomfort.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a man in my 80s. When I walk a few blocks I get pain in the calves of my legs. When I sit down and rest they do not bother me anymore. Is this the start of something serious? — C.B.

This is what is called "claudication" (from the Latin word for limping or lameness). It means medically that a person has pain when walking and gets relief when at rest. It is a sign of faulty blood supply to the legs, and should be reported to your doctor. Medication to improve circulation should help it.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it common practice for a patient to be taking four tranquilizer pills a day if he is being treated for addiction to such pills? — M.W.

It would not be unusual. In fact withdrawal from seemingly harmless tranquilizer drugs can require the same care as in withdrawal from any addictive hard drug. Dosages should be tapered off gradually even when stopping unaddictive use — both for physical and other reasons.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: With all the new medical knowledge, isn't there a way to remove a cataract from a healthy eye without removing the lens? — Mrs. D.S.A.

You are confused. A cataract IS the lens — a clouded one. Since there is no way to eliminate the cloudiness, the lens is removed.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can I know when I have done enough good works to offset the sins of my life so that I can go to Heaven? — G.Y.

DEAR G.Y.: You seem to have the idea that God holds a pair of scales in His hands. When you do a good deed, He puts it on one side of the scales, and when you do something bad, He puts it on the other side. At the end of your life, if the good deeds outweigh the bad deeds, you will go to Heaven. That is not what the Bible teaches — in fact, it is the opposite of what God has told us in His Word.

The Bible tells us that God is absolutely holy and perfect, and He cannot allow sin in Heaven. For this reason, God's standard is perfection. In other words, the only way you could get to Heaven on the basis of your good deeds would be if you had never committed a sin of any kind. But that is impossible because we have all sinned — in thought, word and deed. "For whoever keeps the whole law, and yet stumbles at just one point, is guilty of breaking all of it" (James 2:10, New International Version). No, you will never be able to do enough good deeds to earn your way into Heaven.

Does that mean you cannot be saved? Certainly not! What we are unable to do for ourselves, God has done for us. Jesus Christ came to take away our sins on the cross. We deserved to die for our sins, but He took our place. By faith in Him you can be saved. By trusting Him (instead of yourself), God promises to make you His child. "What happens now to human pride of achievement? There is no more room for it... the whole matter is on a different plane — Believing instead of achieving. We see now that a man is justified before God by the fact of his faith in God's appointed Savior and not by what he has managed to achieve" (Romans 3:17-28, Phillips Translation).

I urge you to trust yourself into the hands of Jesus Christ. Repent of your sins, and accept Christ as your Savior. He alone can save you. "Therefore he is able to save completely those who come to God through him, because he always lives to intercede for them" (Hebrews 7:25, NIV).

Selling secrets?

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Lurking in the dockyards of America's port cities may be a spy story, with a James Bond twist. Out of pure greed, American defense contractors may be exposing the Air Force's most secret fighter plane, the celebrated F-16, to Soviet scrutiny.

The startling story is told in hushed tones on the docks and inside maritime union halls, but word of the disturbing allegations has leaked to congressional investigators. They have been quietly tracking down reports that F-16 parts may have been shipped to our NATO allies in Soviet ships.

THE PRELIMINARY findings are contained in a confidential memo prepared for House Merchant Marine Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y. The memo states ominously that "U.S. maritime unions and rank-and-file dock workers in Houston, Texas... have knowledge that the classified F-16 parts are already being shipped on Soviet or bloc-country merchant ships."

Industry sources, the investigators add, are also "convinced" that classified parts for the F-16 are being transported on Soviet ships. These ships allegedly stop in Cuba where the hot cargo could be examined. "It's most certainly known to the government, the memo suggest, that Soviet ships arriving or leaving the U.S. East Coast make a port of call in Cuba."

Security for the F-16 shipments is supposed to comply with stringent Air Force and NATO secrecy requirements. An "eyes only" agreement with the four NATO allies, who are helping the United States produce the fighter planes for mutual defense, strictly forbids the "release of information to non-participating states."

But the Soviets have lured American businessmen to use their merchant ships by offering drastic, cut-rate prices. Huge Russian cargo ships roam the Western shipping lanes and take shipments out from under the hobbled U.S. maritime fleet.

By slashing rates up to 40 per cent, the Soviet cargo hunters have been able "to make phenomenal inroads on American shipping."

At least 37 per cent of all cargo coming to the United States from West Germany, for example, is first hauled eastward 6,000 miles across Russia where it is "picked up by Soviet merchant carriers at inferior rates and shipped to the U.S."

Most Scotch whiskey, distilled in Scotland, also "takes a 6,000 mile ride across Russia," the memo reports, before it "tickles the American palate." The Soviet merchant fleet obviously is losing money on these shipments, but the Kremlin makes up the difference in order to strengthen the fleet.

In fairness, the major F-16 contractor, General Dynamics, vigorously denies that any Soviet ships have been used to transport F-16 parts. "It hasn't happened. There's no chance," a General Dynamics spokesman told our associate Jack Mitchell.

But behind closed doors, General Dynamics officials conceded to congressional investigators that "there is nothing in the contract that... precludes shipping by the U.S.S.R."

Top Commerce Department experts have also acknowledged in secret testimony that Russian carriers could be transporting "completely classified equipment" for the fabulous F-16.

Footnote: The alarmed Murphy is preparing special legislation that would prohibit the transport of F-16 parts aboard Soviet ships.

FORGOTTEN FUEL: the use of "gasohol — gasoline mixed with alcohol made from garbage and other waste matter — has met with opposition from the giant oil companies, whose enthusiasm for solving the energy crisis sometimes takes second place to their thirst for profits.

DESPITE PROOF THAT gasohol works, federal energy czar James Schlesinger and his aides have poo-pooed the use of waste to ease the oil shortage, denouncing it as a "myth."

It's a pleasure, therefore, to find support from a scientist of unchallenged authority: Alexander Graham Bell. The remarkable Dr. Bell, whose genius was not limited to invention of the telephone, had this to say to a high school graduating class in Washington, D.C., according to the February 1917 issue of the National Geographic Magazine:

"Alcohol makes a beautiful, clean and efficient fuel, and... can be manufactured very cheaply... Wood alcohol, for an example, can be employed as a fuel, and we can make alcohol from sawdust, a waste product of our mills.

"Alcohol can also be manufactured from corn stalks, and in fact from almost any vegetable matter capable of fermentation... growing crops... weeds... even the garbage from our cities. We need never fear the exhaustion of our present fuel supplies so long as we can produce an annual crop of alcohol."

COOL CALIFANO: Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, whose taste for the perks of high office once included a personal chef in his private dining room, has just had a $100,000 air conditioning unit installed in his private suite at HEW headquarters.

It's not that the building's central air conditioning system needs help. It's just that the workaholic Califano wants to be cool when he toils nights and weekends and the central system is shut off.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in reference to a letter to editor, from Mr. Dixon, published in the July 14 paper about wanting to get a West Texas Air Museum started in Big Spring.

I just wanted to give my opinion on this, and just see how many other people think the same way that I do.

I think the possibility of starting an Air Museum is a very wise and outstanding idea to promote the tourist attractions. As we all know, the Air Force has played a big part in the growth and heritage of Big Spring, and West Texas.

Over the years of training at the Air Base in Big Spring, I am sure that a great number of the pilots who were trained there, went on to fight in World War II, Korea, and Viet Nam, for the right of freedom. Many of these men lose their lives, and are known only to their own families and friends.

By starting this air museum, it could be used also as a memorial to the men who trained at Big Spring, and the area around there, and later gave their lives in the defense of our country. What better way could Big Spring say thank you to the Air Force and the men and women who helped build Big Spring to what it is today, than to build a West Texas Air Museum and Memorial in their honor.

Trophies awarded Glasscock 4-H'ers

By KATHRYN BURCH
Glasscock County Extension Agent

With 21 girls competing in the Glasscock County 4-H Dress Revue, the July 14 competition was the largest held in that county in years.

The revue took place at the Garden City School Cafeteria. The theme "Today's Fashions" was carried out with three 10-foot sketches of fashion-setting styles — the sports look, the feminine look, and the Annie Hall look.

Participating 4-H'ers were judged on construction of their garments and overall appearance, which included fit, choice of accessories, choice of fabric and pattern, becomingness, and practicality.

In the Senior Division, which covered 14- to 19-year-olds, Elaine Schwartz emerged as the top contestant. She modeled a mauve pink A-line skirt with matching blouse and jacket. A print scarf and matching shell completed the suit.

Susan Pate was selected as the first runner-up. She will attend district competition in Alpine should Elaine be unable to attend.

Other blue ribbon winners in the division were Debbie Beasley, Andrea Frerick, Mary Kaye Halfmann, Denise Schwartz and Dorothy Schwartz.

The Pre-Teen winner was Marianne Hoelscher. She wore a kettledoch rust-colored jumper with a contrasting print blouse. Cap sleeves and a tie front closure were perfect accents for the school outfit.

Pre-Teen alternate was Karen Halfmann and blue ribbon winners were Lisa Halfmann and Brenda Havlak.

In the Young Miss Division, 11-year-old Cecelia Hirt took top honors. She sewed a blue spring dress of 100 per cent cotton. Gina Wilde was the second place winner.

Carol Hoelscher placed first in the Junior Miss Division. She used two coordinating prints to create an ultra-feminine blouse and ruffled skirt. Debbie Bednar was the alternate and Stephanie Frerick was blue ribbon winner.

Can you believe sewing at age 9? Michelle Pechacek, Jacqueline Halfmann and Tavia Murphy were all blue ribbon winners in the Mini-Miss Division.

First place went to Michelle for her eyelet blouse and tiered skirt of different sized red gingham checks. Red grosgrain ribbon and white eyelet accented the skirt. Jackie Halfmann was the alternate.

If you didn't believe 9-year-olds could sew, how about 8-year-olds? Jacque Jost and Charlie Schraeder both received blue ribbons for excellent workmanship in the Clover Bud Competition.

Trophies were furnished by the Co-op Gin. The St. Lawrence 4-H leaders are Joan Halfmann, Barbara Halfmann, Valeria Hoelscher, Lillie Havlak, Mary Lee Jost, Collette Schraeder, Debbie Schraeder and Doris Schwartz.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Kick the habit

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dear Doctor:
Recently I read in your column about stopping smoking and gaining weight. I came across the following in the "Family Guide to Better Food and Better Health," by Ronald M. Deutch:

"The typical weight-gain of a withdrawing smoker totals about seven pounds, an amount not really difficult to lose. It has been calculated that the physical effects of smoking are akin to carrying an extra 100 pounds! One of the best adjuncts for smoking withdrawal is exercise which, for most people, decreases the smoking desire...."

At one time before the dangers of smoking were known, I tried to learn to smoke to control my weight — needless to say I'm glad I failed. Nancy Keser, Galesburg, Ill.

Dear Nancy:
Thanks for your timely and informative letter. OK, all you people that use the excuse that if you stop smoking, you will gain weight — you can't use this excuse anymore. It's worth the extra seven pounds to rid yourself of the tobacco habit. Then work on the seven pounds and any more that might be "hanging around."

Dear Doctor:
A new cute guy is in my science class, and what luck, he is my lab partner. I want to get to know him better but I'm shy until I get to know the person, then I open up. I want to take advantage over the other girls who are looking at him. I do talk to him a little, but I feel weird. What should I say to him?

Theresa, York, Pa.
Dear Theresa:
"Why don't you come over to my house on Friday about 7:30 and we'll study our science together."

In other words, says Dr. Whelan, "rather than being a direct cancer-causing agent" alcohol "promotes cancer in conjunction with another carcinogen." She emphasizes, "Alcohol is most deadly as a cancer promoter when it teams up with cigarettes."

Teen's Mother Fears She's Lost Control

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old daughter wants to be "trusted" and I would like nothing better than to trust her, but she has lied to me so many times I have lost count. Last Friday she asked if she could spend the night at a girlfriend's house, so I let her. When I checked with the friend's mother, she told me that HER daughter was supposed to be staying HERE!

My daughter lies to me about where she goes, who she's been with, and just about everything she does. I am worried sick about her. I have tried to get her to go to a counselor, but she won't go.

I am a divorcee, work full time, and have cut my own social life to a minimum in order to be here when she wants me. But she's never around, and I am completely shut out. Please help me.

HELPLESS MOM

DEAR HELPLESS: You are not helpless. Counseling is available for parents who have lost control. You need to learn how to deal with a child who learned long ago how to manipulate you. Your local Family Service Association offers excellent counseling. And if there's a Parents Anonymous in your area, contact them, too.

DEAR ABBY: I love to play Bingo, and I play every chance I get. I hardly ever win, and it really runs into money when you play as often as I do.

My landlord told me if I wanted to win at Bingo, I should get myself a book and study up on it. I have never heard of a book on Bingo, but if there is such a book, can you tell me where I can buy a copy? E. B.: WINONA, MINN.

DEAR E. B.: I think your landlord is putting you on. Bingo is strictly a game of chance, and if there is a book on how to win at Bingo, I've never seen it.

DEAR ABBY: What kind of a husband would encourage his wife to line up dates with other men while he is out of town?

A FRIEND OF BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: One with a guilty conscience.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DAFT" (DEAR ABBY FANS TOGETHER): Your loyalty is deeply appreciated, but your devotion is embarrassing. I don't deserve it. Enough, please.

Cancer linked with alcohol

If you combine two packs of cigarettes with two alcoholic drinks daily, your chances of contracting cancer increase by 1500 per cent. So says Dr. Elizabeth Whelan in an article in Family Circle.

Dr. Whelan, Executive Director of the American Council of Science & Health, notes that although studies linking alcohol and cancer are only beginning, initial investigations indicate that alcohol may be a co-carcinogen.

In other words, says Dr. Whelan, "rather than being a direct cancer-causing agent" alcohol "promotes cancer in conjunction with another carcinogen." She emphasizes, "Alcohol is most deadly as a cancer promoter when it teams up with cigarettes."

Lawmakers to focus on Peveto proposal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The special summer session for legislators dwindled to 16 sunbaked days today to consider a pile of complex tax relief proposals submitted by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Near the halfway point of the 30-day special session, House and Senate committees are focusing on Rep. Wayne Peveto's proposal to make property tax appraisals uniform.

Briscoe added more work to the legislative agenda during the past week by including the Peveto measure and other bills.

A proposal specifying that state payments of individual Social Security taxes should not be treated as taxable income of state employees was before a Senate committee.

Peveto's bill — possibly the key to approval of constitutional amendments proposed by Briscoe — would consolidate property tax appraisals in a single office in each county. A new state agency would set standards for appraisal and make "ratio studies" to determine whether real estate was being appraised accurately in each county.

It also includes a 5 percent annual limit on property tax increases and would require a two-thirds vote of a local governing body to exceed the limit on increases.

Peveto, a Democrat from Orange, Texas, has agreed, however, to drop those provisions to win approval of the House Ways and Means Committee. The same bill will be heard by the Senate Finance Committee.

A scheduled hearing of Briscoe's controversial appointment of Hugh Yantis as chairman of the state insurance board was postponed to July 31 at the request of Austin Sen. Lloyd Doggett, an outspoken critic of Yantis.

Doggett has said he will ask the Senate to reject Yantis' nomination as a courtesy to Doggett.

Still on the agenda for the Senate Nominations Subcommittee are such appointments as Morris Atlas of Hidalgo County to the alcoholic beverage commission; Glen Roney of Hidalgo County to the water development board.

Postal pickets defy judge

By the Associated Press

Dissenting postal workers vowed to send roving pickets to San Francisco area post offices in defiance of a judge's order to halt their wildcat strike.

In New Jersey, wildcat postal strikes continued as fewer than half the clerks and handlers reported for overnight work at the New York Bulk and Foreign Mail Center in Jersey City.

The protesting workers are upset at a tentative three-year pact reached early Friday, averting a nationwide postal strike. The contract calls for pay raises of about 10 percent, with cost-of-living protection boosting that to 19.5 percent. The present average salary is $15,877.

Dissidents say the new pact does not raise pay enough and permits too much overtime scheduling.

An order temporarily enjoining "any further strike activity" at the San Francisco Bulk Mail Center, issued Sunday by U.S. District Judge Stanley Weigel, is "basically an intimidation tactic to try to break the strike and scare other workers," said Irwin Lum, shop steward for one of two union locals at the center.

"We'll be out there strong," he said, promising to surround the center, located in Richmond, Calif., with picket lines today.

Despite termination notices reportedly sent to at least 50 workers, union officials said they would increase picketing today with "roving pickets" at various bay area post offices.

Ten union stewards were ordered by Weigel to appear in court today on the government's motion for a preliminary injunction against the strike. But Lum said the officials would be on the picket lines, with their attorneys representing them in court.

The two locals are branches of the American Postal Workers Union and the Mail Handlers Division of the Laborers International Union. They threw up their first picket lines Saturday morning.

The decision to defy the judge's order drew support from neighboring locals of the postal union in the east San Francisco Bay area and the National Association of Letter Carriers, which together represent some 1,800 east bay employees.

A meeting is scheduled this evening to decide if members of those two locals will walk out in support of the Richmond strike.

The Richmond center employs about 900 people and serves northern California, western Nevada, Hawaii, Arizona and the Pacific Trust territories.

The walkout has caused 24-hour delays in processing second, third and fourth class mail, foreign mail and military mail service. First class mail delivery has been unaffected.

Family wrecks

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Three hours after a 15-year-old boy was killed in a car crash, a separate accident killed his grandfather and injured his mother, sister and uncle.

Thomas Clifton Igo, 15, of Peculiar, was killed in an accident at 11:10 p.m. Saturday. He was a passenger in a car that attempted to pass another near Weaubleau and overturned.

His grandfather, Artie Ussery, 56, of Weaubleau went to Peculiar to pick up the boy's family. On the return trip, a car crossed the centerline into the path of the family's car and hit it head-on.

Ussery was killed. The uncle, Richard Lee Hendrickson, 24, of Lebanon, suffered head cuts. A sister, Barbara Igo, 17, suffered a shoulder injury and the boy's mother, Frances Igo, 36, received a broken jaw and a broken right hand.

Remember the talk?

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

Sometimes it seems like we adults act more like our children than they do. How many times do we say to them, "Aren't you ever going to learn?" "How many times do I have to tell you?" "That should be a lesson to you."

Sound familiar? Of course, but those phrases can apply to communities as well as children, and they certainly apply to those adults who raise their children in those communities.

For a moment, let's think back in time to a really critical event — remember when the announcement was made that Webb Air Force Base was a candidate for closure? Folks couldn't believe it — it was inconceivable that Webb would ever be closed.

Well, let's shorten a long story. After months of tireless effort, thousands of dollars in expenses — much friction among folks, fractures of friendship and failure to forestall closure, the announcement was officially made — "Webb will be closed."

Remember the talk of "inevitable" economic disaster? — Big Spring was worked hard to MAKE it happen. We pulled together in a common effort — encouraging people to shop here at home — to create new jobs — build new homes and businesses and attract additional industry and business that will continue Big Spring on its path of quality growth. Let me make an observation here. No community can remain constant. It must improve thru additional revenues circulating throughout the economy and providing for a continuous upgrading of quality of life — or it will decline and decay.

Need proof? Just look at some communities within our own area! — "Aren't you ever going to learn?" "How many times do I have to tell you?" "That should be a lesson to you."

The secret is people working together — unified in progress. We have shown the entire state an example of what positive action and positive attitude can do for a community in spite of closing a military installation, in spite of not acquiring a Lockheed facility, in spite of not attracting a large state medical school, plus several other "in spite of's".

We can keep our momentum going and increasing. We can grow and prosper and really capitalize on our unique advantages of location, weather, people and our diversified economic base.

But we must keep in mind — that we cannot dissipate our energies and resources on negative activities. Police protect strikers

Garbage piling up in Alamo City

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — About half of this city's garbage workers began partial trash collections this morning amid taunts from pickets representing 106 of their fired counterparts.

There were no incidents, but police were on hand and city officials said they would provide protection for non-striking workers if necessary.

Meanwhile, the first 52 replacements for the ex-garbagemen, who struck because of a wage dispute, were taking physical examinations and being readied to start work Tuesday.

Some 150 of the city's 300 garbage workers began collections today, driving past about 30 pickets.

"We're gonna have some problems," said assistant city manager Louis Fox. "There's some concern, but we'll protect the people."

"I'm asking for no violence, but I don't know what the outcome will be," said strike leader Eddie Leija, one of those fired Saturday.

"We do anticipate some problems in garbage collecting," City Manager Tom Huebner said Sunday. "We will maintain that service. I would anticipate it will take two to four weeks to get back to normal."

"I mean business. I will not be intimidated. It's all over. These men have lost their jobs."

More than half of the 300 garbagemen in the nation's 10th largest city refused Saturday to pick up trash. Huebner promptly fired 106 of them and said 58 others face suspensions for refusing to work in the face of threats from strikers. A handful refused to work this morning.

Philadelphia and New Orleans have also been hit by garbage worker strikes within the past week.

Strikers had hoped to spread the strike to landfill workers, airport maintenance employees, animal control officers and street department workers, but indications this morning were that no such support was likely.

Asked Sunday if other city employees who strike in support of the garbagemen would be fired, Huebner replied, "I intend to be consistent in my actions."

Trash collections were planned only for the south side of this city of 800,000, where temperatures have hovered near 100 degrees. Northside residents were instructed to take their garbage to the landfill or to three public parks, where trucks were stationed.

Only 74 trash collectors, most of them members of a rival union, went to work Saturday.

Weather
Forecasts calling for thunderstorms

By the Associated Press

In Dallas, where residents endured 19 days of 100-degree plus temperatures and 45 days without rain, relief is spelled "r-a-i-n."

The relief came officially Sunday as 49 of an inch fell in Dallas where it had not rained "officially" for 45 days. Some light rain fell in Fort Worth during that period and several sections of Dallas received some light rain Saturday, but none fell until Sunday at the official recording station, the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

The rain also dropped temperatures at Dallas, where the high Sunday only reached 87, prompting National Weather Service meteorologist Dick Elder of Fort Worth to say he believes the "heat wave has pretty well broken down."

Elder was quick to caution residents of North Texas that the relief would likely be short in duration.

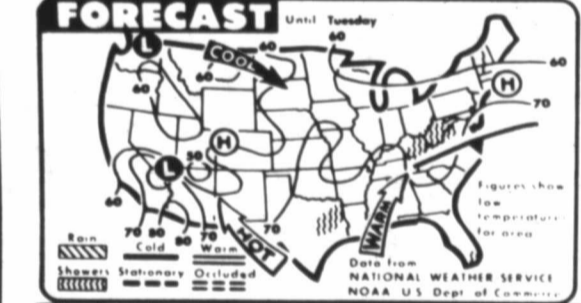

"There is another high pressure system headed our way, and we're going to get back up to the upper 90s when it moves into our area," he said.

Wichita Falls, one of several other hot spots in North Texas in recent weeks, also got welcome relief from the heat. It was 75 there Sunday afternoon, compared with a high of 114 there just eight days earlier at the peak at the heat wave.

Forecasts called for more scattered thunderstorms today for all of Texas except the northwest section.

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy through Tuesday with scattered showers and thunderstorms today and tonight. Warmer north today and most sections Tuesday. Highs mostly in the 80s except near 102 Big Bend valleys. Lows low 60s northwest and mountains to mid 70s extreme south. Highs Tuesday mostly in the 90s except near 102 Big Bend valleys.

WEST TEXAS — Fair and hot Wednesday; becoming partly cloudy Thursday and Friday with scattered showers and thunderstorms mainly Panhandle. A little cooler north Thursday and Friday. Highs Wednesday middle 90s to near 107. Highs Thursday and Friday, upper 80s north to near 104 Big Bend. Lows lower 60s north and mountains to middle 70s south.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service predicts showers for parts of Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and Virginia for today. Showers are also forecast the southern tip of Florida and portions of Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Marital bliss secrets told

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — After 70 years of marriage, Paul and Mattie Engelke are still doing things together, including their own yard work.

"We've got two lawn mowers," said Engelke, 92. "I do the straight stuff and then she mows around the flowers."

The Engelkes celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary Sunday with an open house at the home of a grandson. Both of their daughters, along with many of their five grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren helped them celebrate the occasion.

The couple met at a party in New Germany, Minn., where they both grew up as children of German immigrants. They were married July 23, 1908, in Minneapolis.

"I believe we are in such good health because we eat only two times a day — at 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.," Engelke said. "We've stuck to that idea for more than 25 years. And no beer and no smoking. Just water and lots of coffee."

Yankee mess may result in Martin's demise

CHICAGO (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin, who suspended slugger Reggie Jackson for defiance, may receive similar treatment — or worse — from his boss in the wake of his tirade against Jackson and biting remarks slung at owner George Steinbrenner.

Martin, who held his temper and his tongue when Jackson returned from a five-day suspension Sunday, lost control of both at O'Hare International Airport mere hours after the Yankees had recorded their fifth consecutive victory.

"The two of them deserve each other," Martin told the New York Times, referring to Jackson and Steinbrenner. "One's a born liar (Jackson), the other's convicted (Steinbrenner)."

"I am stunned," Steinbrenner told the Times when informed of Martin's remark, which apparently referred to Steinbrenner's conviction in 1974 for illegal contributions.

A clause in Martin's contract with the Yankees prohibits him from making public comments critical of the outspoken New York owner. Martin's statement was in direct contravention of the clause and Steinbrenner told The Associated Press, "I'll have further reaction Monday morning."

That reaction seems certain to include severe punishment, possibly even Martin's firing, in view of the manager's contract violation. The statement came in the manager's second burst of fiery, explosive-filled comments made — apparently without investigation — moments after the team arrived by bus at the airport for a flight to Kansas City.

Jackson was suspended after last Monday night's 9-7 loss to the Royals for bunting after a bunt order had been retracted — by signal and by verbal command — during the 10th inning of the 11-inning defeat.

Ultimately, Jackson popped out while bunting on a 1-2 pitch. Martin insisted the defiance of orders had been intentional though Jackson said Sunday after returning from the suspension: "Knowing what the consequences were, the suspension and the amount of publicity it generated, I probably would have swung. I just figured this would be the best way of moving the runner over, but I'd have rather struck out (swinging) and avoided the hassle."

Martin maintained, in his first diatribe, that Jackson knew he was being defiant.

"I have never, in my career as a manager, given orders to bunt when there were two strikes on the batter.

"He (Jackson) knew it (that he was being defiant intentionally) and every one of the others knew it. Why else would he take his glasses off when he came back to the bench?"

"He did that because he expected me to punch him and it took the most control I ever has taken in my life not to," said Martin.

The two nearly came to blows in the dugout at Boston's Fenway Park last season after Jackson — in contest. From his office, he went to the media room at Comiskey Park and was observed taking liquid refreshment with his coaches.

Then he boarded the bus — sitting across the aisle and a mere two rows in front of Jackson, who sat next to former New York catcher Fran Healy, his longtime friend and confidant.

Before Sunday's game, Martin sniped at the slugger, noting he arrived after optional batting practice had begun.

"It was optional today whether the guys wanted to hit or not," he said, openly irritated. "But you'd kind of think he'd be out there a little early to hit."

Martin was asked after the game if the air would be cleared by an apology or a meeting with Jackson, who did not play Sunday.

"I don't want no apology," said Martin. "I don't believe in any apology when someone deliberately does something on purpose."

That was all Martin said on the matter after the contest. From his office, he went to the media room at Comiskey Park and was observed taking liquid refreshment with his coaches.

FIRST DAY BACK — New York Yankees' Reggie Jackson answers newsman's question in locker room prior to start of Sunday's game against the Chicago White Sox in Chicago. The veteran slugger returned to the ballclub following a five-day suspension but was not in the starting lineup and did not see any action.

Nicklaus wins his 66th

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus just keeps adding to the legend.

Professional golf's premier player won the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic Sunday. It was his 66th tour victory, second only to Sam Snead with 84.

The $50,000 first prize made it eight straight years that the one-time "fat kid from Ohio" has earned at least $200,000. It was the 16th straight year he's won at least $100,000, boosting his lifetime tour earnings to $3,336,343.

What is there left to maintain his golf incentive?

The 38-year-old Nicklaus had the answer Sunday after he shot a 3-under-par final-round 68 for a record 72-hole total of 270 to beat Gil Morgan by one stroke over the Whitmarsh Valley Country Club course.

He wants the grand slam of golf — the Masters, U.S. Open, British Open and PGA all in one year. Even he doubts it will ever be done, but it's all that's left in the Nicklaus world of golf.

His longing was voiced sort of indirectly Sunday. He was asked if he would be back next year to defend the Philadelphia championship he's won three times.

"I've always defended a championship," Nicklaus said.

Then it was pointed out that the Philadelphia Classic in 1979 falls between the British Open and the PGA. The Masters, of course, is in April.

Nicklaus hesitated, then added, "Well, let's say I'll be back if I haven't won the first three (majors)."

The closest any golfer ever came to the grand slam was Ben Hogan in 1953. He won three, choosing for some reason not to play in the PGA.

Nicklaus went home for a few days' rest and a reunion with his family. Then, he's off to Oakmont, near Pittsburgh, to practice for the PGA, which starts Aug. 3.

At Whitmarsh, Nicklaus built a three-stroke lead after two rounds, tying the course record the second day with a 64. He slipped to a 1-over-par 72 on the third round, falling one stroke off the pace. Then, Sunday, he caught up with Bruce Lietzke, passed him and held on to win.

Lietzke shot 74 the final day, stumbling with a double bogey and bogey on the front nine.

When it was over, Nicklaus nipped Morgan, who was two strokes ahead of Jerry Pate and Hale Irwin, each with 273.

Birdie putts on the 11th and 12th Sunday were listed as the key to victory by Nicklaus, although the winning putt was a 30-foot downhill putt on the 16th for a bird. Morgan couldn't make that one up.

After the top four came Hubert Green, who had a hole-in-one on the final round and finished at 274, and Mark Hayes, Lee Elder, Miller Barber and Lietzke, all at 275. The tour's leading money winner, Andy Bean, finished at 276, while U.S. Open Champion Andy North carded four rounds of 1-under 70 for 280.

There were five hole-in-ones in the tournament — by John Schroeder, Danny Edwards, Gene Littler, Jim Mason and Green, a record for any tournament in the memory of veteran golf observers.

Pete's 37th try in NY tonight

MONTREAL (AP) — Pete Rose is glad to be moving to New York tonight to attempt to tie the consecutive-game hitting record after surviving the daylight of Olympic Stadium.

"I've had some great and wonderful things happen to me in New York," said Rose, now one game shy of the league record of 37 set by Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves in 1945. The major league record is 56 games by Joe DiMaggio of the American League's New York Yankees in 1941.

Rose ran his streak to 36 games Sunday with a single and double before driving in Cincinnati's winning run with a 14th-inning sacrifice fly in a 5-4 victory over Montreal.

Rose continued his hot streak in daylight conditions — most players agree that the ball is tough to pick up coming into the batter during daylight hours at Olympic Stadium.

"This is the toughest ballpark in the league to hit a ball in," he noted. "I've talked to all the Montreal players, and they don't like to play day games here. It's tough to see when the sun's out and tough to see when the sun's in."

"One time today the sun went down and that's when everybody got all their runs. That's when (Dan) Driessen hit the home run and that's when they came back with their three-run inning."

Driessen hit a three-run homer off Montreal starter Steve Rogers in the sixth inning to give the Reds a 4-0 lead after Mike Lum's run-scoring single in the third.

Ali accuses

Leon Spinks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Muhammad Ali has charged that Leon Spinks took a drug from "a little black bottle" during the fight last Feb. 15 that cost Ali his heavyweight crown, the Washington Star reported today.

The newspaper quoted Ali as saying "I had that guy almost out in the 14th round. Then, wham! He's drinking out of that bottle between rounds and he comes out smoking."

The banner sports-page article by J.D. Bethea, who visited Ali in his hotel room Sunday, said that some of Ali's own advisers in the room appeared stunned by the allegation.

Ali, who is scheduled to meet Spinks in a return title match Sept. 15, was reminded of the seriousness of the allegation and given the chance to change his mind, but he refused to back down, the article said.

"Look, I have films of the fight at my training camp. I've looked at them a hundred times. Those guys in his corner are asking him how he feels between rounds and then he's sipping from this little black bottle," Ali was quoted.

The Star said Spinks' trainer, Sam Solomon, also in Washington over the weekend, refused to comment, and Spinks himself could not be reached.

DISTRICT III CHAMPS — For the second year in a row, the Lamesa All-Stars have won the District III Little League playoff tournament. Members of this year's club, which will meet the San Angelo Western All-Stars in a bi-district game this Saturday (8 p.m.) in Big Spring's National League Park, include, left to right, starting with bottom row: Alden Franco, Jeff Layton, Todd Sons, Gilbert Arrendono, Phillip Parsons, Alfred Morales, Tommy Smith, Oscar Castaneda, Chris Hawkins, Richard Dimas, Coach Ron Layton, David Lee Smith, Richard Cabellero, Blake McKinney, Damian Hernandez and Manager Frankie McKinney. Lamesa beat Midland Eastern Saturday night, 9-7, to win the title.

No joy for Brad Corbett

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — For all of Brad Corbett's millions, he's having trouble buying happiness in the American League.

And the beefy majority owner of the Texas Rangers certainly wasn't a picture of joy early Sunday morning as he sat behind manager Billy Hunter's desk, trying to explain the latest nose dive of his high-priced talent.

Slumped over Hunter's desk after tongue-lashing his millionaires who have found it difficult to hit and catch grounders and pop flies, Corbett tried to find some peace within himself before a group of writers he had chased out of Hunter's office earlier.

Corbett has been here before. Last July he threatened to sell the team which he described as "dogs on the field and off the field."

Then he went out and paid millions for Richie Zisk, Al Oliver, Bobby Bonds, Jon Matlack and others. Earlier this year he charged down to the locker room with shirttail flying following a tough loss.

This time he kicked Hunter's door open while the calm but frustrated Hunter was trying to explain to the writers Texas' latest loss, a 2-1 freebie to Milwaukee which came courtesy of two 10th-inning errors. The loss sent Texas reeling 6½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

Corbett chased the writers out of the dressing room and his voice could be heard in the dugout runway as he chastized his players.

He later said "I apologize if I was rude. ... I was p— off at the team because they've got to stop talking about being the best and going out and prove we're the best."

"It's incredible that this team has scored 153 runs less than Kansas City, and it's certainly not because they're not well paid. We've got to start playing with some pride."

Corbett said he offered Hunter a five-year extension on his contract and told his manager: "The first guy you don't want on this ball club, I don't give a damn what kind of a contract he has."

Hunter told newsmen, "I told Brad I just want to play it one year at a time."

Rice's foot not broken

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Rice was spared some bad news after fears of a broken left foot proved unfounded, but the American League's leading slugger is still uncertain when he will be back in the Boston Red Sox lineup.

Rice, who leads the AL in runs batted in and homers, was forced to leave the lineup in the fifth inning Sunday during a game with the Royals in Kansas City because of pain in his left foot. Rice originally was struck on the foot with his own foul ball in a game about a week ago.

The 25-year-old slugger was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City, where X-rays showed no fracture. Doctors reported only a bone bruise, and Rice accompanied the team to Minnesota for a series with the Twins.

"I don't know when it happened and I don't know when I'm going to play," Rice said. "All I know now is it really hurts, and when I run I feel like I'm running on one leg. I can stand a great deal of pain, but not this."

Rice said he hoped to play tonight in Minnesota, but would decide after testing his foot before the game.

Borg, Connors win tourneys

BASTAD, Sweden — Bjorn Borg defeated Corrado Barazzutti of Italy 6-1, 6-2 to win his second Swedish Open tennis championship.

Eily Vessius-Appel of Holland won the women's singles with a 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph over West Germany's Sylvia Hanke.

In other matches, Australians Mark Edmondson and Bob Carmichael beat the Hungarian team of Balazs Taroczy and Peter Szoke 7-5, 6-4 in the doubles final, and Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia won the women's doubles by defeating Swedes Nina Bohm and Elisabeth Ekblom 6-1, 6-3.

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Connors defeated Eddie Dibbs 7-5, 7-5 to win the $24,000 first prize in the Washington Star International men's tennis tournament.

In the doubles final, Arthur Ashe and South African Bob Hewitt beat Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Fred McNeil 6-3, 6-4.

Stacy takes U. S. Open

INDIANAPOLIS — Hollis Stacy shot a 1-over-par 72 on the final round for a 72-hole total of 289 to win her second consecutive U.S. Women's Open golf championship.

JoAnne Carner, who shot a 72 in the final round, and Sally Little of South Africa, who turned in a 65, were tied for second at 290.

Pam Higgins and Jane Blalock were tied for fourth at 293. Higgins matched par-71 in the last round and Blalock shot a 74.

Rangers get blown out of the park

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Milwaukee's Brewers refused to fold in the American League Eastern Division race, and it's got Manager George Bamberger dreaming of miracles.

The Brewers edged to a thin five games of the Boston Red Sox Sunday night with a 17-8 victory over the unraveling Texas Rangers behind a club record 21-hit attack.

Larry Hise and Sal Bando each blasted three-run homers and Gorman Thomas slapped a two-run homer in the rout.

"I think miracles are possible, and if we win it, well, it would be a miracle," said Bamberger. "The attitude on this club is fantastic. The one thing this team has had to have is respect because they've never won. I believe they are starting to get respect."

The three-game series sweep gave the Brewers their 12th victory in their past 14 contests and moved Ranger manager Billy Hunter to say, "Milwaukee has really got some mashers."

Milwaukee has eight games left with the Red Sox — three at home.

Bamberger said, "I'd take a 4-4 split right now, because we have 60 other games to play."

"When spring training started, I would have taken a .500 year because this club has never played .500 ball before," said Bamberger. "It would have been an improvement."

Now we are 20 games over .500, and I think we can catch Boston."

Bamberger continued, "Why? Because the way the guys are going about their job. They have proved to me that they believe in themselves. They have a positive attitude. Now, we're not as good as the Red Sox because they have more experience than we have. We'll be better in a couple of years."

Bamberger said, "In the next five years, Milwaukee will win, and I just hope I'm with the club. I may possibly stay until 1980 because I want to be part of a pennant. But our kids are all grown and my wife has put up with this long enough. My wife is more important than this game."

The Rangers, who were chewed out in the clubhouse by majority owner Brad Corbett after a 2-1 loss Saturday night, got home runs from Bobby Bonds and rookie Gary Gray, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Brewers ravaging of four Texas pitchers.

Texas dropped 7½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West, as the Rangers dropped their sixth consecutive game.

Andy Replogle picked up his fifth victory in seven decisions in relief of starter Jerry Augustine.

Ranger rookie Steve Comer was the victim of the Brewer onslaught as his record dropped to 3-3.

The Rangers received a heavy boozing from the 11,615 fans present, and Hunter said, "They are entitled to boo."

Astros felled by same strong wind

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Carlton is big and strong and throws a baseball with the best of them. It's the constant mental battle, he says, that gets a pitcher into a rut.

For a month, the Philadelphia Phillies' southpaw was in a rut of 199 victories. Six times he tried for number 200. Six times he failed.

It got so bad that two starts ago, his regular catcher, Tim McCarver, said they were going to skip 200 and go on to 201, then come back to 200 later in the season.

They won't have to go back for 200 now. Carlton achieved that pitching milestone Sunday with a 13-2 triumph over the Houston Astros on a sweltering day.

"Hot?" Carlton asked. "It probably was about 145 or 150 degrees on that carpet (Astro-Turf). It's always 45 or 50 degrees hotter down there."

Nevertheless, Carlton worked eight innings, yielded eight hits, struck out four in running his 1978 record to 9-9, got his 200th victory and immediately put it behind him.

since he pitched six strong innings Wednesday before losing to Cincinnati and hurled smoothly Sunday. He threw only a few curves in each game.

Carlton figured it was time for changes, so he did away with his curve and relied mostly on his fastball and slider.

It apparently has worked.

'World car' buzz word

DETROIT (AP) — If all those boxy, little cars are starting to look alike, you are not hallucinating. You might be getting an early glimpse of "world car."

World car? It is an industry buzz-word as fuel gets scarce and costly and automakers look to the fast-growing market in developing nations.

The result could be cars from Kenosha that look pretty much like those from Nairobi. It could also be that some cars that do not make the grade will go the way of the Henry J, the Studebaker and the Pierce Arrow.

One European economist warns that the sheer wealth of General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. makes them a threat to major automakers worldwide as they aim toward developing a universal car.

Ford, GM and Chrysler Corp. already build nearly half the 30.8 million cars turned out annually around the world.

The trend toward a world car already is causing global reverberations as industry giants seek to expand, governments rush to make their countries attractive as plant locations and labor unions hold meetings to talk about worldwide collective bargaining.

It is hard to find two people who agree on a definition of the world car. But they agree it is not a new idea — it is 67 years old, in fact.

The Model T appeared in Detroit in 1908 and was being assembled in England just three years later. By 1920, the sturdy little cars were being put together in Brazil, India, Denmark and Spain.

The auto industry has been international ever since. In 1967, for the first time, more cars were built outside than inside North America.

And today's supposed world cars — the Volkswagen Rabbit, Ford Fiesta and Chevrolet Chevette are cited — come closer than the Model T to being international products. While the overseas Model T was largely built with U.S. parts, the Fiesta is the product of 16 parts and assembly plants in six European nations, coordinated from Dearborn.

VW's Rabbit-Gulf-Caribe sequel to the Beetle — the second world car — is made in West Germany, the United States, Mexico, Indonesia and Yugoslavia.

The Chevette is the same basic car as GM subsidiaries build in England, Germany, Brazil, Australia and Japan.

Chrysler this year combined features of its French-built cars and introduced the first U.S.-built front-wheel-drive small cars, the twin Dodge Omni-Plymouth Horizon — and at the same time started building the identical Simca Horizon in France.

More versions of these similarly styled international cars are put together with at least some locally produced parts that would fit the models built in other countries.

Such across-the-border standardization of parts, as opposed to identical cars worldwide, is regarded as the test of a world car.

"The story isn't so much identical cars as engineering cooperation and component exchange," says a Ford analyst. "The world car just doesn't exist in the image people want it to exist."

How did everybody come up with a boxy design? Because of the fuel shortages that sent prices up and prompted a U.S. requirement for gasoline economy — which translates into a need for smaller cars.

"You can get more in a box than a ball," says a Ford research man.

Likewise, the trend toward front-wheel drive means the drive train is up front, eliminating the transmission hump on the floor and allowing a lower floor and more interior room. It is also easier to sell front-wheel drive in Europe, where it is old hat.

It appears clear that U.S. companies can sell in Europe. The Fiesta quickly became the best-selling new car ever in Europe after its introduction there in 1976.

Ford of Europe is now the biggest single seller of cars in all of Western Europe, and the parent company got 42 percent of its 1977 profits from overseas.

On the other side of the world car street, VW started building Rabbits this year in Pennsylvania and is pondering a California plant. French government-owned Renault plans to build cars in American Motors plants in Wisconsin and sell AMC Jeeps in Europe.

Japanese automaker Datsun is looking for a site for a U.S. assembly plant. Honda is virtually certain to build cars next to its Ohio motorcycle plant now being built. Toyota, Japan's No. 1 automaker, is "studying" the prospect of building cars in this country.

GM and Ford, however, seem to have the jump on the real growth markets of South America, Africa, the Middle East and Asia, analysts say.

Political reality dictates use of both local labor and locally made parts when foreign plants are opened. This means that foreign governments seek the plants as employers of their citizens.

When Ford of Europe decided last year to build a $330 million engine plant in Europe, Britain, Spain, Ireland and West Germany came up with offers of tax breaks, job training and other incentives.

Man killed, wife wounded in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — An Arlington man was killed and his wife wounded Sunday night after they were abducted from a parking lot near a downtown hotel and driven to an apartment complex on the city's east side.

The dead man was identified by police as Mickey Walker, 35, a sales representative for Lone Star Beer Co. His wife, Pat, 33, was in fair condition at a local hospital this morning with a bullet wound in her right arm.

Police said the couple were accosted minutes after they left a liquor wholesaler's convention at the hotel. A gunman ordered Walker to drive to an apartment complex where he took about $60 in cash and jewelry from his victims.

Walker and his wife were both shot once at the apartment complex. The man reportedly fled on foot. Walker apparently tried to drive himself and his wife to the hospital, but collapsed en route.

The gunman was still at large this morning.

Clipping, collecting cashing

By the Associated Press

That's the motto for millions of Americans who are clipping, collecting and cashing in coupons in an effort to cut grocery bills.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that four out of five families — 80 percent — use coupons today. In 1970, a survey by the Nielsen Clearing House division of the A.C. Nielsen Corp. showed only 65 percent of all households using coupons.

Manufacturers alone are expected to issue almost 70 billion coupons this year, according to the USDA, up from 62 billion in 1977 and 46 billion in 1976. (Those figures do not include the millions of coupons issued by retailers, usually in newspaper advertisements.)

The more than two billion coupons redeemed last year had a face value of $500 million, the Agriculture Department says. Handling costs totaled $150 million.

Most manufacturers' coupons — 55 percent — appear in newspapers. Sunday supplements carry 17 percent and magazines have 15 percent. The rest are included in product packages or sent through the mail.

The USDA says the impact of coupons on overall food prices appears to be minimal, even in areas where there is "double couponing," meaning the retailer offers the shopper twice the face value of the manufacturer's coupon.

No one knows whether prices would be lower if coupons were eliminated. The value of coupons last year accounted for only 42 cents out of every $100 of food store sales; $3 of every $100 went for advertising.

Getting the most out of coupons — or any other sale — requires thought and planning. If you buy an item you don't need just because you've got a coupon, you haven't saved money, you've wasted it.

You also should check for strings attached to coupons. Retailers' coupons in particular often require a minimum purchase. A six-pack of soda, for example, may be offered free or at a sharply reduced price if you buy at least $7.50 worth of other items at the store.

Cooperative extension service specialists from Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., say that familiarity with food quality and current price levels is essential if you want to get the best deal. Here are some specific suggestions:

— Make sure prices on sale items are competitive with other brands and alternate products. A national brand, even with a coupon, may be more expensive than a house brand without a coupon.

Ridin' fence — My kind of guy with Marj Carpenter

When I root for both the University of Texas and Texas A&I, I confuse everybody. But after all, why not? They don't play each other. Not since the 30s. But I graduated at Texas A&I, the winningest little college anywhere around. And all of my kids have gone to the University of Texas.

The other day, I finally came across a guy that is my kind of guy — he's a combination of Texas A&I and the University of Texas.

Richard Ritchie, assistant coach to Fred Akers at the University of Texas, may hold an individual win-streak record.

Ritchie has a 50-game collegiate victory streak underway.

He quarterbacked the A&I football team to a 39-game victory streak over a three-year-period. He took over for the Javelinas in the final game of the 1973 season, which A&I won, and the Javelinas went 13-0-0 in 1974, 12-0-0 in 1975 and 13-0-0 in 1976 when Ritchie started at the quarterback position.

During that same period, the Javelinas captured three

Four guards slain

Illinois, Georgia inmates stage riots

Georgia State Prison was "tense but under control" today. Clothing and trash littered the prison yard at the Pontiac Correctional Center in Illinois. Inmates at both facilities staged frenzied weekend riots that left four guards and two prisoners dead.

The southeastern Georgia prison in Reidsville, beset by racial troubles and overcrowding, has suffered recent outbreaks in which two inmates were killed and some 30 others injured.

On July 5, U.S. District Judge Anthony Alaimo of Brunswick ordered inmates segregated by race to relieve racial tensions.

When asked whether Sunday's disturbance was racially motivated, prison spokeswoman Sara Passmore said, "There are not enough facts" to determine the cause.

But, she added, since the riot broke out simultaneously in two wings, "it's apparent it was planned."

The violence erupted at 4 p.m. as inmates in two adjacent wings of the sprawling facility were being escorted to dinner.

According to Mrs. Passmore, a group of black inmates overpowered four guards — three white and one black. The three victims and another guard who was seriously injured were white.

used to ride around Kingsville and party here and there — whenever anybody would get in a disagreement or an argument and it would begin to get loud — somebody would stand up in the middle of it and say, "Here's something we can agree on."

He would tilt his glass upward and say "Fight 'em Javelinas."

The Javelinas like to win. They've only had five coaches since their first team in 1928. Their first coach, whom I knew and loved was L.J. Smith with a 611 record. He was followed by Bud McCallum (a great personal favorite of mine) who had a .659 record. Dewey Mayhew followed (and I knew him too) and his record was .546 and then my old friend and wonderful guy, Gil Steinke who retired with a .745 record.

You'll be happy to know that I don't know the present coach Fred Jonas, but I hope to meet him. I really can't believe that they have a coach I don't know.

But anyway, fight 'em Javelinas. Out where I used to ride fence.

Actually, Ritchie's streak is 55 if you include five victories chalked by the Javelinas during a three-week exhibition tour of Europe in the summer of 1976.

Back in olden times (my kids always asked me if we had automobiles) when we

Mrs. Passmore said the facility is presently 60 to 65 percent black.

After taking the guards hostage, inmates set fire to "bedding and things like that" and unlocked dormitory doors with keys taken from the officers, Mrs. Passmore said.

Guard Dan Harrison was found stabbed to death. Guard Preston Foskey, 32, was taken to Tattnell Memorial Hospital with at least 10 stab wounds in the neck, head, chest and arms and a collapsed lung. Foskey was reported in serious but stable condition early today.

The other two hostages were unharmed, Mrs. Passmore said.

The body of one slain inmate was found in a hallway of one wing shortly after the rioting inmates were subdued, she said. The other was found at the rear of a dormitory in the other wing an hour later.

The inmates' names were withheld pending notification of families.

Cavender said agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation had questioned the prison's 2,480 inmates, but he declined to say whether they had determined the cause of the riot.

Nanny has kid of own to feed

WALCOTT, Iowa (AP) — Orphan Annie's nanny is a real old goat.

Orphan Annie is a filly who had been abandoned by her owner and later adopted by Patti Kappeler and her family. The new owners hoped to keep Annie alive by feeding her milk from a friend's goat.

Mrs. Kappeler and her husband, Larry, were prepared for a four-times-a-day feeding chore until they found a solution right from the horse's mouth.

Mrs. Kappeler said she was having trouble handling the chore so Annie just walked up to her substitute mom and did the work herself.

'I know why I smoke'

"There's only one reason I ever smoked. Good taste. So when I switched to low tar, I wasn't about to give that up. If you don't smoke for taste what else is there? But there was all that talk about tar.

"Unfortunately, most low tar cigarettes tasted like nothing. Then I tried Vantage.

"Vantage gives me the taste I enjoy. And the low tar I've been looking for."
