You can count on 'em tumbling down Domino theory faces local test

By BOB BURTON
"Uh-oh, this is serious stuff," said Bob Speca as he first eyed the Dora Roberts Community Center this morning. The room was filled with clicking dominoes, and domino-players, but Speca still plans to put them all in the shade Saturday night.
The 21-year-old senior from the University of Pennsylvania will topple, with the push of a finger, 20,000 dominoes set up in the high school auditorium.
Many people saw Speca's first public appearance on TV, when he topped 7,000 on the Tonight Show. That segment of film has been frequently reshown as one of the best moments in the show's career. Many other people probably saw the film on national news from New York June 9th, when Speca tipped over 97,500 dominoes for the Hemophilia Foundation to firmly establish himself as the world record holder.
Speca admits that was the high point of his career thus far. "But," he says, "it started as a hobby, you know, something to do. My friends said it looked interesting. And of course the domino theory had been around politically for years."
He built his first design, a peace sign, from four boxes or 112 dominoes. "It was just a circle with some split-offs," is his reaction to it now, but what started so simply in 1973 is paying Speca's way through college.
"It looks good right now," he comments, talking about commercials for Lincoln-Mercury, endorsements of a product called "Tipovers", frequent appearances like the one in Big Spring, and authoring a book.
"It's not anything I'd make a career out of, though. I'm not really sure what I want to do after I graduate. I'll have a lot of choices to make."
He is writing a book about the domino construction now.
"No ten-year-old kid could set up the fancy stuff I do" without some help, but anyone can do the lines and turns. It just takes patience and you have to be ready to cut them off when your hand accidentally sets off the chain.
"A lot of parents now are giving their kids sets just to play with, and they'll set up some designs I've never seen."
But Speca's repertoire includes some pretty dazzling stunts, including the "Double-Helix", the "American Flag", the "Tarzan Swing", the "Triple Spiral", ramps, mousetraps and split-offs.
He is still looking for the ultimate domino stunt.
"I'd like to find fluorescent paint," he says, "you know, where you wouldn't need special lights, but the dominoes would glow by themselves, but no luck so far."
"Could you do the Lone Star flag?" queried domino host George McAlister this morning.
"I don't know. I'd have to see it first," replied Speca.
The 20,000 he will set off Saturday night will take him about 16 hours to set up and between 5 1/2 to 6 minutes to topple. The flag, for example, is made up of 600 red, white, and blue dominoes which fall in rows to give the illusion of wind rippling the colors.
Speca claims he doesn't get tired of the little black rectangles only because he only does it about once a month.
"During the summer it doesn't interfere with school, but the rest of the year, I just have to plan it for weekends and maybe miss a day of classes."
Accidents will happen in any business, but in this one, the smallest slip can translate directly into hours of work. At the world record attempt in New York, Speca was trying to topple 100,000 dominoes to regain the title from an Englishman who had run off 33,000.
"They showed the cameraman dropping his lens over after it started and setting off 2,500," Speca recalls, WORLD CHAMP DOMINO TOPPLER — Bob Speca, a senior at the University of Pennsylvania, is in Big Spring setting up 20,000 dominoes for toppling Saturday night. He's never seen Texas-style dominoes, and few Texans have ever seen anything like what he plans to show.

"but worse than that was in the morning when I arrived to find that 8,000 had somehow gone over during the night. I think it was cockroaches, because I found one hiding under a pile of dominoes."
"Sometimes," he added, "they just don't run off. Then you just walk up, and start them over again."
Speca, who hails from Broomall, Penn., has flown into Big Spring from the Portland, Oregon county fair where he set his dominoes up in the shape of a cow.
"I had to draw it on the floor first, which I usually don't have to do," he said.
Speca sets up all the dominoes himself. "First, because I'd have to pay whoever helped me, and second, because in Guinness World Records, their name would be listed too and it's kind of nice to have it by yourself."
Does Speca ever play dominoes?
"Not really. I only know the rules to the game on the inside of the Milton-Bradley box." He looked at the busy tables, the squinting, serious Texans. "I don't know this game. I've never seen anything like this before."
When Speca has tipped over his first domino, it will start something no one in Big Spring has seen before, either.

Domino blockbuster Saturday night

Shuffling toward title

The first annual World's Championship Texas-Style Domino Tournament, which got under way here with a Thursday evening barbecue in the Dora Roberts Community Center, comes to a halt Saturday not with a whimper but a roar.
The 132 players who registered for the three-day event were to further their aims for the title through four sessions of competition today and tonight.
The semifinals will be shifted to the Brass Nail Supper Club for closed-circuit TV Saturday afternoon and the finals will follow immediately.
George McAlister, director of the tournament, has saved some blockbuster entertainment for the Saturday night finale. He has lined up Jana Jae and her orchestra for an 8 p.m. performance in the High School Auditorium.
Jana is one of the world's great women fiddlers and a regular on the TV show, Hee Haw.
That event will be followed by an awards ceremony in the Auditorium, with Paul Meek, president of American Petro-Fina, sponsor of the tournament, on hand to present the awards.
First prize in the tournament, incidentally, will be $2,000. In addition, the winning tandem will earn a large trophy.
The crowd, following the awards ceremony, will then troop over to the High School Gymnasium for a spectacular domino-topping event by nationally-known Bob Speca, a senior at the University of Pennsylvania. That takes place about 9:30 p.m.
Speca holds all world's records for toppling dominoes he has arranged in intricate designs. The astronomy major arrived in town Thursday night and spent this morning mingling with contestants.
Gary Tidwell, who produced the syndicated TV show, The Eyes of Texas, has been on hand since Thursday filming shots at the tournament site.
Two news crews from WFAA-TV Dallas arrived by plane this morning. The first sequence of tournament film will be shown on Channel 8 at 6 o'clock this evening.
In addition, a crew from a newly packaged show called PM, headed by field producer David Goldberg, was in the group and will remain here through Saturday night.

Bob Lewis, who uses the air name of Tumbleweed Smith, was present taping segments for his popular radio show, Sounds of Texas, which goes all over the southwest.
The tournament has had a little bit of everything, including one candidate who suffered a heart attack.
A surprise entry in the tournament is Jim Smith of San Antonio, president of Tesoro, an oil conglomerate not unlike American Petro-Fina.
The Saturday session of play, which will clear the decks for the semifinals, will get under way at 8 a.m.
McAlister, who has worked unceasingly for weeks now to make this initial event a success, predicted that the tournament would grow so big in the future that preliminaries will have to be held. The size of the present facilities would dictate that.
Giant coolers will be installed in the high school gymnasium and the gymnasium to insure the comfort of spectators and performers.
Tickets for the Saturday night program are on sale for $2 adult and $1 children.

Detective Burson elected president of union 42 local officers join IBPO

By JAMES WERRELL
Forty-two of the 48 eligible Big Spring Police have opted to join the International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO).
"We are now Local 487," said Detective John Burson at a meeting and press conference, 7 p.m. Thursday. Burson was elected president of the local union for a 90-day period until by-laws can be drawn up and a formal election held.
Also elected were Patrolman James Van Ness, vice president, Lt. Arvin Henry, secretary, and Detective Mike Kelly, treasurer.

salaries, incentive pay for education and upgraded training as high priorities for the future.
"The city has proposed that we (the police) will get a five per cent raise this year and a five per cent raise next year. Compare that with the 38 per cent raise they are giving Spannaus (Harry Spannaus, Big Spring Airport manager)," said Burson. "It stinks!"
Proposed salary increases for city officials would raise police pay by $50 on Oct. 1, and by $50 more on March 1, 1979. Spannaus would receive a yearly salary of $22,000 for the next fiscal year, compared to $18,000 for the previous year.
The salaries of Big Spring Firefighters will also be raised during the next fiscal year to equal those of local police; a move that has created tensions between the two agencies in other cities. Although many Big Spring Police stated openly at the meeting that they thought law enforcement officers should make more than firefighters, Local 487 will work with Big Spring's firemen.
"We can do more together than we can apart," said Kelly. "We plan to solicit the firemen's support."

Present at the meeting were Richard Kesselus, technical adviser for the IBPO Texas office, and Jerry Waid, president of Local 584 of the Midland Police Department.
"If things aren't going right for you, go through the regular chain of command in the department," said Kesselus. "But if that breaks down, call us any time of the day or night. If you blow somebody away out there, call us."
Kesselus told police of legal representation available through the Brotherhood, and about how the union could help in a wage dispute.
"Our people can come up with exact figures, and comparisons of salaries with other departments. We also have good connections in Washington (D.C.)," said Kesselus. "When you guys can't afford to rub your noses in the political stuff, that's where we can help," he added.
Although police and other public safety officials are forbidden by law to go on strike, a number of methods can be used to achieve the same purpose. Will they be used here?
"We're here to enforce the law, not break it," said Burson. "We will not condone nor participate in a work slowdown, 'blue flu,' a work speedup, or anything of this nature," he added.
Burson then stated that the first goal of Local 487 will be to improve retirement benefits for local police.
"Improvement of the retirement plan will be our first action. We have some officers who worked over 20 years for the department, and they are making less than $200 a month on retirement," he said.
"At that rate, we have one of the worst programs in the state," added Kelly.
The two officers also listed higher

Offbeat: Naughty calls turn ears red

Big Spring telephones are turning a number of local ears red.
"For a while we didn't have any at all, but lately we have been getting five or six obscene phone call reports a day," said Big Spring Police Lt. Claude Morris.
The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will aid police by installing traps on phones where people have received the calls. County Attorney Harvey Hooser has assured police that he will prosecute offenders, according to Morris.
The offense is a Class B Misdemeanor, and is punishable by a fine up to $1,000 and a jail term of up to 180 days.
"It's not just one person," said Morris. "Our traps have picked three different people at three different locations."

Tops on TV: Sherlock Holmes

For a different look at Baker Street's most famous resident, tune in on "The Private Life Of Sherlock Holmes," 8 p.m. on CBS. Holmes and the ever-faithful Watson become involved in international political intrigue while on a routine missing husband case.

NEW CHARTER — Richard Kesselus, technical adviser for the Texas office of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers (left), and Big Spring Detective John Burson (right), display the charter which certifies the local police department as Local 487 of the IBPO. Forty two of 48 Big Spring policemen under the rank of captain joined the union.

Police unions growth fairly slow in Texas

Despite a growing popularity, police unions are still a rarity in Texas, according to figures provided by Richard Kesselus, technical adviser for the Texas office of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers.

"We helped form the first Texas IBPO Union in Beaumont in 1974. But it was 1976 before we really got going," said Kesselus.

Headway has been slow. When the Big Spring Police Department decided to join the Brotherhood, Thursday, it was only the seventh in the entire state to do so.

Of the IBPO's more than 52,000 members nationwide, only 700 are Texas policemen.

"We do not actively recruit new departments. In a situation like this, Big Spring officers will talk it up among other officers, and the word will spread," said Kesselus.

"We don't knock on any doors. The most we ever do is set up a booth at fairgrounds to provide information to those who want it," he added.

The Texas office of the IBPO operates out of Austin "because it is centrally located," according to Kesselus. It is supported by dues paid by policemen throughout the country.

The office provides an attorney, Joe Gilbreath, for members. He maintains a staff in both Austin and Washington, D.C., and is a specialist in civil suits, according to Kesselus.

"If you have a sore throat, you can go to an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, or you can go to a general practitioner. They're both doctors, but you know who will help you the most."

And, Gilbreath helps policemen, "he said.

The adviser stressed that the role of the Austin office is to assist the local organization.

"If Big Spring tells us they are lacking in salaries, we will recommend what is needed. We will see what it takes to live here, what the options are, and we will do the paperwork. Then the local can take over on its own," he concluded.

Dallas Channel 8 this morning. From the left, they are David Cejka, cameraman; David Goldberg, field producer for the syndicated program PM; pilot Mike Venable; John Gudjohnsen, PM cameraman; Foresyth; Jack Chestnut, Channel 8 announcer, and Wash.

Deaths

Noble Walker

COLORADO CITY — Noble Edward Walker, 68, died at 12:45 p.m. Thursday in a Big Spring hospital after a brief illness.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Colorado City with Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt, pastor, officiating.

Born Oct. 10, 1910 in Howard County, Mr. Walker moved to Colorado City as a young man and owned and operated the Walker Brothers Tractor Co. with a brother. He later bought out the company and changed the name to Noble Walker Tractor Co. He also farmed before his retirement in the early 1970s.

He married Blanche Williams Vowell July 6, 1977 in Colorado City.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Charles (Linda) Ezell, Colorado City; two sons, Lance Walker, Colorado City, Melvin Walker, Merchant, a step-son, Billy Carter, Colorado City; 13 grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Veda McKee and Lillie Robinson, both of Big Spring, and Stella Brooks, Coahoma; five brothers, John, Shirley, Deward, Carroll and Jerrold Walker, all of Big Spring, and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by three brothers, Dillard, Willis and Leslie Walker.

Mrs. Greene was born May 21, 1886, in Colorado City. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.P. Ruddick, a pioneer farm and ranch family. The Ruddicks came to Mitchell County in 1883.

Mrs. Green married J.H. Greene Dec. 2, 1909, in Colorado City. They came to Big Spring in 1937.

Greene was the manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce for 20 years. He preceded his wife in death on Dec. 7, 1963.

Mrs. Greene was a member of the Downtown Lions Club Auxiliary. A devoted wife, Mrs. Greene preferred to work in the background as much as possible. Her husband was one of the most active and popular chamber managers the city ever had.

A member of the First Baptist Church since 1937, Mrs. Greene had been active in the church until two years ago. She was a life member of the 1905 Hyperion Club.

Survivors include her daughter, Mrs. Joe Pond, Big Spring, her son, J.W. Greene, Abilene; four granddaughters, Mrs. Repps (Jo Ann) Guitier Jr., Big Spring, Mrs. Terry (Priscilla) Jones, Dallas, Mrs. Kenneth (Cynthia) Baxter, Dimas, and Mrs. Bryans (Brenda) Fitzhugh, Fort Worth; and six great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Alan Brelivet, St. Thomas Catholic Church, will officiate during the services.

Mrs. Escanuelas had been in the Big Spring community since 1939. She was a member of the Catholic Church.

She is survived by two sons, Ygnacio Escanuelas and Alex Escanuelas; two daughters, Petra Escanuelas and Gregoria Escanuelas, all of Big Spring; and two brothers, Gabriel Ortega, Loving, N.M., and Pablo Ortega, Lubbock; and fifteen grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by five children and her husband.

Escanuelas

Mrs. Pilar Ortega Escanuelas, 64, died at 11:30 p.m. Thursday in her home, following a three-month illness.

Services are scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Thomas Catholic Church, with burial in Mt. Olive. Rosary is set for 7:30 p.m. tonight at 705 Douglas.

Mrs. Green

Mrs. J.H. (Nell) Green, 92, died at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in a local hospital.

Services are 2 p.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church. Dr. Kenneth Patrick will officiate. Graveside rites have been set for 4 p.m. Saturday in the Colorado City cemetery.

Most of the morning was spent on an up-beat note, as area long-time residents remembered old-times together, and took part in various activities that had been set up by the executive board of the reunion.

Board members are Dwight McCann, president; Bill Henkel, vice president; and Mrs. McCann.

Registration began at 9 a.m. "Daddy" Don Brooks of radio station KHEM provided commentary, while the A.C. (Pete) Jensen Band, "Texas Brass and Strings," provided music.

In various morning contests, Susan Glaser and Tommy Burgess took the number one and two spots respectively in the egg race. In the Most Authentic Dress event, Fern Bedell placed first, Mrs. R.W. McNew second, and Mrs. Margaret Barnett third.

Leonard Johnson 92, won honors as the eldest man in attendance. Nanny Adkins, 93, was the oldest woman.

Emma Cathey, Fresno, Calif., traveled the farthest distance to attend the event. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith took the prize as the couple married the longest, 62 years, and Mrs. Claude Tredaway was noted as having the most children, with 11.

Ex-wife of Lozano files $20,000 insurance claim

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A Galveston-based insurance company has been sued for payment of a $20,000 insurance claim by the ex-wife of an inmate whose highly publicized death in the Ector County Jail has stirred protests among Mexican-Americans and a Justice Department investigation.

Rufina Lozano of Pecos, Texas, filed the suit Wednesday in 161st District Court in Odessa on behalf of Derek Lozano, 7, a child of the marriage, and the beneficiary of Larry Ortega Lozano's $10,000 insurance policy.

Her lawyer, Mike McLeish of Odessa, said Mrs. Lozano is seeking a double indemnity claim provided for accidental death.

An inquest jury ruled on April 12 that Lozano's death Jan. 22 in the jail was accidental, but Mexican-American leaders succeeded in getting the Justice Department to call a federal grand jury into session.

CRMWD execs review municipal consumption

Alerted by a record day for municipal consumption, directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District reviewed the outlook for water deliveries the remainder of this year and in 1979 when they met Thursday in Big Spring.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, said that on July 19 the district pumped 69,469,000 gallons of water to the cities, a new peak for them. Odessa set its record that same day with 35,610,000 gallons. Midland topped 15,800,000. Big Spring used 12,194,000. Snyder 5,145,000 and Stanton 520,000 gallons.

While the Lake Thomas situation is marginal, with a foreseeable supply only to the end of 1978 without more runoff, Paschall Odom projected levels of Lake E.V. Bristo to attend seminar on marketing, funding Larry Bristo, director of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, will be in Fort Worth Aug. 7-10 for a five-state seminar on marketing and funding rehabilitation facility services.

"Most rehabilitation facilities without a very established method of funding have some financial difficulties in day-to-day operation," said Bristo, "and I feel that the seminar should be helpful in developing funding patterns for grant applications from foundations and/or federal services. Veteran highway builder takes slap at red tape

By BETH FRERKING

Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Several years ago Dewitt Greer, then top administrator of the state highway department, traveled two hours away from Austin to speak at a Lion's Club luncheon.

Greer sat through the luncheon without uttering a word. As members filed out, the man who invited Greer saw the puzzled highway engineer.

Embarrassment spread across the man's face as he explained that he simply forgot to call on Greer to speak.

Anyone who has dealt with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in the past five decades won't easily forget the slightly built, neatly dressed engineer. September will mark Greer's 50th year with the department.

Greer served as State Highway Engineer for 27 of his 40 years with the department before he retired in January 1968.

Gov. Preston Smith appointed Greer to the Highway Commission in 1969. Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed him to another six-year term in 1975. Greer served several years as commission chairman.

Gov. Smith said, "If you don't take it, I have a certain political hack I'll appoint," Greer said.

"I think he was bluffing, but for the good of the department I did it, hoping I could divorce myself from detail," he said.

As highway engineer and

as commissioner, Greer believed the commission should leave day-to-day details to administrators and concentrate on financial policy and public and legislative relations.

Commissioners should be busy, achieved men with no political ambitions, he said. Greer certainly meets his own criteria.

He was afraid people might have trouble distinguishing between his role as highway engineer and as commissioner.

Greer, who looks and acts younger than his 75 years, said he misses the daily challenges of engineering. But his greatest satisfactions have come from putting bright young men in positions and watching them grow he said.

The department promotes its own employees before hiring expert outsiders.

Greer said.

"It's the greatest organization under one flag that I have ever known," Greer said. He thinks other department employees feel similarly.

But he thinks state and federal agencies have to go through too much red tape to get things done. "I think government is getting too darn top heavy."

Greer is proud the highway department has remained scandal free. His honesty and loyalty to the department set high standards for other employees to follow.

However, Greer's college buddies questioned his loyalty to their alma mater when he decided to teach highway administration at the University of Texas at Austin for four years.

Greer graduated from Texas A&M University in 1923, so fellow Aggies gave him trouble when he took the UT post after retirement in 1968.

"I told them, 'You boys don't understand. I'm boring from within to find out what they're doing here,'" Greer said.

When his UT colleagues asked why he was teaching in enemy territory, he told them that Aggies believe in sharing knowledge with fellow human beings.

Greer chuckled and said he switched his reason for teaching at UT according to the orange or maroon tones around him.

Before teaching at UT, Greer and his wife Helen (who died last year) traveled overseas to Turkey, Lebanon and Thailand to represent the United Nations.

Greer said he participated in conferences to plan roads in vast undeveloped areas, but the roads have not been built for economic and political reasons.

Commission makes ruling

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission approved, 3-0, today a proposed settlement of more than $1.6 billion in customer claims against Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

"The plan, taken as a whole, is in the public interest," said commissioner Jon Newton.

The proposed settlement would transfer Lo-Vaca and other smaller Texas pipeline companies owned by Coastal States Gas Corp. to a new company — Valero Interstate Transmission.

The claims against Coastal-Lo-Vaca would be wiped out, as well as old natural gas contracts which call for Lo-Vaca to provide gas at a much cheaper rate.

The proposal also includes permission for the new company to pass on 100 percent of its gas costs to customers, just as Lo-Vaca has done.

At least one lawsuit has been threatened if the commission approved the settlement.

Forecasters predict rain for Big Bend

By The Associated Press

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected today across sections of East, South and Southwest Texas.

The thunderstorm activity in Southwest Texas was expected to be mostly in the Big Bend area, forecasters said.

Highs today were to reach into the 90s with a few readings reaching of slightly passing the 100-degree mark. Clear skies were expected over most of the state except in the areas of widely scattered showers.

Thundershowers dumped mostly light amounts of rainfall during the night in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, in southwest Texas between Del Rio and Cotulla and along lower portions of the Texas coast.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s with some readings in the 60s in the Panhandle and South Plains. Extremes ranged from 58 at Marfa in Southwest Texas to 79 at Corpus Christi.

DIFFICULT TIMES WILL COME

BUT realize this, that in the last days difficult times will come.

12 And indeed, all who desire to live godly in Christ Jesus will be persecuted.

13 But evil men and impostors will proceed from bad to worse, deceiving and being deceived.

14 You, however, continue in the things you have learned and become convinced of, knowing from whom you have learned them;

15 and that from childhood you have known the sacred writings which are able to give you the wisdom that leads to salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 All Scripture is inspired by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for training in righteousness;

17 that the man of God may be adequate, equipped for every good work.

Electorate wants more than Image

It was a nice try but Jimmy Carter didn't pull it off. The candidate won a lot of votes by posing as the man 'from down home.' Once elected, he tried to create an image of Mr. Average Guy.

The constituency obviously wants pomp and ceremony and expects the president to grow with the office.

Public relations specialists newly hired by the administration will set about to cast Mr. Carter and his family in a new light, apparently in hopes that will boost his standings in the popularity polls.

"PLAIN OLD JIMMY" is going to be played down. The volume on the stirring music written for the chief executive, "Hail to the Chief," will be turned up.

The public relations people, knowing well something like that can be overdone, won't insist that a permanent honor guard accompany the president. There won't always be a marching band providing music in the background.

Those who have tried to cut Carter's image to ribbons might stand more in awe if the president strives to strike a more publicly visible posture in the months to come.

The timing is more than coincidental, too. By the time 1979 gets here, the streets and the meeting halls will be full of people who would dearly like to replace Mr. Carter as a resident in the White House and Carter, no doubt, will lend serious thought to offer again for the job.

CARTER LIKELY will continue his trips abroad for more summit meetings, at the urging of his advisors. However, his confidants say that Jimmy will step up his domestic traveling schedule, taking care to arrange for more town-meeting type meetings with the people in the hustings.

There will be an early 'fire-side' television appearance and perhaps another call-in radio session.

In sort, the Carter advisors will try anything as an attention-getter. Carter even takes time to listen to what the people are saying about him and are trying to say to him, for a change. So far, he hasn't appeared very interested in what the little man has had to say.

Bob Burton

Hey, I'm back

Around the rim

Well, I'm back. Actually, I wanted to write an up-to-date rim (no blabs here) about the state of foreign policy, or economic affairs, or gardening.

But I just got back from vacation, and to avoid any semblance of a busman's holiday, I did not even glance at a printed word while I was gone. Not much happens in a week, but the current affairs have definitely moved a measurable amount since I last heard the news, and now I find myself with no real opinionated tidbit to pass along, and with one recurring thought... more vacation.

BEING A YANKEE (or, being labeled a Yankee — I was not back in Big Spring an hour before someone called, "Here comes the Yankee!") will all the glee of a cannibal at the sight of a fat missionary in the deep jungle) I decided to go back to Yankee land.

"Massachusetts," it is pronounced here, although residents there have less trouble with the last syllable. Or, more specifically, Nantucket.

Originally a whaling port, the island (referred to as the "Grey Lady" because of numerous fogs, mists, hazes, and other moist atmospheric disturbances) is now a tourist resort, but without the MacDonald's, neon, and litter that usually accompany such sought-after locales.

Part of the charm of such places is their age. Houses on Nantucket date back to the mid 1700's and earlier, while hoary sister island Martha's Vineyard dates back to 1609.

Texas also has the kind of attraction only something really ancient can claim. Her Spanish missions in San Antonio are the oldest European-style buildings in this country.

BUT WHERE TEXAS has been hot and dry, Nantucket was cool and moist. Sun was available only in moderation, but that was fine with me.

That island is, I guess, to me what various other nooks and crannies are to every other full-time worker in the world. When things get tough, or tempers flare, thoughts of that particular haven release excess steam. When the routine, even the leisure routine, become a rut, the paradise beckons in the distance.

And for all of us, come March, thoughts turn to the beckoning summer and what the vacation this year will hold.

So now I'm back, as I said at the beginning, and my time there was, of course, too full and too short. Like everybody else, I could use, oh, two or three months off each year, just to collect my thoughts, regather my energy and direction, and head out again into the long year.

If anyone can think of a way to do that, just whistle.

Paraguayan hero

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Standing tall in the world spotlight are those heroic Russian dissidents who face harsh terms in Soviet prisons and psychiatric hospitals for the sake of their beliefs. But on the other side of the world in remote Paraguay, another moral giant deserves a share of the spotlight.

Last week, we wrote about the rare courage of Domingo Laino, who has been thrown into a Paraguayan prison for daring to stand up to Dictator Alfredo Stroessner. He returned to Paraguay, knowing his life might be in danger, after speaking out against Stroessner in Washington. He told us before his departure that he had to go back as a symbol of opposition to the tyrant's oppression.

ON THE DAY of his return, Paraguayan police forced Laino's car off a downtown street and dragged him from the car. His friends relayed messages to us from Asuncion that they feared he was being tortured.

The intervention of U.S. Ambassador Robert White appears to have had a moderating effect on Stroessner. A July 18 cable from the American embassy reports that Laino's wife and children have now been permitted to visit him. A panel of five doctors, including one appointed by Laino's family, have also examined him.

The family doctor reported no evidence of physical abuse, except for marks left by handcuffs. But Laino whispered to his wife that he had been handcuffed to a pole near the police mess hall for 60 hours, the cable states.

The police allegedly "gave him nothing to eat for 72 hours." They also forced him to face the wall "and only allowed him to look away from the wall when he could see people eating." Laino also told his wife, the cable adds, that he had been "subjected to verbal threats and abuse."

Just as the celebrated Russian dissenter Anatoly Shcharansky was accused at his trial of consorting with Western newsmen, Laino has been charged with links to our column.

APPARENTLY, STROESSNER is in an uproar over a story we published last December 20 of sexual depravity among high Paraguayan officials. We reported that young peasant girls, between the ages of 8 and 14, had been purchased from their impoverished parents and had been used for the sexual gratification of top authorities in Asuncion. The dictator himself had been seen at the house where the girls were kept, we reported.

The information had been smuggled to us from sources inside Paraguay. But the final confirmation came from Ada Rodriguez, a Paraguayan mother of three, who personally saw the sexually abused bodies of three young girls.

The horrified mother tried to expose the scandal. For her efforts, she was imprisoned, beaten and tortured. Fortunately, she belongs to a prominent Paraguayan family which obtained her release and hustled her off to the United States. State Department officials vouched for her credibility.

But the vindictive Stroessner has tried to portray her falsely as a "Marxist" and a "subversive." Now he has accused Laino of having contacts with "extremists" and "subversive" groups. One of the contacts, according to the State Department cable, was the courageous Mrs. Rodriguez.

The cable cites a police report charging Laino with being "in constant contact" with Mrs. Rodriguez during his recent Washington visit. Adds the cable: "Mrs. Rodriguez was cited as the source of two Jack Anderson, anti-Stroessner articles."

The cable also identifies other alleged contacts of Laino. One of them, Jo Marie Griesgraber, is described as "Maoist," which she convincingly denied to our associate Larry Krawfowitz.

Stroessner is a strutting general who has a military mind and military manners, a conniver who has mated the mechanics of intrigue. He has tyrannized his own people and provided a haven for Adolf Hitler's war criminals.

It is one of the great injustices of the world that Stroessner occupies the palace while Laino languishes in prison.

WATCH ON WASTE: There's no need to join the Navy to see the world. Even such an unlikely government agency as the Food and Drug Administration can offer a lot of free sightseeing.

Witness the jauntings, for example, of J. Richard Crout, a top agency official. In a recent 18-month period, he used official travel vouchers to make three trips to Geneva, one to Sweden and another to London.

Trapped by politics

Evans Novak,

WASHINGTON — Having announced a "rebuke" to Ambassador Andrew Young, President Carter finds himself in a political trap built by two immutable facts that are fully appreciated though never public admitted in his administration.

Fact No. 1: Young's interview with Le Matin of Paris, equating oppressed Soviet dissidents with U.S. "political prisoners," was no aberration but followed a pattern begun when he came to the United Nations. Instead of newsmen enlarging Young's every utterance as apologists claim, they have ignored most of his heavy rhetorical output. So it is fair to expect more of the same, although slightly softer. That happened the very day after the president's "rebuke" when Young reiterated to the International Herald Tribune the essence of his Le Matin interview.

Fact No. 2: No Carter administration official is more fireproof than Young. White House daydreams about easing him out were quickly obliterated by massive support for him from blacks. Carter political advisers concluded that to sack Young would risk the president's black constituency, still strong while other support crumbles.

THE PRESIDENT, therefore, is trapped by Andy Young. While Young's mere presence antagonizes many voters (quite apart from the likelihood of his future philosophizing), Mr. Carter dare not sack him. Having acted in haste to name a glamorous UN envoy, the president can repent in leisure about a no-escape dilemma.

"Outrage" was the most common word describing their reaction to Young's Le Matin interview among State Department officials, even McGovernite liberals. Yet what Young said was identical in substance to what he has been saying for 18 months, usually without anybody taking notice.

"I see my country as vulnerable as anybody else's around the table," Young commented last year as he addressed the UN Human Rights Commission (representing the world's most barbarous despots). While the Kremlin persecutes dissenters, Young pointed out, "many of our own students were shot down on their campuses."

But in describing the Communist world, he sometimes voices the axiom of Radio Moscow and Radio Havana that political freedom is subordinate to economic security. "For most of the world," he declared on Human Rights Sunday last Dec. 11, "civil and political rights come as luxuries... that are far away in the future." In the Soviet Union, he added, "human rights are essentially not civil and political, but economic."

While Young is unforgiving about right-wing dictatorships, he is lenient toward Communist tyranny. This climaxed in May 1977 in Mozambique, a Marxist regime with 100,000 citizens in forced labor camps. "East and West alike look to this nation with new hope and with new courage," Young said. While welcoming Communist Vietnam into the UN by praising its "struggle for independence," he ignored repression and genocide in the new Indochina.

These quotations and many more are recounted in a forthcoming "Commentary" article by Carl Gershman, executive director of the Social Democrats. He comments on "Young's apparent lack of commitment to political freedom and his ability to turn a blind eye to oppression" by Third World "progressive" regimes. Gershman reaches this conclusion: "Young finds himself today for the most part on the side of the oppressed but of the oppressors."

Since Young's philosophy conflicts with stated U.S. foreign policy, why is he not removed? The reason given at both State Department and White House is his successful conduct of African policy, particularly negotiating a peaceful settlement in Namibia (Southwest Africa).

Tenseness can cause 'P.A.T.' heart

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me some information about P.A.T. My son, who is 22, has it and is under a doctor's care. But I was wondering how he can take care of himself with this. How much activity can he do? He was told to keep doing everything as usual, but we are still worried. — Mrs. V.F.

"P.A.T." stands for "paroxysmal atrial tachycardia," which sounds ominous, but really isn't. Tachycardia is a "run" of rapid beats. Paroxysmal runs are those that come on abruptly and end abruptly. The atrium is the heart chamber (upper) where your son's originates.

They can occur at any age, and in an otherwise normal heart they can be little more than a nuisance. They can be scary, though. If he hasn't done so already, your son should ask his doctor about certain breathing techniques he might use to stop them once they come on.

The "P.A.T.'s" may disappear as he gets older. The problem is often found in tense individuals. Stimulants — coffee, tea, and tobacco — seem to prompt episodes. An overactive thyroid gland can be a cause, and it is wise to check this out by tests. The situation should not disable your son. The attacks are brief, and there is no serious or lasting effect on the heart.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a massive stroke four years ago and now is in a wheelchair. He is 74. He was told before the stroke that he was a mild diabetic and was given Orinase to take. So he took one a day for about a year. Now we have read that Orinase can cause strokes. He dropped the pills, eats everything now, and feels fine. Please comment on this situation. — Mrs. E.C.

It is not unusual for mild diabetics your husband's age to have vascular accidents, as stroke or heart attack. Orinase (tolbutamide), an oral diabetic medicine, is commonly used for such mild "maturity onset" diabetes as his. It works by causing the pancreas to secrete insulin, which is what is lacking in the blood in diabetes.

What you heard or read about the drug as a cause of stroke or heart attack is highly controversial and by no means conclusive. Perhaps his former use of it was sufficient to cause the mild diabetes to subside. But this is no more than speculation. He should get a followup check of his blood sugar.

Discontinuing controls, whether medicine or diet, can be risky for any diabetic, mild or otherwise. Diet and drug therapy go hand in hand with diabetes. If he's eating everything in sight, as you imply, he is courting further trouble by gaining weight and aggravating his diabetic situation. He may eventually pay a past due bill for this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has high blood pressure and is taking medication for it. What effect does high blood pressure have on sexual relations? Can he have sexual intercourse? Do the pills he is taking have any effect? — Mrs. T.T.

Ask me if a lame person can walk, and I would ask how far, how fast, and how lame? The same applies to this perennial question. Millions of high blood pressure patients continue to enjoy sex without problems if they use common sense.

Intercourse does increase blood pressure as much as 30 points in some. So does climbing a flight of stairs. There may be no need to avoid stairs, but there is no need to go about the climbing a bit more carefully. I must defer to the opinion of your husband's personal physician, who can lay down any restrictions or give green lights based on your husband's specific problems.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me where I can purchase the special doughnut-shaped pads to be inserted in the heels of shoes for relief of heel spurs. I have tried everywhere, but have not seen them. — R.J.B.

Any good drugstore stocks such materials. Just because medical products as this are not displayed on counters doesn't mean they are not in stock. This may sound a bit too obvious to mention, but I once got a letter of thanks for suggesting it on another occasion with regard to another such product.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. Write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68. A foot doctor says about 70 per cent of my toenails are infected and damaged extensively by fungus. He recommends removal of all nails to prevent further damage. Is this nail removal necessary? Would this interfere with my walking, etc.? — J.A.L.

Often, infection that goes rampant will necessitate removing the nail plate back to where it joins the skin. If there is pus under the nails removal is usually required. In certain fungal infection the source may be in the gastrointestinal tract, so oral medicines (as nystatin) can be taken. Extensive oral and local medication should be tried before removal of the nails.

The nail beds have to be protected after removal of the nail plates, and there may be some disability involved. You should be able to get around on a limited basis until the tenderness subsides.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you have to have a throat culture to tell if you have a strep throat or not? Some people say a doctor can tell strep by looking in the mouth. — H.L.O.

The only way to tell positively is by the culture. The germ has to be identified, and throat culture is the only way to do that. A strep throat usually comes on quickly, and there is fever. A sore throat caused by a virus, like the one at the beginning of a cold, is usually slower in onset. Both can produce redness and pus. The type "bug" is important, the strep germ being notorious for causing secondary problems such as rheumatic fever.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I want your opinion on the consequences of a prostatectomy. I have the sensation of orgasm, but no ejaculation. — C.A.

Not uncommon at all after prostate surgery. The ejaculation is probably "retrograde" — into the bladder.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am an old man now, and I have recently accepted Christ as my savior. I was a very selfish and unhappy person, and I wish I had my life to live over again. Would you warn people not to wait until they are old to accept Christ? It isn't worth it to go so long without Christ. — S.O.

DEAR S.O.: Thank you for your letter. No doubt there are many people who are like you were. The tragedy for many of them is that they will never really come to Christ and know the joy and peace He can bring.

You are actually rather unusual, because not many people live as you have and then turn to Christ in their latter years. The reason, I think, is because sin makes us hardened and calloused to God. The longer we live without Christ, the more insensitive we become to spiritual things. The writer of Ecclesiastes warned, "Remember now they Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not" (Ecclesiastes 12:1). He then went on to describe the infirmities of old age that make it hard to serve God. The Bible says, "He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy" (Proverbs 29:1).

You can rejoice now that you have found Christ. He has forgiven your past, and He has a glorious future for you — both now and in eternity. But it is natural for you to have regret over all the wasted years you spent away from God. Perhaps your words today are wandering away from God. Many young people think, "There is plenty of time to turn to God later. Why not live it up for a while?" But that is a dangerous philosophy. For one thing, death may come suddenly and unexpectedly and find us unprepared to meet God. "Why, you do not even know what will happen tomorrow. What is your life? You are a mist that appears for a little while and then vanishes" (James 4:14, New International Version). Also, God has a rich and full life for us here — far better than the empty promises Satan makes.

God bless you, and may your witness turn others to Christ.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: I just returned from the City Council meeting at which the proposed budget was discussed and approved on first reading.

Everyone knows a large part of the city budget is for salaries, and everyone who reads the paper knows the City is giving raises to all its employees, so it was no great revelation there was something wrong somewhere because no additional moneys were allocated in the proposed budget to cover such raises, Social Security, pensions, etc.

Being of the (apparently mistaken) opinion that a public hearing was for the public, and perplexed because I felt we were slipping back to the accounting procedures used here some 8 to 10 years ago, when no one except the city manager knew the true financial condition of the City, I stated I felt the printed budget did not inform anyone of anything.

Mr. Choate then informed me I should have come to their budget workshops, which he assured me were well publicized by the local news media. Does anyone remember reading or hearing about them, with an open invitation to attend?

I took the occasion, immediately after the meeting, to tell Mr. Choate I didn't buy the idea I had to attend their "budget workshops" to know what was going on, and that any citizen had a right to know, by looking at the printed budget, what was going on; and that his attitude in the public hearing was questionable.

Whereupon the mayor, red-faced and tight-lipped (I didn't know he had such a short fuse) told me my attitude was a disgrace...how dare I come to the meetings and question the members of the council...and so on. My only retort was that his attitude of "Benevolent Dictator to Bad-Citizen" was a disgrace, and left.

In defense of my "disgraceful" attitude at the meeting (if anyone else considered it such), I can only say I conducted myself as a concerned citizen; I did not raise my voice; I meant no disrespect to our Council members. The only four letter word that could have possibly been offensive was when I compared the present budget to past "Larry Crow budgets." For this I do not apologize. The comparison is a valid one. If the shoe fits, wear it.

NEW BUSINESS — A building housing a new business is taking shape on the South Service Road of IS 20 east of Big Spring. It will serve Wayne Jones and Sons, a firm specializing in paving and dirt work. Wayne Jones is assisted in the business by his two sons, Rick and Terry. Formal opening will likely take place in September. The building embraces about 5,000 square feet and cost about $35,000. At one time, Wayne Jones was employed by an oil firm on Alaska's North Slope.

Newsmen must have permits, Mexican government warns

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Mexican officials, apparently upset about recent U.S. news coverage of local events, have given notice that journalists from north of the border must obtain permits to work here.

A South Texas television reporter was taken to an immigration office here Thursday and warned not to return without a permit.

"They're very mad at you people," U.S. Consul Francis Arenz told a reporter. "They think you have a conspiracy against Mexico."

Jeff Walker of KRGV-TV in Weslaco was allowed to leave after the warning was issued. He and partner Jose Luis Madrigal were interviewing a police official when the immigration officials intervened.

"They said American news is no good for Matamoros," Madrigal said.

The reporters were working on a story concerning a Central American girl who was reportedly kidnapped here two weeks ago. The girl was located in Brownsville Wednesday.

"It was a bit of fear and a lot of confusion," Walker said after the incident.

The reporter said he was taken to an office while an immigration official called Mexico City. Walker said he spent about 40 minutes awaiting the official's decision.

He was told not to return without the permit and then to leave. No penalties were imposed.

Arenz, in a telephone interview from his office here, said recent publicity concerning riots and polio in northern Mexico has upset local officials.

"They think you're trying to kill tourism here," Arenz said.

Street rioting in this border town several weeks ago received wide coverage in the U.S. press. More recently, county health officials in South Texas have warned U.S. tourists to get polio vaccinations before crossing the border. The officials said there were reports of a polio outbreak in northern Mexico.

Arenz said the Mexican law requiring foreign journalists to get permits is rarely enforced. He recalled, however, that officials enforced the law for awhile last year after a reporter, also from KRGV-TV, did a series on prostitution in Mexico.

The required permit is free and is good for unlimited visits for six months, Arenz said.

"I try to tell them (Mexican officials) that the U.S. press reports the news," Arenz said. "The news has not been so good here lately."

Situation could get worse

Board reviews firings

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A special review board, established to rule on the possible reinstatement of some of the more than 170 garbage men and other city workers fired for striking, today begins wading through appeals from almost all of the dismissed employees.

Meanwhile, the angry ex-workers and their supporters, disappointed at Councilman Rudy Ortiz' failure to convince the city council to fire City Manager Tom Huebner, vowed to rally again today at City Hall.

About 400 chanting, placard-waving marchers descended upon City Hall on Thursday, hoping that Ortiz and Councilman Bernardo Euresite could convince the council to remove Huebner for ordering the mass firings of workers who walked out over wages.

But the council took no action on the motion after a heated session punctuated by shouts and jeers from the predominantly Mexican-American protesters. The council also refused to honor demands that all fired workers be automatically reinstated.

Eight of the 11 council members approved the firings before the illegal strike and continued Thursday to strongly support the city manager. Mayor Lila Cockrell says Ortiz' motion is "absurd." And Ortiz, who wants Huebner fired for "gross incompetence," admits he has only two votes.

Ortiz, who says Huebner is promoting violence with his tough stance, said, "This thing is going to escalate. It will get worse before it gets better."

Another councilman, Henry Cisneros, opposes the firings, but told the jeering crowd, "I do not believe that we have the votes or it is the time to fire the city manager. That is not the thing to do."

Cisneros and Joe Alderete, two of the five Mexican-American council members, urged the strikers to work through the review board to regain their jobs. "You can say fire Huebner and it sounds good. The fact is, if you want your job, the opportunity is there. There is no other way," said Cisneros.

Cisneros, who spoke mostly in Spanish was booed and Alderete was shouted away from the bullhorn.

But by Thursday afternoon, Public Works Director Frank Kiobassa said the board had received appeals from 170 fired employees. "Just about everybody who was not at work is on the list," he said.

The list included the leaders of the striking San Antonio Refuse Collectors Association. Assistant Manager Louis Fox, who chairs the five-man board, said decisions will be made on each case after the board has heard all of them.

Fox indicated an undetermined number of militant strikers will probably not be reinstated. The board reinstated six strikers on Wednesday after determining that the men had walked out because of threats.

Garbage trucks, again shadowed by police cars, covered about half of the city Thursday for the second consecutive peaceful day. Fox said the police protection, beefed up

Tuesday after sporadic, minor violence, will continue indefinitely.

"We'll hold it at about half the routes for a while, since that's about all we can handle from a police standpoint," said Fox. Kiobassa estimated Thursday that it will be another three weeks before garbage collection returns to normal.

Bundles of rotting garbage have piled up in city parks pressed into service as temporary collection points, but the situation has not been critical, officials said.

Artist of month

Chamber displays work

By CAROL HART

Art work by Bess Wagner is on display during the coming month at the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Wagner has been named Artist of the Month through the chamber. Mrs. Wagner paints with oils, acrylics and does pen and ink drawings. She explained that "my first love is oil landscapes and especially old windmills, old barns, old houses and trees. I also enjoy painting miniatures, children's pictures and whimsical pictures or cartoon type pictures in acrylics."

Married to Matt E. Wagner, the couple has a son and a daughter living in Abilene. The Wagner's have resided in Big Spring for 13 years. She is employed as a legal secretary for Lanny Hamby. They are members of the Baptist Temple Church and the Big Spring Art Association.

Winnie Unger was Mrs. Wagner's first art teacher about 10 years ago. She later took from Mary Raley, and is now taking lessons from Virginia Whitten. She has had short courses with Paul Kime of San Antonio, and Warren Cullar, Boerne.

Mrs. Wagner was a first-place winner in the non-professional oil division of the Big Spring Art Association Show in 1976. While in high school, she won a blue ribbon for an ink cartoon at the Oklahoma State Fair.

BESS WAGNER . . . Artist of the Month

Mrs. Wagner said she paints landscapes from photos that she and her husband take on weekends. She has four albums of ideas for future paintings.

Mr. and Mrs. Key announce birth

Mr. and Mrs. Randy E. Key, Sterling City Route, announce the birth of a daughter, Robin Miranda, at 5:15 p.m. July 25 in the Malone-Hogan Hospital.

The baby weighed 8 pounds, 10 ounces, and was 21 inches long.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clois Snell, Coahoma. Great-maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Cooley, Abilene. L.R. Newton, Holly, is another great-grandfather.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Connie Key, Big Spring. Great-paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Key, also of Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Tomme, Winters. Great-grandmother is Mrs. J.S. Conn, San Antonio.

Doesn't Like The Shapes She's In

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, and I've had terrible luck with dudes. I've had two illegitimate babies, which I gave up for adoption.

I'm ashamed to admit it, Abby, but I'm pregnant again. I will have to give this one up, too, because the guy I'm having the baby for can't marry me. He's in prison now and I just found out he's married and has five kids, so maybe it's all for the best that it worked out this way.

I want to put my past behind me and start a new life, but here is my problem: I have some very bad stretch marks on my stomach as a result of my pregnancies, and they're so noticeable I can't even wear a bikini.

Please tell me if I have to carry these ugly stretch marks for the rest of my life, or is there some way to get rid of them?

STRETCH MARKS IN THOMASVILLE

DEAR STRETCH MARKS: A plastic surgeon can tell you if your stretch marks can be removed. In the meantime, you had better learn something about birth control as well as self-control. I think you've been stretching your luck too far.

DEAR ABBY: This probably won't make your column, but for the sake of all men who have fat wives, I hope it does.

My old lady is 5 feet 2 and she tips the scale at 225 pounds, but as long as she is happy, so am I.

Our children love her. I worship her, and her friends adore her. She's a wonderful cook and housekeeper, and she always dresses neat and smells fresh and clean. She's never nervous or grouchy like most women who are always on some crazy starvation diet. To me, she is the perfect wife, and I tell her so. I couldn't be more anxious to get home to her every evening if she looked like Miss Universe.

SATISFIED WITH MY OLD LADY

DEAR SATISFIED: If you're satisfied with your "old lady," fine. But is her doctor satisfied? Ask any insurance expert how many years of life one can deduct for each 10 pounds of overweight.

Appearance isn't everything, but if you want that wonderful wife around to "worship" in your old age, start giving her some food—for thought!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is doing something that I think is wrong, but I need someone to back me up. Our son, 5, is left-handed, so every time my husband sees him doing something with his left hand, he gives him a smack and makes him try to do it with his right hand.

My husband says that when he was a boy he was also left-handed, or started out to be, but he had a teacher who used to force him to use his right hand instead of his left, and she finally broke him of the habit. He says he is thankful to that teacher because all the tools and things are made for right-handed people, and it is a handicap to be a lefty.

Is this true or not? Our son is now writing with his right hand, but he wets the bed. Please help me.
MOM: LONGVIEW, TEXAS

DEAR MOM: The inconvenience of being left-handed is nothing compared to the emotional damage a child might suffer from being forced to use his right hand. Tell your husband to keep his hands off the boy!

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Melinda Reid honoree at Friday shower

Melinda Reid, bride-elect of Marvin Casey, was honored with a bridal shower

July 21 in the home of Mrs. Billy Jack Darden, Coahoma.

The table was covered with a yellow underlay and white lace cloth. Crystal and silver appointments were used. The centerpiece was a basket-shaped watermelon. A strawberry tree, tea sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres were served.

The honoree was presented an orchid. Lavender corsages were presented to mothers of the couple, Mrs. Ronnie Reed, and Mrs. Monroe Casey, and grandmothers, Mrs. Quinon Reid and Mrs. James Walker.

Hostesses were Mrs. Darden, Mrs. Charles F. Madry, Mrs. Richard Milstead, Mrs. David Rhoten, Mrs. Ron Cohorn, Mrs. A.V. Lewis, Mrs. Bill Milliken, Mrs. Monroe Teeters, Mrs. Bobby Dodson and Mrs. Charles Parris.

Others were Donna Parris, Mrs. J.F. Bobo, Mrs. James Foster, Mrs. Tommy Wyrick, Mrs. Delroy Buchanan, Mrs. E.A. Richters, Mrs. Billy Spears, Mrs. Johnny Justiss, Mrs. Dwayne Clawson, Mrs. Boyce Sneed, Mrs. Don Myers and Mrs. Kenneth Scott.

The couple will wed this evening at the First Baptist Church, Coahoma, with Dr. Kenneth Patrick officiating.

Rice bag party hosted

The home of Mrs. Archie Segrest, Rocco Road, Sand Springs, was the site of a rice bag party for Melinda Reid, bride-elect of Marvin Casey. The event was Wednesday evening.

Hostesses were Mrs. Segrest, Donna Parrish, Kim Casey and Sonya Worthan. Chips, dips and soft drinks were served. Special guests were mothers of the couple, Mrs. Ronnie Reid and Mrs. Monroe Casey.

John A. Rebekah's install new officers

The regular meeting for members of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge 153 was followed by an installation ceremony Wednesday at the IOOF Hall. Frances Loftis, noble grand, was presiding officer during the business meeting.

Members of the installing staff were Ruth Wilson, district deputy marshal; Sarah Griffith, district deputy warden; Marion Saval, district deputy chaplain; Gracie Lee Grider, district deputy musician; Corynne Cunningham, district deputy outside guardian; and Lila Holland, district deputy outside guardian. The installing officers were members of the Rebekah Lodge 284.

Installed were Elizabeth Beck, noble grand; Terry Vigus, vice grand; Hazel Lamar, recording secretary; Juanita Hamlin, financial secretary; and LaVerne Rogers, treasurer.

Others were Lavelle Hill, warden; Mary Leek, conductor; Odelle LaLonde, chaplain; Brookie Martin, musician; Margaret Beechey, right support noble grand; and Melba Sutton left support noble grand.

Others were Alma Pye, right support vice grand;

Pat Kilmer, left support vice grand; Edna Smith, inside guardian; Desmona Martin, outside guardian; Gladys Fiveash, color bearer; Pauline S. Petty, right support past noble grand; Fannie Kent, left support past noble grand; and Beatrice Bonner, left support chaplain.

A program followed the installation. Mrs. Gene Beck, daughter-in-law of Elizabeth Beck, sang two songs, dedicating them to Mrs. Beck and Mrs. Hazel Lamar.

Elizabeth Beck and Terry Vigus served refreshments.

Going on a cruise? Better check it for sanitation

NEW YORK (AP) — An armada of cruise ships sets sail each month with high-paying passengers blithely unaware the liners flunk sanitation tests because of cockroaches, greasy dishes and nonworking toilets.

Consider: In its most recent summary of sanitation conditions aboard 74 passenger ships, the U.S. Public Health Service noted that 40 of the vessels had failed their last inspection.

Consider: Cunard's Queen Elizabeth II, with a minimum of $695 fare for an 8-day Caribbean cruise, failed seven of 10 inspections since last October, according to John Yashuk, chief of sanitation in the Health Service's quarantine division. Among its problems were inadequate refrigeration for food and food residue on shelves.

Consider: The controversy-tossed cruise liner S.S. America flunked an inspection this month by scoring 6 out of 100. Eighty-five is passing, Yashuk says two other ships have scored as badly.

"In 1975, when we revised the standards, not a single ship could meet them," Yashuk said in a recent interview from his Miami office. "Today we have eight or 10 that seldom fail."

What happens when a ship fails? As a rule, Yashuk concedes, the same thing that happened after the Panamanian-registered America's troubled maiden voyage under Venture Cruise Lines Inc.: Nothing.

The America set out June 30 with 900 passengers on a three-day "Cruise to Nowhere." Within 12 hours, the ship steamed back to New York to let 250 angry passengers off. They said they had no place to sleep and complained of roaches and toilets that didn't flush.

At cruise's end July 3, Public Health inspectors were waiting. After a partial inspection, they gave the America a score of 32.

That evening, the ship set out with more than 600 passengers on a five-day

"We're very dedicated to passing them. We couldn't operate our company unless we pass these things," said Cunard spokesman Rich Jachetti. He said Cunard hired staff to assure that its ships meet the standard, but declined to elaborate.

It is not difficult to flunk the test. There are 42 items. Failure to satisfy any one of the first 32 results in 20 points off. Miss one, and you've flunked the test. Miss three and your ship scores 40.

"The epidemiologists who helped us construct this form agree that any item in the 20-point category could cause a (gastrointestinal) problem," said John D-Agnese, assistant to the director of the quarantine division at the Center for cruise to Nova Scotia. At Halifax, 18 passengers left the ship. When the America returned July 8, Marie Chimi of Staten Island, N.Y., was irate.

"The sanitary conditions were very bad. The toilets didn't work. I haven't had a shower in a week," she said. "The health people had no right to let this ship go out."

But Yashuk, who was waiting with four inspectors, said he had no choice. "We have no authority to prevent a ship from sailing," he said. The inspection of the America that day showed the score of six.

If health officials believe passengers are in danger of getting gastrointestinal illness, they urge that the ship not sail until conditions are corrected. If the owners take no heed, the officials can order that passengers be informed of the findings, he said.

Most cruise lines are cooperative, Yashuk said, and, so far, all have agreed not to sail when he makes that recommendation.

At Travel Weekly, a trade newspaper that circulates among 23,000 travel agents, editor Alan Fredericks says some lines have hired staff whose single mandate is to see that their ships pass the tests.

Disease Control in Atlanta.

On May 20, the Queen Elizabeth II was judged "defective" on four items, failing with a score of 56. The items:

Twenty points were deducted on storage of cooked and raw foods in refrigerators; 20 came off because pots and pans were greasy and, along with some shelves, covered with food residue; 2 points were dropped because food was accumulating on a steam line behind kettles; 2 points came off because of roaches in the crew's serving area.

On June 9, the QEII scored a 98, passing with flying colors. Two points were taken off because of missing deck tiles in one kitchen.

Among ships that flunked in June: the Dutch-Antilles liner Statendam, the U.S. vessel Santa Mariana, the Italian ship Leonardo da Vinci, the Liberian-registered Kungsholm and the Soviet vessel Mikhail Lermontov.

While Yashuk hasn't much muscle to enforce the standards, he noted that anyone can get free copies of his reports. Further, some 800 persons, mostly travel agents, now receive monthly summaries that list the ships and whether they failed their last inspection.

Some travel agents pay little heed to the reports, however, looking to trade publications for information. Fredericks said Travel Weekly watches sanitation conditions but doesn't run a "regular box score." At The Travel Agent, a twice weekly publication, Managing Editor Richard Kahn said they "keep right on top of this."

And, muscle or not, Yashuk said it appears the tough 1975 standards that so many ships fail to meet are making a difference.

There were 11 outbreaks of shipboard gastrointestinal illness in 1975 and in 1976; during 1977, there were four outbreaks and so far this year there have been just two outbreaks, he said.

Debate turns into marathon

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House debate over a constitutional amendment on property tax relief has turned into one of those marathons that sometimes afflict the state Legislature.

Representatives go into their third day of debate today after working seven hours Wednesday and five hours Thursday without reaching a final vote.

Still before the House was the issue that tied it up for hours Thursday — whether to compel future legislatures to reimburse school districts for revenue lost to tax relief.

Senators, meanwhile, whipped out their version of the property tax relief package Thursday in about two hours, quickly agreeing 29-0 on a "compromise" produced by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The Senate then adjourned for the weekend. For the voters to get a final say on the property tax relief question at the Nov. 7 election, both houses must agree on the same proposal and approve it by a two-thirds vote in each chamber.

The House calendar for today also included Orange Rep. Wayne Peveto's massive bill to create uniformity in appraisal of property for taxation. Peveto, however, indicated he was having second thoughts about pushing for the bill, which is acquiring serious opposition.

"I'm just so disgusted by the whole thing," Peveto said as the House quit Thursday after two days of debating and bickering.

Senators voted, 16-10, for a resolution adjourning the special session at 6 p.m. Tuesday and sent it to the House. Hobby said he and House Speaker Bill Clayton had agreed to try to end the session a week before its Aug. 8 adjournment deadline.

The Senate's version of the constitutional amendment to ease property taxes would:

—Tax all agricultural land according to the income it could produce, not its value on the real estate market. Only farmers and ranchers earning 51 percent of their income from the land now qualify for such a tax break.

—Exempt $5,000 of a home's value from school taxes, with an additional $10,000 exemption for those over 65. Property taxes paid by the elderly would be frozen at their present level.

—Require notice and public hearings before local property taxes can be increased.

Hobby estimated that the Senate package, together with pending bills repealing the state sales tax on utilities and increasing inheritance tax exemptions, would save taxpayers $1 billion over the next three fiscal years.

THE SOUND OF BRASS

On a summer Sunday morning... at a boys' camp... a silhouette of the call to worship.
Interesting that man has used the percussion instruments to express the tempo of his excitement—and strings to translate his deepest emotions into melody. But generally he has chosen the brasses to sound his call to action.
Worship is action! It is our reaching out toward God.

Through centuries it has united men in their quest for truth. It has been the clarion of consecration, courage, commitment. It has inspired love and sacrifice, hope and resolve.
Make worship part of your life. Its trumpets call you to new adventures in the discovery of Truth... the journey to a lasting Joy.

VESS needs religious education workers

Teachers, social workers and religious education coordinators are needed for positions currently available through Volunteers for Educational and Social Services (VESS).

VESS is a program of the Texas Catholic Conference that helps staff low-income Catholic schools, parishes and social service agencies with the qualified full-time professionals they need.

Twenty teaching positions are still available as of August 12th, the beginning of the school year for VESS-affiliated organizations, approaches. Most of these positions are for primary teachers and for intermediate and junior high math-science teachers.

The requirements for these positions are at least a bachelor's degree and one semester of appropriate experience, such as in teaching, social work or religious education. One or more years experience and some Spanish are very helpful.

VESS members sign a 10-month service contract with the work site of their choice. The contract is renewable when the term is up. For their services VESS members receive $80 a month stipend, $60 a month food allowance, transportation to the work site, furnished housing with other VESS members, medical insurance and in-service training.

Further information may be obtained by writing Volunteers for Educational and Social Services Texas Catholic Conference, 3001 South Congress Avenue, Austin, Texas 78704.

Auxiliary Fellowship Thursday

The College Park Church of God Ladies Auxiliary has extended an open invitation to women in the area to join their fellowship each Thursday at 10 a.m.

The meeting is a time for sharing with prayer, preaching and singing, with a different guest speaker and singers each week.

Thursday's speaker will be Rev. Louise Gilstrap, with special music by Jerre Burden, Shirley Mullins and Judy Scott, a trio from the First Pentecostal Church of Big Spring.

cleaned up Birdwell Park. They filled all the trash cans in the park and made the area look considerably nicer. At right, leader Karen Barker helps Pricilla Sepuya pull a sticker out of her foot while Pricilla's friend, Melissa Jones offers encouragement.

College Baptists set film

SHIOKARI PASS, a new film from the producers of THE HIDING PLACE, will be shown at College Baptist Church 1105 Birdwell on July 30th. The one hour color release from World Wide Pictures will begin at 7:00 p.m.

SHIOKARI PASS is unique among World Wide Pictures productions. Although it has an English soundtrack, it was originally produced for showing to Japanese audiences. It was filmed entirely in Japan with a Japanese cast and crew, and depicts the delicate beauty of that country. The drama of the story unfolds against a backdrop of Japan's spring blossoms, snowcapped mountains, and whispering native music.

A true story, SHIOKARI PASS is based on the international best seller by Ayako Miura. Credited with creating a deeper understanding of the Christian faith among the Japanese people, the film tells of the love of Nubuo for Fujiko, and of his willingness to be guided by his personal faith, no matter how great the cost of commitment.

From its gentle opening to its gripping, unexpected conclusion, SHIOKARI PASS is a profound demonstration of the power of love in one life. There will be no admission charge for the film program.

MAKING MUSICAL TOUR OF OKLAHOMA, TEXAS PRISONS ... "His Children" of the First Baptist Church

Local preview Sunday 'His Children' tour

"His Children," the touring youth choir of First Baptist Church leaves Monday for their most extensive tour yet, visiting prisons in Texas and Oklahoma.

The choir will give a preview of their concert Sunday at 6 p.m. at First Baptist. The performance will take approximately 40 minutes and 10 songs are included.

First stop on the tour will be the Department of Corrections in Lexington, Okla. on Monday, with the performance for one unit beginning at 7 p.m. A second performance at the same place will be given for another unit at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

On Wednesday, the group will perform at the U.S. Reno, Okla. and on Thursday, the young people will sing at the McClellan Correctional Center in Farris, Okla.

Friday will be the last day in Oklahoma for the group, with their 6:20 p.m. performance at Springtown Correctional Center in Springtown, Okla.

Back in Texas on Saturday, "His Children," led by Joe Whitten, will perform at the Ferguson Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections at Midway. On Sunday, the group will perform at the Huntsville Goree Unit, at 8 a.m. before they begin their journey home, performing at Gatesville on the way.

STY STYLE — Ollie Clappett holds a two-week-old crossbred pig with a striped coat. Ollie's uncle, Paul Falkner, raises between 800 and 1,000 pigs a year on his farm near Lincoln, Ill., but says this is the first time he's found one with a striped coat. The other six born in the litter had plain coats.

Consumer prices rise 0.9 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher price tags for imported autos and recent increases by U.S. automakers.

However, airline, taxicab and long-distance bus rates declined in June, and gasoline prices dropped slightly.

Despite the generally bleak report, the department said the cost of entertainment declined in June by 0.2 percent because of lower prices for sporting goods, toys, hobbies and music equipment.

Consumer prices last month were 7.4 percent higher than in June 1977. The department said the Consumer Price Index stood at 195.3, meaning that prices were 95.3 percent higher than in the base period of 1967.

In advance of today's report, top presidential trade and inflation aide Robert S. Strauss said, "June is going to be another bad month."

In presenting his 1979 budget in January, President Carter predicted prices would rise 6.1 percent this year, less than the 6.8 percent price climb of 1977.

But food and housing prices shot up rapidly in the first five months of the year, and administration officials slowly raised their targets.

On July 6, government economists increased their inflation prediction to 7.2 percent. And on Wednesday, Strauss said inflation could "very easily" climb above 7.2 percent.

In the first five months of the year, consumer prices were rising at an annual rate of almost 10 percent. That means every product costing $100 on Jan. 1 would cost $110 by year's end if the trend continued.

Even though Strauss says the 10 percent rate shouldn't continue because of predicted food price declines, he concedes that the inflation of the first half of 1978 will make it hard to slow inflation sufficiently in the second half to hold the line at a 7.2 percent yearly increase, he said.

The cost of food, housing and automobiles led the big increases in prices, which have continued steadily since the start of the year.

Consumer prices would rise 11.4 percent if the trend of the past three months continued for a full year, the department said.

The Carter administration predicts price increases will not be as large in the next six months and is banking on a downturn in food costs.

The department said the average worker's purchasing power declined 0.4 percent in June, the second drop in a row. The worker made 0.5 percent more in hourly wages, just over half the increase in prices.

The prices consumers pay for food jumped sharply by 1.3 percent last month, and beef prices continued to spiral by 5.6 percent.

"Beef prices this June were 30.7 percent higher than in October 1977, when the current uptrend began," the Labor Department said.

The cost of poultry, dairy products, cereal, bread, oils and sugar increased in June, but prices of vegetables, pork, eggs and coffee declined from May.

Home-ownership costs rose 1.2 percent in June, as housing prices and mortgage interest rates continued to move up.

Electricity costs, which have risen rapidly since January, climbed a substantial 2.6 percent in June, the department said. A mail rate increase pushed postal costs up 14 percent, the first big increase since early 1976.

Natural gas and fuel oil prices rose moderately, while telephone charges were unchanged, as they have been most of the year.

New-car prices went up 0.9 percent after rising 1.2 percent in May, reflecting

Accused murderer dares to be convicted

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — An angry, defiant Theodore Bundy, indicted for the murders of two Florida State University sorority sisters who were savagely beaten as they slept, has dared his accusers to convict him.

"You told them that you were going to get me," Bundy told Leon County Sheriff Ken Katsaris Thursday night as Katsaris read him the indictment. "OK, you got the indictment. It's all you're going to get."

The indictment returned by a Leon County grand jury includes two counts of first-degree murder, three counts of attempted murder and two counts of burglary.

Bundy, 31, a convicted kidnapper and a suspect in a string of sex slayings in the West, was to be arraigned on the indictment today.

The charges came six months and 12 days after a lone assailant entered the Chi Omega sorority house in the pre-dawn hours of Jan. 15. He crept unnoticed to the second floor of the building and bludgeoned the sleeping women with what authorities believe was a heavy club-like instrument, possibly a limb from a tree.

The assailant beat and seriously injured two other sorority sisters before he escaped, unnoticed, into the night.

An hour later, a fifth woman was beaten in her off-campus apartment. Investigators have speculated the same person was responsible for both attacks.

The murder victims were Margaret Bowman, 21, and Lisa Levy, 20, both of St. Petersburg. Authorities have said that one of the women was sexually assaulted, although they've never said which one.

The three counts of attempted murder stemmed from the beatings of Karen Chandler, 21, Tallahassee, and Katherine Kleiner, 19, Miami, members of the sorority, and Cheryl Thomas, 22, Richmond, Va.

Bundy escaped from a jail

Smithsonian crafts show

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibit titled "Printed, Painted, and Dyed: The New Fabric Surface" is on display at the Smithsonian Institution through Oct. 15.

The show "includes 42 works by 33 craftsmen all of whom are concerned with the embellishment of preconstructed fabric with design and color."

"Among the objects are quilts, soft sculptural forms, clothing, wall hangings, a sleeping bag, a stuffed cotton 'music box,' a quilted moose head and a 33 piece chess set."

was raped and killed while on a skiing vacation in Aspen.

Bundy had been transferred to Colorado from Utah, where he was serving a 1-to-15-year term for kidnapping a Salt Lake City woman.

Authorities said Bundy arrived in Tallahassee no later than Jan. 7. Called a master of disguise by law officials, Bundy had assembled a new identity in Tallahassee, using a credit card and a student identification card to pose as a former FSU track star.

When he was arrested Feb. 15 in Pensacola, while driving a car reported stolen in Tallahassee, he so resembled his new persona that police announced the arrest of the FSU runner. It wasn't until the FBI checked his fingerprints that police realized they were holding the subject of a nationwide manhunt. The FBI had named Bundy to their 10-Most Wanted List Feb. 10.

Jim Sundberg...

Maybe you didn't believe your eyes when you beheld the visage of Ranger Jim Sundberg hurling bats and gloves out of the dugout shortly after being thrown out of a game Tuesday night by the umpire.

Sundberg, known as "Sonny Boone" as in Pat Boone or "Sunny Garvey" as in Steve, is probably the best catcher in baseball today. At least, he's the best young pitcher in the game. And his "Mr. Clean" rep just doesn't stack up with the ump-arguing which resulted in his boot.

Don't worry though. You won't see him act like that often. He's also one of the nicest guys in the game. And when other teammates call him "Steve Boone", it's because they like him, at least, that's what all the releases say.

"If people do think of me as being clean-cut, or wholesome, or whatever you want to call it, I like that," Sundberg said in a recent interview. "I like to think I set a good example. I want parents to think that this guy is a good example for them. I hope that's what's happening."

The Rangers' catcher pulls in a scant $150,000 on a contract that expires after next season. I say "scant" because for a team that pays Richie Zisk $3 million and Bobby Bonds over $2 million, 150 "big" ones is fish food.

Poor ol' recently "browned-upon" Billy Martin had something to do with the 27-year-old Sundberg getting his early start with the Rangers.

In 1973, Sundberg came out of a three-year stellar performance with the University of Iowa to sign with the Rangers and played Double-A ball. Martin got his first look at him the next winter at the Florida Instructional League.

At the time, no one knew much about Sundberg, but when Martin assumed the helm, all sorts of offers came from other clubs, and they all included the minor league player Sundberg in them.

"I don't know who this Sundberg is," Martin was reported to have said back then, "but as of right now, he's untouchable. Too many teams want that kid. I've got to look at him."

Presto! Spring training of 1974, Sundberg was there, and he's still there, despite a few years of batless manhood. Most fans agree he's the best defensive catcher in the majors, and from July of last year through July of this year, he's been a .330 hitter.

He's probably the best asset the Rangers have. Don't look for him to throw too many more bats and gloves out of the dug-out. A Reggie Jackson, he's not.

REMARKABILITIES

"Always the most popular Ranger among the fans, even in his low-average days, Sundberg is now being nominated for sainthood in Texas. So far, he's been given every honor the state can offer except for a ranch on the Pedernales River. And don't bet against that." —RANDY GALLOWAY, Sporting News writer.

"I have no sympathy for a self-inflicted wound." —LOU HOLTZ, Arkansas coach, regarding fumbles and penalties.

"I don't think my attitude has affected my play. But if you have the competitive spirit taken out of you, it's a tough game to play. Competitive spirit is mental. I just go out and play, but it's made me tired." —THURMAN MUNSON, Yankee catcher on owner Steinbrenner moving him from catcher to right field.

Lions win State berth

KERMIT — The Big Spring Lions of the Teenage League Junior Division worked their way back through the loser's bracket to win the District IV Tournament here.

Playing their fourth game in two days, the locals swept a double-header from the Marfa Bronchos, 7-2 and 21-0, to win the trip to the State Tournament to be held in Fort Lavaca, July 31-Aug. 3.

Donations totaling $600 were to be raised to send the second Big Spring Teenage team in two years to a state tournament.

Moe Rubio and Tommy Rodriguez each won two games during the district tourney, with Rodriguez sending nine batters down swinging in the finale. During the tourney, leading hitters for Big Spring were Tommy Olague (12 for 21), Mark Warren (12 for 20) and Lupe Ontiveros (9 for 17).

In the first game of the final day's twinbill, Rubio struck out 10 batters in seven innings, only giving up two hits and two runs. Lupe Ontiveros tallied four RBI's in that contest, three on a round-tripper, one on a double.

Olague (3 singles), Warren (3 singles), Tim Shaver and Ed Dominquez, each with singles provided the added hitting power in the first game.

The Lions needed only one inning in the final game of the tourney to salt Marfa away with a total of 15 hits. Winning pitcher Rodriguez only allowed one hit.

Greg Wright was the big stick in that game for Big Spring, punching out three doubles and two singles, driving in seven runs. Olague provided two doubles and a single, while Warren garnered three singles, Rodriguez grabbed a single and double, Tim Shaver hit two one-baggers and Blake Rosson added a single.

Last year, the Big Spring McMahon Indians of the Texas Teenage Senior League won the State Championship held in Waco. Former Steer greets, Frankie Rubio, Arthur Olague, Johnny "Bam" Jones, Bubba Stripling and others were on that team.

District Slowpitch tourney starts here this Saturday

The District VII Men's Slowpitch Tournament gets underway Saturday, 9 a.m., in Johnny Stone Park, with the final four games beginning 1 p.m. Sunday.

Sixteen teams are entered from throughout the district, including teams from Colorado City, Ft. Stockton, Lamesa, Andrews and Big Spring.

Small Tool of Big Spring won the district title last year and will be back to defend the championship. There is no admission charge, and the public is invited to attend.

First round play in the double elimination tournament is scheduled thusly:

9 a.m. — Big Spring Merchants vs Gold Trucking of Andrews; Westside vs Colorado City A's.

10 a.m. — Brock-Dibrell's vs Colorado City B's; Alberto's Crystal Cafe Cardinals vs Smith Plumbing of Andrews.

11 a.m. — Small Tool vs Jack Holt Trucking of Lamesa; Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. of Big Spring vs C&R Trucking of Andrews.

12 noon — Cosden vs Sutton's of Lamesa; Sherron Construction vs Pecos County State Bank of Ft. Stockton.

Matlack finally receives help from Ranger batters

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers finally got Jon Matlack more than one run and he was almost too sick to enjoy it.

A drained Matlack, who has permitted only seven earned runs in 60 and two-thirds innings, scattered seven hits Thursday night as the Rangers tripped the Boston Red Sox 3-1.

"I've had a head cold for five days and it's not a nice feeling," said Matlack, who has the second best earned run average in the American League and a mediocre 8-8 record.

In his last 34 innings, Texas has scored Matlack only six runs.

If Matlack had been provided with just three runs a game, his record would be 13-3.

"Those runs were a long time coming," said Matlack.

Texas got an unearned run in the fourth inning on Boston third baseman Butch Hobson's throwing error and rocked Luis Tiant in the fifth inning with homers by Bump Wills and Mike Hargrove.

Tiant allowed only four hits but lost his third game in 10 decisions.

Matlack yielded a third inning homer to Sam Bowen—the first major league hit for the Red Sox's utility outfielder—then cruised to the victory.

"It's a funny thing but the last two starts I felt good when I started but ran out of gas," said Matlack. "I think I need to sleep for five days."

"I had to be careful toward the end of the game. In fact I

Astros' Richard low key

HOUSTON (AP) — Although he has three 1978 two-hitters to his credit and is running away with the National League strikeout championship, Astro right-hander J.R. Richard is trying to maintain a low-key attitude toward his accomplishments.

"I just try to go out there and throw strikes," said Richard after striking out nine Mets while firing his third two-hitter of the year in Houston's 8-3 romp over the Mets Thursday night.

"Records don't mean anything to me. I just let everything take care of itself," Richard said.

Richard raised his major league leading strikeout total to 194 while improving his record to 10-9 as the Astros captured their fourth straight victory.

The Mets collected both hits off Richard in the fourth on Tim Lincecum's single and Willie Montanez' 14th homerun of the season, a towering two-run blast into the right field seats.

New York scored its only other run of the game in the seventh on walks to Lee Mazzilli and Doug Flynn sandwiched around three wild pitches by Richard.

"You have to put him right up there with the hardest throwers in the League," Montanez said. "He was throwing his breaking ball over for strikes, and when ever he does that you know he's going to be tough."

The Astros scored three first inning runs against losing pitcher Tom Hausman, 2-1, on back-to-back triples by Terry Puhl and Dave Bergman, Enos Cabell's run-scoring single and Art Howe's sacrifice fly.

Puhl's second inning sacrifice fly drive in Houston's fourth run, preceeding a two-run third inning highlighted by Bob Watson's RBI single and a walk by Hausman.

Cabell's run-producing single in the fourth inning and a seventh inning sacrifice fly by Watson accounted for the Astros' other two runs as Houston rolled to its seventh consecutive home triumph.

Rangers as doctors?

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The next time Doc Medich has to plunge into the stands to save a heart patient he may get trampled in the rush.

It seems Medich, a surgeon who seasonally swaps his scalpel for a turn in the Texas Ranger pitching rotation, so impressed his teammates last week when he revived a heart attack victim before a game in Baltimore that virtually the whole team has agreed to sign up for a course in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

"There'll be eight guys up there in the crowd trying to revive some person," laughed second baseman Bump Wills. "But seriously, it is something I've been meaning to get into for the past five or six years."

"I think it's fantastic that a guy like that, especially a ball player, can come right off the field and do something like that," Medich said he hopes to set up a CPR course at Arlington Memorial Hospital for the team during the next homestand that starts Aug. 4. He said his pregame performance in Baltimore probably had a lot to do with the team's response.

"I anticipated a good reception from the ball club," he said. "And I think almost every player signed up for it."

Among the prospective lifesavers is Manger Bill Hunter.

"I think there's 28 people who have signed up, myself included. So it's almost everybody on the club," he said.

The nationally televised game (ABC, 3:30 p.m. EDT) will follow the enshrinement of Weeb Ewbank, Lance Alworth, Ray Nitschke, Larry Wilson and Tuffy Leemans into the hall.

Griese, the Purdue veteran legally blind in his right eye, was forced to become the first NFL quarterback ever to wear glasses last season. He had been using contact lenses.

"The Dolphins are too young (13th year as a franchise) to have players in the Hall of Fame. So we send them mementos," cracked Bob Kearney, the club's publicist.

The shrine also houses Miami placekicker Garo Yepremian's shoe, the one he used to kick a field goal to win the longest game in history, 82 minutes, 40 seconds long, against the Kansas City Chiefs in 1971.

Griese was encountering vision difficulties as early as 1972 and 1973, but still completed 14 of 18 passes in consecutive Super Bowl had to be damn careful. I was so tired I could have gotten into a lot of trouble."

Boston, now just four and a half games ahead of Milwaukee in the AL East, fielded a patchwork lineup for the game. Shortstop Rick Burleson and center fielder Fred Lynn were out with ankle injuries and left fielder Carl Yastremzki has an aggravated back.

"It's going to be a tough race," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "I know it and I have known it. When we were 10 games in front I knew it. Everybody said the race was over but I knew and my players knew it wasn't over."

"I'll get my shortstop (Burleson) back and Lynn should be ready. Carl will be ready in a few more games."

Zimmer said, "We'll regroup in Fenway Park and Fenway Park is a good place to regroup in."

He said, "We are going to win three games from Kansas City for the Rangers."

Boston is 38-8 at home, but 25-28 on the road. The Red Sox have lost eight of their last nine games and seven in a row to the Rangers, who are 8½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

CORKSCREW — Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach works into the corkscrew flexibility exercise during training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif. Thursday. The Cowboys are training at California Lutheran College and are preparing to defend their Superbowl championship.

Griese will donate specs to Hall of Fame victories over the Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

He nurses the hope that one day he again will play without glasses.

"I'm not finished fighting the problem. I'm not giving up on my eyes," he said of the 20-200 vision in his right eye. Griese is expected to play at least one quarter as the Dolphins begin work on a bid to gain the playoffs after just missing with a 10-4 record in 1977.

Miami Coach Don Shula likely will call on heralded rookie Guy Benjamin.

Nelson, Hancock lead GHO

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Larry Nelson might be ready to adopt "I Love Hartford" as a theme song if his string of success continues at the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Country Club.

There were 69 players shooting less than par 71 at the course Thursday. A total of 25 more were at even par. PGA officials at the tournament said golfers would probably have to shoot under par to make the cut Friday night.

Hancock said his 64 was the lowest round of his professional career.

The early leader was Rod Funseth, who shot a record-tying 29 on the front nine. Funseth ended the day with a 65, tied with Artie McNickle and Jim Colbert, 1 stroke off the lead.

Six golfers were in a tie for third place at a 5-under-par 66. They were Dale Douglass, George Archer, Gil Morgan, Rex Caldwell, Lou Graham and defending champion Bill Kratzert.

Kratzert said he looked at the leader board before he began his round in the afternoon "and saw Larry Nelson was 8-under. I was already 8 shots behind."

At 67 were Carlton White, Lee Elder, Jay Haas, Bob Murphy, Leonard Thompson, Calvin Peete, Mark Hayes and Mark Lye. Another stroke behind at 3-under-par were Pat McGowan, Jim Nelford, Lee Mikles, Stan Lee, Tim Simpson, Roger Maltbie, Craig Stadler, Tom Storey, Larry Ziegler, Jim Simons, Orville Moody and Bob Eastwood.

Andy Bean, the top 1978 money winner on the PGA tour, withdrew Thursday afternoon after shooting a 75. Bean reported he was suffering from a stomach virus and couldn't continue.

Also withdrawing were Danny Edwards, Jerry McGee and Bill Mallon.

Rose will try for 40 today

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose says opposing pitchers haven't seen anything yet, despite the fact his current hitting streak has now reached 39 games.

He could tie Ty Cobb's 40-game streak tonight by hitting safely in the first game of the Reds' twin-night doubleheader against Philadelphia.

"I've got a feeling that the day after I go 0-4, I'll really get hot," said the Cincinnati Reds third baseman Thursday. "During the streak, I've had no luck. I've hit a lot of line drives that went for outs."

A lot of line drives, however, have dropped in for hits, enough to boost his batting average to .311, within striking distance of the National League lead. During the streak, which began June 14, he has batted .380.

While many of his teammates relaxed on the off-day here Thursday, Rose worked out for about an hour in preparation for the Philadelphia Phillies who are here tonight for a twin-night doubleheader.

"I want to keep the adrenalin going," said Rose, who usually takes batting practice on the Reds' off-days.

A standing room only crowd of more than 51,000 fans was expected to watch tonight. He could tie George Sisler's 41-game mark by getting a hit in the second game.

Casper is rule-unhappy

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Dave Casper of the Oakland Raiders, who has topped the National Football League's tight ends in pass catches the last two seasons, is unhappy with a league rule change that is supposed to help receivers.

The rule change limits defenders to one bump within 5 yards of the line of scrimmage and then orders hands-off for both players downfield.

"If you're running downfield on a pattern and you let a guy get close enough to hit you, he should hit you," Casper said Thursday. "And then you defend yourself and whoever makes it out of the collision comes out running. There's no big deal there."

"But now you're gonna need some basketball officials out there to figure out who's really running into who."

Stockton is upset

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Unseeded Nick Saviano recovered from an early loss and went on to post an upset victory over sixth-seeded Dick Stockton in the ninth annual $175,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic.

Saviano, of Riverdale, N.J., defeated Stockton 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 after losing the opening-set tiebreaker 8-6.

"It was really disheartening to lose that first set," said Saviano. "Dick missed a few shots in the second set and let me back in. I didn't think that Dick played that well."

Duo leads German Open

COLOGNE, West Germany — Severino Ballesteros of Spain and Britain's Nick Faldo shot course-record 64s, 8 under par, to share the first-round lead in the $60,000 German Open golf tournament.

Simon Hobday shot a 66 to finish in a third-place tie with South African countryman John Fourie and Britain's John Morgan.

Gary Player of South Africa was at 67 along with Americans Bob Beaman and John Benda, Maurice Bembridge and John Fowler of Britain, and Ireland's John O'Leary.

All-Stars play tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — South All-Star basketball Coach Bob Latham of Houston Westchester says he's going to try something different against the North tonight in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star basketball game—play tough defense.

"These all-star games usually turn into free wheeling shooting games but we're actually going to try and play some defense," said Latham, who must overcome the North's superior height.

A victory by the South also would even the 34-game series at 17-17 and give the Rebs three straight victories.

"I'm sure there will be some running but we're going to have to play some defense if we have a chance to win," said Latham.

North Coach Al Oglesby of Odessa Permian has the luxury of five players over 6-6, including Anthony Lee of Tyler and James Griffin of Fort Worth Dunbar, both 6-9 and Lamesa's Eddy Kerr, the tallest player in the game at 6-10.

Lee, who averaged 23 points as a senior last season and plans to attend the University of Washington this fall, has issued a warning to any South player who might try to penetrate the North's inside defenses.

"There's no way they (South) are going to mess with us inside," Lee said. "I feel the South will have to shoot from the outside because the North will be the inside blocked."

Lee and Griffin, scheduled to attend the University of Illinois, likely will get plenty of help from Whitehouse's Dwight Pettigrew, David Little of Abilene and Mike Allen of Highland Park.

Carner seeks third win

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — JoAnne Carner, recognized as one of the longer hitters on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, seeks her third victory of this year's tour on a Plymouth Country Club Course that favors players who can knock their drives straight and far.

Carner, who finished in a tie for second one stroke behind Hollis Stacy in last week's U.S. Open, has already won twice at the 6,225-yard, par-73 course.

Last year, Carner tied for fifth place, four strokes off the pace set by winner Debbie Austin.

A $60,000 purse and the scheduling of the tournament between a pair of 72-hole tournaments that offer $100,000 purses has produced a field lacking many of the top women players, including the tour's leading money-winner, Nancy Lopez.

Stacy also is skipping the 54-hole tournament, which began today, along with Donna Caponi Young, Laura Baugh, Sally Little and Sandra Post.

Austin, who shot a 67 on the final day of last year's tournament to finish two strokes ahead of Jan Stephenson and Judy Rankin, is seeking her second tour victory of 1978. The 30-year-old began the year by capturing the American Cancer tournament in Miami — her sixth victory since turning pro in 1968.

Government to loosen home brew regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Little old winemakers of America, rejoice. Amateur brewmeisters, take heart. Raise a toast to the sober-minded gents of the Senate Finance Committee, doing what they can to make your lot an easier one. In less time than it takes to drain a glass, the committee approved legislation Thursday to loosen government regulation over home winemakers and to make it legal at last to brew beer for home consumption. Legislation to revise the current home wine and beer law already has passed the House of Representatives, and a vote by the full Senate is the next step.

Not that there ever was much of a threat, of course, for breaking the brew law. "There has not been a home brew case made since Prohibition," Tracy Cook, a spokeswoman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said Thursday.

The Senate Finance Committee proposal would end the requirement that Americans register with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms before they make wine at home for family use. That would lighten the burden of government regulation for an estimated 21,000 persons the ATF received forms from last year. Current law says the head of a household can produce up to 200 gallons of wine a year for family use without having to pay the usual federal excise tax, which varies with alcohol content.

But single adults who are not heads of families can't make any. The proposed change would allow a person who is the only adult in a household to make up to 100 gallons. The committee wasn't so loose in dealing with the makers of home-brewed beer. The legislation would end the current prohibition against making beer at home, widely believed to be ignored anyway. But at the same time brewers would have to register with the government to avoid paying the tax commercial breweries pay.

The ATF spokesman said the agency is more concerned about beer makers, since officials fear the mash could also be used for making whiskey, which still would be illegal if the measure passed.

Under the proposal, a single adult could make 100 gallons of beer a year and remain inside the law. The amount could be raised to 200 gallons if more than one adult lived in the household. Still, it would be illegal to have more than 30 gallons of beer on hand at a time, including beer in the process of fermenting.
